Carolinas, Virginia Buried Beneath 15 Inches Of Snow

United Press International

A hit-and-run snow storm churned northward along the Eastern Seaboard today, unloading falls of up to 15 inches n sections of the Carolinas and Virginia.

The Atlantic storm dropped temperatures below freezng as far south as northern Florida and dumped a snow covacross parts of Alabama and Georgia.

As the storm whipped northwrd, powered by gale winds of 40 to 50 miles per hour, weathermen issued heavy snow warnings for the mid-Atlantic region into New England. Up to six inches of snow was expected in the Northeast.

At Oswego, N. Y., a fleet of 40 snow plows and two Sno-Cats made progress in freeing the city of its six and one-half foot snow blanket, despite a fresh four-inch snowfall on Thursday. No snow was expected today.

Of Inspiration

LELAND DIAMOND

The Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints World Headquarters Independence, Missouri Acts 3 19.; 21

"Repent ye therefore, and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out, when the times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord; And he shall send Jesus Christ, which before was preached unto you; Whom the heavens must recieve until the times of restitution spoken by the mouth of all holy prophets since the world begin."

Peter gave us these words of wisdom as he and John were speaking to the people of Israel. One of the important principles of doctrine preached in all ages has been repententance for the remission of sins.

We note with interest the special attention given to the "TIMES OF REFRESHING" coming from the presence of the Lord. We believe this time of refreshing necessary due to the Dark ags and the apostesy of Christs Church.

It is therefore necessary that the Church of Jesus Christ be restored complete with the doctrine and principals given to us by God through the mouth of all his holy prophets since the new world began in order that Jesus Christ can return again. The same Christ preached to the people of the world before—the same Christ that was crucified some two thousand years ago.

In this modern day and time in which we live it is well for us to take time from the hustle and bustle of this world to study the holy scriptures, for Christ expects us to prove to ourselves the truthfulness and divinity of his teachings in order for us to work out our own salvation.

BELLEK JURZ By R. C. HOILES How To Apply The Double Standard

E. Merrill Root, in his "Brainwashing in the High Schools," has a 28-page chapter on what they, the authors in these 11 books do to the Founding Fathers. One would be surprised to read what the children are reading about our Founding Fathers in this chapter.

Then Root has a 30-page chapter on "How They Exploit the Gilded Age." This chapter goes on to say how the government must increase and direct how business

He gives the pages for his various citations throughout his en-

Then he has a 27-page chapter on "The Seamy Side of American Life." The authors belittle the accomplishments and enlarge the errors of individuals and contend that errors of individuals are evidence that the capitalistic, free enterprise system brings this about rather than the immorality of man. Under his 31-page chapter "How to Apply the Double Standard to History," Root writes: "The period from the Civil War

to Woodrow Wilson, as we have seen, is preponderantly presented in these history texts as a spectacle of exploitation, corruption, and reaction. It is made to seem a period antidemocratic and evil: the 'interests' were in the saddle and rode 'the common man.' It is presented as a time redeemed only by muckrakers and debunkers, by William Jennings Bryan and 'Hi, Ho. Silver!!, by Populists and Progressives who alone were on the side of the angels. But, of course, as Lincoln Steffens is quoted as saying, "Big Business" was, and it still is, the current name of the devil.'

"But the texts favor the same appraisal of all periods of American history. Any period in which advocates of 'social change,' whose panacea is less free enterprise and more government, are not in the ascendant, is a bad period. Any period in which the advocates of bigger and better government put free enterprise into a strait-jacket is a good period. As Muzzey puts it (p. 501), even wartime has its virtues when 'our country (under Woodrow Wilson) was transformed suddenly from the scene of thousands of independent competing businesses into one great workshop under government direction.' But a period is to be considered bad when Presidents Coolidge and Hoover lett enterprise alone (p. was one upon which, in spite of belief in the American virtue of individual initiative leads to 'a conservative reaction,' whereas, a belief in the panacea of more and more government and less and less initiative leads to an 'era of progressive reform.' Naturally, the texts that hold this creed rate the parties and men who uphold private initiative free enterprise, and the dynamic of individual energy as 'reactionary.' Just as naturally, they rate as 'progressive' the parties and men who uphold the coercion of the state. Individualism leads, as Craven and Johnson put it (p. 557), to 'America's waste and wreckage and failure to be interested in social welfare.'

". . Neither 'social reform' nor 'conservative reaction' is deeply studied or firmly defined. Both are appraised in terms of superficial utilitarian and popular considerations. Presidents Coolidge and Hoover (and even Grover Cleveland) were on the wrong side (individualism) and so are mediocre or reactionary. These presidents, believing in the American dream of individual initiative and personal freedom, are invariably wrong. On the contrary, presidents or men who aspired to be presidents, such as William Jennings Bryan, Robert M. La Follette. Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Woodrow Wilson, and (touched by the sanctity of their 'social' and 'liberal'halos) even Harry Truman, were on the right side and can do no wrong. Calvin Coolidge is a 'mediocrity'; but Harry Truman is not a mediocrity. Any politica' figure who believed in 'social reform,' in 'the

Looking Sideways

By Whitney Bolton

NEW YORK- The woods are full (ours are, anyway) of men of all ages who, when introduced, find it grinningly warm to say: "I was an old newspaperman myself." Some senators, at least one President and heaven knows how many corporation executives can use this gambit in perfect truth. They were. And now by this same device I have met a young newspaperman himself, and he combines the wily arts of a one-armed paper-hanger and a cat on a hot tin roof (pre-Williams variety). Only recently Frank Sinatra was woofling a song about a man so busy "it took 30 hours to make him a day." I think Kenneth Silver must need 37 of them. Now, just to fire the imaginations of momentarily idle young reporters, let me say that as of October, 1956, Kenneth was a reporter on the New York Times and was momentarily idle. He was between assignments with perhaps an hour of free time ahead of him. He used it to think. He also used it to tot up his fortune. It didn't take long. He had $200 to implement his future. Sitting there, he said: "I ought to be able to parlay this, but not as a newspaperman." He quit, hired a tiny office and started a servicing business. He achieved some clients. If they needed help of any kind, Ken got it for them and took his percentage. Things went fine that winter, he even broke even once or twice in April, 1957, reading his old paper, he saw an ad-for models and it occurred to him that modeling was a growing profession.

He took time out to survey the modeling field. He did a research job. What kind of people used models, how much did they pay them, where did they work? He found out. And put in an ad of his own, this time advertising Kenneth Models, an agency for same. Many of the girls who came in as hopeful aspirants in all phases of modeling from fashions to toothpaste ads needed, sadly, a touch of reality. They were not wellgroomed, they lacked poise, they had utterly nothing but a wish to be models. This would have discouraged lesser men - not Kenneth. He added the Institute of Charm to Kenneth Models. Now when the Plain Janes came in he had them take a course in personal improvement, appearance, poise and personality. Those who survived that and turned from wrens into birds of paradise moved over to Kenneth Models and went out to fashion houses, the garment center and ad agencies. He charged a fee for brightening them up and another fee for getting them jobs.

Meanwhile, Services Unlimited, its own offices, was finding office help, of temporary nature, for nine gigantic corporations. "How did you know what to teach in your charm school?" I asked him.

"I learned," he said. "I took courses myself at Helena Rubinstein and Elizabeth Arden. Mostly, I learned what to tell them they needed and they surely needed With his models and clerks doing handsomely on their own, in August, 1958, he started Quicksilver, for really temporary office help. You know, three days, two weeks, fill-in, that kind of job. Then, he thought, there are ramifications of all this beyond conjecture. He studied all employment markets and started a fourth agency encompassing anything from office help to floor waxers. He even hired young girls with sandwich boards reading: Mother Works For Services Unlimited. How About YOU?"

Women looking for jobs reported in droves. Then, working one Saturday to catch up with this breathless expansion, he noticed a fellow waxing the office floor. "Whose outfit is this?" Kenneth asked.

"Mine." said the man. "You mean if you are here and someone tries to reach you they can't because you are not at home?" demanded Kenneth. "Inefficient." So he made the waxer a partner in a cleaning service started just that instant, pointed out that now the waxer had a central place to receive appointment calls and they now employ eight other waxers because business has mush-

Had the Army hit the moon well, that would have been the end of its missile program, for sure. It would have been told to concentrate on Roman candles for Fourth of July celebrations around the Washington monument, on sparklers for the President's Christmas tree lighting, or on dependents' cigarette lighters.

The Army just won't learn that the better it does a job the shorter and shoter grows the end of the stick it is given. It never should have done such a fine job in airlifting troops to Lebanon. That was a serious mistake. Havng put out a brush fire before it started, the Army is now going to be sliced again, its budget slashed. "Go ye . . ." The members of W.M.U. are divided into small groups, called circles for more effective mission study. The entire group meets twice monthly for a missionary program, and for the Bible study hour. The circles meet twice monthly for the study of specific mission fields with one of the members as teacher.

Mission study is fostered among young people by the W.M.U through the various mission study groups. Y.W.A. is an organization for girls from 16 years of age through 21 years of age. Girls Auxiliary is an organization for girls from nine through 15 years of age. Sunbeams is an organization in for boys and girls four through of eight years of age.
