Two-Year-Old Toddles Into Water Tank, Drowns

By RICK PEZDIRTZ
Daily News Managing Editor

Tragedy struck the farm home of John Chasher shortly before noon Thursday when Carl Jefferson Chasher, who only last month celebrated his second birthday, was found dead, partially submerged in a horse-watering tank.

The small boy had been playing in the front yard with his sister, five-year-old Connie, and then wandered down to the barn where a hired hand was working. It is thought he either toddled into the shallow water tank while playing or slipped in while trying to get a drink at a near by faucet, while on his way back to the house.

"We looked out the front window and saw Connie playing by herself," Mrs. Lonzo Shaw, 641 N. Christy, the boy's maternal grandmother sighed after the tragedy had been discovered. "When we asked Connie where little Carl was she said she didn't know. The boy's mother, Mrs. Lillian Chasher, and my other daughter, Mary Louise Shaw and myself all started a frantic search for him, and it was Mary Louise who found him in the tank.

"Lillian pulled him out and the two girls put him in the car and rushed him to the hospital in Pampa. They worked with him about 20 minutes, feeding him oxygen, but it was too late, he couldn't be helped.

"He couldn't have been in that tank over 15 minutes. We found him about 11:20 a.m. It's hard to say what really happened, he must have just slipped," Mrs. Shaw said.

The boy's father, John Chasher who has the farm 13 miles northeast of Pampa had done some re-

UF DRIVE UP TO $16,149

The United Fund Drive has reached $16,149 campaign chairman, Clyde Dickerson, reported this morning.

The total for the drive which opened Wednesday represents $15,999 from Pampa and $150 from Lefors.

First returns from the workers started to dribble in Thursday, and Dickerson expects the workers to make big returns within the next several days. For their convenience, the United Fund office, in the City Hall, will be open from 9-12 a.m. Saturday.

BOMB EXPLODES IN AIRPORT AT WICHITA

WICHITA, Kan. (UPI)—A bomb exploded in the Wichita airport today, killing one man and shattering huge plate glass windows, but averting a major airline disaster by a quirk of fate.

The victim was tentatively identified as Forrest Don McCuiston, a tool engineer for Douglas Aircraft Co., of Tulsa, Okla.

McCuiston, according to reports, was playing the role of a good Samaritan, taking a package he had found on Braniff Flight 301 bound from Kansas City to Oklahoma City to the lost and found office.

McCuiston was in a 40-foot long hallway lined with plate glass leading from the main lobby to the air control tower when the bomb exploded.

He was alone in the hallway and his body was ripped apart. All the glass was shattered.

The bomb was in a rectangular box 1 foot long, 8 inches wide and 2 inches deep. It was wrapped in brown paper and tied with a string.

The bomb went off about 8:45 a.m., about 10 minutes after the Braniff flight landed from Kansas

City and shortly before it was to take off for Oklahoma City.

Mrs. James Embree, a desk clerk at the Avis rent-a-car booth in the lobby, said McCuiston walked up to her and asked where the lost and found office was located.

"Well, we don't have a regular one," she replied. "It's in the airport manager's office. I'll be glad to take it for you," she said, putting her hand on the lethal package.

"No, I'll take it myself," Mrs. Embree quoted McCuiston as replying.

McCuiston then walked out of the lobby into the deserted hallway and the building was rocked by an ear-shattering blast.

Braniff confirmed that McCuiston was a passenger on their Flight 301.

Another passenger on the flight said he had seen McCuiston on the plane.

It could not be confirmed immediately, but it was apparent that McCuiston had found the package on the plane and thought some passenger had left it behind.

Brown Gives $4,000 To Boys Club

M. K. Brown, long-time Pampa citizen, presented a check in the amount of $4,000 to the Pampa Optimist Boys Club Thursday afternoon, for the purchase of collapsible-type bleacher seats.

The seats will be used around the club at the Boys Club building this fall and winter for Golden Glove boxing matches and other events.

New Secrest, vice president of the local Optimist Club, placed an order with Harve Avents Associates in Fort Worth immediately after receiving the check for the new seats. The Fort Worth firm sold Pampa High School its Harvesters Field House bleacher seats.

Secrest said that the new bleachers would accommodate 500 persons and that along with the 150 folding chairs already on hand the seating capacity for Golden Glove fights will be approximately 650.

The new bleachers are expected to arrive for installation in 2-3 weeks.

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Twenty-One," the quiz show once rated the top television program in the country, was seen for the last time Thursday night.

The National Broadcasting Co. announced cancellation of the big money quiz three hours before it went on the air. Along with other TV quiz programs it had come under investigation on charges contestants had been fed questions and answers in advance.

Added to "fix" charges against "Twenty-One" were steadily dwindling ratings. At the height of its popularity, the expensive quiz show that dispensed multiple thousands of dollars swept all audience measuring polls, but in recent months its popularity waned.

The NBC announcement late Thursday said the show would be replaced Oct. 30 by "Concentration," a game program, to be sponsored by Pharmaceuticals, Inc., sponsors of "Twenty-One."

With the axing of "Twenty-One," only "The $64,000 Question" (CBS) remained of the quiz giants. There have been persistent reports that "Question," which only recently moved into a Sunday night spot, also would be dropped soon.

Produced by Jack Barry and Dan Enright, "Twenty-One" made its debut Oct. 12, 1956, with Barry as host. Its first big money winner was college instructor Charles Van Doren, who perspired his way to fame and $129,000 in an isolation booth.

Van Doren is now under contract to NBC as a performer.

Top winner on the show was Elfrida Von Nardoff, who stayed in the isolation booth for weeks and finally won $223,000.

First of the quiz shows to go after Dist. Atty. Francis S. Hogan began investigating them was "Dotto." It was dropped after charges made by Edward Hilgenier Jr.

Thousands Flee Flood In Rio Grande Valley

RIO GRANDE CITY, Tex. (UPI)—Thousands of residents of the lower Rio Grande Valley streamed along roads leading from their flooded towns and farms today as the river continued on its worst rampage in history.

At Los Ebanos, most of the population of 1,500 took to the road today as the river rose 11 inches between 6 and 8:30 a.m. The water stretched 100 feet into the main part of town.

At La Grulla, a town of 1,500, schoolboys were posted on levees to watch for a break. The levee was knee-deep in some yards and lapped to within 10 inches of the levee top early today.

The entire town will have to be evacuated if the water tops the protective banks.

A levee broke last night above Abrams, a town of some 1,200, and residents who had refused to move out in National Guard trucks earlier reluctantly gathered their belongings together for a hurried evacuation.

The town was expected to be deserted by noon, when the effects of the upstream levee failure were expected to be felt.

At the 1,500-acre La Casita farm near Abrams, 30 residents and 80 Mexican workers have become refugees from the neck-deep water. At La Puerta Ranch nearby, 2,000-acre farm.

The village of Refugio was evacuated Thursday night and water nearly waist deep this morning.

Meanwhile, the release at Falcon Dam, upstream, was increased again Thursday night to protect the dam. The flow was 39,700 cubic feet a second this morning as the reservoir grew to 3,460,000 acre-feet, an increase of 48,000 acre-feet from Thursday.

Heavy rains in the area, plus a heavy inflow from Mexico's Rio Salado, poured more and more water into the reservoir and the river below it.

William Davis, in charge of the Texas State Guard evacuation unit in Rio Grande City, spent the night in La Grulla, where, he said, water rose two inches an hour all Thursday night but slack off to three-quarters of an inch this morning.

The outlook for today, Davis said, was "very good."

At Rio Grande City, the river was about nine feet above flood stage and dangerously close to levee tops only a block away from the main street.

LR To Open Private Classes With Funds

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — The Little Rock Private School Corp. with contributions totaling $61,481.25 in the bank, announced today that it will open private classes for white high school students in private quarters Monday.

"We feel that this amount will allow us to start operating," said Dr. Thomas J. Raney, president of the Private School Corp.

"W. C. Brashears (private school superintendent) says we have a sufficient number of teachers to operate the senior class."

Private school will start, he said, in a huge, three - storied building in western Little Rock that formerly housed the University of Little Rock graduate center. The Private School Corp. has signed a lease for it with Vance Thompson, who bought the building recently.

There are three temporary corrugated iron buildings nearby that also can be used.

TWO VESSELS SINK; 26 LIVES ARE LOST

LONDON (UPI) — A Russian fishing boat and a Danish freighter sank in heavy seas off northern Britain today with a loss of life estimated at 26 or more. British rescue vessels landed some Russian survivors in Britain against Soviet wishes.

Twenty-five seamen were reported drowned when the Soviet trawler SRT 4442 broke up on jagged rocks off the Island of Unst in the Shetlands north of Scotland.

Captains of other Soviet vessels in the area radioed demands that any survivors be put aboard their ships and not taken ashore on British territory. British rescue ships ignored the demands and took three rescued Russians from a tiny island to the Shetland town of Lerwick. The rescuers also found the body of a fourth man.

The coast guard estimated at least 25 from the Russian trawler had drowned and said the total may have been as big as 35 or 36.

The Danish freighter Adler Svanholm went down in the North Sea about 70 miles off the English coast after springing a leak at the height of the storm.

Reports from the scene said the British trawler Trinidad had rescued the freighter's 25 crewmen and recovered the body of the captain, who apparently had been washed overboard.

Soviet Propaganda Offensive Comes To Virtual Standstill

By K. C. THALER
United Press International

LONDON (UPI)—Something has been happening in the Kremlin that has deprived Soviet diplomacy of its customary initiative in recent weeks.

Diplomatic sources have reached this conclusion after an appraisal of recent Soviet strategy on the international scene.

The Soviet propaganda offensive which has been ever present since Nikita Khrushchev took power has come to a virtual standstill.

Soviet diplomacy, ever active and ever inventive, has produced no new element lately and has often been resorting to the stale methods of ousted V. M. Molotov's outdated techniques.

Both diplomats and Soviet affairs experts have been seeking for an explanation of this unusual phenomenon in Soviet behavior.

But experts consider this too simple an explanation and one that does not fit into the Communist concept of dynamism at all cost and at all times.

They believe that Khrushchev has realized his propaganda drive has not paid off in any major field of international relationship. But he may also be "preoccupied" with serious inner-Soviet bloc problems.

In Sochi on the Black Sea, where he spent the recent weeks, he may have been laying the groundwork for a new strategy which the West may soon have to face.

There, in the retreat of the Yalta atmosphere, the Soviet leader has in fact been consulting in the past weeks with all Communist leaders from the satellites. He has also had a meeting with the Red Chinese envoy.

Presently, the military chiefs of the Warsaw Pact alignment that includes Russia and the East European satellites are meeting in Warsaw with Marshal Ivan Koniev, the military chief of the alliance, nothing so far has been disclosed of their decisions.

Needs Something New

If these moves are the preliminaries to a new diplomatic offensive of the Communist camp, its first sparks probably will be flying at the forthcoming East-West Geneva Conference which is to discuss the issue of suspending nuclear tests. It would have to produce something entirely new to be effective.

The expert analysis of the hull, or freeze in Russia's diplomatic initiative has pointed out that all major points of Moscow's past diplomatic offensive has misfired. Khrushchev's plan for a "deal" with the United States—the backbone of his policy after his takeover—has failed. So has his plan for a summit conference, Khrushchev-style, as a platform for Moscow's propaganda. His call for an East-West non-aggression pact has been ignored and mistrust in the West of Russian policy aims has grown.

At the same time, the Sino-Russian relationship has undergone its greatest changeover, with Red China emerging fast as a giant power at Russia's backdoor where the Soviet empty spaces are highly vulnerable to the pressure of the fast growing Chinese population.

China Calls Tune

Peiping has put an end to Moscow's patronage over Red China and is calling the tune in the Far East to which Russia has had to bow.

Some experts believe the happenings in the Sino-Soviet axis have more than any other single event in effect caused the present paralysis in Moscow's diplomacy.

There also is one other possible element: Internal problems in Russia involving a new phase in the struggle for power and preparations in the economic field for the new party conference in January. But past experience has shown that economists have rarely interfered with Moscow's diplomatic dynamism.

Veep Candidates To Keep Races Hot

By RAYMOND LAHR
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The rival candidates for vice president in 1956 made it clear Thursday that they are ready to keep foreign policy in the 1958 campaign debate even though President Eisenhower deplores the whole idea.

This was the position taken by both Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. Estes Kefauver, 1956 Democratic vice presidential nominee, with reference to campaign debate on Far Eastern policy.

The country must unite behind the Kefauver, told a reporter that President whenever an irrevocable decision is made. But meanwhile, he said, it is "fair to discuss and debate foreign policy."

Nixon told a San Francisco news conference Wednesday that he intends to continue answering Democratic attacks on administration policies although it was proper for the President of the United States to refrain from doing so.

Nixon States Position

"One of the troubles of the Republican Party in the past two years is that it has allowed people to criticize and has not stood up and answered effectively," Nixon said. "I expect our opponents to attack our policies, but when I answer I don't expect to have people say that that attack is justified but the answer is unfair."

These viewpoints were expressed after Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles had suggested at news conferences this week that foreign policy be kept out of partisan debate in the campaign.

Dulles at first appeared to be criticizing Nixon. But he issued a statement Wednesday blaming a weekend statement from the Democratic Advisory Council for stirring up the debate. He also explicitly defended Nixon's right to answer that statement as the vice president did Monday.

Eisenhower told his news conference Wednesday that he brought foreign policy should be kept out of partisan debate and that he would not answer charges against him. He said he recognized that statements begot replies but that he deplored the fact.

"So I believe in the long term America's best interest in the world will be best served if we do not indulge in this kind of thing," he added.

Kefauver Charges "Vaccination"

Kefauver, a member of the Democratic Advisory Council, said both Eisenhower and Dulles had "vaccinated" in their attitude toward the disputed Quemoy and Matsu islands off the Chinese mainland. While they were acting in that fashion, he said, the status of the islands was "a legitimate subject to discuss."

Just back from a campaign tour in California, Kefauver said he had been expressing hope that the Quemoy and Matsu dispute could be settled by negotiations and that, if these failed, the problem would be submitted to the United Nations.

The Tennessee Democrat also said he thought the Far Eastern crisis and "general foreign policy problems" had added to Democratic Party strength in the 1958 campaign.

However, he expressed the belief that economic issues were the most important from the viewpoint of the voters.

Business Views

United Press International—The Federal Reserve Board hiked margin requirements from 70 to 90 per cent—a 12-year high. It was the second boost in margins since the year's big rise in stock prices started. Keith Funston, president of the New York Stock Exchange, said the increase would not have much effect on stock prices. Market analysts predicted a continuation of the bull market.

Personal income rose again in September, rising to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $357,500,000,000 or $1,400,000,000 over August, the Commerce Department reported. Most of the increase reflected higher wage and salary payments.

The Federal Housing Administration reported September applications for mortgage insurance on new homes rose 9 per cent over August. But the Veterans Administration said requests for appraisal of proposed homes dropped 2.5 per cent after a two-month climb. The decline in VA requests was blamed on tightening up of mortgage money.

The Treasury reported production of 7,650,019 barrels (31 gallons) of beer in August, a drop from the 8,353,681 barrels reported for August 1957. Stocks at the end of August totaled 10,470,055 barrels compared to 11,445,856 barrels at the end of July and 10,804,591 barrels as of Aug. 31, 1957.

DEAR ABBY...

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: This married woman across the street won't leave my husband alone. My husband put a new roof on our house and that nippy girl was up there on the roof with him every day for three days handing him the nails. The first day I never said a word, but the second day I told my husband to tell her to get off the roof and stay home because it looked terrible for the neighbors. He said she wasn't hurting anything and he didn't mind if she wanted to hand him the nails. They are the talk of the neighborhood and I am very mad at him for not telling her to stay home. Was my husband at fault or was she?

PLENTY MAD

DEAR PLENTY: It takes two to tango, and the roof is a pretty dangerous place to do it. Your husband should have told the woman to stay at home.

MATURE PARENT

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE
Mrs. T. writes: "Some months ago when my daughter was seriously ill, I took over the care of her two-year-old son. Recently I realized that she resents the attachment Dickie developed for me during this time. The other day when I was visiting her she snatched him off my lap and frankly accused me of trying to steal his affection from her. I was so hurt I couldn't defend myself, and still don't know how to deal with this jealousy. . . ."

It's not easy to be a young mother today, Mrs. T.
The people who are supposed to know are constantly telling you how important you are to your baby. They say his welfare depends on the kind of love you give him. If it's satisfying, he'll be a credit to you. But if it isn't, he'll become a candidate for psychotherapy. As his mother, you alone possess the power to make him a well-adjusted child.

A young mother who's struggling to deliver this satisfying love would be bound to feel severe self-approach if her child showed need for somebody else's love — and clambered up on Grandma's lap too often. His action would accuse her of failing to deliver that all-important, satisfying love.
If we can see her jealousy as her strained attempt to be all-in-all to Dickie, it may stop hurting us and begin to grouse our compassion instead.

We might be able to say to her: "Why do you try to be everything to Dickie? Little children love many things — toys, ice cream puddles, grandparents, other children. As you cannot be the world to Dickie, it's pretty silly to make yourself miserable whenever you discover that you're not."
However, to be useful, these words would have to be gently spoken.

A daughter who is pressed by an inflated sense of responsibility for her child can't stand our taking too much responsibility for her. If we want her to give Dickie the freedom to love us, we have to give her freedom to accept or reject what we say. So we don't want to infuse our words with resentment that would give them force, but just lay them quietly down to be picked up or ignored according to our grown child's need of them.
So before Mrs. T. starts dealing with her daughter's jealousy, she'd better work on her resentment of it.

Every Young Lass Can Be Attractive
With Diligent Care In Beauty Routine

By ALICIA HART
NEA Beauty Editor

The teen-age years can — and should — be the most carefree time in a girl's life. And it's the dream of every gal to be pretty and popular.
It's sad, but true, that nature has dealt more kindly with some than others. But with an intelligent approach to each beauty problem and strict adherence to good grooming, EVERY girl can be attractive.

Chiefly because it's so noticeable, your hair can be a valuable asset. Then, too, you can make it do anything that will best suit your face. It can be short, long, straight, curled or highlighted. You don't have to accept it just as it is. And don't come up with that nonsense, "I can't do anything with it." YOU CAN if it's healthy and clean.
Dull and lifeless hair needs plenty of brushing. Not just casual stabs with the hairbrush, but good, strong, get-in-and-dig strokes that will stimulate the scalp and bring out the natural oils.

Dandruff and dry scalp are problems, but these conditions can be cured. Brushing and hot-oil treatments will help, and you can now get a medicated shampoo which is claimed to be an effective remedy.
Once your hair and scalp are in good condition, get a professional haircut. There's no teenager who can't handle her crowning glory herself from that point on.

It's too bad that during the years when every girl longs to have a lovely complexion, a good many are beset with skin problems.
Acne, of course, should be cured by a doctor. But simple eruptions of blackheads can be controlled by less sweets and MORE soap and water. You can't clean your face with a swipe of the wash cloth.
When you wash, pin your hair back so that you can scrub the hairline, and work up a good, soapy lather. It would be wise to use a medicated soap if your complexion is less than perfect. There is one available which is said to remove diseased tissue and aid greatly in drying an oily skin.
There's a medicated cream, too, which makes a good powder base and will, its makers say, work toward clearing the complexion even under make-up.
If weight is your problem, cut out after-school snacks, and do a few mild exercises each day.
Never say, "Whatever I do, I just don't look any better." Analyze your individual problems and work on them. They don't have to spoil those years when school dances and football games are so important.
You can be as attractive as you want to make yourself. And if it involves a diligent effort — won't it be worth it?

Miss Lou Ella Patterson Speaker
At Lefors Home Demonstration Meet

(Special to The News)

LEFORs — Mrs. John L. Lantz was hostess to the Lefors Home Demonstration Club in the civic center recently.
"Planning Walks and Drives," was the topic of the program, presented by Miss Lou Ella Patterson, HDA of Gray County, stating first, "Place your drive where you drive, and your walks where you walk, usually the shortest route between two points, avoiding unnecessary curves and turns, except when necessary."
"When planning a drive from a corner lot, make the drive entrance from the least busy street, using an all weather type of material, and not marring the beauty of the lawn. Consider safety, convenience, and beauty, the first two being the most important," she went on to say.
She showed colored slides of actual drives and walks, and plans by the best letters and answers in one book, ask your bookdealer to get "DEAR ABBY" for you.

for such, giving pro and con remarks about each, stressing the importance of avoiding blind corners made by too much tall shrubbery, sloping the walks and driving upward for easier mowing, or digging a small trench at the edge also for easier mowing.
Mrs. L. D. Rider, president presided over the business meeting leading the club prayer.
A report of the Goodwill Achievement Day was given by Mrs. O. O. Bishop and the council report by Mrs. J. D. Smitheer; followed by plans for the Club Achievement Day. Committees were appointed to attend to details.
necessary curves and turns, except with an arrangement of yellow roses and rosebuds in a blue vase placed on a white lace dolly. Coffee and donuts were served.
Members present were Mrs. R. H. Bradford, H. L. Braly, Toby Williams, B. J. Diehl, D. T. Pfeil, A. T. Cobb, O. O. Bishop, Wanda Schiebell, J. D. Smitheer, F. D. Roan, John Lantz, L. D. Rider, Charles Roberts and Morris, and Miss Lou Ella Patterson.

The Weekly Message Of Inspiration

PEACE BEGINS AT HOME

By Woodrow Adcock
Pastor, First Methodist Church

JESUS SAID, "BLESSED ARE THE PEACEMAKERS, FOR THEY SHALL BE CALLED THE SONS OF GOD."
RVS. St. Matthew 5:9.

Our world today is torn by strife and division. There are wars and rumors of wars. Great leaders in all walks of life are telling us that the problems of the world today are moral and spiritual in nature. They are right. This is, certainly true in regard to the causes of war. Wars are caused by greed; selfishness; refusal to "do unto others as we would have them do unto us"; one group using power or force to make others subservient to its wishes; refusal to champion the right of all persons to have the same rights we demand for ourselves; refusal to recognize that freedom carries with it some very definite responsibilities. There are certain things which I as an individual can do to promote the conditions that make for peace in the world as follows:

1. I can love God and seek to practice in my home and in my community the teachings of Jesus Christ who was known as the "Prince of Peace."
2. I can be a good steward of my talents, my time, and my possessions. Using them to develop my own life to the full as I serve both God and man.
3. I can be a good citizen of my community, my state, and my nation. This means I will vote, use my influence, and give a reasonable amount of my time, to the development of a community, state, and nation, that will respect and honor the freedom and right of every person to achieve for himself the fullest possible life.

This is a very simple procedure for achieving peace based upon the Will of God for every man and every nation. If every organization and every person in the world would pursue these simple objectives we could have Peace in the World. This program for Peace must begin with each of us in our homes.

Jap Dept. Store In US Is Going Great

By DOC QUIGG
United Press International
NEW YORK (UPI)—A section of the mysterious East (Dept. store division) swallows now among the frisky purveyors of the obvious West in the shopping section of Fifth Avenue, the well-known American Ginza.

The great Takashimaya department store, of Tokyo, Osaka, and Kyoto (annual business volume in Japan, more than $7,000,000) has invaded America with a Fifth Avenue branch.

If you do your dickerings right, you can get a black onaga dori, with a nine-foot tail, already stuffed and mounted on a pedestal to spruce up your livingroom elegance, for as little as $1,000.

Onaga dori? That's Japanese for "long-tail rooster." Nobody—but nobody—is going to undersell Takashimaya's on stuffed long-tail roosters. If you are willing to take a little shorter tail, there's a seven-footer, white, available for $750.

Jaycees Hear Insurance Talk

Henry Wilson, district manager, Texas Employers' Insurance Association, Amarillo, addressed the Pampa Junior Chamber of Commerce, at their luncheon meeting at the Palm Room of the City Hall, on "Auto Insurance Rates . . . Why They Keep Going Up."

Wilson pointed out that the State Board of Insurance formulates and announces the rates after holding public hearings. The rates as set are not a whim of the Board nor of the companies but rather a consideration of certain existing facts.

"Like the meat and potatoes boys," he said, "the insurance companies have a production cost . . . personnel costs, physical plant costs, supplies costs, etc. but UNLIKE the meat and potatoes boys, the companies do not have a tangible product with a real market value to sell. In effect, they have simply gotten a group of people together and said to them . . . some of you in the next year are going to have some mishaps with your automobile. Some of you will be killed, some of you will kill others, some will tear up cars and property, but if you will pay us a fee which we call a premium, we'll all chip in these premiums to help out the people who have the trouble."

"The amount of this premium in days gone by was based on experience or in other words, the average amount of money it had taken each year in the past to get these insured out of trouble. Money based on past experience will not take care of future experience in an economy in which the prices on everything are constantly going up and in a civilization where speed and recklessness are a part of our way of life."

Wilson appeared under the auspices of the Southwestern Insurance Information Service of Dallas. Gene Hollar made program arrangements.

Chuckles

GROUNDS FOR DIVORCE
DETROIT, Mich. (UPI)—Hank and Mrs. A. Johnson won a divorce from his wife Tuesday after testifying she used her maiden name and introduced him to her friends as Mr. Johnson, her chauffeur and business helper.

APOLOGY IN ORDER
NEW YORK (UPI)—The New York Times apologized today, with tongue figuratively in cheek, for calling Olean, N.Y., "a bustling industrial city of 23,000 alert residents," a "sleepy-looking hamlet" in a news story.

The Times quoted Olean Times Herald columnist Gilbert Stinger as promising to show the Times correspondent the "hot spots" next time he was up Olean way.

Not Chicken Little

"Those are suggested retail prices," said Michio Kushi, a vice president of the American branch, looking at the nine- and seven-foot perches where the two specimens sat with plumy tails hanging like trails of glory to the floor.

"Chickens," Kushi continued, "have been very celebrated in Japan from the beginning of our history—and the long-tail ones particularly, which are used for festivals and celebrations. Only one part of Japan makes this chicken, and the long-tails come by selective breeding over hundreds of years. There are only two or three in Japan now with nine-foot tails."

But how can you get the things in your livingroom?

"You can drape the tail like this," Kushi said, making a serpentine motion with his hand, like a multiple-curved S.

The Takashimaya store, done to the gills in Japanese decor, will be dedicated formally Friday and opened to the public Saturday. At a press preview, some things appeared on sales counters that should give Macy and Gimbel pause.

Atop one counter, the shelves of which contained razor-sharp Japanese hard-steel cooking knives, was a headless so outrageously gaudy with brass horns, gold and black crown, rich cloth hangings, and a gold dragon at the forehead that it seemed like a boy's nightmare space helmet. (price, $31.95.)

"This is called a kabuto," said the salesgirl, a kimonoed chick from Tokyo. "They are made same as original helmets Japanese army officers wore about 600 years ago. Now used for decoration, not wear. Lots of people give these as presents for the first boy is born. Always used for decorate on our May 5 'Osekai' — Boys' Festival."
