Weather Over U.S. Is Wild

Midwest — Rain,
Southwest — Dust

By UNITED PRESS
A spring squall line raged across the Midwest for the third straight day Wednesday and blinding dust halted traffic in parts of the Southwest.

The Midwest, ripped by storms which were the worst in 20 years in some areas, was warned to be ready for a wide storm front sweeping out of the Dakotas.

The squall line, trailing cooler air behind it, was expected to reach central Lake Huron by Wednesday night. Michigan was told to expect 50 mile per hour winds.

Two more storm fronts were sweeping eastward through Oklahoma, threatening hail and high winds.

Winds Kick Up Dust
Elsewhere in the Southwest, winds up to 60 miles per hour kicked up blinding dust clouds over most of Kansas and parts of Colorado, New Mexico, Texas, and Oklahoma.

The gusts hit their peak at Pueblo, Colo., Tuesday, cutting visibility to zero. Trees were uprooted and, in the northeast corner of the state, dust-filled winds stopped traffic.

In West Texas, the dust cut visibility to a half-mile at Childress and to a mile at Big Spring.

Heavy Winds Hit
Tornadoic winds swept across the area Monday night, hitting the wealthy Chicago suburb of Evanston with the worst storm in 20 years, and Tuesday winds rose to 70 miles per hour in northern Illinois.

The savage weather claimed at least three lives. Near Wellman, Iowa, a lightning bolt killed Marie D. Venzie, 29, as she sought shelter in a hot house. Fog was blamed for the crash of a small plane near Racine, Wis., which killed Frank Mitzen, 65, and pilot Melvin Feil, 37.

SOME CROOKS NATURALLY JUST LIKE TO COOPERATE

CHICAGO — UP — Walter Pernal is the police department's favorite kind of burglar. In trying to loot an apartment, Pernal climbed an outside stairway in broad daylight, smashed a window with a resounding crash, made so much noise an upstairs tenant phoned for help, and drank so much liquor in the apartment he was helpless to resist arrest. At the station, Pernal fell asleep in his cell.

Chou Forces Delay In Formosa Meet

BANDUNG, Indonesia — UP — Chinese Communist Premier Chou En-Lai forced Wednesday a postponement of an eight-nation meeting called to seek an end to the Formosa crisis that threatens war in the Far East.

The Colombo powers — India, Burma, Pakistan, Ceylon and Indonesia — announced an indefinite postponement after Chou's tactics twice halted work of the Afro-Asian conference's vital political committee.

First Chou refused to accept the United Nations definition of "human rights" in a scheduled discussion of that topic and the conference was forced to set up a subcommittee to work out another definition.

Brings Up Technical Point
Then he brought up a technical point of procedure in the preliminary arrangements for the political committee, which delayed start of the committee.

Later he reversed himself on both points.

The political committee composed of the heads of delegations met in the afternoon and unanimously adopted a provision on human rights as set forth by the United Nations.

"The Asian-African conference declared its full support of the fundamental principles of human rights as set forth in the charter of the United Nations and it takes note to the United Nations declaration of human rights as a common standard of achievement of all people of all countries."

Foreign Security Proposal Puts Accent On Far East

AUGUSTA, Ga. — UP — President Eisenhower today proposed to Congress a $3,330,000,000 foreign aid program to meet "the grim essentials of security."

His accent was admittedly on the Far East. The object of his overall program for the 1956 fiscal year was to keep the free nations against the Russian bastion at fullest possible strength and to hurdle "any obstacles created by the Communists."

"Here is a clear case of interwoven self-interest," the chief executive said in a 2,000-word special message to the House and Senate endorsing a multi-billion dollar program of assistance to co-operative nations, particularly those in the Far East.

Threats Centered in Asia
"Immediate threats to world security and stability are now centered in Asia," the President said. "The preponderance of funds requested of the Congress will be used to meet the threat there."

The President's $3,330,000,000 split this way:
For economic aid, $712,500,000
For defense support, particularly in Asia, $1,900,000,000
For military assistance and "direct forces" support, $1,717,500,000.

The President based his program on "the best prospects of peace and the grim essentials of security."

Safeguards for Security
He said the proposed aid funds amounted to "defense alliance expenditures clearly safeguarding in the most desirable manner, and at times in the only possible way, the security of the United States and of other free nations."

"The President's mutual security message to Congress consisted largely of a review of the international situation and detailed explanations of why this country should continue to stand behind a substantial program of foreign aid."

He said there was no hope for enduring peace "until the spiritual aspirations of mankind for liberty and opportunity and growth are recognized as prior to and paramount to the material appetites which communism exploits."

"Apart from any obstacles created by the Communists, this is a long-term process," said Mr. Eisenhower. "Patience, resourcefulness and dedication are required."

Dems Plan To Kick Out Those Who Aided Ike

WASHINGTON — UP — An effort to punish top Democrats who supported President Eisenhower in 1952 was boiling Wednesday toward angry showdown.

The plan is to read them out of the party.

This was the opening round of a controversy which could darken Democratic presidential hopes next year. Republican prospects were correspondingly brightened.

The disputed question is this: What is a bona fide Democrat? The New Deal-Americans for Democratic Action elements of the party evidently want a definition which would bar 1952 bolters from next year's Democratic national convention. Named specifically for punishment were former Gov. James F. Byrnes of South Carolina, Gov. Robert F. Kennon of Louisiana, Gov. Allan Shivers of Texas, and former national committeeman Wright Morrow of Texas. There would be others.

Former Democratic national chairman Stephen A. Mitchell told the United Press the right of those four to sit in next year's convention would be challenged if they appeared with delegate credentials.

Sen. John J. Sparkman (D-Ala.), 1952 Democratic vice presidential nominee, agreed that Byrnes, Kennon and Shivers should be challenged.

"They are not entitled to be in the convention," Sparkman told the United Press. "Unless they say they are good Democrats and will support the 1956 ticket, in 1952 they broke their promise given to the convention to support the ticket. They are not entitled to take part in the 1956 convention unless they announce their return to the party and promise to support the nominees. They are Republicans as of today so far as I am concerned."

But some other influential southern Democrats slapped Mitchell down. Sen. Price Daniel of Texas, who supported Mr. Eisenhower in 1952, said: "I doubt that Mr. Mitchell is in a position to speak for the party on this subject."

Rep. James P. Richards, from Byrnes' home state, said that if Mitchell "is quoted correctly, he's cockeyed, he or anyone else who tries that is cockeyed. They'll learn a lesson that I thought they had learned before, and they'll learn it more emphatically by losing more of the South than they did before."

Some other southerners who did not want to be quoted said that Mitchell is stirring up trouble unnecessarily; that some of the men Mitchell named may not go to the convention anyway.

Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas declined comment. As permanent chairman of the 1952 convention, he was the one individual most responsible for stopping the "young turk" drive to unseat rebellious southern delegates.

The bill, co-sponsored by Rep. Raroboff Sanders of Dallas and members of the Fort Worth-Dallas legislative delegations, won House approval earlier in the week.

Trinity River Bill Shelved

AUSTIN — UP — A Senate committee shelved a House-approved bill calling for creating of a Trinity River Authority to provide for development of the river's watershed.

The measure was sent by a 10-4 vote of the Senate Water Rights, Irrigation and Drainage committee to a subcommittee. No time limit on reporting back was required.

Sen. Jimmy Phillips of Angleton, sponsor of the controversial bill, said that "unless there is a change of heart in this committee the bill is dead."

The bill, co-sponsored by Rep. Raroboff Sanders of Dallas and members of the Fort Worth-Dallas legislative delegations, won House approval earlier in the week.

The force is estimated to represent about three-fourths of Red China's total air strength, estimated here at 3,200.

The sources said the Reds have shifted some 500 jet fighters and bombers and about 300 propeller-driven warcraft into South China across the strait from the Nationalist island bastion.

Included are about 100 Russian-built IL-28 jet fighter-bombers which began arriving at Hangchow, northwest of Formosa, on April 16. Nationalist intelligence quarters have estimated that the Soviet Union turned over some 200 IL-28s to the Red Chinese.

The Nationalists claimed about 400 MIG-15 jet-fighters have been shifted to bases in Chekiang and Kiang provinces with hundreds of propeller-driven IL-10 medium bombers, TU-2 and TU-4 bombers and LA-11 fighter bombers deployed into the coastal regions.

Reds Mass 800 Planes Near Formosa

TAIPEI — UP — Some 800 Red Chinese warplanes, including modern Soviet-built jet bombers and fighters, are massed on the China mainland opposite Formosa, authoritative Nationalist sources said Wednesday.

The force is estimated to represent about three-fourths of Red China's total air strength, estimated here at 3,200.

The sources said the Reds have shifted some 500 jet fighters and bombers and about 300 propeller-driven warcraft into South China across the strait from the Nationalist island bastion.

Street Battle Fought By Indo Troops

SAIGON — UP — Government paratroops fought a rebel command unit Wednesday in a running street battle that sprayed a crowded passenger bus with tommygun bullets.

First reports said one Viet Nationalist was killed and two wounded aboard the bus which ran into a crossfire during the second bloody outbreak in two days in this crisis-ridden city.

The street battle started shortly after noon when a truck reached recently by Emperor Bao Dai exploded and his place for a new one to halt the spread of the civil war went ignored.

Government troops guarding the national headquarters tried to halt a truck loaded with shocktroops of the Binh Xuyen gang of ex-river pirates but the truck swerved from encircling troops and the Binh Xuyen opened fire, hitting the passenger bus.

French troops were ordered out Wednesday to protect the Europeans and American residents of Saigon after Tuesday's outbreak in which 65 persons were wounded in street fighting. Victims included 10 French civilians and four French citizens hurt when a grenade was thrown at a hotel.

GROOM FEATURE INSIDE TODAY

Would you pay $500 for Groom?

Of course, you couldn't get close to that Carson county city today for that figure, but the site where the town was built once sold for that price.

News Staff Writer Joel Combs has written an interesting feature story about Groom, and three pictures accompany the story on page 10 in today's News.

Such interesting side-light as these, plus a steady daily diet of top news events of local, area and national interest, make the Pampa Daily News more and more the best newspaper buy at the top of Texas.

Groom Man Elected By Grain Dealers

J. C. Ledwig, Groom grain dealer, was elected president of the Panhandle Grain and Feed Dealers Association yesterday in Amarillo's Herring Hotel at the 39th annual convention of that group.

Ledwig succeeds Vernon Harmon of Happy as president. Others elected included H. Ted Neely of Amarillo, vice president; C. W. Fleicher of Amarillo, secretary-treasurer.

A high point of yesterday's meeting was a report by Frank White who declared, "It's the worst general condition I have ever seen in my 22 years of viewing crop conditions," but he added that hopes are still alive for good wheat and sorghum crops in this area. He outlined the conditions in the various areas of Texas and Western Oklahoma and, in general, painted a much rosier picture than had been expected by the approximately 250 delegates who attended the convention.

The dealers took no action yesterday on a proposal to voluntarily buy Kansas wheat in an effort to relieve storage problems in that state. The proposal was submitted by Truman Cunningham, representative of the Commodity Stabilization Service, Dallas.

Cunningham spoke briefly on the storage problem faced by farmers, grain dealers and the CSS. He pointed out that Texas grain dealers should have approximately 700 million spare bushels of storage space at wheat harvest time this summer. In urging grain dealers in Texas to aid in relieving the situation in Kansas, he said the CSS could not promise to have the space cleared of wheat in time to store sorghum crops this fall.

Groups Move To Provide Free Vaccine

States cities and labor unions moved Wednesday to provide as much free Salk anti-polio vaccine as possible for the nation's youngsters.

In Oklahoma, another legislative hearing was called on a bill to provide free vaccine for all children through nine years of age.

Tens of thousands of first and second graders have been receiving free inoculations every day since last Monday. But many officials were worried about how many can receive the vaccine before the polio season starts and how many will be able to afford it.

In Washington, CIO President Walter M. Reuther and AFL President George Meany demanded a federal program for free vaccinations of the nation's children.

At least one industrial sponsor, Living Inc. of New York, indicated concern over whether every child will get the same chance for protection against polio, regardless of whether his parents can afford to pay for the vaccine.

In Michigan, meanwhile, a bill was introduced in the state legislature to appropriate $2 million for purchase of enough vaccine to inoculate every child under 10 without charge.

A similar measure in Illinois which would provide free vaccine for all youngsters under 15 was receiving the backing of practically every member of the state senate.

Pittsburgh, Pa., joined the list of cities planning to supplement the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis program with an announcement that it will provide free "booster" shots for all first and second graders.

New York City has already moved to provide extra free vaccine and other large cities are studying the problem.

The foundation's program allows for free inoculations to about 9 million American children, with top priority going to first and second graders and youngsters who took part in last year's Salk tests.

The Wiggins committee said one of the most disquieting developments in the field of information freedom has been "the recent obfuscation of the line between classified material not available to the public and unclassified, technical material never classified at all or officially declassified."

"Unless this attitude is clarified, it is bound to have a profound and paralyzing effect upon the flow of information to the American public," the committee said.

The committee pointed out that what happens if such a tendency was carried to extremes.

"If the flow of information on technical material and in other areas is to be diminished to that which involves a no risk whatever... The report said, "the volume will be so infinitely small that the American people will not have the foundation of truth upon which to judge their government."

The first of five classes will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. tomorrow in the 31st District Courtroom on the third floor of the Courthouse. It will be on geology and map reading.

Soule told The Pampa Daily News today that those wishing to take the 10-hour course — five 2-hour classes — could still apply to him at the college. However, they can also show up tomorrow night and make application at the time of the first class.

The other four classes will be held on succeeding Thursday nights and will concern mineralogy and uranium minerals; land leasing and claim staking; instruments; and field equipment and evaluations.

Editors Challenge News Restrictions

WASHINGTON — UP — A group of newspaper editors Wednesday challenged recent White House and Pentagon orders restricting release of government information on security grounds.

The challenge was made in a report by the American Society of Newspaper Editors' freedom of information committee to the organization's board of directors.

Committee Chairman J. Russell Wiggins, managing editor of the Washington Post and Times-Herald, referred particularly to a directive by Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson which has slowed news from the Pentagon and to a statement by White House Press Secretary James C.

Uranium Class Set Tomorrow

William Soule, assistant head of the Amarillo College vocational department, today held high hope for at least 75 applicants for the uranium prospecting course which will hold its first class in Pampa tomorrow night.

The first of five classes will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. tomorrow in the 31st District Courtroom on the third floor of the Courthouse. It will be on geology and map reading.

Soule told The Pampa Daily News today that those wishing to take the 10-hour course — five 2-hour classes — could still apply to him at the college. However, they can also show up tomorrow night and make application at the time of the first class.

Banks To Close San Jacinto Day

At least four concerns will be closed tomorrow in celebration of San Jacinto Day.

They are Citizens Bank and Trust Co., First National Bank, the Texas Highway Department engineering office, and the area office of the State Department of Public Welfare.

The Texas Railroad Commission would have taken tomorrow off, except for the fact that office personnel took Good Friday off instead.

Little Man 'Put Upon' Idea Brings Success To Gobel

HOLLYWOOD — UP — George Gobel thinks the basis for his humor that brought his spectacular success is he's the little man who feels "put upon."

Its format is simplicity, but that's deceptive. To appear simple, Gobel and his staff rehearse five days a week. George usually roars at the script on the first day of rehearsal. Tuesday. He contributes variations; the writers polish and change. By Saturday night the script is quite different from Tuesday's.

JayCees Pick New Slate For Committees

The new slate of Pampa Junior Chamber of Commerce committee chairmen was announced yesterday afternoon, following the club's weekly luncheon.

George has broken the traditional mold of comedians. He does not use the "hurting" slapstick of Martin and Lewis or Abbott and Costello nor the hilarious needles of Groucho Marx.

Offstage George appears shy. But "when I feel at home and feel people like me" he warms up. He talks and behaves like he does on TV. He is not always "on," and his gags, as are many comedians, and relaxed over a drink, he gave a priceless imitation of producer Samuel Goldwyn and another of a press photographer at work.

Carney, in a speech opening a two-week National Resources Council meeting, said an atomic war would not be over in a short time, "no matter how terrible the destruction might be."

The JayCee board of directors will meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Pampa Chamber of Commerce office in City Hall, Hopkins said.

Greenspun 'Not Guilty'

LAS VEGAS, Nev.—UP—Las Vegas Sun Publisher Herman M. Greenspun was free Tuesday on charges he sought in his newspaper to incite the murder of Sen. Joseph McCarthy.

Greenspun hailed the verdict as a victory for free speech, freedom of the press and the American jury system. "All Americans can take renewed comfort in the American jury system," the publisher said upon hearing the jury's verdict.

The admiral said the United States needs strong land-based air power as well as sea power. There is also a need, he said, for "just plain land power."

How People Get Used

In these benighted times it is difficult indeed to convey a simple thought in simple terms.

For example, a few days ago we expressed disapproval of moves being made toward the creation of a legal censorship bureau. A hue and cry was promptly raised that we favored smut and filth in comic books, since the ostensible purpose of the censorship bureau would have been to get rid of such smut and filth.

But we not only are opposed to smut and filth; we have raised our voice frequently in opposition to subversion, sex and pornography which all too frequently in this era of intellectual blackout has passed for literature of a high order.

Our objection to this moronic trash, however, hasn't caused us to lose sight of the aims and objectives of the communist-socialist movement in our midst. And it might be wise to outline it now, so that hereafter there can be less likelihood of confusion or misunderstanding.

The aim and purpose of the communist movement is the establishment of the "Dictatorship of the Proletariat."

The aim and purpose of the socialist movement is the accomplishment of a completely controlled economy with all means of production and distribution in the hands of the state. This socialist target is supposed to come about through the creation of a large and bureaucratic government, with the people themselves voting in the chains which will at length overwhelm them.

A Communist is merely a Socialist in a hurry. His aims are actually identical, but he has little compunction about violence or bloodshed. The Communist will use the ballot as a tool, but he will also use the strike, the riot and an occasional throat-slitting in a dark alley to further his dirty designs.

The modus operandi of both Communist and Socialist is to point up some real or imaginary problem of the people, i. e., slum clearance, sub-level housing, low wages, sickness, social prejudice, etc.

Then, under the guise of doing good, the party member or his dupe organizes a move to get the government to "do something."

Every time the government creates a bureau to handle one of these real or alleged problems, the government gets bigger, raises taxes, exerts more influence, yields more power, and furthers that ultimate day in which all means of production and distribution are in its hands.

Meanwhile, when things do not go forward rapidly enough to please these politico-socialist schemers, they are not averse to taking a hand to get things started.

There is, for instance, considerable evidence that it was a part of the communist plot to foist on us a soggy mass of pornography, cheap and trashy books, lurid television shows and moronic radio serials. Having palmed off this junk, it is in keeping with their methods to now endeavor to get a government agency into the act in order to "control" it.

Having helped to create the problem, they now offer the only solution in keeping with their over-all scheme . . . bigger and more powerful government to rule everybody.

We trust no one will read something into this which is not intended. Further, we hope we have not been obscure.

We are hurling no charges of party membership. We are explaining how the most vicious, despicable plot to destroy freedom and the American way of life functions, and how it is furthered because in innocence the average passerby cooperates at one or another level of the scheme.

As for us, we will continue to oppose the formation of any government agency for purposes of censoring anything. We will also continue to expose and cry out against the use of subversive or salacious material whether it appears in comic books, or in the libraries of our schools.

Agencies of the claim that artificially maintained low interest rates reduce building costs, let it be noted that according to a report by Dr. Harold F. Clark, of Goodrich College, Columbia University, mentioned in the New York Times, January 23, 1953, the best of school buildings today is six times as high as in 1914.

Although interest rates are much higher than in 1914, a school building which cost $200,000 that year would cost $1,200,000 this year.

IMPUNISHING THE GOONS

A grand jury at Atlanta has been impeached to summon the county sheriff and instruct him that it is not in the interest of justice to allow the sheriff to continue in his position as long as he is incapable of performing his duties.

The situation in the state of Georgia is a sad one. The sheriff is a man who is incapable of performing his duties. He is a man who is a disgrace to the state. He is a man who is a disgrace to the state.

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HOILES

"Your Job: Where Does It Come From?"

I want to quote from an article in the April issue of The Freeman magazine under the heading of "Your Job: Where Does It Come From?" It was written by an engineer, a market consultant and a business analyst, A. J. Gallager. Here is the way he puts it:

"If we know what it takes to make one job, we will have a better idea of what it takes to maintain the many we have today — and to create the necessary new jobs for tomorrow. That great sprawling thing we call the 'national economy' is nothing but a lot of individual jobs. This confusing subject called 'economics' can be quite simple.

"A Job is the security of the home. A Business is simply a group of Job-Holders at work: Buying — Production — Selling — Managing.

"A Community is just a group of different businesses: Merchants — Manufacturers — Farmers — Services.

"The Nation is the sum of its communities, or 60,000,000 Jobs.

"If you have a job, you're a valuable person. To your family, your pay is what buys the groceries, clothes the kids and provides the other things that make a comfortable home.

"Sales necessary for each job. But to your employer, your pay means something much different. To meet your wages and other costs add keep you on the job for a year, the company must sell about $14,000 worth of goods. That's the average for a great many types and sizes of businesses, with some requiring as much as $40,000 in sales. Let's look at one job in a big steel company (United States Steel) whose products are used for anything from a kitchen paring knife to a giant steel-framed skyscraper.

"U. S. Steel's sales of $12,850 for each one of the people on the payroll are close to the average for all types of business. Let's see how this money was divided in 1953 among those who had a claim on it.

"Sales of $12,850 worth of products for each one of the 301,560 jobs was used for:

Wages and Benefits $5,200
Products and Services Bought $4,700
Taxes $1,370
Other Expenses $843
Put Back in the Business $393
Paid out as Dividends $344

"Of the $737 per job that remained after all costs and expenses, $393 — more than half — was reinvested in the business to improve methods and buy better equipment, which results in lower costs, better products, more customers and more jobs. The $344 left was paid out as dividends to the 286,240 people who had their savings at work in the business.

"Investment necessary for each job. As important as they are, the sales it takes to keep a job going are only one side of the picture. Before there can be any sales, someone has to save the money to provide all the necessary things to make a job possible, such as land, buildings, machines and materials.

"In U. S. Steel, about $14,000 was at work in plants and equipment alone for each of its 301,560 employees. Thus, a small fortune is at work for every individual on a payroll.

"Only customers make jobs. In any business, however, you, the customer, are all important. You are a job-maker for countless people you have never seen. And these people, as customers for what you help make or sell, keep you on your job.

To keep one person at work — for example, here is what the customers of the country must do each year to keep one average job-holder at work making the following typical products:

Soup — take 6,000,000 baths.
Steel — use 750,000 household cans.

Gasoline — drive 1,000,000 miles.
Shingles — roof 230 houses.
Stockings — buy 12,000 pairs.
Refrigerators — buy 60 new ones.

Frozen food — eat 150,000 packages, and so on for thousands of other products.

"These are not unusual examples. The sales required to maintain one job in any business are large and steadily growing.

"In terms of jobs, all businesses look much alike. A great food manufacturer and the cornes grocery store . . . a dairy and a department store. Measured by jobs, the big total figures become small, understandable figures. For instance, the vast steel company, whose profits in 1953 were $222,000,000, made about the same amount of money per job as a roadside diner whose profit was $7,300.

"To keep our present living standards, we need about three jobs for every two families. To compare imagine the vast task of maintaining more than 60,000,000 jobs.

"The automobile industry, largest in the country, maintains something over half a million jobs. All manufacturing combined supplies little more than a fourth of the total.

"The big share of creating jobs is done by the more than two million small businesses and farms, started by people willing to risk much time and money in the struggle to progress.

"In every community, farmers, merchants, manufacturers and service people might well head out the sign, 'Job-Maker.'

"The security of your job depends upon the success or failure of business, labor and government — judged by general mo-

Recent Court Decisions Have Not Upheld New Deal

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Recent Federal Court decisions in cases affecting labor, business and Presidential activities tend to gainay Roosevelt-Truman confidence that jurists appointed by them would perpetuate their social and economic reforms.

As the voters did in 1952 by electing President Eisenhower after 20 years of Democratic rule, the nation's judges are emerging from the spell cast by the 1929 depression and World War II. The courts are returning to normalcy.

Contrary to the general opinion—or myth—men do not become completely detached from politics and everyday reality when they put on a black robe and a solemn mien. Every man on the Supreme Court had been a politician when, due to meritorious service to his party, he was rewarded with an appointment to the highest tribunal. This observation applies even more forcefully to judges on lower Federal Courts and State Courts.

Like the general public, they suffered from and responded to the sometimes frightening and hysterical pressures of the 1929 crash. F. D. R.'s recovery program and the demands of history's most disastrous strip. These crises frequently stripped them of the calm and impartial spirit supposed to sanctify the halls of justice.

Another factor in this softening of the judicial temperament was F. D. R.'s penchant attitude toward the judiciary. He once asked Congress to pass a bill (the Guffey Coal Act), even if the Legislators had doubts of its constitutionality. He warned that he could punish a recalcitrant bench with his proposal to "pack" the Supreme Court. That gesture frightened even Charles Evans Hughes.

In short, the judges approved laws and alphabetical agencies' rulings that were designed to fit emergency rather than normal conditions.

In several recent cases dealing with labor unions, the courts have shown less partiality toward this voting element. They have done so by invoking certain provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act, which Harry S. Truman vetoed and denounced as a "slave law."

In challenging several states' right-to-work and injunctive laws, which were aimed at a closed shop, the unions sought immediate relief from Federal Courts. But their pleas were turned down on the ground that they had not exhausted available remedies in the State Courts.

A Truman appointee in the District of Columbia hit hard on a New Deal law intended to force up wages through provisions governing Federal contracts. It provides that the contractor, if the award exceeds $10,000 must pay the going wage in that "locality."

Labor unions, especially John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers, contended that the word "locality" meant the whole United States, not merely a local industrial area. Understanding of what it takes to maintain a job; who the job-makers are; what helps and what hinders them.

Several anti-Communist measures denounced and vetoed by Truman, including the Smith and McCarran-Walter Acts, have survived challenges from the lowest to the highest tribunals. The courts have shown a far keener awareness of the Red menace than did the two Presidents who appointed the majority of the men on the Federal bench.

This judges' revolution is, perhaps, one of the most significant signs of the times. It represents a return to the rule of law, not of politicians.

Under this interpretation, every coal operator would have to pay $18.26 a day, if he did business with Uncle Sam.

Likewise, southern manufacturers with government contracts would have to meet maximum wage schedules in distant sections, thereby losing the economic incentives which have led so many firms to migrate to Dixie. But the Truman judge, who was once Harold L. Ickes aide, ruled against the unions.

Numerous courts, Federal and State, have held in favor of business and industry indicated by New Deal Attorney Generals under New Deal laws and Presidential prodding. In the notable du Pont-General Motors litigation, it was held that corporate size does not constitute an illegal monopoly. In numerous states, the courts have held unconstitutional another pet New Deal measure — the so-called "fair trade" laws. Private utilities have won suit after suit involving public power agencies and projects.

Brown Working In Europe

Like Agents Do For Commies

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Irving Brown, a soapbox radical of no proven combativeness, appears to have kicked up a dirty political complication in Morocco. This parasite got his start toward international prominence in the Reader's Digest, which set him forth as a stout fighter against Communism in European countries this side of the Iron Curtain. There is no evidence that he ever thrived or ducked a brick on any barricade or picket line in Europe or anywhere else. The very article which depicted him as a gallant warrior also said he had been prevailed upon to retire from Paris to Brussels lest he get a slap in the face.

Dispatches from correspondents of the New York Times in Rabat, Morocco, recently reported that "a critical situation" existed because an "illegal nationalist labor movement" constituted open defiance of the law of the land. The Times special said further that Brown's conspiracy was opposing the efforts of the French colonial administration to "promote political and social reforms on a basis of interracial equality." Whatever else that stuff means, it does mean that finally this vicious gladiator, dispatched by a New York union of newswriters in cahoots with an evil bureau of our state department, contrary to our own laws and international comity, has finally gone and done it.

"A rising tide of anti-American feeling was evident in some French circles here," the Times said. "United States trade unions, and in particular Irving Brown, European representative of the A. F. of L., are regarded as the promoters of the racial and political labor movement that threw down the gauntlet at its inaugural meeting in Casablanca, Radio Morocco, the official station of the French protectorate," took Brown to task "for supporting Moroccan unionists whose ties with the Communist-dominated general confederation of labor in France and the outlawed independence party here, were well known."

Brown has had personal acknowledgment from Eisenhower, who encountered him when he, like, was trying to organize a composite anti-Kramlin army from headquarters outside Paris. Brown has had both money, egressed from American taxpayers, and official cooperation from the Central Intelligence Agency. This futility thing would be laughable if its powers, impudence and incompetence were less grotesque. It maintains a juvenile pretense of mystery although its most confidential papers are constantly falling into my hands through no effort of my own. Its chief at the time that Brown was first set up to make mischief in Europe was L. G. Men, Walter Bedell Smith, who was Ike's chief of staff in France at the time of the grand soiree party celebrating Christmas and the marriage of one of Ike's orphans to a jwc.

A WEEK-LONG GARDEN PARTY is being held at Neiman-Marcus this week with the famous Dallas specialty store transformed into a whimsical, romantic setting to present the freshest of fashion stories for summer.

THOUSANDS OF HYDRANGEAS and white fern swans and the most elaborate of floral arrangements float high above the main floor, and hydrangeas border the steps to the mezzanine where an antique bronze cupid presides under an arch of greenery. Artfully made wisteria trees give the garden scenes an old-fashioned air, and for the occasion even forsythia joins the family of violet shadings in hanging baskets centering the escalators. Window displays also follow the summer theme.

From the palette of watercolors in the garden settings, each shop and section in the store has mixed and blended the gayest and prettiest fashions for summertime. Crisp pastel lines, violet prints with both soft and sharp accents, delicate silks, polished cottons—over imported cashmere, embroidery, blouses—have been carefully gathered to reflect the garden flowers influence.

The new fashion collections blossom with such outstanding designs as Anthony Bloche, Claire McCord, Mollie Parnis, and Irene, with many imported designs included. Proper accessories in a specially tinted matching leather and varicolored printed leather were done in handbags by Biene-Davis and shoes by such famed makers as Andrew Geller and David Evans.

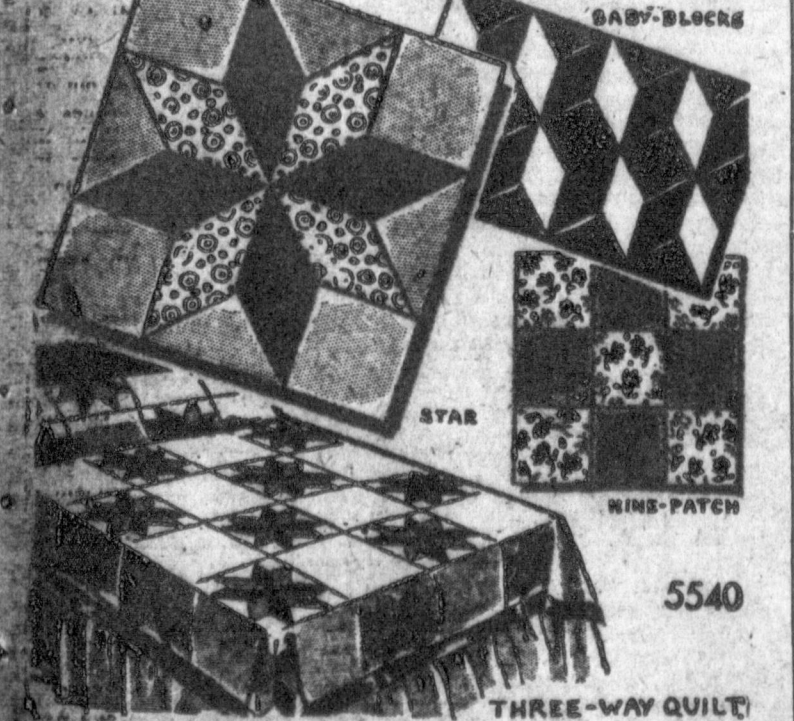

Inspired by garden blooms will be lovely pale cashmere sweaters with embroidered and beaded collars. The violet color taking the form of small plaids and fine handkerchiefs.

RUTH MILLET

If women didn't have to impress other women, how simple their lives would be.

When a husband calls and says he is bringing a man home for dinner, his wife doesn't go into a tizz. She makes sure she has a good dinner, and that takes care of the matter.

MATURE PARENT

Ann was eight when her parents were divorced under bitter circumstances. Both remarried to become parents of other children. Now Ann herself is getting married in June.

The trouble is, she wants a big wedding and reception. Her father has reluctantly agreed; her mother is appalled by the idea. She writes: "What it will mean is a public display of old wounds."

What might Ann's response be to this ungenerous, but sincere expression of feeling? I think it might detonate ungenerous, but sincere feeling in Ann. It is just possible that she might cry out, "Who are you to deprive me of the wedding I want? Didn't you deprive me of my father?"

We dined in old world leisureliness in the Don Quixote Court at the Columbia restaurant in Ybor City, Florida. Ybor City is actually the Spanish district of Tampa and has several restaurants patronized by Spanish families.

Their chicken and yellow rice Valenciana is an experience. It consists of olive oil, white bacon (salt pork), garlic, green peppers, onions and tomato, half chicken, white wine, rice and saffron, all baked together for 30 minutes.

One pound jumbo shrimp (about 18 to 20), juice half lemon, 1/2 teaspoon salt, dash of pepper, 8 to 10 strips bacon, cut in half, 1 egg, well beaten, 1/4 cup milk, flour.

TONIGHT WILL MARK ONLY the fourth time in the past 10 years that the Oilers have opened their West Texas-New Mexico slate on the road.

And it wasn't until last year's 6-5 victory at Borger in the lid lifter that the Pampanos registered an opening season win on the road.

On the other hand, the Oilers have had much better luck when playing their season opener in their home park.

In the six seasons the Oilers have opened the season at home, the Pampanos have emerged victorious five times. Borger spoiled an otherwise perfect record for the Oilers in the season debut played at home, in 1952, when the Gassers recorded a 12-1 victory.

All told, the Oilers have won six and lost only three season openers since the WT-NM resumed action in 1946 following World War II.

Plainview will be the fourth different foe to be met by the Oilers in the season opener during this 10-year span.

The locals have played Lubbock twice on opening day, Clovis once and Borger the other six times.

Both games against Lubbock were played at Lubbock and the Oilers lost both of these games 3-2 in 1948 and 10-1 in 1950.

The lone opener with Clovis was played in 1948 and the Oilers won this one, 3-1, at Oiler Park.

The complete slate of opening games since World War II and the results are as follows:

- 1946 - Oilers 2, Lubbock 4 at Lubbock.
- 1947 - Oilers 9, Borger 1, at Pampa.
- 1948 - Oilers 3, Clovis 1, at Pampa.
- 1949 - Oilers 17, Borger 10, at Pampa.
- 1950 - Oilers 1, Lubbock 10, at Lubbock.
- 1951 - Oilers 12, Borger 0, at Pampa.
- 1952 - Oilers 1, Borger 12, at Pampa.
- 1953 - Oilers 4, Borger 3, at Pampa.
- 1954 - Oilers 6, Borger 5, at Borger.
- 1955 - Oilers ???, Plainview ???, at Plainview.

Only one of the nine previous openers have been postponed. The 1953 lid lifter with Clovis was postponed by rain but the game was

GROVER SEITZ Oiler Pilot ... dean of WT-NM League Managers

Only 3 Holdovers On Oiler Roster

By BUCK FRANCIS
Sports Editor
Pampa Daily News

The defending champion Pampa Oilers from manager on down, will almost be a completely revised outfit for the 1955 West Texas-New Mexico League race with only three returnees from the '54 roster.

Grover Seitz, dean of WT-NM manager, will be back at the Oiler helm for the fourth coming season. Seitz will be starting his 12th year as a manager in the WT-NM this season.

Seitz has been at Clovis the past three and one-half seasons. All of the other seasons Seitz has been in the league was spent managing the Oilers.

Seitz replaces Herchel Martin as the Oiler skipper.

The three holdovers from the 1954 Oilers who expect to the regular season and Shaughnessy Field titles are third baseman Curtis Hardaway, outfielder Dick Hairston, and pitcher John Coddington.

Bums Rack Up 8th Straight NL Victory

By FRED DOW
United Press Sports Writer

Rookies Don Zimmer and Ed Roebuck threw their weight in Brooklyn's early "penchant push" Wednesday as the rampant Dodgers sought a ninth straight victory which would equal the major league record for a fast getaway.

Zimmer, filling in for the ailing PeeWee Reese, blasted a two-run homer which produced the winning margin Tuesday night while Roebuck, a 24-year-old right-hander, came through with a fine relief performance for the second consecutive game in the Dodger 7-4 win over the Philadelphia Phillies.

The victory ran Brooklyn's winning streak to eight games—one short of the record for a season's opening shared by the 1918 New York Giants, 1949 Dodgers and 1944 St. Louis Browns.

Manager Walt Alton has nominated Billy Loes, a 13-game winner in 1954, to oppose the Phillies at Ebbets Field Wednesday night.

The Phillies will counter with Steve Ridzik, who has a 1-9 lifetime record against Brooklyn.

Zimmer, who played in only 29 games for Brooklyn last season, hit his first major league homer off Curt Simmons in the eighth inning to give the Dodgers a 7-4 lead.

Willie Jones' two-run homer off Jim Hughes cut the margin to 7-6 in the bottom of the fifth but then Roebuck hustled out of the bullpen to preserve the lead, and earn Don Newcombe his second win.

Roebuck, a 17-game winner for Montreal last season, had pitched 3 2/3 hitless innings against the Phillies on Monday night. Tuesday night, he yielded only one hit in an inning and a third, giving him a season's relief record of one hit and no runs in five innings.

Raschi Reaches End Of Trail; Released By St. Louis Cardinals

ST. LOUIS—Vic Raschi, an old pro whose pitching arm has fallen behind his stout heart, took the news of his impending unconditional release from the St. Louis Cardinals calmly Wednesday.

The manager, Eddie Stanky, voiced the feeling of the ball club. "We admired him as a great competitor."

Raschi, oldest man on the team at 38, was shelved out of the box in the second inning Monday night by the Cincinnati Redlegs. And it appeared Wednesday that as far as the St. Louis front office was concerned, it was his take-or-break chance.

He was hit hard, escaping a first-inning score only on a great catch by Wally Moon. In the second, Ed Bailey led off with a triple and when he scored on Wally Pate's single, Card relievers scrambled into action in the left-field bullpen. Raschi's shoulders seemed to sag a bit when he heard the solid plunks of the balls in the bullpen catchers' mitts and persistent jeers from the stands.

Gets Boss, Applause
"Get him out of there" and "Let's put in a pitcher" were the loudest shouts.

Soviet Strategy in Treaty Offer to Austria Not Clear
 By CHARLES M. McCANN
 United Press Foreign Analyst

Russia's strategy, in its offer to sign a treaty restoring Austrian independence, is still not clear. One thing is certain. The Soviet government has not, after all these years, suddenly become eager to free Austria.

It is obviously trying, by indirect means, to keep Austria's neighbor — West Germany from arming and joining the Western Alliance against Communist aggression.

On the surface it really does look as if the Kremlin has offered to sign a reasonable Austrian independence treaty, and to withdraw its occupation troops from the country by next December 31. That, if it turns out to be true, is a most surprising development.

Reason for Suspicion
 The Soviet government does not customarily withdraw its troops voluntarily from any country in which it has managed to plant them.

That is one reason for suspicion as to the Kremlin's good faith. Another reason, of course, is that the Kremlin seldom acts in good faith in its relations with the West anyway.

Hence there well may be a diplomatic "sleeper" in the Russian treaty offer.

When the time for negotiation comes, the United States, Great Britain and France may find that the Kremlin will wish on the troop withdrawal offer — that it will cite West German armament as a reason why it must keep troops in Austria.

Alternatively, it may be that the Russians will demand such drastic guarantees of Austrian neutrality as between East and West that Austrian sovereignty would not be restored.

In any event, it is generally agreed that Soviet Foreign Minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov has made a smart move.

Molotov Failed
 Molotov failed in his desperate attempt to prevent the negotiation and ratification of the treaties providing for West Germany's arming.

Now he is trying to sabotage the armament program by offering Austria its freedom.

Immediate suspicion was expressed in Washington of the good faith of the Russian offer.

But the reaction in Austria was enthusiastic. Austrians are quite willing to guarantee their neutrality if only they can get foreign troops out of their country.

The reaction in West Germany also was what Molotov must have hoped. Many Germans opposed belligerency, and still oppose the idea of rearming and joining the West. They would like to keep out of the cold war — and of any hot war.

These Germans asked at once why, if Austria could get its freedom by promising neutrality, Germany could not do likewise.

Higher Oil Imports May Bring Action
 MOUNT VERNON, Ill. — UP — Interior Secretary Douglas McKay has hinted at government action if imports of oil climb "significantly" in the future.

McKay told the annual meeting of the Illinois Oil and Gas Association Monday night that oil and coal producers claim the oil imports are wrecking their industries.

"Under present laws there is no effective action the government can take immediately to correct the situation," he said.

McKay said, however, that the President's advisory committee on energy supplies and resources has made a careful study of the nation's fuel-resources.

"The committee recommended that if future imports of oil exceed significantly their proportions in the domestic oil production in 1954, appropriate government action should be taken," McKay said.

"It also recommended that relations between imports and domestic production be reviewed from time to time," he said.

McKay said that oil and gas wells constantly become depleted and continued exploration for oil and gas resources is needed. He said present tax allowances stimulate such exploration.

Colonial Field Is Completed
 FORT WORTH — UP — The 48-player field for the 10th annual Colonial National Invitation Golf tournament was completed Wednesday with the acceptance of invitations by Dow Finsterwald of Athens, Ga., and Jack Fleck of Davenport, Iowa.

They were picked by the Colonial's former champions from a list of 10 names and between them received all of the first place votes.

Finsterwald, who first made golf history when he shot a then-record 61 as an amateur in the 1950 St. Louis Open, returned from the service only recently, but has been in the money in five of his last six tournaments.

Fleck has been in the money in seven of the 11 tournaments he has entered in the past year.

This is believed to be the first major in history given at the university. This spring he was a guest artist with the San Antonio Symphony Orchestra.

Linda Christian To Divorce Mate
 HOLLYWOOD — UP — Actress Linda Christian, who married actor Tyrone Power six years ago in Rome before a shrieking crowd of 8,000, has filed suit for divorce on grounds of cruelty.

The green-eyed actress, separated from Power for six months, brought suit in nearby Santa Monica superior court Tuesday. Attorney announced the couple has reached an oral agreement on division of property, and Miss Christian asked for reasonable support for herself and their two children, Ronald, 3, and Taryn, 1.

Groom Townsite Sold For $500

By JOEL COMBS
Pampa News Staff Writer
GROOM — You couldn't begin to buy the town of Groom for $500 today, but the section which now makes up the townsite for that Carson County city sold for exactly that price in 1896!

The country around Groom was first owned by various ranchers and the Groom section was once a part of the Knorrp and Bigbee Ranch. The section sold to W. S. Wilkinson in 1896 for $500 and he sold the right of way through it to the Rock Island Railroad five years later.

The railroad through Groom was completed in 1903 and the town began to grow up as a center for cattle shippers.

Groom, which is now an incorporated city, was named for a "Colonel Groom," who had large ranch holdings north of the present townsite location. He is said to have marketed as many as 50,000 head of cattle in one year while ranching there.

The first farm settlers came into the community before 1890. Some of these early families were the Frasers, Johnsons, Angels and the Boydsons. The only school for many years in the vicinity was located at Boydston, which was named for the pioneer farmers. The first school in the town of Groom was in the building which is now the home of Frank Koetting.

What is now known as Highway 66 has undergone many changes and alterations, but it ran through Groom from the very first. In 1922 it was called a postal highway. It was unpaved, and had eight or more gates to be opened between Groom and Amarillo. Later it was known for a time as the Ozark Trail, then the Main Street of America.

The town of Groom was organized in 1911 at which time there were several businesses. A bank had been opened and was owned by J. W. Knorrp and E. S. Blaisdel, both deceased. A general merchandise store and post office were in one building about 1903, and were owned by the Dysart Brothers. A second business, a grocery store, was owned by C. R. Slay. The first doctor also owned and operated the first drug store. He was Dr. Swearingen.

Also in Groom were located a livery stable, a hotel, and a saloon. A man named Planck operated the saloon and the hotel was a house moved in from the country and owned by J. C. Thomas. It was called Hotel de Groom.

Groom, going Chicago one better, has survived two disastrous fires and is still thriving. Most of the streets are paved now and the town has a good water and sewer system, as well as an excellent new school building. Most lines of business are represented here and several new homes have been built recently. There are churches of five denominations, a clinic, and three large grain elevators.

The people who live in Groom are proud of the little town, and rightly so, for a great amount of hard work and the resulting progress have made Groom an enjoyable place in which to live.

MAIN STREET NOW -- Groom main street now reveals a representative of nearly every type business that is needed to contribute to the enjoyable and progressive life now in effect in that city. (News Photo)

MAIN STREET THEN -- The above picture was taken looking down Groom's main street soon after the city was founded in 1902.

Kingsmill Farmer To Get Honor

Amos Harris named the outstanding conservation farmer by the Gray County Conservation district will be presented with an award recognizing the fact at a meeting of the Lions Club Thursday noon.

Harris, who farms south of Kingsmill on a 960-acre tract of land, has according to County Agent Ralph Thomas, practiced conservation methods and experiments since his arrival on the local farming scene some 20 years ago. Clyde Magee, the nominee in 1954, was presented a similar award by the McLean Lions Club.

Over the years, Thomas commented, Harris has applied numerous conservation practices such as the planting of legumes, sweet clover, and Austrian winter peas for soil building, in addition to doing considerable terracing on his land.

Harris has run numerous trials on various varieties of wheat in cooperation with the Texas Experiment Station, as well as conducting fertilizer tests to determine whether fertilizing pays on the High Plains. He has also practiced stubble mulching.

AFTER THE FIRE -- Goods and merchandise of all kinds are piled up in the middle of the street following the first big fire that nearly destroyed Groom. Modern fire fighting equipment is ready now to prevent such a disaster recurring.

Thomas Praises Irrigation Clinic For Precaution Ideas

County Agent Ralph Thomas, who recently returned from a week-long irrigation clinic at Canyon, said today that probably the most valuable thing to come out of the deliberations was the emphasis placed on precautions to be taken and factors to be looked for before embarking on well drilling and irrigation.

The conference at Canyon, presided over by 21 irrigation specialists from all over the western part of the United States, including Dr. Ivan D. Wood of Denver, the nation's top irrigation extension expert, was attended by 50 county agents from West Texas.

Stressed at the conference, Thomas said, was the importance of test holes in drilling for underground water.

Importance of Test Wells "Certainly as important," he emphasized, "was the use of test pumps to determine the extent of the underground water. Farmers and ranchers then can purchase a pump and power unit that will insure maximum efficiency."

"Naturally, in a week you can't become an authority on irrigation. You can only scratch the surface of the subject, but the course taught us how to learn more on this irrigation business, and where to go if we need additional information," Thomas said.

With a total of over 20 specialists from all parts of the country who experience a wide range of problems" their diverse experience focused considerable light on the problems we are facing in the High Plains," Thomas said.

Information Available

Thomas said that farmers and ranchers naturally are invited to consult with him on the information he has picked up at the conference. He mentioned that there is considerable literature available on well drilling as well as irrigating.

Among the other specialists in attendance were Dr. D. F. Fudge, state chemist, who talked on how chemicals in water acted on soils.

J. B. Page, head of the agronomy department at Texas A&M College, lectured on soil structures. Two members of the U. S. Geologic Survey with offices at Austin were on hand to explain the underground water system of the area.

Veteran Test Pilot Hurt Bailing Out

PALMDALE, Calif. —UP— Herman H. Salmon, one of the oldest test pilots in the business, was treated for cuts and bruises Wednesday after he safely bailed out from his secret experimental jet fighter, the Lockheed F-104.

Salmon, 41, ejected himself from the stub-winged, lightweight jet at about 15,000 feet Tuesday after he radioed an "emergency" condition had arisen. The F-104 crashed and was destroyed.

Salmon was picked up on the desert by an H-UP-2 "Retriever" helicopter piloted by Lt. G. C. Peebles Jr., who flew the shaken pilot to the Naval hospital at nearby Inyokern, landing on the lawn.

Details of the crash and the tests the plane was undergoing were not released.

Ex-Wife Sues Mickey Rooney

HOLLYWOOD —UP— Actor Mickey Rooney's second wife, the former Betty Jane Rose, has charged that the pint-sized comedy star is $6,685 behind in alimony and child support payments.

Mrs. Rooney accused her ex-husband with being in contempt of court in an affidavit filed Tuesday before Superior Judge Elmer Doyle. She said Rooney was to pay her $520 a month alimony and $418 child support for their two children, Mickey Jr., 9, and Timothy, 8.

The actor has paid her only $700 this year and still owes $2,645 from last year, she said. Judge Doyle set May 16 for a hearing. The couple was divorced in 1948 after four years of marriage.
