AS PROBLEMS DEVELOP

Strikes Hurting Texas Shippers

By United Press International
Increasing reports of violence marked the truckers' strike in Texas today. Shippers said Texas will run short of produce and the rest of the country may run short of beef if the stoppage continues much longer.

The Texas Department of Public Safety said what appeared to be .38-caliber slugs were fired into two trucks Sunday on U.S. 59 south of Cleveland in Southeast Texas.

A bullet hit a truck six miles west of the Louisiana line on Interstate 20 in East Texas Saturday.

agency was investigating all reports of violence but could do nothing about truckers blocking truckstops because they are on private property.

Plenty of Rumor
"There is an awful lot of rumor going around," the DPS spokesman said. "I think this is bad. I think there is a lot more rumor than actual violence."

Several produce truckers said they are having problems getting shipments of California vegetables into Texas because the trucks had stopped along highways in Texas, New Mexico and Arizona protesting the high cost of fuel and low diesel prices.

Gets a Beating

Three men in a white vehicle with a red spotlight stopped B.F. Singleton of Gentry, Ark., on Interstate 40 in Carson County late Sunday night. When Singleton stopped his frozen food truck, two men held him while the other beat him up.

Christopher Mitchell, an independent trucker from McGregor, said he and his brother, both hauling bricks from Mexico, were fired on Sunday night near Jarrel, south of Temple in Central Texas.

Neither of the Mitchells was hit. But Christopher, who has high blood pressure, spent the night in the Veterans Administration Hospital at Temple. Mitchell said their trucks were fired on after they refused the advice of truckers at a truck stop to join the walkout.

Dropped From Overpass
R. E. Pratt, who repairs trucks, said he was road testing a repaired rig Sunday on U.S. 59 near Cleveland when it was hit with a heavy object dropped from an overpass.

"We checked into that," Chief Deputy Gus George of the Harris County sheriff's Department, said in Houston. "I don't know if it's tied into the strike or whether it's an independent case."

An automobile driver on Interstate 40 in Gray County Sunday thought the drivers of two trucks were about to do something to him and picked up a lug wrench.

Edgar Gilbert of Rusk Springs, Okla., thought the automobile driver was going to do something to him and picked up a shotgun in the cab of his truck. It accidentally discharged and wounded Gilbert in a leg.

"They apparently spooked each other," a DPS spokesman said. "It was just a case of people's nerves. They were scared of him and he was scared of them."

Bridge On Fire

A Katy Railroad bridge across White Rock Creek in Northeast Dallas was set on fire Sunday. Billy R. Bishop of Denison, vice president of operations for the railroad, said the bridge was set on fire with gasoline but he could not say the arson was connected with the truckers' strike.

The railroad owns a trucking company. Bishop said trains can still use the bridge at reduced speed but it will have to be replaced before they can use it at regular speed.

The DPS spokesman said the

Explosion Kills Groom Farmer

GROOM — An explosion on a farm 13 miles east of Groom resulted in the death of a 33-year-old Groom farmer and injuries to his wife and two children Sunday afternoon.

Robert Goswick died shortly after 4:30 p.m. Sunday in Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo. Goswick was working on a pickup truck when the butane or acetylene he was using exploded at approximately 1 p.m.

He was blown 50 feet from the truck and suffered severe burns over 90 percent of his body. Mrs. Goswick, who was sitting in the pickup, suffered burns over 50 percent of her body and was listed in serious condition in the intensive care unit of Northwest Texas late Sunday.

The two children, Becky, 9, and Mark, 6, were standing nearby when the explosion occurred. They were in satisfactory condition in Groom Memorial Hospital.

President Submits Budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon ceremonially signed the $304.4 billion federal budget for the 1975 fiscal year today and said it will not "add to the fires of inflation."

In brief remarks, while signing two summaries of the budget, Nixon said it was "outstanding for two reasons." He said "it's not inflationary" and is expansionary, providing funds for new initiatives while retaining flexibility to deal with any downturn in the economy.

"This is a budget which will fight inflation and one that will be anti-recessionary," the President asserted during the ceremony in the White House Cabinet Room.

"The people will benefit from it because it is sound and sensible."

The budget, calling for a deficit of about $10 billion, was being submitted formally to Congress at noon EDT. It is expected to spark major debate on spending priorities.

Some members of Congress have called for anti-recession actions now, in advance of a possible economic downturn.

Simon Reveals Fuel Proposal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Energy Chief William E. Simon announced today a proposal designed to prevent a home owner from having to pay as much as 50 per cent more for heating oil than his next door neighbor.

Simon said this kind of situation has occurred in some places in the eastern part of the nation because of the higher cost of imported heating oil compared to domestic heating oil.

Under the proposal, Simon said the Federal Energy Office will equalize the amount of foreign and domestic heating oil sold to suppliers.

Each of 76 principal suppliers of home heating oil and diesel fuel in 17 eastern states will have the same proportion of domestic and imported fuel that the average supplier had during the corresponding period of 1973.

By equalizing the amounts of foreign and imported oil among suppliers, the prices charged—and eventually paid by consumers—can be made more equal.

"This plan will do away with the problem of next door neighbors paying a difference of 50 per cent to heat their homes," Simon said.

Shapp Predicts Emergency Legislation From Congress

SUBMITS BUDGET — President Nixon made brief remarks this morning while signing the $304.4 billion federal budget before submitting it to Congress at noon EDT today. See story, Page 5.

AS PULLBACK CONTINUES

Syrian, Israeli Troops Fight In Golan Heights

By United Press International
Israeli troops and armor rumbled out of a narrow strip of desert deep in the heart of Egypt today to wind up the second phase of the Middle East pullback agreement worked out by U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

On the northern front, opposing armies dueling for the eighth straight day along the Golan Heights cease-fire lines in what Syria called a "war of attrition" to paralyze Israel.

Military sources in Tel Aviv said Israel would finish the second stage of its troop pullback at dusk today, handing over a 30-mile-long strip of land on the west bank of the Suez Canal to U.N. peacekeeping troops.

The sources said Egyptian troops would move in six hours later, taking control of the horizontal strip, which runs from the canal to within 50 miles of Cairo—Israel's deepest penetration during the 1973 Middle East War.

Israel Abandons Highway
In the first stage of the withdrawal worked out by Kissinger, the Israelis abandoned the Cairo-Suez highway and positions to the south.

The Israelis were scheduled to give up all their positions on the canal's west bank by Feb. 21 and withdraw into the Sinai Desert 13 miles east of the waterway by March 5—the target date for ending the 40-day troop withdrawal.

In return, Egypt was to thin out its forces along the east bank of the 102-mile-long canal and pull all surface-to-air missiles out of the Sinai.

Political sources in Cairo said the Egyptians have already started cutting their forces on the east bank. They said the reductions carried out so far were on a small scale, but would increase as the Israelis pull back.

A spokesman in Tel Aviv said, however, U.N. troops would have to enter the desert to make sure the Egyptians were abiding by the disengagement pact.

The Only Way to Check
"Whether they have thinned out is the big question mark," the spokesman said. "This we'll know only when the U.N. goes in. The U.N. troops are the only visual means of checking."

In the clashes on the northern front, Syria said its forces destroyed three Israeli tanks, six artillery batteries and a rocket base as well as knocking out two armored cars.

ON MISSISSIPPI
Price Urges Committee To Review Water Plan

WASHINGTON — favorable Corps recommendation, the committee could direct that a re-study take place. Price reported the process would not require enactment of new legislation.

In his letter to the committee, Price said 1973 record prices received for wheat, cotton, corn and feed grains, together with phenomenal growth in livestock feeding since 1967, "will drastically change the total economic benefits of the importation of water."

Citing continued depletion of existing underground water, and the low level of natural rainfall in Northwest Texas, Price stressed the critical need for increased water for irrigation.

"I believe that when all the facts are in, there can be no doubt that the Committee and the agencies responsible for carrying out this study will find overwhelming need to re-evaluate the 'West Texas and Eastern New Mexico Import Project' so that it can be brought up to date and reflect the necessity to maintain ample food and fiber to supply human needs." Price concluded.

The meetings continue today, and Simon said the participants "will sit down with the nitty gritty." He said Sunday's meetings concerned mostly "technical matters" such as rollbacks, allocations and price "pass-throughs."

Earlier, he was reported to have told the truckers it would take congressional action to solve a major complaint—speeding up ICC rule-making procedures, which make it difficult for trucking firms to get quick approval to "pass-through" higher costs in the form of rate increases.

Simon reportedly stopped the truck after seeing the flashing red light. After getting out of the truck, he told officers, he began walking back toward the car when two men grabbed him and the third beat him. After being knocked to the ground, he said, the men kicked him in both the chest and in the back.

By United Press International
A major participant in the talks between striking independent truck drivers and top government officials predicted today Congress will respond quickly with emergency legislation to end the stoppage.

Pennsylvania Gov. Milton J. Shapp, who initiated the Washington talks, expressed belief that the House and Senate Commerce Committees would begin drafting sometime today a special resolution.

The proposal, Shapp said, would allow the Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) to permit dissident truckers to obtain higher rates by means of a "pass through" of increased diesel fuel costs.

Shapp gave his views on the NBC-TV Today Show. Shapp said that since the federal energy chief William E. Simon, is opposed to a rollback of diesel fuel prices favored by the truckers, the special legislation could solve the problem.

The governor said he sympathized with the plight of the independent truckers who have seen fuel prices double since May.

"Something had to give and nobody would talk to them," he said. "Now at last they're getting some cooperation from top leaders in Washington."

Of the negotiations which went on for six hours Sunday before a recess until midday today, Shapp said: "Our greatest progress is we're starting to talk. By the end of the day, we may have a good idea of where we're going to."

On the truckers' demands, Simon indicated that government red tape was a major stumbling block in solving the strike.

On the highways, there were scattered incidents of violence directed at drivers who continued rolling their rigs.

Five days of violence associated with the truckers' strike brought Simon and about 40 other federal and state officials to a closed-door meeting in Washington Sunday where more than two dozen truckers aired their gripes.

Simon said he had kept President Nixon informed "of all the events of the day."

"This is an interagency problem that cuts across the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Department of Transportation, the Federal Energy Office," Simon said before the second of two sessions broke up early this morning.

Meetings Continue

The meetings continue today, and Simon said the participants "will sit down with the nitty gritty." He said Sunday's meetings concerned mostly "technical matters" such as rollbacks, allocations and price "pass-throughs."

Earlier, he was reported to have told the truckers it would take congressional action to solve a major complaint—speeding up ICC rule-making procedures, which make it difficult for trucking firms to get quick approval to "pass-through" higher costs in the form of rate increases.

Simon said he would appear at a House Ways and Means Committee hearing today, but that another high-level FEO official would meet with the truckers.

Pennsylvania Gov. Milton J. Shapp, who called the meeting, said: "All parties have been thoughtful and candid. Definite specific progress has been made in several areas." He refused to elaborate, and Simon indicated the hard bargaining was put off until the late morning session began.

But he said later: "I didn't say that the prices were not going to be rolled back. I gave an opinion... that I've stated quite often. I'm optimistic reasonable men are going to get together on this issue."

As for price rollbacks, Simon said: "I am against rolling back prices. Personally, I am opposed to that because it's counterproductive to our intermediate and long term goal of bringing on long-term self-sufficiency in this country, which is our only answer."

TRUCK DRIVER BEATEN

Strike Violence Hits Local Area

GROOM — The violence which has accompanied the nationwide truck strike in states such as Pennsylvania and Ohio reached into the Panhandle last night when an Arkansas truck driver was beaten and stomped by three men after they reportedly used a flashing red light on their car to get him to pull his rig over.

Burt Singleton of Springville, Ark., is in Groom Memorial Hospital today in serious condition following his admittance to the hospital yesterday around 11 p.m. Dr. Richard Wright said today:

After being beaten, the driver reportedly got into his westbound truck and drove to Conway, where he got out of the rig and fell to the ground.

He was then taken to the Groom hospital by Carson County sheriff's deputy Connie Reed, who saw him fall, a sheriff's office spokesman said today.

Singleton reportedly stopped the truck after seeing the flashing red light. After getting out of the truck, he told officers, he began walking back toward the car when two men grabbed him and the third beat him. After being knocked to the ground, he said, the men kicked him in both the chest and in the back.

LIST NARROWED

Board Considers Coach Candidates

Athletic director Ed Lehnick talked to members of the school board in executive session this morning concerning the high school head football coaching position, which has been a question in Pampa for some time.

Although the names of the candidates were not released, it is believed the man to replace exited Buddy Williams will be either Russell Coffee, ex-offensive coordinator at Texas Christian University, or Jack Edwards, head coach at Terrell.

Sources said Lehnick narrowed the list to two men from a group of six or eight who expressed interest in the Pampa coaching job.

Another man contacted by Lehnick about the position, Eddie Peach of Arlington Lamar, told the News today he withdrew his name from consideration last Friday.

"We're going to talk to two people next Sunday in a scheduled board meeting (2 p.m.), but I can't tell you who those people are," Lehnick told the News following today's meeting.

Coffee has coached three years at Garland, where each of his teams either won or shared the district title. He has also been offensive coordinator at Texas and was there in 1963 when the Longhorns were national champions.

Coffee has had coaching stints at San Angelo, Llano, Lamesa and Weatherford. Edwards has coached Terrell to three 8-2 records in his last three years there. He has been an assistant at Corsicana and Midland Lee, serving under Jim Acree at both schools.

Simon said he would appear at a House Ways and Means Committee hearing today, but that another high-level FEO official would meet with the truckers.

WITHOUT TAXES, ROLLBACK Shultz Predicts Supplies Of Oil

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. oil companies can produce enough domestic oil within three to five years to satisfy up to 90 per cent of U.S. demand if they are not saddled with excessive taxes or price rollbacks, Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz testified today.

Domestic supply now meets about 70 per cent of U.S. demand. Shultz' optimistic prediction was made in testimony to the House Ways and Means Committee in which he outlined the administration's oil industry tax package, including a "windfall profits" tax.

Shultz cautioned against imposing any price rollback or pure excess profits tax on the industry, saying this would discourage increased production.

Instead, he said, Congress should enact President Nixon's windfall profits tax, a graduated levy on domestic crude oil price increases. Shultz said this sort of tax is designed to tax unusually high prices that temporarily result from a disruption of the market, such as the Arab oil embargo. The tax would gradually disappear, he said, as market forces eventually result in lower prices.

"We are all upset because the price of oil is high," he said, "but the reaction should not be to strike out blindly at the most available target. The approach of our proposal is not a vindictive one. We are not trying to penalize oil producers. Nor are we trying to restrict U.S. companies to U.S. business."

"What we are suggesting is a technical change which will remove the possibility of the oil producers obtaining an undue benefit from changed circumstances."

Shultz said present economic studies indicate that if oil prices are allowed to increase by about 50 per cent over mid-1973 levels—to about $7 a barrel—there should be a 50 per cent increase in domestic supply given enough time.

"Based upon these data, it is reasonable to assume that after about three to five years, and allowing for some inflation, if the price of oil increases by about 50 per cent from mid-1973 levels, sufficient domestic oil supplies should flow to satisfy about 85 to 95 per cent of our demands."

Rev. Hager Gets Call At Houston

Rev. Martin Hager, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Pampa, Sunday notified his congregation that he has received the call to be senior minister of the St. Paul Presbyterian Church of Houston. The St. Paul congregation serves the Sharpstown section of Houston.

Rev. Hager came to Pampa in July 1967. During his ministry, he was co-founder of Genesis House, a home for emotionally abandoned girls at 321 Starkweather, the Suicide Prevention - Crisis Information of Pampa, Inc., and had held board positions on many community service organizations.

His wife, Sherry, has served as chairman of the board of Genesis House, Inc., and was a recent candidate for the board of trustees, Pampa Independent School District.

Rev. Hager's resignation will be effective Feb. 28. There will be a congregational meeting, Sunday, Feb. 10, immediately after the 10:45 a.m. worship service, called for the purpose of concurring with the call.

Expert Upholds Report

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — An expert appointed to examine the Watergate tapes says a detailed technical report will refute allegations that the investigation was shallow and specifically aimed at President Nixon's personal secretary.

Thomas G. Stockham Jr., professor of electrical engineering at the University of Utah and a member of the six-man investigative team, said the full report would back up the panel's finding presented Jan. 15 to U.S. District Court Judge John Sirica in Washington.

Stockham said in an interview Saturday that the report would prove the panel—which concluded manual erasures caused an 18½-minute gap in a critical tape—did not do a superficial job.

Charles S. Rhyne, attorney for presidential secretary Rose Mary Woods, complained Friday that the experts worked for two months and "only came up with five little pieces of paper in the form of a press release."

The experts "were given the job to prove it was her (Miss Woods) and they went out to do it," Rhyne said. "The reason they don't come forth with what they did is that they're ashamed of what they did," he said.

Delegates Studying Various Proposals

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — After three weeks of testimony from citizens and expert witnesses, delegates to the constitutional convention had their say before committees today.

Committees on general provisions, the executive and finance took testimony from convention delegates on their proposals for revising the state's 90-year-old charter.

Delegates had submitted approximately 300 ideas about what they thought should go into any new state constitution.

Convention Secretary Charles Schiabe had predicted before the session that only "65 or 70" proposals would be introduced, but more than 90 proposals were submitted by the cutoff day last Wednesday.

The proposals ranged from a few sentences in length to one entire new constitution.

Sen. Jack Ogg, D-Houston, proposed his own constitution, which he said was free from many of the special interest provisions in the present charter.

Ogg said he will present the document to various committees and if they reject it, will offer the 28-page proposal to convention delegates on the floor.

Ogg's proposed constitution would remove the permanent university fund and highway funds from the state charter to let the legislature exercise control over the appropriation of more state revenues.

"At least anyone who wants to vote on a pure constitution will get the chance," Ogg said.

The convention is using the Constitutional Revision Commission's (CRC) proposed charter as a starting point with delegates' ideas used as changes to the CRC document.

Police Studying Thefts

Police are investigating several thefts and attempted thefts which occurred in Pampa over the weekend.

IN SPACEWALK

Astros Retrieve Comet Pictures

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Skylab 3 astronauts retrieved thousands of rare pictures of the sun and Comet Kohoutek Sunday during America's last planned spacewalk for almost a decade, and today start packing to come home.

Flight Commander Gerald P. Carr and scientist Edward G. Gibson worked for five hours and 19 minutes outside the big space station that has been their home for almost three months, while pilot William R. Pogue stayed inside to keep the lab under control.

The record-setting crew of spacemen splashes down at 10:17 a.m. CDT Friday near San Diego in the Pacific Ocean, ending another era of U.S. space flight.

The men have completed almost all of the thousands of hours of biomedical, Earth and Sun study and comet watching experiments of the 84-day flight. Biomedical tests and packing the results of their research work filled today's flight plan.

The next American space mission, an orbital linkup with a Soviet crew in mid-1975, won't include a spacewalk as planned now, so the next outside venture probably will not be staged until the space shuttle program is under way in the 1980s.

In addition to lugging the big film cassettes full of sun and comet photos, Carr and Gibson retrieved two samples of a material used to make the big sunshades that have kept the space home cool since last May.

The astronauts' time outside, although it wore them out, wasn't close to their record-length, seven hour and one minute spacewalk they made Dec. 29.

"You've done a phenomenal amount of work in a short period of time," Pogue told his fellow crewmates just before they came inside.

"Yeah, and I'm beginning to feel the effects too... tired and hungry," Carr said.

The fliers were rubbernecking like tourists, looking at the earth below them and pointing out landmarks they recognized.

"Hey look there's the San Joaquin Valley over there," Carr said as he sailed 270 miles above his native state of California. "And there's the Salton Sea. Beautiful, beautiful. We've sure got a pretty country."

There are certain things that must be said, the fire chief told a group of newsmen. "I want to take the opportunity to say thank you even if it means my job, which, in view of the almost 200 victims, is unimportant."

One Sao Paulo official, Col. Theodoro Cabette, head of the city's military police, came to Ribeiro's support, saying the fire chief "deserves the praise of all."

The fire chief said, "There were meetings and promises but nothing changed" after a February, 1972, blaze raged through the city's Andraus building and killed 16 persons.

"The building code stayed the same and the city's fire department wasn't improved," he said. City and state officials promised a new building code after last Friday's fire—the worst in Sao Paulo's history.

Ribeiro said he has 1,400 firemen, "the same number as in 1940," and needed "at least six times as many." New York, a city with about 1 million more people, has 12,500 firemen.

Fire Chief Criticizing City's Code

SÃO PAULO (UPI) — An angry fire chief, speaking his mind "even if it means my job," has blamed a skyscraper blaze that took the lives of 160 persons on inadequate building rules and a shortage of trucks and men in his department.

Fire Chief Jonas Flores Ribeiro said Sunday the blaze, which raged through the upper floors of the 22-story Joelmia office building, could have been prevented if his department had more men and power.

"If the fire department had had the authority to inspect the city's buildings, the Joelmia would have been condemned," he said. "The Joelmia was built with highly flammable material, the sprinkler system was inadequate and the fire escape was a mere 11 inches wide."

City officials, stung by Ribeiro's criticism, were reportedly considering firing him. A decision by Gov. Lauro Natis of Sao Paulo State was expected today.

"There are certain things that must be said," the fire chief told a group of newsmen. "I want to take the opportunity to say thank you even if it means my job, which, in view of the almost 200 victims, is unimportant."

DEEPENS CRISIS British Miners Launch Strike

LONDON (UPI) — Coal miners voted by an overwhelming 81 per cent in returns announced today to launch a nationwide strike expected to turn Britain's economic crisis into a disaster.

The Mineworkers' Union said coal workers voted 180,393 to 44,222 to walk off their jobs next Sunday, escalating their 12-week-old slowdown into a full-scale walkout.

About 86 per cent of Britain's 260,000 miners took part in the crucial strike balloting last Thursday and Friday. The votes, counted by the independent Electoral Reform Society, were announced by Mineworkers President Joe Gormley at union headquarters. The ballot authorized the union's national executive committee to launch a strike on Sunday, but did not make it mandatory.

The coal slowdown, Arab oil cutbacks and an overtime ban by 29,000 railroad engineers have combined to cut fuel supplies and plunge Britain into what Prime Minister Edward Heath has called its most serious economic crisis since the end of World War II.

The health government imposed a three-day work week Dec. 31 to conserve dwindling energy stocks and government officials predicted more work cuts if the miners launch a full-scale walkout.

The union's ruling national executive committee, which was scheduled to meet Tuesday to discuss the strike vote, appeared divided on whether the coal miners should try to work out a last-minute accord with the Heath government.

Gormley, a moderate, said he was "looking for a way to assist a settlement." Lawrence Daly, the union's hard-line general secretary, said, however, he was "confident" a strike would take place.

Ag Committee Plans Meeting

The Agriculture and Livestock Committee of the Chamber of Commerce will meet Tuesday at 12 noon at Furr's Cafeteria with Luther Robinson, chairman, presiding.

The various committees to be in charge of details of the show and sale will be appointed and their duties defined.

The Top of Texas Stock Show is scheduled for March 4, 5 and 6. A record number of entries is expected. Clyde Carruth is superintendent of the show and sale.

Investment Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—Several factors argue against a vibrant market uptrend in the short-term, according to Harris, Upham & Co. The market is moving toward an "oversold" reading, odd-lot short selling has eased, and there is a noticeable absence of new dynamic market leadership, the firm says. During the near-term, the market will fluctuate between a Dow Jones Industrial Average high of 925 and a low of 735, it adds.

"The market seems to be quieting down its intensity, and if this continues for a period of time, we are then in a better position to begin a long-term rise from a base formation that need not go below recent December prices," says Fraser Management Associates. The Burlington, Vt. firm says the expected rally following an Arab decision to turn the oil taps on may be subdued. Urging investors to invest in fundamentally sound companies, the firm says "We are not shooting for the moon, just a firm road out of the swamps."

"Any further advance from the present level of 850 to 860 by the Dow Industrials must be watched closely for signs of failure among other technical indices for a possible important sell indication," says Merkin & Co., Inc. Although the list is trading in a neutral position, the longer-term outlook looks promising with more stocks building foundations for the next bull market, which may be launched this spring, it continues. "With the market in a vulnerable position, traders are advised to remain on the sidelines," the firm adds.

Staying Well Is 'Game' For AA

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Family Editor
NEW CANAAN, Conn. (UPI)—Staying well is the name of the game for an alcoholic.

Mrs. Marty Mann, the first woman in Alcoholics Anonymous (AA), has been on a sober spree since 1939. She also is a founder-consultant of the National Council on Alcoholism.

"Alcohol is like a monster in a closet," she said. "It can come out anytime. The only sure way of keeping the door closed is the AA way. Psychiatric help and medical assistance may speed the recovery but any program that succeeds has AA in it."

Mrs. Mann, a staff consultant at the Silver Hill Foundation, made that point while participating in a seminar at the Foundation in New Canaan, Conn.

Saves Many Lives
She moves around as much as a jet setter half her age, talking about the monster.

"I run all the time," she said. "I'm just as compulsive in my work as I was when I drank. It seems to be good for me."

Countless alcoholics say Marty Mann saved their lives. One of these, Walter Murphy, president of his own public relations firm in New York, said his first encounter with Mrs. Mann lasted three hours.

"She came on as a cross between Tallulah Bankhead and Francis Cardinal Spellman. Without that encounter and Marty's help, I would be dead," Murphy said.

Mrs. Mann says she would be dead if she hadn't been forced to join AA. At the seminar there was a lot of talk about saved lives. Alcohol kills, statistics show. Some describe it as slow suicide. The suicide rate among alcoholics is 58 times greater than it is among non-alcoholics.

"You hear it said," Mrs. Mann said, "that AA can't help anyone who doesn't ask for help. Well, that shouldn't be taken literally."

"A man said he didn't know anyone who came to AA voluntarily. I echo that. Some kind of pressure—from the law, court, the boss or loved one."

"A police officer said he came because he was to the point of having a gun at each temple. My wife was holding one and my captain the other. So I came, determined to keep cotton in my ears and read a book and in a year go back to drinking."

"He came, he stayed, he comes again. He is AA all the way."

Mrs. Mann said everyone can find peers at AA meetings. A newcomer is welcomed and loved. It's a whole new ball game. The executive is just as welcome as the porter. You can be black, red, yellow and still make it. You will be welcome at AA.

"Alcoholics have the best chance of staying well by going to AA meetings one or two times a week."

Failure to recognize that one has a problem is a stumbling block in the conquest of alcoholism. Mrs. Mann said lack of recognition stems in part from the stereotype idea of the stew row bum.

At the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism (NIAAA) this question was raised recently:

"Why aren't all emergency room drunks in hospitals sent to the ward for alcoholics?"

An NIAAA study showed that the drunks who looked like bums were put in the alcoholics ward. But the drunks who were well dressed, had a high economic or status position were put in regular hospital beds.

Dear Abby

Tell mate you're not sex object and leave

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-H. V. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: The other night, after a fairly calm evening with friends, my husband offered me to one of his friends. You can't imagine how much this hurt me. I did the only thing I could think of doing. I refused in no uncertain terms, even tho he tried his best to talk me into it.

My husband and I finally went to bed, and made love before going to sleep. I love my husband, but I doubt that he really loves me. He has tried to get me to go to bed with his friends before, and every time I've told him no, and not to ask me again, but he keeps on trying.

I have told my husband that if I want sex outside of my marriage, I will do the choosing, but so far I am satisfied with him alone.

I get depressed every time I think about my husband's wanting to pass me around to his friends, and lately I've been taking it out on our 2-year-old son. I am open for suggestions.

NOT FOR LENDING

DEAR NOT: My suggestion would be to leave him, and look for a man who would respect his marriage vows as you respect yours. But first I would give him an opportunity to get his head together. If he refuses counseling, then leave him—unless you want to continue to live with a man who regards his wife as his personal property—and a sex object to pass around to his friends.

DEAR ABBY: I am one woman who is against women's lib because it advocates free love for women as well as for men.

Maybe I'm peculiar, but I don't want any free love before marriage. What I do want is a man whose moral standards are just as high as mine.

Why should a girl remain pure for a husband who has slept with so many girls he has lost count?

"20 AND STILL PURE"

DEAR "20": If you've reached 20, and are still holding, hooray for you! Women's libbers are pushing for the same privileges for women as men. That doesn't necessarily mean they advocate promiscuity for everybody, they simply want one standard for both sexes, which is what you want, no?

DEAR ABBY: The barking dog problem can be solved, and very easily. Our neighbors simply would not believe that their dog, which they kept outside on a chain day and night, barked and howled constantly when they were not home. Our patience grew thin, especially on Sundays when they drove off somewhere for the entire day.

One Sunday we put our tape recorder out under our bedroom window, and made a two-hour recording of the canine concert. When they returned after their Sunday sojourn we hid the recorder in our bushes, locked our patio gates, turned up the volume, and went to the movies.

In two days the dog had disappeared.

TRANQUIL IN TUCSON

DEAR TRANQUIL: This may not have helped your friendship with those neighbors, but it certainly did improve the neighborhood.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90089. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

Larry Weiss, of Los Angeles, is the official photographer of the American Contract Bridge League. It is his job, at national tournaments, to get pictures of all the winners for publication in the A.C.B.L. monthly "Bulletin."

Long before Larry became a photographer, he was an expert bridge player. Between photographing sessions, he plays in the championship events. Here is an example of his ability. The deal was played in the Blue Ribbon pairs event during the 1973 Fall National Championships. Larry was sitting South.

East-West vulnerable. West deals.

The bidding:
West North East South
Pass Pass 1♣ INT

Opening lead: Nine of ♠.

West opened the nine of spades in response to East's bid out, and Larry took stock. Five diamond tricks were there for the taking, and if he played low from dummy, he would be assured of the queen of spades being a second spade winner.

But he was afraid that if East were permitted to win the first spade trick with his king, East would shift to a heart (his fear was quite logical, for he was playing in the prestigious Blue Ribbon pair event, in which all the players were expert). The defenders would then establish their heart suit, and Weiss could never come to nine tricks.

So, at trick one, Weiss went right up with dummy's spade ace in order to obtain the "timing" of the hand. He next led a low club, and put up his king, which won the trick. The nine of clubs was played back. When West followed with a low club, a low club was played from dummy. As is evident, East was compelled to win the trick with his ace.

It mattered not what East now returned. If he played a spade, Weiss' queen would become his ninth trick. And if he played back a heart (as he actually did), South couldn't be done out of a heart trick. West won East's heart return with the jack of hearts. When South won this lead with his king, he had just made his game—going trick.

For the record, of the 13 times this deal was played, nine South declarers arrived at a three-notrump contract. Two of them went down—possibly because they failed to put up the spade ace at trick one.

Meetings, Stock Show Discussed By HD Council

Mrs. W.K. Dougal, vice chairman of the Gray County Home Demonstration Council, presided in the absence of the chairman, Mrs. Jack Benton, recently in the Courthouse Annex.

Eight clubs answered roll call with 19 members present, four visitors and Miss Audette Vaughn, assistant extension agent.

Mrs. A.P. Coombes, Goodwill Club, attended a recent District I planning meeting in Panhandle.

Plans were made for the Texas Home Demonstration Association meeting of District I to be held in Borger, April 18, in the First Christian Church. Another planning meeting will be held in February to complete plans for this meeting.

All Club members are asked to bring their Betty Crocker coupons and stamp books to be given to Girlstown in Borger. They are planning to purchase a bus or pickup with them.

Each club was asked to elect a delegate for the council meeting in February and three delegates will be elected from these names to attend the District I meeting in Borger. Audette Vaughn, announced a class of knitting and crocheting for the 4-H girls is underway.

Mrs. Vinson Shaw announced that the Fat Stock Show would be March 2-4 and the following clubs will work: Saturday — Top O' Texas; Sunday — Merton and High Plains; Monday — Worthwhile and Alanreed; Tuesday — Goodwill; and Jane Long; and Wednesday — Hopkins Grandview. Each club member is asked to bring two small pies or one large pie, the day their club works.

Club News

COTILLION CLUB

Twentieth Century Cotillion Study Club met recently in the home of Mrs. D. Gene Hanks. The meeting was called to order by Mrs. Jim Hughes, president, followed by the Club Collect and the minutes. A regular business meeting followed.

Mrs. Harbord Cox was welcomed as a new member.

Mrs. Jay Boettner gave the program "What's New in Home Styles and Decorating." Mrs. Boettner gave a talk with many pictures to illustrate new color schemes and fabrics for furniture and walls.

Refreshments were served to the following members: Mmes: Gene Hanks, Harbord Cox, Dan Puckett, Sam Isaac, Ben Sturgeon, Jim Campbell, Rusty Neef, Jay Boettner, C.E. Kirby, Glen Fleming, Fred Simmons, Dean Copeland, S. Gene Hall, Jerry Kotara, Ed Brainard, Jim Hughes and Don Morrison.

The next meeting will be held Feb. 19, in the home of Mrs. Ed Brainard.

Your Horoscope

By Jeanne Dixon

TUESDAY,

Your birthday today: Originality of approach now pays off if you will be reasonably diligent, avoiding time-losses from daydreaming and taking on too many extra projects. Further responsibility is virtually certain, and you should seek additional reward for fulfilling it. Relationships thrive as you let other people see how you continue to progress and attract support. Today's natives are ready, at any time, to defend themselves and anybody under their personal protection.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Concentrate on short-term projects; get over and done with whatever obstructs your path and go on. Home life improves as you smooth out the rough spots.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: By and large, the institutions and customs of society serve your interests well today—if you let them. Find time for prayer.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: It will be better to push ahead without dragging long-familiar contacts along. You'll develop many more shortly in almost any field of interest.

Cancer [June 21-July 21]: The way you go about things is more significant than the direction you go, at least for a brief span. Don't make promises or compromises.

Leo [July 22-Aug. 22]: Now comes an abrupt face-to-face encounter. You cannot always have the upper hand, unless you make an extra special concession to obtain cooperation.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Pay attention to the resources of both your rivals and associates. Find ways of adding to your side as indirectly as you can.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Continue to tread lightly. Expect no more than average "luck" and no special cooperation in going beyond well-established facts and conventional routines.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: The act of protecting your position turns out to be of major importance. Take a long view, hoping for the existing situations to change soon.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Emphasis today is on pressing pending issues to a series of practical conclusions, particularly arrangements intended to be temporary.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Strive to increase your earnings. Early moves produce more and smoother results than later, hasty hit-or-miss changes.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: A lengthy productive period arrives in which you should convert potentials into actual benefits. Plan definite work schedules, allowing for longer hours.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: You now know what you must do. It's considerably less than anticipated, so go ahead with whatever current conditions require in good faith, and quickly.

A good dress to travel in is Oscar de la Renta's navy blue and white silk crepe de chine shirtwaister in a check. It may be worn with or without a belt.

Under Twenty

By KURT LASSEN
"Around the age of 13 or 14 is a critical age for people who are pursuing a performing career," says Jo Jo Starbuck, star of the Ice Capades. "It was a time," said the pretty 21-year-old skater, "when I had to make my decision whether to go on with skating or give it up because from that point on it was either a total commitment or nothing."

Jo Jo decided on the total commitment as did her friend and skating partner, Ken Shelly.

"I knew I would have to sacrifice and that my mother would have to sacrifice, too. It was an investment of my time and effort and whatever money my mother could scrape together to pay for all the lessons I was getting."

A typical day in the life of young Jo Jo Starbuck began shortly after 5 a.m.

"I'd get up and get into my skating gear, then go and skate a couple of hours before school. I'd have to carry my school clothes, books and my outfit for ballet class which I had after school. After skating I'd change into school clothes and after school I'd go and change for ballet and dancing lessons."

"After ballet we'd go to the rink again and put in more time on our school figures and our routine. Then back into street clothes and home somewhere between 9 and 10 p.m. Then I'd have to get to work on my homework and I must admit half the time I'd have to hold my head up and fight going to sleep. Then, when I'd finished the homework I'd have to lay out the outfits, equipment and books I'd need for the next day."

Jo Jo's decision and dedication paid off. She and Ken, close friends since childhood, are three-time winners of the U.S. Pair Championships, twice they won bronze medals in World Championship and started in two Winter Olympics. Today they are cashing in on the thousands of hours they spent on the ice. Jo Jo is "paying back" her mother and last year bought her a new home.

"I know one of the reasons I kept on," she told us, "was because my mother kept on encouraging me and I knew how hard she was struggling to meet the bills and pay for all those lessons. You have no idea how much it costs. I'd say there was at least $100,000 invested in my career."

"I guess those young people who start something and then drop out just don't have the luck I had, a mother who helped me see that if it was worth doing it was worth doing well."

year contract with Ice Capades, isn't sure how long she'll continue to skate. She likes everything about it but the heavy traveling schedule.

"Ken and I are lucky, though. We close the season in Los Angeles which is near home. Then we take a short vacation and begin working on our show for the next year. We do that at home so we do get to spend a couple of months there and it is wonderful."

"When we are on the road with Ice Capades we usually spend an hour a day practicing and, of course, we are doing anywhere between eight and ten shows a week in the snow. It doesn't require as much work as getting ready for amateur competition."

Honest and outspoken Jo Jo felt that "unfairness in judging has existed in the Olympics for years but only surfaced to the general public when the entire affair was televised last year."

She isn't bitter about it, but has a deep concern for those who work so hard and receive unfair judging.

"When I finish skating," she told us, "I'll probably coach and go back to school. I'd like to go into television or films."

A deeply religious girl, Jo Jo isn't too worried about the future. "I put it all in the good Lord's hand. He'll take care of me," she says.

President Proposes Unemployment Fighting Budget

By GENE CARLSON
WASHINGTON (UPI) — His plans for a balanced budget shattered by the energy crisis, President Nixon today proposed a record $304.4 billion budget that means the nation will spend almost $10 billion more than it collects next year.

Backing his pledge of "no recession," Nixon's blueprint for fiscal 1975 unveiled a strategy to fight unemployment at all costs—even if it means "busting the budget" and continued inflation and higher prices.

It was the sixth straight red-ink budget for the Nixon presidency. If the proposed figures are correct, the federal government will have spent $77 billion more than its revenue since he entered the White House in 1969.

About one-third of the 1975 budget dollar will be returned to citizens in the form of Social Security and welfare benefits, food stamps, unemployment insurance and other government payments.

National Defense
Another quarter—$87.7 billion—is earmarked for national defense. It is the largest defense budget ever, but in terms of percentage of the Gross National Product it is the smallest since the beginning of the Korean War in 1950.

National health insurance and welfare reform, two programs Nixon stressed in his State of the Union message last week, will get no money at all in the new budget. He said it will take more than one year to get them cleared by Congress and into operation.

"In the face of economic uncertainty, my budget recommendations provide for a fiscal policy that would support high employment while restraining inflation," Nixon told Congress in a message accompanying the massive budget document.

But the President's advisers made it clear that jobs—not prices—are the No. 1 priority.

"No Recession" Pledge
Recalling Nixon's "no recession" pledge, Deputy Budget Director Frederic V. Malek told reporters:

"He's very firm about that. He's not going to have a recession. If it means busting the budget then he'll bust the budget so that people won't be out of jobs."

This fiscal philosophy, plus the mild and conciliatory tone of Nixon's message, was in stark contrast to the harsh words of a year ago when the President chopped off a number of venerable programs and promised to impound money appropriated by Congress if the lawmakers didn't hew to rigid spending ceilings.

Congress broke the limits anyway, and the administration now forecasts a deficit of $4.7 billion for the current fiscal year. That will double to $9.4 billion in 1975, Nixon said.

Here is how the President's spending plans and estimated government income for next year compare with estimated fiscal 1974 figures (in billions of dollars):

outlay	304.4	274.7
income	295.0	270.0
deficit	9.4	4.7

Because the fallout from the energy shortage has made economic forecasting more hazardous than usual, the administration's fiscal strategy has a new wrinkle. Alongside the budget outline, White House economists have drafted a set of contingency spending plans.

These emergency programs, mostly unannounced to date, will pump more money into the economy—and increase the federal debt—if regular budget action fails to shake the economy from its doldrums.

ENERGY—$1.5 billion in fiscal 1975, and $10 billion by 1980, for research and development in coal, oil and nuclear energy to assure "energy independence" for the United States.

DEFENSE—A $7.1 billion jump in outlays to $87.7 billion—mostly due to the effects of inflation on weapons and military salaries. The Navy wants to start work on a new class of ballistic missile submarines and another fighter aircraft, and the Army wants to increase its combat forces by about 3,000 men.

AGRICULTURE—Two-thirds of the $9.2 billion farm budget will go to finance food stamp programs. This is coupled with a wholesale cutback of 89 per cent in federal subsidies to farmers, the lowest level since 1955.

SPACE—The modest increase in NASA's $3.27 billion budget includes $850 million for design and testing of the space shuttle, a rocket-plane that will ferry astronauts between earth and orbiting spaceships.

ENVIRONMENT—States will get $3.4 billion spending authority to contract for sewage plant construction. This is a $1.4 billion increase from the previous year.

Corporate Tax Collections
To finance the budget, Nixon is counting on a healthy rise in individual and corporate tax collections, about 10 per cent for each sector, even though the economy will be running at a slower than usual pace through much of the year.

A proposed administration tax on windfall profits of oil companies—above-average earnings that occur solely because of the world-wide surge in petroleum prices—would yield about $3 billion in fiscal 1975, according to budget estimates.

A tax cut might have taken some of the steam out of last year's inflationary boom but Nixon pledged then not to increase the government's bite from private paychecks.

Now that the economy is at near-recession levels, some private economists have urged a tax cut as a means of turning consumer purchasing power back into the marketplace. The President has made no move in that direction either.

But Nixon pledged "to ensure that federal programs produce results that truly satisfy the needs of the American people, and do so at the lowest possible cost to the taxpayer."

Outlining future spending plans in his budget message one year ago, Nixon said outlays in fiscal 1975 definitely would not exceed $288 billion. He called this "an upper limit, or ceiling, that should not be breached."

Uncontrollable Increases
But a combination of veto-proof spending measures by Congress, inflation, and increases in so-called "uncontrollable" budget items pushed outlays past the $300 billion benchmark sooner than the White House expected.

In fact, about 90 per cent of the $30 billion year-to-year increase in spending resulted from automatic—or uncontrollable—increases in "earned right" programs such as Social Security, civil service retirement and pensions, plus the growing interest on the national debt.

Spending would have automatically risen to near $300 billion without any new programs at all, budget officials noted.

The administration has based its budget estimates on an unemployment rate averaging 5.5 per cent throughout the July 1, 1974-June 30, 1975 budget period.

Most private forecasters consider this unduly optimistic. Some predict unemployment will soar to 8 per cent in the months ahead.

Since deficits are unusually sensitive to the jobs rate, any rise in the number of out-of-work Americans quickly would widen the spending-income gap unless the government responds with extra fiscal stimulus.

One federal official said the deficit would increase by more than $1 billion if the unemployment rate increases to 6 per cent in fiscal 1975.

The percentage of American adults with at least a high school diploma went from 43 to 60 per cent from 1970 to 1971.

The Almanac

By United Press International
Today is Monday, Feb. 4, the 35th day of 1974 with 330 to follow.

The moon is approaching its full phase.

The morning star is Venus.

The evening stars are Mercury, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Aquarius.

Famed American transatlantic flyer Charles A. Lindbergh was born Feb. 4, 1902.

On this day in history:

In 1901, Maj. William Gorgas launched a U.S. Army campaign to wipe out yellow fever in Cuba.

In 1938, Adolf Hitler seized control of the German army and put Nazi officers in key posts as part of a plan which was to cause World War II.

In 1948, Ceylon became a free and self-governing dominion of Great Britain.

In 1966, President Lyndon Johnson flew to Hawaii for a conference on the Vietnam War.

A thought for the day: American author Mark Twain (Samuel Clemens) said, "Truth is the most valuable thing we have. Let us economize it."

Inflation: Major Culprit

With the fuel crisis and Watergate getting the headlines, there is danger that inflation, the major cause of our economic difficulties, will be overlooked in the rush.

In fact, as brought out in a recent Wall Street Journal article, "Money and Goods," inflation has disrupted the entire economy, not only of this country, but of the entire world.

With the government of the United States taxing industry to the point of confiscation, regulating it to the point of impotency, curtailing its profit potential and, then, on top of everything else, inflating the money supply, thus driving up the costs of replacing worn out and obsolete tools and machinery, it is little less than a miracle that we haven't had a fuel crisis long before now.

But inflation (governmental increase of the money supply) doesn't just harm the business community as some of its advocates like to believe. Aside from the fact that anything which harms business hurts everyone in the long run by driving up prices, inflation hurts the average man and woman in the street in a way few suspect.

How? By robbing their savings.

Inflation, up until fairly recently, has been at the creeping and crawling stages. More recently, however, it has gotten up off all - fours and begun to walk upright and, last year, broke into a trot with a rate of increase of 8.4 per cent.

If there is any doubt as to what that means to the prudent person with something put away for a rainy day or old age in a savings account or insurance policy, just consider that that 8.4 percent rate of increase did to his nest egg. Say that the savings are paying five per cent interest (which is about average), that means, with inflation running at 8.4 per cent, that the purchasing power of every dollar of savings is being whittled away at a rate of 3.4 per cent a year.

That, mind you, with inflation still at the trotting stage. What will happen when inflation really begins to gallop?

The life savings of people in 1923 Germany, whose government was following the same fiscal policy our government is today, were wiped out almost overnight, when it took 6,000,000,000,000 of the government's inflated marks to purchase a single pound of butter. For instance, just five years previous to the debacle and collapse of the German economy, a pound of butter was selling for three marks!

Emphasizing the seriousness of the point to which our government's inflationary policies have brought us, the Wall Street Journal article pointed out that the federal government, having resorted to inflation again and again, probably doesn't even know how much money there is in the economy, let alone in the world at large, and much less have any intention of reversing the destructive process.

Lenin is credited by Keynes as having hit upon the idea of inflation as a means of debauching the currency, creating economic chaos, and instituting communism (Marx called it "scientific socialism"). Little did he (Lenin) dream that he was paving the way for Hitler and all that followed. But he was!

Do It!

If you want something productive done, and done right, do it! If you want it done wrong, and as expensively as possible, turn it over to a council. If you don't want it done at all, appoint a committee, call a conference, and pass a law.

'Windfall Profits'

If the oil industry — which must realize profits in order to expand production and produce the added oil we need — is accused of making "windfall profits" when its profit margin reaches SEVEN percent, what are we to say about legislators when they vote themselves and others in the bureaucracy salary increases running up to ONE-HUNDRED percent?

Inflation

The General Services Administration annually publishes the United States Government Manual, a book which describes the alleged purposes and function of the various agencies of the federal government.

It serves another purpose—a guide to how much bigger the government is this year than last. The latest edition contains 794 pages—84 more than a year ago. The price went up, too. From $3 to $4.

THE CONSERVATIVE ADVOCATE

Buckley Counters Liberals' Challenge To 'Four Reforms'

By WILLIAM A. RUSHER
Of all the crosses conservatives have to bear, the heaviest is probably the tendency of liberals, when one of their proposals comes under attack, to respond with, "All right, but what would YOU do about it?" The hidden premise — that we, or the government as our surrogate, are obligated and qualified to come up with solutions to profound social problems — is so well concealed that the liberal generally doesn't even realize it is there. It is as if a cannibal, on being upbraided for his anthropophagy, were to reply, "Well, whom would YOU eat?"

Even when the central conservative intuition — that in the nature of mankind and human society many problems are not immediately solvable, and attempted "solutions" are almost always worse than the problems — is laid bare, the rhetorical difficulty remains. We want solutions so badly that it sounds childish to argue against a proposed reform, however dangerous or self-defeating it may be, on any ground save that a better solution is available.

Which is one reason conservatives should welcome "Four Reforms," the latest volume from the Stakhanovite typewriter of by brother Buckley (William F., that is). For, as the title indicates, the leading journalistic spokesman of American conservatism has at last undertaken to answer the familiar liberal challenge on its own programmatic terms. Never again need we mutter and stare into our highball glass when dared to propose something better. We have something better, at last.

Buckley is at pains to emphasize that his four proposed reforms are all technically "procedural" — an obscenity, presumably, to that dark conservative suspicion of reforms per se. But they all, as he cheerfully concedes, would have important consequences for policy — beneficial consequences at that.

Item: Buckley proposes that Congressional appropriations for social welfare be limited to states whose per capita income is below the national average. The result here would be to leave the richer states free to design welfare programs suited to their special needs, sparing them the useless and expensive ritual of routing through Washington the tax dollars to pay for these programs.

Item: Buckley proposes a sweeping reform of the tax laws, including elimination of all (repeat, all) exemptions and deductions, elimination of the corporation tax, an across-the-board 15 per cent tax on all income, reimbursement of taxpayers below the poverty line, and federal collection of income tax revenues on behalf of the states.

Item: Buckley would enshrine the anti-discriminatory thrust of Brown vs. Board of Education in a Constitutional amendment — which amendment would, however, also sanction aid to parochial schools. The "brazializing compulsions" that swept over the federal judiciary in the 1960s, which resulted in busing children hither and thither, would be summarily ended, and variety in education would be assured.

"Uh, yes — he's all for getting monkeys off people's backs."

INSIDE LABOR

Labor-Communist Coalition Set To Take Over In Britain

By VICTOR RIESEL

WASHINGTON — Recently an exceptionally brilliant and well-placed Central Intelligence Agency planning section executive walked into his London office near the American Embassy on Grosvenor Square. Since he is the famed Cord Meyer, and since there are hangers-on who sell such awesome bits of news, word of his arrival swiftly made the rounds.

Soon left-wingers in the Socialist Labor party were charging that the U.S. had strengthened its intelligence apparatus to spy on the British because of the horrendously costly labor upheaval which is threatening to bankrupt our most devoted European ally.

The left-wing technique is simple — equate CIA with murderous dirty tricks, charge someone with being an agent for hire by Cord Meyer in certain sectors or by CIA "desks" across the river and you've made a case. Things equal to the same thing are equal to each other, etc. So everybody runs from any contact with CIA — and our intelligence service is weakened to the degree equal to those who refuse to cooperate.

This is actually true in the broad field of labor, its liberal allies and intellectual fellow travelers.

First it should be explained, there are those of us in the U.S. who really don't need the tall, graying 53-year-old Cord Meyer, ex-fighting Marine, Yale graduate summa cum laude, to tell us that British labor is swinging far left. And soon will be in the hands of its own pro-Soviet bloc. The international significance of such influence is enormous. It will tear Britain, with all that its friendships implies, from us.

Some of us don't need Cord Meyer to disclose that the British National Union of Mineworkers (NUM) is, in effect, dominated by members of the Communist party — and that their aim is not only to topple Prime Minister Heath's pro-American government but the free capitalist system itself. That is the purpose, I believe, of NUM vice president Mick McGahey, admitted Communist party member.

Fact is that the London-based Trades Union Congress (counterpart of the AFL-CIO) is dominated by two powerful Soviet sympathizers, Hugh Scanlon, leader of the Amalgamated Engineers Union, and Jack Jones who leads the isles' biggest union, a blend of leasters, waterfront workers and warehouse men.

Through their control of the TUC, these two men will dominate the British Labor party. Should it take power, it will veer Britain away from the West and from the U.S. this can be accomplished by Jones and Scanlon in the same fashion any national labor federation swings a labor (in the U.S. the Democratic) party — by money, manpower and campaign support logistics.

It should be noted that Britain now is the unreported spawning ground of scores of revolutionary sects. The miners' leftist leaders want to keep up with the Joneses, so to speak. Their miners union alone is proving it can cripple Britain by depriving it of coal which provides fuel for 70 percent of the U.K.'s energy. And some estimate the cost to the British economy of the present miners' slowdown (no overtime work) to run as high as several billion dollars a month.

Certainly there is positive reason for the U.S. to be concerned. And for the CIA to observe more closely. The Communists, to camouflage their own subversion, paint CIA in general, and Cord Meyer in particular, as neanderthals and subversive.

The Communists have reason to hate Meyer. He is a fine

Let's Brighten World On Our 200th Birthday

By PAUL HARVEY
Uncle Sam's going to be 200 years old within 24 months, and almost nothing is being planned to celebrate that monumental milestone.

Between 1776 and 1976 our 6 percent fraction of the world's population came to possess more than half of all the world's good things.

The "ism" that made that material progress possible deserves a salute.

Never, in peace or war, have we needed more to put the "united" back in the "United States."

Let's. Spokane, Wash., has been five years planning this year's World's Fair; it takes that long.

Yet here we are within just two years of the bicentennial birthday of our country and even Philadelphia can't close ranks long enough to get a celebration off the ground.

Mention it — and immediately you'll hear our Americanism renounced for unwinnable wars and crime and inflation and pollution and Watergate.

Demonstrating disdain for these things, some bitter youngsters wear the American Flag as a patch on the seat of their britches.

Well, now — The Americanism is not to blame for the fuel shortage; the fuel shortage in most other nations is worse than here.

The Americanism is not to blame for the dead-end wars. Those involvements result from the mistakes in judgment of temporarily elected leaders.

Nor can you blame ourism for corruption. For every corrupt politician there is a citizen corrupter. For every bribe-taking policeman there is a bribe-giver.

We can't get away with blaming ourism or our Constitution or our Flag for what ails us.

writer. He beat them at their own game in winning over intellectuals not long after World War II. He spent CIA money financing anti-Communist magazines in London and West Berlin.

And he caught the Communists on the international labor front — first back in 1954 when he was named to a task force to help American labor attach fight Communists who bought national union federations wholesale and turned them over to armed Communist leaders. Then in British Guiana (now Guyana) where the Stalinists paid for a Communist party. Then in Chile where Meyer fought Allende in the early '60s. So it's gone — and almost always the Communist agents were beaten.

Now there is a possibility that Soviet labor organizations, calling themselves unions, led by the former secret police chief Aleksandr Shelepin, may infiltrate or dominate most of European labor, take it over with money, manpower and central organization.

Backstage Pressure Hits World Bank 'Soft' Loans

By ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON — An intense backstage pressure drive is underway to undo the House's surprise rejection of another $1.5 billion handout to the International Development Association (IDA) — the so-called "soft loan window" of the World Bank.

Spearheading this high-powered lobbying is World Bank president Robert McNamara, who is in charge of dishing out the interest-free "soft" loans.

Reputed inside strategy of the blitz is to get the Senate to approve a lesser grant of around $1 billion to IDA, and then bring the issue up again in the House — on the theory it can be persuaded to go along on a smaller contribution.

How successful this will prove remains to be seen.

Its prospects don't appear promising from the powerful bipartisan opposition displayed during the stormy House debate which preceded the decisive 248 to 155 defeat of the $1.5 billion proposal.

Party line-up on this eventful ballot was: Pro — Democrats 108; Republicans 47. Against — Republicans 130; Democrats 118.

Not only was the marked bipartisan nature of the voting significant, but equally so was the verbal assault on the measure. Republicans are unsparing in their condemnation — despite the fact that Secretary of State Kissinger and Treasury Secretary Shultz vigorously advocated support.

Illustrative of the GOP blasts was the stand of Rep. H.R. Gross, Iowa, ranking member of the Foreign Affairs Committee, who was floor leader of the opposition. Zeroing in directly on the administration-backed proposal he thundered:

"These are not loans. They are disguised gifts, and it's insulting intelligence to describe them otherwise. The terms are so soft they will never be repaid. Under these 50-year interest-free loans, the first 10 years is a 'grace period' during which absolutely no payment is made. There is supposed to be a 1/4 percent payment on the principal in the next 10 years, and presumably 3 percent payments on the principal for the remaining 30 years.

"I asked supporters of this measure whether Americans seeking to buy homes or to finance a business could borrow on these terms and conditions. The answer was an irritated 'no.' Yet these same Americans are being asked to rubber-stamp the borrowing by their government of $1.5 billion for 'soft loans' to foreigners on which American taxpayers will pay a sum of 6 percent interest."

Blockbusters

Probably the most shattering opposition argument was the unrefuted charge by Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, that the oil-rich Arabs would be the principal beneficiaries of more IDA "soft" loans.

He declared flatly these loans would be used by the "developing countries" to pay the exorbitant oil prices now demanded by the Arabs.

"The $1.5 billion we are being asked to appropriate," said Hays, "will not even soak up the amount of money the Arabs are taking away from the undeveloped nations in the staggering price increases they have put on oil in the last 90 days. The $1.5 billion will not even touch the cost these small countries are going to have to pay for oil."

"It's all right to talk about what we ought to do for the poor of the world, but what this is going to be in reality is another subsidy for Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Kibya and the other oil-producing nations who are striking not only at us, but also mangling the needy of the undeveloped nations of the world."

Not one supporter of the IDA measure said a word in answer to Hays' blockbuster.

Re. Clarence Long, D-Md., member of the powerful Appropriations Committee, followed with another solar plexus blow — charging that, although IDA loans are interest-free, the borrowing countries soak their own people high rates.

"These farmers and small businessmen have to pay 12 to 20 percent for loans," declared Long. "But we are lending this money to these countries on virtually a give-away basis. They turn around and lend it to their poor people who have to pay through the nose. As a consequence, we get a bad name and most of the goodwill of this aid is dissipated."

Unexpectedly, Long's telling exhortation was vigorously seconded by Rep. George Mahon, D-Tex., veteran chairman of the Appropriations Committee. In the past, the widely respected and influential legislator has supported foreign aid grants, including the IDA.

But this time, Mahon drew the line — serving notice he would strongly oppose "the appropriation of funds for this legislation." He particularly stressed that the U.S. share of IDA funds is far greater than that of other countries, and he could no longer agree to that.

Mahon's quiet-voiced denunciation clearly made a deep impression on House members.

Mockery is often poetry of art.

Nicklaus Captures Hawaiian Tourney

HONOLULU (UPI) — So much for the philosophy that nice guys finish last. Jack Nicklaus, who in his comments proved to be a very nice guy indeed, finished first in the $220,000 Hawaiian Open Sunday. Which isn't much more surprising than the fact they grow sugar cane on the windward side.

Nicklaus shot a final-round 70 for 271, 17 under par, and a three-shot victory over Eddie Pearce, youngest man on tour. That part was expected, since Jack, who is considered to be the best golfer since the Pleistocene Age, entered the last round with a six-shot margin.

What wasn't expected were

Jack's words after he finished, words that proved to be as loaded with sentiment as Jack is with talent.

Nicklaus needed a 20-foot putt on the 18th green for a birdie that would have broken the 73-hole tournament record set by the late Ted Makalena in 1966. He putted, the ball missed going in by inches, and Nicklaus joined Makalena as the record holder.

"When I got up to that putt," said Nicklaus, "the thought entered my mind that I would break Ted's record if I made it. I like records, and I would never try to miss any putt intentionally, but I really didn't want to break that record."

Makalena, the greatest golfer to come from Hawaii, drowned in a surfing accident only a few weeks before the Hawaiian Open in 1966. It saddened the islanders, and a lot of the guys on the PGA Tour who had come to know Makalena as one of the fine personalities.

"Ted was a good friend of mine," said Nicklaus, "and I'm glad his record is still on the books."

So is Nicklaus' now, of course, since he proved he can do out here in the middle of the Pacific Ocean what he has done practically everywhere in the continental United States, win a PGA tournament.

The Hawaiian Open, with its $44,000 first prize, was his 52nd tour victory.

PAMPA STARS — Pampa's high-point men against Berger Friday night were Howie Lewis (left) and Robert Young, who had 12 each. Pampa will open the second half of district play against Caprock at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Longhorn gym. Pampa defeated Caprock, 78-54, in the teams' first meeting.

Celtics Do It All Wrong, Fall To Capital By 112-99

By United Press International — It was a simple game, really. The Capital Bullets did everything right and the Boston Celtics did everything wrong.

That, according to Celtics Coach Tom Heinsohn, is why the Bullets beat the Celtics, 112-99, on national television Sunday.

"The Bullets were physical with us," Heinsohn said, "but we weren't physical with them. We let them get the shots—they didn't let us get the shots. How are you supposed to win like that?"

Boston kept the pressure on in the first half, although it only led by four at the half. The Celtics had built up leads of nine points twice, only to have them erased by the shooting of Phil Chenier, who had 15 points in the half and a game-high 29.

In the second half, the game turned completely in Capital's favor. The Bullets quickly wiped out Boston's four-point lead on baskets by Elvin Hayes and Mike Riordan. With 8:41 left in the third quarter, Kevin Porter started a binge by hitting on a 20-foot jumper to give Capital the lead for the first time at 59-58. Shortly thereafter, Porter and Hayes collected nine points between them to lead the Bullets to an 11-0 streak to break the game open.

The Bullets then stopped Boston's fast break by sending a man to midcourt to intercept them before the break could form.

In other NBA games Sunday, Los Angeles ripped Portland, 124-91. Buffalo downed Philadelphia, 112-98. Chicago defeated Cleveland, 108-94. Houston stopped Atlanta, 123-112, and Detroit dumped Seattle, 114-100.

Reserve guard Jim Price came off the bench to score 24 points and Happy Hairston added 23 as the Lakers continued to dominate Portland, routing the Trail Blazers for the 11th time without a defeat at home. The Lakers increased their Pacific Division lead to a full game over idle Golden State and the point spread was the biggest margin of victory this year for Los Angeles, topping the 137-109 margin against Portland earlier.

Jerry Sloan hit on 11 of 14 shots and equaled his season high of 25 points as the Bulls ran their current winning streak to eight games by beating Cleveland. It was their eighth consecutive game in which the Bulls' defense has held its opponents under 100 points.

Bob McAdoo scored 28 points and Jim McMillian added 20 to pace Buffalo over Philadelphia at Toronto and Calvin Murphy scored 23 points and added a career high 15 assists to lead Houston over Atlanta. The victory broke a five-game losing streak.

SMU Going Nowhere, Tech Still Unbeaten In SWC Standings

By United Press International — Texas Tech takes its prize winning act into hostile territory again this week. Enemy country has not bothered the Red Raiders so far, but that does not mean Tech coach Gerald Myers is looking forward to the trip.

The Raiders, undefeated in six games of Southwest Conference action and holding a one-game lead over Texas and a two-game bulge over Baylor, travels first to Dallas Tuesday night.

Southern Methodist is apparently going nowhere in the league race this year, having just dropped a decision to Rice and fallen into a four-way deadlock with the Owls, Texas A&M and Arkansas at 2-4.

But SMU is getting a little weary of being pushed around by Tech, and the loss to the Red Raiders at this stage of the campaign last year was the decision that sent the Mustangs into a depression from which they have yet to recover.

Then on Saturday, Tech must travel to Waco for a meeting with Baylor, a team that improves with each outing and a club which dominated Texas A&M last Saturday to the extent that A&M is seldom dominated.

"The race ahead is tough," said Myers. "Texas is not going to lose many ball games. They make very few mistakes."

Despite losing to Rice, SMU will be tough for us at their place. And you certainly can't count Baylor out and we have to go down there next weekend."

Before the Baylor-Texas Tech meeting, however, the Bears have a Tuesday night meeting with Texas in Austin.

In that game the Longhorns' Larry Robinson will be trying to produce his fifth straight 30-point performance. The lean Longhorn has averaged 34.5 points a game in his last four appearances, scoring 32 against Rice, 38 against Texas Tech, 30 against Texas A&M and popping in 38 against Arkansas in Fayetteville last Saturday.

The Bears, however, have been the best shooting team in the conference this season, averaging almost 50 per cent for the entire campaign.

Tech, going for its second straight conference championship, has won seven straight league games on the road—the last four of the 1972-73 season as well as the first three this year against Arkansas, Texas and Rice.

But Myers has reason to fear the Baylor trip since it was the Bears which last took advantage of its home court to defeat Tech—downing the Raiders in Waco last season, 66-57.

Ex-Heavyweight Shot 3 Times

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — One-time top heavyweight boxing contender Thad Spencer, 30, Portland, was in serious condition today after being shot three times in a shootout at a bar that left one man dead.

Elvin L. Alexander, 34, Portland, was dead on arrival at Emanuel Hospital here after being shot in the face Sunday.

Portland Police said no one has yet been charged in the shootings. They said the shootout took place at "Fred's Place" about 2 a.m. Sunday, and Spencer had been shot at least three times.

Louisville, Bradley Tied For 1st In Conference

By United Press International — The Missouri Valley Conference schedule makers may have pulled off a coup this season.

There at the end of the league slate, on March 2, is a scheduled date between Bradley and Louisville in Peoria. When those two teams met the first time, back in December, Louisville won 74-65.

And at present those two teams sit on top of the MVC standings — Louisville's 13th-ranked Cardinals No. 1 with a 6-0 conference mark and Bradley No. 2 at 5-1.

The Cardinals, after a two week vacation from conference play, returned to league action last week with three victories and Bradley came away with two wins. All of those successes came on the teams' home courts, however.

Louisville ran its season record to 14-3 with decisions over Drake (75-73), North Texas (97-81) and West Texas (99-73). Bradley whipped Wichita (108-73) and New Mexico State (79-60).

The only other teams in the league at or above .500 are New Mexico State (3-2) and Wichita (3-3).

New Mexico State has a good chance to alter the picture this week since it catches both Louisville and Bradley at home. The Cardinals travel to Las Cruces Thursday night and Bradley will show up Saturday night.

Louisville will also be at West Texas this week and Bradley will travel to Tulsa.

Louisville's latest triumph was a one-sided affair over West Texas, in which the Cardinals forced 18 turnovers — coming away with 12 clean steals.

Allen Murphy, Louisville's leading scorer, tossed in 18 points, as did Junior Bridgeman.

Bradley had just as little difficulty handling New Mexico State in winning its eighth game in the last nine starts. The Braves broke open the game with a 12-point surge late in the first half which turned a one-point lead into a 13-point bulge.

In another conference affair the Drake Bulldogs put a stopper on Tulsa's comeback hopes. The Golden Hurricane, having lost its first three league games, had come back to win the next three before running into Drake.

Top Basketball Teams Forced To Battle Back

By United Press International — UCLA and North Carolina State, the nation's No. 1 and 2-ranked teams, found themselves in unique positions—losing—in the first half against conference foes Saturday but came back to score convincing victories.

Southern Cal, hoping to upset the top-ranked Bruins on their home court, jumped to a six-point lead, 46-40, with 15:39 remaining after burning the net with 65.4 per cent field goal shooting in the first half.

But in the next five minutes the Bruins reeled off seven straight field goals, changed the score to 54-48 in their favor by holding USC scoreless for seven and a half minutes and coasted to their 10th victory in 17 games this season, 65-54.

UCLA is now 5-0 in Pac-8 play while USC is 3-2.

Considering the closeness of the game until the late stages, Wooden said he's "hopeful that we have the conference championship wrapped up before we meet the Trojans" at their court. That will be March 9, both teams' final season game.

With David Thompson and Tommy Burleson combining for 45 points, North Carolina State rebounded from a seven-point first-half deficit to score a 106-93 Atlantic Coast Conference victory over Virginia. Gus Gerard matched his season average, scoring 20 points, to lead the Cavaliers.

The victory was State's 15th this season against a single loss, to UCLA, and its sixth without a loss against ACC opponents. Virginia, dealt its seventh straight defeat, is now 5-11 overall and 2-4 in the conference.

In other action, third-ranked Notre Dame beat Davidson, 95-84, fourth-ranked North Carolina edged Clemson, 61-60, fifth-ranked Marquette defeated DePaul, 70-57, sixth-ranked Maryland ripped Duke, 104-83, seventh-ranked Vanderbilt beat Florida, 58-52, ninth-ranked Alabama beat Auburn, 73-64, and 10th-ranked Pittsburgh downed William & Mary, 68-62.

Elsewhere, Long Beach State kayped Oral Roberts, 98-89, Indiana routed Iowa, 85-50, Louisville upended West Texas State, 99-73, Wisconsin was upset by Minnesota, 64-63 in overtime, Texas-El Paso tripped Northeast Louisiana, 59-39, Syracuse walloped American University, 82-63, and Purdue was upset by Michigan State, 76-74.

Once again Dwight Clay, Notre Dame's "Ice Man," got the credit for a win by the No. 3-ranked Fighting Irish basketball team. "In their second half spurt," losing Coach Terry Holland of Davidson said, "Clay was just playing a super ball game. He was all over the court and making the big baskets."

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH Chickenpox--An Infectious Disease

By G.C. THOSTESON, M.D.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 30 and just had my second baby. The first child, who is 4, has chickenpox. I would like to know if I should take the new baby to my mother's so she and I won't get the chickenpox.
--T.Y.

There isn't a ghost of a chance I can get this answer to you in time to be of any use to you. You've already had to decide before now one way or the other. But maybe my answer will be a guide for others.

Chickenpox is one of the most infectious of all childhood diseases. Chances are you've already had it; most people have by the time they are adults. So the question really concerns the baby.

If you've already taken the baby home from the hospital, only to have the older child come down with the chickenpox, you might as well figure that the baby now has been exposed, and there's no point in taking her to your mother's.

The reason: chickenpox is most communicable just BEFORE the eruptions appear and in the early stages of the disease. Later the infectiousness gradually tapers off.

The disease, after exposure, has a long incubation period. It can be from 14 to 21 days before it begins to show.

On the plus side, some newborn infants have a degree of immunity to chickenpox. (Immunity acquired from the mother. This is true of a good many diseases, the mother giving the baby temporary immunity which is a safeguard in the first days and weeks of life.)

A second possible means of safety: since chickenpox is very similar to Herpes (shingles), an injection of immune globulin recently recovered from shingles can be given to an exposed child as protection against chickenpox. The problem is that such immune globulin isn't necessarily available when you need it.

But if it is, and it is given after exposure but early as possible before the disease appears, it can prevent the disease or at least make it less severe.

Common as chickenpox is, it is not to be regarded lightly. The chief complication is infection of the blebs -- the "pocks" that appear. If there are blebs in or around the mouth, they can interfere with eating. And if there is involvement of the appendix, it can resemble an acute attack of appendicitis.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have had glomerulonephritis for a year and eight months and am still losing a large quantity of albumen (6% instead of zero). My question is that I would like to have a baby. My doctor doesn't advise it. What would my chances of having a normal baby be?

Is there some kind of test during pregnancy to determine if you are carrying a defective child?

The great risk in your situation would be a worsening of the kidney disorder -- the kidneys are under considerable strain during pregnancy. The possibility of having a toxemia of pregnancy is, I believe, great.

Yes, some birth defects can be detected by analysis of the amniotic fluid (a test called amniocentesis) about a third of the way through a pregnancy.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a college student and drink coffee in large amounts before examinations. Lately a cup of coffee causes me to have two separate pains on either side of my back bone in the general region associated with the kidneys. Is this serious?

--R.B.

I don't see what the connection would be -- but to be on the safe side I would suggest a urine test to see if any kidney infection exists.

Don't take chances with "kidney trouble." It may be only minor, but it can be dangerous. Read Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "Your Kidneys -- Facts You Need To Know About Them." Write to him in care of Publishers - Hall Syndicate, 401 N. Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed (use zip code), stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT Carol--A Show Business Genius

By EARL WILSON
NEW YORK -- So I stick out my neck again. Carol Channing is no mere actress, she's some kind of a show business genius. She's a close-to-6-foot lady and she's celebrating one of her early 50th birthdays this week. Still, in "Lorelei" which opened spectacularly at the Palace the other night, she was a believable sexy blonde showgirl - goldigger of no more than 30, whose gyrations with her body led me to call out to fellow watchers. "She's got great sex appeal!"

"You got to be kidding" was an average response until I pointed out how Carol shimmered and frolicked and wiggled as she tossed around her pretty legs. My opinion of Carol's opening (with Tamara Long, Peter Palmer, Lee Roy Sears and, yes, Dody Goodman) was high. There was a party at the Colony hosted by producer Lee Gruber and Claudia Watson Cole where I asked playwright Anita Loos, an octogenarian author of "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes."

"How did you start writing about this blonde?" "It was about 1923-24," Miss Loos replied. "I was on a train going to California and I noticed a certain blonde on the train getting away with murder because she was a blonde. I wrote this piece, and it became

A book, a straight play, a musical, a movie and a new material besides.

"Would you tell me who it was who the blonde was ... that inspired you to all this anti-blonde activity?" I asked.

"Yes, and you're the first one I ever told. Do you remember the picture when Jimmy Cagney pushed a grapefruit in a woman's face? It was Mae Clarke. That's the one. Did I do wrong?"

Then I asked Miss Loos her own original hair color. "A brunette always, always a brunette," she said.

Harry Hershfield, the 88-year-old "Mr. New York," who's a heart patient in St. Clare's Hospital, is using a pacemaker.

"I'm going to try it out for about 10 years and if it doesn't work well, to hell with it," Harry said from his hospital bed. Hershfield, the friend of VIPs, received a get-well letter from President Nixon, who had read that was ill.

Secretary Kissinger's so well protected by the Secret Service that he and Nancy Maginnis weren't permitted to take their friends Bob Evans, vice president of Paramount Pictures, and his brother, Charles Evans, and his date, Henry Ford's daughter Ann Ford, in their limousine after they went to see Liz Minnelli's closing show at the Winter Garden. They went away in separate cars after going backstage to congratulate Liz on her tremendous 3-week engagement which earned her around a third of a million.

My favorite astrologer, Frances J. Littlejohn of Isabella, Mo., says there'll be another scandal that'll put Watergate in the shadows and it won't involve the Republican party. "Pajama Game" gave up. Producer Richard Adler, unable to get another theatre, will close it this weekend, with a loss of less than $300,000. Debbie Reynolds, after her last performance in "Irene," Saturday night, will undergo minor ear surgery. But she'll appear "in person and on screen" in "An Evening with Joanne Woodward and Debbie Reynolds," presented by John Springer, Feb. 11 at Circle in the Square. Joseph E. Levine Theatre. Debbie will settle down living in NY.

THE MIDNIGHT EARL... Tony Curtis will next star in the movie "Lepke," about the racketeer Lepke Buchalter, who died in the electric chair in Sing Sing. Although Lepke was accused of 50 murders, Tony hopes to make him seem "understandable." It will be shot at MGM in Culver City.

Howard Hughes reportedly will take over the Xanadu Hotel in Freeport from D.K. Ludwig.

Liz Taylor, Richard Burton and Burt Reynolds will host the Academy Awards. Jack Cassidy and Shirley Jones'll do a cafe act together, opening in June at the Las Vegas Grand Hotel. Jack's now in the MGM T.V. "Phantom of Hollywood" ... Bobby Riggs, at the Stage Deli, wore a bright yellow jacket with the bright red words "Sugar Daddy" fore and aft.

The Shah of Iran's sister Princess Shahnaz Pahlavi, who bought the lavish former home of Dinah Shore and George Montgomery for $500,000, wants to buy photographer Dick Avedon's NYC townhouse, too. Actress Kim Darby'll wed John David Carson of "Day of the Dolphin."

Show Biz Quiz: Al Jolson starred in the "Jazz Singer" film; who starred in the stage version? Answer to Friday's: Dr. Konrad Styner in "Medic" was played by Richard Boone.

Jacqueline Susann's writing a non-fiction book ("Goodnight, Sweet Princess") about her dog.

I'D RATHER BE LIGHT TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Pat Henry boasts that this uncle is a self-made man: "He came to this country a penniless kid -- but by the time he was deported

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Current events are so grim, sighed a fellow, that he can't decide whether to watch the 6 o'clock news and be unable to eat dinner, or the 11 o'clock news and be unable to sleep.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "Baby-sitting is an art. It's not easy to wake up five minutes before the parents come home."

EARL'S PEARLS: The income tax forms are less complicated in '74. Every year they make 'em easier to fill out and harder to pay.

A new young comic did an impression of Pres. Nixon, which got no laughs or applause. "Gee," he said, "I had no idea Nixon was that unpopular!"

That's earl, brother. All Rights Reserved.

A weekly public service feature from the Texas State Department of Health Accent on Health

J.E. PEAVY, M.D., Commissioner of Health

More than 50,000 Texans are expected to die with cardiovascular disease in 1974 -- a rather grim outlook so early in the year.

Ready for another shocker? Deaths in the United States from cardiovascular disease (heart and blood vessel diseases) are forecast to exceed one million persons, 53 percent of deaths from all causes.

The State Health Department is aware of this frightful loss and joins with other government agencies and volunteer organizations in public awareness campaigns designed to cut into this annual toll. February once again is designated as National Heart Month.

It is estimated that Texas has 1.2 million of the almost 28 million persons in the United States afflicted with some major form of heart and blood vessel disease.

Hypertension afflicts more than 22 million persons; coronary heart disease almost four million; rheumatic heart disease another 1.7 million; and stroke an estimated 1.6 million. Some victims have more than one disorder.

This is the bad side of the ledger. Now, what can be done to help balance the books?

In many illnesses there are cures wrought by modern medicines. In others there are preventive methods such as immunizations. There are no injections to ward off heart disease, but some steps can be taken to lessen your chances of becoming a statistic.

Nine risk factors are listed by physicians and medical scientists which make man more susceptible to a heart attack. One of these -- heredity -- is beyond our control.

But, by decisive action, you may be able to cut down on your chances of heart problems due to the other eight: high blood pressure, high levels of cholesterol in the blood, overweight, excessive eating, too little exercise, diabetes, cigarette smoking and tensions.

If you are beset by any one of these risks, your chances of a premature heart attack are boosted to six times above the risk of the person free from such a burden. With a combination of factors, your risk is far higher.

A man's chances of having a heart attack before age 65 are only about one in 20 to one in 50 if he is normal in these nine risk factors. If you are overshadowed by two or three of these risk factors, such as high blood pressure (hypertension), high blood cholesterol or obesity, your chances rise to one in two, or 50 percent.

A regular checkup, as prescribed by your private physician, may provide some advance notice of the impending danger of a cardiovascular problem, says the State Health Department. You and your doctor can chart a course of action to eliminate some of those nine factors so powerfully implicated in causing heart attacks.
