Pampa Gets 2 Inches Snow Blankets Panhandle Area

Two to four inches of snow covered the Panhandle today and a cold front which swept through Texas was blamed for eight deaths and a fiery train wreck. The Highway Patrol said all roads across the Panhandle were coated with ice and were extremely hazardous, particularly within a 150-mile radius of Amarillo.

In Pampa, roads and sidewalks were coated with ice and snow as workers walked and drove to their places of employment this morning. A total of two inches of snow was measured which melted out in .17 inch of moisture.

The snow started falling here about 4 p.m. yesterday and by dark, was beginning to "stick." This morning, cars were covered with the snow, which came interspersed with sleet, and the blanket of white covered everything but streets, which traffic kept clear for the most part.

The snow was melting this morning but skies were still overcast and temperatures were low. The forecast for today is a tomorrow with partly cloudy skies and cold temperatures again tonight. It is expected to warm up

Airport Manager Not Named By Directors Board

The Gray County Airport Board didn't name a new manager for Perry LeFors Field at its meeting yesterday because it didn't have a full membership attendance. The meeting was held in Hugh Burdette's office in the Hughes Building.

Five persons have applied for the post and Tom Farwell, board secretary, says there is a "lot of talent" represented. The board will meet again either Wednesday or Thursday of next week and, it is expected, name the new manager. Ford Cowan is the temporary manager at present.

Navy Seeks Answer For Vanguard Flop

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UP)—The Navy hunted more parts of its Vanguard rocket today to determine just why the satellite carrier failed.

The Navy already has recovered the first stage of the ill-fated Vanguard, presumably if the murky waters off the cape where the biggest chunks of the 72-foot rocket fell.

The Vanguard was launched early Wednesday, but snapped in two after barely a minute of flight and was destroyed by remote control as it plummeted toward the sea.

More Firings Expected
Renewed activity on the cape today indicated additional missile firings are imminent at the Air Force test center.

A huge intercontinental Atlas, an intermediate range Air Force Thor and an Army missile—probably a Redstone or Jupiter—stood in their service towers. The Atlas was still fired on the ground last week.

Time for firing the missiles was kept secret.

In Washington, officials said the Vanguard was due to a simple wiring defect which prevented the "brain" of the Vanguard from sending orders to the engine control system which could have corrected the sudden swerve that put too much of a strain on the three-stage Vanguard.

But although the Navy knew the "what" and "how" of the Vanguard failure, technicians still had not uncovered the "why" of the wiring defect. This might take days to discover.

"As far as we can tell there was no device that malfunctioned," the Navy said. "There seemed to be a defect in the wiring connecting the auto pilot and the hydraulic servo system of the first stage.

"Therefore, when the rocket began to deviate, a correcting signal from the auto pilot could not reach the first stage servo system, which in turn could have issued an electronic command correcting" the trouble.

CONGRESSIONAL ACTIVITIES:

Editor Blasts Government Secrecy

WASHINGTON (UP)—A prominent editor hit at government secrecy today as "suffocatingly" widespread.

J. Russell Wiggins, vice-president and executive editor of The Washington Post and Times-Herald, called for legislation to shield the people's "right to know." He supported a measure requiring government agencies to give out information unless empowered legally to withhold it.

The bill would prevent agencies from using the so-called government "housekeeping" law as justification for denying information to the public. Passed by the First Congress in 1789, the law provides for maintenance and use of government documents.

Space Flights Seen
A spokesman for the American Civil Liberties Union, Irving Ferman, in more testimony prepared for the opening of hearings on the bill said it was "almost shocking" that all 10 government departments have opposed the bill. The hearings are being conducted by a House government information subcommittee.

Two Pampans Named To State Group

A. A. Schuneman, president of the First National Bank, and Hugh Burdette of the Cabot Carbon Company have accepted appointment to the State Advisory Board of the Texas Citizens Committee for the Hoover Report. P. B. (Jack) Garrett of Dallas, State Chairman, announced today.

The State Advisory Board, composed of business and civic leaders throughout the state, will work with the national Citizens Committee for the Hoover Report to induce Congress to pass the remaining recommendations of the bipartisan Hoover Commission. These recommendations seek to promote greater efficiency and reduce waste and duplication in the operation of the federal government.

In addition to the state board, local committees will be established in each of the state's 21 congressional districts and an intensive campaign will use all means possible to acquaint the public with the provisions of the Hoover Report and to encourage citizens to ask their Congressmen for passage of legislation needed to put the recommendations into effect.

The need to allocate greater sums to research on missile development and space weapons, called attention to the urgent need for passage of these remaining recommendations to get maximum effectiveness from every tax dollar, according to Mr. Garrett and his three state co-chairmen, B. E. Godfrey of Fort Worth, Sydney Oden of Houston and Elmer A. Dittmar of San Antonio.

Tangible savings resulting since the first Hoover Commission's report now total $7 billion and yet it is estimated that in the remaining recommendations to come before the current Congressional session, it will be possible to effect even more billions, the state chairman added.

The five major recommendations which the Citizens Committee would emphasize in its campaign would (1) establish for the Department of Defense a unified system of procurement for common-use products and services; (2) provide for departmental and agency budgeting on the basis of annual accrued expenditures; (3) establish a modern senior civil service, providing a nucleus of permanent top-level administrative personnel free from political pressures; (4) eliminate needless and excessively costly government competition with private business; and (5) coordinate federal medical agencies to reduce overlapping and duplication.

Woman Gets Probated Term For Local Bank Robbery Try

Edna Gail Jantzen of Spearman, who attempted to rob the First National Bank here on Nov. 9, 1957, was given a three-year probated sentence in federal court in Amarillo yesterday.

Mrs. Jantzen, a widow with two young sons, pleaded guilty to a charge of attempted bank robbery and Judge Joe Dooley, who probated the sentence, said he thought she was a "very good prospect for probation."

Mrs. Jantzen entered the bank here at about 11:30 a.m. last Nov. 9 and handed Mrs. Hugh (Wallie) Shotwell, teller, a note demanding "all your fives, tens, twenties, and all the big money." Mrs. Shotwell told the woman that an alarm had already been sounded, and so she picked up the note and left the bank. Two bank employees followed the woman on a meandering trip back to her car, where they got the license number and returned to the bank.

Mrs. Jantzen followed the two back to the bank and was arrested by city police, who had been called to the scene of the attempted robbery in the meantime.

Mrs. Jantzen was described as "tearful and unable to speak coherently" in court yesterday after making her guilty plea. Her attorney summed up the testimony she had been scheduled to give.

Defense counsel told the court Mrs. Jantzen's husband was killed in an automobile crash in 1954. Thereafter she worked at intervals as a waitress. In 1956 she went to Amarillo to take care of her

MOD Drive In Mobeetie Finishes

Mrs. J. T. Johnston, Mobeetie community chairman of the March of Dimes, announces the conclusion of the program with a total of $232.90 collected.

The money was raised through individual contributions, the "coffee day", and with a community basketball game held in the Mobeetie High School Gym on February 3rd.

Individuals of the community participated in the basketball games and donated food for the concession stand and pies and cakes for an auction sale. Mrs. Johnston has expressed thanks to all who had a part in the Mobeetie March of Dimes.

Nuclear Rocket For US Due

Will Double Power Of Chemical-Fuel Thrust

By DAYTON MOORE
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON — (UP) — Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson said today the United States is on the threshold of more "exciting developments" in space. Underlining his prediction was an atomic expert's disclosure that development of a nuclear rocket for outer space propulsion is not too far from becoming a reality.

Col. Jack Armstrong, the Atomic Energy Commission's assistant chief of aircraft reactors, said problems remaining before a nuclear rocket were "less difficult" than those faced in making an H-bomb and A-bomb. He said when perfected nuclear rockets could develop two to four times the thrust of chemical-fueled rockets.

Johnson, expected to take over chairmanship of the new Senate outer space committee, is believed in favor of having a civilian agency take over direction of the nation's space exploration effort.

Under compromise legislation approved by Congress Thursday, space projects assigned by President Eisenhower will be under the Defense Department for the next year. Congress and the special Senate committee will decide on ultimate control.

Other developments:
—Navy Vanguard scientists hunted more parts of its exploded carrier rocket to see why it failed Wednesday.

The government published a "survival" list of more than 200 items ranging from milk to plague vaccine that would be needed to sustain the population in the event of nuclear attack.

The House stamped final congressional approval on an emergency bill carrying $1,410,000,000 to speed U.S. missile programs, disperse the nation's H-bomber fleet and build anti-rocket defenses.

The measure, which also provided funds for a third intercontinental missile base and three rocket-firing atomic submarines, was sent to President Eisenhower just one day short of a month after he urgently requested it.

The Senate Thursday voted 78-1 to set up the 13-member special space committee as proposed by Johnson. Only Sen. Allen J. Ellender (D-La.) voted against it on grounds he is against any more new committees. The committee will have seven Democrats and six Republicans.

"But I don't think the ends of justice demand that you be imprisoned," he said. "There's no reason I can see why you should not become settled, industrious and self-supporting. I think you are a very good prospect for probation."

"The whole story is a shade fantastic," Federal Judge Joe B. Dooley said at the end of the trial. "I can well believe you suffered an eye injury."

Counsel for Mrs. Jantzen concluded by saying that on the day of the attempted theft she had gone to the Pampa bank earlier with the intention of asking for a loan but had left without talking to any bank official.

He joined the staff of the Waco Chamber of Commerce the same year and was placed in charge of the organization's publicity and convention activities.

In 1949, he became manager of the Denison Chamber of Commerce, the youngest man ever to hold the post. He was at Denison until the advent of the Korean conflict when he was recalled to the Army.

In September, 1952, he joined the staff of the WTCC as manager of the industrial development and water resources departments. In 1954, he also became editor of the organization's monthly magazine, West Texas Today, and served as editor for nearly two years.

Train Accident Near Canadian Derails 26 Freight Cars

CANADIAN — A 62-car Santa Fe freight train, with 15 gas tankers behind the engine, hit a broken rail near Canadian Thursday night. Twenty-six cars leaped the tracks and the gas burst into flames.

The gas tankers were still burning today. Although the engine left the tracks, it did not overturn, and there were no injuries.

Santa Fe headquarters at Amarillo said all indications were that the train, going 50 miles per hour through the Mendota siding 12 miles west of Canadian, hit a rail that had been snapped by the extreme change in weather.

No fire fighting equipment could be brought to the scene due to poor roads and a two-inch deep layer of snow.

Nine of the tankers carried liquefied petroleum gas and the rest gasoline. Three of the others derailed carried carbon black, three had acid and the rest were empty.

Emergency crews were working in the snow to build an auxiliary track around the twisted and blazing wreckage.

Santa Fe authorities said there was no explosion. They said the gas apparently leaked through the tankers and burst into flames.

The engine leaped from the tracks and spun across the rails.

Other cars derailed contained highly inflammable acid but the Santa Fe dispatcher said the cars apparently fell far enough away from the blaze to keep from igniting.

The railroad said it was detouring its San Francisco Chief through Dodge City, Kan., to avoid the wreck at Mendota.

Both snow and the terrific heat of the burning liquefied gas hampered the workers trying to lay an auxiliary track around the wreckage.

Serving Low-Cost Meals Topic For Merten Home Demonstration Club

"Generally speaking, the more economical cuts of meats are those with a large portion of muscle meat to the bone and fat." This statement was made by Miss Helen Dunlap, County Home Demonstration Agent, in a program on preparing and serving low-cost meals presented at the meeting of the Merten Home Demonstration Club held in the home of Mrs. V. Smith on Tuesday.

"With the added weight of the bone fat, there is less edible portion," she said. "The same is true with fish. Often fillets are cheaper than the whole fish, as the buyer pays for no bone in the fillet."

As part of the demonstration, Miss Dunlap prepared a dish of scalloped cabbage.

During the program, Miss Dunlap gave a household hint. "When preparing vegetable jello salad, grease the jello mold with mayonnaise, and the salad will slide out easier."

Members were asked to vote on the changing of the last line of the 4H Club pledge, which reads, "for my club, my community, and my country." The line selected by the Merten Club reads, "for home, club, country, the world, and our God."

At a previous meeting, the club voted to meet the last Friday of each month for an all-day work on crafts. The January meeting was held, Joe Magee, Jimmy Stevenson, Vernon Hawkins, Arron Nutt and Skip Willoughby.

Dear Abby...

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: About a year ago my wife felt a lump on her breast so she went to the doctor. He took every test imaginable and told her not to worry. She wasn't satisfied so she went to another doctor. He also gave her all the tests and told her to go home and forget about it. She is still worried and she is worrying me so I can't sleep nights. It seems to me that my wife would be happier if someone performed an operation. Two of the best doctors says she is all right. Should I send her to a third?

DEAR HUSBAND: "Worrying" about a disease (whether you've got it or not) is a very serious illness in itself. If she is physically well, she needs to be convinced of it. It may take a "mental" doctor to do it.

HD Council Has Business Session

A food committee was appointed at the January meeting of the Gray County Home Demonstration Council held recently in the agent's office. Members to serve on the food committee for the approaching fat stock show are Mmes. V. S. Smith, D. W. Swain, Roy Frazier, John Johnson, A. F. Combes, L. D. Rider, Jack Howard, Jim King and J. L. Carlton.

DEAR STUCK: Stick as close to the truth as possible. Why not simply write and say that you do not "feel up to" having house guests this year. That's true!

DEAR ABBY: I am a sophomore in high school and have been engaged for almost a year to a guy who lives in another town. He is my age. I promised him I would marry him as soon as I was old enough to quit school. I fell in love with another fellow who goes to my school. He is a senior. He wants me to marry him as soon as he can get the money. How do I go about breaking the engagement to this first guy without hurting him too much?

An announcement was made that a new range for the kitchen in the county barn had been purchased and funds were approved to purchase connections to complete the installation. Funds were also allowed to purchase new curtains for the kitchen.

REALLY IN LOVE
DEAR REALLY: Tell fiance Number One that you would like to be released from your promise of marriage. Don't worry too much about it. His "proposal" was probably about as sincere as your acceptance.

Mrs. W. E. Melton, visual aids chairman, reported that films are to be made, throughout the year, of club projects. She also announced that a training school on visual aids is to be held Feb. 10.

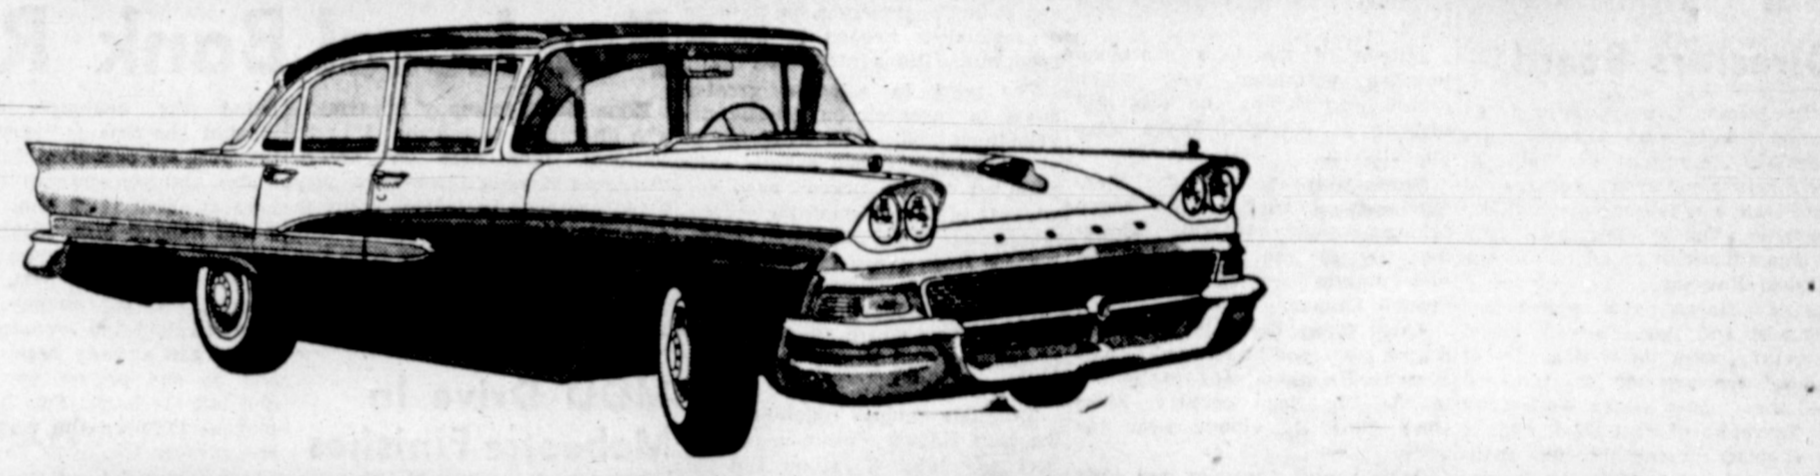

CONFIDENTIAL TO CURLEY: That Jones is going places — and he's taking Mrs. Jones with him. Find your own girl!

Mrs. Roy Tinsley, education-expansion chairman, announced that plans are being made to organize clubs in McLean and Albreed. It was announced that a THDA meeting will be held after the council meeting on Feb. 24 for the purpose of electing a delegate to the State Texas Home Demonstration Association meeting and, also, to select a county THDA chairman from the elected delegates from the various HD clubs. Fifteen members attended the council meeting.

If you have a problem, write to Abigail Van Buren in care of this paper. She will be glad to answer your letter. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope.

N. Y. Suspends 'Hoodlums' From Schools

NEW YORK (UP)—School officials today began suspending pupils charged with criminal violence in an effort to rid classes of young hoodlums and "protect the innocent."

Spurred by new outbreaks of beatings and stabbings, and under fresh pressure from a grand jury to take "prompt emergency action," the Board of Education ordered that any pupils "charged with a violation of law involving violence or insubordination shall be forthwith suspended from regular school attendance."

Preliminary unofficial estimates indicated up to 600 pupils might be affected.

The school board was said to have adopted its new policy as the immediate result of two incidents Wednesday in which a school monitor was stabbed by a fellow student and another monitor was beaten unconscious by three other pupils.

The beating and stabbing were the latest incidents in a wave of teenage violence that has included two rapes inside schools.

A few hours before the suspension order was issued, a grand jury that has been investigating school violence in Brooklyn handed up a fifth presentment critical of school policies in handling juvenile delinquency.

The jury suggested that existing schools "be used to contain these undesirable elements" without waiting for establishment of the six new special schools in which officials plan to segregate difficult pupils starting next fall. Five such schools containing 1,200 pupils are operating now.

Ike Works In Spite Of Sore Throat

By UNITED PRESS Associated White House Press Secretary Ann Wheaton reported after the President carried out an abbreviated work day Thursday that he seemed "amazingly well, really."

She said the President still had no fever, although his hoarseness irritation that is not bothered by any unusually severe coughing.

The chief executive started off the day with a Cabinet meeting, continued. She reported that he is suffering from a form of throat and had a session with Harold E. Stassen to decide Stassen's future—if any—in the administration.

Eisenhower also was to meet with Dr. James R. Killian Jr., his science adviser, presumably to discuss the government's space programs, and receive a delegation of Boy Scouts.

Thursday he presided at a meeting of the National Security Council. As usual, there was no announcement of what went on at the top-secret meeting, which lasted about two hours.

Eisenhower In Top Meeting With Stassen

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower meets with Harold E. Stassen today with reports persisting the presidential disarmament adviser is about to quit to enter Pennsylvania's race for governor.

But Stassen, when asked in advance of the conference if he already had submitted his resignation, replied: "No, I haven't."

However, Stassen declined to comment whether he might resign at the meeting with the President, or whether this was the subject the two would confer about.

President Eisenhower indicated it was. He told a news conference Wednesday the meeting would be "to see exactly what we believe should be done" about Stassen's future.

At Odds With Dulles. Of late Stassen has been reported at odds with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles on the U.S. approach to the disarmament problem with Russia. Some of the conflict between the two has spilled out in the open.

The now 50-year-old former "boy wonder" governor of Minnesota also antagonized a number of high administration officials in his abortive campaign to "dump" Vice President Richard M. Nixon in the 1956 elections.

Stassen has been making overtures to Pennsylvania Republicans for some time. He has until March 17 to fill, but if he decided to run for governor, blessings already have been conferred by the President.

Any resignation from his disarmament post presumably would be disclosed in an exchange of equal stature of office and the President.

Letter Disclosed. Sen. Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn.) told the United Press he wrote the President about a month ago that if Stassen resigns he hopes the office of disarmament adviser will be continued.

Humphrey said the President has a right to select his own advisers but expressed hope that Stassen's successor would have equal stature of office and the confidence of the President and secretary of state.

Humphrey said the President wrote him thanking him for his "helpful" suggestions. Rep. Leon H. Gavin (R-Pa.) told the House Thursday "I can see no reason why he (Stassen) should adopt Pennsylvania to further his political ambitions."

Snow

Nearly two inches of snow was on the ground around Amarillo today. The snow was confined to the Panhandle and covered an area from Tucumcari, N.M., into western Oklahoma.

Snow Covers Ground. Pampa had two inches of snow on the ground, Dalhart two inches and Gage, Okla., reported a one-inch cover. Low clouds and ground fog added to hazardous driving conditions over the Panhandle early today.

Amarillo and Dalhart both reported lows of 23 this morning and both reported up to 1/2 inch of snow. Visibility cut by ground fog.

Forecasters said skies would begin clearing over the Panhandle late today and temperatures were expected to drop even lower tonight. Lows of 15 to 25 were predicted for the Panhandle and South Plains and 20 to 30 over North Central Texas tonight.

The snow was pushed into the Panhandle by a fast-moving cold front which had spread over the state and was south of Brownsville early today.

The mercury was expected to be considerably lower even in South Central Texas which has been enjoying spring-like readings in the lower 80's for the past several days. Lows of 25 to 30 were forecast over northern sections of South Central Texas tonight and 30 to 40 in the lower Rio Grande Valley.

Scout programs will be featured on television shows by top artists in the entertaining field throughout Scout Week.

The District salutes all leaders and boys who are helping in this celebration of their 48th birthday of Scouting.

4,550,000 boys and leaders are now in the program which in its 48 years of service has touched the lives of approximately 27,000,000 boys and leaders.

Evangelistic Group Will Appear Here

The Karl F. Wittman evangelistic party will be appearing at the Salvation Army, 613 Albert, starting Sunday.

Evangelist Karl F. Wittman was converted years ago in one of Billy Sunday's tabernacle meetings, and has built 30 tabernacles in principal cities in the U.S.A.

There are four in the evangelistic party: Karl F. Wittman, preacher; Mrs. Karl F. Wittman, soprano singer; their son Karl Wittman Jr., who features playing 32 musical cowbells, electric and Spanish guitars, trombone, and Hammond organ; and Mrs. Karl Wittman Jr., who plays the cowbells with her husband.

Three years ago the Wittmans held seven weeks of revival meetings in Jamaica, and one week in Cuba with Youth for Christ, and other denominations. Two years ago they held three weeks revival in old Mexico, working with 18 churches of various denominations, and a year ago with 19 churches including services with Brigadier Clevitt of Mexico City.

In recent years they have held a great number of meetings with The Salvation Army in the Central Territory.

Evangelist Karl F. Wittman believes in the old time Gospel, and preaches straight forward messages on repentance and the spirit filled life. He believes in the miracle power of the Lord and wonderfully answers to prayer, and firmly agrees with The Salvation Army Articles of War.

Rev. Curtis First Baptist Speaker

The Reverend O. C. Curtis, secretary of missions in District 10, will be guest speaker at the First Baptist Church at the 11 a.m. worship service Sunday.

The Beginner 4 department of the Sunday School will have a tea for the parents of the children enrolled in that department Sunday afternoon at 3. This will be under the direction of Mrs. Ophelia Morris, superintendent, and her workers. Monday, the Girl Auxiliaries of the church will meet from 4 to 7:30 p.m. for a mission study and supper. All girls between the ages of 9 and 16 are invited to attend this program.

Valentine parties are being held in several departments and classes next week. Many of these groups will meet at the church and at the homes of the members.

Next Thursday the church choir will present the special music at the District 10 Baptist Convention to be held at the Central Baptist Church of Pampa.

Memorial Home To Be Expanded

Plans for a $100,000 addition to the Bernard Gordon Memorial Home for Children in Panhandle have been approved by the Most Rev. Laurence J. Fitzsimon, Bishop of the Diocese of Amarillo.

The Bishop said that he had reached the decision to build since the experience of the Home during the four years of its existence has shown the definite need for this type of charity in the diocese. He is concerned over the fact that due to lack of space, the Home has had to reject several applications. Since its beginning, the Home has been for girls only but with the new addition facilities will be available for boys as well.

The Home is staffed by the School Sisters of St. Francis and is under the directorship of the Rev. J. Arnold Carlson.

Although the final estimate cannot be made until plans are completed, an approximate figure of $100,000 is considered necessary in order to provide not only dormitory space, but also a place for a chapel and other necessary facilities. A Home to care for approximately 25 boys and 25 girls is planned at present.

Christian Science Services

Today's need for proofs rather than professions of divine power will be emphasized at Christian Science services Sunday in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Spirit."

Selections to be read from the Bible include the following promise of Christ Jesus (John 14:12): "Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto my Father."

From "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy the following will be read (233:1). "Every day makes its demands upon us for higher proofs rather than professions of Christian power. These proofs consist solely in the destruction of sin, sickness, and death by the power of Spirit, as Jesus destroyed them. This is an element of progress, and progress is the law of God, whose law demands of us only what we can certainly fulfil."

Former Pampa Minister, Wife Graduate From Bible School

Norway is the new missionary assignment of a former Pampa minister and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Lardie, who graduate Feb. 9 from the Watchtower Bible School of Gilead, South Lansing, N.Y.

Lardie, a minister for Jehovah's Witnesses, has served many congregations in Texas over the past 11 years, including Pampa, in 1956 he was appointed circuit minister for twenty congregations in the central Texas area. As a result of the organizational experience, the couple was invited to Gilead School in the summer of last year to receive advanced training to equip them for missionary work abroad.

Speaking of the graduation, Lardie said, "Spreading good news earth-wide might be the name of our unusual missionary school."

He explained, "Everywhere people are in fear, not knowing the Bible's simple solution to the problems the world faces. However, in this world of crime and delinquency there is sure confidence in a change—a change that is promised in God's Word, but that is coming in His way, not man's."

"The scriptural studies here at Gilead School," Lardie said, "have sharpened our appreciation of how we are living in history's most momentous time, and now our work is to show people where these events are indicated in their own Bibles and how we are at the time when this God-promised change will occur."

Gilead's sole purpose, he stated, is the training of Christian ministers to aid in the Witnesses' worldwide Bible educational work.

Service Is Led By Church Youth

Sunday, Feb. 2, was observed as Youth Sunday when the Senior-Hi Youth of the Church of the Brethren planned and presented the 11 a.m. worship service.

Karen Hubbard, Ruth Irwin, Dickie Elkins and Larry Minnich each gave five minute messages. These youth also sang a quartet number. Joe Burton gave the morning prayer and Keith Hubbard of Claude presented an anti-phonical scripture, The Call to Worship was given by Odean Reed. The Junior-Hi youth were in charge of the ushering.

Last Wednesday evening, 60 persons shared in a Groundhog Supper sponsored by the Men's and Women's Fellowships. Following the supper a program, "This is Your Life", was presented depicting the early life of the Church of the Brethren denomination which is celebrating its 250th Anniversary this year. Gladys Burger wrote and directed this program and Don Elledge was the MC. The Church of the Brethren originated in Germany in 1708, and is now celebrating this anniversary in its churches and missions around the world.

In recognition of nationally observed Race Relations Sunday on Feb. 9, the Rev. Jonah Parker, pastor of the St. Mark's Methodist Church, will exchange pulpits with the Rev. James Minnich of the Church of the Brethren for the 11 o'clock worship services. This pulpit exchange is part of the Race Relations program of many of the Protestant Churches of America and has been observed on the second Sunday of February for many years.

The Women's Fellowship of the Church of the Brethren will again this year process waste fats and greases to be shipped to the Church World Service Center at Napanee, Ind., to be used for making soap which will be shipped to refugee camps and other needy peoples in Europe. People of Pampa are invited to bring their waste fats to the Church of the Brethren, 600 N. Frost, by Feb. 17. Usable clothing will also be prepared for shipment for relief and these may be left at the church.

The Weekly Message Of Inspiration

ROIS STANDIFER, Pastor
Pampa Missionary Baptist Church

WHAT SEEK YE?

"Then Jesus turned and saw them following, and saith unto them, What seek ye?" (John 1:38)

Jesus did not say, "Whom seek ye?" Because He knew they sought Himself; but, "What seek ye?" What is it in Me that ye seek? Ah, this opens a wide door of entrance, there is so much in Jesus worth seeking. Some only seek to look at Him, others seek His forgiving smile. There are others who seek to know His dwelling place, that they might abide with Him. What seekest thou, O my soul? Seek His wisdom to guide thee. Seek His peace to possess thee, His power to keep thee, His Spirit to abide in thee and transform thee into His Divine image. Seek that His will may be done in thee as it is done in Heaven, and that His presence may be an abiding reality with thee. Seek and ye shall find.

Many people seek fame, power, pleasures of sin. Jesus said, "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God."

Ads Tell The Story

Businessmen, it seems, are inevitably seeking popularity.

Oh, they may not want it personally, tho that is a questionable premise.

But, certainly, they want it for their product or service. And we think that they may lie at the base of the problem. Businessmen, as a rule, don't like to take a position publicly in which they go against established governmental procedure. This is because, as laws go today, almost every businessman is in business on sufferance. He is licensed, regulated and taxed in such profusion that he frequently feels that in order for him to stay in business he had better keep on the good side of the bureaucracy. If he antagonizes some federal or local agency, he feels, he may soon become the victim of legalized reprisal.

Nor is this fear groundless. Altogether too many times we have heard and had verified stories in which some luckless free enterpriser, speaking more freely and perhaps more forcefully than some politician desired, found himself at the end of his economic rope, the avenues of normal activity blocked to him simply because he was too active politically in an unpopular (with the politician) manner.

So, when we see the businessmen, after all this time, finally standing up to be counted, we hold it a major achievement.

The normal medium for any businessman to express himself is the paid ad. And, we have no doubt at all that if the nation's businessmen ever do become frightened enough of the consequences of our advance into socialism, they will stand up and publish ads in which their opinions are put forth. That will be a happy day. But at the present time, such expressions are rare.

Even those who have benefited most by virtue of freedom in the enterprise arena, are loath to go on record against the enemies of the very device by means of which they exist and make their contribution to society.

Rare to these expressions may be, they are not unknown. And as we watch the various published media of thought, politics and business activity, we are encouraged whenever we find some outstanding firm uttering words of wisdom as they pertain to the economy.

The January 17th issue of U.S. News and World Report provides us with a pair of excellent examples. Warner and Swasey of Cleveland, a manufacturer of precision machinery for more than 75 years, has one of the first ads in this issue. It's a full-page affair which says this:

"There's nobody here but us chickens," and we're getting mighty confused.

"In the last three years 35 different agencies of the federal government lent $6 million dollars to encourage increased poultry production.

"A seventh government agency is spending 12 million dollars to buy surplus eggs to remove them from an oversupplied market.

"And yet (the government says) it cannot possibly reduce taxes... every penny it asks for in its budget IS ESSENTIAL!

"Essential to whom?"

"Hadn't we better spend America's money where it is urgently needed for ALL America?"

That isn't bad, is it?

On Page 56 is another full-page ad, this one paid for by America's Independent Electric Light and Power Companies. This ad features a picture of a basketball game, in which the referee is giving a boost to one of the players by lifting him from the floor so that he can make a basket.

The caption is as follows: "Would you call THIS fair play?"

"Referee gives 'Visitors' a boost... 'Home' team has to score on its own. What kind of a game would THAT be?"

"Ridiculous... yet you and most people face that same kind of unfairness all the time with some of your taxes. These are the taxes you pay in your electric bills.

"About 23 cents out of every dollar you pay for electricity goes for taxes. But a strange twist in federal law exempts several million American families and businesses from paying all the taxes in their electric bills that you pay in yours. These are people whose electricity comes from federal government electric systems. You have to help make up the taxes these people don't pay.

20th Century Laws

I cannot think of a single solitary law passed in this century that makes it easier for a man to serve himself and his fellowman. That is, I cannot think of a single law passed in this century that promotes freedom and liberty. Unless it would be contended that a law that amends a bad law and reduces its injury to individuals would be regarded as a law that promotes liberty. I would like someone to name one single, solitary law passed in this century, state or federal, that strengthens and promotes and supports voluntarism.

Corrupting Laws

Now let's name a few laws that get us in trouble: that corrupt our beliefs, if we use the Declaration of Independence and the Ten Commandments and the Golden Rule as a standard of soundness and purity and justness and righteousness.

In 1913 we established the Federal Reserve System that took away from individuals the right to make individual contracts, as far as credit and money was concerned. It put into the hands of politicians the power to expand credit. It was claimed at the time that it gave the politicians power to expand and contract, but since that time credit has been constantly expanded so that the dollar buys less and less.

Sen. Elihu Root, at the time the law was passed, said: "There is no sense a provision for an elastic currency. It does not provide an elastic currency. It provides an expansive currency, but not an elastic one." So the Federal Reserve System, instead of being what it was claimed was a law that corrupted sound money. Instead of having money of value in itself, we have a political money and make it a crime to own gold.

The Clayton Amendment.

The Clayton Amendment to the Sherman Anti-Trust Law passed in 1914 was another law that made it difficult for man to serve his fellowman. This law was class legislation of the lowest kind. It permitted labor unions and farmers to combine to rig the market and discriminate against an individual and made it legal. Of course it never made it just or right or moral. It simply made it more difficult for men to get along together and serve mankind.

Then we have the Norris-LaGuardia Law that gives labor unions further special privileges. It made it a crime for an employer to refuse to hire a man who would not make a binding contract not to strike.

Then we had the Wagner Law, which further exempted employees from being under the same civil law as employers.

The Taft-Hartley Law attempted to reduce some of the harm done by the Wagner Law. But it permitted the majority and the employer to take away from an individual his right to use his conscience to make an individual bargain. And anything that takes away from a man his right to make a voluntary individual bargain is certainly corrupting society.

Then we had the wage and hour law that required interstate commerce to pay a certain wage whether a man could produce it or not. That, of course, eventually will throw a lot of people out of work and cause taxes to go up to take care of those who we have foolishly deprived of their rights to use their talents that God gave them.

Then we had the agricultural law that bought up farm products and increased taxes and kept the price of food and raw material up.

All these laws interfered with a free and natural division of labor and an unhampered market. Of course, even before the present century we had many, many laws that interfered with voluntarism and freedom. Even the act that freed the slaves was simply a repeal of the laws in the Constitution that permitted one man to own another. It was a law attempting to correct — and did to a certain degree — the evils of slavery.

And in the last century we had local and state laws that gave the majority the right to force the minority to pay for what they called education. And probably these laws did as much to bring about beliefs that lead to these later corrupting laws as anything else.

All these thousands of laws that violate the Ten Commandments and the Golden Rule and the "Love Thy Neighbor As Thyself" Commandment and the Declaration of Independence are the primary causes of the predicament we are in today. What we need to do is to repeal these laws that violate the Commandments and the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence and we'll be on the road to goodwill among mankind, more nearly having peace, and a much higher standard of living.

If anyone can name one single, solitary state or federal law passed in this century that makes it easier for a man to serve mankind, I would like to know what law that is.

Pegler Asks For Help In Writing Fiction Story

By WESTBROOK-PEGLER

NEW YORK — I have been having a little trouble with a fiction story. I wonder if you can help me out.

Boy meets girl, but this girl has a nasty disposition, she is not at all pretty, and this particular boy fills her with loathing. As author of the piece I am qualified to say that the boy, on his part, reciprocates her sentiments and that his character is no less repulsive than hers. What a pair!

I am beginning to suspect that the Saturday Evening Post will throw it right back, unread, postage due. — McCall's, too.

I have had some nibbles from Broadway and Hollywood producers who do big, significant things about psychiatry, "deviation," and the criminal tendencies of members of the American Armed Forces overseas, but I am not sanguine.

These people of mine are very offensive, but they do not do anything real bad. No crazy, mixed-up dreams. Pretty good in their studies. No trouble with the police. No narcotics. They just do not like each other and the reasons why are so plain and strong that you could not possibly blame them. You will hate them those days.

They meet in one of those do-it-yourself elevators and they happen to be the only passengers on this particular trip. She drops her glove and the boy says, "You dropped your glove." She says, "I know it" and picks it up herself.

It turns out that they are both going to the same floor — the ninth — and when the car stops the boy steps right off first, without waiting for her to precede him. Did I forget to say that he did not take off his hat in the elevator? I guess I did, but do I have to dot all the "i"s and cross all the "t"s for you?

It turns out that they are both going to Apt. 9-C, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Thumasing Eltz, a Norwegian couple, attached to the United Nations, who can hardly wait to get transferred to Moscow. They are not Communists, or pro-Russian. They just want to get transferred out of New York because they honestly cannot figure how Moscow can be any worse. You may not like that, but you can go plumb to hell. If you want people to like New York, write your own story.

The girl rings the door bell and Mrs. Thumasing Eltz opens it and greets them. She says "Come in." Not "How nice to see you" or anything like that because fiction can impose just so far. They walk in and their hostess says "Miss Jones, this is Mr. Smith." Those are just working-titles and I do not want any lousy ambulance-chaser coming around the next few days suing me in the names of millions and millions of characters named Miss Jones and Mr. Smith. I do not care how repulsive any actual Miss Joneses and Mr. Smiths may be; they may be the dead images of these characters, but this story is a tissue of lies from start to finish. Not a word of truth in it.

Or, scratch Jones and Smith. Substitute Miss Her and Mr. Him. At this presentation Miss Her says, "Did I ask you who he was?" And the guy says, "I don't care who she is."

Pretty soon, the man of the house comes home from the U.N. He kisses his wife and then exclaims, "Well, bring on the vodka and let us get into the ether as quickly as possible. I wonder if ten o'clock will ever come."

Well, they sit there and Miss Her says, "I don't drink." Not "Thanks" or anything like that. Mr. Him says, "Me neither." Mr. Thumasing Eltz offers the girl a cigarette.

She says, "What kind are they?" He says, "House of Representatives of the State of Minnesota. We are dickering with the manufacturers of Parliaments for a bribe of $100,000 to call these cigarettes 'Parliaments,' but, tentatively we are calling them 'House of Representatives of the State of Minnesota' for a dry run."

The girl then says, "I do not smoke that kind. I only smoke fireproofs or smokelesses. Ten thousand doctors say they positively cannot irritate my throat."

The boy says, "This story is not getting anywhere, I guess I will tear myself up and throw myself in the wastebasket."

The girl says, "With my figure, with my stringy hair, my rasping voice and nagging disposition, this story can't possibly sell." So she tears herself up, too, and the Norwegian couple say, "Well I never knew an evening to pass so quickly."

I am not much of a hand at fiction so I phoned Clarence Budington Kelland of the Saturday Evening Post, told him the scenario and asked him if he could lend me a happy ending.

He said, "You can find a thousand of them in the guide to periodical literature and tenders of spun-golden hair and lapping figures and curving lashes shadowing the violet pools of her eyes, but you will have to go back and make the louse pick up her glove."

'Explorer' Weakens Desire To Reorganize The Military

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — The successful catapulting of The Explorer into the heavens has weakened Capitol Hill sentiment for any drastic reorganization of the nation's military establishment and hierarchy.

The pre-Explorer hysteria for creating a ballistic czar or a "man on horseback" at the Pentagon has vanished. In fact, it is possible that Congress may strip Defense Secretary McElroy and the office itself of some of his authority.

There is a growing belief that the three secretaries who were downgraded under the unified system — Air, Army and Navy — should be given greater power, including restoration of Cabinet rank.

As working members of the White House team, and more regular attendants at high-level Presidential conferences, it is believed that they could keep the President better informed than at present.

Washington — The Explorer's inability to get prompt and definite decisions from the innumerable layers of authority.

To interpose another official — a so-called "man on horseback" — between the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the Secretary of Defense and President, in this opinion, would only compound current confusion.

Finally, any far-reaching reorganization is opposed by the acknowledged and accepted military authority on Capitol Hill. He is Representative Carl Vinson of Georgia, "father of the World War II Navy" and Chairman of the House Armed Services Committee.

Vinson's Views — Incidentally, a fellow Georgian, Senator Richard B. Russell, Chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, shares Vinson's views. Here is the latter's blunt comment on tentative reorganization schemes:

"It has been charged that the present system under which the Joint Chiefs of Staff serve in the dual role of military planners and commanders of individual services is unrealistic and unworkable. I presume that such critics of the present system advocate that a supreme staff be constituted with the sole responsibility of planning and no responsibility for execution of those plans. I know of no better way to commit national suicide.

"Separate the authority of planning from the responsibility of execution, and the net result is no responsibility whatever. Eliminate the Joint Chiefs of Staff, or impose a super staff above the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and we will have more duplication and chaos complete."

"I can think of no faster way to bring about chaos, uncertainty and hasty, ill-advised decisions than to attempt at this time to revise our Joint Chiefs of Staff organization, and to put a one-man super chief or a super Prussian staff in charge of all military planning."

MASTERING JOB — As in any other business or industry, it usually takes a year or more for even the most conscientious and hard-working Secretary of Defense to learn his job. Some never master it, letting the generals and admirals run things.

Nor did two recent Defense Secretaries cast laser on the post. Louis A. Johnson, under the Truman economy program, cut the armed forces so drastically that it was only a skeleton organization when the Communists attacked in Korea. With no interest in basic or ballistic research, Charles E. Wilson was primarily responsible for our delay in matching Russia in these fields.

NOT HANDICAPPED — According to testimony before the Johnson Preparedness Committee by missile-satellite scientists and manufacturers, they have not been handicapped or held back by the Pentagon organization as it exists today. Delays have been due to lack of funds and to their

By HENRY McEMORE

PARIS — Like my elbows, Temple Fielding, Horace Sutton and Richard Josephs are always with me.

Between hard covers, that is. I use their authoritative, enter death toll in the first few days of life.

Most important is the lack of medical attention during pregnancy. When such care is given it is frequently possible to detect undesirable conditions in advance and correct them, and thus cut down on the deaths of newborn infants. Yet far too many women even those who have had more than one child fail to seek medical care early in pregnancy.

In a report from Iowa, published in 1956, for example, it was found that nearly one-quarter of the women having their first baby, and nearly one-half of those having a fourth or subsequent child, had not received medical care during the first three months of pregnancy.

It is well known that the death rate of infants is higher for multiple births than for single births. It is about two and one-half physicians would be doubly busy as people with no real lives would take advantage of the so-called "free care" to insist on consulting them. And those who really needed care would have even less than they do now.

FORT WORTH (UP)— John Henry Welch, 26-year-old laundry route salesman, died Monday of injuries suffered when his motorcycle crashed into a curb.

Clergyman Concerned About Emotional Instability In US

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press Staff Correspondent
PHILADELPHIA (UP)—My greatest concern is the emotional instability which the American people have displayed in reacting to the danger of attack by Russia.

"That is a clergyman's answer to the question which the United Press put to six prominent Americans from various walks of life: 'What troubles you most as you look at American today?'"

The clergyman is the Rev. Dr. Eugene Carson Blake, stated clerk of the Presbyterian Church U.S.A., recently retired president of the National Council of Churches.

Blake is a big, bull-shouldered man whose hair is getting very sparse on top. He does not wear his piety on his sleeve. Interviewing him, in the downtown Philadelphia office from which he administers the affairs of his two million member denomination, you could easily take him for a corporation executive rather than a distinguished preacher.

Emotionalism a Problem
His answers, like the man himself, did not appear at first glance to be distinctively "religious." But hear him out.

"I know," he said, "that you expected me to say that I'm concerned about the state of moorality in America, or the depth of our religious revival, or something like that. I am concerned about those things, but the thing that disturbs me most is this emotional volatility which seems to be widespread in our country."

"A few months ago, we were acting as if we had no fears whatever. We were moved mainly by a desire for economy in defense and foreign aid, for tax cuts, for an easier life all around. Now we act as if fear is our only motivation. We are ready to spend any amount of money, to sacrifice almost any of our national values, in order to build missiles in a hurry."

Blake said he cannot see any logical justification for this "hysterical fluctuation" in national mood.

"In my judgment, the Sputniks have not materially increased our peril. 'We have been in very real danger ever since the Russians developed atomic weapons. We will continue to be in danger, no matter how many missiles of our own we build, so long as a few men in the Kremlin possess the power to plunge the world into a war that would destroy civilization.'

Live With Danger
The basic problem facing Americans, he continued, is "to learn to live with this danger, calmly and realistically," so that our nation can make a reasoned response that will minimize the threat of war which we cannot eliminate altogether."

Does religion have a solution for this problem?
"Yes, but it's not an easy, patent medicine answer."

"I learned from combat troops in wartime that there are two philosophies which can enable a man to live courageously with chronic danger.

"One is fatalism—the belief that I'll get mine when my number is up, and not before. This can produce a stoic calm in the individual, but on a national basis, it does not lead to much initiative or effort in trying to avert disaster.

"The other antidote to fear—the one which I most earnestly commend to Americans today—is what theologian Reinhold Niebuhr calls 'Christian nonchalance.'

Roger Larson Has The 'Midas Touch'

By DOROTHY FLANDERS
United Press Staff Correspondent
ST. LOUIS (UP)—Roger Larson is a bright young man with the Midas touch.

Blond and soft-spoken, he makes such a fine impression on St. Louis County citizens they hardly realize what he's after—their tax money.

Roger has been happily dipping into the taxpayer's pocket for years. Not for himself but for 89 of the 96 municipalities that crowd the borders of that old river metropolis, St. Louis.

And while the river giant grumbles at these Lilliputians, Roger fiddles with the figures that make them strong.

His city and village tax collection service is, he said, "the only one of its kind in the country, to my knowledge."

When a gasoline company decided to wipe out its tax payment to the villages and leave it up to the service stations to pay, Roger coaxed each village into passing an ordinance providing a $1,000 bond on each station. The company changed its mind.

When an old lady tottered to his desk to pay her taxes and complained, "You're taking my beer money," Roger handed out a bottle of beer and gave it to her. She's still paying her taxes and collecting two bottles of beer from him.

Larson, seated in the office of the half-block-square Larson Building in Clayton, seat of St. Louis County, said, "would you believe my father started this as a hobby?"

The father, Alton Larson Sr., a CPA, had a yen for city auditing. Three municipalities had tax headaches. They got together in 1937 to their mutual benefit.

The elder Larson spent his spare time browsing through tax records. He dug up $150,000 in taxes which rightfully belonged to the municipalities through which trackage lay. The money had been paid annually to the city of St. Louis.

Land title companies soon rushed to his carefully kept books. They had been used to odd scraps of paper pigeonholed by such tax collectors as the garage mechanic, whose records invariably were covered with grease. Or no records at all, in the case of the collector who locked up his books and took a six months vacation in South America.

Young Larson acts for 59 incorporated villages and subdivisions. Most of his clients have tax rates of 30 or 50 or 80 cents, compared with the city's $3.34 or the county's $3 to $4 (including school taxes).

Britain Sounds Out Cyprus Settlement

By K. C. THALER
United Press Staff Correspondent
LONDON (UP)—Britain is making fresh off-stage soundings for a Cyprus settlement, but responsible diplomats feared the problem was "insolubly far beyond present

He said that partition was the only solution, since Greeks and Turks could no longer live together.

Wants Partition Now
Kutchuk urged partition now, before an election in Britain. Turkey apparently fears that in the event of a Labor victory in a general election British policy might favor independence of Cyprus.

Kutchuk hinted at a "passive resistance movement" of the Turkish minority to press their claims.

This move coincided with fresh threats from Greek-Cypriote underground leader Col. George Grivas.

British efforts for a solution for Cyprus thus depend entirely on whether or not some compromise can be found between conflicting Greek and Turkish claims.

Attempts to win United States assistance seem to have failed so far; said United States prefers to keep out of this explosive issue for as long as possible, diplomatic sources said.

The rising tension may necessitate a renewed tightening of security measures in Cyprus by the British forces instead of a loosening up which the island's Gov. Sir Hugh Foot had earlier hoped to initiate this month.

Milton Berle Slows Down; Wants To Show 'Other Side'

By FRED DANZIG
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—Milton Berle, subdued and reflective at 49, rarely holds court anymore with his jester pals at Lindy's.

Instead of yocking it up into the wee-hours at the comic's Broadway bullpen, "Uncle Miltie" now takes his nourishment at the Oak Room at the Plaza, a calm, richly decorated, traditional-seeked room frequented by suburban people of the arts. And at night, when he's not busy writing a novel, he goes to sleep, early.

Dressed in a dark gray-blue sharkskin suit, with a Navy blue tie between a button-down collar, holding a telephone pole-size cigar, his hair now gray at the temples, Berle spoke of his next TV appearance—a straight dramatic role in "Material Witness," on NBC-TV's Kraft Theatre Wednesday night, Feb. 19.

"People think this is something new for me. But they forget I started as an actor, in vaudeville," Berle said. "In those days, you started as an actor and became a comedian. Today, it's different. You start now as a comedian, and then, if you get the chance, you learn to act."

"Comedy," Miltie went on, "is a lot like drama. Your shifts have a beginning, a middle and an end. It's all based on truths, with touches of humor for the laughs, of course. Even a comedian's one-line gags must be routine properly to have a dramatic buildup, a dramatic structure."

"You know," he added, breaking that broad Bugs Bunny-style grin, "some of my comedy shows were very dramatic things. That's a funny line!"

Back to being serious.
Comedian Is An Actor
"A comic is a comic. A comedian is an actor," Berle said, leaning back in a solid oak-and-leather chair. "Put a comic into a straight dramatic setting and, generally, it doesn't work."

He's doing the Kraft show because he wants the public to see "the other side" of him, Berle said. "They think of me as a comedian and forget that before TV, I did 10 Broadway shows, 18 or 20 pictures. And a lot of the parts were straight. As a kid, I did dramatic roles with Douglas Fairbanks and Corinne Griffith."

His TV future, Berle said, will probably consist of a couple of guest spots a year for the next year or two. "I'm not terribly interested in a regular show. Not that I'm disinterested. It depends on many things. I did 360 shows in eight years and it was a big rat race. I'm more interested in occasional guest appearances—and that still includes room for comedy."

Model Works Mainly So She Can Paint
(Woman's View)
By GAY PAULEY
United Press Women's Editor
NEW YORK (UP)—Most girls would settle for the success Eloise Bethell has established as fashion model.

But to this Southern belle, the $35 an hour she earns for parading expensive clothes is mostly to pay the rent so she can paint.

This week, the tall, slim brunette with olive skin and green eyes opened her sixth "one-man" show at the collector's gallery—25 of her recent works of still life and portraits in oil.

"I'm hardly the artist in the garret type," said the 28-year-old painter. "I find it most uncomfortable to be hungry."

Has Set Routine
"Eight hours a day I give to modeling; eight to painting; the other eight I sleep."

Miss Bethell said she planned to quit being a clothes horse when painting sales improve considerably. Currently, her works sell for $100 to $1,000. But if there are buyers for only two or three pictures an exhibit... well, you can see why she goes on modeling.

Miss Bethell was born in Wilmington, N.C., in a family active in music, art and the theater, but only as amateurs.

The artist-model attended Converse College, Spartanburg, S.C., graduating with a major in drama. She headed for the big city in 1950.

"I'd done some modeling in college, and didn't have much trouble landing a job here," she said. Could be her 35-23-34 measurements, and her five-foot, seven-inch height helped. All are pretty ideal for the fashion industry.

Started With Retail Firm
Her first job was with a custom retail dress firm on Fifth Ave., but now she concentrates on the wholesale area on Seventh. She works for such firms as Cell Chapman, Oleg Cassini, Larry Aldrich and B.H. Wragge.

"Some of them have turned out to be her best customers. Both Aldrich and Wragge own Bethell works."

The artist said she is planning her first one-woman show in Paris within the next year. This will be her second onslaught on the French center of art and fashion.

In Paris, she painted in between assignments for Jacques Griffe, Jean Desses and the late Jacques Fath.

Now at the end of the day, she climbs out of a $500 creation, heads for her small studio apartment in Greenwich Village, and gets into a paint-smeared smock no designer would ever claim.

Monsters 'Play Hob' With Glamor Girls In Movies

By VERNON SCOTT
United Press Hollywood Writer
HOLLYWOOD (UP)—There's nothing like a monster to play hob with a glamor girl's movie scenes, says Pert Mala Powers who co-stars with a particularly nasty fiend in a new movie.

No matter how sexy or lightly clad the heroine, audiences invariably ignore her when a monster prowls the screen. Thus, it is a rare cutie who will agree to appear in horror pictures.

Everyone remembers King Kong and Frankenstein, but not one person in 10,000 can recall the actresses they terrorized in their pictures.

"Working with babies and animals is bad enough," Mala lamented. "When it comes to scene-stealing the monsters are in a class by themselves."

Youngster Appears Too
Mala confessed she also has a youngster to contend with in her latest epic, "The Colossus of New York." He is Charles Herbert, 9. At that age it would take all the monsters in Movieland to turn his head away from the lens.

"This is my first monster picture, and I would just as soon it were my last," Mala went on. "Actresses never have very good roles in science-fiction movies. All we do is stand around and look frightened."

"I'm luckier than most. In this one my husband dies and I get to cry a little."

Overtaken by a sudden twinge of loyalty to Paramount Studios, Mala said, "I must say 'Colossus' is different from most horror stories because the audience will feel sorry for the monster."

A Mechanical Man
The Colossus is a ten-foot high mechanical man with a human brain, a sorry combination at best. Unlike Frankenstein and other lovable beasts, the new monstrosity is not frightening in appearance. But his disposition makes up for his placid appearance.

"I guess a good monster picture never hurt anyone, but I don't want to specialize in them. I can't remember any actress winning an Oscar for appearing

Airman To Enter Space-Cabin For Week As An Experiment

SAN ANTONIO (UP)—Airman Donald G. Farrell will step into an experimental space cabin Sunday and for a week live as if he were making a 238,800-mile rocket flight alone to the moon.

The Air Force's School of Space Medicine, which is making the experiment, refused to say officially that Farrell, 23, of New York will enter the chamber.

But it was understood that he will be locked in and the door will be barred before 6 p. m. and probably before noon. It is not certain exactly when final preparations will be completed.

Farrell, when the door clangs behind him, will be alone with only the sound of his voice and the hiss of oxygen into the cabin to break the silence. He will be more alone than a prisoner in solitary.

Can't Tell Day from Night He can't tell, except for a clock and when he gets sleepy, whether it is night or day. His food will be passed in through an air lock.

He will purify the watery wastes of his body to drink. The carbon dioxide he inhales and other body wastes will be eliminated by chemicals.

The space cabin won't leave the ground. The idea is to find out how a man will react to the boredom and terror of traveling in uncharted space for the first time.

A week is how long, space experts estimate, that it will take a man to fly to the moon and back, with a little time left over for emergencies.

Psychiatrists and doctors at the Air Force's School of Aviation Medicine are making the experiment. Instruments fastened to Farrell's chest and arms will give them a continuous report of his condition.

Test of Nerves If his nerves hold out, he will emerge from the closet-sized cabin next Saturday. If he cracks up, the psychiatrists and doctors on continuous watch will take him out of the cabin at once.

Because the temperature in the cabin is controlled, Farrell will wear GI trousers and a T-shirt. He won't have room to move

NORMAN WARMINSKI ... delegate

White Deer Youth Goes To Meeting

Norman Warminski, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Warminski of White Deer, leaves for Dallas Tuesday where he will join the other three Texas delegates to the Junior Fact Finding Conference to be held in Kansas City, Mo., from Feb. 13 to 16.

The Junior Fact Finding Conference is sponsored by the National Committee of Boys and Girls and the Poultry Institute. The conference will be attended by 75 boys and girls from 22 states.

Warminski was chosen as a delegate as the result of his records, achievements and leadership. He is a member of the Good Neighbors Club of White Deer, of which he is president, and is co-chairman of the Carson County Boys and Girls Council.

R. C. Allen Rites Set For Today

McLEAN — Funeral services will be held today at 2:30 p.m. for Richard Chesley Allen of Kellerville.

Mr. Allen was born August 7, 1925, in Sentinel, Okla., and died Feb. 7, at 3:45 a.m. in the M. D. Anderson Hospital in Houston, where he had been ill for several weeks.

He was employed by Gulf Petroleum for 11 years. Services will be held in the Church of Christ at McLean on Wednesday at 11 a.m. at the home of Mrs. Molby Cross of Sentinel.

Survivors are his wife, Fleta, of Kellerville, two daughters, Lora Mae and Dawa Louise of the home; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Allen of Pampa; one sister, Mrs. Millon Simmons of McLean; and his paternal grandmother, Mrs. Molby Cross of Sentinel.

31 Arrested In Dope Raid

SAN ANTONIO (UP) — Lawmen rounded up 31 narcotics addicts early Saturday in what was termed the most successful dope raid ever held in the area.

Police Chief George Hirsch directed about 25 policemen, sheriff and constables, Joe Kinder, district supervisor for the State Narcotics Bureau, headed state agents.

Hirsch said the drive was highly successful, filling 31 of 50 warrants issued. Only one woman was among the 31 arrested. A recent state law makes drug addiction illegal.

Missilemen Take Breather

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UP)—Missilemen took a breather Saturday night after seven hectic days during which the Army proudly launched the nation's first satellite, the Navy failed a second time in a moon try, and an Air Force Atlas exploded mysteriously in the sky.

What is next on the schedule is uncertain, but probably there will be a slack time at the Air Force's missile test center. The next satellite shoot is certain to be some time off.

The Jupiter tower which housed the big Jupiter C missile before it blasted the Explorer satellite into space Jan. 31 was empty, and so was the Navy Vanguard tower.

As the week ended, the major portion of the 72-foot Vanguard had been recovered from the ocean floor, where it landed after snapping in two and being destroyed early Wednesday morning.

But salvage crews were combing the area for parts of Friday's Atlas.

The 5,500-mile range Atlas twisted to pieces far up in the sky after three breathtaking minutes of flight. It will probably be next week before the experts know what went wrong with the great bird.

The Jupiter C shoot was far the highlight of recent weeks at the test center. The four-stage bird rose slowly and steadily last Friday night setting the sky aglow with its flaming jets. It veered off course for heart-stopping seconds when it hit stiff jetstream winds, then swung back and the Explorer was on its way.

Four days later, with the free world still cheering the Army, the Navy tried again with its Vanguard, which had blown up on its launching pad Dec. 8 in the first attempt to launch a six-inch "baby moon."

In the early hours Wednesday the Vanguard finally spurred flame from its tail jet, this time rising unflatteringly from the pad and speeding straight up. But 57 seconds later it ran into trouble.

At 20,000 feet the slender rocket veered sharply off course. A wiring defect prevented a correcting signal from its "brain" from reaching the control system, and the Vanguard snapped under the attack. They predicted radar more than 99 per cent certain of detecting a missile attack of anti-satellite satellites in "not many more years" and of space ship ideas that would have been called fanciful not long ago.

One space ship plan under study would use a Thor or Atlas missile to carry a small manned spacecraft equipped with jet controls to slow it down or wings or even parachutes to bring it back to earth.

The other approach would be to apply mighty rocket boosters to an aircraft like the Air Force's X15, which is scheduled to fly early next year to heights above 100 miles and speeds greater than 4,000 miles an hour.

Extending the X15 concept, it was said, could result in "boost-glide flight" in and out of the atmosphere and as high as "Sputnik altitudes"—1,000 miles or so. Boosted by rockets, the aircraft would hurtle around the earth in "one or many" orbits and return safely as any normal airplane does.

strain of the tight turn. But Navy officials were still confident the Vanguard would someday put a satellite into orbit.

Two more small moons are due for launching but the prime purpose of these tests will be to iron out any more troubles in the rocket itself.

Then, in March, the Navy will attempt to put up the first of six fully instrumented 20-inch satellites with the Vanguard.

The Army is also scheduled to launch another satellite with the Jupiter C between now and April.

German Reds Purge Three Party Men

BERLIN (UP) — East German Communist Party chief Walter Ulbricht, a Stalinist, Saturday purged three high party officials and defeated the strongest attempt to date to depose him and loosen ties with Russia.

The party admitted that "others" also were involved in the plot. The central committee of the party downgraded former Secret Police Chief Ernst Wollweber, Deputy Premier Fred Oelsner and party ideological watchdog Karl Schilder.

But as in the wave of purges in the Soviet Union last year, none was ousted completely from the party. A report on the central committee action taken at a four-of them "comrade."

It made clear, however, that Wollweber, who resigned his post as state minister for security last Nov. 1 for reasons of health, actually had been dismissed.

The three were charged with leading a group that demanded democratization of the party and reforms similar to those carried out by Wladyslaw Gomułka in Poland in 1956.

Stripped of Communist jargon, the report said the three attacked and "slandered" Ulbricht and warned against his policy of oppression. The opposed use of secret police to crush opposition, backed student rebels, and drew the wrong lessons from the Hungarian revolution.

They spoke of "democracy" but not of the need to take "decisive measures" to combat anti-Communists, the report said.

It was the latest in a series of efforts to topple the iron-fisted Ulbricht which began immediately after the Hungarian revolution on Oct. 23, 1956.

The report released Saturday on the purge of the three officials indicated that the rift in the party over the Hungarian revolt came close to ousting Ulbricht but that he managed to keep control. In this, he had the support of Soviet and there is talk that Explorer II will be bigger than its predecessor.

party chief Nikita S. Khrushchev who visited East Germany last year and singled out Ulbricht as a great Communist leader.

Rare Gorilla Baby Thinks It's Human

By DOC QUIGG
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—The only gorilla ever born in captivity, Colo, the pride of the Columbus (Ohio) Zoo, is now more than a year old and living in diaper-clad glory with a fixed notion about her personal status — she thinks she's human.

"Other gorillas are just plain gorillas to her; she regards her parents as a couple of odd-characters," said Earl Davis, zoo superintendent. "We've got five nurses for her, and they've spoiled her rotten. She cries when they leave the room."

Colo, you may remember, burst with bombshell force upon world zoo circles 13 months and two weeks ago with a triple triumph. It was the first gorilla breeding, first conception, and first birth in captivity. From the moment of birth, she's been under 24-hour human care, coddled, pampered, vitamin stuffed.

Has Powerful Bite
"She tries out her new teeth on everything, and she's got a powerful bite," said Davis in a phone interview at his Columbus Zoo office. "She doesn't like men anymore. Those woman nurses have spoiled her, and she'd bite me if I tried to take her from one of them. The only way a man can handle her is get in the cage and play with her awhile. But she's not at all vicious."

She weighs 22 pounds and is about 18 inches high in the squatting position, but she can reach up about a yard standing up. The only damage she does is unintentional with her powerful finger grasp. Sometimes our nurse girls will have badly bruised arms. We feel that we'll be able to handle her safely for many years.

"I said when she was born that she was a $50,000 baby. She's proved it. We more than doubled our attendance fee intake this last eight-month season. About 650,000 to 700,000 persons saw her then. We have a big, plate-glass-front nursery, and the public watches her feeding, bathing in the sink, diaper changing, and playing."

Receives Toys
"She got a basketful of toys, plastic and rubber, for Christmas, and we give her a few at a time. She's graduated from the bottle to baby foods, junior size, along with some solids and fresh fruits. She sits on demand — whimpers when hungry — morning, noon, and night."

Although Colo has no special feeling for her father, Baron, 12, and her mother, Christina, 9, they seem to know her for their young. "The mother," Davis said, "admires her and will offer her food through the bars." They are never allowed together in the same cage.

Burkett Seeks Speaker Post

AUSTIN (UP)—Rep. Joe Burkett Jr. of Kerrville Saturday opened what he called his "active campaign" for speaker of the House in the coming 56th Legislature.

House Speaker Waggoner Carr of Lubbock, the incumbent, has announced he will seek re-election. Both Burkett and Carr have claimed majority support of the House membership.

Burkett announced at the same time his candidacy for re-election from the 78th District. He was elected to the Legislature in 1951 in a special election, and has won his three races for re-election since that time.

Walter Rogers Reports: The 'Pay Television' Controversy Now Raging

And Ye Shall Know the Truth, and the Truth Shall Make You Free
St. John 8:32

The present heated controversy over pay or subscription television has brought me many letters. Some of these would indicate that the writers are under the impression that there is a present danger of people losing the rights they now enjoy in receiving television programs unless they are willing to pay a price for these programs.

Others indicate an understanding that there is a move afoot to charge for all of the good programs and only permit the bad ones and the commercials to come over the set without charge. These and other misunderstandings cause me to call to mind the above quotation. I have always subscribed to the policy that the best and quickest solution to any problem in this country is for the people to have the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth concerning it. Armed with such weapons, we can always depend upon the people of our country to come up with the right answer. It is for that and other reasons that I will try to give you a brief but straight forward story about the pay television controversy.

In the first place, you are not going to be required to pay for the television programs that you are now receiving. Please do not worry about that any longer.

The question of whether or not to allow pay television has been before the Federal Communications Commission for six years. Seventy-three volumes of testimony were taken, and on Oct. 17, 1957, the Commission issued a report.

This report, in effect, invited applicants to apply for subscription or pay television licenses on a trial basis. The trial would be for a period of not more than three years, beginning after March 1, 1958. The trial or test could be tried only in cities having 4 or more first class channels.

This means that the test could not be operated in the Panhandle of Texas or in that general area, unless additional channels were authorized. Other stringent regulations and restrictions would be on those applicants who were allowed to run such a test. The only cities in Texas which would be affected, according to the Federal Communications Commission release, are Dallas, Fort Worth and San Antonio. I would think that Houston would also be in this category.

The real issue with which the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee of the Congress is presently concerned has to do with whether or not the Federal Communications Commission has the power, the authority or the jurisdiction to authorize these limited tests. There is no proposal before the Congress at this time to take away the television rights and privileges which you now enjoy. Should such a proposal ever be made, it would fail utterly.

I am a member of the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee and a member of the Transportation and Communications Subcommittees, both of which have jurisdiction over the communications systems in this country which are engaged in interstate commerce.

Our Committee has heard much evidence on the question concerning the jurisdiction of the this country will never be denied the right to use their television sets as they see fit is because they own the airwaves through which these radio and television waves and beams must travel.

Whether or not any portion of that spectrum can or should be used for pay or subscription television is a question that can and should be answered by the people of this country who own it, after they have all of the facts and circumstances involved. Should pay television be permitted at any time, it should be under rigid restrictions and limitations which would guarantee to the American public that their property was not being misused or abused and that their rights and privileges to receive television and radio broadcasts were not encroached or infringed upon.

Lucille Ball And Desi Arnaz Show's Madness Was Funny

By WILLIAM EWALD
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—The comedies of Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz are most successful when they abandon reason and just go mad.

Madness can be a very funny kick: Witness some of those old Marx brothers movies. Although Miss Ball never approaches the inspired lacy of the brother Marx, she is still some pumpkin of a comedienne when she throws rational behavior to the winds.

Monday night's one-hour Lucie and Desi show on CBS-TV was a part-time essay in insanity and it was during its insane moments that it served up some pretty hilarious fun.

Lucy and Desi's young son, 1 seemed, wanted a horse and Lucy won him one with cereal box tops after some maneuvering almost as complicated as the battle of the Coral Sea.

Horse Hidden
There was one extremely funny piece of wackiness when Lucy and her neighbors, William Frawley and Vivian Vance, tried to hide the horse from Desi inside Lucy's house. One particular bit that centered around their efforts to shove the horse up the stairs and into the guest room was a beautiful bit of idiocy.

The evening, of course, fittingly ended with a chase scene, this one disguised as a harness race. Lucy was entered as a rider and side she did — backwards, losing her wheels, seat, reins, whip and the glue on her phony mustache. The tricks were showstoppers, but Miss Ball somehow made them seem fresh and funny.

If I had any quarrel with the show, it would center around a musical number that was staged midway. It was called "The Bayamo" and was not only dull, but ludicrous. It was a little reminiscent of some of those old movie musicals that we laugh at now when we spot them on TV.

Oh, yes, Harry James and Bel-Gabor made a surprise appearance on CBS-TV's "The $64,000 Question" Tuesday — Anything for publicity... CBS-TV's upcoming "Suspense" series goes before the cameras on Feb. 10—The pilot film will star Keenen Wynn in something called "The Funmaker."

"The Quill and the Gun," the series that'll replace NBC-TV's "Court of Last Resort" at the end of April, has been retitled "Jefferson Drum" ... ABC-TV's "Maverick" racked up its highest Trendex Sunday — a 28.6... President Milton Eisenhower (he's president of John Hopkins University) will discuss education on ABC-TV's "John Hopkins File 7" on Feb. 8.

A-Energy Group Sets Meeting

Directors of the Texas Atomic Energy Research Foundation, including J. E. Cunningham, president of the Southwestern Public Service Company, will meet tomorrow in San Diego, California with top scientists of the General Atomic Division of General Dynamics Corporation.

The Texas Atomic Energy Research Foundation was formed by Southwestern Public Service Company and ten other taxpayer electric light and power companies in Texas to conduct research in thermonuclear reactions to determine the feasibility of producing electric power by this means.

This research, which offers the possibility of providing the heat source for electric power from seawater, was begun in May of 1957 by the Texas power and light companies.

While in San Diego, Cunningham, and the other directors, will inspect construction of a special building which will house the research apparatus to be used in the four year program which calls for an investment of $10,000,000.

Jacoby ON BRIDGE

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

South won the opening diamond lead with the jack and played his ace of spades. His next play was the king of hearts and Generous George sitting East allowed it to hold the trick. The ten of hearts was overtaken by dummy's jack and George held off again. George also refused to cover the jack or the ten of spades and declarer remained in dummy.

Now declarer led a club and George went up with the king. By this time George knew where every card was and was ready for one of his best generous plays.

He played the ace and his small heart.

"Thank you for the heart trick," said South. "I never could have made it without your generosity."

"Don't mention it," said George.

"By the way, you have to make a discard from your own hand." Sure enough South had to make a discard and he was in a complete squeeze. He tried to make the best of a bad job by discarding his jack of clubs. Then he played a club from dummy and George simply took his ace of clubs to drop South's queen and continued the squeeze by cashing the ten of clubs.

This time South let the queen of diamonds go whereupon all West's diamonds were good. George's generosity had set the hand two tricks.

South would have made the hand if he had played a second diamond at some early stage but South had overlooked that play.

Matter of FACT

The queen bee lays all the eggs of a honeybee colony. She may lay more than 1,500 eggs per day or about 250,000 in a season. An occasional queen may lay 1,000,000 in a lifetime though most queens live only a year or two. She lays fertilized eggs that develop into worker bees or queens, depending upon the needs of the colony, and unfertilized eggs that develop into drones. The drone has a grandfather but no father.

Scientist Says Americans Should Renew Creative Zest

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—Dr. Detlev W. Bronk, president of the National Academy of Sciences, is our greatest national asset since too polite to accuse anyone of laziness.

"I think," said Bronk, "that we are in danger of losing the zest for creating new things, for opening new frontiers, that has been the pioneer days."

He went to great lengths to find synonyms for that ugly word when he answered the question which the United Press asked of six prominent Americans: "What troubles you most as you look at America today?"

Some awareness of the danger we are in can be a useful spur. But I've learned from my hobby—mountain-climbing—that fear is much more likely to paralyze a man than to keep him moving upward."

Britain, W. Ger. Showdown Due On Army Of Rhine Costs

By K. C. THALER
LONDON (UP)—Britain appears headed for a showdown with West Germany over her demand that the Bonn government underwrite part of the maintenance costs for the Army of the Rhine.

Failing this Britain intends to withdraw more forces from Germany, at least another 5,000, in addition to 8,500 whose withdrawal this year was sanctioned by the seven-member West European Union Council last week.

The British government remained insistent that West Germany pay part of the support costs of the British forces stationed on the latter's territory.

While withholding formal official comment government quarters let it be clearly understood the offer is not acceptable.

sult in a system for storage of fuels aboard space platforms or the moon—for the refueling of space vehicles. It's difficult to associate the quiet, scholarly atmosphere of the lab, and its modest yellow buildings surrounded by the rich, green southern California foliage, with the wild violence or rocket engines and the revolutionary nature of space conquest. JPL's long, close partnership with the U.S. Army's Bureau of Ordnance — with no ballyhoo — has been responsible for some of the milestones of ballistic missile space-flight developments.

JPL scientists, under the direction of Dr. William H. Pickering and in cooperation with the Army, fired history's first multi-stage rocket 43 miles toward space as far back as 1945, for example. It was a WAC Corporal rocket mounted on top of a captured German V-2. JPL will also soon be responsible for a new ground-to-ground ballistic guided missile to be put in the hands of the U.S. Army troops. It's called the Sergeant and will become the first "second-generation" guided missile to be put into operation by the services. It will replace the Corporal missile, which JPL also developed. The incredibly short time it took Dr. Pickering and his associates to build the country's first satellite here is typical of the kind of work JPL is capable of performing in the scientific field.

The space refueling project is just one of many highly secret development programs being carried out here by JPL experts working with the Army. The work gets into liquid as well as solid fuels and further into nuclear and other engine systems involving the use of molecular particles of matter for fuels. A scientist here says that nuclear, or as yet undeveloped fuels,

Dr. William Pickering ... first multi-stage rocket will eventually be needed for extended space travel. But in the meantime, he says, a solid fuel, such as was used to put the first U.S. satellite into its final orbit, will be the means for any space refueling.

In the serious planning stage are programs to get to the moon and back, and do space reconnaissance for military purposes. Both of these ideas entail some requirements for refueling in space.

Experts agree that it would be almost impossible to store any type of liquid fuel in space. It's difficult and dangerous enough to handle the liquid oxygen and other volatile chemicals used as rocket fuels on the ground.

Solid fuels, on the other hand, are easy to handle and easy to store. It is estimated by a scientist here that a solid fuel with a plastic base would last on some kind of space platform or on the moon for at least five years.

These startling space projects go back to at least 1940 when JPL was created at the request of the Army. Famed Dr. Theodore Von

'The Apparitions Of Lourdes' Centenary To Be Observed

By ROBERT MUSEL United Press Staff Correspondent LOURDES, France (UP)—Lourdes was a little garrison town scattered at the foot of a great castle in a "lost corner of the Pyrenees" 100 years ago. It must have seemed such an unlikely setting for the story of Bernadette. But there it happened, a century ago next week, in the rock grotto of the hill called Massabielle, at the end of Monsieur de la Fite's big field where the poor sometimes trudged in search of firewood on the banks of the River Gave.

This year Catholics the world over celebrate the centenary of what is known in ecclesiastical history as "The Apparitions of Lourdes."

More than six million of them will come as pilgrims to the grotto.

Karman, the genius of aerodynamics, was its key leader then.

Von Karman and four graduate students started studies of rocketry and means of propulsion in space at that time. During the war this work led to the development of small rocket engines to assist aircraft to take off on short runways. The early effort also produced a report by Charles E. Bartley called "A preliminary investigation of the rubber-base solid propellant."

This report is today regarded as the foundation for succeeding efforts leading to making the final stage cluster of solid rockets which put the first U.S. missiles neatly in space.

This effort is also rated as responsible for the additional work on the solid fuel which powers the Navy's intermediate range ballistic missile Polaris. The Polaris is now rated as one of the nation's most promising new weapons in the ballistic missile group.

There are about 2,000 persons, mostly scientists, employed by JPL. In addition to the research facilities here, it operates a test facility for large rocket motors at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., a field testing operational unit for missile firings at White Sands Proving Grounds, N.M., and test ing facilities at Patrick Air Force Base, Fla., from which the Army's satellite was launched.

to where the little peasant girl said she saw and spoke to the Virgin Mary.

Became A Saint Lourdes is preparing to receive them. It is still a small town of about 15,000 in its valley among the towering hills, although several times more populous than it was in the time of Bernadette Soubirous who became Sister Marie-Bernard who is now St. Bernadette.

For many months Canon Marty, who is the church's secretary-general of pilgrimages, has been preparing for this centenary year.

Some think he is being cautious in his estimate of three times the yearly average of two million for the anniversary. Already there are 650 mass pilgrimages scheduled — 80 from the United States — against only 274 for all of last year.

Thirty cardinals and hundreds of archbishops and bishops will attend the various functions ending with the festival of the Immaculate Conception on Dec. 8.

There is some hope that Pope Pius may come here during the year — as a pilgrim rather than Pontiff since his official presence would raise his appearance to the formality of a state visit.

The hill of Massabielle has been transformed since 14-year-old Bernadette said she heard the sound of a storm, although there was no storm, and saw emerging from the grotto a golden cloud followed by a beautiful lady who later commanded: "Go tell the priests that I wish them to build here a chapel."

Above the grotto since 1889 has stood the great church of Notre Dame de Lourdes, its basilica holds only 3,500 people and for the celebrations and underground basilica, named for St. Pius X, big enough for 20,000, is being rushed to completion.

Many cures and 54 "miracles" have been claimed either from drinking Lourdes water or from prayer at the grotto. The church makes no special point of these.

Nowadays it prefers the emphasis to be on faith. Such faith, it says, as the simple peasant girl whose experience in the grotto created one of the great shrines of Christendom.

Betty Furness Moves To Cinema City

By VERNON SCOTT United Press Hollywood Writer HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Betty Furness, the nation's top refrigerator salesman, has moved, ice trays and freezer unit, to cinema city to preserve her job with "Studio One."

Eight years of peddling hardware for the program has convinced the blond hickster that television commercials offer a wide-spread future to would-be actresses. Betty was a movie player 35 pictures herself before turning vendor.

When her career in flickers flickered out Betty "retired" for two years. Then she attempted a comeback.

"Nobody in Hollywood is interested in comebacks," she recalled. "So I moved to New York to look for work. I had one cardinal rule: Whoever called me got me — in radio, theater or TV."

"Sometimes I worked for as little as $25 a show. I was just happy to find jobs."

She's considerably merrier now, earning more money than many bigtime glamour girls. And she's never "between shows." During the year Betty junkies to conventions, sales meetings and department stores boosting her sponsor (Westinghouse).

"There is plenty of room for more girls in this field," Betty said, sipping a cup of coffee.

The svelte commercializer is one TV pitchwoman who doesn't irritate male viewers with a "just-between-us-girls" barrag. This happy state is no accident. "Some women feel they must be charming when doing commercials," she explained. "They sell sex appeal instead of the product. I think it's more important to be believable than charming. And I'm mighty fortunate that men don't resent me."

Here, There On The Washington Scene

By LYLE C. WILSON
WASHINGTON (UP) — Harold Stassen probably is aware by now that last Sunday's hatchet job on him was the work of Sherman Adams, President Eisenhower's chief of staff.

Adams passed the word to a group of newsmen that it had been decided that Stassen's use of the word "hatchet" was a deliberate insult. The word was: If Stassen did not resign, his resignation would be requested.

The Eastern Metropolitan Press spread the word in Sunday morning editions for Stassen and others to read with their breakfast coffee. The President, in this week's White House news conference, substantially confirmed what had been printed.

Persons not usually regarded as friendly to Vice President Richard M. Nixon are spreading their opinion around town that here is considerable political substance in support of Stassen's intention to be elected governor of Pennsylvania.

Pennsylvania party regulars are cold on Stassen, but the state's regular Republican organization is in disrepair. In behalf of Stassen's candidacy it is argued that he would attract Young Republican, Modern Republican, Independent, and perhaps, even some Democratic voters.

If he were elected governor next November, Stassen would control the numerous Pennsylvania delegates to the 1960 Republican National Convention. He would be expected to oppose Nixon's nomination for president and perhaps might seek the nomination himself. The present government is George M. Leader, a Democrat. Republicans already are beginning to duck a fearsome ballistic missile which they know will be heading their way even though it will not be fired until Washington's birthday, Feb. 22.

The missile will be fired in the form of a give'em-hell speech by former President Harry S. Truman. The occasion will be a $100-a-plate fund-raising Democratic dinner in which HST will sound the opening note of the 1958 congressional campaign.

Some Republican must answer Truman and the question as of today is: Who? President Eisenhower would be the natural and most effective Republican to make a TV appearance or so after Truman speaks. The President, however, has no stomach for the political wars.

He was explaining at this week's news conference why he left it to Chief of Staff Adams in a recent Minneapolis speech to rip into the Democratic defense record in answer to the attacks of Truman and others on the record of the Eisenhower administration.

Ice Kept Diver From Getting Air
CHICAGO (UP) — Shivering spectators chatted and joked with each other. But 84 feet below the surface a diver was fighting for life.

Charles Rinck, 36, almost suffocated Friday when freezing temperatures formed ice over the brass connections on his air lines while he was working in a water tunnel below a city street.

Clad in a 200-pound rubberized diving suit, Rinck made the descent into the icy depths in 10-degree weather to rig a platform needed for the job of sealing off a subterranean tunnel. Workmen had to chip away a half-inch of ice from the surface before Rinck could be lowered.

Signals for More Air
Above ground, Rinck's 83-year-old father, himself a former diver, maintained "sea to shore" contact on a telephone and manned the air pump. Thirteen minutes after he plunged into the black pool, trouble began.

Rinck discovered no air was coming into his diving helmet. He frantically signaled for more air. "We were giving him all the air we could," David Loven, foreman of the job, said.

Rinck explained later that "every once in a while the air pressure would build up behind the places where the frost was forming. Then the pressure would blow the ice into my helmet.

Death Seconds Away
"I'd get a whiff of air with it, but it wasn't enough," he said. "Death was seconds away."

The airline froze over completely just as Rinck used his last charge of air to inflate his diving suit. In a matter of seconds he was yanked to the surface, taking the full risk of "bends."

A derrick lifted Rinck from the hole and the diver dragged himself to a decompression chamber as soon as his feet touched solid ground. Fifteen minutes later he emerged, pale but otherwise in good shape.

Rinck, who has made hundreds of dives for the Army in the Pacific and in Chicago, said he would make another plunge to finish the job early next week.

"That's what I'm paid for," he said. Wool of the Angora rabbit is valued for its length, softness, luster and fineness.

Stock Market Was Standoff Last Week

By ELMER C. WALZER
United Press Financial Editor
NEW YORK (UP) — The stock market was a standoff in the past week — more gains than losses in the general list but an irregular decline in the averages.

Trading picked up a bit to a daily average of 2,474,247 shares against a daily average of 2,150,821 shares in the previous week.

Everything seemed to be going along smoothly with the market penetrating the recent resistance area without too much trouble. Then came the failure of the Vanguard missile carrying a new satellite to go along with the Explorer around the earth. That was a signal to take profits.

Newsmen generally was anything to be desired so far as the market was concerned. Business slipped back a trifle further and was far below the levels of a year ago.

Steel, Autos Slip
New highs for 1958 were set on Tuesday with the industrials at their best since Oct. 4 1957 and rails at a new top since Oct. 30. Then came a series of declines that wiped out the earlier gains and left the market lower on the week.

Business news continued to show the slow erosion of the economy which kept many out of the market.

There were declines in steel, auto, and crude oil output. Retail trade slipped back when stores discontinued promotional sales with prices at lower levels.

Several dividend reductions were made to affect individual stocks.

The net changes for the week held to small amounts for the most part. Industrials closed the week at 448.76 in the Dow-Jones calculation for a loss of only 1.26 points.

Railroads finished at 108.70 off 0.34. Utilities stood out with a gain in their average of 0.26 to 72.53. The average of the 65 stocks in the three Dow-Jones averages was down 0.25 point at 153.29.

'Muster Day' To Be Observed

AUSTIN (UP) — Army and Air National Guard members of Texas will join with National Guard units throughout the United States in observing the third annual "muster day" on Feb. 22, Adjutant General K. L. Berry announced Saturday.

Berry explained the term "muster day" is derived from an old militia custom practiced in colonial days when each able-bodied man would report once a year on the village green for roll call and weapons inspection.

Feb. 22, George Washington's birthday anniversary, was selected because Washington served as a lieutenant colonel in the colonial militia.

Texas' National Guard is organized into 265 army units located in 145 cities and towns and 15 air units located in seven cities.

Bob Backover Read This, Go Home

By ROBERT J. SERLING
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP) — If Robert Backover reads this, he has a tough decision to make — quickly.

It concerns his daughter, 6-year-old Paula Ann. She is dying of leukemia. And she wants to see him.

Backover, 28, is in hiding somewhere in the nation. He is wanted on grand larceny charges.

If he fulfills his little girl's wish, he may go to prison.

Backover's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Backover, phoned his story to the United Press.

Their son left for his job in a suburban Hyattsville, Md., bowling alley two weeks before Christmas. He told his wife: "I'll see you tonight." That was the last time his family saw him.

But the case was more than a missing person to Hyattsville police. They said Backover disappeared with approximately $2,300 belonging to the bowling alley.

When Backover left his family, Paula Ann was ill with an apparent virus infection. But she grew worse and was hospitalized. The doctors' verdict: leukemia, the dread disease that is cancer of the blood.

Wants Daddy Home
The child's grandmother said the family physician gave the girl from one to six months to live.

"She keeps asking for her father," the grandmother said. "She tells us 'I'd get well if Daddy came back.'"

Paula Ann's birthday is Feb. 16. She has a 1-month-old brother, Robert Jr.

The family heard that Robert was in Los Angeles, Calif., but efforts to find him failed. They asked the United Press to carry the story "as a last resort."

Harvesters Sink Borger Bulldogs, 60-58

Pampa Cagers Take Lead In 3-4A Race

By CHARLES CULLIN Pampa News Sports Editor

The Pampa Harvesters paved the way to another District 3-AAAA championship Friday night as they turned back the powerful Borger Bulldogs, 60-58...

Before a capacity crowd of 2500, Coach McNeely's cagers trailed at the end of each of the first three quarters but came through in the final minutes with a burst of scoring...

THE PAMPANS suffered a case of sluggishness in the opening minutes of the game, falling behind six points, before Ray Stephenson dropped a free throw to tag the first score of the game.

Opening the second quarter the Harvester quintet began rolling and the Pampans hit for a fast six points to tie the score for the first time in the game at 19-19.

IN A FAST moving third quarter the two teams ranged evenly from the field, both scoring 15 points. Going into the final period Borger slowed the pace and began again their semi-stalling style of play.

It didn't work, however, as the Harvesters gained possession and soon clipped the Borger lead through a tip in by center Mack Layne. Pampa then took the lead themselves as Brown netted two more.

Borger's Warren Tipton managed two more points to account for the Bulldogs' last effort. With three seconds showing on the clock Moxom of Borger was fouled and earned a one and one situation but the first shot bounded off the hoop.

PLAYING A brilliant game throughout, Brown ranked high for the Harvesters while gaining the top mark of the evening with 23 points.

Winborn followed second in scoring with 15 points, and additionally furnished superb backboard action for the Pampa quintet.

For Borger Moxom led the team with 17 points, followed by Elgie Seamster with 11.

Accounting for the remainder of the Harvesters' scores were Ray Stephenson with eight; Mack Layne with six and Charles Minor with five.

Standing now at the undisputed head of the district race, the Harvesters have yet to face Monterey, Lubbock and Plainview.

Coaches Named For All-Stars

NEW YORK (UP) — Harry Litwack of Temple and Frank (Bucky) O'Connor of Iowa Saturday were named to coach the East and West squads for the New York Herald Tribune's annual all-star charity basketball game at Madison Square Garden, March 29.

Baylor, Oklahoma Still In Dispute Over Football Star

NORMAN, Okla. (UP) — Mike McClellan, the talented Texan of cinder track and football field, remained the man in the middle today in an apparent impasse involving his old school, Baylor, and his new one, Oklahoma.

Do Sooners Use Stimulant On Athletes?

NORMAN, Okla. (UP) — The University of Oklahoma athletic trainer denied today a national magazine report that Sooner football players have been given stimulating drugs.

Ken Rawlinson said the article was "totally false, untrue, and a vicious statement."

The article, which appears in the March issue of True Magazine criticized Oklahoma, among others for "doping" football players.

Another long standing accusation is that we "never had it before and we did pretty well." The fact is that in the years "before" no other school had it either but the progressive ones have learned now they must add it.

FOR THE PAST seasons, and probably for many more to come, there will be the proverbial cry of "coaches" from the Pampa fans concerning any losing team.

New Mexico has seven national forests, covering more than 13,000 square miles.

Defensive Units Prove Stronger

NEW YORK (UP) — Elgin Baylor, Oscar Robertson and Wilt Chamberlain are making college basketball's headlines with their scoring feats but defense is providing more team triumphs.

That's the story revealed Saturday by the NCAA statisticians.

They found that the top 20 major college defensive teams hold a better aggregate win-loss record than the top 20 offensive teams.

And in actual meetings between top offensive and defensive leaders, the defensive experts have won 9 out of 12 games.

These two categories include 25 per cent of all major college teams, thus giving a representative picture.

The top 20 defensive teams have compiled a .738 winning percentage thus far this season, compared to a .717 mark for the top offensive clubs.

Thus major college basketball appears to be following the trend established in major professional sports.

Although the defense is assuming the balance of power in major college basketball, Marshall (W. Va.) added to its position as the No. 1 offensive team.

Marshall had a 12-4 record in NCAA statistics, which included games of Feb. 3. Cincinnati (15-2) was second with an 88.4-point average and West Virginia (16-1) was third with 85.9.

Larry Doby Inks '58 Oriole Contract

BALTIMORE, Md. (UP) — The Baltimore Orioles announced Saturday that Larry Doby has signed his contract and revealed that Jack Harshman will have to "prove himself" in spring training before they will sign him.

Baltimore obtained Harshman, a left-handed pitcher; outfielder Doby and first baseman Jim Marshall from the Chicago White Sox last Dec. 3.

The Orioles later complained that Harshman was suffering from a ruptured spinal disc and asked the White Sox to take him back.

Commissioner Ford Frick ruled last month that the Orioles had to keep Harshman but that the White Sox would have to give Baltimore another player or $15,000.

BOSTON (UP) — Outfielder Marty Keough has sent in his signed 1958 contract, the Boston Red Sox announced Saturday.

Keough, a native of Oakland, Calif., bats and throws left handed. He batted .285 with the Red Sox' San Francisco farm club last year and -.059 during brief service with Boston.

Minnesota Upsets Wisconsin

MADISON, Wis. (UP) — Sophomore Tom Benson and veteran George Kline led Minnesota to a mild upset victory over Wisconsin Saturday, 71-66, in the Big Ten's televised basketball game.

Minnesota jumped off to a 46-25 lead early in the second half and withstood a determined Wisconsin rally to win. The Badgers cut the Gophers' lead to three points on several occasions, but were unable to get closer because of the hot shooting of Kline.

The Gopher senior scored 30 points, 20 in the last half. He alone carried the attack for Minnesota in the closing minutes.

Benson was Minnesota's big gun in the first half. The sophomore from Superior, Wis., scored 16 points in the first 20 minutes and wound up with a total of 20.

Guard Bunky Holt led Wisconsin with 21 points. The Badgers' biggest scorer for the season, Bob Litwack, was held scoreless well into the second half and had only seven points for the game.

The Badgers did an equally good job holding down Minnesota center Ron Johnson, who has been one of its leading scorers. He ended the game with only six points.

BASKETBALL ROUNDUP:

Bucks, Warriors Remain At Top Of Area Cage Circuits

White Deer Wins Two More In Defense Of Loop Title

The powerful Bucks of White Deer continued their dominance of the area basketball scene as they bowed to two more victories in last week's action.

Tuesday night saw the cagers of Coach Sam Christy battle past the Panhandle Panthers, 73-67. Jeff Bearden tossed 26 points to lead the Buck offense while Harley Hager netted 17 for the losing Panthers.

In Friday night's encounters the White Deer Does, with Coach Bob Moore at the helm, also lengthened their winning streak as they dropped the Panhandle girls, 75-45 Tuesday night. Mary Ann Freeman headed the scoring column for White Deer with 28 points, followed by Marilyn Kataras with 24 and Nancy McConnel with 18. Martha Bender netted 20 to lead the Panhandle team.

Friday night the Does recorded another victory as they rolled to a wide-margin 72-43 victory over the Sunray girls. Mary Ann Freeman again ranked high as she tagged 32 points while Ruthie Donovan nabbed 21 for the losers.

Warriors Clip By Allison, Mobeetie

In Tuesday night cage action the Miami Warriors split a double-header with Allison, the boys coming through with a wide-margin 54-25 victory while the girls fell in their encounter, 54-30.

Larry Anderson sparked the Warriors to the win by netting the high point mark of 18. Tommy Dukes led the losing attack with 10.

Pacing the girl's division Dolores Donaldson led Allison with 25 points while Barbara Holland ranked high for the Miami cagers with 21.

Friday night action saw the Warriors rolling again as they turned back the Mobeetie Hornets, 80-35. Anderson again proved the ace shooter as he sacked 27 points during the game. Farrell Baird led Mobeetie with 14. Scoring by quarters was all for Miami, 19-6; 39-16; and 62-32.

The girls hit rough going again, however, as they were smothered by the Mobeetie girls, 74-49. Pat Wilyard led the winners with 43 points while Barbara Holland tossed 31 for Miami.

Wildcats Half Week's Action

The Canadian Wildcats half a double-header in Friday night's action as the girls carried off a 35-33 victory while the boys fell, 50-42, in encounters with the Clarendon Bronchos.

In the boy's tilt Roy Sessions ranked high for the Wildcats with 17 points while Shallenburger tagged 23 for the Bronchos.

Barbara Meek paced the Canadian girls to their victory as she recorded 15 points for the evening. Taylor was high for Clarendon and tied for high-point honors as she netted 15.

In Friday night's action both Canadian teams hit rougher going as the boys fell to Spearman, 57-40, and girls lost to the Spearman girls, 57-33.

Merlin Clopper paced the Wildcat scoring in the boy's tilt with 16, while Hartman landed 15 for the winners.

Barbara Meek again sparked the girl cagers as she netted 23 points. Pearson led the Spearman team with 35.

Groomsmen Win In Two Tilts

The Groom cage teams swept both games in their Tuesday night activity as the boys dropped Lella Lake, 66-60, and the girls gained a win over the Lella Lake girls, 56-32.

Again Friday night the Tigers came through with a win but the girl's hit stiffer competition as they fell in a double encounter with the Claude Mustangs. The boy's division went to Groom by the trim margin of 38-40 while the girls fell in their game, 57-45.

By S. V. WHITEHORN
Frank Cowser stepped down from Director of Law Enforcement for the Texas Game and Fish Commission to the Captain of a District. This was his own choice a few years back and perhaps this decision was made on account of a serious lung operation.

Captain Cowser was of the "old school." He did the hiring and sometimes the firing of Game Wardens. When an applicant came in for an interview with the Director, perhaps he would be disillusioned at first. Maybe he was expecting to step into an elaborate office and talk to an executive.

Captain Cowser was an executive but he was also very down to earth. On one occasion he said to a would-be Game Warden who was very much ill at ease when he walked into his office, "Sit down," then proceeded to apologize for being out for coffee when the applicant arrived. "What's on your mind?" The applicant stated his business and soon they were visiting like two old friends. Finally Mr. Cowser said, "Well, I like your looks. I'll check up on you and if I find out that you haven't been in jail I will put you to work the first of the month."

Mr. Cowser didn't go for the I.Q.'s, etc., that are connected with hiring an employee nowadays, but rather, he wanted to know and understand the man which was probably as good a standard, with his keen knowledge of people, as some of the efficiency tests that are required today by some of the larger corporations.

"We used to have quite a business with the road hunters in the Hill Country on account of they would drive the out-of-the-way roads and shoot deer out of season," related Mr. Cowser. "I had a system worked out. I would back my Model T roadster through a gate in some of the better deer country, sit and wait until I heard a shot. I had the gate all rigged up with a long spring so that the minute I stepped on the self-starter I could pull a wire and the gate would fly open and in a matter of minutes I would have the roadster 'wide open' towards the direction of the shot. On more than one occasion I caught the game violators before they had the deer in their car."

Word came today that Captain Cowser had passed away. The outdoor sportsmen, as well as the Game Wardens who knew Captain Cowser, will greatly lament his passing.

Joe Rich and Lake Frier
About two years ago the Ochiltree County officials acquired Lake Frier from the Federal Government, that is, what was left of it. The whole area, including the lake bed, was in a deplorable state and at the time was almost worthless to the federal boys due to the fact that it was necessary to spend a huge amount of money to re-build the washed-out Lake dam. Uncle Sam didn't spend, or perhaps wish to spend, federal dollars and, as a result, turned the enterprise over to a local agency for them to re-build with their money, I suppose. Nevertheless, the dam has been re-built and there is a large body of water contained behind the county constructed dam.

The other day Haskell Hill, State Liquor Control Board Agent, and I paid a visit to the concessionaire and took a gander at the newly constructed lake. Even though the lake needed six feet of water to run it over the spillway it still was more than over-inviting in the way of wetting a hook.

Lake Frier is on Wolf Creek about ten miles southeast of Perryton. The water was a murky blue. The outline of the creek was still visible since willows and a few weeds marked the outline of the stream bed. One could imagine catching whoopers if he dropped a shiner into the treepots. However, the lake is so new that fish haven't had time to grow up to catching size, so I thought. Mr. Rich said that this idea was all wrong. Since the lake began to fill up, the county officials, plus members of the Game Department, have been on the alert as to any place where stocking types of fish were available. To date the stocking ratio has been something like this — 8000 channel cat that ran from fingerlings to five pounds, several thousand bluegill bass from fingerlings to five pounders, thousands of red-ear sunfish, plus the same amount of crappie.

Possibly the lake will open the first of May with maybe Governor Price Daniel there on the opening day to make the dedication toward county and state progress.

Joe Rich, the concessionaire, has been a "cave man" through most of his lifetime, plus being an ardent outdoors man. Mr. Rich is acutely aware of the needs of any arriving guests, whether they be for food or fishing privileges, and will have all kinds of accommodations available to you if you wish to spend a day, week or fortnight at the lake. Mr. Rich said that he will have all types of bait available, plus boats, groceries, fishing tackle, etc., at the convenience of the arriving fishermen. Mrs. Rich will furnish hamburgers, a short orders, etc.

The lake will contain 11 1/2 surface acres of some of the most productive waters in the entire state when it is full. Report is that the cost per fisherman per day will be the sum of twenty-five cents.

Joe Rich said, and I will agree, that on the opening day the anglers will really "clean up."

If it isn't sufficiently clear from the above, I will again say for the fishermen in the top counties of the Panhandle to the Ochiltree County officials, "We salute you for making a place where we can picnic, camp and fish."

FOOTBALL COACH'S WIFE SPEAKS:

Escape The Pressure? How?

EDITORS NOTE: The following was written by Mrs. Jay Williams, wife of the former head football coach at Cisno. The article was written following the recent resignation of Williams.

By BETTY WILLIAMS
CISNO, Feb. 1 — Since my husband, Jay, resigned as Cisno High School football coach three weeks ago our telephone has been worked overtime by calls from other coaches throughout Texas, asking about the job.

Within two weeks there were 27 applicants. Nearly all told us the same reason for wanting to change: to get away from pressure.

Pressure has the high school coaches of Texas on the move.

When a job opens up they crawl toward it like ants, seeking to find the agreeable job — the place void of pressure. Such a place seems so remote, so far away, perhaps they should try the moon.

I know of the glory which can accompany my husband's profession.

I so know of the heartaches, the depression and the worry, am one of the many wives who have seen their coaching husbands change before their eyes from laxed, fun-loving young men to tired, worried, nervous men.

Coaches, hundreds of coaches, even though they love working with boys, are leaving the profession.

Others, who are not crippled too badly by criticism and worry, plan to stick with it so long as they can because they feel that to work with boys is God's will for their lives.

Several factors contribute to the pressure which causes this situation. After talking with many wives, whose experiences have been similar to mine, I feel it's time something be said about it from our standpoint, the view of those close enough to see how, and what, pressures affect a coach.

I was born here and graduated from high school here. My husband attended Putnam schools, but his parents live here now. Jay attended Howard Payne at Brownwood, and participated in football and track. He graduated in 1947.

He coached at Hermleigh four years, then came here as an assistant coach. He's been head coach of Cisno the past four years, but after his resignation is effective at the end of this school term I don't know what we'll do. He plans to stay in coaching.

Monday - morning quarterbacks are first. These men warm the seats in the stands, criticizing every play and broadcasting that they know all there is to know about football, but when the truth is known the only playing most of them ever did was on the bench.

Second on the list are the gamblers. These men stand on the sidelines shaking and exchanging folding money as they give and take points on the final score. Off with the coach's head who pulls that first team to give substitutes some experience!

Third are the parents of 'Sonny'. They expect 'Sonny' to play regardless of his ability or his determination or his spirit and attitude. They warn: "Let my Sonny play or I will do my best to get rid of you!" and sometimes they do get rid of us!

Fourth are the parents of the spoiled 'star player' who has been caught breaking training and is disciplined.

Fifth on the list is the board of trustees, who often listen with their ears but never open their eyes.

The coach may have no meddling from them, but just as often they give him no support, either.

Maybe the coach is a "good man" but they have never put out any effort to find out what he is doing, or to stand behind him and give him loyal support. They may have gone to each boy asking him what he thinks of the coach.

"It's not the coach's fault that we haven't won any games, it is our fault, Mister," one lad answers. But that is passed — the lad is blinded with love for his coach, a coach who is teaching him loyalty, courage to speak his mind, fair play toward his fellow man.

"Anyway, who wants to please the boys? We must fire this 'good man' and hire one who promises to win, regardless!"

The wife of a coaching friend of ours told me the other night about her husband applying for another job recently. The man in interviewing him asked him for his qualifications. He started by saying, "I am a deacon in the church" and was interrupted by:

"Aw, we don't want a good man. We want a coach who can win." I speak up not from resentment, but for my two sons who will, someday, be playing upon a football team — under a coach. What kind of coach? A good man, I pray, a first - class teacher who will be more interested in teaching my sons the art of losing gracefully, the way to play the game both decently and fairly, the way to win humbly.

The fear that my own sons might have a coach who breaks down all that I, as a parent, am striving to teach them drives me to speak.

Even amateur strategists should know that a coach, no matter who he is, is doing his best to teach those three famous words: "Play to win."

The good coach teaches this in a decent, fair way, and maintains discipline. The good coach had rather have the winning sportmen than the winning score. He knows it is God who leads his boys toward this goal.

Even the good coach, though, sometimes wonders, "Does it pay to teach fair play?" He knows it pays when the boy, who got into trouble with the law several years ago, hunts him up and says, "Coach I'm going to make a preacher, thought you might be interested," or "I'm going to finish school, thanks to your influence."

But, there are citizens who do

Miss Wheeler Wins Ski Title

BAD GASTEIN, Austria (UP)—Lucille Wheeler, a freckle - faced 23-year-old blonde from St. Jo, Va., won her second title Saturday in the world ski championships, edging Sally Deaver of Philadelphia in the women's giant slalom.

Frieda Daenzer of Switzerland, who finished third, won the Alpine combined title by a narrow margin over Miss Wheeler. The combed crown goes to the girl with the best overall showing in the three women's races during the week-long championships.

A crowd of 10,000, including Adolf Schaerf, Austrian federal president, watched Miss Wheeler zoom down the 55-gate Craukogel Mountain course in 1 minute, 54.6 seconds. Miss Deaver, a 23-year-old brunette, was clocked in 1:55.1 and Miss Daenzer in 1:55.4.

Nonlie Foley 19, Houghton, Mich., who had missed the earlier races here because of the flu, finished 13th in 1:58.5.

Madi Springer-Miller, Slove, Vt., tied for 23rd with Margit Gerlach of Switzerland in 2:09.9. Linda Myers, Bishop, Calif., was 20th in 2:21.5.

Mrs. Springer - Miller and Miss Myers finished the race despite falls. There were 42 starters from 14 nations.

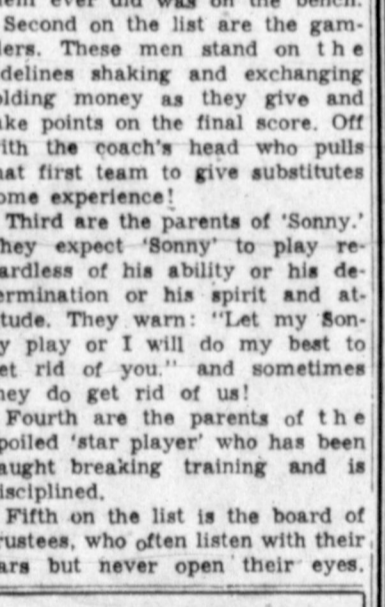

Final combined standings gave Miss Daenzer a low score of 3.80 points, based on eighth place in the slalom, second in the downhill and third on the giant slalom. Miss Wheeler was second with 4.33 points despite her victory in the downhill race on Thursday. Miss Wheeler, who started to ski at the age of 2, finished 14th in the slalom.

Miss Deaver was eighth in combined standings with 12.24 points and Miss Myers 13th with 29.36. Only 15 girls received combined scores since they were the only ones who participated in all three races.

The championships wind up Sunday with the men's mile-a-minute downhill race. Wallace (Bud) Werner, a 22-year-old soldier from Steamboat Springs, Colo., ranks among the favorites.

Werner finished fourth in the slalom and fifth in the giant slalom. He stands fourth in the combined standings behind Toni Sailer and Josef Rieder of Austria and Chiharu (Chick) Igaya of Japan. Sailer won the giant slalom and was second to Rieder in the slalom.

Peg O' Pampa

ORDINARILLY, we would be green with envy... and fuchsia with frustration... just thinking about the people who are away on winter vacations... lolling around in tropical climes at some swank winter resort... but just being in Pampa, Texas, this past Tuesday was good enough for us this week!... never, since the last time has there been such a day!... wasn't it heavenly?... it was so perfect that the Spring Housecleaning Bug began to nibble at our conscience just a little... but only just a little... we were able to quickly dispel this noble ambition with prettier thoughts about a new Spring wardrobe... and it's nice to know that we are going to be helped in making up our mind by the BSP Upsilon who are planning a Spring fashion show early in March... "Pampa On Parade" will be their theme... and they have something planned for every member of the family in the female fashion world... and, of course, Dad will figure prominently in the background... with his chic check-book he's in style any season of the year... but, drat it, the Upsilon will only show us the fashions... not how to acquire them... costumes will be shown for the very young Miss to the mature Mrs... and the girls have a very glamorous and romantic finale planned... but we will keep you in suspense about this until March 2... Beta Sigma Phi are busy gals this month... what with their Valentine Sweetheart Dance held Friday night in the Pampa Country Club... and their annual Table-setting Contest scheduled for March 15... which reminds us, we can still see in our mind's eye the beautiful bridal table with which the Sub Deb Club won first place last year... and the striking simplicity of the El Progresso's winner... Altrusa's New Year's Eve table wasn't among the winners... but it stays dramatically sketched in our memory... in fact, as we remember them... there wasn't an entry that didn't deserve a prize... but as in all important things... a decision has to be made... each year the ingenuity of table-setting chairmen from all clubs who enter rises to new heights... wonder what they will dream up this year?

The grandest of heroic deeds are those which are performed within four walls and in domestic privacy. —Richter

WANT TO HEAR a success story of a young lady, who goes forth to conquer the BIG CITY... and does... Glancing through the January 13 issue of LIFE Magazine, we came across the picture of Marilyn Weiss, daughter of the Ed Weiss... former Pampans, who are now living in Austin... we might have missed this scoop altogether... for Marilyn's name isn't mentioned in the article... but a nice smile stopped us on Page 62... Marilyn, who has a lovely, lovely voice and a lot of ambition, decided to strike out from her home in Austin for New York City, where, with wider school selections, she planned to continue her voice study... Marilyn is also an efficient secretary... and to augment her budget, she decided to work in-between studies... so she answered a secretarial ad and was interviewed by Lester Lanin, who just happened to be needing a good secretary... when he learned of her excellent secretarial qualifications, he hired her immediately... in her initial application, Marilyn did not know she was applying for a job with a busy music-maker for High Society in New York... whose presence is requested at such social events as those given by the Astors, Chrystlers, du Ponts, Fords, Rockefellers, and Vanderbilts... BUT THIS ISN'T ALL... what Lester didn't know then... but we hope he does now... is that as well as hiring a good secretary... he was, in reality, hiring a gal with a lovely voice... this story has a hot movie plot potential, doesn't it?

If one would be successful in the future, let him make the most of the present. —Mary Baker Eddy

JUST AROUND TOWN... Certainly were a lot of golfers out around the club course last Sunday afternoon... well, in fact, nearly every afternoon this week... little white balls flying everywhere chased by big men with sticks... sounds like a foolish game to describe it that way, doesn't it... we are wondering if it isn't the blue skies, bright sun, green course... and the unfinished chores around the house... that provide the big attraction, though?... Noticed that the Post Office got a face-lifting this week... in the form of new paint on the grill work in front of the windows... looks mighty pretty... the E. B. Bowmans have just completed a guest house just in back of their beautiful home on Aspen... now won't that be a handy gadget to have around... when company comes... saw Naomi Weidler... that attractive blonde with the pixie smile... buzzing around town in her beautiful and new blue and white Thunderbird... a lot of Pampans are out of town this week end... the Jake Osbornes and the E. O. Wedgeworths were in Dallas attending the Texas Association of Fairs and Expositions... Virginia McDonald is in Fort Worth attending the state conference of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs as its secretary... Jimmie Jones and Joy Lester are in Dallas for the Beauty Trade Show... Bob and Aleith Curry spent last week end in Austin... mixing fun with business... Aleith is doing such a wonderful job as one of the sponsors for the Kit Kat Klub... (say! have you heard about the baby-sitting deal the KK's have dreamed up?... it's really a novel, yet practical idea... any member will be glad to tell you about it)... we suspect that Aleith's success with the club is due in part to the fact that she has as much fun as the members do... but then she tackles any job with enthusiasm and elan... we hear that the Community Concert Association has some BIG TALENT coming to town next season... the Vienna Boys' Choir... and BAMBI LYNN AND ROD ALEXANDER... other artists are planned... but these are the two first confirmations... and would be well-worth the season's ticket fee alone... the ticket drive begins March 14, we believe... Rod and Bambi appeared regularly on the Sid Caesar Show of Shows... hey, we saw Sid and Imogene Coca on TV last Sunday night... they're back together again in a 30-minute show on Channel 7 each Sunday night... not sure of the time... but it was good to see them together again... reminded us all the pleasant evenings we had spent watching them... back when our TV was new five years ago... Sid we like any time, any place, with anyone... but Imogene, we like only with Sid... merely an opinion... but we feel that he shows her talent off best.

CUPID DEPARTMENT... There have been so many pretty parties given for Sue Kennedy this week... she'll almost be a Valentine Bride... the wedding date is Feb. 15, in Denver... Betty Finkelstein and Janice Whisenhunt certainly did fix a beautiful job fixing up the table decorations for the Dale Carnegie banquet the other night... when twenty-four tried and true graduates received their diplomas... they've had some hilarious sessions... and some very beneficial ones, we've heard... another class starts soon.

OUR VALENTINE TO YOU... "Roses are red... Violets are blue... What we like best... Is writing for you." Love, Pegerino

Miss Macie Ann Batson Repeats Vows With Ronald L. James In Church Rites

Miss Macie Ann Batson and Ronald Lee James pledged wedding vows in the First Baptist Church on January 25 at 7:30 in the evening. Candelabra and greenery provided the setting for the exchange of double-ring vows given by Rev. E. Douglas Carver. Miss Batson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Batson, 514 N. Faulkner. Mr. and Mrs. Oren James, 1917 Mary Ellen, are the bridegroom's parents.

THE BRIDE Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in Winter White taffeta fashioned with a boat neckline edged with seed pearls and imported lace and long tapering sleeves, which came to bridal points over the wrists. Heavy imported lace medallions were inlaid on the sides of the skirt with an Angel Wing bustle back a feature of the full sweep of the skirt which ended in a chapel train. Her finger-tip Veil of Illusion was secured by a lace half-hat encrusted with seed pearls.

She wore a pearl necklace, a gift of the bridegroom and carried an orchid arrangement with stephanotis tied with white satin streamers atop a white Bridal Bible. For something old, the bride wore a cameo brooch, which belonged to her grandmother; a blue garter, a gift of the matron of honor.

ATTENDANTS Mrs. Jim McDowell of Fort Worth, a high school friend of the bride's, was matron of honor, wearing a turquoise velvet dress with Princess lines and bustle back. She carried a white fur muff.

Maid of honor was Miss Meredith Brooks, college roommate of the bride's. Bridesmaids were Misses Betty Hinton and Charlotte Riley. Miss Sharon James, sister of the bridegroom, was junior

MATURE PARENT

BY MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE At 17 Roy O. spends his parents' money too carelessly.

Except for his bedside lamp, he never turns lights off after using them. His cleaning bills are twice what they should be. Without notice he'll bring friends home after a party and feed them scrambled eggs and bacon that were to be his family's breakfast.

He pays back one advance on his allowance only to ask for another the following week. Sometimes when his father hands him the money, he'll protest jocularly, "You sure seem to think this stuff grows on trees, son."

The jocularly disguises Mr. O.'s fear of saying "No" to Roy's extravagances.

He has to keep this fear disguised. A prosperous, self-made business man, Mr. O. feels an extravagant respect for money himself. When a successful competitor denies him some, he's furious. He indulges Roy's extravagance lest the boy feel the same resentment at him he feels at the competitor who says, "No, this profit is mine."

I think that many American parents share Mr. O.'s fear of restricting children's extravagance.

The idea of asking Roy to turn off the lights he's left blazing all over the house makes us feel uncomfortable. It seems "mean" to demand that he restrict his spending of our income. Why does it seem "mean"? Why should we expect Roy to feel abused by our restriction on his spending if we ourselves are content with our restricted spending?

If spending money has no magical meaning for us, we can restrict a child's spending of it as readily as we restrict his use of candy or TV.

But is having lots of money to spend a symbol of success to us, we naturally feel "mean" when we deny extravagance to Roy. We resist reminding him of our financial limitations because we are too ashamed of them to want to be reminded of them ourselves.

This confusing of money with success makes a lot of trouble for parents.

Children sense it in us. Like Roy, they detect our fear of appearing a failure to them—and begin to treat our money carelessly. We feel increasing resentment of their extravagance. In the end all our apparent generosity gets us is their contempt for our fear of wanting so.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in white faille taffeta and Chantilly lace, an original design by George Mauier, created with a scalloped neckline embroidered with seed pearls. ### RUTH MILLETT

If a kid gets in trouble in Harris County Texas, the sheriff's department has a memo for his parents to read and mull over.

They have given their memo the frightening but thought-provoking title, "Twelve Rules for Parents in Raising Juvenile Delinquents."

Every point is a good one, but it seems to me the most effective rule is number five: "Avoid the use of the word 'wrong.' It may develop in the child a 'guilt complex.' This will prepare him to believe that when he is punished later on for stealing cars and assaulting women, society is 'against him' and that he is being persecuted."

Parents of today's teen-agers have been mighty shy about using that word "wrong."

We've given Sis and Junior just about every other reason we can think of for not doing wrong things but the real reason: "Don't do it because it is WRONG."

And when a teen-ager does disobey society's rules and gets in trouble as a result, we look for every kind of excuse to explain his behavior.

He comes from a broken home. Or his parents are too strict or too lenient. Or he is "insecure." Or he has had too much, or had too little.

We just can't quite bring ourselves to explain to our children, "He did wrong — and now he's paying the price for it."

How can we honestly expect our children to know the difference between right and wrong, unless we use the labels?

And how can we teach them to expect unpleasant consequences from wrongdoing so long as we blame everybody and everything for the trouble a kid gets himself into — except the kid's own choice between right and wrong?

DRAMATIZE THAT SLOPING CEILING

The small room with a sloping ceiling need not be a decorative stepchild. With a little imagination and the minimum of effort it can easily be converted into an attractive, livable room — a bedroom, den or study, or space permitting, a family fun room. And at a cost that will not strain your budget.

Here, as in every room, style and purpose should dictate the choice of furniture. Provincial decor and furnishings are "naturals" for this type room.

Soft sprout green was selected as the basic color for the bedroom sketched above. A small-patterned Provincial wallpaper (predominately green and yellow) covers one wall and the ceiling. Note how variety of line has been achieved by extending the narrow scalloped border of the paper down onto the sloping wall. Colorful Flemish prints matted on the same wallpaper have been used in group above the headboard—show up im-

There comes a time for all of us when we must say good-bye. But faith and hope and love and trust can never, never die. Although the curtain falls at last is that a cause to grieve? The future's brighter than the past if only we believe. And trust in God's eternal care... So when the Master calls, Let us say that life is still more fair. Although the curtain falls.

Romans 8:18

Mrs. E. G. Barrett

Words cannot adequately express our gratitude to the dear friends and relatives who stood by us during the illness and death of our beloved mother and grandmother. We think especially all those who gave and those who offered blood, as well as those who spent hours in telephone calls for blood donors during our emergency.

The many cards and letters, gifts, flowers, and food, those who helped and served in the home, the kind expressions of concern and the sincere prayers offered by many who were unable to minister in person, are deeply appreciated. We shall always remember the tender care of Dr. McDaniel and the nurses who did everything possible to help.

The songs, the music, and words of comfort at the service all helped to ease the pain of parting. The kindness of the pall bearers and the wonderful services of the funeral directors meant much to us.

May God bless each of you in our bereavement.

The E. G. Barrett family

Covering Missile War A White Collar Job

By FRED SPARKS
NEA Special Correspondent
CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (NEA) — Reporters on the Florida satellite beat are discussing the preview of tomorrow's war coverage they got during the Jupiter C launching.

It will be grandstand and press handout war.

We'll see the blastoffs — which take a few minutes — then hasten to an air-conditioned briefing room as the public information officer tells us where it landed.

Certainly, combat correspondents will be as clean as freshly starched napkins. Foxhole mud will be seen only in Hollywood.

Eyewitness Ernie Pyle-type stories are finished — a rocket has no hometown address. The only hope for real color will be if we get hit first, and then there might not be any readers left.

The Moon Bowl game so far is Army 1, Navy 0. But this is a very strange contest, and even the most ardent Army fans are rooting for the Navy. Their first loyalty is to America, not West Point, and with two space travelers in orbit our league will tie the Soviet Sputniks.

The Navy's quarterback, Vanguard rocket, was taken out of the game after feeling ill and fumbling the first two tries.

They're willing to let Vanguard take the moon ball again, but even if their patient has another relapse, the scientific doctors won't give up. Of course, they'll hardly be happy, for Army's Jupiter C will have another crack.

Vanguard's middle is like a grid-iron play sketched on a tablecloth by Sunday morning quarterbacks but never tried. Why? It's a delicately pressurized business, designed to function only in the high above under conditions not reproducible in a laboratory; a proper final checkup on this earth is impossible.

Security officers here are almost as busy as Vanguard's coaches. Led by Lt. Col. Sam Bruno, they're driving to seal leaking lips. Americans simply cannot shut up. The exact time of Jupiter C's out-of-space debut was supposed to be a secret as well kept as the Gaiter report.

But motels near the beach, in view of the satellite vehicle's ex-

Betty White TV Show Sad Offering

By WILLIAM EWALD
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—Betty White, a smiling lady who had her first TV show this season, "Date with the Angels," shot out from under her, made her second debut Wednesday night. It was a show optimistically, but inaccurately, labeled "Live."

"There's something exciting, challenging and let's face it, a little dangerous about a live show," said Miss White as she introduced her new ABC-TV offering. And let's face it, she was right in part.

Titles Getting Scarce
"The Betty White Show" (programmers seem to have run out of titles this year, but I suppose it's better than calling it, say, "The Liberace Show"), did live dangerously. In fact, Miss White and her half-hour show threatened to topple into the abyss at numerous moments.

Miss White had three guests aboard, and a curious combo they were: Charles Coburn, Cornell Wilde and Sterling Holloway, a trio who bear about as much relation to each other as Harpo Marx, the Archbishop of Canterbury and King Farouk.

The program had a theme—"How to get along with impossible people"—and each of the guests starred in a little skit about various levels of the problem. There was one about an elderly crank living in an apartment development, another about a Mr. Fixit and a third about a Hollywood star playing opposite a Broadway star.

Audience Shows Integrity
For diversion, there were shots at the end of each skit of the studio audience applauding. I suspect they were coached. However, the audience did have a certain amount of integrity — it refused to laugh during the skits. I'm with them.

A sample of the humor:
Miss White (after sticking a dart into Coburn's hand): "You're not bleeding!"

Coburn: "Be patient, I have tired blood."
Miss White, who is famous for her smile, had all of her dental equipment going — a blinding performance, I guess you'd say. Me, I just felt sad.

CBS-TV's "Armstrong Circle Theatre" Wednesday night turned out an absorbing drama, "The New Class," based on the book by Milovan Djilas.

Djilas, a former Communist and now vice-president of Yugoslavia, pected travel, had a heavy demand for oceanview rooms shortly before the countdown reached zero.

Priority experts here don't want the headline-winning space rockets to dominate this base completely.

The brilliant Air Force general, Donald Yates, who commands this sandy test site, told me: "Let's get the moons out of the way and return to our main job — correcting military missiles."

Package tours out of this world are on the future timetable. But first we've got to make sure this world itself does not run on a Communist timetable.

Few facts useful in defending New York — or blotting out Moscow — are learned from the artificial moon beams. The immediate obligation is still to perfect our intercontinental ballistics missiles for assembly line production and train ordinary troopers who read comic books — and not the gravitational Quarterly — to handle them with the ease of World War II's GI Joe handling his carbine.

The range is now crowded with war rockets waiting to be fired. The psychological importance of creating an American traffic snarl in outer space has received top priority.

The biggest problem is how to give an ICBM with an atomic warhead its final exams. These monsters are designed to go over 5,000 miles.

That could cross a lot of water or countries, and who wants to take a chance (during peace) on one going off course and maybe eliminating Chile?

now sits in a Yugoslav jail. His "Crime": his charge that Communist bureaucrats inevitably wind up exploiting their own people.

"Armstrong" tackled the difficult assignment with a good deal of success. And Fritz Weaver, who played the lead, proved again that he is one of the major talents operating in the theater.

The Channel swim: CBS-TV wants Arthur Godfrey to expand his morning TV show an additional half-hour — the redhead would go into the spot Garry Moore will vacate this spring. Duward Kirby, Moore's sidekick, will move into the "Dick and the Duchess" spot on CBS-TV as emcee of a quiz, "Lucky Dollar."

The Gisele MacKenzie Show is getting the ax from NBC-TV—the burial month looks like April. The Rosemary Clooney Show is heading for the NBC-TV boneyard, too, at the end of this season. Jane Wyman is also in shaky shape at NBC-TV.

CBS-TV, unable to coax Jackie Gleason into its upcoming "Red Mill" spec, now is wooing Red Skelton. It'll be either James Mason or Christopher Plummer for the lead in another CBS-TV spec, "Tale of Two Cities" on March 27. "My Friend Flicka" gets the bounce from NBC-TV in May with "Noah's Ark" stepping in.

Gina Lollobrigida had to cancel out of the Feb. 13 Pat Boone Show on ABC-TV. Her Feb. 9 date with Ed Sullivan specifies no dates on other variety shows for a couple of weeks. NBC-TV's "Wide World" screened some 3000 families before coming up with the one it'll spotlight on its Feb. 15 "The House in Webster Groves."

MIAMI, Fla. — Gordon Dunn, chief forecaster of the Miami Weather Bureau on the cold wave that has plunged Florida temperatures as low as 20 degrees:

"This is definitely the worst winter on tourists in Florida on record and it's one of the worst on citrus, vegetables and cattle."
