Cubans Kidnap Two More

42 Americans Now In Hands Of Rebels

By FRANCIS L. MCCARTHY
United Press International

HAVANA (UPI)—Cuban rebels kidnaped two more Americans in Oriente province this morning, the U. S. embassy was informed. The latest victims brought to 42 the number of Americans known to be in rebel hands. Two Canadians also are held and there are unconfirmed reports that another American and a Canadian have been seized.

The latest victims were identified as Sherman Avery White, general manager of the U. S. government-owned Nicaro nickel plant, and his assistant, J. Andrew Toll.

The new kidnappings dashed hopes that the rebels soon would release all their victims, seized in retaliation for the alleged retreating of Cuban warplanes at the U. S. naval base at Guantanamo. Today's kidnappings occurred at 8:30 a. m. and were in the same pattern as others beginning last Thursday.

Expect Release Soon

All have occurred in the rebel hotbed of Oriente province within an area of 10 by 50 miles, indicating that all might be held in a common camp.

An embassy spokesman in Havana said that U. S. Consul Park Wollan in the Mos Bay area of the kidnappings was in touch with the rebels' "higher headquarters," but had nothing to report on the probable release of the kidnap victims.

The reference to "higher headquarters" was taken to mean that Wollan was in touch with rebel leader Fidel Castro himself.

The rebel radio made its first mention of the kidnappings today. An unidentified announcer said that "although we have no direct contact with Commander (Raoul) Castro's column, we can say that we believe the Yankees will be released soon."

The rebel radio expressed "surprise" at the Cuban army announcement that ground and air pursuit would be halted until such time as the American captives are released.

Won't Be Harmed

"It's too bad these army officers were not concerned about killing so many Cuban farmers while shooting at our forces," the announcer said.

Raoul Castro is a brother of Fidel Castro and is reported to have been in direct command of the kidnappings.

Absent Mental Patient Sought

BROWNWOOD, Tex. (UPI)—

A statewide search for an escaped mental patient described as "armed and dangerous" centered on the post office in Richland Springs near Brownwood today.

Brownwood Sheriff R. E. Masters said the escapee Hulon Terry, 30, of San Saba county, might turn up at the post office to pick up a government check.

"That's our best hope of catching him now," explained Masters. He said Terry, who fled from the Waco Veterans Hospital, told relatives of going to Alaska after he collected the government check.

Masters said the patient was last seen at the home of his brother late Sunday between Richland Springs and Brady. The sheriff said he took an uncle's late model auto at gun point and drove away. The sheriff added that Terry may have picked up the check in his visit Sunday and if so he was probably headed toward the Northwest.

Gunman Kills Cyprus Turk

NICOSSIA, Cyprus (UPI)—

Unidentified gunman shot and killed a Turkish Cypriot in Limassol today and British authorities promptly placed the 25,000 residents of the city under near house arrest.

A daylight curfew was clamped on Limassol, 30 miles west of here, restricting all inhabitants to their homes except for certain specified hours for marketing and other living necessities.

The curfew was the fourth reimposed on Cyprus since Gov. Sir Hugh Foot announced Sunday that such restrictions would be lifted in an attempt to restore normal living to this strife-torn island.

A few hours after Foot announced that the nightly curfews on the island's main towns would be lifted in an attempt to restore normal living, a Greek church was set afire in the Turkish quarter of Nicosia and British troops clashed with Greek Cypriots in a village near Famagusta.

Curfews were promptly clamped on the Turkish quarter of Nicosia and on the village of Piyi.

Four British soldiers were wounded by fragments from exploding "Molotov cocktail" bombs in the fighting at Piyi, one of the most serious clashes in the last two weeks. The alleged leader of the Cypriots was wounded and arrested. The clash started when villagers defaced portraits of Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip in the town square.

Deer Hunter Is Shot To Death

SAN ANTONIO (UPI)—

One of four men hunting deer in the early morning darkness with flashlights was accidentally shot and killed Sunday near San Antonio.

The victim, Sanders Halston Nelson, 29, a resident in rural Bexar county, was hunting with his brother, James Andrew Nelson, when the bullet from a .300 Savage rifle struck him in the neck and killed him almost instantly.

Hunting in the same pasture were John Franklin Allen Jr., 16, and Seberiano Tejada. Tejada saw a movement in the field and turned his flashlight on it. About that time Allen fired.

"Don't shoot anymore, I think you've killed my brother," yelled James Nelson. They found James bending over his brother's body. Bexar county medical examiner Dr. Robert Hausmann returned a verdict of accidental death.

US, Britain Are In With France

By K. C. THALER
United Press International

PARIS (UPI)—Gen. Charles de Gaulle swung France back into line with Britain and the United States today to fashion a solid Western front in the steadily worsening cold war.

The West had feared De Gaulle might try to make some sort of settlement with the Kremlin on his own, but in talks with British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan he reaffirmed Western solidarity. Macmillan flew here Sunday for a 22-hour visit after warning in London that the "blatant perridy" of Communist leaders made agreements with Russia dangerous.

To Visit Algiers
Macmillan's visit ends at noon today and De Gaulle will meet July 5 with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles. De Gaulle goes to Algiers Tuesday to try to put down a new right-wing rebellion against his authority.

The De Gaulle-Macmillan meeting took place against a series of cold war diplomatic and military incidents mindful of the grim era of Josef Stalin. Chief of these was Russia's forcing down of a U. S. Air Force transport plane with nine men over Russian territory. De Gaulle in his talks with Macmillan served notice he expects to play a larger command role in the rejuvenated Western alliance and that he is working full speed towards making France a fourth atomic power after Britain, the United States and Russia.

Explore Summit Talks
The aloof French leader brushed aside Macmillan's objections that France would wreck its budget by trying to allow its way into the atomic club at all cost.

High diplomatic sources said De Gaulle and Macmillan both agreed that the recent execution of Hungarian ex-premier Imre Nagy and his three companions reflected a hardened Soviet attitude toward the West.

Both were reported in favor of exploring further the possibilities for a summit conference but agreed that the Budapest executions called for a cautious approach.

There were these other developments in the East-West struggle during the weekend:

Washington: The Defense Department demanded that Russia release nine crewmen aboard a U. S. Air Force transport plane forced down on Soviet territory Friday by two Russian fighter planes; a note delivered in Moscow.

Senate Rackets Group On Crime-Hunting Expedition

By DICK WEST
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate Rackets Committee set out today on the biggest crime-hunting expedition since the celebrated "Keasaufer committee" hearings of 1950-51.

The committee planned to open a months-long investigation of how gangsters and hoodlums have infiltrated labor unions and industries.

The hearings will turn the spotlight on a sinister array of underworld bigshots, including the reputed bosses of the international crime syndicate known as the Mafia, or "blackhand" society.

Chairman John L. McClellan (D-Ark.) said the committee had evidence an "underworld syndicate" has worked its way into "some phases of the labor movement and... some businesses."

Threat To Economy
"If permitted to go unchecked," he said, this infiltration might become a threat to the national economy.

He was interviewed Sunday on a television program (ABC's "College News Conference").

The new hearings, described by McClellan as potentially the most important the rackets group has yet conducted, will give the public the most intimate picture of organized vice since the televised Senate Crime Committee brought such characters as Frank Costello and Virginia Hill into the nation's living rooms several years ago. The first witness will be New York state police Sgt. Edgar Crosswell, who is credited with breaking up the so-called "underworld convention" at Apalachin, N. Y., last November. The meeting has been characterized as a major policy gathering of Mafia overlords.

Makes List Public
The committee made public a long list of other witnesses it expects to quiz this week, including nine men who attended the ill-starred Apalachin conclave. Five other law enforcement officials will help Crosswell give "background."

The Apalachin delegates on call are Russell Bufalino, a Pittston, Pa., garment manufacturer; John

C. Montana, a taxi company official, and James V. LaDuca, a former hotel and restaurant worker union leader, both of Buffalo, N. Y.; Louis A. Larasso, a Linden, N. Y., man formerly associated with the Hod Carriers and Laborers Union; Rosario Manucso of Utica, N. Y., also a former laborers union official; John Scalise of Cleveland, Ohio, a juke box operator; and New Yorkers Michael Miranda, Joseph Profaci and Vito Genovese.

Genovese and Profaci were described as the most important witnesses scheduled for the first phase of the hearings.

report for mid-June showed wheat prices already had dropped to $1.70 with the harvest just underway.

The prediction of lower wheat prices came in the wake of what administration leaders said were improved economic conditions in agriculture.

The economists based their prediction on past performance. The government loan price this year is down to $1.78 cents compared with $2 for the 1957 crop. The 1958 support price may be raised a few cents if the parity price for wheat in July is the same as it was in June. The market price for an over-abundant crop generally is 33 to 35 cents below the support price.

The wheat crop this year will be a whopper. The June 1 forecast set it at 1,271,000,000 bushels. Another 5 million bushels of imports, mostly of seed and feeding quality wheat, will be tacked on to that.

Domestic consumption for 1958-59 has been estimated at 593 million bushels, slightly above 1957-58 because of a small increase likely in feeding. Exports probably will be 375 million bushels, somewhat below those of 1957-58 because of favorable crop prospects in Europe.

What's left over would be added to the 890 million bushels of carryover, or surplus, of the 1957-58 marketing year. This would make a record high surplus of about 1,200,000,000 bushels on July 1, 1959. This is more than 300 million bushels above the estimated carryover for this July.

The department also pointed out that production on farms not eligible for price support is unusually large this year.

The winter wheat indicated yield of 24.3 bushels per seeded acre this year is the highest of record by a wide margin. It is 25 per cent more than the 1957 yield and 50 per cent greater than the 10-year average.

Output this year probably will be 50 per cent larger than the 707 million bushels produced in 1957. Excellent growing weather provides most of the reason for the whopping crop.

Unconfirmed reports from the north spoke of a wide-scale battle between 2,000 insurgents and pro-government army forces in which battle was reported in the Akka region.

The reports said the hilltops were under the control of government forces and that the rebels marched on Akka Sunday from the northern border region and were trapped in a valley by fire from government forces. Unconfirmed reports said the rebels were routed, leaving "scores" dead.

The rebels who attacked the village of Shemlan were led by tribal leader Kamalo Jumblatt. The rebels moved in during the night and attacked in the early morning hours. Gendarmes were rushed in to help the defenders.

The British school there was established for British government officials learning Arabic and Oriental history.

British embassy spokesmen said Jumblatt warned them in advance of the attack and that Englishmen there moved to the neighboring village of Souk al Gharb. The English houses were taken over later by snipers.

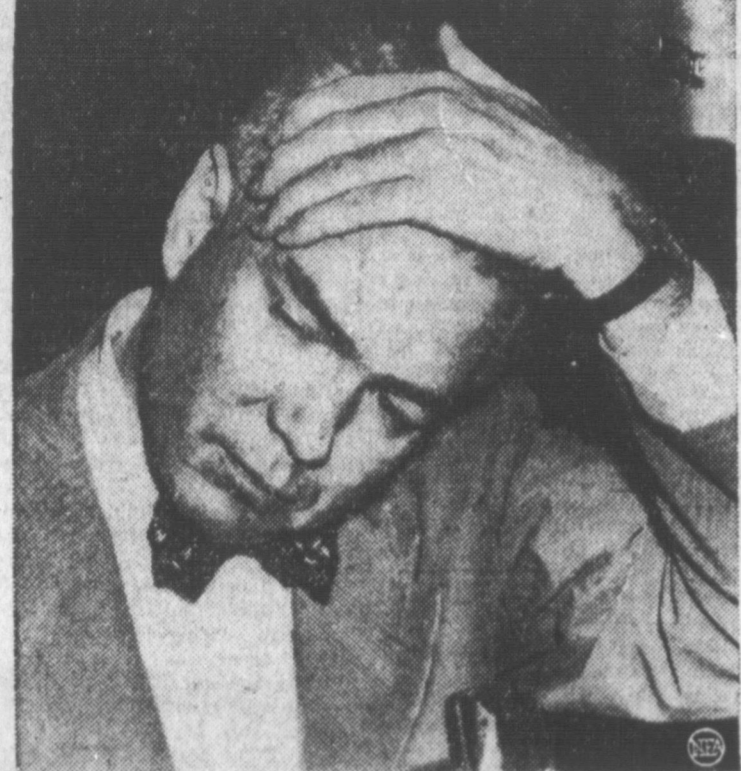

The attack on Shemlan was believed to be in revenge for the fatal wounding of a rebel messenger by gendarmes Sunday. He was shot while en route to rebel headquarters from Beirut and died after reaching Jumblatt's mountain stronghold at Mukhtara.

The American hospital in Tripoli, the Presbyterian Kennedy Memorial Hospital, reported it had not been under fire since Sunday afternoon. There are no Americans in the hospital. They were evacuated early in the fighting.

STIFF QUESTIONING

House Cross-Examination Of Ex-Publisher Is Promised

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Boston promoter John Fox faced stiff cross-examination by House influence investigators today on his sensational charges linking Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams with gift-giving Boston financier Bernard Goldfine.

Members of the House influence investigating subcommittee said Fox would be "put on the grill" in public session. Efforts to move the questioning behind closed doors were postponed for the time being.

One of the probes, Rep. Peter F. Mack Jr. (D-Ill.) said he understood Fox had furnished the subcommittee its original leads connecting Adams with his millionaire friend.

Mack made the statement to counter charges that the subcommittee acted irresponsibly in airing testimony by Fox that has been branded malicious lies by Adams and the White House.

Fox has charged that Adams received checks regularly from Goldfine, that the industrialist made investments for the White House aide, and also bought Adams a house in Washington.

Mack said the subcommittee has additional evidence of intervention by Adams with federal regulatory agencies but declined to say what it involved. It has been charged that Adams interceded with both the Federal Trade Commission and the Securities and Exchange Commission on behalf of Goldfine and received favors in return.

Of Gromyko Thompson Asks Flyers' Release

MOSCOW (UPI)—U. S. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson formally asked Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko today to free nine U. S. airmen whose plane was forced down in Soviet Armenia last Friday.

Thompson spent a half hour with Gromyko in the Foreign Ministry and handed Gromyko two notes.

One was the United States answer to Russia's note of June 28 charging that the American C-119 transport violated the Soviet frontier. The other was the U. S. answer to a Soviet note of June 28 on the Geneva conference of nuclear experts.

Washington reports said Thompson would tell Gromyko the downed plane did not intentionally violate the Soviet frontier.

It also was assumed the U. S. note expressed regret the plane lost its way and entered Soviet air space.

Thompson asked Gromyko for the appointment soon after he received orders from Washington to negotiate the release of the airmen.

The Defense Department declared there was "no basis whatever for Russian charges that the plane's crew deliberately violated Soviet air space. If the DC 6 type transport actually flew over the

Explorer III May Be Out Of Heavens

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI)—Explorer III apparently is dead. Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory scientists said Sunday night there has been no confirmed sighting of the American satellite since 9:30 p. m. c.d.t. Friday at Memphis, Tenn.

They discounted reported sightings since then in Connecticut, Arizona, and over the Atlantic Ocean.

A spokesman said, "Those objects probably were just fireballs."

Smithsonian experts had predicted Explorer III, launched last March 26, would burn up by Sunday night.

called to seek a fool-proof system for checking nuclear test explosions. Scientists have reported it is possible to carry out nuclear tests without their being detected.

The meeting is the first East-West disarmament talks since last year's disarmament talks in London and the first since the Soviet Union reverted to a "hard" international line. The West regarded it as a final test of whether Russia is prepared to discuss disarmament seriously.

The Russians first agreed to attend the talks, then appeared to renege, hinting they would not attend unless the United States agreed in advance to halt nuclear test explosions. Then the Russians left the West in doubt whether they would attend or not.

ToT Wheat Harvest Said About Over

Combines will stop rolling in the Top o' Texas area by the end of this week with the 1958 wheat harvest 98 per cent complete.

Local grain elevator officials said they looked for the harvest to be finished by Thursday or Friday due to the good weather of the past week.

Officials at the Barnett and Wilkinson Grain Co. said the wheat harvest this year was the best they had seen in quite some time.

The E. F. Tubb Grain Co. reported approximately 225,000 bushels of wheat so far and that this was one of the most prolific years.

The wheat crop in Gray County should average about 25 bushels to the acre. However, it will not be a record wheat crop. Most farmers in the Top o' Texas area have their land in allotment where they plant just so much land in wheat. Years back when they didn't have land in allotment, farmers could plant as much wheat as they wanted to.

The Texas Employment Commission office in Pampa said that they have been receiving no calls for wheat harvest help. Tractor drivers are plentiful at the office and anyone wanting a good tractor driver is asked to call there.

When the grain elevator operators tally up their wheat total it is believed it will be about a million and half dollar wheat crop for the Top o' Texas area.

REBELS HIT IN SHEMLAN

By DANIEL F. GILMORE
United Press International

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI)—Rebel forces attacked the village of Shemlan today, forcing Britons to evacuate their Government School of Oriental Studies in the village.

Fighting also was reported in the port city of Tripoli for the fifth straight day, but a U. S. embassy spokesman in Beirut said a truce had gone into effect under which both sides are sparing the American Presbyterian Hospital.

There were no reports yet of casualties from either side in Lebanon's mixed up civil war, but neither the battles in Tripoli nor Shemlan represented a major rebel offensive. Shemlan is about 15 miles southeast of Beirut.

Unconfirmed reports from the north spoke of a wide-scale battle between 2,000 insurgents and pro-government army forces in which battle was reported in the Akka region.

The reports said the hilltops were under the control of government forces and that the rebels marched on Akka Sunday from the northern border region and were trapped in a valley by fire from government forces. Unconfirmed reports said the rebels were routed, leaving "scores" dead.

DEAR ABBY...

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My brothers and sisters and I all got together and gave a big golden wedding party for our parents. The old folks got into a fight and my mother refused to pose in the same picture with my father. The photographer charged us $20.00 to come out here with all his equipment. He took some shots of some of the other guests but he never got one of the golden wedding couple. Do you think we have to pay him his full price? (P.S. Will you give Mom and Pop a little advice on how to get along together?)

WAITING TO HEAR

Dear Waiting: The photographer's time is money and there's no reason why he shouldn't be paid his full fee. When the old folks kiss and make up (and they will!) take them to the studio for a picture. (P.S. Any couple who has stayed married for fifty years doesn't need any advice from me.)

DEAR ABBY: I read the letter when the woman said she wanted to get twin beds because her husband was big and fat and she couldn't get a night's sleep with him in the bed. I had the same problem. I bought twin beds and now I wish I had my regular double bed because my husband gets lonesome and crawls in bed with me anyway. It was a lot more comfortable for two people in a full-sized bed than in one twin.

S. R. T.

DEAR ABBY: Please print this for the woman who signed herself "TIRED." Madame: My husband weighs 100 pounds more than your husband. We suffered in a double bed for six years. I spent most of my nights of the sofa or playing leap-frog over all 350 pounds of him. Forget twin beds! Get yourself a king-sized bed if you have to beg, borrow or steal the money.

You won't know what a good night's sleep is until you do. NOT TIRED

DEAR ABBY: In your column you say that the adopted child was "wanted twice - first by its real mother and again by its adopted mother." This in my estimation is ridiculous. The very fact that a mother would give away her own child proves she doesn't want it. In most cases, it is only in the way and she prefers going on living a life of sin. I would sooner marry a woman who is raising a child born out of wedlock than one who stooped so low as to give her own flesh and blood to strangers. Every child deserves his own blood parents. If this isn't possible, at least one of them.

F. D. S.

Dear F. D. S.: In my opinion every child is entitled to a home in which there are two parents who are happily married, love each other and want a child. Some "blood parents" are no more than a biological accident.

DEAR ABBY: I am a very lonesome woman with a spare room in my house. Do you think it would be all right to rent it out to a man or do you think there would be gossip? There would be nothing wrong, but I don't want to take any chances.

LONESOME

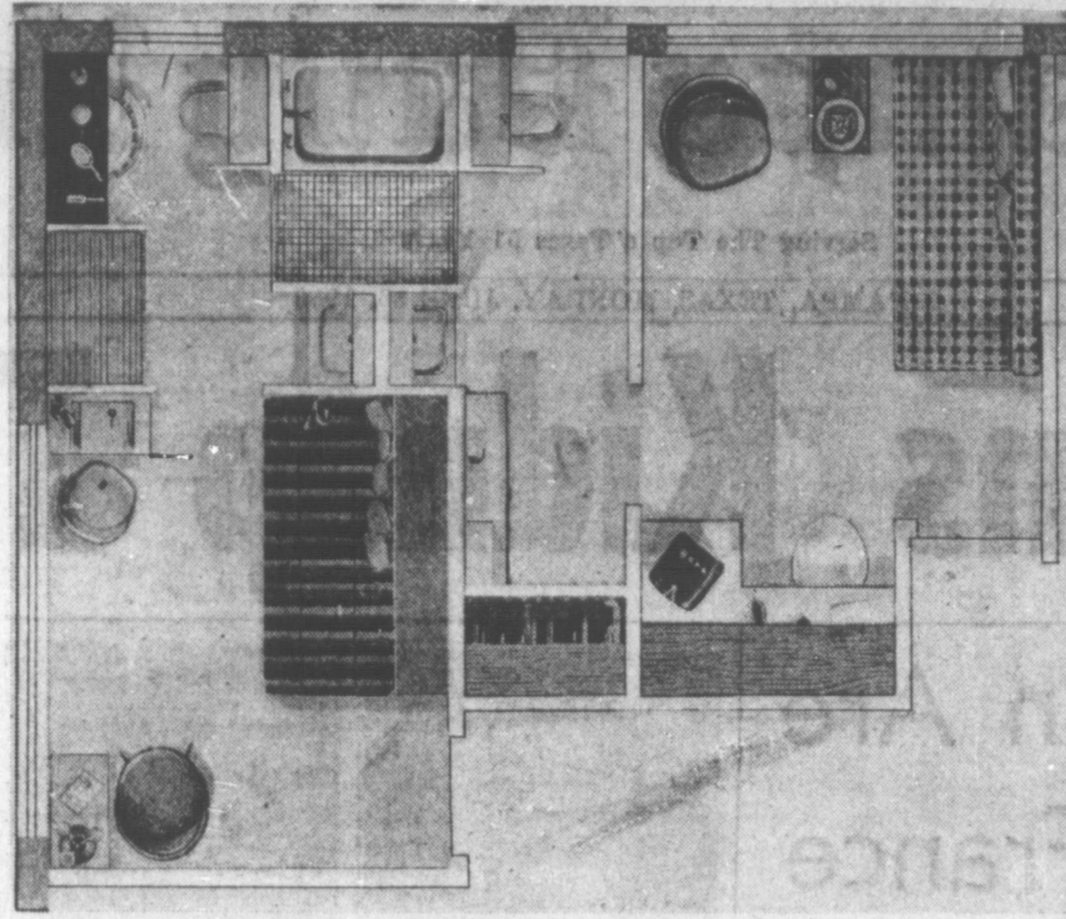

Dear Lonesome: If the object is "company" - rent it to a woman.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem. It's about an illegitimate son of my husband. I don't hold it against him because it all happened before I knew him, but the boy is 14 years old and his mother had the crust to name him after his real father, who is my husband. If we have a son, I would like to name him after my husband and want to know if you think I should demand that this woman change her son's name?

BURNED UP

Dear Burned: If you demanded that this woman change her 14-year-old son's name, you would be stirring up more trouble than you bargained for. Regard it as an unfortunate coincidence and forget it.

MA WP 2-24 PRIVAZONING

By KAY SHERWOOD NEA Staff Writer

There's a new design for living that should intrigue anyone belonging to a one-bath family. It's called "privazoning," and combines the luxury of private baths with the possibility of realization on a less than munificent budget.

The idea of such an arrangement for general family use may come somewhat as a shock, but recall:

There are quite a few folks still around who can tell you what a luxury indoor bathing facilities were not too many years ago. And any homemaker who has had to arbitrate the red-hot subject of bath priority will welcome even the beginnings of a solution to fitting two adults and several school-bound children into the bathing area.

The brain child of the plumbing industry initially, it was first tried in Miami, Fla., within the framework of a standard house plan.

It is now being planned for construction in several other states. HERE'S HOW it works: As shown in sketch, a common bath-shower is shared by two rooms. Each room, however, has its own lavatory, toilet, dressing area and closet facilities.

Such centering of bathing-dressing-grooming facilities gives more room for living. Storage goes into the dressing area, leaving more room in the bedroom.

THE BEDROOM becomes, in other than sleeping hours, a place for relaxation. There's room for reading, writing, radio or TV enjoyment.

In effect, the design provides for several islands of quiet to which members of the family can retreat for rest and relaxation.

Costwise, especially in new construction, piping and plumbing is centered in two areas with a consequent saving over plumbing in a four-bath home, for example.

Elimination of two tubs and two showers which would be necessary in the case of separate baths for each room reduces cost measurably.

THIS IS DREAM STUFF for many of us, right now. But it is an intriguing peek at what we can expect in many homes on a not-too-distant tomorrow.

'Lady Writers Don't Get Even Break' So Noted Author Uses Male Pen Name

By AILEEN SNOODY NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (NEA) - For a woman who doesn't look back or look forward, Pearl Buck has taken obvious steps with both directions in mind.

Her novels are drawn from an early life in the Orient one might call her past. Her future comes from John Sedges, writer of American themes, who now turns out to be the pseudonym of the prolific "I think I've written 40 novels" teller of tales.

Getting to know people is the main reason Southern-born and Orient-reared Miss Buck switched to American themes. "My early life was spent among Asians," she elaborates, "and when I wrote I saw Chinese faces."

She wrote, to her faithful readers' delight, a collection that ranged from the classic "Good Earth" to the more recent "Imperial Woman."

But when she returned to her homeland in 1934 the subtle change began. After 10 years in this country, creative restlessness hit her, and she began "to get to know people" in this country.

Although Pearl Buck (Mrs. Richard Walsh) maintains a Park Avenue apartment, those who people the five novels by John Sedges are types from Bucks County, Pa., where she has a farm; Vermont, a summer retreat, and Kansas, her husband's native state.

"The American Triptych" contains three of these novels—"The Townsman," "Voices in the House" and "The Love Song."

Why did she hide behind another name, and a man's name, to write books about the U.S.?

"I felt typed," she explains more specifically. "Not so much by my readers as by the clique of critics, who are mostly male."

She chose a pseudonym "because women don't get the breaks a man does." Although publishing houses will look at anything to get a good book.

"But a woman writer has to be so much better than a man to be accepted."

It took 13 years and a nom de plume to open a new literary door for Pearl Buck. Ten years ago someone gave her two babies and opened another door for this mother and stepmother. The babies were considered "unadoptable" because of their mixed parentage.

"I realized the problem of children of Asian and white blood finding a good home," she says. "I know how these children feel because I grew up the only white child among another race."

From this feeling and a desire to help children of mixed races find a home grew Welcome House in Bucks County.

Now 140 children previously "not adoptable" have homes, and parents.

"For parents we look for persons with breadth of view. This doesn't mean they have to be rich," she adds.

As for her reference to past and future she explains, "I live every day."

But at 65 she does have future plans. Welcome House figures strongly in them. And coming soon will be a novel about a nuclear scientist. However, if you ask her what she wants to do, the quick reply is, "I want to write plays."

And to indicate she does something about wishful thinking—"Three Against Time" will be her offering to Broadway next fall. Following this, she hopes, will be a musical about an Englishwoman in India.

It was announced that the Eastern Star Club will meet with Mrs. Orla Gray on July 14.

Mrs. Edna Hampton, Lubbock, was welcomed as a guest. 23 members were present.

Following the closing ritual, Mrs. Isbell, out-going noble grand, entertained with a reception for the officers, who have served with her and the members. She presented a gift of appreciation to each of the officers.

The refreshment table was covered with a white linen cloth centered with a white-lead cake adorned with red carnations, the noble grand's chosen flower, and flanked with crystal candelabra holding red tapers.

Refreshments of coffee, cake, and ice cream were served to the guests present.

Chrysler Sends 1st Shift Men Home

By JIM KLOCKENKEMPER
UPI Automotive Editor
DETROIT (UPI) — Chrysler Corp. sent home 2,700 first shift workers today in a renewed outbreak of labor trouble in the contract auto industry.
The move was made by Chrysler on the eve of the opening of contract talks between the United Auto Workers Union and Studebaker-Packard Corp., the last of the auto companies to enter contract talks with the union.
Chrysler spokesmen said the company sent home 1,500 workers at its Plymouth body plant and another 1,200 at the Plymouth assembly plant after several trim department workers at the body plant refused to start work on the first shift.
The union charged Chrysler was attempting to increase work loads at the plant "unreasonably."
It marked the second straight week that labor trouble upset the work schedule at Chrysler plants.

Budget Surplus Wanted Before Next Election

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI)—The administration has begun an intensive search for ways to sharply cut government spending in fiscal 1960 if at all possible, it wants a budget surplus before the next presidential election.
The political aspects of the spending picture were emphasized today as the nation wound up the 1958 fiscal year with an expected federal deficit of $2,750,000,000.
The real shocker, politically speaking, is the prospect of a possible $3-billion-dollar deficit in the fiscal year starting Tuesday.
If the trend toward deeper red ink spending continues, neither Republican nor Democratic politicians will sound sincere if they hold out tax-cut promises in the expected bitter 1960 campaign.
With an eye on this November's elections, as well as 1960, spokesmen for the two parties were likely to be in a hotting charge of who should bear responsibility for the deficit.
Although President Eisenhower cannot, by law, run for a third term, his success or failure on balancing the budget in the next two years is bound to affect the fortunes of the 1960 GOP presidential candidate, whoever that may be.

Five Perish In Houston Apartment Fire

HOUSTON (UPI)—A family of five persons was trapped and burned to death in an apartment house fire early Sunday.
The agonized screams of the Robert Van Dyke family could be heard by other tenants of the apartment house who were forced to stand by helplessly as the fire burned the two-story frame building.
Besides Van Dyke, 30, the fire victims were his wife, Nell, 25, Bobby, five-months, and Mrs. Van Dyke's children by previous marriages, Danny Wayne Kegler, 4, and Neida Ann Wallin, 6.
A tenant, Tom Rose, 38, wrapped himself in a wet quilt and made an attempt to save Danny Wayne. He found him at the top of the stairs and carried him down but the little boy did shortly afterwards.
The stairs collapsed before Rose could make another trip into the house.
Officers said they could not immediately determine the cause of the fire.

Errol Flynn Is Serious About Acting

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent
PARIS (UPI)—Errol Flynn, who blew seven million dollars while living high on the hog, is back in the chips and feeling chipper again.
"I'm worth about four million bucks right now," he boasted between takes of his new movie. "But three years ago I was broke and up to my ears in hock."
"How did I get that way? By spending money as if there were no tomorrow. I have a great talent for spending. The public expected me to be a playboy, and I didn't want to let people down."
"When I was broke I didn't let it worry me. There was a time when I couldn't afford to buy an automobile, but I managed to hang onto my yacht, the 'Zaca,' no matter how badly things went."
Flynn's luxurious yacht, which won him more headlines than a South American revolution, now is anchored in the Mediterranean available for Flynn's own brand of parties.
Beneath the actor's superficial bon vivant facade lies a strong determination to prove himself as an actor.
"For the first time I'm serious about my work," he said. "For years I used to dash on and off camera wielding a sword and rescuing pretty girls. This was acting."
"I didn't deserve all the money they gave me, but I was willing to spend it. Now I'm acting instead of swashbuckling."

Skin Diver Mistakes Pal, Kills Him

CORPUS CHRISTI (UPI)—A skin diver mistook one of his best friends for a big fish Sunday and fatally shot him with his spear gun in seven fathoms of water off Port Aransas.
Joseph Pludworth Jr., a 22-year-old University of Texas student from San Antonio, was the victim of the underwater accident.
Kenneth Claybourne, 23, also a University of Texas student, was the spear-gunman. He told Deputy Sheriff Truett Henry that he and Pludworth had been friends since childhood.
Claybourne and Pludworth were in a party of four men and three women. They were skin diving and spear fishing off an offshore oil derrick platform in the Gulf of Mexico about a mile off Port Aransas.
Claybourne said he and Pludworth both dived into the water and became separated. Claybourne later saw an object about five feet away in the murky 35-foot deep water.
He said he fired his spear gun and began reeling in his line. Then he discovered he had shot Pludworth behind an eye.
The party hailed a passing yacht, the Hornet II, which in turn called the Coast Guard.
Pludworth died en route to Corpus Christi.
Claybourne was treated for shock. Officers said a justice of the peace probably would return a verdict of accidental death.

A Rose For The Dead

ROME (UPI)—A lone rose fluttered down today onto the frozen wastes of the North Pole, thrown from the cockpit of a passing airliner.
The rose, the first of 40 which will be thrown down one by one day by day, commemorates the Italian and Scandinavian explorers who lost their lives aboard the airship Italia 20 years ago.
The gas-filled airship split in half over the pole. One part, containing the motor, crashed to the ground. The other half, containing its human cargo, soared into the frozen arctic air and was never seen again.

The Pampa Fire Department extinguished two blazes Saturday, involving grass and wheat stubble.
The first blaze broke out at 9:10 a.m. on the Jake Osborne place south of town, destroying some old lumber.
Firemen left at 9:30 p.m. Saturday for the old airbase east of town where the southeast corner was ablaze with wheat stubble. It was soon extinguished, however.

Two Cases In Court Today

Two cases were heard in Gray County Court this morning.

William Woods of Pampa entered a plea of guilty this morning on an aggravated assault charge. He was fined $25 and costs.
The complaint against Woods was filed by his wife.

Convicted Murderer Escapes

LAGRANGE, Ky. (UPI)—An intensive manhunt was underway throughout southwestern Kentucky today for a convicted murderer who escaped from the Kentucky State Reformatory.
Two other convicts were shot and killed after scaling the 20-foot wall during an attempted jail break.
Andy Earl Bell, 38, Cincinnati, Ohio, who was serving a life sentence for murder, escaped and is hunted. Edgar Hill Jr., 21, Lexington, Ky., and Okley Heron, 29, Junction City, Ky., were killed.
Warden Dan Gray said five other prisoners were in on the break but got "cold feet" at the last moment and returned to their cells.
"There is no good reason the holiday toll can't be held to the non-holiday level or lower," a council spokesman said. "It can be if enough people take the trouble to do it."
The council suggested:
—Drivers police their own behavior behind the wheel.
—Start early and take it easy.
—Keep driving distances at a minimum.
—Don't mix intoxicants with driving.
More than 200 other deaths last year were attributed to drownings, the council said. "Take your common sense into the water when you leave your car," they said.

Run Away Girl Being Sought

OTTIS AIR FORCE BASE, Mass. (UPI)—Authorities from Cape Cod to Texas were alerted today to look for Carol Ann Williams, 14-year-old daughter of an Air Force sergeant who left home Saturday with $6 in her purse.
Carol Ann sent a telegram from Hills Grove, R. I. to her grandparents in Lubbock, Tex. saying she was hitchhiking to their home.
Her father, T-Sgt. Vandell Williams, said she was wearing a short red coat, and black, flat shoes, and had two dresses with her, one yellow and the other turquoise.

Grim July 4 Weekend Is Anticipated

CHICAGO (UPI)—With an expected 45 million cars traveling 12 billion miles, the National Safety Council painted a grim picture of the coming Fourth of July weekend.
The council anticipates a possible 410 deaths resulting from traffic mishaps during the 78-hour holiday period. Those figures compare with a similar non-holiday weekend, death rate in the summer months of 350 traffic deaths, the council said.
Besides the deaths, the council anticipates 12,000 disabling injuries will be inflicted on the nation's highways.
"There is no good reason the holiday toll can't be held to the non-holiday level or lower," a council spokesman said. "It can be if enough people take the trouble to do it."
The council suggested:

GOLFING BANKER CASHES IN FOR TITLE

Rick Pezdirtz

The ball park area was swirling with sand like a junior Sahara. Any minute you expected to see John Wayne and Sophia Loren trudge over the nearest dune and start playing second base.

The manager of the Pampa American Legion Rebels, Deck Woldt, was taking refuge from the sun and sand under the Harvester Park dugout roof and beneath a baseball cap's shady bill.

"We're all dressed up with no where to go," the veteran campaigner said, squinting out into the sun and waving an outfielder over in to better playing position.

"It's really hard to expect too much out of these kids," Deck continued, "they've got nothing to shoot at, no district championship or over-night trips to Lubbock or Austin or anywhere."

Since it was doubtful that Pampa would field a Legion club at the beginning of the summer, the necessary steps were not taken in time (by June 1) for a certified Junior American Legion team to be organized.

"I'm not worrying about constructing any gaudy record, since we're only playing for fun. I'm trying to get some experience under these kids' belts for next spring," Woldt added.

Stroud, A Youthful Slammer

Experience it was, the Rebels lapped up Sunday during their wind-whipped 9-4 ten-inning loss to Perryton.

Take this Larry Stroud. He's only 15. A real raw recruit if ever there was one. Yet, in the Rebels' first two games he's handed himself like a grizzled veteran, if not a field, certainly at bat.

He hammered a pair of home-

But Lagging Defensively

Despite his two solo homers Sunday, Stroud pulled a bonhead play in the 9th inning, cutting off a strike to the plate from right field from his first base spot, which let the tying run in. The peg from DeWayne Glover in right, may or may not, have cut down the runner at the plate, had Stroud let it pass.

Those things, being at the right spot at the right time, he'd know.

ing when to cut off a throw from the outfield, all come with time and game experience.

Maybe that's the reason, Woldt hopes to play inter-squad games every chance he can get with the Rebels this summer. Rather than just workout, take batting practice, and hit to the infield and outfield.

"There's nothing like that game experience," Woldt whispered. "And there were no disagreements."

Rebels Blow Leads; Lose In Tenth, 9-6

Pampa's American Legion Rebels made like the wind that harassed them all afternoon Sunday, blowing 4-1 and 4-4 leads in the late innings, while letting Perryton's Legionnaires spike home eight runs in the final three frames.

Palmer Cops Pepsi; Hikes Money Lead

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press International
EAST NORWICH, N. Y. (UPI)—Brawny Arnold Palmer, with the $9,000 first money in the Pepsi golf championship (attending his year's fairway winnings to $37,564, headed for defense of his Rubber City open title today with a putting stroke learned one week too late.

The Masters champion from Latrobe, Pa., scored a five-shot victory over Jean Jay Hebert of Sanford, Fla., in the Pepsi, with a final-round par 71 for an 11-under-par, four-round total of 273.

But while he played "even" better than I did with the Masters," he still mourned the $4,200 loss he suffered a week ago in the Buick Open because of poor puts.

"If I find this new putting stroke, I'll win by five strokes," he said before the Buick Open a week ago.

It was a bit slow coming, so he finished in a tie for second. That still was worth $3,800 but he missed the $9,000 top money there.

Turns Into Runaway
His five-shot victory prediction seems true this time, however, and it was a runaway as the powerful slugger carded rounds of 64—a course record—69-67-71 on the par 36-35-71 Pine Hollow Country Club course.

"The putting did it," he said. "I finally mastered the technique of shifting my weight more forward on my left foot, getting the arms in closer to the body and the hands out to provide a freer stroke on the greens."

Master it he did, posting an eagle and 15 birdies against six bogeys for the 72-hole distance. Then Palmer and his wife, Winnie, boarded a plane for Cooperburg, Pa., where they were to pick up their 2½ year old daughter, Peggy, and head for Akron. There, on Thursday, Palmer will begin defense of his Rubber City Open title.

HURLER'S HONEYMOON OVER

Ted & Hank Hitting Back

By FRED DOWN
United Press International
It was fun while it lasted but the honeymoon is over for the pitchers who've been making Hank Aaron and Ted Williams out to be .250-hitters.

Aaron, the National League's most valuable player in 1957, owns a whopping .733 average for his last three games and has boosted his season mark to .282. And Williams, who won the American League batting title with a .358 mark last season, has raised his current average to an even .300.

Aaron smashed four hits, including a grand slam homer, and knocked in five runs as the Milwaukee Braves beat the Los Angeles Dodgers, 10-6, Sunday while Williams hit a three-run homer and a single to help the Boston Red Sox down the Detroit Tigers, 10-7.

The Philadelphia Phillies scored a 5-4, 13-inning decision over the Cardinals and were rallying in the eighth inning of the nightcap when the Pennsylvania curfew law suspended the game with the Redbirds ahead, 4-3. The San Francisco Giants beat the Cincinnati Redlegs, 3-0, and the Chicago Cubs won, 8-3, after losing to the Pittsburgh Pirates, 6-2, in the other NL games.

A's Wallop Yanks
In the other AL games, the Kansas City A's walloped the New York Yankees, 12-6, the Baltimore Orioles swept the Cleveland Indians, 11-6 and 5-2, and the Chicago White Sox came back from a 12-0 debacle to split with the Washington Senators, 12-11, in 11 innings.

Harry Anderson doubled home the winning run for the Phillies in the opener to give Jack Meyer his first victory since Aug. 10, 1956. The Phillies had one run in, runners on first and third and none out in the eighth when the second game was suspended. It will be resumed from that point on the Cardinals' next trip east.

Willie Mays hit two doubles, one his first extra base hit in 78 at bats and the other driving in his first run since June 7, for the Giants who got fourth-hit pitching from Al Worthington and Johnny Antonelli. Don Newcombe yielded both San Francisco runs and lost his second game in three decisions with the Redlegs. His overall season record is 1-3.

Elisian Involved Again In Death

LIMA, Ohio (UPI)—Ed Elisian, the racing driver who figured prominently in the death of Pat O'Conner last month during the 500-mile Memorial Day classic, again is involved in a racing accident that took the life of a driver.

Sunday at nearby New Bremen Speedway, 27-year-old Jimmy Davis of Indianapolis was killed after his car crashed into the rear of Elisian's racer which had gone into a spin.

Speedway operator Frank Dicksey said young Davis apparently swerved to miss Elisian's car but clipped the right-rear wheel. Both racers rolled over — Davis six times and Elisian three times.

Davis suffered a fatal skull fracture and chest injuries. Elisian, escaped with an injured neck and a gash over his left eye. He was dismissed from the hospital after treatment for the eye cut.

Garvey To Us

DUBLIN, Ireland (UPI)—Phlomena Garvey, the Irish golf champion has announced she has withdrawn from the British Curtis Cup team to meet the United States in August.

Miss Garvey objected to the new blazer chosen for the team, which has the Union Jack as the badge. Instead of the former one which represented England, Scotland, Wales and Ireland.

"I do not object to the Union Jack as such," said Miss Garvey. "I would wear a blazer with the Union Jack if it also carried a presentation of Ireland."

The sun was in its heaven and all was right with the world.

All was right with Harry Wilbur's world that is, for the fortyish Canadian banker had just tucked the Championship Flight title of the annual Pampa City Wide Golf Tournament into the hip pocket of his trimly-tailored brownish-grey golfing slacks.

Wilbur, who admits to 45 years, wasn't supposed to whip youthful Don Prigmore in the Sunday finals at the Pampa Country Club. He was considered in most corners, a definite underdog.

But Wilbur didn't let a vicious match-long wind hoodwink his game. "Sure it (the wind) gave me a fit most of the way," the new city champ recalled as he sat sipping a soda in the pro-shop after legging in from the 18th hole. "But I never really let it upset me. I tried to keep my drives low, where the wind wouldn't get an opportunity to do tricks with my ball," he said.

"Now, I can't say that I really expected to beat Don. He's what, 25 years younger than me? I never bothered much with how he (Prigmore) was shooting. I was just trying to play each hole at a time, and trying to par each one," Wilbur pointed out.

His attempt at paring the individual hole as it came along, might not have been such a foolish idea. As things turned out, Wilbur's final card showed him with a neat 72, only one over par. Not bad for any day, and spectacular for a wind-whipped day such as Sunday.

It was all over save for the congratulations when Wilbur and Prigmore, a tanned blond Baylor University student, walked away over Al Kemp, 3-3, in the Fourth; Gene Hall over D. V. Biggers, 1-up, in the Fifth; and Bill Cooper over Bob Lincecum, 2-1, in the Tenth.

Prigmore, who fired a healthy, if not winning, 75, chimed in for a chorus on the wind. "It wasn't the wind that beat me," he said, "it was my dang putting. I just couldn't drop one when I needed it the most."

And then maybe too, it was the fact that Wilbur, who's been banking with his father in Canadian since 1934, had a couple thousand rounds edge on young Prigmore. "I started playing golf when I was only 12 years old, that'd be back in 1926, way before Don was even born," Wilbur concluded.

Odessa Junior College linkster Les Howard, one of the pre-tourney favorites and medalist with a 67, won consolation laurels in the Championship Flight Sunday, stopping Burt Watkins, 2-1.

Howard was upset in the first round by the same old pappy-guy who won the top-flight title, Harry Wilbur. However, in looking back on Wilbur's opening round 1-up win over Howard, perhaps it wasn't the upset some citizens thought.

A. L. Leonard stroked to a 3-3 win over Grover Austin Jr. for the First Flight crown while other Flight winners Sunday included, James Cantrell over Bill Ellis, 2-1, in the Second Flight; Jerry Boston

Aussie Favored

ST. ANNE'S-ON-THE-SEA, England (UPI) — Australia's Peter Thomson was rated the 4 to 1 favorite in the opening qualifying round of the British Open golf championship today while Frank Stranahan, a 20 to 1 shot, led a weak 12-man American delegation into action.

A grand total of 340 golfers from 17 nations was slated to tee off today in search of the crown won last year by South Africa's Bobby Locke for the fourth time.

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI)—Lanky Barry MacKay of Dayton, Ohio, figured to win a quarter-final berth in men's singles in the Wimbledon tennis championships today but the odds were stacked against the only other surviving American, Budge Patty and Gardner Mulloy.

MacKay, who was seeded eighth as the only Yank to get a nod from the tourney officials, faced a dangerous and experienced foe in Indian Davis Cupper Ramasathan Krishnan but was expected to win.

Patty and Mulloy, however, faced seeded stars in their efforts to add one more day of glory to their long careers. The 34-year-old Patty, of Los Angeles and Paris, who won the title here in 1950, clashed with seventh-ranked Sven Davidson, a former U.S. indoor champion; the 44-year-old Mulloy of Denver, Colo., met third-seeded Australia southpaw Mervyn Rose.

Also making a bid for a quarter-final berth today in women's singles was 40-year-old Margaret Osborne DuPont of Wilmington, Del., 1947 Wimbledon champion, who met Fay Muller of Australia. The only other U.S. women still "alive" in singles were defending champion Althea Gibson of New York and unseeded Mimi Arnold of Redwood City, Calif., both of whom already have reached the quarter-finals.

The Adams Affair

The problems raised by political designs can readily be discerned in the recent Sherman Adams escapade. It seems that the man who has been holding the reins of government has been placed in a rather embarrassing position by accepting a sizeable payment for some extensive hotel bills.

If Mr. Adams were just an ordinary citizen and was not in the business of running the show for Mr. Eisenhower, the gift of $2,000 would probably have passed unnoticed. Gifts of this size or larger are exchanged every day of the week without even stirring a ripple of interest so far as the general public is concerned.

But, here we see the top presidential aide accepting largesse from a businessman. And as even the dullest of us wonder, we must ask, what was the $2,000 contribution for?

Surely we cannot be expected to believe that the check which cancelled Mr. Adams' hotel account was delivered simply on the strength of Mr. Adams' claims to personal charm. From all we've been hearing, the man in the White House with his hands on all the little details respecting the administration, including the placement of personnel in the White House staff, the granting of appointments, the opening and reading of letters, and the routine correspondence of a vast and highly centralized government, is not a glamour boy. He is, if anything, a grim realist, not a glad-hander. So the $2,000 becomes ever more mysterious.

Of equal mystery is Mr. Eisenhower's immediate and public position that he wouldn't fire Mr. Adams, come what may. We recall, with some perturbation, the fact that during Mr. Eisenhower's first political campaign, certain persons raised a doubt about Mr. Nixon, Ike's running mate. It seemed that there was a question about Mr. Nixon's financial condition, about his income tax, about certain monies he had earned or received.

Mr. Eisenhower gave Nixon a cold shoulder. And Mr. Nixon, with tears in his eyes, finally established that his record was clean. But even the rumor, so far as Nixon was concerned, caused Ike to shy away, to become distant and formal.

Now, with an obvious and open acceptance of a huge favor on the part of Mr. Adams, Mr. Eisenhower seems to be unmoved entirely. We can only marvel at the change in Mr. Eisenhower during these years, even if all other facts are equal.

Let us suppose that Mr. Adams' position in respect to this $2,000 favor from Mr. Goldfine, is as clean as Richard's record. If it is, then Mr. Adams should be about the business of proving that fact as quickly as is humanly possible. Perhaps in public hearing or in news conferences, Mr. Adams will do so. He will have an opportunity.

Is Mr. Eisenhower upset by what his chief administrator has done? First indications were that Ike was more upset by the disclosures than by the facts disclosed. He let it be known through the ubiquitous Hagerty that Adams would keep right on running the Eisenhower showboat. Ike wanted us to forget the incident.

It is unlikely that the Democrats will forget it. And it is equally unlikely that the public will. This being so, it becomes impossible for the Republicans, who quite frankly haven't been too taken with many of Ike's proposals, to simply look the other way.

There is a slight odor, as of decay, emanating from the White House these days, and there seems to be no willingness within those portals of using any kind of an acceptable disinfectant.

Adams, as we see it, ought to make a complete and humble explanation. And Eisenhower ought to wait until that explanation is made before he clasps to his bosom the man who, more than any other, has brought criticism and condemnation upon his administration.

We know it's only politics. But there is such a thing as a person with political power refusing absolutely to accept any kind of a favor, small or large, that could be construed, even by the giver of the favor, as a bit of leverage for past or future deeds.

We don't believe the public is happy about what they see occurring at 1500 Pennsylvania Avenue.

The Nation's Press

WISDOM FROM THE FAR EAST (Christian Economics)

The problem of government encroachment upon the liberties of the people is as old as history and as widespread as the nations on this earth. In a recent issue of Swatantra, published in Madras, Editor K. R. Malkani says:

"We have been so long subjected to servitude that we hardly feel it when encroachments are made on our liberties. Any person from a democratic country will be appalled by some of the things happening in this country. But all the time we are so jured to subordination that we see no abrogation of our liberties. The British quit on August 15, 1947. The country became free. But the citizenry did not get any more freedom than it enjoyed before. The new government assumed more powers than the British government itself."

Speaking of the fact that "government servants who will write to order" prepare the "nationalized" text books.

Editor Malkani emphasizes the importance of a school system free from government control. The admonition is as much needed here as in India. He said:

"Textbooks are the most influential literature in our country. Can we afford to consign this great instrument for molding the popular mind to the hands of politicians who will exploit it for party purposes? Textbooks must be written by freemen... and they must be selected freely in open competition. No attempt should be made to condition the national mind or to propagandize in favor of the party in power. The stakes involved are the minds of children, and the only ultimate safeguard of integrity is the widest freedom of choice for the school, the teacher, and the parent."

NEW YORK—Madame Chiang Kai-shek, on Communist China: "Whatever Peiping does is at the behest of the Kremlin. It does not suit Russian purpose to invade Taiwan (Formosa) now."

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HOILES
The Police Power

I am continuing to quote from Leonard Read's article in "The Freeman" magazine on the subject of "The Police Power" or "The Clenched Fist." Read writes:

"But first, what in essence is a police force? When correctly defined, is it anything more or less than the striking power in each of us organized into a collective striking power? Striking power can be symbolized in its most rudimentary form by the clenched fist. More advanced symbols would be billy clubs, knives, guns, submarines, fighter planes, atom bombs.

"Examining striking power in its simplest form, what can the clenched fist accomplish? It can hurt or punish; it can penalize, restrain, inhibit, destroy. What, in good conscience, ought to be punished, inhibited, destroyed? Violence would appear to qualify. So would fraud, thievery, misrepresentation.

"What can the clenched fist not accomplish? It cannot discover, invent, produce, create. Nor can its striking power cause others to discover, invent, produce, create. It is, by its very nature, a repellent or defensive, not an attractive or creative, force.

"Consider man's energies. They manifest themselves either destructively or creatively. What defensible code will deny that any individual has a moral right to inhibit the destructive actions of another or others? And, what defensible code will assert that any individual has a moral right to use his striking power against the productive or creative actions of another or others. Isn't it plain that a repellent force cannot be made to create, that it has only this inhibitory quality?

"A police force, it would seem, is nothing but organized striking power employed by a collective. It has no features to distinguish it from the striking power of the individual beyond size, power, and organization. It is merely the clenched fist multiplied, mechanized, organized, embellished with titles, uniforms, and other trappings. "We often hear that government—a collective linked to a police force—has the function of doing for individuals that which they cannot do for themselves. This is correct in a sense, but is open to easy misconstruction. The individual cannot protect himself against pirates or mobs or organized thievery or countless other forms of destructive actions. Government should do for all of us that which we have a right to do, but cannot do, for ourselves.

"However, we have no right as individuals to use striking power against the productive or creative actions of others for the purpose of feathering our own or anyone else's nest. By the same token, we have no rights collectively to use striking power for these purposes. To use a not too far-fetched example: At this juncture in our development we probably would not freely donate enough funds to build a missile that would photograph the other side of the moon. There are among us some persons who want this done. They lack the resources to do it themselves. Therefore, they call on the constabulary to forcibly take the fruits of the labor of others in order to gratify their wish. All subsidies and all federal grants-in-aid, whether to farmers or businesses or to communities or to foreign countries fall into this category—a misconstruction of the idea that government should do for us that which we are unable or unwilling to do for ourselves."

Adams Difficulties Hit GOP Where It Hurts!

WASHINGTON — The stormy difficulties of presidential assistant Sherman Adams are making themselves painfully felt in a particularly sensitive spot in this election year — the campaign pocketbook.

The House Republican Campaign Committee is so hard up that it has had to borrow $200,000.

Representative Richard Simpson, Pa., chairman, was compelled to resort to this unwelcome measure because the committee's one-fund coffers have dwindled to a cash balance of around $25,000.

The borrowed $200,000 is required to make good Simpson's promise to contribute $1,000 next month to every GOP representative and candidate facing a tough election battle. Simpson also had planned to give, later in the summer, $1,000 to other Republican aspirants to the House who are not in such urgent straits.

But whether he will be able to do that is conjectural. In talks with colleagues, Simpson is painting a gloomy picture of the Campaign Committee's finances. Its original $1,200,000 budget, agreed on earlier this year, has had to be cut back to $750,000. In 1956, when President Eisenhower was on the GOP ticket, this committee spent $1,300,000 to elect representatives — and failed to recapture control of the House by a margin of 32 seats.

Two factors are being bluntly blamed by Simpson for this doleful campaign fund situation: (1) The furor over Sherman Adams' gifts, and his "stubborn persistence in hanging on to his White House job; (2) Administration policies that have "disenchanted many businessmen throughout the country."

Foremost among these policies cited by Simpson are opposition to cutting taxes, and "pussyfooting on federal labor legislation."

To offset these pressing electioneering deterrents, Simpson is advocating the immediate ouster of Adams, and several "strongly pro-business" speeches by the President.

"Not in years has it been so difficult to raise campaign funds," says Simpson. "Contributors are scarcer than hen's teeth. We've simply got to restore confidence in the Administration. Unless that is done right away, our campaign won't get off the ground. It will be lost before it starts."

ABANDONED PLAN — Graphically illustrative of the Republicans' divided views about Sherman Adams is what happened to a proposal by National Chairman Meade Alcorn.

At a strategy conference with House leaders, Alcorn urged that GOP members make a series of speeches criticizing Representative Oren Harris (D., Ark.), chairman of the investigating committee, for accepting gifts. Harris has stated he received "some minor ones."

Alcorn's plan was approved, and three Republican representatives were selected for this blasting — Seven Derouin, N. Y., Timothy Sheehan, Ill., and Thomas Curtis, Mo.

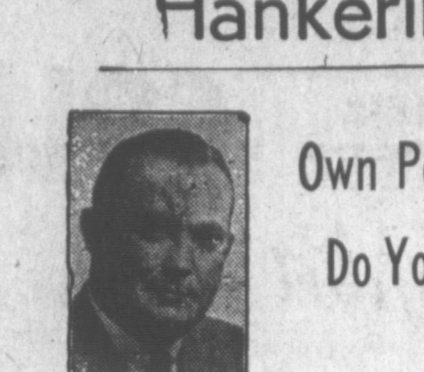

But that is as far as this counterattack got. When other House Republicans heard about it, they turned emphatic thumbs down. Most vehemently opposed was a GOP member of Harris' Committee.

"You're asking for trouble with this scheme," warned the Republican prober. "It's certain to backfire. There is a lot of information about Adams and Goldfine that hasn't been disclosed yet, and it won't help Adams one bit to denounce Harris. Quite the opposite."

On that blunt advice, Alcorn's plan was dropped.

The Doctor Says

By EDGAR P. JORDAN, M. D.

A correspondent writes that he has been troubled for more than a year with a hernia resulting from an accident. This, he says, gives him a great deal of discomfort from time to time in spite of the fact that he wears a truss. Questions concerning hernia arise frequently. Actually a hernia, or a rupture, is a weakness of muscles and other tissues which are supposed to hold the organs inside in place.

A hernia can occur, therefore, in several different regions, but this particular inquiry probably refers to a rupture in the groin, the most common spot for hernia in men. This discussion will therefore be confined to that type.

The first question is what causes a hernia. This is difficult to answer, though it is generally believed that the essential weakness is perhaps inborn or present at birth. However, this weakness may not show up in any serious manner unless some heavy strain has been put on the weakened tissues by lifting something too heavy or by a similar injury.

Once a rupture has developed, it is likely to get gradually worse and may even get so bad that some of the organs lying in the ruptured sac can become strangulated and cause serious complications.

There are three possible lines of treatment for hernia. The simplest is to wear a truss or support which may keep the sac and abdominal contents more or less in place. This may be reasonably satisfactory for a person who does not do heavy labor, though there is always some danger that a sudden strain will cause trouble. Also it is a nuisance.

Nevertheless, there are many people who can wear a truss for many years with fairly good success.

Some years ago the injection treatment was suggested for hernia. The purpose of injection is to irritate the inside of the hernia sac so that a firm scar will form at the point where the hernia bulges and force back the contents of the sac where it belongs.

This method requires several treatments and carries some risk. Also, the scar tissue formed is not always strong enough to bring permanent relief.

Although the injection treatment still has some advocates, it is probably not used as much as it was formerly and appears to be less desirable than surgery in most cases.

Surgery is the most effective treatment. By this means the contents of the sac can be put back in place and a firm covering built up at the weak point so that the organs are kept where they belong.

The hernia occasionally returns after such operations, often because of the carelessness of the patient, but modern methods of operating have improved the technique so much that fewer and fewer recurrences occur.

created benefits in one way or another, whether taxed directly for them or not!

The temptation to set up a dog barbershop at home is irresistible. With clips priced at anywhere from five to seven bucks a throw, and with a poodle dog capable of growing a fine strand of hair overnight, the husband views home clipping as the only alternative to bankruptcy.

A poodle is no sooner clipped than presto! — he comes forth with another expensive batch of wall-to-wall carpeting.

I am positive that no other animal grows hair as fast as a poodle. Other dogs like to bury holes, chase cats, or bite mailmen, but a poodle is only happy when he is curled up in a corner listening to his hair grow.

There is no use telling a wife who owns a poodle that a poodle looks just as well, or better, fussy than when he is trimmed like a fancy hedge. Nor is the argument that a clip makes a poodle look assy any good.

My decision to clip Charlie myself came on the same day as the milk, telephone and light and gas bills. Here was a chance to recoup, and I took it.

I set up shop in the bathroom. "You'll ruin him," Mary said, as I plugged in my electric shaver and, looking straight at Charlie, called, "Next, please!"

Charlie's style of clip calls for a bare break straight down his back. I placed the clippers at the base of his skull and started moving backwards toward his tail. I did not notice that Charlie, to better watch what I was doing, had turned his head and formed himself into a semi-circle. As a result, I cut a curve on his back that would have struck out Babe Ruth on his best day. The swath ended, not at his tail, but at the end of his right hind leg.

"If that's any part of a Dutch clip," Mary said, "I am Queen Wilhelmina!"

I then did his saddle, as I believe it is called in poodle clipping circles. Only I used a side-saddle, like the one Queen Elizabeth, both uses when reviewing her troops on her birthday. It made Charlie appear unbalanced and ready to topple over on one side.

But to correct the saddle would have been to have him as bare as a boiled chestnut.

Charlie would not stand for me messing around with his whickers. I would have had to have a visa to do that — so he is as bearded as Lincoln. And he allowed me to clip only two of his feet. With two trimmed and two shaggy feet, plus his Lincoln whickers and a cockatoo of a top knot, he looks like a fugitive from a fright wig salesman's sample case.

When I had finished Mary cried, Charlie howled, and they set off together for the professional trimmer's. That kindly soul agreed to repair the damage for twice the regular fee.

My next dog will be a Mexican hairless or one of those procelain ones that like to sit on shelves and need only an occasional dusting.

The Adams Affair

The problems raised by political designs can readily be discerned in the recent Sherman Adams escapade. It seems that the man who has been holding the reins of government has been placed in a rather embarrassing position by accepting a sizeable payment for some extensive hotel bills.

If Mr. Adams were just an ordinary citizen and was not in the business of running the show for Mr. Eisenhower, the gift of $2,000 would probably have passed unnoticed. Gifts of this size or larger are exchanged every day of the week without even stirring a ripple of interest so far as the general public is concerned.

But, here we see the top presidential aide accepting largesse from a businessman. And as even the dullest of us wonder, we must ask, what was the $2,000 contribution for?

Surely we cannot be expected to believe that the check which cancelled Mr. Adams' hotel account was delivered simply on the strength of Mr. Adams' claims to personal charm. From all we've been hearing, the man in the White House with his hands on all the little details respecting the administration, including the placement of personnel in the White House staff, the granting of appointments, the opening and reading of letters, and the routine correspondence of a vast and highly centralized government, is not a glamour boy. He is, if anything, a grim realist, not a glad-hander. So the $2,000 becomes ever more mysterious.

Of equal mystery is Mr. Eisenhower's immediate and public position that he wouldn't fire Mr. Adams, come what may. We recall, with some perturbation, the fact that during Mr. Eisenhower's first political campaign, certain persons raised a doubt about Mr. Nixon, Ike's running mate. It seemed that there was a question about Mr. Nixon's financial condition, about his income tax, about certain monies he had earned or received.

Mr. Eisenhower gave Nixon a cold shoulder. And Mr. Nixon, with tears in his eyes, finally established that his record was clean. But even the rumor, so far as Nixon was concerned, caused Ike to shy away, to become distant and formal.

Now, with an obvious and open acceptance of a huge favor on the part of Mr. Adams, Mr. Eisenhower seems to be unmoved entirely. We can only marvel at the change in Mr. Eisenhower during these years, even if all other facts are equal.

Let us suppose that Mr. Adams' position in respect to this $2,000 favor from Mr. Goldfine, is as clean as Richard's record. If it is, then Mr. Adams should be about the business of proving that fact as quickly as is humanly possible. Perhaps in public hearing or in news conferences, Mr. Adams will do so. He will have an opportunity.

Is Mr. Eisenhower upset by what his chief administrator has done? First indications were that Ike was more upset by the disclosures than by the facts disclosed. He let it be known through the ubiquitous Hagerty that Adams would keep right on running the Eisenhower showboat. Ike wanted us to forget the incident.

It is unlikely that the Democrats will forget it. And it is equally unlikely that the public will. This being so, it becomes impossible for the Republicans, who quite frankly haven't been too taken with many of Ike's proposals, to simply look the other way.

There is a slight odor, as of decay, emanating from the White House these days, and there seems to be no willingness within those portals of using any kind of an acceptable disinfectant.

Adams, as we see it, ought to make a complete and humble explanation. And Eisenhower ought to wait until that explanation is made before he clasps to his bosom the man who, more than any other, has brought criticism and condemnation upon his administration.

We know it's only politics. But there is such a thing as a person with political power refusing absolutely to accept any kind of a favor, small or large, that could be construed, even by the giver of the favor, as a bit of leverage for post or future deeds.

We don't believe the public is happy about what they see occurring at 1500 Pennsylvania Avenue.

The Nation's Press

WISDOM FROM THE FAR EAST (Christian Economics)

The problem of government encroachment upon the liberties of the people is as old as history and as widespread as the nations on this earth. In a recent issue of Swatantra, published in Madras, Editor K. R. Malkani says:

"We have been so long subjected to servitude that we hardly feel it when encroachments are made on our liberties. Any person from a democratic country will be appalled by some of the things happening in this country. But all the time we are so inured to subordination that we see no abrogation of our liberties. The British quit on August 15, 1947. The country became free. But the citizenry did not get any more freedom than it enjoyed before. The new government assumed more powers than the British government itself."

Speaking of the fact that government servants who will write to order" prepare the "nationalized" text books,

Editor Malkani emphasizes the importance of a school system free from government control. The admission is as much needed here as in India. He said:

"Textbooks are the most influential literature in our country. Can we afford to consign this great instrument for molding the popular mind to the hands of politicians who will exploit it for party purposes? Textbooks must be written by freemen... and they must be selected freely in open competition. No attempt should be made to condition the national mind or to propagandize in favor of the party in power. The stakes involved are the minds of children, and the only ultimate safeguard of integrity is the widest freedom of choice for the school, the teacher, and the parent."

The Police Power

I am continuing to quote from Leonard Read's article in "The Freeman" magazine, the subject of "The Police Power" or law government should be limited. Under the subhead of "The Jenched Fist," Read writes:

"But first, what in essence is a police force? When correctly defined, is it anything more or less than the striking power in each of us organized into a collective striking power? Striking power can be symbolized in its most rudimentary form by the clenched fist. More advanced symbols would be billy clubs, knives, guns, submarines, fighter planes, atom bombs.

"Examining striking power in its simplest form, what can the clenched fist accomplish? It can hurt or punish; it can penalize, restrain, inhibit, destroy. What, in good conscience, ought to be punished, inhibited, destroyed? Violence would appear to qualify. So would fraud, thievery, misrepresentation.

"What can the clenched fist not accomplish? It cannot discover, invent, produce, create. Nor can its striking power cause others to discover, invent, produce, create. It is, by its very nature, a repellent or defensive, not an attractive or creative, force.

"Consider man's energies. They manifest themselves either destructively or creatively. What defensible code will deny that any individual has a moral right to inhibit the destructive actions of another or others? And, what defensible code will assert that any individual has a moral right to use his striking power against the productive or creative actions of another or others. Isn't it plain that a repellent force cannot be made to create, that it has only this inhibitory quality?"

"A police force, it would seem, is nothing but organized striking power employed by a collective. It has no features to distinguish it from the striking power of the individual beyond size, power, and organization. It is merely the clenched fist multiplied, mechanized, organized, and embellished with titles, uniforms, and other trappings. Its proper boundaries of action are derived from and prescribed by precisely the same principles that pertain to the individuals who compose and organize it. The individual has the moral right to inhibit the destructive actions of another or others. Morally, his striking power is limited to this right. This right is in no sense widened by two or any other number of individuals combining and organizing. Or, so it seems to me.

July 15 will witness an especially colorful event at the historic Marine Barracks in Washington. The occasion will be a sunset parade in honor of the Marine generals who will be in town for their annual events, General Officers' Conference, Marine Sunset parades are always outstanding events but this one will be particularly so as it will be part of a gala reception by Marine Corps Commandant Randolph McC Pate. The Marine Barracks date back to 1801, and the Commandant's House is credited as the oldest in Washington.

FOR REFLECTION

...with JAMES C. MOBERTSEN, President, National Mobilization

A SURVEY OF SOCIAL SECURITY

Congress has liberalized the laws and increased the benefits under Social Security during every Congressional election year since 1948. There is no reason to believe that this year will see any deviation from that record.

Already more than 100 bills to liberalize Social Security benefits have been thrown into the legislative hopper—ranging from mild to radical. At one end, for instance, there would be a slight liberalization of benefits to widows and dependents of disabled workers, while at the other end is a bill by a worker—and by the employer for each of his workers—has increased from $30 to the present $94.50, and by 1975 this maximum will rise to $178.50 each.

And all this is not enough to pay the current cost of the present Social Security benefits. Social Security tax collections are running well below the amount of benefit payments, and the program is expected to show a deficit this year—something that was not supposed to happen for many years. And in the next fiscal year, estimates are that tax collections will amount to $7.1 billion, while benefit payments will total $8.5 billion.

In view of the increasing longevity of people—and if benefits are liberalized still further as many are proposing—it is difficult to estimate what the deficit of operating the System will be in the years ahead—or what it will be costing employees and employers if it is attempted to increase taxes sufficiently to pay for the benefits. Of course, the taxpayers will pay for any in-

Own Poodle? Don't Do Your Own Clipping

By HENRY McLEMORE

Next to keeping an elephant in order to save the price of admission to the zoo, I know of no worse false economy than for the husband of a woman who owns a poodle dog to decide to do his own clipping.

The Doctor Says

By EDGAR P. JORDAN, M.D.

A correspondent writes that he has been troubled for more than a year with a hernia resulting from an accident. This, he says, gives him a great deal of discomfort from time to time in spite of the fact that he wears a truss. Questions concerning hernia arise frequently. Actually a hernia, or a rupture, is a weakness of muscles and other tissues which are supposed to hold the organs inside in place.

A hernia can occur, therefore, in several different regions, but this particular inquiry probably refers to a rupture in the groin, the most common spot for hernia in men. This discussion will therefore be confined to that type.

The first question is what causes a hernia.

This is difficult to answer, though it is generally believed that the essential weakness is perhaps inborn or present at birth. However, this weakness may not show up in any serious manner until some heavy strain has been put on the weakened tissues by lifting something too heavy or by a similar injury.

Once a rupture has developed, it is likely to get gradually worse and may even get so bad that some of the organs lying in the ruptured sac can become strangulated and cause serious complications.

There are three possible lines of treatment for hernia.

The simplest is to wear a truss or support which may keep the sac and abdominal contents more or less in place. This may be reasonably satisfactory for a person who does not do heavy labor, though there is always some danger that a sudden strain will cause trouble. Also it is a nuisance.

Nevertheless, there are many people who can wear a truss for many years with fairly good success.

Some years ago the injection treatment was suggested for hernia. The purpose of injection is to irritate the inside of the hernia sac so that a firm scar will form at the point where the hernia bulges and force back the contents of the sac where it belongs.

This method requires several treatments and carries some risk. Also, the scar tissue formed is not always strong enough to bring permanent relief.

Although the injection treatment still has some advocates, it is probably not used as much as it was formerly and appears to be less desirable than surgery in most cases.

Surgery is the most effective treatment. By this means the contents of the sac can be put back in place and a firm covering built up at the weak point so that the organs are kept where they belong.

The hernia occasionally returns after such operations, often because of the carelessness of the patient, but modern methods of operating have improved the technique so much that fewer and fewer recurrences occur.

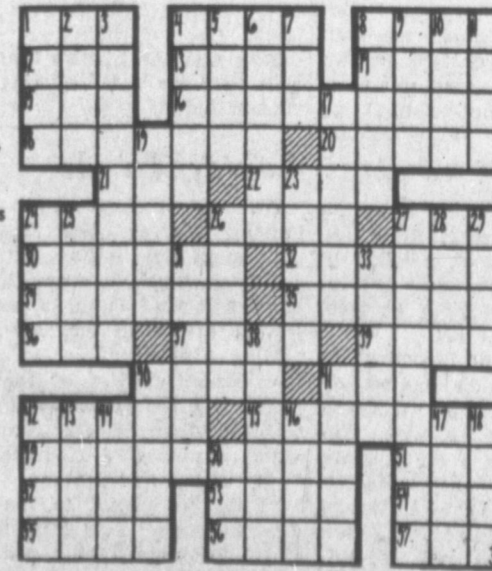

Increased benefits in one way or another, whether taxed directly for them or not!

URBAN AMERICA—The eastern seaboard of the United States (black area on Newsmag) is the largest and most complex urban system in the world. The Greeks, as usual, had a word for it, "megalopolis"—or great city. The American megalopolis, of course, is not one great single city, but a concentration of large and small cities and counties with a metropolitan, or urban, economy. A study of megalopolis by the Twentieth Century Fund shows that similar concentrations are growing to the west of the Appalachians (shaded areas). As modern techniques enable more food to be grown on less land, and as a greater percentage of the population turns to urban activities, the cities are destined to expand. Ellipse on map suggests a vast megalopolis of the future which seems to be shaping up.

Forgot His Boxing Gloves!
CHICAGO (UPI)—Police arrested Edward Murphy, 71, because he failed to wear his boxing gloves to the baseball game at Comiskey Park Sunday.

Murphy is a rabid baseball fan but he also is a skillful pickpocket. Sometime ago he made a deal with police that he would wear boxing gloves if allowed to attend ball games.

Caught bare-handed Sunday, Murphy explained: "When I wear boxing gloves I can't eat popcorn. I like to eat popcorn at baseball games."

Director To Move From Hollywood

Hollywood—Movies
By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent
PARIS (UPI)—Ex-patriate director John Huston, a walking billboard for Hollywood in Europe, is enough to divert a Frenchman's attention from the political crisis.

Togged in checked coat, velvet vest, beret and red polka dot bandana, the stock-legged Huston manages to turn heads of jaded Parisians who previously believed they had seen everything.

The Academy Award-winning director has fled movieland for the good of his soul, the health of his pocketbook and, evidently, to splash some Barnum and Bailey-type color on Europe's landscape.

When he's not making pictures in India, England or France, Huston lives the life of a country squire in County Galway, Ireland, on his 95-acre estate.

"I'm just a country boy," Huston claims. But he failed to signify which country.

Associated With Foreign Movies:
"There was no design in my decision not to make movies in Hollywood. One picture just led to another—and they all seem to be in foreign places."

"I'm the only director who has been type-cast. Whenever a film is to be made abroad producers think of me. Thus, I've made six movies in the past eight years—in Europe, Asia, Africa, Mexico and the South Seas."

Back Stairs At The White House

By DAYTON MOORE
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Back stairs at the White House: Cabinet meetings under President Eisenhower have developed into formal, efficiently-run affairs requiring detailed, thorough advance planning. They now are similar to staff meetings over which Eisenhower presided when he was a top military commander. They are in sharp contrast to the informal cabinet meetings in the Democratic administrations of former presidents Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry S. Truman.

One of Eisenhower's first actions after he became president was to order that the cabinet meetings be put on a business-like basis, a "militarily precise procedure. He set up a new post, cabinet secretary, to see that this was done. He directed that there be an agenda for each meeting. He expanded attendance at cabinet meetings to include regularly in addition to secretaries heading departments, such key government officials as his top aide, Sherman Adams, and defense mobilizer Gordon Gray.

The first cabinet secretary, Maxwell M. Rabb, can be credited with a major role in the development of the present format of cabinet meetings. But 36-year-old, prematurely gray-haired Robert K. Gray, who recently succeeded Rabb, installed one innovation to keep departmental staff aides from running overtime in their briefings. He had installed in the speaker's rostrum in the cabinet room a system of lights for signaling three minutes before, one minute before and the scheduled time for ending a presentation.

The warning lights are only for staff aides, however. The importance of keeping within time limits is known to cabinet members. But they are not subjected to the warning lights. And cabinet members seldom go to the rostrum, preferring to speak from their seats at the long table in the pale green cabinet room.

The President opens the meetings by asking the members to bow their heads in silent prayer. Only once—at the first cabinet meeting—did he do so.

JAPANESE COAL MINERS RESCUED
TAGAWA, Japan (UPI)—Twenty-two Japanese coal miners were rescued from the depths of a flooded shaft in southern Japan today, 71 hours after subterranean waters collapsed a wall and entombed them.

Workers broke into the flooded pit 800 feet from the entrance of the Motosoeda Coal Mine in Kyushu, and brought the trapped miners to safety.

Three men were feared dead, however.

Chuckles In The News

By United Press International
ROCK 'N' ROLL DIES

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI)—Radio station WJQS is giving away its 5,000 rock 'n' roll records and in the future will concentrate on "adult music." General Manager Lew Heilbroner said the disks would be hauled to a department store in a coffin, signifying the death of rock 'n' roll, and given to teen-agers.

A RARE PROFIT
MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—A Roman coin about 1,500 years old was found in a Miami Beach parking meter and it netted the city 20 cents profit. A rare coin dealer declared the ancient two-cent piece virtually worthless but he gave city officials a quarter for it "just to be generous."

MECHANIZE HANDICRAFTS
TOKYO (UPI)—Red China announced today it is trying to achieve the ultimate in modern technology—mechanization of the handicraft industries. Radio meeting over which he presided—did he have it opened with an audible prayer. He then called on Agriculture Secretary Ezra T. Benson, an apostle of the Mormon Church, to ask God's blessing on their meetings.

The President presides without gavel. After the silent prayer, he asks for the first presentation. A cabinet member usually outlines the topic in general terms and introduces a staff aide to make the detailed presentation, often with charts and occasionally with movies or slides. A general discussion usually follows.

But there are no votes in the cabinet. The final decision on acceptance, rejection, modification or postponement for further study is the president's alone.
