Nagy Execution Is Protested

Reds Plan Moves Against 'Deviationists'

By WILLIAM SEXTON
United Press International
LONDON (UPI) — Leaders of the Soviet Communist Party were reported meeting in Moscow to plan drastic moves against Marshal Tito and any "deviationists" who might follow the path of executed Hungarian Premier Imre Nagy.

Execution of the leaders of Hungary's anti-Communist revolution brought new and angry repercussions throughout the world. There were riots and protests marches in European cities, condemnation by free nations and shock in neutralist India.

Students in Bern, Switzerland, staged a two-hour torchlight parade through the capital Wednesday night. Norwegian students demonstrated in front of the Russian Embassy and Hungarian Legation in Oslo. The Hungarian Students Union called for a protest march in London today.

Heralded by Red China

Only Communist China referred to the Nagy execution as "welcome news." It coupled this announcement with one of its most savage attacks yet on Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia — certain to be one of the main topics of discussion at the Moscow meeting of the Communist Party Central Committee.

Authoritative reports reaching London said the execution of Nagy was closely connected with the Moscow reported Communist meeting on Tito who has defied the Kremlin with his own brand of "independent Communism."

Yugoslavia has denounced the Nagy execution as a gigantic double-cross.

Announcement of the death of Nagy and three co-patriots in Hungary's abortive fight for freedom was generally believed to herald the revival of the Stalinist purges at their worst.

Polish Watch
Poles were watching closely the reported Moscow meeting. A United Press International dispatch from Warsaw today said the Nagy execution had brought Poland to its most perilous position since Poland's own limited rebellion in October, 1956.

Reports reaching Vienna from Budapest said the Communist authorities there had imposed iron security measures to prevent demonstrations and strengthened the border guard to prevent further flights from Hungary.

A Tokyo dispatch said Peiping's joy at the Nagy execution was likely to cost it friends in Asia.

Italy recalled her ambassador from Budapest in what could be a prelude to severing diplomatic relations with the Communist country.

Blakley Sets Visits Friday

William A. Blakley's Gray County campaign manager, Robert Mack, invites all Pampans to a 10 a.m. reception tomorrow in the Gray County Court Room. Blakley, who will be in from Amarillo, is seeking the Democratic nomination to the US Senate.

Blakley was a US Senator by appointment after Price Daniel resigned. He served until Daniel's successor was elected. This is his first try for an elected public office.

Politics is Blakley's latest endeavor. He has been successful in accounting, law, ranching and business.

Trujillo Will Not Allow US Aid, Bases

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, D. R. (UPI)—The Dominican Congress, irked by American criticism, has voted to reject $600,000 worth of U.S. military aid and to revoke America's right to operate missile-tracking and radio-navigation stations in the Republic.

Both houses of the Legislature adopted a resolution urging these actions on the government Wednesday, about 24 hours after it had ordered 30 Dominicans attending U.S. military schools to return home.

The anti-American gesture was a reaction to recent criticism inspired by reports of free spending by Lt. Gen. Rafael Trujillo Jr., son of the strongman who has dominated Dominican politics for 29 years.

(Some U.S. congressmen, noting that the $600,000 annual allowance from which young Trujillo bought sports cars and fur coats for such Hollywood beauties as Zsa Zsa Gabor and Kim Novak exactly equalled the sum earmarked as military aid for the Dominican Republic, had suggested a review of the program.)

Dominican leaders were incensed in particular by the announcement that young Trujillo had flunked out of the U.S. Command and General Staff College.

The resolution adopted by Congress charged that the equipment this country was to have received under the military-aid program would have been used "exclusively for U.S. interests and its collective security plans."

"It is evident that the Dominican Republic had not signed a military assistance agreement with the United States, no (U.S.) congressmen would have attacked the Dominican Republic in terms offensive to the national dignity," the resolution said.

Senate Will Act Upon Tax Rates

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate was expected to complete action today on a bill to extend present corporation and excise tax rates for another year.

The administration and top Democratic leaders in Congress have agreed taxes should not be cut. The measure is expected to win Senate approval. In the face of such opposition, Sen. George A. Smathers (D-Fla.) all but conceded defeat for his effort to amend the bill in order to repeal federal freight and passenger taxes.

Smathers, a member of the Senate Finance Committee, wanted to end the wartime transportation levies to help the nation's hard-pressed railroads. But he said his drive appeared to be "in great danger."

Other congressional developments:

Taxes: The Senate backed President Eisenhower's no-tax-cut policy by rejecting 85 to 23 a proposal to reduce personal, excise and corporation taxes by six billion dollars.

Foreign Aid: House-Senate conferees completed a bill authorizing $3,675,000,000 in foreign aid funds for the fiscal year starting July 1.

Rivers and Harbors: The House passed a $1,556,746,000 revised version of the river and harbors bill which President Eisenhower vetoed two months ago.

Dag Arrives In Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI)—U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold arrived here today and plunged immediately into the "hard work" of restoring peace before Lebanon asks for Anglo-American intervention in its civil war.

Hammarskjold's job was to help set up a watchdog commission created last week by the U.N. Security Council to "insure" Lebanon against subversion by the United Arab Republic. But he was aware that any appeal for U.S. and British help could bring Russia into a Middle East war.

Hammarskjold ran into opposition from rebel leaders who seek to overthrow the pro-Western government of President Camille Chamoun. Opposition leader Saeb Salam said the rebels would fight intervention by the Anglo-American can or by any "international police force" with all the means at our disposal.

The anti-Chamoun forces said they would give Hammarskjold a note today saying they considered the presence of U.N. observers here as "irrelevant" and an "interference in Lebanese internal affairs."

New Radar 'Fence' Ordered

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Defense Department today ordered immediate construction of a new radar "fence" capable of detecting any silent military or scientific satellites flying as high as 1,000 miles across the United States.

"By the end of this year," a department spokesman said, the United States should be able to detect and track "all satellites" over this country whether or not they give out radio signals.

At present, Russian satellites are almost impossible to detect, except visually if their radars are not working.

Roy W. Johnson, director of the Pentagon's Advanced Research Projects Agency, ordered construction and operation of radar detection facilities on the U.S. East and West coasts by the Naval Research Laboratory. These will be "beefed up" minitrack stations now established at San Diego, Calif., and Blossom Point, Md.

In addition, a powerful radar transmitter will be built at Fort Worth, Tex., and receivers at White Sands, N.M., and at another location not yet chosen.

Knowland In Comment On Adams

By JAMES BAAR
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland said today President Eisenhower should "carefully weigh" whether Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams has "hurt his usefulness" by taking gifts from Bernard Goldfine.

The Californian made this observation at a news conference as new demands came from Republican members of Congress for Adams' resignation.

Knowland, who is running for governor of California, did not go that far. Asked if he thought Adams should quit, he said:

"I think this is something which the President and Governor Adams should carefully weigh as to whether Adams has so hurt his usefulness that it might be harmful to the broad policies which the President must carry out in the remaining two years of his administration."

GOP Leaders Meet

Knowland said he had "no way of knowing what effect if any" the Adams situation would have on the Republican Party's chances in the November election.

"But I doubt if it would help any," he said.

Rep. Peter F. Mack Jr. (D-Ill.) demanded that the Justice Department investigate the presidential side's relations with Goldfine. The department said it had no comment on Mack's statement.

Eisenhower spent an hour and 20 minutes with 43 Republican state chairmen and other party leaders, many of whom are concerned about the political effect of the Adams disclosures.

But those at the meeting reported he said nothing about his side and none of the leaders asked him any questions on the subject.

Mack, a member of the subcommittee investigating Adams and Goldfine, said the Justice Department must investigate the case immediately.

Simultaneously it was learned House staff investigators would like to see Goldfine's tax returns to find out if he claimed business deductions for gifts to Presidential Assistant Adams and others.

Adams has described the gifts as family exchanges.

It was not known whether the investigators have taken formal steps to seek Goldfine's tax files. President Eisenhower said "he would have to consult Attorney

WHEAT STUBBLE BURNS

Pampa firemen battle a fire on S. Hobart which almost reached the Pampa Lumber Company. The fire was thought to have been started by some burning trash. It burned two acres of wheat stubble and three acres of pasture just south and east of the Harvester Bowl.

Floods Hit Elsewhere

Rains Totals .31 Inch Here

The dust blew and the rains came... that's what Pampa and Top of Texas residents were treated to in the way of weather last night. Blowing dust cut visibility to zero in some parts of Pampa and then the rains set in. The rain gauge atop the Pampa News building recorded .31 of an inch of moisture.

County Agent Ralph Thomas had no reports of damage to wheat crops this morning. The rains will make the wheat harder to catch on fire. Pampa firemen answered a call five miles east of town about 8:55 p.m. yesterday and found that lightning had struck a wheat field but the heavy rains had put it out and there was no damage.

Wet fields may slow up the harvest temporarily, however.

West of Shamrock, in the Papan community, 48 of an inch of rain was received. Keiton measured 1.10 inches, in the Bethel community one inch was recorded and Lefors received .18 of an inch, along with high winds. White Deer received a trace of rain and Miami a half-inch with high winds.

About 150 Girl Scouts from Pampa were camped out in tents last night at camp Mel Davis, east of Lefors. The girls reported that no tents were blown down and that they "stuck out the bad weather."

The Top of Texas weather forecast calls for partly cloudy skies and warm through tomorrow. Widely scattered afternoon and evening thundershowers. Low tonight, 71, and the high tomorrow, 97.

Members of the Top of Texas Girls Riding Club and the Pampa Sub Deb and Kit Kat clubs will "go out of their way" to distribute advertising for the TOT Rodeo, the Rodeo office reports.

July 10, the girls will pile into five cars and head for neighboring towns to hand out window placards and bumper signs.

The Rodeo office will open in the Pampa Hotel Lobby July 28. Meanwhile, all business will be handled through the office in the Pampa Chamber of Commerce.

Merchants complimentary tickets will be available there starting tomorrow for those who would like to use them. The office emphasizes that unused complimentary tickets will not be included in the charge.

New lights in the arena will be "in shape" by the end of the week.

Local Wheat Field Fire Is Contained

What started out to be a trash fire ended up a mild pasture and wheat stubble fire here yesterday and the Pampa Fire Department, with the help of volunteers, battled the blaze for about three hours.

The fire was thought to have started from a burning scrap lumber pile behind the Harvester Bowl, leaped to a stubble field on the Jake Osborne place at the south edge of the city limits and quickly spread northeastward, fanned by a 20-mile-an-hour south-westerly wind.

At one time, the Pampa Lumber Co., owned by Osborne, his home, barns and machinery as well as the Harvester Bowl itself, were endangered by the flames.

Two trucks of the Pampa Fire Department, along with concrete mixing units carrying water and several volunteer fire fighters with wet sacks got the flames under control about 2:30 p.m. but it wasn't until about 3:30 p.m. that all of the isolated fires were put out.

Smoke billowed about 40 feet in the air and could be seen from all over Pampa. Firemen and volunteers had to work frantically to keep the flames from engulfing the lumber firm and from crossing the road to another big pasture.

The only damage reported by the Fire Department was destruction of about two acres of wheat stubble and three acres of pasture.

National Wheat Referendum Friday

By GAYLORD P. GODWIN
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Wheat farmers in 38 states will vote Friday in a national referendum to determine whether their 1959 crop shall be under rigid government marketing controls for the sixth consecutive year.

The Agriculture Department, as usual, has taken no stand for or against controls for the 1959 crop. The department holds it is strictly up to farmers to decide. Officials are confident, however, of a total vote endorsing controls.

From 900,000 to one million farmers are eligible to vote in the polling booths set up and supervised by county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation offices throughout the commercial wheat area. Based on past performance, probably fewer than 250,000 will vote.

A majority of two-thirds of those voting must approve quotas before they can become effective for the 1959 season. Heretofore farmers have approved quotas handily for the five preceding seasons. Only four states—New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia—failed to approve quotas for the 1958 crop by a two-thirds majority. Of these only Ohio is a major wheat-producing state. Such big wheat states as Kansas, Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, Nebraska, Texas and Oklahoma racked up whopping majorities for quotas for the 1958 crop.

If quotas are approved, producers in commercial wheat states who stay within their acreage allotment will be eligible for the full level of price support of $1.81 a bushel on their entire production. Any "excess" wheat—that grown on acreage exceeding farm allotments—will be subject to quota penalties of 45 per cent of the May 1, 1959, parity rate. Additionally, anyone exceeding acreage allotments will not be eligible for price support.

If quotas are not approved there will be no marketing quota penalties. Acreage allotments will remain in effect by law and price support will drop to 80 per cent of parity for producers who stay within their acreage allotments. Department officials have estimated 50 per cent of parity for the 1959 crop will be about $1.20 a bushel.

There is a record wheat supply in prospect. There is a possibility the wheat carry over on July 1, 1959, will be equal to a whole year's harvest. Market observers have estimated wheat will be in sufficient supply to bring cash prices crashing down if there is no support level to stop them.

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ Polls Open At 8 A.M.

The Gray County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation office has reported that polling places in the county for the wheat marketing quota referendum will open at 8 a.m. tomorrow and close at 7 p.m.

Wheat farmers may vote at the Courthouse in Pampa, McLean's City Hall, Laketon Store and Grandview School.

The office urged all wheat producers to vote. Both husbands and wives are eligible, it pointed out.

RAINS

Fowlerton, a town of about 300 persons in LaSalle county, is about 30 miles downstream from Frio State Park.

The weather bureau said evacuations would undoubtedly be forced at Fowlerton Friday night when the crest, 17 feet above flood stage, strikes the town.

Thunderstorms were forecast for wide areas of Texas today, particularly along the coastal area. However, forecasters said the rain would have little or no effect on the flooding rivers.

No other towns were in danger as the swollen rivers pushed their crests toward the Gulf of Mexico. At Friotown, upriver from Derby, Mrs. Bryan Roberts reported the Frio and Hondo Creek a mile to a mile and a half wide. The giant crest will threaten a railroad bridge at Derby, but the town itself will remain safe.

The Nueces River was reported falling above Crystal City, where water early today was eight to 10 feet over a bridge north of the town. Turkey Creek was at 11 feet, five over flood stage, and expected to reach 14 feet south of Crystal City.

A crest of the Nueces of 20 feet was predicted at Cotulla, after heavy rains in the Carrizo Springs area Wednesday and the previous day forced a sharp rise in the river below Crystal City.

A crest of 25.2 feet was expected near Asherton. Extensive flooding was forecast on the Frio as far south as Calhoun, where it was expected to crest 18 feet above flood stage by June 25.

Scattered showers fell through coastal sections and South Texas last night, but amounts were generally less than .10 of an inch.

Heavy rain fell today along a stationary front extended from Ardmore, Okla., to Dalhart, Tex., but mostly in Oklahoma.

Low temperatures early today ranged from 60 at Dalhart to 82 at Galveston and Corpus Christi. A squall line thundered over Wichita Falls at midnight, pelting the area from Wichita Falls north into Oklahoma with heavy rains.

Weathermen estimated wind velocity was up to 36 m.p.h. and said a large electrical storm accompanied the squalls. No damages were reported.

A hailstorm struck west of Dumas in the Texas Panhandle Wednesday with the chunks described as quite heavy, but small in size.

The U.S. Weather Bureau issued a severe weather alert for portions of North Texas and southern Oklahoma Wednesday night.

A small twister hit at Seiling, Okla., while the warning was in effect. The tornado knocked over several outbuildings and small farm buildings, but there were no reports of injuries.

Indonesian Army Out On Offensive

JAKARTA, Indonesia (UPI)—The Army announced today that the main spearhead of its "end-of-the-war" offensive is thrusting toward Menado, its communications secured by the capture of the rebels' last major port on Celebes Island.

A communique said the main force, which landed Monday at Kema, advanced four miles—about a fifth of the distance to the rebel capital—on that day. The advance brought it to the village of Kasar. The communique mentioned the first casualties of the campaign—two rebels killed at Kasar and 27 captured at Kema.

While the main spearhead drove on Menado, a smaller force which landed a week earlier closed in on Bitung, former center of the rebels flourishing barter trade.

Grumbling About Benson Reduced

By BERNARD BRENNER
UPI Farm Editor

Cedar Rapids, Iowa farm equipment dealer Ray Happel said that back in 1955 and 1956 most farmers in his corn, hog and cattle area through Agriculture Secretary Ezra Benson was wrong.

But today, Happel said, with livestock prices up, grumbling about Benson has reduced, and sales of his line of farm equipment are up about 7 per cent this year.

In 1955 and 1956, Happel had to 14 men, but today he has 19 on the payroll.

Everett Ferguson, a Lisbon, Iowa, farmer, said "If prices stay up where they are, we'll be better off than we were last year."

The staff of his dealership down Cattle, hog and dairy producer Donald Smith of Stanwood, Iowa, said "So far this year on cattle we've had more margin than for a long time. There may be a little slackening, but it will still be a pretty good price."

But some cattle feeders, like

Floyd Booth of Marion, Iowa, were more concerned with the cost of replacing feeder stock than with the profits they've made on sales.

Booth was getting ready to move a lot of cattle that cost about $21 a hundred last fall. He hopes to sell for substantially over that figure, but he's afraid his replacements will cost as much or more as the cattle he sells.

But R. V. Eppard, a Fort Dodge machinery dealer who says his sales are up 50 per cent this year, says he hasn't noticed any pickup in Benson's popularity with farmers in his area.

A Fort Dodge banker who does most of his business with farmers reported most cash grain growers are pinched for money.

'Let's Pretend' Clothes Made For Children

By GAY FAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — I knew something had been missing from my generally happy childhood. It was my own set of "let's pretend" clothes. I had to settle for my mother's discarded high heels and last year's hat when rainy day play among my set featured the fascinating game of pretending to be grown up.

Today's generation is luckier, and also is creating a whole new sideline for the novelty manufacturers. "Play-like" clothes, aping mamma's right to the chemise and "mink" stole have come to market and are selling like Cadillacs in Texas.

It all started a few months ago when one enterprising manufacturer began making high-heeled pumps, according to a spokesman for one of the many stores stocking the make-believe items. From the plastic shoes, stockings just like mom's were a natural follow-up.

Now, the well-dressed make-believer can have a fringed chemise right out of the 1920s, with bag to match, long ropes of beads, fake fur stole, Breton hat with tulle trim, even headbands.

"I won't be surprised if the small fry start demanding wigs like their mother's," said the buyer for one New York department store. "And of course by fall, let's pretend will have adopted the trapeze."

Women's Wear Daily, the trade publication, said several manufacturers have climbed on the bandwagon. And the clothes are such "exclusives" made for her department, including a white bridal dress and well to capitalize on the summer marrying season.

FRENCH BEAUTY — Named "Miss Biscuit" in a recent beauty contest is 20-year-old Parisienne Annie Dourin, who poses in the city's famed Bois de Boulogne park.

IT'S THE LAW

Unsolved Problems
For centuries men wanted perfect laws. For them, change was sacrilege.

For example, the Romans enjoyed the fiction that their law merely interpreted their first, changeless, Ten Tables.

Today we know that no lawgivers can foresee how their laws may fall, and so we provide for basic changes in our Constitution, and by two methods:

1. By a two-thirds vote of each House, Congress may send a proposed amendment to the state legislatures for ratification.

2. As yet unused, the second method would allow Congress "on the application of the legislatures of two-thirds of the several states" to call a convention for proposing an amendment.

Trying to follow the second method, the lawmakers of 32 states — or two-thirds of them — have approved resolutions for a constitutional amendment to limit income taxes. You might think that Congress would have to call the convention to amend the Constitution.

But meantime, eleven states have turned around and rescinded their approval; and governors of two other states have vetoed the legislative acts.

Query: Have two-thirds of the legislatures applied to "call a convention"? Are all the state resolutions now in force? And if so, how does one make Congress call the convention? No Founding Father, it seems, had foreseen such a problem.

Even the U.S. Supreme Court in 1938 found such questions "political" and not "subject to judicial guidance."

Maybe each age should have such problem to think through. They might teach that even our best laws can stand study and improvement.

(This column, prepared by the State Bar of Texas, is written to inform — not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret an law without the aid of an attorney who is fully advised concerning the facts involved, because a slight variance in facts may change the application of the law.)

Learn of U. S. Law

Recently, as hearings began in Washington on the deterioration of U. S. relations with Latin America, this latest group of unofficial ambassadors sailed for home. Next fall another group will take their place.

Armed with detailed knowledge of U. S. laws about oil operations, taxes, tariffs, and other aspects of trade, the lawyers will be in a better position to smooth the day to day trade activities with Latin America, where the U. S. now exports as much as to Europe.

Several lawyers from earlier groups which studied at SMU already have reached key posts throughout Latin America. With their U. S. training, they are well equipped to counteract the bad feeling demonstrated by stone-throwing students south of the border.

DALLAS (UPI) — While angry mobs made headlines throwing stones at Vice-President Nixon in South American last month, a group in Texas was doing something to build better relations between the Americas.

The group here were hand-picked young lawyers from Mexico, Central and South America. They were taking a year's special study at Southern Methodist University in U. S. law, which is different from their own.

Purpose of this technical study is to teach men destined for key government and business offices about the laws of other Western Hemisphere countries, as a framework for mutual understanding.

A BULLY IDEA—This is an architect's sketch of the proposed memorial to Theodore Roosevelt, 26th president of the United States. The memorial is to be erected on Theodore Roosevelt Island in the Potomac River in Washington as part of a national observance in 1958 of the 100th anniversary of his birth. The island was purchased by the Theodore Roosevelt Association in 1931 and presented to the nation as a park. A huge armillary, or celestial sphere, some 40 or 50 feet in diameter, will dominate a court in the center of the island. Around the borders of the court will be placed 12 large granite panels, bearing inscriptions from Roosevelt's writings on government. The District of Columbia this year will move its traditional 4th of July fireworks display from the Washington Monument to the island.

Light, Cool Versions Of Summer Pies That's Eating Pleasure For Your Guys

COOL VERSIONS—"Summer Chocolate Pie" and "Black Bottom Pie" are two light, cool versions of your man's favorite dessert. There is no baking required. The refrigerator does it!

Scorching summer days naturally call for a cooling dessert. Fortunately, the cook can keep it cool and still satisfy the craving for pie that comes from the men of the family.

The following two recipes produce summer pies which are light and delicate in flavor. They fulfill that popular request for chocolate as well. Not only are the pies a delight for the family, but they serve as praise-winning desserts when entertaining friends.

The virtue of "Summer Chocolate Pie" and "Black Bottom Pie" is there's no heating the oven. The cook keeps cool and lets the refrigerator do the "baking". Crumb crusts are used in both recipes. The completed pies are chilled in the refrigerator.

SUMMER CHOCOLATE PIE
1 cup vanilla cookie crumbs
1/2 cup finely chopped pecans
2 tablespoons Imperial Granulated Sugar
2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
1 tablespoon (1 envelope) unflavored gelatin
1/4 cup cold water
2 squares (2 oz.) unsweetened chocolate
1 cup milk
2 eggs, separated
1/2 teaspoon salt

1/2 cup Imperial Granulated Sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
Whipped cream

(1) Combine cookie crumbs, nuts and Imperial Granulated Sugar; blend with butter. Spread over bottom and sides of 9" pie pan; press firmly with back of spoon; chill.

(2) Soften gelatin in cold water. Place chocolate and milk in top of double boiler; stir over boiling water till chocolate melts. Beat till smooth; stir in softened gelatin. Add salt to egg yolks; beat till thick; gradually add 1/4 cup Imperial Granulated Sugar. Slowly add chocolate mixture; stir until blended; chill till slightly thickened.

(3) Beat egg whites until stiff, but not dry; gradually add remaining 1/4 cup Imperial Granulated Sugar. Add vanilla to chilled chocolate mixture and fold in egg whites. Pour into crumb crust and chill. Remove from refrigerator 15 minutes before serving. Spoon whipped cream in ring on top and garnish with pecan halves.

BLACK BOTTOM PIE
1 9" graham cracker crumb crust
2 cups Imperial Granulated

Tasty Refreshment With Essential Milk

As a bonus to nourishing meals, mothers can plan tasty refreshments built around the important essentials of milk. For example, try this Coconut Meringue Bar, enriched with instant nonfat dry milk, and served with Banana-Cinnamon Malt.

Most cookie recipes have little if any milk among the ingredients. Coconut Meringue Bars have the equivalent of almost three cups of nonfat milk. On a quart of liquefied instant nonfat dry milk is called for in the Banana-Cinnamon Malt.

COCONUT MERINGUE BARS
(Makes 18 (1 1/2 x 2-inch) bars)
1/2 cup sifted flour
1/2 cup instant Starlac nonfat dry milk powder
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
1/2 cup butter
1 cup coconut
2 egg yolks, beaten
2 egg whites
1 cup brown sugar, firmly packed

Place flour, instant Starlac nonfat dry milk powder, baking powder, brown sugar and butter in a bowl; cut with pastry blender or 2 knives until crumbly. Add coconut; stir in egg yolks. Pack firmly into buttered 9-inch square baking dish. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Add sugar gradually; continue beating until glossy (about 3 minutes). Spread over coconut mixture and swirl with knife to make desired pattern. Bake in slow oven (325 degrees F.) about 30 minutes, or until meringue is firm and lightly browned. Cool in pan. Cut into bars.

BANANA-CINNAMON MALT
(Makes about 6 8 oz. servings)
4 medium-size bananas
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1/2 cup natural flavor malted milk powder
1 1/2 teaspoons cinnamon
1 quart liquefied instant Starlac nonfat dry milk, chilled
Put bananas, lemon juice, malted milk powder and cinnamon in large bowl. Mash bananas with fork, blending all ingredients. Stir in liquefied instant Starlac nonfat dry milk. Chill and serve. If desired, garnish each serving with banana slice and mint leaves.

PICNIC FOR FUN

Does a bright summer day, or any sunny weekend just naturally draw you outdoors? If so, we'll bet that you'd go on a picnic at the drop of a hat, and that to you, all food tastes best when cooked and eaten outdoors. Modern picnic foods and equipment are for you. Get a portable charcoal grill so any scenic spot can become your kitchen; keep a supply of paper plates and cups on hand, so you can pack up (and clean up) in a jiffy. And keep your menus simple, for picnics should be fun.

Prepare Something Easy
This means that picnic foods should be easy to prepare. Of course, they must be filling too, for that outdoor air seems to bring on hearty appetites. Cheeseburger Dogs are just such an easy, but filling picnic food—and a bit unusual to intrigue the picnickers. To make them, a seasoned ground meat mixture is rolled around sticks of cheese—choose your favorite, from mild to sharp cheddar or Swiss. When the Cheeseburger Dogs are charcoal grilled, the meat cooks through quickly, while the cheese melts to give a deliciously soft filling. Serve them on heated buttered weiner buns, for a new family favorite.

We suggest the Cheeseburger Dogs be made ahead of time, wrapped individually in foil or transparent wrap and frozen. Then when someone suggests a spur of the moment picnic, they'll be ready to go. The frozen "dogs" can be packed in the picnic basket to thaw on the way. The rest of the picnic menu can be prepared and packed in short order. Ask the children to help by buttering the buns and washing the fresh fruit, while you prepare the relishes. Add a bag of potato chips, cookies, and of course milk for everyone to drink; if you'll take both chocolate and plain, then each person can have his choice.

Cheeseburger Dogs
1 pound ground beef
1/2 cup rolled oats (uncooked)
2 tablespoons minced onion
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/2 teaspoon monosodium glutamate
1/2 cup milk
2-3 drops liquid smoke (optional)
2 strips (4 1/4 x 1/2 x 1/4 inches) processed American cheese (1/4 pound)

Combine ground beef, rolled oats, onion, salt, pepper, monosodium glutamate, milk and liquid smoke and mix thoroughly. Chill in refrigerator 15 minutes. Divide into 8 equal portions. Roll each portion of meat, with rolling pin, between 2 sheets of waxed paper into a piece 8 x 5 inches. Remove top sheet of waxed paper. Place cheese strip at wide edge of meat and roll cheese up in meat. Seal ends and edges well. Wrap each in a sheet of aluminum foil or transparent wrap and freeze. Carry frozen cheeseburger dogs to picnic, letting them defrost on the way. Grill cheeseburgers over glowing coals, turning as necessary to brown on all sides. Serve in long sandwich buns. Makes 8 cheeseburger dogs.

Turn Kitchen Into Home Soda Shoppe

Turning the kitchen counter into a soda fountain can be loads of fun, and so easy on the budget, too. Today, when thrift and economy have again become important words in most homemakers' vocabulary, the home-made ice cream soda just fits the bill. Making ice cream sodas at home is fun for the kids, keeps them home, and is more economical than buying them at the corner drug store or ice cream parlor. All that is needed is a half gallon of the cream in the freezer, and a handy six-pack of soda on the shelf. The six-pack is easy to carry and store, and comes in two convenient sizes, twelve-ounce and six-ounce. The six-ounce bottle is perfect for one ice cream soda, and the twelve-ounce for two sodas—no waste or left-over to go flat. Using six ounces of soda, and a half cup scoop of pre-packaged ice cream, one home-made ice cream soda will cost approximately eleven and a half cents, according to R. W. Lindquist, sales manager for carbonated beverage cartons at Continental Can Company. In contrast to this, buying one at a fountain or drive-in costs about thirty-five cents. With the warm weather here, one soda per day, per child, is about par—just figure the savings. Feature a "special" each week in the home ice cream parlor. Just change the flavor of the ice cream and the soda flavor of the six-pack. Makes for variety and lots of fun for all concerned.

PEACETIME BLOCKBUSTER—Study this picture. Then close your eyes and imagine that all the houses inside the jagged line were suddenly wiped off the neighborhood map. In effect that is what will happen unless YOU and all other American drivers exercise the greatest of caution on the forthcoming three-day Fourth of July weekend. On the three-day Memorial Day weekend the traffic death toll was 380, ac-ording to the National Safety Council records. If each four individuals were a family unit, living in a home, then 95 houses such as those pictured above would have been standing empty. This is a harsh way to visualize the horror that takes place on the nation's highways each holiday. But perhaps if it could be truly imagined in these terms, there might be less fatalities to count when the Fourth holiday ends.

Real Crisis Faces Communist World

Foreign News Commentary
By CHARLES M. MCCANN
UPI Foreign News Analyst

The Communist world apparently is involved in its biggest crisis since the Polish and Hungarian revolts of 1956. The cause of the crisis, it is indicated, is that the Soviet Russian and Chinese Communist regimes have reason to be alarmed over the situation both in their countries and in the Soviet satellite states. One indication of the crisis is the execution of former Premier Imre Nagy and Gen. Pal Maleter, leaders of the Hungarian revolt. Another is the current savage attack by the Russian and Chinese Communists on President Tito of Yugoslavia because of his determination to maintain his independence. That these two developments are linked is made evident by the indirect allegation that Tito permitted Nagy to continue plotting against "The Hungarian People's Republic" while he was a refugee in the Yugoslav embassy in Budapest after Russia's Red army intervened to crush the revolt. The most plausible explanation of the executions and the new attack on Tito is that they are due to the state of affairs in the Communist-ruled countries. Remains Mystery Just what this state of affairs may be remains a mystery. It has been reported that both Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev and Chinese Communist leader Mao Tse-Tung are under attack by the "Stalinists" in their parties, the men who favor a harsh dictatorship. Both Russia and China are facing difficult economic situations. Part of the Russian situation is Khrushchev's agricultural and industrial program. But the party dissensions and the economic situations are not alone sufficient to explain the present developments. It may well be that the attack on Tito and the executions are due to political conditions in the Communist-ruled countries. There is no doubt that there is a surge of dissatisfaction not only among the people at large but in the Communist parties themselves. That is due primarily to Khrushchev's disastrous action in repudiating the policies of Stalin, and in promising the Russian people a new deal, and Mao's action in following his example. Unrest Widespread This dissatisfaction extends to all of the Soviet satellite countries. In ordering the executions, Khrushchev must have allowed for the shocked reaction to them from countries all over the free world, including "neutralist" India. He must have foreseen that the brutal action, a reversion to the worst type of Stalinist terrorism, might profoundly prejudice his chance of getting President Eisenhower and other allied leaders into a "summit" meeting. Whatever lies behind the executions and the attack on Tito there is every indication that there is a real crisis. Read The News Classified Ads.

Maine Senate Fight This Fall Forms

PORTLAND, Maine (UPI)—Republican Sen. Frederick G. Payne, a man in a vicuna coat, and Edmund S. Muskie, who became Maine's first Democratic governor in 20 years, will fight it out for Payne's Senate seat in September. Payne easily won renomination in Monday's "early bird" primaries, whipping businessman Herman D. Sahagian of Belgrade. Muskie was unopposed for the Democratic nomination.

The showdown battle between the two veteran politicians, considered two of the state's best vote getters in recent years, will come Sept. 8 in the last of Maine's "first-in-the-nation" elections. The state is abandoning its famous "weathervane" election after this year.

Payne swept to an overwhelming victory although his recent disclosure that he had accepted an expensive vicuna coat from Boston industrialist Bernard Goldfine, who is under fire from a congressional committee investigating government regulatory agencies, became a last minute campaign issue. Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams received similar gifts from Goldfine, according to the committee.

Moody Estate Is Sued

GALVESTON, Tex. (UPI)—The widow of the late Shearn Moody has filed a $20 million law suit against the estate of W. L. Moody Jr., who died in 1954 leaving a $400 million empire.

The suit was filed in 10th district court by Mrs. Frances Moody Newman, widow of Moody's late son, Shearn Moody. It was the largest suit yet filed in the hotly-contested legal battle over Moody's millions.

The 33-page petition was filed by Houston attorney Leon Jaworski and seeks a one-half interest in the banking firm of W. L. Moody & Son, bankers, incorporated. The bank is one of the few private banks in the nation and has no federal or state jurisdiction over it. It is estimated to be worth $40 million.

The suit contends that W. L. Moody Jr. and his son, Shearn, were partners in the bank. It contends that Shearn Moody willed his half interest to his widow after his death in 1936. But the will also provided that W. L. Moody Jr. could buy Shearn's interest and place proceeds of the sale into Shearn's estate after his death.

Mrs. Newman contends in her suit that W. L. Moody Jr. did buy Shearn's interest in the bank for $177,375.17. She contends that figure is "totally inadequate and grossly unfair."

Jet May Have Shattered Glass

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI)—Navy officials report they are still unable to determine if one of their jets was responsible for a mysterious blast which shattered some $20,000 worth of plate glass windows here.

It was theorized by police that a low-flying jet broke the sound barrier Tuesday, causing a resultant sonic boom and subsequent destructive vibrations.

But officials at Jacksonville Naval Air Station said it was not determined whether one of their jets was flying over the area at that time.

Baseball On Television Is Really A Bad Production

By WILLIAM EWALD
United Press International
NEW YORK (UPI) — There isn't much home-produced baseball in this town anymore, but Tuesday night there were three games running on TV.

It was a slightly heady situation for local ball fans, sort of comparable to the delirium a dog might feel who is invited for an overnight stay at the old bone room of the Museum of Natural History.

One of the games involved a local outfit called the New York Yankees, although, of course, the Yankees aren't really a ball team. They're more like General Motors in knickers. They were toying with a nine from Cleveland.

The other games were piped in from Pittsburgh and Philadelphia. The Pirates were entertaining a group called the San Francisco Giants, and the Phils were clobbering a collection of elderly and infirm gentlemen called the Dodgers of Los Angeles. The Dodgers like network TV, were live while they were in New York, but turned dead when they moved West.

What struck me forcibly after a leisurely fiddling with all three contests was how bad a show baseball is on television. And yet, how fascinating it manages to remain.

Watching a ball game on TV is a little like watching a parade through the legs of a midge. You see only a small portion of the proceedings and what you see isn't always what you want to see.

One very typical example: last night in the Giant-Pirates game, the Pirates' Hank Foiles singled and shortly after Bill Virdon tripled. Virdon scored when a throw from the Giants' Willie Mays got away from Giants catcher Bob Schmidt.

What the camera showed was 1.) Virdon swinging 2.) The Giant rightfielder Felipe Alou falling to make the catch against the wall 3.) Virdon going into third 4.) Virdon barreling in when Schmidt bobbled.

What the camera didn't show was Foiles catching the ball and chucking it, the realignment of the Giant defense as the play progressed, the reaction of the crowd and players. Baseball on TV is truncated. You never see the whole action. The most exciting of its situations — the first-to-second-to-first double play, the hit and run, the triple or inside the park homer, the squeeze — can't be viewed on their complete canvas. What you get is section action.

But TV baseball does offer some positive things. They are almost always small bits seen in close-up: a batter jawing at an umpiring dirt back of the mound, a fight in the stands, a shot inside a dugout, a catcher rubbing an ache caused by a foul tip.

And then, of course, TV baseball occasional does pack that powerful audience-getter: a story. Many ball games are tedious, but many also have good scripts complete with twists, complications, heroes, bums, tears, blood and a fair dose of movement.

However, despite some of its TV advantages I doubt whether baseball will ever rank as a real-life, a pitcher-in-trouble-kickingly satisfactory visual merit until the technicians develop 20 or 30 foot screens for the home. By that time, I'm afraid, the Dodgers and Giants will have moved the franchises to Saturn and Jupiter.

Tonight's TV highlights: "Leave It To Beaver" (CBS-TV). Wally and the beaver adopt a rabbit.

"Kraft Mystery Theatre" (NBC-TV). "Now Will You Try For Murder?" — a whodunit about a quiz contestant who gets knocked off — I mean really knocked off — the night he's about to go for $100,000.

"Traffic Court" (ABC-TV). Debut of a half-hour series from Los Angeles in which traffic cases are recreated. This has been a big success as a local show in Los Angeles, a section of the nation where the automobile is outranked only by vitamin D as an object of veneration.

"Wednesday Night" (ABC-TV). Yama Bahama, a windmill, and Kid Gavilan, who has been

Miss Ann Catherine Osborne Pledges Vows With Tom Bailey Saunders IV

(Special to The News)
PERRYTON — Miss Ann Catherine Osborne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick John Osborne, became the bride of Tom Bailey Saunders IV, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Bailey Saunders III of Fort Worth, in a formal ceremony on June 7 in the First Methodist Church.

Reverend A. B. Cockrell, pastor of the First Methodist Church, Levelland, read the double-ring ceremony at 2 p.m.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of antique ivory imported French Chantilly lace and tulle over tulle, an original design by Philip Kips, created with a scalloped lace neckline embroidered in seed pearls with long sleeves ending in petal points over the hands. The princess-line bodice was fastened with small covered buttons and featured a white, lace panel extending to the hemline, embroidered with seed pearls. The voluminous tulle skirt was richly applied in hand-clipped lace medallions and deep lace applique accented the wide tulle flounce, which formed a cathedral train.

Her fingertip Veil of silk illusion was held in place by a small lace cap trimmed with seed pearls. The bride's crescent cascade bouquet was of Phalaenopsis orchids centered with a white Cattaya orchid and showered with loops of seed pearls.

Mrs. A. P. McElvey, organist, played a medley of nuptial music and accompanied Lawrence Ellzey as he sang, "Ah Sweet Mystery of Life" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Attendants for the bride were Mrs. F. H. McGiddy, matron of honor, Misses Pat Wood, Glenda McGibbon, Jane Chambers and Nova Merle Henderson, bridesmaids. Candles were lighted by Don Boyer and Dorrance Osborne, brother of the bride.

Mr. Saunders attended his son as best man. Groomsman were James M. Calhoun of Cresson, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, R. A. Cantrell Jr., Fort Worth, and Walter Coffey, Shawnee, cousins of the bridegroom, W. R. Watt Jr. and Floyd Raymond Wade, both of Fort Worth.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in the Harvester Room of the Hotel Perryton.

Following a wedding trip to Colorado, Mr. and Mrs. Saunders will be home at the Twin V Ranch in Weatherford.

Games were led by Mrs. Roberts until all the guests arrived; at which time the group went on a treasure hunt, which ended with a gift for each child and which she played with as the honorees opened their gifts.

The children assembled around the dining table to sing "happy birthday" to the honorees after which birthday cake was served with grape punch. Upon leaving, each child was presented with a giant balloon.

DEAR ABBY...

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I'm 12 years old and want to ask you a question. A lady was standing in the park and a man came up to her and said "You look so pretty I want to take your picture" and she let him. Then she had to give him her name and address so he could bring it over to her house when the picture came out and that is how they fell in love and got married. Abby would you say that he picked her up or not? I have to know because this lady is my mother and the man is my father. Thank you.

JOY
Dear Joy: I would say this was a very romantic chance meeting. Obviously his intentions were honorable — he married the girl.

DEAR ABBY: I am not in the habit of writing to advice columns but I have to write this letter. For my birthday a friend of mine gave me your book called "Dear Abby." The last chapter, entitled "All Kidding Aside," hit me like a ton of bricks. If I had read that chapter six years ago, it could have saved my marriage.

DEAR ABBY: How old is "too old" to learn? I am thirty-eight and my children are practically grown and do not require the attention they did when they were little. I gave them all piano lessons but none of them cared enough to continue with the lessons. Now that I can afford lessons, have the time to practice and own a piano, do you think people would laugh at me if I started taking piano lessons? I have heard that after thirty it is very hard to learn anything. Please advise me before I make a fool of myself.

Dear Interested: Many adults begin music lessons in their forties and even in their fifties. Don't you fret about a young thirty-eight. Get yourself lined up with a teacher and amaze (and entertain) your friends.

DEAR ABBY: I dated a married man for six months and all of a sudden we found ourselves in love. We tried to stop seeing each other, but we always get back together again somehow. Now he says he wants to turn our love affair into a friendship, but it has gone too far. Can a love affair ever be turned into a friendship? If any of your readers know from experience, I wish they'd let me know.

CONFUSED
Dear Confused: Many friendships have been turned into love affairs, but very few love affairs have ever turned into friendships. Love affairs breed familiarity — and familiarity breeds contempt.

Confidential: "My Dreams Are Getting Better All The Time." I am not qualified to analyze dreams. If you want to know what they signify, see your friendly neighborhood psychiatrist.

For a personal reply, write to ABBY in care of this paper. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

TERMINOLOGY
 Often the question arises concerning the word marinade... just what is the definition? Marinade can be described as an acid liquid, usually with seasoning and with or without oil in which meat is allowed to stand before cooking to provide additional flavor.

Marcé Originals! Jovon Originals! Lilli Ann!

Rick Pezdirtz
purely paydirt

Something like a score of Pampa people puttered over to Tulsa over the last weekend to click up their heels with the U. S. Open galleries.

And right along with empty pockets and lobster-shaded skins, they brought back zany tales ranging everywhere from snobby-sublime to the drollish-neighborhood of ridiculous.

Chief target of the barbs, boos, and horsey-snickers, much to the surprise of nobody, was that fizzled-out-thunderer guy, Tommy Bolt, who ain't buying none of that baloney about lightning never striking twice in the same spot.

After the last pin had been pulled and the most recent turf-divot replaced, Bolt, former bad-man and scourge of the pro links, was a happy and smiling man.

Winning the U. S. Open by four strokes and finding the bank account $8,000 heavier ain't too hard to take you know. So Tommy had good cause to feel contented.

Bolt's running feud with the newspapermen was buried somewhere beneath the honor and glory of capturing the world's most elusive golf title. He was happy with everybody.

It was a triumph for the "new" Bolt, the one who doesn't throw putters, bust 7-irons over his hardened knee or pick up his caddy by the seat of the pants and give him the "bum's rush" into the 13th-hole water hazard.

Says he doesn't even want to do them things no more.

Temper Down; Earning's Up
Only once, on a poor iron shot which went astray, did Bolt draw back his club like he was going to set a new Olympic javelin record. But a spectator yelled, "uhuh." Tommy thought better of it, and meekly forked over the "dirty no good club" to his caddy.

TOMMY BOLT ... no more thunder

Bolt was asked after the tournament, if he ever were in danger of losing his emotional control during the long torturous grind of the Open.

"Naw, I didn't get upset a time," said Bolt.

Did he ever have to stop and talk to himself?

"Naw, man, I don't have to talk to myself like that," he protested. "Old Sambo's (S a m Sneed) is the only one who has to go to a psychiatrist. I'm keeping myself under real good mental control."

Why did Tommy take a wrench and adjust his turmoil cog?

"Well I just wanted to see what I could do the other way," he claims.

The result is there, in dollars and cents, something that professional athletes understand real, real well.

Last year when Bolt went on

Does An About Face With Writers
Bolt wasn't long in capturing the fickle hearts of the fans with his serene as a saint surface. When he sauntered up the last fairway, they roared at him like a mob of teen-agers at a Ricky Nelson concert, and he doffed his straw hat.

Bolt who three-potted only three of the greens in the tourney, has been in the lead all the way in 12 of the 13 tournaments he's won.

There were times that Bolt almost slipped. Beneath his calm, there still boiled the fears and black moods of the character who earned the nickname, "thunder" during his more turbulent years. On the third hole of Saturday morning's round, he gazed upwards through the jungle at Southern Hills and remarked to the world:

"Listen to that bird up in that tree. He sounds just like a rat-tamak don't he?"

After taking a double bogey on the 18th Friday, Bolt bolted

Hero Today, Bum Tomorrow!
Bolt also took issue with a Tulsa paper, which listed his age at 49 instead of 39, in the Friday edition.

The writers told him it was a pure - and - simple typographical error. "Naw, I don't believe it. Not on the front page," he differed. The writers laughed at the idea that typographical errors are located on any specific page.

When Bolt stepped off the 18th green into a mass of congratulations, he spotted a few plaudits. "Everything is right up there (he pointed skyward) - and in faith."

One of his first congratulators was Don Cherry, the sterling amateur golfer and silver-throated singer. Also noted for his temper spasms.

NCAA In Finals
OMAHA (UPI) - Teen-aged sophomore Bruce Gardner of Southern California tries for his third win of the NCAA college world series tonight in a sudden-death final duel with Missouri.

Wednesday night, Southern California's lanky Bill Thom tossed a three-hit shutout and doubled home three runs to lead the Trojans to a 7-0 win over Missouri and force the tourney into tonight's showdown.

Newk Finally Wins, Gives 'Birdie' Credit

Phil Fans Fire Cans At Umpires

By MILTON RICHMAN United Press International

A beaming "new" Don Newcombe today credited it all to that "old" psychologist - Birdie Tebbets.

Newcombe had that new look in a lot of respects Wednesday night. He was pitching in a Cincinnati uniform for the first time, he was working under Tebbets for the first time and when it was all over, he was a winner for the first time this season following six straight losses with the Dodgers.

Big Newk, traded by the Dodgers last Sunday, did it with a sixth 6-1 victory over St. Louis but he insisted that Tebbets share his hour of triumph.

The canny Redleg manager made a special trip to the mound after the Cardinals loaded the bases on three successive singles with one out in the ninth.

Birdie Talks Him Home
"I know you... you are going to finish this," Tebbets said. "Take your time... get in an argument if you want to slow down."

Newcombe promptly retired pinch hitters Irv Noren and Hobbie Landrith to end the game.

"Walt Alston would have had me out of there," said the huge right-hander, who gave up the Cards' only run when Stan Musial tagged him for his 12th homer in the first inning.

Good as Newcombe was for the Redlegs, the Dodgers did some rejoicing of their own over the showing of rookie Stan Williams, who shut out the Phillies, 3-0, on four hits.

Williams out-duelled Robin Roberts for his second victory since being recalled from St. Paul.

The game was marked by a fifth-inning shower of beer cans from Philadelphia fans, who didn't let up until umpire Frank Dascoli threatened to forfeit the game to Los Angeles. The uproar all came about following Joe Pignatano's two-run homer, which some of the fans felt had curved foul. Carl Furillo made the rumpus a purely academic one when he singled home another run in the sixth.

Mays Rode Bench
Whitely Lockman, given a chance to start when Willie Mays was benched for the first time this season, rapped out a 10th inning single to give the Giants a 2-1 win over the Pirates.

Lockman's single sent Bob Friend down to his sixth setback. The winner was Giel.

Eddie Mathews' 14th home run was wiped out when rain caused postponement of the Milwaukee-Chicago game with the Braves ahead, 1-0, in the second inning. The Braves still led the National League by two games.

Casey Stengel's parting message before leaving New York was "Watch our smoke on the road," and the Yankees made him look good by taking their second straight from the Cleveland Indians, 3-2.

Art Ditmar got his first starting assignment of the season and turned it into his first victory. He didn't allow a hit until the sixth when the Indians scored both their runs but Ryne Duren took over in the seventh, retired the last seven men in a row and wrapped it up.

1-YEAR PACT
Wilt Signs With Trotters, 65 G's

NEW YORK (UPI)—Wilt Chamberlain, one of the most publicized players in basketball history, has left the confines of the amateur courts for the greener pastures of professionalism.

With another year of eligibility remaining at Kansas University, the seven-foot All-American from Philadelphia quit the wheat belt for a $65,000 contract with the Harlem Globetrotters. The pay eclipses the high mark of the estimated $35,000 received by Goose Tatum as a Trotter.

The 21-year-old Chamberlain had to decide between leading a South American tour which may have grossed over a quarter-million dollars or signing with the Globetrotters for a year. Apparently the knowledge that he could lion dollars or signing with the Globetrotters for a year. Apparently the knowledge that he could receive $65,000 without much sweat swayed the tall man.

A pile of dollar bills probably stretching to the height of the seven-footer also awaits Chamberlain when he finishes the tour with Abe Saperstein's Globetrotters. The Philadelphia Warriors of the National Basketball Association have first call on Wilt's draft rights in 1959.

The Warriors, under a special league ruling, claimed Chamberlain while he was starring as a 17-year-old high school player in Philadelphia. However, they could not touch him until his class graduated from Kansas.

Rosewall Seeks 4th
FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI)—Ken Rosewall, the brilliant, 5-6 shot-maker from Sydney, Australia, seeks his fourth straight victory when he plays Rex Hartwig in the feature of tonight's $18,000 Tournament of Champions program.

A total field of 145 is set with 134 professionals and 11 amateurs.

2 REACH FINALS

City Meet Ups Tempo

By RICK PEZDIRTZ News Sports Editor

"It was a long trudge, mom, but I won."

A flurry of extra-hole matches have sharpened the pace in the annual City Wide Golf Tournament, which reaches the half-way point this weekend at the Pampa Country Club links.

Everybody loves an extra-inning baseball game and a couple overtimes in basketball, and Hart Warren, club pro, was beaming Thursday morning over the close competition cropping up in all of the local meet's flights.

Two men, Gordon Shay in the Seventh Flight and Joe Reid in the Eighth Flight, shot their way into the finals.

Shay disposed of Garland Poole, 3 and 2, while Reid dumped G. C. Rutherford, 3 and 1.

In the upper flights, one of the tourney's favorites, Don Prigmore outlasted Grover Heiskell, 1-up in 19 holes. Prigmore came home with a 3-over-par 73, while Heiskell carded a 74 in bowing out. The win put Prigmore in the Championship Flight's semi-final round.

Longest match of the tournament thus far came in the Fourth Flight. Jerry Boston and Gene Gipson hooked up in a walkabout, before Boston dropped home a lengthy putt to post a 1-up victory after 21 holes.

Another extra-hole was played in the Second Flight, with James Cantrell upsetting W. T. Fain, 1-up in 20.

Romping into the First Flight semi-finals was A. L. Leonard with his 3 and 2 verdict over R. A. Baker.

KID GAVILAN ... over the hill??

KID GAVILAN ... over the hill??

Kid May Retire In Wake Of Yama Loss

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—Yama Bahama beat Kid Gavilan so decisively in their TV fight here that the former welterweight champion declared morosely to day, "I may retire."

Baham, weighing 151 1/2 pounds to Gavilan's 150 1/2, not only won the unanimous 10-round decision Wednesday night by a lopsided margin at the Miami Beach Auditorium; but he had the Cuban "keed" woozy in the ninth and well-rocked in the eighth.

His handlers had told him to press Bahama constantly — carry the fight to him in every round. The "keed" did exactly that and tried to slug it out, "instead of boxing him like I wanted to."

Whether 32-year-old Gavilan was "over the hill" in his bout with younger and stronger Yama, ex-fishing guide from the nearby island of Bimini, B.W.I., is the big question Gavilan couldn't answer definitely today.

Kist Wins, 4-0

Kist blanked First National Bank, 4-0, in a rain-shortened Pony League game Wednesday night as Mike Steward turned in a fine four-hit pitching performance.

Mike Clark held Kist to five hits, but suffered the loss. A pair of errors hurt the Bankers chances of cracking the win column. The game was called at the end of 4 1/2 innings for rain.

game. "We went into Boston then and I had a meeting," he said. "But it was just to discuss mechanical mistakes."

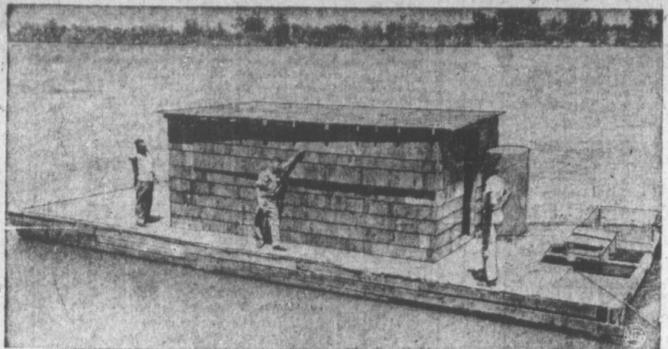

He singled out two unidentified players for private conferences for the same reasons. "One of them was for not running out a ball which he thought was going to be foul," he said. "It was foul, but I told him I wanted him to run them out anyhow. He's not supposed to be an umpire."

"I've never had a lot of clubhouse meetings or what you call chewed out individuals," he said. "Even when we won the pennant at Cleveland, you've got to treat ball players like grown men. They want to win as much as you do."

Sox pitching until Wednesday at least, was the mainstay of a four-game winning streak. Jim Wilson and Dick Donovan pitched shutouts Sunday, giving up only two and seven hits, and Billy Pierce followed with a five hit shutout Tuesday, extending the Sox string of innings in which the opposition was held scoreless to 33.

Early Wynn allowed only one run Saturday so the club gave up only one run in the four games covering 42 innings.

Hungary Case Not An Isolated Red Problem

EDITOR'S NOTE: Sir David Kelly, a diplomat since 1919 and British ambassador to Moscow from 1949 to 1951, is one of Britain's foremost experts on Communist affairs. In the following analysis he reports that the execution of former Hungarian Premier Imre Nagy means the return of Stalinism in the Kremlin and the end of "separate paths to Socialism."

By SIR DAVID KELLY
Written for UPI
LONDON (UPI)—It would be a mistake to consider the case of Hungary as an isolated problem. There is no doubt that when Khrushchev made his famous denunciation of Stalin at the 20th party congress he overplayed his hand. He had very intelligible motives for denouncing Stalin personally, but he never had the least intention of departing from strict Marx-Lenin orthodoxy, and this has linked with the fundamentals of Stalinism as a system.

In Soviet Russia itself the government machine is now more subordinate than ever to the Communist Party, while the President of the party itself seems to be completely under Khrushchev. He has ten members of his party secretariat in it — thus disposing of the "restoration of collec-

When, Why, How Women Buy Furniture

By SHERIE KAHN
United Press International
CHICAGO (UPI)—Women buy furniture first to please their new in-laws and later to please their children's friends, and almost always regard the whole affair as an agonizing experience, a furniture manufacturer reported today.

R.E. Burrow, merchandise manager for the Kroehler manufacturing Co., reported findings of a study made by the company on when, why and how women buy more freedom be given again to writers, and perhaps an amnesty. It was said that Kadar was a moderate playing for time until he could safely engage in a more nationalist policy.

Moscow decided otherwise. Not only were no steps taken in these directions; Khrushchev himself publicly threatened that there would be Soviet intervention in the event of another uprising.

furniture. Beset by uncertainty, the American consumer approaches the purchase of furniture as she would a visit to the dentist. She is aware that she judges her friends' tastes and pocketbooks by their furniture, Burrow said, and believes she will be similarly judged by them.

Regardless of income or social standing, most women lack confidence in their ability to select furniture, Burrow said. She is afraid of asking questions that might make her look stupid in the eyes of the salesman, whom she distrusts, and frequently she relies on price as a guide to quality.

"This is frustrating at best," he said. "No matter what she buys, she feels there is no way of beating the game." Once a woman decides she has made a wise purchase, she protects it at all costs, with doilies, plastic throws, slipcovers and the like, the Kroehler report showed. She will not stand for having her cherished old furniture ridiculed, and when it must be replaced it is like parting with a dear friend. "This," Burrow commented, "is why it has been difficult to create any degree of obsolescence in furniture."

Ike Now Following Truman Precedent

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Eisenhower seems now to be following the precedent of President Truman, each having had a close White House associate who came under severe attack by congressional investigators.

Harry S. Truman's associate was World War I buddy, Harry H. Vaughan, a major general by 1943 and military aide to the President. When Vaughan testified to Congress, his name became associated with so-called influence peddlers and 5 per centers, a Democratic-controlled Senate moved to investigate.

It was rumored then that Vaughan would refuse to testify; that he would reject a subpoena, and that he would be supported in that action by his great friend, Truman. Truman squelched those rumors well before the Senate investigation began. Later, he appealed to the press "in common fairness" to suspend judgment on Vaughan until the general had a chance to tell his story to the Senate investigators.

No Other Choice
When asked in his news conferences before Vaughan testified to comment on his aide's alleged actions, Truman simply replied that he was not aware that his associate had done the things charged. When it was all over and Vaughan had been shown to have extended and received some remarkable favors, Truman was asked if he intended to fire his military aide. His answer was: "I do not."

Vaughan's willingness to appear before congressional investigators and Truman's desire that he do so now have been precisely matched by President Eisenhower and Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams. The fact seems to be that there was no other choice. Anyway, no other feasible and satisfactory choice.

Last weekend's subburst of bad publicity for Adams and the Eisenhower administration persuaded most interested parties that Adams would have to talk. Subcommittees have Rules. It was obvious that he would have to talk before one of three forums, all difficult and two po-mittee also had official status and it had been the vehicle for the original charges against Adams.

Such an appearance before congressional investigators is not with any guarantee that the witness' troubles will ease away. The Senate subcommittee which investigated Truman made a report reprimanding him for association with "an outright fixer" and for accepting deep freezes for himself and friends. President Truman was unconvinced, however, or, anyway, he was content. Vaughan stayed on.

The Republicans made a lot of votes from that—with their phrase "that mess in Washington."

Seaway Toll Rates Proposed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Agencies of the U.S. and Canadian governments have announced toll rates for ships, cargo and passengers passing through the St. Lawrence Seaway.

The rates were recommended jointly by the U.S. and Canadian toll committees. The St. Lawrence Seaway Development Corp. will hold public hearings here Aug. 6 at which shippers and other interested parties may express their views. Similar hearings will begin the same day in Ottawa before the St. Lawrence Seaway authority.

The recommended rates: For each passage through the entire seaway from Montreal to Lake Erie: Six cents per gross registered ton for any vessel, plus 42 cents per ton of bulk cargo and 95 cents per ton of general cargo.

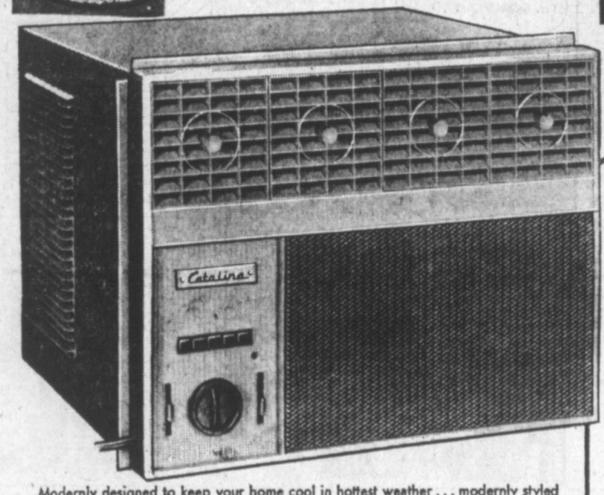

For each passage between Montreal and Lake Ontario only: Four cents per gross registered ton of the vessel, plus 40 cents per ton of bulk cargo and 90 cents per ton of general cargo. For partial transit between these two points—where there are seven locks—15 per cent of the applicable toll for each lock used would be levied.

For commercial vessels carrying passengers: The usual vessel charge, plus 50 cents per passenger for each lock passed through between Montreal and Lake Erie.

Organizer of the first U.S. balloon corps was Thaddeus S. C. Lowe, who served the Union forces during the Civil War.

STRANGE ANTICS—Looking as if they're about to tangle, Cleveland's J. W. Porter, left, and Boston's Dick Gernert are shown during action at first base during the second inning of a game in Boston. DISAGREEMENT—Pointing and arguing, Yankee first sacker Bill Skowron (14) disputes the call of umpire Larry Napp during a close play at first in the Yanks-Cleveland game in New York. Indians' catcher Dick Brown hit a slow grounder and was ruled safe by Napp. Yanks won, 6-3.

OUT OF HARM'S WAY—Jimmy Archer, left, swung a vicious left hook designed to end the fight abruptly, but Eddie Lynch seems to have a different opinion of that. He's avoiding the blow during their 10-round middleweight bout in New York. Lynch won by a unanimous decision.

The climbing canine was preparing to compete in the First National Police Dogs Challenge, which will match entrants from various parts of France. Those dogs are all "boning" up these days.

STYLE CONSCIOUS—Keeping a firm hold on her riding crop, 2-year-old Vanessa Joan Melhuish is adjusting her cap to the proper jaunty angle as she prepares for a stroll in Windsor, England. Docked out in her fashionable habit, the little miss was one of the visitors at a local horse show.

LOWERING THE SHADE—The sack look has come to umbrellas in this all-over model which lets a girl change into a swimsuit at the old water hole. Shown at Frankfurt, Germany, the umbrella has an all-round curtain of gauzy material which drops over the user. A pull on a string then raises the cover, right. One hand must hold it while the other makes the change.

Blakley For Senator

Tomorrow Pampa welcomes William Blakley, candidate for the Democratic nomination to the United States Senate.

Though we have never met Blakley personally, the published statements of this man sound to us as though he is a candidate who deserves the support of every qualified voter in the forthcoming primary election because of his basic stand on the threat of big federal government.

An outspoken advocate of free enterprise, state's rights and the right-to-work law, Blakley sees a growing threat in the profligate federal government which constantly attempts to make of itself a more powerful mechanism of aggrandizement against the citizenry.

Senator Ralph Yarborough, Blakley's opponent in this race, is a man the State of Texas would do well to retire for he is a typical example of the elected representative who menaces our freedom by turning the government into a monolithic Robin Hood. We, in the newspaper business, are almost weekly recipients of the propaganda hand-outs of Yarborough so we are in an excellent position to be aware of what he is advocating on a continuing basis. And if there is one word which would summarize his basic philosophy, that word is "socialism."

Yarborough is what might be called, in terms of political philosophy, a believer in legalized spoliation for he consistently voices a position of taking from the "haves" and giving to the "have-nots." Pensions here, benefits there, subsidies, grants-in-aid . . . you name it. To his credit, however, Yarborough is not a ritualistic liberal but rather a type similar to W. Lee O'Daniel without "Pappy's" conservative instincts.

Blakley, on the other hand, sees the main issue of the day that of preserving local government and circumscribing the voracious appetite for taxes which the federal government has developed. Too, his stand on the right-to-work law pretty well tags him as to his general philosophy for he who stands up to big unions politically invariably has an inbred integrity and character seldom found in his opponents.

A man is well or poorly recommended, usually, by his enemies and in this regard Blakley is blessed for the ruling elements of the Democrats of Texas, Texas' home-grown alliance with the northern left-wing elements, and the barons of organized labor can find nothing in this man which bodes well for their cause.

From the point of view of the modern conservative and the classic liberal, William Blakley appears to be a man worthy of the support of every voter who desires to bequest to his children a heritage of personal liberty.

We are proud to count ourselves among his supporters.

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HOILES

A Comparison Of Two Towns II.

I want to continue to quote from Roger M. Blough's, Chairman of the Board of United States Steel Corp., address before the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce.

He related in the last issue how wire from Germany was $40 a ton less delivered in Cleveland than wire produced in Cleveland. He also relates how various other items manufactured abroad are sold for much less in United States than can be produced in United States.

Tariffs Not The Answer
Then he goes on record as stating that tariffs are not the answer. He observes:
"Nor can I see the wisdom of spending millions and millions of dollars to build a seawall that will transform Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago and other Great Lakes cities into seaports, and then building tariff walls around those cities to keep their ports in idleness."

"Presumably such a policy might — as a temporary expedient — restore a substantial number of workers to their jobs in manufacturing industries; but it would also throw out of work a large part of the 4 1/2 million other Americans who gain their living in foreign trade. So in the end, we should merely have exchanged one group of jobless Americans for another."

"So it seems to me that recognizing the value of such expedients as tariffs, quotas, subsidies, controls, freezes, and all of the other 'ways out' sooner or later we will have to face up squarely to one undeniable fact: that American workmen today are pricing themselves out of the market; or — to put it even more accurately — that America, as a nation, is costing itself out of the market."

"The latest official reports of the United States Government show that during the first six years of the present decade, average hourly earnings in all manufacturing industries as a whole went up more than 35 per cent; while output per man hour in these same industries rose less than 19 1/2 per cent. Thus wages have gone up more than 80 per cent faster than output per man hour in these six years alone."

"Now raising the standard of living for everyone in this country, by producing more of the goods which everyone needs and wants is one thing. But raising the cost of producing these goods, so that the producer and his employees are placed at a competitive disadvantage, is quite another thing. And when those who profess to speak in the interests of the American working man advocate raising wage costs as a means of increasing consumer purchasing power, they are seeking to perpetrate what is, in my opinion, the most dangerous hoax of our times."

"They know that higher wage costs can only be met by higher prices, so in the end no increase in purchasing power results."

"Meanwhile the ability of American workmen to compete with their industrious counterparts abroad is further diminished, thus shrinking the market for American products and diminishing the number of available American jobs."

"To me, then, the perpetrators of this hoax are labor's on-e-way philanthropists. They would take jobs away from our workmen here and give them to workmen abroad! And that kind of labor philanthropy is on the waterfront!"

"Let us sum it up this way: 'We are all striving, as I have said, to get our people back on their jobs by finding markets for the products of their labor. The only way to find those markets is to make our costs competitive and to keep them that way. How then can this be done?'"

"Well if it is done, then we as businessmen must do everything in our power to maintain our technological advantage over foreign producers by replacing as rapidly as we can every obsolete and obsolescent machine, technique and facility we have, with new, better and more efficient methods and facilities. This is our part of the job."

"Government, too, has a vital role in this task as I see it. If we are to maintain our technological superiority, then Government must certainly re-examine some of our antiquated and misbegotten tax laws which discourage investment, penalize the productive use of wealth, and treat as taxable profits what is really the excess cost of replacing our worn-out tools and equipment."

"But despite all that we and the Government may do to promote our competitive position, the final decision rests with the American working man, and with his delegated leaders. For the fact remains that in the last analysis the only one who can fully protect the American workman is the American workman himself. If he can keep wage costs from mounting while his own productivity brings out total costs in competitive balance with foreign costs, then truly I believe that he can expect to see the greatest era of prosperity our nation has ever known."

"But if, on the other hand, he permits the vast economic and political power that he now possesses to be used to force wage costs ever higher, then I am very much afraid that the great St. Lawrence Seaway — when it opens next year — will be nothing more than a one-way street . . . westbound!"

No Fair Fighting Now—

Robert Allen Reports:

Ike Didn't Reply To GOP Solon's Question

WASHINGTON — A question that is still unanswered had a lot to do with President Eisenhower's narrow House defeat on the Pentagon reorganization bill.

This fateful question, put up to him by 14 Republican members of the Armed Services Committee the day before the House began consideration of this far-reaching legislation, was: "If the changes you are demanding are not incorporated in the bill, will you veto it?"

Confronted with this blunt poser just as he was about to depart with Prime Minister Macmillan for Baltimore, to attend a university commencement, the President asked for time to deliberate a reply.

That was the last the GOP Committee heard from him. They still haven't received the President's promised answer.

As a result, a majority of them either voted with the Democrats or absented themselves completely on the decisive rollcall on the amendments demanded by the President.

He was defeated by 19 votes out of a total of 403.

This is a double-barrelled setback for the President.

On one hand, it materially strengthens the position of Representative Carl Vinson (D., Ga.), veteran chairman of the Armed Services Committee, and principal author of the measure passed by the House.

Vinson's resounding victory gives him powerful cards in later negotiations with the Senate on this legislation.

On the other hand, the President's effectiveness in the Senate is impaired.

Chairman of the Armed Services Committee there is Senator Richard Russell (D., Ga.). He and Vinson have long worked closely together. Other Committee members, both Republican and Democrat, have made no secret of their approval of Vinson's bill.

With the House voting for it, the President faces a difficult job winning them over.

WHAT HAPPENED — The President was suddenly confronted with the veto question in a telephone call from the inner office of Representative Leslie Arends, Ill., who is both Republican Whip and his party's senior member on the Armed Services Committee.

This unusual telephone discussion climaxed a meeting in Arends' office of the 14 GOP members of the Committee.

This unusual session was called by Republican Leader Joseph Martin, Mass. at the behest of White House assistant Bryce Harlow for the purpose of inducing the group to support the amendments sought by the President. All of the GOP Committee members favored Vinson's bill as it was sent to the House.

Representative Martin vigorously urged them to switch.

"The President is personally more interested in this measure than any other pending in Congress," said Martin. "If he is defeated on this, it will be a terrible blow to him. Unless you gentlemen back him on the amendments, I don't think we can get the votes to put them over."

"What I want to know," said Representative James Patterson (R., Conn.), "is what happens if we do what the President asks and we still get licked. In that event, will the President veto the bill?"

"I am unable to answer that," replied Harlow. "I know the President intends to fight to the end in the Senate for his amendments. But a veto is another matter."

Arends didn't see it that way. "It may be another matter," he said, "but it's a very important one to us. We supported the bill as drafted by the Committee. Now if we are to reverse ourselves, then it seems only fair that we should know whether the President will stick with us and veto the bill if his amendments are not accepted."

"I can find out and let you know about that later," proposed Harlow. "Why not right now?" asked Patterson. "Why don't you call the President and put it up to him right now? I think you will find that most of us will go down the line with him, if he will agree to go down the line with us on a veto."

Harlow agreed to call the President. He, Arends and Patterson thereupon went into the inner office and the White House was a phoned. After Harlow talked to two assistants, the President himself got on the phone. The situation was explained to him.

"Do I have to make a decision right now?" exclaimed the President. "Can't this wait a while?"

"Mr. Arends and the other Committee members feel they must know your position right away," said Harlow. "If they are to work for these amendments, they have no time to waste and they want to know where you stand on a veto."

"I'll have to have time to think that over," replied the President loudly. "I can't make such a decision on the spur of the moment. The British Prime Minister is here waiting for me to take him to the helicopter to go to Baltimore. I can't drop everything and pass on an important matter like this without further thought."

"However, you can tell them that I'll take this right to the people, if I have to to win."

That ended the phone talk with the President.

Harlow didn't have to relate it to Arends and Patterson. They had clearly heard what the President said. When the conversation was reported to the other Committee members, the meeting ended with no stand being taken on the President's amendments.

The next day when Martin was asked if he had heard from the President, the reply was, "He is still undecided on a veto. That's all I can tell you."

The answer is still unknown.

There is a bird watcher out in our neighborhood who has been at it so long that he's turned into a bird talker. He can actually speak the language of his feathered friends. Or so he says. The other day he met up with a bird who made the most perfect nest he ever saw. Only there was a hole in the bottom of it. He asked her, "How come?"

"Goodness gracious!" she chirped back to him. "Heavens knows I'm a good housekeeper and I SIMPLY LOVE to lay eggs. But I can't stand children!"

'Correspondence School' Gives Honorary Degrees

The Ajax Correspondence School, of which I am a night school graduate, kindly sent me a list of the honorary degrees it awarded this year.

As an alumnus, I am extremely proud of the men honored by Ajax C. S. To my way of thinking, no better selection could have been made. Read them and see if you don't agree.

Milton Ploverfus: For his tireless efforts toward forcing repair-it-while-you-wait shoe shops to provide a better grade of carpet slippers for their customers.

Algernon Klipp: For stoutly refusing to step to the rear of the elevator when his destination is the first or second floor.

Algernon Klipp, Jr.: For punching all Pullman conductors in the nose who wake him up in the middle of the night to collect his ticket.

Hosea Green: For refusing to pay for a barbecue sandwich at a roadside stop which was made of plain roast beef slathered with an alleged barbecue sauce.

Theodore Cutliss: As a contestant on a television program he steadfastly refused to give the name of his hometown. His explanation: "I am tired of hearing television masters of ceremonies say, when a contestant names his town, 'So you're from So-and-So, eh?' followed by a silly laugh."

Phyllis Grappo: For her masterly essay pointing out the evils of calling strawberries placed on sponge cake "Strawberry shortcake."

To Turgenev Hopson: For his firm, unyielding stand against beer that is brewed for it lightness. "If it's lightness I want," he said when awarded his degree, "I'll drink water, not beer made to taste like it."

To Pericles Cumberbund: Who, when told by a clerk that such and such a piece of merchandise is hand-painted and therefore more expensive, always asks, "Hand-painted by whom?" Mr. Cumberbund says he would much rather have an un-hand-painted object than one done by an artist with no talent and less taste.

To Kismet Smith: For pointing out to clerks who stress that an article is of imported material that a trip across the ocean does not necessarily make a fabric superior. "It's what it is made of in the first place," he says, "not the trip that counts."

To Darrell Hoop: For steadfastly maintaining that, no matter what millions of others say, he has never met a taxicab driver whose philosophy was worth listening to.

To Chauncey Culpepper: For freely admitting that he knows nothing about wines and couldn't tell a vintage champagne from one made from super-market grapes.

To Clem Duster: For spending all his savings on those stretch-to-fit-any-foot socks and then burning the whole lot.

These points of contact between the American taxpayer and his protector can only exist because we have departed from the basic American idea that ours is a private enterprise society, and that the function of government is to protect private property rights, not to attack them.

We can and must restore the American concept. It can be done by applying the terms of a "Proposed 23rd Amendment" now pending in Congress as H.J. Res. 355. It provides that:

"Sec. 1. The Government of the United States shall not engage in any business, professional, commercial, financial or industrial enterprise except as specified in the Constitution."

"Sec. 4. Congress shall not levy taxes on personal incomes, inheritances and/or gifts."

HOW FAR HAVE WE FALLEN?
In reviewing Alberto Moravia's new book, "Two Women," in a recent issue of The Wall Street Journal, M. E. Davis said:

"It is the colorful descriptive account of the Italian peasants who befriended the refugees (out only for a price) that makes Mr. Moravia's book such interesting reading. His realistic portrayal of their daily life and his insight into their amoral philosophy combine to give a vivid picture of a people to whom possessions mean infinitely more than ideas."

People with an "amoral philosophy" to whom possessions mean infinitely more than ideas! As I read those terrible words, I wondered to how many of today's Americans they might apply.

This country was founded by men with a Christian moral philosophy to whom ideas meant infinitely more than possessions. They pledged one another their lives, their fortunes, and their sacred honor in support of those ideas. As I see the racketeering, the strikes, the greed for more and more in exchange for less and less, and the mania for security in preference to liberty that are so prevalent in America today, I wonder if we too, forsaking the ideals of our forefathers, have become a people with an "amoral philosophy" to whom possessions mean infinitely more than ideas."

The American Way

PROTECTION FROM PROTECTORS

By Willis E. Stone

The function of the Defense Department is to protect our lives and property, our wealth and our way of life.

For this job the Defense Department currently receives appropriations of tax dollars nearly equal to the total national income of twenty-five years ago.

Despite this enormous annual spending for protection, we are not protected. We have been forced to pay to foreign socialist and communistic governments more treasure than all the distinguished people in history have had to pay to their conquerors. We have been forced to surrender control of our resources and markets to the other nations of the world which meet in Geneva, Switzerland, and divide up the wealth and markets of the American people.

While not defending our lives and properties from these foreign intrusions, the Defense Department has been building empires. The dimensions of this process came into focus with the drive to regain economic independence through the terms of a "Proposed 23rd Amendment" now pending in Congress as H.J. Res. 355.

When we became aware of the fact that the Defense Department had created more than 19,000 business, commercial and industrial establishments, a real drive to get these enterprises back into private hands was undertaken. Congressman Edgar Hiestand (R.) of California in a brief speech in Congress April 19, 1958 (Congressional Record, Page 6788) told of the progress being made in closing 585 Defense Department operations which included "25 war-born synthetic rubber plants, an alcohol plant, bakeries, a resort hotel, ice cream plants, the Inland Waterways Corporation and the South Pacific Trading Company."

"Many more projects would have been closed if the opposition in Congress had not succeeded in blocking shutdown of nearly 70 facilities the Defense Department wanted to eliminate."

The progress cited by Congressman Hiestand, and for which he and certain of his colleagues deserve great credit, has enormous implications. Although it leaves the Defense Department with more than 19,000 enterprises and a steadily growing empire, it does prove that we can regain our economic liberty when we are willing to work at it.

Unfortunately, the tide still goes against the taxpayer. While minor enterprises have been eliminated the major empire building within the Defense Department has steadily continued.

Vast sums of tax dollars have recently been spent to build and equip aircraft maintenance installations of the Defense Department that are destroying the investment and facilities of the private aircraft maintenance industry which has so long and effectively maintained our military aircraft at peak efficiency. This is being carried on despite the evidence that the tax free military workshop program is 44 percent more costly to operate than the taxpaying private facility.

Standards High At Evanston School

Editors Note: During the past school year, signs of Soviet progress in various scientific fields brought renewed public interest in the educational programs of United States secondary schools, and the potential of their graduates in various fields. Two of the schools in the Chicago area were ranked high by educators for their accomplishments not only in the past year, but in previous years. United Press International asked the school heads to review the factors which have kept their institutions among leaders in their fields. The first of two dispatches follows.

By EVERETT R. IRWIN
United Press International
EVANSTON, Ill. (UPI)—Evanston Township High School produced six National Merit Scholarship winners this year.

That was more than any school in the nation except New York's specialized Bronx High School of Science, which also had six winners.

It was more than all the high schools of neighboring Chicago turned out. Together, they produced four.

Winning top awards is old hat for the sprawling, red-brick high school in this Chicago north shore suburb and its institutions of suburban community noted for its higher learning, including Northwestern University.

Last year the Evanston school boasted four National Merit scholars, its science students repeatedly have topped top honors in the annual Westinghouse talent search.

Stiff Honor Classes
No organization attempts to rate the nation's secondary schools in order of excellence. But educators informally rate Evanston High among the best.

Dr. Lloyd S. Michael, superintendent, listed several factors for his students' showing on the rigorous college aptitude tests in competition with more than 250,000 other seniors from nearly 14,000 schools.

"The large number of extremely able pupils we enroll—the intelligence equipment they bring to us—"

"The support we get from their parents for stiff courses and required homework."

"The honors (accelerated and enriched) classes which challenge students to work up to an even stretch their ability."

"A faculty with dedication and outstanding ability."

An Evaluation Program
"The real measure of our school's greatness is its ability to stretch the talents of each student," Michael said.

Michael said "we keep scholarship first among values in the school." That is reflected in the competition in Merit Scholarship competition and in the fact that 75 per cent of Evanston's graduates go on to college.

Dr. Jean Fair, who is in charge of the testing and evaluation program, said the task of putting students where they belong begins with an examination of students' records while they are still in elementary school.

In their freshman year students are urged to plot, at least tentatively, their four-year course. If tests show they have aptitude in a particular field, such as science, they are channeled in that direction. If they show exception talent in the field, they are enrolled in an honors class where they are required to do work of higher quality than in regular classes.

Much Daily Homework
About 25 per cent of the 3,100 students enroll in one or more honors groups. About 80 extremely talented seniors advance even beyond the accelerated honors program and enroll in college-level courses which may give them either advanced placement or college credit or both.

Evanson was one of six high schools that pioneered the advanced college placement program.

A heavy load of homework is the rule not the exception, Michael said. The student enrolled in a regular (non-honors) class normally has to do at least two hours of homework daily, he said, and in the honors groups "the sky is the limit."

Standards for the faculty are high, too. Dr. Lloyd E. McCleary, administrative assistant, outlined a stiff program of professional improvement expected of teachers. More than 50 per cent of the 185-member professional staff have masters degrees. More than one-third of them have completed a sixth year of college study. A teacher's average salary is $6,800.

A veteran teacher with merit rating and study beyond the M.A. degree may earn up to $9,600.

Cotton-Picking Problems Abound

By BERNARD BRENNER
UPI Farm Editor

The first bale of the nation's 1958 cotton crop will be harvested this summer, as it is every year, in the Rio Grande Valley of Texas.

If the Valley crop lives up to its promise, it may run over 400,000 bales. With the harvest season coming on, farmers in the area are angry and frustrated about harvest labor.

The Valley cotton crop is hand-picked by Mexican braceros—farm workers imported under an agreement between the United States and Mexican governments.

Texas-Produced TV Show Tonight

By PATRICIA RIEHL
United Press International
DALLAS (UPI)—"Confession," featuring live interviews with criminals, makes its debut on the ABC network tonight to become one of the first Texas-produced programs to go national.

Dallas will join Los Angeles, San Francisco, New Orleans and New York as a city forming an authentic backdrop for the story behind crimes.

Confession differs from other crime series in that criminals appear "live" and describe the events leading up to their offenses in their own words. Part of the show includes a panel of law enforcement officials, ministers and psychiatrists explaining further the ramifications of crimes to society and the individual.

Fairris' program features Herby Franklin Fairris, who has more relatives behind bars than on the outside. Fairris was closely associated with such infamous Southwestern desperadoes of the late 30's as Clyde Barrow, Bonny Parker and Raymond Hamilton.

biggest cotton growers, Joe Davis, complained that a new Labor Department regulation covering these workers are impractical. He especially dislikes a ruling under which piece rates must be set so that nine out of 10 Mexicans earn at least 50 cents an hour.

Davis said the new regulation will raise the cost of harvesting the crop, biting into the profit. He pointed out that the actual cost to farmers will be substantially above the wage rates, because in addition to the wages, they must pay fees to bring the Mexican workers to their farms. And in many cases, the harvest hands will leave before their contract periods expire.

Davis and other cotton growers of the Valley have another problem—their cotton acreage allotments for 1959 and future years. Unless Congress steps in with a new law, the acreage allotment will be cut sharply next year.

More Acreage
Davis, like many of the other large-scale operators, want more acreage, even if he must accept a lower price for his cotton.

But cotton grower Dennis Schmitt of Los Fresnos, Tex., said he'd rather take a higher price and grow less. "There's no use working your head off all year and ending up with red ink."

But both Schmitt and Davis agreed that unless cotton acreage increases and prices come down, cotton growers will gradually lose their markets.

Davis said he is backing a program under which growers could choose for themselves next year whether to expand or reduce production, with relatively high prices for those who choose a smaller allotment and lower prices for growers who want more acreage.

F. Earl Davis, a Harlingen cotton oil mill official, said "They've got to find some way to make cotton competitive as a fiber. If they don't, it's gone—and when you take cotton out of the Rio Grande Valley, we have nothing left."

America's pleasure boat fleet nearly tripled in a decade and a by 345,000 small craft during 1957.
