HASSE, WILKS, CAIN ELECTED C-C HEADS

Warren Hasse rose to the presidency of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce by the unanimous vote of directors Tuesday. Hasse, the present finance director, will have the assistance of H. V. Wilks, vice president elect; and Don Cain, future finance chairman. The approval of the new slate climaxed the monthly board meeting in the Pampa Hotel.

With the installation set for Oct. 23 and the membership banquet for Oct. 30, the month ahead will be loaded with Chamber of Commerce affairs. Oct. 24 will bring the dedication of the Hobart Street underpass and Dec. 5, the Santa Day parade.

E. L. Henderson, C-C president, announced the installation dinner for 7 p.m. Oct. 28 at the Pampa Country Club. "Directors, officers, incoming and outgoing, plus their wives, will be there," Henderson said.

The annual membership banquet stars Dr. Kenneth McFarland, consultant for the General Motors Corporation of Topeka, Kan., and Mary Nell Hendricks, an Arlington school teacher, better known as Miss Texas.

The Highway Committee is preparing for the dedication luncheon Oct. 24 at which Marshall Formby, chairman of the State Highway Commission, will speak. The luncheon will take place in the Palm Room at noon. Formby will speak again at the underpass before cutting the opening ribbon. The Santa Day parade will start at 3:45 p.m. Friday Dec. 5. B. M. Behrman, chairman of the Merchants Activities Committee, announced. Behrman reported on the progress of the MAC in securing suitable street decorations for the Christmas season. An essential feature of this installation will be portable poles to support the overhead ornaments.

Directors also heard from the Aviation Committee on the reception of the Texas Air Tour last week. So pleased were the visitors, according to Chamber Manager E. O. Wedgeworth, that they have elected to make Pampa an overnight banquet stop next year.

President Henderson lauded Mrs. Roy Vermilion, a special guest, for the progress the new management has made with the Pampa Hotel, now owned by Roy Vermilion.

FBI Seeks Link In Peoria Prejudice

PEORIA, Ill. (UPI)—FBI agents and local police today were investigating a possible link between the bombing of a Jewish synagogue and the recent distribution of anti-Semitic pamphlets passed out in front of the temple.

A Peoria housewife turned copies of the pamphlets over to authorities and said she had been handed them by two men who were distributing the literature in front of the Anshai Emeth synagogue in recent weeks.

Some of the pamphlets were titled "Jews in American Wars," "They Got the Blame," and "Americans All."

Fragments of the bomb which exploded in the temple Tuesday for human excrement also found at the scene, meanwhile, were sent to FBI laboratories in Washington for analysis.

Local police said they were going over a "long list of persons with an eye to questioning them concerning their activities Tuesday morning."

Federal and local authorities had expressed the belief that the bombing was the work of a crank and not connected with an alleged anti-Jewish underground in the South.

Ten FBI agents, apparently spurred by President Eisenhower's anger over recent bombings of Jewish temples, joined city and state police in a full scale investigation of the blast early Tuesday.

The authorities and religious leaders said they believed the crude black powder bomb which shattered windows and scarred the interior of the Anshai Emeth Temple probably was the work of a twisted mind inspired by the bombing of a synagogue in Atlanta, Ga., last Sunday.

The blast came on the same day as the Peoria synagogue bombing. (See PEORIA, Page 2)

4 Break Ins Are Reported

Break-ins were attempted overnight at two Hobart street service stations and two Pampa dry cleaning plants, Pampa Police Chief Jim Conner reported this morning. Only one of the break-ins was successful, at Bob Clement's Cleaners, 1437 N. Hobart.

At Clement's about $17.50 in cash and change was taken from a register and about $3 from a soft drink machine. Conner said entrance was gained by breaking in a rear window in the boiler room.

Other break-ins attempted overnight were at Crow's Humble station, Hobart and Kingmill, where a chisel was used without success on a pay phone; at Vogue Cleaners, 1421A N. Hobart, where a back door was damaged; and at Love's Humble station, 900 S. Hobart.

The burglar was apparently frightened from Love's before entering. A large glass window had been broken and the door unlocked, but nothing was taken.

Court Halts School Leasing

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—The U.S. 8th District Judge John E. Miller of Arkansas refused to rule in the case because he claimed it involved the constitutionality of Arkansas law.

Attorneys for the Little Rock School Board, the NAACP and the government asked the court to remand the case to Miller.

Attorneys Thurgood Marshall of the NAACP and Donald MacGuiness of the Department of Justice requested that the court issue "explicit instructions" to the District Court in remanding the case.

School Board Atty. John H. Haley told the court that "the school board is out of the high school business because of the recently passed Arkansas laws."

The board still claimed neutrality in the case, he said. "But the school board will follow any course the federal courts order," he said. "At present we must obey state laws."

An early resolution of the problem is necessary, Haley said, but the situation calls for calm and deliberate action.

NAACP attorney Wiley Branton in his argument, blamed Arkansas Gov. Orval Faubus for his part in state segregation laws. "While the governor has discretionary powers," he said, "no governor has the power to discriminate."

Radar Unit Going Into Operation

A radar unit to detect speeders will go into operation Tuesday at an undisclosed location, Police Chief Jim Conner said today.

Known as the "Patrolmaster 900," the $1,302 unit will be operated by one officer from a parked car. Conner said the Patrolmaster was purchased several months ago but could not be used without a FCC license. The license was granted Monday.

ROCKETS RADIO

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Five rockets fired during a total eclipse of the sun in the South Pacific this week radiated back hitherto unknown effects of the sun's radiations on the upper atmosphere, it was announced Monday night.

The National Academy of Sciences and the Navy said the rocket launches were made Sunday at various intervals to determine the changing role of the sun as it was gradually blotted out by the moon.

FOREIGN CORRESPONDENT EDDY GILMORE SAYS:

'Khrushchev Was My Beat In Europe'

By RICK PEZDIRTZ, Daily News Managing Editor

Eddy Gilmore is accustomed to writing to an audience of one—an intent Russian censor with the weapons of a writer's executioner, a blue pencil and a sharp scalpel.

The veteran Associated Press foreign correspondent had more than his usual first-hand audience here Tuesday night, however, as he spoke before 278 Knife and Fork Club first-nighters who sat captivated and clutching at every word that echoed off the Pampa High School auditorium walls.

Gilmore, who has had the heart of literally thousands of his dispatches stabbed into a bloody and unrecognizable mess by Soviet censors, touched on many phases of life in Russia and discussed briefly many of Europe's famed political bosses and events. "Eighteen years with the AP abroad, 12 of those spent in Russia, still do not make me an expert," Gilmore quipped after his address.

Gilmore, of course, is noted for his marriage to a Russian ballerina and the turmoil the couple went through trying to gain clearance for a departure of Russia. Gilmore stated he knew that his wife would never be permitted to leave Russia so long as Josef Stalin was alive. "When I received word about 4 a.m. of the day Stalin was dying that he was gravely ill, I whispered to myself, if he is ill I hope it is nothing trivial."

A Pulitzer Prize winner in 1947 for his reports from Russia and a special exclusive interview with Stalin, Gilmore has a second book ready for publication. His first book was "Me and My Russian Wife."

The newsmen opened his talk to the Pampa Knife and Fork Clubbers saying, "I bring you no special message. I have no solution for curing the woes of the world, how to make money, reduce or grow hair."

His last two remarks were quite appropos in that Gilmore sports a Yul Brynner hairdo and must weigh in the neighborhood of 265 pounds.

"Appearances are deceiving," Gilmore commented, "I'm sure I must look more like a Russian general than a Russian gherki does. But my wife has an answer for that. She says of course you do, both you and the general eat too much."

"Khrushchev was my beat," the newsmen exclaimed. "I spent much time with him in Europe. I was with him in Yugoslavia and at Geneva. In fact on many occasions I have been mistaken for Khrushchev in that we resemble one another. But I am sure Khrushchev has never been mistaken for Eddy Gilmore."

"Nikita Khrushchev is the one man who could bring us into World War II tomorrow if he so desired. He is ruthless, and firmly believes that if given enough rope the Western World will hang itself. He is not above tugging at the end of the rope either. However, I don't think Khrushchev wants a nuclear war. His heart instead is concerned with going down in history as the man who maintained peace throughout his lifetime without giving away a single acre of Russian territory.

"It is Red China who believes she stands the best chances of winning any forthcoming nuclear war, due to her weight in numbers. The Red Chinese believe that even after a nuclear war there would be 300 million left alive in their country, and much less Russians. At present, Russia and Red China are of course the two prime Communist countries. However, populationwise Russia is increasing at the rate of three million a year while Red China is increasing at the rate of 14 million a year. Red China already has 600 million people, three times the population of Russia."

Gilmore summoned up his and other men's situation to world problems, thusly: The failure of the men at the top is holding up the prosperity of the world and also the assurance of peace. Many people think that the settlement of major issues in the world today could best be achieved if the heads of the nations could sit down and discuss the major problems privately, without the piteous glare of publicity (photographers, newsmen and television) and without the attendance of hundreds of aids and "experts" and advisors creating an atmosphere conducive to clear thinking.

In Gilmore's opinion, there is nothing sacred about the United Nations. He said if the nations were united there would be no need for such a body, and that from the

US Will Not Ask Chinese To Reduce Quemoy Forces

Ike Would Like Voluntary Cutting

By STEWART HENSLEY, United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Eisenhower said today the United States is not going to try to coerce Chiang Kai-shek into reducing his Chinese Nationalist forces on Quemoy and the other offshore islands.

He strongly indicated, however, that the United States would welcome a voluntary reduction by the Chinese Nationalists. He said that he had made no secret that he thought Chiang had too many troops there.

The President was asked at his news conference whether this country was seeking to persuade Chiang to remove some of his troops from the offshore islands. Eisenhower replied that he wished they didn't have so much military manpower there but added that the United States was not going to try to coerce an ally on something the ally believed vital to his very existence. Asked whether he would welcome a voluntary reduction of force by Chiang, the President said he saw no advantage in making at this time any public statement that might be misinterpreted in Formosa.

Shift of Emphasis

The President did not answer directly a question as to whether the United States had shifted its position on the offshore islands since Sept. 30. It was then that Secretary of State John Foster Dulles indicated the administration would urge Chiang to sharply reduce his offshore island garrisons if the Chinese Reds agreed to a dependable cease-fire.

But Dulles Tuesday denied this country was planning to press Chiang into a major pullback from the offshore islands. He again indicated, however, it might be wise militarily for the Nationalist leader to do so.

Officials said Dulles' new statement, which the President supported today, was not so much a stiffening of the U.S. position as a shift of emphasis.

The President also said today: "He believes, from statements of Allied leaders in Europe, that they firmly support the U.S. policy of not giving ground before Communist force or threats of force in the Far East."

—Chiang has not indicated, so far as the President knows, that he would agree to reducing his Quemoy and Matsu forces if the United States beated up Nationalist fire power on those islands.

—He did not see very much value in the idea, suggested by a reporter, that there should be a plebiscite on Quemoy and Matsu to determine which of the two Chinese island inhabitants wished to join.

United Fund Drive Officially Opens With Kickoff Breakfast

Minister Jon Jones expressed the spirit of the Pampa-Lefors United Fund Campaign at today's kickoff breakfast, where he appeared as main speaker. Jones, minister of the Mary Ellen at Harbor Church of Christ, challenged campaigners to "think positively and aggressively" to attain their $64,000 goal. Jones had nothing but derision for the type character who would walk up to a door thinking, "Hope he isn't home—Hope he isn't home" and when the prospect comes to the door, say, "You don't want to buy a car, do you?" The kickoff was well attended by representatives of the United Fund agencies, the Board of Directors and the campaigners. E. L. Shelhamer, Board president, opened the breakfast meeting in the High School cafeteria. The in-

Nuclear Blast Fired Today; Another Scheduled Shortly

By COLIN MCKINLAY, United Press International

ATOMIC TEST SITE, Nev. (UPI)—The first of two nuclear test shots scheduled for today rumbled in a daylight sky today as the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission quickened the tempo of its project 10-shot series.

Nuclear shot "Hamilton" flared brightly but briefly from atop a 50-foot wooden tower at 11 a.m. c.d.t. while AEC officials prepared to detonate "Logan," one of the largest underground devices ever devised.

The small tower blast, designed by the University of California's Livermore Radiation Laboratory, had a yield in the sub-kiloton range, or less than 1,000 tons of explosive.

It was scarcely visible off the sprawling Nevada test site because of the daylight hour and low elevation of the platform. But to on-site observers stationed about 10 miles from ground zero, it burst into a sudden fireball that faded almost immediately.

The blast wave came as an echoing rumble. Hamilton was the sixth shot of the series set to be completed before a proposed nuclear test ban among the U.S., Britain and Soviet Russia on Oct. 31.

Logan, named for an Alaskan mountain peak, was set up to follow later today in the same remote section of the test site but deep inside a desert mesa.

The underground shot, also designed by the Livermore Radiation Laboratory, was placed in one of several new shafts bored into a 6,000-foot cliff since Sept. 19, 1957, when the first full-scale subterranean test was conducted.

One other small-yield underground blast, Tamalpais, was fired last Wednesday.

Dickerson handed boxes of prospect cards to his majors: W. L. Loving, Industrial Division; Gene Fatheree, Wholesale; Kirk Duncan, Individual; A. J. Carrub Jr., Professional; Max Bolick, Oil and Gas; Newt Seacrest, Services; and Travis Lively Jr., Retail.

Although the drive will have no check-in meetings, the aim, Dickerson, stated is to conclude soon. The United Fund office in downtown City Hall will be headquarters for the campaign. "We'll be seeing you with armloads of money," said Dickerson. "If you can't carry it, we'll send a truck."

If it comes from a hardware store, we have it, Lewis Adv.

PCT Calls Big Meeting

Leaders of the Pampa Community Theatre company have called an open meeting for 8 p.m. Thursday in the City Commission Room. Members are reported anxious to get the season underway. This meeting will be for the benefit of those who have not had a previous opportunity to join the theatre and to those who would like to renew their activity. Pampa Community Theatre has had some measure of success on the civic club circuit with its original sketches and is now ready to stage a major show, directors believe. Theatre people would like to see a season that would include comedy. "With all the acting, dancing, singing and other talent available, there is no reason why Pampa cannot have a theatre comparable to that of the larger cities," they say. The company is desirous of bringing together active and interested people in the community. No one who has anything to offer, on stage or off, will be excluded.

Police Chief Bernard Kennedy assigned two detectives to guard Briscoe during the visit as "a precautionary measure." Joseph Ginsberg, rabbi of the synagogue, also was given a police guard. Springfield, Ill., police patrolled that city's synagogue to guard against a possible bomb attempt.

Illinois Gov. William G. Stratton at Springfield and other civic leaders expressed revulsion at the bombing and pledged an unremitting search for the guilty persons. "It was a heinous crime," Presidential Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said Eisenhower termed the bombings of synagogues "shocking and deplorable."

"HIGH SEAS"

When we refer to the "high seas," we mean all seas which are not the property of a particular country, being beyond the three-mile limit. "High" here is in its older meaning of "public" as it also is used in highways, which really are public ways. Birds are an offshoot of reptile stock that was laying eggs millions of years before the first bird flew.

EUROPE

(Continued From Page 1) realistic standpoint there are only two great powers today — the United States and USSR. He continued, saying, "Unfortunately Great Britain and France would object strenuously if there were to be a straight across the board deal made between the United States and Russia." Actually the highlight of Gilmore's appearance was an informal question and answer session he conducted after he finished speaking.

Some of the questions asked were:
1) Are the laboring people of Russia satisfied. Are they happy? Gilmore's answer was an emphatic No. He pointed out that Russian workers are required to work ten hours a day for low wages and under conditions that would be objected to by workers in most civilized countries. After working ten hours, the party bosses have devised an adroit little scheme to lock the factory doors from the outside five minutes before the day's final whistle, forcing all workers to attend grueling and boring political meetings. There is no such thing as a strike. The whole attitude toward things like that is so vastly different from ours. The police system is brutal and one never knows whom among his neighbors or close friends are working at least on a part time basis for the secret police.

As a result of all these things there are a great many sad persons in Russia. Of the 200 million people there, however, only seven million belong to the communist party, and it is surprising how few of the true party members hold atheistic beliefs.
2) How is the Russian school system compared to ours? The three R's, reading, writing and arithmetic are splendidly instructed, in the grades. The pupils, however, are hand-fed endless propaganda regarding the value of the Red education system as compared to the American system. The youngsters and P.T.A. members are frequently told that they are indeed lucky to be attending school in Russia rather than America where over 40 million young people are working the fields — and factories and walking the streets because only the children of the rich may attend school in America. School runs six days a week in Russia. Students are off on Sundays but homework is usually piled on heavy enough to keep them occupied all of their waking hours.
3) What can the Russian own of their own. May they own their own land? The Russians may own their furniture and may even own a summer house, but they may not own the land on which that house sits. The land belongs to the people. There is no free enterprise. One must give up one's freedom and sell one's straits could be classified as enjoying free enterprise, and they are the gypsies who Gilmore hinted are among the happier inhabitants behind the iron curtain.

Chinese Reds Plan Big Stockpile

By AL KAEFF
United Press International
TAIPEI, Formosa (UPI)—Chinese Nationalist economic officials plan to stockpile three months of essential supplies on Formosa in preparation against a major war, it was reported today. The stockpile plans for Formosa — including food, fuel, ammunition and other military and civilian needs — were reported after a huge buildup of military and civilian supplies on the Quemoy offshore islands. The China Post, which often reflects government views, said the government recognizes no relaxation of tension in the Formosa Strait despite the Communists' cease fire there. Military officials said enough supplies have been shipped to Quemoy during the past ten days to last the outpost through a full winter's siege despite belief in Western capitals the crisis there is over. Despite the reported buildup on Formosa, Taipei newspapers were coming more and more to predict diplomatic rather than military attacks from the Peiping government. Other developments in the Formosa situation: —President Chiang Kai-shek told U. S. Defense Secretary Neil H. McElroy earlier this week he will not reduce Nationalist Military forces on Quemoy as suggested by Washington, reports said today. —Vice President Chen Cheng told a group of visiting overseas Chinese leaders that the Nationalists will not give up the Matsu or Quemoy offshore islands. —The Nationalist press said the main reason Peiping ordered a cease fire at Quemoy was because Soviet Russia backed down on its pledge to help the Communists "liberate" the Formosa area.

Vatican Corps Gets Audience With Cardinals

By DANIEL F. GILMORE
United Press International

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Roman Catholic cardinals Tuesday received the Vatican City diplomatic corps in a mass audience, a major step in the slow, deliberate selection of a successor to the late Pope Pius XII.

Although not officially admitted, it is accepted that the purpose of the mass visit is to shelter the cardinals from possible political pressure by any individual diplomat.

Until 1903 the emperors of Austria had the power of veto over the conclave that meets to name the pope. The Austrian emperor once used the veto to block the election to the papacy of Italian Cardinal Count Mariano del Tindaro Rampolla.

Abolishes Veto
Instead of Rampolla the conclave elected Giuseppe Sarto, patriarch of Venice who chose the title of Pius X. The first action of Pius X was to abolish the veto which indirectly had helped to make him pope. Pius X was canonized — made a saint — by Pius XII in May, 1954.

Under the apostolic constitution all cardinals and the assistants who join them in the conclave are specifically barred from indicating any form of veto by a civil authority. This ban extends to the mere expression of a "desire" intimidated by the government of the country from which a cardinal comes.

Americans Ruled Out
Today it was generally accepted that Gregory Peter XV Agagianian, 63, patriarch of the Armenians, who represents a bridge between East and West, was the only non-Italian in the running. His age, between 60 and 70, is considered ideal among the cardinals who are reported to be not in favor of long pontificates.

Most observers continued to rule out the possibility an American cardinal might be elected. They said such an appointment might help Communist propaganda which tries to link the Vatican with the U. S. State Department.

Otherwise, they said, Francis Cardinal Spellman, the archbishop of New York and a close friend of the late Pius XII, probably would be high in the running.

Additional cardinals were arriving in Rome daily for the Oct. 25 conclave when they will begin the task of electing a pope by secret ballot.

Nearly $350,000,000 was spent for foreign cars in the United States during 1957, almost double the 1956 figure.

Research Labs Make Progress

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Dr. Byron T. Shaw said Tuesday the Agriculture Department's pioneering research laboratories — some of which are not a year old — already have made "notable advances" in unravelling the mysteries of basic science.

Shaw is administrator of the department's agricultural research service. He summarized the first year's progress of the new laboratories in a speech prepared for the agricultural research institute of the National Academy of Sciences. Among notable advances he cited were:

—New information on how nutrients get from the soil into plant root cells — knowledge that is basic to an understanding of plant growth (and perhaps of animal growth as well, since the cellular mechanism involved may be similar in both plants and animals).

—Insight into the process by which antigens — substances in ani-

DEAR ABBY...

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Please don't throw this letter away thinking it's from a mixed-up school girl. I am a married woman of 34 and have three children and am very unhappy in my marriage. Just for the fun of it I called up a man who has a radio program. I fell in love with his voice. He doesn't know who I am and wants to keep it that way. Abby, just to hear his voice does something to me. In a few minutes of conversation with my secret lover I get all the warmth and happiness I've always wanted. He doesn't know I would never tell him. I have made a scrap book of his pictures and write-ups. Could this be real love?

IN LOVE WITH A VOICE DEAR IN: This is not love — it's "hero-worship." We have to live in a real world with real people. Come back to reality and direct some of that energy to your husband and children. They can reciprocate. DEAR ABBY: I take a trip back home to see my parents in another state every summer. For the last two summers when I was gone, I got letters from my friends telling me that my husband has been seen around town with a very good looking blonde divorcee. My husband is a very friendly type and I never was jealous because he sees a lot of women for business reasons. This one bothers me more than the others. Do you think he is seeing her for business reasons?

DEAR ANNETTE: It's possible. What's her business? DEAR ABBY: The letter from "Unpaid Seamstress" hit home with me. I was one of those women who couldn't say "NO" when my friends would ask me to "run up a seam" for them. I found myself sewing for friends so much I didn't have time for my own housework, so my husband told me that when a friend would ask me to sew I should say, "I'd love to, but here are six shirts and three dresses for you to iron, and also a little mending if you get time." I did — nobody has bothered me since.

ANOTHER SEAMSTRESS DEAR ABBY: I am very much in love with a swell fellow. We were planning on being married, but recently we've had to change our plans because he received a letter from a girl he met while he was still in the service. She says she is pregnant, and my boyfriend is the father and he had better hurry and do something about it because she isn't able to button her skirts any more. Abby, I am crazy about this fellow, and love him all the more because he was honest enough to tell the truth about this girl. We hate to have to go to court about this matter, but he says the chances are 50-50 she is lying. Please give us some advice. Fast. IN A JAM DEAR IN: The only place you'll find a solution to this problem is in a lawyer's office. Go! Fast!

DEAR ABBY: They say in Old Testament days Jewish mothers did not suffer the agonies of childbirth as Gentile mothers did because they were God's chosen people. I am wondering if this blessing still holds true today? A GENTILE DEAR GENTILE: I don't know where you got your information, but it wasn't from any Jewish mothers. Jewish mothers (along with Gentiles) go down "the same valley in the shadow of death" according to the Good Book.

Confidential to Good - Looking Butcher: If you didn't ask her if she was married you've got no beef! For a personal reply, write to ABBY in care of this paper. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Sen. Mansfield Bitterly Raps Alcorn For Accusing Demos

By RAYMOND LAHR
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Mike Mansfield today bitterly rapped Alcorn for accusing Democrats of blocking a Far East settlement. He intimated Alcorn himself violated the U. S. secrecy pledge on its Warsaw negotiations with Red China. Mansfield, a leading Democratic foreign policy spokesman, made the statements to United Press International after Alcorn charged "appeasers" in the Democratic Party had "dragged the Formosa issue into this campaign." Alcorn, in a public statement Tuesday night, said the "appeasers" had "endangered the diplomatic objectives of the United States" and added: "The Red Chinese ambassador in Warsaw, in fact, has been using Democratic political speeches on foreign policy to delay settlement of this problem which threatens the peace of the world."

Asked where he had "deeply disturbed" and disappointed that the subject of foreign policy is being made a political football by the chairman of the Republican National Committee. Interviewed by telephone in New York where he is attending the U. N. assembly meeting as a member of the U. S. delegation, Mansfield said he had hoped because of the "dangers" involved that both parties would discuss the "delicate situations in the Middle East and Far East on their merits and in a constructive manner to the end." Calling for the "fullest possible support" to the administration on the basis of results to date in the Formosa crisis, Mansfield added the "stakes are too high for a politician to try to make capital out of a situation which may have dangerous possibilities for all of us."

As to Alcorn's charge that Democratic speeches had given the Chinese Communist envoy at Warsaw ammunition for delaying tactics, Mansfield said "to the best of my knowledge that has not been done." He suggested the Red ambassador might have drawn on statements by columnists in U. S. newspapers. "It's a good idea to know what is going on in Warsaw through the lips of the Republican National Committee chairman," Mansfield added. A spokesman for the Democratic National Committee said Committee Chairman Paul M. Butler would have no comment on Dulles' no-politics plea until he saw how Vice President Richard M. Nixon and other Republicans reacted to the secretary's ground rules. The spokesman added that Butler felt Democrats had a right and duty to engage in "constructive, temperate discussions of foreign policy" that did not "impugn the loyalty or patriotism of the opposition."

Junior High Classes Elect Their Officers

(Special to The News)
PERRYTON — Perryton Junior High Classes elected Student Council representatives, cheer leaders and home room representatives at their first meeting last week. Butch Cook was elected president of the Student Council, Joe Champion, vice president; Bill Chadwick, secretary and Keny Castlebury, reporter. Cheerleaders chosen were Sandy Peterson, Joan Reinwig, Sharon Jones, Barbara Newman, Shelia Wylie and Marianne Pool. Room representatives to the Student Council are Bob McCutcheon, Clo Crum, Bobby Johnson, Daine Malaney, Sharon Seago, Nancy Walker, Benny Graham, Diane Stewer, Roy Stallings, Kay McClung, John Ellzey, Sam Hergert and Jerry Jamison.

ALPINE MISSILES—Italian Defense Minister and Deputy Premier Antonio Segni, above, announced that his country will establish a "limited" number of U. S. intermediate range missile bases on its soil. The bases, expected to be armed with Jupiters, will probably be in the Alps and Appennines. Italy thus joins Britain as the only two members of NATO to accept nuclear-equipped missiles from America.

Some GOP Members Trying To Link Reuther With Demos

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A scattering of Republicans, including National Committee Chairman Meade Alcorn, is attempting to make a solid political issue of the fact that Walter P. Reuther is labor's political Mister Big with much influence in the Democratic Party. The Democratic response has been more to defend Reuther against some of the criticism of his alleged political beliefs than to deny that he is, indeed, powerful in the party councils. No such denial would suffice, anyway, since on the record is the political fact that it was Reuther in 1956 who had the power to break the back of opposition to the nomination of Adlai E. Stevenson for president.

Reuther has become a key man in the Democratic Party by reason of his political know-how and his position in the labor movement. He is no more a key man, however, and no more politically powerful than was the late Sidney Hillman, who rose from labor leadership in the garment industry to a position of veto power in a Democratic national convention.

There it lay until now. Today was published Byrnes' autobiography "All in a Lifetime." Harper, $5. Byrnes relates that there was a Chicago hotel room meeting on the nomination—eve at which all concerned were advised that Byrnes wanted and would accept Byrnes for second place. "However, at the end of the gathering," Byrnes wrote, "while we were standing and just about to leave, Hannegan turned to (Ed) Kelly and said: 'Ed, there was one thing we forgot. The President said: Clear it with Sidney.'" Kelly agreed that the President had made that request.

ND Students Begin Battling Common Cold

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI)—Some 2,600 Notre Dame students will begin a year-long battle against the common cold tonight when they line up for inoculation with a new vaccine. Doctors hoped the cold rate among the students will be reduced "by as much as 60 to 70 per cent," with the number of man-days lost by students receiving the vaccine "substantially reduced."

ND Students Begin Battling Common Cold

That convention took place in 1944. Democratic leaders—then were less concerned with protecting Hillman from charges that he was in political cahoots with American Communists than with denying that he had or used a veto power on the 1944 choice of a Democratic vice presidential nominee. Henry A. Wallace was dropped that year on grounds that he would cost FDR a lot of votes.

VIVACIOUS Jean Smith of Chicago, both a high school junior and fashion model, favors cereal and fruit for breakfast.

Teen-Ager Finds Hearty Breakfast Is Beauty Aid

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor
It's time to do a little serious thinking about the importance of a good breakfast—in this case, teen-agers in particular.

There's a vivacious young woman in Chicago, Jean Smith, a junior at Morgan Park High School, and a fashion model on weekends and after school, who takes her breakfast seriously.

"I don't see how my girl friends can bypass breakfast," Jean says. "If I ever skip mine, I'm simply starved by midmorning. Find it hard to pay attention in classes if I'm hungry. So I always get up in time to enjoy a good breakfast."

Trim of figure, brimful of spirits, an honor student, president of the Tri-Hi Y Council of the Y.M.C.A., active in the youth group at church, Jean is proof that a teenage girl can eat a full breakfast and keep herself attractively slender.

"I always eat fruit juice, cereal, bread and butter and milk for breakfast," she explained. "Then I don't crave those snacks like malts and candy bars that put on extra pounds."

One of her favorite breakfast "varieties" is a cereal parfait—a layer of ready-to-eat cereal and a layer of fruit, such as cinnamon applesauce, repeated until large dish is filled. Served with milk. But she has one no-bake cookie recipe for parties and bake sales at school. Here is her recipe:

CEREAL TOFFEE SQUARES

(Yield: about 96 squares)
Cookie Mixture: One third cup butter or margarine, 1/2 cup creamy-style peanut butter, 1 pound marshmallows, 1 tablespoon milk, 4 cups crisp corn puffs, puffed rice, or pre-sweetened puffed cereal.

Topping: Two (6-ounce) packages semisweet chocolate bits, 1/2 cup salted peanuts, chopped; 1/2 cup of any of the above cereals (cereal selected for cookie mixture should be used as topping.)

Combine butter, peanut butter, marshmallows and milk in a heavy pan. Place over low heat and stir constantly until all ingredients are melted and smooth. Add cereal and stir until all cereal is coated with peanut butter mixture. Remove from heat and turn mixture into 2 greased pans 11 1/2 x 7 1/2 x 1 1/2 inches. Press into even layer. Melt chocolate bits in top of double boiler. Spread half of chocolate over each pan of cookies and sprinkle tops with chopped peanuts and cereal. Cut into bars or squares.

TOMORROW'S DINNER: Beef and vegetable stew, whipped potatoes, baking powder biscuits, butter or margarine, cabbage and apple salad, cereal toffee squares, coffee, tea, milk.

B. M. Baker Room Mothers Meet To Set Plans For Fun, Food, Frolic Night

Room mothers of the B. M. Baker Parent-Teacher Association met in the school auditorium recently to discuss plans for the school's Fun, Food and Frolic Night to be held Oct. 24 at the school.

The meeting was conducted by Mrs. D. L. Martindale, chairman, who instructed each room mother in her duties for Fun Night. She also stated that each room mother who is not working in her own room is to work in the cafeteria and should request the help of three other mothers to work with her.

Each room mother, executive board member and second-grade mother is to bring a cake; all other mothers are to bring pies. The menu in the cafeteria will include chili, Irish stew, hamburgers, hot dogs, potato chips, pie, cake, coffee and soft drinks. Serving will begin at 5 p. m. and continue until 8:30," Mrs. Martindale said.

Mrs. Joy Jones announced that six mothers will work in the Cake and Coffee Room. The Ice Cream Bar needs two more workers, according to Mrs. E. H. Haralson, chairman.

The teachers, who are in charge of the carnival portion of Fun Night activities, announce there will be several new attractions, as well as the old stand bys; such as, Fish Pond, White Elephant Sale, Country Store, Balloon Man, a western movie and others not yet completed.

Two teachers will be in charge of a cake room, which will be another new feature of the carnival. A room near the auditorium will be set aside for the sale of whole cakes and pies for home use and freezer storage, according to the planning committee.

The program in the auditorium will be a minstrel presented by fourth grade students.

Mrs. Preston Wallace announced that John Evans, Mrs. Warren Jackson and she will be on Staff Breakfast over radio KPDM on Oct. 23 to discuss Food, Fun and Frolic Night.

Mrs. Martindale closed the meeting with the request that mothers get volunteers for cafeteria duty as soon as possible. "Mothers not contacted, but wishing to work in the cafeteria, may call me, Mrs. Boyd Bennett or Mrs. Warren Jackson," Mrs. Martindale said.

Attending the meeting were Mrs. Don Hayne, E. A. Russell, Margaret Hulse, Preston Wallace, Warren Jackson, Boyd Bennett, Robert Dittmeyer, William Cowles, Denver Moore, M. O. Burns, Troy Bennett, E. C. Fulton, Jack Lane, D. B. Mahany, Roy Jones, Orvel Ferguson, Joe Jordan, Owen Long, and D. L. Martindale.

DEAR ABBY...

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Please don't throw this letter away thinking it's from a mixed-up school girl. I am a married woman of 34 and have three children and am very unhappy in my marriage. I just for the fun of it I called up a man who has a radio program. I fell in love with his voice. He doesn't know who I am and wants to keep it that way. Abby, just to hear his voice does something to me. In a few minutes of conversation with my secret lover I get all the warmth and happiness I've always wanted. He doesn't know how I feel about him and I would never tell him. I have made a scrap book of his pictures and write-ups. Could this be real love?

IN LOVE WITH A VOICE
DEAR IN: This is not love—it's "hero-worship." We have to live in a real world with real people. Come back to reality and direct some of that energy to your husband and children. They can reciprocate.

DEAR ABBY: I take a trip back home to see my parents in another state every summer. For the last two summers when I was gone, I got letters from my friends telling me that my husband has been seen around town with a very good looking blonde divorcee. My husband is a very friendly type and I never was jealous because he sees a lot of women for business reasons. This one bothers me more than the others. Do you think he is seeing her for business reasons?

ANNETTE
DEAR ANNETTE: It's possible. What's her business?

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "Unpaid Seamstress" hit home with me. I was one of those women who couldn't say "NO" when my friends would ask me to "run up a seam" for them. I found myself sewing for friends so much I didn't have time for my own housework, so my husband told me that when a friend would ask me to sew I should say, "I'd love to, but here are six shirts and three dresses for you to iron, and also a little mending if you get time." I did—nobody has bothered me since.

ANOTHER SEAMSTRESS
DEAR ABBY: I am very much in love with a swell fellow. We were planning on being married, but recently we've had to change our plans because he received a letter from a girl he met while he was still in the service. She says she is pregnant, and my boyfriend is the father and he had better hurry and do something about it because she isn't able to button her skirts any more, Abby. I am crazy about this fellow, and love him all the more because he was honest enough to tell the truth about this girl. We hate to have to go to court about this matter, but he says the chances are 50-50 she is lying. Please give us some advice. Fast.

IN A JAM
DEAR IN: The only place you'll find a solution to this problem is in a lawyer's office. Go! Fast!

DEAR ABBY: They say in Old Testament days Jewish mothers did not suffer the agonies of childbirth as Gentile mothers did because they were God's chosen people. I am wondering if this blessing still holds true today?

A GENTILE
DEAR GENTILE: I don't know where you got your information, but it wasn't from any Jewish mothers. Jewish mothers (along with Gentiles) go down "the same valley in the shadow of death" according to the Good Book.

Confidential to Good-Looking Butcher: If you didn't ask her if she was married you've got no beef!

For a personal reply, write to ABBY in care of this paper. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Manners Make Friends

If there is a young child among a number of adults who are being introduced, the child should be introduced, too. It's rude to ignore a child when you are making sure that all the adults meet

Swivel Front Seats on 1959 Plymouth

SOME COMFORT

A major development in automobile seating arrangements is the introduction of swivel front seats in the 1959 Plymouth. Driver and front seats in the '59 Plymouth. Driver and outward when entering or leaving the car. Each seat pivots independently of the other. The seats swivel when a lever is lifted in the seat shield, releasing a spring which swings the seat outward on rollers a full 40 degrees. The seats automatically lock in place when returned to normal position. An arm rest between the driver and front seat passenger may be folded back when three persons wish to ride in the front seat. ## Sen. Mansfield Bitterly Raps Alcorn For Accusing Demos

By RAYMOND LAHR
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Mike Mansfield today bitterly rapped GOP Chairman Meade Alcorn for accusing Democrats of blocking a Far East settlement. He intimated Alcorn himself violated the U. S. secrecy pledge on its Warsaw negotiations with Red China. Mansfield, a leading Democratic foreign policy spokesman, made the statements in United Press International after Alcorn charged "appeasers" in the Democratic Party had "dragged the Formosa issue into this campaign." Alcorn, in a public statement Tuesday night, said the "appeasers" had "endangered the diplomatic objectives of the United States" and added: "The Red Chinese ambassador in Warsaw, in fact, has been using Democratic political speeches on foreign policy to delay settlement of this problem which threatens the peace of the world." Dulles Makes Appeal. Alcorn's statement was issued shortly after Secretary of State John Foster Dulles had appealed to both Democrats and Republicans to "calm down" and stop injecting the Formosa issue into the congressional campaign.

A State Department spokesman had "no comment" when asked if Alcorn's remarks went counter to Dulles' no-politics appeal. He also said he could not comment on Alcorn's statement about the Warsaw talks. "We have a pledge with the Chinese Communists not to talk about the Warsaw discussions," the spokesman said. He added he did not know where Alcorn had gotten his information. Asked where he had obtained the information about the Warsaw talks, Alcorn said at first it had "been reported in the press" but then went on to intimate he had received it from the State Department. He said he had "good reason to believe it to be accurate" and acknowledged he conferred with Dulles last Sunday. Mansfield Disturbed. Mansfield, assistant Senate Democratic leader and a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said he was "deeply disturbed and disappointed that the subject of foreign policy is being made a political football by the chairman of the Republican National Committee." Interviewed by telephone in New York where he is attending the U. N. assembly meeting as a member of the U. S. delegation, Mansfield said he had hoped for "dispassionate, temperate discussions of the 'dangers' involved that both parties would discuss the delicate situations in the Middle East and Far East on their merits and in a constructive manner to the end." Calling for the "fullest possible support" to the administration on the basis of results to date in the Formosa crisis, Mansfield added the "stakes are too high for a politician to try to make capital out of a situation which may have dangerous possibilities for all of us." As to Alcorn's charge that Democratic speeches had given the Chinese Communist envoy at Warsaw ammunition for delaying tactics, Mansfield said "to the best of my knowledge that has not been done." He suggested the Red ambassador might have drawn on statements by columnists in U. S. newspapers. "It's a good idea to know what is going on in Warsaw through the lips of the Republican National Committee chairman," Mansfield added. A spokesman for the Democratic National Committee said Committee Chairman Paul M. Butler would have no comment on Dulles' no-politics plea until he saw how Vice President Richard M. Nixon and other Republicans reacted to the secretary's ground rules. The spokesman added that Butler felt Democrats had a right and duty to engage in "constructive, temperate discussions of foreign policy" that did not "impugn the loyalty or patriotism of the opposition."

Some GOP Members Trying To Link Reuther With Demos

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI)—A scattering of Republicans, including National Committee Chairman Meade Alcorn, is attempting to make a solid political issue of the fact that Walter P. Reuther is labor's political Mister Big with much influence in the Democratic Party. The Democratic response has been more to defend Reuther against some of the criticism of his alleged political beliefs than to deny that he is, indeed, powerful in the party councils. No such denial would suffice, anyway, since on the record is the political fact that it was Reuther in 1956 who had the power to break the back of opposition to the nomination of Adlai E. Stevenson for president. Reuther has become a key man in the Democratic Party by reason of his political know-how and his position in the labor movement. He is no more a key man, however, and no more politically powerful than was the late Sidney Hillman, who rose from labor leadership in the garment industry to a position of veto power in a Democratic national convention.

Balked at Byrnes. That convention took place in 1944. Democratic leaders then were less concerned with protecting Hillman from charges that he was in political cahoots with American Communists than with denying that he had or used a veto power, on the 1944 choice of a Democratic vice presidential nominee, Henry A. Wallace was dropped that year on grounds that he would cost FDR a lot of votes. The word went out that James F. Byrnes, then an actual assistant president, was FDR's choice. The party managers were agreed to nominate him when National Committee Chairman Robert E. Hannegan reminded them that FDR had okayed Byrnes with the qualification, "clear it with Sidney."

ND Students Begin Battling Common Cold

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI)—Some 2,600 Notre Dame students will begin a year-long battle against the common cold tonight when they line up for inoculation with a new vaccine. Doctors hoped the cold rate among the students will be reduced "by as much as 60 to 70 per cent," with the number of man-days lost by students receiving the vaccine "substantially reduced."

The polyvalent serum, which contains several different strains of viruses responsible for upper respiratory infections, will be given to two-thirds of the students. The other one-third will receive a sterile solution. Neither the students nor the doctors giving the vaccine will know who received which shot. A coded lot number will be recorded with the name of each student inoculated. The numbers will be decoded at the end of the study to determine which students received the vaccine. Throughout the year, constant checks will be made on colds contracted by the students. The vaccine was developed by Dr. Thomas G. Ward, research professor of virology at Notre Dame's Lobund Institute, and scientists at the National Institute of Health, Washington, D.C.

Hillman balked at Byrnes and out of the disagreement came the nomination of Harry S. Truman of Missouri for vice president of the United States. He also, was acceptable to FDR. Some months later Truman became president so it must be that Hillman's veto has left its mark on history. Arthur Krook of the New York Times wrote the "clear it with Sidney" story shortly after it happened. As Krook recalls it now, "All concerned denied that story. Roosevelt, Truman, Hillman, Han-

ALPINE MISSILES—Italian Defense Minister and Deputy Premier Antonio Segni, above, announced that his country will establish a "limited" number of U.S. intermediate range missile bases on its soil. The bases, expected to be armed with Jupiters, will probably be in the Alps and Apennines. Italy thus joins Britain as the only two members of NATO to accept nuclear-equipped missiles from America.

Year's Top Grandmother Is Elected

CHICAGO (UPI)—A silver-haired oldest with teen-age energy is the "Grandmother of the Year."
Chances are slim that she'll rest on her laurels.
"Grandmother" is Mrs. Charles S. Clark, Chicago, a noted clubwoman, civic leader, writer and traveler whose busy life once prompted a doctor to tell her to "walk like a lady instead of a rocket."
She was named Sunday at the National Federation of Grandmothers Clubs of America convention here. Her crowning came on National Grandmothers' Day, which federation officials hoped would emancipate grandmas from the rocking-chair-sterotype-photoshopped rocking-chair stereotype into a world of activity and current affairs.
"It's time grandmothers did some living of their own," said Mrs. Edith Waddell, 55, Corpus Christi, Tex. "We spend too much time baby-sitting."
"Grandmothers take more interest in public life and educating themselves in the problems of today," Mrs. Waddell said. "We keep abreast of the young people."

Mrs. Clark's activities indicate she is keeping abreast—if not outrunning—the younger generation. She is the founder and president of the Conference of Club Presidents and Program Chairmen, a board member of the Albert Schweitzer Foundation, woman's board president of the Salvation Army and a member of many other clubs. A great-grandmother of seven, she has traveled to virtually every part of the world.

HOUSE COLLAPSES
NEWLYN HARBOR, England (UPI)—Mrs. Catherine Weeks, 70, was wakened from her nap by a babble of excited voices in the street outside. The crowd had been gathered by the collapse of the rear half of Mrs. Weeks' house.

purely paydirt

Near-sightedly watching through the heavy hornrims, Pampa's Optimist Club boxfighters in a muscle-flexing exhibition at Amarillo last week, the shallow crevices of the brain leaked out memories of Fritzie Zivic.

The Lawrenceville section of Pittsburgh was called Irish Town and it was one of those real tough neighborhoods, you know, one of those places where the kids were 16 years old before they knew their fists had fingers, where the only holiday they celebrated was Dillinger's birthday.

Fritzie Zivic was a Croatian living in this Irish arena and his two bigger brothers were boxfighters. So Fritzie Zivic was always having to answer challenges.

"I learned to throw bricks," says Fritzie. "Got to be the best brick thrower in town. I could throw on the run and hit a kid on the head at 30 yards. One kid, I musta knocked out 38 times."

From that sort of platform, Fritzie Zivic went naturally into the boxfight business and the eventual welterweight championship. And he did it by the only means he knew, without throwing bricks. Kneec somebody in the groin, butt 'em on the eyebrow, stomp their feet, thumb 'em in the eyeball.

He ain't ashamed of it either. In a True Magazine article a couple months back we devoured his success story, "You Gotta Fight Dirty."

Boxing is Dirty Business

Boxing is a dirty business, says Zivic, inside the ring and outside. When you fight for a living, if you're smart, you fight with every trick you know.

The article wasn't exactly recommended for YMCA boxers or Golden Gloves, like Ollie Wilhelm's Pampa punchers. It wasn't pretty, but it was as honest as the Father of Our Country and his cherry tree business.

Some ring historians call Harry Greb the dirtiest fighter who ever lived. Zivic will settle for the No. 2 rating.

"They tell me if you lifted your leg high enough, Greb would hit you on the bottom of the foot. Why, one time he hit a good sized chunk right out of a guy's shoulder.

"I wasn't so bad myself," says Zivic, "else how could I have won the welterweight title from a champ like Armstrong who often missed you on purpose with his left hook so he could bring his elbow across your kisser?"

Zivic tells about his championship fight with Armstrong. "He was very busy in the first round. He hit me low, choked me, butted me, thumbed me. I got a terrible going over. Boxing Armstrong was like boxing three guys, that's how busy he was.

"So in the seventh round, I walked out and hit with a left hook in the groin. I did this a few times and the referee noticed I was changing my style. You might say, 'He pulled us apart and said, 'Boys, if you want to fight like this, it's okay with me.'"

"A wonderful referee, that Arthur Donovan," says Zivic. "That's all I wanted to hear. If I boxed him according to the book I wouldn't have won the title."

Zivic gave some tips on dirty fighting, which we don't exactly feel like passing on.

Zivic Had a Hard Head

He also paid high tribute to some other dirty fighters of their day.

"Look at the three best fighters of all time — Jack Johnson, Jack Dempsey and Greb. All wonderful dirty fighters. Look at the three best champions of our day — Rocky Marciano, who was one of the best after-the-bell punchers I ever saw; Archie Moore and alley-fighting Sandy Saddler.

Zivic sneers at the present crop of fighters.

"They jab, hook, throw combina-

Once-Great Sandies Can Still Be Tough

By RED GRIGGS Daily News Sports Editor

The Sandies, in fact, have been district champions in District 3-4A for the past two years. And Tascosa and Palo Duro aren't doing too badly either.

The Sandies aren't quite what they used to be. They've dropped three of their four games this year, including their first loss to Plainview in 17 years. However, they beat the tough San Angelo Bobcats 12-7.

The Harvesters face no easy task when they invade Sandies-land Friday night. The Sandies should be fighting mad and rarin' to go after falling before the Plainview Bulldogs last week.

It's true that flesh and bone, not spirit, win most football games. The Sandies are pretty well stocked in that department, too.

Coach Homer Simmons has available two good backfields and one top-notch line, plus some pretty fair reserves. Included in the bunch are nine lettermen and one returning regular from last year's district championship team.

Guard Buddy Clayton is the returning regular. Danny Jordan, senior letterman, holds down the left guard slot. The Sandies are three deep in guard reserves, none of whom have lettered.

Tackle is the Amarillo weak spot, and the Harvesters have the plays and the rushing backs to exploit that weakness. Pat Hyde, a senior, is the only letterman tackle. Jack Lankford, a junior who hadn't played since junior high, is the other starter at a tackle position. Reserves at this position are two deep.

The Sandies are strong at both flanks, with two dependable lettermen at the end positions. Tommy York and Wayne Wood, two powerful 175-pound seniors, are the starters. Both have been tagged by Simmons as fine college prospects.

The Sandies also have four reserve ends. A non-letterman, 155-pounder, Bob Webster, is the varsity center. He is backed up by two inexperienced 170-pounders.

The Sandies are well stocked with backs, especially at the signal calling position. Currie Bechtol, Barry Ward and George Tiffany are capable of playing quarterback.

Valdis Gubins, 175-pound senior letterman, is the starting fullback, kicker, and kickoff man. Two men with B team experience back him up.

First-string halfbacks are Mal Whitsett 140-pound senior letterman, and Ken Grenwald, 165-pound senior who before this season hadn't played since junior high. The Sandies have three other men for each halfback post.

The Sandy backfield is somewhat lighter than normal, about 148 pounds per man average. The line, however, is as heavy as could be expected for a high school squad, averaging about 175.

Simmons uses a multiple offense, keeping his team mostly in a split T with unbalanced line, but shifting occasionally to a single wing. Simmons rates backfield speed as probably his teams main strength, and a dearth of capable line reserves as its biggest weakness. The Sandies are primarily a ground team, but are capable of going to the air. Bechtol, Whitsett, Ward, and Grenwald can all throw the ball.

Phillips Moves to Sixth in AAA

DALLAS (UPI)— Breckenridge, Sweetwater, Cleburne, Levelland and Weatherford held their status quo in the United Press International's class-AAA coaches-board ratings today, but new names and position shifts marked the other top 10 places.

Three new teams forged their way into the select list in the wake of last week's results that saw fourth-rated Kingsville humiliated 50-6 by Kerrville, seventh-ranked Killeen whipped 38-13 by AAAA Temple and eighth-ranked Snyder fall victim to the Breckenridge power 24-7.

Nacogdoches jumped from 12th to seventh place, Kerrville from 22nd to eighth and San Marcos from 13th to ninth as all three made their initial appearances on the select list.

Breckenridge widened its gap over Sweetwater to 11 points, 146 to 135, with eight first-place halves to seven for the "Red Mustangs," and Cleburne held onto third, but had to share that rung with Carthage, which jumped three places to wind up with 92 points, too.

Levelland held firmly to fifth, but Phillips moved up three steps to sixth and Weatherford held to 10th while idle.

McKinney, 128 upset winner over AAAA Garland, headed up the second group with 26 points, only four points back of Weatherford.

Snyder dropped four places to 12th and Killeen six places to tie out of sight, winding up in a tie for 21st.

Breckenridge will be idle this week, while Sweetwater plays at Graham, Cleburne at Corsicana, Levelland at Dalhart, and Weatherford at Dalhart.

Five Grid Teams To Play Thursday

The Shockers will be seeking their second straight win Thursday night at Harvester Park when they take on the Tom S. Lubbock High School B team, the Cowboys.

In other local action Thursday Pampa Junior eighth grade goes against Dumas eighth grade at 8 p.m., and the Robert E. Lee Rebels tangle with Perryton at 3:45 p.m. Both games will be in Harvester Park.

Two other junior high squads will be on the road Thursday. Pampa Junior High's Reapers travel to Dumas and Lee's eighth graders invade Perryton.

Then Friday, in a warmup for next week's civil strife between Pampa and Lee junior highs, the Pampa and Lee seventh graders clash at 4 p.m. in Harvester Park. The Shockers will be trying to get on the plus side for the season when they host Lubbock. The B teamers have a 2-2 record, including an impressive 30-14 win over Plainview in their last outing.

The Lee Rebels also have a 2-2 mark for the season, losing their last two games after being successful in their first two encounters. Pampa eighth grade was shut out last week.

The Reapers have gone to the well four times this season, but are still thirsty for a win. The Rebel eighth graders have been scored on just once, but have had trouble with their own offense. They've won one, lost one, and played a scoreless tie.

Lee seventh grade was one of the two local grid squads to win last week as they whitewashed Phillips 15-0. The Pampa seventh graders were not in action last week.

Both the Lee and Pampa junior high varsities face tough sledding. Perryton last week whipped the Reapers 30-14, and two weeks ago Dumas trounced Lee 35-0.

Schoolboy Dies From Grid Injury

PECOS, Tex. (UPI) — Texas' second schoolboy football fatality of the season was marked up today with the death of a Pecos hospital of 18-year-old Maurillo Garcia of Barstow.

Garcia suffered a broken neck in a six-man football game last Saturday at Balmorhea. Despite an operation after he was brought here, the youth never regained consciousness.

Garcia's death was the second such tragedy in two years in the coaching career of Gordon Harmon, who moved to Barstow from Sanderson this year. One of his players was fatally injured in practice at Sanderson.

SWC Grid Squads Run Through Light Drills

United Press International

Southwest Conference clubs went light on scrimmages Tuesday and concentrated on stopping their Saturday opponents' maneuvers.

Rice passed up its usual heavy scrimmage due to injuries and held a dummy scrimmage. The Owls also worked on pass defense for Southern Methodist.

Four players, all starters, were in doubtful condition for the game. They were end Gene Johns, tackle Gene Miller, guard Charlie Knight and fullback Bill Schneider.

The University of Texas worked against Arkansas defenses in a semi-scrimmage.

Baylor, however, took a long, hard workout, smoothing out ball-handling and pass receiving for Texas Tech.

Texas A&M had what Coach Jim Myers said was a "very good workout," stressing defense against Texas Christian plays.

The Arkansas Razorbacks worked on dummy drills and formations in pads, but without contact work Tuesday, as Coach Sam Broyles kept his team on the workout field until dark.

Broyles was mum on the progress of his charges, who have yet to win a game. He said he would not reveal any changes in the starting lineup until at least Thursday.

At TCU, a mild dysentery attack struck about 90 per cent of the varsity players although none missed Tuesday's workout behind locked gates.

President Dies On Birthday In Washington

By MERRIMAN SMITH
WASHINGTON (UPI)—President

Eisenhower was 68 years old Tuesday and, befitting his diet, his birthday cake was made of flowers—Republican flowers.

Despite three illnesses in three years and having reached a point where most men who can afford to have retired, Eisenhower showed no outward signs of slowing his pace.

First item on his birthday calendar was a breakfast given in his honor by the staffs of the White House, Vice President Richard M. Nixon, the Republican National Committee and the GOP Congressional Campaign Organization.

The men and women who planned the breakfast seemed to have considered the fact that the President, on a low-calorie diet as result of his 1955 heart attack, rarely eats sweets. His birthday "cake" consisted of a three-tiered arrangement of flowers designed to resemble a cake.

With the cake was a huge birthday card signed by hundreds of GOP campaign workers from every state.

There was a solemn interval in the President's birthday schedule. Shortly after the GOP breakfast he planned to join many officials of his administration and the diplomatic corps at St. Matthews Cathedral in a Pontifical Requiem Mass for the late Pope Pius XII.

To Get Record
During a crowded morning schedule in his office, the President was to receive another birthday gift—a recording of the Howard University choir singing his 1953 inaugural prayer. The prayer was set to music by composer Robert Rogers and the recording was to be presented by wife planned to spend a quiet birthday evening at a small family dinner with possibly some old friends as added guests.

Charity Plus Wisdom

We do not wish to disparage charity. It is undoubtedly a great and enabling virtue. But there is a great deal of maulin misinformation being bandied about respecting charity that ought to be laid to rest like a troublesome ghost.

In discussing charity, let us begin by acknowledging that as things now stand there are undoubtedly certain areas of human affairs which simply cannot be handled in the free market process.

Take, for example, the blind, the crippled, the handicapped. It is true that many of these persons can rehabilitate themselves and ultimately find a chance to enter the market place.

Also, there are certain persons injured beyond the point where recovery can be anticipated. Surely, they, too, should be and are the natural recipients of private generosity.

Then, too, there are such agencies as churches which should be supported only by voluntary giving. And at the moment there are hospitals, clinics, certain types of research and private schools which could not survive in our present economic climate were they not the recipients of grants or other financial advances from private sources.

What should be understood, however, is that while many of us may need a helping hand once in awhile, the purpose of charity is not to create a permanent type of dependency. Charity is conceived as a temporary aid in instances of dire emergency. It is not supposed to be a business.

Charity directed toward the purchase of tools and more production, can and will create a race of independent, self-supporting and responsible human beings.

The Price Of Things

Price is something in which all of us are interested. If we buy something, we are always tempted to claim that the price we have paid is too high. If we sell something, the price we get seems to us to be too low.

Let us suppose that the producer of eggs, that is to say the owner of the eggs, that is to say the owner of the hens who lay the eggs, has anticipated making a sizable profit from his eggs because at the fixed price set by the government, he can do very well, indeed.

Consequently, he has a 100 dozen eggs he would like to sell. You only want 2 dozen. He would like to sell you a 100 dozen. As a matter of fact, if he doesn't sell at least 80 dozen he is going to lose money.

What is important to be realized is that price is only one factor in relation to the market place. Controlling prices does not solve all of the market problems. Controlling prices solves only one problem.

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HOILES

Example Of Need Of Right-To-Work Law

One seldom finds a better example of the need for right-to-work law than the recent action of United Steel Workers of America at their recent national convention.

A couple of years ago Donald Rarick, chief of the McKeesport, Pa. local, decided to run for president of the steel workers union against David McDonald, the president.

The steel workers union spent, it is estimated, better than $1 million of money that all steel workers paid into the union to elect McDonald. Candidate Rarick polled 223,000 votes and McDonald used their dues, as well as those who voted for him, to elect McDonald. At that time sentiment was so strong that McDonald made no effort to put Rarick and his associates out of the union, but at this recent convention held this month the steel workers, "were promptly advised that the main item of business was a purge of members who had questioned the policies of the union leadership."

The "National Review Bulletin" puts it this way:

"... As union president, David McDonald delicately put it in his keynote address: you must 'rip this cancer out of your bowels.' The 'cancer' was a group headed by the chief of the McKeesport, Pa. local, Donald Rarick, who had been elected to the union dues should not have been raised from three to five dollars; b) David McDonald's salary should not have been increased from $40,000 to $50,000; c) union organizers should be elected, not appointed."

"Union Democracy in Action" President McDonald, understandably, decided to take off the gloves: since he might not be able to vote down the insurgents forever, he would have them voted out.

The stacked convention reared its approval as McDonald excoriated the Rarick group for collaborating with Communists and the NAM and the Trotskyites and the steel companies in its effort to 'destroy' the union. Documentation of the charges was neither asked nor offered. Rebuttals by the insurgents were greeted by boos and catcalls. Late in the week, the convention authorized the purge. A ponderous resolution explained that 'Democracy' certainly encompasses the right to have one's voice heard in the formulation of union policy, but the principles of 'loyalty' require that the minority who have opposed a policy adopted by the union accept it as the policy of their union.

When a union convention can throw a man out of the union and cause the employer to discharge him because that man criticized the policies of the union, we certainly have a strong argument for the need of right-to-work laws that would make it so a man could not be discharged because he criticized the union bosses.

When union men dare not think out loud for fear of losing their jobs, we have a case almost parallel to Russian communism. There, if a man criticizes the government he is thrown out of his job and left to starve. Here, if everything was unionized, as the aim of all unions, the man who was thrown out of a job also would starve.

A vote for the right-to-work law is a vote for putting a curb on tyrannical bosses at the head of labor unions.

Why Sacrifice and Save? If unions can do what they claim, namely, raise total wages, then why should any man sacrifice and save? Why not have the unions continuously raise wages higher and higher whether they produce or not?

Employment, of course, can only be continuous if the worker produces what other workers, past or present, are willing to buy at a price they are willing to pay. The idea that labor unions can increase total wages by reducing production, by strikes, by seniority, by limiting apprentices, by featherbedding, by non-productive organizers, is simply a pathological impossibility. It violates the fundamental law of life that man must live by the sweat of his brow.

It resolves the question as to what an article will bring. But, by resolving this question it creates two others: 1.) What will be some of the excess production? 2.) What will the potential purchaser buy instead of the product which has a controlled price?

If we will only understand that all of us are both buyers and sellers at all times, then we will see the folly of attempting to control prices by force. If the market is free we can control prices ourselves by our own necessary compliance with the law of supply and demand.

Your Own "Private Eye"

Robert Allen Reports:

Ike Embarks With Good, Dismal News

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower is embarking on his drive for a Republican Congress with one piece of cheering news and another not so rosy.

The good news is financial. A group of leading businessmen and bankers have agreed to raise "several hundred thousand dollars" for the hard-pressed GOP campaign chest.

The disturbing item, from the Labor Department, is that Negro unemployment is double the overall national average — 12.8 percent as against 6 percent.

Also that this high rate of joblessness is mainly in states with large Negro voting populations — such as Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois, Michigan and California.

In six of these eight states, Republican Senate seats are at stake. The exceptions are Massachusetts and Illinois.

They are uneasily viewing them as a potential serious menace to anticipated Negro ballot gains as a result of Southern opposition to the Supreme Court's school integration edict.

The promised flow of additional campaign funds come in the nick of time.

National Chairman Meade Alcorn and Senate and House electioneering chiefs are urgently in need of sizable amounts of money.

At last week's party conference in the White House, Alcorn reported his coffers are "virtually empty," and that he needs "at least another $1,000,000 for essential activities" in the closing weeks of the campaign.

Harold Warner, director of the House Committee, is telling Republican candidates the new contribution drive will be a "blitz." Explains Warner, "They are going to try to raise this money in one week."

In the van of this effort are Clifford Roberts, New York investment banker; Sidney Weinberg, New York investment banker; Edward Noble, former radio network president; and Winthrop Aldrich, former bank president and ex-Ambassador to Britain.

GLOOMY DETAILS — Another disconcerting factor reported by the Labor Department is that Negro unemployment now is higher than last year — 12.8 percent as against 7.7 percent.

The Department estimates the totals as 900,000 this year and 500,000 in 1957.

Looking Sideways

By Whitney Bolton

NEW YORK — Apart from the time just before World War II when a fellow put a piece of glass set in rubber on my face and dropped me off the end of a surfboard into 70 feet of water in California, I have never been a skin-diver.

There are several friends who put lead belts on themselves and strap cylinders of air onto their backs and do everything but go under the North Pole the way the Nautilus did, but my own idea of a good way to skin-dive without much cost or peril is to stand in a good, hot shower.

The trouble with decisions of this kind is that there is always a millionaire with a lot of idle time on his hands and this kind of man can get you into a lot of trouble. Like Joe Millard, a man with more money than conviction.

Joe called up the other sunny, but slightly frosty morning and said: "You ever been skin-diving?" "Sure," I said. "Long before it was popular. We pioneers did it with only face-masks and our own air in our own lungs. Sure."

"Well," he said, "maybe you'd come over this morning and help me. I had a little argument with Alice last night, over just nothing at all, and the upshot was that she threw her wedding ring in the pond. I got some skin-diving equipment here and I think it would be fun if you joined me in looking for it."

"That pond isn't eight feet deep in the deepest place," I said, "and you can wade most of it. Buy her another wedding ring and avoid a fall cold."

"It isn't that easy," he said. "This was my mother's wedding ring. Alice has a sentimental attachment to it and..."

"She shows it," I said, "throwing it in the pond, and all." "Oh, come on over. We'll have scrambled eggs and link sausage after, with just a trace of cognac in black coffee to put hinges on things."

So I went over to Joe's place, a little vest-pocket estate of some 47 acres in an area where builders think they are wasting things if they don't put eight houses on one acre, and we got into some cold, slippery rubber suits with talcum powder on our bodies to help in getting them on. Then we clamped snafibbons on our mouths like horses, adjusted valves and put on flippers and you'd have thought we were seeking the 37-foot record in the Mediterranean.

"We looked foolish, two grown men in all that gear walking into a pond a giraffe could wade through."

"You take this half and I'll take the far half," said Joe. "The bottom is white sand, because I had it dumped in there. Here's an unobstructed light to help you see things. The ring ought to flash if the light rays hit it."

So we walked in, bit down on our breathers, started letting air in through hoses and in no time we were flat on our stomachs in four feet of water, feeling around for a ring. Joe found it, after about 15 minutes, in seven feet of water. He grabbed it up out of the sand and we got back out of there and his butler served a piping hot breakfast of scrambled eggs and thick-broiled beefsteak.

"Didn't have any sausages, it turned out," said Joe. "But here is the cognac."

"I'd as soon put 7up in a Bloody Mary," I said. "I don't need cognac. I need my head examined. Of all the fool safaris I've ever heard of..."

"There is no romance in your aging soul," said Joe. "This will kill Alice. The fact that we risked our lives to get that ring back..."

"Risked our lives? I've been in greater danger brushing my teeth."

Alice came downstairs just then and looked at us, sitting there in bathing trunks while we steam-bathed into the eggs and bacon. "What was all that snuffing and snorting I heard outside?" she said loudly. "I thought my married little friend here I am added to had installed a set of water buffalo. His new hobby?"

Lawyer's Assumptions Becoming A Menace!

LOS ANGELES — Charles S. Rhyne, the retiring president of the American Bar Association, arriving home from Moscow, disparaging the Soviet System of Law and Justice to the implied praise of the American monster. Noting a few exceptions, the American lawyer's assumption of quality and honor solely on his own authority has become a menace to morals and to the freedom and dignity of us all.

It is no trifling matter that this cult holds "the law" to be majestic, knowing as they do that all our law today is written by lawyers most often with an eye to the prosperity and convenience of lawyers; and knowing that many judges are sordid politicians, learned only in matches of Latin and memorized cliches from the Bible, the Talmud, the Constitution, Time, Life and, For Lagniappe, Look. It is not to the good that many of these predators regard themselves as consecrated men that makes them the worse.

Lawyers are among our least intellectual citizens, a hair-line below dentists, clergy, and radio-TV pundits. They are painfully clumsy in English expression, but are alert and agile in their reactions to propositions and circumstances involving problems of their grotesque "ethics."

It often happens that the manly thing, the honorable ethical thing to do, would be to denounce a scoundrel on the bench with facts which the lawyer has firmly in his own knowledge. It is the law laid down by the Supreme Court, the highest and worse of our tribunals, that judges may persecute victims at the bar out of personal malice and without the slightest pretense of relevance to the issues in the case.

But a lawyer who should similarly resort to his own personal knowledge of rascality by the judge would go to prison for contempt of that fantastic "majesty" which lawyers have created a banishment would invite perpetual banishment from practice in all the courts. Knowing this lawyers rarely take that chance.

In confidence, lawyers agree that lawyers now have their bony talons on the throat of a whole nation of people, collecting fees for trivial but absolutely indispensable guidance in the most usual transactions of daily life. One lawyer's outrageous suit creates a job and a fee for a colleague to defend the victim. It is an endless cycle.

To sell a patch of land or make a will or sue a defaulter for redress the citizen is absolutely lost without a lawyer in his fee. And the reason for all this is that lawyers, dominating all the legislatures, have made it so.

Counselors Rhyne would have been ill-advised to go into particular on the Soviet System. The Soviet citizens are not thus prayed upon. True, the Soviet citizen has no access to courts except when dragged there in chains for confirmation of foregone conclusions. But Americans, too, of obstreperous political disposition, face foregone conclusions in many phases, worst of all in the Federal Courts which are the apparatus of a sordid political machine administered mainly by men chosen for their proven indifference to forgotten theories of virtue.

It were, certainly no worse for Americans if we, too, were excluded from our courts by a system, not inconceivable in the present condition of the Supreme Court, holding our rights to be too trivial for consideration. As a matter of fact we are excluded to a great extent by private arrangements cooked up by judges in collusion with Bar Associations.

The Supreme Court does this a thousand times a year in refusing to hear legitimate appeals from centers of its population.

outrage done in the courts below. Often this is done on the recommendations of feeless miscreants concealed in hidden rooms of the Edifice, and known as Law Clerks.

Lawyers nowadays strike an eye-rolling pose of patient resignation in discussions of the Supreme Court, thus obscuring the fact that they all are henchmen of the system and cowardly content to take the blood-money which this monstrous growth extorts from every branch of society. Individual lawyers do not attack the Supreme Court nor even the Federal District Courts simply because they have to go before such rascals to earn their living. They see no reason to deprive their families of new cars and the standard Thursday Smorgasbords at the Country Club.

The Doctor Says

It strikes me as the height of foolishness for people who need medical help to be so frightened of what the doctor may say that they refrain from obtaining personal advice on their difficulties. Nevertheless, I do receive a great many letters expressing this fear.

Q—I must admit that I am a no-good soldier. Doctors and dentists scare me to death and I am always afraid of what their verdict may be. My trouble is constipation and I wish you would tell me what to do about it as I have tried almost everything—D.

A—Whether you have an ailment such as chronic constipation, or a more serious disease, it makes poor sense to think that a physician can give good personal advice for a patient he has not seen. I can't for the life of me see why you should be scared.

Q—My trouble is that I have a million little broken veins around my instep. They look like a spiderweb. Would you give me your opinion as to whether these should be treated and how?—S.G.

A—These tiny broken vessels are quite common. It is my impression that many of them cannot be treated and that even if they are, the treatment is generally not worth the trouble, expense and risk of complications.

Probably in most cases they are best left alone unless there is involvement of some of the larger blood vessels which requires treatment on its own account.

Q—Why is it that psychosomatic people think they have the worst sickness? If there are 10 people in a room who have some trouble in the psychosomatic person will come up with "Oh, but mine is worse than anyone else's." How is one to deal with this kind of person?—W. R.

A—I don't know just what a "psychosomatic person" is. But it is certainly true that some people make more of their ailments than others. It is natural for human beings to like attention and if they can get it by talking about their ailments, operations, or illnesses they often do so.

However, this is frequently rather boring to those who have to listen, and anyone with either a real or imaginary illness may lose half his friends if he talks about himself too much.

World's highest inhabited town is Goktok, busy trading center in western Tibet, which is at 15,100 feet above sea level.

Hankering

By HENRY MCLEMORE

Why Not Standardize Clothing for Men? If I were a One-Worlder and would mingle, free and easy-like, then I'd start trying to do something toward the standardization of men's clothes.

The difference in the cut of them surely must be one of the major obstacles in the path of One-Worldism.

Even the Free World men can't get together on lapels, cuffs, length, and fullness of their apparel. And the variations make it impossible for a man to move about a country other than his own without standing out as a stranger, and an odd-looking one at that.

If he is wearing clothes, I mean — and nearly all countries insist that he does.

One of the favorite sayings of Europeans is that they can spot an American a block away, just by the clothes he is wearing. Certainly we Americans can say the same thing about a Frenchman, a German or an Italian.

I didn't fully realize what a marked difference there was in the tailoring of the various countries until I started taking my winter clothes out of mothballs the other day. Quite a few of the suits were bought in Europe last winter and the winter before, when I was living over there.

When I tried them on in front of a full-length mirror, I couldn't believe I had bought them. Not on a sane day, anyway. They resembled my American suits only in that they had sleeves in the coats and legs to the trousers.

Yet I had worn them all over Europe and didn't remember ever feeling conspicuous, or as if I were on my way to a tacky party. Just the opposite in fact. I remembered that I felt pretty classy on the other side of the water.

The first European suit I tried on was a German number that I had had made in Heidelberg by a tailor who was said to make the evening clothes for Herr Krupp. It was built to last, for one thing. No matter how much weight I put on in eating rich and heavy German food, there was plenty of room for expansion. The shoulders are as loose as a bulldog's skin, and the trousers were Hanseatic League, not Ivy, meaning a man

An Apology. Instead of a new car showing tomorrow, we will have an "Open House," because we have only one car. We will show this car, and when we can accumulate a variety of models of our beautiful new line of 1959 cars and trucks, we will have a Chevrolet new car and truck showing you will be proud to attend. Attend our Open House tomorrow and our complete showing later on. Culberson Chevrolet Inc.
