10 Injured in December Wrecks Here

Chief of Police Jim Conner said this morning 20 persons were injured in traffic accidents in Pampa during December.
Conner said the total of 79 accidents included 71 in which two more vehicles were involved, in which a vehicle left the roadway, one in which a passenger fell from a moving vehicle, one between a motor vehicle and a bicycle. The total property damage was $20,906.14.
He said the principal cause of accidents was failure to grant right of way, which accounted for 17 of the crashes, with exceeding a safe speed second with 13, improper start from a parked position was third, accounting for wrecks.
The most dangerous hour in Pampa last month was 1 p.m., when nine accidents occurred, second was 8 a.m., when eight collisions happened, and third was 4 p.m., with six.
Up to now, it has been 480 days since a fatal accident has occured in the city limits.

The Almanac

By United Press International

Today is Friday, Jan. 8, the 14th day of the year, with 358 more days in 1960.

The moon is in its first quarter.
The morning stars are Mars and Venus.

On this day in history:
In 1815, General Andrew Jackson defeated the British at the battle of New Orleans.
In 1867, Congress enacted legislation providing suffrage for Negroes in the District of Columbia.
In 1917, the U. S. Supreme Court upheld the Webb-Kenyon Act prohibiting the shipment of alcoholic beverages from "wet" to "dry" states.
In 1918, President Wilson outlined his 14 points for a just peace.
In 1918, Mississippi became the first state to ratify the 18th — prohibition — Amendment.
In 1959, the United States recognized the new Cuban government.
A thought for today: President Wilson proposed "a general association of nations to be formed under specific covenants for the purpose of affording mutual guarantees of political independence."

Tree Seedlings Again Available

Seedling trees for use as farm windbreaks may be obtained from the Texas Forest Service again this year, County Agent R. A. Liph Thomas said today.

He urged farmers and ranchers to put in their applications early, for a great demand is predicted.

In previous years, variety of choice has been limited to three or four. This year, Thomas said, there are nine species in stock. Trees available are Australian pine, ponderosa pine, red cedar, Chinese elm, cottonwood, sycamore, osage orange and mulberry.

"We probably have the best moisture conditions for this time of year that we have ever had," Thomas continued, "and it may be the best opportunity we will ever have to get trees started on farms and ranches."

Thomas emphasized that the seedlings are to be used only as farm windbreaks. He said that the conservation programs was a self-supporting cooperative effort and that the cost was to be borne by the participating farmers and ranchers, but he pointed out that prices were low.

Windbreak-planting stock application blanks may be obtained from any county agent's office.

Injury Suit Filed

A compensation suit was entered in 31st District Court today by Sterling A. Dedmon against Phoenix Assurance Co. of New York.

Dedmon alleges that while employed by Ernest Johnson in May, 1959, he was straightening a mud box, used in plastering, and sustained an injury to his right foot that resulted in total loss of its use.

Dedmon is asking compensation for 125 weeks at the rate of 60 percent of his average weekly wage of $89.10, not to exceed $35 per week.

Nicholson Rites

Pend In McLean

McLEAN — Funeral services are pending for Charlie G. Nicholson, retired deputy sheriff and city marshal, it has been announced by Richardson-Lamb Funeral Home. Mr. Nicholson died about 9:30 this morning in Grooth Hospital following a brief illness.

He moved here from Anna, Ill., in 1902 and was married to the former Annie May Littlepage, who died in 1958.

Fog Enshrouds Crippled Plane

LONDON (UPI) — If it wasn't the worst fog anybody had seen in years it was the most unexpected, and it led to one of the most confusing crash-landings in years.

All 59 persons aboard escaped a fiery death when a British Viscount airliner crash-landed at London Airport Thursday night on a flight from Dublin. All 59 promptly got lost in the fog and so did rescue vehicles.

Other survivors are four sons, Lawrence of McLean, Glen of Ashland, Kan., Charlie of Everett, Wash., D. V. of St. Petersburg, Fla.; three daughters, Mrs. Lona Jones of McLean, Mrs. Bessie Stevenson of Muleshoe, and Mrs. Annie Stoits of Escalon, Calif.

Arrangements will be announced later by the funeral home.

Two more were found on the doors of the Bethel Jacob Synagogue in Des Moines and some- one penciled a tiny Nazi emblem on a wall in the Milwaukee, Wis., federal building. The symbol was found earlier this week on the only synagogue in Marshalltown, Iowa.

Most officials passed off the swastika-smearings as the work of cranks or pranksters.

"It's despicable," Florida Gov. Leroy Collins said, "although it was probably done by a vandalistic act rather than by someone who had hate in his heart."

Jewish leaders and police in Des Moines said juveniles probably painted the swastikas there and Marshalltown Police Chief D. A. Dooley said the vandalism there was the work of "some stupid, moronic imbecile."

Beef Cabbage Rolls Are A Delicious Winter Surprise

By GAYNOR MADDOX

SEA Food and Markets Editor

In a chilly night, beef-stuffed cabbage rolls make a delicious surprise for dinner.

Ground beef is always popular. Cabbage leaves, rolled into rolls with onion, seasonings and tomato sauce, are tucked into a partially cooked fresh cabbage leaf.

For the cabbage roll surprise, use more spicy tomato sauce and sharp grated cheese.

Ingredients: One pound ground beef, one chopped onion, 2 tablespoons cooking oil, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon pepper, 1/2 cup rolled oats, 1/2 cup old-fashioned, uncooked, rice.

Directions: Brown beef and onion in oil. Drain and put into a large bowl. Add all ingredients for sauce. Mix well. Separate 8 cabbage leaves from head. Wash; drop into boiling salted water and cook 3 minutes. Drain. Fill each with the mixture; roll up and secure with toothpick. Place in 1x11-inch pan. Pour remaining sauce over cabbage rolls. Bake in preheated oven (350 degrees F.) 45 to 60 minutes. Baste occasionally.

Tiny Candies Are New Confection

Tiny candies brought to the table at coffee time are a surefire way to add flair to your bridge club entertaining. They provide that bit of sweetness without richness that most persons enjoy at the end of a meal.

If you want to try something new in this line for your candy dish, consider the pulled cream confections now being introduced by the Richardson mint people.

Called House Party M.X., these confections are a multi-colored assortment of five refreshing flavors—mint, lemon, lime, orange and wintergreen. They come in appropriate colors of white, yellow, green, orange and pink. Each tiny, cube-shaped nugget is pan coated to ensure flavor and freshness.

Look for these new candies in your supermarket, drug, variety and confectionery stores. Bathing caps get prettier each summer. One of the newest looks exactly like a wig or flower cap but it's all in rubber. Comes in beautiful color combinations.

DEAR ABBY....

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: What do you think about a situation like this? My husband gives a "birthday party" every year for his first wife who has been dead for nine years. He invites all their old friends. Everyone knows what the celebration is. It includes a trip to the cemetery. I have no objections to my husband visiting his first wife's grave whenever he wants to. But this "birthday party" really gets me. Do you think I have to?

DEAR ABBY: I am 18 years old and Howie is 25. We had two dates and got along just fine together. After the second date he said he thought we'd better not see any more of each other because I was "TOO NICE". How can a girl be "too nice", Abby? What do you think he meant by this?

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of two children. For the past eight years I have been fed up to the teeth with youngsters calling me by my first name. I teach my children to call the parents of their friends, "Mr. and Mrs. So and So." But their friends do not return this courtesy. My husband doesn't like it either. He is a professional man and his is called "Mister" at the office.

But when he comes home he is greeted by some little 5-year-old punk with "Hi ya, Max!" This lack of respect is disgusting. What do other adults think of this?

DEAR ABBY: That letter from Old-Timer provoked me. He said, "There ought to be a law forcing married women to stay home and not work until all their children reach 18." I am working mother and let me tell Old-Timer that among my acquaintances the women who work are better mothers and have better behaved children than the mothers who don't work.

Plenty of mothers who don't work spend all their time gadding around and drinking coffee with the neighbors, completely ignoring their children. Although I am a working mother, I give my children more times and attention than many mothers who boast that they "stay home and take care of their families." Baloney!

What's your problem? For a personal reply, write to ABBY, care of this paper. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Teen Centers Are Replacing Front Porches

NEW YORK — The teen center is replacing the front porch as the spot where young people congregate.

A coast-to-coast collection of clubs, cafeterias and "just plain hangouts" is taking over the teenage world, reports the January issue of SEVENTEEN Magazine in a special feature titled "What Centers range from lavish to limited: New Orleans teens swim and rehearse plays in a glamorous building of their own; and New Yorkers dance and roller skate in a church basement.

Ingenuity is the key to choosing a center. Auburn, Me., teens dance in a supermarket parking lot on summer evenings, in an armory during the winter. Spring Valley, N.Y., high schoolers got everyone in town to help them build their own pine-paneled "Tiger's Den."

Centers stay solvent by charging small dues and admission to dances and by putting on plays. Members often raise money by baby sitting, selling cake or pizza, etc.

Here's the tested formula for a successful teen center: plenty of music for dancing and as much sports equipment and as many games as possible. The simplest kind of music is provided by a record player amplified by a public address system or a juke box tripped to play free all evening. For special occasions young people hire a local teen band or more expensive professional musicians.

As for games, cards, checkers and chess are universal and inexpensive. Boys prefer ping pong or pool. At a center located in a school or recreation hall the program can become more ambitious with swimming, bowling, basketball, tennis, etc. Some sports equipment isn't expensive; all that's needed for handball is a wall, skating parties, all-day picnics and beach parties also are popular.

Lingerie To Come With Decade Sounds Like Exciting Chapter In Science Fiction

United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI)—A prediction of lingerie to come within a decade sounds like science fiction. Undies and sleepwear will be temperature-controlled much like electric blankets—possibly through solar power. Lingerie will change colors to match clothing worn over it. Many fabrics will be transparent, disposable, or scented.

This look at the future came from Philip Simon, president of Kayser-Roth Lingerie Co., at a fashion show of 1960 styles.

"Transparent fabrics are not just a pipe dream," Simon said in an interview after the show. "We already have glass fibers (unable for lingerie now because they cause itching) and, through research, new fibers could be perfected to have bending strength and qualities for draping. The fabric could be used for shoulder straps to be worn with bare-back dresses without showing."

"We also will have yarns of relatively high electrical conductivity which, when knitted into fabric, will have a cooling or heating property, depending upon the temperature where they are worn."

"The power source," he explained, "could be either a microscopic transistorized unit, or in the more distant future, solar power."

Disposable garments will be available in the near future, Simon added. The non-woven, non-knit fabrics will be made of cellulose bonded with new synthetic yarns in a special chemical process under higher pressure, then rolled out. Although non-woven fabrics are not new for the first time they will be lightweight, have high absorption, and not fall to pieces when damp.

How will lingerie change color? It will be mirror-like and reflect colors of other clothes such as precious gems reflect light, Simon said.

This season, a forerunner of the mirror fibers is being marketed for the first time. It's a sparkly nylon shown in gold over a white waltz-length nightgown, in a gold petticoat and brief, and in a baby doll sleep set.

Another first available about the end of January is a "one-way stretch girdle of spandex, a synthetic fiber which stretches like rubber but snaps back faster and can be laundered in a washer and dryer. It is sheer and lightweight, fits like a second skin, is comfortable, yet molds the figure better than nylon or rubber."

Also new is a tissue tricot, "satilene," which looks and feels much like satin.

In addition to new fabrics, the collection included these new designs: The "jama," a one-piece wash-and-wear sleeping romper with a ribbon sash, front buttons and eyelid embroidery; the "negligette," a short robe which can be worn over baby dolls or pop-over pajamas or as a bed jacket; and the "petti-doll," a short top of gathered sheer over a tricot under-bodice, shirred on elastic for blousing up or wearing at waist length, and a puffed skirt attached to tricot panties.

Let Pickles Add Zest To Vegetables. If you're on a merry-go-round of serving the same three or four vegetables during the week because your family finds them the most acceptable, the time has come to renew interest in some of the old favorites.

For even favorite vegetables can become dull with repetition. One way to solve the problem is with different flavoring accents. You seldom need to go farther than your pantry shelf to find the flavor. Those pickles you tuck into lunchboxes, the pickle-relish you keep ready for frankfurters, even the sweet pickle slices with which you dress a relish tray, can remove ordinary vegetables from their eternal sameness.

Here are some simple suggestions developed in the test kitchens at Bond Pickle Company for homemakers who want quick ways to fancy the family's daily vegetable fare.

Since two dill pickles and stir into steamed shredded cabbage. Season with salt, pepper and a fleck of brown sugar.

Your Tax Primer

(Last of 12 Chapters)
By RICHARD A. MULLENS
Written for NEA Service

Chapter Twelve

April 15, 1960, is the last date individuals can file a timely Federal income tax return for the calendar year 1959.

The law indicates that the return must be filed, that is, in the hands of the District Director, by April 15. However, in the past the Revenue Service has announced that a return which is mailed with an April 15 postmark will be considered properly filed even though it is not delivered to the Revenue Service until the following day.

It is best to file in plenty of time to meet the April 15 deadline so that you don't have to worry about last-minute overights.

Some taxpayers may not have information needed to file a complete return by the deadline. In such cases, write the District Director well before April 15 requesting an extension of time to file your return, giving the reason why you cannot file on time. You will be charged interest on any tax you owe after the due date, but if you have an extension, no penalty will be assessed.

After your return reaches the District Director's office it will eventually be checked for mathematical accuracy.

If you have made an error, the District Director will send you an explanation together with either a bill or a refund depending on whether you figured too little or too much tax.

If you should receive such a notice and either don't agree or don't understand, write the District Director for more information.

Your return will also be reviewed to determine whether it should be examined by a Revenue Agent. Ordinarily only those returns which have doubtful or suspicious items are examined closely.

New Toy Has Kids, Adults Alike Agog

By PATRICIA MCGORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI)—A new parlor game whose enthusiasts range from Winston Churchill to the college crowd—is child's play.

Inspiration for the game struck Jerry D'Arcey, of San Jose, Calif., the day he noticed regular blocks bored his children.

He went to his workshop and made blocks with angles—triangles, rectangles, right angles and odd angles. He splashed the blocks with bright colors.

The entertainment comes from trying to balance the blocks, one on top of the other, until a zig-zag tower rises—without toppling. Each player gets three chances. If the tower topples on third try, the participant is a—Blockhead, the name given the game.

Ben Spero, vice president of the firm that made the game, said Winston Churchill's daughter—in-law recently called a request for the game, asking that it be sent in time for Christmas.

The set, he said, was for Sir Winston. Reportedly, the distinguished statesman tumbled Blockhead when they played the game for the first time at a party on the French Riviera.

But the game has more than an entertaining value. Spero said a group of Lutheran missionaries discovered Blockhead helped them to communicate with natives. They're now sending it around the world.

In some Veteran's Administration hospitals, the game is used as therapy.

"A Pittsburgh restaurant," Spero said, "encourages its patrons to play Blockhead while waiting for tables."

D'Arcey sold his rights to the game to a Pittsburgh industrialist. More than a million sets have been sold.

The inventor is working these days on a new toy—a combination of a bicycle and a pogo stick.

Ben Blue Wants To Do A Series

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—After four valiant attempts to get another TV series, wiggle eyed comic Ben Blue is girding for one more try.

"I'm playing with the idea of doing a weekly show based on my nightclub," said Ben, a regular fixture on TV in its early days.

Talking about four pilot films he made for projected series, Ben sat with feet outstretched on a chair in his darkened club at nearby Santa Monica as he rehearsed new routines.

"Three of the pilots I made for other producers and one I did myself at a cost of $37,000," he said. "When we were unable to sell any of them, I swore off making a series."

With such a run of bad luck, it's surprising old Ben didn't toss his set into the trash can and wash his hands of the whole medium.

However, Ben had a change of heart deciding to "swear on" to a series which would air out of his saloon in the nation's living rooms.

Looking in the direction of the stage, Ben, with a sweeping gesture of his hands, said, "I can put on a good show with those acts like I do here."

"What we could do would be to run our regular show for two hours, tape it in the club, then break it up into three segments," he explained. "In a sense, that would be my last attempt to make another regular series."

"I figure we could turn out each segment for $5,000, practically nothing when you compare it with the $50,000 Jack Benny spends. In fact, Jack's paying me $6,000 for a single appearance on his program Sunday night."

Insisting he's a club or first and TV performer, a Ben said the only type of he'd have time to do would emanate from his nitery

Discussion Of Catholicism Inevitable During Politicking

Religion In America
By LOUIS CASSELL
United Press International

How much political influence does the Catholic Church exercise over its members?

That question will come up in a great many private conversations during the next few months. It lies at the heart of the religious issue that has been raised in connection with Sen. John F. Kennedy's bid for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Since the discussion is inevitable, many thoughtful Catholics as well as non-Catholics believe it should be brought into the open now, with the facts laid on the table as objectively and fairly as possible.

The distinguished Catholic editor John Cogley points out in Commonwealth magazine that the facts can be obscured by two kinds of extremism.

One is that of the religious bigot who depicts all Catholics as puppets on strings pulled by the Vatican.

The other is that of well-meaning people who are "so imbued with the spirit of good will and tolerance" that they deny any difference between Protestant and Catholic attitudes toward the authority of the church.

There is a difference, says Cogley, and it is an "important" one: "Unlike the Protestant, the Catholic believes that the church is a visible body, hierarchically organized, which speaks with God-given authority on questions of faith and morals."

In other words, a Catholic, if he is true to his faith, regards his church as a divinely established institution which has been endowed with infallible teaching authority—in certain realms. A Protestant may subject any teaching of his church to the test of private conscience, accepting or ejecting it as he sees fit. But a Catholic who asserted such a broad right would be guilty of very grave sin in the eyes of his church.

Cogley notes, however, that the areas in which the Catholic Church speaks to its members with infallible authority are "very clearly defined." They are the areas of "faith and morals."

In applying the church's basic moral teachings to specific problems, Catholics can and often do disagree. Even when high prelates of the church have expressed forceful opinions on political issues a Catholic office holder may continue to hold opposite views.

This was demonstrated recently when the Catholic premier of Italy received the award in its seven years.

She and Taylor will each receive $1,000 and a "bronze plaque" as awards for writing and reporting "most nearly exemplifying the style and craftsmanship" of Pyle, the great reporter and columnist killed near the end of World War II.

DID YOU KNOW

More Americans are injured each year in auto accidents than in both World War I and Korea combined.

It's a fact: 774,230 American servicemen injured in the last two wars. And yet, over 1 million auto injuries are reported each year! Good reason for car insurance coverage against such accidents. More and more careful drivers are insuring with State Farm and enjoying comparable car insurance protection.
