DOPE TRAFFIC—Enough heroin to produce more than ten million shots was shipped from Milan, Italy, into the United States, narcotics agents of three nations report. The agents, from Switzerland, Turkey and Italy, say the heroin was produced in Turkey (see Newsmap), smuggled to Italy via Switzerland and refined in a Milan laboratory. It was then routed to America. The Milan price of the dope (about 154 pounds) would be about $15,000. But on the U.S. black market it would run into millions, officials said.

Interest Rates Go Up On New Homes

By ROBERT F. COLL
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Aug. 10 (UP)—Government housing officials are looking to higher interest rates—not lower down payments—to prop up the sagging federal housing program.

The FHA recently slashed down payment requirements on government-backed loans almost in half. With the cut went an increase in interest rates—from 5 to 5 1/4 per cent.

Both the administration and Congress have publicly deplored the creeping paralysis that has hit the building industry. New starts are at their lowest figure since 1948.

VISITOR—Dr. Geoffrey F. Fischer, the Archbishop of Canterbury, is photographed as he arrives at Idlewild Airport in New York from London. Dr. Fischer, accused of breaking up the romance of Princess Margaret and divorced Group Captain Peter Townsend, is here to attend the tenth annual meeting of the Central Committee of the World Council of Churches at Yale University.

Smoke Out Money
The smaller down payments are aimed at the lower and middle income groups, according to federal housing officials. The higher interest is designed to smoke out increasingly scarce mortgage money from banks and other lending institutions.

Congressional Democrats who pushed the bill through to give the FHA the power to ease down payments applauded the lower schedules but denounced the interest hike.

Administration housing officials argued the two must go hand-in-glove. As they saw it, the shortage was in lenders—not persons willing to borrow to buy a house.

Builders Like It
The National Association of Home Builders and the National Association of Real Estate Boards both like the move as is. But home builders' President George S. Goodyear said "it is to be hoped that... lenders will accept this rate increase both as an opportunity and a responsibility to provide an adequate flow of mortgage money."

Just how much of a boost the new terms will give housing is largely in the hands of lenders and the buying public.

Whatever the final impact, the move seemed certain to strengthen the government's modest hand in housing.

Are American Military Men In Europe Permanently Now?

EDITORS' NOTE: This is the last in a series by the United Press military affairs writer on European defenses.

By CHARLES CORDRY
United Press Staff Correspondent
PARIS (UP)—The American military man looks very much as if he has carved himself a permanent niche in Europe.

"All told, there are some 355,000 of them.

They help guard the free world's ramparts from England to Turkey, from Germany to the Mediterranean, and spill over into Africa.

With them they brought probably 250,000 family members, including at least 54,000 youngsters who are enrolled in service-run schools and learning at least one new language.

The American tourist, sitting in a cafe on the Champs Elysees watching other American tourists go by, has hardly an inkling of how deeply dug-in are his countrymen who came here to join in Europe's defense.

The tourists spent 427 million dollars on this side of the Atlantic in one recent year. The U.S. Air Force alone pumped out 728 million dollars the same year, including 153 million dollars of airman's personal paychecks. It's customary to consider the tourist dollar indispensable. The military dollar would be even more so.

Incidents Rate Low
Nobody ever tried harder than the American GI to be liked and get along. Military base - local community councils a bound to help out. It seems to work.

The rate of incidents—run-ins with local civilians which reach police attention—is 25 per 1,000 men per month for the Air Force and 78 for the 7th U.S. Army. Traffic accidents are not included in these totals.

The crime rate, according to 7th Army commander Lt. Gen. Bruce C. Clarke, is less than in Washington, D.C.

"What're you doing about it in Washington?" he asks, challengingly.

It cost one billion dollars to create Clarke's army. The annual going rate is $1,200,000,000 of which 180 million is the locally-spent payroll.

The Air Force in Europe is a $4,300,000,000 outfit. Two-fifths of that investment is paid in German occupation marks and not by the U.S. taxpayer.

The Air Force flies 22 types of aircraft at 425 installations in 13 countries over an area five times that of the United States. It employs 2,600 American civilians and $3,000 "native sons." It has 17,600 persons enrolled in university extension courses. Every airman learns one foreign language, at least that's the law.

Self-Supporting Theaters
There are 150 self-supporting theaters for airmen. There are 200 base soccer teams. It isn't always easy, this community relations.

The military has full authority over its own people. But, says Clarke, there has never been a case where Germans objected.

Teenagers? He's had trouble with only 11 in 13 months. They and their parents are home now, in America.

The Navy's situation is simpler. It has no bases over here... just dozens of ports of call. Sailors sometimes are forced to spend a whole week end in such meccas as Palma de Majorca!

SAN DIEGO, Calif.—Mrs. Harold Pickett, on what she plans to do with $65,007.80 she won on a pari-mutuel ticket at the race-track:

"We have plenty of places to spend whatever we have left after we pay the taxes."

LONDON—Lord Altrincham, who insulted Queen Elizabeth II, on a duel challenge delivered by Italian monarchist Renato Marmiroli:

"I have never done any duelling and I don't what weapons he would suggest."

Of the 355,000 Americans, sailors comprise just 25,000. The U.S. Army in Europe has 250,000, the Air Force 80,000. (End series)

Last Tourists Travel The Farthest

Fittingly enough the last "tourists of the day" traveled the farthest.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mounce, "arrested" yesterday to complete the Pampa Chamber of Commerce tourist program. The Mounce whose home is in Hamakapoka Maui, Hawaii, have been on a trip around the world and are just returning.

They left Honolulu Feb. 2 and went to the Orient. Going around the globe they recently arrived in New York where they brought a car and continued their journey toward the West Coast and Hawaii.

Hosts for the couple, who were arrested by the police yesterday afternoon, were Mr. and Mrs. Everett Carmon and Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Pursley.

Mounce is principal of the high school in Hamakapoka Maui, where the couple have lived for the past 25 years. They are originally from Iowa.

Last night was the first time Mr. and Mrs. Mounce had ever seen a rodeo when they were guests at the Top o' Texas Rodeo.

The couple stayed at Murphys No. 2 Motel last night and had their car serviced at Bettis Texaco station. Supper was furnished courtesy of the Courthouse Cafe, and flowers courtesy Redman Dahlia Garden.

roled briefly to testify before the committee here. Hoffa was in Chicago but is expected here soon to appear before the committee.

This was the first hint that the government is resorting to the time-honored device of alleged income tax evasion in either the Hoffa or Dio cases. That was the only way the notorious Chicago gangster, Al Capone, and other mobsters have been brought to heel.

Meantime, Senate investigators completed plans to air Hoffa's career in two separate committee appearances before the dapper little Teamster leader seeks the presidency of his union in late September.

Hoffa announced his candidacy for the job right after he was acquitted on government charges that he had tried to bribe his way into the files of the racketeers' committee. More than enough Teamster delegates are now said to support him to assure his election to replace Dave Beck, who announced he would not seek reelection. Beck also came under the committee's fire.

Chairman John L. McClellan (D-Ark.) said today the committee does not plan to "conclude with Mr. Hoffa" when it calls him in its current hearings. This will be late in the coming week or will be late in the coming week or

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer A. Jenson of Omaha, Neb., were the lucky couple arrested Friday as tourists for the day. The Jensons, on a months vacation, are traveling to San Francisco, Calif., where they plan to visit her brother.

The Jensons have been married 30 years and this is the first time anything of this sort has happened. "Everything is so nice," Jenson said. "You can bet I'm going to tell this story all the way to California and back."

As for Texas itself, Jenson said he was most impressed by the excellent highways, while Mrs. Jenson was amazed at the size of the "huge" grasshoppers.

The couple plans to travel back to South Dakota through the Black Hills, where they own property, before returning to Omaha. Jenson is employed by the Omaha Transit Company.

will be launched in September through the press, radio, television, pamphlets, posters and community meetings.

The disease is no more deadly than the common variety of influenza. In about 20,000 recorded cases in the United States, only three persons have died.

But it sweeps through a community like a brush fire, laying up hundreds or thousands for about a week, straining medical facilities and producing mass absenteeism from work.

Victims run a fever of 102 to 104 degrees, suffer from sore throat, coughs and muscle aches. The fever lasts three to five days and the victim is weak for several more.

The United States, instead of jumping out in front, is pursuing a behind-the-scenes role. Secret, informal talks on possible Middle East moves are under way with Canada, Norway, Yugoslavia and other countries. The center of activity has been at the United Nations in New York.

Initial Phase Underway

Preliminary diplomatic spadework with nations which have interests and troops in the Middle East may be completed by mid-September when the United Nations General Assembly holds its regular session in New York.

By that time, diplomats hope to have definite proposals which would have wide international support. Direct talks then would begin with Israel and some of the Arab states on the refugee dispute.

Senators from both parties predicted the House will come around to a compromise close to the Senate's bill—a measure limited to protection of Negro voting rights through federal government-sought court injunctions, plus investigation of other rights violations.

Johnson Blasts GOP Chairman

Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (Tex.) said in a Senate speech that differences over the bill could easily be worked out between the two houses if "political partisans will stop thinking about votes and turn instead to the question of the right to vote."

Johnson assailed Republican National Chairman Meade Alcorn for "laying down the line" to GOP congressmen, calling on them to hold out for a bill closer to the administration's proposals.

"The oldest trick in the partisan book is to scream that there isn't enough progress and then demand no progress at all," the Democratic leader said. "This time I do not think it will work."

Senate GOP Leader William F. Knowland (Calif.) said he thought House-Senate differences could be worked out quickly if the bill went to a joint conference committee.

Rodeo Clown's Work Is Not All For Fun

By FRED M. PARKER
Pampa News Staff Writer

Being a rodeo clown is a serious business. This was learned from an interview with "Jiggs" Young of Ringold and P. L. "Willie" Williams of Kermit.

This is the second year that these two young men have worked the Top O' Texas Rodeo and it is the third season they have been clowning.

"Willie" reported that the business of being a clown started on July 4, 1955, at a rodeo in Oklahoma when he had a broken arm and was broke. He asked the producer of the rodeo for a job and was given the clown's part. Another cowpoke, "Jiggs" was, as he put it, "starved out and thinking of becoming a clown," so the two fellows got together and have been a team ever since.

The clowns have two main jobs, they stated, and both are necessary in the rodeo. One of the jobs is to keep the bulls off of the fallen cowboys, which is not so easy at times, and the other job is to keep the audience's attention when things are moving slow or an accident happens.

Both of the clowns stated that they had received minor injuries as the result of fighting bulls. "Willie" said that he had received several "unwanted" rides on the heads of various bulls.

"We got hooked a lot," they stated. "It is hard to keep the bulls off the cowboys without getting hit by a bull sometimes."

By working as a team they have found that the chances of getting hurt are lessened because one clown can keep the animals off the other clown.

They reported that while most clowns work solo, they have found that by working as a team they have better acts and do a better job during the performances.

When he is not following rodeos, "Willie" is a student at Texas Tech where he is studying animal husbandry. "Jiggs" is a cowpoke that "must work for a living." Both of the boys reported that their ambition was to work a professional rodeo.

They have worked rodeos in Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana and have spent most of this season with Goat Mayo, producer of the local rodeo.

The clowns are hired by the producer and are responsible to him for aiding the cowboys.

"It takes cooperation between the announcer and the clowns to make the show," according to "Willie." He said that if the announcer doesn't work with the clowns the show is a dud.

The acts are figured out by "Willie," according to what "Jiggs" said. "Willie" reported that the acts are variations on acts of other clowns and acts of various other comedians.

Proof that the acts go over with the audience was obtained Friday in hearing people talk about the "Silly Symphony" act put on at Thursday night's performance. According to these "coffee break chats" the people thought the boys were actually playing the music until the sound man started acting up with the record and the music played when the boys were taking bows.

Having a new act for each performance, so that the show won't be old to the audience, takes a lot of time. The acts are carefully worked up and if they don't go over with the audience the clowns junk it and work up a new one.

The boys, both of them single and single and eligible, said that the crowds at Pampa are the most receptive of any town they have worked. "It is a pleasure to come to Pampa and the Top O' Texas Rodeo," they both stated in conclusion.

STAFF NOTES

JOEL R. COMBS, managing editor

Say, this has been a big week in Pampa, hasn't it? If you didn't see everybody you ever knew at the parade, then you had another chance at the rodeo, rodeo dance and beard-judging contest and street dance. This place has been packed. To my memory, this has been the "biggest" week, with the most activities, of any previous rodeo week. Everybody has been having a big time.

Looks like the Lake McClellan project still has a little steam in it after all, what with the petitions going around calling for a bond election.

Prediction: If and when such an election is called... it won't pass.

There was a little uproar stirred up when the County Commissioners Court split, 2-2, when voting on whether or not to pay half the cost of an engineer's survey of the damage at the lake.

Behind-the-scenes comment indicated that Oscar Tibbets and Arlie Carpenter, the two who voted against the survey, might have had good reason.

Observers point out that rains had left roads and bridges in the two commissioners' precincts in bad shape. The people living in their precincts, precincts one and three, felt if any money were to be spent it should go to rebuild the bridges and repair the roads. Judge Parker cast the tie-breaking vote — in favor.

HERE AND THERE: D. E. Holt flies an airplane with the same easy-going manner he slaps a golf ball, like it's all just for fun.

H. M. "Ham" Luna is an avid golfer, he's tournament director of the upcoming Top of Texas Golf Tournament and looking forward to it... Hart Warren, PCC golf pro, is getting "livelier" each day as the tournament draws nearer... H. H. "Shorty" Hells-kell, water well drilling contractor, is another of Pampa's frequenters of the fairways and greens... George Thompson, Joe Whitten, Dr. E. S. Williams, Dr. Joe Donaldson, and a jillion others.

Skellytown commenting on the feature story I wrote two weeks ago on Lake City. Colo. Mr. and Mrs. Stephenson sent a card picturing their beautiful T-Mountain Resort, and said that they enjoyed the write-up about "their part of vacation land." They also stated that the Neal Edwards from White Deer have a boat dock there.

Leon is a rather conservative person. He talks in a low voice with a straight and steady gaze. He doesn't have to strain to think of something to say. His conversation comes easy.

He gives much credit to the boys who play with him for his success. It was really a pleasure to talk with him. If you didn't make it out to the National Guard Armory, you missed a good time.

BILL NEAL, staff writer

I feel left out this week! If old Stonewall got there first with the mostest then I arrived lastest with the leastest this week.

Just as I was about to sit down at my Horace Greely special typewriter (I say that because Horace brought this same metal monster when he first came west) and wax eloquent all about how colorful the rodeo was and how said what when they got thrown 13 feet by Old Blackbottom, and how Leon McCulliffe's Cimarron boys like to play progressive jazz after each western dance — well just as I was about to do that the editor said, "Neal, write me something not about the rodeo — everybody else has written about it and I want just one staff note.

Incidentally, what 'did happen this week other than the rodeo? Let's see, I could write about the weather, but everybody knows it's hot. And there's nothing at all unusual about it. Just normal August heat. No big rains, snows, sandstorms, hail, etc. In fact it's about the most usual weather I've ever seen — disgustingly normal for column writers.

Then that leaves a crusade of some sort. But that's too strenuous. Besides it has been my observation that crusades rarely accomplish much except hard feelings and bloody noses. So not wanting a bloody nose and being too lazy besides, I'll dispense with that idea of changing the world.

I could comment on Johnson's job on the "rights" bill or how near the Commies are, but all the syndicated boys have thoroughly expounded upon that. Or could say how I'd like to go fishing or take a trip, but that goes without saying.

DORIS WILSON, women's editor
MEMO TO MANAGING EDITOR: These staff notes this week are the most difficult to get started with... for all I can think of is my week's vacation. A week's vacation with no deadlines, nor head-lines... am sure I will miss it all to a certain extent... but only to a certain extent. Promise to be back Monday week, bright-eyed and refreshed.
MEMO TO GWEN: Thanks a lot for taking over the desk, while I'm away. And especially thanks for cancelling some Saturday afternoon plans, so I could leave earlier.
MEMO TO FRED, violence editor: Try not to be so violent this next week. Confucius once said something like "He who speaks softly is heard the longest..." he who speaks the loudest is seldom heard... something like that.
MEMO TO BILL: Would you like to be the Mainly About People Editor, while I am away... the job is yours, if you want it.
MEMO TO CHARLES: Imagine your beard will be gone, when I return. You ARE going to shave it off, aren't you?
MEMO TO JESSIE, MYRT, LOU, SHIRLEY, PEGGY, AND CAROLE: Bye, see you next week.

FRED M. PARKER, staff writer
ITS OVER!
Yep, that's right, the Top of Texas Rodeo is over for another year and each year it gets bigger and better.
Over 300 of the top amateur cowpokes of the Panhandle and surrounding states took part in the rodeo that finished during the early hours this morning.
Some of the fastest times in the history of the rodeo were made on what apparently was the toughest "critter" that Goat Mayo, producer, could scare up, anything at any time. After you to be out in the arena during the show I can testify that the animals were wild brutes that could do anything at any time. Avter you figured that the animal was heading one way and started to take a picture, there was the "critter" barreling down at the camera lens.
Several times it took some fast foot work in order to not be in the spot that the animal decided it wanted.
With this "problem" over with for another year it seems that the fall sports season will be next.
Behind the scenes at the rodeo is as interesting as the actual performance.
The activities of the cowpokes not engaged in contests at the time are varied. Some of the contestants study the animals that they are to ride, some stretch out and watch the other cowpokes, some write letters, some visit with contestants that were in other rodeos and some sleep.
What this writer cannot figure out is how the cowboys could sleep next to all of that noise. Must have been plenty tired.

GOP Eyes Governor Post In New Jersey

EDITOR'S NOTE: Lyle C. Wilson is on vacation during August. In his absence special dispatches will be written by other members of the U.P. Washington Staff. Today's is by Raymond Lahr, chief of the Senate staff and political writer.

By RAYMOND LAHR
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—The administration and the national Republican organization are showing extraordinary interest in winning the New Jersey governorship next November.

A victory would return to the Republican control one of the states in pivotal states where Democrats now hold the governorship. State houses provide the patronage sinecures for state party organizations.

Coincidentally GOP victory in New Jersey would kill off one of the potential candidates for the 1960 Democratic presidential nomination. It would mean the defeat of Gov. Robert B. Meyner, the incumbent Democrat seeking re-election. Malcolm S. Forbes, state senator and Republican nominee for the governorship, visited Washington Thursday to see Vice President Richard M. Nixon, members of the New Jersey congressional delegation and Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams. He saw President Eisenhower during another recent visit.

Who Offers Help
Nixon offered to make a campaign appearance. Forbes said he would be invited. Eisenhower has offered to give any help he could. In bringing the national party into the picture, however, the New Jersey GOP must guard against fanning resentment over outside intrusion in a state campaign. But New Jersey voters will no doubt be reminded that the state election will be watched nationally as a barometer foretelling future political weather.

The adjoining states of Pennsylvania and New York, both politically important ones with Democratic governors, will hold state elections next year. So will the weathervane state of Connecticut, and more heavily populated Massachusetts and Michigan, which also have Democratic governors.

President Eisenhower carried all those states in 1956 even though the rival party controlled the statehouses. But his name will not be on the ballot in 1960.

Look For Trends
Among the so-called pivotal states whose electoral votes are most prized in presidential elections only California, Illinois and Ohio now have Republican governors.

The New Jersey election will be one of three 1957 state contests which will be carefully watched as the favorite. Democrats will be Aug. 27 when normally Republican Wisconsin elects a successor to the late Republican Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy.

Even if the Republican nominee for signs of a trend. The first will analyze the Wisconsin results to see if there is still evidence of farm discontent with the administration in the Middle West.

A governor also will be elected in November in normally Democratic Virginia where the GOP is more optimistic than usual. Their nominee is Ted Dalton. He ran for the same office four years ago and polled 45 per cent of the vote, the best showing by a Republican candidate since the Reconstruction years. Only one special election has been held this year—in New Mexico—to fill a vacancy in the House of Representatives. A Democrat was elected to a seat formerly held by a Democrat.

HEBREW UNIVERSITY OPENS
JERUSALEM, Israel (UP)—The Hebrew University of Jerusalem Wednesday formally opened the doors of its new synagogue built with funds from Americans.

GOLDEN HOT DOG
LONDON (UP)—Queen Elizabeth II, who last month gave visiting American lawyers a feast of hot dogs at a Buckingham Palace garden party, added a golden hot dog to her collection of gifts from admirers today. The valuable but inedible gift was sent by a Chicago meat packing company with a note that it was "in grateful acknowledgment of her majesty's gracious participation in our national hot dog week."

DISPOSING OF DISPOSABLES—This teepee-type incinerator, probably the largest of its kind in the world, gobbles up 30 to 35 hoppers of disposables per shift at Du Pont's Chambers Works in Penns Grove, N.J. One of the most significant and interesting developments in the search by American industry for ways to reduce costs is the growing use of disposables—comparatively inexpensive materials which can be used once and discarded. Disposing of these disposables presents another problem. At the Chambers Works, six specially equipped trucks, like the one at the incinerator opening, gather up the hoppers and deliver them to the incinerator.

Debates On Foreign Languages Taught In Schools Gathers Steam

By PATRICIA WIGGINS
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP) — Should Johnny learn how to say "Bonjour" and "Buenos dias" in the fourth grade?

Debate on the question is gathering steam today as more and more Johnnies in the public schools are learning to jabber in foreign tongues when barely out of toddler clothes.

Proponents of foreign language instruction from kindergarten on up argue that today's shrinking world demands that Americans climb up from their low standing on the world linguistic ladder.

They claim early childhood is the easiest and best time to begin; that children themselves are enthusiastically receptive and that it broadens horizons for countless pursuits in later schooling and adult life.

Some Criticize Program
Critics feel grade school languages are of doubtful value and a needless luxury in already pinched school budgets, an imposition on the child and a sacrifice of other more important curricula.

Both sides agree on one point: The movement to foreign languages in the elementary schools has had a phenomenal growth in the past five years.

A survey of the modern language association published by the U.S. office of Education showed that "at least" 271,617 grade school youngsters, kindergarten through grade six, were getting foreign language instruction in 1955.

That's small compared to the 26 million enrolled in the public grade schools. But the figure is more than one-third of the foreign language enrollment in high schools and fast approaching the number taking foreign languages in college.

The 1955 grade school instruction was going on in 1,977 schools in 357 towns in 45 states and represented a whopping 300 per cent increase in three years.

Both sides also agree on another point. That is that the most critical problem in the grade school language picture is the shortage of competent teachers — teachers fluent in languages with special talent for teaching the new hearing-speaking approach.

The demand for competent teachers has sparked a flourishing of teacher workshops, guides, manuals, tapes, records and audio-visual aids designed to help fill the gap. The District of Columbia is one area that has tried closed-circuit TV teaching of foreign languages.

South has a book two no-trump opening. North's three-club response is Stayman and the final contract of six spades is normal. So normal in fact that almost every pair in an Indianapolis duplicate reached that contract, but only young Chuck Stimling managed to make it.

The king of clubs was opened. Everyone took the ace, drew trumps, ruffed out diamonds and clubs, led a low heart from dummy and ducked. This play failed in all instances because East held the queen-jack-ten-nine of hearts.

That is everyone but Chuck. He worked out a play to guard against that exact combination.

Chuck's play started with the same two rounds of trumps. He continued by playing three rounds of diamonds and trumping his nine of clubs in dummy. Now Chuck laid down his ace and king of hearts and got the same bad break that everyone else did.

However, this bad break did not hurt him. He led the jack of clubs and discarded one of dummy's hearts. West was in with the queen and had to lead a club or a diamond; it made no difference. Chuck discarded dummy's last heart and ruffed in his own hand.

This play allowed him to get rid of two heart losers in return for one club loser and gave him his contract and a top score.

Why Area Boy Scouts Rank High In Camping

By GWEN T. STARR
Pampa News Staff Writer

It is not by chance that the Boy Scouts of America, of which Pampa is the headquarters, is the number one council in the region and third in the nation in camping. Lots of planning and hard work by both the boys and the leaders make it possible.

"We have an executive committee made up of representatives of each section of the council which meets off and on all year in preparation for the summer camps," Fore Harris, scout executive, stated.

Harris said that at the close of each camping season, recommendations are accepted by the committee in the hope of improving the camps the next year.

"We are always looking for suggestions," Harris, who is to teach camping at this year's national Boy Scout executive training school, said. "We feel camping is a very valuable experience for the boys."

Judging from the past record of Boy Scouts' alertness and helpfulness in the event of emergency, most people are inclined to agree with him.

"We have had Boy Scouts in our own immediate area, who have saved lives as a result of their training," Harris said. "Viet Howard, non-edible plants; the study of animals, how to catch them with native materials, such as building traps, making fish hooks, etc.; the study of birds and insects; how to build lean-tos, bridges and towers out of native material; different types of recreation and games; knot tying and uses of ropes and splices; safety with fire arms, range practice, etc.; archery for older boys; and cooking in the outdoors.

"All this is based around how to take care of oneself and appreciate the out-of-doors," Harris said.

Two of the things the boys enjoy is making plaster casts of animal tracks, which helps them identify them, and hunting animals with a camera, which teaches them tracking and stalking.

"It's much harder to hunt with a camera," Harris said. "To take a picture of the animal, the boys must get in a much closer range than it takes to hunt with a gun."

Transporting Animals By Plane Presents Problems

By DOC QUIGG
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Aug. 9 (UP)—Well, there he was, high above the ocean driving an airplane, says Capt. Wallace Tallos, and when he opened the door from the flight deck and looked down the length of the plane there were 38 pairs of soft brown eyes gazing intently at him.

The eyes belonged to a herd of cattle. They were the captain's only passengers, faced forward in 35 special pens built for them.

Even though he is used to being aloft with beasts, birds, fish and reptiles, the eyes gave him something of a start, the captain says. He specializes in carrying creatures for Pan American World Airways.

You probably hadn't given the matter much thought, but the fact is that there are constantly whizzing through the air, continent to continent, such things as wildcats, horses, gorillas, kangaroos, sea lions, wild boars, toucans, elephants, panthers, horses, penguins, porcupines, skunks, hippopotamuses, and kindred critters.

Panthers Most Dangerous
James R. Todd, one of the nine trained animal stewards of KLM Royal Dutch Airlines, says that in his six years of flying animals the most dangerous thing he has found is a black panther. They flick their claws through the cage bars.

The Dutch stewards make a practice of talking, during flight, to monkeys and thoroughbred horses to keep them happy. (Please don't ask me what they say; they talk in Dutch.)

Todd says that elephants "get very upset" if they don't have enough feed in flight. They have a sweet tooth, love sugar cane. Hauling them runs into logistics problems. For instance, in flying two small elephants from Siam to New York you've got to figure on starting out with about a ton of elephant food in your cargo.

KLM claims to have invented the chicken-companion idea for elephants. It carries a chicken as a flight pal for each elephant. As Todd says: "A chicken roosting on the head keeps the elephant from jumping around."

Todd was along once when an elephant got loose from its leg chain inside a plane. This called for a bit of quick thinking: "The cat was not pressurized, so we flat went up to a high altitude

He's Elvis' Rock-and-Roll Mailman

By JIM WHITE
NEA Special Correspondent

Memphis, Tenn. (NEA)—Jimmie Burns is a much envied man. For Burns, 63, is a postman—but not just an ordinary postman. He's Elvis Presley's postman. And as such, he is one of the few outsiders entitled to admittance behind the closely guarded walls at Graceland, Elvis' Whitehaven Mansion.

Each morning at about 10:30 when Burns' red, white and blue truck pulls up to the gate, teenagers—they're always there—clamor up to his truck, chatter. Tell Elvis hello for us... Can Telj Elvis helo for us... Can we ride up with you?"

"I always kid with them: 'Give me a quarter and I'll let you ride,' Burns chuckles. 'But of course I couldn't let anyone ride in the truck.'

A few minutes later, after dropping the rock-and-roller's mail, Burns is met at the gate once more with eager faces exclaiming, "Did you see him?... Was he swimming?... He is home, isn't he?"

Elvis has a mailbox outside the gate—covered with scrawlings of admirers—but he gets so much mail that Burns gives him back-door service.

"His father usually meets me in the rear to get the mail," said Burns, "and often he invites me in for a minute—Mr. and Mrs. Presley are wonderful people."

How much mail does Elvis get? "At least 500 or 600 letters a day," said Burns, "and usually two or three packages, anyway." That's only part of Elvis' mail, however, the bulk of it goes to Hollywood.

What kind of mail does he receive? "Most of it is from teen-age girls, judging from the lipstick smears and affectionate notes scribbled on the envelopes," laughed Burns, "but his father told me that Elvis gets many songs from amateur composers who want El-

Cancer Expert Says Chemical Dangerous

WASHINGTON (UP)—A government cancer expert believes some of the suspected cancer-producing chemicals in food eventually may be found to produce cancer in man.

The expert, Dr. W. C. Hueper of the National Cancer Institute, recommended that Congress bar from food even small doses of chemical additives which are known to be capable of producing cancer in animals.

Hueper joined in a panel discussion before a House Commerce subcommittee. Other panelists opposed his recommendation as impractical. But the American Cancer Society sided with Hueper in a letter to the subcommittee.

The group is considering legislation to provide tighter safeguards over the testing of new chemicals added to the nation's food supply.

Dr. William J. Darby of Vanderbilt University's school of medicine urged the subcommittee to beware of subjecting every substance in food to tests to determine whether it can induce cancer in animals. He said the tests would take so long as to be "impossible."

Dr. Morton C. Levin, director of New York State's Commission on Chronic Illness, noted that some animals are much more susceptible to cancer than man.

Dr. John H. Foulger, director of medical research for the DuPont Chemical Co., said he knows of no chemical food additive that has been suspected of producing cancer in man.

Hueper said man's exposure to carcinogenic chemicals—in food, air, water, and soil—is lifelong and any cancer-inducing changes caused by them are irreversible. Therefore, he said, no chemicals containing them should be added to the food supply.

He cited estrogens—a female hormone-like substance—as a "potential carcinogen."

Johnson Says Rademacher Is No Pushover For Patterson

By RAYMOND JOHNSON
Sports Editor,
Nashville Tennessean
Written for the United Press
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UP) — If one believes everything he reads, legal murder will be committed in Seattle when Floyd Patterson, the heavyweight king, fights Pete Rademacher, ruler of the amateurs, on Aug. 2.

Various and sundry folks have popped off against this most unusual heavyweight fight. It appears that some may have had ulterior motives for their objections. Others saw a good opportunity to get quoted across the nation. And others pounced out columns about the injustice of an amateur fighting a professional because they were ignorant of all the facts.

Kid Mathews was stopped by Rocky Marciano in two rounds in New York on July 28, 1952. This same Pete Rademacher dropped this same Kid Mathews in less than two minutes some 30 days before he crawled into the ring to face Marciano.

Happened in Seattle
You cannot verify this by looking into the record book. But you can with a telephone call to Seattle. It happened out there, George Chermere, Pete's trainer, was Mathews' instructor at the time. Jack Hurley, who is promoting the Rademacher-Patterson fight, was Mathews' manager.

Hurley ran short of sparring partners for Mathews one day and Rademacher, who had been training under Chermere for three summers, volunteered to work with Mathews. They wore 16-ounce gloves.

"I gave Pete only a simple piece of strategy and sent him in to the ring," Chermere told me in revealing that Rademacher had floored Mathews. "Pete feinted with his right, stepped back, then spattered Mathews' nose. A moment later he floored Mathews. Hurley hollered like a wounded bull and stopped it after two minutes.

"Don't worry about Pete not being able to take care of himself. You don't find many athletes with better bodies than he has and I know he's in condition."

Streamlined Body
Rademacher's father was a German and his mother a Finn, which probably accounts for his height and his well-proportioned body. He looks a lot like a welter from his hips down.

If this fight isn't a better match than the Jackson-Patterson or Bob Baker-Eddie Machen affair of two weeks ago, everyone who has visited the Rademacher camp is going to be badly fooled.

Rademacher went to the 1955 Golden Gloves meet in Chicago with me as an honorary coach. He said then he thought he could beat anybody up there and go to the Olympics, which he did.

He first told me on Feb. 27 he was going to fight Patterson. I thought he was kidding but wrote a couple of paragraphs on it anyway. Now I am convinced he has a chance.

Baylor Is Favored In Southwest

DALLAS (UP)—A poll of sports writers Friday picked Coach Sam Boyd's Baylor Bears as the favorite for the 1957 Southwest Conference football crown.

Baylor has not won a conference title in the past 33 years. The Bears polled 14 out of the 21 first place votes of the writers covering the Texas High School Coaches Association school. The writers interviewed all seven conference coaches before the poll was taken.

Texas A&M, defending conference, was a strong second choice, while Rice and Arkansas wound up third and fourth respectively. Texas Christian, Texas, and Southern Methodist followed suit in that order.

Feller Wallet Disqualifies Him From Rapping Game

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor
CLEVELAND (NEA) — Now that he is out of it, Bob Feller is getting more publicity blasting organized baseball than he did while striking-out 348 batters in a single season.

While Feller most certainly has a point here and there, present and past players agree that the former fireballer is the last man in the world who should find fault with baseball owners and the game which took him off an Iowa farm and made him rich.

Feller was paid $80,000 a season for years, a princely salary as a magnificent hanger-on. When he could no longer get anybody out, the one-time Bullet Bob was offered a position in the Cleveland front office. He gets the full benefit of a fantastic pension plan from which the noble athletes cruelly eliminated all the great men who played so well prior to 1947.

The fortune and fame Feller earned as a pitcher made it possible for him to become president of a highly successful insurance agency, set up his current nationwide tour for a television set manufacturer. He has a sumptuous home at Gates Mills, hard by Cleveland, had similar establishments in Texas and Florida. There is a car in every garage and he files his own plane.

When Feller takes a poke at the reserve clause, it would seem that he recalls what he missed in a financial way when Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis did not make him a free agent shortly after he broke in with the Indians at 17.

General Manager Cy Slapnicka resorted to subterfuge in signing the precocious youngster, but Commissioner Landis feared that the wild bidding would have a bad effect on the lid. The Yankees, Red Sox and the Tigers opened at $250,000.

Feller pops off as president of a rather vague Players' Association. Dizzy Dean never came close to collecting Feller's kind of money in baseball, but hardly feels that the bird hands are in involuntary servitude.

"Feller is least qualified to squawk," says Orlin Ditz, now a baseball telecaster. "I don't want him to talk for me. While I'd like to see a man like Judge Landis as commissioner, no one can rap baseball to me. It took me out of the cotton fields."

Gene Woodling, well on the way to his finest year with the Indians at 35, laughs at Feller's talk about big league performers being pawns and peons. Woodling is president of a storm window company in Akron, recently purchasone hour time limit. Iron Mike has been the man to beat in recent matches, and teamed with Pico and Hawk should provide a rowdy team. The opposition should fare well also with Tokyo Joe and Dizzy Davis, well known to local fans, along with the antics of Bolo. Davis dropped a tussle Thursday night in Amarillo to Mike that ended in anything but good will, so these two can be expected to lead the battle for the teams. In the controversial tussle Davis wore an arm support that annoyed Mike to the extent that he defegged himself with brass knuckles.

All-Stars Lose To Giants

By ED SAINSBURY
United Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO (UP)—An "old man's snow-how" pulled the New York Giants to a 22-12 win over the 1957 College All-Stars in the 24th battle between the best of the pros and the standout collegians.

Chuckie Conery, a 33-year-old Mississippian with nine years of experience with the National Football League champions, wasted no motions in spurring his team from behind to win.

His chief assistants were Ben Agajanian, 38, a place-kicking specialist; and Ken MacAfee, 28, an end. MacAfee, who has averaged one touchdown for every four passes caught in pro competition, hauled in only three of Conery's efforts Friday night, but two of them went for touchdowns in gains of 38 and 10 yards.

When Conery's passing attack slipped, Agajanian produced. In addition to making the conversions after each touchdown, he booted field goals of 33 and 45 yards, the latter only one yard short of the All-Star Game record.

In all, Conery hit on eight of 17 passes for 124 yards, most of the Giants passing gains of 180 yards.

This attacking group, though, had to share honors with the defense. In the second half the All-stars gained only seven yards rushing and 62 passing and but for Paige Cochrens 24-yard field goal, they would have been held scoreless.

Cochrens, from Mississippi also, kicked a 12-yard field goal earlier, while another southerner, Billy Ray Barnes of Wake Forest, ran two yards for the All-Star touchdown.

Barnes was the running threat of the collegians, picking up 60 yards in 11 carries with one rush of 29 yards, to lead all ball carriers in average gains.

It was the 17th win for the pro team in the annual game which opens the pro exhibition season. The collegians have won seven with two ties.

Friday night's crowd of 75,000 got almost as much exercise as the players as rain fell for 30 minutes before the kickoff, delaying the game for 10 minutes, and on four separate occasions later. Each time the stands virtually emptied.

Coach Curly Lambeau of the All-Stars, who suffered his third defeat in the game and his second as the collegiate coach, blamed the rain for the loss. "It ruined our offense," he said, "because we were geared for split-second timing and we couldn't do it on the wet field."

The 'Other Grandparents' In Maj. Eisenhower's Life

By DAWSON OPPENHEIMER
United Press Staff Correspondent
GAINESVILLE, Fla., (UP) — Four of the world's most celebrated grandchildren slip in and out of this college town once or twice a year for visits with a middle-aged couple who never make the headlines—the "other grandparents."

Col. and Mrs. Percy Thompson, whose daughter Barbara is the wife of Maj. John Eisenhower, center their life here in their large (four bed-rooms and four baths) home, the University of Florida Law School and the university's symphony orchestra.

This is, of course, when David, Ann, Susan and tiny Mary Jean are not paying "grandma and grandpa" a visit. The last time the young grandchildren of President and Mrs. Eisenhower were here coincided with the President's trip to nearby Jacksonville and Mayport, from where he boarded an aircraft carrier for a one-day cruise in June.

At that time, Barbara moved the family down in two "shifts," Mrs. Thompson explained. She said Barbara first brought Susan and Mary Jean down and "left them with us so she could return to Washington to pick up the other two children and John. They all spent a few days with us before John left to take the cruise with his father."

Colonel Thompson at 58 is in his final year at the University of Florida Law School.

"I can't honestly say whether he will want to practice law when he's through," Mrs. Thompson said, "but he's interested in law—that's why he's taking the course."

She said he's "still much too young and active to stay retired."

Thompson retired from active duty in 1955 after 30 years Army service which was interrupted after World War I long enough to get his college education and an ROTC commission at Purdue.

The Thompsons bought their Gainesville home during World War II, then Mrs. Thompson "returned to live here every time my husband went overseas or to war." While he is studying law, Mrs. Thompson keeps busy "keeping house, cooking, sewing and playing the violin in the university symphony orchestra."

She said that most of the colonel's nights are spent "burning the midnight oil" over his law books. While he's hard at his studies, Mrs. Thompson spends at least two evenings a week at orchestra practice.

Federal Courts Would Break South's Integration Barricades

By AL KUETTNER
United Press Staff Correspondent
ATLANTA (UP) — The federal courts appear bent on breaking down the South's two strongest barricades against racial integration in its public schools — pupil assignment and state-financed private schools.

Early in the civil rights controversy, the South chose to stand its ground on the right of local school boards to tell students which school to attend. It also contended a state could adopt constitutional laws ending its responsibility for operating public schools.

Segregationists reasoned they could tell Negro pupils which schools to attend. Or they could close an integrated public school and "lease" it as a private school for white children only. Such pupils would receive grants from the state for their "tuition."

Now the federal courts are overriding that position. Two federal courts of appeal have knocked out pupil assignment statutes in Virginia and Louisiana. There has been no direct ruling on either practice by the Supreme Court, but it has refused to review a lower court order outlawing the Louisiana assignment scheme.

Abolish The Schools
All southern states have some kind of rule permitting local authorities to assign pupils. Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi, North Carolina and Virginia have gone a step further with standby laws permitting abolition of public schools. Most southern officials wink at their private school laws, knowing there would be only "paper transfers" of school property from public to private operation. But there's one spot where "private school plan" means just what it says.

Down the road from Appomattox, Va., where Gen. Robert E. Lee surrendered, lies Prince Edward County, an example of the toughest fiber of resistance to desegregation. This was one of the areas that figured in the famous 1954 school decision of the Supreme Court.

Not long after that ruling, private citizens of the southern Virginia county held mass meetings. "We decided two things," recalls manufacturer B. Blanton Hanbury. "We weren't going to integrate and we wanted to keep our schools going."

The citizenry organized the Prince Edward Education Corp. with Hanbury as president and began taking cash and pledges for the purpose of operating private schools should the public schools be integrated.

Hanbury said the fund has topped $200,000 with about $25,000 in cash in a local savings bank. The highest single contribution has been $5,000.

"If we ever came to operating our plan, money would be the least of our worries," Hanbury said.

He said teachers have been signed up for the program and arrangements have been made to use churches, homes and private buildings. In order to avoid trouble from the courts, no contributions have been accepted from any branch of government.

"We think we've got something foolproof," says Hanbury.

GRAY COUNTY SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT NEWS

OUR SOIL ★ OUR STRENGTH

By JIM SMATHERS
Work Unit Conservationist

Land leveling has gotten under way on some irrigated farms this past week. J. C. Graham, two miles east of Pampa in the process of field leveling 42.5 acres; Roy Tinsley, three miles east of Pampa, is bench leveling twenty-five acres; and Wade Duncan, five miles east of Pampa is field leveling ten acres.

The purpose of land leveling is to hold erosion damage to the minimum, make maximum use of rainfall, obtain efficient use of irrigation water and facilitate water and soil management. Field leveling is done on nearly level areas of deep soils where it is practical to level a large area or an entire field. Bench leveling as Tinsley is doing is done on areas where soil depth and slopes do not permit the cuts necessary for field leveling.

The Gray County SCD has received a new forty foot land plane in addition to the thirty foot land plane already in use.

A. C. Wilkinson has just completed constructing a livestock water dam on his place southeast of Pampa.

FRIDAY 2:30 — Worthwhile Home Demonstration Club with Mrs. J. R. Clark, southeast of city. 8:00 — Order of the Rainbow Girls, Masonic Hall.

Mrs. Jim Webb, choir director of the First Christian Church, was honored with a stork shower on Tuesday evening in the church. Hostesses for the occasion were Mmes. O. W. Allston, W. R. Hardin, Lewis Meers, Bob Banks, C. W. Stowell, W. L. Waggoner, A. W. Skewes, M. E. Warden, Wayne Hutchens, Don Patchin, Roy Williams, John Gill, Lydia Gilcrest, W. C. Chapman, Burl Graham, R. A. Mack, Misses Pearl Spaug, Sue Williams, Johnnie Dauer, and Mary Sturgeon. The tea table was covered with a white satin cloth over a pink satin skirt centered with an arrangement of pink snapdragons in which was placed a net web with tiny dolls with angel's faces. Pink candles flanked the arrangement. Miss Dauer received the guests and kept the guest register that had been made by Miss Linda Skewes. While the guests were being served, Miss Jimmie Kay Mack, at the piano, played an arrangement of Brahms' Lullaby and Indian Love Call. Misses Ann Hutchens and Linda Warden served punch and homemade cookies. Seated at the gift table with the honoree was Mrs. Don Patchin. Approximately 80 guests registered during the evening.

Miss Bertha L. Pate Becomes Bride Of George Beckham In Church Rites

A double-ring service united in marriage Miss Bertha LaRue Pate and George Hadden Beckham on August 3 at eight o'clock in the Hobart Street Baptist Church with the Rev. Laurance Barrett officiating before a background of baskets of white gladioli flanked with candelabra.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Pate, 925 S. Banks. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Beckham, 417 Doucette.

Mrs. Pat Grisby, organist, provided nuptial airs as the guests assembled and the traditional professional and recessional for the ceremony. Bob Hamilton, accompanied by Mrs. Grisby, sang favored selections of the couple, "Because," "I Love You Truly," and "The Lord's Prayer."

Miss Pate, given in marriage by her father, was gowned in white satin and lace. The sleeveless, rounded neckline of the satin bodice was topped with a lace bolero, which buttoned down the front and was styled with a winged-collar and long, full sleeves, which tapered to petal points over the hands. The ballerina-length skirt was panned in front and featured pleats in the back, beginning at the V-shape of the bodice.

Her nylon finger-tip veil of illusion was edged in Chantilly lace and secured to a satin, net-covered bonnet with an encircled crown of orange blossoms. She carried a cascade arrangement of white carnations with a shower of white satin ribbon tied in lover's knots. In keeping with all traditions, Miss Pate carried for "something old" a handkerchief, which belonged to her mother and had been made by her grandmother.

ATTENDANTS

Mrs. Betty Sue Strong, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor wearing a ballerina-length gown of blue organdy over ice-blue taffeta styled with a full pleated skirt and high rounded neckline. She carried a colonial bouquet of white carnations.

Miss Truma Pate, sister of the bride, and Miss Lynn Murphree were candlelighters, gowned identically in ballerina-length dresses of blue taffeta and net styled with draped necklines. Jack Malone served the bridegroom as best man. Doyle and Harold Beckham, brothers of the bridegroom, seated the wedding guests.

Miss Cheri Beckham, niece of the bride, served as bridesmaid.

Members Learn Kitchen Planning

Miss Helen Dunlap, county home demonstration agent, gave a demonstration on organizing a kitchen for the members of the Worthwhile Home Demonstration Club meeting held Monday afternoon in the home of Mrs. N. B. Cude, 526 S. Ballard.

Miss Dunlap suggested that plans should be made before starting to build a kitchen and plans should be followed. She stressed having the doors and windows conveniently spaced and the planning of the cabinet is a very important item, also.

Refreshments were served to Mmes. O. A. Wagner, P. G. Turner, N. B. Cude, W. G. Kinzer, J. L. Carlton, N. L. Welton, Roy Tinsley and to two guests, Miss Helen Dunlap and Mrs. Norman Walburg.

The next meeting for the group will be in the home of Mrs. J. R. Clark, southeast of the city on August 16 at 2:30 in the afternoon.

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE H. BECKHAM the bridegroom, was flower girl and Larry Don Strong, nephew of the bride, served the couple as ring-bearer. The mother of the bride, Mrs. Pate, chose for her daughter's wedding a beige and white sheath dress topped with a jacket with which she wore pink accessories. Mrs. Beckham, bridegroom's mother, wore a beige jersey dress with blue accessories. Both their corsages were of white carnations.

RECEPTION

For the reception in the church parlor, which followed the exchange of vows, white gladioli were used in the table appointments. The three-tiered wedding cake was topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom and was served by Mrs. Preston Wallace. Mrs. Lela Pearl Beckham, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, presided at punch service. Mrs. Joe Murphree was guest registrar.

For a wedding trip to Fort Worth, Mrs. Beckham wore a white and silver metallic threaded sheath with matching accessories. She wore the carnation corsage from her bridal bouquet. Mrs. Beckham plans to return to Pampa High School in the fall where she will complete her last year. Mr. Beckham attended Pampa High School and is now employed by the C&M Television Co. They are at home to friends at 216 E. Francis.

Miss Noblitt Feted At Bride's Affair

Miss Sandra K. Noblitt, bride-elect of William Franklin Detwiler, whose marriage will be an event of August 25, was guest of honor at a bridal luncheon given for her by Mmes. Ralph Gardner, Homer D. Johnson, Sam Malone, Ralph McKinney, and Raymond Laycock. The affair was given on Wednesday afternoon in the Pampa Country Club.

The affair was given on Wednesday afternoon in the Pampa Country Club. In the receiving line were Miss Noblitt, Mrs. Ivan Noblitt, mother of the honoree; Mrs. W. M. Detwiler, mother of the prospective bridegroom, of Anton; Mrs. Dock Coffey of Amarillo, grandmother of the bride-elect; and the hostesses. Each wore a corsage of white chrysanthemums tied with silver ribbon.

Carrying out the honoree's chosen colors of white and silver, the center piece on the luncheon table was of white chrysanthemums in a silver bowl. Place cards were miniature bride's faces fashioned from buttons, each wearing a bridal veil.

Miss Noblitt was presented with a hostess gift of a silver compote. Approximately 25 guests attended.

RUTH MILLETT Miss Helen Trask, Jimmy Rexroat Are Married With Double-Ring Ceremony

(Special to The News)
SKELLYTOWN — Miss Helen Trask and Jimmy Rexroat are united in marriage on July 21 in the Calvary Baptist Church in Pampa with the double-ring ceremony performed by Rev. Ennis Hill, before an altar banked with white candelabra and tall baskets of white gladioli and palm leaves.
Mrs. Rexroat is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lon Trask, Skellytown. Mr. Rexroat is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Rexroat, 1020 Neel Road.
Mrs. J. R. Cross sang "Bless This House," "I Love You Truly," and "The Lord's Prayer," accompanied by Miss Estelle Lunsford at the organ.
The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a ballerina-length gown of white nylon chiffon over a layer of taffeta and nylon net with a scalloped neckline and long sleeves extending to petal points over the wrists. Her elbow-length Veil of Illusion was attached to a heart-shaped crown trimmed with seed pearls and iridescent beads. She carried a bouquet of white feathered carnations fastened atop a white Bible with showers of white satin ribbons.
Mrs. Jack Russell, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor wearing a ballerina-length gown of pastel blue. Misses Judy Jones in a pink nylon ballerina-length dress and Miss Carolyn French bread, with your favorite beverages. The sandwich is practically a meal in itself!
Put it together in your kitchen ahead of time, wrap it in aluminum foil, then let it heat through over hot coals. Here's the Betty Crocker recipe:
HAM SNACK LOAF
1/2 loaf French bread
Two 4 1/2 oz. cans deviled ham
1-3 cup drained pickle relish
Soft butter
Any processed cheese spread
Cut loaf into slices 1/2 to 3/4" thick. Mix ham and pickle relish. Spread bread slices with butter, cheese spread, then ham mixture. Line sandwiches up in loaf, tie securely with string. Wrap loaf in aluminum foil; heat in very hot oven (450 degrees) or over the coals about 25 minutes, or until piping hot. Serve white hot. About 9 servings.

Pink Mink, Jewelled Pill Boxes, Hose Are Topics This Week In Manhattan

By GAY PAULEY
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)— This week in Manhattan:
One New York furrier came out with something for the mother and baby who have everything. It's a matching set of cardigan sweaters in pink cashmere with pink mink collar and cuffs. Pink buttons and pink chiffon lining complete the mother-daughter set.
The manufacturer, Leitman Furs, said the idea originated with one order — a prominent woman now in a New York hospital with a new daughter wanted a set made.
"I am not at liberty to say who the mother was," said Vice President Kenneth Leitman. "But it wasn't Elizabeth Taylor."
Hypochondriacs take note. You can buy a jewelled pill box with built-in alarm clock which buzzes when it's time for the next pill. The box, made of palladium and sapphires, is one of the more unusual items exhibited at the American National Retail Jewelers' Convention next week.
About ten million dollars in jewelry, watches and silverware will be collected under one roof. Also included: Collar pins to replace the conventional buttons on a man's button-down shirt. The pins, in diamonds, rubies or sapphires, fasten to a shirt like a tie tack. Both the pill box and pins are the brainchild of Lucien Piccard, a prize-winning jewelry designer. Another concern will display silver holloware, which it bills as non-tarnishable.
A few words to Mrs. R. M. Gillenwaters of Arcata, Calif., and to all other women raising a hue and cry about the short wear they get from nylon stockings.
The hosiery industry says if you have more runs, it's your fault. You insist on wearing dress-weight sheers for all occasions.
Recently this column reported that the National Hosiery Manufacturers Assn. hoped to give the industry a "shot in the leg" this fall with a host of new colors coordinated to midday's costume.
Sales have been lagging, association President William F. Williamson admitted.
Mrs. Gillenwaters promptly expressed her opinion why. In a letter, she said nylons once gave women at least 10 days wear, so women wore them instead of going bare-legged. "Now," she said, "if we get uptown and back without a run we feel lucky. I would buy many more (pairs) if the price was lower."
Williamson answered that when nylon stockings first came to market in 1940, they were made in 30 denier nylon — the only weight then available. Thirty denier was what the industry calls service weight or walking sheer... meant for heavy duty. But as the nylon was refined, manufacturers began using finer, or lighter weight yarn, and billing hosiery as 15 and even 10 denier, which is gossamer sheer. But they still make the 30 denier, for women who want it.
"Trouble is, they don't," said Williamson. "More than 80 per cent of all hosiery today is 15 denier and lighter. A woman can't expect this sheer a stocking to last through shopping, gardening, and even golfing."
"Hosiery is cheaper now than it was 10 years ago," he added. "It is one of the few consumer items which has gone down in price... no other segment of the clothing industry can make that statement."

The Combs Family In Picnic-Reunion

(Special to The News)
LEFOURS — A picnic in the Pampa City Park was the beginning of a reunion of the family of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Combs, which assembled later at the homeplace in Lefours for three days last week.
Guests other than the family for the picnic were Mr. and Mrs. Earl Champion and Gayle of Pampa, Mrs. Jack Nichols and sons, and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Atkinson of Lefours.
The family traveled as a group to Carlsbad, N.M., stopping in Lubbock enroute to visit in the home of a daughter, Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Koscheski.
While in Carlsbad, a trip was made through the caverns and on the return trip, the group visited in the home of a son, Harold, at Levelland.
Members of the family are Mr. and Mrs. Harold V. Combs, Harold Jr. and Don of Levelland; Mr. and Mrs. Woody Rosser, Carol and Jana of Houston; Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Koscheski, Nelson Wayne, Jr. and Robert of Lubbock; Mr. and Mrs. James Jinks and Ronny of Lefours; and Mr. and Mrs. Joel R. Combs and Carla Jo of Pampa.

Guest Night Held By Gavel Club

The OES Gavel Club met Thursday evening in the Little Red School House for a Guest Night social. Hostesses were Mmes. J. S. Fluga and L. R. Bigham.

The couple will wed in a ceremony on August 23 in Pampa where they will make their home.

MISS BILLIE ANN SHAW

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Shaw of Miami are announcing the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Billie Ann to Tommy Glenn Wells, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Wells, of Miami. The ceremony will take place September 8 at 6 p.m. in the First Methodist Church in Miami.

WMS Elects New Officers For Year

The executive board of the Central Baptist Church WMS met in the North Faulkner park for a Royal Service program followed by a business meeting.
Mrs. Harry Crawford presided, opening with the reading of the prayer calendar with Mrs. Sam Bateas offering the prayer for missionaries.
The nominating committee submitted the following names for election, which were approved by the members, and voted into office. New officers are Mmes. E. B. Davis, vice president; E. C. Cox, corresponding secretary and treasurer; Ralph Prock, recording secretary; George Wing, music director; Gerald Beatty, pianist; Don Rosenbok, assistant pianist; R. E. Bradford, Business Women advisor; Kenneth Gray, mission study; Harry Crawford, program chairman; Curtis Liles, assistant program; Jim Conner, community mission and Forrest Washburn, assistant; R. C. Brown, stewardship; Thurman Uphaw, prayer; Leon Brown, publicity; J. H. Reeves, social; D. T. Staggs, literature; M. O. Burns, Nolan Cole, Sam Bateas, circle chairmen and R. E. Bradford, BWC chairman; Charles Terrell and James Salesman, YWA counselor; Harold Dougherty, Sunbeams, counselor;

As a housewife, you owe it to yourself to get out of the house and into the fresh air at least once a day. Trade baby-sitting with a neighbor but don't keep yourself cooped up all day. It's bad for your looks and your nerves.
W. S. Baas, Bill Farnsworth, Claude Turner and George Wing, GA counselors.
Following the election of officers, the program was in charge of Mrs. Liles with the topic "Giving the Water of Life in Europe." Members taking part in the program were Mmes. Harold Daugherty, Kathryn Osbourn, Charles Terrell, Sam Bateas, E. B. Davis, C. G. Miller, Clifford Hill, Kenneth Gray, and Curtis Liles. The group served tea and sandwiches as is the custom in the "Land of the Blue Danube."
Mrs. Liles dismissed the group with prayer.

For a jewelry necklace, Paris suggests long necklaces wound two or three times around the neck. Newest is in imitation turquoise matrix beads speckled with gold and alternating with baroque drops in red coral.

Pre-Nuptial Party Fetes Miss Bates

Miss Virginia Bates was honored at a pre-nuptial party on Thursday evening in the home of Mrs. L. A. Barnes, 1211 N. Russell. Other hostesses were Meses, E. R. Wood, A. C. Houchins, Joe Carlton, Ray Jones, C. V. Atkinson, Ridge Russell, W. A. York, H. A. Layne, and Miss Edna Daughtee.

The honoree, who will become the bride of Monty Allison on August 29 was presented with a corsage of pink carnations.

Mrs. Douglas Vehon, cousin of the bride, registered guests in the bride's book.

The serving table, covered with a pink imported linen cloth, was centered with a summer bouquet of garden flowers, carrying out the bride-elect's chosen colors of pink, white and blue. Crystal appointments were used. Miss Connie Jo Kelly presided at the punch bowl.

Mrs. Barnes and Miss Bates greeted guests along with the mother of the bridal couple, Mrs.

T. C. Bates and Mrs. M. C. Allison. They wore pink carnation corsages. Fifty-three guests attended. Twenty-five invited guests sent gifts, but were unable to attend.

Make Friends Manners

Before sending your child off to visit with friends or relatives for a few days, remind him of the importance of making his bed, hanging up his clothes, being on time to meals, etc.

A child old enough to visit on his own is old enough to make extra work for his host.

RUTH MILLETT

To have real and lasting charm a woman needs:

A kind heart that makes her want to see others happy and prompts her to say and do the things that make others more pleased with themselves and more satisfied with their lot.

A firm belief that other persons' intentions are as good as her own. She'll be wrong occasionally but not often enough to make her bitter. Her high expectations of others will usually bring out the best in them.

A real interest in the lives of others. A charming woman doesn't forget your name or the things she learned from you the last time you met. She finds other people and their lives fascinating.

A willingness to put yourself out for the convenience or pleasure of others. A woman who always thinks first of herself and her own convenience can be charming on occasion, but she isn't and can't be a charming woman.

An inner strength that enables her to shoulder burdens, instead of unloading them on others and appealing to others for sympathy. The woman who is always asking others to listen to her troubles and to sympathize with her lot doesn't bring much charm to others.

A belief in herself that keeps her from feeling unsure, apologetic and frightened of what other people will think, but allows her to be herself.

A sense of humor that keeps her from taking herself so seriously she is a bore and that gives her conversation a touch of laughter and gaiety.

Kit Kat Klub Wins First Trophy For Organization Entry In Rodeo Parade

Kit Kat Klub pledges and members were winners of the first place trophy for the best organizational float entered in the Top o' Texas Rodeo parade held Wednesday afternoon.

The float, which was made up completely of white paper napkins and chicken wire at a cost of $25, depicted the symbol of the club. Money for the napkins and chicken wire was earned by the pledges through the sale of toothpicks on the streets in Pampa. Ideas for the theme of the float were submitted by pledges. Miss Gay Vanderburg's entry-idea was chosen.

Pledges taking part were Misses Ann Adcock, Bobbie Lee Andis, Brenda Brown, Karen Capps, Doris Bullard, Nita and Rita Cartwright, Sandra Dodd, Linda Fain, Glenda Finkelstein, Sue Foster, Marcella Gison, Jane Ann Hoover, Eva Jo Enwright, Jeanie Hopkins, Ginger Hopkins, Kay Kolasha, Glenna Lewis, Janet Osborne, Gay Vanderburg, Marcia Ward, Sherry Thygerson, Norma Jean Fatheree, Shirley Wright and Joyce Snow.

The Kit Kat Klub held their weekly meeting in the home of Miss Jeannie Leith, 603 N. Faulkner, with Miss Raima Storms, president, presiding. Miss Judy Wells, chaplain, led the prayer.

MATURE PARENT

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE
"Our 11-year-old girl gives me an argument for everything I ask her to do," writes Mrs. P. "Last week when her little brother had a cold, I had to ask her to get some oranges. She argued so long that the store was closed when she finally got there. How do I deal with her? She just gives me more argument if I try to discuss this habit . . ."

Mrs. P. might have said, "All right, you stay here with Brother — and I'll run down to the store." This action would have achieved three good things. It would have stopped the argument. It would have freed Mrs. P. from the idea that she has to win all arguments with her arguer — and force cooperative action from her.

This idea is usually the cause of the arguing habit in children. It is an enslaving one. So long as we think we must force our arguer's cooperation, we remain dependent on her. Our self-respect is rooted not in what we do but in what she does. Naturally when she refuses compliance, we resent her.

Soon we can't ask her to do anything without the angry expectation that she'll refuse it again — and deny us the reassurance that we're a fine, competent controller of children. Relationship between us and the child becomes a kind of secret wrestling match to see who's going to beat whom. In this climate of mutual distrust, any cooperative action we wretch from her is worthless.

Morally speaking, her cooperative action is the business of her conscience — and has nothing to do with us.

Once we see this clearly enough to trust it, freedom of action is restored to us.

In this independence of her resistance is based our real control of her. She immediately senses withdrawal of our pressure. She sees that we're after oranges, not her submission. The oranges she's been using for war with us are suddenly available for war within herself. She herself begins to find fault with her refusal to help us. The argument begins to take place within her own conscience. That's where it belongs.

Garden Care Topic Given Morning Unit

The Morning Unit of the Pampa Garden Club met Monday in the home of Mrs. Fred Hart. Mrs. Henry Gruben, chairman, conducted the business meeting.

It was decided to hold the next meeting on September 9 at 9:30 a.m. in the Lovett Memorial Library, with the afternoon and evening groups, to study flower arranging for the Fall Flower Show.

After the business meeting, a program on "Watering of Gardens and Lawns," was given in the form of a panel discussion by Mrs. T. M. Brooks, J. A. Mitchell and W. B. Adair.

The brought out some points to remember: 1) lawns need about the equivalent of one inch of rain a week; 2) roses and shrubs need deep soaking; 3) seedlings need frequent watering; 4) mulches help keep the ground damp and cool then apply a layer of mulch of any and should be applied as early as July; 5) lightly cultivate the soil, one of the following, cotton seed hulls, partly rotted leaves, dried grass clippings, peat moss, saw dust, or peanut hulls.

Seventeen club members were present. Three visitors, Mrs. C. P. Pursley, Ervin Pursley, and J. T. Cornutt, were welcomed.

LASAGNE

1 1/2 pounds ground beef
 1/4 cup chopped celery
 1 medium onion, chopped
 1 clove garlic, minced
 2 tablespoons lard or drippings
 2 cans (16 ounces each) tomatoes
 1 can (8 ounces) tomato paste
 2 teaspoons salt
 1/4 teaspoon cayenne pepper
 1/2 teaspoon oregano
 1 bay leaf
 1 package (8 ounces) lasagne or broad egg noodles
 2 cups ricotta or cottage cheese
 1 pound mozzarella cheese, sliced
 1-3 cup grated parmesan cheese

Cook celery, onion and garlic in lard or drippings until tender. Add ground beef and brown until crumbly but not hard. Pour off drippings. Add tomatoes, tomato paste, salt, cayenne pepper, oregano, and bay leaf. Cover and cook slowly for 20 minutes. Remove bay leaf. Cook noodles in boiling salted water until tender. Drain. Arrange noodles in a greased 3 1/2-quart baking dish. Pour half of the meat sauce over the noodles and cover with a layer of ricotta and mozzarella cheese. Repeat with remaining noodles, meat sauce and cheese. Sprinkle with parmesan cheese. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 30 minutes. Yield, 8 servings.

Room Dividers Can Add Spaciousness

By KAY SHERWOOD
 NEA Staff Writer

If the absence of interior walls in a modern, open-floor plan is a mixed blessing — adding spaciousness but subtracting privacy — a room divider can help solve the problem.

Room dividers in all shapes, sizes and materials can be called on. They can completely screen an area or merely create the illusion of separateness. Many different kinds, from sliding or folding panels to eye-high screens, are now available in a variety of synthetic and natural materials.

Lighting and living areas can be designed around dividers. Lighting poles, for example, can illuminate both portions of a divided area. These are being used frequently to suggest an entry hall where none exists.

I've also seen ceiling-to-floor metal or wood bars rising from a planter box by the door. Fitted with plants and vines (real or fake), they partially screen the view into an open living room.

For more privacy, folding doors of wood, vinyl or woven synthetic may be used in natural doorways or installed on ceiling tracks where you wish to separate two areas at times. This is particularly good where one part of a room doubles as guest room.

Where only an illusion of separation is desired, as in the case of a dining area, one of the most inexpensive space breakers is bamboo. It can be found in folding doors, roll-up shades, portable folding screens. Bamboo won't impede the circulation of air.

Shoji screens of translucent rice paper or synthetics fit into the oriental-inspired room. If your tastes run to early American furnishings, wooden louvers emphasize the effect and provide a divider as well.

To keep dividers clean is easy enough. In the case of folding doors or roll-up blinds that are used periodically, remind yourself to add them to your weekly cleaning routine. Frequent cleanings avoid a build-up of dust in the crevices.

For louvered slats or blinds, vacuum first with upholstery crevice tool or soft brush to remove dust on the surface.

Occasionally give them a wash-down with soap and detergent and water. Use sponges or cloths, well wrung out to avoid excess dripping and wetting.

When washing rice paper, bamboo or wood, always use a minimum of moisture.

If you're unsure about color fastness, test an inconspicuous portion first. To wipe between louvers, wrap a cloth around a spatula or ruler.

If you want to keep your eyesight sound and your eyes sparkling, always remember to read and work in a good light and to use an eye lotion daily. Have your eyes checked by a doctor at least once a year.

Cheap shoes are never a bargain. Buy the best leather you can afford, even if it means having fewer pairs, and take care of your shoes. You'll spare yourself both fatigue and facial wrinkles.

Merten HDC Has Kitchen Program

The Merten Home Demonstration Club met in the home of Mrs. Bob Brandon on Tuesday afternoon.

The program, "Planning Your Kitchen," was given by Miss Helen Dunlap, who suggested that it was best to plan the arrangement of the kitchen months in advance, and to consider that since so much time is spent in the kitchen it should be pleasant and have attractive surroundings.

Four important factors to remember in planning are, 1) arrange your kitchen to save yourself steps; 2) consider what activities will go on in the kitchen; 3) high windows for better light; 4) arrange appliances and cabinets for the greatest convenience.

Refreshments were served to Mmes. Vard Smith, Archie Maness, L. F. Watt, Jack Prather, John Brandon, T. G. Groves, Bob Brandon, Miss Dunlap and five children-guests.

The next meeting will be in the home of Mrs. Doug Flynn, Merten Lease at 1:30 on August 20.

AROUND THE WORLD

WELCOMING COMMITTEE — Dodger first baseman Gil Hodges receives the well-earned plaudits of his teammates after blasting a ninth-inning home run against the Milwaukee Braves that won the game for the Dodgers, 3-2, in Brooklyn, N. Y. Braves led, 2-1, until Hodges clout, which brought home Gino Cimoli (9), who had walked to open the frame.

TOUGH BREAK — His broken leg in a cast, jockey Conn McCreary rests in Physicians Hospital in New York. McCreary, 36, suffered his injury at Belmont Park just before the start of the fifth race when his mount, Simon the Bold, reared in the gate and lunged against the side of the stall.

HIGH AND LOW — The long and short of the All-Star football team are Lamar Lundy of Purdue, standing 6-feet, 6-inches tall, and Tom McDonald of Oklahoma, 5-feet, 10 1/2-inches tall. They are shown at Evanston, Ill., as they were working out. The All-Star squad will play the New York Giants at Soldiers Field in Chicago on August 9.

LONG DISTANCE ANGLER — Dr. H. I. Osler (left) was given a trophy on behalf of the state of Maine by Mark Wordsworth in Cherryfield. The doctor was honored as the angler who has traveled the most miles for the fun of fishing. He has made two trips from his home in Johannesburg, South Africa, to fish for Atlantic salmon near Cherryfield.

DOWN FOR NINE — Del Flanagan of St. Paul appears dazed as Gil Turner of Philadelphia stands over him after knocking him to the canvas for a nine count in the first round of their 10-round middleweight bout in St. Paul, Minn. Turner won the fight by a unanimous decision.

ROLLING THEIR OWN — Three participants in the 1957 All-German Soap Box Derby take off from the steep starting ramp as the race begins at Duisburg, Germany. Winner out of a field of 108 contestants was 13-year-old Dieter Manne, who will represent Germany in the Soap Box World Championship at Akron, Ohio, later this summer.

WATER WHEEL — Pretty Scarlett Voris of Maryland shows how to get new thrills out of the old sport of water skiing. If you get "tired" of the water skis, merely latch on to an inner tube and use it as a substitute. Here, Scarlett practices what she preaches as she is towed through the water at a merry clip in Cypress Gardens, Fla.

COLLISION — Pirate short-stop Dick Groat climbs all over teammate Frank Thomas as they collide during a game against the Giants in New York. Despite the apparent confusion, Groat hauled in Don Muller's bloop for the putout. Pirates won, 3-2.

MEMBERS OF THE HALL OF FAME — Joe McCarthy (left), 70, and Sam Crawford, 77, smile after being formally inducted into baseball's Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N. Y. Crawford spent 19 years in baseball and had a lifetime batting average of .309. As a manager, McCarthy won nine pennants, eight with the Yankees and one with the Chicago Cubs.

HAPPY DAY — Chicago White Sox pitcher Billy Pierce smiles in the dressing room at Yankee Stadium in New York after pitching his team to a 7-2 win over the Yankees. Pierce gave up seven hits, struck out five, to give him 102 strikeouts for the season. It was his 14th victory.

GIBSON GIRL WINS AGAIN — Top-seeded Althea Gibson of New York returns the ball to Darlene Hard of Montebello, Calif., during final play in the National Clay Court Tennis tournament at the River Forest Tennis Club, River Forest, Ill. Miss Gibson won the women's singles crown by defeating Miss Hard in straight sets, 6-2, 6-3.

Miss Martha Gordon Relates Summer Scouting Experience At Mexico Cabana

By MISS MARTHA GORDON

Mariner Troop No. 22
 "It will never happen to me," I used to say when I would read about Girl Scouts winning trips all over the world. Then suddenly in January, I received one of the most wonderful letters I've ever received!

"You have been chosen as one of twelve delegates from all over the country to attend the first work session at our Cabana in Cuernavaca, Mexico," it read.

From that time until my departure in late June, I began to receive all sorts of information, which I was to use regarding my trip. Pamphlets on Americanism, itineraries, catalogs. . . the list seemed endless.

I will never forget June 18, 1957. All of my weeks of anxiety and preparation were over, and I boarded the train early that morning for Brownsville, where I was to go for three days of orientation.

Wearing my green scout uniform, I attracted a lot of attention. People thought I was anything from an airline hostess to a nurse. Someone stopped me and said, "Aren't you a little big for a Girl Scout?" It seems a lot of people don't realize that scouts advance beyond the Brownie stage!

I changed trains at Houston and there I met the first of the other girls. She was Anne Tollefson, a girl of Norwegian descent from Minneapolis. She had a nine-hour layover in Houston and was impressed by the friendliness of the people in Texas. Some of the Scout executives there had taken her to a steak dinner and swimming party.

Early the next morning, we arrived in Brownsville, where we met the remaining ten girls. We had corresponded with each other, so it was fun to see what everyone was like and how differently we all talked. I soon became accustomed to being teased about my Texas "drawl."

Our orientation session in Brownsville consisted of panel discussions on how Americans should act in foreign countries; how we should spend our money; customs in Mexico; and problems in race relations. We particularly enjoyed our discussion on teen-age affairs, which included the problems of allowances, steady dating, and school life.

On Friday of that week, we flew by Pan - American Airlines to Mexico City, where we were met by our leader, Agnes Violens of New York City. While there, we decided to take a four - hour tour of the city. We hired a turismo (large limousine) and visited the capitol, Metropolitan Cathedral, and Ciudad Universitaria. This is the Spanish name for University City, which is the modern new national university, which is pictured so often. This and the Pa-seo de la Reforma are, I think, the prettiest sights in the whole city. The next morning we took a turismo to Cuernavaca and then on out to the Cabana. We had finally arrived at the first and only Girl Scout hotel in the Western Hemisphere.

We had expected the place to be out of the ordinary, but it was by far more wonderful than we could have dreamed. The first thing we noticed about it was the main door, which had a large gold trifoil, emblem of scouting, on a dark blue background. Upon entering, we could see the dorms, dining hall and workshop beyond. It was really a beautiful site for the Cabana, because it was right in the shadow of Popocatepetl, the most famous volcano in Mexico. Here, the blue roofs of the dormitories are nestled among the cactus and mesquite trees, making a fabulous scene.

Each dorm was divided into two sections with a hall and patio between. The walls of the dorm were paneled and had stone floors. Since everything was so new, it was all very attractive, but I thought one of the prettiest things were the hand-painted tiles, which outlined the lavatories in blue and yellow. After the work session was all over, we were allowed to buy the extra files for 25 cents apiece. Mealtimes, of course, were about the best part of the day.

There was another conference going on at the same time as ours, and there were 58 of us in all. We had our meals cooked for us, but we were divided into patrols for dishwashing and table - setting. The dining hall was a long building with tables at one end and a fireplace for campfires at the other. The room was lighted by three huge globes - made out of skin. They were supposed to represent scouting a round the world.

It had never been made clear to us just what our work at the Cabana would consist of. When we arrived, we found that, in the mornings, we were to help at a "guarderia", a nursery in Cuernavaca and in the afternoons we would do some sort of work at the Cabana. This consisted of planting, painting, or anything else that needed doing.

Besides we twelve American girls from all parts of Mexico. Most of them could speak some English, but I was the only one of the American girls, who knew any Spanish. I got a "kick" out of translating for both groups, though sometimes I would get mixed up and get the wrong idea across. The Mexican girls, however, were very understanding and told me I spoke Spanish "perfectly", or as they say it, "perfectamente." It made me feel good for them to say it, even though it was untrue, because it made me want to try harder.

When we were first told that we were to work in a nursery, most of the girls from the United States got panicky. "How can we be expected to help when we can't even understand the kids?" we worried. The children were small, but they realized that most of us didn't speak their language, so they smiled and helped us.

In the afternoons, when we weren't doing other work, we made toys for the children at the nursery and then went for a swim in the Cabana's pool.

I mentioned before another conference, which was taking place at the same time as ours. This was a group of Scout and Guide leaders from all over the world. One leader I particularly enjoyed was a Mrs. Manning from Australia. She was very friendly and gave me a lovely blue and silver friendship pin from her country.

The two weeks at the Cabana passed quickly and soon it was time to return home. There was not one thing about the trip that I disliked. It was a privilege to meet those wonderful girls, because each of them was outstanding and we got along together perfectly!

Yesterday I received a letter from our leader and two girls in Mexico. This experience isn't over yet!

One of Texas' Five Most Consistent Newspapers

We believe that one truth is always consistent with another truth. We endeavor to be consistent with truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule, the Ten Commandments and the Declaration of Independence.

Should we at any time, be inconsistent with these truths, we would appreciate anyone pointing out to us how we are inconsistent with these moral guides.

The FEE Method

There are any number of crusading organizations dedicated to the support of free enterprise, individual liberty and the American ideals. At this time we should like to pay tribute to one of these organizations. It is the Foundation for Economic Education, Irvington-on-Hudson, New York. And the thing which stirs us to commendation is the basic theory behind the work done by the management and staff of FEE.

With very few exceptions, individuals who discover the real nature of communism and socialism, organize to "take action." They are like a person who discovers that a burglar has broken into his home. They are unacquainted with burglars and their first reaction is to call for the police.

They are frightened. Suddenly the confusion of our times solidifies in such a manner in their minds that they unravel the pattern of the conspiracy and propaganda which is undermining what we hold most dear.

They can scarcely be criticized if their proposition is immediate. Further, they can scarcely be condemned if their reaction is more frantic than wise. No one likes burglars.

But FEE is composed of some men and women who have a great deal of good common sense. And their opposition to both communism and socialism is aimed in the direction of individual self-improvement, rather than in the wholesale conversion of others to some opposite political dedication. In short, FEE labors ceaselessly that each individual shall improve himself to the point that he discards socialism and communism himself.

FEE does not concern itself with trying to enlist great masses of persons into a political movement aimed at getting some people to try to reform other people. Instead, it endeavors to awaken within each person such a burning desire to reform himself that he makes self-improvement his goal.

While there are unquestionably many who deny this method, we think it is good and wise. It may be more exciting to try to get the other fellow to behave himself, but it is far more rewarding to practice self-discipline. And there is always the chance that we are far more in need of controlling ourselves than that other fellow is.

In actual fact, this is the core of good education. Education which pretends to accomplish anything else is simply not education. All real education is aimed at self-improvement.

And while there are many who insist there isn't time for self-improvement while the burglar is in the drawing room, it has never been demonstrated that there is any device quicker in the long run than self-discipline. We will never stop burglary as a practice until each of us learns never to be a burglar under any conditions. And while it always appears justifiable to "organize" to get a particular burglar, there are far too many who unthinkingly join with some aggregation of burglars and thereby commit the very offense they so object to in others. The only answer to this is for each person to understand the full nature of burglary and resolve that come what may, he will not become a burglar. This requires self-improvement and self-discipline. In fine, there is no other way.

We are considerably heartened by the growth and the fertility shown by FEE. And this is not the praise the organization out of hand, for there have been times when we felt that what it said fell short of both principles and truth.

Yet, we must commend it for its methods. For if it adheres to them whatever shortcomings it may have will ultimately be weeded out by the very process it advocates. In short if it practices self-government and self-discipline, it must be that FEE itself will continue to be upgraded in its own understanding and its own effectiveness as a vocal instrumentality for freedom.

"And so I hold it is not treason
"To advance a simple reason
"For the sorry lack of progress we decay.
"It is this: Instead of working
"On himself, each man is shirking
"And trying to reform some other guy."

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. Hollis

Attitudes Resulting From

Belief in Strikes

In the last issue I was discussing how strikes were harmful to everyone from a material standpoint. In other words, how strikes made society, as a whole, materially poorer.

As this column has repeatedly contended, all economic and political questions in the final analysis reduce themselves to a question of right and wrong, what is harmful or helpful or whether the act is in harmony with the great moral laws of the Decalogue, The Sermon On The Mount and the Declaration of Independence. Thus, even a question of material well-being can hardly be discussed without going into the question of right and wrong.

Now I want to discuss how the belief in strikes has its harmful influence on the individual. Understand I am not contending that men who participate in strikes should be condemned. When a man is forced into a union due to class legislation and has to obey the union rules or lose his job, and he has obligations to take care of with his family, it is hardly fair to condemn him for going along in a strike to save his job. And it is even asing a good deal for a man who has been forced into a union to stand up and object to strikes. He is subject to intimidation and discrimination and all kinds of pressure—even danger of his life. However, the question of strikes is one that should be honestly and fearlessly discussed.

Strikes are a part of every labor union.

No one should object to an individual or a group having an agent to try to find them a better job or persuade the employer that he can not fill the job for the wages he is now paying. But I know of no unions that do not practice strikes, so strikes are a part of unionism.

In the last issue I contended that strikes, from a material standpoint, did more harm to the worker with a big family who depended on his wages for his sustenance. Now it appears to me that the man who believes in strikes and advocates them is the man who does himself more harm than he does to anyone else. He does this because it changes his whole attitude of life toward the lower man. It causes him to have less respect for the inalienable rights of others.

Purpose of Strikes

Strikes are used to intimidate, compel, duress and harass an employer into paying the employees more than any other employer will pay them at that time and that place. If other employers would pay more at that time and that place, men, of course, would not strike. They would take the other job. Thus for a man to believe in getting something by threatening to injure another is to exalt that individual. It is to set himself apart from his brothers; to make himself want to have special privileges; to have no sympathy or respect or honor for the inalienable rights of other men. In short, it is to have him use his will instead of God's will as a guide of human conduct. He must discard the Decalogue, the Golden Rule and the Love Commandment as a guide of human conduct.

In fact, it is hard to think of any moral principle a man uses as a guide who believes in strikes. Use of strikes is to go back to the primitive times where might makes right. It is to discard reason and justice and love and charity.

Strikes Before Service

One of the great harms that strikes do to the believer in strikes is that they tend to cause him to believe it is better to use a strike to get an increase in wages rather than develop his own faculties so that he can be more useful to his employer's customers. And when men come to rely on strikes to improve their lot by hurting others rather than improving their own well-being by benefiting others, they are not likely to be very good workers.

It is doubtful whether many men actually believe in strikes. They get into the union and do not realize they have committed themselves to do things they would not think of doing as individuals. Few employees, as individuals, believe they have a right to quit a job without giving the employer notice. They know that would be wrong. They also know it is wrong for the employer, individually or collectively, to discharge his men with the idea of injuring them and coercing them to take less than a free-market wage.

Public Opinion

The problem is to create public opinion that understands the end results of strikes. And when public opinion condemns strikes generally enough, then the laws will be repealed that give strikers an advantage over men who do not believe in strikes. Men who believe in strikes have been successful in getting laws passed that give strikers rights that others do not have—as an example the Clayton amendment to the Sherman anti-trust law. The sooner people begin to talk intelligently and fearlessly as to the ill effects of strikes spiritually, intellectually and materially, the sooner will we promote peace and goodwill and an even higher standard of living.

This newspaper would be glad to above. The sooner each and every individual studies the subject publish any refutation of the enough to be able and willing to publicly discuss strikes, the better off we all will be. The first thing for each person to do is to inform himself and do a lot of thinking and talking on the end results of strikes.

The columns are open.

The Doctor Says

By Edwin J. Jordan, M. D.

ALCOHOLIC UNABLE TO FACE LIFE'S REALITIES

There is perhaps little doubt that the world would be better off if alcohol as a beverage had never been discovered. But it has been, and millions of people all over the world have become so attached to alcoholic drinks that they are unable to stop.

Such people are labeled chronic alcoholics. It is this particular aspect of the drinking of alcoholic liquors which I want to discuss now.

Often the dividing line between the "social drinker" and the chronic alcoholic is not clearcut.

The heavy social drinker passes by imperceptible degrees into a state where he or she can no longer "take it" or "leave it alone," as they usually claim, but must continue to "take it."

The victim of the alcohol habit usually thinks he can stop at the proper time or feels sure that a small glass of wine or beer would do any harm. When he gets it, however, he keeps on taking just one more drink until perhaps he ends in the police station, the gutter or the morgue.

No one knows exactly why some people develop this craving for alcohol and the inability to stop. Alcoholism is not inherited, but some claim there is a family tendency to it.

As one man said, "Alcohol is an extremely effective agent for roiling and softening the rigid and forbidding outlines of reality."

As time goes on the person headed for chronic alcoholism seeks to shut out his troubles more and more often in drink. It is an escape. It is also a defect of personality and reflects an unwillingness or inability to face up to the troubles of the world.

Many students of the subject consider chronic alcoholics as sick people and the alcoholism as a symptom of the condition which caused the person to take to drink, just as a fever is a symptom of pneumonia.

Unfortunately, there is as yet no thoroughly satisfactory treatment for the chronic alcoholic. Under careful supervision some have been "cured" by a method which leads them to develop an aversion or distaste for any drink containing alcohol.

Hypnotism has also been tried with some success. Electric shock treatments are under study. An organization of ex-alcoholics called "Alcoholics Anonymous" has often succeeded when other methods failed.

Clearing House

Articles for this column are preferred to be 300 words or less in length. However, longer articles may be printed.

Editor, Those of us who voted for less postal salary increase than the $544 per employee, which the House passed, have been depicted by some as unfriendly to postal employees. The public, which must pay the bill through increased taxes and inflation, is entitled to know the facts.

Soldiers Feel Betrayed Over Girard Decision

By Thurman Sensing

CASE OF WILLIAM GIRARD

A retired army colonel said today, commenting on the Supreme Court decision in the Girard case, "If this Government of ours doesn't watch out, they are going to have a bolshevik army overseas."

What he meant, of course, was that if our Government exhibits no more concern for the rights of the individual soldier as guaranteed him under the Constitution than was shown in the case of William Girard, then the soldiers generally will feel that their Government has betrayed them and will be in a revolutionary mood.

There is no authority whatever under the Constitution or the law to surrender a soldier on duty to the courts of a foreign nation. Since there is general agreement by all that Girard was on duty, why was he surrendered to the Japanese courts?

The argument is that it was done under authority of treaty or executive agreement entered into with foreign nations. The real answer is that it was done to make our Government's conduct of foreign affairs more agreeable to those with whom we are negotiating.

In other words, the Constitution is 7 1/2 billion dollars and is predicted to rise to 11 billion dollars. Since we are having great trouble refinancing the present debt, how can we borrow more money?

Since 1945 the employees in the postal field service have received six salary increases, as follows: July 1, 1945, $400; January 1, 1946, $400; June 30, 1946, $450; November 1, 1946, $450; March 1, 1947, $450; August 1, 1947, $450. An average postal worker who entered the postal service at 25 years of age and works until he is 65 years of age receives a base salary of $4,710 a year today. His net take home pay is $3,785 a year. When he retires at 65 years of age, he will receive $3,991. In addition, he will receive a paid up life insurance policy, and his widow, should she live longer than he, will receive a guarantee of practically $1800 a year for as long as she lives. The employees have various fringe benefits such as annual and sick leave, night work differential, uniform allowance, group life insurance, liberal retirement system, military leave and longevity pay, which costs an additional 29 1/2 percent of the amount of the total payroll of all employees.

While all of us want to see our Government set an example of fair treatment to its employees, in view of the present grave financial condition of our Government, it seems to me that our Federal employees should be satisfied at this time with a salary increase which would approximate the rise in the cost of living, with provision to allow the Postmaster General to establish a higher rate of pay for many postal employees — clerks and carriers — in order to recruit and retain qualified postal employees. An honest Congressman must also think of the taxpayers, the solvency of the Government and the welfare of our children who must shoulder the public debt.

Sincerely yours,
Martin Dies
Congressman-at-Large

Hankering

Sorry!—Hank Couldn't Finish His Column Today

By HENRY McLEMORE

ZURICH, Switzerland — "One for the money, two for the show, three to make ready, and four to go!"

And I'm off, writing against time! There's no time to stop a n.d. think, no time to pause and fret about grammar, punctuation or fine phrases.

Every second is costing me money. I'm writing on a rented typewriter that works on the principle of a gas meter. There is a slot on the side of the machine and every twenty minutes I have to drop in a 20-centime piece to keep it working. It isn't fed, the machine looks as light as a drum.

It's the first typewriter of its kind that I have seen, and it was provided by the hall porter of a hotel when my own went out of order. I prepared for the writing of this column as I would for a boat race. I stripped down to my shorts, jogged around the bed for three laps to get warmed up, and then sat down at the desk. Mary recalled the little jungle mentioned above to start me off and with the word, "Go!" I started typing with two fingers faster than I ever have before.

I soon found that haste makes waste. I didn't study the Swiss keyboard for one thing, so I didn't know that the "Y" is where the "Z" is on American typewriters and vice-versa.

Consequently, I wrote my name "HenrZ" three times before I caught on and it took me the longest time to realize I had spelled the dateline "Zurich." There is also a question mark where the period should be on this machine so I ended all my sentences with question marks.

But now I'm ready to go to work on the column. I've already put in two 20-centime pieces, so I've got to get busy or go broke.

What's the quickest thing to write? "Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their party." I suppose, but that doesn't make for very bright reading. Neither does that business about the lazy brown fox jumping about something or other.

What would you write about if you were in the same desperate situation? If I were Rockefeller, I'd take my time and write a sonnet or two in praise of the Swiss Alps or the sunset over the lake here.

And if I were a counterfeiter and had a machine turning out Swiss coins by the bucketful, I'd take two or three days and try to write a column that would make me immortal.

Right now I'm so thirsty I could die, but I can't afford to stop for a drink of water. I hope no one knocks on the door, either, because I'm not going to answer.

Wait a second! The machine just stopped and I'm out of change! Now I've got to run downstairs and get a franc changed. Excuse me a minute.

That would be my luck! The hotel desk didn't have any change and I had to go out and look for a bank. I've been gone twenty minutes. The bank was three blocks away and I got turned around coming back and went two blocks out of my way.

I'm a nervous wreck. I'm going to have to lie down and get my breath back and let my heart settle down!

But I'll finish later on. That's a promise!

Knowland, Kennedy May Be Contestants In 1960

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Two relatively young and solemn members of the United States Senate are grimly seeking the Republican and Democratic Presidential nominations in 1960, although they have not announced or proclaimed their ambitions, publicly or privately. But their colleagues on the Senate floor and observers in the Press Gallery, who have come to know the White House symptoms, agree that the two have a common political date and destination.

The two men, of course, are Senator William F. Knowland, Minority Leader of the Senate, and Senator John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts. Both are dedicated men, who take their jobs and problems with unusual seriousness. They are two of the hardest working men in Capitol Hill. Luckily, they are wealthy, and can afford to finance research and writing staffs unavailable to many House and Senate members.

Should the two oppose each other in 1960, it will be an exciting political drama. It will be ancient Massachusetts against comparatively young and blossoming California, with the varied interests of these two sections in combat. It will be, perhaps, the first Presidential contest involving two millionaire families. It will be a struggle between two aristocratic urbanites.

KNOWLAND'S EARNEST ACTIVITY

For a man who has announced that he will not run for re-election, Senator Knowland is showing more interest and performing more actively than should be expected of a politician fed-up with public life and service. He has been more earnest in obtaining a strong Civil Rights Bill than President Eisenhower or any member of the White House entourage, including Vice President Nixon.

Senator Knowland, quite obviously, is using his position on Capitol Hill in his latter year in office to strengthen himself nationally. Although he has opposed President Eisenhower on several foreign issues, he has generally supported the Administration on domestic matters. He has an excellent record in that respect.

SENATOR SEEMS EAGER FOR 1960 NOMINATION — In handling Administration's legislative program, especially the Civil Rights Bill, Knowland has overshadowed a prospective opponent for the 1960 nomination, Vice President Nixon, a fellow Californian. The Senator has also put another obstacle in his path to the White House in the shade—namely, Governor "Goody" Knight of California.

Make no mistake about it, "Bill" Knowland wants that 1960 nomination, and it may be difficult to deny it to him, providing he runs and wins as Governor of California in the interim.

KENNEDY NOW LEADS DEMOCRATS' FIELD — Largely because of a lack of serious opposition, Senator Kennedy is conceded to lead the field on the Democratic side. Such an astute and well-traveled individual as James A. Farley, although he mentions such possibilities as Senator Symington of Missouri and Governor Meyer of New Jersey, usually lists Senator Kennedy as the best bet.

It is a fact that few young Senators — young in years and in Congressional service — have made such a favorable impression as the Bostonian. He has only two arguments against him — his relative youth and his religion. In view of the "AI" Smith defeat in 1928, it is questionable whether the Democrats would dare to nominate a Roman Catholic.

TIMES HAVE CHANGED SINCE

"AL" SMITH'S DAY — However, times have changed. Senator Kennedy has none of the delightful liabilities that hurt "Al," such as the brown derby, the East Side accent and the Tammany cigar.

Anyway, despite the many hurdles in the Presidential race, and despite the personal and political vicissitudes which the next three years may bring, the politicians' tentative 1960 race is Knowland versus Kennedy.

The Supreme Court has ruled that it's okay for anybody to take part in Red activities to overthrow the government. But an American soldier can get thrown in the brig for refusing to get a white sidewall haircut. Sometimes I think the American public takes too many tranquilizers.

OIL PAGE Union Convention Is Set For Monday

By HARRY WILSON SHARPE, United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10 (UP)—The AFL-CIO's Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union opens its annual convention in Chicago Monday with changes in its constitution high on the agenda.

The union is pointing for a closer-knit organization in wage bargaining. The present 52-man bargaining policy committee which has had some success in coordinating wage-increase demands, would be reduced to 36 members.

These would include union President Oliver A. Knight and three other international officers, 16 district directors, an ad hoc rank-and-file member from each of the 16 districts. The latter would have to come from locals which subscribe to the committee's "mandatory" wage program. The committee sets a wage goal each year but allows locals some latitude to meet certain situations.

Up to $25,000 available to finance a modern STRAN-STEEL building for your business

As little as 25% down

Is the tight money market holding back your expansion? The new Stran-Steel Purchase Plan now makes it possible for you to enlarge your facilities, better your location, increase your profits with the finest steel building on the market today. Only a small initial investment is necessary.

Up to 75 percent of the total cost of most completed basic Stran-Steel buildings can be financed for as long as you need—up to five full years. And larger buildings can be purchased with proportionately larger initial investment.

Whether you need space for manufacturing, warehousing, retailing or service operations, you can have the building you need—there's no red tape to qualified purchasers. Leave your bank credit lines open for operating capital. Credit decision is made quickly—and it's a completely private transaction.

This attractive, exclusive Stran-Steel Purchase Plan is available only to buyers of Stran-Steel buildings, and only through fully accredited, factory-approved Stran-Steel dealers.

Men Charged In Death Of Sheriff

GENEVA, Ala. (UP)—The state will ask the death penalty for two ex-convicts from Texas for the murder of Geneva County Sheriff J. Cuthbert Woodham who died Thursday following a hospital narcotics robbery.

Cecil Lewis Tinner, 25, and William Hable, 32, both of Dallas, Tex., were arrested Tuesday after an all-night manhunt and confessed to taking a safe containing narcotics from a nearby Hartford hospital. However, the pair stoutly denied shooting the sheriff.

A rural resident said he heard the gun fight and rushed to the scene to find Woodham, wounded and lying on the pavement. Woodham told him he had heard of the robbery on the radio and had apprehended a car with two men in it. While searching the car he was fatally shot.

Solicitor Edward W. Boswell said he will ask a grand jury to consider the case and if the two Texans are indicted, trial will be set for November.

First degree murder in Alabama carries the death penalty and Boswell said he will ask that the two men be put to death in Kilby Prison's electric chair.

Polish Crews Seek Political Asylum

LONDON (UP)—Two Polish submarines were reported sailing off the coast of Scotland today, and unconfirmed reports said their crews has asked for political asylum in Britain.

The Admiralty denied press reports the two vessels had sailed to Britain for asylum and a spokesman said in the same breath, "this whole thing is rapped in security."

It also was learned the Royal Air Force had been ordered to maintain a similar news blackout. "I know all about it," the Admiralty spokesman said, but he refused to elaborate until he received instructions from higher ups.

First reports received in London said the two submarines surfaced off Scotland, identified themselves to some fishing vessels and told the fishermen they wanted asylum.

The Admiralty would say only that "we know two unidentified subs are off the Scottish coast and we don't know where they are going."

It was considered possible the two submarines may have been on a training cruise in waters off the British Isles.

Cord of Thanks

Let not your heart be troubled, ye believe in God, believe also in me. In my Father's house are many mansions: if it were not so I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you. I will come again and receive you unto myself that where I am, ye may be also.

—John 14:1-3

The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want.
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: He leadeth me beside the still waters.
He restoreth my soul: He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake.
Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear evil: Thou art with me; Thy rod and Thy staff they comfort me.
Thou art my Father, my God, my King, my Redeemer, my Friend.
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever.

—Psalm 23

LOS ANGELES

Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler on a "selfish clique" he said is trying to capture control of the party's national organization so it can dominate the 1960 presidential nominating convention.

"These are the very men who would weaken the prestige and influence of the office of the national chairman to gain their ends. These are the men who would sacrifice our unity, our strength and our future as a party in order to insure their own power and control."

Walter Rogers Reports:

Centralization Of Power In Hoover Recommendations

TO THE PEOPLE OF THE 18TH DISTRICT:

The Hoover Commission. The mail has brought many inquiries and suggestions concerning the activities of the Hoover Commission. Many of the letters insist that the government adopt the Hoover Commission Report and save a great deal of money. Others appear to be of the opinion that all of the recommendations of the Hoover Commission have been cast aside and that this has cost the taxpayers a great deal of money.

I want to try to set the record straight, because there has been considerable misunderstanding of the entire subject. Some of this misunderstanding was brought about by advertising which was not exactly true.

The first Hoover Commission was created by Congress in 1947 and submitted a final report in 1949. This report contained recommendations relating to the reorganization of departments and agencies of the government. Many of those recommendations have been adopted. In fact, a number of them were in operation before the Hoover Commission's report was filed. In 1953 a second Hoover Commission was created by Congress and submitted a final report in June, 1955. This Commission spent 2,848,534 dollars and had personnel totaling 524 at one time. The following quotation is included in the report of the second Commission:

"The primary purpose of the Commission was to recommend methods by which savings could be made in the expenditures of the agencies of the Executive Branch without injury to the security or welfare of the country."

I especially call to your attention the last ten words to point out that, under a democratic form of government, the primary aim is the retention of the rights, privileges, powers and immunities of the individual as guaranteed under the Constitution. Some recommendations of both the Hoover Commissions, if adopted, would have resulted in a centralization of power in certain rights of government operation that could have done violence to some of those rights. I can assure everyone that all these recommendations have been, and are being, carefully weighed.

Senate Report No. 4 of the 83rd Congress was issued in January, 1953, and contained the following statement concerning the activities of the first Hoover Commission:

"Another aspect of the Hoover Commission reports, which has caused considerable confusion in the public mind because of its wide dissemination, involves the extravagant claims of tremendous monetary savings which would result from the full implementation of these reports. These estimates have varied from an ultraconservative figure of a few million to as much as $10 billion in annual savings. This Committee has been unable to find any sound basis for the unsubstantiated estimates of savings claimed by some of the proponents. Even if all the Hoover Commission's recommendations had been found to be of practical application, these estimates are not based on facts and are grossly unfair to the Congress. The American people have every right to expect their representatives in Congress to act with sound judgment regardless of the pressure brought to bear upon them by those who do not have full information as to their impact upon the national welfare."

Subsequently, the Senate Committee on Government Operations issued a report on the second Hoover Commission's activities as follows:

"While these documents prepared by the various study groups form the main basis for the Commission Reports to the Congress, the Commission did not, in all instances, agree with the recommendations of its task forces, subcommittees and study groups. Many of its recommendations are based upon the experience of the members of the Commission plus independent research by the Commission.

"Nor were the 12 members of the Commission, themselves, in complete agreement upon all 20 of the Commission reports. Most of the reports contain dissent, separate statements, or reservations by one or more of the Commissioners. These were directed usually not to a Commission report as a whole, but to specific recommendations therein."

In 1956, Percival Brundage, director of the Bureau of the Budget, appeared before the Appropriations Committee of the House of Representatives and was questioned by Chairman Cannon about the statements of one of the Hoover Commission officials that 4 billion dollars could be saved by a change in the budgetary system. The most that Mr. Cannon could get Mr. Brundage to say about this advertised 4 billion dollar savings was the statement that he (Mr. Brundage) felt satisfied such a change would bring about savings of several million dollars. He did not so much as use the term, billion.

You can see from these reports there is a great deal of controversy as to what can and cannot be done soild all of the Hoover Commission's recommendations be adopted. Of course, every dime that can be saved should be saved, and will be saved if I have my way.

As of October 15, 1956, the Executive Branch has implemented 22.4 percent of the Commission's recommendations it has accepted; had 39.3 percent in process of implementation, and had accepted in substance but not started 29.1 percent.

The 84th Congress enacted 36 laws, 2 House Resolutions and 1 Senate Resolution which put into effect about 55, or about 33 percent, of the 167 recommendations identified by the Commission as requiring action by the Congress in order to be made effective.

PONTECOURNE, Italy (UP) — A burly truck driver, annoyed at the motorist behind him in a traffic jam Wednesday who was leaning on his horn, climbed down and slapped the short driver's face. Police said that when they revived the truck driver they told him the little driver was European lightweight boxing champion Duilio Lot.

WASHINGTON (UP)—Rep. Emmet F. Byrne (R-Ill.) said he didn't know a Washington legislative service had credited him with having the best economy record of the Cook County, Ill., congressional delegation until a colleague told him so.

"I don't subscribe to the service," Byrne said, "it's too expensive."

DERBY DUNK — When a fella's racing in the Soap Box Derby, he doesn't have time for a real dunk to cool off. So Alan Gage of Dallas, Tex., simply filled his helmet and let 'er pour. The temperature was over 100 degrees.

"But I AM drying the dishes!"

Estimates Up For '57 Crop Production

WASHINGTON (UP) — Production estimates for the 1957 crop are creeping upward despite government efforts to cut farm output through acreage controls and the soil bank.

Under the impact of a month of hot, humid weather in important growing areas, crop prospects for 1957 now indicate total production approaching the average of the last five years. The Agriculture Department's August crop report Friday said the 1957 crop would not equal the harvests of 1956 and 1955 because of "irregular growth and maturity resulting from planting delays, some sectional setbacks, and sizable acreage reductions in important crops."

Even so, the all crop production index now stands at 103 per cent of the 1947-49 base, matching the output in 1953 and 1952. The record level of 1956 and 1948 was 106 per cent. The excellent growing conditions in July raised the present indicated production index from 99 per cent recorded a month ago.

The department said crops gaining in production prospects during July include corn, rice, and sugar beets. "Significant to small" decreases in output since July 1 were indicated for winter and spring wheat, oats, barley, flaxseed, hay, tobacco, and potatoes. The sorghum grain crop probably will be about three-fourths larger than the 1955 record. The soybean crop, despite increased acreage, may be 6 per cent under last year. Among production estimates: Oats, 1,316,000,000 bushels, 18 per cent more than last year; sorghum grain, 418,000,000 bushels, twice as large as last year's crop; hay, 119,000,000 tons, 9 per cent more than last year; soybeans 428,000,000 bushels, 6 per cent less than last year; fall potatoes, 154,900,000 hundredweight, 7 per cent less than last year; apples, 115,600,000 bushels, 15 per cent more than last year; tobacco, 1,609,000-

Quotes In The News

LONDON — Adlai Stevenson, on an attack against Queen Elizabeth by Lord Altringham:

"I have seen (his) remarks... I would like to say I have met her and find her charming, most entertaining, very beautiful, lovely, extremely perceptive and possessor of a delightful way of speaking."

WASHINGTON — Sen. Robert S. Kerr (D-Okla.), Senate Finance Committee member, on the Federal Reserve Board's authorizing 12 federal district banks to increase their basic interest rates:

"Increases in the cost of living will result. It is like fighting a forest fire with the bucket brigade using gasoline. The taxpayers, borrowers and consumers will pay the penalty."

Besides acreage cuts, soil bank participation, and decreased plantings of certain high-yielding varieties, the tobacco crop was hit hard by the East Coast drought.

WASHINGTON — Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) on Maxwell Gluck, President Eisenhower's controversial choice for ambassador to Ceylon: "I am wondering whether it wouldn't be in the best interests of the United States to reassign (Gluck). It may be embarrassing to him but we are asking a lot of people in the United States.

ORO GRANDE, N.M. — Owen Prather, 76, on his older brother John's dispute with the Army over his ranch: "I feel the same way about my land as my big brother does. I won't give it up without a fight."
