Mainly About People

Mrs. Vivian Pearce, 753 N. Dwight, underwent surgery Monday in St. Anthony's Hospital, Amesbury, for a broken hip suffered in a fall on Saturday. She is in Room 304.

Horace Mann PTA will honor pre-school mothers at its Thursday afternoon meeting at 2:15 in the school auditorium. First grade students of Mrs. Roy Wisenhunt, Mrs. A. E. Berry and Miss Yvonne Goss will present the program. Sam Berger, school principal, will give instructions for enrolling next fall. All pre-school mothers in the Horace Mann district are invited to attend.

Opti Mrs. Club will have a bake sale Wednesday morning in the Hughes Building.

Eight Cases Slated For County Court

Eight cases have been set for jury trial in county court beginning Monday, May 18. County Attorney Don Cain reported today.

Atkinson Names July 4 Helpers

Crawford Atkinson, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce Independence Day celebration, has named 25 men to his program committee. The July 4 fête will take place in Recreation Park.

Cain, who will chair the committee, has named nine men from the Council area. They are E. E. Shelhamer, James McCune and Bob Curry.

WEST

The spokesman said there already had been an unofficial exchange of views on the subject and "unfortunately, the Western delegations did not display a positive attitude to the Soviet proposals."

Soviet press spokesman Mikhail Kharlamov told newsmen Monday night, "you will see tomorrow that there are some problems still to be solved. The question of the composition of the conference itself is still to be discussed."

Russia's newest procedural time bomb was detected shortly after Gromyko backed down on his demand for full conference status for the East Germans and agreed a wrangle over procedure and then a "major concession" by the Soviets.

Observers noted the conference was going almost as Communist diplomats predicted in advance that East and West Germans should attend as "advisers."

COURT

Changes Plea

Ted Edgar Tyler of Pampa, charged Feb. 27 with drunken driving, changed his not guilty plea to guilty Friday in county court. County Attorney Don Cain reported.

Now Many Wear FALSE TEETH

FASTTEETH, a pleasant alkaline non-scented powder, holds false teeth more firmly to rest and talk in more comfort. Just sprinkle a little FASTTEETH on your plates. No gummy, gooey, pasty taste or feeling. Checks "false odor" (denture breath). Get FASTTEETH at any drug counter.

it even got started. Moscow Radio halted the decision to seat the East Germans as a great triumph for the Communist world. Neutral observers said the haste put the East German government on the front pages of the world — part of the recognition sought by Russia.

Khrushchev Is Pleased

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev appeared pleased in a speech at Kiev Monday he said he was optimistic about chances of the Geneva conference and predicted an early summit meeting.

"We have prepared everything so our minister of foreign affairs Gromyko would achieve positive results in Geneva," he said.

Observers noted the conference was going almost as Communist diplomats predicted in advance that East and West Germans should attend as "advisers."

But Thompson, shouting out of the barred dormitory windows to newsmen, said: "They want us to forfeit our good time. We don't think that's right. We didn't do anything to lose it. Just a little destruction up here."

Guards Held Hostage

As dawn broke, other prisoners went to the fields in trucks on work details.

"We've got a lot of good men on our side," Hampton asserted. The rioting convicts, armed with knives, threatened earlier to kill two guards held as hostages unless they get "justice." The guards were still unharmed.

The prisoners complained of favoritism toward Negro prisoners. Roddy claimed that "white prisoners are treated like dogs" at the big state prison 60 miles north of Memphis.

move the barricades in the third-floor west wing, release the guards and discuss their grievances.

Keith Hampton, state correction commissioner, arrived by plane about 3 a.m. e.d.t. and spoke to the prisoners. He conferred with other state officials after the convicts rejected his request.

Hampton held a brief second conference (at 4:15 a.m. e.d.t.) with the prisoners, who appointed Leonard Thompson, who has only 81 days to serve on a burglary charge, as their chief spokesman.

Blast Rocks Textile Mill; Troops Called

HENDERSON, N.C. (UPI)—A dynamite blast early today checked a new outbreak of violence in a textile strike nearly six months old. Local officials asked for national guard troops to restore order.

Vance County Sheriff E. A. Coltrane appealed to Gov. Luther H. Hodges to call out the National Guard.

Hodges declined to act Monday night. An aide said the governor wanted to "get all possible information" and look it over in the morning before acting.

Hodges withdrew some 100 highway patrolmen from strike duty last week and promised he would use the National Guard if there was more trouble which local officers could not handle.

About 1,000 members of the Textile Workers Union of America (AFL-CIO) went on strike Nov. 17 in a dispute over an arbitration clause which the company wanted eliminated from its contract with the union. The first outbreak came Feb. 16 when the firm resumed limited operations.

The second began April 20 three days after a compromise agreement had apparently ended the strike. The settlement broke down when it appeared that only a handful of strikers would obtain jobs at the plants.

NEW KIND OF PLEDGE CARD APPEARING IN MINNEAPOLIS

RELIGION IN AMERICA
By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

On recent Sunday mornings, worshippers in Minneapolis churches have found in their pews a new kind of pledge card.

"I will welcome into my neighborhood any person of good character, regardless of race, color or national origin."

The sponsorship of this pledge by the Greater Minneapolis Council of Churches is no isolated phenomenon. It is part of a growing movement in U.S. churches to break down the barriers of residential segregation that bar Negroes from the suburbs and other desirable areas of virtually all American cities. In the North and West no less than in the Deep South.

The tactics used in this drive vary from one community to another. In Palo Alto, Santa Clara and several other California cities, churches are circulating pledge cards similar to those used in Minneapolis.

Welcome Neighbors

In Philadelphia, Hartford, Conn., Lincoln, Neb., and Champaign, Ill., churches have helped to organize the signers to have Negroes sign hundreds of signatures for families for neighbors.

An Ann Arbor, Mich., and many other communities, churches have asked their members to sign "open occupancy covenants"—a reverse twist on the restrictive real estate covenants that have continued to bar Negroes from all-white neighborhoods long after they were held unenforceable in court.

Denver churches organized a bus tour of the city so that members could see for themselves the pattern of housing segregation—and its usual result of confining minority groups to the less-desirable areas of town.

In Princeton, N.J., all members of the pastors' association backed—with their own money as well as their endorsement—a newly-organized corporation to develop integrated housing projects.

The general board of the National Council of Churches took note of all this activity at its most recent meeting. It adopted a resolution commending the churches involved, and urging other Christians to join the battle.

Key to Problem

The resolution asserted that racial segregation in any area of life is incompatible with the Christian Gospel. It said residential segregation is the key to the while problem in northern and western communities, because so long as it prevails, it is academic to talk about achieving "racial inclusiveness in churches, schools and other community institutions."

Church leaders are under no illusion that aroused moral concern will quickly topple residential segregation barriers that are quietly but firmly enforced by most real estate brokers and mortgage lending institutions.

But they do believe that such gestures as signing "open occupancy" covenants have a practical value.

"Many people who are themselves opposed to racial discrimination refuse to sell or rent property to Negroes because they take for granted that the neighbors wouldn't like it," one church official explained.

"Well, it's time that we all quit hiding behind one another's assumed prejudices."

"If committed Christians in every neighborhood will proclaim their readiness to welcome Negroes as neighbors, they may find a lot more people who share their feelings than they expected to find."

Hoover Made FBI The Most Respected Arm of Law

By ROBERT J. SERLING
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Thirty-five years ago last Sunday, a young, one-time night school law student became head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

His name was John Edgar Hoover. Today, he still heads the agency that has come to stand for the finest in law enforcement.

When Hoover took over, the FBI had the lowest morale, poorest personnel and worst reputation of any agency in the federal government. It was loaded with political appointees who couldn't have solved the theft of a five-cent candy bar in broad daylight.

There were FBI agents with long police records. Ex-convicts carried FBI credentials.

Told to Clean up Mess
Special agent badges were given to politicians; to a theatrical producer who brought a girlie show to Washington; and to a drunk who used to stand outside the Department of Justice at lunchtime and sing bawdy songs.

Hoover was only 29 when Atty. Gen. Harlan Fisk Stone told him to "clean up the mess." He used more than a broom. He fumigated.

The ex-convicts were fired. The political hacks were treated even rougher. Hoover transferred them from city to city so often they finally quit. And gradually, he built the FBI into a symbol of efficient, honest law enforcement.

Hoover used to know every one of his agents by name, but the FBI has long since outgrown this personal touch. Yet the growing process never affected his greatest achievement—the esprit de corps that has made the FBI one of the most respected, and feared, investigative bodies in the world.

Loves Horses

This respect reflects the character of Hoover himself. Like his coldly-efficient agents, he is more of a symbol than an individual. Now 64, he never married—explaining to friends, logically, that any woman who married him also would have to marry the FBI. He loves horses, dogs, gardening, art, popular music, sports, sculpture and above all, his job, which he treats with rigid concentration.

Under Hoover, the FBI has obtained convictions or pleas of guilty in more than 90 per cent of the cases it has investigated. In four years of global war, not a single case of foreign-directed sabotage was reported, kidnaping has become one of the "least-likely-to-succeed" major crimes.

After Facts Only
No man could have acquired the influence enjoyed by Hoover without also acquiring some enemies—racketeers, Communists and fellow-travelers. But there also are some liberals who fear the FBI occasionally treads on civil rights, tags innocent people with Red-labels and is by its very nature a potential Gestapo.

Such charges disturb Hoover, who has leaned over backwards to keep the agency exactly what it was intended to be—a non-political investigative agency, very softly, he said: "And I know just where to find you, mister."

Hoover has no plans to retire. He still runs the FBI with an iron hand.

He has many friends, yet is intimate with few. One of them is showman Billy Rose who some years ago was showing a visitor around his just-completed "Aquacade" water show.

Surprise Visitor
Up to Rose stepped a flashily-dressed man.

"You still owe me $10,000 for that construction job, Billy."

"The hell I do," snapped Rose. "I paid you every cent due under the contract. You're a cheap racketeer and you won't get another penny."

"Oh yes I will," the man replied, "because I know just where to find you."

Rose's visitor turned around and walked up to the hoodlum. Very Little Leagues Add 4 Teams

Expansion talk in the major leagues is so far nothing but talk. But in the Pampa Little League's, expansion has become a reality.

According to Western League president Ed Lowrance, the Western League has many more players than last year, and the Eastern League doesn't have quite as many.

The cost of sponsoring a Little League team is much higher. It takes about $320 to put a team into operation, although the cost the following years is not quite as high.

GENEVA—U.S. Assistant Secretary of State Andrew Berding, saying East Germany is welcome at the East-West conference only as an adviser: "We cannot accede to this Soviet maneuver to get a kind of full partnership for the East Germans in this conference through some procedural device such as seating them at a table, whether it is round or square."

NEW YORK—Sir Winston Churchill, returning to Britain after a six-day visit to this country: "As long as the United States and Great Britain are united and bound together the future is one of high hopes both for ourselves and for the whole world."

CINCINNATI, Ohio—Kurt Franz Rossmel, surrendering to the FBI after 14 years of freedom as an escapee from a World War II German prisoner of war camp in North Carolina: "I felt I wanted to get on the right side of things. As long as I was a fugitive, I was under pressure."

FRANKFURT, Germany—A spokesman for temperamental diva Maria Callas, explaining her postponement of a concert in nearby Weisbaden: "Miss Callas was told the German climate was not suitable for her at the moment."

Hope Has To Turn Deaf Ear To Charity Benefits; Hates It

EDITORS NOTE: This is the last of three dispatches in which ailing Bob Hope speaks frankly of the ill health which has slowed him down and perhaps may force him into early retirement.

By VERNON SCOTT United Press International

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—For the first time in his life Bob Hope is turning a deaf ear to most requests for charity and benefit performances, and with each reusal the comedian says he dies a little. "Only last year he said, 'as long as there are sick and injured people and kids who need help, I'll play benefits.'"

Now he himself is too sick to lend a helping hand. "From now on I'll be playing a long-term Bob Hope benefit," he gaged.

Hope's quips are few and not given with his old eye-rolling sass. He's quieter now. Less brash. His off-screen personality has changed. For most of his career he kept up a running patter both in front of the cameras and among his friends when he wasn't working.

All that has changed. He is thoughtfully resentful of not being able to dash around the country for benefits. "I guess that bothers me more than anything else," he said seriously.

"I've always enjoyed performing, but most of all when I new it was for a good cause. "Right now I'm reserving judgment on my activities for the next year or two. During the next few months I'm taking time out to see how I feel. Lord knows, I don't have to work. The only fun I get out of life is the way I gear myself. This readjustment isn't as bad as I thought it might be."

Pleased with the critical reception of his new movie, "Allas Jesse James," it may be a long time before Bob makes another picture. He refuses to start a project unless he knows he can jump in with all cylinders perking. He had planned to film "Somedays It's Feathers" this summer, but the comedy has been postponed indefinitely.

Conserves Strength The comedian propped his feet up on a chair during a rehearsal break for his last TV show of the season.

"This year I put together eight television shows, and guested on quite a few others," he said. "Next season I'll only do six. "I guess I knew this health thing was coming on for quite some time. So did some of my friends."

"When Y. Frank Freeman (production chief at Paramount Studios), I told him, 'I have a lot left. Don't worry about me. I'm fine. "I should have known better."

Feels Good Entertaining "But it's important that people know I'm not dramatizing my illness. I'm going to get well, and I hope to get back into the swing of things. Not at the old pace. That's gone forever."

Would Bob consider a less frenetic facet of show biz—producing, for instance? "I've never given it a thought," he said. "If and when I'm well enough to produce a show I'll be well enough to perform. There's a big difference anyhow. I feel better when I'm entertaining."

The rehearsal over, Bob donned his jacket and ambled to his sleek new car. A year ago he would have been on the run for a quick nine holes at Lakeside Country Club. Instead, he was headed for home, an easy chair and a dish of ice cream. "It's a different kind of life for me," Bob concluded. "But I'm sticking with it until I'm 100 per cent well."

SEEKS TRADE WITH RUSSIA

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UPI)—Brazilians attending an economic conference in Geneva next week are expected to propose full-scale resumption of trade between Russia and Brazil, it was reported today. Foreign Office sources said the Brazilian delegation has been instructed to lay the foundation for a trade agreement with Russia.

Communists May Resort To Propaganda If Talks Fail

Foreign News Commentary By PHIL NEWSOM UPI Foreign Editor

From the foreign editor's assignment sheet:

SMOKE SCREEN: The next few days or weeks should provide an interesting fireworks display put on by Soviet propaganda outlets, especially if things start going against them at Geneva. The first move would be to charge that the West deliberately is torpedoing the foreign ministers' conference. Diversionary moves could be stepped up Communist activity in the Formosa Strait against the Quemoy and Matsu islands, new charges of Western interference in the Middle East, particularly Iraq, or an outright incident in one of the land or air corridors to Berlin.

COMMUNIST scare tactics haven't worked too well in the past, but they never seem to give up trying. STALIN: The Chinese Communists, who never de-Stalinized Stalin as thoroughly as the Russians did, had a big picture of the late Soviet dictator at their May Day rally in Peking. Stalin was up there with Marx, Engels, Lenin and Mao Tse-tung. Peking broadcasts made no mention of a picture of Nikita Khrushchev.

BRAZILIAN OIL: Brazilian Nationalists and Communists are after the scalp of National Development Bank President Roberto Campos, who suggested that Brazil's restrictive oil policy be relaxed to permit foreign investment. Brazilian industrialists also favor a change as a means of hauling Brazil back from the brink of national bankruptcy, staved off so far only by enormous loans. But the Nationalists continue to cry, "Brazilian oil for Brazilians," and a student demonstration against Campos was called off only after threats that political police would crack heads if necessary.

IMPROVED RELATIONS: Chile hopes soon to conclude successfully negotiations with the United States for loans and credits totaling 108 million dollars to help President Jorge Alessandri's campaign to lead the country along the path of free enterprise. Latin American nations, traditionally resentful of the "Colossus of the North," have had indications

Microphones Regarded As Untried, Suspect In Senate

The Lighter Side
By FRANK ELEAZER
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Now that the Senate has pleaded guilty to loud and disorderly conduct, mild reforms may at last be in sight. The lawmakers could even fix it so a visiting taxpayer can hear what they're saying.

The senators are not actually worried so much about what can't be heard in the public galleries. But it has got where the Senate generates so much ruckus the members can't hear their own speeches.

This has some disadvantages. Sen. Robert C. Byrd (D-W.Va.) said for instance he likes to know what he's being asked to vote on.

The trouble with senators, it now is admitted, is that they talk too much when they don't have the floor and too low when they do. The so-called great voices of the Senate during debate are always speaking in whispers.

The senators also surround themselves while at work with too many flunkies of which Sen. John Stennis (D-Miss.) said 1,623 now are licensed to repair to the Senate chamber whenever in need of amusement.

Among other reforms in this crisis, Stennis has proposed putting a professional parliamentary policeman and bouncer in charge of the Senate. Leaders also are threatening, anew, to install a public address system.

As things stand now, nobody can hear most of what goes on. Being a freshman, and not stupid, Byrd named no names but said he didn't see why the members couldn't simply speak up. One who frequently doesn't is Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.), who is renowned 'about equally for his back-stage maneuvering and for legislating into his shirt front.

Sen. Alexander Wiley (R-Wis.) is one of the few who doesn't need it, is among those backing installation of an amplifier. Wiley could be heard in a windtunnel. So could Stennis. Byrd is no mean orator either.

Among members more noted for a confidential approach to oratory is Sen. John J. Williams (R-Del.), a one-man investigating committee, whose words the press gallery, with an eye on the libel laws, is always most anxious to record.

Morse Like Train
Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D-Va.) speaks now and again about saving money and mostly reads his stuff down into his wallet. Chairman J. W. Fulbright (D-Ark.) of the Foreign Relations Committee considers loud talk a mark of poor breeding. He's never guilty himself.

When Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) talks, everybody can hear, in extreme cases as long as eight hours. Sen. Wayne L. Morse (D-Ore.) starts low and slow like a train pulling out of the station. Out on the stretches, though he really rolls.

Sen. Lister Hill (D-Ala.) talks up pretty good, but some of his listeners fall victim to a regional language barrier, manifested by an "oh wah" which he inserts between all grammatical segments. On roll calls, Sen. Samuel J. Ervin Jr. (D-N.C.), when he's not voting no, sends up a loud "ah!" which the clerk now knows to read as a yes.

But the Senate is a place where they still keep snuff in the box and where microphones are viewed as new, untried, and suspect. So if you want to know what the senators say, you'll probably have to continue to rely on the press. The press mean-

LONDON (UPI) — The Sunday Pictorial reported a time and motion study Sunday which said the average typist spends 10 per cent of her working day chatting or attending to her make up, 40 per cent "frittering away" the time, and 50 per cent actually working.
