SAFETY AWARD

Pampa's Mayor Lynn Boyd, left, this morning accepted a plaque from Lt. Jack Higginbotham, right, of the Amarillo office of the Texas Highway Patrol, which was awarded by the National Safety Council to Pampa for not sustaining a single fatal accident in the city limits during the year of 1954. Jim Conner, chief of police, center, was also commended for outstanding contributions to traffic safety in Pampa. (News Photo)

Ike's Fatigue Gone; Recovery Going Well

President Gives Nixon 'A Vote Of Confidence'

DENVER —UP— President Eisenhower gave Vice President Richard M. Nixon Tuesday a vote of confidence in his conduct of the government during the chief executive's illness.

The "fatigue" that possessed the President Sunday disappeared with a night of good sleep and turned out to be restiveness at having to lie in bed more than physical tiredness. Examinations showed his recovery from a heart attack Sept. 24 is back on schedule.

This was strengthened Tuesday by the first bulletin of the day on the President's condition, issued by Mr. Eisenhower's doctors at Fitzsimons Army hospital at 7 a. m. (8 a. m. est.).

They reported the chief executive had "another good night" and awoke at 5:30 a. m. after a full eight hours of sleep feeling rested and refreshed. Again the physicians said Mr. Eisenhower was showing satisfactory progress and that there were no indications of any complications.

This was similar to Monday's reports after the brief scare over the touch of "tiredness" reported the night before.

In fact, Mr. Eisenhower did more executive work Monday night than he has done since he entered Fitzsimons Army hospital. It will be the end of this week, however, before the damaged area in his heart is properly protected by scar and physicians consider him "out of the woods."

100 Expected For Cancer Meeting Here

More than 100 persons from 29 counties in District 3-North of the American Cancer Society are expected at the district meeting to be held Wednesday, in Pampa.

The event will begin with registration and a coffee at 9:30 a. m. in the Pampa Country Club. Roy Bourland of Pampa, chairman of the Gray County unit, will be presiding officer for the general session, to begin at 10 a. m. Rev. J. R. Stroble of the First Baptist Church will give the invocation, and Sheriff Rufe Jordan, county Crusade chairman, will give the welcome.

Introduction of State personnel will be made by Frank Stockwell of Amarillo, district field representative.

The morning session will include reports from local units and a chart talk, "Save Lives" by members of the state staff. Mrs. Jack Foster of Pampa will talk on how to recruit volunteers at 11:30 a. m. Lunch will be served at 12:30 p. m. and will be followed by a business session at 1:30 p. m. Workshops in education service, Crusade, county unit operation, and promotion and publicity will begin at 2 p. m., and the meeting will close with a short convocation at 3:15 p. m.

The meeting is open to any Pampa area person interested in working with the county cancer unit. Deadline for luncheon reservations was this morning.

County Court Calls Docket

The docket for the September term of court in County Court was called this morning and seven criminal cases were set for 10 a. m., Oct. 11.

The cases of the State versus Eugene Cooper, charged with aggravated assault; State versus Forrest Lee Billingsley, charged with driving while intoxicated; State versus Ted Edgar Taylor, charged with aggravated assault; State versus Wanda Blackwell Wheeler, charged with driving while intoxicated; State versus Bobby Dean Eldon, charged with driving while intoxicated; State versus Truman Edmund Garrison, charged with driving while intoxicated; and State versus Stanley, charged with destruction of property, were called.

The members of the County Court jury for the September term have been notified and will appear in court at 10 a. m., Oct. 11. Several cases were passed to the January term of court upon the motion of the defense counsel.

Thompson Warns Of Oil Controls

DALLAS —UP— Texas Railroad Commissioner Ernest O. Thompson warned Tuesday of federal control of the entire oil industry if congress does not pass the Harris bill.

The bill, defeated in the last session of the House by only six votes, would free natural gas at the well head from federal control.

Thompson, addressing the Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association convention, said if the federal government "comes marching into the oil fields looking for gas wells to control, it is going to end up controlling oil producers, too."

"Galloping Case of Control" — "If congress does not pass the Harris bill in the next session," Thompson said, "we are going to have a galloping case of federal control of the whole industry. This seems to me to be a logical conclusion, and I have so contended all along."

A top legal expert of the oil industry, Clayton Orn, general attorney for Ohio Oil Co., Findlay, Ohio said the Harris bill would offer a "reasonable" solution to producer problems, although he said it was not perfect.

"Producers will be able to operate under it," Orn said. "Moreover, it should result in more gas being available and at lower prices than will be available if the Federal Power Commission is compelled to administer the natural gas act as it feels it is required to do under the present law."

Another speaker, Albert L. Nickerson, president of Socony Mobil Oil Co., New York, discussed the future world demand for oil.

Reversal of Trends — Barring a reversal of present trends in petroleum production and consumption, Nickerson said in a talk prepared for delivery before the convention, that United States producers are going to find it "increasingly difficult" to keep up with demand over the next 10 to 20 years.

Dr. Logan Wilson, University of Texas president, addressed the convention late Monday and said increased tax support for public education can not be delayed any longer.

The Army announced Monday that the first volunteers had started their reserve training at five military posts. They will be obliged to serve 7 1/2 years in the ready reserves or National Guard after their six months on active duty.

99,000 Authorized — The Army is authorized to take as many as 99,000 young men into the program if it can recruit them. Of those who have now started training, 672 are National Guardsmen from 40 states. They include 275 from New Mexico, the largest group from any state. The remaining 495, a figure disappointingly low to the Army, will go into the reserves.

The Army plans to induct 5,000 for six months training during October, November and December. It has almost half of these signed up now. It plans to start training 3,000 a month in January.

314 Go to Fort Bliss — Of those starting training Monday, 374 went to Fort Leonard Wood, Mo.; 285 to Fort Knox, Ky.; 99 to Fort Jackson, S.C.; 314 to Fort Bliss, Tex., and 95 to Fort Ord, Calif.

Under the reserve bill passed by congress, six months trainees going to the National Guard are paid $78 to $83 a month while on active training. Those going into the reserves are paid $50 a month.

The Pentagon expects to propose an amendment next year to equalize pay. It originally recommended $80 a month for all six months trainees.

LYNN DALE CRIDER Rites set

Crider Rites Will Be Held In Oklahoma

Funeral services for Lynn Dale Crider, 23, who was killed in a head-on collision yesterday about 12:30 p. m., will be held in Cleveland, Okla., under the direction of Chapman Funeral Home.

His body will be taken to Cleveland tomorrow morning.

The crash occurred about 7.5 miles south of here on Texas 273 yesterday when C. D. Hanes of McLean, driving a '30 Pontiac, and Crider in a '35 Buick collided near the center of the highway. Hanes' car was coming north from Lefors, while Crider was going south from Pampa.

The collision occurred on a slight grade and curve. R. C. Parker, highway patrolman from McLean, investigated the accident.

Injured in the crash were three people from McLean. C. D. Hanes, 34, apparently is the most severely injured. He suffered several fractured ribs, chest injuries, and lacerations. Mrs. Ella Hanes, 22, is being treated for bruises and shock. Mrs. Annie Mae Herndon, 46, Mrs. Hanes' mother, has multiple lacerations on her face and legs.

Crider has been manager of the Mud Control Laboratories for two years, since he came to Pampa from Ardmore, Okla. He was a five year trustee of the Pampa Elks Lodge No. 1573, member of Pampa Rotary Club, and a member of the First Presbyterian Church.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Cloene Crider of Pampa; three sons, Donald Howard, Dale Edward, and Richard Lynn Crider; 2244 Christine; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Crider of Cleveland, Okla.; two brothers, Howard of Ardmore, and Bryce of Tulsa, Okla.; two sisters, Mrs. Vera Richardson of Ardmore, and Mrs. Fern Ray of Dewey, Okla.

Funeral rites to be announced later.

If it comes from a Hardware Store, we have it Lewis Hardware.

New Reserve Program Off To Slow Start

WASHINGTON —UP— The new Army reserve program got off to a slow start Tuesday with only 1,167 youngsters volunteering for the six months training.

But the Army said 3,506 pre-draft age youths would soon join them. By next June 30, the Army said, it expects to induct 53,000 young men under 18 1/2 into the program.

U.S. Air Force Aids Tampico Victims

TAMPICO, Mex. —UP— U.S. Navy helicopters and Air Force C-46s carrying food and medicines afforded the "only hope" Tuesday for hundreds of persons marooned throughout the Gulf Coast zone flooded by the big Panuco and Tamesi Rivers.

An area of 30,000 square miles was reported flooded by two hurricanes with the water still rising at the rate of two inches per hour. Tropical storms Gladys and Hilda en area. They carried flour, rice, beans, milk, cheese, butter and canned meats for the thousands of homeless.

The 14 helicopters arrived Saturday afternoon on the aircraft carrier Salpan with huge stores of food and medicines for the stricken port city of Tampico, which has been inundated for 32 days.

A fleet of C-46s were shuttling between Harlingen and Ellington Air Force Bases in Texas to the stricken area.

Helicopter pilots temporarily abandoned their shuttling of supplies into Tampico Monday night to rescue victims isolated by the rising water. Thousands of refugees from the port city of some 160,000 jammed the airport begging helicopter pilots to "fly us out of here."

Observers reported the raging Panuco was "filled with animal and human bodies" but they were unable to estimate the number.

Navy helicopter pilots said "many persons" had simply disappeared from high places in the flood zone, where they were seen Sunday and that the points were not covered by water.

Helicopter pilots reported more than 500 hungry refugees among many children, were on rooftops in the village of San Antonio Rayon. They also reported "about 500 persons" were clinging to rooftops and trees in the village of (See VICTIMS, Page 3)

Horace Heidt Show In Pampa Tonight

"I've never presented anything off-color and I never will," says Horace Heidt, world-famed orchestra leader and star-maker whose two-and-a-half hour, star-spangled stage show, "The American Way" will be brought to the Field House in Pampa today at 8 p. m., by the Swift Show Wagon. "I'm presenting top-flight entertainment for the whole family. The American Way is as clean and fresh as the young people in it."

Heidt's ideas of clean entertainment have been proved correct by his thirty years of outstanding shows in all mediums — stage, screen, radio and television. "This new edition of 'The American Way,'" he told us, "is by far the greatest show I've ever presented, and I'm proud of every minute of it. Furthermore, it presents the best young stars I've found in five years of searching the nation."

Almost all the fifty performers in "The American Way" were discovered by Heidt during his nationwide search for new talent, which he conducts as a part of his stage and NBC network TV shows. Three local performers discovered by Heidt talent scouts here will be starred in the spectacular show when it comes to Pampa.

In addition, the fifty regular members of the cast will put on a fast-paced two-and-a-half hours of variety entertainment, ranging through dance numbers by the chorus of young beauties called the Heidt Steppers to scrobatics, and including a hit parade of popular music by Heidt's famous orchestra, "The Musical Knights."

Comedy numbers will be presented in profusion, among them songs by Bud Messanie, Show Business' answer to The Thing, and Johnny Standley, whose recording of "It's in the Book" is one of the big hits of the year. On the serious vocal side, the show will bring to local audiences the glorious voice of Ralph Sigwald, the young Heidt discoverer who has been hailed as "The Caruso of the South."

"It's a show for everybody," Mr. Heidt says, "and since it presents the cream of American youth, it's a show that should give American a thrill of pride. I think you'll agree when you see it."

Tickets for "The American Way" are now on sale at the Harold Wright Insurance Agency, 110 E. Foster at popular prices — $1.10, $1.65, and $2.00 including tax.

Several Negro families living along the river were evacuated from their homes late Monday night and taken to a church.

Water Pours into Red River — The picture got even darker by a report that water was pouring into the Red River from more than four inches of rain in the Hobart-Clinton area on the north fork of the Red in Oklahoma.

Weathermen said this meant that water from the Wichita, which also flows into the Red River, might have no place to go except sideways and backwards if the Red River gets full.

Wichita Falls had received an official 1.19 inches Monday but lakes and creeks in the area were already bankfull from the record rain of 4.49 inches the weekend of Sept. 24-25.

A two-day total of 7.2 inches had fallen at Crowell in the last three days. Quannah had 4.10, Paduach 4.50 and Vernon 2.50.

Large Wichita Falls Area Threatened By Flood

WICHITA FALLS — UP — A large residential area of Wichita Falls was threatened by the "worst" flood since 1950, Tuesday as the Wichita River and Holliday Creek went out of their banks from heavy weekend rains.

In 1950, some 800 families had to be evacuated from their homes when the Wichita River went about three feet above flood stage in northeast Wichita Falls.

Residents in low-lying areas were faced with the same situation Tuesday, plus added hazard posed by Holliday Creek, in the southwest part of the city. Holliday Creek was taking water released by Lake Wichita, which was 10 inches over the spillway late Monday night.

Severe Flooding Expected — E. A. Moore, chief meteorologist at the Wichita Falls weather bureau, warned that severe flooding conditions could be expected along both the river and creek, which flows into the Wichita River, within the next 48 hours.

The Wichita Falls police department said early Tuesday that several families had already been evacuated from their threatened homes in the southwest part of town and an undetermined number of others had evacuated themselves.

The Wichita Falls Civil Defense unit and Red Cross had some 50 trucks standing by to evacuate families. Cots were installed in the National Guard Armory and an emergency shelter was set up in the Wichita Falls Boys' Club.

The swollen streams were brimming over from rains measuring more than seven inches in the watershed feeding Wichita Falls' lakes—Kemp, Wichita and Division.

Up to 10 inches of rain has fallen in the South Plains since last weekend, turning cotton fields into lakes and bringing the harvest to a sudden halt.

Meanwhile, the Brazos River in Northwest Texas, which went on a rampage only last week, was on the move again from the same rains. Sheriff Wesley Stiles of Seymour issued a warning to farmers to move their cattle to high ground in Baylor county because of expected flooding by the Brazos.

At Wichita Falls, the Wichita River was rising approximately two to three inches an hour and reached 19.65 feet early Tuesday, about two feet above flood stage. Weathermen expected it to create late Tuesday at some 22 feet. The river reached 21.43 feet in the 1950 flood.

Several Negro families living along the river were evacuated from their homes late Monday night and taken to a church.

FATAL ACCIDENT

A head-on collision between these two vehicles about 12:30 p.m. yesterday killed one Pampa man and injured three people from McLean. Lynn D. Crider, 38, driving the Buick at left was killed instantly. In the Pontiac at right were Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Haynes and Mrs. Anna Herndon, all of McLean who were injured and taken to Highland General Hospital. Deputy Sheriff Buck Haggard and Highway Patrolman R. C. Parker are shown investigating the mishap. Price Of Wives Is Going Up Everyplace But U. S.

WASHINGTON—UP—The going rate for a marriage license in the United States still is around $2. But the price of brides in other lands is running into a lot of moos.

The National Geographic Society, which knows a little or more about everything, has circled the acres of the earth and has come up with some very interesting statistics.

For example, in West Pakistan, brides aren't bought much any more because parents are money hungry. The price now is so high that 13 to 14-year-old girls are being abducted by swains who can't afford to pay the tab.

In eastern Nigeria, the purchase of a wife has become so dear money-wise, that a government committee has suggested maybe price control or worse, rationing. Half a century ago, a tall luscious 170 girl cost only $50, and an old hawk could be bought for as little as three goats. But as of now, according to the latest survey, an ordinary 170 gal is a bargain at $200, and if you want one with some kind of learning the price runs as high as $840.

I guess us American gents have it pretty nice. All we have to do is ask the gal's dad if it is all right. If he agrees, it's fine. If he stomps his foot, there always is the other way out. Down a ladder from the lady's bedroom and off to the nearest justice of the peace.

With the Kenai, Alaskan Eskimos, all a man has to do is come to his lover's house with howdy and then start in as a cook, bottle washer, and sweeper of floors. Aside from that, he has to heat the bath water, no mean trick in Eschimo country. Then if the old man gives the nod he can claim his bride—she's his. And in Jamaica, today, a would-be bridegroom, in New Orleans kicks in a couple of dollars to his future in-laws.

Some gals are better off over there. In some places, he had also to be a member of the human band. In the remote sections of Australia, the bride's father takes the bride, and in Jamaica, today, with only men around the house has a hard time getting a wife for his son. Of course, once the bride is bought and paid for, some of these primitive husbands have it all over us. After the purchase, their wives are kept in huts or lean-tos and there is none of the problems American men have. No rent to pay, no $20 giraffes to buy. They can shoot down a wild turkey and use the tail feathers to make their ladies a bonnet. And better still, there like as not is no mother-in-law trouble.

This is Marlene's third appearance in the gambling capital, and by now the customers expect a startling act each time. On her first trip she wore a "bare bosom" dress that electrified the attending press. Last year a wind machine whipped her white chiffon gown as she walked on stage.

"This year I decided on the runway," she said. "The runway is in European theaters, so why not here?"

"Many people go back to Las Vegas with the same act year after year. I'm always working hard to find something different." Marlene receives a staggering $25,000 a week for crooning a few songs in a husky, alleged voice at the Sahara. But after expenses "It isn't so much" because she refuses to entertain any place else in this country. She also turns down fabulous TV offers.

Some Las Vegas stars have criticized Marlene for relying partly on amazing gowns for her act. "If I could sing as well as Lena Horne I wouldn't worry about clothes," is the languid beauty's answer. "People come to see something they like on the screen, and I try to give them that illusion."

Marlene To Wear Another Dazzling Gown In Las Vegas

By ALINE MOSBY
HOLLYWOOD, —UP— Marlene Dietrich will dazzle the customers at Las Vegas again Tuesday—and this time the glamour queen's "surprise" will be to parade down a runway, as in burlesque, and "I hope they whistle."

Despite rumors that she'll strip-tease, however, the 50-year-old Marlene swears she will not remove one article of clothing as she walks past the crowd.

But she'll give the gambling customers at the Sahara hotel a closer look at the famous Dietrich figure in another of her fabulous $9,000 gowns.

"People who sit way back will see me closer," Dietrich explained Monday.

This trip her gown will be another eye-popper—jewels, sequins and beads embroidered in the barely right places on nude-colored chiffon.

"It's as bare as the first gown I wore in Las Vegas, but not more bare," she added.

And underneath? "Nothing!" shrugged the glamorous grandmother, as if there were no other answer. "I have never worn anything underneath my clothes. I never wear a bra and have never worn a girdle. I can't stand them. I think girdles destroy the natural lines of the body."

Home Firm Dedicates New Plant

TYLER, Tex. —UP— James R. Price, president of the nation's largest home producer, dedicated his firm's new $15 million Tyler plant Tuesday with a forecast the corporation would soon be producing 300,000 houses a year.

The Tyler plant of National Homes Corp. was completed in little more than six months. The company said it built the East Texas installation to serve its rapidly expanding markets in the South and Southwest for its prefabricated houses.

James R. Price, president of the company, said at dedication ceremonies "we think it is conservative to estimate that at least 50 per cent of all private, nonfarm, residential buildings will be done our way within the next 10 or 15 years."

"We think this means a market of well over three quarters of a million prefabricated houses per annum."

"National Homes is doing 40 per cent of the current market," Price added, "and we intend to get not less than our present share, which would mean at least 300,000 houses per year."

The Tyler National Homes plant, with a production capacity of 90 houses a day, is made up of four buildings located on a 48-acre tract in the Owentown industrial district. The largest of the four buildings covers six and one-half acres and has 250,000 square feet of manufacturing space. This houses the production facilities.

Other buildings on the plant site are for maintenance, transportation and the general offices of the Tyler operation.

Albert M. Cole, administrator of the Housing and Home Finance Agency, and U. S. Sen. Price Daniel of Texas participated in dedication ceremonies. Doors of the new plant then were opened to the public.

Agent Warns Of Ticks In Carson Cattle

H. M. Nichols, Carson County agriculture agent, is worried about ear ticks in cattle around Carson County.

In a recent letter to The News, he says, "Several cases of spines ear ticks have occurred in the county. Many people believe they don't have any at all but wherever there are cattle there are more than likely, ear ticks. These ticks will play over the winter in the ear and cause trouble the year around. When looking for them, take a piece of hailing wire and scrape down in the ear. Many times by just looking, you can't tell they are there, because they are deep in the ear."

"Symptoms are: depressed appearance, loss of appetite and weight, sudden drop in milk production, may have dropped ears, wobbly gait and circling in severe cases, grinding of teeth, constipation followed by diarrhea."

"The treatment is, (1) one per cent Lindane in mineral oil or in water, poured in the ear; (2) one part EQ 335 to two parts mineral oil or water, however, mineral oil is best."

"After mature ticks fall off to the ground the ones on the ground not yet hatched can and may hatch and cause a reinfestation in 17-21 days. So, when treating repeat the treatment if necessary in 17-21 days."

Galveston Ministers Aid Clean-Up Drive

GALVESTON — UP — Galveston ministers who took a leading role in a citizens' cleanup of vice in this resort city gave up plans Tuesday for a "vigilance committee" to "police" the law.

Rev. George Scotchmer, president of Galveston Ministerial Association, said simply, "we don't feel it is our job."

"We have decided to place the responsibility for securing law enforcement on the shoulders of other responsible citizens," Scotchmer said.

The ministers' decision, following a meeting Monday with E. J. Pennington, president of the chamber of commerce, and chamber officials, was an indication of growing dissent among city "fathers."

Mayor George Roy Clough, who campaigned on an "open but clean" town program, challenged Pennington in a radio talk Monday

Sun's Energy Now Operating Phone System

AMERICUS, Ga. — UP — An engineer flipped a switch here Tuesday and turned the energy of the sun into the operation of a telephone system.

This was man's newest victory in his efforts to tap the inexhaustible source of all the energy at his disposal and put it to use turning the wheels of his industries.

By the time the morning sun had risen over this town 135 miles south of Atlanta, Bell telephone engineers had completed installation of a square frame-like thing atop a power pole. The gadget, resembling from the front a big coin slot card, was a solar battery.

The battery, first successful device for converting the sun's energy efficiently into electricity, contains 432 silicon cells. Each of the cells converts as much as 11 percent of the energy it receives from the sun directly into electricity.

It operates on a very small amount of light — a candle or a flashlight will set the silicon cells to making power.

VICTIMS

Las Palmas, a few miles west of here.

An undetermined number were rescued by the helicopters when two fishing boats loaded with refugees and food supplies collided in the Panuco's strong current.

Most of the precious food cargo was dumped overboard to prevent the boats from sinking.

The helicopters also had evacuated nearly 200 persons trapped on sandbag dikes bordering the rivers near Tampico. Port officials said the majority of isolated persons were "slowly starving and sick with malaria and typhoid."

Fly in 85,000 Pounds of Food

Fourth Army headquarters at San Antonio, Tex., said its Army Air Force airlift of supplies carried 85,000 pounds of foodstuffs into Tampico Monday. Most of the foodstuffs were purchased by the American Red Cross, but numerous private donations were included in the shipments.

The planes landed at the Tampico airport, which was still above water, and the supplies were aboard trucks within seconds after arrival. As many as three planes at a time were being unloaded.

The helicopters, carrying a doctor, vaccines and penicillin, were landing on high ground in towns surrounding Tampico.

One helicopter pilot, Lt. John E. Gregory of Hickory, N. C., took 14 refugees aboard his plane at one village. When he got to Panuco, he had 15, as a woman gave birth to a baby en route.

night to poll the chamber of commerce membership.

Tight Shutdown

Chamber directors 11 days ago adopted a resolution which triggered the tightest vice shutdown this island resort city has ever seen.

However, Clough, also attacking Police Commissioner Walter Johnston's assertion that the crackdown is "complete," said:

"This man (Johnston) had certain friends that he didn't close down. They had a back door and these favored few are allowed to operate."

Clough said the "little boys" were pushed out by the crackdown. "I don't think that's right," he said, "let's close them all or leave them all open."

Clough said he believed that Galveston could be run as an "open but clean" town if citizens would demand an end to the "payoff" system.

Isn't Worried by Challenge

Pennington said he wasn't "the least bit worried" about Clough's challenge.

"If we polled the membership now I'm sure we would receive an overwhelming vote in favor of the resolution," he said.

The ministers, headed by the Rev. Scotchmer, last week distributed cards seeking members for a "Galveston County Betterment committee" to check on enforcement of the shutdown on gambling, bawdy houses and open bars.

"We plan now a long range educational program," Scotchmer said, "a program in which we will put emphasis on the positive rather than the negative."

Scotchmer said the ministers will attempt to publicize Galveston's "good points" rather than the negative, or "bad points—its vice."

Scouters Plan Sunday Outing

The '56 program of the Adobe Walls Council of scouts will be launched with a big Boy Scout retreat at Camp Ki-O-Wah on Sunday, Oct. 16.

Paul Beisenherz, Boy Scout executive, indicated this morning that between 750 and 800 men are expected to attend the retreat and free barbecue to be furnished by Mrs. Inez Carter.

Featured speaker of the occasion will be Harold W. Lewman, regional scout executive from Dallas. R. J. Rust of Phillips, President of the Adobe Walls Council, will preside over the retreat.

Others on the program include Don Cain, Santa Fe District chairman, and E. F. Glasgow, council finance chairman of Phillips.

Water District Hearing Slated

Hearing for the organization of a ground water conservation district will be held in the Memorial building at Panhandle tomorrow at 9 a.m.

An election will be held at a later date, provided the formation of the district is approved by the State Board of Water Engineers.

Creation of such a district will put the control of ground water into local hands rather than being controlled by legislature.

Any person whose land is included in the district—to be formed by parts of Gray, Carson, Armstrong, Donley, Roberts, and Potter Counties—may appear to contest the creation of district, or to show that the district would or would not be practical.

Too Small

Bacteria may be seen under a powerful microscope, but a filterable virus is invisible, being so small as to pass through the pores of the finest filters.

Optimists Hear New Phone Dial Methods

The newest method of handling long distance telephone calls was explained to the members of the Pampa Optimist Club last night at their regular meeting at Poole's drive in by Glen E. Scott of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company.

The Kiwanis Club will be host to Scott Friday noon.

The program was obtained by George Newberry, manager of the telephone company here.

The program entitled "Superhighways for Your Voice" was presented to an estimated 50 members of the "Friend of the Boy" organization.

Using a portable dial telephone system Scott explained how long distance calls are handled. He explained that long distance operators in many cities can dial 25 million other telephones in 2,000 cities without the assistance of other operators along the line.

He also demonstrated the revolutionary "transistor," a new machine that can do many jobs the vacuum tube is incapable of doing.

This is to permit a telephone call to be completed between Pampa and New York City within 16 to 30 seconds in complete privacy.

The installation of the new devices will necessitate a telephone number change and will eventually merit at 10 digit number.

He used the transistor and demonstrated the world's smallest wet battery—the so-called "flea power oscillator"—which produced an audible musical note from 1-50,000,000th watt of electric current.

With these and other demonstrations Scott showed the Optimists how new inventions are being put to use to improve the "Voice Superhighways" which would enable a person to complete a long distance telephone call anywhere in the United States within 16 to 30 seconds.

After the scheduled program the Optimists asked questions about various other types of communications and heard the fantastic reports prepared by the communications scientists of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company with regard to such devices as "Phonovision" and individual pocket telephones which are in the planning stages but not practical at the present time or in the near future.

DENVER — A young watchmaker confessed Monday night to the Sept. 22 slaying of a Denver symphony trombonist whom detectives tracked him down through their only clue—a watch.

Denver Detective Capt. Fred Zarnow said the watchmaker, Robert Mark Dearmin, 21, alias Jay R. Dearmin, confessed Monday night to the brutal killing of Hubert Hahn, 27, a trombonist in the Denver symphony orchestra and a former member of the Kansas City symphony orchestra. Zarnow said Dearmin's confession would be transcribed for his signature Tuesday.

Dearmin, faced with his 18-year-old wife's admission of knowledge of the slaying, confessed after four hours of questioning. He also admitted taking Hahn's companion, Joyce Danielson, 23, of Denver, to a lonely country road and wounding her with a .22 caliber bullet.

Hahn also was killed on a dark country road near Denver. Miss Danielson who made her way to safety, picked Dearmin from a police showup earlier Monday.

Dearmin said he purchased the gun the day of the killing and planned to pull a robbery. He saw Hahn and Miss Danielson parked in Hahn's automobile in front of their Denver rooming house and forced his way in with the gun.

Then, he said, he made them drive him to a country road where he robbed them of $13 and shot Hahn. Later, he wounded Miss Danielson.

Dearmin's wife, Diane, told police her husband had told her of the robbery and slaying. She was not held further.

Dearmin was taken to his capture. It was found battered at the scene of the slaying and was traced through local jewelers and watchmakers to Dearmin, a student watchmaker.

Three Fined In DWI Cases

Three men were fined in County Court yesterday for driving while intoxicated and one for swindling with a worthless check.

Thomas Guthrie, of Perryton, changed a not guilty plea to guilty on the dwti charge and was fined $100 and costs and sentenced to three days in jail.

Johanne Watson, 55, 414 Frederic, pleaded guilty to dwti and was fined $150 and costs and sentenced to three days in jail.

Elmo Edgar Jones, 39, 438 S. Somerville, also pleaded guilty to dwti and was fined $150 and costs and sentenced to three days in jail.

Gene Bynum, 1109B S. Hobart, was fined $1 and costs and made restitution for the check after being filed on by Jay's Grocery and Market for a $4.11 check dated Sept. 16, 1955.

Two Crashes Are Reported

A total of $405 damage was encountered in two car collisions occurring yesterday afternoon and this morning.

The first mishap took place on W. Kingmill, 130 feet east of Somerville yesterday at 2:35 p.m. Joseph C. McWilliams, 1318 Mary Ellen, driving a '48 Hudson, was in collision with J. M. Gilpatrick of 718 N. Somerville in a '55 Buick. McWilliams met with estimated damages of $30. Gilpatrick encountered damages of about $150.

The second collision occurred at the intersection of N. Williston and Decatur at 8:10 this morning. Mark Winton, 1003 E. Scott, driving a '53 Ford, was in collision with Gerrel N. Richardson of 525 N. Perry in a '49 Chevrolet. Winton incurred damages estimated at $100. Richardson met with estimated damages of $125.

Cohen Will Be Released

LOS ANGELES — UP — Mickey Cohen, once a top gambling figure in the West, will be released from a federal penitentiary Sunday because his relatives pooled their savings to pay a $10,000 fine levied against him when he was sentenced for income tax evasion.

Cohen, once a big-spending, lavishly dressed gambling kingpin, was sentenced July 9, 1951, to serve a five-year term at McNeil Island federal penitentiary for evasion of more than $150,000 in taxes.

Nine months of the sentence were suspended for good behavior, but Cohen would have had to take a pauper's oath and spend an extra 30 days in prison if he had not paid the fine.

A man who identified himself as Cohen's brother-in-law Monday handed five cashier's checks to John A. Childress, clerk of the U. S. district court, in payment of the fine. Jack Dultz, a Los Angeles wholesale merchant, said the money was collected "as a family pool."

Dultz said Cohen's wife, Lavonne, will not go north to meet the ex-gambler but will wait for him here.

Cohen will have to report regularly to a federal probation officer here for three months following his release.

Max Baer Will Take On TV Jungle Series Next

By ALINE MOSBY

HOLLYWOOD—UP—Max Baer used to pumel Jim Braddock and Primo Carnera in championship fights while the crowds roared, but Tuesday he donned a pith helmet for another kind of battle. Barrel-chested Maxie announced from now on he's going to trade punches with crocodiles and gorillas on the nation's television screens. The man who held the heavy-weight champ's crown in 1934 has been brought out of semi-retirement and lured back to Hollywood for the first time in six years. He will play a whip-toting villain in a kiddies' jungle TV series, "Sheena, Queen of the Jungle."

"I like to work with gorillas and crocodiles—they remind me of my ex-managers," growled Maxie. "The last time he faced a camera was for 'Skipalong Rosenbloom.' He also appeared in various other pictures down the years, including 'Africa Screams.' In recent years he's been a TV disc jockey and sports commentator in Oakland and his home town of Sacramento."

He lives in Sacramento because "I wanted to raise my three kids, my cub bears, up there, and besides I like to emcee the governor's banquets." "My oldest boy is studying to be an attorney in college now," he said proudly. "Neither of my two boys will be fighters. I don't like the fight game. It's too tough. Dempsey and Rocky are the only two fighters I allow in my home."

But Baer admits he can't stay out of harness "because to retire is to deteriorate." When an old friend, producer Ed Anasour, told him about the TV jungle series, Baer jumped to Hollywood. Maxie sat for an interview Tuesday, clashing his big hands in front of him and squinting his eyes in good humor as he talked about his life.

It seems to me a long stretch from the championship to playing a villain in open shirt and puttees for a TV series while the natives (from Central Ave.) chant: "Me Un-Gu, me know where white goddess lives..."

But Baer explained, "I wanted to do this because I like entertaining the kiddies..."

"I get almost as much fan mail now as when I was champ," he said. "It comes from all over the world, some of it address just 'Max Baer, the champ, U. S. A.' 'Why, I walk down Vine St. and the kids still say, 'hi-ya, champ,' I like that."

The ex-fighter straightened his big shoulders in that well-tailored jacket and said, "it's better to be a has been than never was."

Then he headed back into the dark, plaster jungle of the Hollywood movie set.

Solon Will Ask Income Tax Cuts

WASHINGTON—UP—Sen. Robert S. Kerr said Monday he will propose an individual income tax cut next year based on an increase in personal exemptions.

The Oklahoma Democrat, a member of the tax-writing finance committee, said he is confident that a balanced budget in the current fiscal year.

But even if the budget is not balanced, he said in an interview, "a tax cut is going to be mighty hard to head off."

Kerr's statement reflects the view of many key congressmen that an election-conscious Congress will deliver the American people a tax cut next year.

Kerr's tax-cut proposal is to increase the allowable exemptions from the present $600 per dependant to $700 in the first year and $800 in the second year.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their false teeth slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Hold false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug counter.

SWEDISH AIRMAN VISITS PAMPAN

Sven Ellstrom, left, master flight engineer of the Royal Swedish Air Force, is taking his first look at the state of Texas this weekend as he will attend the Texas-Oklahoma football game with H. S. Finkelstein. Ellstrom and Finkelstein were stationed in the same area in Korea and were friends there. Ellstrom is on his way from Korea to Stockholm, Sweden, his home. They are shown here as they ate breakfast yesterday in the D. A. Finkelstein home, 1901 N. Russell. (News Photo)

Brazil May Be In For A Period Of Political Strife

By CHARLES M. MCCANN
United Press Foreign Analyst

Brazil, the largest country in Latin America, may be in for a period of political turmoil.

About 10 million of Brazil's 54 million men and women are voting for a president Monday.

But the army may prove the determining factor.

It was the army that forced out President Getulio Vargas on Aug. 24, 1954, and caused him to shoot himself through the heart.

The generals are watching Monday's vote closely. If they do not like the way things go, they may step in. That might mean a military dictatorship and consequent trouble.

There are four candidates for the presidency.

The leading one is Juscelino Kubitschek, candidate of the Social Democrats, Labor and Republican parties.

Labor Party Detested

The army does not like Kubitschek, though it probably would tolerate him as president—watchful toleration.

But the army detests the Labor party, which is backing Kubitschek.

It is there that the possibility of any army coup exists.

The real storm center in the election is Kubitschek's vice presidential running mate, Joao Goulart. Goulart is president of the Labor party, which Vargas headed.

Under the Brazilian constitution, candidates for the presidency and the vice presidency run separately.

If Goulart is elected, it is quite possible that the generals will intervene and refuse to permit him to take office.

The army forced Vargas to dismiss Goulart as minister of labor in a prelude to the late president's ouster.

Army May Intervene

It was charged, at the time, that Goulart was trying to organize the Brazilian Labor party, with Vargas' approval, along the lines of the Argentine labor organization which Dictator Juan D. Peron made his country's political power.

Gen. Canrobert Pereira Da Costa, chairman of the Brazilian joint chiefs of staff, said in a speech on Aug. 6 that politicians had brought Brazil to the brink of "revolution and chaos."

Pereira Da Costa said then that the "armed forces might find it necessary to intervene in the presidential campaign."

That warning seems still to apply to the post-election period if Kubitschek and Goulart are elected.

Kubitschek is running on a platform which calls for the continuance of the left wing social and labor policies of Vargas' "new state."

But Goulart was Vargas' political protege and the direct inheritor of his policies. The army wants none of him.

JIM CRACKS

By JIM DEAN

THE TRAGIC death yesterday of Lynn Grider left a terrible void for all who knew him.

I have never believed that words can be effectual at such a time as this. Though it is difficult to believe, it is a simple fact that someone you knew and liked and respected is no longer here.

But it may be some comfort to those nearest and dearest to him to know that so many hearts were saddened by his death and that he will be missed.

REV. DONOVAN SPEAKER of the Pampa Church of the Brethren brought in a little item which he headed "Meanest Trick of the Week."

This trick was turned in by "food thieves," according to Rev. Speaker's story.

A short while ago, the church became aware of a family in Pampa which was truly in need even though the members of the family were doing everything possible to help themselves. They were not members of the Church of the Brethren, but Rev. Speaker said, it seemed to us that as Christian people, we were needed. With this in mind, the United Workers Class and the Home Builders Class brought gifts of food to the Church as they met a week ago last Sunday. The supplies were carefully stored in the cabinets of the church kitchen so that they might be completed with further donations on the following Sunday. The additional gifts were brought, only to find that the kitchen had been completely emptied of all food. It had been stolen at some time during the week. Gone were 15 pounds of flour, shortening, sugar, canned goods, etc. Gone was the joy of living by the Christian people—gone was the joy of receiving by six in need.

Then Rev. Speaker adds "If the person or persons responsible for the theft happen to read this article, we hope that (if they really were not in great need) the food is flayed accordingly. If, however, this food was taken out of great need, we ask only that they return to the church and tell us about it. We will be happy that they received these gifts of the heart and will do our best to help them also."

WHILE ON THE CHURCH topic, I might inject here that my remarks last week concerning the choir music at the First Baptist Church raised an eyebrow at the First Methodist Church and I was quickly given an invitation to attend a service there and hear some other good singing.

Well, the Baylor-SMU game is a long time off, and I certainly don't want to get that feud going ahead of time.

I have never heard Roy Johnson's choir sing, but I am certain they must do a terrific job. I have heard Roy sing and I know he used to direct a combined chorus in "The Messiah" each Christmas season. Nobody would tackle that if they weren't good. And besides, Roy gets something resembling music out of the Kiwanis Club members each Friday, and that should be recommended enough.

HERE'S AN ITEM for the "So You Think You've Heard Everything" department.

Well, you haven't. Now it's canned uranium dirt.

Carson Sets Water Meet

According to Kern Granstaff, assistant county agent for Carson County, the State Board of Water Engineers has called a hearing for the purpose of organizing a water district embracing Carson County, Wednesday at 9 a.m. in the Memorial Building, just east of the courthouse at Panhandle.

Granstaff, in a letter to The News, said, "It is vitally important that any person whose land is included in or would be affected by the creation of this district be present at the hearing. These persons may contest the creation of the district and may offer testimony to show that the district is or is not necessary, would or would not be a benefit to land in the district and, would or would not be feasible or practicable."

"The creation of such a district would put the control of ground water in local hands rather than being controlled by the legislature."

"Notices are posted by the sheriff in the courthouses of the counties included in the proposed district, which describe the land included in the district."

"If the formation of such a district is approved by the board, an election will be held shortly thereafter."

Youngest Justice Youngest man ever appointed to the United States Supreme Court was Joseph Story who, in 1811, at the age of 32, was appointed a Justice by President James Madison.

You may recall that down in Comanche County a few months ago some farmer learned that his land had a certain amount of uranium in the soil. It wasn't enough to market, but there was a little indication on the indicators. Some folks suffering from arthritis got the idea that if they would go out there and sit around in the dirt, the uranium would help their arthritis.

It wasn't long before folks began to flock to the Jesse F. Reese ranch. It probably resembled the pilgrimage to Lourdes, although perhaps on a smaller scale.

Anyway Reese finally decided there should be some profit in such a project, and not long after that he converted his dairy barn into a "sitting house" for ailing folks. They paid a minimum of $2.00 an hour just to sit in the dirt. One Sunday in August there were 461 persons who paid the price to soak up whatever healing powers they believed to exist in the uranium spiked soil. You don't have to be much of a mathematician to figure the weekly take on such a project.

There were no promises of healing made, folks who were ailing just believed it would help them and the word spread.

Well, if you remember the story of Coca Cola, the Billion Dollar suggestion was "bottle it."

Somebody looked over the Comanche Uranium Dirt enterprise and said "can it."

They did. And now the canned uranium dirt is being shipped around the country where dirt bath houses are springing up. There's one in Pampa now, others are at Odessa and Lubbock, and they are probably spreading everywhere.

Just imagine, millions of dollars spent each year by folks who want to get their feet dirty . . . and when I think of all the fuss my mother used to raise when I would play in the dirt . . .

Anybody got a Geiger Counter?

THE POET'S NOOK

I had a phone call last week from a reader who recognized the puzzle in poetry. It was from Alexander Pope's "Essay on Criticism."

It would seem that more people should have recognized that one.

But let's turn to romantic poetry this week, and perhaps we'll have more takers.

This poem, by the way, was recited in the long-playing record "A Cure For Loneliness" by Wayne King. The record was played several times on the words and music program KPAT used to broadcast.

It was a favorite of Earl Davis, now departed for New York.

"Have it is, see if you recognize it: 'You love me for a little, Who could not love me long; You gave me wings of gladness And lent my spirit song."

HE DID IT WITH HOOKS — Using hooks instead of hands, Chokichi Irana finishes his portrait of President Eisenhower in Denver, Colo. He did the canvas to thank the President for signing the bill that allowed him to stay in the United States. Irana lost his arms on his native Okinawa and was hospitalized in Denver.

South's Error

It is unfortunate that W. E. Debnam, author of "Then My Old Kentucky Home, Good Night!" which is an attempt to circumvent the recent Supreme Court decision on segregation in public schools, cannot see the basic error that lies in his support of the public school system. Like many other Southerners (Mr. Debnam comes from Raleigh, N. C.) he had no objection to the public school system so long as White and Negro children did not attend the same school. But when the Supreme Court ruled that the policy of "equal but separate" public schools in the South was discriminatory against the Negroes and forbidden by the Constitution, Debnam and many of his "equal but separate" school followers immediately rose to battle.

His book is given over to an effort to show that the Negro slaves of the South had a pretty good time of it, albeit they were slaves, and that the Negro race as such is not the equal of the White Race. He apparently has overlooked the point that the Founding Fathers in the phraseology "all men are created equal" had no intention of indicating that each man is the exact equal of the next. What they said and felt was that all men should have equal rights.

Debnam concludes his book with a plan that will, he hopes, solve the racial integration problem in the public schools in the Southern states. He proposes that the public school system be continued on what he calls an "integrated basis." He then advocates that "any parent, White or Negro, who does not want his child to attend the public integrated school be allowed — be required — to send his children to a private school . . .

"We propose that private school education be made within the reach of every child in the South, regardless of Race or condition, through the use of tax funds already available under the present school program. "Let the parent signify whether he wants his children to go to an integrated public school or to a private school that would be operated, if the operator chooses . . . and he most certainly would . . . upon a segregated basis.

"Let the notice of school selection be given for enough in advance to give school authorities in each district an opportunity to determine what will be the public and what the private school enrollment so facilities can be made available for each operation, using what are now public school facilities, for private schools in those instances where they are not required by public school enrollment. In a tremendous majority of Southern communities the integrated school could assemble in the nearest phone booth.

"Monies appropriated for private school tuition could be paid through voucher made out to the private school selected by the patron and to be countersigned by both so there would be no opportunity to chisel on either side."

Apparently Debnam thinks that it is possible to operate private schools with public money and still have them be private schools. He doesn't seem to understand that if we are to have private schools, they must be exactly that — supported by voluntary agreement on the part of those wanting the school service with those supplying the service. Anything short of this is merely dodging the issue in order to get around an uncomfortable situation in the South that has been brought on by the Supreme Court ruling.

Debnam apparently gives lip service to a belief in liberty and free enterprise, but he fails to see that the use of tax money for a school system is in opposition to free enterprise and is another expression of a form of socialism. At one point in his book in which he is discussing quality, he says:

"In every state, every child in the several grades is taught from the same textbook theories of sociology and economics that have been selected to conform to the social and economic theories of the small group that happens to be in command. Some of these theories, in some classrooms, are so completely at variance with the social and economic and political truths upon which this nation was founded and have made it great and strong, as to curl the hair of any person who believes in liberty and free enterprise. The Communists and the Socialists and the fellow-travelers are gaining ground all the time, and no wonder. They capture our children during the formative years of adolescence and hold them prisoner through all their mortal lives."

Having recognized that this is true and that it is counter to the traditional American belief in liberty, it is strange that Debnam cannot realize or recognize that the evil lies in the public school system itself. He apparently fails to see that there is no way in which a tax-supported government school, no matter how it is operated, can teach a belief in fundamental Americanism and a free enterprise system. Were they to attempt to, they would automatically condemn themselves. They would automatically show themselves to be inconsistent.

It seems odd that in the South there is such bitter opposition to required integrated schools that there have not been more people awakened to the basic evil in the system. Having been given a bitter dose of government-school medicine, it would appear that more of them would awaken to the fact that it is the public school system per se that is wrong — not the Supreme Court decision on segregation.

Writer Perturbed About Our Schools And Colleges

I want to quote from my letter from W. H. McComb on his ideas of what is happening in our schools and colleges.

Mr. McComb is author of "Rescue Our Little Children" and "The Businessman Must Save Himself." As the title, "Rescue Our Little Children," indicates, he is interested in the mental and spiritual development of the youth of the land. He gives me permission to quote from his letter.

He admits in his letter that "it is tyranny to compel an inoffensive bachelor to educate his sinful neighbor's brood of a dozen." He seems to think that tax-supported schools promote equality of opportunity to the youth of the land. He doesn't seem to realize that there's anything but equality of opportunity to the youth that attends government schools with the youth that is educated by parents or persons who believe in a government of eternal law rather than a government of men. And public schools, of course, are based on a government of men rather than a government of principles. The he goes on to write:

"So now all the boys and girls go to school and learn juvenile delinquency; and many of them do not even learn to read and write. "Beyond a doubt, some of the results have been abominable. The professors have built up their business until it is now the nation's biggest monopoly, with 2 out of 7 Americans devoting full time to it. For many years, looking into this business has been a chief hobby of mine. That is, I have been trying to make sense out of what the professors write about their business in the long shelves on education in the public library, without success. A chief conclusion: that America's professional school bosses now are the most pretentious and useless fakirs since the Borgias were selling chips off the true cross in the Middle Ages.

"Digressing for one paragraph, I believe there is a central error in American thinking about education. That is the idea that teachers can pound education into kids whether they want it or not. I think they can pound in a little, but not a great deal; and hardly any on the higher levels. In other words, the impulse toward higher learning always must come from the student, not from the teacher. That is why I am hipped on the idea that education ought to be organized on a competitive basis, the kids being permitted to race ahead to the goal posts. I find no record of any professor ever having thought of such a thing in 2500 years of education, so there is no hope of any such reform stemming from Columbia Teachers College or the NEA. But why shouldn't some big corporation snag the idea to educate their own employees in their own business! End the digression.

"From my researches into the desert of the 'university press,' I have come up with a much more sinister conclusion, as far as I know. I am the only fellow who has made this soul-shaking discovery. I have written a book about it, in which I have not compromised so it will probably not be printed. (Rogney has had it for 4 months, with no response to 3 letters except a postcard.) (The American Legion Magazine printed 4000 of the least important words of it, out of 25,000, avoiding entirely this chief conclusion except by implication.) This sinister conclusion, as far as it can be stated in nutshell, is as follows: That the idea that the communists seduced a few of our professors is all wrong. The shoe is on the other foot. It is the professors themselves who have been teaching the essence of communism for 2500 years, so they are pushovers for the Marxian variety when it came along. They just called their own variety by different names.

"It took all of 25,000 words to justify such an astounding conclusion, but I will try to condense the reasoning. The big difference between communism and our system is in the authority of the political boss over the producer. In Russia the authority of the boss over producer is absolute. Our Constitution told the boss to keep his toughs out of our gardens, so that such a producer as Ford could give us automobiles without even cutting the boss in on the profits. That, in my opinion, is the chief difference between the two systems, at least the most important difference. It is the difference which has given to American Negroes more automobiles than all the citizens of Africa and Russia combined. Our most important freedom has been the freedom to own the profits from our own sweat. This freedom to own never has been taught in our schools. This real significance of our Constitution never has been taught by our professors, not even in the schools of law or political science."

COP Looking Over Eight Substitutes For 1956

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Despite faint hopes that President Eisenhower will run again in 1956, Republican politicians throughout the land are measuring the political appeal and talents of at least eight possible substitutes. In view of Ike's known distaste for a second term and his spirit of tolerance they feel no scruples in taking these precautions.

Politics being what it is, they are thinking first of these men's ballot-box appeal and only secondarily of their intrinsic qualifications and experience. They recognize that they must put up their most attractive personality in order to defeat the resurgent Democrats, whose earlier defeatist complex has been replaced by an almost overconfident attitude.

Without any attempt or intent to pass judgment on the roster of prospective candidates now under review, here is a candid and unvarnished report on the general Republican analysis of the men even remotely available as their 1956 nominee:

Vice-President Richard M. Nixon of California: His apprenticeship under Eisenhower, the most thorough any VP in history has enjoyed, will be advanced as his principal asset. Should Ike disqualify himself and permit the 42-year-old Nixon to serve as "Acting President," he would be unbeatable, as Calvin Coolidge was after Harding's death in 1923.

But the Vice President has many enemies within the Party, and within his own state. Until he hitched onto the Eisenhower star, he was regarded as ultraconservative. It is doubtful if he would attract the liberal, labor and independent blocs. He has been a vehement anti-Communist, however, and would be satisfactory to the Republican right wing in this respect.

Chief Justice Earl Warren of California: Republican liberals prefer him to any other prospect, but he is suspect to conservatives, to businessmen and to professional GOP-ers. His decision on segregation would hurt him in the South and border states, though helping him in the great urban centers.

Warren's friends insist that he will not stand for the nomination, although he might have to accept it if it were forced on him. He enjoys the leisurely life of a jurist. He has never made a great deal of money, and his $35,000 salary is welcome and needed. Since Ike's attack, he has said again that he will not re-enter hurly-burly politics.

Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey of Ohio: Although rarely mentioned, he is a possibility. His financial and monetary policies commend him to the "big business" bloc. But that would be his weakness, politically, for he and Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson are the symbols of the so-called "Millionaire Cabinet."

He has no solid or organized political backing, and he has not sought any. He would have to be drafted, and built up hurriedly, as Wendell Willkie was in 1940.

The Doctor Says

By EDWIN J. JORDAN, M. D. "If a person has a low blood count," writes Mrs. I. Z., "will it remain low always?" This question raises the problem of anemia, since anemia is a general term which is applied to those conditions in which the number of red cells is below normal or in which there is an insufficient amount of coloring matter in those cells. This coloring matter is known as hemoglobin.

It is not, however, possible to answer the question specifically, since one would need to know how low the blood count was, and several other things about the anemia. Furthermore, there are several kinds of anemia with many possible causes and with varying treatments.

PROBABLY the most common form is that which is known as secondary anemia in which blood has been lost from the body and incompletely replaced. An easily understood variety of secondary anemia occurs when there has been a sudden and extensive bleeding.

Ordinarily, after such an event — a nose bleed, for example — the blood is replaced rapidly. But if attacks of bleeding are repeated at frequent intervals a severe anemia may result.

It is most important to identify and stop the hemorrhage. In many cases it turns out to be quite a problem to find where the loss of blood is coming from because it may be gradual and in small amounts rather than sudden and profuse.

BUT ANEMIA CAN come from many things besides loss of blood. Some get anemic just because they do not get enough iron in their food. There is also a form of anemia known as primary or pernicious anemia, the cause of which is not known.

This was formerly a highly fatal disease, but thanks to work on dogs and observations on human beings this is no longer true. Liver has saved many lives of those with pernicious anemia; now crystallized vitamin B-12 appears to be saving many more.

State Department Paying For Shows On Foreign Tour

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

ROME — There is something wrong about our State Department.

I date back to the time when Bryan was acting the clown with the trained seals and Swiss ballerinas in a tent show under Wilson, but no such nastiness ever was tolerated as still goes on under the present administration. This furtiveness and sneakiness were characteristic of the Roosevelt-Truman regime, but why does it carry over, unabated and with smug impudence? Certainly the British would not permit anyone in their foreign office to send lecturers of doubtful propriety and anti-British or un-British theatrical shows touring foreign countries at public expense to defame their society and culture. The motto "Be British" is still respected.

Recently, one William Faulkner arrived in Rome. He is an author, whose writing to the extent of my contact is as filthy as anything ever scrawled on any wall in any language. Faulkner got the Nobel Prize, whose moral and literary standards might well be called up for inspection by the American nation. He is one of those misanthropic Southerners who depict Southern life, morals and character in disgusting terms.

When he came to Rome he took the position that the United States must wipe out absolutely and soon if not right now a demarcation between our white and colored people which is the result as much of despicable oppression of the Southern white man by Yankee scoundrels in reconstruction days as the result of mutual racial aloofness of those concerned.

Faulkner came to Europe under a subsidy from the State Department as a cultural agent to enlighten Europeans regarding our culture. Our culture has no definition and is no business of the State Department: Faulkner had been in Japan for a season and he left Italy for Munich and other stops.

Even Italians who knew English didn't get the dialect. Musical opinion generally was adverse. It was spoken of as "dark" music. The show played France and Germany, too, financed in part out of a fund of $5 million voted to President Eisenhower at the prompting of Broadway-Hollywood individuals who have always had trouble avoiding connections with Communists. The same fund is supposed to pay for participation in trade fairs, "Oklahoma" lost money but a private promoter was on the hook here, expecting to make a little. The Italian management had political relations with left-wing socialists associated with the Communists.

The State Department has many individual holdovers from the day in 1939 when A. A. Berle thought he had done his duty by passing on to his friends of the Acheson. His "pro-Russian" clique, as he called it, the terrible story of Alger Hiss told him in private by Whitaker Chambers. Thereafter, it remained secret until Chambers kicked on the door demanding to be heard after the war.

Dodgers Are Way Ahead In The Shaving Contest

By HENRY McLEMORE

As a Yankee fan ever since the days of Babe Ruth and Jumping Joe Dugan, it hurts me to admit that my fellows have to take a back seat in anything to any other ballplayers.

But I hadn't watched more than six innings and six commercials of the first game of the 1955 World Series on television before I knew when it came to shaving, the Yanks were no match for the Dodgers. As loyal as I am, there was no escaping the fact that Duke Snider, Gil Hodges, Carl Furillo and Pee Wee Reese were far superior to Hank Bauer, Phil Rizzuto, Yogi Berra, and any of the other Yanks in the blade and lather competition.

In the bathroom the razor company sponsoring the series telecast has set up in the Yankee Stadium and Ebbets Field, the Brooks won shaving honors going away. There was a clean victory, not a win by the proverbial whisker. The Brooklyn not only won the team shaving contest between innings, they came through with the individual championship as well. Our best man was right fielder Hank Bauer, and for a while it appeared that his feat of coming in from right field, getting to the shaving room under the grandstand, taking off his shirt, delivering a eulogy on a certain razor, and then shaving, all in 34 seconds, would stand up.

But before I could send a wire of congratulations to Bauer, along came Duke Snider to make Hank look like a slow poke. This despite the fact that the Duke had farther to travel, being as he plays center field. Snider did everything Bauer did and came up with the almost unbelievable time of 22 seconds. I figure the Duke must have thrown modesty to the winds and taken off his shirt while starting in from centerfield. I may be wrong but I believe his mark of 22 seconds will endure as long or longer than Ruth's home run record or Cobb's stolen base mark.

Sensing that he was on his way to a record before he even started working on his chin, I made a careful study of Snider's technique and believe I hit on his secret. The Duke has a great follow-through with a razor just as he has with a bat. Unlike so many shavers Duke does not check the swing of his razor ending high in the air. His footwork is a joy to behold especially when he is reaching for a botherome patch of whiskers just below and a little to the right of his left ear. He starts the swing of his razor on his left foot. So perfect is the Duke's timing and balance on this particular stroke that at the finish his razor is in position to come straight on down and remove a sizable area of whiskers from his upper lip.

Young shavers would do well to study the pictures of the Duke. He shaves without a lost motion and his final stroke leaves him in the ideal position to reach for the after shave lotion and powder. Third place surprisingly enough went to Charlie Grimm, manager of the Milwaukee Braves, who for some reason or other was edged in the between innings competition. Charlie is an old timer and I would have thought his best shaving years were behind him. But he was as quick with blade as he was with his glove when he was first basing for the Cubs years ago.

Major Trends And Factors In Fall And Winter Fashions For Men Revealed

Major trends in men's fashions for Fall of '50 and Winter of '50 are revealed. According to Oscar E. Schoeffler, Esquire fashion director, it is no secret that men's hosiery and the birth of new concepts of color use and form in men's apparel will be among the principal stories of this year.

Schoeffler reasons that there are three major factors for this. One is that the pink shirt and sport shirt developments have created what he calls a "breakthrough" situation in public acceptance of color. "It's almost as if a grey film is being removed from men's eyes. Actually, of course, we don't see with our eyes. We 'see' with our brain — and what is happening is essentially a re-education in seeing color." The second factor is the developing "unity of costuming." Men's coordinates are apparently here to stay.

Arnold Gingrich recently said, "Today — we think it ludicrous when we see films of a Calvin Coolidge going fishing or playing golf in a stiff collar or stiff hat. Men are dressing for the activity now, and it seems to all of us that it is the most natural thing in the world — and of course, it is.

"Once such a breach has been made in archaic thinking, sensa-

THE HAT ON YOUR HEAD may be the latest style, but chances are the Greeks came out with it first about two thousand years ago. The Scots beat you to it by about 400 years. The French were ahead of you in the 15th century. The Italians designed it around 1760. No matter what the style or type of hat you are wearing today, somebody somewhere already was closely approximating it many hundreds of years ago.

HAT STYLES, like everything else, go through cycles. Authority for this comes from I. Benjamin Parrill, an expert on men's hat fashions, part of a new field called "hatique," Parrill is also president of The Adam Hat Manufacturers, Inc.

As an example of the evolution of hats, Parrill says, take the peaked cloth cap which is skyrocketing in popularity among the sporting set this year. The cap is a direct descendant of the pileus of Roman antiquity. The pileus was a cap much like our own, and was used by Roman citizens for everyday wear. Although it went out of style after the fall of the Roman Empire, it was adopted much later by officers in the Prussian army, and picked up by English gentry during the early part of the nineteenth century.

The cap then came to America where it has experienced varying degrees of success for the past hundred years. Or take another example, the popular soft felt fedora. This hat, according to Parrill, stems from the petasus of ancient Greece. What's a petasus? You've probably seen it as the wide-brimmed hat worn by the God Mercury in ancient Greek statuary.

THE PETASUS went out of style for many hundreds of years, but a more modern type of felt hat was reintroduced by King Charles VII of France when he rode triumphantly into Rouen in 1453. The hat was lined with red velvet and

MANNERS MAKE FRIENDS

When you meet a person who is an expert in his field and you wonder how to carry on a conversation with a man who knows so much about a subject on which you know so little, never hesitate to ask questions. It won't show your ignorance, but your intelligent curiosity.

Ever herd of a quickie? It means a family picnic that can be made ready on the spur of the moment. A well-stocked shelf of canned foods makes it possible.

Here's a quickie menu that's ready to serve just minutes after you set out the picnic cloth. You will need a small fire over which to heat the tamales and chili, but everything else can be chilled and prepared on the spot.

- 1 1 1/2-ounce can chili con carne
- 1 1 1/2-ounce can tamales in chili gravy
- 2 1-lb. cans mixed vegetables
- 1 4-ounce jar mayonnaise
- 1 3-lb. can potato chips
- 1 2-lb. can sliced pickles
- Canned beverages
- Melon

The chili and tamales can be heated by placing the unopened cans in a pan of boiling water for about 15 minutes. If you wish you may open cans first and heat contents together in a saucepan. For a variation on the vegetable salad, try using canned asparagus, green beans or beets separately or combined with mayonnaise or your own favorite salad dressing.

If you would like to dress up the tamale-chili combination, try adding a 1 1/2-ounce can of meat balls to the dish for a really hearty main dish.

Chinese Quickie for four: Chicken chow mein, crisp noodles, soy sauce, spiced peaches or pears, pineapple and coconut, iced tea with lemon, cookies.

There are many variations possible with a Chinese Quickie. The chow mein can contain several different ingredients or just a basic few. We are listing all of them for your pantry shelf though you may want a less elaborate dish:

- 1 2-pound can chicken chow mein
- 1 12-ounce can boned chicken
- 1 2-ounce bottle soy sauce (used to taste)
- 1 5-ounce can water chestnuts
- 2 3-ounce cans sliced mushrooms
- 1 3-ounce can crisp Chinese noodles
- 2 No. 2 cans spiced peaches or pears
- 2 No. 2 cans crushed or sliced pineapple
- 1 4-ounce can shredded coconut
- Tea bags, canned lemon juice and sugar
- Tin of assorted cookies

The chow mein is easily prepared by just heating the first five ingredients together in a saucepan and serving over the noodles. If you prefer, you may substitute canned shrimp for the chicken in the recipe. You may also wish to season the dish with garlic or onion salt if the family enjoys more highly flavored food.

Sleepwear Styles For Fall, Winter

There's lots of fabric and style news in warmwear lingerie for these fall and winter seasons just ahead. Styles range all the way from Bermuda length pajamas, short shorts with matching panties, Italian-inspired sweater tops, three-quarter length sleepcoats, to the revival of the smoked, full-flowing nightdress that grandmother wore — and, of course, the always-popular Gal-briggan ski-sweater-trouser matchmates.

Plushy and soft as the knitted fabrics are, washing is easy and ironing not necessary. In the case of the Italian sweater pajamas, the striped top is a combination of nylon and orlon and the trousers brushed nylon. The Gal-Briggans and Granny Gown are of fine-combed cotton-knit, so soft, and with the well-learned manners of the famous cotton-knit Carter baby clothes. Brushed nylon and brushed rayon are used in gowns, pajamas and sleepcoats.

The colors are in vibrant shades and even the pastels are all toasty shades — more deep than light. Abundant are the bright reds, yellows, navies, blues, pinks. Prints in warmwear sleepwear are more popular than ever. Wild Violets — new to cotton-knit, and roses and nosegays appear in blue and pink. Baby pinchecks, dragon emblems, authentic Norwegian ski sweaters: prints all combine to suit the tastes of the college girl, career girl, or the woman looking for something new under the sun.

Martindale Wins Over Jim Austeri

Last night at the Top of Texas Sportsman Club, Tommy Martindale took two straight falls from Jim Austeri and sent him on his way back to Bronx, New York. Martindale used a series of body slams and fore arm smashes with a body press to take the first fall in 20 minutes and 25 seconds. Martindale also came back and took the second fall in 13.24 with a rolling cradle lock.

The first main event was a battle royal with Frankie Murdoch taking the first fall with a sherry toe hold in 13 minutes and 24 seconds. George Overhuls took the second fall with a full nelson in 8 minutes. Murdoch wound up the match with a Python sleeper in 3:49. When Overhuls was awakened he came off the mat fighting, giving Murdoch and the referee, Gene Detton, a bad time. After Detton was knocked down several times a doctor had to be used to straighten his neck which had slipped in the falls.

You fans who didn't get out last night really missed some good matches.

6th Game Loss Slaggers Bums

By JOHN GRIFFIN
NEW YORK — UP—The sixth game defeat was a staggering disappointment to the Dodgers, and the question was whether they would be able to get up off the floor a second time.

The ball club that dropped the first two games of the Series and then came storming back to win the next three was a mighty glum and silent crew after it had been beaten by southpaw Whitey Ford of the Yankees 5-1, when victory would have meant the first world championship in Dodger history.

Silently, the Brooklyn players filed into their dressing room and went about the business of cleaning up and getting into street clothes quietly.

Their mood was in marked contrast to their gay, almost rollicking frame of mind before the start of the sixth game. Confident that they had found their hitting touch, they joked, bantered with reporters, and indulged in some horseplay during warm-ups. Ford's four hit pitching changed the whole picture.

"There was a big pot on the table, but we were one card short," said Russ Meyer, who found little consolation in congratulations for his shutout relief hurling that stopped the Yankees after their five-run, first-inning explosion against Karl Spooner.

But Meyer also signaled the Dodgers' grim determination to take the grand prize, after all, by winning the seventh game.

"I'll be ready, willing, and darn anxious to go right back in again if I'm wanted," said Meyer. "This one is the one we all want."

But Meyer also signaled the Dodgers' grim determination to take the grand prize, after all, by winning the seventh game.

"I'll be ready, willing, and darn anxious to go right back in again if I'm wanted," said Meyer. "This one is the one we all want."

Lanky Roger Craig, the rookie righthander who gained credit for the Dodgers' fifth-game victory that put them temporarily ahead in the Series, went to Manager

Ford Says Casey Deserves Credit

EDITORS NOTE:
Southpaw Whitey Ford evened the World Series at three games apiece Monday by leading the Yankees to a 5-1 victory while beating the Dodgers for the second time in the classic. Here he tells how he did it.

I had much better control against the Dodgers than the first time I worked against them in the Series opener. My control was so good that I never had to come in with a fat pitch. The best pitch I had going for me was a curve, but I also threw a little sinker now and then.

I was very glad I went all the way. This was my fifth World Series start and the first one I finished. The closest I ever came before was 8 2/3 innings against the Phillies in 1950.

Frankly, I was sorry to see Duke Snider leave the game. I'm serious about that. If we win this Series—and I feel we will—I'd like to think we beat their best. And Snider is one of the best, there's no doubt about that.

I threw him six pitches when he struck out in the first inning and they were all curve balls. I also threw him a curve the first day and he hit the ball in the upper deck about five miles up. But there was a big difference.

The curve ball he hit for a homer in the opener was on the inside; all six curves I threw him Monday were away where it was tough for him to pull them.

As Told to United Press

NEW YORK — UP—They credited me with the victory Monday, but they ought to give credit to Casey Stengel, too.

From the sixth inning on, Casey kept after me to get out of the dugout as soon as possible each inning we took the field so that I could throw extra warm-up pitches, and loosen up more.

He told me to be ready to pitch to the first batter in every inning. Don Zimmer led off the sixth with a walk but in the seventh, eighth and ninth, Casey's advice paid off and I got each of the leadoff hitters.

Quarterbackers Meet Tonight

The Pampa Quarterback Club will meet at 6:30 p.m. in the auditorium of the Sam Houston Elementary school. The time has been changed in order that members may attend the Horace Heidt Show.

Members are requested to attend and learn what progress has been made with the football team and to boost the Green and Golders with their district play opening against Amarillo this week end.

Progress and scouting reports will be made by different coaches and members will have the inside information on the Pampa-Amarillo clash scheduled Friday at Harvester Stadium.

"It's even better than 'sweet-mash' bourbon" : : :

"Even smoother than 'sour-mash' bourbon"

The one and only "mellow-mash" bourbon...
Mellow Yellowstone

For over 100 years, people have been discovering something "new" in old Kentucky... a different bourbon, remarkably free of bite.

It has the best features of sweet and sour-mash bourbon. It's a step better—mellow-mash, the exclusive Yellowstone way of achieving full-bourbon flavor with light body.

People outside Kentucky are discovering this old favorite. Why don't you?

NEW YORK — UP—The New York Yankees, those "old pros" under pressure, were favored to be crowned the new baseball champions of the world Tuesday in the seventh and deciding game of the World Series against the Brooklyn Dodgers.

It looked like the same old script as the Yankees named southpaw Tommy Byrne to pitch them to their 17th world championship while the somewhat disheartened Dodgers hoped left-hander Johnny Podres might bring them their first.

Twice before the Yankees and Dodgers have come down to the seventh game in a World Series and both times the Yankees won. In addition, the Bronx Bombers have beaten the Brooklyn Dodgers in three other World Series.

Taking everything into consideration, the odds-makers quoted the Yankees 7 to 5 favorites to prolong Brooklyn's growing frustration and add to their own already abundant collection of Series blue-ribbons.

Larger Crowd Expected
The Weather Bureau predicted it would be fair and warm with the temperature hovering close to 70. In the face of that forecast, plus the usual human desire to be "in on the kill," the crowd at Tuesday's clincher was expected to exceed Monday's 64,022 total.

Both clubs came up to the "big one" with the prospect of being unable to utilize their key hitters.

Yankee centerfielder Mickey Mantle said the pulled muscle in his right thigh would definitely prevent him from starting, while Dodger centerfielder Duke Snider wasn't sure he would play either due to "something that popped in my left knee."

Of the managers, Casey Stengel appeared the more confident before the game, particularly in the light of Whitey Ford's four hit 5-1 victory over the Dodgers Monday.

"That's the one that put us back in business," beamed the Yankee skipper, moments after Ford's second series victory had evened the classic at three games apiece.

Home Grounds Makes Difference
"We're a confident team now," Stengel added. "We're home. That makes all the difference in the world."

It certainly has made all the difference in this see-saw series as the Yankees won the first two games at Yankee Stadium, the Dodgers took the next three at Ebbets Field and the Yanks won again Monday when the site shifted back to Yankee Stadium for the final two contests.

The 35-year-old Byrne, who, according to Stengel is "so bold out there on the mound that he'll spit in a bear's eye," was shooting for his second Series triumph. He defeated the Dodgers 4-2 with a five-hit effort in the second game of the Series.

Podres also was going after his second Series triumph. He celebrated his 23rd birthday by stopping the Yankees 3-3 on seven hits in the third game of the Series.

Monday's Decided Early
The Yankees settled Monday's game early when they chased Dodger southpaw Karl Spooner in the first inning with a five-run barrage that was capped by Bill Skowron's three-run homer into the right field seats.

Phil Rizzuto led off the inning with a walk and then stole second base when Gilliam, who was playing the bag at the time—he moved to left field when Snider went out—was late covering.

MAKES GOOD IN SWC

Ed Dudley, ex Harvester, now booting the pigskin for Texas A & M rates second in Southwest Conference in averages for punting. He boasts an average of 47.3 yards per kick while Gerald Nesbitt, Arkansas, tops the list with 47.6 average. Dudley, in his second year at A & M, rated high among the freshmen of the conference last year.

Maryland Holds Number One Spot

By UNITED PRESS
Maryland's terrific Terrapins, who should find the 1955 schedule a lot easier now that they've beaten their three toughest opponents, increased their margin atop the United Press college football ratings Tuesday.

Michigan, Oklahoma and Georgia Tech were bunched closely behind Maryland, while Wisconsin was a newcomer among the top 10 teams in this week's ratings of the 35 leading coaches who comprise the United Press rating board.

Coach Jim Tatum's Terrapins, who added Baylor to their vanquished list after beating Missouri and UCLA on the previous week-ends, attracted first-place votes from 18 of the 35 coaches. Michigan was the top choice of six coaches, Oklahoma had five No. 1 ballots, Georgia Tech three, seventh-ranked Texas Christian had one, and ninth-ranked Wisconsin two.

Wisconsin Among Top Ones
Notre Dame, Army, Texas Christian, UCLA, Wisconsin and Southern California filled the last six places among the top 10 in that order.

Wisconsin vaulted into the select group from 14th place last week, replacing Ohio State which dropped from 10th to 17th.

Maryland, seeking to regain the national championship it won in 1953, now appears to have comparatively easy going to an undefeated season. The Terrapins play Wake Forest next Saturday, then follow with North Carolina, Syracuse, Louisiana State, Clemson and George Washington. The only one of these opponents with a ranking this week was Clemson (tied for 22nd).

The Terrapins' total of 292 points was eight less than the previous week's, but their margin over runnerup Michigan increased from 34 to 50 points. Michigan had 242 points; Oklahoma 229 and Georgia Tech 226. The Sooners and Georgia Tech exchanged the spots they held last week.

Army, TCU Gain
Besides Oklahoma and Wisconsin, the teams which made gains among the top 10 were Army and Texas Christian. Army moved up one notch to sixth behind Notre Dame and TCU advanced two places to seventh. UCLA, the 1954 national champion, and Southern California each fell two places to eighth and 10th, respectively.

With points distributed on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis for votes from first to 10th places, Notre Dame had 199 points, Army 154, Texas Christian 125, UCLA 123, Wisconsin 99 and Southern California 98. Duke, advancing five places, headed the second 10 group, with Navy 12th and Miami (Fla.) 13th. Michigan State, Stanford and West Virginia were tied for 14th place; Ohio State was 17th; Purdue 18th, and Arbur and Colorado tied for 19th.

Other teams that received votes this week were Illinois, Clemson, Mississippi, Rice, Pittsburgh and Texas.

Second Ten: Duke 34, Navy 29, Miami (Fla.) 14, Michigan State, Stanford and West Virginia 9 each, Ohio State 7, Purdue 6, Auburn and Colorado 5 each.

Others: Illinois 3, Clemson, Mississippi and Rice 3 each, Pittsburgh and Texas 1 each.

Championship Talk Growing In Green Bay

GREEN BAY, Wis. UP — Two games don't make a season, but championship talk is beginning to be heard on the streets of Green Bay again after a long absence.

The Green Bay Packers, a pre-season bet to do little better than last year's 4-8 mark in the National Football League, have won their first two games and the fans in pro football's northernmost outpost are getting ideas.

A stroll through downtown Green Bay Sunday night after the Packers' surprisingly easy 24-3 upset win over the hated Chicago Bears would have convinced a stranger that the Bays had already won the title. There was much merrymaking in taverns and hotel lobbies, honking horns, dancing in the aisles and other signs of a big celebration.

Of course, the Packers had just trampled the Bears, which in Green Bay is reason enough for a municipal holiday. The Bears and Packers have been playing each other since 1921, and the bitterness of the contests often spills out into the stands. But there was more to it than that.

Green Bay lost four out of six pre-season exhibition games, then opened the regular season Sept. 25 with a 20-17 upset victory over the Detroit Lions, defending champions of the NFL's Western Division.

Now it's a different story. Quarterback Tobin Rote, a six-year veteran with the Packers, got off to the best start of his career, and fullback Howie Ferguson, a boy who never played college ball, has been a consistent ground gainer. Gary Knefelc has filled the vacancy at end.

"We are a balanced team at last," Blackburn said. "We get the yardage when we need it for a first down, and our defensive unit is rushing the opposing backs before they can get set. I am very happy about the way things are shaping up, but we have a long way to go before we can call the set in a success."

Stop To Consider....

What is man's proof of the existence of God?

Something infinite and universal, and yet something earthly and un-mystical and comprehensible.

A force that dwarfs nuclear energy as the father towers over the child.

A force which man has discovered, debated, loved, feared and even abandoned in his sophistry.

A force which is indispensable to human happiness and human progress. And she calls herself FREEDOM.

FREEDOM is a force of awful destruction.

There are many things which cannot survive her. Despots cannot.

Nor can slavery, nor sloth, nor hatred, nor fear, nor Godlessness. FREEDOM destroys all men and all things seeking to diminish her.

FREEDOM destroys any idea which puts the hand of man against her.

FREEDOM is a severe and implacable force which neither loves nor hates, gives nor takes . . . but simply exists.

And simply be existing, FREEDOM destroys, sometimes slowly, oh, very slowly, the false prophets and their handiwork.

FREEDOM is creation.

She creates the wealth of nations.

She creates the great acts of human progress in all things.

She creates light by which man can examine himself and his neighbor and the things around him.

She creates inspiration for man to seek his God and his God's truth!

And in this, FREEDOM is man's avenue of approach to God.

FREEDOM is the enemy of Government.

Invariably, inevitably Government — and the men who are government find FREEDOM standing in the path of their desire; and they are destroyed by FREEDOM.

FREEDOM supports no Government and tolerates few.

FREEDOM demands of Government but one thing: That it try to preserve a free and unhampered market so that every man gets what he produces — no more, no less.

FREEDOM demands of Government what Government cannot endure: Consent of the governed.

FREEDOM is not patronage nor security, nor subsidy, nor conformity.

She is hard and exacting and just.

She is the political religion of all good Americans.

She is the element of greatness in every man, in every society, in every nation.

FREEDOM is the joy of living, and the promise of the future.

And believing these things to be true, we have chosen to call this a

Freedom Newspaper

and in all things undertaken, we will endeavor to do honor to her name.

DANIEL BOONE

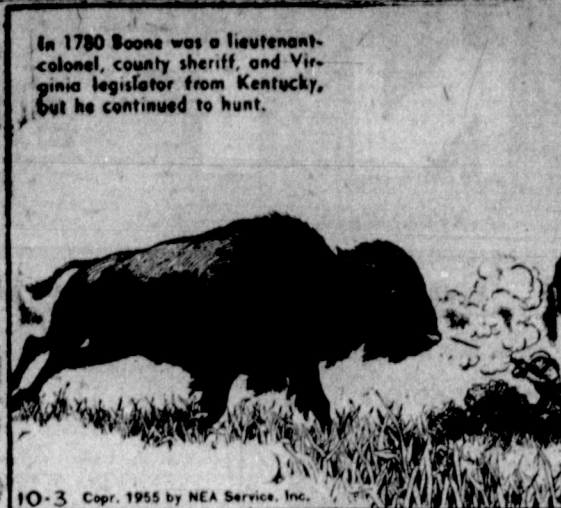

By Russ Winterbotham and Ralph Lane

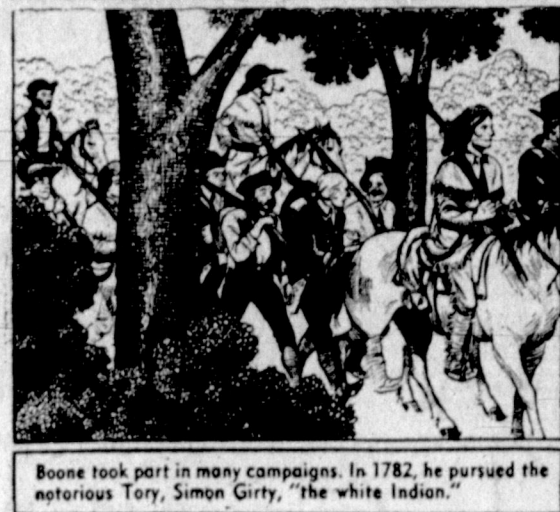

In Virginia, courts held the Transylvania Company's claims to Kentucky land were invalid. It was a blow to Judge Henderson, the promoter.

The dream of a "14th colony" collapsed. The settlers did not own the land they had defended, but life went on as before.

In 1780 Boone was a lieutenant-colonel, county sheriff, and Virginia legislator from Kentucky, but he continued to hunt.

Boone took part in many campaigns. In 1782, he pursued the notorious Tory, Simon Girty, "the white Indian."

In 1782, at Blue Licks, against Boone's advice, the commander led a small force into an ambush. Many Kentuckians were slaughtered, including Dan's son Israel.

This was the last pitched battle of the Revolution. News of peace arrived the following spring.

Trout Tip
CONCORD, N. H.—UP— Don't bother fishing for trout when the water temperature gets over 75 degrees. Conservation officers in this state's lush fishing regions say the trout become dormant in water so warm.

Why THE BIG M makes the big news for 1956

NEW DISTINCTIVE FLO-TONE COLOR STYLING plus pleasing two-tones and solids for every taste! Greatest horsepower in Mercury's history—with a new high in usable power! A brand-new group of ten Safety-Engineered features for your greater safety and security! New improvements in famous Merc-O-Matic Drive and ball-joint front suspension. New wider-than-ever choice of models!

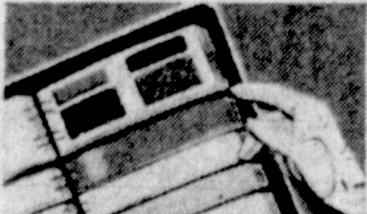

NEW 225- AND 210-HORSEPOWER SAFETY-SURGE V-8 ENGINES—A new high in torque and surging power. 225 hp available in Montclair and Monterey with 9 to 1 compression. 210 hp in Customs. A new 12-volt electrical system provides hotter ignition.

NEW RICHNESS AND LUXURY—THE BIG M is a car that makes you whistle twice—once outside, once inside. The colors, fabrics, and patterns rival the finest custom-built cars for dramatic impact. They are exclusively Mercury's.

DISTINCTIVE NEW GRILLE—From blocks away you can tell it's a Mercury. With the new BIG M crest and newly designed bumper-grille, there is no mistaking this beauty.

NEW FLO-TONE STYLING AND TWO-TONES—Mercury introduces a whole new palette of sparkling colors in new Flo-Tone styling, two-tones and solids.

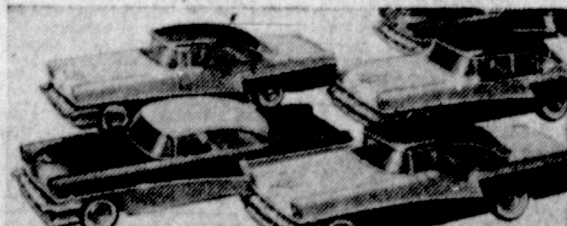

NEW HIGH IN USABLE POWER. Not just higher horsepower, but greater torque (wheel-turning power) for thrilling performance in the everyday driving ranges where you need it most. New SAFETY-SURGE V-8s deliver greater acceleration than ever.

NEW MERCURY SAFETY-ENGINEERED FEATURES—Mercury leads its field with ten new features. A new impact-absorbing safety steering wheel, safety door locks, safety-grip brakes, safety-beam head lamps, and optional safety-seat belts and a padded instrument panel.

FINGER-TIP LUBRICATION is just one option. Wisest choice in the field also includes power steering, brakes, windows, 4-way power seats and Merc-O-Matic Drive.

12 STUNNING MODELS, NEW FLEET OF HARDTOPS. Now Mercury's distinctive low-silhouette styling is available in every price range. New hardtops in every series—only 58 1/2 inches high. See THE BIG M in our showroom—now!
