Pampa Rifle, Pistol Club Does Bang, Bang Up Job

By ED NASH
Pampa News Staff Writer

There is a Pampa organization which has the distinguishing feature of never operating inside the city limits.

It may be in Recreation Park or east of the city. Or even in the Hoover community. But not in Pampa.

That's the Pampa Rifle and Pistol Club, a group of some 45 adults, who in addition to enjoying themselves on the rifle range oversee the activities of younger persons who belong to affiliates.

The club is not a group, however, that insists on a lot of publicity for its activities. And when you learn that John Schoolfield, the modest man who was the Pampa Daily News' 1954 Tip-Top Texan of the Year, is the president of the club, you can understand why.

"It is an organization that is really wholesome for Pampa," Schoolfield says. "And he means it. Though he won't say so, he is one of the main reasons for it, and for its program of youth development."

The Pampa Rifle and Pistol Club has been around for only three years but it has acquired an influence belying its tenure.

Harry Creel, an engineer, was the first president and Bert Howell, another engineer, was secretary. Howell was known as a sportsman and was the original concessioner at Lake McClellan.

New Officers

In the three years since the club has acquired new properties and officers. Besides Schoolfield, a lumber yard salesman, there are Kirk Duncan, an insurance man, vice president; George W. Dings, engineer, secretary; Cleo Cathey, engineer, executive officer; Tony Welker, soil conservationist, chief instructor; Bill Huff, water well drilling contractor associate, and Les Newman, welder, range officer; and E. C. Kilpatrick, district carbon company superintendent, treasurer.

There are three club ranges, one indoor and two outdoor.

The one most equipped is in Recreation Park, in a Gray County-owned stucco building which was originally used for the 4-H calf show. It has a heavy steel backstop and target frames and is rigged up for five shooters (soon to be six).

Schoolfield says target carriers will be installed in the near future, and so will mats from which to shoot. The club has four .22-caliber target rifles on lease from the U.S. Government.

One outdoor target range is in the Hoover community, on Red Deer Creek. It is for big-bore shooting and firing is done into the side of a canyon. The range is up to 300 yards and there are even phones, provided by the government.

Two To Be Six

This outdoor range even has a pit, which has only two positions but will soon be enlarged to six. There is another, smaller range east of the city, where small-bore rifle shooting is done. The range here is 100 yards.

The Pampa club is affiliated with the National Rifle Association and the federal government gives club members certificates for proficiency in pistol, and small-bore and big-bore rifle shooting. Club members buy all their own ammunition from the government, at reduced rates.

All shooting is done under the supervision of the range officer or other qualified personnel. Schoolfield emphasized. That means that clubs which are affiliated with the rifle and pistol club always have supervision.

Three of the clubs for the young, or the beginner, are at 4-1/2 Club and Explorer Post 14, 700 George.

Post 4 has some 30 members who participate in the shooting program. Donny Ryan and B. N.

Parrett help out with the Post's own boy leadership. The post goes to Clovis, N.M., Saturday for a sectional meet.

There are 12-15 boys in the 4-H group under the leadership of A. P. Coombes. They will compete sometime in May in a regional meet in Canyon.

Post 14 sports an estimated 20 boys who work out on the pistol and rifle range. Wade Gilbert and George Newberry help out.

And other community clubs are planning to participate. Schoolfield says there are plans underway for a school to be held in the near future. Those in the school will learn about firearms safety, gun handling, the fundamentals of shooting, nomenclature, that type of thing.

The girls won't be left out, either. There will be school for them, too. One of Schoolfield's projects is to get more girls interested in rifles and pistols. That is one of the things he mentioned when he was written up as a Tip-Top Texan. It will get underway as soon as the Recreation Park range is ready.

Cleanness has a group that is planning to come into the club as a whole, provided it can keep its sectional identity. It is such a thing with which it is hoped the club will become bigger.

Competition

The club has done all right in competition, also. Actually, all clubs in the NFA compete against each other, in their own communities. In the postal match held in Pampa last month, L. L. Milliren placed eighth in Class A; Welker, fifth in B; and Jim Kirkham, seventh in D, all in Match 3.

In Match 4, it was Welker, seventh; Class A; Milliren, second; B; Cathey, first; C; Kilpatrick, sixth; C; Kirkham, third; D; John Warner, fourth; D; and Newton, sixth, D.

All types of persons belong to the club. Among those not previously mentioned are Dr. Philip Gates, Glenn Wilkie, George Ethelred, Dr. W. Purviance, Dr. Malcolm Brown, (first club treasurer) Ted Eads and B. D. Robison. There is one female club member: Mrs. Inez Carter. Area peace officers are also welcome to use the club facilities.

It is quite characteristic of Schoolfield to say, "We're not much on officers in this club, it's the members that count."

Gas Firms Merge

SPOKANE, Wash. —UP Pacific Northwest Pipeline Co. of Houston and Trans-Northwest Gas Co. of Spokane have merged their interests to bring natural gas to the Pacific Northwest. The agreement ends a two-year battle over which firm shall supply the region. Natural gas may become available by the summer of 1956.

Appeal Planned

DALLAS —UP—Attorneys for Mrs. Elsie Lee, 28, gave notice they will appeal a decision by Criminal District Judge Harold Wright denying her a new trial. Mrs. Lee was convicted of murdering her dentist husband, Dr. Marcellus Lee, and has been sentenced to 15 years in prison.

Two Washington Youths Get Credit For Saving Lives

SEATTLE, Wash. —UP— Two quick-thinking youths received credit Saturday for saving the lives of a distraught mother who threw her two children off a 90-foot bridge into a rainswept ship canal and then jumped in herself.

"Why didn't I die? I feel so sorry for them... to have a mother like me," sobbed Mrs. Ann Salisbury, 24, Seattle, after she and her two children were rescued from the canal Friday.

James Hayes, bridge tender on the Montlake Bridge crossing the Lake Washington Ship Canal, said the woman parked her car at one end of the bridge. She put her daughter, Cynthia, 2, astraddle the bridge rail and had the child lean against her. Then she picked up Bryan, 4, and threw him over the side.

By the time I reached the boy, I had to dive under the water to get him."

'As She Was Going Down'

Sherman said he reached Cynthia "just as she was going down."

"We pulled them over to the bulkhead where five or six men hauled them to the bank," Smith said.

The mother and her children were taken to a nearby hospital where Cynthia was given artificial respiration. All were in satisfactory condition.

A policewoman said Mrs. Salisbury had been to a clinic recently and had been advised she needed psychiatric treatment. Police said she would be kept at the hospital for examination. Her husband, Frederick Salisbury, a salesman, removed the two children from the hospital Friday night.

Churchill 'Citizenship' Poses Washington Problem

WASHINGTON —UP— Congressional proposals to grant Sir Winston Churchill honorary U.S. citizenship might do more harm than good, administration officials said Saturday.

They were far from opposed to the idea of this nation's showing its appreciation for Churchill's services to the free world during his long career. But there were definite misgivings about risking legislative debates and a possible legal inquiry by the Supreme Court into the constitutionality of any move to give Churchill citizenship.

"What everybody has in mind is something like giving Churchill the keys to the city—on a grandiose scale," one informant said. "That would be safer (than the citizenship move.) It would be too bad to start a big controversy that could wind up embarrassing Churchill."

Sen. George A. Smathers (D-

Fla.) and Rep. Hale Boggs (D-La.) have announced plans to introduce legislation to grant the former British prime minister honorary citizenship. They have invited other lawmakers to join in sponsoring the legislation.

The Library of Congress has no record of any previous congressional action to grant honorary citizenship to a foreigner. This bothers some government lawyers who see the possibility that the good intentions of such a legislative move, if approved, could become controversial in a Supreme Court action.

Other officials believe trouble would develop before and during legislative debates. They foresee a vigorous, perhaps violent debate on the proposal in which anti-British elements would demonstrate their objections in Congress and elsewhere.

'Easter Parade' Might Be Damp

By UNITED PRESS

Easter finery may get a little damp in some areas of Texas Sunday, but generally the weatherman said the weather would be mild enough that the new, lightweight clothing would be comfortable.

A more or less stagnant shower condition prevailed over all but the upper Panhandle and west of the Pecos River Saturday morning after a night of light to locally heavy showers pelted widespread areas.

The weather bureau said these same conditions were likely to prevail through Sunday although temperatures might be a bit warmer.

Early morning lows Saturday ranged from 40 degrees at Dalhart and Salt Flat to 63 at Brownsville. Amarillo reported 42, Midland 43, El Paso 47, Marfa 48, Childress 49, Lubbock 50, Wichita Falls, Prentiss and Tyler 51, Fort Worth, Mineral Wells and Lufkin 52, Abilene, College Station and Beaumont 54, Houston 55, Galveston, Victoria and Del Rio 55.

The overnight showers generally were light, but some places got a half inch or more and Willis Point in North Texas recorded 1.05 inches.

Other rainfall reports included Shreveport .49, Dallas .47, Fort Worth and Abilene .38, Houston .33, Brownsville .25, College Station .23, Victoria .13, and less than one-tenth of an inch at Amarillo, Wichita Falls, Galveston, Austin, Lufkin, Beaumont, Laredo, San Antonio and Waco.

Thundershowers were reported throughout Northeast Texas from Tyler to Texarkana, but no measurements were reported.

Friday's high temperatures ranged from 50 degrees at Dalhart to 83 at Presidio.

Taken PM Overdose

HOUSTON —UP—A 32-year-old night supervisor at Methodist hospital was in critical condition Saturday from what police believed to be an overdose of sleeping pills.

Police said the woman, Mrs. Joy Leon, was admitted to St. Joseph's hospital Friday night when she collapsed after telling a priest, the Rev. Denison Schevers, she had taken half inch or more and Willis Point

Clark Case Gets Lead

FORT WORTH — UP—Detective Grady Haire disclosed Saturday that police have a witness who saw hoodlum LeRoy (Tincy) Eggleston near the home of millionaire oilman William P. Clark about the time he was murdered in May 1953. Haire said police also have a witness who will testify that Mrs. Clark, accused of being an accomplice to her husband's murder and Eggleston were seen together in a north side tavern before the murder. Harry Huggins, 47, and Cecil Green, 39, also are charged with Clark's murder. Huggins confessed that Mrs. Clark, 46-year-old blonde, guaranteed Eggleston, 48, $10,000 to kill her husband, who was trying to disinherit her because he believed she married him for his money. Huggins may tell his story for the first time under oath Monday, when defense attorneys want an examining trial held for the defendants. They made their wants known Friday at a habeas corpus hearing, in which they were all remanded to jail. Mrs. Clark protested her innocence.

Eden To Set Voting Date

LONDON — UP—Political sources disclosed Saturday that Prime Minister Anthony Eden is expected to set the date of national elections when he makes his maiden speech in his new office next Thursday or Friday. Eden was reported confident the elections will confirm the Conservatives in power for the next five years. Eden and his wife Clarissa, retired for the weekend at Chequers, country home of British prime ministers. They planned to have no callers Saturday. The prime minister retired to the estate after sending simultaneous messages to President Eisenhower and Soviet Foreign Minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov in his first diplomatic action since succeeding Sir Winston Churchill three days ago. Eden, in his note to Mr. Eisenhower, pledged "closest co-operation with you and your administration at all times." The prime minister, in reply to an unusually warm congratulatory note from Molotov, called the Russian diplomat that he (Eden) was desirous of "maintaining the good relations we have enjoyed in the past."

Gray Sold 12,668 Auto Tags

Slightly less than three-quarters of the motor vehicle license plates sold by the Gray County tax office during February and March were for passenger cars. County Tax Collector Jack Back Saturday released the breakdown on types of license plates sold during the two months before the 1955 deadline for their purchase. There were 9,421 passenger car licenses sold of the 12,668 plates sold for all types of vehicles. Commercial vehicles accounted for another 1,849 licenses and there were 703 plates sold for farm vehicles, Back reported. The passenger, commercial and farm types of vehicles were the three largest categories. In the case of all three categories, the last week in March actually, May 30 through April 2—was the heaviest. In that time, Back tax deputies sold 3,018 passenger, 733 commercial and 240 farm vehicle license plates.

Water Board Meeting Postponed

The monthly meeting of the board of directors for the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority, scheduled for Monday morning in Plainview, has been postponed. Lynn Boyd, one of Pampa's two directors and the new Pampa mayor, Saturday said he had been notified of the postponement. No other meeting date has been set, he said. Boyd said he would resign from his directorship after he is sworn in as mayor Tuesday morning and another director will be appointed to take his place. B. D. Robinson is the other Pampa on the board of directors of the authority. The CRMWA directors met March 28 and unanimously voted to endorse pending legislation in the Texas Legislature which would cure the present conflict between state and federal laws governing such a project. The board at present is considering both private and governmental financing of the dam and reservoir project north and west of Borger, near Sanford. Contrary to what had been thought at first, it is the opinion of persons close to the authority that at least some governmental financing will be necessary if the project is ever to be built at all. Maryland was the first, and for many years the only, state to proclaim religious toleration, hence "Free State."

Progress Keeps Hansford County A Prosperous Area

By JOEL COMBS Pampa News Staff Writer SPEARMAN—A constant transformation has been in progress in Hansford County during the past three-quarters of a century which has kept this area one of the most prosperous in the state of Texas. While today, the area stands on the threshold of a new era, with the promise of increased production from natural gas fields, it is still primarily wheat country, and its fields produce quality grain that draws premium bids from millers. But in the early days of this north plains country, the attraction was its waving fields of fine grass which brought first the lumbering buffalo and the spirited wild mustangs. The presence of these animals in turn attracted the Indian hunters and then the white man, and this, came progress. As the Indian, the buffalo and the mustang were driven away, the white men brought in cattle, and until the turn of the century it was cattle production which accounted for the principal income of the area. Then came the wheat planters, and the rich soil of the area began to pay dividends in a new venture. First Settlement James H. Cator, one of the most famous of the buffalo hunters, made the first permanent white settlement on Palo-Duro Creek in 1875 (his wife and son still live there) and founded the first post office, named Zulu, which stood on the old Grand and Ft. Bascom trails. By this time the railroad had reached Dodge City, Kans., 240 miles away, from which all supplies had to be freighted, Mobeetie and Tascosa were then the only other permanent settlements in the Panhandle region. The former sprang up around Ft. Elliott and the latter was on the main cattle crossing of the Canadian River which was a stopping place for small herds.

The rich soil would produce small grains and sorghums. Today approximately 60 per cent of the county is in cultivation and is devoted to the production of wheat which affords abundant winter pasture as well as a beautiful grain crop. Finest Grain Crops Agriculturally, Hansford County is the heart of a vast and rich kingdom, with level miles of fertile mineral laden soil situated 3,100 feet above sea level producing some of the world's finest grain crops and beef cattle. The people of the county enjoy the highest per capita income from agriculture in the state. They specialize in producing quality wheat and beef cattle in huge quantities. Millers often bid more for Hansford wheat. It is quality plus, and is recognized beyond state boundaries as the tops for milling into choice flour. The predominance of Hansford wheat was shown by milling and baking contests conducted over a period of years by the Texas Wheat Improvement Association. In all of the contests the local wheat won more championships and awards than entries from all other counties of the State combined. At present the growers are raising the following varieties of certified wheat for seed: Westar, Wichita, Comanche, Tenmarq and Turkey Red. In some years there is in excess of 60,000 beef animals grazing on wheat during the winter. The cattle business is supplemented the remainder of the year by use of native pasture and feed crops. Enough cattle are shipped from Hansford County to slaughter houses to support a small packing plant. County Seat The City of Spearman is the County Seat of Hansford County. It was established in 1919 and incorporated in 1921. Spearman has a population of approximately 1,800. It has investment of nearly a quarter million dollars in schools, which are fully accredited with Southern Colleges and offer 33 credits of affiliation for high school graduates. Primarily a supply point for an agricultural and cattle country, Spearman boasts new and modern grain elevators and shipping facilities. The town has all modern conveniences, adequate paving, and is rapidly growing into a typical progressive small American city. New buildings in the city include a $30,000 motion picture theatre, a $50,000 hospital, a $30,000 Community Hall, and new buildings for the Baptist, Methodist, Church of Christ, and Christian churches. Other Cities Gruver, with a population of approximately 600, is located on the Rock Island line near the geographical center of the county in the very heart of the North Plains wheatbelt. It was officially born March 1, 1929, when the new railroad division was completed between Amarillo and Liberal. It has developed into a popular cattle and wheat shipping point, serving a trade territory of approximately 425 square miles. Two other towns in Hansford County are Morse, located at the southern edge of the county on the Rock Island and Santa Fe Railroads, and Hitchland, located on the northern edge of the county around Morse and Hitchland is about equally divided between farming and ranching. Thousands of bushels of wheat and many herds of cattle are shipped from these towns each year.

REDSKIN ON RUNNERS—Time was when Indians rode about the Wild West on horseback. This redskin, however, finds the going on snow is simplified with some paleface skis. He and other Indians spent their spare time on the slopes at Sun Valley, Idaho, while on location near the resort with a Hollywood movie company. It wasn't all work and no play.

LAD'S EYE VIEW — David Bosted, six, found that in the spring his special fancy turned to thoughts of baseball. The Phoenix, Ariz., lad is luckier than many others; he can wander over to the Giants' training area and get a close-up. That's outfielder Bill Taylor throwing the ball.

NEVER TOO YOUNG—Former ice follies star Phyllis Legg demonstrates her skill on stilt skates as one of her pupils, two-year-old Betty Jeanne Treadway stands underneath her. The other youngsters are also pupils at Miss Legg's San Francisco school.

FALLEN CHANCE—When an unidentified Detroit Red Wing went sprawling in Detroit, he missed a chance for a shot on the Toronto goal. Roy Hathaway, Jim Selby and Lester Hathaway, left to right, are admiring the first irrigation well to be drilled in the Mobeetie area. The well, which will be 350 feet deep, is pumping at 220 feet in the picture. The farm, operated by Roy, is owned by Church of Christ Minister Lester Hathaway. Jim is a neighboring farmer. The well, which is located three-fourths of a mile northwest of New Mobeetie, is now pumping approximately 800 gallons a minute. It was drilled by Shorty Heiskell of Pampa. (News Photo)

Lark Farmer Refuses To Let Texas Dusters Run Him Out

By CARTER BRADLEY
LARK, Tex. — "Dust ran me out of here once," said E. B. Thornton, a wheat farmer on the High Plains. "But it ain't about to do it again."
As Thornton was being interviewed at his Lark, Tex., farm, another giant dust storm raged the southwest. Four years of drought have left millions of acres of crop land barren. The specter of another "Dust Bowl" era worries many who lived through the disaster of the 1930s.
Thornton lived through it, but just barely. He was one of the thousands of farmers who were evicted by the "black blizzards" of wind-borne soil. He and his father moved to East Texas in 1934, but he returned in 1942 to take up tenant farming.
Dad 20 Years Ago
The optimism of the 40-year-old Thornton, despite the new wind erosion problem, is not uncommon

The Home Is Flitting TV

By RICHARD E. MOONEY
WASHINGTON — UP — Now that television has brought into millions of homes, a project is underway to bring homes into television.
Through the TV medium, the housing industry is showing how to plan, build and buy a home with a moderate income.
Builders in more than two dozen cities have started work on a test house, whose design is based on studies by the National Association of Home Builders Research Institute, the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics and the Southwest Research Institute.
Home Has Seven Rooms
It is a seven-room, ranch style dwelling for families in the medium income bracket. Television can watch it building on the NBC weekday show called "Home."
In such cities as Newark, N. J., San Antonio, West Los Angeles, and Evansville, Ind., the same house is going up. Some builders will give it individual touches but all have the objective of showing that contemporary housing is suitable for any and all areas, an NABH spokesman said. Another purpose is to introduce new ideas.
The new ideas in this house include such things as a "mud closet" by the back door, so children can shed their dirty clothes as soon as they come inside the house; a kitchen strategically located to be within easy reach and within viewing distance of all outside doors; lots of glass, and two outdoor terraces. The kitchen opens onto a garden terrace through a sliding glass wall.
First Inspection in June
The first test houses will be opened for public inspection in June. Openings and exhibits will continue through National Home Week in September.
The local builders are providing their own financing and will sell the houses at various prices, depending on costs prevailing in the area. Built in large numbers or in projects, the house will cost less, of course, than if it is built separately.
Television presentation, which has already started, will lead the viewer through every step of buying a house — planning, financing, building, furnishing.
Collins Firm Designs House
The house shown on TV came from the drawing boards of a Los Angeles architectural firm, Jones and Jones.
The house is sited only slightly off the premises, but it will go over as well in the traditionally better areas of the north and in the more rural southern areas.

hereabouts. Soil conservation officials here said Thursday they know of no farm abandonment so far in the 12 counties of the Texas Panhandle. Most persons say that although the dust storms are bad, they are no worse than last year's and not as serious as had been expected.
"They could be a lot worse," Thornton said. "I planted 600 acres of wheat and have about 200 and a quart left. I figured I've lost about all I'm going to lose. Twenty years ago we couldn't raise anything here."
W. H. (Rocky) Wilson, who runs the combined general store, service station and postoffice on U.S. Highway 66 near Thornton's "place," shared the farmer's hopeful outlook.
"I've been here since '22," said Wilson. "It was bad from '33 to '36. Folks got dust pneumonia and went broke all over this country. It was hopeless, or at least, we thought so. But things have changed even if the weather hasn't. The farmers' know how to cope with drought and how to get help from the government."
Thornton, for instance, has "chiseled" hundreds of acres of land this spring—a type of plowing designed to prevent wind erosion.
"I've never done so much chiseling as this year," the stocky, tanned farmer said.
Allen H. King, director of the Amarillo office of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service, said Thornton's attitude and practices are typical. In the dozen counties in King's area, approximately 3 million acres of nearly 5 million acres within Soil Conservation districts are under some type of erosion control.
Erosion Dates Far Back
But King said the dust clouds—some of them 400 miles wide and 600 miles long—attest to the seriousness of the overall situation. Millions of acres remain outside soil conservation programs. Included are vast areas of rangeland east of the Rocky Mountains.
King and other soil experts point out that wind erosion occurred in this part of the country long before agriculture began.
"The farmers are doing a very good job of taking care of the land under conditions which are hard to cope with," he said.
A consulting geologist, Tom Ingram of Roswell, N.M., confirmed King's observation regarding erosion.
"It would be safe to say that wind erosion has occurred in this part of the world for the past several hundred thousand years," Ingram said.
Gets Federal Subsidy
The Soil Conservation Service is one of several government agencies which since the "dirty thirties" have been assigned the job of halting ing what was then called "deserts on the march."

Thornton, for instance, receives 50 cents per acre government subsidy for his anti-erosion plowing. Such measures, King points out, have kept farmers in business here despite the fact that the past four years have been drier than the four years preceding 1936. In the frank, friendly vernacular of the wide open plains country, Thornton explained:
"We've learned how to take hold of the soil better and we aren't letting go so easy."

Writer Is Coming Into His Own In Field Of Television

By JACK GAVER
NEW YORK — UP — Most of television's outstanding young dramatic actors are strictly products of TV, but there are increasing indications of how attractive this field is becoming to writers with other reputations.
Gore Vidal is a prime example. This young man has turned out eight novels in the past 10 years. He quickly won acclaim from the critics and he has had good sales. Slightly over a year ago, while between novels, Vidal turned out an hour-long TV drama that was handsomely presented on one of the big programs and well received by viewers.
"I liked the work, and I've concentrated on television dramas ever since," said the grandson of the late blind U. S. Sen. Thomas Gore of Oklahoma.
"I've done a number of adaptations of novels and plays for television, and, unlike some TV writers, I don't mind that sort of work at all. Adaptations — if you're working with material that interests you — can be a pleasant challenge.
Sometimes you have to use twice as much imagination and ingenuity as you would in writing your own original play."
Vidal was represented on CBS-TV's "Best of Broadway" series this week with an adaptation of "Stage Door," the old Broadway hit by George S. Kaufman and Edna Ferber.
"I had two problems with it right off the bat," Vidal explained. "In the original, an important factor was the presence of a character with leftist leanings. There also was a suicide. Both of these things were automatically out for TV."
"And I hope no one will take offense when I say that it had dated very badly in the matter of dialogue and plotting. I had to do an awful lot of work on it."
"Climax" Series Completed
Vidal has completed for the CBS "Climax" series next month a treatment of John Marquand's new writing the figures.

County Agents See Stilbrestol

Jerry Mobley and Ralph Thomas, from the Gray County Farm Agent's office, were in Spur recently to observe the results of tests being made there.
Results noticed were that Stilbrestol has increased rate and efficiency of gain when fed to steers weighing 600 pounds and more when they are on full feed.
The carcass of animals fed Stilbrestol are no different from animals not fed the hormone. Animals fed Stilbrestol did shrink more enroute to market.
The animals fed Erranucylin did not gain faster or show any significant advantage when this antibiotic was added to the ration.

best-selling novel, "Sincerely, Willie Wayde."
Meanwhile, he has dreamed up a program format that ABC-TV will introduce next fall and which he will write several original half-hour scripts as well as collect a royalty for the idea.
"Devil's Theater" is the name of the series, and, as the title suggests, its dramas are to be on the sophisticated and esthetic side.
"Uncle Tom's Cabin" Revamped
One of the features on CBS-TV's "OmniBus" this Sunday will be a dramatic treatment of that famous old novel, "Uncle Tom's Cabin."
Since play versions of this have been trouped throughout the land for about 90 years, that doesn't sound very startling, but there is method behind the idea.
Robert Sauderk, boss of the program, realized a while back that everyone knows about "Uncle Tom's Cabin," but few actually have read the novel and their knowledge is based mainly on one of the many stage versions. For example, there are no bloodhounds pursuing Eliza across the river ice in Harriet Beech Stowe's book. Some forgotten dramatists added that little touch.
A fresh adaptation by Ellen Violet, based directly on the novel without the addition of any trimmings of her own.
Special Easter Show Sunday
"Kukla, Fran and Ollie" will present a special Easter show Sunday on the ABC-TV network from 6:30 to 7 p. m.
It will be unique in the respect that for the first time in the seven years of Burr Tillstrom's famous hand puppets there will be more than two characters visible at the same time. In some scenes there will be as many as eight figures in action.
Since Tillstrom has only two hands, this means, of course, that "Climax" series next month a treatment of John Marquand's new writing the figures.

Benson Puts Wheat Problems Into Politico Economic Pack

By GAYLOR F. GODWIN
WASHINGTON — UP — Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson has wrapped a couple of wheat problems into what may be politico-economic packages.
The packages contain 500 million bushels of "set-aside" wheat, and a new policy calling for the rotation and consolidation of wheat stocks owned by the Commodity Credit Corp. The disposition of the country's huge wheat surplus definitely has political overtones.
The set-aside gimmick takes a whopping load of wheat out of the total supply in figuring price support levels. This could be a factor in raising, or keeping steady, the price support rate.
Thinking May Be Similar
The thinking on reducing wheat price supports might be similar to that on reduction of wheat acreage, Benson is not in favor of knocking down the present 35 million acres for wheat because it might deprive some wheat growers of their livelihood.
In the words of a House committee report, "because there is virtually no other crop to which they can turn (including in many areas even livestock) when wheat acreages and marketing quotas are reduced, the income of many wheat producers is curtailed in direct proportion to the cut in their wheat allotment."
Benson said at a recent news conference if wheat production and present carryover were to be brought immediately into balance with demand, or use, the wheat acreage would have to be cut to about 18 million acres. There is no thought of doing this, either in the Department of Congress. Each is conscious of a potent farm vote.

Farmers Up Cash Income

AUSTIN — UP — Texas farmers received cash income of more than $248 million during the first two months of the year, 1 per cent over the same period last year, the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research reported Friday.
The comparable January-February farm cash income in 1954 was $245 million.
The increase was accounted for, the research bureau said, by a $8 million rise in revenue from cattle, from $41 million in the first two months last year to $49 million this year.
Cotton income, totaling $96.2 million, was off 5 per cent from the $99.4 million level registered in January-February, 1954.
However, some products recorded sharp gains. Income from sheep and lambs increased 44 per cent in January-February over the same period last year, and wheat revenue was up 37 per cent.
The largest percentage income drop was listed for peanuts, down 49 per cent from the two-month 1954 total of $2.3 million. Eggs were down 18 per cent.
The research bureau also reported the index of prices received by Texas farmers and ranchers for all products totaled 298 in mid-March, four points below mid-February, and five points below March, 1954.
Nearly every commodity showed a decline from mid-February to mid-March, with gains being registered only by lambs, chickens and citrus fruit.

Christ the Lord is Risen

The Miracle of Easter As Related in the Gospel According to St. Mark

AND the chief priests and all the council sought for witness against Jesus to put him to death; and found none. For many bare false witness against him, but their witness agreed not together.

And there arose certain, and bare false witness against him, saying,

We heard him say, I will destroy this temple that is made with hands, and within three days I will build another made without hands.

But neither so did their witness agree together.

And the high priest stood up in the midst, and asked Jesus, saying, Answerest thou nothing? what is it which these witness against thee?

But he held his peace, and answered nothing. Again the high priest asked him, and said unto him, Art thou the Christ, the Son of the Blessed?

And Jesus said, I am; and ye shall see the Son of man sitting on the right hand of power, and coming in the clouds of heaven.

Then the high priest rent his clothes, and saith, What need we any further witnesses?

Ye have heard the blasphemy: what think ye? And they all condemned him to be guilty of death. And some began to spit on him, and to cover his face, and to buffet him, and to say unto him, Prophesy: and the servants did strike him with the palms of their hands.

And as Peter was beneath in the palace, there cometh one of the maids of the high priest:

And when she saw Peter warming himself, she looked upon him, and said, And thou also wast with Jesus of Nazareth.

But he denied, saying, I know not, neither understand I what thou sayest. And he went out into the porch; and the cock crew.

And a maid saw him again, and began to say to them that stood by, This is one of them.

And he denied it again. And a little after, they that stood by said again to Peter, Surely thou art one of them: for thou art a Galilean, and thy speech agreeth thereto.

But he began to curse and to swear, saying, I know not this man of whom ye speak.

And the second time the cock crew. And Peter called to mind the word that Jesus said unto him, Before the cock crew twice, thou shalt deny me thrice. And when he thought thereon, he wept.

And straightway in the morning the chief priests held a consultation with the elders and scribes and the whole council, and bound Jesus, and carried him away, and delivered him to Pilate.

And Pilate asked him, Art thou the King of the Jews? And he answering said unto him, Thou sayest it.

And the chief priests accused him of many things; but he answered nothing.

And Pilate asked him again, saying, Answerest thou nothing? behold how many things they witness against thee.

But Jesus yet answered nothing; so that Pilate marvelled.

Now at that feast he released unto them one prisoner, whomsoever they desired.

And there was one named Barabbas, which lay bound with them that had made insurrection with him, who had committed murder in the insurrection.

And the multitude crying aloud began to desire him to do as he had ever done unto them.

But Pilate answered them, saying, Will ye that I release unto you the King of the Jews?

For he knew that the chief priests had delivered him for envy.

But the chief priests moved the people, that he should rather release Barabbas unto them.

And Pilate answered and said again unto them, What will ye then that I shall do unto him whom ye call the King of the Jews?

And they cried out again, Crucify him.

THEN Pilate said unto them, Why, what evil hath he done? And they cried out the more exceedingly, Crucify him.

And so Pilate, willing to content the people, released Barabbas unto them, and delivered Jesus, when he had scourged him, to be crucified.

And the soldiers led him away into the hall, called Praetorium; and they called together the whole band. And they clothed him with purple, and platted a crown of thorns, and put it about his head.

And began to salute him, Hail, King of the Jews! And they smote him on the head with a reed, and did, spit upon him, and bowing their knees worshipped him.

And when they had mocked him, they took off the purple from him, and put his own clothes on him, and led him out to crucify him.

And they compel one Simon a Cyrenian, who passed by, coming out of the country, the father of Alexander and Rufus, to bear his cross.

And they bring him unto the place Golgotha, which is, being interpreted, The place of a skull.

And they gave him to drink wine mingled with myrrh: but he received it not.

And when they had crucified him, they parted his garments, casting lots upon them, what every man should take.

And it was the third hour, and they crucified him. And the superscription of his accusation was written over, THE KING OF THE JEWS.

And with him they crucify two thieves; the one on his right hand, and the other on his left.

And the scripture was fulfilled, which saith, And he was numbered with the transgressors.

And they that passed by railled on him, wagging their heads, and saying, Ah, thou that destroyest the temple, and buildest it in three days,

Save thyself, and come down from the cross. Likewise also the chief priests mocking said among themselves with the scribes, He saved others; himself he cannot save.

Let Christ the King of Israel descend now from the cross, that we may see and believe. And they that were crucified with him reviled him.

And when the sixth hour was come, there was darkness over the whole land until the ninth hour.

And at the ninth hour Jesus cried with a loud voice, saying, Eloi, Eloi, lama sabachthani? which is, being interpreted, My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?

And some of them that stood by, when they heard it, said, Behold, he calleth Elias.

And one ran and filled a sponge full of vinegar, and put it on a reed, and gave him to drink, saying, Let alone; let us see whether Elias will come to take him down.

And Jesus cried with a loud voice, and gave up the ghost.

And the veil of the temple was rent in twain from the top to the bottom.

And when the centurion, which stood over against him, saw that he so cried out, and gave up the ghost, he said, Truly this man was the Son of God.

There were also women looking on afar off: among whom was Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James the less and of Joseph, and Salome;

(Who also, when he was in Galilee, followed him, and ministered unto him;) and many other women which came up with him unto Jerusalem.

And now when the even was come, because it was the preparation, that is, the day before the sabbath,

JOSEPH of Arimathea, an honourable counsellor, which also waited for the kingdom of God, came, and went in boldly unto Pilate, and craved the body of Jesus.

And Pilate marvelled if he were already dead: and calling unto him the centurion, he asked him whether he had been any while dead.

And when he knew it of the centurion, he gave the body to Joseph.

And he bought fine linen, and took him down, and wrapped him in the linen, and laid him in a sepulchre which was hewn out of a rock, and rolled a stone unto the door of the sepulchre.

And Mary Magdalene and Mary the mother of Joseph beheld where he was laid.

And when the sabbath was past, Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James, and Salome, had bought sweet spices, that they might come and anoint him.

And very early in the morning the first day of the week, they came unto the sepulchre at the rising of the sun.

And they said among themselves, Who shall roll us away the stone from the door of the sepulchre?

AND when they looked, they saw that the stone was rolled away: for it was very great.

And entering into the sepulchre, they saw a young man sitting on the right side, clothed in a long white garment; and they were affrighted.

And he saith unto them, Be not affrighted: Ye seek Jesus of Nazareth, which was crucified: he is risen: he is not here: behold the place where they laid him.

But go your way, tell his disciples and Peter that he goeth before you into Galilee: there shall ye see him, as he said unto you.

And they went out quickly, and fled from the sepulchre: for they trembled and were amazed: neither said they any thing to any man; for they were afraid.

Now when Jesus was risen early the first day of the week, he appeared first to Mary Magdalene, out of whom he had cast seven devils.

And she went and told them that had been with him, as they mourned and wept.

And they, when they had heard that he was alive, and had been seen of her, believed not.

After that he appeared in another form unto two of them, as they walked, and went into the country.

And they went and told it unto the residue: neither believed they them.

Afterward he appeared unto the eleven as they sat at meat, and upbraided them with their unbelief and hardness of heart, because they believed not them which had seen him after he was risen.

And he said unto them, Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature.

He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned.

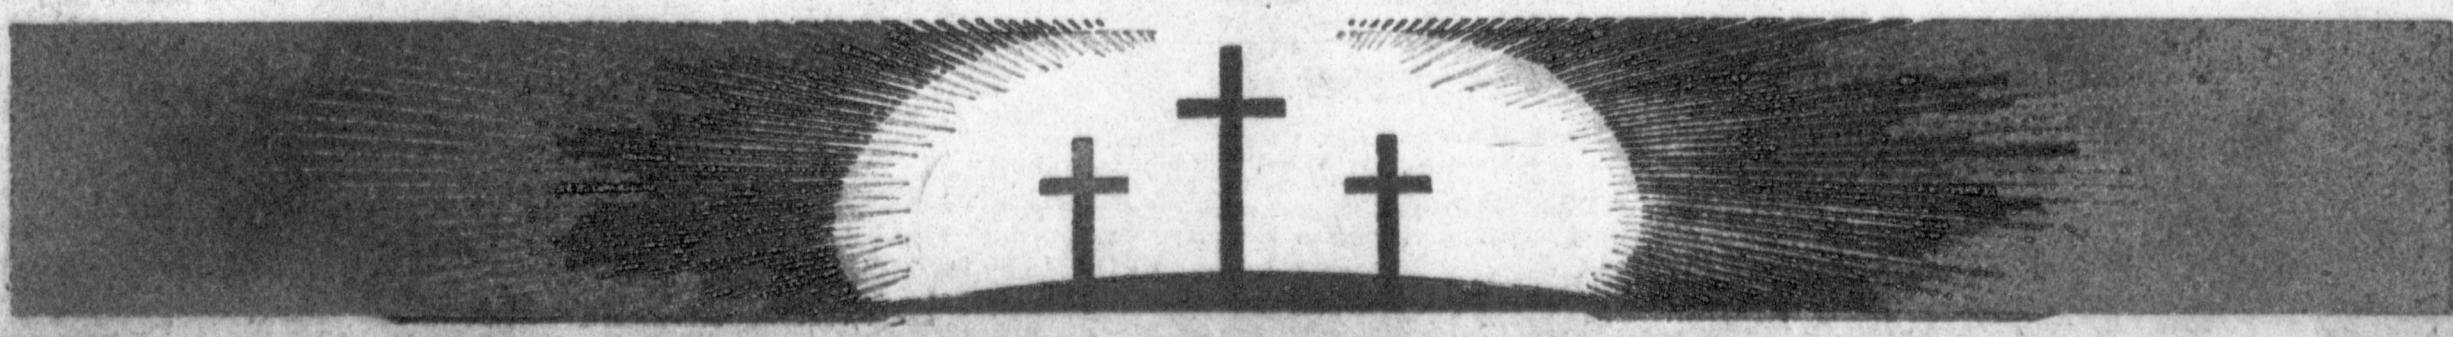

And these signs shall follow them that believe: In my name shall they cast out devils; they shall speak with new tongues;

They shall take up serpents; and if they drink any deadly thing, it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover.

So then after the Lord had spoken unto them, he was received up into heaven, and sat on the right hand of God.

And they went forth, and preached every where, the Lord working with them, and confirming the word with signs following. Amen.

A silver cup is pretty, but a small plastic one is better to start Baby on drinking by himself. He'll be able to wrap his hands around it with greater ease than he can hold a handle. The silver cup is the next step, if you're lucky enough to have one.

If Baby must sleep in strange surroundings, be sure to take along a familiar blanket or toy and carry on your usual evening routine to ease him off to sleep.

If you let Baby sit in his chair-table or stroller while you argue with the automatic washing machine, be sure he's located well away from any door that might fly open in a rush of hot water. But it is good to have him with you in such a situation for you might not be able to hear his cry above the noise, if he were in another room.

Miss Janie Lewis, Pfc Bobby Jones Marriage Is Told
Mr. and Mrs. James Lewis, 121 N. Faulkner, announce the marriage of their daughter, Janie, to Pfc. Bobby A. Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Jones, 1117 S. Clark. The couple was married Wednesday in the parsonage of the Baptist minister in Clayton, N. M. The bride wore a brown suit with blue accessories. Her corsage was an orchid. Mrs. Oscar Sargent, matron of honor, wore a black dress with black accessories. Oscar Sargent served as best man.

The bridegroom attended Pampa High School and is now stationed with the Marine Corps at Cherry Point, N. C. The bride is a senior in Pampa High School.

Club Ethics Told To 20th Century Allegro Members

Mrs. Charles Hickman, Jr., was hostess to Twentieth Century Allegro recently in her home at 1236 Williston. Mrs. Joe Black was co-hostess.

The program, "Club Ethics" was presented by Mrs. Creel Grady, who stressed the practice of courtesy at club meetings and the observance of parliamentary rules. "Tact is another word for kindness, and members should always keep this in mind," she stated.

Other suggestions were given for making the smooth operation of a club possible. Mrs. Grady also commented on each line of the club collect used by the Allegro group.

Mrs. Clifford Braly, chairman of the program committee, presented a proposed outline for programs for the coming year.

MATURE PARENT

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

Outside the juvenile court, it was a cold day. Inside it, it could have been even colder. For one of the people who stood before the judge was a child. The other was a mother — and what she was doing was to denounce her own child to a reformatory.

It could have chilled me to listen, so bitter was her voice. The girl cared for nothing but fun, said her mother. She was useless around the house. School was a laugh; she went if she felt like it — if she didn't, she didn't. Now she'd taken up with this good-for-nothing man . . .

Would she listen when you warned her that all he wanted was a good time? Would she ask herself what a 28-year-old loafer wanted with a kid of 15? No. She wouldn't. She didn't care about anything. She was bad.

And, "Your Honor," the mother concluded, "I want her sent away where I won't have to see her any more."

As I said, I might have shivered. I didn't. I had knowledge that kept me from shivering. The woman who wanted her child put away where she wouldn't see her any more had been given a very, very bad time by a good-for-nothing person herself.

So, instead of shivering, I said to myself, "I see. One very, very bad time with a good-for-nothing is enough for one human life. She's not bitter at her child. She's just afraid of another bruise on an old bruised place."

What release it would have been if she'd known it! Instead, she had to stand there, hard-faced beside the lost child, hate putting a million miles between them because she couldn't place it on the person it belonged to.

For our own sakes, let's always try to remember to be very suspicious of intense anger at a child.

Hardly ever does the intensity belong to him. Nearly always, what he's done is to hit an old bruise.

We explode at Beth's carelessly-washed dinner dishes, not knowing that we're exploding at the little sister who used to get away with carelessly-done chores that we had to do perfectly. We weep over her criticism because we were slapped across the mouth for criticizing.

We hear a small son tattling on us to his father and never suspect that our hurtful sense of injustice is the pain of some old betrayal we think we have forgotten.

It's the old bruises that alienate us from children. The angrier we are, the sharper we should look for them. For when we locate them, love for the child is restored to us. We can see the hurt he has given us disconnected from the hurts he hasn't given us.

To turn a rainy day sunny, try a raincoat in yellow wool jersey. Or have a white raincoat for summer in nylon and pima cotton.

If you don't like nightgowns and pajamas get twisted around your legs, there's a happy solution. Try one of the very short, pleated gowns worn with matching panties. Modest and pretty.

MARRIAGE ANNOUNCED

Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Cook, 1811 Charles, announce the marriage of their daughter, Sharon Lynn, to George F. Collett, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Collett, 518 N. Somerville. The marriage ceremony was performed in Sayre, Okla., March 28. The couple will reside in Pampa. (Photo by Clarence's Studio)

Senatorial Wife Has A Unique Hobby Of Collecting Barbs By Society Editors

By PATRICIA WIGGINS

WASHINGTON — UP — "Congressional wives look like parrots, think like mannikins and act like robots."

"Congressional wives are dull, pale, deprecatory dames at best," Mrs. Karl E. Mundt — once a congressional wife, now a senatorial wife — has created one of Washington's most unique hobbies by saving barbs like these from the pens of local society writers.

The wife of the Republican senator from South Dakota preserves in a growing scrapbook the very things that most official wives try to forget.

Blonde, blue-eyed Mrs. Mundt told a reporter Monday she doesn't save any of the favorable or admiring lines — and there are many — despite the society sisters' notorious lack of restraint. She only gets out her paste-pot for the unflattering comments.

Like the words of one fashion reporter reporting on a fancy Washington tea. She commented on the lovely gowns of diplomats' wives, described a "stunning" buffet table, and added, "congressional and senatorial wives were littering up the whole place."

Mrs. Mundt chuckled when she recalled how this item in her scrapbook dampened her excitement over her first White House reception:

"The congressional reception, if it lives up to its reputation, will be the dowdiest of the winter season. At best, congressmen and senators are a motley lot and their wives are notoriously monotonous in dress. It must be remembered that most of the legislators married these women long before they entered public life."

Mrs. Mundt is more discreet than some of the society writers in that she doesn't disclose the names of the poison pen authors. And she won't disclose the name of the cabinet wife who was quoted as saying when asked if she enjoyed one of her own home receptions:

"Dear no. The people I wanted to see didn't come and the people I didn't care anything about came in droves. And did you see the congressmen's wives mowing down my tea table like a bunch of locusts over a wheat field?"

Mrs. Mundt said only that it was not a present-day cabinet wife.

Mrs. Mundt whose husband served in the House 10 years before moving over to the Senate in 1948, has another favorite commentary in her collection. This

Every time one of them (congressional wives) voices an original idea, the Washington Grand bends over in a monumental salaam."

GRACE FRIEND

Dear Grace
I have a terrible problem and I can't seem to think of any answer. So last night I got to thinking maybe Grace Friend could help me.

My son drinks, Grace. He drinks so much that he is making his sweet wife and children miserable. He spends so much money on bars that there isn't enough for the necessary food and clothing so my daughter-in-law has had to go to work just to keep the children properly cared for. I do what I can by watching over the children while she is away.

I have gone to the police but they say that they can't do anything to my son unless he is drunk and has to be picked up. He is never really drunk, Grace. He doesn't come home and create scenes and beat up his family. He just goes to bars all of the time and spends his hard earned money on drinks for himself and his friends.

I wonder if there is some way I can force him to quit this and devote himself to his family as he ought to. Is there anyone I can appeal to help me with this?
Worried

Dear Worried
You can only appeal to your son and try to persuade him to change his ways.

Perhaps you should have started years ago to teach him to be an adult and accept responsibility. Often times boys are not taught to grow up by their doting parents and then when they reach maturity they engage in such actions as you have described.

At this late date you can only try to point out the right path for him and hope that he will realize soon that he must grow up and accept his position as a husband and father.

It might be that you can enlist the aid of your pastor or of his employer. Their arguments might make more of an impression on him than your familiar ones.

Perhaps you can help his wife take a firmer stand regarding the matter. She may have been too quick to take over his responsibilities towards the family so that he developed a feeling that he wasn't really needed. A man frequently drinks to help him forget a feeling of inferiority brought on by his wife.
