Clarendon Hit By Cloudburst

Driving rain, some high winds and a little hail put in an appearance around Pampa late this morning with amounts ranging up to four and a half inches in the Top of Texas area.

The rainfall in Pampa totaled 1.05 of an inch, according to the rain gauge atop the Pampa News building. The low for Pampa last night was 57 and the low tonight is expected to be 56. A high of 81 was expected for today and tomorrow's high is forecast as 83.

Rain on McClellan Creek caused high waters, washing out again the north approach to the bridge across the creek about seven miles north of McLean. The bridge spans the creek on Highway 273, between Lefors and McLean. Rainfall in McLean measured about 4 1/2 inches.

Hall fell early today at Alpine but caused little damage. Lightning that accompanied a .70 inch rain there knocked out power to part of the city and communications were disrupted when long-distance telephone lines were knocked out.

High Winds Hit
High winds or possibly a tornado destroyed five sheds on a farm west of Sundown, also in the Panhandle, and blew a trailer on top of a combine. It also knocked over seven to 12 power poles and ripped up trees.

Estlack said today that the water from the flash flood at Clarendon was receding and that people were busy "cleaning up and rounding up." A dozen or more persons were forced from their homes by the high water.

"I haven't had any reports on the crops but I imagine a lot of our fine wheat is lying down," Estlack said.

Showers Diminish
The weather bureau said today that shower activity was diminishing in the area just west of a Mineral Wells-Austin line. Partly cloudy and warm weather was in store for the state through Wednesday with widely scattered afternoon and nighttime thundershowers mostly in West Texas.

Other heavy rainfall measurements: Midland 1.20, Abilene 1.10, Big Spring 1.05, Amarillo .80 and Lubbock .68.

The weather bureau had issued a severe thunderstorm warning with hail and damaging winds Monday night from 150 miles east of a line from 30 miles north of Amarillo to 30 miles south of Lubbock until 3 a.m. today.

Skellytown, in Carson county, reported four inches of rain Monday night.

Canyon reported 1.30 inches of rain in 40 minutes with light hail. Heavy rain fell at Amarillo.

Residents of the Lubbock area were still nervous from a rash of tornadoes late Sunday night and early Monday. At least four funnels were sighted in the Lubbock area but none did damage.

103 At Presidio
Temperatures Monday ranged from 74 at El Paso to 103 at Presidio, the highest in the nation.

Rain-flooded waters helped a prisoner escape Monday from a three-cell prison farm. Officials said William Penn Jeffery, 27, apparently waded through back waters from the Trinity River and hid in the brush.

Paving Contract Bid Date Set By Commission

City Commissioners set June 3, at 10 a.m., for bid dates on the paving contract in their meeting this morning.

The commissioners also passed ordinance 496 on the third reading as an emergency ordinance. This ordinance will revise the old parking meter ordinance and new parking meters will be put up west of the First Methodist Church and on the north side of the White House Lumber Company.

The commissioners voted a 4-1 vote to let City Secretary Ed Vickers, transfer $30,000 from the water sewer fund to the general fund.

Monthly bills totaled $18,145.03 and were approved by the commissioners for payment. This is the lowest monthly bills have been in quite some time.

3 Youths Released To Parents

Three Gray County juveniles, one 14 and two 15 years old, were lectured and released to the custody of their parents yesterday after being questioned in connection with the dynamiting of a stock tank near here Sunday afternoon.

The boys admitted taking the dynamite and caps from an explosives trailer four miles west of Pampa 10 days ago and using it Sunday to blow up the tank.

Texas State Game Warden Jack Woodford of Canadian, Gray County Deputy Sheriff Jim Bowers and Juvenile Officer H. A. Doggett said the boys took the explosives and a supply of caps and ignition wire to a spot approximately a mile from the home of one of the boys, then decided to dynamite the tank to get fish.

Bowers and Doggett recovered the unused portion of the explosive late Sunday and the boys were brought before Gray County Judge Bruce Parker.

Cabot Company surveyors are at work on the site for a new Cabot Natural Gas Plant, 30 miles east of Casper, Wyoming. It was announced today by E. L. Green Jr. of Pampa, vice president of the oil and gas department, Cabot Southwestern division.

The plant will deliver approximately eight million cubic feet per day, and will cost between one and one and a half million dollars.

Cabot has three plants of comparable size in the West Texas area at this time and it is thought personnel from these plants will be used to staff the big new plant.

Foreign Aid Bill Is Facing An 'Ordeal'

WASHINGTON (UP)—The administration's $3,800,000,000 foreign aid bill faced ordeal by amendment in the House today, but it was expected to emerge with only minor alterations.

President Eisenhower was expected to touch on progress of the bill when he meets with congressional Republican leaders for the usual weekly conference.

Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell was due before the Senate Finance Committee to give the administration's formal blessing to the supplementary unemployment benefit bill passed by the House last week.

President Eisenhower's liberal trade bill appeared imperiled. A secret poll by Republican leaders showed the President can expect little help from House Republicans in the fight to prevent his bill from being converted into a "protectionist" measure.

Other congressional news:
Military Pay: Congress gave final approval to a $376,488,000 compromise military pay increase bill. After a vote in the House and Senate it was sent to the White House where President Eisenhower was expected to sign it into law despite some changes from his original bill. The legislation's main feature is in providing pay raises for all servicemen with more than two years service.

U. S. Officials Talk Meeting With Russians

By WILLIAM GALBRAITH
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—American officials predicted today the United States will agree with Russia to hold technical disarmament talks limited to ways of policing a nuclear test ban.

But they indicated such agreement would come only if Russia doesn't try to clamp an early deadline on such discussions and if the Soviets don't try to slip any "sleepers" into the talks.

Renewed diplomatic activity came as the United States set off another nuclear explosion in the Pacific Monday, the second in two days and the third announced last in the current "Hardrock" series.

Russian Premier Nikita Khrushchev told President Eisenhower in a letter Saturday Russia is willing to join in talks with technicians on clear testing. He said Russia had "serious doubts" about the value of such discussions but would try them anyway.

The White House welcomed Khrushchev's unexpectedly favorable letter. But it noted the Russian answer agreed to such talks only on a nuclear test ban.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, returning here Monday from a North Atlantic Treaty Organization meeting in Denmark, said he found the Soviet answer "gratifying." Dulles said it represented "some progress" toward the U.S. position that technical discussions would be the best way agreements. But he shied away from saying he was "optimistic" about an actual start of such discussions.

The Center Building Fund now amounts to $140,328.70 with a bigger than usual report meeting set for 10 a.m. Thursday in the Palm Room of City Hall.

Students Protest Nixon

By DAVID F. BELNAP
United Press Staff Correspondent
CARACAS, Venezuela (UP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon arrived by plane from Bogota today. He was greeted by a crowd of about 1,000 persons at the airport.

Students made up about half of the crowd. They carried posters saying "Nixon go home...Nixon go home!"

Others carried signs saying in Spanish, "We have not forgotten Guatemala," and "The U.S. turned down visas for democratic Venezuelans...gave visas to enemies of liberty."

The latter were references to deposed President Marcos Perez Jimenez, now in the United States.

U.S. Ambassador Edward Sparks met Nixon at the Kaituma Airport and introduced him to members of the Venezuelan ruling junta, all of whom were present with the exception of President Wolfgang Larrazabal.

An army band played the United States and Venezuelan national anthems and a artillery roared out a 21-gun salute in Nixon's honor.

During the introductions, about 50 students chanted: "Nixon no!"

The students distributed leaflets also saying, "Nixon no!"

Nixon moved rapidly through the welcoming ceremonies, meeting representatives of the armed forces and shaking hands with everyone in the reception party.

Another crowd of about 2,000 had gathered farther back at the airport.

Pro-West President In Statement To Allies

By LARRY COLLINS
United Press Staff Correspondent
BEIRUT, Lebanon (UP)—Lebanon's pro-western President Camille formally informed the United States, Britain and France today that his country is "the object of attack from abroad."

His statement came several hours after jeering left wing mobs tried to storm U.S. embassy in new demonstrations that signaled virtual civil war against the government. The rioters were stopped by soldiers 500 yards short of the building.

Authoritative sources reporting Chamoun's stand told the ambassadors of the Western Big Three that arms and men were entering Lebanon both by land across the Syrian border and from ships off the coast.

Chamoun's move was interpreted as a possible preliminary to invoking the Eisenhower Doctrine, a request for military aid or an appeal to the United Nations for help.

Mob Storms U. S. Library In Algiers

ALGIERS, Algeria (UP)—A mob of young French nationalists stormed and sacked the American cultural library in Algiers today.

A spokesman at the U.S. consulate here said the young rioters were led by "some older people," one of whom was waving a French flag.

Meanwhile, about 25,000 demonstrators chanting "Algeria is French" gathered in the main square of Algiers.

The demonstrations were called in Algiers and in Paris by right wing elements in an effort to keep Premier-designate Pierre Pflimlin from forming a new French government.

Pflimlin was to go before the National Assembly in Paris almost at the moment the demonstrations started. The right wingers feared that he might attempt to abandon Algeria. But observers said his principal hope of winning approval was to convince the bad-party deputies during his investiture speech that he does not intend to follow any such policy.

French police immediately surrounded the American cultural center following the attack and calm was restored quickly.

But American consulate spokesman estimated that "about half" the books and "a good deal" of furniture at the center had been destroyed.

The anti-American rioters broke into the information center by smashing down the door.

Egypt's Middle East News Agency said the Lebanese government had rounded up a number of opposition leaders including Henri Pharaon, former foreign minister.

Lebanon has hinted strongly the anti-government riots were led by foreign nationals. Today the charges of outside intrigue increased when Lebanese coast guardsmen captured a gun-running sailboat off the southern coast.

Officials said the naval patrol seized 12 men, 6,000 rifles and Egyptian currency amounting to about $140,000.

But there still was no indication whether Lebanon would seek United Nations or foreign aid in the crisis. The parliament was called into urgent session today to decide whether to call Syria before the Security Council for alleged attempts to overthrow the government.

American sources in London said two U.S. destroyers, the Decatur and Kennedy, were within reach of Lebanese waters on a routine and continual "Levant patrol."

The rest of the U.S. 8th Fleet, main military arm of the Eisenhower Doctrine, was exercising in the western Mediterranean 1,500 miles away, the sources said.

The youths got within 500 yards of the building before soldiers armed with rifles, bayonets at the ready, drew up in a phalanx to bar the road.

At a three-street intersection outside the embassy the mob piled up a rough barricade of paving stones, furniture, old tires and scaffolding torn from a nearby building.

Police tried to dismantle the roadblock and the rioters set it on fire. It was torn down after firemen arrived.

At height of the incident the embassy ordered its employees off were watching the threatened battle. Iron Shutters slammed shut to protect the building.

Junior Red Cross Gets Letter

Following is the text of a letter that the Horace Mann Junior Red Cross has received from a girl in Waldmuenchen, Germany. Mrs. Ruth Mayberry of Letors did the translation for the Pampa Red Cross.

"Deep in the Bohemian Forest is my home village," writes 12-year-old Johanna Liege. "The name is Unter Grafenried. It lies very close to the Czechoslovakian-Bavarian border. There we go to school with only 12 pupils. The teacher announced yesterday that a special treat was for us today.

"The Red Cross Organization had sent packages from the boys and girls in America to our school. We were so happy we jumped over our chairs and desks. We opened the packages with much excitement and were so surprised over the nice things you had sent us. We would like to thank our unknown benefactors with all of our hearts. Now I would like to close with best regards."

The gift box received at the Unter Grafenried school was one of many that left Horace Mann in October under the supervision of Miss Yvonne Goss.

One hundred and twenty-four gift boxes from Woodrow Wilson, Sam Houston, Carver, Lamar and Baker are now in the Pampa Red Cross Office, ready to be shipped out. Austin school students are putting the last items into gift boxes for their shipment through the Red Cross.

Prosecution May Rest Its Case Today In Murder Trial

By JACK V. FOX
United Press Staff Correspondent
LINCOLN, Neb. (UP) — The prosecution indicated it would rest its case today against Charles Starkweather with the reading of his confession to the murder of one of his 11 victims.

The state prepared to wind up its case after it was revealed that Starkweather's companion, 14-year-old Carl Fugate, was said in a letter to have killed her own mother at the outset of their two-state murder spree.

Starkweather, 19, a cocky, red-haired garbage collector, dictated two confessions admitting 11 murders. The confessions total more than 600 pages.

One of the statements, five volumes long, was taken Feb. 1, and the other, a single volume, was taken Feb. 22.

Relevant Parts Read
Starkweather is charged only with the murder of Robert Jensen, 17, a high school student, and it was expected that only those parts of his confessions relating to the Jensen killing would be read.

The defense will then take over in an effort to convince the jury Starkweather is insane and therefore should not be put to death for his crimes.

The letter, addressed "For the law only," appeared to have been written in part by Carl and partly by Starkweather.

It said Starkweather went to the home of Carl's stepfather, Marion Bartlett, where the trail of killings began over an argument.

"Mom told him to get out and never come back," the letter said. It said Carl's stepfather then began fighting with Starkweather, who was armed with a

Camp Registration Begins This Week For Intermediate, Brownie Girl Scouts

Registration for Girl Scouts' Day Camp to be held in Camp Mel Davis, near Lefors, the weeks of June 16-21 for Intermediates and Fly-Ups and June 22-28 for Brownies, will begin this week in the Girl Scout Office, City Hall. A large registration is expected from the council area, which includes Pampa, Miami, Shamrock, Hopkins, White Deer and McLean.

Having the distinctive honor to be the first scout to register this year is Miss Rhyneha Nelson, Brownie Scout of Troop 80 and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Burkhardt, 1101 S. Christy. Miss Nelson attends Lamar School.

Folders and registration cards for scouts, desiring to attend camp, are to be distributed at troop meetings this week. Registration cards and fees, $3.50 for Intermediates and Fly-Ups; $2 for Brownies, must be filled out and returned with the fee to the Girl Scout office by May 28 by the scout or her parents. May 28 is the deadline date for registration for both camping weeks.

Directors for the camps this year will be Mrs. John Holt Jr. with Mrs. Calvin Duncan, assistant director. Mrs. N. G. Kadingo, GS executive director, will direct the Brownie Day Camp. Assistant to the Brownie director will be Mrs. J. W. Dugan. Others on the administrative staff will be Mrs. Tony Smith, Intermediates; Mrs. David Staggs, Brownie business manager, and Mrs. James Scholl, Brownie organization chairman.

Camp nurses will be Mrs. Dick Zimmerman for the Intermediate Day Camp session and Mrs. J. D. Staus for the Brownie Day Camp week.

A nursery will be provided for members of the Day Camp staff at Girl Scout Little House, 716 E. Kingmill, under the direction of Mrs. C. L. Copeland. Any mother, who would like to assist with the camping program by helping at the nursery, even on a part-time basis, is asked to contact the Girl Scout office. Her assistance with the nursery will be appreciated.

FIRST TO REGISTER

FIRST—Miss Rhyneha Nelson, Troop 80 Brownie Scout and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Burkhardt, 1101 S. Christy, is shown with her father as she registered for the Brownie Scout Day Camp to be held in Camp Mel Davis, near Lefors, during the week of June 23-28. Intermediate and Fly-Ups will camp during the week of June 16-21. Deadline for registration is May 28.

Equipment needed by the Day-campers in addition to sturdy walking shoes, long-sleeved blouses, head-coverings, blue jeans or knee-length pants, will be a drinking cup, miser bag, and sit-up-on. Day camp directors will be urgently needing a few articles that can be supplied easily by scout mothers and they request that no plastic jar lids, detergent cans, No. 2 cans and wide-mouth jars be saved for use at camp. These articles may be brought to the Girl Scout headquarters many Girl Scout office at any time.

The question has been asked at Girl Scout headquarters many times, "Can the scout go to camp if the leader does not?" The answer is "yes" and the office encourages them to do so. The directors have been working hard to plan a different camping program this year and each scout is urged to take advantage of the camping opportunity.

DEAR ABBY...

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I feel foolish writing to you, but I honestly want your opinion (or if anyone has had experience about this line, I would like theirs). I am in my early forties and have false teeth. I am about to be married (for the second time) and I know my future wife doesn't know this because she has complimented me many times on my beautiful "teeth." Do you think I ought to tell her before we marry or should I let her find out for herself?

FALSE CHOPPERS
Dear False: Before your marriage, lay your cards (and plates) on the table.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married happily for the past six years, up until three months ago. The girl I was engaged to before I married my wife (she filled me) came back to town. She asked to see me about an important matter so naturally I saw her. She said she had left her husband and two kiddies because she still loved me. I told her I was happy with my wife and child and I wanted to stay that way. Abby, I am the only person she will listen to. I've been meeting her almost every night to try to talk her into going back with her husband. My wife thinks I am having a love affair with this woman, but I swear I am not. How can I convince my wife I am only trying to save this girl's marriage?

TRYING TO HELP
Dear Trying: You are not a marriage counselor. "Almost" every night for 3 months is too much time spent on this project. Quit seeing her or you will be looking for someone to save your OWN marriage.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please settle a question between me and my wife: She has two sisters who are both married and she says that their husbands are MY brother-in-laws: I wouldn't mind having them for my brother-in-laws, but I say they are HERS, not mine. Who is right? Thank you very much.

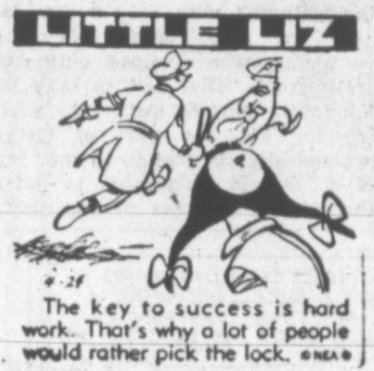

F. R. P.
Dear F. R. P.: You are right—technically, they are HER brothers-in-law, but just for the sake of family harmony, a husband and wife usually accept the "in-laws" as their own.

DEAR ABBY: I am 16 years old and my parents will not let me date until I am 18 because my older sister got into trouble when she was 15. I am ashamed to tell the kids I can't date so I have been sneaking out and telling my parents I am with a girl friend. This boy, Bob, is 18 and doesn't like sneaking. He says he wants to have a talk with my parents and tell them he is respectable. But he doesn't know my father. My father will kill him. What should we do?

BOB'S GIRL
Dear Girl: Your father will NOT "kill" him. If you want to continue seeing Bob, let him talk to your father. Bob sounds like the kind of boy your father might like.

CONFIDENTIAL TO LUCILLE: It shouldn't have taken any man in his right mind THAT long to discover that you were not his wife.

For a personal reply, write to ABBY in care of this paper. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

RUTH MILLETT

The elderly person living with a married son or daughter could make the situation easier and more pleasant for all concerned by sticking to the following rules:

I should let the member of the family who is going to do something for me to do it at his convenience rather than at my whim — for his life is sure to be busier than my own.

I must not make a habit of complaining or "enjoying" poor health." Talking about my aches and pains and worries won't make me feel better and will make those around me feel a lot worse.

I must find something to do to keep myself busy part of each day.

I should look for ways in which to be helpful, but not resent it if my offered help is refused.

I must not let my feelings be hurt easily — for if I do they are likely to be hurt a lot of the time.

I must treat my son or daughter-in-law with as much respect and consideration and thoughtfulness as I treat my own child.

I must never take sides in a family argument, but instead find something to do in another part of the house until the storm blows over.

I should make a real effort to make a few friends of my own. I should let other members of the family entertain their friends without my always being present. I must not criticize the way the children in the family are being reared or side with a child against "Our ignorance of the Bible is a measure of the superficiality of our religion. How can you teach your child the deep security, which can be found only through faith in God and in himself, if we do not read and study our Bibles?" asked Mrs. Hahn. "We all have Bibles and we read them occasionally. I would like to see a revival of taking the Bible to church. We would take our arithmetic books to a math class, so why not carry our Bibles, too? Most of us spend more time with our daily newspaper than we do with our Bibles," said Mrs. Hahn. The program concluded with an informal question and answer period.

During the business meeting, Mrs. Z. B. Deer Jr., chairman of the courtesy committee, reported on the Senior Citizen program hosted by the club. Mrs. Deer expressed appreciation to the members who assisted her, and commended Mrs. Tom Rose for her part of the program.

Mrs. R. C. Goodwyn, delegate to the Council of Clubs, reported that the President's Reception, honoring presidents of local women's clubs, will be held on May 23 at 8 p.m. in the City Club Room.

Following the business meeting, Mrs. Warren Fatheree, program chairman, introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. H. H. Hahn.

Mrs. Osborne was assisted by Mrs. Carl Stevenson during the social hour. Members present were Mems. William Arrington, Z. B. Deer Jr., Gene Fatheree, Warren Fatheree, L. L. Garren, R. C. Goodwyn, R. 5 Mothers Also Get Attention In Russia

By GAY PAULEY
United Press Women's Editor
NEW YORK (UP)—Mothers who this Sunday will be pampered in this country with flowers and gifts, come in for plenty of attention behind the Iron Curtain also. Especially for their productivity on farms, in industry and the maternity wards.

Only two Iron Curtain countries—Poland and Hungary—observe Mother's Day as such, but all pay tribute to the distaff side each March 8 with "International Women's Day."

"Our comrades in struggle and labor...our glorious mothers, friends and sisters," was the way Pravda, the Communist Party newspaper, saluted Soviet women this year.

In a message of greeting from the party's Central Committee, it referred to "women's day" as one of "solidarity of working women all over the world," reported Radio Liberation. Radio Liberation is a privately supported organization which broadcasts news from the West to Russia.

Pravda pointed with pride to the fact that 45 per cent of the Soviet's industrial workers are women; that more than 93,000 are in scientific fields; that 76 per cent of the Soviet's doctors are women.

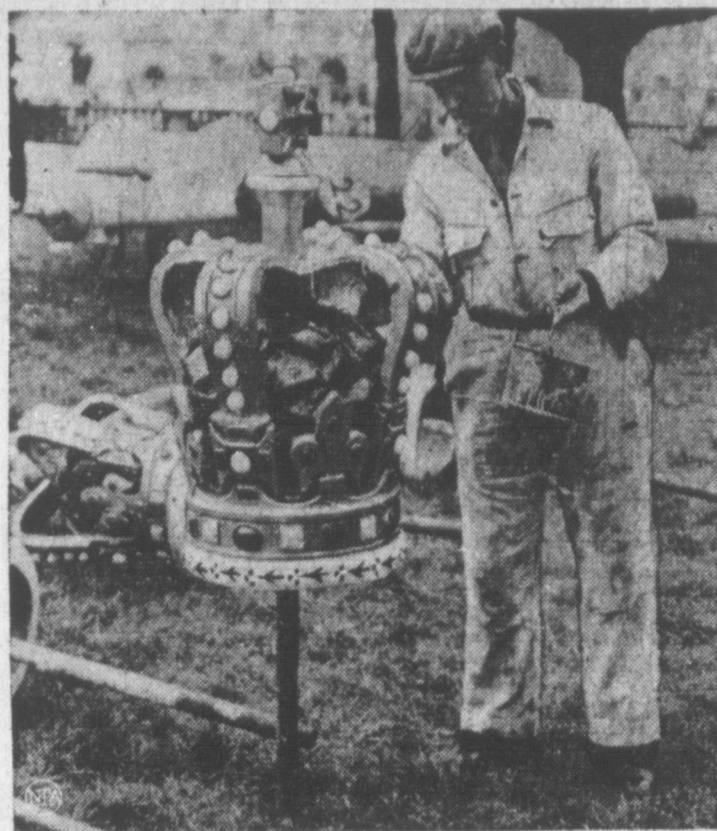

Radio Liberation estimated that of the 71 million Soviet women over 18, at least 50 per cent work. Fifteen million are on farms, one million in construction jobs.

"We also know that the bulk of the street cleaners in Moscow are women," said one official of the R.L. "The Russians believe in REAL equality for women."

Hungary observed Mother's Day last Sunday and Poland will honor moms May 26, said Radio Free Europe. RFE, also privately supported, broadcasts to five satellite countries.

Along with accent on production for the state, the Reds promote and reward motherhood. And they provide financial aid for the pregnant.

R.L. said citations for motherhood are of three general types—the "motherhood medal," with two classes—one for the woman who rears five children, one for

US In Control Of Summit Dealings

Foreign News Commentary
 By CHARLES M. McCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent
 The United States appears to have firm control of Allied negotiations with Soviet Russia for a "summit" conference.

As a result, the possibility that the United States might be coerced by its own Allies into a conference on Russian terms seems to have become remote.

Last week's meeting in Copenhagen, Denmark, of the foreign ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization brought about the change.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles succeeded in convincing his fellow foreign ministers that a "summit" conference is desirable only if it offers solid prospect of success.

Might Ease Tension
 Ever since the Soviet government started clamoring for a conference last December, the United States had been under severe pressure by some Allied governments to agree to a conference on almost any terms.

The view was taken that a summit conference, however slight the hope of agreement might be, was preferable to the present cold war tension and the danger that it might lead to a nuclear war.

The fact that Russia, while calling for a conference, was laying down terms which would make its success almost impossible, was ignored.

From the first, Dulles insisted it would be a grave mistake to agree to the conference unless preparatory negotiations showed the Soviet government was ready to enter into good faith.

Dulles was subjected to criticism not only in Allied countries but in the United States for his stand.

It was said he was obstructive, that his attitude was too rigid.

The criticism was intensified because of Russia's launching of its Sputnik earth satellites, its testing of an intercontinental ballistic missile and its threats to Western European governments that they faced utter destruction if a nuclear war broke out.

Said His Viewpoint
 Dulles maintained his stand stoutly.

His position has been strengthened by the success of the United States in launching its own earth satellites, its progress in the field of nuclear weapon development and its insistence on adequate advance preparation for a foreign ministers' conference and, in turn, for the summit conference.

At the NATO meeting in Copenhagen, Dulles sold his Allies on his viewpoint.

He was able to assure the foreign ministers that he really would like a summit conference on proper terms and that Russia, while it calls for far-reaching world agreements, refuses to consider such issues as the reunification of Germany and rejects all proposals for an inspection system which would permit a start toward disarmament.

Rise In Farm Prices Seen Continuing

By BERNARD BRENNER
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson has predicted that the recent rise in farm prices will continue through fall. He suggested that this would brighten election prospects for congressional candidates who support administration farm policy.

Benson added, however, that he is "not so sure" this trend will "save" congressmen who have attacked his program and demanded his resignation.

"It's going to be hard to demagogue on the agricultural issue this fall, and that's going to be hard on a few people," Benson said in a conference with members of the Newspaper Farm Editors Assn.

The editors group opened a two-day meeting here this morning, conferring with Benson and top members of his staff.

The farmers know that agriculture is "not going to pot," Benson said. He added he "doubts very much if agriculture is going to be the major domestic political issue" in this fall's congressional campaign.

One newsmen told the secretary that his personal political standing had apparently improved sharply recently following a period in which Republican members of Congress were demanding his resignation. He asked if Benson could put his finger on the "turning point."

Benson replied his "educational campaign" on farm economics has "begun to get home" and that during the Easter recess members of Congress learned there is growing grass-roots support for his policies.

"But I'm not exulting over the change," Benson added. "In the hour of a man's apparent success is his greatest danger. This may be the lull before the storm."

WASHINGTON—Chairman John E. Moss of the House information subcommittee on the Defense Department's plan to centralize its information services:

"It means less and less information will be available to the people and Congress. It means intimidation of anyone who might have any independence."

Back Stairs At The White House

By DAYTON MOORE
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP) — Backstairs at the White House: President Eisenhower began dealing in large figures during World War II and has been at it on and off ever since. Billions have been his diet more or less since he entered the White House. But he readily admits he still has great difficulty comprehending how big a billion is. He said in a speech last week that the nation is replacing its trees at a rate of one billion a year. Then he did some pencil mathematics to break it down a bit and came up with 30 trees a second.

"I can understand 30 a second really easier than I can a billion a year," he said.

For the first time since he became president, the President was greeted at a public gathering last week by something other than the usual ruffles and flourishes and "Hail to the Chief."

Republican congressmen, accompanied by an organ, sang "My Old Kentucky Home" when the President made his entrance at their dinner meeting. He was halfway to his seat at the head-table before most of the diners realized he had entered the room.

The organist finally switched to "The Stars and Stripes Forever." If the President noticed the switch, he didn't show it in the least. He stood at attention until the last note died out, just as he would have done if it had been the usual "Hail to the Chief."

White House newsmen greeted Presidential Press Secretary James C. Hagerly Friday with a warm—if not particularly tenuous—"happy birthday." It was his 49th.

The reporters also gave Hagerly a framed sign intended to help him keep his Irish temper under control. It said: "It ain't what you eat that gives you ulcers, it's what eats you."

On The Business Scene

By UNITED PRESS
Steel prices probably will rise $4 to $6 a net ton when labor costs increase 20 to 25 cents an hour per worker on July 1, Steel Magazine found in a poll of industry. The hike will cover only about half the increase in wages and other costs, the magazine said.

The government reported housing starts in April were up slightly over March. Work started last month on 90,700 privately financed dwelling units of a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $50,000. This is 8 per cent above the $46,000 annual rate in March.

The Labor Department reported workers drawing jobless pay decreased 66,900 to 3,265,700 in the week ended April 28. It was the second successive weekly decline and the greatest in any week since late last July.

A proposal by the United Auto Workers that car makers and the union submit economic issues in their contract negotiations to binding arbitration was rejected by General Motors Corp. The company urged the union "to face up to its responsibility to reach an agreement at the bargaining table."

'Transfer Function Analyzer' Intrigued Quigg At Trade Fair

By DOC QUIGG
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP) — Red-haired girl guides over six feet tall, an "exotic new home-use noodle machine" from Italy, and Britain's new "solartron Mark II transfer function analyzer" are part of the lure of the second annual U. S. world trade fair.

The thing is spread over eight solid acres on four floors of the New York Coliseum — 3,000 exhibitors from 60 countries — and it includes everything from a temple of the God Wium, direct from Bali, to an electric paper mill, direct from some fertile mtd in France.

Never having had the chance to have my transfer functions analyzed, I was anxious to see the British analyzer. Particularly since the pre-fair publicity had said "the Mark II is a considerable advance over the Mark I already widely used in the United States."

Admires Noodle Machine
But first I ran across the noodle machine, a hand-cranked item available in three sizes. "Why," I asked a lady who was admiring the machine, "do you want to make noodles at home?" "Because I like to make my own everything," she said with a sniff. "Tastes better, that's why."

At the Japanese firecracker exhibit, a gray-haired spectator wandered by. "What a cigaret would do in there!" he said.

"When do you suppose men first wore hats in Europe?" he demanded suddenly. I couldn't say. "Attila's horsemen — that's who. That's my job — to find out things," he said mysteriously, and wandered off among the Italian bicycles and scooters. It takes all kinds.

The United Kingdom pavilion, between the Japanese and Indonesian, had a sign saying her majesty's government wanted me to come right in. Also, "in 1967 you bought from Britain goods worth $724,000,000, more than she sold to any other country."

Enter's Reassured
Thus reassured, I entered. A chart disclosed that 80 million of the dollars aforementioned went for whisky, an item available in a variety of brands and sizes and in a glass from a lady attendant.

Installment Buying

Installment buying is, perhaps, the most vigorous part of our economy.

In very ancient times, the matter of credit was precariously gained only by a few. And even then, in most cases, the ability to purchase things on time related largely to extremely durable goods — land, buildings, ships and so forth. Today, one of the indices of our civilization is the ability so many have to obtain credit for the purchase of practically everything on an installment basis. No longer is the average person limited in his credit buying to large and enduring items. He can, in fact, purchase vacations, doctor's services, and almost anything else on time.

So far as is presently known, installment purchasing first began to be popular back in 1821 when the British Parliament passed the first formal agreement in the English language authorizing the "hire purchase" system. The idea behind the phrase, hire purchase, dealt with the manner in which installment buying was first conceived.

Early debtors undertook to purchase houses, pianos, wagons, farm equipment, land or furniture on a rental basis. Hence the word, "hire." Actually a rental of such items with a view to subsequent purchase had long been in vogue before the British government got around to the issuance of a formal statement of approval.

For example, in the latter part of the 18th century the Countess of Blessington had been attracted to the "hire purchase" idea in Paris. She found she could "hire rich and fine furniture by the quarter, half or whole year in any quantity required," and reported that she had made an arrangement that if she wished to purchase the furniture, then "the sum agreed to be paid for the year's hire is to be allowed in the purchase money which is named when the inventory is made out."

The Countess was greatly enthralled by this practice. She recommended this "usage that merits being adopted in all capitals." She was so intrigued with the possibilities that she labeled the process of renting first and having the rental sum applied to the purchase price, as an "Aladdin's Lamp."

As the outgrowth of the hire purchase system, installment buying began and was conducted for many years on the following plan which is still largely in vogue. A person wishing to purchase something for which he does not have the cash, makes no down payment and pledges regular periodic payments until the full price, usually with interest, is paid. When the final payment is tendered the purchaser receives a bill of sale or a deed, showing that in fact the purchase has been made. Prior to that final payment, the purchaser, legally was simply in the position of lessee.

This practice has been modified somewhat with the passage of years until now in most instances at least in this country, the purchaser on time is deemed to have an actual financial interest in that item or items he is in the process of buying. He may not have title, but most courts have held that he has a fiduciary interest in the property. Thus, even though he failed to make his last payment, he would have certain rights in the property despite his lack of title.

This background is provided because one of the most crucial issues of this immediate moment relates to the recession we are experiencing. This recession is marked, as most of us know, not so much by a decline in price, which might herald the end of the inflationary cycle, but rather by a rise in price and a decline in employment.

Economically speaking, there is nothing particularly villainous about purchasing on credit terms. The only problem to arise comes in those instances when a particular person, desiring to live in a style and level to which his savings have not brought him, plunges into installment debt based upon his regular earnings, only to find his job is eliminated or his income reduced. At that point, such a person experiences not only the loss of income occasioned by the loss of his job, or the reduction of his pay check, but additionally he experiences a loss of credit and in all probability an actual physical loss of the various things he was in the process of buying on installments, as these various items are repossessed.

The best safeguard against such a contingency, in addition to such skills and aptitudes as one can develop to make his job a certainty, is a regular program of savings, especially savings which involve reinvestment.

Fortunately, despite the President's insistence that all of us "buy" everything right now, it seems that in large numbers the American people recognize these dangers, for savings are growing on every hand, faster than they have grown for many years.

By R. C. HOILES
Extension Of Unemployment
Payments Just More Socialism
We have gotten so used to socialism and welfare-statism that we do not even recognize it.

When the House of Representatives passed the amended administration's move to extend unemployment payments 50 per cent longer, it was just establishing a precedent for a continuous dole. If the federal government has the right to tax one person to take care of another, it is difficult to see the difference between our form of government and that of any dictatorial or communistic government.

It will be remembered that when Grover Cleveland was President and Congress passed an appropriation to relieve distressed people, he vetoed the bill as unconstitutional.

Having the federal government lend the states the money to make these payments, which undoubtedly never will be repaid, is just a method of fooling the public as to what is taking place. It is just an extension of dole.

And remember, it is the law of nature that man must live by the sweat of his brow, and when men do not have to live so someone will take care of them on a voluntary basis when they are in trouble, then they seem to believe there are no moral or natural laws that govern their lives.

We have seen this gradual growth of socialism until we have come to believe in it. Remember, Pope advised that "Vice is a monster of so frightful mien as to be hated needs but to be seen, but when too familiar with her face, we first endure, then pity, then embrace."

We have started, step by step, into adopting socialism until now 370 members of the House of Representatives voted for unemployment payments extension compared with 17 who voted against it.

Instead of attempting to look into the cause of unemployment, we are just adopting policies that will continue it. And there is not much question but that the cause of unemployment is laws that permit labor unions to budge wages so high that other workers do not believe they are benefited by buying the fruits of their labor.

And labor unions tactics to raise wages are not a fight between employer and employe, they are a fight between one group of workers exploiting and robbing another group. When the unions are so successful in exploiting and robbing other groups, unemployment increases and increases.

It is estimated that this bill will cost $600 million, and if Congress has the right to extend the time, 50 per cent they have a right to make it perpetual.

The compensation varies in different states. The benefits range from a minimum of $5 a week in several states to a high of $60 a week in Connecticut.

The length of time differs in different states. Payment periods range from 5 weeks in Florida to 30 weeks in Pennsylvania.

The new plan will give them, if passed by the Senate as passed by the House of Representatives, one week extra pay for every two weeks the state has granted them after the state grant has been exhausted.

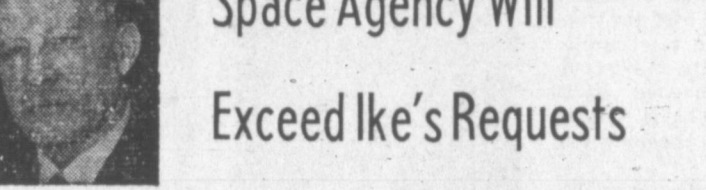

Yes, step by step we're following the socialism of England and approaching a government that does not respect human initiative. Any government that does not respect human initiative is a government that is turning its back on the ideologies of the American way of life as set forth in the Declaration of Independence, that governments derive their just power from the consent of the governed, that all men, and not just the majority, are endowed by the Creator with certain inalienable rights to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. And that's the form of government that made us materially prosperous, and now we are adopting socialism and communism that always impoverishes mankind.

"The Race Is Wide Open"

Robert Allen Reports

Space Agency Will Exceed Ike's Requests

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower is going to get considerably more than he asked for on a new space agency. A majority of the special House Space Committee, headed by Representative John McCormack (D., Mass.), has privately decided on a bill which not only makes major changes in the form of the regulatory agency recommended by the President, but also gives it a lot more authority than he proposed.

Official name of this new history-making body would be the NATIONAL AERONAUTICS AND SPACE AGENCY. It would absorb all the functions and operations now conducted by the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, consisting of leading businessmen, scientists and government officials, under the chairmanship of General James Doolittle.

But instead of vesting control of the new space agency in a 17-member board, as urged by the President, the House Committee will place this authority in the hands of a $22,500-a-year Administrator — with the further proviso that he is to have "direct access to the President."

A board is included in the Committee's measure, but only as an advisory group. The Administrator can seek the board's views and guidance on policies and projects. But he doesn't have to bow to this advice. He would be free to accept or reject it.

Composition and size of this board are still undetermined. Under the President's plan, it would have nine members from industry and other private sources, and eight from the government. Majority Committee sentiment favors reversing that, to nine from the latter and eight from the former.

The President would appoint the Administrator and the board, and all would have to be confirmed by the Senate.

The House bill also would create a Joint Congressional Committee on Space, with jurisdiction over the proposed agency. This new Committee would be modeled after the Joint Atomic Commission, headed by Representative Carl Durham (D., N.C.), which has authority over the Atomic Energy Commission.

WHAT IT'LL DO — Primary purpose of the legislation being drafted backstage by Representative McCormack's Committee is to ensure civilian control over space research, development and projects.

To specifically stress that, a preamble is being added to the bill stating: "Congress declares that all space activities should be directed by the civilian agency exercising control over aeronautical and space research sponsored by the U.S., except insofar as such activities may be primarily associated with weapons system or military operations, in which case the agency will act in cooperation with, or on behalf of, the Defense Department."

Under this policy declaration, according to a Committee leader, the President would decide important differences between the space agency and the military. It was pointed out this is one of the main reasons for giving the NASA Administrator "direct access to the President."

The immense scope and authority of the new space agency, as contemplated in the House Committee's forthcoming bill, are graphically indicated by the following major provisions:

1. "Develop, test, launch and operate aeronautical and space vehicles."
2. "Develop a comprehensive program of research in the aeronautical and space sciences."
3. "Plan, direct and conduct scientific studies and investigations of the problems of manned and unmanned flight within or outside of the earth's atmosphere with a view to their practical solution."

Hankering's

Mac's Statistics On The Overweight

I saw some statistics the other day which showed that overweight in the American male was most common to a group composed of husbands of moderate incomes. Being a member of this group I read on, and was surprised to find that the organization making the study was at a loss to explain why this particular segment should consistently have to punch more holes in its belt with an ice pick than any other.

The answer is as plain as the stomachs of those of us in the group. There's no mystery about it.

Husbands of moderate incomes can't afford new clothes to wear after they diet and take off anywhere from fifteen to fifty pounds. When a man loses six or seven inches off his waist, and one or two off his neck, he either has to get a new wardrobe or go about the streets looking like a poorly put up tent.

Oh, I know all about that nonsense of how a man doesn't care how he looks in his clothes if he can proudly pull out his waistband and say, "See, there's room enough for me to drop a collie dog in there! I'm on a diet you know. Have taken off seventeen pounds in five weeks."

That is the talk of those whose clothes fit. It's all right for other men to go about looking a fright, but not them!

And how is the world at large going to know that a man whose clothes flap, bulge, bunch and drag is on a diet? What is going to prevent the public from pitying such a creature, or from trying not to sit next to him on a bus?

Should the moderate income husband on a diet sport a sandwich board that reads, "Don't mind me. I look this way because I'm taking off weight and must wear the same clothes?"

I don't think this is the answer. In the first place, a sandwich board is unsightly on the average man, and second, a man on a strict diet is usually too weak to carry around anything as heavy as a box of matches, much less a sandwich board. When I'm on a diet, it's all I can do to breathe and reach out and grasp my lettuce leaf and consume it.

Few wives are of any comfort to a husband on a diet. At first they always say they don't care how he looks in his clothes as long as he gets thinner, but this brave talk doesn't last for more than a two- or three-public appearances.

Then they begin to smile when they look at their husbands in their floppy clothes, they grin, then they laugh, and eventually they say, "Darling, you just don't know how you look. Let's see if we can do something about that coat and trousers."

There are few tailors capable of making over a suit. There are no wives with this skill. Wives just gather things in bunches and sew them. The net result is that the poor husband goes out resembling a grocery bag gathered at the top.

In the end, the husband quits dieting and eats like a starving wolf in an effort to expand back into his clothes.

His health may suffer, but his pride is enabled to keep its chin up. Or its two chins!

ing on Eric Johnston's "Friends of Foreign Aid" and "Pro America". We talk about "freedom of opportunity" in this country. But it doesn't include freedom TO SAVE public money.

JACK MOFFITT

Fair Enough

Pegler Attends A Washington 'Rejoicing'

Early in 1946, Cissy Patterson, the cousin of Robert R. McCormick, gave come-along-eyes for Bertie and his beautiful new bride, Maryland, now, alas, his widow, at Cissy's mansion on Du Pont Circle, in Washington. Bert, or the Colonel, as his ink-stained wretches called him, never was chummy with the serfs, but Cissy was about as choosy as a pool-hall, and a lot of us were bidden to a typical Washington rejoicing in which the hostess arranged the tables so that each one represented a pair of deadly enemies eye-to-eye across the posies of the centerpiece. I usually keep publishers in their place, but Bert was my cousin, so I made an exception. As we went in, I asked Walter Trohan of the Chicago Tribune whether it was customary to check one's blackjack at the door, and Trohan said, "I feel safer with mine in my pocket."

There was a small table in the foyer where a maid in black with an organdie cap, possibly a private detective, handed out little envelopes, each with the name of a guest. I drew mine and a card inside said simply, "yellow rose table."

I got my back to a wall and drifted along. After a few drinks, a tide set in, toward the dining salon as I set a course toward a table with yellow roses where I found myself between Alice Longworth and a big-busted old ice-breaker, the wife of a new deal confidence man who had himself placed in trusteeship that nobody could make him pay for anything.

Alice and I were on speaking terms, which means, if you know Alice, that she speaks and you find yourself straining to interpret the strange, fuzzy accent peculiar to so many Roosevelts, both Oyster Bay and Hyde Park. Admiral Land, the salty Coast Guard bureaucrat, sat yonder and there across the yellow roses, I saw the mercurochrome countenance of Frank Murphy, by then a justice of Supreme Court in payment for his cowardice in quailing when as Governor of Michigan he should have ordered his National Guard to blow the heads off the rioters and saboteurs in the Communist insurrection in Flint, which, in the end, gave us Reuther.

This was no time for bashfulness so I said: "Good evening, Mr. Justice," to which Murphy replied with a rude sound produced by a pursing of the lips around the tongue and a strong exhalation. So repartee is waged among our masters, but I have no skill at this game and contented myself by frequently stretching out my neck and inquiring: "And what is your opinion of that, Mr. Justice?" To all of which he retorted as aforesaid, leaving a patina compounded of mayonnaise, ice cream and cake-frosting on his glossy lapels.

Thereafter we adjourned, as the saying goes, to a big rumpus room for serious drinking and Mrs. Trohan, a merry spirit, beckoned me to a love-seat where she was chatting with John L. Lewis. I thought, "Well, if he kicks I can kick back," and went over. But he turned out to be a remarkably civilized fellow and invited me to his office next day where and when he told me of the time he smashed the barriers on the public highway into two Pennsylvania company coal towns owned by the Roosevelt family, and made Roosevelt sign up with the UMW.

Mrs. Trohan now sidled up to her spouse, who was chatting with Mrs. Evie Robert, a great big hunk of beautiful blonde, Frankfurter and Murphy, and quietly nudged him. Mr. Trohan let out a modulated roar: "Look who is sitting on the love-seat. I want the movie rights to that — with sound!"

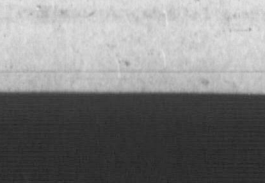

Murphy turned his vermilion facade toward us and snorted: "I just don't like that sordid life!"

About two a.m., the Colonel, in a blue pajamas, and his bride, in a pretty robe, came out on a balcony above the ballroom and, commanding quietly by a lordly gesture, Bertie roared: "Go on home!"

Accordingly numerous revelers wound up in a chop suey joint where Trohan kept moaning over and over, "I am a —"

It has often occurred to me that Washington journalism would be the better for fewer persons' inhibitions which prevent the telling, day by day, of precious information about life in the citadel of freedom.

Polio Goes North With Spring Again

By DELOS SMITH

NEW YORK (UP) — Once more polio is marching North with the spring but this year may be the last time it does because the final battle seems to be at hand. The objective is to get every man, woman, and child in the United States protected by the Salk vac-

SIDESADDLE—Actress Ingrid Bergman rides a donkey through a Chinese village in Boreham Wood, England. The "town" was built for Miss Bergman's newest movie, "The Inn of Sixth Happiness."

ine. The big guns of the typical American high-pressure "sales" campaign are beginning to boom. Polio is so close to being wiped out that the pressing question has become the future of the very organization which brought about the victory, the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

As the annual "polio season" spreads northward this year, it is not a shadow of what it was only last year—and a very faint shadow of what it was when there was no Salk vaccine. There had been only 145 paralytic cases up to the week ending April 19, (the last available authentic figures), compared to 321 for the same time last year. For the before-Salk years, the totals were usually several times that figure by mid-April.

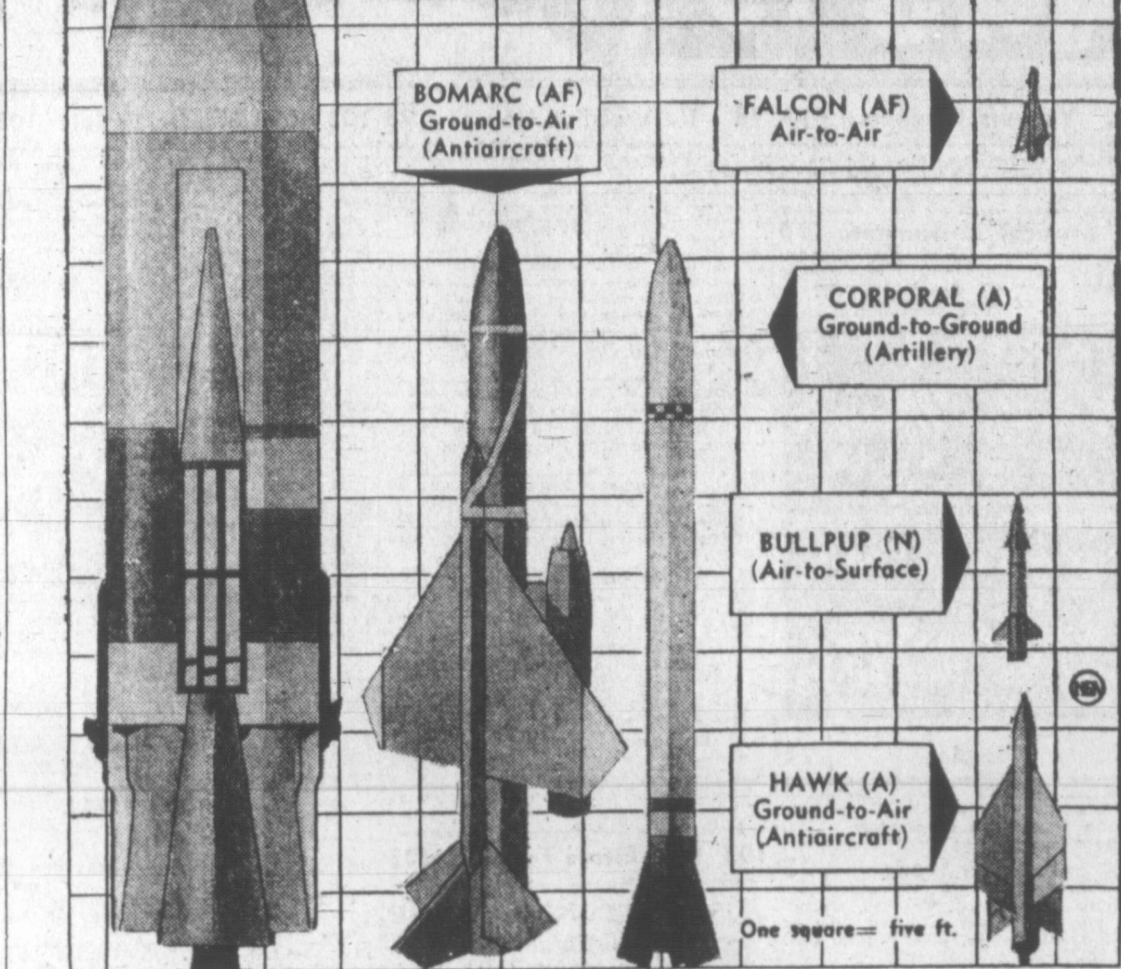

These dramatic declines were due to more and more people having vaccine protection. As of March 1, 62,500,000 persons out of a total population of 172,000,000 had had one or more "shots."

If you could persuade 172,000,000 persons to get vaccinated there would be nowhere the viruses could make headway.

Viruses would remain in circulatory system of wiping out viruses. But you can deprive them of susceptible people.

That being so, the battle objective is total. There now is plenty of vaccine. The idea is to get it into everyone of whatever age from less than 1 year up to even 90 or more. To be sure, such a goal is not likely to be reached. But epidemiologists feel polio will have been halted as an epidemic disease when 85 per cent of the most susceptible—persons under 20—and 50 per cent of all others have been vaccinated—with three "shots."

Babies of 1 year or less are a particular target. Last year, when the total number of polio cases declined 62 per cent over 1956 and 83 per cent over the average for the five years between 1952 and 1956, the paralytic rate for these infants showed little change. Infants had been generally considered too tender to vaccinate. But

The varying sizes and uses of some of the nation's arsenal of missiles are shown in chart above. Of the eight, Corporal and Dart are operational and deployed with troops in the field. Two versions of Falcon are also operational. Intercontinental ballistic missile Atlas (5,900-mile) has been successful in short-range tests, expected to be operational by late 1958. Bomarc is in production; four launching sites on east coast are under construction. Mobile, low-altitude anti-aircraft missile Hawk is in production, will also be used by Marines. Bullpup is in production. Genie has been successfully test fired.

now it is known that isn't so—and it is also known that babies exhaust the protective antibodies they acquire from their mothers within three to four months.

The statistical picture at the beginning of the new "polio season" is this: There are 65,000,000 Americans under 20, and 18,500,000 have not had one Salk "shot." There are 46,000,000 Americans between 20 and 39, and 30,000,000 have no vaccine protection. The percentage of the protected over 39 is not known but it is probably not more than 1 per cent of 62,000,000 persons.

LOOK...a FORD with Air Conditioning costs less than many medium-priced cars without it!

Depend on Ford to find a way to bring air conditioning within reach of nearly every new car buyer.

If you ever have said, "Some day I'm going to own a car with air conditioning"... here is the most welcome news in a long while: A comparison of manufacturers' suggested retail delivered prices shows that a 58 Ford with air conditioning costs less than many medium-priced cars without it!

So why wait?

Your Ford Dealer is ready now to show you just how pleasant... how comfortable... how fatigue-free your summer driving can be in an air-conditioned Ford. No matter how high the temperature soars, you'll ride cool and comfy as a polar bear!

Something else you'll appreciate almost as much as Ford's air conditioning is its spirited performance. Ford offers you a Thunderbird-powered V-8 engine that is new from oil pan up... new from machined combustion chambers (that give even, efficient combustion) to silent-working hydraulic valve lifters. It's the Thunderbird's own V-8 so naturally it gives the Thunderbird's own special brand of V-8 skedaddle—up to 300 horsepower-worth of it!

Just team this V-8 with Ford's all-new Cruise-O-Matic Drive transmission and you'll get as much as 15% better gas mileage. It's like getting back 15¢ on every gas dollar!

So add it all up: low-cost air conditioning, Thunderbird CO, thrifty operation. Can any other car offer you so much real value as Ford? Then why not see your Ford Dealer? He'll show you how to stop perspiring and start living—and at surprisingly low cost!

There's Thunderbird magic in every
