Berserk Gunman Slays 3

DAYTON, Ohio—UP—A berserk gunman who said he did it for his God, charged into two downtown banks Tuesday and shot and killed three persons, including a former football coach, before he was fatally wounded himself by police bullets. Killed were: Former University of Dayton Football Coach Joe Gavin, who died in a hospital shortly after being shot in the head. Mrs. Fred Cramer, a secretary at the Third National Bank, who died of chest wounds. George Sawaya, a market operator, who died on the scene.

The gunman was identified as Richard Meyers, 46, of the Samu hotel, who told police on the way to the hospital that he did it for his God. He died about two hours after the shooting. The shooting occurred in the busiest intersection in downtown Dayton, Sounds of the shot sent people scurrying for shelter. Police said Meyers walked into the lobby of the Third National Bank and first shot a secretary, Mrs. Cramer, point blank in the chest. He then shot Sawaya and wheeled around and fired at the bank's vice president, W. C. Sherman.

The berserk man then started spraying shots about the bank, hitting two patrons. After he emptied his gun, he walked out and into the Winters National Bank. There, he shot R. H. Kastner, assistant vice president, who was seated at a desk just inside the door. Meyers walked back into the middle of the bank where he exchanged shots with Guard John Theim. Theim returned one shot before three policemen, who were passing by, came to investigate. Theim was grazed on the cheek by a bullet. Patrolman Nick Mosconi and Sgt. J. F. Thomas emptied their pistols at the crazed man. But bullets from the gun of Patrolman L. B. Proffitt were believed those which found their mark.

Mental Health Group Work Geared To Teach Retarded

NEW YORK—UP—Against a background of nationwide concern over juvenile delinquency, the National Association for Mental Health has projected the experiences of a teaching supervisor of mentally retarded children. His experiences have been that (1) The tests in common use in schools do not always detect vision defects in children, (2) Teachers have an arbitrary but unjustified faith in these tests, and (3) Defects in vision slow up the development of a child's mentality, give him an IQ which is below his actual mental capacities, and often make him a juvenile delinquent. Frederick W. Brown, who is in charge of "special classes" at a Floral Park, N.Y., high school, said 30 or more of his mentally retarded children had been classified by school tests as having "perfect vision" yet had been struggling since birth against the crippling handicap of poor vision. Teachers had believed the tests, not the children.

Dumb and Hostile All the children had low recorded IQ's. Their school records were of "non-co-operation and aggressive misbehavior," he said. "They are convinced that they cannot learn from books because they are 'dumb' and are actively hostile towards education in general and teachers in particular. 'Most of these children, after the defects have been corrected by glasses, increase their reading ability to nearly normal for their grade level within a year or two, enter regular classes and graduate. The most extensive improvement was shown by a girl whose reading level rose from fourth to 11th grade in one year, whose IQ changed from 72 to 115, and who was on the honor roll during her last two years in high school. 'The quickest and most complete personality change was that of Pat, a tough little Irish boy who could not (or would not) read at all. He was sullen and profane, never smiled except in derision, and went out of his way to quarrel with everyone, including me. This lad's vision defect was found at last, and 'he learned to read well within a year. ... A week after he began wearing glasses he was a laughing, friendly boy who was taking girls to the movies. He stopped after class one day to tell me, 'I thought all the boys were crazy, raving about girls. They all looked like bags to me. But, now! Gee, I never knew what a girl looked like till I got my glasses.' His Own Son 'Bad' Brown cited his own son who, according to the commonly-used school tests, had "perfect vision." When the third grade boy said he couldn't see the blackboard, "the principal called him a liar before his classmates." The lad talked back and was sent home as 'a bad boy.' I have no doubt whatever that, like Pat, he would have been made a retarded problem-child with a low IQ had it not been that his irate father believed him when he said he could not see," Brown said. The boy now is in college and has high grades. Brown's report was made to a meeting of psychiatrists more than a year ago. Juvenile delinquency wasn't a top subject then and no one noticed. But it's a top subject now and for that reason the National Association for Mental Health revived it.

Kirk Douglas Writes About His 10 Years In Hollywood

EDITOR'S NOTE—Aline Mosby is on vacation. For today's guest column, actor Kirk Douglas writes about his Hollywood memories.)

By KIRK DOUGLAS Written for the United Press HOLLYWOOD—UP— I see by the calendar that I have been in Hollywood for 10 years. Well, that's a nice round number and I don't aim to dispute it. But statistics are cold and a man remembers events, not numbers. I remember the day in 1945 that I stepped off the train in Los Angeles Union Station, an actor out of a modestly successful Broadway play, another young hopeful in town for a screen test.

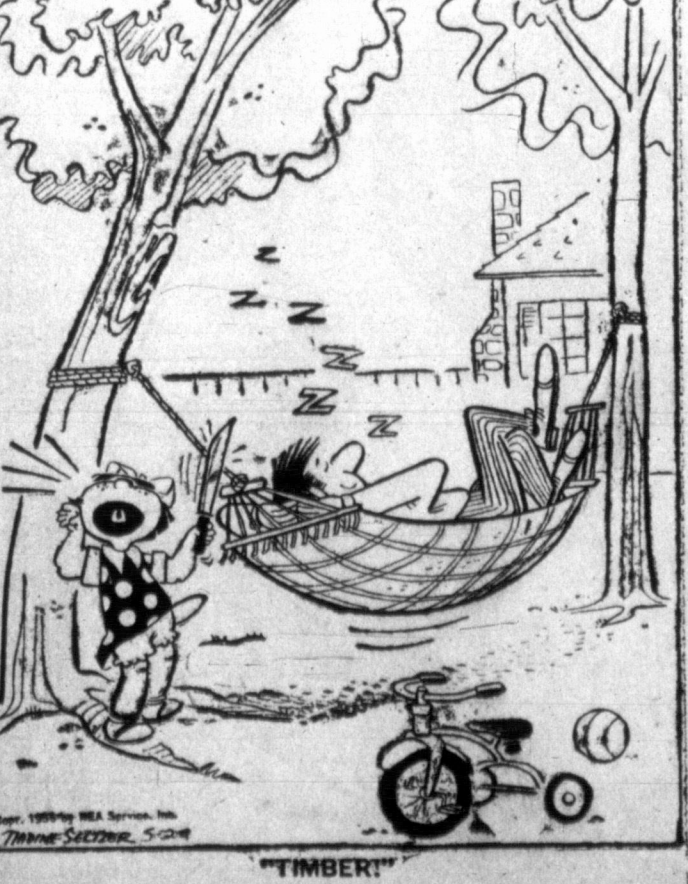

I remember the agency sent a third assistant sub-agent to meet me. (He now runs a popular New York restaurant and I wish I had 10 per cent of him.) I remember my elation when "Champion" was a hit and the satisfaction of seeing my name in lights. I remember fine roles in fine movies. Now that I have started my own company, Bryna Productions, and supervised the million details that went into the making of my first film, "The Indian Fighter," I think often of those carefree, uncomplicated days when I was only an actor.

But my most cherished memory, the biggest thrill of my career, took place in 60 minutes one March night in 1950. I had been nominated for an academy award for my performance in "Champion." On my way to the awards, I thought of—and discarded—a hundred different acceptance speeches. I settled on one. I would tell everyone that this was the realization of a dream. My mother, when she lived in Russia, believed that the streets of America were paved with gold. Naturally, I would continue, she found that was not true—but she also found something better than gold in the streets: A chance to raise her children in freedom, a chance for her children to pursue their personal dreams.

The golden statuette proved, I was going to conclude, that her dream had been a good dream—maybe the streets weren't golden, but the opportunities were. Well, sir, it was the best speech I never made, because a wonderful guy named Broderick Crawford won the award. I confess I felt cheated—but only because I had wanted to pay special recognition to my mother, a remarkable woman. That's why I took her name, Bryna, for my new company. I want to be certain, this time, that she receives her reward.

'Amateur' Robs Bank Of $500

LUTHER, Okla.—UP—An "amateur" bank bandit robbed the First National Bank here of $500 at noon Tuesday. Bank President I. F. Baird said the gunman, wearing a business suit and carrying a revolver with a "long barrel," told him to fill up a leather satchel with money. Baird opened the bank safe in the vault and put $500, all in new $1 bills, in the satchel. Then, with the gunman standing outside the vault, Baird closed the safe. The gunman, flustered, warned employees not to telephone and fled in a gray, 1941 model automobile. A passerby got the tag number of the car. "He's an amateur, I'm sure," said Baird. One customer and two clerks, Mary Ann Fent and Mary Simpson, were in the bank at the time. Baird said the two women "acted like veterans."

The bank, 15 miles northeast of Oklahoma City, was robbed of about $2,000 three years ago. Baird said he first refused to give the robber any money, but the gunman said "am I going to have to shoot you?" Baird said he was frightened after he had closed the safe door, "but I'm getting over it now." "He told us not to try to use the telephone, but we did it just as soon as he got out," Baird said. "If a man's not holding a gun on me, I'm my own boss."

Gullible Thief HARTFORD, Conn.—UP—Mrs. Ann J. Papandrea thwarted a hold-up man by telling him, "All the cash is in our other building." After the bandit had fled, she told police that a safe directly behind her was "loaded."

Official Guide At Capitol Knows Most About Things

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
WASHINGTON —UP— Myrtle Cheney Murdock is an official guide on Capitol Hill, and if anybody knows more about things around Washington—show me her she.

For 16 years Mrs. Murdock was hand-holder and secretary to her hubby, John J. Murdock, who was a law-giver from Arizona. She was a school teacher when she was only 15 back in Missouri. She got herself a flock of college degrees. But more to the point, Mrs. Murdock is a student of what is forever under her pretty nose—the nation's capital.

She spent a lot of time tracking down the big names that have made America great—the likeness of folks who are in granite and bronze in national statutory hall. And that is just what she calls her new illustrated book—"National Statuary Hall".

Any school kid who ever has visited Washington can tell you that every state is represented someplace around the Capitol in metal or mixed up cement. Now there are 48 of the statues, with an inscription under each, tracing the line of our history from 1607 up to Tuesday.

I was ashamed to admit that on looking over the statues I didn't recognize a huge likeness of a man who called himself a native of Illinois, or often has been described as such, Gen. James Shields, actually was born in Ireland, in 1810. He "immigrated," it says on the plaque, to Kaskaskia, Ill., in 1823. He was a lawyer and not only that, but a Supreme Court judge, too. And also, he was unique in that he was a senator from three states. The fact was new to me. First, the Brigadier General became a member of the Senate from Illinois. That was in 1849. Right after he served his term he moved to Minnesota.

In 1858, he decided to run for the Senate in the Gopher State and durned if he didn't come up on top. Then the general moved to California, but according to the records wasn't very active in politics.

California sunshine didn't do the general any good, so he decided to pack his duffle and move to Carrollton, Mo., where he entered politics again and wound up as a member of the Missouri General Assembly.

He tried out for the U. S. Senate and made it in 1879.

Scattered in six places around the Capitol area are statues of the very great in our history, National Statuary Hall, actually, epitomizes the story of America. There you find Lincoln, George Washington, Samuel Adams, Jefferson Davis, Daniel Webster, Will Rogers, even. Some in public life, and a few like the immortal Will, who knew, he said, "only what he read in the papers."

Sen. Joshua B. Lee, of Oklahoma, who delivered a speech on the dedication of the Will Rogers statue in 1939 described the old ropewalker as the "big brother of the world." So Will was, and so in the hall of names were many another great American.

Parr Pleads Not Guilty

SAN ANTONIO —UP— South Texas political boss George Parr pleaded innocent Tuesday to three counts of income tax evasion, and arguments on the plea were set for Friday morning by Federal Judge Ben H. Rice Jr.

Parr was indicted May 4 for income tax evasion for the calendar years of 1949, 1950 and 1951. The indictments were similar to ones returned earlier in Houston that later were dismissed in favor of those to which Parr pleaded innocent Tuesday.

Parr and his attorneys appeared only briefly in court Tuesday. If the San Antonio indictments are upheld, Parr will be tried in Austin. He has appealed the Houston dismissal of the earlier indictments, contending he would get a fair trial at Laredo than at Austin. Houston is in the Southern federal district that includes Laredo.

Yarborough Hits Veto Of Bridge

GALVESTON —UP— Austin attorney Ralph Yarborough, twice defeated candidate for governor, Tuesday blasted Gov. Allan Shivers' veto of the San Luis Pass toll bridge bill as an example of "government by crony."

Yarborough charged that "if some of Shivers' friends instead of the counties, had been planning to build the bridge, he would have been all for it."

"This is crony government—taking care of the cronies by letting them get rich quick and easy at the tax-payers' expense, as has been exemplified by the veterans' land deal," Yarborough said in an interview.

The Austin attorney, who came to Galveston Monday to make a Memorial Day speech, said Tuesday that Shivers "was one of the biggest supporters of the plan," to build a private toll road from Dallas to Houston.

"The governor supports a private toll road sponsored by his friends, but vetoes a county toll bridge project on the ground that Texas has always been opposed to private toll roads and bridges," Yarborough said.

"It's strange that the governor did not veto the private-toll road bill, which involves major changes in the policy of the state," he said. "If the Dallas-Houston toll highway is built, it will be the first such turnpike in the history of Texas."

Shivers vetoed the San Luis Bridge bill Saturday. The measure was sponsored by Reps. Jean Hoseney and Aaron Schwartz of Galveston and Sen. Jimmy Phillips of Angleton.

The proposed bridge would have allowed Galveston and Brazoria counties to build a toll bridge over the pass as part of the proposed Blue Water highway.

Shivers, in vetoing the bill, said Texas had "always stood for free highway travel or for a well-planned over-all state highway toll road system. This bill is a step in the opposite direction from this expressed policy."

Mitchell Hits Union Leaders' Opposition

WASHINGTON—UP—Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell hit back Tuesday at union leaders who claim his job is practically an impossible one in a Republican administration.

It's the union leaders themselves, not the administration, who make the job tough, Mitchell said. "Big Jim" Mitchell, who came to the cabinet 2 1/2 years ago from other tough jobs in labor relations, gave this view just before taking off for Europe for an international labor organization meeting.

"We're trying to do a job in the way we see it in the interests of the working man," he said in an interview with United Press.

"We get the avowed opposition of some trade union leaders when we should be getting their support or at least their neutrality."

"Makes for Difficulty"

"Naturally, this makes it more difficult for me, both within the administration and with congress."

He added that he thought union leaders "could serve their membership better if they were more cooperative."

Mitchell said Monday that "I get as much support as I could expect within the administration. On any matter that I've felt strongly about I've gotten support."

One of the biggest issues on which Mitchell has been challenged by union leaders is his stand against so-called "right-to-work" laws in 18 states which ban union-management agreements for compulsory union membership.

When he called for repeal of such laws, union leaders said he should get the administration to ask congress to repeal them by amending the Taft-Hartley law. When President Eisenhower said Mitchell was not speaking for the administration on this matter, union leaders said Mitchell had been "repudiated."

"Claims Realistic Position"

Mitchell said Tuesday that his position of urging states to repeal the law is realistic. "For seven years, unions have been trying to repeal Taft-Hartley and they have not made any progress," he said.

Asked what he thinks is the biggest problem facing organized labor, Mitchell said the ban by various states on compulsory union membership, such as the union shop is "one of the biggest."

"Unions should be encouraged to strengthen and grow," he said. "These laws tend to discourage their growth."

Mitchell said his personal relationships with union leaders are good. He said he assumed their public attacks on him and on the administration's labor proposals are "necessary for political purposes."

Policemen To Divide Reward Pot

WACO, Tex.—UP—A $2,000 reward offered for apprehension of the killer of an airman from James Connally Air Force Base at Waco will be divided between two policemen who arrested a Negro now charged with the murder.

The officers, T. J. Richey and C. A. Phillips, will be presented the money in a brief ceremony Wednesday at the air base.

Richey and Phillips arrested Marion Andrew Washington, a Fort Hood Negro soldier, early Friday morning as they were looking for a filling station bandit. Washington later was identified as the Waco lover's lane bandit who raped one woman and robbed several couples parked in lover's lane areas near the city.

He also was charged with the murder last April of Airman Henry Pool of Spartanburg, S. C., as Pool defended his sweetheart's honor from a Negro bandit who threatened to attack her. The bandit fled after shooting Pool during a scuffle.

The reward money was contributed mostly by air base personnel.

Small Projects Bill Gets Attention In Rogers' Letter

In his weekly newsletter to the people of the 18th Congressional district, Pampa's Congressman Walter Rogers speaks of a new bill on it's way through Congress.

"On yesterday (May 26), the House passed a bill known as the Small Projects Bill. This bill is designed to provide a means by which small communities can, through proper organizations, finance water projects costing not more than 10 million dollars, by one of three methods:

1. Borrow up to 5 million dollars from the Federal Government.
2. If the project costs more than 5 million dollars, the community can borrow up to 5 million dollars from the government if they can finance the difference between the 5 million dollars and the cost of the project up to 10 million dollars by private financing.
3. The projects can be privately financed. In that event, the community can receive a grant from the federal government of the same amount that they would get for flood control, fish and wildlife and recreation, if the project were completely federally financed.

"The third method of financing is the one that was proposed by me in an amendment that was adopted in committee. It provides the method of participation by a local community on a free enterprise basis that has been lacking in the past.

"The bill is similar to the one that passed the House last year and died in the Senate. The former bill applied only to the 17 western reclamation states which are included under the jurisdiction of general reclamation laws. The present bill included all 48 states, plus Alaska and Hawaii. Program was to be administered by Secretary of Interior, who has all of the tools to administer such a program most efficiently and with the least possible cost. However, some of the eastern states did not want to be under the Department of Interior and pushed through an amendment placing them under the Secretary of Agriculture. This amendment included Texas under the Department of Agriculture. I voted against this amendment because, from all accounts, Texas has had very little success in obtaining much consideration from the Secretary of Agriculture. In my opinion, the entire water program should be under one department. Which one that is does not make a great deal of difference, but I do think that one program should be administered by two separate and distinct departments.

"The bill is on its way to the Senate, and I hope will be speedily acted on there. It fills a much needed gap in the water projects legislation of this country."

Rogers also speaks of the Salk vaccine hearings. He says, "The Salk vaccine hearings before the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, of which I am a member, will probably be concluded within about ten days. The pressure is beginning to build up for and against the government having anything to do with the distribution or control of vaccine. Some want the Federal Government to see that every child gets proper inoculation. Some take the position that it is none of the Government's business and that government regulation is socialistic. Some say that this is definitely a government's responsibility and that the vaccine should be furnished by the government, and that every person should be required to be inoculated.

"It presently appears that the general program will be a mixture of many suggestions. Legislation will provide government control, distribution will probably be through state health authorities, money will be appropriated to make the vaccine available to all, and no one will be compelled to be inoculated.

"During the hearings one of the witnesses from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare testified that there would be no danger in the second and third shots to those children who have had the first shot. He also testified that there is no reaction from polio vaccination. Had I known this two weeks ago, it would really have alarmed me. Our Mary Catherine came down with a fever five days after receiving her first shot. We consoled ourselves on the ground that it was reaction to the shot. Fortunately, it was due to some other virus from which she quickly recovered. Since she has had her first shot, she will complete the series."

Weeks To Speak At Denver Meet

DENVER—UP—Commerce Secretary Sinclair Weeks was scheduled to keynote a luncheon Wednesday at the daylong conference among eight Missouri River basin governors on mutual interstate highway problems.

The conference, called by Gov. Victor Anderson of Nebraska, Fred Hall of Kansas, and Joe J. Foss, the Marine air hero of World War II, of South Dakota, were also to hear Philip A. Ray, general counsel for the Commerce Department.

Scheduled to attend the conference were Govs. Edwin C. Johnson of Colorado, Leo A. Hoegh of Iowa, Orville L. Freeman of Minnesota, Norman Brundage of North Dakota, and Milward Simpson of Wyoming.

Drouth Experts Take Up 'Impossible' Problems

By POLLY WITTE

DENVER—UP—Drouth problems with "impossible" solutions were on the agenda for discussion Wednesday and Thursday during a super-secret conference among farm experts, officials from 10 arid western states and Agriculture Department executives.

That was the "meat" of the handouts doled to waiting newsmen Tuesday by Harry Clark, special USDA public information official from Washington. Neither Clark nor the handouts explained how even such an impressive array of experts and federal and state officials might find solutions to impossible problems.

Clark said that certain problems of the drouth, including those "impossible" of solution, would be discussed at the meetings, and that it was desired that these would not be made public "to be kicked around for political purposes." That's why newsmen will learn what happens behind the closed doors only through Clark's daily dole.

Known Last Month

However, it was known last month after Agriculture Secretary Ezra T. Benson's on-the-spot tour of drouth-damaged areas in the Great Plains states that the conference would be held.

Clark also told newsmen Tuesday that "there probably won't be any news of what is discussed inside the meetings until Benson gets here." The secretary was to arrive by plane late Wednesday and planned to return to Washington early Thursday.

Clark did say that four Great Plains subcommittees reported at opening sessions Tuesday on such matters as water resources, soil stabilization, credit, land use, feed supplies, livestock production and other related matters. A report was also presented by Agriculture Assistant Secretary E. L. Peterson and Kenneth L. Scott, director of USDA credit services, on the work of a special drouth committee.

Earlier Tuesday, Agriculture Under-Secretary True D. Morse opened general discussions among the representatives of the 10 states. But the highlight of the three-day session was to be the meeting with Benson Wednesday night.

Governors to Join Sessions

Governors of all 10 states, except Texas and Montana, were scheduled to join the "work sessions" Wednesday and Thursday. They were to meet with Benson Wednesday night to discuss the region's drouth and wind erosion and to blueprint plans to battle the effects of the elements.

House Kills Senate Bill For Taxes

AUSTIN—UP—The House, by a whopping 110-34 vote, Tuesday rejected a Senate proposed $100 million tax bill boosting the state tax on cigarettes a cent a pack, on gasoline one penny a gallon and on beer one cent per bottle.

The lower chamber overwhelmingly voted to send the budget-balancing measure to a joint committee, composed of both House and Senate members, to iron out differences between the two chambers.

Two major phases of the bulky bill appeared open to change.

The House, in early action on the measure more than a month ago, rejected eight attempts to increase the tax on beer, but did hike the fees for wine and beer dealer permits.

The upper chamber erased the permit provision and instead wrote into the bill the penny-a-bottle levy.

In addition, a Senate-drafted provision placing gas pipeline companies under the intangible tax law was severely questioned by several House speakers, who charged rather than raising revenue for the state, it would lower it. However, they said the matter could be easily corrected "with a couple of sentences" added to the present proposal.

Rep. Stanton Stone of Freeport, sponsor of the bill, called for sending the bill to the joint committee. The House voted down, 107-36, a proposal by Rep. Truett Latimer of Abilene to concur in Senate amendments, a move which would have meant final legislative action on the tax measure.

Rep. Edgar Berlin of Port Neches charged that Stone's move was an effort "to get the governor's two-cent gasoline tax" increase added to the bill.

Hoover Group Hits Defense, Welfare

By ROBERT F. MORRISON
WASHINGTON—UP—The Hoover Commission charged Tuesday that the Defense and Welfare Departments have not given enough support to basic scientific research such as led to the atomic bomb and the Salk polio vaccine.

The commission also said in a report sent to Congress that the armed services "are not sufficiently daring and imaginative in their approach to radically new weapons."

It said that since the end of World War II, development of new weapons—has resulted "largely through informal prodding by civilian scientists and technologists." It said the results have been good but that future development "should not be left to chance."

It said that only "... a minor amount of research into the laws of nature and the nature of materials" is done. This was a reference to basic research into fundamental scientific principles and phenomena not necessarily having an immediate application.

Field of Basic Research
It was in the field of such basic research the late Dr. Albert Einstein developed his theories of relativity which led to the atomic bomb and opened the entire field of nuclear energy.

The commission criticized the Health, Education and Welfare Department and the Budget Bureau for a vast backlog of medical research projects. It indicated some of these might yield "dramatic" results comparable to the Salk vaccine discovery.

The commission report dealt with all of the government's numerous research activities. The commission said this work is now handled by 29 agencies and is slated to cost some $2.4 billion in the fiscal year starting July 1. Of the total, about $2,050,000,000 is planned for military research.

Endorses 13 Recommendations
The commission endorsed 13 of 15 recommendations by its military research "task force" and said all could be put into effect without congressional action.

It proposed creation of a commit-

A new bulletin published by the U. S. Department of Agriculture "Cotton Diseases and Methods of Control," is available by writing Cong. Walter Rogers, Room 1330 New House Office Building, Washington, D. C.

Rogers recently wrote the Pampa Daily News saying that "this would be a most important publication to many of the farmers, and one that would be in demand."

The pamphlet is written by John T. Presley, pathologist, Field Crops Research, Agricultural Research Service, and is a revision of a previous edition prepared in 1935, by Davil Neal and W. W. Gilbert.

The preface to the bulletin says that annual losses from all diseases averaged 15 per cent of the total cotton crop. The bulletin gives information on the more important cotton diseases.

Uranium has been found in coal. The atomic age mineral was discovered recently in the low-grade coal, or lignite beds of northwestern South Dakota.

Remote Control

TRUMBULL, Conn.—UP—A back seat driver was arrested on a reckless driving charge. State police said a high school student, John G. Ruzicka of East Haddam, was driving while standing behind the front seat of his convertible. There were four other students in the car.

Lost 20 Pounds With Barcentrate

"When I commenced to take Barcentrate, I weighed 152 pounds. I now weigh 132; a loss of 20 pounds," writes Mrs. W. D. Robinson, 1402 30th St., Wichita Falls, Texas.

—Just get Barcentrate from any Texas druggist. Take according to directions. If the very first bottle doesn't show you the way to take off ugly fat, return the empty-bottle for your money back.

"EVER GREATER VALUES"

No pillar or post

for this wide-open beauty

It's the new kind of hardtop—
The 4-Door Riviera!

A HARDTOP is a car that looks like a Convertible with the top up—but has a solid steel roof overhead—and no center posts in the side window areas.

Up until just recently, it could be built in volume only with two doors—not more—because it would take wholly new structural principles to hinge another set of doors without floor-to-roof center posts.

But Buick came up with those new structural principles and is now building—in volume—hardtops with four doors.

You see one pictured here. It's the 4-Door Riviera. And it's taking the country by storm...

Because here, at long last, is an automobile with the sleek and sporty styling of a true hardtop—but with separate doors for rear-seat passengers, plus the added room of a full-size Buick Sedan.

On top of that, this beauty is all Buick—with the buoyant ride of Buick's all-coil springing—the wallowing might of Buick's record-high V8 power—the whip-quick getaway and sizable gas savings of Buick's spectacular Variable Pitch Dynaflo.*

And it's available in Buick's two lowest-priced Series—the budget-tagged 188-hp SPECIAL, and the high-performance 236-hp CENTURY, illustrated here.

Come visit us for a first-hand meeting with the 4-Door Riviera—and see how quickly and how easily the last word in automobiles can be yours.

*Dynaflow Drive is standard on Roadmaster, optional at extra cost on other Series.
