2 Sunken Cargo Ship Survivors Found

THROUGH THE LONG NIGHT THEY LOOKED

8 Bodies Sighted From 35-Member Tragedy Vessel

By TOM FARRELL
United Press International

CHARLEVOIX, Mich. (UPI) — Two survivors were picked up today from the sunken cargo ship, Carl D. Bradley, and the bodies of eight others, apparently dead, have been sighted in the waters off Gull Island in wind-lashed northern Lake Michigan.

There were reports that two additional survivors had been sighted on High Island, west of Gull Island, but the report could not be confirmed. There were a total of 35 men aboard the sunken ship.

The two men rescued were taken from a life raft by the Coast Guard cutter Sundew and were reported in good condition. They were identified as First Mate Elmer Fleming and Deck Watchman Frank Mayes, both of Rogers City, Mich.

They were rescued some 14 hours after the Carl D. Bradley, a 615-foot limestone carrier, foundered in a wild storm. Late Tuesday, the Bradley reported by radio "we've broken in half. We're going down."

GOBBLER ON CUYLER!

'Turkey In The Mall Day' Slated Here Tomorrow

There'll be no parking problems for three downtown blocks here Thursday. In fact, there'll be no parking at all, as Pampa experiments with its first mall, with the three blocks on Cuyler, between Atchison and Francis, due to be blocked off for a display of glittering new 1959 automobiles, new trucks and boats of all sizes.

Appropriately named, "Turkey in the Mall Day," the exciting downtown display of new vehicles will be featured by a big "turkey give-away" with two dozen of the tender Thanksgiving dinner birds due to be drawn for.

As a special added attraction a jet pilot training plane will be exhibited, compliments of Amarillo Air Force Base. The valuable piece of government property will be shown immediately in front of the LaNora Theatre on Cuyler, with visiting airmen on hand to point out the plane's moving parts in an open cockpit.

At noon Thursday police will begin clearing Cuyler, from Atchison to Francis, of traffic, in preparation for a 2:30 p.m. opening of the mall.

All 12 Pampa automobile dealers will display their wares in the center of the three blocks. Persons can register once at each of the 12 dealer tables for turkey drawings the evening.

The only "win-a-turkey" qualification is that registrants must be over 18. Drawings will be held at 8:30, 7:30, and 8:30 p.m. Pampa stores will remain open until 9 p.m.

Fair weather has been forecast for the festival and from 2:30 on an organ will play from the marquee of the LaNora.

The first drawing will take place in the middle block, between Foster and Kingsmill, at 6:30 p.m.; the second on the south block, Foster-Atchison, 7:30 p.m.; and the final drawing of the evening on the north block — Kingsmill-Fran-

FACES DEATH PENALTY!

Caril's Case Ready For Jury Following Month's Debate

By MARGUERITE DAVIS
United Press International

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — The almost month-long murder trial of a 15-year-old school girl drew near its end today with prosecution and defense attorneys delivering their closing arguments.

The prosecution charges Caril Ann Fugate helped her boy friend Charles Starkweather, 19, slay at least one of his 11 victims last winter—Robert Jensen, 17. She is as guilty of murder as though she fired the fatal shot, according to the state.

If found guilty she faces the same death penalty as was imposed on Starkweather for the same slaying, a conviction he has appealed to the state Supreme Court. However, County Atty. Elmer Scheels was not expected to indicate until the last moment whether he would seek execution for Caril.

The defense maintains Caril was merely a frightened child. She accompanied Starkweather through nine murderous days in the belief that this would save the lives of her family and herself, according to Caril's story.

Judge Harry A. Spencer set no time limit for the closing arguments, but attorneys agreed with

EDITOR'S NOTE: Del Gault, 32-year-old reporter for the Traverse City, Mich., Record Eagle, was aboard the Coast Guard seaplane which participated in the search for survivors and wreckage of the Carl D. Bradley, a 615-foot cargo ship which sank in Lake Michigan Tuesday. Here is his story, as written for United Press International.

By DEL GAULT
Traverse City, Mich. (UPI) — If there's one word which will cover the night's search it would be "rough."

The airmen buckle themselves to their seats in an aircraft that tosses around the sky like a leaf, their eyes glued to the windows, searching for they know not what. Thousands of feet below, lights of the rescue craft outline the seemingly futile search for survivors.

The winds, reaching up to 70 miles an hour and sometimes better, make a white-capped maelstrom on Lake Michigan, hampering the movement of the boats and restricting the search craft to basic maneuvers.

If something is found tonight, it will not be a lifeboat. None could stay afloat in this water.

Across the airways, terse radio messages direct the plane overhead in its mission to drop flares. The flares, normally effective for three to five minutes, are blown by the wind far beyond the effective range of the vessel and can only be seen for half the usual distance.

The aircraft itself is being used mainly to illuminate the area with its flares. The height at which it is forced to fly, due to the buffeting winds, limits its use as a search vehicle.

The pilot of the Coast Guard seaplane drops his load of flares and hastens back to Traverse City for an additional supply.

Rather than spending time refueling, the pilot, Lt. Commander Louis N. Donohoe, about 37 and from Washington, D.C., wheels his plane around after taking on the new flares and fights his way back into the dark skies.

He again swoops low over the gale-lashed waters and drops his flares.

Meanwhile, on board the search ship, Satori, the small crew peers ahead, constantly looking, constantly hoping it will be able to save some of the 35 men aboard the downed ship.

High Winds Play Havoc

United Press International
Gale winds lashed the upper Great Lakes Wednesday, hampering the search for possible survivors from a cargo ship apparently pounded to pieces in storm-tossed Lake Michigan.

Thirty-five crewmen aboard the 615-foot ship Carl D. Bradley were missing and presumed lost when the limestone carrier went down Tuesday night south of the Straits of Mackinac.

Winds up to 50 to 65 miles an hour pounded the area, whipping up 20-foot high waves in the straits, long known as the "graveyard of ships." Rescue ships and Coast Guard planes sighted no signs of survivors. The only trace of the sunken ship was a large tank bobbing in the water.

The storm also battered Grand Marais, Minn., on Lake Superior, sinking a number of small boats and flooding the downtown area. Gusts up to 70 m.p.h. sent mountainous waves pounding over the sea wall into the city. Power lines and telephone circuits into Grand Marais were snapped by the high winds.

High winds trailed a vicious storm system across the nation's border into Canada today, leaving in its wake at least 14 persons killed by snow, cold and tornadic winds.

There were three dead in both Utah and Oklahoma, two dead in Texas and New Mexico, and one dead in South Dakota, Wisconsin, Colorado and Missouri.

Another 16 persons were missing in the snow covered mountains of Arizona, Utah and Colorado.

Rescuers virtually gave up hope for six of the missing, three of them Boy Scouts lost in deep snow in Arizona's Santa Rita Mountains, the last of eight airmen who parachuted in the Magpie Flat area near Huntsville, Utah, and two men whose plane crashed near Fort Collins, Colo.

Darkness Halts Search
A search party in Colorado battled to within half a mile of the wreckage of the crashed C46 cargo plane, but had to quit Tuesday night when darkness and howling blizzards made it too dangerous to continue. An Air Force pilot who first spotted the wreckage said he saw no signs of life.

Blizzard conditions swept parts of the Dakotas and Minnesota Tuesday, piling up five-foot drifts along highways in the Grand Forks, N.D., region.

The storm then smashed into Canada, dumping up to 20 inches of snow on Manitoba's Red River Valley in the worst November snowstorm in the province's history. A tornado along the flanks of the storm hit the Port Arthur, Ontario, region.

State Temperature Returns To Normal

United Press International

Skies cleared and temperatures rose today in the wake of a Canadian cold front that left masses of cold air over widespread areas in Texas.

Sub-freezing temperatures chilled 12 Texas cities as an aftermath of the front but elsewhere temperatures were getting back to normal.

Cloudiness in the state was confined to the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

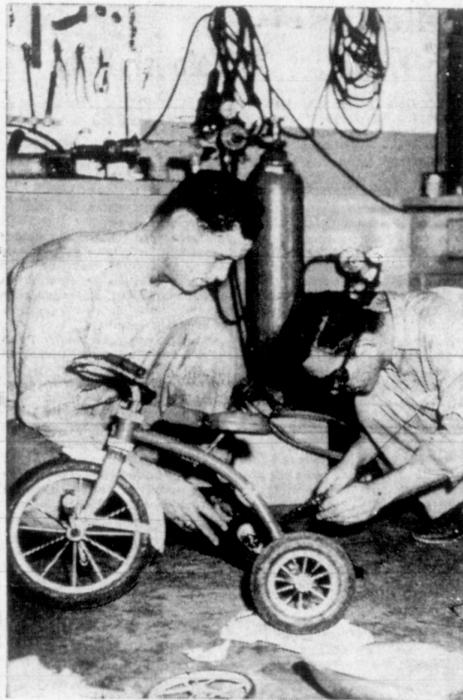

Temperatures ranged from 19 at Alpine to a mild 58 at Brownsville.

The sub-freezing minimums included Dalhart 24, Lubbock 22, Amarillo 29, Midland 29, Wink 24, El Paso 25, Presidio 29, Abilene 29, Childress 29, San Angelo 26, and Mineral Wells 31.

Rains measuring less than .10 inch fell at Houston, Lufkin and Galveston.

Other minimums included Laredo 51, Corpus Christi 56, Galveston 53, Houston 47, Dallas 38, and Beaumont 46.

Near-normal temperatures were forecast for West Texas tonight. Elsewhere in the state the mercury was expected to rise above normal.

OLD TOYS NEEDED

Pampa firemen work on the last toy in sight. The willing repairmen will be idle until more toys are brought in for their Christmas salvage program. Firemen have run out of toys to repair and distribute to needy children for Christmas. The workers are F. E. Dyer, left, and T. D. Snow.

MANHATTAN: 'VERY EXOTIC'

Russian Rubbernecks Gape, Gasp At Concrete Jungle

By DOC QUIGG
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI)—A group of us rubbernecks — 15 Russian tourists plus a few American hangers-on such as reporters and guided-tour personnel — went on a bus tour of Manhattan Tuesday and found the place, as one of the Russians said, "very exotic."

We examined a parking meter (a very curious device), a drunk on the Boverly (he asked for a handout but didn't get one), the building where Al Smith went to school, the Brooklyn Bridge (there is a famous poem, by a famous poet, about it in Russia), the nice people feeding the pigeons in Times Square; Chinatown, and other Gotham curios.

We bought two copies of the Hobo News, a Boverly newspaper; drove down the high-capitalist thoroughfare named Wall Street; saw the statue of Georgi Wassington, the leader of the glorious revolution who later became first president of the United States on the spot where the statue stands. Also, we got into an awful traffic jam at 30th St. and 6th Ave.

A Quick Starter
The Russians had just arrived

by plane from Moscow to start a 12-day tour of New York, Chicago, and Los Angeles. They are members of the Russian state and film worlds—actresses, directors, producers, writers—who booked the tour through the Cosmos Travel Bureau. They'll spend five more days here. Tuesday was a quick starter.

We would have gone to Brooklyn, too, but Brooklyn is one of the U.S. places that are off-limits to visiting Russians, by State Department order. We gazed at it from a safe distance across the East River, its towers ghostly in heavy fog, and wondered what dark mysteries it held.

Russian-Speaking Guide
The travel bureau hired a regular Manhattan sightseeing bus for the trip but had to have one of its own employees, a lady, to act as speller because the spelling, naturally, had to be in Russian. The way it got translated back, by another employee, in English for me was interesting.

Such names as "Washington Square," "Washington Arc," and "Greenwich Village" were recognizable without translation. At one point, a Russian asked why people were standing in line in front of a studio. The answer was "Televysshon."

It was a good tour. At one point, when we passed one of the gangs of workers who seem to be perpetually tearing up Manhattan streets, to repair the mains underneath, somebody asked: "What are they doing in the streets? They are fixing it all the time."

"I am living here and I am asking the same question," replied a guide, and let it go at that.

UNITED FUND REACHES $47,537; STILL SHORT

The Pampa - Letors United Fund continues to rise steadily. It is now over the $47,000 mark according to Clyde Dickerson, Campaign Chairman.

The total reported to the UF office through today is $47,537. This represents slightly over 74 per cent of the 1958-1959 goal of $64,000. Dickerson said workers have been coming to the UF office in increasing numbers this week and that 74 per cent of the goal has been reached with slightly over half of the workers reporting in. Most of the large companies have finished their drive and the large sums of money from individuals and large companies have been reported. The remaining $16,463.15 must come from the smaller firms and their employees, and individuals who have not sent in their contributions.

Dickerson is very pleased with the way citizens have responded to his plea for them to take the initiative and get their money in to the UF office in cases where they have not yet been contacted. Other people, who received cards that a volunteer worker has failed to return to pick up, have been calling or bringing them in. This is also in response to Dickerson's request.

DELEGATION FROM DUMAS VISITS

A ten - man Dumas civic delegation visited Pampa today to observe the workings of the Chamber of Commerce and City government. They were shown about by Pampa civic leaders.

The Dumas men arrived at 11:30 a.m. and were guests of the Chamber for luncheon in Pampa Hotel. A tour of the city followed, which took in City Hall and the Chamber office.

Pampa guides were Warren Hase, C.C. president; E. L. Henderson, immediate past president; John Koontz, city manager, and E. O. Wedgeworth, C.C. manager. Mayor Lynn Boyd was to have joined in the tour but was called out of town.

Postal Clerk Under Arrest

PORTLAND, Maine (UPI)—The theft of $97,000 from mail bags in a Boston & Maine Railroad train was disclosed today with the arrest of a postal clerk.

Postal inspectors said the clerk pilfered mail sacks for the money which Maine banks were sending to the Federal Reserve Bank in Boston. The clerk, identified as Robert S. Doucette, was seized as he was leaving the railroad terminal here.

Authorities said Doucette, a postal transportation clerk, was assigned to trains operating between Boston and Portland and Bangor.

He took the money during the night, authorities said. He offered no resistance when captured. A postal spokesman said "quite a few thousand dollars" are hauled nightly in mail sacks on the trains.

The case was turned over to the U.S. attorney for prosecution.

QUARTER-MILLION-TON—Space stations such as this one weighing 250,000 pounds may become a practicality with the development of million-pound-thrust chemical rockets and nuclear rocket engines. To carry a crew of 50 men, the spherical space station would require 15 million pounds of thrust to get into orbit. The station would be about 60 feet in diameter, orbiting at an altitude of 22,300 miles. Data from Rocketdyne Division of North American Aviation.

Rogers City Prays For Its Missing Men

ROGERS CITY, Mich. (UPI)—Rogers City, a shipping community of 4,000 on Lake Huron, hoped and prayed today for 25 of its seamen missing in gale-swept Lake Michigan.

Lights burned in many homes as residents stayed up all night. "It's like one of those mine disasters," one of them said. "All we can do is sweat it out—and pray."

The local radio station, WHAK, broadcast on an emergency basis all night, giving relatives of the missing men bulletins on the disaster.

About 350 Rogers City men are sailors on the nine ships operated by the Bradley Transportation line.

The Carl D. Bradley, which sank Tuesday in Lake Michigan, was a limestone carrier. The 25 Rogers City men aboard sailed her during the summer and fall and did maintenance work for the company in the winter.

The city was stunned by the accident.

"It's never happened to us before," one resident said.

Rogers City pinned its hopes on the Coast Guard reports that the location of the downed vessel had not been pinpointed.

"Maybe," the wives and mothers and sweethearts reasoned,

"the rafts are floating someplace where the Coast Guard hasn't searched."

And through the night and morning, Rogers City tried to forget the slashing words of Capt. Roland Bryan, whose distress call was the last message received from the ship.

"We've broken in half. We're going down."

Area City Officials To Meet

Legislation "designed to ease the tax burden of property owners" will probably receive close examination Thursday night when city officials from throughout the Panhandle meet in Amarillo for a district meeting of the Texas Municipal League.

Several Pampa officials will attend, among them City Manager John Kooz, City Attorney R. J. Gordon, and Commissioners Ed Myatt, Bob Olsen and R. K. Parsley. The meeting will be held in the Herring Hotel beginning at 7 p.m.

Texasiana Mayor A. P. Miller Jr., president of the League, stated in a letter this week: "Included in the league's program are proposed bills seeking legislation designed to ease the tax burden of property owners. This can be accomplished by authorizing cities and towns to raise revenues by local action from any source not prohibited by the Constitution or by state law."

Local March On MD Set Here Monday

A house-to-house march for Muscular Dystrophy fund donations will take place in Pampa next Monday night, Mrs. Lee Thomas, Pampa MD chairman, announced today. Among the marchers will be Pampa firemen, members of Pampa churches and volunteers.

Mrs. Thomas said she hopes the march will reach all Pampa homes, but many volunteers are needed. Volunteers may donate their services by phoning Mrs. Thomas at VI 8-2403.

No quota has been set for Pampa, Mrs. Thomas said, but there are hopes of reaching last year's total of $83. The local drive, sponsored by the Pampa fire department, began Nov. 1 and will close Nov. 30.

Mrs. Thomas reports that 75 percent of Pampa's donation will go to the national MD fund for research. Muscular dystrophy, which has so far crippled 200,000 Americans, does not have a cure.

Last year local donations were used to buy wheel chairs for three MD victims in Gray county, including one in Pampa and one in Sbellytown.

explosion were not substantiated. Wait, Hope, Pray

The ship left the distress area for Chicago shortly after midnight and reported "negative results," meaning it had found nothing connected with the sinking.

Twenty-five of the crew members were from Rogers City, home port of the Bradley. Six others were from other northern Michigan communities.

Friends and relatives clung to the faint hope that crewmen managed to abandon ship before the Bradley went down and were carried out of the distress area in rubber life rafts by whole gale winds of 60 miles an hour before the first rescue ship arrived.

"It's just like those mine disasters," one Rogers City man said. "All we can do is wait and pray."

Sinks Near Gull Island

The Bradley, a 14,800-ton ship returning without cargo from Buffalo, Ind., southeast of Chicago on Lake Michigan, to the Limestone harbor at Rogers City, vanished about 70 miles west of the Straits of Mackinac, which separates Michigan's two peninsulas.

There were conflicting reports about the exact location of the ship when it sank. But the Coast Guard said it was convinced the Bradley went down 12 miles southwest of Gull Island, between the island and rock-studded Boulder Reef.

The German ship Satori was the first to reach the scene. Two Coast Guard planes hovered over the rescue ship and dropped flares on either side of the Satori to illuminate the area.

But reporter Dell Gaut of the Traverse City Record-Eagle said the flares were swamped by the giant whitecaps almost as fast as they were dropped.

Gaut, who was aboard one of the Coast Guard planes, said "we dropped 30 to 35 flares on either side of the German ship, but they didn't stay lit very long."

Difficult To Maneuver

"Spray from the whitecaps was clearing the top of the Satori at times and the ship was having difficulty maneuvering in the stormy waters."

Gaut said, "if anything is found tonight, it will not be a lifeboat. None could stay afloat in this water."

By early morning, the Satori requested permission to leave the distress area. Other vessels, including the Coast Guard cutter Sundew, the buoy tender Hollyhock and the freighters Robert C. Stanley and Elton Hoyt, took up the search.

They covered an area about 40 miles in diameter because at least two radio receiving stations said they thought the Bradley had given its position as 12 miles northwest of Gull Island instead of 12 miles southwest of the island.

Norman Hoelt, manager of Bradley Transportation Lines, owner of the Bradley and a branch of the Michigan Limestone Division of U.S. Steel, said Bryan has been on the lakes since he was 14 years old and has been a ship's captain for 15 years.

Second Major Disaster

Bryan, 52, Loudenville, N.Y., was one of four crew members who lived outside of Michigan. Others were Chief Engineer Raymond G. Guehler, Lakewood, Ohio; Deck watchman Richard Book, Portsmouth, Iowa; and steward John Zoho, Clairton, Pa.

It was the second major shipping disaster in Michigan waters in five years.

The freighter Henry Steinbrenner was trapped in a 50-mile anchorage on May 11, 1953, and sank off the Rock of Ages near Isle Royale National Park in Lake Superior with a loss of 17 lives.

There have been numerous sinkings in Lake Michigan over the years and November has been one of the deadliest months.

In November of 1847, the Phoenix sank off the Straits of Mackinac with a loss of about 250 lives.

The most recent November disaster on the lake was in 1940 when the freighter William B. Davock and the grain carrier Anna Minch both went down during a storm with a loss of 87 crewmen.

Lineman Shaken In Fall From Pole

Jimmy Don Morris, 28, a lineman for Southwestern Public Service, was badly shaken up Tuesday night in a 15-foot fall from a power pole near McLean. An examination at Highland General hospital showed no broken bones. He was released this morning.

Morris, a resident of McLean, was working on a rural line midway between McLean and Lefors. The mishap occurred at 11 p.m.

Bright Color Galore Flashes Before Eyes In Carrier Rescue

Editors: Frank H. Bartholomew, president of United Press International, was aboard the carrier Intrepid in the Caribbean Sea frontier when the vessel recovered some of her aircraft in dramatic landings. His eyewitness dispatch follows.

ABOARD U.S.S. INTREPID, at Sea, (UPI) — An aircraft in trouble in the tropical sunset. "An A4D is losing oil rapidly," the crisp voice of primary flight control said over the loudspeaker. "Get him aboard on the first pass."

"Start the helicopter engine but do not launch."

Men move rapidly across the broad flight deck. Some of them are running. The flight deck crew in yellow sweaters and helmets—the fire fighters in red; arresting gear crew in green; airplane captains in brown; airplane handlers in blue; and the men in white marked with the Red Cross.

Pilot in Trouble
Primary flight control again: "The A4D is due in seven minutes."

That places him over 40 miles astern; three horizons back, from his altitude to our flight deck.

There are more than 3,000 people on this giant ship. Not all of them know that a lone pilot is in trouble somewhere back in that vividly colored cloud bank into which the sun has just set. But hundreds do, and busy themselves with the effort to bring in one of their own on the first pass, if there is a first pass. Or to launch the "angel"—the helicopter which will assist the accompanying destroyer on plane guard duty.

Seven minutes proves a long time. It is darker. Five minutes. The night comes down suddenly in the tropics. The carrier's landing lights are on.

Five uneasy minutes. Two. Is he down in the unseen sea, somewhere behind the ship's wake? Then a welcome yellow light through the black curtain astern. Here he comes, still flying.

Hits Deck with Roar
What will happen if he loses all his oil before he makes the flight deck—will his jet engine freeze? Either that, you are told, or it will blow up.

You know the picture in the pilot's mind. He is concentrating on six green lights in a horizontal line in the port side of the carrier, grouped in threes; between the groups a concave mirror. In the center of the mirror is a single orange light.

That's his glide path to safety. To keep on it he must line up the reflected orange ball in an exact, even horizontal line with the fixed green lights, listen to the voice of the landing signal officer ("Power! Power!") and fly his damaged airplane in.

The fixed procedure is simple; but this is night, that is a falling aircraft approaching, and flight control says the pilot had better make his first pass a good one.

He hits the deck with a roar. The engine thunder increases. He has added the power the landing signal officer called for. He does not know yet whether his landing hook has engaged the arresting gear, and neither do we. A screech surmounts the engine roar. He's firm on the No. 3 wire. He is safe.

Just as 90 other aircraft were safe when they came aboard with perfect precision during the day. Two more to come, and the day's work of scouting the Caribbean sea frontier will be over.

All Home Safely
These two have been orbiting to allow the damaged plane a clear approach. It is quite black now, no moon, the stars obscured by scud.

Here comes the nose light of the 91st aircraft. He's on the deck, hitting it hard with 80 per cent of full power. A good thing; he failed to engage a wire. Off he goes into the night.

Back again for his second pass. Siam onto the deck, then the increased roar of the added power. Another "bolter," as his hook bounces over all four of the arresting cables. Off again.

Here he is, around again for the third try. No wire, and off once more into the black.

"He can't be hungry," a young ensign on Buzzard's Roost says. "Hope he hasn't got a defective hook."

Here he comes out of the night once more. Here's the hard landing on the deck. Here's the full-power roar. He doesn't need it.

The wire has him fast. And here comes his partner out of the blackness astern. The last aircraft of the day.

"Bring her in, ensign!" the young ensign on Buzzard's Roost says. "Show 'em how an ensign does it!" First pass, perfect landing.

The U.S.S. Intrepid plows on into the night, all pilots and aircraft safe aboard, the operations log of another day complete.

You Don't Look Like You Think

By DELOS SMITH
UPI Science Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Further scientific progress in unraveling the servey complexities of human beings has shown a clear relationship between the "body image" of themselves which they all carry around unconsciously in their minds and the side of their bodies on which their response to mental stimulation is the stronger.

To some this "body image" idea always sounds implausible but science knows for sure we each harbor an "image" of our own body which usually does not agree with our actual body as others see it. Everyone knows fat people who think of themselves as "thinly proportioned" — and "plain" women who act as though they were reigning beauty queens.

And some sections of anyone's body will be more "reactive" than others. Physicians know that from hypochondriacs who "think" themselves into feeling ill and though physically they're sound as a dollar. These hypochondriacs show preference as to body sections — They like one section for pain better than others.

Split Body

For experimental study, Dr. Seymour Fisher of Baylor University, Waco, Texas, split the body down the middle into left and right halves, theoretically, of course. But this theory has reality. Most people prefer their right halves to their left, since they are right-handed. Very few show impartiality by being ambidextrous (like Mickey Mantle).

Fisher fixed it so that the individual unconscious body images of 48 men and 32 women couldn't possibly agree with reality. He did that by putting spectacles on them which caused what they saw through the left eye to be different in size and shape than what they saw through the right eye. He then had them put their left and right hands together and to say, after a good look, whether the fingers of one hand were larger or smaller than those of the other and if so which hand had the largest fingers.

All fingers of both hands were hooked up by electrodes to instruments which recorded the intensity of the electric current of the skin. This current is in the skin of all of us and its intensity can be increased or lessened by emotion (the workings of the mind, if you please) alone.

No Accurate Judgements

Because of the spectacles, no accurate judgments were possible, and anyway the left and right fingers of the subjects were all practically of the same sizes. What actual differences existed were detectable only through a measuring instrument.

But the emotional power of a deliberate insult to unconscious body image increased the intensity of the electric current in the left fingers of the subjects who were strongly right-handed,

GENERAL RAPS HARRY FOR LOSS OF CHINA

NEW YORK (UPI) — The man who headed the Allied forces in during the second half of World War II says the Truman administration was largely to blame for the loss of China to the Communists.

In a book sharply critical of United States leadership during World War II and in its immediate aftermath, Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer "assails" the Truman administration's reluctance to give Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek solid support in the postwar showdown with the Communists.

"The Chinese government," Wedemeyer wrote in his book out today, "if assisted in establishing the internal peace that only military strength can guarantee, would eventually have been able to progress toward the modern democratic state which had seemed to be in sight in 1937 before the Japanese aggression."

Tragic, Misguided Effort

Wedemeyer, now retired, replaced Gen. Joseph (Vinegar Joe) Stilwell as commander of the China Theater in 1944, and later served as a special ambassador to China.

While crediting Truman with many astute decisions, Wedemeyer deplores what he calls a tragic and misguided effort by the Truman administration, through Gen. George C. Marshall, to force Chiang into coalition rule of postwar China with the Communists. He pictures Chiang as a victim of uncontrollable circumstances, who did his best to overcome the "weakness and oppressive character of the nationalist government and its decreasing popular support."

Wedemeyer also expresses the opinion that Truman never should have authorized the use of the atomic bomb against Japan because of the knowledge that the war was almost over.

In a scorching volume, which leaves few leaders of the Allied powers untouched by his criticism, Wedemeyer calls World War II "the war nobody won," and includes these critical appraisals:

Says Winnie Lacked Wisdom

—Winston Churchill: Lacked the wisdom and statecraft of his predecessors who had made England the world's greatest power. Churchill could "never reconcile his own concepts of grand strategy with sound military decisions... acting on intuition and impulse without regard for implications or consequences. (He) waged war more like an Indian chieftain from the Arizona Territory... (he) pursued policies which hastened Britain's decline to her present status of a second rate power."

—Franklin D. Roosevelt: Primarily responsible for "the fact that Japan's attack (on Pearl Harbor) had been deliberately provoked — and the subsequent

It was a good trade, Johnson sold the horse and cart soon afterwards for a $14 profit.

The West Attempts To Preserve Talks

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG
United Press International

GENEVA (UPI) — The West made another attempt Tuesday to keep alive the East-West talks on preventing surprise attacks but every indication was that the conference was a failure.

The West, in an effort to block Soviet attempts to turn the talks into a cold war political battle, handed over a detailed list of modern weapons by which surprise attacks could be launched and asked that they be discussed.

At the same time Italy's P.E. Taviani, chairman for the day, rejected on behalf of the West the Soviet proposal for a ban on flights of atomic and hydrogen bombers over the high seas.

The Soviets viewed this proposal Monday. The West said it already had been discussed and rejected outside the conference and that Russia's attempt to re-introduce it was merely another move to turn the conference into a political parley.

Conference sources said Russia agreed to study the Western proposal, but preliminary comment from Communist quarters threw cold water on the West's offer. One Communist source privately ridiculed the Western list as "a type of book you can find in any bazaar anywhere."

With Russia still insistent on broadening the conference into a political rally, the signs of breaking the conference deadlock appeared as remote as ever. The West also saw no immediate way out of the deadlock in the parallel East-West nuclear arms test meeting.

But both the West and Russia appeared reluctant to break up either meeting for fear of a rupture being used for propaganda purposes against them. Both seemed to be playing for time to keep the talks alive for some time longer.

The conference on prevention of surprise attacks held its seventh formal session during the morning while the nuclear test ban conference's tenth session was set for the afternoon.

Of the two, the surprise attacks conference appeared to be in the more hopeless state.

The West has insisted from the start, and continues to insist, that it has come here only for technical discussions between experts. The Soviets have persisted in trying to turn this into a cold war debate on disarmament and other political issues.

In a tactical move apparently designed to raise a political issue, the Soviets Monday proposed a ban on flights of bombers with atomic and hydrogen loads over foreign countries and open seas. This is an old Russian proposal that has been battled around in the United Nations and in East-West exchanges of notes.

TV Movie Premieres Satisfy Inner Lagoons Of Sadism!

By WILLIAM EWALD
United Press International
NEW YORK (UPI) — Offhand, I can't think of anything I enjoy more on TV than the telecasts of movie premieres. They satisfy lagoons of sadism, deep and darkling, within me.

Monday night, ABC-TV journeyed to the equator of Broadway to pick up the New York debut of a Pat Boone movie whose title I have carefully forgotten. Whatever its name, it couldn't have been half as entertaining as the parade of semi-celebrities who stalked by the camera.

It was, in two words, incredible, a kind of too-broad burlesque of what is known in show biz as show business. Or is it the other way around? Anyway, I'll give you a sample:

—Sariel Christine Carere, finally discovering the camera after waving in the wrong direction, coyly inched her stole aside so her low cut dress would be bared.

—Gary Crosby, looking like all of the wise guys of the world rolled into one, arrived with a blonde girl who must have been seven feet tall and looked like all the chorus girls of the world rolled into one. As they say, you had to be there to appreciate it.

—Terry Moore and Bob Evans, seated in a horse-drawn carriage, whooshed grandly up to the front of the theater only to have the horse continue right past it. The driver backed up. The horse promptly trotted forward again. This happened three times. Finally, a dignified voice shouted in desperate tones to all America: "Will someone please grab the horse?"

There were also several interviews conducted by Miss Shari Lewis that hit new peaks for this sort of thing. I give you the following:

- 1.) Miss Lewis: "How does swing and sway compare with rock 'n' roll?"
Sammy Kaye: "Swing and sway is nothing like rock 'n' roll."
- 2.) Miss Lewis (to a comic who arrived with a girl): "Where is your wife?"
Comic: "She's standing in for Chester Morris."
- 3.) Miss Lewis (to Gig Young and Liz Montgomery, a married couple): "When you work with each other do you bring home the problems of the script?"
Young (grimly): "We bring home problems, but not those of the script."

This sort of stuff, I submit, you just can't get in filmed television.

Short-Shots: NBC-TV's "Alcoa Theatre" presented a one-man play, "Eddie," that seemed like a pointless trick. However, Mickey Rooney, in the solo role, turned in a bonny job. CBS-TV's "Desilu Playhouse," had some fairly amusing fight scenes, but for the most part just wasted Lucille Ball.

The Channel Swim: Another quiz, ABC-TV's "Anybody Can Play," is getting the ax. It has chopped off the schedule around the end of this year. Jack Egan's spoof of the movie, "Gaslight," will be seen on CBS-TV Jan. 11.

Dinah Shore and her kids, Missy and Jody, will appear in the NBC-TV Western, "Cimarron City," on Dec. 20—George Montgomery, Dinah's husband, is hero of the series. CBS-TV's "G.E. Theater" will offer Gisele MacKenzie and John Raitt in a half-hour musical, "Taming of the Squaw," on Dec. 12—Gower Champion will direct.

Audrey Meadows, Jackie Gleason's former sidekick and presently on the panel of NBC-TV's "Masquerade Party," has taken on a couple of additional assignments — she'll appear with Sid Caesar on the NBC-TV "Chevy Show" Dec. 7 and she'll help with the commentary on the Jan. 1 "Tournament of Roses Parade" on ABC-TV. Menasha Skulnik will star in an

Mrs. Kadingo Is Elected To Scout Group

Dr. Gerald Wendt, research scientist, science educator and lecturer, opened the Girl Scout Regional Conference in Houston. Among the 1,000 delegates from Texas, New Mexico and Oklahoma, were Mrs. John Holt Jr., Mrs. Bob Andis and Mrs. N. G. Kadingo, all of Pampa; and Misses Shirley Keach and Ann Duncan, Senior Scouts from Skellytown.

In his speech, entitled "Our Foreseeable Future," Dr. Wendt pointed out that the children born today will have a good chance to live through the first quarter of the 21st century, and since advances in science will make such fast changes in ways of living, they need to be trained to be adjustable. He stated there will be a great need for knowledge of foreign languages since changes in trade and travel will bring many tourists from other countries to the United States.

ad the Girl Scout organization for having recognized this fact for a long time.

He concluded by stating the country is emerging from materialism into "four levels of living." These "levels of living" are usefulness; culture, or an understanding of other people, other eras, other centuries and knowing science; devotion to what is "best for you"; and creation, or bringing out the creativeness in each person.

During the second session, Mrs. Richard Beckhard, director of the camping division of the national organization, summarized the challenges facing the Girl Scout organization as teaching girls how to spend their leisure time well, helping them find intellectual and spiritual recreation and maintaining and promoting their creative ability. Miss Barbara Jackson of Fort Worth, a Senior Scout, spoke for the younger generation, stating the Girl Scout ethical code, its Promise and Laws, will be more important in the changing world.

Prior to the conference, Mrs. Kadingo, executive director, attended a meeting of the Association of Girl Scout Professional Workers, which included an institute on community relations. During the business session, Mrs. Kadingo was elected to the association's membership-nominating committee.

BIG PACKAGE—Sir Jacob Epstein, 58, stands in London, England, by his statue of Christ, crowned by thorns which he calls "Behold the Man." The famed sculptor has given the work to England's Selby Abbey. Church officials intend to place it in a somewhat inconspicuous location so that persons who find it upsetting won't have to look at it. Epstein created the six-ton marble work in 1935.

Reservations Are In Order For BS Banquet

Carlton Nance, 216 N. Ward has been designated Reservations chairman for the Boy Scouts' Annual Recognition Banquet slated for 7 p.m. Tuesday in the Pampa First Methodist Church. Nance will accept checks until Friday, Bob Curry, Santa Fe District chairman announced.

Banquet tickets are going for $1.50 a plate. Curry asks Scouters to make their checks payable to the Boy Scouts of America and send them to Nance.

The banquet will take place in First Methodist Fellowship Hall. Recognition of all Scout leaders and the presentation of a Scouters' Key and commissioner's neckerchiefs will highlight the program. Curry will be reinstated as District chairman, Dr. George Snell, District commissioner; and Dr. Jim Chase, vice District commissioner. E. L. Henderson will take a vice District position, succeeding H. V. Wilks.

Operating committee chairman will be named by Tuesday, Curry stated. Reports are expected from Vorel Harris, executive of the Adoho Walls Council, Boy Scouts of America, and Dale Stone, District executive. The program will close with a tableau done by Cubs, Scouts and Explorers. All Scouters and their wives are invited.

Most of this season, the vast Texas schoolboy football campaign has been a rigid old gal, strapped in whalebone and elastic and too tightly trussed to look dis way or dat.

This week, for the first time, she is able to sluck her girdle, scratch and stretch and look around at the scenery. For the most part, that is.

The die, in other words, has already been cast. Either you are, or you ain't—in the state schoolboy grid playoffs. Naturally, most of the teams aren't in the swim. They've been left standing on the bank, relieved of the grimness of the chase and ready for sideline horseplay.

All the while, their conference brethren, who licked the tar out of enough good people to scramble into a play-off berth in the first place, are now ready to come roaring out of the shoot, both barrels firing, trying to pile up enough points to skip merrily into the next playoff round.

That's the way it is this week with no less than five Top O' Texas teams: Borger in AAAA, Perryton in AA, White Deer in A, Groom in B and Miami in this interesting Six-Man thing.

OTIS HOLLADAY
...Bucks' boss

In AAAA, Perryton in AA, White Deer in A, Groom in B and Miami in this interesting Six-Man thing. Borger, of course, still has Pampa High's Harvesters to tango with, before locking horns with Wichita Falls in bi-district. That game, and the Friday Perryton-Stamford and White Deer-Gruver conflicts will be given first-hand treatment by this newspaper, while special correspondents will bring all the exciting details of the Groom-Happy and Miami-Cotton Center games into your living room Sunday morning.

There, now. It is written and everything seems more relaxed and looser. Girdles ought to be against the law, anyways.

White Deer-Gruver, Wow!

Speed vs. speed. Force vs. force. Health vs. crutches.

In capsule form, suitable for lodging in the throat, that's the way the "area" servings will be this weekend.

Minor lamenesses will have to be remedied quickly, plays will have to be polished to a glittering luster and "Mistake" must become only a seven-letter word in Mr. Webster's dictionary during the ensuing weeks if a state championship is to nuzzle its way into this immediate area.

We shall focus the near-sighted peepers on the White Deer-Gruver collision, slated for the Bucks' home stadium Friday night. It's old hat, this playoff business to guys like Otis Holladay, Sam Christy and Bob Moore, the guiding hands behind the White Deer Bucks.

Last year it was a last minute 23-23 conquest of Lefors that put the Bucks into the regional ring against a rugged Bulls ringer, where the latter led the Bucks by the slimmest and heart-tearing margin of 27-26.

For the Bucks rated No. 2 in Class A to reap a more fruitful harvest this year, they'll have to sandbag a ravenous Grayhound from Gruver that has done a complete about face for Coach Leon (Corky) Chapman this year, winning nine straight after a gloomy 1-9 record last season.

Last year White Deer whooped it up with a 10-2 record. This year they're 9-0-1 with the blemish in the last column resulting from a stiff 6-8 stalemate with Sikeston.

As a mark this autumn, the Bucks have beaten down the opposition with an awesome offense that has netted 4,516 yards (3,675 rushing and 841 passing) against only 2,195 total for the enemy.

Hard as it may seem to believe, the Bucks have averaged 7.7 yards per ground play. Leading the charge has been the biggest Buck of all, Herschel Powell who has thundered over the plains for 1,405 yards and a nifty 8.3 rushing average. No, Mr. College Recruiter there has been no misprint. Them's the facts-n-figures.

Now get this, Don Adams, a sub who must rank as the strongest "5th Man" in the state has a sweet 30.5 rushing average and 738 yards overland. Allen Harmon, who missed three games and only lugged leather once in the 22-6 nipping of McLean, has a 6.0 average and 619 yards.

The rest of the way it's: Don Driskill with 247 yards and a 9.1 avg.; Jackie Burns at 168 yards; Don Carter at 165, all in last week's Memphis massacre after a leap up from the B-team; Charles Jackson's 133; Joe Grange's 99 and Tommy Lester's 89.

The Bucks' air game has been only fair, with Burns hitting 7 of 41, but seven of those for touch-downs; and five other pitchers

Perryton-Stamford, Pow!

Stamford, rated No. 3 in the state (pick your poll) will slam into Perryton's Rangers (No. 7 in state) Friday with Daily News sports editor Red Griggs right there to cover Coach Pete Peterson's tippy top Texans in their third bi-district bout in as many years. All have been at Chidress, the Rangers talking to Seymour, 13-6, last year striking for 13 of 27. Ends Jeff Bearden and Ronnie Cade are the top pass snatchers, both with ten grabs for 300 and 343 yards respectively. Where it really counts, 16 Bucks Deer scoreboard, Powell leads the parade with 28 on 11 PD's and seven of those two-point conversion. Harmon has 69, Adams 50 and Bearden 42 in the headlines dept. As if all that ain't enough, the Bucks have been just plain stingy on defense when the chips were down too. Take Lefors, a mighty myth that came to town a feared and unscared upon giant, and left a whimpering outfit that had its portals smashed by a 26-6 score.

and to this self-same Stamford. In 1956 by an uncomfortable 27-0 score. Peterson has his squad in the best physical shape since the third game of the season and what with the Ranger touchdown-twins back in healthy fold, Perryton could spring the big surprise against the Bulldogs. Civic Club Golf Tournament To Begin Sunday at 1 p.m.

"Break up the Kiwanis!" That's not the slogan of some rabble-rousing, un-American politician who's against civic organizations. It's just the plaintive cry of other Pampa civic clubs who'd like to see somebody else take the annual Civic Club Tournament, for a change.

Even the New York Yankees and the Cleveland Browns never monopolized their respective sports like the Kiwanis have monopolized this particular golf meet.

The Kiwanis have won the last seven in a row, and the end is not yet in sight. Almost the same team which captured the trophy by a top-sided margin last year will be back to defend the team title this time.

Leading the Kiwanis squad will be last year's medalist, Dr. Foster Elder. The tournament begins Sunday at 1 p. m., at Pampa Country Club. All Pampa civic organizations are eligible to enter, and entries are expected from the Kiwanis, Lions, Rotary, Optimists, and Jaycees.

The tournament will be conducted on the basis of handicap scores. It will be an 18-hole, medal-play event.

A team trophy will be awarded to the winning squad, and individual prizes will be awarded to the golfers with the lowest gross score (medalist) and second, lowest gross score. Individual awards will also be made to the golfers with the lowest and second lowest net scores (using handicaps). A nine-hole putting tournament will be held, along with the regular tournament, and a prize will be awarded to the winner. Blind bogey prizes will be given on certain holes, in the regular 18-hole tournament.

Milstead Leads In Total Offense

NEW YORK (UPI) — Charley Milstead of Texas A. & M., who had a hand or foot in scoring 28 points as he led the Aggies to a 28-21 upset of Rice last Saturday, look over today as the leader in the nation's hottest battle for the college football ground-gaining championship.

Milstead rolled up 185 yards, mostly by passing, against Rice to seize the No. 1 total offense spot with a total of 1,139 yards, only seven more than Randy Duncan of Iowa.

Right behind the two leaders were Joe Kapp of California at 1,121, Dick Longfellow of West Virginia at 1,127, Dick Bass of College of the Pacific at 1,102, and Billy Holsclaw of Virginia Tech at 1,095. His first time in history that the first six ground-gainers in the country have been within 100 yards of each other as they near the finish line.

Bass remains the rushing leader, having gained 1,697 of his 1,102 total by the overtand route. Ralph Hunsaker of Arizona is the leading passer with 92 completions against 847 for Duncan, but yardage lost in rushing keeps him out of the leaders on total offense.

Duncan and George Izo of Notre Dame rank as the two hottest passers in the country at the moment, and they will be clashing this week in a nationally televised game.

Duncan, who moved from fourth to second in total offense this week, leads the nation in yards gained passing with 1,163. Last week against Ohio State he rolled up 239 yards by completing 22 of 23 passes. In the same game Bob White of Ohio State rolled up 209 yards rushing to move from fifth to second in rushing behind Bass.

Izo, who didn't take over until mid-season has been red hot in four games with 47 completions in 77 attempts for 777 yards and seven touchdowns.

Duncan has hit .603 per cent of his passes. Izo, since becoming a regular, has hit .610 per cent.

Myers is Named Coach of Week

By KYLE THOMPSON United Press International COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — Here's a problem for armchair football coaches: You are nearing the end of your first season as head coach at a certain school, your team has just lost two games by the depressing scores of 21-8 and 23-0 and even the dumbest freshman on the campus knows that your squad is a 19 - point underdog when it meets the team that is leading the league.

Question: How do you make your players forget those two shellackings and get set up for an upset? Coach Jim Myers of Texas A&M solved that riddle with spectacular success Saturday when his five games unbeaten Aggies rolled up to riddle Rice, 28 - 21, and knock the Owls out of first place in the Southwest Conference, and possibly out of a bowl berth.

That's why today he's being honored by United Press International as football's "Coach of the Week."

"The boys really felt bad about those two losses to Arkansas and SMU," explained Myers. "We had so many injured I couldn't take a chance on anyone else getting hurt, so we just had light workouts during the week. But I could tell it was a different team than it had been before this season—the boys were very spirited and worked up and ready for the game."

On the day of the game, Myers kept the squad in the dressing room until 30 minutes before the kickoff while their pent-up spirits neared the explosion point. Then he sent them roaring out to the field, ready to roll.

Wheeler, McLean Split Cage Tilts

WHEELER (SpI) — McLean and Wheeler split a girls' basketball doubleheader here Tuesday night, as McLean took the A game, 69-61, and Wheeler grabbed the B game, 27-18.

Laura Switzer of McLean led A game scoring with 36 points, and Nancy Whitener of Wheeler netted 23. Ruby Barton of Wheeler scored 15 points in the B game, and Miss Boston of McLean meshed 12.

touchdowns in last week's romp over Guyton, Okla. after suffering a broken arm on the first scrimmage play during a 15-0 loss to opponent AAA Phillips last week for five games and thirty Earl McKinley the big spark has 102 points in the ten regular season games.

For any of the Top O' Texas squads, Borger, Perryton, White Deer, Groom or Miami to nab opening playoff wins will be like running barefoot through a briar patch. It can be gone, say not without considerable agony.

Levelland in Fourth Spot

DALLAS (UPI) — The Carthage Bulldogs who face a showdown with another perfect record team Nacogdoches, this week gained ground on second-ranked Sweetwater in this week's United Press International Class AAA coaches board top 10 ratings.

Carthage, which replaced Cleburne as the No. 3 team three weeks ago, has steadily been picking up support from the 16 coaches who make up the UPI board, and this week received 116 points "as compared with 82 a week ago.

This left the East Texans only 22 points behind Sweetwater's 123 point total with one more week of balloting to go.

Breckenridge still led the ratings by a comfortable margin with 157 points and 13 first-place votes to three for Sweetwater.

The same 16 teams as a week ago make up this week's top 10 but with minor changes such as Levelland taking over the No. 4 spot.

DALLAS (UPI) — Tabulations of the United Press International Texas High School Football Coaches Board Class AAA ratings (first-place votes and win-loss records in parentheses):

Table with 2 columns: Rank, Team (Points)

OTHERS — San Antonio Sam Houston 17 points; McKinney 11; Altine and Nederland 9 each; Andrews 8; Phillips 7; Kingsville 4; Littlefield and South San Antonio 3 each; Killen 1.

spot alone, Cleburne moving up to No. 5 a couple of points ahead of Nacogdoches, which slid from a tie for fourth to sixth and the one-notch jumps of Kerrville and San Marcos as Weatherford skidded from seventh to ninth.

El Campo managed to stay in 10th by one point over San Antonio Sam Houston. Weatherford managed to hang onto a top 10 berth despite being trimmed 22-8 by top-ranked Breckenridge in the only game last week which matched rated clubs.

This week, Carthage travels to Nacogdoches for a district showdown and San Marcos goes to Kerrville for a similar battle.

Breckenridge, Sweetwater and Cleburne are the only rated teams having their state playoff berth clinched.

Webb, Giardello To Fight Tonight

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Ellis Webb (Spider) Webb, who scored a routing knockout over 150-lb Calhoun last January in the Cow Palace, climbs back into the same ring tonight for a nationally televised, 10-round middleweight bout with Joey Giardello. The fight is scheduled to start at 10 p. m. EST and Giardello, who only has been stopped twice, is a 7-3 favorite.

Vicious Bulldogs Run Loose

"Cheer up! The worst is yet to come!"

That's really not a very encouraging thought, but it certainly applies to the Pampa Harvester football team this week.

After being mauled last week by a Plainview Bulldog, the Harvesters may face an even worse fate this week. Saturday, they meet a much more vicious breed of Bulldog, the Borger type.

Since being muzzled in its first game, this Bulldog has chewed up everything in its path. It has now clinched the District 3-4A championship and has earned seventh ranking among state 4A teams.

After being "bulldogged" by, of all things, a AAA team, in its opener, Borger walloped Tulsa Central, 56-6, and buried Duncan, Okla., 58-6 in non-district games.

The opening loss was to Snyder, the fact that they have two experienced quarterbacks, Darrel Phillips and Jim Dawson.

In district play, Borger blanked Palo Duro 12-0, romped over Tascosa 27-6, ousted Plainview 24-6, edged Lubbock 26-20, squeaked past Monterey 31-28, and grounded the Amarillo Sandies, 22-6.

Over the full season, the Bulldogs lead all 3-4A teams in both offense and defense, having scored 282 points while allowing only 92. In district play, they trail Lubbock and Monterey in points scored, and Lubbock in defense. The Bulldogs have tallied 142 points in district play, and have allowed 66.

Gene Mayfield, in his first year as coach at Borger, accomplished all this with a team which even he didn't think would do much.

The Bulldogs were picked to finish no higher than fifth or sixth in pre-season polls, and the most Mayfield would say, before the start of the season, was that his team might be a contender by mid-season. What a contender!

Mayfield, who had several good seasons at Littlefield before coming to Borger, took over a team which had failed to win a district game in 1957. The Bulldogs finished the '57 season with a 3-7 record.

Two of Mayfield's assistants, E. J. Webb and Gene McCandless, came to Borger with him.

One of the main reasons for Borger's success is its abundance of good backs. There are few real standouts, but there are plenty of backs capable of making a few yards — and they are about equal in ability. It's impossible to lay for any one man.

Also helping Borger has been the fact that they have two experienced quarterbacks, Darrel Phillips and Jim Dawson.

The Bulldogs are fairly experienced but not as much as some other district teams. And the lettermen played on a team which didn't win a district game. Also, many of them didn't get very much actual game experience.

Several of Mayfield's best boys either have no experience or have played only B team ball. Among them are fullback Isaac Robinson, 150; tackle Phillips Parker, 175, and halfback Jerry Drake, 140.

The Bulldogs have 14 lettermen. They are tackles Harold Alexander, 185, and Jim Harper, 210; guards David Hogg, 170, Joe Kidd, 150, Jeff Wilcox, 155, and Dale Keith, 185; ends Dickie Meyer, 155 and Bill Rash, 165; centers Kent Connelly, 168 and Dale Keith, 165; quarterbacks Phillips, 145 and Dawson, 155; halfbacks Jim Lamb, 150 and Bobby Jack Spencer and fullback Gordon Beanguard, 170.

Out Of The Past

Whatever Happened To ...

ERIC TIPTON

United Press International
Eric Tipton, an all-round athlete at Duke, made the 1938 All-America football team and "graduated" to major league baseball the following year. Tipton was a real triple-threat as a Duke halfback as famous for his deadly punting as anything else on those great Duke defensive teams of that era. In baseball, he spent parts of his first three seasons in the outfield for the Philadelphia Athletics and then moved to Cincinnati for four more years.

Whatever happened to Eric Tipton? Now 43, he keeps his hand in football as coach of Army's unbeaten 150 pound team.

It's Official Now-Schoendeinst Has TB

MILWAUKEE (UPI)—Second baseman Red Schoendeinst, an "important guy" with the Milwaukee Braves, faced the toughest battle of his baseball career today—overcoming tuberculosis, a disease that probably will keep him from the diamond next season.

Schoendeinst, a 35-year-old baseball veteran, was plagued with colds and soreness in his chest throughout the 1958 season and it was confirmed Tuesday night he is suffering from tuberculosis, a malady which strikes without discrimination.

Although his doctors, teammates, friends and bosses were confident the Braves "little general" will make a successful recovery from tuberculosis, the possibility was raised that being off the playing field for perhaps a year or more might make it very hard for Schoendeinst to make a comeback as a player.

"It is quite likely that he might not play next year," said Dr. Raymond Martin, who has been attending Schoendeinst at St. Louis' Mount St. Rose Tubercular Hospital since Nov. 12. "But we are optimistic about his full recovery."

Stan Musial, the Cardinal great who roomed with Schoendeinst for 11 years on St. Louis road trips, summed up the sentiment among ball players for Schoendeinst.

"He'll battle back," said Musial. "As far as baseball is concerned, I guess that's up to the doctors and Red. And Red doesn't give up easily."

Catcher Del Crandall, the team captain of the Braves, said "Red is an important guy with our club and I know how important baseball is in his life. If he gets out of this and even if he can't play ball again but has his health, that's the most important thing."

Everyone connected with Schoendeinst expressed deep concern over the baseball star's physical condition and how it will affect his wife, three young daughters and infant son, who was born just a few days before Schoendeinst entered the sanatorium to undergo tuberculosis checks.

John Quinn, general manager of the Braves, said "the only thing we are interested in now is the doctor's decision that Red is going to be all right. It will take time, we understand. We'll be disappointed if he can't play, but the principal thing is Red's recovery."

Quinn said the Braves have good replacements for Schoendeinst in Mel Roach, Felix Mantilla and Casey Wise, with Roach being the one who now is recovering from knee surgery, about the best permanent prospect.

New Starlet Already On Shooting Pad

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — A sleep-eyed 18-year-old Chicago model has rewritten the script on how to become a movie star by setting her cap for one particular producer—then nailing him.

Patricia Crest, a cutie with a mission, left the Windy City six months ago determined to snag a contract with producer Jerry Wald.

It took her five months to find an agent who knew Wald well enough to arrange an introduction. But once it was set up Pat hiked out of the mogul's office with contract in hand and a part in a movie.

No screen test. No experience. No romancing. No nothing.

"I knew what I wanted," Pat explained. "There was no luck involved. I made it my business to meet Jerry, and I'm making it my business to become a movie star. And that's exactly what I plan to do."

Why Wald? "Nobody in Hollywood builds stars anymore," Pat continued analytically. "Nobody but Jerry. Stars don't just happen or work themselves to the top.

"They are built. I'd read dozens of stories about Jerry, and I've seen all his pictures. It simply made sense that he was the man for me. He gave Marilyn Monroe, Kim Novak and Diane Varsi their starts, but none of them were under contract to him, I am."

PAPAL TRIBUTE—Etched on a fragile leaf, this likeness of Pope John XXIII is the work of Brother Adrian Lewis, Christian Brother, who serves as head of the placement bureau at New York's Manhattan College. Brother Adrian, who has been practicing his unusual artistry for some 45 years, chose a maple leaf because its three major points symbolize the triple-crowned papal tiara.

Pat, who resembles Leslie Caron somewhat, has enough peculiarities to help her on the rocky road to fame.

For instance, she says she's unable to study a script while wearing clothes.

"I study in the nude," she smiled. "I like the freedom. And I never wear a bathing suit for swimming. It's strictly nude or no swim."

Pat has blue eyes and black hair—another switch. She's really a blonde, but dyes her hair because "there are too many blue-eye blondes out here already."

She wears no makeup—doesn't need it—and refuses to wear lingerie.

Though Pat isn't in orbit yet, she's on the launching pad. One thing she doesn't lack—confidence.

Xmas Seals Big Factor In TB Fight

Great strides have been made in the fight against tuberculosis in recent years, but the battle is far from being over.

The greatest successes so far have been in the saving of lives. Earlier diagnosis and better treatment have cut TB deaths to a point where the mere sound of the word no longer causes a shudder of dread.

With this much accomplished, the campaign can now move forward. Now is the time to mount an all-out offensive against TB. With TB striking one American every six minutes, it is plain that not enough is being done to prevent the disease, although much can and is being done after it has struck.

For this new phase of the battle

we need much more knowledge about TB and the germ that causes it. Intensive scientific research is needed to plumb the secrets of the disease.

A part of every dollar you contribute to the Gray County Tuberculosis Association when you buy Christmas Seals will be spent for this important research. The rest will be spent to hold and further the gains already made through health education, case finding, and rehabilitation. We urge you to increase your contribution this year so that more research can be undertaken to find the means to eradicate tuberculosis from our nation.

DEAR ABBY...

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Maybe I have rocks in my head, but I married the same man twice and we were divorced twice because we fought all the time. Everybody in my family (and his) got their mouths into it and talked us into going back together because of our kids. The same thing is happening again. Our divorce became final in October and now he wants me to remarry him again in time for Christmas. He is a heavy drinker and is always mixed up with two or three women. My children would have a nice Christmas if I tried again. Should I marry him a third time or leave well enough alone?

DEAR ABBY: For my 35th wedding anniversary my husband bought me a plot in a cemetery. Maybe I shouldn't have said the things I did, but how would any wife feel to get this kind of a present when she was expecting a new sewing machine? Was I wrong in feeling hurt?

DEAR ABBY: I am madly in love with a certain boy. I am in the 9th grade and he's in the 10th. The trouble is this. We don't know each other. He is quite bashful and I'd be too embarrassed to ask anyone to introduce us and we don't live close enough to meet by accident. Don't use my name, but sign me "Dying to meet him" and I paper because lots of other girls have the same problem and your answer might help them.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I had quite an experience with Sunday pests. Pretty soon we did not dare to make any plans of our own because we knew these pests would drop in on us. They stayed so late they kept us from going to bed at our usual bedtime. Finally I could take no more without losing my dignity so I sat down and wrote to them. That ended it. They haven't spoken to us since — and they haven't spoiled any more mightier than the sword, Abby, Sundays either. The pen can be

Mature Parent

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

When Mr. J. was five years old he got a sled for Christmas. Time passed, and he outgrew it. It was stored behind some trunks in the cellar.

One snowy winter afternoon when he was 11 years old he came home from school to find his little brother belly-shopping down the front walk on his old sled. Shock and outrage possessed him. But when he sputtered them out to his mother, she was bored and impatient.

She said, "What are you making such a fuss for? You've got your new sled. You never use the old one. It's been rusting in the cellar for years. Of course I gave it to Billy. Now get out of my kitchen. I never heard of such nonsense."

Yesterday evening Mr. J.'s 16-year-old son took his car without asking permission. Hearing it start away from the curb, Mr. J. said to himself, "What's that?" Then, realizing what it was, shock and outrage possessed him. When his son returned with supplies he needed to complete his homework, Mr. J. made a scene from which neither have recovered.

Unknowningly, all this morning at his office he has been feeling the same sense of injury at the younger generation's mistreatment of his property rights that he felt for the older generation's mistreatment of them 35 years ago.

The young often take of our belongings without asking permission. If we feel annoyed at their appropriation of our car, our only pair of white gloves, the magazine we've laid down without finishing, the chances are we had a hard time trying to get our parents to respect our property rights. The intensity of our sense of injustice is always the giveaway. The more angry we are when young Bud drives off with the car, the more likely it is that we are feeling the leftover outrage we felt as helpless children when another different generation seemed to do what it pleased with possessions we thought were ours.

We can reduce the intensity by understanding its root. And begin to appreciate the difference between our relationship to our dependent child and our old dependent one to our parents. Instead of making a big angry scene with Bud, we can make a quiet demand that he seek our permission before taking our car. We can make it reasonably and much, much more impressively.

Yours truly,
LIVE AND LEARN
Dear "Live": I'm sure they got years to get the last laugh is lucky the point.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "STEAM-FITTER": Anyone who waits ten if he remembers what the joke was. Forget it!

RUTH MILLETT

Maybe you aren't as different from your own grandmother as you think you are.

What does your club do when you need to raise money? Do you decide on how much you need and then hold each member responsible for his share? Probably not.

More than likely you decide to have a bake sale and buy cakes from each other just like Grandma used to do. Or give a carnival and "spend" your donation, instead of just giving it outright.

You think saving stamps to trade for goods is something new? Well, Grandma used to save for premiums, too.

You keep up with fashions — clothes, decorating, and entertaining by reading the women's magazines? Well, Godey's Ladies' Book kept the ladies of an earlier day informed on the same subjects.

You belong to a sewing club where a group of congenial women get together to gossip as they sew on buttons and turn hems? There's very little difference between your sewing club and the quilting bees of long ago.

Are you proud of the money you earn at a part-time job? Grandmother had her egg money, too — and she earned it because she liked to have a little money of her own just as you do.

You've got your living room and family room — which probably opens into the kitchen. But Grandma had her parlor and her big warm comfortable kitchen — which was a family room, too.

You're proud of all the food you have stashed away in the freezer? Grandma was just as proud of the jars of fruit and vegetables and meat that lined her cellar cupboards.

You sometimes think nobody appreciates how hard you work? It was Grandma who used to talk about "working her fingers to the bone" and "standing over a hot stove all day."

For a woman, some things never change much.

The study, "Issiah," was presented by Mrs. Wesley Daniel.

Present were Mmes. Bill Teel, Wesley Daniel, C. C. Mullins, W. C. Breining, Jeff Stubblefield, L. W. Upham, Bernard Johnson, W. T. Cole, E. D. Vaughn, and Raymond Barnes.

Refreshments of chili, beans, punch and cookies were served to the following: Misses Janice Jo Freeman, Gay Harris, Vivian Warkinski, Ellen Young, Virginia Hamlin, Gwen Dene Thornburg, Barbara Linder, Brenda Thornburg, Mrs. Alva Thornburg and the hostesses, Mmes. Leon Osborn, B. O. Bertrand and F. J. Poe.

YOUNG IDEAS from Polly Ponds

① I'm awfully skinny and my figure is straight as a stick. Could you tell me how I can gain a little weight and develop some curves?

② Drink an egg nog every night before you go to bed.

Just whip together:
— one egg
— one glass of milk
— two teaspoons of sugar
— a dash of nutmeg

For variety, you can leave out the nutmeg and add a teaspoon of chocolate syrup. This is a painless way of adding a few pounds without having to stuff yourself with extra (and unwanted) food at mealtimes.

You'll develop curves as you grow older. But in the meantime, you might try joining a ballet class. Here, you'll learn to handle your body gracefully while building up your muscles in all the right places. Dancers are always slender — but they're also beautifully curved.

Mrs. Yoder Holds Piano Workshop

The first piano workshop of the year for students of Mrs. H. A. Yoder, was held recently in her home, 1215 Williston. Mrs. Ronald Hubbard and Mrs. H. V. Wilks were hostesses for the elementary school-age group.

The elements of good musicianship were discussed by the group and demonstrations given by Mrs. Yoder. The students then played solos and contributed helpful comments.

The following pupils were present: Beverly Langley, Jimmy and Lyla Beth Gage, Janie and Jean Prock, Harriet Henderson, Prudence Skelly, Joyce Fisher, Cynthia and Gene Key, of Hubbard, Mary and Gene Key, Jo Hubbard, Mary Lou Watkins, David and Andy Wilks and Lynda Gunn. Three others were unable to be present: Russell and Kay Maddox of Miami, and Cynthia Plaster.

Parents present included, Mmes. Vernon Langley, Lyle Gage, Ralph Prock, E. L. Henderson, John Skelly, Joe Elischer, Burgin Watkins, J. E. Gunn and the hostesses.

After the musical portion of the program, refreshments of cakes and cookies were served by the hostesses.

Harmful Household Articles Should Be In Out-of-Reach Locations For Baby

By KAY SHERWOOD
NEA Staff Writer

When the baby is freed from the confines of the playpen and allowed to explore, a mother's watchfulness must increase. The frightening fact that accidents are the chief cause of death in children from 1 to 16 years of age is reason enough to make every effort to protect a child.

Creeping babies and, later, the toddlers, seem especially prone to accidental injury because of their adventurousness and their inability to determine what is safe or what is dangerous.

The kitchen is one place where he'll spend a lot of time, and this is a good spot to check for hazards, first. A point to remember, too, is that each child is different.

One child may be calm, quick to obey and not given to poking fingers into every corner, while his younger sister may be just the opposite. The experience with one child doesn't necessarily apply to the next.

Check contents of floor cabinets. Pots and pans, he'll love to bang and play with. But the cabinet under the sink often contains substances which could be dangerous if he samples a taste.

Move detergents, cleaning agents, polishes and waxes out of reach. If you must rearrange storage to put supplies or utensils you don't want baby meddling with in the base cabinets, seal them shut with masking tape.

Masking tape can also be used to seal exposed electrical outlets and to tape loose cords tight to the wall until more permanent arrangements can be made.

Don't keep laundry supplies on the floor near the machine. Install a shelf over the washer to take the soaps and bleaches.

If you use the giant size boxes of detergents for economy's sake, transfer a week's supply at a time into a canister which can be kept on the shelf and put the big container in the basement or garage.

For safety's sake, do get into the habit of always turning pot handles away from the edge of the stove. If other members of the family cook, make sure they follow this basic safety step. Make sure appliance cords are well out of reach and that sharp knives and scissors are stored away from regular utensils.

Stairways to basement or upper floors should be guarded by locked doors or gates. If your kitchen has an old-fashioned radiator, rearrange furniture to cut off a toddler's access to it.

Medicines are usually kept in the bathroom medicine cabinet, locked up or unreachable, one hopes. But certain medicines may be housed in the kitchen and those should be as carefully shelved as the others.

Don't leave any medicine around tables or counters. Put it in the refrigerator or on a top shelf.

Incidentally, some of the new containers for children's aspirin, both in table and liquid form, are sealed with "safety" caps. They're hard to open, but are not completely toddler-proof.

A good practice is to check the house, particularly the kitchen, thoroughly once each week for hazards which may be present.

For example, a weekend of activity may turn up insecticides, paints, paint thinners, caulkings, compounds and such items that don't belong in the kitchen.

Those should be restored to their proper place, out of sight, in the basement workshop or garage.

The tendency to rush around these days, perhaps doing nothing, seems to speed the appearance of strain lines in the face. Housewife or career woman, it is best to balance working hours with hours of play and relaxation. Try 10 minutes a day of resting with the feet elevated as a refresher.

PTA Delegates Return From State Convention

Mmes. R. A. Mack, E. A. McLennan, George Johnson, James Hall, J. H. Trotter, Essie Mae Walters, Gerald Carter, Preston Wallace, Warren Jackson, Messrs. D. V. Biggers, Stephen F. Austin principal and Aaron Meek, Lamar principal delegates to the 49th Texas Parent Teacher Convention, returned Friday by chartered bus from El Paso. The bus, chartered by District 19 under the direction of Mrs. R. A. Mack, City Council PTA president, carried delegates from Pampa, Borger, Wellington, Shamrock, Clarendon, Panhandle, Childress, Buna Vista and Phillips.

Convention sessions were held in Liberty Hall each morning and evening with group meetings in smaller segments for afternoon study-discussion workshops. In addition to the general discussion, groups held individual conferences for Preschool, superintendents, principals and council presidents. A special luncheon feature each day was a bus tour, which took delegates to Juarez, N. M. and included stops at the 400-year-old Guadalupe Cathedral, a guided tour through the city, and short stops for shopping.

Convention guest speakers were Mrs. A. L. Hendricks, national PTA vice president of Jackson, Miss.; Mrs. Lloyd M. White, lecturer of Kansas City, Mo.; Dr. Hollis A. Moore, committee for the Advancement of School Administration of Washington, D. C.; Dr. Charles H. Dent, assistant professor of Elementary Education, University of Texas, Austin. Also, during the convention, skits and concerts were presented by several El Paso High School Groups.

At the Thursday evening session district presidents were introduced. Mrs. James Lewis, Pampa, District 19 president was among those presented.

Mrs. Butler Gives Review For Circle

Circle 2 meeting of the Woman's Society of Christian Service of Harrah Methodist Church was called to order by Mrs. P. D. Gross on Thursday morning. Mrs. O. M. Butler gave the opening prayer. Roll call was answered with the number of calls made during the week. A short business session was conducted by Mrs. Gross.

The program opened with group singing of "My Country 'Tis of Thee." Devotion was given by Mrs. Bob Chase, entitled "When Trees Rejoice," written by Ruth C. Ikerman.

Mrs. Butler reviewed the story "Were You There?" by R. P. Marshall.

Mrs. Burl Brown gave the benediction. Other members present were Mrs. Joe Singleton and Mrs. Dallas Hodges.

The next meeting will be a joint session of both circles of the Society, and will be on November 20th at 7:30 p.m.

Circle 1 did not meet at the usual 7:30 hour on Thursday, in or-

RUTH MILLETT

There's so much talk today about what's wrong with teenagers maybe we ought to stop now and then to consider what's good about them.

They're franker with adults than we were at their age. It isn't that we didn't know as much about the world and its ways as they do. It's just that we thought we weren't supposed to know and so played dumb when adults were around.

They aren't afraid to defend their own opinions. We held ours just as stubbornly — but we kept still instead of arguing when adults told us "That will be enough of you."

They are more charitable toward each other than we were. If a girl made a false step when we were young she was an outcast. Now a girl's contemporaries stand by her if she makes a tragic mistake.

Today's teenagers are far less pretentious where money matters are concerned. A boy today doesn't hesitate to tell a girl exactly how much money he has in his pocket when they start out on a date, or to confess that he can't afford a movie and a hamburger. It has to be either, or.

Today's teenage girls may seem lacking in ambition — but what they already know they want out of life, a husband, a home, and a family is what our generation was glad to settle for, too — once we had a fling at a career.

And you've got to hand it to them. They've turned the awkward age into an age of poise and self assurance. They are growing up without nearly so many growing pains.

So let's give them credit where credit is due.

"Laughter As A Tonic" Discussion For Lefors Home Demonstration Club Meet

LEFORS (Sp) — "Laughter as a Tonic cannot be denied," stated Mrs. O. O. Bishop, in opening remarks to the Lefors Home Demonstration at its meeting held in the civic center, recently.

The remark was in connection with a Recreation Clinic attended by Mrs. Bishop and Mrs. A. T. Cobb, in Groom.

She continued, "Laughter is a healer not only of the body but of the mind, creating harmony with everyone it comes in contact with promoting good-will. Laughter dispels gloom, dissolves fear, anxiety and anger and many unpleasant situations have been averted by a well-timed laugh."

Mrs. Bishop continued, "Of course there are many types of laughter that are not good; unkind, derisive laughs that are aimed at sarcasm, to hurt instead of to heal.

"Sparkling eyes are characteristic of a laughing person, lips turning up at the corners and the bright spirit of zest and merriment conveying itself to the onlooker."

Mrs. Bishop closed her program by playing a game, leading two songs, and presenting a short skit entitled, "The doctor and the girl injured in a car-wreck."

Christmas ideas were displayed throughout the receiving room including, candles, all shapes and arrangements; centerpieces of every color and arrangement, planters, mosaic tile, paintings, needlework.

The meeting was called to order by Mrs. L. D. Rider, president, who led in the club prayer, followed by roll call and reading of minutes by Mrs. A. T. Cobb.

A dinner of appreciation was planned for the Lefors Volunteer Fire Dept., to be held on Dec. 11, in the civic center. Committees were appointed for finance, entertainment, and food.

The next club meeting was voted to be held Nov. 25, instead of Thanksgiving Day, in the home of Mrs. J. D. Smithee.

The council report was given by Mrs. J. D. Smithee in which she announced a training school to be held in Canyon First Methodist Church, Jan. 8.

Mrs. John L. Lantz was hostess for the afternoon serving cookies and coffee.

Present were Mmes. R. W. Beck, B. D. Vaughn, J. D. Smithee, O. O. Bishop, B. J. Leininger, Wanda Scheibella, J. D. Roan, L. D. Rider, B. J. Deihl, H. L. Braly, Sam Coberly, A. Swafford, M. T. Buck, M. L. Rippey, Wagoner, Jeff Davis, A. T. Cobb, and Charles Roberts.

Many Times Physicians, Nurses Become Drug Addicts

By DELOS SMITH
UPI Science Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — A seldom-mentioned fact of life (outside professional circles) is that some doctors, nurses, and druggists become narcotic addicts, since they have easy access to narcotics. It is mentioned here because all these professionals have had a new, forceful warning of the personal tragedy which awaits anyone who falls into the narcotic trap.

The warner, Dr. Edward R. Bloomquist, of the College of Medical Evangelists, Los Angeles estimated that this terrifying menace of narcotic addiction every year subtracts enough members from the medical profession to fill the annual graduating class of one of the nation's largest medical schools.

The physician's chief defensive weapon against this professional danger is, he said, "an awareness of the personal hazard involved in misuse of narcotics and the ease with which addiction can occur." A doctor who really understands the problem and is practical enough to recognize his human frailty seldom if ever gets addicted, he said.

Scorn for Narcotics
But "ego is a powerful thing," he continued, "and members of the medical profession exhibit one reason for addiction that should never exist among intelligent people—a personal scorn for narcotics and a desire to prove to themselves or others that they can personally utilize them without detriment."

While it is true, statistically, AGREE ON SEPARATION

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Singer Erin O'Brien and her husband of seven years have agreed on a trial six-month separation on the advice of a marriage counselor, according to a spokesman for the couple.

The dark-haired singer's husband, singer Jimmy Fitzgerald, moved out of the couple's home Sunday night on Miss O'Brien's return here from an entertainment tour. They have two sons.

Oh, my aching back

Nagging backache, headache, or muscular aches and pains may come on with over-exertion, emotional upset or day to day stress and strain. And folks who eat and drink unwisely sometimes suffer mild bladder irritation... with the restless uncomfortable feeling.

If you are miserable and worn out because of these discomforts, Doan's Pills often help by their pain relieving action, by their soothing effect to ease bladder irritation, and by their mild diuretic action through the kidneys—tending to increase the output of the 15 miles of kidney tubes.

So if nagging backache makes you feel dragged-out, miserable... with restless, sleepless nights... don't wait... try Doan's Pills... get the same happy relief millions have enjoyed for over 60 years. Ask for new, large economy size and save money. Get Doan's Pills today!

that most addicts are "slum-bred" and have criminal records, class, he said, and "once addicts can come from any social class, the doctor begins to reason as any other addict does in time of stress." He loses his sense of responsibility. He becomes withdrawn and, thinks in logic-tight compartments. Physically, morally and spiritually he moves into the gutter, elbowing his way into a society of felons.

No matter the background of addicts, they all "feel pain, whether physical or psychologic. Constant Tension Hereditarily, environment or both have given them an insecure ego which frequently leaves them shy and diffident." All may be well with them until they discover that narcotics can give them "a synthetic feeling of security."

The insecure among physicians, nurses and druggists have greater opportunity to make this discovery, since they work professionally with narcotics. Add to this the constant tension involved in the practice of medicine with its long hours, unintelligently planned vacations, use of alcohol

Heading the committee for the Pancake Supper this year for the Jaycees is James Crouch. Crouch and his committee have been working steadily for the past few weeks preparing griddles, ordering supplies, getting the big aprons and chef hats ready and seeing that everything is in order for a perfect evening of entertainment.

Tickets for the Pancake Supper went on sale today for $1 for adults and 50 cents for school children. Children under 6 will be admitted free. This price includes all you can eat, Crouch said.

Harmful Household Articles Should Be In Out-of-Reach Locations For Baby

By KAY SHERWOOD
NEA Staff Writer

When the baby is freed from the confines of the playpen and allowed to explore, a mother's watchfulness must increase. The frightening fact that accidents are the chief cause of death in children from 1 to 16 years of age is reason enough to make every effort to protect a child.

Creeching babies and, later, the toddlers, seem especially prone to accidental injury because of their adventurousness and their inability to determine what is safe or what is dangerous.

The kitchen is one place where he'll spend a lot of time, and this is a good spot to check for hazards, first. A point to remember, too, is that each child is different. One child may be calm, quick to obey and not given to poking fingers into every corner, while his younger sister may be just the opposite. The experience with one child doesn't necessarily apply to the next.

Check contents of floor cabinets. Pots and pans he'll love to bang and play with. But the cabinet under the sink often contains substances which could be dangerous if he samples a taste.

Move detergents, cleaning agents, polishes and waxes out of reach. If you must rearrange storage to put supplies or utensils you don't want baby meddling with in the base cabinets, seal them shut with masking tape.

Masking tape can also be used to seal exposed electrical outlets and to tape loose cords tight to the wall until more permanent arrangements can be made.

Don't keep laundry supplies on the floor near the machine. Install a shelf over the washer to take the soaps and bleaches.

If you use the giant size boxes of detergents for economy's sake, transfer a week's supply at a time into a canister which can be kept on the shelf and put the big container in the basement or garage.

For safety's sake, do get into the habit of always turning pot handles away from the edge of the stove. If other members of the family cook, make sure they follow this basic safety step. Make sure appliance cords are well out of reach and that sharp knives and scissors are stored away from regular utensils.

Stairways to basement or upper floors should be guarded by locked doors or gates. If your kitchen has an old-fashioned radiator, rearrange furniture to cut off a toddler's access to it.

Medicines are usually kept in the bathroom medicine cabinet, locked up or unreachable, one hopes. But certain medicines may be housed in the kitchen and those should be as carefully shelved as the others.

Don't leave any medicine around tables or counters. Put it in the refrigerator or on a top shelf.

Incidentally, some of the new containers for children's aspirin, both in table and liquid form, are sealed with "safety" caps. They're hard to open, but are not completely toddler-proof.

A good practice is to check the house, particularly the kitchen, thoroughly once each week for hazards which may be present.

For example, a weekend of activity may turn up insecticides, paints, paint thinners, caulk, cleaning compounds and such items that don't belong in the kitchen.

Those should be restored to their proper place, out of sight, in the basement workroom or garage.

The tendency to rush around these days, perhaps doing nothing, seems to speed the appearance of strain lines in the face. Housewife or career woman, it is best to balance working hours with hours of play and relaxation. Try 10 minutes a day of resting with the feet elevated as a refresher.

PTA Delegates Return From State Convention

Mmes. R. A. Mack, E. A. McLennan, George Johnson, James Hall, J. H. Trotter, Essie Mae Wallace, Gerald Carter, Preston Wallace, Warren Jackson, Messrs. D. V. Biggers, Stephen F. Austin principal and Aaron Meek, Lamar principal delegates to the 49th Texas Parent Teacher Convention, returned Friday by chartered bus from El Paso. The bus, chartered by District 19 under the direction of Mrs. R. A. Mack, City Council PTA president, carried delegates from Pampa, Borger, Wellington, Shamrock, Clarendon, Panhandle, Childress, Buna Vista and Phillips.

Convention sessions were held in Liberty Hall each morning and evening with group meetings in smaller segments for afternoon study-discussion work-shops. In addition to the general discussion groups held individual conferences for Preschool, superintendents, principals and council presidents. A special luncheon feature each day was a bus tour, which took delegates to Juarez, N. M. and included stops at the 400-year-old Guadalupe Cathedral, a guided tour through the city, and short stops for shopping.

Convention guest speakers were Mrs. A. L. Hendricks, national PTA vice president of Jackson, Miss.; Mrs. Lloyd M. White, lecturer, of Kansas City, Mo.; Dr. Hollis A. Moore, committee for the Advancement of School Administration of Washington, D. C.; Dr. Charles H. Dent, assistant professor of Elementary Education, University of Texas, Austin. Also, during the convention, skits and concerts were presented by several El Paso High School Groups.

At the Thursday evening session district presidents were introduced. Mrs. James Lewis, Pampa, District 19 president was among those presented.

Mrs. Butler Gives Review For Circle

Circle 2 meeting of the Woman's Society of Christian Service of Harrah Methodist Church was called to order by Mrs. P. D. Gross on Thursday morning. Mrs. O. M. Butler gave the opening prayer. Roll call was answered with the number of calls made during the week. A short business session was conducted by Mrs. Gross.

The program opened with group singing of "My Country 'Tis of Thee." Devotion was given by Mrs. Bob Chase, entitled "When Trees Rejoice," written by Ruth C. Ikerman.

Mrs. Butler reviewed the story "Were You There?" by R. P. Marshall. Mrs. Burl Brown gave the benediction.

Other members present were Mrs. Joe Singleton and Mrs. Dallas Hodges.

The next meeting will be a joint session of both circles of the Society, and will be on November 20th at 7:30 p.m.

Circle 1 did not meet at the usual 7:30 hour on Thursday, in order that the members could attend a meeting at Lefors Methodist Church to have a Japanese missionary.

RUTH MILLETT

There's so much talk today about what's wrong with teenagers maybe we ought to stop now and then to consider what's good about them.

They're franker with adults than we were at their age. It isn't that we didn't know as much about the world and its ways as they do. It's just that we thought we weren't supposed to know and so played dumb when adults were around.

They aren't afraid to defend their own opinions. We held ours just as stubbornly — but we kept still instead of arguing when adults told us "That will be enough out of you."

They are more charitable toward each other than we were. If a girl made a false step when we were young she was an outcast. Now a girl's contemporaries stand by her if she makes a tragic mistake.

Today's teenagers are far less pretentious where money matters are concerned. A boy today doesn't hesitate to tell a girl exactly how much money he has in his pocket when they start out on a date, or to confess that he can't afford a movie and a hamburger. It has to be either, or.

Today's teenage girls may seem lacking in ambition — but what they already know they want: out of life, a husband, a home, and a family is what our generation was glad to settle for, too — once we had a fling at a career.

And you've got to hand it to them. They've turned the awkward age into an age of poise and self assurance. They are growing up without nearly so many growing pains.

So let's give them credit where credit is due.

"Laughter As A Tonic" Discussion For Lefors Home Demonstration Club Meet

LEFORS (Sp) — "Laughter as a Tonic cannot be denied," stated Mrs. O. O. Bishop, in opening remarks to the Lefors Home Demonstration at its meeting held in the civic center, recently.

The remark was in connection with a Recreation Clinic attended by Mrs. Bishop and Mrs. A. T. Cobb, in Groom.

She continued, "Laughter is a healer not only of the body but of the mind, creating harmony with everyone it comes in contact with promoting good-will. Laughter dispels gloom, dissolves fear, anxiety and anger and many unpleasant situations have been averted by a well-timed laugh."

Mrs. Bishop continued, "Of course there are many types of laughter that are not good; unkind, derisive laughs that are aimed at sarcasm, to hurt instead of to heal."

"Sparkling eyes are characteristic of a laughing person, lips turning up at the corners and the bright spirit of zest and merriment conveying itself to the onlooker."

Mrs. Bishop closed her program by playing a game, leading two songs, and presenting a short skit entitled, "The doctor and the girl injured in a car-wreck."

Christmas ideas were displayed throughout the receiving room including, candles, all shapes and arrangements; centerpieces of every color and arrangement, planters, mosaic tile, paintings, needlework.

The meeting was called to order by Mrs. L. D. Rider, president, who led in the club prayer, followed by roll call and reading of minutes by Mrs. A. T. Cobb.

A dinner of appreciation was planned for the Lefors Volunteer Fire Dept. to be held on Dec. 11, in the civic center. Committees were appointed for finance, entertainment, and food. The next club meeting was voted to be held Nov. 25, instead of Thanksgiving Day, in the home of Mrs. J. D. Smithee.

The council report was given by Mrs. J. D. Smithee in which she announced a training school to be held in Canyon First Methodist Church, Jan. 8.

Mrs. John L. Lantz was hostess for the afternoon serving cookies and coffee.

Present were Mmes. R. W. Beck, B. D. Vaughn, J. D. Smithee, O. O. Bishop, B. J. Leininger, Wanda Schebella, J. D. Roan, L. D. Rider, B. J. Deihl, H. L. Braly, Sara Coberly, A. Swafford, M. T. Buck, M. L. Rippey, Wagoner, Jeff Davis, A. T. Cobb, and Charles Roberts.

Pampa Jr. High PTA to Hear Talk By Homer Craig

Pampa Junior High School PTA will meet at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Junior High auditorium for Dad's Night and the program, "American Education... Why?" Homer Craig, business manager for Pampa school system, will be the guest speaker.

A door prize of a German Chocolate Cake, baked by Mrs. Shirley Nickols, will be awarded during the evening.

A report of the state convention recently in El Paso will be given by Mrs. J. H. Trotter, president of the Junior High PTA.

Following the meeting, there will be visitation in the classrooms.

Many Times Physicians, Nurses Become Drug Addicts

By DELOS SMITH
UPI Science Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — A seldom-mentioned fact of life (outside professional circles) is that some doctors, nurses, and druggists become narcotic addicts, since they have easy access to narcotics. It is mentioned here because all these professionals have had a new, forceful warning of the personal tragedy which awaits anyone who falls into the narcotic trap.

that most addicts are "slum-bred" and have criminal records, class, he said, and "once addicts can come from any social class, the doctor begins to reason as any other addict does in time of stress. He loses his sense of responsibility. He becomes withdrawn and thinks in logic-tight compartments. Physically, morally and spiritually he moves into the gutter, elbowing his way into a society of felons."

Heading the committee for the Pancake Supper this year for the Jaycees is James Crouch. Crouch and his committee have been working steadily for the past few weeks preparing griddles, ordering supplies, getting the big aprons and chef hats ready and seeing that everything is in order for a perfect evening of entertainment.

Tickets for the Pancake Supper went on sale today for $1 for adults and 50 cents for school children. Children under 6 will be admitted free. This price includes all you can eat, Crouch said.

NOISY SAFECRACKERS
SPURGEON, Ind. (UPI) — Safe-crackers set off a charge of nitroglycerin to break into the vault of the First National Bank. It worked. But the explosion drew such a crowd they had to run away without the money.

CHILD PROBLEM
SEOUL, Korea (UPI) — Seoul police asked parents today to affix a name and address to each child under school age. Police said officers are now spending altogether too much time searching for lost children and returning those they find.

The physician's chief defensive weapon against this professional danger is, he said, "an awareness of the personal hazard involved in misuse of narcotics and the ease with which addiction can occur." A doctor who really understands the problem and is practical enough to recognize his human frailty seldom, if ever gets addicted, he said.

Scorn for Narcotics
But "ego is a powerful thing," he continued, "and members of the medical profession exhibit one reason for addiction that should never exist among intelligent people—a personal scorn for narcotics and a desire to prove to themselves or others that they can personally utilize them without detriment."

AGREE ON SEPARATION
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Singer Erin O'Brien and her husband of seven years have agreed on a trial six-month separation on the advice of a marriage counselor, according to a spokesman for the couple. The dark-haired singer's husband, singer Jimmy Fitzgerald, moved out of the couple's home Sunday night on Miss O'Brien's return here from an entertainment tour. They have two sons.

Ty Was A Man About Town From The Moment He 'Hit'

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of two dispatches on Tyron Power, revealing his romances, marriages, successes and failures.

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Tyron Power, a romantic figure on the screen, cut a romantic swath through the hearts of filmgoers' gamour girls, dating many Hollywood stars, but never settling down to married life — though he made three trips to the altar.

In 1936 when he burst to stardom as a dashing broker in "Lords of London," he was single, slender and handsome.

Power became a man-about-town, a nightclub habitué escorting Loreita Young, Janet Gaynor, Sonia Henie and Norma Shearer to the spots along Sunset Strip. Ty was a "catch," and his popularity burgeoned swiftly as his career sky-rocketed with "In Old Chicago," "Second Honeymoon," "Alexander's Ragtime Band," "Sue," "Marie Antoinette" and "Jesse James."

In 1939 he married French actress Annabella, whose real name was Ann Carpenter. She was four years older than Power and the mother of a 9-year-old daughter. To Power it meant the end of his carefree days — and it was. For nine years.

Enlists In Marines
During his marriage to the blonde star Power realized his greatest success, starring in such hits as "The Mark of Zorro," "Blood and Sand," "The Blue Swan" and "A Yank in the R.A.F."

He enlisted in the Marine Corps in 1942 and became a 2nd lieutenant, serving in Squadron 333 of the Marine Transport Command. Power was based in the Pacific at Kwajalein, Saipan, Okinawa and Kyushu.

Like many another star, Ty returned to Hollywood wondering if he could pick up the threads of his career.

His doubts were dispelled in 1945 when he scored in "The Razor's Edge."

But his tour in the service had changed the happy-go-lucky Power. He came back to civilian life a quieter, more thoughtful man. His thoughts turned to the stage, but a firm contract with 20th Century-Fox forced him to continue making movies.

He divorced Annabella (they had no children) in 1948, and a year and a day later he married lynx-eyed Linda Christian in Rome, dating Lana Turner, among others, between marriages.

It proved an expensive and brief marriage. They divorced after six years when Ty agreed to a million-dollar settlement.

Devoted To Daughters
Their scraps, public and private, kept gossip columnists working overtime, but Power said nothing of his personal life. He was devoted to his daughters, Taryn, 5, and Romina Francesca, 8. Even after their divorce in 1955, the dapper actor spent as much time with the youngsters as possible.

Following his divorce, Power sought his life's ambition, to become a star in the legitimate theater.

Free from his studio contract, he traveled to London to star in the stage version of "Mr. Roberts." His efforts were greeted with lukewarm reviews. Then he toured the United States in "John Brown's Body," convincing his countrymen, at least, that he was a powerful dramatic performer.

Then he returned to movie-making. But now a new kind of hero was the rage — epitomized by Marlon Brando and Jimmy Dean.

His pictures were good, his performances applauded. "The Long Gray Line," "The Eddie Duchin Story" and "The Sun Also Rises" — but audiences stayed home to watch television.

Tyron Power had outlived the magic quality of his type — the clean-cut, romantic hero.

He became a stranger to Hollywood, appearing in Tinsel Town only to make pictures before retreating to New York, Mexico or Europe. At the time he said, "There is little to keep me here on the West Coast. Most of my friends are gone, and when I'm not working there is no stimulus for me here."

"Besides, I'm anxious to see more of the world and enjoy myself. I've worked hard for a long time."

His friends said Power should remarry, that he'd never found the right wife. But they were surprised last May 3 when Power secretly wed 26-year-old Deborah Mindaros near her home in Tunisia, Miss.

They settled briefly in Hollywood before leaving for Spain and Ty's starring role in "Solomon and Sheba," a biblical extravaganza — the type of movie that boomed Power to the heights.

And it was there he died, dressed in costume and grease paint.

Tyron Power, born in Cincinnati, Ohio, in 1914, followed in the tradition of his family. He was an actor. He was a proud, dignified man who sought recognition as a serious dramatic performer.

Instead, he will go down in movietown history as one of the great matinee idols of his time.

HIS LAST ROLE — Tyron Power wears the biblical robes for his part as Solomon in the film "Solomon and Sheba," being filmed in Madrid, Spain. The 44-year-old actor collapsed and died of a heart attack on the set. Power suffered the attack immediately after engaging in a strenuous dueling scene with a would-be assassin.

Leotards Sweeping The Nation

By NATALIE BEST
United Press International
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)

American women have long been accused of wearing the pants in the family. Now, with the influence of the beatnik's leotard craze, apparel designers predict more of the nation's fair sex will be sporting pants next year than ever before.

"Every woman from 2 to 92 will have some version of shorts, slacks or stocking leotards in her wardrobe next year," said the glamorous sportswear designer Stephanie Koret.

"I personally have three dozen pairs of pants in my closet and wear them all at one time or another. Each girl or her mother can find use for at least three pairs of pants in her wardrobe out of the basic six styles."

"Short shorts, smart pants (that's midcalf length) and bachelors (ankle length) are the most popular," the slim, dark-haired designer said. "But bermudas (mid-calf length), fishermen's pants (just below knee length) and capri pants (mid knee and ankle) will come into their own next year. They will be especially good for the over 40 age group."

The ballet master's leotards — tight-fitting knitted or jersey pants including built-in feet and a drawstring waistline — has found favor, especially among the teen-ager and the arty Bohemians, currently dubbed "beatniks" in their native haunts of North Beach, San Francisco.

"This 'underwear look' is carrying things a little too far," thinks Miss Koret, one of the West's largest sportswear producers. "But I'm sure there is a trend, though brief, toward snuggies (we used to call 'em red flannels) for outer wear."

Daily oil production of the United States totaled 6,294,135 barrels during the first week of April, 1958.

The United States produces 25 per cent of the world's milk supply.

Alto Succesas Surveyor Allen

PERRYTON (Sp) — Robert H. Holt has been appointed to fill the term of County surveyor vacated by Rupert C. Allen. On his resignation recently Allen had two years to serve.

Holt worked for Allen for the past two years.

Allen was elected Ochiltree County surveyor on Nov. 3, 1956 and took office three days later. This Allen ever sought. He was reelected for the next 60 years without an opponent.

NEWSPAPERMEN SET FOR BIG SALES PUSH

LUBBOCK (Sp) — More than one hundred thirty-two salesmen from 19 newspapers in West Texas and Eastern New Mexico declared themselves ready today for the biggest nation wide sales push ever undertaken by the newspaper industry — or by any other industry.

Enthusiastic support was pledged for newspapermen's Total Selling Program of 1959, plans for which were disclosed in full detail at a district Total Selling Rally in Lubbock, one of one hundred and twenty-two taking place in a period of a few days and covering all areas of the United States and Canada.

Leading newspaper executives of the area participated in the rally, which was under the chairmanship of Wayne Henley, Advertising Director of the Avalanche Journal, who has been appointed captain for this district by the Newspaper Advertising Executives Association, one of the organizations sponsoring the Total Selling program.

Representing the Pampa Daily News were: Homer Deck, advertising manager, and Ernest H. Searle, classified advertising manager.

The magnitude of the project was indicated by the many elements of the program revealed at the rally here.

The purpose and concept of the program, which is designed as an all out nation wide effort in behalf of the newspaper industry and its advertisers, were described in a recorded slide film presentation by the three top leaders of the project: Lewis Weil, Jr., Publisher of the Lafayette "Ind." Journal and Courier and Chairman of the Bureau Board; Charles T. Lipscomb, Jr., President of the Bureau; and Charles E. Larod, Advertising Director of the Indianapolis Newspapers, Inc. and President of the "NAEA."

US, Western Allies Face Hard Time With Soviets

(EDITORS NOTE: Twenty-five years ago Sunday, Nov. 16, 1933, United States established diplomatic relations with Communist Russia. More than one-half of that time has been a period of cold war between the U.S. and her allies on the one hand and the Soviets on the other.)

(Two United Press International correspondents — Joseph W. Grigg, chief European correspondent, and K. C. Thaler, chief diplomatic correspondent in London — have covered all important East-West developments during those turbulent cold war years. They are at present covering the two Western-Soviet conferences in Geneva.)

(In the following joint dispatch they review the prospects for relations between Russia and the West in the coming critical months and years.)

So far it has been marked by — Russia's threat against the West in Berlin.

— Stepped up Soviet propaganda attacks against the West, particularly against the United States, all along the cold war battlefronts.

— Russia's successful move to swing once-recalcitrant Poland right back into the Communist line by renewed support for the Oder-Neisse frontier during this week's Moscow visit of Polish Premier Wladyslaw Gomulka.

— Revived Russian demands for a new East-West summit meeting.

— The tough, unbending Soviet line in both Geneva conferences.

Diplomats Probe Motives

What is behind this new Soviet cold war drive?

Seasoned western diplomats believe that as far as Europe is concerned it is a full dress campaign to consolidate the whole Communist position to solidify the "cold war frontier" in Europe for years to come.

Experienced diplomats believe the Middle-Eastern and Far Eastern drives probably were diversionary moves designed to shake up the West before the main offensive in Europe.

Khushchev, they believe, has concluded that German reunification on Russia's terms is out as far as the immediate future is concerned.

Hence, in order to solidify Russia's Eastern European position, he has launched another major attempt to win international recognition and respect for his East German Communist satellite.

One step towards this was his proposal to pull Soviet troops out of East Germany. But free West Berlin, the biggest remaining window and "escape hatch" towards the West behind the Iron Curtain, must be eliminated before this can be achieved.

For this reason many Western diplomats believe Russia will step up the West Berlin squeeze to the very limit short of war. They see signs that, despite repeated Western pledges, Khushchev still may not be fully convinced that the West would in fact go to war to save West Berlin.

Geneva Talks Important

The two Geneva conferences on suspension of nuclear testing and prevention of surprise attacks appear to be just minor fronts in Russia's present cold war drive. But they are important because they are the first major East-

West diplomatic get-togethers since Russia's swing back to "Stalinism."

The renewed pressure on Berlin, the repeated, polite but relentless Russian "nyet" at the Geneva conference table, Moscow's moves to isolate and insult "heretic" Titoist Yugoslavia politically and economically from the rest of the Communist world, the West to the very brink.

Poland's restoration to the fold — all add up to the inescapable conclusions that:

— "Stalinism" is back to stay.

— Russia is in a tougher, more determined mood than ever.

— Russia will be harder to deal with than ever in the past.

— Although Khushchev probably would not deliberately provoke war, he is ready to push the rest of the Communist world, the West to the very brink.

GENEVA (UPI) — The United States and her Western allies face a long period of Soviet "brinkmanship."

Russia's leaders today appear tougher, more confident, readier to take risks, less willing to compromise with the West.

They will be as hard if not harder to do business with in the future than they were in the past.

But they are not likely to provoke a nuclear world war unless the West threatens one of their vital interests.

That is the rather grim outlook for the near future in Soviet-Western relations as seen by Western diplomats with long experience of dealing with the Soviets — the men who are having to deal with them again at two Geneva conference tables right now.

These diplomats believe the Kremlin's foreign policy is going through one of its periodical major shifts. It is perhaps the most significant change of wind since Nikita Khrushchev threw "Stalinism" overboard and gave the world the gleaming — but, as it turned out, only temporary—hope of a thaw in the East-West cold war.

Today the pendulum appears to have swung right back again. The world is witnessing a return to "Stalinism," at least in Russia's foreign policy.

The swing-back is marked by a new Soviet cold war offensive. It hit the West first in the Middle East last summer, then in the Far East in September and now has struck again in Europe—the most critical and most potentially explosive point in East-West relations.

Texas Ranks 3rd In Number Of Motels

AUSTIN (UPI)—Texas ranks third in the number of motels behind California and Florida, the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research has reported.

A research bureau report said Texas is estimated to have between 3,000 and 3,600 motels at present. The wide variation, the report said, is due to the lack of a standard definition of a motel — as opposed to a hotel.

The report traced the development of motels, or tourist courts, from the days when they "brought to mind, more often than not little more than a remodeled chicken house in someone's orchard," to the present trend toward large, luxury-type, all-service motels.

"The heart of the Texas motel industry in the foreseeable future, however, will continue to be the 'bread and butter' operations — the independent, family-owned and operated, and relatively small motels that will preserve a primary orientation toward the traveling public," the research bureau said.

Among newer luxury-type motels built in Texas, the report said, were a 50-unit, $500,000 motel completed by Hilton Hotels, Inc., in downtown San Antonio last June.

The same organization also is building a $750,000 facility at El Paso. A 64-unit, $600,000 Holiday Inn was opened at Abilene in July, another 68-unit Holiday Inn opened in Corpus Christi the same month, and another opened this year near Dallas' Love Field.

Assuming A Duty

With so much emphasis being placed these days on charity and the doing of "good works" it is unavoidable, we suppose, that certain misconceptions should arise respecting the word "obligations."

First, we are greatly enchanted with the word "duty." We have scant time for persons who avoid duty as they would a bout with a virus. The persons we admire are those who have selected their duties, assumed them, and then conduct themselves in line of duty in a manner which enhances both the job they do and the character they achieve thereby.

We'd like to discuss this briefly. First, we are greatly enchanted with the word "duty." We have scant time for persons who avoid duty as they would a bout with a virus. The persons we admire are those who have selected their duties, assumed them, and then conduct themselves in line of duty in a manner which enhances both the job they do and the character they achieve thereby.

If we observe, let us say, a couple involved in a spat, do we have a duty, are we obliged to enter into the spat and take the side of one or the other in the interests of peace? If we presume this, heaven help us. More likely than not, the couple will join forces to repel our own unwelcome intrusion.

Take another example. Here is a young man, out of work, and sorely in need of funds. Do we have a "duty" or an obligation to step forward and help him? Our answer is an unequivocal no. We may volunteer for such duty. We may elect to champion the young fellow out of the goodness of our hearts. And when we so elect, then we have assumed the obligation of the duty, and should go thru with it. Until we so elect, no duty appears.

The Golden Rule

As most of our readers know, we believe in the Golden Rule. There are a number of ways in which this rule has been expressed but, in general, the sense of the rule is that you are supposed to conduct yourself towards others as you would like the others to conduct themselves toward you.

We believe this to be a sound doctrine, not only because it is a revealed and therefore a hallowed precept, but because it makes sense. So far as we know, eleven of the world's great religions employ this rule in one wording or another. It is possible that many others of the more than 2,900 existing religions also use it.

With such wide usage and general acceptance it seems odd that people do not understand the rule. But understand it, they do not. And, of course, since they do not understand it, there are multitudes who do not practice it.

There is a general interpretation of the rule which goes something like this: If a man has money and a second man who is in impoverished circumstances approaches the first man and asks him for money, then it is a practice of the golden rule for the first man to give the second man some money.

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HOILES

What's Your Guess? I read an interesting article in the November issue of "The Freeman" magazine on "How To Increase Tax Revenue."

The part that surprised me, and I presume it would surprise most everyone, was their compilation of income tax figures for 1956 which showed that if everyone who had income above their allowed deductions paid at the rate of 20 per cent instead of having pay on a graduated basis up to 91 per cent, the loss from taxation, if business was the same, would only be 15.1 per cent.

If more people understood this, those in the 20 per cent bracket would be just as much interested in government economy as those in the larger income brackets. When most people think that most of the income taxes are paid by those who pay more than 20 per cent, they are not so much interested in government economy as they would be if they knew that it is the 20 per cent that make up practically 81 per cent of the personal income tax.

The article was written by Jay Morrison, who was recently retired as an official of Boeing Airplane Company. Mr. Morrison's plan of increasing total personal income taxes would be to have everybody pay 24 per cent of their taxable income rather than have some pay 20 per cent and others pay up to 91 per cent. He makes this observation:

"Most great American fortunes have been made, not by sales of high priced goods or services to the rich but by volume sales to masses of people. This is a fact worthy of further consideration by legislators and officers responsible for raising the funds needed for governmental operations."

Many people believe the individual income tax of our federal government derives a large amount of revenue because of its "progressive" nature. By "progressive" is meant a higher rate of taxation upon larger incomes.

For example, under the tax rates as they now stand a taxpayer with from $1.00 to $2,000 of taxable net income (that is, income remaining after subtraction of all deductions and exemptions) is required to pay a tax of "20 per cent" of that "net taxable income."

Undoubtedly the reason we have the present graduation is that most people do not see that this graduation really hurts the wage earner more than it hurts the man who pays 91 per cent on all his income above $200,000.

There are few things so important as our own ability and willingness to make correct and moral choices. If we choose incorrectly, the burden is upon us. If we choose correctly, then the rewards of victory are with us. But if there is no choice, if we are compelled to assume obligations and duties which are not rightfully our own thru our own choosing, then we have entered into a fool's paradise.

Freedom depends on choice. Our obligations and duties are those we willingly assume. Assuming that most of us do not have unlimited capital, it would not be long before all of us would become beggars, since we would have shared what we have with those who have not and the stores of earnings we had laid by would have been consumed. In short, all of us would become beggars. But no one would be left to beg himself by our mendaciousness.

Now let us look at the other side of the rule. For it is a poor rule if it does not have two sides. The beggar, before approaching the man of means should not only have placed the man of means in his shoes, he should have placed himself in the other man's shoes. And in that position he could have reasoned:

I am now a man of means. I have wealth, but with the wealth has come all of the attendant responsibilities and liabilities. If a beggar approaches me, would I not aid him more certainly if I encouraged him to become self-supporting, rather than to remain a beggar? If I give him something for nothing, will I not merely have encouraged him to remain a beggar, albeit a successful beggar?

Would it not be a greater act of charity to refuse to support him in that condition, and instead, to find a job for him, or otherwise encourage him to stand on his own feet? Surely, from my standpoint as a man of means, I would wish that the beggar did not approach me at all. All dignity and approach is based upon exchanges. I would willingly exchange something that I have for something that the beggar has. But if the beggar has nothing, then I would give him something for his nothing, thereby sustaining him in his weakness.

Thus we see the golden rule applied, not in one direction, but in two. And this is the only way the rule can be applied. It is not enough to suppose that it is an act of kindness to give; it must also be supposed that it is an equal act of kindness to ask for a gift. There is, of course, the myth that a person of means does not need to be treated kindly. He has money, it is thought, therefore he is beyond human kindness. Consequently, in our time we see the Golden Rule applied as a one-dimensional guide. But as such it is no guide at all. It is simply a type of wishful thinking in which it is presumed that whatever a person wishes, some other person should, in like circumstance, also wish.

He Has One Advantage

The part that surprised me, and I presume it would surprise most everyone, was their compilation of income tax figures for 1956 which showed that if everyone who had income above their allowed deductions paid at the rate of 20 per cent instead of having pay on a graduated basis up to 91 per cent, the loss from taxation, if business was the same, would only be 15.1 per cent.

If more people understood this, those in the 20 per cent bracket would be just as much interested in government economy as those in the larger income brackets. When most people think that most of the income taxes are paid by those who pay more than 20 per cent, they are not so much interested in government economy as they would be if they knew that it is the 20 per cent that make up practically 81 per cent of the personal income tax.

The article was written by Jay Morrison, who was recently retired as an official of Boeing Airplane Company. Mr. Morrison's plan of increasing total personal income taxes would be to have everybody pay 24 per cent of their taxable income rather than have some pay 20 per cent and others pay up to 91 per cent. He makes this observation:

"Most great American fortunes have been made, not by sales of high priced goods or services to the rich but by volume sales to masses of people. This is a fact worthy of further consideration by legislators and officers responsible for raising the funds needed for governmental operations."

Many people believe the individual income tax of our federal government derives a large amount of revenue because of its "progressive" nature. By "progressive" is meant a higher rate of taxation upon larger incomes.

For example, under the tax rates as they now stand a taxpayer with from $1.00 to $2,000 of taxable net income (that is, income remaining after subtraction of all deductions and exemptions) is required to pay a tax of "20 per cent" of that "net taxable income."

Undoubtedly the reason we have the present graduation is that most people do not see that this graduation really hurts the wage earner more than it hurts the man who pays 91 per cent on all his income above $200,000.

There are few things so important as our own ability and willingness to make correct and moral choices. If we choose incorrectly, the burden is upon us. If we choose correctly, then the rewards of victory are with us. But if there is no choice, if we are compelled to assume obligations and duties which are not rightfully our own thru our own choosing, then we have entered into a fool's paradise.

Freedom depends on choice. Our obligations and duties are those we willingly assume. Assuming that most of us do not have unlimited capital, it would not be long before all of us would become beggars, since we would have shared what we have with those who have not and the stores of earnings we had laid by would have been consumed. In short, all of us would become beggars. But no one would be left to beg himself by our mendaciousness.

Now let us look at the other side of the rule. For it is a poor rule if it does not have two sides. The beggar, before approaching the man of means should not only have placed the man of means in his shoes, he should have placed himself in the other man's shoes. And in that position he could have reasoned:

I am now a man of means. I have wealth, but with the wealth has come all of the attendant responsibilities and liabilities. If a beggar approaches me, would I not aid him more certainly if I encouraged him to become self-supporting, rather than to remain a beggar? If I give him something for nothing, will I not merely have encouraged him to remain a beggar, albeit a successful beggar?

Would it not be a greater act of charity to refuse to support him in that condition, and instead, to find a job for him, or otherwise encourage him to stand on his own feet? Surely, from my standpoint as a man of means, I would wish that the beggar did not approach me at all. All dignity and approach is based upon exchanges. I would willingly exchange something that I have for something that the beggar has. But if the beggar has nothing, then I would give him something for his nothing, thereby sustaining him in his weakness.

Thus we see the golden rule applied, not in one direction, but in two. And this is the only way the rule can be applied. It is not enough to suppose that it is an act of kindness to give; it must also be supposed that it is an equal act of kindness to ask for a gift. There is, of course, the myth that a person of means does not need to be treated kindly. He has money, it is thought, therefore he is beyond human kindness. Consequently, in our time we see the Golden Rule applied as a one-dimensional guide. But as such it is no guide at all. It is simply a type of wishful thinking in which it is presumed that whatever a person wishes, some other person should, in like circumstance, also wish.

Little Difference In Rockefeller, Harriman

by WESTBROOK PEGLER

Unseeing, the people of this country have been witness to the infiltration of the communist-socialist revolution by capitalism. In New York two men who inherited countless millions were the big party candidates for governor, Harriman and Rockefeller, and vice-versa. There is not the slightest difference between them politically and Rockefeller served the Roosevelt-Truman regime as

Rockefeller's father, trying to assuage public hatred of the clan after the Ludlow Massacre in Colorado, explained that the Rockefeller were the perfect flower on the stalk of the human race, a rose brought to splendor by the ruthless sacrifice of many little buds and suckers on the stem. There was a reaction of horror from the pulpit and of hatred from a press which then was aloof toward "predatory wealth." The present Rockefeller was not a party to that situation, but like Harriman, Marshall Field and many other heirs of great fortunes, he seems to have felt some embarrassment, possibly guilt, in his association with the fortune and the reputation which his grandfather founded. Harriman's father was morally ambiguous and more a financial Democratic Republican Union, and Dr. Rafael Caldera, secretary general of the Christian Democratic Party. Bentancourt has had a stormy political career. He was one of the founders of the Democratic Action Party in 1941. From 1945 to 1948 he headed a junta. After Perez Jimenez seized control, Bentancourt went into exile and didn't return to Venezuela until early this year after the dictator was overthrown.

Since then, Bentancourt has worked closely with Communist elements, who are supporting him for president. But there are growing indications he may quit the race in a deal with Larrazabal. It is definitely known they have been discussing terms on that.

One of Bentancourt's reported demands is Communist participation in a Larrazabal regime. Dr. Caldera, 42-year-old attorney, was the Christian Democratic Party's presidential candidate some years ago. He was imprisoned by dictator Jimenez. Caldera is rated as having only an outside chance of winning, particularly if Larrazabal and Bentancourt join forces.

Also, heaven help us all and the hoop-secters, too, there is a do-it-yourself hoop, a luminous hoop for after-dark gyration and a lawn shower hoop for next summer. It is a little astonishing that Bill Boyd hasn't got into the act with a Hoop-Along Cassidy hoop.

In any event, more and more of the serious malformations of the heart are now successfully treated by surgery. Not all of them are yet amenable to surgery, of course.

Robert Allen Reports:

Has Brazil Really Been Cheated By Manufacturers?

WASHINGTON — A number of large manufacturers and export firms are under double-barreled investigation on separation-packed charges of defrauding Brazil of many millions in U. S. dollars. These probes are being made by the Justice Department and the Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee on Latin American Affairs, headed by Senator Wayne Morse (D., Ore.).

They are acting on complaints by Brazilian officials and banks. According to evidence they have submitted, the American concerns shipped goods to Brazil under falsified bills of lading which made it appear they originated in Belgium and Finland.

By this alleged trickery, higher rates of dollar exchange were obtained than for shipments direct from the U. S. The Brazilians assert these illegal operations extended over a period of several years, and resulted in the loss to Brazil of many millions in much-needed U. S. currency.

The Justice Department decided to look into this matter after discussions with the State Department. That was done, according to information received by Senator Morse, because the Commerce Department made strenuous efforts to persuade Justice officials not to launch a formal investigation.

Commerce authorities reportedly urged a different course. They are said to have proposed that the Americans involved be privately summoned and warned to cease their fraudulent practices, under threat of prosecution if they didn't do so.

This was strongly advocated largely on the ground that Brazil has taken no legal action against its nationals who are implicated. The Justice Department's probe is being made by the U. S. Attorney in New York. Senator Morse contemplates airing these charges when his subcommittee begins public hearings next month on trade and other relations between the U. S. and Latin America. In preparation for this, he has asked the State Department for a full report on the Brazilian transactions.

It is also very likely that State, Justice and Commerce officials will be interrogated by Morse. EXPLOSIVE ELECTION — Venezuela is very much on the mind of the State Department's Latin American experts, and it isn't because Governor-elect Nelson Rockefeller is vacationing there. Reason for their concern is a presidential election on December 7.

Reports from diplomatic and other authoritative sources are giving rise to increasing apprehension that the next Venezuelan government may include one or more Communists. This apparently strong possibility is being watched with closest attention because of the huge oil and other holdings in Venezuela. Communist elements have long advocated state ownership of this oil.

So have certain leaders of the Democratic Action Party of Romulo Bentancourt, one of the three presidential candidates. The others are Admiral Larrazabal, 47-year-old head of the junta now ruling Venezuela, and the candidate of the

But as such it is no guide at all. It is simply a type of wishful thinking in which it is presumed that whatever a person wishes, some other person should, in like circumstance, also wish. It would not be difficult to establish that the major ills we presently face have come upon us thru our failure to apply the Golden Rule in both directions rather than in one.

Looking Sideways

By Whitney Bolton

NEW YORK — CUFF NOTES: Don't believe all you read, however welcome it might be to you, about the dying out of the hoop craze... The hoop, as just a hoop, is dying out as a fad... But variations on the theme have been dreamed up and the manufacturers are feeling the compulsion to give them resounding titles.

First, the craze is beginning to invade Europe, which means that millions of the high density polyethylene circles will be going there, and second, the major song on the subject, "The Hula Hoop Song," is reported to be the tune becoming No. 1 in Europe in a variety of languages. Also, here at home, new ideas and projections will keep the kids (and some added adults) spinning for months... One: a Hoop Head, involving the use of a hoop attached to the top of a skull cap is going out to the trade at 100,000 units a day... The National Recreation pamphlet establishing that one's health can be improved by gratifying inside a hoop.

There have been 32 and 35 million hoops made for this country and it is estimated that European sales will top 20,000,000. Gromyko commands so many words that it is a pity he has nothing to say. His recent speech against the United States offered not one bit of proof to justify his charges. "Speeches of this kind," said one observer, "Make a travesty of the United Nations." The name of that observer was Henry Cabot Lodge.

of politics, and become an army of occupation intending to impose something which might be called radical capitalism? Or Communist capitalism? That is a shock-up and contradictory term... but aren't they all? Aren't they? Many of the richest retail merchants in the world are enthusiastic party Democrats. More than a scattering of them pay elaborate respect to the Widow Roosevelt on occasions plainly contrived to enhance her political influence. It is scintillatingly said that she has no influence, but if she were important she would not have been quoted prominently in opposition to Frank Hogan, the New York Democratic nominee for Senator, not in a doubting voice about Jack Kennedy, wiggling him for insufficient ferocity against Joe McCarthy. Nor would Jack, belatedly, have boasted that he had led McCarthy to be grievously wrong and would have voted against him had he not been sick abed. The Lady's mere misgiving about Hogan was honored with a two-column head in the Herald Tribune, which professes to be a Republican newspaper. And, for that matter, it is about as Republican as most Republican papers. A political has-been or nonentity commands no such attention. Would your wife, who conceivably is Mrs. Roosevelt's moral equal, receive such deferential publication for mere expressions of doubt concerning eminent politicians?

Jack Whitney, another heir to enormous wealth and a nominal Republican, having taken control of the H-T, has not abated the editorialistic vein in the privilege. "Departments" — Radio — TV, "Books" and Hollywood. Mr. Whitney is not a blank-eyed, loose-lipped raveling of a Great Family. He is an aggressive, successful business man. He knows what he is doing and why.

Great Foundations, founded by capitalists, have financed "projects" of "the other side" almost exclusively. The friendless Frank Costello got 18 months for contempt of the contemptible Kefauver Committee, but a Communist who shows not only contempt for Congress but hostility to the United States goes free by intercession of the Supreme Court. The protest expressed against such liberty in organs of "opinion" is feeble, mixed and, on the whole, submissive.

All this may promise inflation, dictatorship, dissolution and other shapeless horrors of a dark future. But the rich seem to have no fear for their money, which is their principal stake in this world, for they are not notably moral or conscientious.

When Cyrus Eaton, with his millions, parleys aimably with a sinner and meets at the apprehensions of the FBI and the Congressional committees, have he and his kind the confidence of cagey players with aces back-to-back?

STRIKES BLAMED

New car sales by dealers averaged 11,740 units for the first 10 days of November against 9,775 deliveries in the first 10 days of October. Some industry observers viewed the latest figure as less than they had hoped and blamed strike-caused shortages of cars.
