All Out Hunt Started For Jewish Temple Bombers

Lawmen Seek 'Underground'

By LARRY BOWMAN
United Press International

ATLANTA—UPI—City, state and federal agents, joined by special bomb experts, staged an all-out hunt today for a mysterious "Confederate underground" believed responsible for a wave of dynamite terrorism against Jewish institutions in the South.

The latest bombing in what some officers said followed a definite pattern blasted out a wall of a fashionable Jewish temple on Atlanta's famed Peachtree Road before dawn Sunday. President Eisenhower demanded "a full first-hand report" from the FBI. Protestant, Catholic and Jew leaders over the South expressed "shock and distress."

Shortly after the Atlanta blast, a rabbi in Miami received a "curt and abrupt" anonymous call that a synagogue would be bombed. Police put all available men on a standby watch at some synagogues in greater Miami. Police in Knoxville, Tenn., also reported they were guarding a Jewish temple against a threatened bombing.

No one was hurt in the explosion here. The blast, which police said came from between 30 and 50 sticks of dynamite, punched an 18-foot hole through a wall of the religious school area in the rear of the temple. Rabbi Jacob Rothschild said that although it left the temple without lights or water, services would not be interrupted.

"I confidently expect to have services there because I think it is important that we continue to use the temple for its spiritual purpose, particularly in the light of what has happened."

The explosion brought a swift and outraged reaction from church leaders of all faiths and from some political leaders.

Atlanta Mayor William A. Hartsfield, who immediately offered a $1,000 reward, called it "the payoff for the rabble-rousing in the South. Every political rabble-rouser is the godfather of every sneaking cross burner and dynamiter at work in the South today."

"General" Phones UPI
An anonymous caller who identified himself as "General Gordon of the Confederate underground" telephoned United Press International about the time of the explosion to say "we have just blown up a temple."

Although the FBI said it has been unable to establish the actual existence of such a group, the name has been used several times in the past. Rabbi Rothschild said he personally felt the bombing to be part of an established pattern and group.

The Atlanta blast was the seventh such incident this year in the South. A spokesman for the Anti-Defamation League of B'Nai B'rith said the organization suspected it to be "part of a master plan directed by a central intelligence which will continue unchecked until a conviction is made."

President Eisenhower called the latest bombing "deplorable" and ordered FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover to submit a "full, first-hand report" on it. White House sources said the President was "deeply concerned."

Religious leaders of all faiths in Atlanta and elsewhere in the South denounced the segregationist underground suspected of the dynamitings.

Authorities pressed an all-out investigation, aided by the FBI and experts on explosives sent here by the anti-bombing group. A number of persons already had been questioned.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People figured strongly in developments at other racial trouble spots.

At Little Rock, Arkansas, Atty. Gen. Bruce Bennett announced growing support of his proposal that steps be taken to curb NAACP activity. Bennett is sponsoring a plan to "neutralize" the Negro organization.

In Virginia, where nine schools have been closed by state law to participating in the drive which will kick off Wednesday. The United Fund must reach a goal of $64,000 for operation of the seven agencies, Dickerson stressed. The Red Cross, Boy and Girl Scouts, Salvation Army, Heart Fund, Milk Fund, and USO all derive their support from the United Fund.

Members of the agencies and others are active in the fund raising campaign.

Pioneer Returns Like A Meteor

By DARRELL GARWOOD
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—America's pioneer moon rocket apparently crashed like a meteor into the atmosphere over the south Pacific at midnight e.d.t. Sunday night after completing an unprecedented 43-hour exploration of outer space.

The heavily-instrumented rocket which soared more than a third of the distance to the moon to reach an altitude of 79,212 miles, sent back a constant stream of radio signals until 11:46 p. m. e.d.t. Sunday night.

The Air Force announced early today the pioneering space vehicle was assumed to have struck the atmosphere at a speed of nearly 25,000 miles per hour and to have been completely consumed by friction about 15 minutes after its last radio signal was received.

Although it failed to reach the intended "vicinity" of within 50,000 miles of the moon, the pioneer rocket blazed a trail into space that may well be the forerunner of true manned flight to the moon, the planets and even someday the distant stars.

Gen. O. R. Flanagan, vice commander of the Air Force Ballistic Missile Division, said "we have every confidence that we will probe further into space, eventually to Mars, Venus and possibly the sun."

President Eisenhower sent scientists who took part in the historic venture his "sincere congratulations on this splendid achievement." He said the flight had "truly pioneered in deep penetration into outer space."

"Already," he declared, "it is clear that it will yield knowledge of great benefit to mankind in adding to an understanding of the universe in which we live."

The Pioneer, by penetrating into space more than 30 times farther than the highest known previous flight, gave the United States a potent new achievement to stack up against Russia's admittedly enormous satellite accomplishments, and thus further recoup this country's weakened prestige as a world science leader.

Amnition For GOP
It also offered the Republicans some timely ammunition to counter Democratic campaign claims that the Eisenhower administration let this country fall behind Russia in space-scientific achievements.

During the final two hours of man's most ambitious attempt so far to explore the universe, the Air Force made repeated efforts to save the Pioneer by attempting to fire its final "retro-rocket" to push it into an orbit around the earth. The retro rocket had been intended to send the Pioneer into orbit around the moon.

But the Pioneer, its batteries chilled by unexpectedly low temperatures in space, failed to respond to radio command signals from the ground. The Air Force said no reports of observation of the rocket's fiery death had been received.

The Air Force's Hawaiian tracking station, which made the last known contact with the Pioneer, said its speed as it approached the earth was 34,425 feet per second—exactly the speed attained shortly after its launching at 4:42 a.m. e.d.t. Saturday from Cape Canaveral, Fla.

At the peak of its flight, almost floating in space, the Pioneer remained at almost the same altitude for two hours. Barely moving, having lost its speed to gravity, its logged altitude both at 4:47 and 6:47 a.m. e.d.t. Sunday was 79,120 miles with a maximum 92 miles higher achieved at some undetermined time in between.

(The Air Force had told reporters at a chaotic news conference Pioneer reached the top of its flight at 7:42 a.m. e.d.t. It said later this figure was wrong because of a mistake in calculation.)

While soaring majestically and reporting what scientists described as invaluable information on radiation, electric currents and temperatures in space, the Pioneer—(See Pioneer—Page 8)

45 DIE IN BIG SEA DISASTER

MANILA (UPI)—The Philippine navy today rushed two more ships to the central Cebu Channel, southern Philippines, where 45 persons died Sunday in the Philippines' biggest sea disaster in 14 years.

27 TEXANS FORFEIT LIVES ON HIGHWAY

United Press International
Violent deaths in Texas climbed to near holiday proportions over the weekend boosted by three traffic accidents that took nine lives within three hours Saturday and Sunday.

At least 27 persons were killed in traffic accidents over the weekend, far exceeding the normal fatality average, and five others were killed in miscellaneous accidents.

Four Chinese Nationalist Air Force officers were killed on U.S. 90 Sunday near Seguin when an automobile ran into them as they were repairing a flat tire. All the officers were majors stationed at Lackland Air Force Base, near San Antonio.

A three-car crash on U.S. 80 four miles east of Abilene killed three persons late Saturday night. They were George Gray Browne, 53, a prominent Abilene lawyer; Mrs. Clinie Steffens, 39, of Abilene, and Mrs. Charles Cason, 23, also of Abilene.

Two men were killed in a two-car crash on U.S. 77 just north of Hallettsville late Saturday. They were C. P. Rosson of Taft, Tex., and Stanislaw J. Janek of La Grange, Tex.

Two Waxahachie Negroes were killed late Sunday when their car apparently crashed into a pile of dirt at a high rate of speed on an unopened U.S. 77 bypass. The victims were J. W. Mason, 46, and Loyal Cook, 32. The accident occurred south of Sterrett, in Ellis county.

GROUND IS BROKEN

HOLY SOULS BUILDING

Ground Broken On Catholic Property

"You are called upon to make sacrifices to further the work of the church, not today and tomorrow but every day of your life," the Rev. Father Myles Moynihan told the throng assembled for the Holy Souls ground breaking Sunday afternoon.

The ceremony signalled the imminent construction of a new Catholic school, a combination church-auditorium, Sister's convent and priest's residence between N. Hobart and the Perryton Road. The four-building project will run in the neighborhood of $400,000.

Over 200 people saw the earth turned for the new buildings. Participants in the ceremony were the Rev. Father Edward J. Cashman, pastor; Father John Roche and Father Richard Lang, assistant pastors, Sister Latoria, principal of the Holy Souls School; and Father Clifton Corcoran from Groom. Father Andrew Quate, Groom, and dean of this area, was unable to attend the ground breaking ceremonies.

Father Otto Meyer, the immediate past pastor, was in a car parked on the Church site, having come out of Worley Hospital to witness the ceremony. Among the crowd was John Koutz, Pampa City manager. Following the ceremony Father Moynihan, now serving in St. Louis, Mo., said a few words on the significance of the construction. The movement for a new Church plant started during the six years that he was pastor here.

The Rev. Father said that parishioners would be rewarded in this life and the life to come for the material helps they are able to give for the advancement of God's work. He admonished them not to grow relaxed in the spirit in which they began the campaign.

"It is not for human beings or human glory but for the glory of Almighty God," he concluded.

TAIPEI (UPI)—The Communists, in an anti-American gesture regarded by newspapers here as a prelude to "political blackmail," promised today they will extend the uneasy truce in the Formosa Strait for two weeks.

Earlier, the Red radio had charged that two U. S. warships and two fighter planes "intruded" Sunday on Red China's territory.

Defense Secretary Neil H. McElroy, who arrived here a few hours before the extension was announced, visited President Chiang Kai-shek at the Defense Ministry today.

Military sources said the two men discussed the possible reduction of U. S. forces in the Formosa area in view of the apparent easing of tension.

AEC Blasts Off Biggest Series Test

ATOMIC TEST SITE, Nev. (UPI)—The Atomic Energy Commission today exploded the fifth and most powerful nuclear device in its current test series, a 10 kiloton blast dangling from a balloon 1,500 feet over Yucca flat.

Because of the height and size of the blast it was visible for several hundred miles over the western desert wastelands. Motorists were halted between nearby Las Vegas and Beatty, Nev., and advised not to look directly at the fireball.

The shot went off at 8:20 a.m. e.d.t.

The experiment with a force of 10,000 tons of TNT was the half-way point in the AEC's weapons development effort. It originally was scheduled to go Sunday but "technical difficulties" caused a postponement.

The shot, code-named "Lea," was moved up an hour because of an Air Force gunnery contest at Nellis Air Force Base. Its flash in the pre-dawn sky failed to reach the ground but sent a sharp shock wave over observers 10 miles from ground zero.

It was clearly visible for a brief second in Los Angeles, 300 miles southwest of the detonation. And it was seen through an early morning overcast in San Francisco, 50 miles northwest of the site.

City Commission Announces Agenda

An ordinance that would raise Pampa telephone rates about 20 percent will get a second reading at tomorrow morning's city commission meeting. City manager John Koutz said today.

The ordinance, No. 509, would hike residential rates from $4.25 to $5 per month, and business rates from $9 to $10.75. The ordinance needs three readings to pass.

In other business the commission will approve estimates to four business firms: the Ray Boswell Co., Pampa, a street construction contract; Arey Pipe and Construction Co., Pampa, for water supply lines contract No. 168; Stockton Construction Co., Amarillo, water system improvement contract No. 358; and Roberts, Merriman, Bowden and Isbell, consulting engineers, Pampa, for engineering services on water system improvements.

United Fund Adds Agency; Big Drive Opens Wednesday

The Pampa-Lefors United Fund board has voted this year to take in a new agency. The new addition is the Gray County Welfare Index. Though this agency is new as a member of the United Fund, its workers have been serving Gray County for a number of years.

Sam Begert, president of the agency, says its purpose is to develop and carry out a comprehensive program to conclusively assist the physical, mental and socially underprivileged of this area.

The membership, according to Begert, is composed of members of organizations who are primarily interested in health and welfare of this area—namely those agencies of the United Fund.

Clyde Dickerson, general drive chairman, says the Welfare Index has proved to be an organization well qualified to participate in the United Fund appropriations since it acts as a much needed clearing house for all the agencies.

"The money obtained by the Welfare Index is used mainly for the rent costs of a building used to store clothing, used furniture and other household equipment which is available to those needing such items during the year," Dickerson said.

"It also becomes necessary for the Index at times to supply the needy with food and other items when there is no immediate source available. Any welfare or social agency may call on the Index at any time for assistance when the agency itself does not have the necessities available at the time needed.

"The Index is one more means whereby the United Fund dollar is stretched to the maximum. It serves to eliminate duplicated efforts and it makes sure each agency has a place to turn when a need exists which seems impossible to serve," Dickerson said.

This and other agencies will be participating in the drive which will kick off Wednesday. The United Fund must reach a goal of $64,000 for operation of the seven agencies, Dickerson stressed. The Red Cross, Boy and Girl Scouts, Salvation Army, Heart Fund, Milk Fund, and USO all derive their support from the United Fund.

American Factory Workers Top Paid

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The aristocrats among the citizens of all countries who labor in the great factories of industry are the American hands who are drawing down a bit more than $17 a day for a five-day week.

Or, are these American factory workers really the best paid, best off among the world's factory hands? It is likely that they are. It also is possible, however, that these highly paid mid-century workers are not so well off as their daily pay indicates.

It is their misfortune and the misfortune of all other Americans gainfully employed that the relatively high earnings which they enjoy are paid in dollars which are somewhat phony. These are not phony dollars in the sense that the U.S. Secret Service would suspect them of being run off an illicit money press. They are much worse than counterfeit money in at least one respect.

Without Protection

That respect is the American citizen who must accept his pay in these legally phony dollars without protection against the injustice of it all. If these were counterfeit dollars, the factory hand could and would spurn them, demanding that his pay be in legal tender at full value. The U.S. government would back up the factory hand in that demand and, further, move fast and hard to cut off the supply of counterfeit by destroying its source and by jailing its maker.

No such threat of punishment, menacing the American politicians, the political pressure groups, the big spenders and such who large are responsible for the fact that the $17-per-day pocketed by the average factory hand is not $17-per-day at all but a mere fraction of that comfortable sum. The politicians of both parties are about equally responsible for this situation, and for cause:

Either they will not or they cannot change the prevailing trend toward bigger and bigger government, more and more spending, greater and greater deficits and higher and higher taxes. The end result of this trend, of course, is national disaster brought on by what is called currency inflation. This national disaster would destroy the American way of life.

Borrowed For Debts

The government and other debtors would get some good of it. The government, for example, has been borrowing money from the citizens over a period of nearly 30 years to pay its debts. For purposes of comparison, let us say that the dollars the government borrowed in 1939—and the dollars paid to factory hands in that year—were worth 100 cents.

A 1939 debt incurred in terms of 100-cent dollars could be paid off today with dollars relatively worth a bit less than 50 cents. The 1939 factory hand who was paid, say, $10 a day in 100 cent dollars gets $17 a day now. But his 17 dollars are 50-cent dollars, so the factory worker's real daily wage today in terms of purchasing power is about $8.50.

That is what is happening to the purchasing power of the U.S. dollar which once upon a time was the symbol of stable value. No more!

Things could be worse, however, and they are. Tax Foundation, Inc., calculated last spring that direct and hidden taxes now combine to take about one-third of the income of the average American

Clean-Up Campaign Underway

The City Improvement Club, with the help and cooperation of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, is sponsoring an overall Keep Clean Contest for residents of the colored section. First and second place prizes will be awarded to the persons with the neatest yards, according to Mrs. Samuel Motley, president.

The contest begins immediately and will run until Aug. 1, 1959, when judges furnished by the Pampa Chamber of Commerce will award first and second place plaques.

Instructions are to keep all paper, rags, bottles and cans picked up and cleared away. Weeds must be cut and raked, the lawns mowed regularly and kept in order at all times.

"We are hoping to make this an annual affair and the success of the contest will depend on the help and cooperation that we receive from all citizens," both children and adults," commented Mrs. Motley.

"If everyone in my city was just like me, what kind of city would my city be?" has been chosen as the daily thought of the campaign.

The responsibility for these burdensome taxes, like that for currency inflation, belongs to the politicians of both parties and to the big time spenders who egg them on.

Doctors Hear Address By Woman Doc

UPI Science Editor

CHICAGO (UPI)—Displaying feminine trills, feminine in every gesture and attitude, a woman surgeon told her male colleagues today about a technically beautiful operation she has worked out for the insufficient heart.

Dr. Frances E. Knock, who is a two-way doctor—a doctor of both medicine and in chemistry—wears her long hair gathered on the back of her neck. She toned down her femininity not one whit while addressing the nation's top surgeons who are meeting here in the 44th annual clinical congress of the American College of surgeons.

Her operation is designed to help the heart whose blood supply is either insufficient or out of balance or both.

To understand her operation, you have to become acquainted with the omentum, which is a kind of extra fold of the peritoneum, the membrane lining the abdominal cavity. It's an apron worn inside the body and a surgeon going for an appendix or a gall bladder has to cut through it.

Whether the body needs it or not is a moot question. But it is richly supplied with blood vessels and blood. Dr. Knock's operation is to cut it into strips, draw those strips through a slit she cut in the division between the chest and the abdominal cavities, and then attach the strips to the left and right ventricles of the heart.

In this way the omentum is made to turn its blood over to the heart in short order, which is wonderful because not enough blood is being brought to the heart through normal channels.

Eggs, Pie Would Make Ike Happy

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Backstairs at the White House:

What would President Eisenhower like to have for his 68th birthday tomorrow? Not what you'd think. He doesn't need golf clubs, automobiles, wrist watches or fishing tackle. But he certainly could do with some fried eggs or possibly a Boston cream pie.

Alas, these simple gifts for a man who has two of everything, are as far beyond his reach as a new Thunderbird for the average teenager.

From all outward indications, the President has well recovered from his 1955 heart attack, but he is reminded of that frightening period every time he sits down to a meal.

To keep his weight down, fried and rich foods are completely out. His doctor, Maj. Gen. Howard McC. Snyder, doesn't mind if his famous patient goes on an occasional dietary "binge."

Snyder, however, knows as does any physician, that most patients who must stay away from certain types of foods are generally happier if they stay completely away, and "cheat" on their diets occasionally by eating larger amounts of accepted foods.

close friends and frequent companions. During the past week end with the chief executive at Camp David in the Maryland mountains, Jones played so many long hours of bridge that he developed what seemed to be the symptoms of a real back ailment.

He confided at the Gettysburg Country Club that because of the circumstances, he could hardly blame his pain on the long afternoon and evening sessions at the card table.

This could be the dilemma of any presidential guest. One simply does not quit any form of joint activity with a president until the chief executive, himself, calls it quits. This goes for leaving the table, leaving a party.

Therefore, Jones could do nothing more than murmur politely about his own posture in the chair, but say no more about the length of the bridge game.

And the next day on the golf course, Jones worked out his back soreness, but faced still another hazard.

"And now," he said as he left the Gettysburg course with the President's party, "I'll have the pleasure of hearing George Allen complain about his golf game all the way back to Camp David."

W. Alton Jones of New York, and the portly head man of Cities Service, is one of the President's

DEAR ABBY...

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Some relatives of my husband just came back from Europe where they took 6500 feet of film and 200 colored slides. They invited all their relatives and friends over, locked the door and made us sit there and watch the whole boring thing. You couldn't even sleep through it because they took turns talking about every picture. It was past midnight when they finished (they started at 7:00 p.m.) and then they insisted we stay for coffee, which took another hour. These relatives are supposed to be high society. Is this your idea of a party or am I crazy?

DEAR ABBY: Ever since my best friend died 4 years ago I have been begging his widow to marry me. She says she respects me but she doesn't love me. I worship this woman and could give her and her children a fine home and all the material things she could want. She says I should find a woman who can return my love. I would be satisfied with just her respect and I am sure if she would give me a chance she would learn to love me. How can I change her mind?

STILL HOPEFUL Dear Still: You could change her mind but you can't change her heart. Her advice to you was sound. Take it.

Confidential to Lee Ann: Tell your paratrooper to "go jump" For a personal reply, write to ABBY in care of this paper. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

If you want a collection of Abby's best letters and answers in one book, ask your bookseller to get "DEAR ABBY" for you.

Dear John: The woman had been put in the hospital by her husband many times, and had almost given him a hundred chances. Sometimes, "one more chance" if one too many. Please read on.

DEAR ABBY: God bless you for advising that woman whose husband beat her so many times to move out. About fifteen years ago a neighbor of ours was told by her clergyman to give her husband another chance after he beat her so bad she was on crutches. One night, for no reason at all, this man stabbed their six-year-old baby to death with a butcher knife while she slept in his bed. When the wife struggled to save her baby, he killed her, too. He was adjudged insane and is now in a mental institution, but it cost the lives of two innocent people. I agree with you, Abby. If a man raises a hand against a woman he is not fit to live with.

DEAR ABBY: I spent my vacation at a summer resort. I was interested in learning how to ride horseback, so I got a guide to take me out. After he took me up a mountain trail away from all human beings, he hugged me and suggested I get off my horse for a while. What should I have done, not knowing him very well?

Dear Doubtful: When you're with a two-legged wolf, you're safer on a four-legged horse.

RUTH MILLETT

You can be sure that your husband will soon tire of telling you he loves you if you are always asking him if he does. The man you're married to may sooner or later justify your suspicions if you don't trust him out of your sight. Buying your husband a gift will become a dreaded chore if you make a practice of exchanging the gifts your husband brings you or wondering out loud why he didn't buy something you really needed. Your husband will resent your job if you are forever talking about it or forever saying "my money."

If you side with your child every time your husband tries to discipline him you'll soon have the job of child-rearing all to yourself. Your husband will soon learn to "tune you out" whenever he wants a little peace and quiet if you insist on talking all the time. The compliments other women pay your husband will be twice as flattering if you are stingy with yours. If you keep talking about the men you might have married your husband will have moments of wishing you had married one of them. If you criticize the way your husband does a job when he is trying to be helpful around the house you won't get much help in the future. If you honestly and truly think you have the nicest husband in the world and let him know it he'll do his darndest not to disappoint you.

Registered Adult Girl Scouts Express Approval To Study Green Umbrella Plan

Opening with unison singing of Girl Scout songs, Mrs. John Holt Jr., president of the Top O' Texas Girl Scout council, welcomed registered adult scouts to the council banquet held Thursday evening in the Palm Room of the City Hall. Seated at the speaker's table were Mrs. Tony Smith Sr., camp committee chairman; Mrs. L. B. Paden, Woodrow Wilson-Baker neighborhood chairman; Mrs. E. L. Henderson, council secretary; Mrs. N. G. Kadingo, Girl Scout executive director; Miss Gay Sheppard, regional director of Dallas, Mrs. Holt, Mrs. J. W. Dugan, Public Relations chairman, Mrs. Bob Gordon, Highland neighborhood chairman; Mrs. Joe Cunningham, Miami neighborhood, and Mrs. K. R. Dodd, training chairman. Dick Zimmerman, council finance chairman, outlined the 1958-59 budget, which was approved for $15,866.15. The balloting committee, composed of Mmes. F. M. Walls, Charles Lyons, and John Ramsey, after tallying ballots reported the following officers had been elected by the group: Mrs. Bob Andis, vice president; Mr. M. H. Taylor, vice president; Mmes. W. E. Hinton, second vice president; Forbus Blake-more, secretary; Mr. William H. Kelly, employed personnel; Mrs. Jack P. Foster, organization; Mrs. K. R. Dodd, training chairman. To serve on the membership-nominating committee for next year are Mmes. Julian Key and E. A. Myatt. Miss Sheppard, introduced by Mrs. Holt as regional counselor for District 9, which area covers Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico, presented a backdrop for the proposed council coverage plan, which is under consideration by the local council. "The proposed coverage," Miss Sheppard said, "is offered to you tonight only for the purpose of your approval to enter into a study period. The extended coverage does not take away anything that the TOT council already has, but rather strengthens and enriches council coverage. It will enable every girl in the council area, who wants to be a Girl Scout to have the opportunity." The proposed Green Umbrella plan will include nine Texas counties, Hutchinson, Roberts, Hemphill, Carson, Gray, Wheeler, Armstrong, Donnelly, Collingsworth, the city of Higgins in Lipscomb County, and Ellis County, Okla. Following a film, which illustrated the Green Umbrella operation and a question and answer period participated in by members and scout officials, the group voted approval of the executive council's

Editor Now Awake

The Constitution Press is a tiny publication gotten out at irregular intervals by Philip Lee Eubank of San Antonio. Mr. Eubank has been in the forefront of those American patriots who have been doing their valiant best to offset the mad rush of our times toward a socialist-inspired oligarchy.

Up until now, Mr. Eubank's utterances have been of a pattern with scores of other well-intentioned efforts of similar persuasion. Now, in edition number 26, Mr. Eubank has come alive.

He says, as he presents his regular letter to his readers: "Constitution Press No. 26 should have been out long before now, but there is a reason. Have had to recover from the effects of changing from a diet of fiction to facts."

"The truth finally soaked in that 'intent' of the Constitution is only regalistic baloney. It has fooled most people from the beginning and was intended 'to do so.'"

We must applaud this crusading editor for permitting the facts to speak in and then for having the courage to speak up about them. Here is something more from his current publication:

"Among many unsound notions today are: The so-called U. S. Constitution was written entirely by men of good intent; that it continues in effect merely by assuming it to be; and that big governments will stay within the bounds prescribed for them without a neutral umpire with authority to keep them in line."

"A Senator King said at the time the Constitution was written: 'The business is now complete. We need not care for opposition. The constitution of the United States IMPLIED EVERYTHING. The claim of any of the States to any of the powers exercised by the general government will be treated with contempt.'"

"The Supreme Court is with the general government to decide in everything, for the States have neglected to secure any umpire or mode of decision in case of difference between them. Nor is there a Declaration of Independence."

Are You A Casper

In the August Ladies' Home Journal, Dorothy Thompson has a dandy article entitled "The New Mr. Caspar Milquetoast." If you haven't read it and can still get a copy, we'd like to recommend it.

She reminds us that the character of Caspar Milquetoast was invented by a cartoonist named Webster. It was his purpose to depict a sort of moral weakling, lacking totally the will to make a decision of his own. Caspar did not conquer difficulties. He evaded them. In fact, if you are familiar with the comic strip at all, you know that Caspar evaded difficulties with such diligence that he evaded difficulties which were not difficulties.

"The Caspar person is the sort of American too many of us are becoming," says Miss Thompson, and how right she is.

"I should like to suggest that he is becoming the American prototype, the timid soul who will accept anything rather than make trouble."

She recites her own experiences as a journalist and reveals that at one time, when a number of Eastern European countries were off-limits to reporters she "forged myself a diplomatic passport, with the aid of a seal from a 'Gold Seal' coffee can sent me by my folks when coffee was scarce, and a red hair ribbon. It got me everywhere."

Nor did she have any qualms about doing it, either. "We regarded all official restrictions on our freedom of movement within the areas to which we were assigned as gross infringements on the freedom of the press to learn what was going on, and had no bad conscience at all about circumventing or defying them."

Contrast this attitude, if you will, with the current spineless vacuity of so many modern reporters who sit in the anteroom of the mayor's office waiting for crumbs of news to roll off his desk and are quite happy and subservient about the "official releases" vouchsafed to them after they have copied their heads for an hour. Further, those releases, without correction, and without removing the self-serving slant which can be found in most of them, will ultimately be published, too.

She recalls H. L. Mencklen and some of his colorful prose in denouncing hypocrisy, pretentiousness, bluster and brag. He was no Caspar. It took nerve to refer to President Harding's speeches as "a string of wet sponges," and to Wilson's dedication to a pro-British sentiment as "Anglo-maniacal."

She says: "I have tried to imagine Mencken on one of the modern 'panel' discussions that pass for debate, with the moderator moderating out every forthright opinion, lest it might dispense an ethnic minority, a religious group, organized labor, organized capital, the internationalists, the nationalists (if any), the United Nations, the Anglophiles, the Zionists, the educationists, and end in robust disagreement instead of the conclusion that there's much to be said on both sides and that basically we are all together in agreement — all God knows what."

"Mind and character, as we have remarked before, are individual characteristics. But when masses, and the individuals who manipulate them for their own interests, rule, the individual is eclipsed; his discussions are private; like Caspar Milquetoast, he has as his motto, 'Don't stick your neck out.'"

There is certainly much of merit in Miss Thompson's argument, and while we concede that Caspar and his compatriots are much in the ascendency today we are constrained to ask, why? Why is it that so many people simply will not get themselves into an argument in which they might have to express a fixed opinion?

To our mind, the answer is fear. People today are afraid of the free speech which we still have in a major amount, thank goodness. But why are they afraid?

There are only two possible answers to that question. The one is that they fear reprisal of some sort. They fancy that if they disagree with their government or some law enforcement officer, or some person they know, that certain actions will be taken against them. Almost endless are the letters we receive, telling us of some wrong, but ending with, "Please, Mr. Editor, don't use my name."

The second, and perhaps an even more compelling reason, is ignorance. Today, there are literally millions of us who know so little about what is going on about us that we hesitate to speak up positively lest we reveal how little we do know. It's a sorry state of affairs.

What we could remind ourselves is that no nation of Caspar Milquetoasts ever long survived. Caspar is the slave to conformity. He ends being the slave of any dictator who happens to come along.

City Planning Frightening

When one reads Dan Smoot's Report on how the Supreme Court has given the states, and the local cities, power to use the right of eminent domain to take citizens' property in a territory and tear down the buildings and then sell the land to private concerns at a great loss in order to revamp the city to suit the planners, one should be frightened as to how rapidly we are changing the American way of life to a collectivist form of government.

Smoot relates how the National Housing Act of 1949 had been revamped and revamped to enlarge the authority of the planners. The latest and most harmful change in the law is known as Urban Renewal. Smoot reports:

"In November, 1954, the Supreme Court in an Urban Renewal case, said that Congress and state legislatures can do anything they like to the private property of private citizens as long as they are doing it for public good."

"Under the old slum clearance provisions of the National Housing Act, a community could participate by using its normal police powers — its right of eminent domain — to condemn and take over certain properties that were sub-standard, unsanitary, and harmful to public health."

"But Urban Renewal is not slum clearance. It may — usually does — involve a certain amount of slum clearance; but, primarily, Urban Renewal is city planning by the city government, with the advice (and control) and financial help of the federal government. The city government planners decide that a whole area of a city should be redesigned — everything in the area should be rebuilt, or torn down and replaced, with something that will fit in with the city planners' long-range scheme for the whole city."

"If a citizen owns a home or piece of business property that complies with all laws and standards of health, sanitation, and use, how can a city force him to sell his home or property to some other citizen or real-estate promoter who promises to put up something that the city planners will like better than they like the citizen's home or business?"

"In November, 1953, three judges of the Federal District Court in the District of Columbia held the Act legal but tried to narrow its application to slum clearance projects but the administrators of planning didn't like any limitation so they carried it to the Supreme Court, where Justice William O. Douglas delivered the opinion of the Supreme Court, saying:

"The power of Congress over the District of Columbia includes all the legislative powers which a state may exercise over its affairs and which, in other words, we deal, in other words, with that traditionally has been known as the police power."

"Public safety, public health, morality, peace and quiet, law and order — these are some of the more conspicuous examples of the traditional application of the police power to municipal affairs. Yet they merely illustrate the scope of the power and do not delimit it."

"The concept of the 'public welfare' is broad and inclusive. The values it represents are spiritual as well as physical, aesthetic as well as monetary. It is within the power of the legislature to determine that the community should be beautiful as well as healthy, spacious as well as clean, well-balanced as well as carefully patrolled."

"If those who govern the District of Columbia decide that the Nation's capital should be beautiful as well as sanitary, there is nothing in the Fifth Amendment that stands in the way."

"Once the object is within the authority of Congress, the means by which it will be attained is also for Congress to determine. Appellants' argument that this makes the project unconstitutional for the one-year suspension plan, be switched to the foreign ministers level."

"That scheme is attributed to them as stalling strategy. FALLOUT — Intelligence reports indicate Russia is now test-firing from two to four inter-continental ballistic missiles a month. These significant 'shots' are taking place east of Rostov and south of Stalingrad."

"For experimenting in the utilization of nuclear weapons for peaceful purposes, such as creating new harbors or improving old ones and making oil and other natural resources more accessible, Atomic Commission experts are recommending a government-owned tundra area between Cape Sepings and Cape Thompson in the Arctic Circle. The Commission's report cites the fact there are known coal and other mineral deposits there, and possibly oil."

"The Navy strongly favors this experiment, as it wants to establish a big nuclear submarine base in Alaska."

"LONG IMMERSION — The nuclear-powered SEAWOLF had only a five-day supply of oxygen left when it finally surfaced after setting a new all-time record of 80 days of submerged cruising. During this extraordinary feat, a new-type candle was successfully tested. This candle is a remarkable development, as it gives off more oxygen than it consumes."

Doctors are particularly scrutinizing the livers of SEAWOLF crewmen to make certain they were not impaired by chemicals during the protracted submersion."

"TELLING 'EM OFF — Adlai Stevenson had a sharp personal clash with former French Premier Mendes-France shortly before returning to the U.S. This backstage incident occurred in Paris, after the one-time Democratic presidential candidate had given newsmen a statement approving the new constitution proposed by General de Gaulle. No sooner had this announcement appeared in the papers than Mendes-France telephoned Stevenson."

"This is a great disappointment," began Mendes-France. "As an old friend, I am unable to understand how you could do this. It isn't like you."

"I don't know why not," retorted Stevenson. "I feel very strongly that this constitution is the only course left for France. Of course, it's far from perfect, but it's the best alternative available to avert what would clearly be far worse."

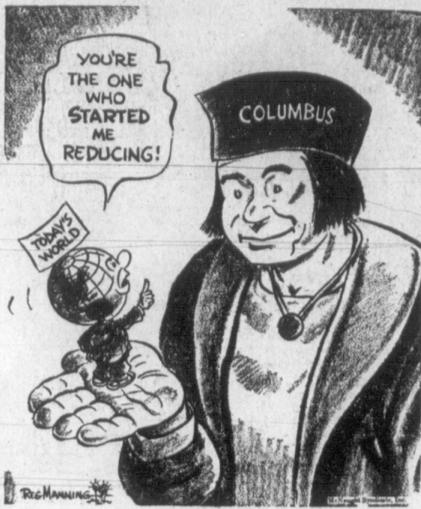

"What I deem particularly outrageous," thundered Mendes-France, "is that you should have issued such a statement. What right have you to do that? If I had meddled in the politics of your country when I was there, I would have been run out of it."

"Not by me," said Stevenson. "I'm terribly sorry you feel so disturbed about this, but assuredly you don't deny me the right to express my opinion, even in your country."

"Your public comments about this matter are indefensible," hotly insisted Mendes-France. "I cannot condone them. They are inexcusable."

"And I don't propose to listen to such intemperate talk further," snapped Stevenson, hanging up. Mendes-France argued a furious battle, both within his political party and at large, against de Gaulle and the new constitution. The former Premier was trounced in both fights. A majority of his party sided with de Gaulle, and the constitution was overwhelmingly approved.

Now Look At Me!

Robert Allen Reports:

New Nuclear Tests Proves Red Phoniness

WASHINGTON — Russia's new series of nuclear tests proves conclusively the utter phoniness of its fanfare suspension of the arms race last March.

The period that has elapsed between that world-touted announcement and the latest explosions is exactly the amount of time required to complete the immense preparations for a schedule of nuclear weapons experiments.

It takes the U.S. around six months to do that; both at Eniwetok, in the South Pacific, and at the Nevada proving ground. The Russians need even more time, particularly at their remote testing-center in the frozen Arctic, where the current firings are taking place.

Since the Kremlin's vaunted halting of nuclear explosions last March and their resumption last week is seven months!

A detailed report by the Central Intelligence Agency charges flatly there now can be no question that the Reds' avowed shelving of nuclear tests was spurious and wholly a propaganda maneuver. They never really intended to end them permanently.

Further publishable evidence, of that cited by CIA in the following: From June through September, a number of important Soviet nuclear scientists were mysteriously absent from their homes and laboratories. Visiting U.S. and British scientists, who sought to get in touch with them in response to previous invitations, were unable to do so. Only explanation offered was that the Russian scientists were "away."

It is now obvious they were in the Arctic preparing for the new round of tests.

Authoritative Iron Curtain sources say Russian military chiefs are strongly against both a banning nuclear weapons tests and permitting foreign inspection teams to travel about the Soviet to enforce such an agreement.

This powerful Red Army opposition is credited with being directly responsible for the Kremlin's sudden proposal that the scheduled conference in Geneva this month, on the one-year suspension plan, be switched to the foreign ministers level.

That scheme is attributed to them as stalling strategy. FALLOUT — Intelligence reports indicate Russia is now test-firing from two to four inter-continental ballistic missiles a month. These significant "shots" are taking place east of Rostov and south of Stalingrad."

"I don't know why not," retorted Stevenson. "I feel very strongly that this constitution is the only course left for France. Of course, it's far from perfect, but it's the best alternative available to avert what would clearly be far worse."

"What I deem particularly outrageous," thundered Mendes-France, "is that you should have issued such a statement. What right have you to do that? If I had meddled in the politics of your country when I was there, I would have been run out of it."

"Not by me," said Stevenson. "I'm terribly sorry you feel so disturbed about this, but assuredly you don't deny me the right to express my opinion, even in your country."

"Your public comments about this matter are indefensible," hotly insisted Mendes-France. "I cannot condone them. They are inexcusable."

"And I don't propose to listen to such intemperate talk further," snapped Stevenson, hanging up. Mendes-France argued a furious battle, both within his political party and at large, against de Gaulle and the new constitution. The former Premier was trounced in both fights. A majority of his party sided with de Gaulle, and the constitution was overwhelmingly approved.

Looking Sideways

By Whitney Bolton

NEW YORK — CUFF NOTES: This reporter is not going to cury indignation by implying that the manufacturers of electric light bulbs use the "planned obsolescence" method in making these essential objects. Nor will he say that the bulbs are not so good and durable as they might be. But it is a fact that at least one New York department store offers for sale light bulbs guaranteed on an replacement basis to last five years in ordinary usage, or about 3 times as long as the usual bulb. In other words, if your bulb burns out in less than five years they will give you a new bulb of the same wattage. . . . 'bought you'd like to know."

A jocular space scientist known to this column, a fellow with cliff-like brow, awesome brains, daring genuity and a slide rule, is not above finding humor in his science. . . . He sat around in the right telling rocket jokes, among which was the one about the 'laboratory' mouse. . . . One dawn a gloved hand reached into the cage he mouse shared with 20 other test mice and extracted the little fellow, popping him into a small portable cage. . . . The cage was taken out onto the launching pad and installed in the nose cone of a gigantic rocket. In a few moments it fired and soared 2,000 miles into space, then slowly came tumbling back, re-entered the atmosphere safely, landed and was recovered. The little mouse was removed, sound and unharmed, and put back into the laboratory cage. . . . "How was it?" cried his friends. . . . "Okay, nothing special," he said. . . . "Now, that's no answer," he cried. . . . "Actually, how WAS it?" . . . "Well," said the little mouse. "Put it this way: it's better than cancer."

This same high-minded friend takes a dim, dim view of man's possible jaunts to Mars and other planets in the foreseeable future. . . . "Nature is not without barriers," he said. . . . "That deadly belt of radiation starting at 600 miles up, for one, you can't just brush that aside like a glass door."

Another professional friend is in the playwrighting business and is old-fashioned as well. . . . Whether he has a bit bringing him in $3,000 a week in royalties or nothing at all on the moment, he gives his wife $75 a week to fodder and clean the house, a sum calculated to cover food and laundry. . . . For months he has been convinced that she was stashing away from $5 to $9 a week out of this sum and it has been driving him crazy trying to find the word on such occasions as she was out of the house and he could do some ferreting. . . . Finally, he decided to use psychology and once her to reveal the hiding place. . . . She came home the other evening at sun-down and found him reading the afternoon paper. . . . "Hi," she said. . . . He glanced up at her with a knowing leer and suggested nastily: "Heh, heh, heh."

"What exactly does that mean?" she demanded. . . . "Heh, heh, heh," he laughed again. . . . "You FOUND it!" she cried suddenly and dashed to the guest closet where she pulled out her winter storm boots and dug down in them, coming up with dozens of small bills and coins. . . . "Now I know," he said placidly.

To those ladies in, respectively, Worcester, Mass., Fort Smith, Ark., and Richmond, Va.: Her name is Nancy Coleman. . . . Now you know. . . . Thanks for asking. . . . To Mrs. Mary E. Goebel, of Fort Smith, additional thanks for your opinion. . . . A pair of artful fellows I know named Cy Feuer and Ernie Martin who have offered such resounding musical comedy hits as "Guys and Dolls," "Sik Stockings" and other winners, are back in town after holding up in a Los Angeles mansion and their next will be a dare: they are going to do "Whoopee," a musical comedy about the Cree Indians. . . . There has never been a successful musical about Indians," I said. . . . "There never had been a successful musical about Presidents and — or the United States Supreme Court, either," said Cy, "but 'Of Thee I Sing' was. We hope this will be the 'Of Thee I Sing' of the Creees."

The next step obviously was to consult Richard Maney, a Montana-born youth of Irish blood who was brought up knee-deep in Creees. . . . "My memory is of a charming, footless, bootless people who seem to think life consisted of getting pie-eyed on either vanilla extract or lemon extract, whichever was handiest," said Maney. "I used to astonish people by saying I spoke only Cree and no English until I was nine years old. I said it so often I have come almost to believe it. It may have been true. But they ought to make a pleasant musical show."

Lorenzo Antonio Enrico de Huespedes y Garcia, a broker from Mexico City, was in town recently, and we passed an evening in talk about both countries. . . . He mentioned the way his country is awakening and getting things done. . . . "The recent destroying rains," he said, "washed out whole areas of the two main motor roads from the border to Mexico City. Twenty-five years ago we would have restored them in two years. They are now restored — in less than two weeks."

Fair Enough

Many Catholics Knock Right-to-Work Laws

by WESTBROOK PEGLER

Some Catholic priests oppose right-to-work laws and candidates who advocate them in the current campaigns on the ground that such laws are "immoral." This opposition is an important factor in California where Senator Knowland, a Republican, is campaigning for governor against compulsory union membership. His Democratic opponent, Pat Brown, is a Catholic and an emphatic pro-union man.

The Pope, himself, in his Christmas message of 1952 dwelt upon the right to work and the impersonalization of man by organizations that aggregate him and compel him to lend himself to massive conduct against his individual Christian conscience. One noted Catholic writer pointed out that a union teaching contraception was committing its Catholic members to an offense against their religion.

The Pope was so well aware of his subject and considered it to be so important that he dealt with it under a subhead, "Union Abuses," in part as follows: "Access to employment or places of labor is made to depend on registration in certain parties, or in organizations which deal with the distribution of employment. Such discrimination is indicative of an inexact concept of the proper function of labor unions and their proper purpose, which is the protection of the interests of the salaried worker within modern society, which is becoming more and more anonymous and collectivized."

"It is not (the essential purpose of unions) to protect the individual against collective irresponsibility of anonymous proprietors? Is it not to represent the person of the worker against those who are inclined to consider him merely a productive agent with a certain price value?"

"How, therefore, can it be considered normal that the protection of the personal rights of the worker be placed more and more in the hands of an anonymous group, working through the agency of immense organizations which are of their nature monopolies? The worker thus wronged in the exercise of his personal rights will surely find painful the oppression of his liberty and of his conscience, caught as he is in the wheels of a gigantic social machine."

Under the heading, "The Demon of Organization," the message said: "Today there is no question of hypotheses and predictions, for this sad reality is already with us: Wherever the Demon of Organization invades and tyrannizes a man's spirit, there are at once revealed the signs of a false and abnormal orientation of society."

Here may be recognized the origin and source of that phenomenon which is submerging modern man under its tide of anguish: His "depersonalization." In large measure, his identity and name have been taken from him; in many of the more important activities of his life he has been reduced to a mere material object of society, while society in itself has been transformed into an impersonal system and into a cold organization of force."

The impersonality of membership in many of the massive unions in the United States will scarcely be denied even by clerics who stubbornly insist that there is a remedy in personal activity. Many incidents, long before the hearings of the McClellan Committee, revealed to the public and painfully brought home to individual workers and their families the grim truth that a man who tried to oppose the Demon of Organization put his head on the block.

It has been a sad fact also that priests who profess to be and probably are most familiar with the realities of unionism have not fought well against such evils.

The Rev. John E. Coogan, of Detroit University, a Jesuit, wrote on this important point: "There are many friends of the laboring man who feel that the priest-spokesmen for the union shop have left unspoken many of the things that demanded saying in explanation of its present outlawing by 18 states of the union. For such laws, but their reference to such provocations is commonly so glancing and so side-long that it might almost as well have been omitted altogether. No matter what the labor issue, such champions of the union shop as a rule find that the union is substantially in the right. Such championing often seems with little regard for the rights of the individual workman and of the 18 outlawing states."

This was published in an essay in the American Ecclesiastical Review for December, 1955.

Referring to one pro-union priest who had declared that "All priests willing to take a public stand have condemned right to work laws," Father Coogan in a rejoinder wrote, "The number of those priest-spokesmen, however, has not seemed excessive. And they have made no claim that through themselves the mind of our 32 million Catholics, headed by more than 200 bishops — has spoken."

Several years ago there was a great deal of interest in the possibility that vitamin B-12 might stimulate growth. It was actually tried on a number of children who had not grown normally and some of them appeared to speed up.

However, so far as I am aware, it is not now thought that vitamin B-12 plays any important part in this respect and is not recommended for such purposes.

Actually, it appears that the deficiency of vitamin B-12 rarely exists unless there is some associated trouble with the stomach or digestive tract elsewhere. This is probably because such disturbances interfere with absorption of the vitamin.

However, large quantities of vitamin B-12 taken by mouth will usually result in enough absorption and it is probably in some such manner that vitamin B-12 works favorably in pernicious anemia.

This vitamin is unusual in another respect. It contains a metal known as cobalt which is found almost exclusively in animal foods. It can be obtained commercially from the growth of certain bacteria. Cud-chewing animals obtain the vitamin from bacteria which have been constantly in the "fore" stomach.

Now vitamin B-12 (which thanks to our scientists, is now available in pure crystalline form) seems to be helpful in some advanced cases with nerve changes which previously resisted any known form of treatment.

Nurses Assn. To Hold Borger Meet

The Texas Graduate Nurses Association, District No. 23 will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the Doctor's Board Room, North Plains Hospital, Borger. Ivan Ceresna will relate his experiences behind the iron curtain. Since the age of fifteen Ceresna was active in the communist underground in Czechoslovakia.

After the Munich Conference this particular part of Czechoslovakia in which he lives became a part of Hungary and automatically Ceresna became a Hungarian citizen.

Before his graduation from High School, the Hungarians learned about the anticomunist underground, and began arresting the members. At that time the Hungarians thought the underground was German-inspired and organized against Hungary.

Ceresna was saved from being sent to a concentration camp by a friend of his who was a doctor, who inoculated him with a disease that caused him to be in bed four weeks. When the police came and found him critically ill, they left him presumably to die. Later he was drafted into a Hungarian labor camp.

After two escapes on the way to Russia, when in each case he was apprehended, he was put to work for the Russian army in Poland.

Daniel Sets Oct. 13-19 As Nurses Week

Governor Price Daniel has set aside the week of October 13 - 19 as Texas Nurse Week in order to give recognition to the thousands of professional nurses who are serving the citizens of the state.

The Governor's proclamation urges a better understanding of the nursing profession by the public which it serves. The need for more nurses is also cited, and thanks are given for the many contributions made by the profession to the health care and strength of the nation.

With the broadening of nursing into many fields, almost every citizen today has had a member of the profession serve him in some capacity. There are approximately 12 thousand professional registered nurses working in Texas now. Of these, about one half are employed in the state's 600 hospitals and similar institutions. Another two thousand are in private practice, employed directly by the patients who need them, again mostly in hospitals.

Man Jailed For SWC Offense

Frederick Freeman, Pampa, entered a plea of guilty late Saturday to a charge of swindling with a worthless check. County court ordered Freeman to make restitution of the check ($34.66) and pay a $5 fine plus costs, or spend 60 days in county jail.

Freeman delivered the check Aug. 30 to James Alexander, 514 N. Russell, in payment of rent.

near failed by 150,000 miles to reach its intended rendezvous with the moon itself.

Blame Firing Trajectory

Scientists blamed the failure on a 3 1/2-degree error in its firing trajectory. The error in turn was blamed on "drift" in the gyroscopes controlling the auto-pilot of the 1,500-mile Thor missile which served as a first stage "booster" for the lunar probe. Scientists said this could have resulted from a miscalculation which could be corrected in the next lunar shot.

Although there has been no official announcement as yet, another attempt to place a vehicle in orbit around the moon presumably will be made, again by the Air Force, between Nov. 8 and 12 when the earth and moon will once more be in a favorable position—222,500 miles apart.

prevent race mixing in classrooms, NAACP General Counsel Thurgood Marshall predicted that solution of educational problems in the state "will come much faster than most people think."

He addressed a state NAACP rally at Hampton, Va.

NAACP Executive Secretary Roy Wilkins, speaking at Raleigh, N.C., said unless North Carolina admits more Negroes to white schools, its school laws are doomed. He attacked the "gradual" plan under which small numbers of Negroes have been admitted to schools in three cities.

For the third Sunday in a row, Negroes sought to attend services at a white Baptist church in Little Rock. The eight Negroes were taken to the church basement, and they left without hearing the sermon.

Mrs. Cherry died Sunday morning at the home of her surviving daughter, Mrs. Lottie Ochiltree, 615 N. Gray. She was born April 2, 1871 in Bolivar, Mo., and lived in Kilgore before moving to Pampa. She was a member of Pampa's First Christian church.
