

Pampa Oilers Host Corpus In 'Little Dixie' Opener Tonight

By BUCK FRANCIS
The Pampa Oilers became the first club in West Texas-New Mexico League history to win two consecutive league pennants last night when they overcame the Amarillo Gold Sox, 10-7, and win the championship series, four games to one. Last night's win sent the Oilers into the "Little Dixie Series" which starts tonight at Oiler Park. The Oiler opponents in the Little Dixie are the Corpus Christi Clippers, champions of the Big State League. The Clippers clinched the Big State title Sunday and were on hand at last night's series clincher for the Oilers. Corpus Christi brings an undefeated playoff record into the Little Dixie series, the South Texans having defeated Harlingen four straight in the opening round and then following suit against Waco in the finals. Two veteran moundmen will take the hill in tonight's Little Dixie opener, Red Dial, who posted 20 wins over the regular season, will go for the Oilers while Rene Vega, a 28-game winner over the regular campaign, will toil for the Clippers. Vega is a former West Texas-

New Mexico Leaguer. While in the WT-NM, Vega hurled for Abilene, Lubbock and Borger. Vega was the winningest pitcher in the Big State League and possibly of all organized baseball for the '55 season. The Oilers have taken on three new players for the Little Dixie Series. Pitcher Andy Bush and outfielder Lynn Attyd of Amarillo and Doug Lewis, former Oiler, and now of Plainview, will don Oiler pinnacles for the Little Dixie classic. By agreement, the Oilers were allowed to add two vets to match the eight-veteran limit of the Big State League of which the Clippers represent. The third vet to be added to the roster replaces Jack Venable, who will be unable to compete in the Little Dixie because of his business in Amarillo.

Just where Oiler Manager Grover Seitz will play the new additions remains to be seen. Venable was the "man of the hour" as far as the 1,549 paid customers were concerned in last night's series, clincher against Amarillo. The veteran righthander relieved starter Buddy Woods in the third inning and set the heavy-hitting Sox down on five hits and two runs the remaining distance. One of the two runs off Venable was unearned. The only earned run-off Venable was Marshall Bridges' leadoff homer in the fifth. After the fifth, Venable blanked the Sox on two hits. The Oilers had to overcome an early Sox lead, though, to capture the decision. The Seitzmen staged (See OILERS, Page 8)

Revolt Leaders Plan Next Move

By W. H. MCCALL
BUENOS AIRES — UP — Leaders of Argentina's successful revolution opened negotiations Tuesday to pick up the reins of government wrested from ousted President Juan D. Peron and restore national peace.

A heavy guard was being maintained around Peron's suburban Palermo home but his exact whereabouts were unknown. In Santiago, Chile, it was announced that a special transport plane was expected from Buenos Aires, and elaborate preparations were made for its safe landing. The field was lighted throughout the night and police stood guard. Officials refused to say who they expected to be aboard.

A 13-man military committee ruled temporarily in Buenos Aires, taking over after Peron's forced resignation and clean sweep of his government which followed. The committee offered to negotiate with the revolutionary leaders "to seek pacification in order to avoid useless bloodshed among brothers."

Both sides emphasized that hostilities only had been "suspended" pending the outcome of negotiations. But the 13-man committee seemed an empty gesture. Revolutionary leaders negotiated under comfortable safety of their naval guns which still pointed menacingly at Buenos Aires and the valuable oil installations in nearby Eva Peron (La Plata). From throughout the country came reports of former loyalist leaders surrendering to the victorious rebels.

Progress of the negotiations remained secret. All that was known was that rebel fleet Adm. Isaac Rojas had messaged Gen. Eduardo Lonardi at rebel headquarters in Cordoba, suggesting that Lonardi join him aboard the cruiser Argentina "with the idea of talking to the military junta."

At 12:30 a.m. (9:30 p.m. est) a motor launch from the Argentina arrived in the port of Buenos Aires, presumably bringing Rojas ashore. There had been no report of Lonardi's arrival.

At 5 a.m. a terse official announcement said "negotiations on pacification" have begun. In Cordoba, Gen. Videla Balague commander in chief of rebel forces in the province, said that all rebel army chiefs had pledged not to seek personal advantages from the revolution and to decline any possible offer of nomination for the presidency.

He also asked whether "the fact that this case has received such wide publicity" would influence them as jurors. The courtroom was jammed with the venemere reporters, many of the defendant's relatives, and as many Negro spectators as could crowd into a segregated area allotted them.

Circuit Judge Curtis M. Swango excused three venemere because of their connections with a $5,000 defense fund raised in this strictly-segregated farming community. J. J. Breland, one of five defense attorneys, asked prospective jurors whether they would be certain the body found bloodstained, shot and weighted down in a river was that of Emmett Till.

Cabot Opens Management Conference

Executives of the Cabot Companies, headed by Russ Allen, executive vice-president of Godfrey L. Cabot Inc., gathered in Pampa today for the 24th management conference of the Southwestern Division.

There will be two days of general sessions at the Cabot headquarters in the Hughes Building followed by two or three days of other sessions at various levels. The conference began with a general assembly at the Cabot Auditorium.

Reuben Hall, superintendent of the Walton-Keystone gasoline plant at Kernit is chairman of the conference. He called the meeting to order this morning. Principal address was made by Allen who spoke on "What and How We Are Doing."

Other talks were made by E. L. (Gene) Green, executive assistant to the general manager; R. A. Baker, plant superintendent at Cabot Shops; Hugh Burdette, general manager; Pampa office; Larry Johnson, of Boston, director of personnel and organization; Con Paulson, district superintendent from Franklin, La.; Reno Stinson of Pampa, director of industrial relations; and Bill Glidden of Boston, corporate insurance manager.

The management conferences are held twice a year in the Cabot organization. The objectives of such conferences are to exchange reports on what and how the organization is doing; to discuss and attempt to solve mutual management problems; to bring the thinking together on policies, procedures, etc.; and to facilitate communications up and down the supervisory line.

Different executives of Cabot serve as chairman for the conferences. The last conference was held here March 15, headed by Abie Hahn.

In addition to visiting executives from Boston, there are 50 management representatives registered for the conference which opened today. These are Bert Ainey, H. S. Ayres, R. A. Baker, Curt B. Beck, A. F. Board Jr., R. T. Bowen, John M. Bradley, G. F. Branson, John M. Brown, E. F. Bulls, Hugh Burdette, T. C. Carter, John W. Chisholm, Sam Coco, Don Conley. (See CABOT, Page 3)

One Citizen Present For Budget Talk

The city commissioners this morning heard the first reading of Ordinance number 436, which was on paving scheduled on Decatur, Florida and Kingsmill Streets. The reading closed the public hearing on the project.

Only one visitor was present at the public hearing held on the 1956 budget under consideration by the commission. Frank Carter discussed the budget in general, commenting that he thought a flat rate on water should be charged to both residences and industries.

The hearing was closed following the discussions with Carter and acceptance of the budget was tentatively set for the commission's meeting Oct. 4.

Reservations for the Texas League of Municipalities, scheduled for Oct. 23, 24, 25, in Brownsville, were taken by Fred Brook in order to let officials of the meet know how many delegates would attend from Pampa. Commissioner Neel, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brook, Mayor and Mrs. Lynn Boyd, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Gordon, and Ed Vicars are expected to attend the meeting.

Reservations were also taken for the Chamber of Commerce and Board of City Development banquet, scheduled to be held in the High School Cafeteria Oct. 18. All commissioners of the city officers were set to attend with the exception of Commissioners Varnon.

It was learned in the meeting that the Texas State Highway Department had approved the signposting of the Hobart and Kentucky intersection. Installation of a traffic light will be made in the near future.

The group approved payment to E. A. Steinberger for a survey on Pampa's gas system he had taken previously.

Food, Medical Aid Sent To Flood Area

TAMPICO, Mex. — UP — Government transport planes, shuttling food and medical brigades from Mexico City, began swarming in at dawn Tuesday bringing the first aid to this flooded Gulf port city of 160,000 since Hurricane Hilda smashed through Sunday night.

The Red Cross reported 12 persons known dead, most of them women and children, and said more than 250 injured have been treated. An early report that 60 per cent of the city was damaged has been revised to 90 per cent. Tamaulipas State Gov. Horacio Texan has requisitioned all vehicles for rescue operations and all private homes where 15,000

Color Choice Tells On Kids

IZUMO, Japan — UP — Children with a fondness for black crayons are headed for jail, according to Japanese art teachers. The teachers said a survey of 7,000 students under 16 revealed the following tendencies: Fondness for black — a tendency to steal; red and green — consciousness; orange and yellow — a longing for love; violet and pink — illness; and brown — thieving habits.

Chinese Free Two Women Missionaries

HONG KONG — UP — Two American women missionaries crossed the border to freedom from Communist China Tuesday. They said they were so suspicious of their jailers they were almost afraid to accept Red Cross packages.

The missionaries, both Presbyterians who were kept in the same jail for 4-12 years, were Sarah Perkins, 63, of New York and Dorothy Middleton, 42, Cicero, Ill. They were the eighth and ninth Americans the Communists announced on Sept. 11 would be "deported" before "expiration" of their terms. Almost all the Americans were charged with some form of "espionage." The two women were charged with "sabotage."

The 10th, Dilmus T. Kanady of Houston, Tex., a Shanghai businessman sentenced to 4-12 years by the Reds, was expected at the border Wednesday.

They were the first 10 of 41 Americans in Red China listed by the Peiping regime for immediate freeing under terms of an agreement worked out in Geneva conference. Reports from Shanghai Tuesday said some other Americans were making plans to leave soon.

The reports said 10-year-old Emma Angelina Bary, the daughter of an American, would leave Sept. 23 by ship with her mother, a white Russian and not an American citizen. Robert Howard Parker, 82, a retired businessman originally from Philadelphia, will leave at the same time with his Chinese wife.

They will sail on the Butterfield and Swire ship Human. Mr. and Mrs. Howard (Cappy) Ricks were reported making arrangements to sail directly from Shanghai to Japan where Ricks has a firm. Their date of departure was not known.

Eve Stella, Dugay, 62 (Sister Theresa), a Catholic nun and a native of New York, is expected to leave in October. Although she has been ill the Chinese Communists repeatedly refused her an exit visa.

Mrs. Juanita Huang, 51, a native of Mount Olive, Miss., and a Southern Baptist missionary married to a Chinese, was expected to leave "as soon as she winds up her affairs," the Shanghai reports said.

Both the Presbyterian missionaries released Tuesday were in good mental and physical health although they looked tired. Miss Perkins, frail-looking in a white summer dress, said "it's so good to be free, thank you very much," when she crossed the border.

More than 10,000 refugees were crammed in the rooms and corridors of the hotel. (See AID, Page 3)

Radical Course Change Reported By Weathermen

NORFOLK, Va. — UP — Hurricane Ione swept "well out to sea" Tuesday, and the weather bureau said the East Coast was out of danger barring a sudden and "radical" change of course.

A special bulletin issued by the Washington Weather Bureau shortly after 9 a. m. (CST) said the storm was "moving eastward away from the coast." It was centered at that time about 200 miles east of Norfolk.

Conrad P. Mook, meteorologist in charge of the emergency warning center in Washington, told reporters that it would take a "radical change of course" within the next two or three hours for Ione to present any threat whatever to the East Coast.

Even that theoretical threat should be erased by late afternoon if the storm continues on its present course, he said. The weather bureau lowered all hurricane warnings along the coast.

Ione had lost much of its punch before it put out to sea. But before swerving out to sea during the night, it struck savagely through North Carolina and Virginia coastal areas, leaving at least two dead and "tens of millions of dollars" of damage in its wake.

For anxious hours, it appeared that the storm, which packed 100-mile-an-hour winds as it came ashore, would continue its destructive course up the East Coast. Heavily populated New York and southern New England were alerted to stand by for a hard blow.

But the anticipated worst never came. Ione, after churning around off Norfolk most of the night, set off almost due east toward the wide open spaces of the Atlantic.

The move was the first Benson has made since he promised last week to do something concrete about skidding farm prices. The Agriculture Department reported earlier this month that farm prices have declined 4 per cent so far this year. Hog prices led the drop.

Benson said he "instructed the Department of Agriculture to take immediate steps to the use of appropriate machinery to improve the hog price situation."

"These plans will supplement the efforts already underway to co-ordinate with and co-ordinate a pork promotion campaign now being so successfully carried on by whole industry, from the farm to the retail store," he said.

"Two years ago we faced a similar price situation on beef," Benson said. "Our efforts to stabilize the beef industry have greatly increased beef consumption. We are determined to make a careful appraisal of the possible need for similar direct actions...to help hog producers."

The government bought up beef to help relieve the glut of lower grades of beef and strengthen the market. Benson said on his return from Europe last week that similar plan was under consideration for hogs.

Title Fight Delayed By Hurricane

NEW YORK — UP — The Rocky Marciano - Archie Moore heavyweight title fight was postponed for 24 hours Tuesday because of Hurricane Ione.

In view of weather forecasts calling for strong winds and heavy rain for the New York area, promoter James D. Norris of the International Boxing Club announced the postponement at 8 a. m. est.

The fight now will be held, weather permitting, at Yankee Stadium Wednesday night. However, the fight, which was scheduled to start at 8:30 p. m. est Tuesday night, will not start until 8:45 p. m. est Wednesday because of broadcasting complications. Should another postponement be necessary, the fight will be staged Thursday night.

The 24-hour postponement came as another frustration and perhaps a costly one for Moore, the long-haired, 35-year-old challenger who figured to be bothered more by the waiting than the placid Marciano. Pick 4th pgh: New York's share

Benson Plans To Bolster Hog Prices

WASHINGTON — UP — Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson plans "immediate steps" to bolster rapidly-declining hog prices.

He gave no indication as to what steps he has in mind. But he said he will call representatives of the hog and pork industry to Washington to advise the department on "how best to utilize the machinery available and to improve prices to farmers." The plans probably will involve government purchase of pork products.

The move was the first Benson has made since he promised last week to do something concrete about skidding farm prices. The Agriculture Department reported earlier this month that farm prices have declined 4 per cent so far this year. Hog prices led the drop.

Benson said he "instructed the Department of Agriculture to take immediate steps to the use of appropriate machinery to improve the hog price situation."

"These plans will supplement the efforts already underway to co-ordinate with and co-ordinate a pork promotion campaign now being so successfully carried on by whole industry, from the farm to the retail store," he said.

Peron Took Political Ideas From Mussolini

Editors Note: What sort of man was Juan Peron, who ruled Argentina for more than nine years? What was the source of his power? What were his hobbies? Did his late wife dominate him? These and other questions are answered in the following inside story by a former United Press vice president and general manager for South America who knew Peron well.

Grandma Still At Bat On TV Give-Away Show

By WILLIAM EWALD
NEW YORK — UP — Mrs. Myrtle Power, a 70-year-old baseball fan currently battling 1,000 in TV's toughest league, steps up to the plate for her 10th swing Tuesday night.

The sprightly charmer from Buford, Ga., has swatted her way through nine queries on CBS-TV's "The $64,000 Question" to run her earnings to $18,000. This evening, "Myrtle," as she prefers to be called, can try to double her stake or call a halt to the contest and retire with her winnings.

"I don't know what I'm going to do," says Myrtle. "I change my mind four or five times in a day. I may go to the program thinking one thing and do another. Last week, I didn't know what I was going to do right up to the time I went on."

Myrtle, who is almost as cool in the clutch as one of her favorite ballplayers, Ted Williams, has breezed through the questions thrown at her thus far.

She has defined the "keystone sock," a "duster" and a "Texas leaguer." Those were pretty easy. But Myrtle also has supplied such toughies as the two modern major league hurlers who pitched two no-hitters in a season aside from Bob Feller and Alie Reynolds (Virgil Trucks and Johnny Vandermeer) and the names of the five batters Carl Hubbell fanned in succession in the 1934 All-Star game (Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Jimmie Foxx, Al Simmons and Joe Cronin).

Eleanor Tells Of Sweet Talk By Russians

NEW YORK — UP — Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, home from her third trip around the world, told Monday of Soviet sweet talk that followed her all the way back to U.S. shores.

The East German delegation at the assembly of the World Federation of the United Nations Associations, which Mrs. Roosevelt attended in Bangkok from Sept. 5 to Sept. 12, "spoke with honey just the way the Soviets are doing now," the former first lady said.

Then she found herself on the same plane with Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov when she left Paris Saturday night. Mrs. Roosevelt told reporters at a press conference Monday at the offices of the American Association for the UN that Molotov was a model of friendliness.

She urged that Americans not underestimate "the little things" in the battle for "men's hearts and minds" now going on in the world. "There wasn't a place from Japan right through to the Orient where I wasn't asked about that incident in Houston, Tex., when the airport cafe manager asked the Indian diplomat to move to another dining room, thinking he was a Negro," Mrs. Roosevelt said. "I can't tell you the effect it had in Asia, that incident. Those are the things we cannot afford to do."

Shriners To Sponsor Circus Here Sept. 28

Beautiful girls are as much a part of the circus as elephants, clowns and wild animals. And of all the luscious lassies, none are more popular than the aerialists — those daring young ladies who risk life and limb high in the air.

The Clyde Beatty Circus, with Clyde Beatty in person, which will erect its tents in Pampa on Wed. Sept. 28 under the sponsorship of Shrine Club has over fifty of these charming performers working high in the air, in the huge production numbers and the dazzling opening spectacle, "Circus on Parade."

But while beauty, youth and charm are predominant, it is the wild animal display of Clyde Beatty, world's greatest wild animal trainer, that is still the big lure of the two-hour performance. For 1955, Beatty is presenting the largest group of trained lions and tigers in his long career.

Many new foreign acts, novelties and thrillers on the program this season. Among these stars of the circus world are the Hanford, bareback riding act; Zaccini, who is shot from the mouth of a flaming cannon; the Great Lenares, Spain's celebrated star of the silver strand; Lolita, sensational aerial star from the Argentine; the Hanel Troupe — the Rudis, James Millette and many, many others.

Three herds of elephants, over 100 head of Kentucky thoroughbred horses, ponies, dogs and the famous Konyot Chimpa, take care of the animal portion of the show. Add to this 25 funny clowns and you have the 1955 edition of the world's greatest trained wild animal circus.

The tented city will go into the air at Rodeo grounds for performances at 3:30 and 8:00 p.m.

Reds Give Up Naval Base

MOSCOW — UP — Russia officially surrendered control of its Porkkala naval base in Finland Monday — a move that led to a Soviet suggestion the United States give up its overseas bases.

The Soviet also signed a 20-year treaty with Finland, pledging friendship and mutual aid. The non-Communist Finns had leased Porkkala to the Russians for 50 years under the Soviet-Finnish peace treaty of 1948. The Soviets agreed Monday to hand it back within three months.

The mutual aid pact signed Monday is an extension of the 1948 10-year treaty which was not due to expire until April 1955.

Burglars Float Cash From Safe

LEAGUE CITY, Tex. — UP — Smooth-operating, well-equipped burglars "floated" $9,000 to $10,000 out of a safe in a general store here Sunday night.

Using oxy-acetylene torches, the yeggs burned a hole about five inches in diameter in the door of a "burglar-proof" safe in the Kilgore general store, then poured water in.

Police said the water apparently floated the currency and the burglars "fished" for it with coat hangers bent into hooks.

MAKING A GO OF LIFE

By ROY L. SMITH
Read John 3:1-10

All men ask certain questions. A sophomore from the university came to his pastor saying: "I guess I will have to give up my religion." When pressed for an explanation of his remark he replied: "All my life I have believed the things I have been taught. Now in the university classroom I have begun to ask questions for the first time in my life, and I have discovered that thinking people do not believe these things." The pastor was in no wise alarmed, for he had a distinct memory of having gone through a similar experience in his own sophomore year. He therefore took time to explain to the youth that the very thing which had unsettled his faith should actually convince him of the reality of God. "For the first time in your life you are having a vivid, conscious, personal experience with God. These questions which are leaping up in your mind are a sign that God is stirring things up inside you. The animals do not have such experiences because they are animals; you have them because you are a living soul."

There are a few questions which every normal human being asks: Why am I here? What is the purpose of life? Where did I come from? What is there in life worth living for? What is the explanation of these deep inner forces which strive for mastery over me? Such queries as these, phrased differently at different times, have been upon the lips of every normal human being. They usually arouse the most intense interest among teen-agers, but even old age has found that they will not down until the individual has arrived at some kind of reasonable solution.

It is strange, O God, but it is true, that some of my difficulties are the most positive proof of thy concern in me. These questions that beset me, are they not symptoms of my spirit reaching out in response to thy invitations to greatness? Amen.

Do you ever get restless under routine? What is your explanation? Do you suppose it might be an expression of the divinity that is within you which is revolting against the circumstances that are making a machine out of you?

Leadership Workshop Set

Group discussion methods and techniques and demonstration of a panel at work will be featured in the Leadership Training Workshop to be held in the Federated Club Rooms in Borger next Thursday and Friday from 8-10 p.m.

Specialists for the workshop will be: Dr. Per G. Stensland, John Gregory, Wendell Williams, and Ray C. Janeway, all of Texas Tech College.

This will be a follow-up to the Program Planning Workshop held last spring, and is designed to give training in discussion methods, skills, and techniques for leaders as well as participants.

Group discussion techniques and methods will be demonstrated at both sessions.

Guests for the workshop will be members of the Pampa Adult Education groups, and Carson County Library and Clubs. Other groups and the public is invited to attend.

POISED POSTER GIRL—Jolene Kay Lake, 3½, of Seattle, Wash., doesn't appear over-awed at winning the 1955 national poster contest of Muscular Dystrophy Association of America. Jolene, victim of the fatal disease, is this month calling upon stars in public life to join in her appeal for 500,000 volunteers. They'll serve in the nationwide house-to-house Thanksgiving Week March for muscular dystrophy.

US And China Compromise On Talk Issues

GENEVA — The United States and Communist China reached a compromise on bringing political issues and the western trade embargo into their high-level talks here Tuesday.

U.S. Ambassador U. Alexis Johnson agreed Red Chinese demands to move on to other points in exchange for Peiping Ambassador Wang Pingnan's agreement to consider the exchange of prisoners issue closed, diplomatic sources said.

Item 1 on the two-part agenda of the talks which started Aug. 16 was the exchange of nationals held in each country. Item 2 deals with "other practical matters" at issue between the two nations.

Peiping has agreed to free some 41 Americans it holds, and the U.S. has said that all Chinese who wish to do so are free to leave America for the China mainland. But the U.S. had insisted that the Chinese Reds complete their release of Americans before taking up other issues.

However, a brief official communique said Johnson and Wang "exchanged information" Tuesday on prisoner release, and then "exchanged views" on item 2.

Thus, for the first time since the discussion started, trade and political issues were considered, marking a turning point in the conference.

Under the topic of "other practical matters" Peiping is seeking a high-level conference with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

Explorers Set Training Meet

A planning conference for Explorer Units of Boy Scouts of the Santa Fe and Ft. Elliot Districts will be held today at the Palm Room of the City Hall at 7:30 p.m.

Each post, ship or crew will be allowed four representatives to the conference to vote on activities in which they would like to participate.

Chairmen for the four program fields: vocational, service, social, and outdoor, will be selected.

All delegates will vote on the activities they, and the young men in their posts, would like most to have. The program activities which gain the most votes will be the activities program for the next 10 months.

Some of the activities which will be at the option of explorers at the conference will be: an explorer recognition ball, a flying lesson bivouac, and a Canadian canoe expedition.

Dan Dial Wins Award At Fair

Dan Dial, 14, won the Grand Champion Barrow award with his Duroc barrow yesterday, after more than five hours of judging, at the Tri-State Fair in Amarillo.

A large audience was on hand for the hog judging in the show ring of the swine barn. Judge E. M. Regenbrecht, swine specialist from Texas A&M College, named Dial's Duroc to the championship. He praised the quality of the show and the showmanship of exhibitors.

Both the open class and junior pigs were judged at the same time yesterday, a different manner of judging than previously.

Sam Condo of Gray County exhibited his Duroc gilt to first place over 13 other entries in that division in the Sears Foundation show.

Scout Leaders Meet Tonight

A roundtable general session for Boy Scout leaders of the Santa Fe District will be conducted at the Palm Room of City Hall today at 7:30 p.m.

A general session headed by E. Roy Smith and Kay Fancher will consist of the Boy's Life Award and the presentation of '55 Round-up plans.

A split session for Explorers and Boy Scout Leaders will follow.

Survey cards will be distributed along with samples of recruiter patches for Boy Scouts who recruit another pack or troop member. Literature will be displayed for new ceremonials and record-keeping.

doors of public buildings and temporary shelters. Lights, water, telephone and telegraph service were knocked out. All roads and railroads leading out were under several feet of water.

Many Stranded on Hills

Pilots said "apparently" many families were stranded on small hills throughout the flooded region. Food drops by air to isolated persons were scheduled to begin Tuesday.

Tamaulipa State Sen. Manuel Guzman radioed early Tuesday that "it is impossible to visualize the magnitude of destruction.

"From the roof of my house," his message said, "you see only a panorama of terrible devastation. The majority of homes are roofless. It is impossible to move through the streets, even by boat, because of the vast amount of floating wreckage."

Numerous large buildings were reported heavily damaged. The big "Plaza" movie theater was ripped apart by the hurricane winds and disintegrated into the flood.

The steeple of a large church was toppled by the wind and lay across the street. The big park in front of the Municipal Palace was littered with tree branches and twisted sheets of corrugated metal from roofs. Telephone and electric lines snaked brokenly in the streets. Sidewalks in the higher sections of town were covered with smashed glass and broken signs ripped from shop fronts.

Nuckols To Attend Meet

County School Superintendent Bert R. Nuckols will attend a session to discuss the problems of county superintendents at the Driskill Hotel in Austin tomorrow.

The meeting sponsored by the Texas Education Agency will be attended by county superintendents from all over the state.

He will fly down this afternoon and plans to return with a new county bus for Grandview. A 30-passenger early '55 model with a Ward body, Chevrolet motor and dual wheels will bring about 20 students from Grandview to Pampa schools.

Nuckols will return Thursday to put the bus into operation either next Friday or Monday.

Capitol Hill All Quiet Except For Repair Work

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
WASHINGTON —UP— What's new in Washington:

Capitol Hill has been pretty quiet, except for the swishing of paint brushes and the snoring of guards. Most of the elevators, which are attended when Congress is in session, are running now on a do-it-yourself basis.

A few hundred yards away the Library of Congress is practically empty. Whatever visitors are in town aren't bothering to drop in on the finest and biggest library in the world.

Mike Palm, who owns a restaurant across from the library, has two youngsters — both born on Feb. 29. He thought maybe when the last one came he could bunch 'em — and have all of the birthday parties at one time every four years. But Mike and his wife planned it wrong. The third child was born in September.

Sen. John McClellan, the Democrat of Arkansas, held a news conference the other day and somebody asked him what he thought about Russia, where a lot of lawmakers are visiting. He said he hadn't been any closer to Russia than Hot Springs, Ark., but added: "If we had a special session so many of my colleagues are over there looking, that I doubt if we could get a quorum."

A 72-year-old Warrenton, Va., woman was picked up as a "commuting lottery" operator. The cops had been watching her and finally caught her with the goods. When Mrs. Minnie Eveline Douglas was taken to the station the matron stripped her down and reported she found "thousands" of number slips. A police officer remarked that Mrs. Douglas looked like she had lost 25 pounds when the search was over.

The Army at the Pentagon reports that Sgt. Earl Petty Jr. of Birmingham, Mich., is sitting in Aschafenburg, Germany, biting his nails. He doesn't have time to write back home. He's too busy reading letters from his dad.

Papa Petty has made a habit of dropping his had a three and a half page single-space letter every blessed day. But the other day he overdid it.

The elder Petty sat himself down for five days and whipped up a 48-foot special delivery memo to his kid. It contained a play-by-play on a couple of ball games. The weather reports on the blowing of wind in Michigan. The day-by-day pollen count. Not to mention the run down on several very old films on television.

During the same period he kept up the business of the three and a half page "notes." The old man will be lucky if he hears from his boy by Christmas. Mail call weighs him down every day.

West Pushes German Unity

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19 —UP— American, British, French and German diplomats searched Monday for strategy capable of breaking down Russia's objections to early reunification of Germany.

There was open pessimism that any such plan could be developed. Diplomats of the four powers began meetings at the State Department to "study the whole concept of German unification and European security" as ordered by the July Big Four "summit" conference at Geneva.

The United States was reported ready to present a series of proposals for security treaties with Russia, and possibly with other Iron Curtain countries.

Diplomats at the current session hope to be able to recommend some plan to the Big Three foreign ministers and to German Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano when those top level officials meet in New York the middle of next week.

All meetings are in preparation for the Big Four foreign ministers parley at Geneva beginning Oct. 27.

Chairman of the initial "working party" is State Department counselor Douglas MacArthur II, one of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles' most trusted advisers.

Dem Chief Hits Ike's Farm Policy

CHICAGO —UP— Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler charged the Eisenhower administration Monday with taking a "cautious and unsympathetic" attitude toward the "collapsing farm economy."

Butler accused President Eisenhower of extending "lavish help to his big business friends" while feeling "it is wrong and immoral to save the American farmer."

Butler issued a statement at the start of the first meeting of a 15-member "agricultural advisory committee" he named to work out a Democratic farm policy. Republican leaders were meeting in the same hotel to discuss mechanics of their 1956 convention.

Butler attacked recent Republican statements on the farm price situation made by Vice President Richard M. Nixon, Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson, and GOP National Chairman Leonard Hall.

"To me, their statements seem ill-tempered and unsympathetic, as if these officials were irritated with the farmers for spoiling the administration's claims of universal prosperity," Butler said.

Before the conference got under way, it had been believed the question of a party "loyalty oath" would be discussed. But a spokesman for the committee denied this saying the question would not come up until later meetings of party leaders.

College Given $45,000 Gift

ABILENE, Tex. —UP— Abilene Christian College Monday announced gifts of $45,000 from Dr. and Mrs. Stanley Whitacre of San Antonio and the late Mr. and Mrs. Arlie B. Roach of Ennis.

Announcement of the gifts was made at formal ceremonies in observance of beginning of ACC's 80th anniversary year. School officials said approximately $31,700 of the total would be used to complete the campaign for the college's new Bible building.

The bequest from Mr. and Mrs. Roach included gifts totaling $30,000. Dr. and Mrs. Whitacre gave ACC their $15,000 home in San Antonio on an annuity basis.

Roach at time his death Nov. 24, 1884, was principal of Ennis high school. Dr. Whitacre is medical director of an insurance company with headquarters in San Antonio.

JIM CRACKS

By JIM DEAN

I WANT TO TELL you a story I heard last week at the Lions Club luncheon meeting, and I hope you have a good grip on your emotions, because it's likely to tug at your heart.

W. T. Nelson, district governor of the Lions from Childress breezed through a collection of jokes and then got around to a rather effective inspirational speech about the work of the Lions Clubs of the nation, dwelling considerably on the Lions Club's crippled children camp in Texas.

The story concerns a visit to the crippled children's camp by another district governor who brought along his son, a fine-looking perfectly healthy boy.

The boy was standing outside a fence at the camp, watching a host of crippled youngsters swimming in the pool.

Down the lane came little crippled boy. His one leg was in a brace cast and one withered arm dangled uselessly at his side.

He walked up to the fence and stood beside the governor's son and looked him over for a few minutes. "Say," the crippled tot finally asked "you're not crippled are you?"

The visitor said "No, I'm not." Then the other boy, with a big smile said: "I'll bet you wish you were, so you could come here and play like we can!"

REMEMBER THE STORY last week about some eggs that were said to be over 100 years old but which hatched in an old lake bed in California after rain finally returned moisture to the desert?

Well, a Pampa science teacher called up last week to say that it ain't necessarily so.

She said the eggs of the tiny water animal were probably carried to the area on the feet of ducks.

She said that last year, a Pampa High School girl found some of the same type of eggs in a lake bed near Pampa. They were brought to the Pampa High School science lab where they were examined. Specimens were sent to Princeton University where they were further investigated. Sample are still in the science lab here.

The teacher said they were not 100 years old, by any means.

IF YOU WANT to get ahead in the world, the best step is to become an "expert."

To give you an idea of how qualified I am to be speaking on the subject of "experts" let me point out that I'm the guy who predicted the University of Texas would beat Texas Tech by more than 20 points!

If that doesn't convince you, last April I also announced with an air of importance that Brooklyn would finish in SECOND place in the National League this year. In addition to lost prestige, my wallet is a bit thinner.

Never the less, being an expert will get you there.

My colleague Ronald Waters was telling about the chess expert George Koltanowski who is coming to Pampa next month to give an exhibition. The gentleman will have his expenses paid plus receiving a nice fee.

And that Marine captain last week took a $64,000 prize because he knew a thing or two about food. I always thought the most important thing about food was eating... but then, I don't have $64,000.

But Captain McCutchen does. And just last week, he was given a case of Maderia wine because he knew what kind it was. The government of Portugal was honored, they said.

But here's something you don't know about McCutchen. When he wrote his letter seeking a chance at the $64,000 question, he misspelled two words. One of them was "imbued", he spelled it "embued."

If you want to give your education a test, pick a subject you think you know enough about to go for $64,000.

Sorta deflating isn't it?

THE POET'S NOOK

Last week's mystery puzzle was "Renouncement" by Alice Meynell. I am indebted to Jane Kadingo, our society editor, for the loan of an old text book of hers in which there is a fine collection of 17th century prose and poetry.

It has many examples of the works of John Donne. Though he died in 1631, Donne wrote just about all the things people are still writing today.

The textbook author said of Donne:

"This man, more originally than any other poet maybe, tries to say what Blake tried to say, what many moderns try: that there must be no divorce between the flesh and spirit, that all is one substance, the continuous substance of deity; that the mind feels and the limbs think."

Some of his most moving works were his holy sonnets, obviously written after he became a member of the clergy. Here are two couplets from two of the sonnets: "I am a little world made cunningly of elements, and an angelic sprite"; (spirit).

"Teach me how to repent; for that's as good As if Thou hadst sealed my pardon, with thy blood."

Well the foregoing sets the time for this week's puzzle in poetry. I will tell you that the quotation will not be from Donne, but it will come from the 17th Century. See if you know the author of this.

"To the old, long life and treasure,

To the young, all health and pleasure,

To the fair, their face With eternal grace,

And the foul to be loved at leisure!

To the witty, all clear mirrors,

To the foolish, their dark errors;

To the loving spite, A secure delight;

To the jealous, his own false terrors!"

Man Convicted In Symonds Case

SINGAPORE —UP— Chinese truck driver Ong Ah Too was found guilty Monday of participating in the mob murder of United Press correspondent Gene Symonds last May and was sentenced to death by hanging.

S. Suppiah, an unemployed Indian youth accused with Ong, was found innocent of the murder charges.

The prosecution charged that Ong and Suppiah helped beat Symonds to death the night of May 12 when he was covering city-wide riots that followed a bus strike. Symonds died in a hospital of a fractured skull.

Several witnesses testified they had seen the two men actually strike the United Press Southeast Asia manager. Both men denied the charges and Ong said he was at home with his ailing wife the night of the slaying.

Boss Is No Prophet

The ignorance of a great many people respecting the economy is truly tragic. It is as though the economic forces at work within a nation were, by nature, malevolent. There is no getting along with them.

Virtually everyone who listens to the blandishments of the labor bosses knows that every labor saving device leads to a decline in skill and an increase in unemployment.

Also, he learns that employers who refuse to put the latest safety and ease producing machinery into their shops are needlessly risking the lives of their workers, failing to permit workers to develop latent skills and generally keeping the standard of living and working conditions arbitrarily low. Certainly, it is well known that when prices rise, wages fall behind and the standard of living is forced downward.

But, as any labor boss will tell you, a terrible calamity awaits us all if instead of rising, the prices fall. If prices fall, then a depression is the result with wages dropping, unemployment rising, with a resultant lowering of the standard of living. It follows, then, that unemployment and a lowered standard of living await us if prices rise, or if they fall; if labor saving devices are produced, or if they are not produced. Alas, the socialist purveyors in the unofficial labor department are prone to melancholy. Come what may, tragedy follows the brightest day.

If we are to cast the light of reason upon this gloomy picture, we must begin by realizing that labor bosses are professionally poorly equipped to tell the truth. Their demands are so paralytic. They are accustomed to face facts at an oblique angle. And whether the sun rises or sets, the worker is made to feel that oblivion yawns unless he will place his fate in the hands of these dolorous racketeers and trust them, through the power of their biceps, to alter the economic facts of life.

Actually, the facts of life are these: That we are tremendously benefited by every new labor saving device. By this means, we are able to multiply our individual human energy to the point where one man plus tools, can produce things that many men require. Were it not for tools, then one man would only be able to create the things he himself requires. The arrow points unerringly into the past and the dismal life of primitive man struggling valiantly, without tools and against the ravages of nature and barbarous governments to sustain his life.

But with each new labor saving device, the arrow swings and points into a more luxurious and happy future. There is no knowing how far we can go toward a more abundant life, not only from a material standpoint, but through the increase in leisure time which will permit us greater opportunity for art, knowledge and appreciation, providing we can avoid the dismal eclipse to mental development purveyed by our government schools.

What, then, of lowered prices? Are they an evil? Definitely not, for as prices come down, standards of living rise. More and more goods can get into the hands of more and more people for less and less money. And it is the goods, not the money, which increase the standard of living. Wealth is found in production and the products and services of production, not in our debased and ravished coin of the realm.

So, as usual, the labor bosses are very wrong, indeed. There is the force against the laws of nature and supply which has served as the starting point for the precarious position of our economy. Every new wage demand, if satisfied, forces up prices, even though it may appear to raise wages. It also lowers the total number of employes a given business can absorb, and reduces the number of customers who can buy the products of the business. Further, by sopping capital outlays it postpones or eliminates those new labor saving devices by which all of us would benefit.

We could sum up by saying, "Trust not the economic conclusions of the labor boss, for the truth is not in him."

freedom or regimentation—as to which definition he chooses.

For the person who believes in regimentation, "human equality" means relative economic equality for all except the ruling clique, whose function is to enforce this equality on all except themselves.

For the one who believes in freedom, "human equality" means simply equality before the law—that is, that the law is no respecter of persons. It is symbolically expressed by the blindfold worn by Justice. Penalties for violations of the law are meted out impartially, according to acts—not according to who commits the acts.

This is the kind of equality for which America has traditionally stood. But in recent years she has come perilously near falling for the other. Whether or not she can regain her erect position is one of the gravest questions of our day.

FOR REFLECTION... with JAMES C. MOBERTSON, President, Spiritual Mobilization

Twenty-five scholars announced recently, according to The New York Times, that they were going to try to find out what the term "human equality" means as used in this country. These semantic sleuths are fellows of the Conference on Science, Philosophy, and Religion in Their Relation to the Democratic Way of Life.

Well, it seems to me there are two possible definitions of this term and that it depends entirely on a person's ideological bent—that is, whether he believes in

Religious Background Of American Revolution

Here is the last of the article in the Liberty Magazine on the religious background of the American Revolution.

The article had a foot note on Patrick Henry that was news to me. The footnote was: "Patrick Henry, the American patriot and Virginia gentleman, was strongly in favor of civil liberty, as he so ably and oratorically stated in his speech in St. John's church in Richmond, Virginia, in 1775. He had not yet learned the fact that church and state should be completely separate, for in 1784 he introduced a resolution in the General Assembly of Virginia favoring a general tax for the support of religion. This resolution was opposed and finally defeated by Madison's famous Religious Memorial and Remonstrance. Jefferson's Act for the Establishment of Religious Freedom in Virginia was passed in its place by the assembly in December, 1785. Mr. Henry, however, stood with Jefferson and Madison on the matter of the rights of conscience. Some years before, he had dramatically defended and caused to be discharged some Baptist ministers who had been arrested for what he termed 'preaching the gospel of the Son of God.' Patrick Henry's name has come down to us as a symbol of liberty, a defender of the rights of man."

The balance of the article follows: "After the war came, the first provincial congress of Massachusetts acknowledged 'with profound gratitude the public obligation to the ministry, as friends of civil and religious liberty.' Rev. Samuel Langdon's sermon from the text, 'As a roaring lion and a raging bear, so is a wicked ruler over the poor people,' so pleased the same provincial congress that it voted copies sent to all Colonial ministers and to each member of the Continental Congress. 'Further testimony is found in John Adams' reference to the 'wonderful effects' the clergy in Philadelphia had and how they did 'hinder and lighten every Sabbath.' The close relation between word and deed is seen in the story of Pastor John Muhlenberg of the German church in Woodstock, in the Shenandoah Valley in Virginia. In January, 1776, he preached from Ecclesiastes, 'A time of war, and a time of peace.' At the conclusion of the sermon he cried, 'There is a time to fight, and the time is here.' Taking off his clerical robe, he stood in colonel's uniform, and three hundred of his congregation enlisted under him.

"There remains one other religious issue that arose before the war. The Quebec Act of 1774 was passed with the best of intentions. Canada, it will be remembered, had come to the British in 1763, following the French and Indian War. The population was 90,000 French to some 600 English. Obviously, to require observance of British laws, customs and religion would work severe hardships on the overwhelming majority in Canada. The Quebec Act was designed to give that French Catholic majority a large degree of freedom. 'Certainly it was poor taste, in view of the Puritans' own reasons for coming to America, for them to protest the right of the French to religious liberty. But even some of the most responsible American voices joined in what was a propagandist's field day. The Pennsylvania Packet of October 31, 1774, is typical when it wails, 'We may live to see our churches converted into mass houses, and lands plundered of tithes for the support of a Popish clergy. The Inquisition may erect her standard in Pennsylvania and the city of Philadelphia may yet experience the carriage of a St. Bartholomew's Day.' 'The British contended that the Quebec Act pleased God if not the Continental Congress, and none other than John Wesley held that it was a milestone in religious toleration.

"But the timing of the act could hardly have been worse from the British point of view, or better from the American. News of it reached America just as the Continental Congress was preparing to meet in Philadelphia. It gave the radicals there an emotional talking point and made the people generally ripe for any plan the Congress might advise should it be war itself. 'It is evident that a desire, not only for liberty, but for religious liberty, was urged on the colonists. Some matters they understood, some they misunderstood, but they wanted to be free. 'The Americans were not only Protestants, but protestants from Protestantism itself, and from this fact, as Burke expressed it, a fierce spirit of liberty had grown up. This spirit the dissenting clergy communicated to a people far more influenced by what they heard in the House of God than we in these degenerate days can comprehend. — C. H. Van Tyne, American Historical Review, 1913, p. 64."

Dixon-Yates Deal Shows Eisenhower's Power Policy

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — The castigated and cancelled Dixon-Yates deal furnishes a clue to the Eisenhower Administration's long-range power policy, in the opinion of Representative George A. Dondero of Michigan, As ranking Republican on the House Public Works Committee, Dondero handles the White House program in this field.

In an enlightening article in the current Public Utilities Fortnightly, which is the recognized publication of the private utility interests, the Michigan legislator makes this prophetic statement: "The dramatic cancellation of the Dixon-Yates contract may mark the start toward development of a realistically healthy approach to the problem of financing electrical generating and transmission in the Tennessee Valley Authority."

Dondero then proceeds to divulge facts about TVA's operations and power distribution which are unknown to the general public, especially the terms of TVA's contracts with so-called "captive cities" like Memphis. The Eisenhower Administration, he says, does not seek to destroy TVA. It simply wants to maintain TVA and similar projects along their original lines—a natural conservation enterprise rather than the embryo of a vast public power empire.

The Dixon-Yates contract provided that two private utility firms would build a plant to supply Memphis with electricity, since TVA's commitments to new atomic energy centers would make it impossible for it to serve the Tennessee city.

When this proposal became a political issue, the New Dealish and public power officials of Memphis took President Eisenhower off the political hook by offering to build their own facilities instead of buying power from the Dixon-Yates interests. Ike quickly okayed the Memphis plan, and called off the Dixon-Yates arrangement.

In his magazine article, Dondero exposes certain TVA practices, and invites other cities in the Tennessee Valley to follow the example of Memphis.

When TVA contracts to deliver power to a municipality, such as Memphis, it insists on two restrictive provisions. It demands that municipal consumers and farm co-operatives agree to buy power from no other source. It also bars resale of its power to issue bonds for construction of additional utility

The Doctor Says

By EDWIN J. JORDAN, M. D.

Unpleasant problems with the eyes are more likely to arise during the later years but sometimes they can be helped and sometimes not.

Q—I am 50 years old and at night I see halos or rainbows around street lights. I read quite a bit, watch TV and at night my lids feel dry and eyes tired. I have a dull headache in the front part of my head. Would you comment on this? Mrs. A. E.

A—This is by no means unusual and anyone who has such symptoms should go to an eye specialist in the event that something serious is responsible such as glaucoma or cataracts. Sometimes symptoms of this sort, however, are connected with normal aging of the eyes and nothing specific can be done for them. The use of glasses may help and lessened use of the eyes likewise is found which can be recommended, the halos are likely to persist.

Q—What can be done with a man who drinks too much and becomes ill while under the influence has terrible fits of temper? Reader.

A—Such a man is a danger and nuisance to himself and everyone else. Complete abstinence from liquor is the only answer.

Q—Is it possible to have sugar in the blood and not in the urine? R. K.

A—There is always sugar in the blood and the quantity rises following a meal. What the inquirer probably means "is it possible to have too much or more than normal amounts of sugar in the blood without this spilling over and being found in the urine?" This is a rather technical question, and while true, depends on the time of day the tests are made, the nature of the meals eaten and other factors. In testing for diabetes it is customary to measure the amount of sugar both in the blood and in the urine.

Mussolini's Brain Studied After Brutal Death By Mob

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Rome—I have just had a conversation about Mussolini's brain with a minor official of the Italian government who was and remains a Fascist, although, of course, he would lose his job if he were to admit as much. The subject was raised by a clipping which I had cut from an American paper up in Geneva when Ike and the Russians were engaged in their grinning contest which incited so many of our political savants to rapturous prophesies of loving relations with the (cap b) Brute. This news item said a bottle labelled "Mussolini's Brain" was stored in the safe of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, the federal bedlam in Washington, in which Ezra Pound, a great American poet, is hidden away for life under conditions of mental and physical torture for wearing a walking hat and brandishing a walking stick in Rome about 11 years ago. That showed he was nuts. The article said that Dr. Winfred Overholser, the superintendent of St. Elizabeth's, was the custodian of this morsel. It naturally provoked speculations as to what other cerebral gear of what other eccentrics of the same era might also be subject to inspection by a hopefully cynical eye. The piece said doctor Overholser explained how the fragment of the Duce's brain happened to be in St. Elizabeth's.

In the 1930's one of many rumors had it that Mussolini's behavior could have been caused only by general paresis or material deterioration of the brain caused by syphilis. Doctor Overholser recalled the rumor in 1945 when news reached Washington of Mussolini's lynching near Milan. A friend of Overholser, who was a psychiatrist, proposed that he ask the army to try to get the brain. Overholser accordingly telegraphed to an officer of the Medical Corps in Italy. After long delay, an officer arrived with the brain at "The Armed Forces Institute of Pathology" whatever and wherever that is. After an examination, a brief report said no structural defects had been found and, at a late date in 1955, Doctor Overholser said: "We had a wonderful chance to prove something but the chance fell flat." The article is vague just here but Overholser seems to contradict himself. In one line he says Mussolini's achievements over many years after the rumors began belied them. And after that he said there was too much post-mortem change to permit scientific appraisal of "whatever abnormalities there may have been, if any." In other words Mussolini's brilliant accomplishments refuted the suspicion of paresis but the "treatment of the body" by a hysterical mob caused damage precluding a valid scientific conclusion.

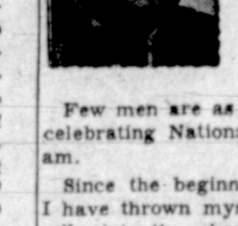

Now the Fascist here in Rome told me that a good Fascist authority, still in public office, who was close to Mussolini at the end, admitted that a small portion of the Duce's brain had been sent to Washington. So the grisly specimen in the safe at St. Elizabeth's is authentic and Overholser's opinion, which by the newspaper account seems somewhat reluctant, vindicates the Duce of the charge which his enemies never tired of throwing at him from a safe distance. This old Fascist said there were no blows on the head to cause "Post-mortem change."

But, unwittingly, no doubt Overholser has raised some moral and ethical questions by his apparent endorsement of the mutilation of a body of a political figure and the disappointment expressed by the phrase "we had a wonderful chance to prove something but the chance fell flat."

That "something" was paresis, caused by a loathsome disease, communicable to spouse and progeny. How it could have been proved in the face of Overholser's own admission that the Duce's achievements disproved it we must look to him for explanation. What are the rules of this game, anyway? What are the ethical proprieties? Mussolini was a great historical figure and a hero to many Italians of much finer quality than many of his enemies. He was morally equal to Roosevelt and his wife. Many prominent Americans of the time praised him for proof of which there are handy standard references in the morgues and libraries. Would Dr. Overholser have been equally willing to make the same tests of Roosevelt's brain and, if not, why not? And what about the brain of Henry Hopkins? Harold Ickes? of Senator Robert Wagner, who put his name on the iniquitous labor relations act for the enslavement of all the workers in a generous nation which had given him refuge from the Kaiser's Germany?

This article speaks of Mussolini's "bizarre" tastes, thereby inviting the recollection that Roosevelt affected a navy cap to which he was not entitled because it was severely restricted to certain qualified officers of the navy; that he never failed to call himself "The Commander-in-Chief"; and that, after his second election, he arrogantly referred to himself as the "Master" of his political opponents. There were many other manifestations of Roosevelt's regal not to say imperial feelings which were equally "bizarre" and invite with equal justification a similar profanation of his corpse.

Mac's Dog To Get Revenge On Cats During Dog Week

By HENRY McLEMORE

Few men are as conscientious in celebrating National Weeks as I am. Since the beginning of the year I have thrown myself wholeheartedly into the observance of such Weeks as Doughnut, Cotton, Maple Syrup, Neighborhood Druggist, Pumpernickel Bread, Young Tom Turkey, Dairy Products, Bowie and Straw Hat.

Now another Week is upon us—National Dog Week.

When the bulletin announcing National Dog Week reached us, Mary and I immediately put our heads together to see what we could work out in the way of celebration for Dilly, our English bulldog.

"Let's let her do exactly what she likes to do most for one whole week, with no interference from us," Mary suggested. "But we threw that out when we realized that all Dilly would do would be to sleep the clock around. And that would mean she would pound first one silky ear and then the other for the full seven days, and finally wake up not knowing a thing about the National Week in her honor."

Bulldogs don't sleep like other dogs. Other dogs sleep with one eye open, twitch and have disturbing dreams, and are bothered by noises. But not English bulldogs. When they go to sleep they take in the sidewalks. They sleep for keeps. They don't come out of sleep easily, either. For five minutes after we rouse her in the morning, Dilly walks about in trance, legs stiff as stilts, eyes shut, bumping into walls, chairs and tables. And she's little more than a puppy. There won't be enough hours in the day when her sleeping apparatus is full grown. One thing I insisted on letting Dilly do during her Week was settle a few accounts with the cats in our house, five in number. Mary balked at first, but came around when I pointed out Dilly's scars. If we awarded Purple Hearts for enemy action, Dilly would have one with two or three hundred clusters. More than they love catnip, the cats love Dilly's flat nose and furrowed forehead. And they're wise to Dilly, too. They know her sweet disposition and take advantage of it from morning till night. They gather around her plate as though it were a Bowery hand-out line, but let her come within sniffing distance of their food down comes the Mercururochrome bottle. Let her try to join in their tumblers and chases around the living room—which she dearly loves to do—and up she goes back, and out come claws. I am curious to see which of the cats will be the first to get its some-uppance when, and if, we can convey to Dilly the knowledge that we won't interfere. My guess is that it will be Frederica (known as Fred until she came out of the linen closet with three new-born kittens one morning). Frederica ambushes Dilly. She lies in wait behind doors and on sofas, and then pounces when Dilly, all smiles over remembering a pork chop bone hidden in the fireplace, passes by. If her claws were fountain pens, she'd have written enough lines on Dilly's homely mug to fill a book. And all she ever does about it is look at Frederica with a "Why would you do that to me?" without on her face. "Without hurting her too much, I'd like to see Dilly open National Dog Week by harnessing her 80 pounds of muscle, size 26 neck, and establishing a new American cat-tossing-over-shoulder record. And while she's about it she can give the two Siamese, Bama and Kau, a few good roundhouse right up and at 'em. Dilly help make your Week a howling success."

Jane Talk

By JANE KADINGO
Pampa News Women's Editor

THE WORD "FASHION" generally brings a mental picture of Paris or New York, but there is one Easterner who has written an article on the contribution Texas is making in the fashion world, which is a big contribution, by the way. The Easterner is Virginia Pope, former fashion editor of The New York Times. Here is what she has written.

WAS A TIME when Texas styles were spoken of, one conjured up a picture of shirts and jeans, of sombrero and riding boots. That day has gone. Mention Texas in relation to style today and immediately there comes to mind the good-looking clothes that take their place in the broad fashion picture of the United States.

I have long been aware of the position held by Texas, for I have been coming to Dallas from New York for the past ten years to report the offerings of the Texas market, as represented by the state's manufacturers.

Recently, the Dallas Fashion Arts honored me by inviting me to be one of the three (the other judges were Mrs. C. R. Holmes of San Antonio and Mr. Morris L. Lichtenstein of Corpus Christi) to select the blue ribbon winners of the manufacturers exhibiting at the Fashion Round-Up to be held in October at the 1955 State Fair of Texas.

My former impressions of the high quality of the Texas fashion industry were confirmed as some 500 items of apparel passed in review before us. Here was a comprehensive style panorama ranging from enchanting togs for toddlers to formal creations for sophisticated grown-ups.

Present in excellent editions were the slender sheaths (they have been making front-page news in New York, Paris and Italy) seen in front-buttoned coat dresses, afternoon silks and cottons adapted to many social occasions.

THERE WERE TUNICS built on slim lines or flaring at the knees. Full skirts held an important place for all hours of the day. The American woman has no intention of giving up the youthful style and the coquetry of petit-coats, particularly when it comes to pretty dresses of cotton, silk and the fabrics made of the new synthetic yarns that combine beauty and practicality.

The offerings of the Texas manufacturers I found to be rich in fabric variety. Printed corduroys appeared in soft, tapestried effects. Orlon, nylon and rayon used in blends had the crisp feel of taffeta and the shimmer of satin. The cottons beloved American fabric, in lovely printed designs, could hold their own with more extravagant pure silks. Wool found its place in suits and coats. Newest of the new was printed Pelon which flaunted its crispness in a gay separate skirt shown with a sample blouse.

For the approaching fall and winter seasons, many black velveteens contributed rich elegance. Some were combined with white. We, the judges, starred the suspender-and-jumper costumes worn with smart white silk blouses; we voted for the well-cut velveteen with flaring stitched white cuffs and applauded the little six-year-old's black coat topped by a tiny matching bonnet to sit lightly on the wearer's curls.

TO ONE, who within the last weeks visited the rarified atmosphere of the Paris couture salons, it was like drinking in a deep draught of the winds that blow across the plains to see the ranch coats, denim shirts, boots and all the rest. No, there's nothing new about them, but they are a refreshing Texas tonic.

In this day of universality of thinking along many lines, it was interesting to this writer to see the Texas fashion market contributing its share in an expression that so characteristically expresses the thinking and social needs of the great state.

Frankie Marsha Tucker Becomes Bride Of Kenneth Everett In McLean Service

McLEAN — Miss Frankie Marsha Tucker became the bride of Kenneth Everett at 2 p.m. Sept. 11, in the First Baptist Church of McLean. Dr. Buell T. Wells officiated for the double-ring ceremony. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Lucille Gaines of Tulsa, Okla., and of M. M. Tucker of Houston. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Perry Everett of McLean. The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Frank Kennedy of Quail. She wore a gown of silk crystalline and lace. The princess-style empire bodice was styled with a scoop neckline, accented with lace appliques, and was topped with a lace jacket fashioned with a mandarin collar and three-quarter-length sleeves. The bouffant skirt was waist-length. Her short veil of illusion decorated with rhinestones fell from a white velvet-half-hat. She carried a bouquet of white carnations with white ribbon streamers tied with yellow carnations over a white Bible. Miss Sonya Riddell of Tulsa, Okla., was maid of honor. She wore a mist-blue silk princess-style dress with a stand-up white lace collar. Her bandeau was of white velvet and she carried a bouquet of white carnations. Richard Everett of Dumas, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Gaines wore a beige tweed suit trimmed with brown velvet. Her accessories were brown, and she wore a corsage of yellow pompons. The bridegroom's mother was attired in a navy blue two-piece dress with navy blue accessories. Her corsage was of yellow pompons also. The couple was married before an altar flanked by baskets of white and yellow gladioli and greenery. The bridal aisle was marked with white satin bows. Mrs. Johnnie Haynes, organist, played the traditional wedding marches, "Because," and "Through the Years." Miss Barbara Carter sang "Always" preceding the ceremony. Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the home of Mrs. W. D. Kennedy, grandmother of the bride. The serving table was covered with an ecru lace cloth over white linen. The centerpiece was an arrangement of orchid dahlias and yellow pompons. The white, three-tiered wedding cake was decorated with white rosebuds and yellow roses and was topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom beneath a silver wedding bell and an archway of white stephanotis, yellow and white daisies.

Mrs. Harold Bunch served the cake, and Miss Betty Dickerson presided at the punch bowl. Mrs. Gloria Vogt, sister of the bride, assisted with the serving. Guests were registered by Miss Patsy Herndon. For the wedding trip to Houston and Galveston, the bride wore a black and white two-piece tulle dress with black accessories. Her corsage was of white carnations from her bridal bouquet. The bride was graduated from McLean High School this year. She was a member of the McLean High School band. The bridegroom was graduated from McLean High School in 1951 and served three years with the Navy. The couple will reside in McLean where the bridegroom is engaged in farming and ranching.

RUTH MILLETT
Is there just one pattern for a happy marriage? Some women don't think so to the extent that they believe they can't be happy unless their marriages can follow a certain pattern.

A wife whose husband is establishing his own small business and finds little time for his family asks, "How can I be happy when my husband is home so little? How I envy the other women in our neighborhood whose husbands work definite hours."

The way you can be happy is to quit thinking your marriage can't be satisfactory simply because it doesn't follow the pattern you think of as the only right one. Forget all of your ideas of what you think your marriage ought to be like, and begin to work out a happy pattern based on your circumstances as they are.

If your husband is working hard to establish a business of his own and is happy in his work, you would be selfish, indeed, to handicap him by complaining because he can't spend as much time at home as a man working a set number of hours a week. The way you can help him and create a good life for yourself is to keep busy while your husband is busy. Instead of wishing you could be doing things together.

Surely you know at least one woman who has no husband, or whose husband is also away from home a good deal of the time. If you don't, make it a point to get acquainted with some other woman who is free to do things with you occasionally in the evening. Undoubtedly there are many ways in which you could use your spare time for making your home more attractive. You might even think of ways in which you could help your husband in his business—such as by keeping his books, taking care of his mail, or scouting his opposition.

The fact that a man hasn't a lot of time to spend at home doesn't mean that a marriage can't be happy and satisfying. It just means his wife has to learn to be a little more independent than other women.

MANNERS MAKE FRIENDS

If you tell your hostess that you had a nice time when you say "Goodby" you are being polite. But if you want to be really gracious say something more than those few overworked words. Mention what you especially enjoyed, or that you always enjoy being in that particular home.

You can always find a new way of showing your appreciation for hospitality instead of falling back on "I had such a nice time."

HOMEMADE CORN MEAL, raisin and nut bread is a tasty mid-afternoon or tea-time snack.

COOK'S NOOK Tasty Corn Meal Bread Is Special Family Treat

By GAYNOR MADDOX, Mrs. Richard Doss of Evanston, Ill., praises her homemade corn meal, raisin and nut bread. "I must have passed the recipe on to everyone I know," she says. "This yeast-leavened corn-meal bread is perfect as a mid-afternoon or tea-time snack, thinly sliced and toasted for just a few minutes to bring out the rich corn flavor," she adds. "Sometimes I make 3 small loaves of bread."

Other times I divide the dough into thirds and make 2 small loaves and a batch of hot rolls. I always like to butter the loaves as soon as they come out of the oven for a crisp, shiny crust that tastes so good with comb honey and butter."

CORN MEAL - RAISIN BREAD
(Makes 3 loaves)
One and one-half cups enriched corn meal, 1 tablespoon salt, 2 1/2 cups water, 1 cup honey, 1/4 cup shortening, 1 cup raisins, 1/2 cup walnuts, 1 package of 1 cake, dry or compressed yeast, 1 1/4 cups lukewarm water, 7 to 8 cups sifted enriched flour.

Cook corn meal, salt and the 2 1/2 cups water together in large saucepan, stirring constantly until thick.

Rubber Rhinos Lose Out Because They Taste Bad

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY
NEW YORK—UP—Two rubber rhinoceroses from South Africa just lost their chance to join a toy project designed to bring more of the wide, wide world into lives of American children.

The rhinos, as they are referred to by spelling cowards, flunked the taste test for one thing. "We found," said Clinton Gardner, holding a dull-finish rubber rhino in one hand, a shiny-surfaced copy in the other, "that very small children didn't like the taste. Little girls thought the animals were too ugly and six-year-old boys objected to the squeeze-squeaker in the stomach as too childish."

Gardner and his partner, Alastair Kyle, decided a year ago to try and promote some toy schemes which would make more American children aware at an early age that they lived in only one of many nations in the world.

A Far Flung Toy Business
Both young men had traveled widely, both had worked for NATO and both spoke four or five languages, so they took off in separate directions to begin setting up a far flung toy business.

Finally their business, christened Toys of the World, began to grow as a sort of the toy-of-the-month club for children from two to 12 years old, mailed in each case directly to the child from the country it represented along with a folder telling something of the life in the country.

Asked how large their new organization had become, Gardner said, "We had eight people yesterday. Today we have nine and next week we will have 10."

They have approved toys from eight countries, and already mailed out some 50,000 Alpine villages from Austria to their first customers.

"We like this one," Kyle said, holding up a gleaming red foot-tall Pinocchio, made of wood with jointed arms and legs. It came from Italy. "Maybe we should have the nose removable," Gardner, the father of three small children, speculated, fingering Pinocchio's long pointed nose.

Can Change Noses
"I know, we'll have two noses," Kyle said excitedly. "One short and one long, for when he's telling the truth and when he isn't. They'll screw in so the child can change them."
Gardner grinned and stuck out his hand. The two partners shook hands solemnly on their new idea and put Pinocchio back on the toy table.

They considered a German construction toy—a neat box filled with metal pieces, rubber wheels and complicated diagrams. "It's really a fascinating toy," Kyle said regretfully, "but the trouble is you have to be about a 40-year-old construction engineer to figure it out."

Then there was a hand-painted dragon from Hong Kong, something no child should be without. It's on the discard table with the rhinoceroses. The world is full of a number of things, the two young men decided, more attractive than dragons and rhinoceroses.

Solons Slate Farm Hearings

WASHINGTON—UP—Democratic-controlled House and Senate committees will get dirt farmers' own ideas on the politically hot issue of declining agriculture prices in extensive hearings throughout the farm belt in October and November.

The farm hearings highlight public airings which congressional committees have scheduled on a variety of subjects including public power, taxes, various phases of the national economy, housing, immigration, juvenile delinquency, narcotics, Communists and the federal employe security program.

The hearings on farm price supports are taking on added importance as the drop in agricultural prices shapes up as the No. 1 issue in next year's presidential and congressional campaigns.

The schedule of House and Senate committee hearings includes: House Agriculture subcommittee: Houston, Tex., Oct. 4, and a date later in October at Baton Rouge, La.

House Banking subcommittee, on housing, at New Orleans tentatively in October.
Senate Agriculture committee, on farm program: Albuquerque, N.M., Nov. 4; Hutchinson, Kan., Nov. 7; Fort Worth, Tex., Nov. 8; Alexandria, La., Nov. 9-10.

Senate Judiciary subcommittee, on narcotics: Houston, San Antonio, Fort Worth and Dallas, Tex., sometime in October.
Senate Internal Security committee, on foreign propaganda, at New Orleans.

Some 'Too Hot' TV Shows Never Get Before Public

By ALINE MOSBY
HOLLYWOOD—UP—TV viewers seldom hear about the shows that don't get on the air. One producer told Tuesday of a program that's branded "too hot" for television.

Worthington Miner, who produced "Medic" and "Frontier" and even introduced Ed Sullivan to unsuspecting citizens, has created a new show called "Challenge."

But this program is so controversial that networks and sponsors have run in the other direction.

"Challenge" would dramatize various widely argued subjects of the day about the rights of Americans. The story would present both sides of the question, and the viewer would have to make up his own mind.

The "pilot" film of "Challenge," for example, tells about a school bus driver who was fired for refusing to sign a loyalty oath. The program ended with the unanswered question—should he get his job back?

Miner started the show after a subsidiary of the Ford Foundation, the Fund for the Republic, asked him to make a program about civil rights. After extensive research into law, he produced the pilot film in New York last April. It's gathered dust in his office ever since.

He admits it's difficult to understand why sponsors would be leery as the show never takes a stand.
"But I suppose you merely mention the subject of loyalty oaths and the lunatic fringe would complain before even seeing the show and finding out we don't editorialize," he said.

NBC thought the show was "dynamite," he said, but made no offer to carry it without a sponsor. CBS and ABC said nothing.
"It was under option to NBC but that's over now and I'll take it any place," Miner said. "I think it has a tremendous impact."

Other chapters of "Challenge," would deal with freedom of the press, the Fifth Amendment, freedom of speech, segregation and unions.
Miner has not lost hope because "We worked a year to sell 'Medic.'" "Any provocative show is hard to sell," he said.

Marsden, a sophomore at Colorado State College and the father of a seven-month old son, was struck as he sat beneath a tree during a dove hunting expedition near here.

Evacuation Considered
WASHINGTON—UP—State Department officials have considered the possibility of using airplanes to evacuate American citizens from Argentina, it was learned Monday. No decision was reached and officials tended to think that such a move would not be necessary in view of Argentine President Juan Peron's resignation.

Ike Fishing In Rockies

FRASER, Colo.—UP—President Eisenhower drove here from Denver Monday for several days of Rocky Mountain trout fishing at the Byers Peak ranch of Denver businessmen Akkel Nielsen and Carl Norgren.

The chief executive, accompanied by Nelson and George E. Allen, a long-time friend and one-time "court jester" of the Truman administration, arrived after a 70-mile drive over the continental divide from Denver.

Mr. Eisenhower was expected to remain most of the week. Sunny but cooler weather greeted the President in Fraser's 8,700-foot altitude. The temperature had dipped to 27 early Monday.

Besides his fishing, the President was expected to get in some time at another favorite hobby — painting.

WASHINGTON—UP—The Senate Internal Security subcommittee called on the Justice Department Tuesday to cite the Southern Conference Educational Fund, Inc., as a Communist front. It said the organization is an offshoot of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare which was cited previously.

'Angel' to Get Special Training
NEW YORK—UP—Genevieve de Galard Terrauze, the "Angel of Dien Bien Phu," arrived Monday for training at the Institute of Physical Rehabilitation at New York University. The nurse said she became interested in soldiers who lost their legs in Dien Bien Phu, the French bastion in Indo-China where she was the only nurse during days of battle.

DANIEL BOONE

By Russ Winterbotham and Ralph Lane

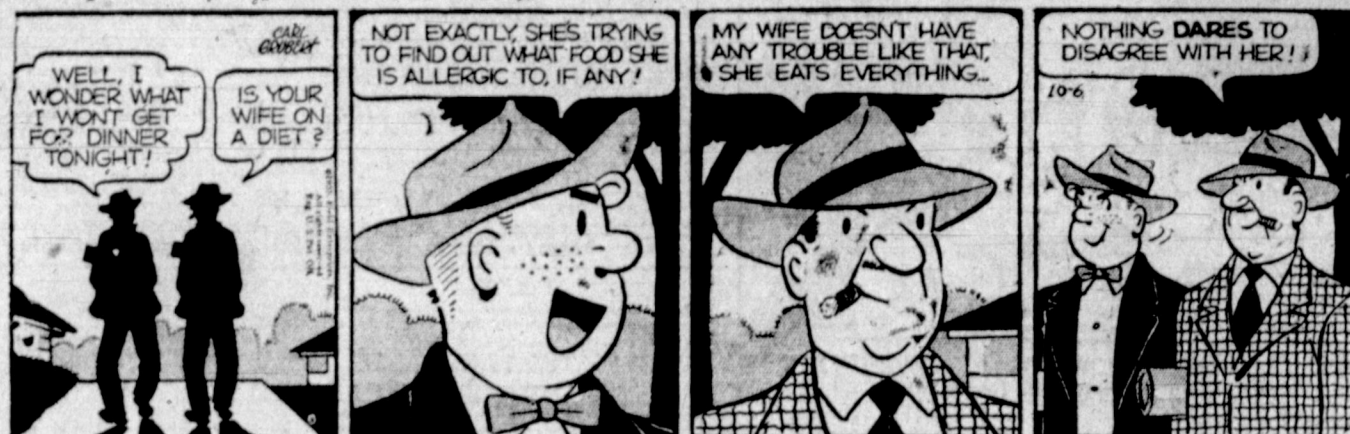

Boone soon caught up with his daughter's kidnappers. Two Indians were slain and the other two fled.

One of the rescue party, Sam Henderson, embraced Betsy Calloway and begged her to become Kentucky's first bride.

Squire Boone, acting as lay minister, married them in buckskins, since they'd ruined their Sunday clothes.

A few months later, Fanny Calloway and Jimmie Boone wed two other rescuers, John Holder and Flanders Calloway, respectively.

Find More Ransom Money — Four more $20 bills from the Bobby Greenlease said Monday, bringing to 34 the ransom money were turned up number found in Chicago.

Full House — MCLOUTH, Kan. — UP—There is no extra room in Verne C. Bartlett's big house. He has a big family. Arrival of Donna Marie and Donis Jean gave the Bartletts three sets of twins in three years, and a total of 14 children.

Group To Make Newsprint Study

NEW YORK — UP— A comprehensive study of damage to newsprint will be made by a group representing newspapers, railroads and newsprint producers, the American Newspaper Publishers Association announced Monday. ANPA General Manager Cranston Williams said John L. Blake, an executive of the Scripps-Howard Newspapers, has been asked to head the program. Daily newspapers and railroads will be represented. U. S. and Canadian newsprint producers also have been invited to name representatives. Farm storage facility and farm storage equipment loan programs have been extended by the agriculture department for another year through June 30, 1956.

Why settle for less when Mountain-Grown Folger's gives you MORE FLAVOR PER CUP

Folger's skillful blending and roasting of nature's most flavorful coffees makes the difference!

Folger's, you see, starts with only the choicest coffees... Mountain-Grown coffees that are naturally richer, heartier, more flavorful.

They blend and prepare these finer coffees in an unique way, with their century-old Folger's "touch" that produces not only a richer flavor, but a truly distinctive flavor no other coffee can match. And because Folger's blends to a flavor, not to a formula, you can be sure of the same rewarding goodness cup after cup, day after day.

Why not serve your family the one coffee that over the years has been specially made to give you more flavor, more coffee satisfaction in every cup. Serve them Mountain-Grown Folger's. We think that once you've tried Folger's, you'll never be satisfied with anything less.

SO MUCH RICHER IN FLAVOR YOU ARE URGED TO USE 1/4 LESS THAN WITH LESSER FLAVORED BRANDS

IT'S MOUNTAIN GROWN ...
