Corruption Source

It is curious, is it not, how many fine programs, once undertaken by government, lose their virtue? Some of the most noble desires of human beings, when promoted privately and with honor and integrity, have lifted the race and the nation to a position of credit and recognition. These same programs have only to be adopted by government, and the honor, integrity, and even the original purpose, are sullied over with the fog of political chicanery and the whole thing becomes a burden which emits a nare-quivering aroma. Let us take a single example, Civil Service.

According to the record, this particular idea had a noble origin. It seems that James A. Garfield, back on September 19, 1881, met his death at the hands of one Charles Guiteau. Mr. Garfield, as president, had been employing the practice, made popular during the term of Andy Jackson, of the "spoils system." That is to say, Mr. Garfield and others had been in the custom of throwing out of office the appointees put in by their predecessors, and rewarding their own sycophants with jobs. Mr. Guiteau was a disappointed office seeker who had labored on behalf of Mr. Garfield, and who felt that Mr. Garfield had not fully appreciated his efforts. Hence the assassination.

So it was that on January 16, 1883, President Chester A. Arthur signed the Civil Service Act into law, as much as anything to curtail the itchy fingers of would-be trigger men, who might otherwise labor to elect a particular chief executive.

The whole idea of the Civil Service act to begin with, was that a person of merit could be hired and kept at his job, regardless of the ebb and flow of political fortune. It sounded real good at the outset. Some 13,800 government jobs were affected.

As a matter of fact, so splendid did the idea seem at the beginning that the sub-title for Civil Service was "The Merit System." Any human being, after passing a civil service examination, could obtain and keep a job without regard for his race, religion, national origin or political leanings.

But, of course, the key to the matter lay in the examination itself. And with the passage of years, the merit system, established by the government to guarantee quality in office, has been twisted and warped like practically all government programs, until today it guarantees a quantity of office holders who simply cannot be fired without a tremendous lot of red tape to unsnarl. Quality is lacking.

Currently, the so-called "merit system" is keeping on the rolls of employment some 2,000,000 persons who have a nice sinecure, probably for life, and

Legalized Civil War Rule-or-ruin Reuther has been successful in getting his union put an assessment of $5, plus union dues of $3, on members to raise $50 million for a strike fund. And what does this strike fund mean? It means that they will attempt to blockade any employer who does not grant their demands. Any settlement made with the threats of a strike to injure the stockholders, the suppliers, and the customers is certainly a form of civil war. What would happen if the employers got together and publicly announced they were entering into a conspiracy to raise the price of their product and apportion sales and cut the wages of their workers? Certainly that would be a form of civil war and the government would put the violators in

And why not repeal the Clayton Amendment to the Sherman Anti-Trust Law, that permits union men to enter into civil war and not be guilty of a crime, so that all men would be equal before the law as they are before God? That seems to oe the only way the public can protect itself against the plunder of labor unions.

And Reuther not only wants wages, but he wants a share of the profits. And he has been able to sell his stooges to follow him, and if he is successful, of course, he will lower the standard of living of everybody.

This is true because taking the profits from the business management that can save human energy and make large profits, and thus add to the wealth of the world. is the very thing that free men should not desire. When a company operates without making a profit there is not additional wealth added to the world to benefit mankind.

Additional Wealth Distributed

And all this additional wealth that results from profits will be distributed. It will be distributed because it cannot benefit its owner without being distributed. He will distribute it by giving it away, by using it for his own enjoyment or by reinvesting it.

If he reinvests it he has to bid against other employers to get operators for his tools and he has to compete with other producers to get the consumers' dollars. These two acts raise real wages and lower the cost of what is produced. In other words, it benefits everybody

Reuther's plan uses the means of civil war to tell what each person should get. Men under Reuther's plan are not free to switch jobs that they think are being paid too much. His seniority and his union rules chain men to their jobs, making it difficult for them to find the work they are best qualified to do. And, of course, with his strikes and featherbed ding, and unproductive "men like Reuther and his accomplices producing no real wealth, production is retarded and everybody suffers. Reuther, in fact, is contending by his acts that we can live better by producing less, by strikes, and interfering with human initiative and taking away from individuals with natural managing ability their opporiunity to serve their fellowman, in short, Reuther is practicing coercion and is entirely opposed to voluntaryism. In fact, all unions are based on coercion in the form of duress, conspiracy and plunder. This country criginally was based on the idea that man should benefit himself by trading with others and also benefiting them, not getting what they wanted by injuring another, as is the only method Reuther and labor unions that strike use. And I know of no labor unions that do not threaten to strike, and strikes are just a legalized form of civil war, due to laws such as Clayton Amendment and the Wagner Law and the Taft-Hartley Law. This makes classes out of men, gives union men licenses and privileges no man should

NATIONAL DEFENSE - OR SEDUCTION OF YOUTH? (Chicago Tribune)

Immediately after conferring with President Eisenhower at Gettysburg, Marion B. Folsom, secretary of health, education, and welfare, announced the administration's billion dollar plan to intervene in higher education. It includes undergraduate scholarships, graduate fellowships, summer short courses, matching funds to augment salaries, laboratories, and counseling services all slanted to subsidize and stimulate the study of science and mathematics.

Al this is offered "to help meet the urgent demands of education. as it affects our national security," and with the usual meaningless assurance that the federal program, if adopted, will be temporary.

If the object is to influence the armaments race in the immediate future, the program makes little sense. It takes time to develop a scientific or technological pioneer. If federal scientific scholarships were thrust upon high school graduates today, it would be years before these students could be at work on defense department assignments. By that time, the arms race may be over. Perhaps it will have ended with a bang and perhaps in a relaxation of tensions in which happy event demand for missile experts will be less urgent than it is now. Either way, to offer federal science scholarships as an answer relevant to the current American disadvantage in space technology is absurd and hysterical.

However, if we do have enough time left to us for such a program, the results are more likely to be evil than good. This point has just been made clearly and authoritatively by Dr. Herbert E. Longenecker, vice president of the Chicago professional colleges. In an address before the scientific manpower conference at Indianapois, Dr. Longenecker said, "A scholarship program for scientists - like some other proposals put forward in the hasty response of a crisis atmospherehas the inherent weakness of contributing to an imbalance in higher education. . . If a federal scholarship program is to be enacted. then all means should be exerted to oppose a categorized program for scientists or any other specifically designated group of college students. There is a serious question of the propriety of federal government participation in the seduction of youth into particular vocational fields before there has been a solid basis for an individual's choice to be made." In concluding, he said, "The answer to each new crisis must be conceived in terms that enhance and support and do not diminish our individual and collective freedoms."

of the population and have failed

dismally should yet command

government protection against forces intent on his ruin. The fact that needs to be stressed is that the program presented by the administration is not an abandonment of aid to farmers but an effort to help them through a period of technical revolution in agriculture. The President does not propose to do away with price supports but to use them in a fashion that will not aggravate the problem. The program is a courageous one and an intelligent one, and it deserves support.

A series of bills aimed at corruption and racketeering in labor unions has been introduced by members of the Senate rackets committee, which exposed the op erations of Dave Beck, James Hol fa, and other labor bosses. The bills have some merit, but they leave intact most of the power wielded by men like Beck and Hoffa. One of the measures introduced by Sen. McClellan, chairman of the rackets committee, would amend the communications act to ) make it clear that law enforce-notably without much in the way of competition. The merit they might once have shown upon a successful completion of their examination, becomes eroded with much protectionism. They no longer have to produce. They simply have to be at their desks, regardless of what they do.

The virtue of the whole idea has vanished. One of the saddest, most expensive and wasteful of all governmental programs is now conceded by many to lie right within the Civil Service System itself. You simply cannot fire a Civil Service worker, unless you are prepared to make that act itself a major item of business.

And sincere bureaucrats-there are a few-who are momentarily alarmed by the cost of their bureaus find it expedient and even helpful to keep great hordes of persons on their own government payrolls. First of all, their own position appears more important if they have lots of help. Secondly, the job of firing the unnecessary worker is so vast, thanks to Civil Service. that there are few if any inducements to cause a bureaucrat to attempt such firing.

As one wag put it, the Civil Servant today is like the Army's abortive effort at Cape Canaveral recently to put a satellite into space. He can't be fired and he can't be made to work.

Right now, the spoils system which looked so bad during Arthur's administration, looks mighty good. If only a few hundred thousands of these unnecessary parasites were lopped off the public trough, what a God-send it would be. But try and do it.

We are saddled with protectionism, even in the agency which is supposed to protect us.

have. Beliefs And all this is due to the belief of too many individuals that one man gets rich in a free economy by robbing others rather than by benefiting others. It is a belief that free enterprise is like gambling or robbery or wars, where one man gains at the loss of another.

And it is because of these beliefs of so many people that our legislators pass these special privilege collectivist laws to keep themselves in office.

One wonders just how poor and how destitute we will have to become and how many unemployed people we will have to have before people change their beliefs to believe in a free and unhampered economy where jobs are interchangable and where we have respect and reverence for the man or the group of men who can manage the production to make greater profits. What we need to do is let the man who can make greater profits grow and let those who cannot make profits under a free economy go to work under the direction of managers who will benefit mankind by making profits.

Yes, we are sanctioning legalized civil wars when we permit labor unions to do things that would put employers in jail if done by them.
