85th Heads Home, But... 86th Congress' Work Cut Out

By WILLIAM THEIS
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Election-bound members of the 85th Congress hurried home today but the work of the 86th already was cut out.

Both Senate Democratic leader Lyndon B. Johnson and Senate Republican leader William F. Knowland said in separate statements to United Press International that the accomplishments of the 85th Congress were substantial.

However, despite its record of many accomplishments, the weary congressmen left behind when they adjourned at 4:11 Sunday morning a pile of controversial bills certain to be faced again in January.

Aid Bill Passes

One of the first will be Hawaiian statehood. Congress shaved it this year without a vote.

Others include the labor reform bill, school construction aid, a minerals subsidy program and additional housing legislation. All died in the House.

Senate-shelved legislation aimed at curbing the Supreme Court is certain to be revived. Demands—unheeded by the leadership of both major parties this year—will be made for income tax cuts.

House and Senate members climaxed the marathon finish of the 85th Congress by passing a compromise $3,298,000,000 foreign aid money bill. It brought the 1958 session's total appropriations to $72,653,000,000—not quite 200 million dollars under the total requested by President Eisenhower.

Achievements Lauded

Knowland said the second session of the 85th Congress "had a good batting average." But he said "in general the Democrats pressed for greater spending" and the Republicans "were instrumental" in blocking it.

Johnson said the achievements of the session were made through a "non-partisan effort" brought forth because "the problems before the American people are non-partisan."

He said the American people demanded responsible government.

The achievements ranged widely from passing Alaskan statehood to beefing up the housing and highway programs, expanding Social Security, establishing a space agency and adopting a Pentagon reorganization plan.

No Spending Dearth

The President got more than his supporters expected although most of the bills landing on his desk bore the imprint of Democratic cratic congressional leaders' ideas.

Moreover, political observers noted much of the legislative program was tailored to help Democrats hold Congress in the fall elections when all of the House and a third of the Senate seats are on the ballot.

Democrats and Republicans alike called this a "spending Congress."

But the absence of a spending showdown was largely dictated, legislators said, by the "Sputnik scare" which disclosed this country's lag in missile development at the session's opening.

Army Seeking Cause Of Missile Miff

By RICHARD F. ROPER
United Press International

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI)—The Army sifted through coded data today in an effort to determine why its dependable Jupiter C rocket failed to put Explorer V into orbit.

"Everyone was mystified," one source said of the Sunday firing that apparently followed the form book up until the actual moment the heavily instrumented satellite was to have gone into the groove.

"Apparently the trouble was in one of the upper stages," the source said, "but it will be at least a day or two before we can find out what happened."

Scientists sent Explorer V into the heavens with sensitive instruments designed to unlock more secrets of the heavy radiation band that Explorer IV encountered about 600 miles from the earth. This "shot" canopy currently is one of the biggest apparent obstacles to manned space flight.

Scientists had hoped to learn whether the radiation bombardment is made up of protons or electrons, according to George Ludwig, University of Iowa scientist who designed instrumentation for all the Explorers sent up to date.

If they are protons, he said, man could absorb a lethal dose in less than five hours.

The big Jupiter C left its launching pad here at 2:17 a.m., e.d.t., and the Army's first announcement was that it "appeared to function normally."

But three and one-half hours later the Army reported from Washington that signals from the tube-shaped satellite failed to come in after the first few minutes. "The satellite did not achieve an orbit," the official statement said.

Open House Slated At New School

The Board of Education, instructional staff, and parent teachers association of Robert E. Lee Junior High School extends an invitation to Pampa citizens to an open house on Thursday evening, Aug. 28, from 7 to 10. No program is planned for the informal tour of the building.

Places of special interest include the auditorium, music and band rooms, vocational units, the library, offices, and physical education facilities. In addition, twenty-four modern classrooms, the art, science, and speech units will be open for inspection.

Refreshments will be served to all guests in the dining room of the cafeteria. The kitchen will be open.

Visitors are requested to use the Charles Street entrance.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI)—Gov. Orval E. Faubus today worked on plans to ask the Arkansas Legislature, when it meets in special session Tuesday, to close Big Central High School if the federal courts insist on integrating it.

Seven Negroes who were among the nine who integrated Central last year under the bayonets of 101st Airborne Division troops may try to register today or Tuesday.

Faubus already has talked over the plan—a variation of the "Virginia plan"—with legislative leaders. There is no doubt he can have almost any legislation to deal with the integration problem that he wants.

He also will ask the Legislature to provide education for more than 1,900 white students if Central ever is closed to keep Negroes from attending it.

Faubus Would Close Central High Before Integrating It

Two plans are under consideration. One would allow the students to transfer to other schools. The other would set up a system of private schools, which students would attend with tuition at least partly paid by the state.

Faubus ordered the Legislature Saturday to meet Tuesday at 11 a.m. and pass laws to keep Negroes out of Central if the U. S. Supreme Court refuses to give it a two-and-a-half-year "breathing spell."

Central opens for classes Sept. 2. Registration started Friday and continues today and Tuesday.

An NAACP leader said the Negro students will try to register unless they are advised before-hand their records have been transferred to Horace Mann (Negro) School.

One of the nine Negroes who integrated Central last year was graduated in May. Another was expelled for fighting with students, leaving seven to attend this year.

Appeals In Courts

Three persons were killed and eight injured in a three-car collision near Madisonville, Tenn. Two of the cars crashed head-on, killing all five occupants of one of them, and the third car was forced from the highway.

The victims were identified as Joe E. Bowles Jr., 26, the driver; his wife, Mary Lou, 25; their daughter, Beckie Jo, 2, all of Richmond, Ky.; Mrs. Nora Walter Stuckey, 56, Shelbyville, Ky.; and Mrs. Mary Chandy Connors, 52, Miami, Fla.

Another five-fatality crash occurred near El Paso, Tex., when a car speeding at an estimated 100 miles-per-hour slammed into another car at the entry to the El Paso freeway.

A car containing seven party-going youths crashed and burst into flames near Eastford, Conn., when the driver sought to tune the radio, killing four passengers and blinding and paralyzing a fifth.

At Embden, Maine, three teenagers, two of them brothers, were killed when their car went out of control and crashed into a utility pole.

A Chicago and Eastern Illinois passenger train plowed into the side of a car apparently stalled on the track near Vincennes, Ill., killing all four occupants of the car. Three of the victims were hurled from the auto, which was dragged about a mile down the track.

Killed were George F. Smith, 58; Jackie Colquitt, 13; Otis Williams, 78, and his wife, Elizabeth, 83, all of the Chicago suburb of Robbins.

Three persons were killed at a grade crossing near Hammon, N.J., when their car was hit by a Pennsylvania-Reading Seashore Lines train. The victims were too identification.

Russian Scientist Charged With Beating US Into Space, And Back

By ROBERT MUSEL
United Press International

AMSTERDAM (UPI)—An American scientist who arrived here from Moscow said today Russia's brilliant Peter Kapitzka has been charged with the task of getting a Russian into space and back alive and first.

The American, whose name must be withheld, is attending the Ninth International Astronautical Congress which has just opened in Amsterdam. He said he got news of Kapitzka's new mission from many contacts with Soviet researchers in Moscow.

The high priority granted by the Kremlin to the Soviet projects for manned space flights and moon probes has made Kapitzka, as head of the programs, the most powerful scientist in Russia today, the American said.

This was the first word about the legendary Kapitzka since last October when, after a long period of obscurity, his name was mentioned by Moscow as one of the "coordinators" of the project which sent the first Sputnik into orbit.

Now, according to the American informant, Kapitzka is at the very top and answerable only to the Kremlin. If true, this represents the climax of a strange story.

The Russian-born Kapitzka was a researcher at the nuclear laboratories at Cambridge, England, before the war. He went to Russia, ostensibly on a holiday and to visit a sick relative, and did not return.

British scientists campaigned for many years to force his release, believing he was held a prisoner by Stalin. He has never left Russia since, as far as is known, but Western scientists no longer regard him as a prisoner.

His work for Russia has fulfilled all the predictions made for his career at Cambridge, where he was rated so highly that a special laboratory was built for him.

Hamilton In Decisive Win Over Smith

United Press International

Judge Robert W. Hamilton of El Paso decisively defeated liberal candidate J. Edwin Smith of Houston in their Democratic runoff race for Place 1 on the Texas Supreme Court.

The Texas Election Bureau's latest count from Saturday's second primary election showed that Hamilton had a winning margin of more than 49,000 votes. The El Paso jurist had 293,835 votes to 244,693 for the Houston attorney.

A total of 248 counties out of 254 had reported with 167 completed.

Texas Election Bureau officials said 98.4 per cent of the total vote had been tabulated. Early today 538,528 votes had been tabulated and between 8,000 and 9,000 remained to be counted.

The vote more than doubled the expected figure with 87 counties yet to be completed over the state.

Hamilton, an El Paso civil appellate court justice, was supported by conservative Democratic leaders and also had the endorsement of a majority of Texas lawyers who voted preferences in the state bar poll.

Smith had the implied endorsement of the state AFL-CIO. He came into the election with a record of leadership in the liberal-lawyer segment of the Democratic party in Harris county.

Hamilton carried all the big cities except Houston.

Three state Senate positions were also at stake in the election and their outcomes had been decided today.

In District 3, returns from all nine counties, six complete, gave Martin Dies Jr., of Lufkin, a winning margin over former state Rep. Frank Carpenter. Dies polled 19,472 votes to 12,749 for Carpenter.

In Harris county District 6, former State Rep. Robert W. Baker beat Charles A. Murphy, also a former state representative, 44,314 to 26,255.

The closest race was in District 16 where Louis Crump led Joe B. Swanner of Brownwood by a vote of 11,599 to 9,908. Returns from 15 of 18 counties, all complete, had been tabulated. Election Bureau officials said there weren't enough votes left in the outstanding boxes to change the results of the race.

'ELUSIVE ELMER'

Norman Henry, left, tries to interest Robert Karr in the search for "Elusive Elmer." Cubs, Scouts and Explorers of the Adobe Walls Council, will play a large part in the fall membership round up as they will hand out survey cards to boys who are not members. "Elusive Elmer" will be the 5,800th boy to register with a Scouting unit in the Adobe Walls Council. The unit that secures him, says Henry, will get this picture to hang in its meeting place. Henry is chairman of the Boy Scout Organization and Extension Committee.

Rash Of Fatalities In Traffic Reported

United Press International

A rash of fatality traffic crashes across the nation Sunday marked a grim prelude to the coming Labor Day weekend.

At least 33 persons were killed in multiple — fatality accidents from Maine to Oregon.

Six persons, including four vacationing Texans, were killed near Portland, Ore., when two cars collided on U.S. 30 shortly after dawn. Authorities said the crash occurred when one of the vehicles failed to negotiate a turn at a detour.

Janet, Other Stars In Auto Accident

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—A carload of celebrities, including actress Janet Leigh who is expecting a baby in November, were shaken up Sunday in a traffic accident reported to authorities by singer Frank Sinatra.

Police said the car, carrying Miss Leigh, her husband actor Tony Curtis, singer Dean Martin, songwriter Sammy Cahn and their wives, was struck by a car driven by Donald R. Seddon, 38, Santa Monica.

Officers said Seddon thought he saw his wife riding in an automobile in front of Miss Leigh's car and tried to force the vehicle to the curb, bouncing into the car carrying the celebrities.

The first car carried David North, 22, and his wife, Patricia, 22; not Seddon's mate as he thought. Seddon was booked on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon.

Sinatra, driving in a car with comedian Ernie Kovacs and his wife behind Miss Leigh and Curtis, stopped and reported the accident to police by radio-telephone.

He then called to arrange for medical treatment for Miss Leigh at UCLA Medical Center.

The celebrities were returning from a party at the home of actor Peter Lawford.

Miss Leigh was examined at the medical center and released, apparently with no ill effects from the accident — her second in traffic in a week.

Knife, Fork Club Lines Up Outstanding Speaker List

A former Associated Press correspondent, a mentalist team, and a rocket expert will be among the attractions of the Top o' Texas Knife & Fork Club season, according to Travis Lively, president.

Eddy Gilmore, who was the "AP's ace correspondent in Russia," the Tuckers, "America's brilliant young mentalists," and Willy Ley, "leading authority on rockets, space ships, man-made satellites and interplanetary travel," will fill the first three dates of the season.

They will be followed by Mrs. Irene Walker Bowman, an interpreter of the international scene; Major General Charles A. Willoughby, "famous for his Willoughby report and as General MacArthur's chief of intelligence in the Pacific during World War II," and Aly Wassil, "Pakistan philosopher with a profound understanding of world conditions."

Nationalists Beat Back Two Attempts

By AL KAFF
United Press International

TAIPEI, Formosa (UPI)—Nationalist Sabre Jets shot down two Communist MIGs tonight in a blazing aerial battle over Quemoy Island that followed two unsuccessful attempts by the Reds to invade an island in the group.

Russian-built Communist artillery bombarded Quemoy throughout the day with thousands of shells—the third straight day of Red gunfire from the nearby mainland. The shelling already had killed or wounded more than 429 Nationalists Saturday and Sunday.

Tonight the Communists sent 48 MIG 17s over the Nationalists' offshore island and 40 Nationalist Sabre jets pounced from out of the clouds on the faster planes and drove them off, using the American fighting methods that won superiority in Korea.

The Nationalists said the second Communist MIG crashed near Lungchi airdrome on the Communist mainland.

Series of Sea Battles

It was the third destructive jet aerial battle in the Formosa Straits since the Reds moved in an estimated 250 superior MIGs into five coastal airdromes last month. The Communists shot down two Nationalist F84 Thunderjets July 29 and Nationalist Sabres downed two and possibly three MIGs Aug. 14.

One of the MIGs crashed in flames on Weitou peninsula of the Communist mainland seven miles northeast of big Quemoy Island, the Defense Ministry announced. The ministry said all Nationalist planes returned safely to Formosa.

The Nationalists said two separate Communist invasion attempts were repulsed in a series of sea battles that raged for many hours in the waters south of Quemoy. Two Communist motor torpedo boats were reported sunk another "probably" sunk and five damaged.

Americans Are Safe

The Nationalists said they lost one hospital ship, a landing craft which entered the battle area by chance while evacuating wounded to Formosa. A second hospital LCI was torpedoed but survived and was being towed to safety.

Despite the heavy casualties among the Quemoy defenders, the U.S. Army announced the 21 officers and men there of the U.S. advisory group were safe although more than 100,000 Communist artillery shells blanketed the Quemoy area.

The Nationalists feared a major invasion attempt of Quemoy Island itself was imminent and hinted they might bomb the Chinese mainland in retaliation.

Fleet Alerted

The United States alerted the U. S. 7th Fleet in the Formosa Strait to take "normal precautionary defensive measures."

United Press International Correspondent Larry Hansen, with the fleet, said U. S. air sea patrols were within 12 miles of the Communist-held mainland.

A high State Department official predicted the Chinese Communists would head Secretary of State John Foster Dulles' warning against any attempts to seize Quemoy or Matsu islands just off the Chinese coast. Dulles said Saturday such an effort would threaten the peace of the area.

At the same time Communist China accused the U. S. Navy of stepping up "provocative activities" along the mainland and said this "seriously threatened the peace of the area."

The season will get underway Oct. 14, in Pampa High School cafeteria, with Gilmore on "People I'd Like to be Shipwrecked With and Some Others With Whom I wouldn't." Gilmore, who spent 12 years covering the Kremlin, is credited as one of the most thoroughly informed Americans on Soviet life and plans. It is said of him that he pulls no punches.

The Tucker's will appear Nov. 13. "Shhh, Don't Think Too Loudly" epitomizes their humorous portrayal of mental telepathy that "knocked the props right out of a lot of Broadway diaphragms."

Willy Ley's "Rockets and Guided Missiles" will be the feature for Jan. 14. Leaving Germany when Hitler came in, he has contributed to Look, the Saturday Evening Post, Collier's, Natural History and other magazines. His books include "Days of Creation," "The Conquest of Space," and

New 'Twist' On Chain Letter Fraud

Widespread circulation through the Pampa area of a new twist on the chain letter brought comment from the office of the Amarillo district postal inspector's office this morning.

A. W. Pfannmiller, chief postal inspector for the Panhandle region, said the chain letter system under any name or in any form is definitely prohibited by postal regulations when the system involves use of the mail services.

As presently propagated in the Pampa area, the letter includes 10 names. A "prospective" customer buys a letter for one dollar, makes two copies substituting his name for the tenth, one and excluding the first name on the list, and mails one dollar to the excluded name. He then sells his two letters for one dollar each. The system is popular and spreads rapidly since the customer recovers the two dollars he has spent in purchasing the original letter and mailing to the first name.

According to the letters, which are not mailed but sold from hand to hand, the system will produce $2048 for each name on the list. Pfannmiller stressed that, under the law, the purpose for which the money is mailed is the important thing whether or not the letter is mailed. Thus, regulations prohibiting chain letter systems cover the mailing of money in connection with chain letters whether the letters are mailed or not.

Authority for the prohibition of gimmicks of this nature is found in chapter 1, section 124.4 of the postal manual which prohibits mailings of a fraudulent nature. Fraud occurs in the system described above when persons on the list fail to receive the promised benefits, that is, when letters in the chain are not sold or purchasers fail to mail money to previous purchasers.

Under present postal regulations, persons participating in the system are subject to fines and imprisonment.

Minnee Chesshire of Canadian pleaded guilty Saturday to charges of swindling with a worthless check and was fined $5 and costs. She also made restitution on the check for $7.18, passed April 3rd at Karl's Shoe Store.

DEAR ABBY...

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have a five-year-old son who keeps falling out of bed. He slept in a crib up until now and he can't get used to sleeping in a bed, so he falls out of bed and lands on his head. My husband says to put him back in his crib. My mother says to tie him down, but I am afraid he will strangle on the cord because he moves around a lot when he sleeps. My neighbor lady says a sleeping child will never hurt himself if he falls out of bed, even if he lands on his head, and he will learn fast from his own bumps and bruises. I'm all confused. Please tell me what to do.

ALL CONFUSED

Dear All: Don't put a five-year-old back in his crib and don't, for goodness sake, tie him down. Put chairs around the open sides of this bed and pad the floor. He can hurt himself (and seriously) if he falls out of bed and lands on his head.

DEAR ABBY: I am the second wife, having married a man whose first wife divorced him because she wanted another man. We are on good terms and his first wife and her husband live upstairs from us. When my husband brings me flowers or a plant or any kind of a gift, he brings her one just like it. I like the woman, but I get hurt when he does this. Even she told him it wasn't right but he does it anyway. We run into each other carrying the same purses and when it rains we are both in the same raincoats and the whole thing is getting on my nerves and I can't take any more. Have you any suggestions?

HURT

Dear Hurt: If your husband brings you a gift and he has one just like it for Wife Number One, refuse to accept it. Then, he will know you mean business.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem I don't know how to handle. Our 18-year-old daughter fell in love with a 19-year-old boy. He is a perfect gentleman and goes to church with us and he is so respectful and hard working and clean that we love this boy. He came to us and told us he has an illegitimate child and he has no idea who his mother or father are. He said he was born in the Booth Memorial Hospital and was later put into an Orphan's Home. How can we find out more about this young man or don't you think it makes any difference?

JUST A MOTHER

Dear Mother: There must be a record of his birth (at Booth Memorial), but if I were you I would judge the young man on what he has made of himself. If he is clean, hard-working, church-going, respectful and loves your daughter, he qualifies as a first-class son-in-law. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: I had a date for a barn dance one night in a small town near here. On the way back I ran out of gas. We found ourselves my girl and I in the middle of nowhere. My date said she would wait in the car for me while I hitch-hiked to the nearest service station. I disagreed and made her hitch-hike with me. What is the correct thing for a fellow to do in a case like this?

OUT OF GAS

Dear Out: You used excellent judgment. The walk couldn't hurt her, but the dangers of a girl sitting alone in a deserted automobile "in the middle of nowhere" are too terrible to contemplate. Good for you!

CONFIDENTIAL TO "TWENTY": If he were poor, would you still love him? Let this 49'er go — unless you aim to start the gold rush all over again.

For a personal reply, write to ABBY in care of this paper. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

If you want a collection of Abbest answers by letters, in one book, ask your bookdealer to get "DEAR ABBY" for you.

This summer, every woman will have at least one pair of colored shoes in her wardrobe. They may be flowered or printed or striped or in solid color but they'll set off black linen beautifully.

RUTH MILLETT

The trouble with summer is it always lasts about a month too long.

Before summer is over the children are bored with their freedom and mom is counting the days until school will again put some routine into their lives.

Before summer is gone, gardening has lost its magic. In place of the job of planting and watching things grow and blossom, there is the endless drudgery of watering, spraying, watering, spraying, and struggling just to keep plants alive and grass green.

Before the end of summer a woman's wardrobe begins to look bedraggled and there is that depressing period when it is too early to wear fall clothes and too late to find any good-looking summer additions to her wardrobe.

Long before summer is over, heat begins to wear on the nerves, tempers grow short. People begin to think and say, "It's just too hot to bother." It is as though everyone was marking time until the first fall days appear.

Before summer is over the vacation trip is gone and almost forgotten. The "wonderful rest" is used up.

Before summer is over, the absence of vacationing friends begins to make one feel lonely. The gay postcards they send back only heighten the feeling that "every-one" has gone somewhere.

Summer sports begin to lose their charm. Even the children show little enthusiasm for family outings.

TELEPHONE DIRECTORY GOING TO PRESS SOON

No lost calls here. Grandmother lives with the children, but she has her own phone book listing.

Can friends find you in the telephone book?

If you're living in the home of a married son or daughter, shouldn't you be listed in the phone book under your own name?

Often would-be callers don't know (or can't remember) your children's name and address... have no way of looking up the number. Long Distance calls may be lost or delayed because you're not listed.

Make sure you get all your calls by having your name listed in the directory.

Now is the best time to order extra listings, too, so they will appear in the new telephone directory. Call the telephone business office now because the white pages of the new phone book go to press soon.

AMARILLO—You only had to be among that elbow-to-elbow hoard of 5,500 piliated pigskin patrons who wedged inside Price College Field here Saturday night for the first Panhandle Grid Classic, to fully grasp the situation. Namely:

Football season just ain't a conversation piece that stands lurking just around the corner no more. It's here, Sam!

The fever spread slowly at first, flowing first through this vein and then through that one. By halftime, with the underdog Sodbuster eleven holding their own in a 6-6 stalemate with the City Slickers, it had developed into a full fledged plague.

The little man in white with beady eyes and stethoscope offered a free diagnosis: "Acute case of footballitis. A common fever for this time of the year. Usually lasts three to four months."

Before a large paw could whack the cure from Mr. sawbones mouth, he piped, "Only known cure: See as many football games as possible. For especially fast relief, attend all the practice sessions you can, but watch out for near-sighted linebackers, lest they mistake you for a fullback, and pulverize your pride or something."

Next case, paleeze.

Making Prosperity

Free enterprise cannot thrive in an atmosphere of power politics. No nation without free enterprise can enjoy prosperity. These tenets can be explored empirically in the most rudimentary chronicle of history. They can even be established subjectively by an individual's examination of his own lifetime and career. The only discipline required for the research is an understanding for the meaning of prosperity and of free enterprise. Prosperity is a state of affairs, not a being, of being in position to attain objects desired, of being possessed of the capacity of obtaining things beyond the bare needs of existence. To a degree it is relative state since the desires of all men differ, and in a practical sense it is qualified by an individual's ambitions, ability and energy. Free enterprise specifically is a way of endeavor in which morally responsible individuals may expend their energies and talents to the fullest extent to achieve material benefits which they are entitled to keep or dispense at their own pleasure.

In a recent article in the Wall Street Journal, Cornelius J. Dwyer, a former director of the International Cooperation Administration, who has had some experience with the foreign aid policies of the United States government, discusses the psychological problem of backward lands in achieving prosperity. He puts the answer to the whole problem of these countries in one paragraph of his article: to wit: "My experience in the newly independent Southeast Asia countries has been that it is a hopeless task to counteract the suspicion with which most of the officials of these countries regard free enterprise."

There are a multitude of reasons for these "suspicions" among foreign dignitaries and not least among them is that in the true spirit of free enterprise they are likely to find themselves separated from their own lush seals of political power. Free enterprise in full operation is the enemy of political domination of the individual and his total acceptance by any society is the epitaph of the ruling bureaucrat. In our own country we have seen the rise and fall of free enterprise and with its fall the disappearance of the essence of prosperity although the impetus of the years of American progress still leave us far better off materially than our neighbors around the world. In the degeneracy of our own thinking we rationalize ourselves into a belief we are still prosperous in an age when one-third of all production is diverted to political piddling, when one in five families, to more or less degree, is a financial ward of the state and when monetary values have been deflated appallingly by government-imposed inflation.

All these assaults upon prosperity in America are the direct result of the dying freedom in enterprise following the capture of private endeavor by political pirates. In most foreign lands no capture was necessary since in the revolts against one set of rulers the countries were transferred to the grip of another set of dictators to whom the doctrine of individual rights is as alien as a desert is to a sea-hon. Mr. Dwyer, in his Journal article, makes the assertion that the backward countries have a great deal of trouble in attracting private capital. In all the reasons he lists for this condition there is one common factor, an unwillingness to take the necessary actions to provide a climate favorable to private investment. Few of these governments are willing to discipline their own finances, stabilize their currencies or adopt the kind of trade policies that would lure capital, either local or foreign. In the case of foreign capital they often take actions—such as with taxes, currency restrictions or threats of expropriation—that actually frighten it away.

Thus we have the "failure of private enterprise to do the job" which is so often cited by the proponents of U. S. foreign aid as the reason why the U. S. Government must provide these nations with capital funds. Now we would be the first to concede that the steps urged on these countries by Mr. Dwyer are hard ones to take. No government, including our own, finds it easy to discipline its budget. Few governments, including our own, find it easy to resist the domestic political pressures for nationalistic

But not the least of the ironies in our foreign aid program is that it often discourages these countries from doing things better. Why should they greatly concern themselves about currency convertibility, budget deficits and the like so long as they have the hope that the greater their financial difficulties the stronger their claim upon U. S. aid? Why, indeed, should they worry about attracting private foreign capital so long as they have the easier prospect of attracting capital from the U. S. Treasury? But the political seizure of American production to subsidize foreign lands is the same process which is destroying the American free society and laying a dead hand upon development in foreign countries. The American politician is destroying his own people by depriving them of the tools of prosperity. The foreign politician is forestalling prosperity abroad by maintaining his power with American gold and depriving his people of the incentive to climb up to the road to prosperity. The world is not, really much worse off today than it has been in other ages of its history. But the tragedy of our times is that people are so insensitive to their own best interests that they can turn their back upon a proven formula for material well-being.

The Doctor Says

By EDGAR P. JORDAN, M. D.
 The need for a more enlightened attitude toward the victims of epilepsy is vividly illustrated in a lengthy letter, which I have recently received from a man in his fifties. I shall change enough of it so that he cannot be identified.

"I started to take seizures when I was seven years old," he says. "When I reached 16 I was not wanted by my people or relations, either to live with or visit. I have been living in furnished rooms ever since. I took about one mild seizure a month that would last only a few minutes. When I felt one coming on I would hurry and sit down, even if it were on a curbstone. Sometimes I have been picked up by the police and taken to the station and asked to pay a $10 fine to be released. "One time I felt an attack coming on, saw a policeman and told him. I had been working and had been paid $73 which I had in my wallet, about which I also told him.

"I was taken to the police station and charged with drunkenness, although I had never taken a drink in my life. When I proved my identity to the sergeant, he gave me back my belongings. But when I received my wallet I did not have a cent in it. "I asked him about it and was told that he knew nothing about it. The next day I went to the man I worked for and repeated what had happened. He called the police station and they told him they had no record of my being brought in at all. "I have had only one mild attack in a period of the past two years, though I still take medicine. The trouble is that a lot of people know that I have had these attacks and refuse to hire me or give me an opportunity to work. Don't you think this is unfair?"

This is truly the story of a rough time. The writer did not receive the understanding of his family and friends which he should have had in his youth. The account of what happened with the police sounds almost incredible. We can all hope that if it is accurate, it is most unusual. Of course, the police cannot be expected to be physicians and diagnose epilepsy, but some method of telling it from drunkenness is certainly in order. This tale reminds me of a fellow medical student I know years ago who was one of the first to take insulin for diabetes. He told me of an occasion when he took so much insulin on a train, went to the police as a drunk and woke up in the police station. These attacks of epilepsy sound mild and under pretty good control. The writer mentions taking medicine, so he is doubtless receiving medical care. His doctor should be able to advise him as to what he can and cannot do. Fortunately many employers of men like this are taking a much more sensible and humane attitude toward those afflicted with this disease.

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HOILES
 Reader Asks Opinion As To Whether Foreign Aid Is Gift

I have a letter from a reader, Mrs. R. F. Cummings, Donna, Tex., enclosing a newspaper clipping out of the High Plains Journal, Dodge City, Kan. This article has a heading "Figures Show that You Can't Give Away A United States Dollar in Foreign Aid." The article continues:

"Did you ever suspect you were on the receiving end of the U. S. Foreign Aid Program? "Well, you are: "For more than a decade, an articulate minority has criticized the foreign aid program as a 'give-away' of American dollars. "But recent analyses of those 'give-away' dollars have revealed some striking and surprising facts. Here are the outstanding figures compiled by the Committee for International Economic Growth, Washington, D. C., on how 'foreign aid' spending affects you:

"Some 715,000 jobs in 1957 were directly attributable to foreign aid expenditures. "5,581 U. S. firms in 308 cities in 42 states shared over $2 billion dollars in non-military contracts from Mutual Security funds in 3 1/2 years period ending June 1957. "Military procurement contracts from Mutual Security funds in the amount of an additional $6,831 million went to hundreds of other firms throughout the country during the three-year period ending June 1957. For the first eight months of the fiscal year 1958 this type of purchase provided $941 million more in contracts to domestic business.

"More than $7 billion dollars of foreign aid funds have gone to buy produce from American farms in the last nine years." It seems to me that this is the same kind of economic arithmetic as the Townsend Plan that would make us rich and prosperous by taxing those who had jobs to give $200 a month to all the oldsters, on condition that they would spend the $200. In other words, we could get rich and prosperous by giving our energy away.

Or the idea that we can enrich ourselves by foreign aid is just about as rational as the claims of labor unions that they enrich us by strikes and limiting apprentices and making things scarce and letting some people consume more than they produce.

We have been told so often that aggressive force is better than voluntaryism that many people actually believe it. It is a natural law that the means predetermine the results and when a tax pistol is used to get from one to benefit another, the results will always be harmful. It is hard to figure out how anybody could really believe we have more tools and equipment and a higher standard of living by consuming more and saving less to put into these tools. Of course, we could keep everybody busy in United States if we work for nothing and give away the fruits of our labor. But it is not jobs that people want. It is the fruits of what they produce that we want.

To have the federal government coerce people to pay to send money abroad on the fantasy that giving away wealth by way of taxation will benefit mankind, is not even simple arithmetic. We cannot have more by having less. And there would be ever-increasing wages and an ever-increasing standard of living in the United States and the world over if United States, by example, protected the accumulation of capital and protected everybody in the United States in having the right to produce anything and giving exchange if with anybody, not only in the United States but in the world.

Family Example Let's bring this to a family level. Would anybody contend that a family raising wheat or cotton or producing any form of wealth and selling it and getting dollars and giving these dollars away enrich that family? And it doesn't make a practice of difference whether it is a family or a city or a county or a state or a nation that gives wealth away, they impoverish themselves. On the other hand, if they create wealth and exchange it on a basis that they believe they are materially benefited and the party who buys it believes he is materially benefited, then both people are benefited and everybody in the world is benefited. Not so with gifts or robbery or getting things by the use of a tax pistol. Certainly some few people who have the advantage of making a profit on what somebody else has taken from them by threats of violence might temporarily think they are benefited by any form of socialism, communism, plunder or fraud. And the theory that we give away our dollars and that we are benefited by forcing people to pay for something they do not want, as one-worlders contend, is fraud and can only worsen our condition instead of promoting peace and goodwill and prosperity.

Robert Allen Reports:

Long-Pending Controversy Shifts Scene To Germany

WASHINGTON — That long-pending controversy over returning alien property confiscated in World War II is slated for another and unusual public airing — in Germany. This is one of the unannounced products of the hectic adjournment melee of the late Congress. At a secret meeting, the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, headed by Representative Oren Harris (D., Ark.) voted to go to Europe to conduct new hearings on the long-sputtering alien property issue. Left up to Harris is setting the time, place and other arrangements of this intriguing junket. In talks with Committee colleagues, Harris has indicated he is thinking of November, several weeks after the elections. Also of going to Switzerland as well as West Germany. However, definitely not included in Harris' planning is Japan. Japanese assets are involved in this problem, but they are relatively minor. Bulk of the confiscated property is German. So for the present, Harris is excluding Japan from this trip abroad. Inside reason for this junket is the proposal the State Department sent Congress late in the session for a new solution of the alien property wrangle. Under this latest formula, $100,000,000 of confiscated assets would be paid to U. S. citizens for damage and other claims against Germany and Japan. This money would come from the $215,000,000 in alien holdings still in Justice Department hands. Of that total, $83,000,000 is in cash. Another $235,000,000 has already been paid to American prisoners of war.

No refund would be made to German and Japanese nationals. FLIP-FLOP — This was a complete reversal of a previous State Department stand. Last year it advocated returning approximately $250,000,000 in seized holdings to Germans and Japanese, chiefly the former. The U. S. Treasury would be tapped to make up this amount. Two reasons are behind the State Department's drastic switch: (1) Powerful congressional opposition to using tax money to pay former enemy aliens; (2) strenuous German insistence on the return of all war-confiscated property — between $400 million and $500 million. As a result of this German demand, the State Department suspended its prolonged negotiations with Bonn on this matter. Because of the belated presentation, the Department's new proposal got no serious consideration in either the House or Senate. It is one of the many issues left hanging in the air.

That made it possible for Harris' Committee to justify a foreign trip "to prepare the ground for action in the next Congress." It is Harris' intention to invite numerous witnesses to the European hearings. They will include government officials — from West Germany only. There will be no witnesses from Communist East Germany. In recent years, the alien property issue has been a lobbyists bonanza. It has been one of the most heavily lobbied on Capitol Hill. Lame Ducks from both parties have been hired for this purpose. On the basis of Justice Department records, more than $500,000 has been spent for lobbying to put over this legislation. Note: The four members of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, who are voluntarily quitting Congress, were presented with silver platters costing several hundred dollars each. One of the surprised recipients asked the Committee's clerk, "Who paid for these expensive gifts?" The clerk explained Committee members are being asked to contribute

Looking Sideways

By Whitney Bolton
 NEW YORK, N. Y. — Everybody says — well, almost everybody — that if you live in New York you never really see it. What they mean is that if you lined up 100 genuine New Yorkers, 96 of them would never have seen Grant's Tomb. The remaining one would have a vague idea where it was and say "I remember passing it on the bus, there on Riverside Drive, but I can't rightly say what street it's at the end of." So everybody is about right. New Yorkers never really see New York. They pass it on the bus everyday, that's all.

Living on Long Island is the same thing! The way the moving vans show up six days a week the highways it looks as though everyone is moving out to Long Island. But none of the people ever really see it. It crawls with history: Indians, British fleets, George Washington, dinosaurs, Second Ice Age trenches gouged out by grinding ice, German spies landing from submarines in World War II. But the average Long Islander thinks in terms of how he can get $22 a yard carpeting wholesale and is one supermarket 2 cents cheaper on coffee than another. Once, because mainly we did not feel like a bad cooking deal at home, we took the twin girls to the George Washington Inn at Roslyn for Christmas dinner. At the table next over was another family. It is authenticated history that G. Washington passed at least one night in this house. He says so in his own diary, which is a lot more than other famed "George Washington Slept Here" places can claim. So a 6-year-old at the next table turned to his father and said "But which room here did he sleep in?"

"How the — would I know? Eat your turkey," the father growled. "You could ask the lady at the door," the child persisted. "You crazy or sumpin?" the father answered. The kid will have to wait until he grows up and find out for himself. So, the other night, sitting on the terrace watching a Coast Guard cutter drop anchor for the night, I informed the Foreign Relations Committee, after he made a Senate speech urging it. As explained by the President, the new ambassador at — large will do much the same work on a permanent basis that Deputy Undersecretary of State Robert Murphy recently did on his "trouble-shooting" trip to the Middle East. The President stated this made a big impression on him. Senator Green has also ascertained that the forthcoming appointment is largely the President's own idea. Secretary Dulles was not enthralled about it. Green has been informed the State Department is going to disassemble the President on naming such an ambassador at-large, but he is insisting on it. Being given much credit for it is C. D. Jackson, New York magazine executive, who recently returned to the White House as special assistant to the President. Jackson is known to be urging the President to consult Adlai Stevenson on foreign policies. The Democratic standard-bearer was asked his views last year, before the President attended a special NATO meeting in Paris. At that time Stevenson advised Secretary Dulles to propose a large-scale economic program for the Middle East. Two weeks ago, that was part of the six-point program the President laid before the UN General Assembly when he addressed it on the Middle East crisis.

The Answer Lies In State, Local Governments

NO LESSONS LEARNED

One thing that has not been proved this year is the teachability of Americans. When the Russian sputniks were launched last year, the blast from their take-off scorched that form of educational bottle-feeding known as "progressive education." Americans began to ask themselves: How is it that the Russians have the scientists to carry out a vast space satellite program? How is it that the United States lags behind?

Americans spoke up in the months following the sputnik launchings. Distinguished citizens such as Rear Adm. Hyman Rickover, developer of the atomic submarine, called for higher academic standards in public schools and the abolition of "frills." The idea of the public school as a liberal-style democracy, as a social adjustment center where "the whole personality" is trained, was exposed in all its follies. The nation's newspapers carried a tremendous outpouring of letters-to-the-editor in which indignant parents and taxpayers protested the squandering of billions in public funds in a brand of education that was lacking in solid content, namely physics, chemistry, history, English and other basic ingredients of education.

Business men, long appalled at the educational deficiencies of young people entering their employ, called for reform in the schools. Congressmen stressed that free enterprise could not be successful without the young people of the nation mastering hard subjects in school. State legislatures appointed commissions to explore the situation and suggest ways and means of strengthening the curriculum. Discussion of this vital subject was carried on loudly throughout the nation. College officials warned the youngsters applying for admission were unprepared for serious advanced study. They, too, urged change and reform. Among the suggested reforms were strengthening of courses in the basic subjects, the elimination of classes and school programs that were essentially play-time or "frill" activities, the organization of classes on the basis of achievement and ability to learn (so that able students wouldn't be held back by slow learners). In a month's time public schools will open throughout the nation. The awful lesson of Russian successes in science is still before us. Indeed the lesson is much more evident than it was last fall. The need for better students and more thoroughly trained young people is far more apparent than it was in 1957. And yet, except isolated instances and then more or less spasmodically, nothing has been done.

After all the talking, after the press campaigns exposing "progressive education," after the demonstration of the need for a return to old-fashioned principles of hard study and no social promotion, the public schools of the nation are unchanged. The nation's press doesn't tell of a strengthening of curricula, an intelligent organization of classes or the abolition of dancing classes and "frill" activities. Things will be as they were.

The National Education Association met in recent weeks. Stricter academic training was not the principal topic under discussion. It didn't have anything like top consideration. Racial integration and pay raises for teachers were the favorite topics of discussion at the national meeting. And so it is around the country. There isn't talk of better education, only better pay scales. In Southern states this year, the word has gone out that this is the time for a big push of salaries. Well, it's time for better training. Americans should demand a dollar's worth of education for every dollar spent. They haven't been getting their money's worth.

Does the answer lie in aid to education from the federal government? The answer lies in the hands of the state and local governments.

THE NATION'S PRESS

LIVELY 'CORPSE'
 (Industrial News Review)
 Remember the anti-chain-store agitation of the 30's? Writing in The Freeman, Julian H. Handler recalls it — and has something significant to say: "Two decades ago, the friends of the independent food merchant were ready to serve as his pallbearers. The corporate chains were making such tremendous growth that proposed legislation to tax them to their death seemed to be the independent's last hope. The plan failed and the independent was left to stand or fall on his own merits in the battle for survival under free competition."

"In retrospect, the campaign for chain taxation may now be considered as having been, in the long run, a liability for the cause of the independent. This could be true in that it suggested that the independent was not a fully efficient distributor, but instead needed a brake put on his competitor as an equalizer."

"Furthermore, the independent has demonstrated that resourcefulness and co-operation are surer ways than government intervention to sustain progress and prosperity under the American system of free competition."

There has been an enormous growth in retail trade in all fields since the 20's — and the independents have gained their share. Those who forecast the independent merchant's impending death did him a gross injustice. He turned out to be the liveliest, most vital 'corpse' anyone ever heard of.

And Luther has done something about it. He has taken out a patent (No. 2,846,229) on a course on which one tee and one fairway would serve three holes. "A player drives three balls toward three greens of varying distances, all in the same general direction. Mr. Morris figures his course will require but sixty acres against the 120 required by a standard course. It will also save time and energy and wear and tear on the feet. It's a great idea, and one that should have a tremendous appeal for all golfers who: (1) have lost their senses completely, (2) do not mind having golf balls bounce off their heads for an entire afternoon, and (3) like to get in fist fights over the ownership of a golf ball. Standard courses are so crowded these days and the air so filled with flying balls, that a suit of armor is a suitable costume. Imagine what it would be on Luther's course! How would you like to be playing ahead of a foursome and have four men drive three balls each in your direction? If my club adopts Luther's course I am going to apply for the First Aid and ambulance concession. No time would be saved on the dehydrated course. With twelve balls on a fairway, it is easy to imagine the arguments and fights that would go on as to whom they belonged. Bloody noses would be as common as double bogies.

They're Still Trying To Make Golf A Game

Efforts to build courses and devise implements which would make golf a game, and not outdoor torture, are never ending. When men started going berserk in sand traps they couldn't get out of the wedge was invented. A man in England even took out a patent on a waterless water haphazard, and once in Pinehurst I saw a putter with tiny wheels on the bottom of its blade, these to prevent a duffer from stabbing the ground. Golfers have been known to wear cumbersome harnesses, like those of a dray horse, to prevent their over-swinging, and some poor duffers even suffer the indignities of a neck brace to prevent head-lifting.

Once, when covering a Los Angeles Open, I followed a dedicated gentleman who scorned the heat and played in an overcoat. He claimed the heavy, long sleeves kept his swing in the proper groove. The latest creative mind to turn his talents toward making golf a reasonable human endeavor is one Luther Morris, who does his thinking in Decatur, Georgia. Mr. Morris believes what millions of others have believed before him, namely that golf courses are too long, too wide, and should be compressed into a much smaller area.

"I have taken out a patent (No. 2,846,229) on a course on which one tee and one fairway would serve three holes. "A player drives three balls toward three greens of varying distances, all in the same general direction. Mr. Morris figures his course will require but sixty acres against the 120 required by a standard course. It will also save time and energy and wear and tear on the feet. It's a great idea, and one that should have a tremendous appeal for all golfers who: (1) have lost their senses completely, (2) do not mind having golf balls bounce off their heads for an entire afternoon, and (3) like to get in fist fights over the ownership of a golf ball. Standard courses are so crowded these days and the air so filled with flying balls, that a suit of armor is a suitable costume. Imagine what it would be on Luther's course! How would you like to be playing ahead of a foursome and have four men drive three balls each in your direction? If my club adopts Luther's course I am going to apply for the First Aid and ambulance concession. No time would be saved on the dehydrated course. With twelve balls on a fairway, it is easy to imagine the arguments and fights that would go on as to whom they belonged. Bloody noses would be as common as double bogies.

LITTLE LIZ

The United Nations should require a nation that wants war to make a 50 per cent down payment on the cost.

Use the Want Ads to Buy or Rent Here

TOO LITTLE AND TOO EARLY—Who wouldn't be glum—with a shiny '57 model (model) car and a brand-new highway he can't venture on? That's how four-year-old Kevin Coffey of Chicago felt when told he couldn't be the first "motorist" on the new Northwest Tollway. Lieut. Paul Wells of the Tollway police patrol had to explain to Kevin that the 76-mile road from O'Hare International Airport to South Beloit, Wis., wasn't open for traffic. And Coffey's cup of disappointment was made even more bitter when he learned that no vehicle incapable of meeting the Tollway's minimum speed of 40 m.p.h. will be allowed.

"... THE WATER IS FINE"—Flood waters east of Great Bend, Kans., provided this billboard boy with a large swimming hole. West Walnut Creek, which empties into the Arkansas River, went over its banks.

1 Wonder of I wonder
I wonder, O I wonder, where the world has never known.
That come and smile and stay and pass like flakes of snow.
The dear, we baby faces that the world has never known,
deep in their hearts alone.
I love to think that somewhere,
in the country we call Heaven
The land most fair of any where
Will wait for me to come.
A land of little faces — very little,
very fair and every one small.
Know their own and cleave unto it there.
O RINDI H. Loving Father,
to the broken hearts that plead:
Thy way is best — yea, O, to rest in perfect faith indeed.
To know that we shall find them
Eyes there, shining white and dead.
At Thy right hand, in Thy bright land, by a living water led.

OUTWARD TO THE STARS (2)—Copernicus

By Don Oakley and Ralph Lane

Man's knowledge of the universe moved ahead with the years.

(1) Nicolaus Copernicus (1473-1543), of Poland, was repelled by the complicated, earth-centered Ptolemaic universe which had been accepted as truth for centuries. From his observations, Copernicus came to the conclusion that the Earth was just another planet, rotating on its axis and revolving about the Sun. The Sun, and not the Earth, was the center of the universe. Shortly after his death, the inquisition clamped its grip on Europe.

(2) The Italian Giordano Bruno (1548?-1600)

was not an astronomer, but a philosopher. Herald of the modern age of science, he extended the Copernican system. He proclaimed that not only the Earth, but the Sun and all its planets were only a tiny part of the universe. For such heresy he was burned at the stake.

(3) Tycho Brahe (1546-1601) built the first observatory in the western world, on an island off his native Denmark. Brahe was a great observer and contributed much to astronomy. But he was never able to accept Copernicus' theories.

(4) Brahe's assistant, Johannes Kepler (1571-1630) of Austria, demolished the old Greek astronomer of perfect circular orbits for planets. His mathematics laid the groundwork for Newton's law of gravitation.

(5) The Italian Galileo Galilei (1564-1642) built the first astronomical telescope and was amazed when he turned it toward the Moon. He was the first man to see a heavenly body as it really was. And he declared that Copernicus was right—the Earth did indeed move about the Sun. But as an old man he was forced to recant his theories. It was for a later age to recognize his genius.

Would Control Approaches The Nationalist Defense Ministry said the Communist invasion attempts were aimed at Tungting, the southern most island in the Quemoy group 18 miles south of Big Quemoy and 15 miles off the mainland. It is about 120 miles west of Formosa.

Tungting itself is a tiny, rock-bound island less than half a mile in diameter. In Communist hands it would control the sea approaches to the Nationalist bases in the Quemoy complex.

Norway Prepares Royal Welcome

OSLO, Norway (UPI)—Norway prepared a royal welcome today for the U. S. nuclear submarine Skate, making its second appearance at a Norse port.

King Olav was invited by the U. S. Embassy to board the Skate, which was barred from Copenhagen by Danish officials because of fears of a possible atomic "accident."

The Skate left the Norwegian port of Bergen for Oslo Sunday. The one-day stay at Bergen permitted the first shore leave for the crew since the Skate left Groton, Conn., July 30 on its polar mission, after the submarine Nautilus made its epic run under the polar ice cap.
