Three highway fatalities, none in Gray county, were recorded during September in the nine and one-half county Pampa sub-district, Texas Highway Patrol Sgt. E. E. Albers reported today.

That figure brings to 28 the number of traffic victims in the Pampa sub-district through the first nine months of 1958. In the entire 31 county Amarillo district, which takes in the Pampa sub-district, there were eight highway deaths in September, 87 deaths the first nine months. In 1957 there were 15 fatalities in September and a total of 113 deaths for the year.

Sgt. Albers also disclosed that during September his officers investigated nine personal injury accidents and 28 property damage accidents (no deaths or injuries) for a total of 40 accidents. The nine-month figure shows a total of 363 accidents in the Pampa sub-district alone.

Jupiter A Spectacular Failure

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI)—A safety officer flipped a switch to destroy an Army Jupiter second stage after launching late Thursday night and the intermediate range missile plunged back onto the cape in a spectacular failure.

The Jupiter, in hot competition with the Air Force's Thor for the title of the nation's 1,500-mile range ballistic missile, exploded twice before slamming onto a vacant field.

The failure of the 69-foot-long Jupiter must have come as a sharp disappointment to the Army, which still hopes to have the missile chosen over the Thor even though the Air Force range safety officer decided to destroy it.

At first it seemed the massive Jupiter was off to a good start when it rose from its launching stand at 11:50 p. m. e. d. t. Flames from the missile's tall brightly illuminated a cloudless sky at lift-off, but something apparently went wrong. The Air Force range safety officer decided to destroy it.

Lions Club Gets Varied Program

"If you were head of a big corporation would you meet with the board of directors only once every two years — and allocate two billion dollars for its operation," Gene Holler asked. Holler, president of the Pampa Jaycees, appeared at the Pampa Noon Lions Club meeting yesterday, advocating annual sessions and adequate annual salaries for the Texas Legislature.

"The Wandering Minstrel," a Pampa Community Theatre production was another aspect of the program.

"The greater the fire loss, the greater the key rate," Bob Olson said in a Fire Prevention Week announcement. The reduction on fire insurance premiums has been going down since Pampa fire losses increased, he explained.

The Lions heard Holler's reasons for the passage of the proposed First Amendment to the State Constitution. If Texas passes the amendment it would take its place with the 14 heavily populated states, including California, Michigan, New York and New Jersey, that have annual sessions. There are other reasons to vote for the amendment. It would give legislators a salary that would enable them to go to Austin without a financial sacrifice.

Pampa Community Theatre came on with an act tagged "Commedia dell'Arte" and translated "Monkey Business" in which two characters tried to put on a minstrel. The characters were Lavetta Vance and Wally Truesdell.

Series Bet Leads To Slaying

WALTERS, Okla. (UPI)—A Devol bartender accused of a shotgun slaying over a World Series bet surrendered to Cotton county authorities here early today.

The suspect, Harroll McMillian, 45, was the object of a two-state alert after the shooting of Frank Wood, 22, Devol. Wood died soon after being admitted to a Wichita Falls, Tex., hospital Thursday night.

Cotton County Attorney Walter Mounts said murder charges would be filed against McMillian today.

The shooting occurred at a drive-in beer tavern owned by the victim's father, Ernest Wood, on the outskirts of Devol. Mounts said McMillian was a part-time bartender in the tavern.

Dr. Paul J. Mundie Speaks In Amarillo

The Sixth Annual Foreman's Conference, jointly sponsored by the Panhandle Personnel Association and West Texas State College, will be held next Wednesday, Oct. 15, at the Amarillo Little Theatre in Amarillo's Wolflin Village.

"Practical Skills in Front-Line Supervision" is the conference theme, and Dr. Paul J. Mundie, of Milwaukee, Wis., will be the conference leader.

He is a graduate of Georgetown University, and he headed the Department of Social Sciences at Marquette University for 10 years before entering private business. He was one of four conference leaders at the last conference of the Panhandle Personnel Association, and the enthusiastic reception of those in attendance led to his being asked to conduct the entire program this year.

Carl M. Smith, of Mason and Hanger-Silas Mason Company, is president of the Panhandle Personnel Association, and Charles Trolinger, of Shamrock Oil and Gas Corporation, is general chairman for the Foreman's Conference.

"Dr. Mundie has prepared an outstanding program, and we hope that every business in the region will send as many foremen as possible to the conference. We are particularly interested in having

Ambassador Seeks Longer Cease Fire

By EDWARD HIELDS
 United Press International

WARSAW (UPI)—U. S. Ambassador Jacob Beam will urge Communist China today to extend the Formosa Strait cease fire indefinitely, Washington reports disclosed.

Beam and Chinese Communists Ambassador Wang Ping-nan were meeting today for the seventh time. It was the 80th in the series of Sino-American talks that began in Geneva three years ago.

Since the last talk Red China announced a one-week cease fire for humanitarian reasons and proposed direct talks between the Peiping and Formosa governments.

Today Communist China called on the United States to prove its good intentions toward China by withdrawing all of its armed forces from Formosa and the Formosa Strait.

A statement broadcast by Peiping Radio said it was prepared to discuss only one issue in Warsaw — the withdrawal of American armed forces from Formosa.

A statement by the Peiping Foreign Ministry said the Communists sought an "all-embracing peaceful settlement" covering Formosa, the Pescadores and the offshore islands in talks with the Nationalist Chinese only. Taipei has rejected such proposals.

Earlier a Peiping broadcast had indicated the Communists might be willing to extend their seven-day cease fire beyond the Sunday midnight deadline. The Foreign Ministry statement did not mention this.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Backstairs at the White House: A lady with a long Army background is getting considerable mileage in these parts with a hilarious story of a young Army captain of several seasons back. The background of her tale is this:

For years, Army officers and their wives, living in the relative social confinement of military posts, see an awful lot of each other. Because their at-home parties have such a similarity, each couple goes in for certain stunts or party games to liven up the proceedings.

The lady in question says she never knew in all her long years of Army life, a young officer who could put such zing into an otherwise hum-drum affair as her friend.

The captain and his vivacious young wife would go to a home party on an Army post and after dinner, someone invariably put the personal officer up to one of his more spectacular tricks.

He would stand in the center of the living room floor, freeze his body into muscular rigidity, then slam like a fallen tree to the floor. A split second before hitting the rug, however, his hands would flash out suddenly to break his fall, but this did not keep the ladies from gasping in horror.

Sometimes, the young captain would pull his stunt four and five times during the evening. There weren't quite quick enough and he'd knock himself woozy. The celebrants would haul him into a chair, bathe his face and then stand back in admiration for his derring-do.

His name? The lady says it was Capt. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Moore's New TV Laughfest Starting To Shoot Sparks

NEW YORK (UPI) — Garry Moore's new CBS-TV variety show is beginning to shoot off some sparks.

Moore's hour Tuesday night contained some fatty portions, but it also packed some meat. It ran around on such things as a comedy bit about movie going that involved William Bendix and Carol Burnett and again, on a rendition of "Comes Love" by Marilyn Maxwell.

Lebanon Now Faces A War Between Christian Factions

By LARRY COLLINS
United Press International

BEIRUT (UPI)—Tiny Lebanon, already deeply scarred by five months of revolt, now faces the growing prospect of a Christian counter-revolt and, much worse, a civil war that would pit the nation's two religious factions against each other.

The ten days that have followed the installation of Fouad Chehab as president, instead of bringing the nation a hoped-for respite, have if anything sharpened its divisions and for the first time divided the nation along basically Christian-Muslim lines.

It has suddenly reversed the roles in revolt torn Lebanon, sending the Christians behind barricades and into the streets waving sticks and clubs to back up with force their own call for a city-wide general strike.

Over 50 people already have been killed in this new phase of the fighting here. Thus far, the Christian counter-action has been quieter and less spectacular than the better organized and better armed revolt begun by the largely Moslem anti-Chamoun faction last May.

harvested a shower of abuse from now has as its spokesman the militant Phalange, a bigger share in the government. Back of the demand of the nation's Christian population which the Phalange wants the Karami cabinet either enlarged or shuffled.

led to make room for three or four supporters of ex-President Chamoun. They contend that only a government representing all factions in the nation can restore order to Lebanon. Karami already has four Christians in his seven man cabinet. But they are unrepresentative of the present sentiments of the Christian community.

Giving urgency to the need for a rapid political solution to the crisis is the fact that underneath it lie sociological factors which will not be so easy to reconcile if they spring to the surface. For years the Christians of Lebanon have enjoyed a somewhat favored status in relation to their Moslem compatriots.

Fall is the ideal time for the housewife to take a personal inventory and make plans for the months when, with vacation over, the family settles down to a more routine existence.

If you began summer tired out from too much slubwork, or bored from too few outside activities or with a feeling of frustration for the little you accomplished during last winter, now is the time to sit down and figure out how to make the months ahead a different story.

If you headed more committees and went to more meetings last year than you could manage without running yourself ragged, you had better decide right now how much you can do easily and well and cut this fall's activities to fit your strength and spare time.

If you sat around home and got cabin fever last winter, now is the time to figure out what you would really like to do, and set the wheels in motion.

If you saw last winter come and go without any sense of accomplishment, perhaps it was because you didn't start the fall with any goals laid out for yourself. What do you want to accomplish this year?

Put it down on paper, and then set to work checking off your list item by item as you get things done. It's easy for anyone, but especially so for a housewife, to drift along aimlessly unless she stops now and then to set a few goals to work toward.

Fall is house-cleaning time for most housewives. It ought to be personal inventory time, too.

There is so much a woman can do and so much she can accomplish with a little foresight and planning and thoughtful trimming of her activities to meet her interests and needs.

Women who complain of red hands may get rid of some redness by using softening creams. But they also can help progress by holding hands high, with elbows on a flat surface for 10 minutes a day to allow the blood to drain down.

New Opinion Heard On Nuclear Ban

By DAPRELL GARWOOD
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice Adm. Charles R. (Cat) Brown's view that small as well as large nuclear weapons should be excluded from warfare could inject a new influence into Western defense planning.

Brown, until recently commander of the U. S. 6th fleet in the Mediterranean, is in Washington preparing to become Allied commander in southern Europe.

The outspoken naval officer told the National Press Club that the terrible destructiveness of nuclear weapons is rapidly making their use unthinkable, and that distinguishing between "small" and "large" weapons is impracticable.

"I have no faith in the controlled use of nuclear weapons," he said. "I would not personally recommend the use of any atomic weapons, no matter how small."

Brown said later in an interview he intended his remarks on the subject of limited war to apply to the future rather than present-day strategy.

However he added the situation he referred to would come about "in a few years," which is the period toward which Allied military planning is directed.

Opposing his view is the belief of many military men that if the West gives up use of "practical" nuclear weapons Communism will take over Europe and Asia by force of superior numbers.

Brown himself said he did not think war could be abolished because "man is incorrigible and if he can't fight with nuclear weapons he will go back to the gun."

'Music Man' Will Be Filmed

DALLAS (UPI) — Meredith Willson, author of the Broadway stage hit "The Music Man," reported that he and two associates have been given movie rights to film the production in Iowa.

Producer Kermit Bloomgarden and Director Morton De Costa will team with Willson, the play's composer, author, and lyricist, in making the film in what they said would be an authentic replica of the show's River City.

Willson said there will be a year's preparation before the start of actual filming. He announced plans for the film after receiving the Texas Musical Festival Award at the State Fair of Texas Tuesday.

"The Music Man" opened a 18-day run at the State Fair of Texas on Oct. 4. Movie rights to the production were sought by almost every major movie studio in Hollywood and by several independent producers.

Willson said the musical play's River City will be built "somewhere in Iowa."

"The exact location will depend on where we find a spot in Iowa without modern power lines and other visible landmarks that would be anachronisms," he said. He said film production preparations will start "only after we determine that the stage productions have completely run their course."

Come to Church

The Weekly Message Of Inspiration

Pastor GLADYS MacDONALD
Evangelistic Tabernacle
Starkweather at Craven

St. John 10:10—I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly.

A large number of people have never excepted Christ as their personal savior. These people are called Heathens. They do not know Christ died to redeem them from their sins, and arose again that they might be partakers of the abundant life.

Another group know about Christ who have never received him. Salvation would interfere with their way of life. They do not know the plan of God for their lives is the perfect way.

Another class of people have excepted a form of Godliness denying the power thereof. St. John 3:7—Ye must be born again.

A group of people have received Christ as their savior, but are satisfied with a mere entrance into the kingdom of God. These are thirty fold Christians. Matt. 13:8

We come to a class of people who have received Christ, and go a little farther. They receive some of God's blessings, but stop short of God's best. Many people stop in their Christian progress because of fear, lack of knowledge, or unwillingness to go the way of the cross. The word speaks of sixty fold Christians.

Matt. 22:14—Many are called, but few chosen. They are the people who are willing to go all the way with Christ. They are willing to surmount any obstacle in their way to receive life more abundantly. Better things in life cost more than the next best. In our spiritual life we pay a greater price for God's best. This hundred fold experience in God is the way of death to the carnal mind, that the mind of Christ may be manifested. He said "These things shall ye do, and even greater because I go to my father."

In which class are you friend? Come up a little higher. Christ has life more abundant for you.

As A Child, Pope Wanted Martyrdom

By LOUIS CASSELS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In his second encyclical letter, written a few months after he ascended the papal throne in 1939, Pope Pius XII expressed his "esteem and affection for the youthfully vigorous and illustrious American people."

That esteem and affection continued throughout his reign. No pope in history displayed as much interest in the United States, or maintained such close ties with it, as Pius XII.

During his papacy, the Catholic Church in the United States experienced enormous growth. In 1939, there were 21,400,000 Catholics in this country. Today there are more than 35,000,000.

The United States now ranks behind Brazil, Italy and France as the nation with the fourth largest Catholic population in the world. In financial support of the global Catholic mission, it far exceeds all other countries.

Visits Across U.S.

But it was not merely the growing size and importance of the U.S. branch of the church that made Pius XII an outspokenly pro-American pope. He toured America extensively before he became pope, and evidently fell in love with the place and the people.

The visit that left such an impression on him was made in 1936, when he was Cardinal Pacelli, Vatican secretary of state. He travelled more than 8,000 miles from coast to coast, visiting nearly every major city, and taking in the tourist sights—the Empire State Building, the Liberty Bell, Mount Vernon, even Niagara Falls. He saw and admired the Notre Dame football team ("excellent Catholic action," he commented); blessed the new bridge over San Francisco Bay; had lunch with President Roosevelt at Hyde Park.

In later years, he often recalled that he was the only pope who had ever visited America. And he loved to show off his knowledge of this country when American visitors called at the Vatican.

When one visitor tried to stump him by saying that "I come from a city with more churches than Rome," the Pontiff smiled gleefully and said, "Ah, yes, I've been in Brooklyn."

On another occasion, he received the Harlem Globe-Trotters professional basketball team, and expressed regret that he had been unable to see them play while he was in America. Deciding to remedy this omission on the spot, he persuaded the players to demonstrate a few passes for him in the Vatican courtyard.

His affection for America was reciprocated. During his papacy a growing number of American visitors — non-Catholics as well as Catholics — called at the Vatican to pay their respects. Staunch Baptist Harry Truman, Quakers Herbert Hoover and Richard M. Nixon, Presbyterians Dwight D. Eisenhower and John Foster Dulles were among his visitors. Last year, more than 32,000 Americans registered at the Vatican for public or private audiences.

He gave formal recognition to the American branch of the church in other ways.

He canonized Mother Cabrini of Chicago—the first American raised to sainthood.

He increased the number of American cardinals from two to four, and many believed that had he lived to call another consistory, he would have bestowed three or four more red hats on members of the U.S. hierarchy.

He appointed the late Cardinal Stritch of Chicago to the highest position ever attained by a native American in the Roman-Curia, governing agency of the church.

One of his closest personal friends was Cardinal Spellman of New York, who had served under him, as a monsignor, when he was Vatican secretary of state.

Next Pope Likely To Be Italian Again

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Six Italians and one Armenian prelate were considered as possible candidates today to succeed Pope Pius XII. Francis Cardinal Spellman of New York was the only American with a remote chance.

Technically, canon law provides that any Roman Catholic male may be chosen pope. But, in actuality, only cardinals or archbishops usually are chosen. And, since the 14th Century, only cardinals have been elected to the papacy.

Since the pope is elected in secret by members of the Sacred College of Cardinals, no one can say for certain who is likely to succeed to the throne of St. Peter.

But observers said the leading candidates at present appear to be Giacomo Cardinal Lercaro, Giuseppe Cardinal Siri, Ernesto Cardinal Ruffini, Angelo-Giuseppe Cardinal Roncalli, Valerio Cardinal Valeri, Gregory Peter XV Agagianian, and Archbishop Giovanni Battista Montini.

Of these, Cardinal Lercaro, 67, archbishop of Bologna, and Cardinal Siri, 52, archbishop of Genoa, are considered the most likely candidates.

Both are Italians and both have been extremely successful in fighting the Communists in their areas of Italy's industrial north.

Cardinal Lercaro has specialized in social work, and reform. Cardinal Siri is the youngest member of the Sacred College and is considered a "modern" priest, as well as an intellectual with a human touch.

Of the non-Italians, Cardinal Agagianian is considered to have the best chance of being chosen pope, although no one has been elected to the papacy except Italians since the death of Hadrian VI, a Dutchman, in 1523.

Completely New Backfield Named For Monterey Tilt

By RED GRIGGS
Daily News Sports Editor
LUBBOCK—Pampa's Harvesters will start a brand new backfield here tonight when they take on the Monterey Plainsmen in a District 3 4-A grid contest.

In a surprise move, Pampa Coach Babe Curfman named Smith to start at quarterback, Jerry Daniels at right halfback, Gary Wills at left halfback, and Clovis Shipp at fullback. None of the quartet started last week against Tascosa.

Smith has seen only limited action at the signal-calling post, filling in occasionally for Buddy Rawls, Daniels and Wills have seen quite a bit of action, but have not been regular starters.

Shipp has been used mostly on defense. Why Curfman made the big switch remains to be seen. He said that last week's starters will probably see as much action as this week's starting backfield.

Both squads are capable of eating up huge chunks of yardage, but both teams are also fairly easy to score on. The Plainsmen are considered slight favorites by most experts because they have more experience than the Harvesters and are playing on their home field.

Pampa worked on passing and straight power plays in practice sessions this week. It was on defense though, that they showed their greatest improvement. Their ground defense has been good, but their pass defense is still somewhat leaky.

The Harvesters almost strictly a ground team so far this year, will probably depend on several hard-running backs to ambush the Plainsmen. Showing up well among runners in workouts have been Urbanczyk, Haralson, Cooper, and Shipp.

Five Pampans have been especially impressive on defense during practice sessions, and are expected to give Monterey backs plenty of trouble. Halfback Daniels, ends Larry Ingram and DeWayne Glover, linebacker Gary Matlock and tackle Gary Simmons are the defensive standouts.

The Harvesters could pull a few tricks out of the passing bag. They have been somewhat airy so far, but have usually been successful when they did reach for the sky. Both quarterbacks, Rawls and Smith, are pretty fair passers and some of the halfbacks can throw one in a pinch.

Monterey will depend on a veteran backfield to lead its attack. Quarterback Arlan Flake, a three-year letterman, is a fair passer, a good runner, and an excellent defensive man. Halfback Billy Adams, a two-year letterman, is dangerous when he gets running room.

Army, Navy In Underdog Roles

By JOHN GRIFFIN
United Press International
Midwestern invasions by Army and Navy, both of them in the role of underdogs, adds an interesting sectional piece this Saturday to a college football program that will stress an increase in all-important conference competition.

Army visits Notre Dame in what will be their last meeting at least for several seasons, and Notre Dame is a highly controversial one-point favorite. Navy, an untested rebuilt version of last year's Cotton Bowl champions, visits Michigan, a team that has been installed a five-point pick on the basis of its surprise 12-12 tie with Michigan State last week.

Another big game is on tap in the Southeastern Conference where Auburn, the nation's No. 1 team, puts its 16-game winning streak — longest in the nation — on the line as a seven-point pick over a Kentucky team anxious for a shot at the league title.

Here's how some of Saturday's other games shape up: Intersectionals: Duke, victor over Illinois, a six-point pick over Baylor; host Maryland picked by six over Texas A & M; West Virginia expected to rebound by 14 over Boston University; California, victor in last Saturday's national TV game, favored by 15 over Utah.

East: In the Ivy League, it's Brown by 2 over Dartmouth, Princeton by 4 over Pennsylvania, Yale by 10 over Columbia; Cornell a 13-point underdog in an outside game vs. Syracuse.

Midwest: Nebraska and Kansas State rated even; Minnesota picked by one over Northwestern, Wisconsin by 6 over Purdue, and Iowa by 18 over Indiana in the Big Ten; and Iowa State favored by 6 over Kansas.

South: Virginia Tech by 1 over Virginia, Wake Forest by 2 over North Carolina State, Georgia Tech over Tennessee, VMI 3 over William & Mary, Georgia 5 over Florida State, Clemson 6 over Vanderbilt, North Carolina 6 over South Carolina, and Mississippi 15 over Tulane.

Southwest: Rice 6 over Arkansas; Oklahoma a solid 13 over Texas; TCU 12 over Texas Tech; and Oklahoma State 7 over Tulsa. Far West: Oregon 6 over Southern California, Washington 8 over Stanford, Oregon State 13 over Wyoming, and Colorado 12 over Arizona.

Scots Are Hot Again

Highland Park's Scots apparently are back in the same type of groove that carried them to the Class AAAA state schoolboy football title last fall.

Coach Tugboat Jones' high-stepping Scotties gave the week-end opening night of action a fine send-off as they crushed previously undefeated, but once-tied Fort Worth Paschal 40-0 for their fourth victory in a row after losing their opener — just as a year ago.

Dumas-Perryton, WD-Lefors Tilts Highlight Slate

While the White Deer-Lefors game overshadows just about every A and AA contest in the Golden Spread, another important encounter has been overlooked in the excitement.

Perryton hosts Dumas Friday night in a game which should be as exciting as the much-publicized Lefors at White Deer gridfest. Perryton, rated high in class AA, is for the second straight week taking on a AAA power. Dumas has a defensive record topped in the Panhandle only by Lefors; the Demons have allowed only one

SMU, Rice Hit With Injuries

United Press International—Crippling injuries will hamper both Southern Methodist and Rice Saturday and tend to cut down their margin of favoritism in their portion of the week end Southwest Conference football program that is headed by the 53rd renewal of the Texas-Oklahoma feud in Dallas.

SMU had to leave its great passer-runner Don Meredith, starting tackle Gary Ferguson and end Dave Sherer behind when they left today for Columbia, Mo., and Saturday afternoon an intersectional tiff with Missouri. SMU had earlier been rate d a two-touchdown favorite.

Rice, which opens its bid for defense of the championship, won last fall at Fayetteville Saturday afternoon against Arkansas, will miss the services of starting tackle Gene Miller and soph full-back Bill Schneider, who has been an offensive sparkplug.

TCU Favored

There were minor cuts and bruises elsewhere around the circuit, but none that should seriously hamper the participants.

Texas, Baylor and Texas A&M remained on the short end of the odds for their intersectional bat-

Lackey Gains Little, But Helps Much

AUSTIN (UPI)—Bobby Lackey, a cool play-caller who leads the Southwest Conference in scoring, has averaged less than 13 yards per game offensively while playing an instrumental part in Texas' three-game victory string this season.

However, statistics cannot accurately gauge the value of the rangy quarterback to the Longhorns, who face their sternest test in meeting mighty Oklahoma Saturday in Dallas' Cotton Bowl.

The annual Texas-Oklahoma clash features southwest play which includes Texas A&M vs. Maryland at College Park, Md., Baylor against Duke at Durham, N. C., Southern Methodist vs. Missouri at Columbia, Mo., Texas Christian against Texas Tech at Fort Worth, and a meeting between Rice and Arkansas, in the only Southwest Conference contest, at Fayetteville, Ark.

Outstanding Kicker

Lackey, leading scorer in the conference with 28 points, has accumulated only 38 yards net through three games — seven on the ground and 31 in the air.

However, the 6-foot, 3-inch, 205-pound junior has developed into one of the conference's top kickers, with a 41.4-yard average for 13 punts.

In addition, he has gotten off several key quick kicks, one for 61 yards, to prove an able successor in that department to the departed Walter Fondren, who enjoyed one as much as this one. Maybe it's because the Braves had us down, three games to one, and we battled back to win it.

I heard Casey Stengel say this was the hardest one ever. I'll second the motion. We got off slow and didn't really start hitting our proper stride until near the end.

All's well that ends well, though. The winning share will come in mighty handy for me and my family this winter. It'll help buy us new furniture for our living and dining room.

It'll even buy us some groceries for the kitchen, too.

Good Pass Catcher

The 20-year-old Weslaco, Tex., product was a three-sport athlete in high school, adding baseball and basketball to his football talents. He has since added golf and shoots in the low 80's.

Lackey's height and baseball ability have rewarded him on the gridiron — such as in the 1957 Texas-Oklahoma meeting when he leaped high and intercepted a Sooner pass, appearing it one-handed as a shortstop would a baseball.

Playing behind him in the quarterback slot are Vince Matthews, and sophomores Larry Cooper and Tommy Newman, all of whom will likely see duty against Coach Bud Wilkinson's Sooners.

Yanks Celebrate Indian Style

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Yankees looked more like Braves — with warpaint — when they returned home Thursday night from Milwaukee.

During their celebration on the plane that carried them back to New York, the new world champions playfully painted their faces with burned corks from champagne bottles.

When the players alighted from their chartered plane, some sported faded black eyes. Others featured crudely painted skull and cross-bone decorations on their foreheads, while Manager Casey Stengel had dollar signs painted on his cheeks.

"This is the fightingest bunch of guys I ever had," Stengel declared in a brief airport squawk. "They went out there to Milwaukee knowing the odds were against them. Yet we won the series. Nobby could have done it but the Yankees."

Skowron Gives Howard Credit

EDITOR'S NOTE: Bill Skowron hit a three-run homer in the eighth inning Thursday that proved the crusher in the Yankees' 6-3 World Series win-up victory over the Braves. In the following dispatch, he tells his impressions of the game.

By BILL SKOWRON
Written for UPI

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Elston Howard deserves all the credit, not me.

He really won the ball game for us with that eighth-inning single of his that put us ahead, 3-2. My home run was secondary, even though I hit it with two on.

Don't get the idea I'm pooh-poohing my homer. I hit the ball good and I was tickled to see it go over the fence in left-center. But fair is fair. Elie won the game. I just added a little bit to the victory.

I certainly have no kick coming. Remember the World Series last year? My back gave me so much trouble I could only play in two games. This time I played in all of them and I feel I owe any good luck that came my way to the good Lord.

In a way, my homer off Lew Burdette in today's game reminds me a lot of the final game of the 1954 World Series against Brooklyn.

They got the jump on us at the start of the series just as the Braves did in this one. Then in the final game, I hit a homer with the bases full. Like the one today, it came after we more or less already had wrapped up the victory.

I've been with winning Yankee clubs before but I've never enjoyed one as much as this one. Maybe it's because the Braves had us down, three games to one, and we battled back to win it.

I heard Casey Stengel say this was the hardest one ever. I'll second the motion. We got off slow and didn't really start hitting our proper stride until near the end.

All's well that ends well, though. The winning share will come in mighty handy for me and my family this winter. It'll help buy us new furniture for our living and dining room.

It'll even buy us some groceries for the kitchen, too.

Frank Torre Gets Series Goat Title

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — The World Series produced nearly enough "goats" to stock a cheese factory, but the unhappy horns have to go to the Milwaukee Braves' part-time first baseman, Frank Torre.

It was Torre who made two errors in the second inning of the seventh game, when the world championship hinged on victory, to give the Yankees the lead with two unearned runs and put the Braves in a hole from which they never escaped.

Torre didn't accept the booby prize without defense.

"Both of the throws had the runners beat," he said. "Why was it my error? I don't mind taking the rap for being the goat, but I fielded both balls clean. Both times the runners were beat by the ball and the throw was good. They should have been caught."

While the Yankees added their big four runs in the eighth, manager Fred Haney declared the unearned markers put the defending world titleholders "in the hole" and changed the entire course of the game.

BASSEY MEETS COSTA

NEW YORK (UPI) — Featherweight champion Hogan (Kid) Bassey of Nigeria has agreed to meet Carmelo Costa of Brooklyn in a 10-round non-title fight at Madison Square Garden, Oct. 11. The bout will mark Bassey's first New York appearance.

SURE THING

Shockers Down Plainview, 30-14

PLAINVIEW — Pampa High School's Shockers pulled away in the second half here last night to whip Plainview B, 30-14.

Rex Williams returned a kickoff of 80 yards for a Shocker touchdown in the third quarter to break a 14-14 tie — and the back of Plainview Jack Collum ran the extra points to give Pampa a 22-14 lead at the end of the third quarter.

Billy Cooper passed to Jim Wilburn, a 10-yarder, for the final Shocker tally in the fourth quarter. Steve Dobbins plunged across for the two extra points.

Plainview had scored first, early in the initial period, after recovering a Pampa fumble on the Shocker 20. Three plays later, they swept around end for the touchdown. Try for point failed, giving Plainview a 6-0 lead.

The Shockers came right back to march 80 yards and take the lead. Jack Collum raced 17 yards on a quick opener for the payoff, and Williams pushed across for the two points which gave Pampa an 8-6 first quarter lead.

Pampa struck again in the second quarter, marching 50 yards to the promised land. Dobbins set up the touchdown with an 18-yard rollout, then plunged the final yard. A passing try for conversion failed, and the Shockers led 14-6 at halftime.

In the third quarter, Plainview drove from the Pampa 40 to the 20, then scored on a pass play. A running try for extra points was successful, and the score was tied 14-14.

Then came Williams' kickoff return.

Milwaukee Now Joyless Burg

By FRED LINDECKE
United Press International

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Milwaukee was a city without its baseball champion today, and to put together a time-honored poem and a name applied to Milwaukee in happier days, it was indeed true that "There is no joy in Bushville, the Milwaukee Braves have struck out."

One Milwaukee daily, the morning Sentinel, put the words into a banner with a black background: "No Joy in Bushville."

Milwaukeeans, who were ready to celebrate their second straight world's championship, acted after the seventh game Thursday like normal people, which is not how they have acted when the Braves were pennant and World Series winners last year, and pennant winners again this year.

Wisconsin Avenue, the nerve center of all other Milwaukee celebrations, was poised for the big blowout Thursday if the Braves had been able to turn the trick again against the New York Yankees.

The souvenir vendors were lined up along the sidewalk, the extra police were on duty to handle the crowds, and the mobile and radio units and news cameramen were in position to report the celebration.

But it never came.

A little old lady walked up to one newstand and asked: "Who's ahead?"

"Yankees, 6 to 2," was the answer, and she grumbled shortly and strode away.

Finally Red Schoendienst filed to Mickey Mantle, and it was all over.

The street was quiet... even more quiet than usual.

The vendors began rolling up their pennants.

"What are you going to do with all those things now?" one vendor was asked.

Yankees Regain Place-- Top Of Baseball World

By LEO H. PETERSEN
UPI Sports Editor

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — It's the New York Yankees on top of the baseball world again.

They got back there Thursday when they beat the Milwaukee Braves, 6-2, in the final and deciding game of the 1958 series. They picked themselves off the floor and did it the hard way.

It marked the first time in 33 years that a ball club had been down three games to one in a World Series and come back to win it. Pittsburgh did it against Washington in 1925.

"This was the hardest one ever," said a grinning Casey Stengel, who won his seventh series championship in nine tries. "Yesterday we were the Yankees, like we used to be," he added. "But let me tell you, it took a lot of doing."

It sure did.

Here they were in the home of the Braves, who had beaten them in seven games last year, and again the same two pitchers were going for the series jackpot—Don Larsen for the Yankees and Lew Burdette, who won it last year 5-0, for the Braves.

Pitches Good Game

This time Burdette couldn't quite make it.

"But he pitched a helluva ball game and would have been all right if we could have gotten him some runs," Milwaukee Manager Fred Haney observed. "Give those Yankees credit. We aren't alibiing—they beat us."

They did it in the eighth inning. Burdette, who had outlasted Larsen, was even at 2-2 with Bullet Bob Turley, pitching in his third straight series game, and had retired the first two Yankee batters in the eighth when the roof caved in.

Yogi Berra, who has won more series games than any catcher in history and also had set a record for total bases, lined a double off the right field fence, just inside the foul line.

Elston Howard bounced a single to center and that turned out to be the ball game. It didn't matter except for icing on the cake—that Andy Carey followed with an infield single and Moose Skowron with a three-run homer.

Cushion For Turley

"But that blast of Moose's really gave me a big cushion," Turley said. "I wasn't worried any more with four runs going for me."

Turley had come into the third inning with men on second and first and only one out. He got out of that inning and went on to allow only two hits in six-and-two-thirds innings.

One was a home run which catcher Del Crandall of the Braves hit in the sixth inning to tie the score at 2-2. That turned out to be the Braves' last offensive gesture of the day. Pinch-hitter Joe Adcock singled with two men out in the ninth—but it was too little and far too late.

For Turley, who had kept the Yankees alive by winning the fifth game in New York and then preserved Wednesday's New York 4-3 10th inning victory with three pitches, retired Red Schoendienst on a line drive to Mickey Mantle.

The Pampa Daily News YOUR FREEDOM NEWSPAPER

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is not license. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule, The Ten Commandments and the Declaration of Independence.

Lessons Of The Past

With loyal regularity we have perused the "Adventures of the Mind" series appearing spasmodically in the Saturday Evening Post. The current offering, in the edition of September 27, is one of the best thus far. It is written by Edith Hamilton, who is 91 years of age and a profound student of ancient Greek and Roman history.

Then she discusses the change in our literary efforts and concludes that Lincoln, in his great Gettysburg address, were he motivated by the kind of furniture in his mind that is presently in vogue, would have said something like this: "Eight and seven-tenths decades ago the pioneer workers in this continental area implemented a new group based on an ideology of free boundaries and initial equality."

Miss Hamilton gives us some truly thought-provoking passages: "The point that I want to make is not that their (the ancient Greeks) taste was superior to ours, not that the Parthenon was their idea of church architecture nor that Sophocles was the great drawing card in the theaters nor any of the familiar comparisons from fifth-century Athens and twentieth-century America."

He might have ended thusly: "That political supervision of the integrated units, for the integrated units, by the integrated units, shall not become null and void on the superficial area of this planet."

"That last sentence is one of the best and briefest definitions of what it means to be educated that we have ever heard. And Miss Hamilton goes on to explain that a person who is truly educated should be "able to spend two or three hours waiting for a train at a little country station when he is all alone and has nothing to read, and not be bored for a minute."

"Before the gates of Excellence the high gods have placed sweat. Long is the road thereto and steep and rough at the first, but when the height is won, then is there ease."

"I wish I could produce a perfect decorator's design warranted to make any interior lovely and interesting and stimulating; but even if I could, sooner or later we would certainly try different designs. My points is only that while we must and should change the furniture, we ought to throw away old furniture very cautiously. A great deal was thrown away in the last generation or so, long enough ago to show some of the results. Furniture which had for centuries been foremost, we lightly, in a few years, discarded..."

"There is one of the best and most regarding items to appear in the Post since this series began." Miss Hamilton concludes her essay by reminding us that Demosthenes said: "The time for extracting a lesson from history is ever at hand for them who are wise."

Dulles' Statements

The difficulty that Chiang Kai-shek has had with American foreign policy in the Far East, particularly as it concerns his activities on Formosa, is understandable.

enterprises have remained open except in a few instances of intense shelling. If the Russians are using modern equipment, they are not handling the war materials correctly for their ability to inflict harm to these small outposts has been relatively little.

Just how far afield we have gone from our previous position is demonstrated in the manner in which Secretary of State Dulles indicated to Chiang as well as to the Chinese Reds that, while we will not retreat under fire, we will attempt to be "flexible" so far as fixing the terms of a peace settlement are concerned.

And the longer this situation goes on, the more likely it is that there will be some settlement for certainly there has been sufficient provocation that if the Russians and the Red Chinese wanted an excuse for an all-out war it has been given to them. The fact that such an all-out effort has not been made is held as some evidence that the Russians are not ready to "take on" the United States and that, sooner or later, there will be some settlement of the trouble in the Formosa Straits through a cease-fire action and negotiations.

Meanwhile, the question of military fitness on the part of our men and equipment as compared with the Nationalists and Chinese Reds is getting quite a study. In a sense, the conflict that has been going on in the Formosa Straits is providing a laboratory in which our military observers can check on equipment as well as the skills of the Red China fighters, both on land and in the air.

On the issue of Chiang's heavy forces on Quemoy, Dulles was surprisingly blunt. He said it was "rather foolish" to put them there in the first place and it would be "foolish" to keep them there if a cease-fire is achieved. In this new policy, Dulles is attempting to accomplish many difficult things at the same time. He is trying to calm the storm of criticism at home which has tended to undermine our bargaining position in Warsaw. He is trying to establish some semblance of Allied unity to strengthen our hand, even if it means some temporary disfigurement to Chiang. He is trying to induce Russia to exert its influence for peace by making it clear we will go to war, if necessary, to resist aggression in Quemoy. And, above all, he is trying to get the Chinese Reds to turn off their guns in return for possible demilitarization of the offshore islands.

According to press dispatches from Quemoy and Matsui, the Nationalist forces have been decidedly superior to the Red Chinese — often by a ratio of three to one. At the same time it is suspected that the Russians have not turned over the Chinese their best equipment — just as we have not given Chiang's fighters our best aircraft. Military observers report that the Communists' gunners are extremely poor marksmen and often the battering that has been taking place on Quemoy and Matsui as evidence. In spite of all of the shooting that has taken place, schools, shops and other such people that are very emotional, where their prejudices and mutual hatreds are very deep? He expressed doubt that demilitarization of the Quemoy would be "a final answer" and said a cease-fire would at most provide "an opportunity to negotiate in good faith." But even if the Warsaw talks break down, the dispute simmers on indefinitely, diplomats said Dulles' declaration of independence and flexibility will have served a good purpose. It will have made it easier to pin the blame for failure on the Communists.

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HOLLES Price And The Public Interest

I recently read an address made by Roger M. Blough, chairman of the board of United States Steel Corp. before the Economic Club of Detroit on the subject of "Price and the Public Interest."

I have been wondering for some time how long it will be and how high prices will have to go before the politicians believe the public wants and will demand that the government step in and fix wages and prices. They have, of course, made a big step forward fixing prices by minimum wages, by interest charges and by attempting to stabilize farm prices. It will only be another step.

Mr. Blough thinks there is great danger of the politicians taking over the control of prices and wages. He is considerable in his condemnation of the Senate anti-monopoly-committee's investigation of administrative prices. He points out that this committee had a sort of rigged group of economists that seemed to think profits were not in public interest. The majority of the committee seemed to take that position.

One member of the committee, Sen. Everett Dirksen, took exception to the majority report and said: "Indeed, the majority seems to feel that the attempt of such enterprisers to operate profitably on a downward trend in the business cycle is somehow inimical to the national interest."

Then Mr. Blough quotes the "senator from Wyoming" as saying: "United States Steel, which is in the position of leadership, wants to maintain itself in the black. The government of the United States is in the red and is going further into the red; and I have no hesitation in saying that unless the leaders of American industry immediately act to help put the United States in the black, instead of letting it drift deeper and deeper into the red, we will not be able successfully to wage this cold war without great losses to industry and to the people alike."

He did not mention which of the two Wyoming senators made that statement. Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney is a member of the subcommittee. Then he also quotes the statement made by one of the senators from Wisconsin. Sen. Alexander Wiley is the Wisconsin member of the Committee who made this statement.

"Price control" is a word we are always used to be scared of, but we are letting someone else control the price: why can't the American people control the price, through its government? Then Mr. Blough observes: "I am sorry to say the senator's statement was warmly endorsed by several members of the committee."

"Now it is true that one thing which the responsible public official must constantly guard against is a kind of natural itch to extend the powers of government over everything and everybody. In a way this itch is a sort of occupational hazard endemic in the world of politics, and must always be reckoned with. So it is inevitable, I suppose, that those who are afflicted in this way should try to fasten peace-time price and wage controls upon the American people; but surely no responsible member of Congress — knowing that authority and responsibility must go together — would ever seek to do so."

"The members of Congress are accountable directly to the people of their respective constituencies. They are not accountable directly to the owners, the customers or the employees of any business or enterprise, as management is. And for government or any committee of Congress to try to usurp the functions of management — either by intimidation or by law — is as alien to our American constitutional concepts as for business to try to usurp the functions of government."

"Gentlemen, if this unhappy concept of what appears to some to be in the public interest as I have described it here today — were a threat to the steel industry alone, I would not have imposed upon your time and patience in this manner. But this dangerous philosophy of a profitless profit system is a grave and present menace not only to every business and industry in the land, but to the broadest possible public interest including the national security."

"Unless the American people understand the true facts, and are apprised of this danger, there is little hope that they will ever be able to deal successfully with the serious inflationary problem that confronts them. I can only suggest that it is up to you — the members of the Detroit Eco-

Robert Allen Reports:

Truman Institute Gets Rockefeller Grants

WASHINGTON — The Rockefellers are giving $48,700 to Harry S. Truman Library Institute for National and International Affairs.

The Institute will use this grant, from the oil-rich Rockefeller Foundation, for scholarships at the Truman Library, in Independence, Mo., to study the functioning of the U.S. presidency.

Leading member of the Foundation is Nelson Rockefeller, Republican candidate against Gov. Averell Harriman, and friend of the former President.

"It's only a start," Truman assured them. "Now that I have my head under the tent, I'm going to get $2,000,000 from the Rockefellers before this is over. My program is an unusual one, and they know it as well as I do. The young people of our nation should be able to study our Presidents firsthand, and that is what we're doing at the Library Institute."

"By the way," asked one of the candidates, "how are you and the present occupant of the White House getting along? Any change in your relations?"

Down near the lower end, adjacent to Astor Place, bloody, murderous riots took place at one time and became known in history as the Astor Place Riots. They started seemingly over the rivalry of two actors simultaneously playing Shakespeare. The public took sides. But the real riots of these riots, in which many were killed, lay in economic discontent. The wide gulfs between artisans earning 50 cents or less a day and the Dutch patrons, with their magnificent houses, shoals of servants, gleaming carriages and haughty demeanors, were the real causes. The Stuyvesant Van Rensselaers, Van Dahms and others, with a left-over Van Dorcks, presided over this lovely street and set the mark for those trying to edge their way into the golden circle. The Vanderbilts, of the time, were looked upon more with amusement than awe. The Vanderbilts, the patrons said, might make it some day but it would be a long time. The Astors, however, already were in.

"You may not have heard about it, but we are setting up a scholarship program to study the presidency at the Truman Library. I'm making all my records and papers available to scholars and students for this purpose. This is the first time in history that a former President has done this, and I am very happy to be able to do so."

The congressional candidates were much impressed. "Yes, even Republicans are approving my plan," continued Truman.

"The members of Congress are accountable directly to the people of their respective constituencies. They are not accountable directly to the owners, the customers or the employees of any business or enterprise, as management is. And for government or any committee of Congress to try to usurp the functions of management — either by intimidation or by law — is as alien to our American constitutional concepts as for business to try to usurp the functions of government."

ing to raise funds for the very-nearby republican campaign chest. For this purpose the President is holding a stag dinner at the White House Monday evening for a score of leading businessmen and bankers, who will be told about the GOP's strained financial condition.

Chip WHEN I ASK YOU TO DO SOMETHING, WHY DO YOU SAY 'IN A MINUTE?'

I'M A MINUTE MAN!

Looking Sideways

By Whitney Bolton

NEW YORK — Up near 50th Street on fast-changing Third Avenue there is a new, towering and golden building of bright yellow brick, one of the most colorful and eye-smacking of the many new, magic structures rising in Manhattan.

Walking along there in the moonlight late the other night after the theater, it suddenly struck me that while much is being done to transform Third Avenue from a dingy, El railway shattered avenue into a bright, gleaming, smart thoroughfare, the custodians of this street's fabulous history are doing nothing to preserve its past or its traditions.

Its lower reaches, in the Dutch days, were the site of the best patoon-homes, the town-houses used by the wealthy burghers during winter when their country places lining the East bank of the Hudson River far up above and even around Poughkeepsie became too cold. Ninth Street and Third Avenue for almost a century, possibly even a little more than a century, was an annual pilgrimage point because right there Peter Stuyvesant once planted a pear tree and for decade after decade still springing this beautiful tree sprang into blossom. The carriages came each afternoon from as far uptown as 34th Street to let the ladies look upon this beautiful tree and comment on its cotton blossoms.

At 50th Street and Third Avenue, now a tumult of traffic, noise and buildings coming down in clouds of brick and plaster dust while excavations are dug for soaring skyscrapers, there once was a profound and reverent quiet. It was Putnam Field, the last, dismal, unobscured but still, nonetheless, respected burial ground of the indigent and unknown. Right now, above the graveyard itself, a building is up, shining in the sun. When first the steam hammers and mechanical shovels disturbed this land, they furrowed through rows of graves of poor men and women known to no one at the times of their deaths or, else, so poor their kin if any, could not afford to pay for a tiny plot and headstone.

Third Avenue at one time was a roadway for moneyed young bloods of the sprawling, growing town who met there on pleasant afternoons to run their last horses attached to light sulkeys. Crowds lined the streets and cheered as the teams thumped by.

"All I care to say about that," replied Truman, "is that his picture is hanging in my library and will continue to do so. And that's more than he can say about what he did with my picture in the White House."

The former President also complained about "being broke." "To keep from going to the poor house," he said, "I had to sell the farm on which my mother and I were born. It was one of the hardest decisions I had to make in a long time. I didn't want to sell this ancestral place, but there was no other alternative."

"The recent session of Congress voted ex-Presidents a pension of $25,000 a year, plus $50,000 for clerical help, free office space, and mail franking privileges. Presidential widows were granted $10,000 a year."

POLITICALS — The Senate Democratic Campaign Committee, headed by Senator George Smathers, Fla., is endeavoring to raise $20,000 for the closing weeks of the campaign. At a meeting of former Democratic office holders in Washington, a drive was launched to obtain $50,000 in contributions in the Capital...

Howard Pyle, former Arizona Governor and now a White House assistant, was told by the President to arrange the unannounced fund-raising dinner Monday night. Among those attending are: Winthrop Aldrich, former New York bank president and ex-Ambassador to Britain; Edward Noble, former radio network president; Clifford Roberts, New York investment banker; Sidney Weinberg, New York investment banker; former Governor Thomas Dewey.

On Occasion, Man Needs To Get Away

By HENRY McEMORE

All my life I have been reading that every man, no matter how happy, how well-adjusted, needs to get away by himself now and then.

Never having done this, I thought I had better give it a try. There's no sense in overlooking any bet on one's trip through life.

"Next door," Mary answered. "Or two doors down. But not here. Why, what's the matter? Feel bad?"

"Nothing," I said. "I just want to think, that's all."

"Good," Mary said, "but before you go off in a corner and put on your thinking cap, there are several things I want you to do. We're out of butter, and one of the kitchen screens has come loose and is making a awful racket. Then you can think to your heart's content."

Wandering northward. And this continued as the city swept by Colears Hook and Gansevoort Street. There came, at last and years later, the time when Manhattan reached its northern extreme, at Van Cortlandt Park, once a vast country seat of a very wealthy Dutch family. But in the passing decades the Dutch had entrenched and enriched by buying land ahead of the northward march of the great city. Only the Astors held back. They followed the same pattern, but didn't sell, knowing that as the city reached and passed their holdings the acreage would quadruple and even further multiply its value. To this day the Astors hold their lands, now crusted with skyscrapers and the parcels are of incalculable value.

And what of the Stuyvesant farm, that lovely, green stretch called the bouerie, the Dutch equivalent for farm? It's the Bowery, the street of bums and mendicants and lost souls, but Third Avenue is lengthening. And the bums and mendicants and lost souls are losing ground and being shunted to other areas as Third Avenue grows in elegance once again.
