Scientists Await First US Satellite

By JAMES BAAR
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—Nerve-tight scientists manned radio tracking stations around the earth today waiting for the first U.S. satellite to roar into space.
The "minitrack" tracking station at San Diego, Calif., was the key test point.
If it picked up the satellite's rippling beeps that would be conclusive proof the satellite was orbiting the world.
Scientists said the satellite in its 17,000-mile-an-hour flight would circle San Diego in about 90 minutes. They said before that the satellite—too small to see with binoculars or the naked eye—would blaze a course over the South Atlantic, Angola and Bechuanaland in Africa, the ancient Indian Ocean, New Guinea and the Caroline and Hawaiian Islands.
If the brightly aluminum-coated satellite failed to orbit the earth it probably would drop somewhere in the lonely South Atlantic.
Dr. John P. Hagen, chief of Project Vanguard which is in charge of shooting the satellite into space, and other officials planned to call a news conference here "within two hours" of the satellite's launching to announce its success or failure in reaching an earth-girdling orbit.
Vanguard headquarters at the Naval research laboratory here continued to insist the scheduled launching was primarily a test of the Vanguard rocket. They said if an orbit that would be "an extra."
Vanguard officials already had made clear that if the launching were a complete success they were ready to scrap the launching of three more six-inch test satellites and plunge into launching the instrument-jammed model.

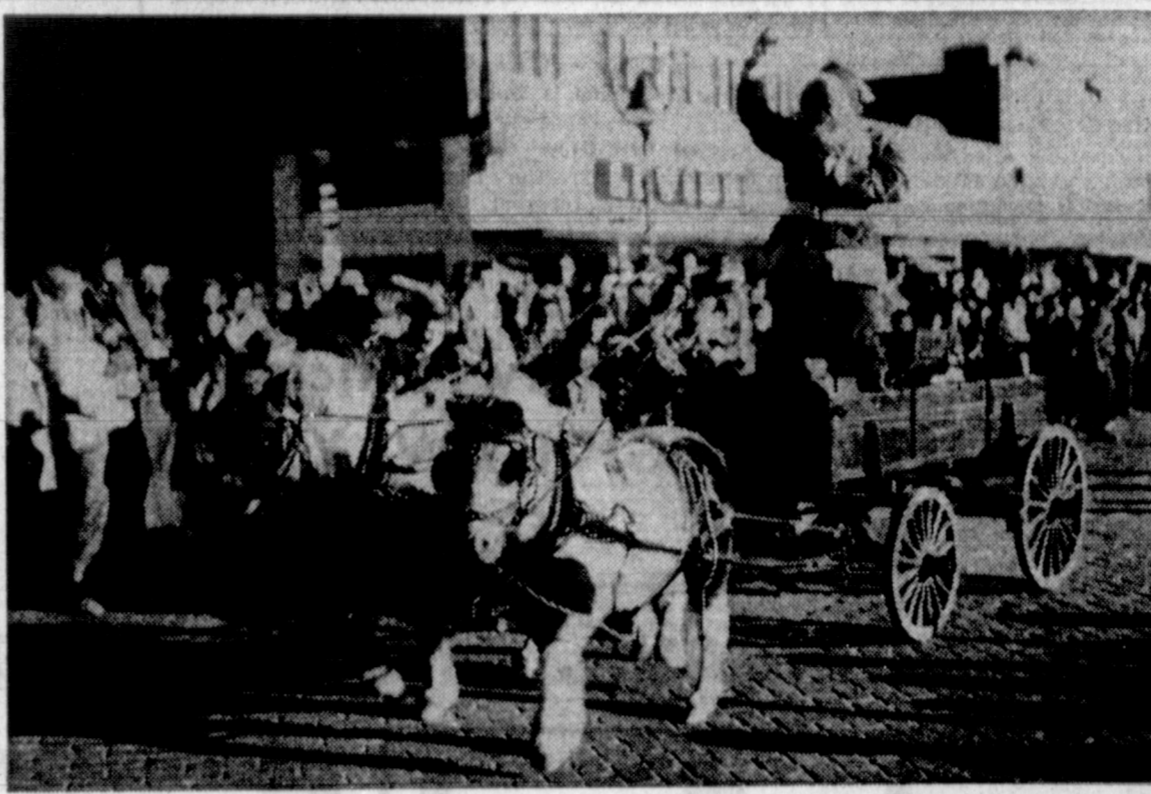

US Satellite Launching Delayed

If Fired Today, Will Be Late In Afternoon

By WILLIAM J. TUCKER
United Press Staff Correspondent
CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UP)—The timetable for this nation's first attempt to launch an earth satellite was upset today and it appeared that a moon-carrying rocket will not be fired before 4 p.m. (e.s.t.), if at all today.
Mechanical trouble had nothing to do with the delay. The weather could further delay the firing.
The 11-hour countdown preceding the scheduled firing did not begin until 5 a.m. e.s.t., largely because the Navy's Vanguard project's satellite team waited for another missile to be fired during the night.
"Everything is O.K. except that we're running a little late," a Navy source said.
Delayed by Technicalities
It turned out the other missile, identified as a Snark, was not fired after all because of technical difficulties.
The Navy source said that everything appeared to be in readiness for a successful launching as the countdown began at this missile launching site on Florida's east coast.
During the countdown period, every member of the launching team rehearsed their assignments until all are letter perfect when the big shoot is ready to go.
Threatening clouds coming in from the Atlantic at the Air Force test center could pose an additional possibility of delay, especially if the weather front is accompanied by strong winds. Rain would not interfere with the firing but the missile could not be launched in a strong wind.
Takes Only 16 Minutes
Once it was shot, the success or failure of the first full-fledged satellite test by this nation would be determined in 16 breathtaking minutes. In that time the rocket would have completed its three stages of flight to a height of 300 miles and a distance of 1,500 miles.
If everything went well, the satellite would be left spinning in orbit around the earth twice every three hours. Its small transmitter, using six slender horns for antennae, would send out a steady signal for tracking stations to use in confirming the orbit.
The Defense Department in Washington said it would have a statement two hours after the launching, indicating it would take that long to confirm whether an orbit had been achieved.
Calm Necessary
The Vanguard, a skinny three-stage rocket 72 feet long and only 45 inches in diameter at its base, could not be safely launched in wind higher than 20 knots. A gusty front was forecast for late today, coming in from the Atlantic against bleak Cape Canaveral with its forest of missile towers.
So long as the towers, which are mazes of scaffolding on rails topped by gantry cranes, surround the missile they are safe from the elements. But they must be hauled away before the big rockets are fueled and fired.
The Navy and its civilian scientists were confident that an orbit could be achieved with the softball size test sphere. The Vanguard project calls for several of these small test launchings this month and an effort with a 20-pounder early next year.

First National Buys Pursley Property

The sale of Pursley Motor Company property to the First National Bank was announced this morning by Ervin Pursley.
The property, which is located at the corner of Ballard and Foster, includes the building which now houses the show room, garage and other facilities of the motor company.
The sale price was not announced.
Pursley this morning said he wanted the people of this area to know that the Pursley Motor Company is not going out of business.
The firm will build a "new, bigger and better building someplace out of the downtown shopping district," Pursley said. Pursley has leased the property from the bank until Dec. 31, 1958, but said that "we will move as soon as possible." The exact site of the new building to house the firm has not been decided yet, he added.
The transaction was completed yesterday on the building and lot.

Pilgrimage At End For Mrs. Carreon

By KEN SINER
United Press Staff Correspondent
SAN JUAN, Tex. (UP)—Mrs. Manuel Carreon, who swore to make a 387-mile pilgrimage to the Mission of San Juan if her son were acquitted of a murder charge, finally made it today in a truck driven by her son.
Mrs. Carreon, 47, had expected to walk all the way. But she actually walked 109 miles. Nevertheless her feet were swollen and she appeared near exhaustion.
Father Jose Aspiazu, pastor of the mission, absolved her of her vow because of a heart ailment and told her to ride the rest of the way. Mrs. Carreon lives in Galveston.
The first thing she did when she reached the shrine was to pray for a moment and light a candle for the acquittal of her son, Alfonso. She brought with her a bagful of nickels that had been given to her one at a time, while she was walking.
"You are to give thanks to everybody who has prayed for me," she told the son. "We hope good luck for everybody."
After visiting the shrine, Mrs. Carreon, her son and her husband ate a hearty breakfast. Father Jose advised them to eat before doing more than visit the shrine briefly.
Mrs. Carreon's husband had followed her in the truck. Under her vow, she could not sleep in a bed during the pilgrimage. Her son was acquitted last Wednesday and she at once started preparing for her pilgrimage.
She set out last Thursday and stopped in the middle of the afternoon Tuesday when she heard that Father Jose had absolved her from her vow.
Mrs. Carreon was still wearing the same pair of rubber-soled shoes in which she began her journey from Galveston.
She complained her "feet are sick" and was visibly pained with each step she took.
The husband said the family visited the shrine two or three times a year.

Help Reaches Disabled Freighter

HONOLULU (UP)—The American President Lines cargo liner President Monroe early today reached the disabled Greek freighter Margarita Chandris, wallowing helplessly in the path of a hurricane west of here.
The Coast Guard received a report at 4:35 a.m. (9:35 a.m. e.s.t.) saying the Monroe was alongside the freighter, which radioed Tuesday afternoon that it was out of control in heavy seas with 31 men aboard.
Using a radar fix, the Coast Guard placed the Margarita Chandris at 478 miles due west of Honolulu, directly in the path of Hurricane Nina, which lashed the Hawaiian islands last weekend.
The hurricane was 420 miles due west of Honolulu early this morning and was moving toward the freighter at eight miles an hour.
It was not clear whether the engines of the Margarita Chandris were out of order or whether something had happened to her steering apparatus.
During the Monroe's fast dash through heavy seas, it was reported a woman slipped on deck and broke her hip.
The U.S. Coast Guard also ordered the cutter Winniebag to the scene.

Democrats Blast Ike Administration

WASHINGTON (UP)—Democratic Congressional leaders complained today the Eisenhower administration still has not shown the sense of crisis needed to answer the Soviet challenge to leadership in the space age.
This criticism came from dominant Democrats in Congress even though they were told Tuesday the administration is planning a two billion dollar step-up in spending for half a dozen military programs including missile development.
President Eisenhower presided at most of Tuesday's four-hour bipartisan conference with 21 Congressional leaders on defense and foreign policy. He planned to brief foreign policy. He planned to be on hand again today for a second meeting, just for Republican Congressional leaders, on the administration's domestic legislative program for next year.
On the basis of Tuesday's talks GOP leaders were convinced the President will submit to Congress next month a very tight but balanced budget for the fiscal year beginning next July 1.
From those attending the conference Tuesday came these reports:
More Defense Money
—The defense budget for the next fiscal year will be $9 to 10 billion dollars compared with the present estimate of $8,400,000,000 for the fiscal year ending next June 30.
—There will be a two billion dollar increase over this year in some defense spending programs, including missile and anti-missile development, dispersal of long range bomber bases, the anti-submarine program, satellite development and outer space research, and a 400 million dollar military pay increase aimed partly at keeping scientific and technical personnel in service.
—The administration will try to offset this two billion dollar increase at least in part by economizing in other parts of the defense budget and in non-defense spending.
—Congress will be asked to approve a $3,940,000,000 foreign aid program, an increase of about half a billion over the amount Congress approved this year.
—The administration wants the Reciprocal Trade Program, due to expire next June 30, extended for five years instead of the customary one to three years.
Thinks Increase Justified
"I think the two billion increase for defense can be justified, but I believe cuts can be made elsewhere in the defense and overall budget so that the total budget will be no higher than this year," said Chairman Styles Bridges of the Senate Republican Policy Committee. "I think the President will make every effort to do that."
Other GOP leaders also appeared satisfied with the administration program.
But Speaker Sam Rayburn said he did not know "whether they (the administration) have the sense of urgency they should have."
Senate Democratic leader Lyndon B. Johnson said he felt as he did before that "one thing this administration needs right now is a good dose of urgency."

Girard Loses Rank, Will Be Discharged

CAMP DREW, Japan (UP)—The U.S. Army broke William S. Girard from specialist third class to private today and announced he would be sent home Friday and discharged.
Girard, subdued but happy, removed the rating stripes from his uniform and then relaxed with the newsmen in the mess hall here for the first time since he shot and killed a 46-year-old woman scrap metal scavenger at the Camp Weir firing range more than 10 months ago.
The Army said Girard and his Japanese wife, 29-year-old Haru (Candy) Sueyama, would leave for the United States Friday aboard the military transport USS Aboardson.
The blond, 22-year-old soldier from Ottawa, Ill., said he was not embittered at his manslaughter conviction and did not hold anything against the Army or the Japanese people.
The Army said Secretary of the Army Wilbur M. Brucker will decide what kind of a discharge Girard will get after reviewing the recommendations to be made by the department of the Army staff.
Army sources indicated Girard would not get a bad conduct or dishonorable discharge. He would have to be court-martialed first. But he could get a general or undesirable discharge under the Army's administrative powers.

Teen-Age Boys Launch 'Mousenik' Pancake Supper 'Success'

AUSTIN, Minn. (UP)—A group of teen-age boys, coached by a Roman Catholic nun, today disclosed how they sent a mouse-carrying rocket more than 1,600 feet into the air last weekend.
The stainless steel missile, nearly five feet long and about one and one-half inches in diameter, plummeted to earth with such force that all but four inches was buried in frozen earth.
Sister Duns Scotus, a physics and chemistry teacher at the Pacelli Parochial High School and adult sponsor of the informal Austin Rocket Society, said the boys "Mousenik" climaxed more than 18 months of experimentation.
Leaders of the informal organization were Richard King and Paul Germer, both 17, who are seniors at the Pacelli school. At least eight other members of the group attend rural public high schools.
Sister Duns Scotus said all the credit belongs to the boys.
She said the boys already have begun efforts to salvage the rocket and get it in readiness for other flights.

Okla. Defeats Beer Option Election

OKLAHOMA CITY (UP)—Oklahoma's convincing defeat of a proposed constitutional amendment providing for county option on 3.2 beer was viewed today as a step toward repeal of the state's 50-year-old prohibition law.
Repeal forces announced they will launch their campaign within 30 days to legalize whisky.
Although 43 of the state's 77 counties voted for the United Drys' petition, the remaining 34 counties, which included the big city group, killed the proposal by a thumping 62,000 vote majority. All 11 of the counties which voted wet in the 1949 repeal election stayed wet.
The vote means beer will continue to be sold on a statewide basis as it has since 1933.
Springboard to Repeal
Dick Wilson, head of a recently organized repeal group, the Christian League for Legal Control, interpreted the beer victory as a springboard for outright repeal.
"This is just what we have been waiting for," Wilson said. "We'll get into real prohibition now. Our billboards have been ordered for January and we're ready to go. We will initiate a petition next year and have a model control bill attached to it so the voters will know what they are voting for."
"I don't believe we were voting on local option, but on the wet or dry issue," Wilson said. "I think it indicates we are growing up and are ready to take our place with other states."
"Next year when Oklahomans have an opportunity to vote on legal control versus bootleg control, they will show the same thing again."
Oklahoma is one of the last two legally dry states in the nation. Total ballots cast Tuesday were about 90,000 below that of the 1949 repeal election when citizens voted dry for the sixth time since statehood.
State Sen. George Miskovsky, Oklahoma City Democrat who is running for governor on a repeal platform, said "Tuesday's election definitely shows the end of bootleg control and hypocrisy in Oklahoma and will usher in a new era of legal control of all alcoholic beverages."
Dr. Stanley Niles, executive secretary of the drys, blamed indifference of the public and "the overwhelming financial power of wet" for the loss.

'Antler Queen' Crowned At White Deer

SKELLYTOWN — James McKernan, escort of Virginia McGee, crowned her "Queen of the 1958 Antler" in a setting of a Greek temple in the White Deer High School auditorium Saturday evening.

The Greek temple was made of three groups of white columns topped with silver cornices and lighted with blue lights that added a misty effect.

Attendees for Miss McGee were Deborah Evans, crown-bearer; Princess J'Non U'Fancy and escort, Mike Germany; Princess Priscilla Moss and Arlen Kaiser; Princess Marilyn Kotara and Ronnie Cade; and Princess Lee Anne Crowson and Rocky Coffee.

Others who assisted with the program were: Donny Rapstine as the master of ceremonies; Mary Buchanan played the processional; and Tom McGee played the trumpet solo introducing "her majesty" and her attendants.

Each of the princesses received a corsage of white carnations, and the queen carried white carnations.

The program consisted of music from Pampa High School; a dance number, "Showtime," by Kay Kotara, and Linda Diane Moore; cello style music, old time favorites, and popular music by Frank Phillips College group.

The purpose of the program was to raise funds for the 1958 Antler.

Swanson Gets Cup From Toastmasters

Bob Swanson was awarded the cup for the best speech at the meeting of the Pampa Toastmasters Club last night.

Toastmaster for the meeting was Otis Petty and speeches were made by W. A. Morgan and Swanson.

Swanson spoke on the subject, "What Is Wrong With Our Schools?" He said that if our local and state educators do not take steps to bring up our own education standards, then that will be an indication to the federal government for further encroachment on our school system.

Time is money, he explained the facts that we wouldn't actually throw money out of the window, but we were doing just that when we wasted our own or our employer's time.

James Hart was a guest at the meeting last night.

The Toastmasters meet at 6:15 each Tuesday evening at Poole's Steak House and invite those interested in public speaking to attend the meetings. Lloyd Kuntz, vice-president, reported.

Farmers' Tax Guide Available

Farm and ranch families need information on income and social security taxes were reminded by County Agent Ralph Thomas today that the 1958 Farmers' Tax Guide is now available at his office.

Thomas says that the 64-page reference publication is not materially changed from last year's popular edition. The booklet, provided by the Internal Revenue Service, is written in easy-to-understand language with many income and social security tax items covered in detail.

Farm records are emphasized as a need for accurate tax reporting, points out Thomas. Families desiring assistance with business or living records are advised to contact their local county extension agents.

Farmers and ranchmen who keep a close watch on their business operations often find that they do much better tax management job when records are kept. The new tax guide will also assist by pointing out helpful tax rights and options.

Because the supply of the Tax Guide may not be sufficient to enable every family to have a copy, Thomas suggests that the copy be shared with a neighbor.

RC Chapters Plan Party At Air Base
A special Christmas party will be given on Dec. 22 by the Pampa and Amarillo Chapters of the American Red Cross in the Amarillo Air Force Base Hospital.

There is still a need for crinoline Christmas stockings to be filled to give the men in the hospital, according to Red Cross officials. The stockings being used are of either red or green crinoline, filled with candy fruit, cookies, small puzzles, games, books and such items as writing materials, stamps and other things that might come in handy to a hospital patient.

The stockings should be brought in to the Red Cross office in the basement of the City Hall around Dec. 16.

Several clubs and organizations have already contributed a large number of stockings; yet, several dozen are still needed to make sure they go around.

Ministers Hold Monthly Meet

The monthly meeting of the Pampa Ministerial Alliance was held yesterday at 9 a.m. in the Church of the Brethren, Rev. James Minnick, president, officiating.

Reports were given on the Thanksgiving Service which was held in the Central Baptist Church on Thanksgiving Day and the total offering which will go to CRGP was $112.10. Discussions and evaluations of the RIAL program held in November were on the agenda, and it was decided by the MA members that plans for such a program should be made earlier next year and include more lay organizations and incorporations and groups in order to have even a greater success than this year's.

The meeting place for the coming year was designated as the Harrah Methodist Church. It is customary to have the meetings in the church of the president of the group.

Meetings are held on the first Tuesday following the first Sunday of the month.

They also voted to run an ad in the Pampa Daily News thanking and expressing their appreciation to both radio stations for broadcasting the Thanksgiving services and the Pampa High School A Capella Choir for music presented during the service.

Woman And 7 Children Die In Fire

MARIANNA, Ark. (UP)—Mrs. Ethel B. Bowers, a Negro, and her seven children perished Tuesday night in a fire that destroyed their home.

Mrs. Bowers' husband, J. L. Bowers, was off hunting when his family was wiped out. Sheriff S. C. Langston said today that all eight of the victims were in their beds.

The children ranged in age from 10 to one year. The fire was discovered about 9:30 p.m. But when Mr. and Mrs. Reuben White, upon whose farm the family lived, noticed the fire, it had engulfed the house.

Mrs. White said she heard no explosion. A new wood burning stove was installed in the home last week. But Langston said he had no immediate explanation of how the fire started.

It was early today before the ashes had cooled enough to allow removal of the bodies.

CoC Directors Meet Monday

A meeting of the Board of Directors of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce will be held Monday, Dec. 9, in the Palm Room of the City Hall at 12 noon.

Henderson, president, who stated this morning that several suggestions submitted in the roundtable meeting recently will be included in this year's program of work. Committee chairmen are also invited to attend this meeting.

Stolen Purse Is Returned

The purse belonging to Mrs. J. B. Hilburn, 317 N. Starweather, which she reported stolen Monday afternoon, was returned to her yesterday.

She told officers at 5:45 yesterday afternoon that the purse and all of the contents had been returned yesterday. She did not state who returned the purse, according to Jim Conner, chief of police.

Mrs. Hilburn had reported the purse stolen while she was shopping in a local department store Monday afternoon.

Lions' Party Is Tomorrow

The program will be presented by a group from the high school, emceed by Billy Hassell, with a variety of Christmas music presented.

Homer Craig will be in charge of special presentations and act as emcee over the dinner-party.

No Compensation Awarded In Suit

Following the completion of testimony in the case of Wesley Lewis against Cree Drilling Co. in the 31st District Court of Gray County last night, the court ruled that Lewis was not due compensation.

Lewis had claimed compensation for an injury to his arm he stated he received on Aug. 16, 1955, when he was struck by the propeller of a Cree plane.

Testimony in the case of L. I. Armstrong against the American Motorists Insurance Co. began this morning in 31st District Court following the selection of the jury for the civil suit.

The measure, while not naming the NAACP specifically, is generally understood to have been aimed at that organization. The bill provides that any organization whose activities "hinder, harass or interfere" in operation of the public schools may be required to register its members and request of a county judge.

Gonzalez, who spoke for 20 hours against Gov. Daniel's "anti-NAACP" bill, tried unsuccessfully to speak on a resolution he introduced seeking to put the Senate on record as opposing destruction of the public schools. Gonzalez said his resolution was introduced in good faith and offered the Senate an opportunity to endorse "principles that have been time-honored."

"I'll be glad to speak for only five or 10 minutes," Gonzalez said. "Or, if you give me a chance, a few hours."

Resolution Killed
The registration bill had been previously approved by the House last week.

A last-ditch effort by opponents of the bill in the House failed after the Senate action. Rep. Eligio de la Garza of Mission introduced a resolution saying "A one-vote margin does not reflect the opinion of the people of Texas," and asking the House to instruct Speaker Waggoner Carr not to sign the bill.

The resolution died a quick death when Carr pointed out the speaker was under constitutional obligation to sign all bills passed by the House and de la Garza's resolution would have no effect whatsoever.

Services will be conducted in McLean tomorrow at 10 a.m. in the First Methodist Church in McLean, with Rev. Jack Riley, of

County Buys Two Trucks

The Commissioner's Court of Gray County took up several items of importance in its meeting Monday which included accepting bids for a half-ton truck and a two-ton truck.

The commission approved the bid of Culberson Chevrolet for the half-ton pickup truck and approved its purchase at $1399.98 for a Precinct 1. The two-ton truck was purchased from Rex Rose Ford following a bid of $2778.04. It will be used in Precinct 4.

Four additions to the City of Pampa were approved by the commission and included the approval of the amended Fraser Annex, Number 3; approved E. Fraser Annex, Number 3; Country Club Heights, and the Boyd Annex.

Monthly bills were also paid and other routine items handled.

31st District Court of Gray County last night, the court ruled that Lewis was not due compensation.

Lewis had claimed compensation for an injury to his arm he stated he received on Aug. 16, 1955, when he was struck by the propeller of a Cree plane.

Gray To Battle For One-Year Wage Freeze

By JOHN CLANCY
United Press Staff Correspondent
ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UP)—Labor leader Richard J. Gray said today he has just begun to fight for his proposal for a one-year freeze on wages of building trades workers.

Gray stuck to his plan despite critics of "treason" from other union officials and a personal scolding from AFL-CIO President George Meany.

"I've got some nice compliments," said the 71-year-old chief of the powerful AFL-CIO Building Trades Department. "Three hundred telegrams, some from rank and file union members, and not one disagreeing with me."

Think Others Interested
Gray said he felt that leaders of building trades unions, almost all of whom rejected the plan upon first hearing, were "coming around" after he explained the details.

The wage moratorium which has drawn the fire is merely the first step, Gray insisted. The second step would be formation of a committee representing every phase of the building industry to see if the construction slump could be reversed.

"How the hell good is $5 an hour if you don't get a chance to earn it?" Gray asked.

Meany, appearing at the convention where Gray presided, said the proposal sounded like it came from the president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

Other Unions Complain
Leaders of industrial unions—whose members average about $1.50 an hour less than building trades—voiced the angriest complaints.

The Executive Board of the International Union of Electrical Workers (IUE) said the proposal was "harmful" and amounted to "treason to trade unionism."

The IUE repeated Meany's basic argument—that the nation's economy depended on mass purchasing power achieved through

Rites Set For Judge Allen

(Special to The News)
PERRYTON.—Funeral services have been set for 2:30 p.m. tomorrow for Judge Jack Allen, 64, of the 87th District Court, in the First Baptist Church in Perryton.

"Our" satellite was scheduled to be launched today and since it seems to be a necessity, it is a reassuring feeling.

But the news of this hard-to-believe modern step reminds us of the sharp contrast between the atomic-jet speed age and the "good old slow days."

Do you remember when it was necessary to wring a chicken's neck as the first step towards the frying pan? To our childish eyes, this was the most fiendish custom ever executed by a gentle housewife and one that we could never watch.

Do you remember when the horse-drawn ice cream wagon, with its tinkling bell, made its daily rounds in the afternoon just at nap-time? Do you remember when children wore long underwear with the legs wound tightly so that wrinkles would not show through the black cotton stockings. Stockings that were always breaking at the wrong time.

Do you remember the wondrously-filled glass candy case, which held licorice sticks, hoar-hound candy, jaw-breakers, two-for-a-penny all-day suckers. The glass was so cool as we pressed our nose against it, while making our hour long penny selection. And do you remember the wonderful custom of the big sack of candy, which the grocery man gave to the head-of-the-house, when he settled up the monthly bill?

Remember the big wooden pickle barrel and the huge five-cent sour pickles, which you could buy early in the morning on your way to school and would last through two recesses and the noon hour with, maybe, a secretive nibble or two during class.

Remember, too, the ice wagon that made its daily rounds and the card that must be placed in a front window to denote how many pounds you wanted that day? And remember the drip pan, under the ice-box, that was always running over in the middle of the night?

And can you remember when there were nothing but green Christmas trees and red and green ornaments?

Remember when the heavens, with its stars, moon, and sun were a glorious awing mystery with a spiritual touch... ah, those were the days.

Do you remember? Well, darlings, if you remember all this, then you're the same age as I!

Home Nursing Care—No. 4

There's Real Knack In Giving Bed Bath, You Begin At Head And Work To Feet

By AILEEN SNOODY
NEA Staff Correspondent

There is something about a bath that helps wash away cares of the day. For a person who is ill a bath means even more.

It refreshes him and also helps stimulate circulation. Many persons at home with short illnesses such as influenza often are too weak to bathe themselves. Thus giving a bed bath properly becomes a part of home nursing care.

It is essential that a patient doesn't become chilled while being bathed. Avoid this by uncovering only a part of the body at a time; wash, rinse, and dry thoroughly, and re-cover.

Always begin a bed bath from the head and work down to the feet. When bathing arms and legs, bathe the far arm and leg of the patient first. A towel under the arm or leg and against the patient's side keeps the bed dry.

But before you begin, conserve time and effort by gathering all items needed. These include a basin or pan of water about two-thirds full of hot water, bar of soap in a dish, blanket, clean nightgown or pajamas, towel and washcloth, rubbing alcohol or lotion and talcum powder.

See that the room is warm and free of drafts with windows and doors closed. Get the patient ready by removing the top bedsheet except one blanket to keep him warm. Remove his pajamas and have the patient move to the side of the bed nearest you. This will make less bending and reaching while giving the bath.

No one likes to be slapped with the cold end of a washcloth, so make a mitten of it or at least gather all loose ends in the hand. The water shouldn't become too soapy and difficult to rinse. One way to prevent this is to keep the soap in a soap dish when not in use. If the water cools or becomes too soapy, change it but leave the patient warmly covered while doing this.

Begin with the patient's face, neck and ears and avoid getting soap in his eyes. A towel across his chest will catch any drippings.

The arms are next, with the far arm first. Next fold the blanket down to the patient's waist and wash the chest. Keep a towel over his chest until you dry it to prevent chill. With the towel still across the chest, wash, rinse, and dry abdomen. The legs and feet are next. Remember to uncover only one leg at a time, and wash the far leg first.

The water may have cooled by the time you go from top to toe. Replace it before bathing the back. During this operation the patient may be on his side with his back toward you or on his abdomen. A towel alongside the back will protect the bed.

After washing the back a patient may like a back rub. You know how wonderful a back rub feels when you are well. It is relaxing for an ill person and the skin also needs special care at this time as it is more tender and irritated easily.

Warm rubbing alcohol or body lotion by placing the bottle in a basin of warm water for a few minutes before using. It will be more soothing. With the patient on his side or abdomen, fold blanket back to his hips and arrange pajamas or gown so only the back and buttocks are uncovered. Use a towel to keep the bed dry as during bathing.

Pour a little of the solution in your palm and rub hands to gether. Now rub back, shoulders and buttocks with palms. Pay especial attention to the small of the back, neck and shoulders. Remoisten hands as often as necessary.

A good back rub should last at least three minutes. Then dry and powder the patient's back. This may be the time you will want to change sheets and put clean pajamas on the patient.

Next: Changing the bed.

ASSISTANT TRAINER DIES

MIAMI (UP)—Bart Sweeney, 57-year-old assistant to veteran trainer Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons, died following a heart attack Tuesday. RUANE SHOULD BE AWARDED THE RACING "ROOKIE OF YEAR"

By JACK CUDDY
United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UP)—"It's sad indeed that racing has no 'rookie-of-the-year' star award that could be handed to such a deserving little apprentice as Irish John Ruane for his 1957 riding achievements. Perhaps his 114 winners at Jamaica, Belmont and Saratoga—and at least 20 others at lesser tracks—will inspire the Thoroughbred Racing Associations to establish a rookie plaque.

Apprentices have been overlooked by the TRA, which has its horse of the year and its "best" in each age division. They likewise have been slighted by the New York Turf Writers' Association, which has its best jockey, trainer, etc., but no top rookie designation.

Won Kentucky Derby
At 21, sorrel-thatched, fair-complexioned Ruane has captivated American racing fans more completely than any apprentice since the remarkable novitiate of Bill Danford.

That's rich, indeed, for the four-foot-11, 105-pounder, who never rode anything but a plough horse on his father's farm in County Mayo of the Emerald Isle.

Entirely unofficial estimates of Wee John's earnings this year place them at between $30,000 and $40,000. And the hardboiled Broadway predict "fifty grand and up" for 1958.

Jordan Of Auburn Named UP Coach Of The Week

AUBURN, Ala. (UP)—He coached "the greatest team I ever worked with" to a 10-0 record seven years after the same college blushed because of a 0-10 season.

He had pride written all over his warm face as he called the accomplishment "the dream of a lifetime."

He didn't even seem to care that his team—unbeaten and untied—also is "ineligible" for a bowl trip.

He's James Ralph (Shug) Jordan.

Shockers Defeat Phillips "B" Team In 61-45 Tilt

The Pampa Shockers rolled to their second victory of the season last night as they drubbed the Phillips "B" team, 61-45, in the Blackhawk gymnasium.

The sophomore squad was sparked by Craig Winborn, who accounted for 22 points during the evening. Following Winborn was Mert Cooper with 10 points and Joe Timms with eight.

The game was the third for Coach Terry Culley's basketballers, having lost their opener to Claude, 41-37, and defeated Childress "B" team, 57-35 last Saturday.

Next game is scheduled with the Elk City "B" team, slated to begin at 8:30 p.m. Friday in Harvester Field House.

Bear To Get $17,500 At Alabama Post

HOUSTON, Tex. (UP)—Paul (Bear) Bryant will receive an annual salary of $17,500 under his new 10-year contract as coach and athletic director at his alma mater, the University of Alabama.

Dr. Frank A. Rose, president-elect at Alabama, announced the terms of Bryant's contract Tuesday night from his hospital bed in Lexington, Ky., where he is confined with a slipped disc. Bryant was receiving $15,000 annually at Texas A&M.

Dr. Rose, who takes over his new post at Alabama on the same day Bryant moves in, said Bryant would have "free rein" to bring his entire coaching staff with him from Texas A&M. He said Jerry Claiborne, now an assistant at Missouri and a former member of Bryant's A&M staff, would also come to Alabama.

Bryant's action in signing the contract came less than 24 hours after he asked for and received a release from the final seven years of his 10-year contract with A&M. At Alabama he will succeed J.B. (Ears) Whitworth as coach and will assume the athletic directorship which has been held by Hank Crisp.

Dr. Rose said Bryant would send a "skeleton crew" from his coaching staff this week to aid the present Alabama staff with the recruiting players through Dec. 10. Bryant and his staff are still faced with the job of preparing the Aggies for their Gator Bowl clash with Tennessee Dec. 29.

The tall, amiable Bryant told the United Press he wanted known emphatically that "terms are not a factor in my decision to change."

"If they were," he said, "I would not leave Texas A&M."

Bryant has considerable investments close to the Texas A&M campus and a television program in Houston and Bryant that pushed his total income to an estimated $40,000 annually.

Bryant said he was "happy to come home" and pledged to do his best to help build a well-rounded athletic program at Alabama. He said the new job "is a great challenge to me."

Dr. Rose, who is hospitalized with a slipped disc, told newsmen that Alabama feels "we have secured, to our way of thinking, the best football coach in the country."

Detroit Lions Are Giants' Only Hope Of Gaining NFL Title

By EARL WRIGHT
United Press Sports Writer
Coach Jim Lee Howell believes the Detroit Lions will keep his New York Giants "alive" in the National Football League's Eastern Division race Sunday by whipping the Cleveland Browns.

Detroit is New York's only hope. The Giants, defending league and Eastern Division champions, trail Coach Paul Brown's Cleveland team by 1 1/2 games with only two games to go.

A tie or a victory against Detroit will give the Browns the tie before the Giants get a crack at them in New York Dec. 15.

Howell also knows the Lions need a victory to stay in the Western Division race. The Lions and San Francisco 49ers trail the first-place Baltimore Colts by a game. The Giants can sweat out the Detroit-Cleveland game in front of their TV sets because New York plays the Steelers at Pittsburgh Saturday afternoon.

Close Game Expected
The oddsmakers back Howell's belief that the Lions may do his Giants a favor. The Browns and Lions are rated even for their Briggs Stadium game. The Giants are favored over the Steelers by 7/8, and the 49ers are 2 1/2 point choices to beat the visiting Colts in the other key game.

In Sunday's other games, the Bears are favored over the Cardinals by six for their annual Chicago clash, the Rams are favored over the Green Bay Packers by 7/8 at Los Angeles and the Redskins are favored over the Philadelphia Eagles by seven at Washington.

Tommy O'Connell, who tops the league's passing standings, has a sprained ankle and may not play for Cleveland. Mill Plum, a rookie from Penn State, is Cleveland's No. 2 signal-caller. Layne, who led Detroit to victory over Cleveland in the 1952 and 1953 championship games, has a bruised shoulder.

Colts in Good Shape
The Colts are in good shape and San Francisco did not suffer any additional injuries during its 27-17 victory over the Giants last week. The Colts have won only one of 10 games in California, but this may be their year to snap that jinx.

The Steelers are in good condition but John Bookman, a defensive back, and Gene Filipski, an offensive back, may not play for the Giants. The game will start at 1:30 p.m. e.s.t.

Norb Hecker and Joe Scudero, Washington's best defensive backs, are out for the season. Lineman Tom Saldock and defensive back Rocky Ryan are out of the league lineup but all-league linebacker Chuck Bednarik is ready to play again.

The Rams, except for rookie tackle George Strugar, are set for the Packers.

This week's selections: Lions (6-4) over Browns (8-1-1), Forty-Niners (6-4) over Colts (7-3), Giants (7-3) over Steelers (4-5), Rams (4-6) over Packers (3-7), Bears (4-6) over Cardinals (2-7), Redskins (3-6-1) over Eagles (4-6).

Crow Named For Heisman Trophy Award

NEW YORK (UP)—John Crow, All-America halfback from Texas A&M, may wind up as the most honored player of the 1957 college football season.

The 22-year-old star of the Gator Bowl-bound Aggies Tuesday was named winner of the Heisman Memorial Trophy, awarded annually to the nation's outstanding player.

Crow previously was named to the United Press All-American team and was voted college football's "Back of the Year" in the United Press poll. He also was the first choice of the Chicago Cardinals in the National Football League draft.

In the balloting for the Heisman Trophy, Crow won first place by totaling 1,183 points. Alex Karas, Iowa's 233-pound All-America tackle, finished a distant second with 693 points. Walt Kowalczyk, All-America halfback from Michigan State, was third with 630.

They were followed by Lou Michaels, All-America tackle from Kentucky, with 350 points and quarterback Tom Forrestal of Navy with 232.

Other players who received votes included Jim Phillips of Auburn, Bob Anderson of Army, Dan Currie of Michigan State, Clendon Thomas of Oklahoma, Lou Grosscup of Utah, King Hill of Rice, Bob Stransky of Colorado, Bill Krisher of Oklahoma and Don Clark of Ohio State.

White Sox Trade For Five Men To "Beat The Yanks"

By MILTON RICHMAN
United Press Sports Writer
COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (UP)—The Chicago White Sox finally broke the trading lull today with a five-man deal which they are convinced "gives us the men we need" to beat the Yankees for the American League pennant in 1958.

General Manager John Rigney of the White Sox optimistically summed up the deal with the Baltimore Orioles this way:

"We had to have a first-class relief pitcher to challenge the Yankees and we got him in Ray Moore. Everyone also knew we were hurting at third base. Not any more because we're putting Billy Goodman there. And Tito Francona gives us excellent protection in the outfield."

To get Moore, Goodman and Francona, the White Sox had to turn over outfielder Larry Doby and left-handed pitcher Jack Harshman to the Orioles.

Baltimore boss, Paul Richards was even more pleased with the deal than Rigney.

"Doby should drive in plenty of runs for us and Harshman has the stuff to be one of the best pitchers in the league," he said.

The deal was made shortly before midnight Tuesday night and only a few hours previously Richards had commented on the lack of trading activity at the current baseball meetings. This one was the first of the meetings but three others are hanging fire.

The deal said to be nearest completion involves the Phillies and

SMU Drops First Two Games Of Southwest Title Defense

By UNITED PRESS
Three of the nation's top-ranked college basketball teams are off to flying starts today, but it appears the loss of Jim Krebs has wrecked Southern Methodist as a big power.

Third-ranked Bradley, seventh-ranked Kansas State and ninth-ranked Notre Dame all opened their 1957-58 campaign with smashing triumphs Tuesday night. Bradley clobbered Illinois Normal, 97-47, Kansas State crushed Texas Western, 78-31, and Notre Dame walloped St. Ambrose, 82-63.

At Iowa City, Iowa, however, SMU's Mustangs, who were rated fourth in the country last season when they compiled a 22-4 record, suffered a second loss in 24 hours when they were beaten, 65-60, in overtime by Iowa. The pre-season hope was that the loss of the six-foot-eight Krebs would mark the end of Southern Methodist's three-year reign in the Southwest Conference—and the dope appears to be standing up.

In other games Tuesday night, Joe Stevens' 23 points paced Wichita to a 66-54 triumph over Wyoming; Navy shaded American University, 70-67; St. Bonaventure whipped Siena, 76-47; Georgia Tech downed Davidson, 74-52; Auburn defeated Jacksonville State, 89-50; Gonzaga beat Whitman, 79-35, and Stanford edged out St. Mary's (Calif.), 64-60.

Kansas, the nation's No. 2 team, which opened its season with a 63-56 win over Oklahoma State Monday night, and fifth-ranked Kentucky, 78-74 victor over Duke in its opener, see action in tonight's top game, Kansas, led by seven-foot Will Chamberlain, play a tough eastern team in Canisius at Kansas City while Kentucky visits Ohio State. Pittsburgh faces Michigan, Wichita meets Texas Western and Maryland plays George Washington in other leading games.

In other top bouts, Jesse Ring decided John Fred Brown of Floydada and Jim Murray won over Austin White of Plainview. In the 160-pound division, Charles Snyder defeated Grant Cooper.

For the heavyweight portion of the night, Doug Simmons of Pampa won a decision over Harry White.

Adding to the evening, two exhibition matches were fought, with John Ironmonger opposing John Mathis at 90 pounds and Aaron Hickey tangling with Ronnie Kerr at 95 pounds.

Children's Rights

Several billions of dollars ago, the United Nations came up with an opiate dream entitled "The Declaration of Human Rights." This was supposed to be an idealistic statement of basic rights to which every human being in the world is entitled.

The heading for this spurious document was so idyllic that a great number of Americans, including the Girl Scouts, got it into their heads that the American Bill of Rights and the U. N. Declaration of Human Rights were much the same.

At least, the Girl Scouts said so in print, for which fact they were ultimately sorry, and perforce had to call back their Scout handbook and edit out the misconception.

In any case, the American Bill of Rights and the Russian-inspired Declaration are as far apart as the poles. Nor is it a slip of speech to say that the U. N. document was Russian inspired, since many of the phrases in it were copied word for word from the Russian constitution approved by Joe Stalin.

The differences in the two documents are as sharp and diverse as two statements containing the word "rights" could well be. In the American version, the characteristic is that government itself is limited. The government is admonished to "make no law" affecting speech, religion and a number of other areas of human conduct which are considered sacrosanct and above and beyond government supervision. The framers of the Bill of Rights had it in mind that rights come from God and that government, which is merely a servant, may not intrude. Government, according to the American ideal, does not bestow rights. Government can only protect to see to it that no person or agency, including government itself, deprives anyone of his rights.

But the Declaration from U. N. headquarters had it quite the other way around. According to this shameful pretended paraphrase, governments furnish the rights and the taxpayers shall be compelled to provide everything to every human being in the world, including social security, paid vacations and a perpetual rising standard of living.

With this as background, comes now another U. N. Declaration, this one outlining the "COVENANT OF CHILDREN'S RIGHTS." It is not enough, argues the embryo of world government on the East River, to insist on government provided rights for human beings. The children form a special category and must become the dependents of government in a very special way.

Nor is it "enough for the world's governments, experts and adults to know about the rights of the child and be pledged to honor them. The world's children must also be taught their rights so they will grow up expecting and demanding a sane, ordered world, from adults if possible, despite adults if necessary" (sic). The declaration of Children's Rights scheduled to come hot off the griddle from Geneva in 1958, says that "men and women of all nations, recognizing mankind owes to the child the best it has to give, declare and accept as their duty that—beyond and above all considerations of race, nationality and creed:

"1. The child must be given the means needed for its normal development—both materially and spiritually.

"2. The child that is hungry must be fed; the child that is sick must be nursed; the child that is backward must be helped; the delinquent child must be reclaimed and the orphaned and the waif must be sheltered and succored.

"3. The child must be the first to receive relief in times of distress.

"4. The child must be put in a position to earn a livelihood and must be protected against every form of exploitation.

"5. The child must be brought up in the consciousness that its talents must be devoted to the service of its fellowmen."

And in the end, it is the various governments of the world, socialistic and politically inspired though they may be, which must set up this paradise for children irrespective of the cost of such a paradise, and irrespective of the slavery and coercion such government-inspired coddling would employ.

And this must be done, despite adults if necessary. The next move, of course, will be to give the child from the age of two a complete enfranchisement so that he can vote on all troublesome issues.

What a far distance we have come from sanity.

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. Hollis

AFL-CIO Selling Envy Against Bigness

The combined American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations issues a monthly bulletin on "Economic Trends and Outlook." This bulletin is issued and paid for by tax-free money. That is, it is paid for by the dues of union members, which are deductible from their income tax. It is filled with envy and hate and propaganda against bigness.

These dreamers who have never had any experience in business and improving the lot of mankind know that they dare not attack little business. There are too many little businesses that would see through their lust for power over the lives of men. So they concentrate on selling hate and envy against big corporations — big business.

In the current list which takes about 70 inches of single-column type, they blame large corporations some two dozen times. They accuse large corporations of "administering prices," whatever that means.

Every business tries to guess at the price its agents can sell their product at. If they guess too high, they can't sell it. If they guess too low and costs are greater than the selling price, they eventually go out of business.

They complain about the profits of the large corporation. One would think, to read their propaganda, that the working man would be better off if the large corporations made no profit, or even had a loss. They seem to think that when business goes down large corporations should sell their product at less than cost and deplete their capital.

If they did that, of course, when the capital was all consumed a firm could supply no jobs. But large corporations, like small corporations, will even sell their product at less than total cost and take a loss if that loss is less than shutting down their plant and losing their employees and continuing to have fire hazards and taxes and depreciation that would be partly paid for by selling their product at a small loss.

Evidently what the editors of this magazine and the brass hats at the head of the labor unions want to do is to create enough dissatisfaction with private enterprise to get the government to step in and regulate prices and profits. In other words, they want a form of state socialism.

The bulletin gives evidence that business is slowing down. Other economic investment counselors who sell their information instead of having it furnished tax-free also see that business is slowing down and the outlook is not too good. This AFL-CIO magazine reports that new orders in August, the last date for available information, for manufacturers were 5 per cent below November 1956. It also reports that unfilled orders continued to drop in August. They were 10 per cent below the peak reached last December. And the whole gist of the bulletin is to blame this slowing down on big business and the government.

Of course they are right as far as the government is concerned. But the primary cause of prices going up and business slowing down is government and labor organizations that freeze wages. Business is nothing but an exchange of the products of labor and when one group of laborers gets its wages so high so that what it produces does not benefit other workers, then there is unemployment. If wages were not frozen by labor contracts and individual workers were permitted to sell their services to the world's highest bidder, wages would adjust rapidly so there would not be any long periods of unemployment. Provided the government also did not make laws that froze interest rates or amount of money or prices or interfered with the free and unhampered market.

It takes a long time to sell people poison and hate and to have to look ahead, as the AFL-CIO is doing, to blame unemployment on big business rather than big government and big labor. We already have laws that prevent big business or business in general from combining to interfere with the free market.

It is too bad the government permits labor unions to compel workers to pay union dues to help pay for mailing this kind of poison.

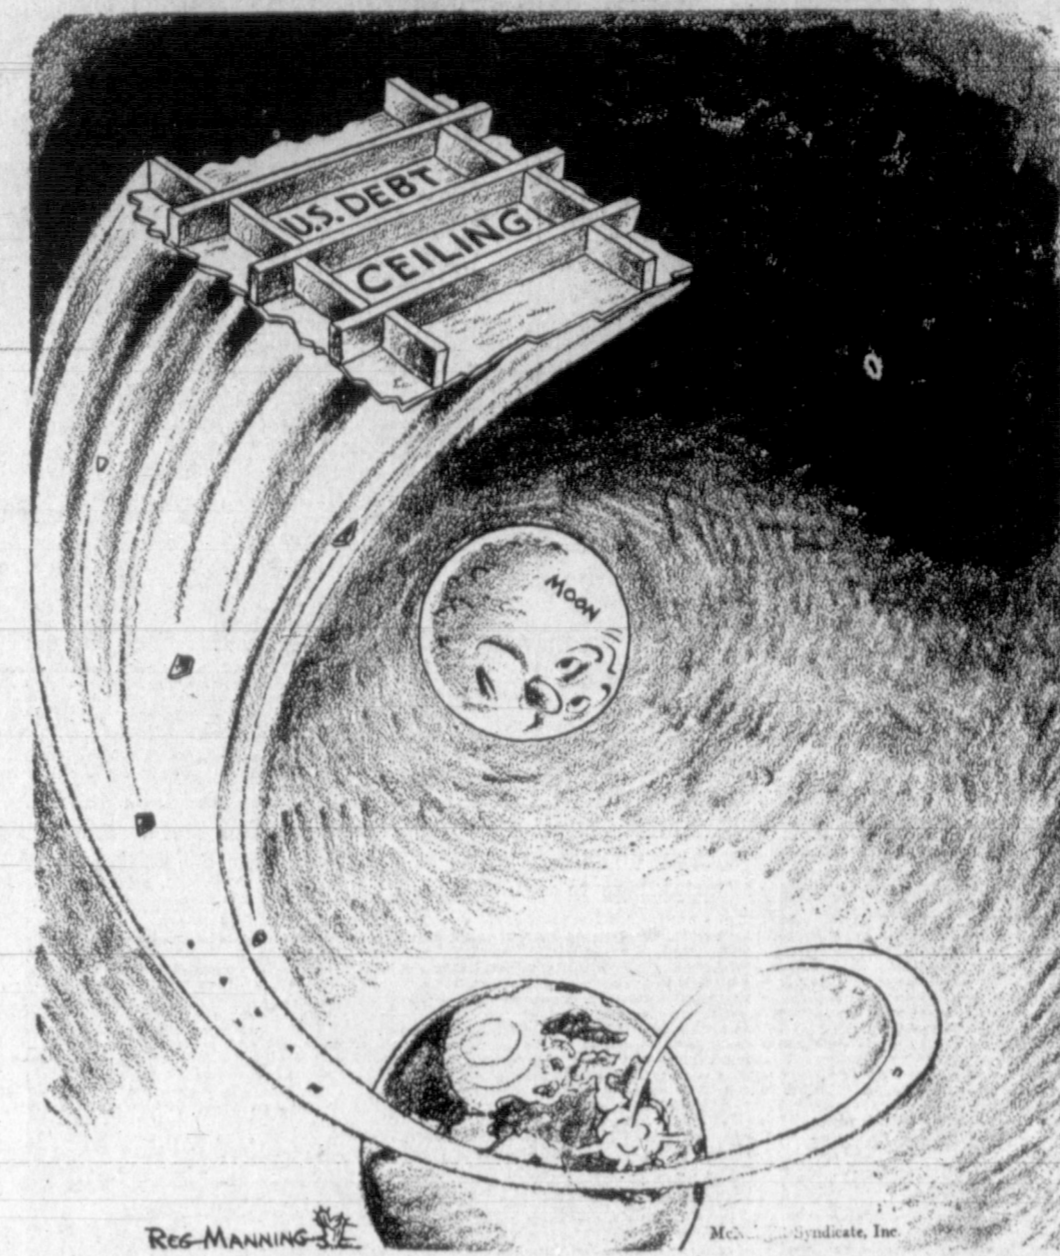

What we need is a free market... all people equal before the law as they are before God. Then we would have no long periods of unemployment and a constantly increasing standard of living.

What we need is education. We are not getting it from the schools and the colleges and politicians and labor unions. It is up to individuals to do a little thinking.

Q—What would you advise about correcting a deformity, or irregularity, of the skull? This is a depression just back of the crown of the head.—M.

A—Unfortunately the inquirer does not say what caused the deformity. However, if there are no symptoms of pressure on the brain in most instances something of this sort should be left alone, a neurosurgeon, however, could be consulted.

T. Roosevelt's Military Ability Was 'Absurd'

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK —The off-season Smart, a Maxwell Street boy with Roosevelt's have been very decent people by contrast with eminent kinnery of theirs, with special emphasis on marital fidelity and stability. They never had a scandal or divorce and nobody can say that Ted, Kermit, Archie or Quentin ever had a sucker in the White House, like Dave Smart of Esquire, with his $50,000 loan. The New Deal Roosevelt had many other feats in their score, all of which had, however, as the leader of the bunch rather cleverly put, the "color of legality." Altogether, this batch took the glibbies for about a million dollars.

The Doctor Says

By Edwin J. Jordan, M. D.

Three related questions can be considered together.

Q—Have you ever known of a case of allergy which caused both upper and lower eyelids to be swollen on awakening in the morning?—V. H.

Q—Please explain angioneurotic edema and what can be done for it.—Reader.

Q—Off and on for over a year I wake up to find my tongue swollen on one side. This lasts for a couple of hours. This morning the swelling was also on the side of the tongue.—M. M.

A—There are several possibilities for the swelling mentioned in these inquiries. However, I shall confine this discussion to the condition variously called angioneurotic edema, or giant urticaria. This disorder is principally characterized by intermittent swelling of one part of the body or another, usually coming on without any apparent cause. It is believed to be a form of allergy, though unlike some of the others, it is often extremely difficult to find what particular substance is responsible. Nevertheless, an effort to do so should be made. Perhaps the period of swelling, when it occurs, can be shortened by the use of appropriately chosen drugs, of the antihistamine family, though this is not always successful.

Q—Please say something about Osgood-Schlatter's disease.—Mrs. M. L.

A—This is a partial separation from its normal position of a tongue-like structure lying in front of the knee below the knee cap. It is apparently caused by sudden or continued strain placed on the area by exercise. It usually occurs in active boys between 10 and 15 years old and is especially common among those who ride bicycles. It causes pain in the area and can be identified by an X-ray picture. The treatment consists in immobilization by splints or a plaster cast for about five weeks and in rare cases open operation. The outlook for complete recovery is generally excellent.

Q—What would you advise about correcting a deformity, or irregularity, of the skull? This is a depression just back of the crown of the head.—M.

A—Unfortunately the inquirer does not say what caused the deformity. However, if there are no symptoms of pressure on the brain in most instances something of this sort should be left alone, a neurosurgeon, however, could be consulted.

Mac Wins Prize At French Carnival—A Goose

By HENRY McEMORE

PERPIGNAN — Other people win automobiles, refrigerators, and round-trip tickets to Honolulu at raffles.

I win geese. I won a goose last night—a remarkably large grayish-brown one, with a neck as long as a hangman's rope, and a temper as short as his neck was long.

At a carnival here—a dead-ringer for the one in the movie, Lili—I took a 100-franc chance at a raffle. The prizes on display were the usual ones—dolls, hams, boxes of candy, canned goods and satin souvenir pillows.

Eager for a souvenir pillow for my den, I jumped with excitement when the Barker announced the result of the drawing and used the work "Americano" in his spiel. The Barker hopped from his platform, disappeared behind his booth, and reappeared a moment later with the goose.

"I didn't win after all," I told Mary. "But some lucky Frenchman won himself a fine goose for Christmas."

But I was wrong—the goose was mine! With hundreds of laughing Frenchmen looking on, the Barker came straight to me, made what must have been a flowery presentation speech, and handed me a string, on the other end of which was the goose.

It was ten o'clock at night, in a strange town in a strange land, and I didn't speak either of the two languages I needed—goose or French. Our hotel was six blocks away and I had no sound reason to believe the management allowed geese.

I tried to give the goose away, using sign language. But you know the French. They're so thrifty it never entered their heads that I was trying to make someone a present of a goose worth several thousand francs.

The goose, let me add, didn't like any part of what was going on. He honked like an old taxi horn. He jabbed at my legs with his formidable bill. He flapped his big wings.

After half an hour of this, I made a decision. I told Mary to head for the hotel and gave her a five minute start. Then, shoving and dragging the complaining goose through the crowd, I made my way to the front of the booth. I grabbed a yellow satin pillow with fringe, and with "Perpignan" embroidered on it, dropped it to the goose's makeshift lair, and ran.

Where the goose is I don't know—nor do I care. He was big enough and mean enough to take care of himself.

This was the second goose I had won in a foreign land. The first was in Brisbane during the war, right on the main street, two hours after I had landed from Bougainville. That one cost me a shilling and a headache. I turned him loose, too, and ran and hid in the barracks.

GOP Rallies Around Nixon For 1960 Bid

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Only a political miracle or human accident can now prevent Richard Milhous Nixon from becoming the Republican nominee for President in 1960, regardless of President Eisenhower's future state of health. In the opinion of key GOP legislators who have assembled at Washington in preparation for the Paris NATO Conference and the next session of Congress, the nomination of the young, energetic and Eisenhower-trained Vice President has become a political necessity. They have rallied around him for the duration of the Presidential illness and for 1960.

Despite no official announcement or formal delegation of Presidential power, Nixon will conduct the government during Eisenhower's incapacity, which may last longer than is generally believed. Even with what his physicians describe as an "excellent recovery," the President must avoid severe physical or mental strain.

TUTORED BY PRESIDENT — Nixon's present leading role, which he did not venture to assume during the 1955 heart attack or last year's liletis ailment, is no accident. During those critical periods, Sherman Adams was virtually Acting President. Nixon was only an onlooker.

These warning signals, however, had a deep effect on the conscientious Eisenhower. He deliberately rasputin and the disaster which has swamped the world in blood ever since.

I remember with abject confusion that Medill McCormick, Robert R. McCormick and Joseph Medill Patterson, all hard-core patriots with the belly for a fight, exalted this grimacing faker into a heaven-sent hero of our wonderful western world. When, 20 years later, the poor, emotional Italians adored II Duce we ridiculed the silly fools for emulating us.

Another Adams liability was his recent public speeches in which he attacked the Democrats, questioned the political intelligence of Adlai E. Stevenson and goosed at the military importance of the Russian Sputniks. Nixon took an entirely different attitude.

IKER'S TEMPERAMENT — Eisenhower's temperament will prevent the paralysis of the government which occurred after Woodrow Wilson's massive stroke, and the lack of a firm hand felt during F.D.R.'s last few months in office.

No Wilsonian or Rooseveltian Vice President, Cabinet member or aide dared to assume command when those Presidents were too ill to rule capably. Both were proud, dominating, sensitive and self-centered men. Wilson fired Lansing as Secretary of State for presuming to lead. F.D.R. refused to admit that he had become unable to function clearly.

Eisenhower, fortunately, has no trace of their authoritarian spirit. He has expressed a willingness to step aside, if necessary. Wilson and Roosevelt neglected their Vice Presidents — Marshall and Truman — cruelly and deliberately. Ike has trained Nixon to be a stand-in and a possible successor.

Letters To Santa

Dear Santa Claus,
I am a little boy five years old and I would like you to bring me a What! Erp set and a train. I have been a good boy. Don't forget Mommie and Daddy and all other boy and girls. I will leave you some milk and cookies on the coffee table.
Love,
Larry Phillips

Dear Santa,
I am a girl eight years old. I would like a record player. And I have a little sister, she would like a doll, dishes and buggy. We live at 501 Horn in White Deer.
Love,
Jan and Barbara Burch

Dear Santa,
Please bring me a wagon and a little bicycle for Christmas, and bring my little baby sister, Gaytha, a walker.
Thank you,
Steve Cox

Dear Santa Claus,
My name is Melvin Powell, I'm four years old and would like to have a two gun holster, a drag-line, a train and a little puppy for Christmas.
Oh, yes Santa, I'm not in Dallas this year. We moved to 306 1/2 N. Somerville in Apt. A, Pampa, Texas. Don't go to the wrong place.
Love,
Melvin Powell

HE'S TRAVELING—Richard Boone, well known to TV viewers as Dr. Slyner of "Medic," has dropped his stethoscope for a revolver. He is even more familiar now sporting an elegant mustache in the role of Paladin, the suave trouble-shooter for hire in the TV western, "Have Gun, Will Travel."
