SMILING AGAIN

Wearing ear-to-ear grins are three of the "kidnaped" prisoners who were released by the Cuban rebels the latter part of last week. Left to right are: Edward Cannon, Cornwall, Canada; Henry Salmonson, Portland, Oregon; and William H. Koster, Akron, Ohio. Four other U. S. hostages and one Canadian were set free Sunday.

Five More Hostages Set Free By Rebels

By FRANCIS L. MCCARTHY
United Press International
HAVANA (UPI) — The Cuban rebels were reported ready to release another handful of kidnaped Canadians and Americans today. But the possibility developed some kidnap victims may be held indefinitely as "insurance" against government bomb attacks.

Four Americans and one Canadian were freed Sunday, leaving seven civilians in rebel hands. If no hitch develops, the seven—six Americans and the Canadian—may be flown out of the eastern Cuban hills before the day is over.

American Naval authorities indicated it would take a little longer to work out release arrangements for the 30 U. S. sailors and Marines held captive for the past 10 days.

Release negotiations were being conducted directly between U. S. Consul Park Wollam and rebel leader Raul Castro in the rugged hills of Oriente Province.

Talks with newsmen were pointed up Sunday by one of the newly freed Americans who was allowed to talk to newsmen shortly after his release.

John Schissler, of Covina, Calif., said he was told by Raul Castro, whose brother, Fidel, is chief of the anti-government forces, that the American captives were good insurance against attack by Cuban warplanes.

Schissler quoted Castro as saying, "Americans are good 50 millimeter anti-aircraft protection." The government ceased all ground and air activity in the area to avoid upsetting negotiations for the release of the captive North Americans.

Rejects Demands
Schissler also said Castro was demanding that U. S. Ambassador Earl Smith go up into the hills so that he could be informed personally about rebel complaints.

Schissler said he understood Wollam rejected this demand and also refused to sign a list of conditions for release of the prisoners.

Along with Schissler, the men released Sunday were Eugene Pfiefer of St. Paul, Minn.; Edwin Cordes of Fanwood, N. J.; Harold Kristjanson of Winnipeg, Canada; and Roman Cecilia, a Cuban-born naturalized U. S. citizen.

All appeared tired but in good spirits. Schissler said they had been well treated.

TO IKE TODAY

Dulles Will Report On DeGaulle Talks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles planned to report to President Eisenhower today on his meeting with France's "man of destiny," Premier Charles de Gaulle.

Dulles indicated the nature of part of his report upon his arrival here by plane Sunday night from Paris.

He told newsmen he had had "full, satisfactory, comprehensive talks" with the new French leader and thought De Gaulle would "do much to relieve the predicaments" that have prevented France from taking a full role in international affairs.

Dulles described De Gaulle as "a man of wisdom and power."

The secretary was silent, however, on one aspect of his conference with De Gaulle that has disturbed some American diplomats. De Gaulle is reported to have insisted that France develop its own atomic weapons and to have declared France will test an atom bomb in the not too distant future.

Dulles apparently tried in vain to talk De Gaulle out of his insistence that France join the ranks of nuclear powers.

De Gaulle was reported to have told Dulles bluntly France was determined to become a nuclear power as a matter of "primordial" importance. He was understood to have urged U. S. help to speed explosion of France's first atomic bomb in the Sahara Desert in the next few months.

Dulles, according to U. S. officials, expressed this country's concern that if France crashes the exclusive "club" of nuclear powers it might upset whatever hope is left for a disarmament agreement. The military atomic powers are the United States, the Soviet Union and Britain.

WILLIAM STANLEY WHALES

Ex-RAF Pilot Changes Story

IPSWICH, England (UPI) — William Stanley Whales, an unemployed farmhand, has retracted his confession of last week that he wrote a letter to the Soviet embassy describing himself as a disgruntled American pilot who planned to drop an atomic bomb off the coast of England.

Whales, 34, a former pilot in the Royal Air Force, gave a signed statement Sunday to detective inspector Eric Oxborough of the criminal investigation department denying he wrote the letter and suggesting the original letter was a hoax.

Last week Whales signed a "confession" saying he wrote the letter in hopes of calling attention to the ill he said the RAF had inflicted on him. Sunday he said his fake confession had achieved the same aims.

Pampa Moisture Totals 2.10 Inches

Pampa received .90 of an inch of moisture yesterday to run the three day total to 2.10 inches of rain. The rainfall over the Top o' Texas area was general.

The Top o' Texas weather forecast calls for partly cloudy skies with little change in temperatures through Tuesday. Widely scattered afternoon and evening thundershowers. The expected low tonight is 69 and the high tomorrow is expected to be 80.

Westex Men Hear Report

Fred Husbands from Abilene will be the center of attention at the West Texas Chamber of Commerce meeting here Thursday when he takes up the tax and legislation work of the Chamber.

Husbands is general manager of the regional organization.

Director Roy Bourland has invited all local members to the Palm Room of Pampa City Hall for the 10 a. m. meeting. Coffee and doughnuts will be served.

Members will have an opportunity to meet Husbands and hear his report on the activities of the West Texas Chamber.

TORNADO HITS TYLER

Texas Weather Goes On Rampage Over Weekend

By United Press International
Windstorms, crackling lightning, 15-inch rain and a freakish tornado ripped Texas Sunday.

The tornado struck Tyler, in East Texas, amidst a fierce display of lightning, high winds and a heavy rain.

A flash flood put some parts of Divine, in Medina county 40 miles west of San Antonio, under four feet of water late Sunday night.

Rains of eight inches since sundown were unofficially reported.

The Department of Public Safety rushed units to the scene and first reports said there were no casualties. All roads into the town of 1,800 were closed.

Lightning Strikes Twice
When the storm had cleared, a 200-foot long chunk of brick and tile wall was missing from the Kimbell - Mayfield wholesale grocery. Boxes and crates were still neatly stacked inside the building and the roof was undamaged.

Lightning struck two buildings in Austin — the police department building and a church structure at St. Mary Academy. Only minor damage was reported.

High winds ripped through Manzanita, an incorporated city of 200 persons eight miles southeast of Austin, demolishing one house and badly damaging four others.

There were no reports of deaths or injuries although police and firemen searched for a body in the Bosque River, swollen by rains of up to 15 inches. There were no reports of drownings but the search was started after a woman reported seeing what she thought was a body in the muddy flooding stream.

The 15-inch rain was reported at the Huckaby-Exray communities 15 miles north of Stephenville. Nearly seven inches washed Stephenville and the Bosque flooded a city park, damaging playground equipment.

South of Stephenville, the Bosque flooded over in to rich farm bottomlands.

Heavy rains struck College Station, San Antonio, Taylor and other Central Texas points Sunday night, posing threats of floods for much of the state's midsection.

Fifty-mile an hour winds and 1.50 inches of rain struck Dallas Sunday afternoon, causing minor flooding of underpasses and streets. Lightning struck power lines, momentarily disrupting electric service.

Motorists Stranded
Six inches of rain in seven hours between Breckenridge and Mineral Wells Sunday morning closed roads and highways.

Get Your Absentee Vote In, Says That

Absentee balloting began in the Gray County clerk's office today for the July 28 Democratic primary. Gray County Clerk Charles Taylor announced earlier that qualified voters who expect to be out of Gray County on election day, can cast their votes in his office from now through July 22.

The office also has 18 absentee ballots ready to mail out.

Six polling places will be open in Commissioner Precinct 2 on election day: Baker, Horace Mann and Woodrow Wilson Schools, Phillips Camp and the Pampa LOOF Hall.

The polls will be open in Commissioner Precinct 3, Lefors and Laketon; Precinct 3, Grandview and Hopkins; and Precinct 4, McLean and Alandred.

Three Quads Now Dead

MANKATO, Minn. (UPI) — The third of the Gerald Hansen quadruplets died today at Immanuel Hospital here.

Penelope was in satisfactory condition until Sunday night when she began to fail.

The remaining quad, Rebecca, was in satisfactory condition.

Two of the babies, Christine and Deborah, died Saturday evening.

The four girls were born Saturday during a one-hour 45-minute period to Katherine Hansen, 26, mother of a 10-month-old son. They weighed 2 pounds each and were born about 2 1/2 months prematurely, doctors said.

Two of the girls, Christine and Deborah, died Saturday. The others, Penelope and Rebecca, are in incubators.

The Hansens had been expecting triplets.

Authorities said chance of giving birth to quadruplets are about 575,000 to 1.

Reds Release Nine US Airmen; All Are Well

FREE AND FINE

Had Been Held Since June 27

LONDON (UPI) — The Soviet Union today released the nine crewmembers of a U. S. military plane forced down by Russian jets in Soviet Armenia June 27, Radio Moscow said today.

The airmen were turned over to U. S. authorities on the Soviet-Iranian frontier.

Radio Moscow said the hand-over took place at Astara on the border with Iran.

The brief broadcast said the men were handed over to U. S. military representatives and gave the names of the men.

The nine Americans were crewmen of a C118 transport which the Soviets claimed violated Russian airspace over Armenia.

The U. S. aircraft was forced down by two Soviet fighters near Erevan, Armenia, on June 27. A Soviet announcement said that the plane—burned after landing but that the crewmen were safe and well.

The plane had been en route to Iran and Pakistan carrying supplies to U. S. forces there. It had come from West Germany and had touched down in Cyprus only a few hours before it was forced down at a Russian airfield.

The flight was the subject of a formal Soviet protest a week ago Saturday and again Saturday night. Russia maintained in both notes that U. S. violations of the Russian border were not uncommon and were "premeditated."

The United States, in a communication dated June 30, assured Russia the plane was on a routine flight and crossed the Armenian frontier by accident. The United States expressed regret for the incident and told the Soviets the aircraft was unarmed.

The airmen were identified by the U. S. Defense Department as:

Col. Dale D. Brannon, Chadron, Ohio; Maj. Luther W. Lyles, Savoy, Tex.; Maj. Robert E. Crans, Macon, Mo.; Maj. Beanie A. Shupe, Miami, Fla.; Capt. James T. Kane, Farmingdale, N.Y.; 1st Lt. James N. Luther, Waseca, Minn.; T. Sgt. James G. Holman, Vivian, La.; Airman 2C (See REDS, Page 3)

Goldfine's Secretary Has Room 'Ransacked'

BERNARD GOLDFINE ... has room wired

Papers Are Stolen; His Room 'Bugged'

By REED BUNDY
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A spokesman for Bernard Goldfine said today that the hotel room of Goldfine's secretary, Mildred Paparman, had been "ransacked" and a number of important financial records stolen.

Roger Robb, attorney for the Boston millionaire, said the records had a bearing on Goldfine's testimony before a House influence investigating committee probing his relationship with Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams.

Robb said he had notified Washington metropolitan police of the incident.

Goldfine also lodged a complaint with the Federal Bureau of Investigators over secret recordings made by a subcommittee investigator and an associate of columnist Drew Pearson.

The investigator, Baron Shacklette, and Jack Anderson, Pearson's assistant, were discovered eavesdropping with a microphone in a hotel room adjoining that occupied by Goldfine's new publicity man, Jack Lotto.

Subcommittee Chairman Owen Harris (D-Ark.), describing the incident as "very serious," called his subcommittee into an emergency session to consider the matter.

Lotto said the FBI has assigned agents to investigate the eavesdropping complaint. Goldfine, through his staff, also filed a complaint with Oliver Gasch, U. S. district attorney for Washington.

Lotto said that Miss Paparman, who probably knows more than any other person about Goldfine's controversial operations, discovered that books, records, correspondence, lists, cancelled checks, photo copies, and other documents bearing on the Goldfine case had been removed from the closet of her room.

Letter to Committee
Goldfine, on completing his testimony last Thursday, returned to Boston with his wife and members of his personal staff for the weekend. Miss Paparman stored a number of confidential files in the closet of her hotel room there. She said the documents were in large sealed envelopes.

Robb demanded in a letter to Harris that members of the investigating subcommittee state openly whether staff personnel had violated the client-attorney relationship by secretly recording his talks with Goldfine.

Robb declared Goldfine, whose relationship with Presidential Aide Sherman Adams is under investigation, should have the opportunity to hear testimony under oath of persons who may have been (See GOLDFINE, Page 3)

Eisenhower Is Willing To Discuss Wheat

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Eisenhower is willing to discuss in Ottawa, Canada, this week a possible Canadian-U. S. pool for disposal of surplus wheat. But he is not ready to enter into such an agreement immediately, administration sources said today.

The President, accompanied by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, will fly to Ottawa Tuesday for a three-day informal visit in an effort to improve Canadian-American relations.

The President's avowed purpose is to do his utmost toward restoring the traditionally close and friendly relationship between the two countries. He will not take with him any specific solutions for economic differences that have developed in the past year or so.

But Eisenhower believes a discussion of common problems can at least clear the air and result in better understanding. For that reason he was glad to accept Canadian Prime Minister John G. Diefenbaker's invitation.

The President has listed surplus wheat, common water resources, oil, lead and zinc among problems he expected to be discussed at Ottawa. But he also said he would discuss anything raised by Diefenbaker.

The chief executive was reported ready to give immediate assurances the United States will do all it can to keep foreign sale of its surplus wheat from cutting into Canadian world sales. But administration sources said the President would not be in a position to enter into a joint wheat pool at this time.

Pampa Patrol Active Over 4th Weekend

Patrolmen of the Pampa sub-district of the Texas Highway Patrol were very busy over the Fourth of July weekend, according to Sgt. E. G. Albers.

Two personal injury accidents and a driving while intoxicated charge were investigated by the patrol over the long holiday weekend.

Donald Ray Wooley, 20, of Pampa suffered broken ribs, cuts and abrasions when he lost control of his 1953 Ford yesterday about 4 a. m.

Wooley was traveling north of Pampa on a county road when his car hit a slick place in the road and turned over. He was taken to Worley hospital where he was treated and then released.

Investigating officer W. A. Richardson, said that the road had just recently been oiled and the rain had made it very slick, causing the accident.

Two Pampa men, Douglas Gowday and Roy James Parr were injured when the 1957 International pickup in which they were riding hit a slick spot on highway 182. (See PATROL, Page 3)

DEAR ABBY...

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a widower of 57 and have no one to look after but myself. I get kind of lonely evenings and pretty soon I will reach the age of retirement. All the old ladies let me know they are sweet on me but I have been thinking a lot about a certain young girl who comes in to houseclean for me. Should I show my feelings for her? She is in the neighborhood of 22.

LONESOME

Dear Lonesome: If you want "companionship" you are looking for it in the wrong neighborhood. Get those ideas out of your head and find somebody your own vintage.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to have your opinion of the following situation. My sister is 23. She lies down on the living room couch every evening and falls asleep. Nobody else gets to use it. She refuses to go to her bedroom to sleep. She wakes up about ten and decides to wash her sweaters, or blouses or something else in the bathroom sink, tying up the bathroom for about an hour. She doesn't care how late she keeps us up. Mother doesn't say bo.

LAWRENCE

Dear Lawrence: Your sister obviously was never taught to respect the rights of others. If this selfishness reflects in other facets of her personality your mother is going to have company in her old age.

DEAR ABBY: My brother's wife comes to our house and starts kissing our parakeet on his head. The parakeet's head gets full of lipstick and he looks ridiculous. My mother says I can't shampoo the parakeet's head because it might hurt him, but I don't want to see a redheaded parakeet. How can I get the lipstick off his head without killing the parakeet? Dear Dianne: No shampoos for parakeets! Better a red-headed parakeet than a dead one. DIANNE (age 9)

DEAR ABBY: We are the parents of a problem child. Only he is no "child" anymore. He is 22 and has given his girl an engagement ring. We know her parents (not well) and from what they tell us, our son has told their daughter some pretty tall tales. He told her had $2,000 in the bank and he doesn't have a dime. He also said his car is paid for, and it isn't. He made some grand promises to this girl about a honeymoon trip and a lot of other things he can't afford. He borrowed the money for a down-payment on the ring. Should we tell the girl the truth about these things, or do you think it would be interfering? This little girl is a darling and deserves better than her. Even if he is our own son.

AN HONEST MOTHER

Dear Honest: A "man" who would tie to his girl about his finances is too immature for marriage. Tell him he must tell his girlfriend the whole truth immediately—or you'll do it for him.

For a personal reply, write to ABBY in care of this paper. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Women, Green With Envy, May Truly Be That Shade With Color Cosmetics

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — Our language is sprinkled with clichés concerning people who turn green with envy or purple with rage. But I never thought I'd see the day when we women would turn either color with cosmetics. Yet, a new group of makeup shades includes emerald, amethyst, and amber. They're all the brainchild of Charles of the Ritz cosmetics, who announce that we are in "for an age of adornment."

Recommended only for evening, and "for the girl with the camel-green complexion and dark hair," the green makeup includes green-toned face powder, made a little paler by blending with buff if the wearer doesn't have the courage to look like a sprig of mint; eyes shadowed with a shade called "fern"; lids outlined with green; a dash of black mascara for what the manufacturer called "the heavy lidded look"; and finally, a dusting of the green powder applied in streaks through the hair to match the rest of the makeup. Ready for the purple combo? This is for the fair skin with red hair—and begins with a mauve face powder, continues on through a "fine mist of silver eye shadow," charcoal liner for the lids, and blue mascara. Mauve powder includes gold-colored powder, a streak of china blue eyeshadow, and especially recommended for the sun-tanned blonde is the amber look. This in- and blue to outline the lids.

Bride-Elect Feted With Nuptial Party

(Special to The News)
McLEAN — Miss Betty Dickinson, bride-elect of Curtis Joe Van Zandt, was honored with a bridal shower recently in the parlor of the McLean Methodist Church. Centering the refreshment table was an arrangement of blue shasta daisies with silver centers.

Presiding at the punch service was Mrs. Charles Williams. Miss Montana Jean Kennedy served the wedding-ring cake. Miss Donna Ruth Magee registered guests.

The hostesses presented Miss Dickinson with a white carnation corsage. Corsages were also presented to the bride's mother, Mrs. J. P. Dickinson and to the bridegroom-elect's mother, Mrs. C. J. Van Zandt.

Hostesses for the occasion were Misses Ervey Cubine, D. L. Miller, Clyde Magee, S. A. Cousins, Charles Williams and Paul Kennedy.

During the social hour, games of Canasta, Bridge and Dominoes were played with prizes awarded the winners. Refreshments were served at the close of the evening.

Members present, other than those already mentioned, were Mrs. John Christner, Earl Weatherford, Boyd Stewart, Eddie Parker, Paul Moore, Joe Crofts, Bob Rumsey, Ray Burney, and Marvin Ingie.

Hot Sandwich Specialties

Sandwiches are always welcome for summer meals. But when they are served piping hot right from the oven or backyard fire they're special. Be sure to take advantage of the many varieties of enriched yeast-raised breads you find at the bakery or supermarket—white, whole wheat, protein, rye and others, and the interesting selection of rolls, too. All the sandwiches can be made ahead of time—even a whole day and wrapped tightly in foil. Then just before serving, bake them in the oven at 375° F. about 15 minutes, to heat them through. If you have an outdoor fire going, it's fun to heat them right in the coals. Be sure to leave long tongs to keep from burning your fingers when retrieving the sandwiches from the fire.

Robb's letter was an outgrowth of an uproarious night in the Sheraton Carlton Hotel where a private detective employed by Goldfine's staff discovered a secret tape recording session in progress and found Sacklette and Anderson at the bottom of it.

"A Very Serious Thing" Subcommittee counsel Robert Lishman said that he had not authorized Sacklette to plant microphones at Goldfine's hotel headquarters.

"He was not even supposed to be working on this phase of the (Adams - Goldfine) investigation," Lishman told United Press International.

Pearson made it plain he does not intend to fire Anderson. Paraphrasing recent remarks by President Eisenhower, the columnist said his assistant "had been imprudent but I need him."

Harris called the development "a very serious thing" and said the subcommittee had to "find out about all the facts."

Goldfine, who arrived here Sunday night from Boston, denounced the attempted "bugging" as an "invasion of privacy" and "worse than Russia - worse than the Gasiapo."

Charges Wiretapping "I'm shocked beyond words by what I'm told is going on by an official representative of a congressional committee," the gift-giving friend of Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams declared.

Shacklette told reporters Harris had asked him to check on reports that telephones of subcommittee members were being tapped. He said he turned up evidence there was "an organized effort to dredge up everything possible on committee members."

He said the "trail led from the Statler Hotel to the Sheraton Carlton" and he had set up his "hi-fi" in the room taken by Pearson's assistant, Jack Anderson.

Shacklette said Harris had not authorized "any particular kind of investigation."

Harris said he was "surprised" to learn his investigator had been in the hotel room with Anderson. Anderson said he had information of his own about investigations of subcommittee members and had been cooperating with Shacklette.

Goldfine had returned to prepare for another appearance before the subcommittee Tuesday. He indicated on arrival he would give the lawmakers the details on nearly $77,000 in treasurer's and cashier's checks purchased by Goldfine-controlled firms but never cashed.

Later Lotto called a news conference at his Sheraton-Carlton suite shortly after midnight to reveal new information in the Goldfine-Adams inquiry.

When reporters arrived, however, Lotto told them a private detective hired by Goldfine's lawyers had detected the presence of a "mike" somewhere in the suite. Later, he said, he spotted a microphone at the bottom of a door connecting the suite with an adjoining room.

Navy Shows Its Mechanical Brain Is Nearly Human

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Navy today demonstrated a mechanical brain with human characteristics that could include recognizing faces, reading, translating, writing and talking.

According to the Navy the "perceptor" is "the first non-biological system capable of receiving, recognizing and identifying its surroundings without any human training or control."

So far the device is only a mock-up, based on an existing electronic brain. A pilot model designed specifically for the new purposes will be completed in about a year.

But the Navy said the concept has been successfully proven by Dr. Frank Rosenblatt, a research psychologist at the Cornell Aeronautical Laboratory in Buffalo, N.Y., who was in Washington for a demonstration.

Initial trials, using the U.S. Weather Bureau's computer at nearby Suitland, Md., as a base, were designed to show that the machine can quickly learn to distinguish left from right with 87 per cent accuracy.

Like a human being the machine is supposed to grow wiser and more accurate as it grows older and gains experience. "Reading print and script, as

Downed Pilot Tells Of Fight With Shark

HONOLULU (UPI) — The pilot of a C-124 that crashed in the ocean told today how a shark shook him like a terrier before he finally got it to let go of his shoulder.

The pilot, Capt. Jonathan Brown, of Travis Air Force Base, was treated at Tripler Army Hospital here for shark bites and exposure.

He and two other men who survived the crash were brought back here Sunday aboard the carrier Boxer. The others were Sgt. James Phillips of Vacaville, Calif., and S. Sgt. James Vandere, the most seriously hurt, suffered a broken shoulder.

Six others perished when the 90-ton plane crashed and broke in two 600 miles northwest of Honolulu last Friday. At the time, the giant cargo plane was flying from Hickam Air Force Base to Japan.

There were two 20-man life rafts aboard the plane, but the survivors never used either because "everything happened so fast." The men fashioned a raft out of a piece of wood and buoyed it up with mail sacks.

Although the raft would not support their weight, the airmen hung on to it and with their feet tried to kick away the hungry sharks. "A shark got a good hold of my left shoulder and was shaking," Brown said. "We were pounding on the detective and Lotto's assistant snared the "mike" with a bent coat hanger and yanked it out from under the door.

Lotto and Roger Robb, a Goldfine attorney, summoned a hotel assistant manager who tried unsuccessfully to get the occupants of the adjoining room to open their hall door.

Nearly an hour later, after police had been summoned but before they arrived, Anderson opened the door and he and Shacklette admitted reporters and photographers. Although the two men attempted to exclude everyone except newsmen, an attractive Goldfine secretary slipped in and took notes while they talked.

Shacklette and Anderson finally left their room at 2:30 a.m., the investigator logging his "hi-fi."

Lotto told newsmen he would go to the U.S. attorney's office today to see whether a crime had been committed and if a warrant could be served.

Russia Says It May Leave United Nations

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union has warned U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold it will pull out of the United Nations if there are further demonstrations outside the Soviet delegation building in New York.

The protest against the demonstrations were made in a note to Hammarskjold delivered by Soviet U. N. Representative A. A. Sobolev on July 3 and published today in the Moscow press.

The demonstrations came in New York two weeks ago when Hungarian students protested the execution of Hungarian Premier Imre Nagy. Seven New York City policemen were injured in quelling the demonstration. Several Hungarians were arrested.

The Soviet protest said those in the United States responsible for the June demonstrations might possibly be trying to "create exactly such a situation" without the withdrawal of the Soviet delegation.

The protest followed disclosure Saturday night that Russia has asked the United States for indemnities for damages sustained in the same demonstrations.

The note said "the Soviet government states that the U.S. authorities took no measures to protect the Soviet representation from the hostile provocations" which it said "create a threat to the security and life of its personnel."

(The note did not mention the New York policemen hurt in trying to stop the demonstrations and did not mention even larger protests before the American Embassy in Moscow a few days later.)

Mr. and Mrs. George Hill told of watching the twister form out of gray clouds as they stood in their back yard.

"The clouds began to part and I remarked to my husband that the weather seemed to be getting better," Mrs. Hill said, "when all of a sudden, a small gray funnel came from the part in the clouds."

"We saw it hit the ground, throwing dust and debris, and almost as quickly it went back up again and began traveling west. Then we ran into the house."

The twister struck a service station, ripping off a canvas-covered frame addition and moving an automobile.

Authorities speculated it then lifted to set down again on the wholesale grocery firm a mile and a half away, lifted a second time and struck down two big trees between two houses and tearing down power lines.

A porch was torn off a house, but officers believed it was done by high winds that followed the twister.

The hot weather, covering most of the nation, was blamed for the large number of drownings. Train wrecks, too, complicated the accident scene. A freight train wreck near Kalamazoo, Mich., forced rerouting of all New York Central trains between Detroit and Chicago.

At least 11 persons were hurt at Elkhardt Lake, Wis., when a Milwaukee Road freight collided head-on with a Milwaukee Road passenger train. Only one of the 11, however, needed hospitalization.

A small girl in Portland, Ore., was killed and at least 26 other persons were injured Saturday when a fireworks warehouse exploded.

Mrs. Hand's Dad Dies Here Sunday

Daniel McIntire Stewart, born June 25, 1890 in Argyle, died at 1 p.m. yesterday in Highland General Hospital. He was a resident of Brady and had been visiting for the past month in the home of his daughter, Mrs. Ben Hand, Skellytown.

Survivors included his wife, Zera of Brady; three daughters, Mrs. Ben Hand, Skellytown, Mrs. Roy J. Huffman, Snyder, and Mrs. George M. Archer, Big Spring; a grandson, George Mac Archer; a granddaughter, Jenny Lynn Huffman; one step-daughter, Janice Owen, Lubbock; two brothers, Marvin of Aubrey and J. W. of LaMarque; three sisters, Mrs. Kathryn Hoffman, Mrs. Mildred Reynolds, both of Texas City, and Mrs. John A. (Mae) Stuart, Denton.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 tomorrow in Harvester and Mary Ellen Church of Christ with Jim Perkins and Jon Jones officiating. Graveside services will be held in Canyon at 5 p.m. under the direction of Duenkel Carmichael Funeral Home.

Pall-bearers will be F. C. Horn, H. L. Geurin, Holly Francis, H. C. Little II, J. O. Shedd and Alvin Smith.

Rebel And Lebanese Forces Clash

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Rebel and government forces exchanged gunfire today in a half-hour clash around Beirut's main square where U.S. business firms have offices.

Elsewhere in Beirut, bombs exploded Sunday night and this morning to usher in the ninth week of political crisis in Lebanon. One bomb exploded shortly after 8 a.m. outside the Beirut post office but no casualties were reported.

In the northern port of Tripoli, desultory fighting went on throughout the night.

There were no reports of casualties in the shooting this morning.

Some sources said stepped up rebel activity here may be designed to paralyze Beirut, where life had been going on close to normal, with scarce shooting.

HIGH JINKS—The temperature isn't the only thing sky-high in southern California, as demonstrated by Patti and Russ Saunders at Santa Monica's famed Muscle Beach. Summer heat is driving hundreds of thousands of sun worshippers toward the beaches in that part of the country.

Cuff-Notes from Friday's Independence Day baseball game at Perryton:

Young Pampa Rebel righthander, Mack Taylor, was out on the hill firing his aspirin tablets up to the plate when Coach Deck Woldt came up missing the club's brand new warm-up baseball for the night. Upon questioning, Taylor from the bench, discovered his hurler had been using the warm-up ball against Perryton's Legionnaires. "You're not supposed to use our balls when you play away from home," Woldt informed his unknowing moundman, adding, "The home team always furnishes the game balls. Didn't they give you one?" "Yeah," yipped back Taylor, "But it was lopsided!"

Credit Gary Wills with some heady thinking. In the third frame of the Perryton game, after the Rebels jumped back into the lead, 8-7 the Legionnaires catcher, Wilbur Anderson, trotted out to the hill to confer with his pitcher, Wills didn't hear any "time out" mentioned, and simply tucked his hands in his pockets and skipped home for the ninth Pampa tally.

Ya Gotta Run Em Out

Clean-up batter, DeWayne Glover, was sprinting towards home, attempting to steal, with two away in the fourth when Catcher Clovis Shipp landed a screamer to Perryton shortstop, Loy Clark. Clark threw up his glove to protect his face and the ball smacked leather with a resounding thud, then fell to his feet. Glover was already across home plate. But Shipp, not watching the ball and thinking his liner had been snagged, stopped half-way towards first, much to the dismay of his mates.

Circled Bases On Bunt!

In the fifth inning Ruben Strickland led off by dribbling a bunt to the right of the mound. Wilbanks fell down trying to scoop up the ball, and when he finally did get his throw away towards first, it went astray, out behind first base.

Strickland set ball around first and never bothered to stop at second. The Perryton righthander, trying to nip the fleeting Strickland at third, also threw wildly, the ball zooming over

By the time they got the message across to Shipp, that the ball had been dropped, Clark had retrieved the ball and slipped a throw to first for the third out, thus nullifying Glover's score and theft of home, while Shipp stood calling himself some uncomplimentary names.

Woldt explained afterwards that he had Glover swiping home because the Perryton pitcher, Sammy Wilbanks, had double-pumped on the previous pitch, and brother you just don't do that when you've got a man on third.

third, as Strickland sped home, with what must be the longest trip around the bases on a bunt ever taken by the Pampa shortstop.

However, it was ruled that only one base be allowed on an overthrown at first, although Pampa players were led to believe before the game, during the ground rules discussion that you could take all you could get on an overthrow. Strickland did return to second, but only after a brief rhu-barb.

Wants To Defend
WIMBLEDON, Eng. (UPI) — Althea Gibson, fresh from her second straight Wimbledon tennis victory, said today she hoped "to make it three" next year.

Taking no heed of various reports she may turn professional, Harlem's hard-hitting Negro tennis queen said "I hope to defend a crown next year" after Saturday's 6-3, 6-3 victory over Angela Mortimer of Britain.

Won't Go Limit
NEW YORK (UPI) — George Benton and Willie Dockery, two middleweight sluggers, are slated for a TV 15-rounder at St. Nicholas Arena tonight, but the bout is not expected to last the distance.

Benton, of Philadelphia, is favored at 8-5 over Dockery, of Brooklyn. Benton scored 18 knockouts in 35 victories. Dockery registered 12 kayoes in 23 wins.

By JOHN GRIFFIN
United Press International
A couple of old pros named Ted Williams and Mickey Mantle are right in trim for that big All-Star Game in Baltimore Tuesday, but the way some of the other "stars" played Sunday you couldn't tell them from the also-rans without a scorecard.

Williams slugged three hits, including his 14th homer of the season, and boosted his batting average to a season-high of .314 as the Boston Red Sox drubbed the New York Yankees, 10-4. Mantle, meantime, hammered his 21st homer for the Yankees with one mate aboard.

Jackie Jensen and Frank Malzone of the Red Sox, selected along with Williams for the mid-season classic, got in the spirit too, with three runs-batted-in each.

But how about relief pitcher Larry Jackson of the Cardinals? He lost a 5-4 decision to the Giants when he hit batter Jim Davenport with a pitched ball in the ninth inning—one day after he'd lost to the same team, also 5-4, by walking a batter with the bases jammed in the ninth.

Take Back Seats
None of the other All-Star players fared as badly as Jackson. But by and large they took back seats to a bunch of overlooked players like Jim Bunning of the Tigers, Roman Semproch of the Phillies, Joey Jay of the Braves, Gus Bell and Walt Droppo of the Redlegs, and Dick Drott and Don Elston of the Cubs. None of those chaps will be around when the big game starts in Baltimore.

In addition to the Red Sox win over the Yankees, other A.L. action Sunday saw the Detroit Tigers nip the Chicago White Sox, 2-1; the Washington Senators beat Baltimore, 4-3; and the Cleveland Indians downed Kansas City, 8-5. Besides the Giants, other National League winners included the Redlegs, by 11-4 in the second game of a twin bill over the Phillies after losing the first 7-1; the Cubs, 6-2 over Los Angeles; and the Braves, 2-0, over Pittsburgh.

Dare Devil Driver Dead
RHEIMS, France (UPI)—Daredevil driver Luigi Musso is dead today just eight short years after he gave up a career in law to take his chances in big-time international auto racing.

The Italian champion suffered fatal injuries during Sunday's Grand Prix of France when his Ferrari hurtled off the track on the 10th lap of the 50-lap grind. Musso, who was thrown from the cockpit of the high-powered car, was rushed to a hospital but died Sunday night.

The 34-year-old driver, who was in second place when the accident occurred, was studying law in 1950 when he decided to take up auto racing. His most notable victories were in 1954 when he teamed with Argentina's Juan Manuel Fangio to win the Argentine Grand Prix and this year in the Grand Prix of Syracuse.

Mrs. Hawthorn Brittain, with whom Musso teamed many times in the gruelling European auto races, won Sunday's race when he was clocked in 2 hours, 3 minutes and 26.3 seconds for the 257.715-mile grind.

Essig, Busbaum PLG Favorites
CHICAGO (UPI) — Play began today in the 33rd annual National Public Links Golf Club and the champions of the last two years, Don East III, Indianapolis, and June Busbaum Memphis, were the top favorites.

Essig proved his right to the position with a pair of 70's three-under-par, in his practice round. But he was only one stroke ahead of Busbaum's round, and he trailed the best score posted in practice by the field of 150, a 68 by Lawrence Robertson of Minneapolis.

Busbaum and two others, Remo Crovetto, Highwood, Ill., and Frank Schmidt, Dayton, Ohio, had 71's, and Clifford Brown, Cleveland, and Gordon Walden, Tulsa, Okla., had 72's.

Every other contestant failed to better par and most of them had 75's or more.

The field, selected through sectional qualification from 2,003 entrants, played 15 holes today and 18 Tuesday with the low scorers advancing to the match play round beginning Wednesday and leading to the championship.

Bartzen Leads INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Two-time winner Bernard Bartzen led the field of 84 that opened the Western Amateur tennis tournament today at the Woodstock Country Club.

Bartzen, a 31-year-old Houston, Tex., swinger, took the Western championship in 1951 and 1955, and was 1953 national clay court winner. He is ranked No. 5 among American amateurs.

Sharing the tourney spotlight with Bartzen was the No. 2 seed, Alex Olmedo, who came to the University of Southern California from his native Peru. He has twice won the NCAA tennis title. The U.S. indoor national champion, Nancy O'Connell, Chicago, was top-seeded among the 32 women entrants. Miss O'Connell and the No. 2 favorite, Marilyn Montgomery, San Antonio, Tex., were expected to receive strong competition from a strong contingent of foreign stars.

Refer Hopeful PALMYRA, N. J. (UPI) — Racer Johnson, America's greatest all-around track and field star, hoped today his trick knee would hold up for the battle against arch-rival Vassili Kuznetsov of Russia in the forthcoming United States-Soviet meet in Moscow.

Johnson, a UCLA sophomore, won the national AAU decathlon championship Sunday for the second time in three years. However, he failed to break his own recognized world record of 7,895 points because he feared too much power would aggravate his injury. Kuznetsov garnered 8,016 points last May and is awaiting official acceptance of the test.

Wins 10th Straight
Delock, with the batting aid of Williams, Jensen, and Malzone, pitched a seven-hitter to beat the Yankees. It was his 10th straight win and his third straight since becoming a starting pitcher on June 26. The loss snapped the Yankees' five-game winning streak but left them 11 games in front of the league at the All-Star Game "break."

Bunning gave up only six hits in winning his fifth straight game for the Tigers, pitching shutout ball until pinch-hitter Earl Torgeson doubled home a run in the ninth inning. The Tigers got both their runs in the fourth inning off Dick Donovan in a rally built around Frank Bolling's double.

Semproch hurled a five-hitter to give the Phillies their opening game victory, his 10th of the season, and he too had a shutout until the ninth inning. In the nightcap, Bell and Droppo each drove in three runs to lead the Redlegs to a win that snapped the Phillies' seven-game winning streak.

Weak At Plate
Jay's four-hit pitching enabled the Braves to end their five-game losing streak, even though they still were deep in their batting slump. Jay fanned nine batters and Wes Covington drove in both of the Braves' runs, one with a homer.

Drott and Elston combined to hurt a one-hitter against the Dodgers, the lone safety coming when Junior Gilliam "blooped" a single into short right with one out in the seventh inning. Cal Neeman drove in three Cubs' runs.

The Indians scored six runs in the fourth inning in beating the Kansas City A's with Billy Hunter's bases-loaded double, the big blow. Gary Bell, after pitching no-hit ball for five innings, hung on to gain his third win.

Stengel's Figuring To Settle An Old Score With Haney

Casey Stengel, in naming his batting order, put his star centerfielder, Mickey Mantle, into the second spot instead of the third or fourth spots in which he usually bats. He named Nellie Fox, White Sox second baseman and the only left-handed hitter in the American League lineup, to lead-off, followed by Mantle, who is a switch-hitter.

Rightfielder Jackie Jensen of the Red Sox will bat third with leftfielder Bob Cerv of the Athletics in the cleanup spot. Then will come Moose Skowron, Yankee first baseman; Frank Malzone, Red Sox third baseman; Gus Triandos, Orioles catcher; Lou Aparicio, White Sox shortstop, and Turley.

McMahon Would Rather Go Into Hot Spot Than Not

By FRED LINDECKE
United Press International
MILWAUKEE (UPI) — If Don McMahon, the Milwaukee Braves' ace relief pitcher, is called into action Tuesday in the All-Star game, he is hoping it will be a tight spot.

"I don't like to go in when we're five or six runs ahead. I always foul up," he said.

McMahon was selected to the All-Star team for the first time this year, and he said he would "like to get in" against the American Leaguers at Baltimore even if his appearance probably would mean the National League was in trouble.

"It ought to be fun. Maybe the game will be tied," he said.

A tie game or squeaking a rally to save a one-run lead is the kind of assignment the 26-year-old right hander from Brooklyn, N.Y., likes. McMahon said he "lets up" when he goes into a ball game with a big lead. "I aim the ball where all I'm supposed to do is get the ball over the plate and make them hit it. It might be the lack of pressure. I'd rather go in with the pressure on."

This type of outlook and McMahon's rubber arm make him perfect for relief pitching.

McMahon uses his fast ball most effectively, and has been developing his curve. Braves' Pitching Coach Whitlow Wyatt said he's "the type of pitcher who can throw hard every day up to four innings. Then he seems to lose a little."

McMahon himself is well aware of his limits as a pitcher. He said he is perfectly happy as a reliever and has no desire to start. "I've started enough to know," he added ruefully.

Wall Wins It

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — A five-foot putt made Art Wall Jr. of Foon Manor, Pa., $2,800 richer today after he topped Dow Finsterwald on the second hole in a sudden-death playoff to win his second Rubber City Open crown.

The putt kicked Wall's 1958 PGA earnings to nearly $14,000 and gained him a shot at the upcoming Tournament of Champions in Las Vegas.

Finsterwald, the 1957 Vardon Trophy winner, shot a six under par 65 in the final round to tie Wall, who carded a final round 69, at 269.

Finsterwald was trailed by Bob Goaly, 27-year-old Darien, Conn., pro, with 270. Jackie Burke tied Mike Souchnak at 272 for fourth place.

Tom Rose Triumphs
Tom Rose Motor Co. romped to a 13-9 win over Motor Inn Saturday in a Little Farm League game.

Jerry Johnson was the winning pitcher and Kenneth Edwards took the loss.

The victor's hitting was led by Jim Willis with a double and two singles in three at bats and Jimmy Deaton who collected three singles in four at bats.

Rebels Seek Games Following Rain Out

Rained out of a scheduled game with Pleasant Valley of Amarillo here Sunday, Coach Deck Woldt has "ironed in the fire" to land his Pampa American Legion Rebels "at least six or seven more games this season."

Woldt had four long-distance phone calls working Monday, trying to book games with Sunnsett, Hansen of Amarillo, and Sayre, Okla., plus rescheduling the rain-out Pleasant Valley game of yesterday.

With a 2-1 record, winning over Berger, 13-6, and splitting with Perryton, 6-9 and 11-10, the Rebels own a .321 team batting average at this stage of the season.

Woldt, weather permitting, will work his forces out at 6 p.m. Tuesday at Harvester Park.

"What we'd really like to do," Woldt remarked Monday morning "is land a game with Hansen of Amarillo some night at Potter County Stadium prior to a Gold Sox Western League game."

One of the calls Woldt was trying to make Monday was with Bob Scarlett, general manager of the Gold Sox, trying to arrange such a game.

Hansen Post, replaced Pampa this year as the district American Legion champion, when the Rebels failed to certify a team by the June 1 deadline. The Hansen club, composed mostly of Palo Duro High players, haven't tasted defeat this year, and Pampa, if given a chance to meet the hoop winners, would offer some stiff competition.

After three games, Terry Marston leads Rebel hitting with a lusty .583 batting average, although reserve Don Hazel has one .for .one. Bobby Stephens,

Sens Making Third Threat To Get Away

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Washington Senators make their third annual threat to leave town today when club president Calvin Griffith asks an American League committee to study the possibility of moving the Senators' franchise.

Griffith mentioned Minneapolis, Montreal, Houston, and the Dallas-Fort Worth area as possible sites for relocation, although he said he has received no firm offers from those cities.

Griffith said the league group, meeting in Baltimore, Md., in conjunction with Tuesday's All-Star Game, merely will be asked to look into the "feasibility" of a franchise change.

YOUR FREEDOM NEWSPAPER

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is not license. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule, The Ten Commandments and the Declaration of Independence. This newspaper is dedicated to promoting and preserving YOUR freedom as well as our own. For only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

Who Controls Whom

Bertrand Russell once said that the important question of our time was who was to wield power and in what manner would he wield it. Mr. Russell was sadly out of date when he uttered this triteness. Who would wield power and how it would be wielded, has been the major question engrossing humankind for centuries.

The question for our time would more rightly be: Is it possible for us to learn self-control so that the wielding of power by some over others would be abandoned as a national practice?

That is a question to which we could devote a full measure of exploration as we seek an answer.

Before we involve ourselves, a look at the nature of human beings seems definitely in order. One obvious fact appears immediately. Each human being is the only human being who actually can control himself. All else is either pretence or submission. Human energy, being what it is; is always under the control of each individual. Attempts to change that basic fact are worse than useless. The individual may imagine that he is under the control of another. But let him change his imagining, and he will quickly readjust to reality.

It is true, of course, that by a use of legalized compulsion governments can and do limit man's effectiveness in all areas. But it is also true that governments have no powers in themselves. All that they have and use is either granted them by individuals, or is usurped from individuals minus their approval. Governments never have either power or money that they have not taken from individuals.

An illustration is in order. A 19th century ruler of France once decreed that all the looms of the country were under his personal control. He would decide, he said, what patterns could be woven on which looms, by which weavers. He would also decide who could buy the finished product, who could sell it, and how much the product would be worth.

To their discredit, the French believed that their ruler had this power. As a consequence, for one long year, the weavers sat idle, the looms gathered dust, and business lagged, while all were waiting for the ruler to make up his mind as to the number of threads to be permitted in this and that warp and woof. Economic impotence overtook those who listened to this ruler.

In England, at an even earlier date, a certain king discovered that his subjects were burning coal in their cook stoves. Smoke was pouring out of chimneys and, as he viewed it, air pollution was becoming a problem. He decreed that it was a crime, carrying severe punishments, for any subject to burn coal. The purity of England's air must be preserved.

To their credit, the British people didn't believe their sovereign. They discovered promptly that without the burning of coal, the winter days and nights were chilly. They reasoned that though the air might be polluted a bit, a bit of pollution was better than death by exposure. So the British subjects kept right on burning coal. The result was an impasse. If the king had attempted to enforce his edict, he would have had to turn the British Isles into one mammoth prison. To his surprise he discovered that his subjects could and would control themselves. Rather than admit the absurdity of his position, he looked the other way and simply forgot to enforce his ridiculous ruling. So England lived through the winter and life went on as before.

What must we conclude? Only that the British people demonstrated an inescapable fact. Had they chosen to obey, it would have been their wills, not the kings, which brought that obedience. They would have chosen to freeze. Instead, they chose not to freeze.

The same choice was available to the French weavers. They could have chosen to weave. Instead, they chose not to weave. But the choice was theirs, not that of their ruler.

This same choice is always at any time available to every individual. He can choose to accept controls. Or he can choose not to accept them. The choice is always his.

If the American people, in the face of mounting taxes, regulations, and controls, ever understand this fact, the question we asked can readily be answered.

How Should Productivity Gains Be Distributed?

I have been quoting for several days from a bulletin issued by Macolester College on the subject of "Productivity and Wages." The bulletin closes with a chapter on "How Should Productivity Gains Be Distributed?"

"It has become commonplace to assume that gains in national productivity can be reflected only in wage increases. With the advent of powerful unions this may indeed be the only practical course open that meets the national goals of a stable price structure and a high rate of economic growth. However, union leaders have frequently framed their demands in other terms and we should take note of this. Finally, many economists have had something to say on this subject. Let us look, first, at this.

"The first course is to hold wage levels constant as productivity rises. This has the great merit, so widely demonstrated in past economic literature, of being precisely the course which results in all groups sharing in the fruits of the national gains in productivity. Productivity increases now yield a larger total product. Dividing this larger total product into a constant income level results in prices declining in proportion to the productivity advances. It is via these lowered prices that all groups, especially the fixed income groups and including college professors, are allowed to buy more and thus share in the gains of our rising national productivity.

"In the light of our inability for the past 18 years to control the wages-cost-price push towards inflation, this course is most attractive. A drive to achieve it might at least provide the bias towards price stability which is so badly needed in all the Western World. In a very real sense the advances we have had in the production and distribution of goods are the result of contributions from all groups in society—management, labor, scientists, technicians and even college professors. What better way is there to recognize and reward this contribution than through making the desirable goods of this life available to all at lower prices?

"The second policy is to tie wage increases in specific industries to the productivity advances in those industries. This proposal will have both inflationary and inequitable results. Workers in industries not enjoying marked, specific productivity advances will fight for a wage as nearly as possible in line with the high wage increases in the industries enjoying marked and large productivity increases. The latter are for the most part industries with strong unions which exert both pressure and monopoly power. (A notable exception to this is agriculture in which the level of output per man-hour was very low compared with manufacturing but which has enjoyed a very high rate of productivity gain in the post-war period.) If workers in other industries succeed in obtaining increases in wages of larger amount than their productivity rises, the final result becomes inflationary. This follows because no incomes have, in total, risen more than productivity totals have increased.

"The third course for national wage policy is to relate wage increases to the national average rate of productivity increase. This will result in neither inflation nor deflation and this policy will promote price stability. Now total income derived in all industries equals the general rise in total product. Therefore, the larger increases are adequate to purchase the larger product at constant prices.

"As between the three alternatives, we must rule out the second both on the grounds of the inequitable distribution of productivity gains and on the grounds of our health. We would like not to rule out the first alternative but in the practical world of large unions it is doubtful that we have any choice. We come then to the third of our possibilities. Wage policy, if it is related to the nation's prospective increase in productivity—between 2 and 2.5 per cent per year—is most likely to meet the twin goals of economic policy—price stability and an equitable distribution of the gains from productivity.

Summary and Conclusion
"Productivity—output per man-hour—is the key to understanding our high standard of living. The level of output per man-hour depends upon our willingness to supply labor with massive amounts of tools and power and to organize all those efficiently to meet consumer's needs. This is the function of management.
"We as a nation cannot consume more than we produce. If wage rates per hour increase faster than output per hour increases, the result will be inflation.
"Increasing wages therefore must be limited to the pace of increasing national average productivity.
"This rate of increase over the long run has been about 2.3 per cent a year. This has also been about the rate of increase since 1953. If a little pressure upon managements is wanted at all times, we could hope for wage increases limited to about 2 per cent a year. This will double wages without inflation in 28 years."

Wild Will Lions; How His Downfall Came About

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

LOS ANGELES—Reference to the quaint manners of Wild Will Lyons, the honorary Colorado Senator who infested Jack Dempsey's camps, and in his glorious terminal phase, was guardian of the portals and master of the scrapbooks for Jim Farley, has evoked the following gay petals for the wreath of his memory which I composed on a recent day.

Robert Jackson writes me that he was manager of the Democratic Speakers' Bureau in New York in '32 and after appropriate homage to my sweet felicity with language further says:

"You are correct in saying that Wild Will was demoted from receptionist to custodian of the pastepot and shears. A number of incidents contributed to his downfall. The first was when William Woodin, later to become Secretary of the Treasury, attempted to present a contribution of $10,000 to Farley at his headquarters in the Biltmore. At the spot where Wild Will Lyons held forth, a low railing with a swinging gate barred the corridor that led to Farley's office. Lyons' previous career among the elite of Dempsey's set had not prepared him for this duty. He had not met and probably never had heard of Woodin. (Neither had most Americans—Ed.) So when this somewhat diffident composer of nursery songs appeared at his gate, Bill peremptorily demanded his business. Woodin was not only shy but by nature inclined to be secretive so he temporized and thus aroused Wild Will's suspicions. Throwing back his coat, Lyons displayed his revolver which, you recall, was hung on a metal pivot on his belt, ready to his right hand. He boasted that this was when a full second on the draw. He put on this belt every morning, ere assuming his station at Farley's rail.

"At sight of the gun, Woodin retreated as rapidly as dignity would permit, found a telephone and called Forbes Morgan. He asked how he could get in and deliver a $10,000 check, explaining that a curious, pugnacious character at the gate had threatened to shoot him.

"The second incident was a put-up job at the expense of Wild Will and Louis. McHenry Howe, of identically, where do you find such picturesque characters there days? Louis had an office in the building at the corner of 43rd St. and Madison across from the Biltmore. It was furnished with a battered and littered desk and a broken couch with sagging springs on which Louis, physically frail, was accustomed to take siesta. When the couch was piled with books and papers he would lie on the floor. Louis seldom crossed the street to the national headquarters, so Bill had never seen him. He probably had never heard of him. In spite of his pretended sophistication, his acquaintance with those close to Roosevelt was negligible except for Farley. Louis had phoned Farley to learn if he was free. Jim told him to come right over and then warned Lyons that a peast would shortly appear. A small, dark, evil looking fellow who might, in a pinch, prove dangerous. No matter what representations he might make, he must not pass and Lyons must be alert.

"Howe appeared, and ignoring Bill, started through the gate. Bill recognized him from Jim's description and laid violent hands on him, shoving him back and yelling to him to get out, get out. Louis resisted and tried to explain who he was. Bill shouted him and rushed him toward the elevator. Louis threw his hat on the floor and shrieked that he would have Bill fired. Still doubtful, Bill permitted him to call Farley on the phone. Jim came out and took Louis inside, worried over the spectacular success of what he had intended as a mild little joke. Louis never quite forgave either Jim or Wild Bill.

"The final blow fell when Senator James A. Reed of Missouri came in. Bill knew the Senator by sight but Reed came through when Lyons was on the phone and passed the barrier without a look at the custodian. Reed has progressed a few steps when Lyons hung up, hurried after Reed and hit him between the shoulders, calling out in his characteristic bellow: 'Hello, Jim, old man!' Reed, then in his early '70s, seemed ab to fall on his face. But he recovered, fixed Lyons with the glare of those cold, blue eyes and lashed out: 'You impudent bastard!' Speechless for once, Bill folded.

"For the good of the Democratic Party and the United States of America Jim lashed Bill to the clippings where he flourished the biggest shears I have ever seen. At Democratic Headquarters he never drew $6,000 a year (as he did later in the jobmaster general's office in Washington—Ed.) His pay was $75 a week and as comic relief, he was worth every cent of it.

"Bill boasted that he was the first white child born west of the Pecos, but I suspect that your version is nearer the fact. (Farley agrees that Bill probably came from the lower Eastside.) In spite of his eccentricities, he wasn't a bad guy.

This campfire story has been passed for telling at reunions of Mr. Farley himself per telephone from New York.

Egalitarianism Brings Chaos; Freedom Produces

For the most part progress has been due to the capacity, imagination, courage and action of exceptional men. Egalitarianism as applied to income and influence limits the usefulness of such men by preventing them from using their talents for leadership and circumscribing the contribution they could make in directing industrial, political and cultural developments.

Egalitarianism hamstring the able men and women who otherwise could and would carry society forward on their shoulders at a much more rapid rate.

When, as a result of the leveling process, a people lose the capacity to produce abundantly and become less and less able to adapt their institutions to changing conditions, strains develop that retard production and lead to further decline in the scale of living. When such developments reach the acute stage, despairing people see the necessity for leadership and grasping at a straw, accept concentration of power in the hands of bold leaders. This has given rise to the development of one-party systems as in Spain, Italy, Germany and Russia. These parties may be called Fascist or Communist, but in reality they represent a seizing of power by the more aggressive citizens. Usually, they are headed by a strong man who uses the party as a means of enforcing his will upon the people of the country.

Thus, in the long run, egalitarianism, or the desire to equalize income by force, brings upon the people who insist upon it exactly the reverse of their ideal. It flowers in a dictator. The only way to avoid it is a free society in which men and women orga-

Why Continue Work On Vanguard Rocket?

By HENRY MCLEMORE

This mustn't be mistaken for lack of patriotism, but I am beginning to hope that Vanguard never will soar away from its launching pad to success.

If it does, it will be like losing the fledglings one has watched and grown to love, fly away from their nest in the back yard three. I like to go to bed happy in the knowledge that Vanguard is safe on its pad, and tended by loving hands.

Vanguard is weak, and there is no getting away from it. This ceaseless effort to make it strong like other rockets is plain persecution. It's the same sort of thing as a father driving a boy who doesn't have the physical equipment to play football.

I say let Vanguard stay the way it is. Shoot it a few hundred feet in the air every now and then for exercise, and the rest of the time let it curl up on its pad and sleep. In short, admit it doesn't have the build or the temperament to go out and orbit with its rivals.

It could be that Vanguard doesn't want to orbit, even if it had the strength. Missiles now have "brains" built into them, and Vanguard might very well have thought out the whole business of orbiting and decided it wanted no part of it.

No one could blame Vanguard for this. Florida winters are delightful, and the summers, while pretty hot, aren't anywhere near as hot as Vanguard would get while streaking through the atmosphere and stratosphere. And it doesn't take much of a brain to figure out that orbiting could become pretty dull after a few million miles.

It must be pretty lonesome up there for a missile with a brain. No one for Vanguard to talk to—that is, not unless it speaks German, for that's what Explorer and Sputnik undoubtedly speak.

So, let Vanguard alone. Quit thrusting it forward. It's pretty obvious it doesn't have its heart in playing a continual game of tag with comets.

While on the subject of baby Vanguard, would someone please tell me where to write to find out why Vanguard, despite its failures to orbit, is still the No. 1 missile on America's IBM program?

What's wrong with the ones that don't fail, that do get up in the heavens?

The Army's Jupiter C really must be a stepchild. Those toes did it step on? As I remember, the Army fired Jupiter C three times, and put two Explorers into orbit. Is it against the law for the Army to do too well? It's a good thing the Army didn't make it three successes in a row, but three that one failure in. That would have called for a court nize, produce and carry on their educational activities in accordance with their various abilities and are rewarded by their fellows in the same measure as they contribute to the well-being of society.

In simpler terms, this means strictly limited government, freedom in the market place, and observance of the moral law, epitomized by the Ten Commandments and built into the hearts of men by the practice of the principles of the Christian religion. Egalitarianism creates the chaos that causes men to flee from it and to entrust their fate to some man on horseback whom they believe to be strong and intelligent as the only means of deliverance from anarchy.

martial, perhaps! What I am trying to get at is why a missile that won't work is given a better seat at the table than one that will. I have no doubt but that there is a superb reason for this—there'd have to be—but what is it?

Of course, if Vanguard is in orbit, or has smacked the moon by the time you read this, then just forget that I ever brought the subject up!

The Doctor Says

By EDGAR F. JORDAN, M. D.

Strictly speaking, arthritis is a name which should be reserved for true inflammation of the joint tissues. The term rheumatic disease is used to cover an even wider variety of disorders such as rheumatic fever, gout, fibrositis and many others.

More than ten million men and women in the United States alone over the age of 14 are believed to suffer from some form of rheumatic disease. Thus, if one includes all varieties, they constitute the most common cause of chronic illness in the United States and probably in the world.

There are some forms of rheumatic disease and arthritis which can be prevented or treated remarkably successfully. For example, much has been learned in recent years about the prevention of attacks of rheumatic fever. The discovery of penicillin and other antibiotics has aided enormously in the treatment of many forms of arthritis resulting from invasion of the joint tissues with specific germs.

The American Rheumatism Association, composed of physicians in the United States and Canada, has grown into an important organization for stimulating research and exchange information. The Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation, founded about 30 years ago, receives contributions from public-spirited citizens and distributes the funds so received for the support of research, the training of specialists in rheumatic diseases and for many other work—while purposes.

Last year Toronto, Canada, was host to the Ninth International Congress on Rheumatic Diseases. More than 1,400 physicians, surgeons and medical scientists from over 40 countries attended.

Many important papers were read at this conference. One described a new diagnostic test for rheumatoid arthritis which is so simple and rapid that it can be performed in a routine clinical laboratory in about 20 minutes. Among the other papers given at this congress was one study suggesting that susceptibility to certain forms of crippling rheumatic disease is probably inherited.

Another paper pointed out that the use of drugs in the treatment of rheumatoid arthritis has partially obscured the simple fact that crippling and disability can be effectively prevented by other measures.

Progress continues on a wide front. Recently the American Rheumatism Association has started the publication of a journal called "Arthritis and Rheumatism," devoted entirely to papers and studies on this one subject.

Military Wives Don't Have Say On Fashions

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor
NEW YORK (UPI)—Wives of overseas military men, stationed from Labrador to Eniwetok, buy the latest styles as soon as they outsiders—thanks to "operation garment district."

And what will be available to them in the post exchanges this fall?

"Why, the relaxed look," said Martha Margeran, chief dress buyer for the Army and Air Force Exchange Service, with headquarters in New York.

"Everything bulky looking, and fabrics with a long nap," said Dorothy Lubkurt, the service's head buyer of coats, raincoats and sports clothes.

Uncle Sam apparently figures it's a happy serviceman who has a happy wife, and to help keep her happy, today's P-X's have become what Miss Lubkurt called "junior department stores."

The armed forces estimates its customers, domestic and overseas, at six million. Last year, they spent more than $29 million dollars.

"The women are starved for the new styles from the states," said Miss Lubkurt, who combs the Seventh Avenue garment district daily. "To my great surprise, they took to the sack faster than we did here."

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Here is a hand from Watson's book described in Watson's own words.

"North and South could not have been severely criticized if they had reached a grand slam contract, as the making of 13 tricks only depends on a break in trumps.

"West opens the club queen which South wins with the king; North playing the trey and East the deuce. South leads the deuce of spades which is won with dummy's seven; West playing the trey.

"One's first thought, on looking at this play, is that South has seen West's hand. Actually, he has done nothing of the kind. This play is absolutely marked. It is obvious that the contract can be lost only if one of the opponents holds all four outstanding trumps. If the king is led right out, the contract is safe only if West holds all four spades, but is lost if East holds them. Similarly, the contract is safe if the ace of spades is led and East holds the spades, but here again it will be lost if they lie with West. The immediate finesse of the seven spot insures against both possibilities of distribution. It is worthwhile to lose this trick, since it absolutely safeguards the remainder."

Pampa Has New First Aid Trainer

Alvin L. Lewis, first aid instructor for Pampa Chapter and Carson County Red Cross Chapters has completed the requirements for first aid instructor trainer for this area. Lewis took his additional training at Lake Murray, Ardmore, Okla., during the month of June under the direction of H. H. Gilliam, national first aid and water safety trainer.

There were nine persons who qualified for this particular type of work and the nearest person to this area was Bob Jones from Plainview. E. B. Pemberton, first aid chairman for Pampa Chapter expresses his thanks to Lewis for taking the course and states that the chapter will have one of the best programs in first aid in its history.

Pemberton says the chapter has 12 authorized First Aid instructors who taught 12 different classes during the last year. The Pampa Chapter issued 133 certificates in standard first aid during the year.

With Lewis assisting with the training program, the chapter will be able to do a much greater and more efficient job for the community.

Lewis works at Northern Natural Gas Company in Skellytown, as an auxiliary engineer in the Safety Department. He has been a Red Cross first aid instructor for five years, being authorized in Sept., 1953. He has given over 300 hours of voluntary service to Red Cross in first aid during the past three years. Lewis was awarded the Award of Merit for saving the life of a fellow workman soon after he had taken his first standard first aid course.

Pakan Has Big Job For Next Year

(Special to The News)
SHAMROCK — Sam Pakan has been named to head the 1958 St. Patrick Committee. Marvin Tindall, 1958 chairman has announced. Pakan is known as a business man and civic leader in Shamrock.

"The task is a big one," said Pakan, "but Shamrock has always put on a good show and I believe we can do it again."

A member of the St. Patrick steering committee, Pakan has been an ardent booster of the annual event. Pakan stated he would name his committee heads soon.

Pakan is also a past president of the Shamrock Chamber of Commerce.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain, Stops Itching as it Shrinks Hemorrhoids

New York, N. Y. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain—without surgery.

In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Most amazing of all—results were so thorough that sufferers made astonishing statements like "Piles have ceased to be a problem!"

This substance is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne*)—discovery of a world-famous research institute.

This substance is now available in suppository or ointment form under the name Preparation H. At your druggist. Money back guarantee.

Proof Wanted On Smoking, Cancer

LONDON (UPI)—The United States government needs more evidence on the relationship between smoking and lung cancer before deciding whether to warn against cigarettes as the British government has done, world cancer experts were told today.

Dr. John R. Heller, director of the National Cancer Institute, Bethesda, made the point in an address prepared for delivery before the Seventh International Cancer Congress here.

Heller said investigations now underway are expected to provide the additional facts.

"In fact, a review of new epidemiological data will be presented to Congress on Wednesday by Dr. Harold F. Dorn of the National Institute of Health," he said.

Heller said the surgeon general of the U.S. Public Health Service and the American Cancer Society have taken the position that "excessive cigarette smoking is one of the factors in lung cancer causation."

Research Going On
"We believe that more research is needed to identify, isolate and eliminate the various factors in excessive cigarette smoking that can cause cancer, as well as on the role of air pollution and other factors that may cause cancer of the lung in man," he said.

Heller said a "decisive blow" will be dealt cancer in the U.S. if exfoliative cytology — which has been used successfully in the detection of uterine cancer — can be applied to the early diagnosis of cancer of other sites.

The cytology technique involves taking a sample of material from the suspected cancer site and then studying it for the presence of cancer cells.

In the early stages of uterine cancer, these tell-tale cells cue the doctor in and corrective treatment is begun.

Heller said investigations are underway on the efficacy of the diagnostic technique in cancer of the lung, large bowel, urinary bladder and other sites.

Costs Staggering
"If the test should prove effective for the early detection of lung cancer, as well as for cancer of the other sites I have mentioned, we would, indeed, have an effective weapon," he said.

Heller said the U.S. cancer control program takes its inspiration from the knowledge that in many respects cancer is a preventable and curable disease.

He said 50 million dollars annually in public and private funds are keeping the research laboratories running at top speed.

The cost of cancer in the U.S. is staggering, Heller said, citing these points:

—There are 450,000 new cases each year.

—There are 250,000 deaths annually.

—At any given time, there are 700,000 cases under treatment.

—Hospital expenses for cancer patients are 300 million dollars a year.

—The economic loss, in goods and services, is 12 billion dollars a year.

GOP Men Believe Adams Will Stay

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI)—There seems to be more "when than whether" to the question of whether Adams' retirement from his White House place of power.

That is the private judgment of responsible Republican party men who have kept out of the public controversy about the President's chief assistant and deputy.

This conclusion that Adams cannot survive the accumulating pressures to depart was not much disturbed by President Eisenhower's sturdy insistence again last week that he needed Adams.

Nones except Eisenhower to fire his trusted servant. Few, if any, expect Adams' departure to be a matter of days.

"The President and Adams need time in which to maneuver, to think it all over," a Republican leader told United Press International. "Especially does Gov. Adams need some time to think. He can't resign today, of course."

Looks More Chipper
"It is necessary that the noise abate somewhat, that the Republicans who have been demanding Adams' resignation pipe down. They have had their say and are on record with their constituents. In such comparative calm, Adams would have time to consider the situation and to come to the conclusion that it would be a disservice to the President and to the party for him to remain in office."

Adams has looked and acted somewhat more chipper in the past few days than during the early explosions about his association with Bernard Goldfine. The governor's associates had been worried, however, about his health. He had been working too hard for too long, as one put it.

The Goldfine episode set up further tensions. Perhaps when the uproar subsides, Adams will have a check up at the Army's Walter Reed Hospital and, perhaps, again he would depart public life there.

Too Many Tranquilizers Will Bring On State Of 'Giddiness'

By DELOS SMITH
UPI Science Editor
NEW YORK (UPI)—Having shuddered in horror and fear for years over the happy indifference of Americans to the power of the pain killer pill, medical science now has conjured up a vision which really gives it the shivers.

It is a vision of a person fully dosed with "tranquilizer" pills driving a car at 70 miles an hour.

A full dosage of a "tranquilizer" can drop blood pressure enough to cause a spell of giddiness. The Medical Society of the state of New York officially "shuddered" at what might happen if such a spell took place at high speed.

It was admonishing its members to please, please respect the power of pills.

"Our profession is working vainly to promote safety features in automobiles," it said. "While we have been pointing out the note in the manufacturer's eye, have we failed to see the beam in our own—potent drugs prodigally prescribed?"

Cite Pep Pills
It cited "pep pills"—the amphetamine drugs, pointing out that in some people the feeling of

Firm Produces Uranium Concentrate

Phillips Petroleum Company on June 27 began operation of its 1,725 ton per day uranium ore processing mill in McKinley county, N.M., making Phillips one of the nation's large producers of uranium concentrate, according to K. S. Adams, chairman, and Paul Endacott, president of the company.

The mill is 25 miles north of Grants in the Ambrosia Lake area where Phillips in 1956 made one of the major uranium discoveries in the United States on a wholly owned 1,280-acre mining lease. Drilling has already outlined more than 5 million tons of uranium ore bodies and exploration is continuing. Phillips has completed a shaft and is mining ore on its Ann Lee Mine and shafts are being sunk for its Sandstone and Cliffside Mines in the area.

Ores treated in the newly constructed mill include those from properties owned or controlled by Phillips, as well as certain amounts from independent mine operators in the area or from the Atomic Energy Commission.

Ores are trucked to the mill where the uranium complex is leached from the ore. Over 100 people are employed at the mill. The uranium concentrate, commonly called "yellow cake," will be sold to the Atomic Energy Commission under terms of a contract running through 1966 and signed by Phillips and the Commission in September 1957.

Phillips recently was one of the recipients of the 1957 Chemical Engineering Achievement Award for its work in extractive metallurgy of uranium. The company's capabilities for nuclear research and operations were first publicly recognized in 1950 when it was selected by the Atomic Energy Commission to operate the Materials Testing Reactor at the National Reactor Testing Station in Idaho. Its assignments there have been almost continuously expanded until at the present time over 1,600 Phillips people are working in Idaho on AEC projects.

Phillips now operates for the Commission, at the National Reactor Testing Station, the Materials Testing Reactor, the Chemical Processing Plant, and the new Engineering Test Reactor, the world's most powerful nuclear test unit, which is based upon the conceptual design of Phillips scientists and engineers. In addition, several other facilities and central services at the NRTS are operated by Phillips.

In its own laboratories Phillips atomic research is directed toward utilizing radio-isotopes to improve oil-finding, promote difficult chemical reactions, and evolve new products. The company's private research in the field of nuclear radiation will be expanded in 1958 by two new accelerators now being constructed for installation in the company's Research Center in Bartlesville. These new "atom smashers," which will be the most powerful of their kind in industrial use, will greatly extend Phillips activities in investigating nuclear radiation for petroleum and chemical processes.
