

Dangerous 'Debra' Does Damage In Texas

By KYLE THOMPSON
United Press International

HOUSTON (UPI) — Hurricane Debra, the worst tropical storm of the season, battered the Texas coast Saturday with vicious 10-mile-an-hour winds and lashing rain squalls damaging property worth millions of dollars.

It was feared Debra may be a killer.

At least eight persons were reported missing as the hurricane moved slowly inland, aimed a bruising broadside at metropolitan Houston and veered to the east of the south's largest city, the worst of its fury spent.

The Coast Guard reported four persons were missing on a 26-foot cabin cruiser in the Gulf south of Freeport, and two men were missing on Green Lake, northwest of Corpus Christi.

The two men were identified by the Coast Guard as a Mr. Wheeler and a Mr. Alexander. Green Lake is the largest fresh water lake in Texas. It is located north of the Inter-Coastal Canal.

Two other men were also missing off at Freeport, and the other at Texas City.

There were no confirmed deaths.

The storm weakened as it moved inland north of its brutal assault on the Gulf coast.

But the weather bureau said it was still dangerous and a threat to life because of heavy rains.

At 4 p.m. (cat) the center was about 40 miles north-northeast of Houston, with highest winds estimated 40-60 miles an hour. The weather bureau said Debra would continue northward in East Texas and western Louisiana Saturday night and Sunday, dumping from 10-15 inches of rain on those sections.

Debra, the fourth tropical storm of the season, exploded from a mild disturbance to a raging fury with little warning.

It caught a number of boats off shore but most made it to shore under their own power or with aid from the Coast Guard.

The storm crippled the Rosina, a trawler last reported 110 miles south of Freeport. For a time, it was feared the three men aboard had been washed overboard and drowned.

However, the Coast Guard reported late Saturday its planes had dropped pumps to the Rosina and the crew, taken off during the violent backlash following the storm, was returned to the boat to try and save her.

The Coast Guard said it might be Sunday or even days before the fate of the other eight missing persons is known. Approaching darkness hampered search operations.

Officials were unable to give an immediate estimate of damages, but it appeared certain to run into millions of dollars.

More than half a million dollars' damage was reported at Galveston, where a hurricane in 1900 killed between 5,000 and 10,000 persons. The exact number was never established.

Texas City, scene of another major disaster in the past, suffered damage in the hundreds of thousands of dollars. At least 17 businesses were destroyed, and damage along one dock area to boats and fishing camps may run

Long Claims Truman Has Similar Ideas

By JERE COX
United Press International

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (UPI) — Gov. Earl Long of Louisiana, who did he now favors a Symington-Kennedy Democratic ticket in next year's presidential race, practiced Saturday that he and former President Harry S. Truman could "have the same ideas" when convention time rolls round.

His forecast immediately followed a 45 minute visit with the former President and came in breathless, marathon conference with newsmen assembled on the steps at the rear of the Truman library here.

Long reiterated an earlier statement that his presidential choice for 1960 is Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.), with Sen. John Kennedy (D-Mass.) as the vice presidential candidate.

Long Tells Jokes

However, Long said he could not speak for Truman, who left the library office after the meeting without comment.

The former President repeated he has refused to express a preference among potential Democratic presidential candidates.

Long, who was 15 minutes late for his appointment with the former President, said it had been very pleasant to meet with "old Truman" "a lot of dirty jokes."

"But he didn't tell me any," he said. "He made-out like he had heard any of mine."

Most of Long's animated discussion with newsmen was devoted to a dissertation on segregation, in which he said Louisiana had the finest colored people in the world, and that there now is no route between white and Negro areas in Louisiana.

Like To See Fanbuis

Long said that if the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and other groups, "would just leave us alone, we would be the happiest group of people in the world."

He remarked that he would like to see Gov. Orval Faubus of Ark. (See LONG, Page 3)

ALL A HOAX
Jacqueline Gay Hart, 21, of Short Hills, N.J., who disappeared mysteriously from a Newark, N.J. airport, was found wandering in a dazed condition on a downtown Chicago, Ill., street. Miss Hart is shown with police officer Jack Blakeslee who found her. Miss Hart was reunited with her parents in Chicago after she admitted she had not been kidnapped.

Heiress Was Not Kidnapped

By TIM WILLIAMS
United Press International

CHICAGO (UPI) — The FBI reported Saturday that socialite heiress Jacqueline Gay Hart said she "sort of exploded" because of tension arising over her approaching wedding and decided to disappear for a while.

The pretty 21-year-old blonde revealed she was in New York and Chicago during the 30 hours she was missing after seeing her fiancé, Stanley Gaines, 28, off on an air trip from Newark, N.J., airport last Tuesday night.

The report by the FBI verified and traced the movements of Miss Hart during her disappearance. Miss Hart, who originally told of being kidnaped by two heavyset, swarthy men, later admitted her first story was a hoax.

Details of Miss Hart's statement were presented to the U.S. Attorney's office for possible prosecution for false statement in a criminal investigation. But Mitchell Rieger, Chief Assistant U.S. Attorney, declined to authorize prosecution following a study of the situation in view of Miss Hart's previous medical condition and her current general mental and physical condition.

Meanwhile, Miss Hart of Short Hills, N.J., her father and Gaines checked out of their top hotel and boarded an airline flight to Newark. They left from O'Hare International Airport at 4:10 p.m. on Capitol Airlines flight B-16.

In her statement to the FBI, Miss Hart told of traveling to New York "in a daze" after seeing Gaines off at the Newark Airport. The next morning, the FBI said, Miss Hart "for no particular reason" bought a bus ticket to Chicago, arriving here shortly after midnight Wednesday.

The pretty heiress checked into a hotel and went to bed, the FBI agent said. The next morning (Thursday), she made arrangements to rent a radio and for the first time heard the news about her disappearance, he said.

"The FBI quoted Miss Hart as saying she realized "what a hubbub it was causing. 'This partially snapped me out of my fog," she was quoted.

On Thursday, Miss Hart said she wandered about the Windy City, attending at least five movies.

"That evening 'in a panic,' the FBI said, she was going, "I don't know what she was doing, the took her to a surprise party at a Chicago's lakefront, walked for a while and then hailed the first police car she spotted.

Hart, who now here Friday, said her father's name is Stanley Gaines, 28, and Gaines' brother, Eberhard, revealed the hoax in a surprise news conference at FBI headquarters.

U.S. 'Imperialists' Attacked By Press

By ERNEST BARCELLA
United Press International

MOSCOW (UPI) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon won the acclaim of thousands of cheering Russians despite his first taste of Soviet hecklers and a new press attack on "American imperialists."

Nixon held his own with the hecklers — one of them apparently a "plant" — and gave as good as he got from them at the Soviet Agricultural and Industrial Exposition where other Russians cheered him and tried to shake his hand.

Fresh from his rough and tumble verbal duel with Nikita S. Khrushchev Friday, Nixon said he intended to tackle the Soviet Premier again on the issue of East-West peace.

Burglary Prevention Week Slated

Police Chief J. B. Conner, concerned mainly about house-breaking, announced Saturday that this week will be observed as Burglary Prevention Week in Pampa, as proclaimed by Mayor E. H. Myatt.

This is just not another "week," emphasized the chief. It is being held in conjunction with a state-wide program by the Texas Police Association to educate the public on how they can help reduce burglary losses.

And, Conner went on to say, burglary losses are "big business" for some people. During 1958, 650,000 burglary offenses were reported across the country, or about 75 burglaries annually committed every hour, every day of the year! True, it's an alarming figure, but it can help reduce burglary losses.

Nixon, a non-smoker, declared a cigarette and the men sat down to chat.

As Nixon rode to Mikoyan's office, the Communist Party newspaper Pravda was on the streets with an attack on the American "Captive Nations Week" as "a course, dirty adventure of American imperialism."

HOUSE VOTES APPROVAL

Prospects Are Bright For Solution Of State Tax Bill

By LLOYD LARRABEE
United Press International

AUSTIN (UPI) — Prospects appeared brighter today for a solution of the state's tax and spending crisis than at any time since the 66th legislature convened last Jan. 13.

House approval Friday of a tax bill estimated by sponsors to raise some 170 million dollars, the largest tax measure passed by the House through a regular session and three special sessions, buoyed hopes that an end to the long legislative battle is in sight.

The tax plan, though heavily geared to selective sales taxes, also contains a severance tax on natural gas, aimed at interstate gas pipelines, for which Gov. Price Daniel has pledged for more than six months.

If the Senate accepts the tax bill, the spotlight then would shift to a spending program for operation of state government in the next two fiscal years starting Sept. 1.

Odd Fellows and members of five Panhandle lodges gathered here Friday night to pay tribute to Grand Master Roy Kretzmeier, the Pampa farmer who was elected to the highest order of Texas Odd Fellowship March 17 in Waco.

Kretzmeier has had an illustrious career in the lodge since he became an Odd Fellow in Manhattan, Kan. in the early 1920's. He is the second grand master to be elected from the Panhandle since the Grand Lodge of Texas was instituted 119-years ago.

As grand master, Kretzmeier heads all branches of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows in Texas, including 312 Lodges, with a membership of over 60,000 men and women.

Kretzmeier came to the Friday banquet in the First Methodist Church fellowship hall with the intention of making a speech. He was unable to do so only after he had been the subject of a "This is Your Life Program."

"This is an anniversary in Odd Fellowship," said Kretzmeier. "One hundred and twenty-one years ago the first subordinate Lodge was instituted in Texas."

Lodge Star No. 1 was founded in Houston by Jacob DeCordova, former grand master of Louisiana, on July 25, 1838. "Two years, three months and ten days after Texas was admitted to the Union," the "Mother Lodge" of Texas lost its charter six years later when its membership and attendance hit bottom.

DeCordova also organized the (See TRIBUTE, Page 3)

Prisoner Riot Is Foiled In Cuba

By FRANCIS L. MCCARTHY

HAVANA (UPI) — Police said Saturday they had seized a cache of weapons, including Molotov cocktails and home-made daggers, at Principe Prison and foiled a political prisoner riot timed for Fidel Castro's anniversary celebration Sunday.

Other police detachments rounded up suspected counter-revolutionaries and shot up a private plane trying to take off from the Guanabo Highway, wounding the pilot, a Cuban-born American citizen.

Three men in a parked car near the plane shot their way through a roadblock and escaped. The pilot, identified as Rafael Del Pino, was removed to a hospital. Tracer bullets burned the plane.

Del Pino was identified as an anti-Castro leader in exile in Miami who had dropped pamphlets on Havana.

Police said they found the plane at suburban Boca de Jaruco on a tip.

Pistol Found In Plane

Del Pino's U.S. Army veteran was a friend of Castro in Mexico. He broke with the rebel leader on Friday the House quit for a long weekend until 2 p.m. Tuesday, as some members expressed hope that the Senate would accept the counter-revolutionary activity. Police said they found a .45 caliber pistol in the plane's cockpit.

Oriental Beauty Wins Title of Miss Universe

By RICK DU BROW
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — The first oriental beauty to win the Miss Universe crown — 23-year-old Japanese-Kojima — said Saturday a movie career may be nice for some people, "but all I want is to find an honest man and make him a lovely wife."

Nevertheless, said the 22-year-old high-fashion-Tokyo model, "two movie studios — 20th Century-Fox and Warner Bros. — have expressed interest in me, and I will make a screen test next week."

The black-haired, black-eyed oriental, named Miss Universe Friday night before a cheering throng of 4,500 in Municipal Auditorium, hastened to add, however:

"I would be interested in only one of two movies — not a feature. I would like to stay here, a bathing-suit company (Catalina) while and then return home, A which sponsor the contest.

woman's most important duty in life is to make a good wife, a good mother, and I will try my best to do that."

Miss Kojima, who stands 5 feet 8 inches tall, weighs 120 pounds and measures 37-23-34, lives in Tokyo with her 19-year-old brother, Takao.

Her earnings of $100 to $700 a month as a top-flight model help support him as well as her widowed mother, who lives in Kochi on the island of Shikoku, and a younger sister. She also has an older married sister.

"I would like to use the money I get for being Miss Universe to send my brother through college," she said.

The victory — the first for an Asian entry in the pageant's eight-year history — guarantees her $11,000 in contracts for tours for a makeup firm (Max Factor) and a bathing-suit company (Catalina) while and then return home, A which sponsor the contest.

IT WAS SIX YEARS AGO CASTRO HIT 1ST BLOW

By Francis L. MCCARTHY
United Press International

HAVANA (UPI) — Six years ago Sunday at the army barracks in Santiago de Cuba, Fidel Castro struck his first blow and shed first blood. He botched it.

He was a clean-shaven idealist of 27 then, striking a blow for liberty in broad daylight against the heavily-manned Moncada barracks.

But Batista never could resist a beautiful woman, and Fidel's blonde, green-eyed wife, Mirta, younger brother Raul and some pleaded for her husband.

A year later Batista made the mistake that cost him Cuba. He released the Castros. They went to Mexico to plot and train.

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (Sp) — Theodore V. House, national chairman of the 1960 Red Cross Campaign, has reappointed James H. Bond, regional director of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, as chairman for members and funds.

Bond is well known in the governmental and business world and many Red Cross leaders in Texas. Previously he has served as chairman for members and funds for the Dallas County Chapter and chairman of the 1959 Campaign

Planning Committee. Regional fund chairmen are now being selected by Bond. These men, in cooperation with the Red Cross field representatives, will direct work directly with each chapter and chairman for members and funds. Bond is keenly interested in the adequate financing of the 1960 campaign.

Blossom Seeley Back In Spotlight After 50 Years

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Blossom Seeley, the toast of Broadway almost 50 years ago, is back in the spotlight in this desert community stopping the Ed Sullivan stage show in its tracks.

With husband Benny Fields, Blossom belts out three or four songs in a voice as fresh and youthful as it was when she played the Great White Way in 1911.

Oldtimers in the audience at the plush Desert Inn get misty-eyed as the couple turn on the easy charm, reminiscing about the days when "the blues" were new and they were young.

After the show Benny and Blossom retire to their room to rest. "This is something of a come-back for me," Fields said. "I was laid low by a heart attack a couple of years ago, so we didn't work much. But Ed Sullivan had faith in us and put us in his show despite my bad heart."

Future Looks Bright

Blossom, a youthful twinkle in her eye, patted Benny on the hand, adding, "The future looks bright again, but we're not out after a big career. We're just trying to earn some money."

"I was nothing until Blossom came into my life," Benny grinned. "I was just staying in a cafe when she happened to catch my act. Two weeks later I was playing the Palace in New York with Blossom. That was in 1916."

"My success was almost as sudden as Benny's," his wife put in. "I was just a youngster working in burlesque in Los Angeles when I went to Broadway in 1911 to sing 'The Frisco Toddler' in 'The Henpecks.' It ran two years, then I co-starred with Al Johnson in 'The Whirl of Society.' By 1915 I was starring for Ziegfeld."

Famous Beauty

As a musical comedy star Blossom was perhaps the most famous beauty of her time. After marrying Fields, they worked as a team until 1936 when Blossom came to Hollywood to star in two movies.

"I struck out on my own for a while as a 'single,' Benny said. "That's when I got tired of being called 'Blossom Seeley's husband.'"

"We've lived in the Warwick Hotel in New York since 1936," Blossom added. "And we couldn't be happier. Our love is the most beautiful thing in our lives."

Benny nodded agreement. "Marriage is a 50-50 proposition," he said. "I love her as much now as I did 30 years ago. And we'll quit at the top, too."

Right now the team headlines Sullivan's show, and every night Blossom and Benny draw the longest cheers from the audience while Ed, whose smile is as rare as an igloo in Miami, grins happily from the wings.

2 NEGROES ORDERED ADMITTED IN VIRGINIA

By LEON BURNETT
United Press International

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (UPI)—Federal Judge Albert V. Bryant today ordered that 12 Negro pupils be admitted to three schools in Arlington, Va., when they reopen this fall. Bryant said that the schools should be open for two of the schools, it will be the beginning of integration. The judge held that the Arlington School Board applied entrance requirements unequally in rejecting the students. But he upheld the board's refusal to admit 10 Negroes.

At the same time, Bryant denied a motion by attorneys for Negroes that the board be required to submit a comprehensive plan for desegregation. The board's system of screening pupils provides adequate relief, he said, and is proper so long as it is applied equally to whites and Negroes.

One of the schools involved is Stratford Junior High which last February became the first integrated school in Virginia since the days of reconstruction. Board's Ruling In Proper Under the judge's order, seven of the students will go to Stratford, four to Washington-Lee High, and one to Patrick Henry Elementary School. The last two have been all-white.

The school board refused to admit the four to Washington-Lee on grounds the school was overcrowded. Judge Bryant ruled that this was improper—that the Negroes "cannot be stigmatized out of rejection for overcrowding alone."

The students seeking admission to Patrick Henry and Stratford were turned down because their grades on academic tests fell below the median achievement level of the grades they wanted to enter. In overturning this, the judge pointed out that some white pupils also fell below this median.

"Should any classes be established with reference to the national median or some other standard," the judge said, "admitting only those above it, then any white or Negro pupil not possessing these qualifications could be excluded from those classes, provided all students were given an equal opportunity to enter such classes."

School integration in Virginia came slowly. The Legislature drew up a set of "massive resistance" laws to combat it, but the state's own Supreme Court threw out the entire package on constitutional grounds.

Negroes have gone to the courts also in Front Royal, Norfolk, and Charlottesville, seeking admission to white schools.

Second and third Texas Lodges—Harmony No. 2 in Houston and Galveston No. 3, The Galveston Lodge is the oldest lodge in Texas that has never lost its charter. DeCordova's grandson, W. C. DeCordova, is a former resident of Pampa.

Kretzmeier stated that the Grand Lodge of Texas was founded on April 22, 1841 and held 35 sessions during the next three years. He made the following recommendations for the improvement of Odd Fellowship: Constant degree work, use of a merit system, return of those who have left Lodges, a continuous program from year to year, respect for team captains, better attendance, a job for every member, tactful dealings with subordinate Lodges, no dues-in-advance, and serious Odd Fellowship.

The motto for the year is "More Friendship, Love and Truth." Kretzmeier reminded Odd Fellows that "Membership is you and me; and observed, 'Our lives are made up of someone else's lives.'"

He spoke of "a Lodge by the side of the road, where I can be a friend to man."

Odd Fellow Vernon Hall endorsed the program. Among its participants in "This is Your Life" Roy Kretzmeier were his mother, Mrs. O. R. Kretzmeier, Minnahan, Kan.; his Kansas Odd Fellow sponsor, Carroll Leonard; his wife, Ellen; his brother, Stanley; his friends, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Baer, Barney Brummett and Hazel Lockhart; and his son, LeRoy. Ruth Marie Lawley gave the commercials, with some help from Connie Lockhart.

Two hundred and 20 Odd Fellows turned out from Pampa (Lodge 924—Perryton), Spearman, Herford, Clarendon, Canadian, Borger (two lodges), Amarillo (four), Dalhart, Dumas, Skellytown, Panhandle and Shamrock.

Herter Has Different Ideas. Announcement that Russia and the West agree there should be efforts to resolve the German problem but that they had failed to agree on methods. The proposals of both sides would be listed.

Announcement of agreement to recommend a summit meeting with an agenda including the points on which the foreign ministers failed to agree and also disarmament.

A western declaration setting out the West's desire that there should be no interference with the present Berlin set-up.

What the British in effect were proposing was that both sides should get off the present Geneva hook largely by cataloging what they have discussed here and kicking in most of it up to the summit for further discussion and possible agreement.

U. S. sources, however, without publicly admitting any even rift, made it clear that Herter has radically different ideas.

ension, of course, is the continuing job of the police department, but the primary responsibility for prevention must rest squarely upon the shoulders of the homeowners—only with his full cooperation can this war against the ever-increasing burglary rate be successful.

People too often leave their homes for an evening weekend, or vacation without a thought given to the precautions recommended by their police department. Windows are left open and keys left under the door-mat or in the small box. The house is left completely dark or even worse, lights are left burning 24 hours a day. These ear-marks fell a burglar — "This place is a push-over."

The war against burglary is "two-fold" — the prevention of burglaries by the homeowner before they occur and the apprehension of burglars who dare commit the crime. Apprehension, of course, is the continuing job of the police department, but the primary responsibility for prevention must rest squarely upon the shoulders of the homeowners—only with his full cooperation can this war against the ever-increasing burglary rate be successful.

New Western Policy Split Develops In Geneva Meeting

By K. C. THALER
United Press International

GENEVA (UPI)—A new western policy split has developed over steps to wind up the deadlocked Geneva Foreign Ministers Conference and push toward a possible summit meeting, authoritative Conference sources disclosed Saturday.

British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd, the sources said, wants a "quickie" wind-up of the present Big Four meeting and a summit get-together early in September. Lloyd was seeing Prime Minister Harold Macmillan in London this weekend and may launch his new push towards the summit Monday, the sources said.

Secretary of State Christian A. Herter, on the other hand, was said to feel that prospects of an East-West agreement on Berlin at present are slim.

No Summit Expected. The U. S. delegation, it was learned, expects the present conference to go into a second, much longer recess as soon as Vice President Richard M. Nixon ends his Moscow visit and the British Parliament begins its summer recess. The conference recess might last until October or November.

U. S. sources predicted, with a possible informal foreign ministers' meeting at the United Nations in New York.

The U. S. delegation now expects no early summit meeting. The French and West Germans support the U. S. and are against any early summit moves.

Britain, which all along has been ahead of its allies in demanding a summit meeting, was reliably reported preparing a four-point blueprint for steps to bring one about.

Conference sources said the British were expected to propose winding up the present conference with:

Announcement of East-West agreement that there should be a Berlin interim settlement. It would set out the points on which Russia and the West agree. The points of disagreement also would be listed.

Herter Has Different Ideas. Announcement that Russia and the West agree there should be efforts to resolve the German problem but that they had failed to agree on methods. The proposals of both sides would be listed.

Announcement of agreement to recommend a summit meeting with an agenda including the points on which the foreign ministers failed to agree and also disarmament.

NIXON

By Congress was "an expression of cold war revival."

After his meeting with Mikoyan, Nixon and Adm. Hyman Rickover went to Kozlov's office — 28 minutes late for their appointment.

Nixon introduced Rickover as "an old friend," who had met the Soviet official on his American tour. Kozlov received pictures of himself and Rickover taken at the Shippingport, Pa., nuclear power plant.

Stopped Three Times. Kozlov and Rickover told each other they were very photogenic and would make "good Hollywood movie stars."

From there, Nixon went off to the Soviet Exposition where Russians in groups of 500 applauded him as he went from exhibit to exhibit.

Three times, he was stopped by hecklers who demanded to know about American policy. To each, Nixon replied:

"Peace is a matter for two nations. The only way to get peace is a free exchange of ideas."

In his comments he chided Khrushchev for calling Americans "imperialists."

One man at the Uzbekistan Pavilion wanted to know what the U. S. was doing for peace.

"We will discuss this tomorrow with Mr. Khrushchev," Nixon replied. "To have peace it takes two."

A sharper exchange came when a man leaned over his shoulder and said "it is a great provocation to say we are suppressed peoples... We do not consider ourselves oppressed."

Must Exchange Ideas. Nixon, apparently slightly annoyed, said "I think it is fine to have freedom of speech. I am glad that this man is able to speak up."

As the vice president stopped at another pavilion a crowd came up to shake his hand.

One man called out, "How can we have peace in the light of your recent proclamation of so-called enslaved peoples which is crude interference in the internal affairs of other countries?"

The man said he was I. Kuzmin, a worker at the exhibit. Nixon did not take kindly to him.

"We must always remember that peace does not mean a state of no change," the vice president replied. "To have progress we must have an exchange of ideas. We must have free criticism."

For example, Mr. Khrushchev says we are imperialists, colonialists, that we are keeping down the working class of the United States and that our children will live under communism."

Some Negroes Served At Atlanta Air Restaurant

ATLANTA (UPI)—Police, well-dressed Negroes may be served in the restaurant at Atlanta Municipal Airport without incident, officers may be turned away.

A prominent Negro reported he was told flatly by the restaurant management that no Negro could be seated and served. Another was told Negroes would be served behind a screen.

In Columbus and Augusta, Ga., and Memphis, airport terminal restaurants are segregated. In 17 other major southern cities the airport restaurant segregation practices vary—as in Atlanta's case.

In the Atlanta case, observers for the Southern Regional Council believe the policy is so ill-defined that treatment of Negroes depends "almost entirely" upon which employees are on duty. Others attribute the differential treatment to the dress and bearing of the Negroes themselves.

The SRC issued a report Saturday on the status of segregation practices at bus and train stations and airports in 21 southern cities. It said segregation which existed prior to 1955 is "slowly cracking" and that the situation is in a state of transition.

All 29 airline terminals surveyed have non-segregated waiting rooms, but there are no airport testing facilities for Negro passengers at Augusta, At Memphis Negroes may be served at a snack bar. At Columbus they may eat at a lunch counter.

Airport-toilets are segregated in Chattanooga, Memphis, Augusta and Columbus, but the degree of segregation varies. The other cities have non-segregated rest rooms, the report said.

Seven cities have non-segregated railroad waiting rooms—Memphis, Portsmouth, Richmond, Lynchburg and Norfolk, Va., Louisville's Union Station, and St. Petersburg, Fla.

In Nashville, Greensboro, Little Rock, Louisville and Memphis, Negroes are allowed to sit and be served at the same railroad station restaurant lunch counter as whites. In Memphis, this applies only to interstate passengers.

In Chattanooga's Terminal Station a Negro interstate passenger must go to the kitchen to be served.

There are no eating facilities for Negroes at railroad stations at Augusta, Tampa and Richmond although these have facilities for whites. There are separate eating facilities in seven of the cities.

Bus carriers "have been the most resistant to change," the SRC said. Richmond and Portsmouth alone have non-segregated bus waiting rooms, although Negro interstate passengers infrequently use general waiting rooms in Atlanta, Lynchburg, Norfolk,

Eisenhower Feels Peculiar Closeness To Newspapermen

By HARRY WILSON SHARPE
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)— President Eisenhower this week gave White-House reporters an unusual insight into his thinking on vital world and domestic problems.

The newsmen wrote voluminous dispatches which they had to attribute to "excellent authority."

But later at a press conference the President identified himself as the source and revealed he had given the scribes a private dinner on a "don't quote me" basis.

Eisenhower said that what he had done was conducted as an experiment which he'll probably try again. He said he had wanted to show a courtesy to the reporters who cover him on a day-to-day basis, in town and out, on good trips and bad.

He said he felt a peculiar closeness to these men, and he realized that when they came to dinner they would be talking about matters of public interest.

Presidents Roosevelt and Truman also felt a close relationship for reporters but neither was usually so free in disclosing his innermost thoughts for publication.

Eisenhower said for example that he was deeply concerned—even more pessimistic than a month ago—about Russian road-blocks to successful negotiation of the Berlin and German reunification crisis.

He said he believed increasingly by tough Russian tactics at the Geneva Big Four conference on Germany involved attempts to split the United States and Britain, plus an overriding Soviet fear.

North's two spade bid was a frustrated five. If everyone passed the chances were that he had missed a game but his experience told him that everyone wasn't going to pass.

Sure enough, East jumped right to four hearts. Now when it got back to North he went to four spades. East had no mention of telling that North's four spade bid was anything but a sacrifice and since East had no particular interest in trying for 11 tricks at hearts he doubled.

South had no trouble making four spades. He simply set up dummy's diamond suit and lost one diamond, one heart and one club.

If North had jumped directly to four spades East still might have doubled, but more likely he would have tried a five heart bid.

This could be set one trick but the chances are that North would have gone to five spades so as to be sure to keep the rubber going. He would have achieved that objective all right but it was much better to make four spades doubled.

of a resurgent Germany and a powerful Red China.

He did not believe the divisive strategy would work even though the British think the only way to reach a German settlement is in summit talks with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

Eisenhower said he had doubts that Khrushchev even wants a summit conference. But he hoped to get this clarified when Vice President Richard M. Nixon, who flew to Moscow this week end, talked with the Russian leader.

Khrushchev said meantime that he was still uncertain about Nixon's visit. "I suppose he has good intentions," Khrushchev told newsmen at Warsaw, Poland. "I cannot understand one thing. What is his aim?"

The President disclosed that his own mood is not one of tense anxiety. He said that even though he knows another Communist blockade of West Berlin is possible, he remains calmly convinced that Khrushchev does not want a nuclear war. But he said the West must be in constant readiness to deal with any situation.

He told his guests—and repeated it at the press conference—that the road to the summit is open if decent progress is made at Geneva. He said the United States will stick by Berlin and Germany even though another blockade would put the West in a poor tactical position.

Asked how he proposed that the West maintain access to Berlin, he gave varied and largely secret answers. But he said it adds up to a crisis that doesn't help a president sleep nights. He conceded that minor incidents could lead, step by step, to a nasty situation.

For example, he said, Soviet pressures with conventional weapons conceivably could force the West to decide whether the situation has become so intolerable that nuclear weapons should be considered. But the President talked about such a decision only in theory.

He said he believes the Russians currently fear most a revitalized Germany and a strong mainland China. He said he is convinced Russia does not want Germany reunited. And he senses that the sinews of Communist China, which lies athwart the Soviet Union's western border, may be growing too strong for the Kremlin's comfort.

Eisenhower said there is reason to believe the Chinese leaders regard themselves as purer proponents of Lenin and Marx than many top Soviet officials.

FAST-DRAW EXPERT AMAZES KIWANIANS

Members of the Pampa Downtown Noon Kiwanis Club were entertained in a Western way with what program director Bob Hudson described as, "everything from a fast draw to a slow beat," at their regular weekly luncheon meeting here Friday.

Gary Bennett, 18-year-old Pampa High School student who claims to be the "fastest gun in Texas," and has proven his claim by beating the state's top three fast-draw experts, exhibited some fancy gun tricks and showed some lightning speed clearing his gun from his holster.

Bennett, who won for Pampa in recent Amarillo Waddie Week fast-draw competition, amazed his audience by dropping a bullet from the waist and then drawing and firing before the bullet hit the floor.

A three-man western music group, composed of Charles McClure, Danny Bennett and Wendell Basham, with the latter doing the singing, presented four western and ballad numbers, including two selections written by the late Buddy Holly.

Guests introduced included: Glenn Carter, a past president of the Franklin, Penn. Kiwanis Club and currently the superintendent of schools at Valley Forge, Penn. Also Rotary Club president here, Jack Edmundson, Bill Tidwell and Joe Bennett.

DIANE SINGLETON ...Texarkana cowgirl

Cowgirl Contest Has First Entry

The first entry received in the Chamber of Commerce and Civic Club-sponsored cowgirl contest, an event of the Top O' Texas Rodeo, is Diane Singleton, a May graduate of Texarkana (Tex.) High School.

Miss Singleton will ride her six-year-old buckskin thoroughbred quarter horse gelding in the two go-rounds of the contest. The horse came from Amarillo. She has had him since he was 20 months old.

Besides barrel racing, Miss Singleton teaches swimming. She is a lifeguard at St. James Recreation Center in Texarkana.

The cowgirl contest will take place during the four performances of the Top O' Texas Rodeo Aug. 4-8. Rodeo Week will open Aug. 3 with two Kid-Pony Show performances.

Cowgirl appointments by chambers of commerce, cities, ranches and civic organizations will close at 10 a.m. Aug. 4. Registration will begin at 1 p.m. Aug. 3 in rodeo headquarters, located in the lobby of the Pampa Hotel. Registration will continue until 10 a.m. Aug. 4.

The cowgirls will ride in the Rodeo parade at 3 p.m. Aug. 4 and will ride in all grand entries of the Rodeo. Judging will be based solely on time, with girls riding the full cloverleaf pattern around barrels, beginning either from the left or the right.

The time made in the two go-rounds will be added together for the total time of each contestant. The top cowgirl will be named at the final performance Aug. 8. She will receive a hand-stamped saddle.

The first and second runners-up will receive a pair of shop-made boots and a silver buckle, in that order. The special prize of a Western suit will be given to the girl who makes the best showing in personality and appearance.

Cree Reports On Bond Sales

George B. Cree Jr., chairman of Gray County's Savings Bonds Committee, reports that June bond sales in Texas were 11.4 percent greater than May sales. Bond sales in Gray County totaled $331,981 for the first half of 1959. This represents 42 percent of the year's goal for the county.

Sales in Texas for the first half of 1959 were $81,920,468 or 44.9 percent of the year's goal of $182.5 million.

"The fine sales increase shown in June points up the fact that thousands of Texans are interested in an investment where their principal and interest are fully guaranteed by the U.S. Treasury Department. I believe strongly in the bond slogan 'Part of Every American's Savings Belongs in Savings Bonds.'" Cree stated.

"More Texans should take part in the Savings Bonds program, not only as a tangible expression of patriotism, but as a practical way of saving for future personal security," chairman Cree concluded.

'Lonely Boy' Still On Top

CHICAGO (UPI) — Paul Anka's recording of "Lonely Boy" continued today to pace the United Press International top record survey for the third straight week.

But keeping pace with Anka's waxing was "The Battle of New Orleans" by Johnny Horton in the No. 2 spot.

Teenage books are featured this week at Lovett Memorial Library, according to Helen Gould, junior librarian.

"Long Ball to Left Field" by Duane Decker will be popular with teenage baseball fans. The Blue Sox solve their problem of a left fielder who wants to be a pitcher so much that he is naturally sympathetic toward pitchers, even when they aren't on his own team.

"Seventeen's Stories" edited by Babbette Rosmond presents 13 outstanding short stories from the pages of Seventeen magazine.

"The Luckiest Girl" by Beverly Cleary. At home in Oregon, Shelley had been unhappy and tired of having everything decided for her, especially that she must wear the pink raincoat with the black velvet collar (that her mother had bought for her) — instead of the yellow allover that she wanted. While spending the next school year in southern California, however, Shelley decides that "I am sixteen and Phillip likes me."

"Have Space Suit — Will Travel" by Robert A. Heinlein. "You see I had this space suit . . . Kip had come into possession of the space suit in an absurdly amusing way. His home efforts to repair the suit resulted in travel much more startling than the mere moon trip that he expected to make and it is on a planet much older than earth that the story comes to an astonishing — and serious — climax."

CULLEN SATISFIED WITH QUIZ SHOWS

"TV-OFF CAMERA" By FRED DANZIG United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) — Just about every time Bill Cullen gets into a taxicab, the dialogue goes something like this:

Cabbie: Hey, I know you. You're Bill Cullen.
Cullen: That's right.
Cabbie: (Chuckling) Is the price right?
Cullen: I'll let you know when I see the meter.
Cabbie: Tell me, Bill do those winners on "Price Is Right" have to pay taxes on what they win?
Cullen: Yes. They add the fair trade value of the prizes to their income.
Cabbie: How do I get my wife on the show?
Cullen: Tell her to send away for tickets. We pick all our contestants right out of the studio audience.

"I get the same questions every time," said the boyish-looking host of NBC-TV's "The Price Is Right." "And not only from cab drivers. When I'm walking along the street, I sometimes get stopped and that's the conversation."

"I think we're in a rut," said Cullen, whose rut also finds him serving as a panelist on CBS-TV's "I've Got a Secret" and chief waker-upper on a four-hour early-morning NBC radio show. His "on-the-air" schedule keeps him around the mike for 2 1/2 hours each week and gets most hectic on Wednesday when he does "Price" and, a half-hour later, "Secret."

No Rehearsals
It sounds hectic, but Cullen says it's all very easy. "There is no rehearsal required for any of my shows. 'Price' runs itself, I come in 45 minutes before, learn where I'm to stand, the names of the models, the prizes and the commercial cues. The radio show? No work at all. I just talk," he said.

"I use completely different personalities on the different shows. On radio, it's early morning, so I'm quiet. If any humor is there, it's in a low key. On daytime TV, I work about two pitches higher. On nighttime TV, I'm another pitch higher. For 'Secret,' I'm in-between. Sometimes," said Cullen, "I catch myself starting too high, so I adjust. I guide myself by the studio audience. I think I've developed a sixth sense that enables me to tell how the audience feels about the contestants, the prizes, or me. I can adjust to meet their feelings."

Born In Pittsburgh
That sort of perception comes with experience, and Cullen has it. Born in Pittsburgh in 1920, he started out to become a doctor, decided it was too tough and went into radio. After serving an apprenticeship in Pittsburgh, he came to New York with CBS radio in 1944. Two years later, he took over the "Winner Take All" show, his first quiz. He's been running quiz and game shows ever since and insists that there's nothing else he'd rather do.

Many of his TV fans are unaware that Cullen walks with a limp, the result of polio when he was a youngster. Cullen makes a point of not walking around while on camera.

"Price," which offers its viewers a chance to win valuable prizes by guessing price tags, averages around 20 million postcards a week. "There's something about guessing prices," Cullen said. "Everyone thinks he can do it. I've seen sophisticated people—bankers, lawyers, professors—really get involved with our game."

Code For Protection Against Lightning Drawn Up In Capitol

By EDWARD COWAN
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Suppose a bolt of lightning zings out of a thundercloud and hits your house.

If you've anticipated this common summertime threat and equipped your home with lightning rods you probably don't have to worry. But if your house is not equipped and its chances of being hit by lightning are not negligible, perhaps you'd better do something.

If the house is on high ground or stands in a thinly settled area, it's more likely to be hit.

Of course, your lightning danger also depends on what part of the country you live in. Electrical storms are more common in summer than in winter in all parts. But there is a great variance in the frequency of these storms in different regions.

Storms Vary By Area

According to the U. S. Weather Bureau, electrical storms occur only about once a year in the San Francisco area. But residents of Tampa, Fla., can expect them on an average of 90 days a year. Frequencies in other areas fall in between these extremes.

When a lightning bolt leaves from a thundercloud it jumps the smallest distance it can, according to John A. Dickinson, chief of safety codes and standards of the government's National Bureau of Standards.

"A house on a hill or an unusually high building is a tempting target," Dickinson said. "The higher the object the shorter the trip for the lightning."

That's why lightning rods work. They stick up above the house, catching the lightning before it hits the building itself. If properly installed, the rods carry the electrical charge off to the ground where it is deposited without damage.

Explains Rod Construction

Dickinson, who helped draw up the code, said each rod should have a separate conductor leading to the ground or there could be at least two separate conductors to the ground for an average size house.

When the tire companies developed new cords which had more tensile strength, they lengthened the cords and ran them from one bead to the other at an angle approaching 30 degrees to the tread of the tire.

This could be done because the new cords were strong enough to absorb shocks better. Changing the direction of the cords gave the tire better cornering abilities.

Oiley explained it is important to have good cornering quality on the rear wheels of a car with the engine in the rear because the rear wheels of such a car have to start to turn before the front wheels to provide a proper control over the car during the turns.

Reveals Second Need

This requirement was fairly well known and talked about in automotive circles. All of the auto companies have been working on aluminum engines.

But Oiley revealed a second requirement which was not so well known.

He said a car with the engine in the rear must have tires with good cornering characteristics in order to give it good handling qualities.

Everyone in the industry has known that a rear engine presented handling problems but there has been little talk about solving it through the car's tires.

A truck which has most of its weight in the rear, solves the handling problem to a degree with dual wheels in the rear, or in the case of lighter trucks, with extra large tires in the rear.

But, obviously, the designers of small cars wanted to use neither dual tires nor extra large tires on the rear wheels.

When the tire companies developed the modern, low profile, long cord tires fitted to wide rims, they provided the answer General Motors was looking for.

Lengthen Tire Cords

Earlier types of tires had the cords in the casing running from one bead to the other at angles nearly perpendicular to the tread of the tire. This type of construction gives the tire greater ability to mold itself around any obstruction it meets. But it re-

Senate Thinking In Terms Of Amplifying System

By FRANK ELEAZER
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It is generally conceded that U.S. senators talk more, and are heard less than any other Legislative body.

No curb ever was thought likely on the senators' wordage, of course. But serious consideration was given by Senate leaders to installing an amplifying system so visiting taxpayers could hear what the lawmakers were saying.

Sen. Alexander Wiley (R-Wis.) reminded the Senate just the other day that nothing has come of this. And it looks now like nothing will, at least not anytime soon.

Steel wage negotiations apparently have broken down. Steel mills have started banking for a strike expected to start at midnight Tuesday, affecting 500,000 union members.

No negotiations are scheduled for today. Union leaders will meet with their executive board and later with the wage policy committee, at which time a formal strike order probably will be issued.

Commerce. Small declines were reported in clothing, drug, and grocery stores. Autos accounted for $1 billion of the increase over last year.

Electric utilities generated 57,661,300,000 kilowatt-hours in May, a record for the month, according to the Federal Power Commission. Output was up 12 per cent from May 1958.

The Georgia-Pacific Corp. has offered to pay more than $2 million for the stock of Booth-Kelly Lumber Co., of Springfield, Ore. This is $7,500,000 higher than a previous bid by U.S. Plywood Corp. which has called a meeting to approve the purchase.

WASHINGTON — Administration officials have gone to Capitol Hill to press for legislation on highway construction. Federal roads administrator Tallamy warns that a nine-month stoppage of federal highway construction looms ahead unless Congress provides new funds. He repeated President Eisenhower's proposal for a one and one-half cent hike in the gasoline tax.

CHICAGO — The Inland-Steel Company reported that the first half of 1959 saw the firm ring up record sales, and earnings. Earnings for the quarter ended June 30 were over 24-million dollars, shattering the previous 17-million dollar record set in 1957.

building. The ground conductor probably should be thicker than the top-side rods to compensate for corrosion.

"In moist earth it should be sunk at least eight inches. In dry ground it is advisable to bottom the ground rod with a copper plate or else sink it deeper.

Dickinson also recommended that homeowners connect their conductors to other metal that lies within six inches. Otherwise lightning may skip from the conductor to the metal and in so doing ignite inflammable material. But if there is no gap, the charge will be harmlessly grounded.

sonably satisfactory—wasn't near good enough, it was ruled.

So now they have ordered a "study." And I guess this means that 20-20 vision, plus lipreading ability, will continue a principal requirement for reporters trying to cover the Senate.

Wiley noted that those in the press and public galleries aren't the only ones who often can't hear a word of what's said in the Senate. He said the members can't hear each other, and that things lately have gotten so bad they often can't even catch the opening prayer by the chaplain.

Can't Miss Prayer

Although Wiley didn't press this point any further, his implication was clear that if they don't hear anything else, the senators can't afford to be left out on the prayer.

Senate debate often consists of a private chat between two members standing three feet apart, and what got Wiley worked up this time was that so often the two members are Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.) and Everett McKinley Dirksen (R-Ill.). They are the majority and minority leaders respectively. Dirksen usually addresses the Senate in the soft, pear-shaped tones of a senior partner in an old and dignified firm of undertakers.

Shocks Senate

Wiley sits right behind Dirksen, and if he can't hear the exchanges between the two leaders, it stands to reason the 90 or so senators further removed from the posts of command might as well have remained in their offices.

Some of them, it turned out the other day, have been doing just that, though not intentionally. This was brought to light by Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.), who shocked Senate sensibilities by interrupting a roll call on the TVA bill to pose a parliamentary inquiry.

Goldwater said the bells by which senators live weren't functioning in the new office building. He wondered what would be the parliamentary situation when a senator failed to answer the roll call because he wasn't warned by the bells that a vote was in progress.

Sch. B. Everett Jordan (D-N.C.), who was presiding, reminded Goldwater that one does not interrupt Senate roll calls for anything, least of all a parliamentary inquiry.

Reopens Question

The voting continued, and when it was done, Sen. Frank J. Lausche (D-Ohio) reopened the question. He said the bell didn't ring in his office, and that he missed the roll call. What was his status, he wanted to know.

"The chair is informed by the parliamentarian," Jordan replied, "that that question is not germane to the issue. It's a matter for the electrician."

So the bill was passed, a fact of which most of the ear-strainers present probably weren't aware until they read it next day in the Congressional Record.

Rear Engine Brought About By Tire Work

By JACK VANDENBERG
UPI Automotive Editor

DETROIT (UPI) — The new rear-engine small car, Chevrolet plans to introduce in September, was made possible by developmental work done by the nation's tire companies in the past several years.

The strange connection between tires and a rear engine car was revealed recently by the man who did much of the original developmental work which eventually led to the Corvair, Chevrolet's entry in the small car field.

The man is Maurice Oiley, retired director of research and engineering for Chevrolet who now acts as a consultant to General Motors.

Oiley said there were two major factors which made development of the Corvair possible. One was an aluminum, flat engine, which would be light enough so the weight of the engine in the rear would not be so great it would virtually lift the front wheels of the car off the ground.

But Oiley revealed a second requirement which was not so well known.

He said a car with the engine in the rear must have tires with good cornering characteristics in order to give it good handling qualities.

Everyone in the industry has known that a rear engine presented handling problems but there has been little talk about solving it through the car's tires.

A truck which has most of its weight in the rear, solves the handling problem to a degree with dual wheels in the rear, or in the case of lighter trucks, with extra large tires in the rear.

But, obviously, the designers of small cars wanted to use neither dual tires nor extra large tires on the rear wheels.

When the tire companies developed the modern, low profile, long cord tires fitted to wide rims, they provided the answer General Motors was looking for.

Lengthen Tire Cords

Earlier types of tires had the cords in the casing running from one bead to the other at angles nearly perpendicular to the tread of the tire. This type of construction gives the tire greater ability to mold itself around any obstruction it meets. But it reduces the tire's cornering qualities—that is the tire is more apt to skid around a turn, rather than cling to the road and roll with it.

When the tire companies developed new cords which had more tensile strength, they lengthened the cords and ran them from one bead to the other at an angle approaching 30 degrees to the tread of the tire.

This could be done because the new cords were strong enough to absorb shocks better. Changing the direction of the cords gave the tire better cornering abilities.

Oiley explained it is important to have good cornering quality on the rear wheels of a car with the engine in the rear because the rear wheels of such a car have to start to turn before the front wheels to provide a proper control over the car during the turns.

Moscow Citizens Getting Rare Look at a Bonafide Republican

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The bassard to Communist Russia, citizens of Moscow are getting a rare look this week at a scarce item — a bona fide Republican. This item is even scarcer in the Soviet Union than in the United States, which means very scarce indeed. Moscow has been looking over big shot Democrats for a long time, beginning back there when William C. Butler, Marim Litvinov made the deal in 1935 the first United States am-time of big deals and broken promises which have debauched U.S. relations with the Soviet Union ever since. Litvinov put his country's name to pledges that forever after there would be religious freedom in the Soviet Union. Most, especially, he assured FDR that there would be no subversive Communist monkey-business in the United States directed toward the overthrow of the American way of life.

There wasn't supposed to be any espionage, either, and after the exchange of ambassadors between Washington and Moscow there was to be an era of sweetness and light which was to be beautiful to behold. Republican politicians had been benched in the United States by the 1932 election. From their obscurity they howled protests against FDR's recognition of the Soviet Union. FDR was unimpressed and, so far as the record shows, went to his grave convinced that he could deal on even terms with the Russians and, notably, with the late J. Stalin. The record also shows that Stalin could and did out-deal our man from the top or bottom of the deck. The religious or more pious citizens rejected the diplomatic acceptance of the Russian Communists on grounds that they were an ungodly lot.

Some months after the exchange of ambassadors it became obvious that not much profitable trade would come of the recognition maneuver and certain sects began to ask questions about that pledge of religious freedom. FDR sought in a news conference to establish that the Communists had so established religious freedom, but the idea did not sell and United States-Soviet relations have been on the down grade ever since. Not even when the United States bagreling tons of strategic supplies to the Russians hard pressed by Nazi invaders did the Communists play it on the square.

General Electric Co. today issued its first half report in an eight-page pamphlet, telling its 400,000 stockholders of the evils of inflation and urging them to write senators and representatives of their views. The pamphlet contained the names of senators and representatives from the Congress of the United States, all states of the union. The earnings report showed the company, leader in electrical equipment, had first half sales of more than $2 billion and net income equal to $1.34 a share vs. $1.18 in 1958 when sales fell below $2 billion.

Automobile company sales and earnings zoomed in the first half. Aggregate sales of Ford, Chrysler, American Motors and Studebaker-Packard for the first six months of 1959 were $5,190,559,836. This compared with $3,373,988,326 in 1958 and represented a rise of 38 per cent. Net income for the group for the half year aggregated $404,861,075 vs. a net loss of $13,079,484 in the first half of 1958. General Motors which reports next Thursday is expected to swell the total earnings of the group to above the billion dollar mark.

FEM GOLFERS RAP RECORDS

CICAO (UPI) — Women golfers in the Mount Prospect Country Club women's open took the course records apart Saturday with 11 of the 36 pros equalling or breaking par, and Mickey Wright took a one-stroke lead with the second-best round of the day.

Miss Wright, winner of the last two ladies' PGA tournaments, knocked four strokes off par with a 70 for a 145 total for 36 holes. But the Bonita, Calif., golfer was only one stroke ahead of the first-round leader, Louise Suggs, Sea Island, Ga., and Betsy Rawls, the women's leading money winner from Spartanburg, S.C.

Miss Suggs, the only player to break par on the first round, followed by Suggs, Rawls and Wright on Saturday and Miss Rawls vaulted into contention with a course record 69. Miss Rawls had five birdies and no bogeys on her tour, and played in par to 17 greens. Her longest putt was a mere 10 feet.

Three other veterans, Patty Berg, St. Andrews, Ill., Beverly Hanson, Ind., Calif., and Fay Crocker, Uruguay, all bettered par for a 148 total, with Miss Crocker matching Miss Wright's second-best total of 70. Miss Hanson shooting a 72, and Miss Berg

Other players who broke par were Cathy Cornelius, Lakeland, Fla.; and Jo Ann Prentice, Birmingham, Ala., each with 72's for a 151 total, and Betty Jameson, San Antonio, Tex., with a 73 for a 153 total. Two players equaled par, Gloria Fecht, Southern Pines, N.C., and Betty Bush, Tequesta, Fla.

More than 5,500 fans watched the 12 card race. The pari-mutuel handle was $242,186. The daily double returned $14.80, while the quarella in the twelfth race was worth $128.40.

MORAGA, Calif. (UPI) — The San Francisco Forty Niners open training camp practice today with 16 veterans and 30 rookies on hand. There will be 15 more veterans reporting Aug. 2 and five additional rookies showing up after the College All-Star game in Chicago.

COACH JIM TATUM ... buried Saturday

Jim Tatum Is Laid To Rest

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (UPI) — Jim Tatum was laid to rest Saturday practically within punting distance of where he was preparing to lead North Carolina's football team to one of its biggest years. Many of Tatum's friends, still stunned by his untimely death at the age of 45 last Thursday, were in the funeral procession which filled down a flowery path to pay their last respects. The North Carolina coach died of a virus ailment.

Among the leading sports figures present were Coach Bear Bryant of Alabama, Coach Bud Wilkinson of Oklahoma and North Carolina's Grand Old Man of Athletics, Robert Fetzer. The Rev. Charles Hubbard, classmate of Tatum when the two were students at North Carolina, offered a brief graveside prayer. Nearby were Tatum's oldest daughter, Rebecca, 14, and his son, James Jr., 13. The youngest child, Edna Reid, 7, did not attend the funeral.

Tatum's wife remained in the hospital with a virus infection and was unable to attend her husband's funeral. Tatum was buried in a small plot that overlooks the university gymnasium offices at the edge of Chapel Hill, a town he loved so well. It was here that the jovial coach got his start. Tatum's widow was admitted to Memorial Hospital Friday suffering from a virus believed to be the same that killed her husband.

Palbearers carried Tatum's bronze casket from the altar and out of the church. Tatum's family and relatives followed into the warm sunshine where a crowd lined the streets in final tribute to the beloved coach.

Bill Fischer, Washington's starter, failed to get past the fifth inning and was charged with his fifth loss against eight wins. Biggest man with a bat for the Senators was Jim Piersall, substitute for the injured T. J. Francona, who was batting .400 when he was hurt Thursday night.

Chisox Cop 17-Inning Tilt; Cleveland & Milwaukee Win

Pale Hose Kill Birds In Long One

CHICAGO (UPI) — Sherm Lollar's ninth inning home run and Harry Simpson's 17th inning pinch single kept the Chicago White Sox in first place Saturday with their fourth straight come-from-behind one-run win, a 3-2 victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

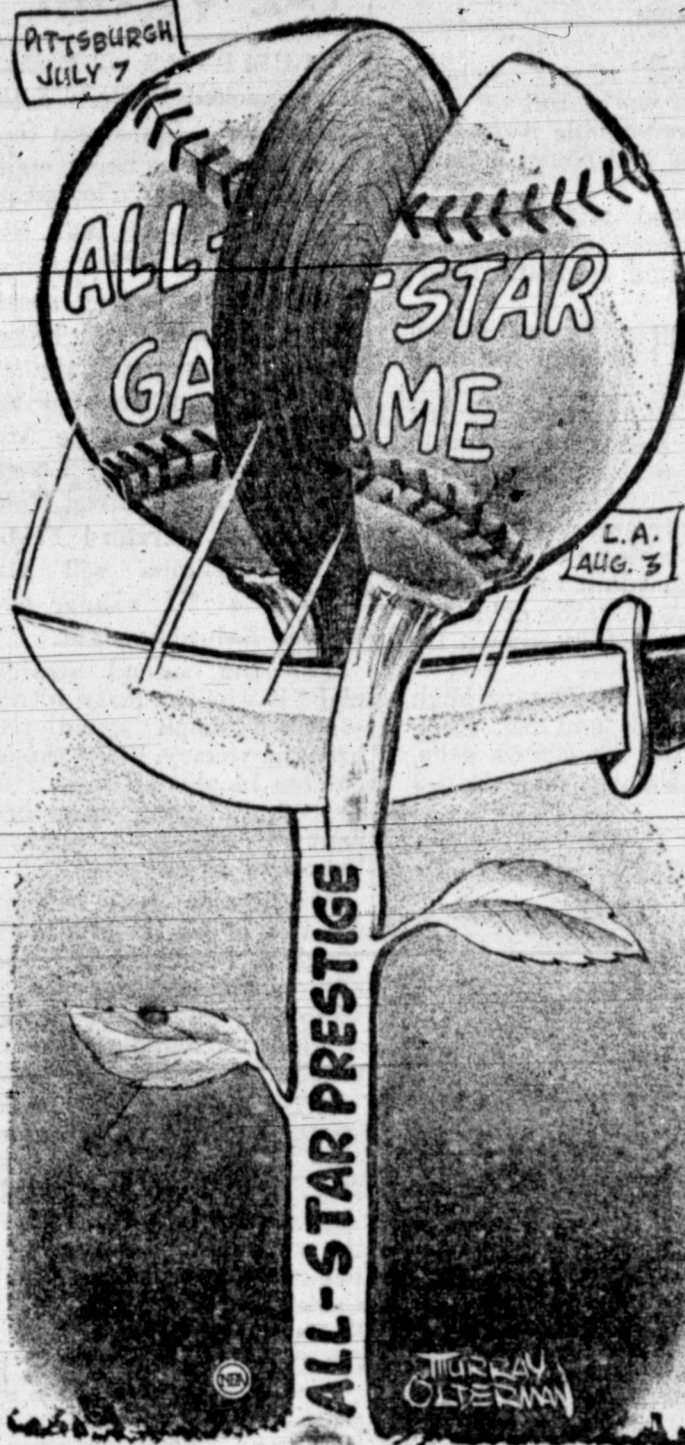

The win kept the American League-leading White Sox a half game ahead of the Cleveland Indians, and marked the 23rd time this season the cliff-hanging Chicagoans had won by one run.

The game lasted four hours and 35 minutes, just short of the 4:37, 17-inning game between Chicago and Baltimore on June 4. The Sox won the game, the league's longest game of the season, 6-5, on Earl Torgerson's home run.

Six times Saturday, from the ninth inning on, the skipper-hitting Sox came within one single of winning the game. Six times they folded up without a hit.

The loss was charged to Loe. The win went to Sox reliever Turk Lown, who came on in the 12th to relieve Bob Shaw.

CUTTING TOO DEEP

Cubs Topple Giants, 5-3

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Art Ceccarelli, a refugee from the American League where he was a big loser, posted his fourth win of the season without a loss Saturday by hurling the Chicago Cubs to a 5-3 victory over the first place San Francisco Giants.

The hard-throwing lefthander from West Haven, Conn., had his roughest moments in the eighth inning when the Giants scored twice.

A pinch hit homer by Hank Sauer accounted for one of San Francisco's runs in that frame and Willie Mays drove in another with a sacrifice fly. Mays also came up in a pinchhitter role.

Ceccarelli ended the threat by making Orlando Cepeda his third strikeout victim of the afternoon.

Chicago chipped away at loser Stu Miller for 11 of its 12 hits while dropping to his fifth defeat against four wins.

The Giants took a 2-0 lead in the third inning on Eddie Bresnold's fourth home run of the season. Chicago went ahead for the first time in the eighth inning on singles by George Altman, Al Dark and Jim Marshall, sandwiched in with this attack was a throwing error by left fielder Jackie Brandt.

Chicago scored three times in the seventh inning with Ceccarelli, who now has gone the distance in his last three times out, legged out a single to start the uprising. After Miller settled the next two batters, Marshall connected for his third single of the day. He went to third as Banks drove in Ceccarelli with another single. Then Irv Noren, pinch-hitting for Bobby Thomson, cracked a one-bagger which sent in two more runs.

Al Worthington pitched the ninth for San Francisco and was tagged for a double by Banks, the Cubs' only extra base blow in their 12 hit attack.

Mclish Reels Off No. 13

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Cal Mclish reeled off his eighth straight victory and 13th of the season Saturday when he checked the Washington Senators on seven hits and pitched the Cleveland Indians to an 8-1 triumph.

Mclish, whose 13 victories make him the biggest winner in the American League, gave up Washington's only run in the seventh when Jim Lemon slammed his 22nd homer over the left field fence. It was the 121st homer of the season for the Senators, tying their team record established last year.

Bill Fischer, Washington's starter, failed to get past the fifth inning and was charged with his fifth loss against eight wins.

Biggest man with a bat for the Senators was Jim Piersall, substitute for the injured T. J. Francona, who was batting .400 when he was hurt Thursday night.

The league president said also that a Tulsa-Austin game which was rained out will be played at Austin on Aug. 13. Both dates had been open prior to the re-scheduling.

TL SLATE JUGGLED BY BUTLER

SAN ANTONIO (UPI) — Texas League President Dick Butler juggled the league schedule Saturday and re-set three games.

Butler announced that a Tulsa-San Antonio game which was rained out earlier in the season will be played at San Antonio on Aug. 3, and that Amarillo and Austin will play the same date. The latter game had been scheduled for Aug. 22.

The league president said also that a Tulsa-Austin game which was rained out will be played at Austin on Aug. 13. Both dates had been open prior to the re-scheduling.

Pascual here with the Senators for a series against the Tigers, isn't getting his hopes up, although he concedes it would be "a thrill" to be selected to an All-Star team for the first time. The 25-year-old Cuban-born right-hander has won seven in a row and three of his last four victories were shutouts.

Pascual blanked the Athletics on five hits last Sunday, limited the Tigers to one hit in a game curtailed to five innings by rain on July 15, and turned in a four-hitter over the Yankees on July 5. All told, Camilo has pitched four shutouts in compiling an 11-7 record and 2.52 earned run average.

The Yankees made a bid for the slender fast-batter last winter, but were rebuffed in their efforts to get him.

"I consider him the number one pitcher on our staff," owner Cal Griffith told the Yankees.

Considering that he was signed by Senator scout Joe Cambria for only $125, Pascual comes close to approaching the greatest bargain Washington ever got.

PASARELL WINS MATCH — LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Charles Pasarell of Puerto Rico won the singles title in the Kentucky State Junior tennis championships Sunday by defeating Jerry Cromwell of Long Beach, Calif., 6-3, 6-1. Cromwell and Rodney Kopp of Honolulu won the doubles crown with a 6-2, 6-1 victory over Pasarell and Jorge de Jesus of Puerto Rico.

WINS VIRGINIA AMATEUR — RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — Mary Patton Janssen of Charlottesville won her third straight Virginia Women's Amateur golf championship Friday. Miss Janssen beat Donna O'Brien of Richmond, 13 and 11 in the 36-hole final.

Junior College Teams Under School Rules BRENHAM, Tex. (UPI) — Leroy Dreyer, Blinn College athletic director, Saturday reported that five Texas Junior College Conference football teams will play under high school rules this season. Dreyer said officials of the five conference schools, all playing in conference Zone 2, voted to record game regulations of the University Interscholastic League. Zone 2 members include Blinn, Navarro, Henderson, Ranger, and Cisco. Dreyer said the major rules change is in substitutions. Free substituting will be allowed under the 1959 rules.

Johnson Is Ready To Tackle Miteff

By TOM GRAY
 United Press International
 LOUISVILLE (UPI) — Alonso Johnson, a young man from Pennsylvania who cut his eye teeth on ring rope, today was ready to take on Argentine heavyweight Alex Miteff after sparring Willie Pastrano's comeback hopes by winning a unanimous decision.

Subbing for Miteff, the former barber from Braddock, Pa., talked the Miami, Fla., boxer for most of the 10 rounds Friday night and rang up an impressive, if close, decision by shugging off Pastrano's fast punching.

Neither fighter was ever down in the nationally televised bout.

The win by the better-conditioned Johnson, ranked seventh by the NBA, was his 12th straight and ran his record to 18-1. For Pastrano, now ranked eighth by Ring Magazine, it was another disappointment in his comeback attempts.

Johnson, a fixture in gyms at the tender age of 12 but who didn't get serious about swapping leather until his early teens, will meet Miteff in New York's Madison Square Garden, Aug. 14. He gave away three and a half pounds to Pastrano, who went into the ring at 187, and has been idle since last February.

Pastrano's trainer Angelo Dundee, who was running the show for his manager brother, Chris, said: "We want to fight Johnson again—next week or any time."

The 24-year-old Johnson said that Pastrano was faster than Nino Valdes whom he defeated in Madison Square Garden, May 29. "Willie didn't hurt me any and I'm ready for Miteff," Johnson said.

Miteff was prevented from meeting Pastrano by a kidney infection.

MARTINEZ vs. BREECHAM IN DALLAS MONDAY

DALLAS (UPI) — Globe-trotting Jimmy Martinez, the world's busiest middleweight boxer, goes against Jimmy Breecham, a Miami Beach power puncher, in the 10-round main event at Memorial Auditorium Monday night.

Al Weill, former manager of four world champions, recently took Martinez in tow and hired former lightweight boss Lou Ambers to train the wiry Phoenix, Ariz., boxer.

Martinez, who has averaged 16 fights a year since 1936, is rated the busiest fighter in his division.

Martinez hopes to make his debut under Weill by winning, but the odds-makers are saying he won't. They have installed Breecham as a slight favorite over Martinez, a veteran of 187 fights.

Neither boxer is in the top 10 of the middleweight class. But promoter Ralph Smith has indicated that he will match the winner with middleweight title contender Joe Giardello.

Lane Makes Big Challenge

MUSKEGON, Mich. (UPI) — Kenny Lane, one of the nation's top-ranked lightweight contenders, awaited reaction today to his challenge to fight Carmen Basilio, a middleweight, in an old-fashioned battle.

In a radio interview with WMUS sports editor Wes Tebeau Friday night Lane proposed to battle Basilio in a fight to the finish. He suggested a no time limit, no weight limit scrap, provided a $100,000 guarantee was offered.

Lane suggested Tijuana, Mexico as a likely site for the old-time fist-cuffs session and said fight fans throughout the country would flock to see such a battle.

Basilio, who recently signed to fight for the NBA version of the middleweight-crown on the West Coast, did not comment immediately on the challenge.

Batters 'Slap' Back At Hoyt's Knuckler

By OSCAR FRALÉY
 United Press International
 NEW YORK (UPI) — Fearsome Fraléy's facts and figures: If you wondered what happened to Hoyt Wilhelm, the Baltimore pitcher who was sailing along with nine straight victories, and then lost five of his next six games, the answer is that opposing hitters smothered up and began "slapping" at his knuckler ball instead of taking a free swing.

Nine out of every 10 pitches he was throwing were knucklers and the hitters began timing and cutting his slow stuff. To get him to throw more fast balls, he's hoping that more of a mixture will get Wilhelm in a winning groove once again.

Sonny Liston, who battles Nino Valdes at Chicago on Aug. 5 in a televised bout, talks more like the number one challenger instead of a man who stands fourth in a not-too-impressive line. Liston saw a theater showing of the bout in which Ingemar Johansson kayped Floyd Patterson for the title and has harsh words for both of them.

Spoken Like A Tiger
 "Now I know for sure why that manager of Patterson's is so skeptical about opponents," he asserted. "Patterson didn't show nothin' and couldn't take a Saratoga sales."

Cobb Memorial Meet Set

DENTON, Tex. (UPI) — The third annual Fred Cobb Memorial golf tournament has been scheduled for Aug. 1 at the North Texas State College links.

Ross Collins, golf pro at the Lakewood Country Club in Dallas, said contestants in the tournament for amateurs can register the day of the tournament. They will play in four-man teams.

Collins organized the tournament in 1937 as a tribute to Cobb late coach of national championship golf teams at North Texas State.

Team entry fee is $6. Winners in the handicap tournament will receive golf balls.

ORIOLES' RICHARDS IS A SURPRISE WITNESS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Baltimore Oriole Manager Paul Richards is the surprise witness called for next week's sports hearing before the Senate anti-monopoly subcommittee.

The list, made public Friday by Chairman Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.), includes Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick and Bert Bell, National Football League commissioner.

Richards is the author of a magazine article which suggested reforms in some of the personal practices of major league clubs.

Two proposed sports bills will be aired at the hearings. One is the Kefauver proposal that a major league club would be limited to the number of players it could control. It also requires written statements from college football players that they are willing to abide by the results of the annual NFL player draft.

The other measure, sponsored by Sen. Kenneth E. Keating (R-N.Y.) would give blanket anti-trust exemption to professional football, baseball, basketball and hockey.

"I hate parties ...when they're over!"

Parties are fun -- while they last... but they're not fun when it comes to clean-up time. No one likes to hand wash stacks and stacks of dirty dishes. But the fun goes on when your electric dishwasher cleans up after a party. It's so much nicer to get the dirty dishes out of sight -- then you can push the button anytime later.

Party dishes are usually your best dishes. When you wash them electrically—automatically... you eliminate dish chipping and dish breaking—an important money-saving bonus of sanitary electric dishwashing.

ATTENTION, HUSBANDS!
 Don't be a dishwasher... buy one. Best of all, electric dishwashing costs only a penny and a half per day.

The ink scarcely was dry on Urrutia's handwritten resignation before Dorticos Torrado was sworn in to take his place.

Hand Picked By Castro
Urrutia had been hand-picked by Castro for the presidential assignment long before the final success of his revolution against the dictatorship of Fulgencio Batista in the dawn of Jan. 1, 1959.

In the dawn of Jan. 1, 1959, Urrutia, as a judge in Santiago de Cuba in 1953, had saved the youthful Castro from the firing squad with a ruling that under the constitution of 1940 the people had a right to revolt against tyranny.

It was the outgrowth of Castro's attack on the Moncada barracks in Santiago on July 26, 1953, in which most of Castro's followers were killed and he himself jailed. It was the attack from which Castro's present movement takes its name, "26 de Julio" and which is being celebrated on Sunday.

The ruling saved Castro's neck but it cost Urrutia his job. In the years preceding Castro's victory, Urrutia lived in exile in New York.

In Cuba, regardless of whether Castro himself is a Communist, it is dangerous to speak out against communism.

because he was a virtual unknown, aside from the fact he was an original member of Castro's cabinet entrusted with the task of drafting Castro's revolutionary laws and decrees.

Physically, the new president shunned the beard of Castro's more earthy followers, contenting himself with a small mustache.

He wore horn-rimmed glasses and he was a lawyer who lived out in Mexico the final days of the revolt after having been jailed a number of times by Batista.

He was a hard worker and he was intensely loyal to Castro. His birthplace was Las Villas province at the narrow waist of Cuba, scene of Castro's final triumph which convinced Batista he had better leave.

As the man who had drafted previous Castro decrees, including the controversial agrarian reform law and others, he could be counted upon to be more amenable than Urrutia. Urrutia, besides his other sins, had been accused of delaying some laws by holding up his signature and insisting on full cabinet debate.

There was a feeling, however, that Dorticos would not finally prove the front man that Castro needed and that his job was temporary.

Meanwhile, Castro's power was at a peak and there could be no forecasting this unpredictable man who once casually issued a decree by radio telephone from an airplane en route from Cuba to Venezuela.

Castro is quick with decisions

LANE SWORN IN
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former New Hampshire Governor Lane Dwinell was sworn in Saturday as assistant secretary of state for administration. Acting Secretary C. Douglas Dillon told Dwinell that his "reputation as an outstanding businessman and governor has preceded you."

But for the moment, he is riding high as proved by the multitude of his machete-swinging followers who flocked this week end into Havana.

WELFARE DECLINES
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Number of Americans on public welfare rolls dropped more sharply in May than in any month since October 1950, a Social Security administration report showed Friday. Commissioner William L. Mitchell reported that during May the number of persons receiving general welfare assistance dropped to 1,112,000, a decline of 148,000 from April.

Oswaldo Torrado Made Speech That Brought Urrutia's Demise

Foreign News Commentary
By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign Editor

The man-of-the-week: The new president of Cuba, Oswaldo Dorticos Torrado.

The place: Havana.

This quiet, "Americans must understand the Cuban revolution and our objectives. This is a Cuban revolution. It is nationalistic."

It was Friday night, July 17, that lightning struck for Dr. Dorticos Torrado.

For four hours, Fidel Castro had harangued before the microphone, with President Manuel Urrutia Leo as his chief target. The president, he said, had been guilty of near-treason. Urrutia, who had listened and watched on television in the presidential palace, resigned before the speech was finished.

THE LAST WEEK OF a very pleasant July... and the year more than half-over... in fact there are only 131 more popping days until Christmas... (hope you had not just ken a swallow of hot coffee, when your eyes came across at little statistic gem)... just think we've already let 4 days pass without Plan One made towards Christmas '59... but we were glad to read that such is not the case of those merchants who must plan months ahead for Yuletide dilly-dollers... at the Dallas Trade Mart's Christmas Gift Show held earlier this month promise was made to enchant young and old during the 1959 season... Christmas lights that jingle and candles that shine like cathedral windows are among the new holiday decorations... the standard round candle and the eight-series colored electric bulbs, that we have used for so long, have all but disappeared from the scene... and we are not sorry to see them go for their weight on the limbs of our tree always made it seem wilted long before we were ready to take it down... in the place of the eight-series bulbs is the fascinating innovation of the tiny jewel lights, which are less than an inch long and slightly thicker than a matchstick... we remember the attractive tree Bill and Eleanor Wagner had last year decorated with these little jewel lights... Candles are classical and colorful, molded into stately columns... and one very beautiful Cathedral window candle, as saw illustrated, beamed peace and contentment as the glowing candlelight filtered down through translucent wax columns... among the electric light innovations are strings of six-inch angels with spunglass robes holding tiny white lights in each hand like a candle... and there will be lights on the tassels of long gold cords, tiny jewel lights high string-through, exquisite balls and flowers of bugle beads.

Mrs. David Dean Cooper

First Lieutenant David Dean Cooper Takes Bride In Wedding Chapel Rites

First Lieutenant David Dean Cooper, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin E. Cooper, east of the city, and Miss Jo Ann Higgins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. T. Higgins of Lake City, S. Carolina, exchanged nuptial vows in Sacramento, Calif., on July 10 with Rev. W. C. Eddy of Oak Lawn Methodist Church officiating in the Sacramento Wedding Chapel. Double-ring vows were solemnized at five o'clock.

The bride was gowned in waltz-length Cathedral Chantilly lace and taffeta topped with a brief fitted jacket designed with a Peter Pan collar and short sleeves. The bouffant skirt was emphasized with a back-bustle of pink taffeta with wide streamers falling to the back hem-line. Her short-circular veil of French Tulle was caught to an orange blossom tiara. She carried a cascade arrangement of statinelli and Sweetheart roses centered with a white orchid.

Miss Phyllis Jannace of New York City wearing pink chiffon attended the bride as maid of honor. Joe Ed-King of Paris served the bridegroom as best man.

The bride's mother, Mrs. Higgins, chose a slate blue lace dress with matching accessories for her daughter's wedding. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Cooper wore navy silk with navy accessories. Their corsages were fashioned from American Beauty roses.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the chapel garden. For a wedding trip to Lake Tahoe, the bride traveled in a Thisland natural silk sheath topped with a short jacket, brown accessories complemented with a hat.

Twirlers Place First In Contests

Miss Jenna Jo Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Moore of White Deer, and sophomore in W.D.H.S. Miss Ellen Butler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Butler of White Deer and junior student, who have been attending McMurry Band School for the past two weeks, won first place in contests conducted by the school with a twirling duet.

Additional honor was won by Miss Moore when she was named "Miss McMurry" for her solo twirling routine.

Both girls performed Friday night in the final contests of the Band School at McMurry College.

Usually a cool iron will put the finishing touch on miracle fabric bloomers. If will, if they are hung correctly to dry and not wrung, so wrinkles are creased away with a iron.

SEPTEMBER NUPTIALS

Miss Ann Moyer

Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Moyer of Gage, Okla., formerly of Pampa, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Ann to Dr. Arthur C. McKay, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. McKay Sr., 4220 W. 12, Amarillo. Wedding vows will be exchanged in the First Presbyterian Church in Amarillo in September. (Photo, Clarence Studio)

Miss Adcock Feted With Bride's Party

A blue and white motif was used in the appointments for the bridal shower given for Miss Ruth Gwen Adcock, bride-elect of Duggan Smith, on Tuesday evening in the First Methodist Church parlors. Miss Adcock and Mr. Smith will be married on August 7 at 7 p.m. in the First Methodist Church.

Hostesses for the Come and Go Affair, between the hours of 7:30 and nine, were Misses Thelma Bray, Don Cain, Loyse Caldwell, W. R. Campbell, Coyte Ford, John Spearman and Miss Carolyn Ford.

The bride-elect's table was covered with a floor-length white cloth with an overskirt of white net extending to the floor in a deep ruffle. The focal point of the table was a small, blue tulle umbrella sprinkled with orange blossoms shading an oblong arrangement of Shasta daisies in a low bowl flanked by blue tapers in a crystal holder.

The gift table was arranged before the pattern mantle, which was decorated with blue tulle topiary trees; hung with orange blossoms and white wedding bells centered with pearl droplets. A cathedral arrangement of white Shasta daisies centered the mantle.

Guests were registered by Miss Ford. Miss Cynthia Duncan, at the piano, provided background music during the evening.

Corsages of Shasta daisies arranged with split blossoms and white net were presented to the honoree; her mother, Mrs. Woodrow W. Adcock; her sister, Miss Ann Adcock, who will serve as maid of honor; Mrs. Frank D. Smith, groom-elect's mother; and his grandmother, Mrs. Oda Richards of Whittier, Calif.

Hostesses alternated in the receiving line and at the serving of Fruit punch, an assortment of petits fours, and blue, wedding-bell shaped mints.

Approximately 150 guests called or sent gifts during the evening.

A new infant in the house calls for a small basket crib on wheels. Keeping the quilted plastic lining and mattress clean and fresh is no problem. A sturdy cloth will clean both the lining and mattress. Rinse and wipe dry, and put baby back in the basket after a few moments.

John Truby was guest speaker on the topic making "Rose Bowls" and also gave informative tips on how to give brighter color to flowers. He suggested that "working time in soil around plants makes flowers whiter; iron shavings make them redder, and copper shavings make flowers bluer."

Mrs. Loyse Caldwell reported on the iris bulb sale, which has been in progress to raise funds for the club's projects.

Brenda Boyd Feted On Second Birthday

Miss Brenda Dianne Boyd was guest of honor at a birthday party in Central Park on the occasion of her second birthday with her mother, Mrs. G. J. Boyd, 128 N. Faulkner, as hostess.

Miss Barbara Lunsford at the piano, provided background music during the evening. Refreshments were served from a table covered with a white cut-work cloth centered with an artistic arrangement of graceful Detroit wood-blossomed with pink and purple Asters accented with clusters of pink grapes at the base.

Miss Shirley Epps presided at the crystal punch service serving Raspberry punch. Miss Marilyn Myatt served the white sheet cake decorated with wedding bells outlined in orchid icing and inscribed in each ball with "Olivia and Jerry." White napkins with the bride's name in orchid script, silver and crystal completed the table's appointments.

Miss Paul Corotis and Miss Glynette Dawkins assisted with the opening of gifts. Approximately 150 guests attended or sent gifts during the calling hours of 7:30 to 9 p.m.

MATURE PARENT

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

This morning my husband, especially nice to me. Then a neighbor who drops in tells me I'm looking well. Later I get a letter from my mother saying that the brother-in-law she's always comparing unfavorably with my husband has lost his job.

I feel good. I feel that life isn't treating me so badly after all. So when Terry asks permission to have a friend to supper, I say "Yes."

But the day after tomorrow my husband will be cranky. My beauty parlor operator will ask me if I'm putting on weight. My sister will write that her paragon of a husband is going to start his own firm.

I'll feel discouraged about my life. So when Terry asks if he can give a friend some cookies, I'll snap, "No! Do you think I can afford to feed the whole neighborhood?"

I am an inconsistent parent, a parent whose treatment of her child varies with changes in other people's treatment of her. With no direction of my own I swing like a weather vane from optimism to depression according to what other people say or do.

As a result, Terry may not be able to develop any self-direction either. Because my treatment of him is never predictable, he won't be able to trust his own judgment of what I want. He won't be able to say to himself, "My mother allows this, but doesn't allow that." And without this confidence he will learn to exploit my changing moods to his own advantage. He'll learn to think, "She's feeling good now so I better get everything I want out of her before she starts feeling different."

To be thus cynically exploited by one's child is not very pleasant. Sometimes a parent whose inconsistency has taught a child to exploit her can become aware of this problem in herself. She may suddenly register something false and overextravagant in the child's gratitude for some favor—and she knows she dislikes it.

Or she may register the speed with which he gives up a wish—and realize that he's biding his time until his chances are better. And feel what she may have not known she's been feeling all along: resentment at his exploitation.

This resentment can be the beginning of a healthy resistance to her inconsistency.

MISS SWAIN HONORED—Guests of honor at the bridal shower for Miss Olivia Swain on Thursday evening in the First Baptist Church parlors were, left to right,

YEAR ABBY...

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I would appreciate some advice from you or any of your readers who have had my kind of trouble. My husband hit me last night. My eye is swollen shut and half my face is black and blue. I don't dare go home to my parents now because they would pressure me into filing for divorce. We have been married for two years and have a baby a year old. My husband spoiled me.

I want to know if any other wife whose husband hit her was able to straighten out her marriage enough to make a success of it.

Dear Waiting: Common sense dictates that when a marriage is at stake, it is always wise to give your mate a second chance. But if a woman sticks around after having been hit twice — she's either numb or dumb.

DEAR ABBY: I married when I was 18 and I now have two children. The oldest is 14 months old and the baby is four months. I just found out I am pregnant again. The last thing on earth I want right now is another baby. I am so worn out from having them so close together I am ready for a nervous breakdown. My husband isn't working steady and his people and mine live too far away to help me. The Church I was raised in doesn't allow birth control. Can you help me?

Dear Sally: You have to help yourself. If your Church doesn't allow BIRTH CONTROL you will have to rely on SELF-CONTROL.

DEAR ABBY: After seven years of a childless marriage and running to doctors, my husband and I are giving up hope of ever having our own baby. I have tried to talk him into trying to adopt one.

My husband says he doesn't want to run the risk of getting a child who might grow up to be abnormal.

We have friends who have had wonderful luck with adopted children. But my husband thinks we won't be that lucky. How can I convince him to put our names in for adoption?

Dear Waiting: Your husband surely is aware that parents have no guarantee that their own child will grow up to be "normal." Thousands of couples have known more happiness from their adopted children than parents who have had their own.

Yes, and there are even folks who have intentionally adopted a handicapped child. This is the noblest act of all.

DEAR ABBY: Our 17-year-old daughter has accepted a friendship ring from a boy of whom we approve. But, Abby, she wears this ring on her engagement finger and she is telling everyone that she is "engaged."

It was not our intention to allow her to become engaged. She has four years of college ahead of her and the boy has college and the Army ahead of him. Should a friendship ring be worn on the engagement finger? We are proper people.

MRS. K.: Dear Mrs. K.: A friendship ring should be worn either on a chain around the neck, or any other finger other than the "engagement" finger. Don't be disturbed because your daughter is telling people she is "engaged." The official announcement (among proper people) must come from the parents.

ABBY in care of this paper. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

RUTH MILLETT

"Don't you agree," asks an 18-year-old bride, "that poor housekeepers make the best wives?" Certainly not. And for the sake of our husband let's hope you don't continue to believe that nonsense, either.

Most men are far happier living in an orderly, well-run house than in the midst of clutter and confusion.

Men like to be proud of their homes, too. And how can they be proud of a home if they are conscious, whenever a friend drops in, that the house is in a mess?

Besides, orderliness prevents confusion. A man is sure to be frustrated if he never can find anything he wants, if he never knows when a meal is going to be served, if his wife is always explaining that she forgot to get this staple or to take care of having something fixed, or that sending this suit to the cleaners just "slipped her mind."

If you don't believe that neatness and order are important to a man, just listen to how men brag about secretaries who are efficient, neat, and orderly. The way men insist on having their offices run is a good indication of how they would like to have their homes run.

Not of course, that a home can be run as smoothly and efficiently as an office. But at least a wife's goal should be to run her home as well as possible.

If instead she tells herself that poor housekeepers are better wives than conscientious ones, she's not kidding anyone but herself. All she is looking for is an excuse for laziness.

Sight plays an important role in tempting appetites. An attractive meal combines foods that contrast in color, texture and flavor.

people who are at home with QUALITY choose GAS appliances

Enter the home where choices are made strictly on the basis of quality, and the chances are excellent that you'll find a built-in Gas range in the kitchen. That's because people who are concerned enough to evaluate, discover that a Gas range offers superiority in two ways. The range itself combines precision accuracy with complete automation. And GAS, as a live-flame fuel, does important things that no other fuel can do. It consumes cooking vapors so that you can enjoy closed-door smokeless broiling. With Gas there's no warm-up wait when it's turned on... no lingering heat when it's turned off. And only an instantly responsive Gas flame permits perfect control of the subtle variations in temperature that mean so much to the taste and texture of foods. Gas is the choice of people who insist upon quality at any price... and it's incidental that Gas costs from five to eight times less than any other fuel! Where the finest is truly appreciated... GAS belongs.

New Do-It-Yourself Reading Method To Be Introduced Into Fall Textbooks

Woman To Woman
By MARY PRIME
United Press International
NEW YORK (UPI)—Now Johnny can improve his reading by a new do-it-yourself method.
This fall, for the first time, textbooks will show youngsters exactly what reading skills they need, why and how to acquire them. The books, designed for the seventh and eighth grades, emphasize self-help, and include chapters on reading comprehension, wordless reading, faster reading, interpreting between the lines, and use of the dictionary. For example, in dealing with interpreting ideas, the book shows how to interpret quotations from William Shakespeare, such as "the fringed curtains of thine eye advance," (open your eyes) and "I am all the daughters of my father's house and all the brothers too" (I am an only child). Then it points out that Shakespeare used such phrases to provoke the reader into using his imagination.

"One chapter on speeding up reading explains that just as a person eats by the forkful, he can learn to read by the eyeful — in groups of words instead of word by word.
"Called 'Reading With Purpose' and 'Reading For Significance,' the books were written by two educators, Ullin W. Leavell and Alex M. Caughran, who direct reading clinics at Virginia and Purdue universities.
"Until now, public school textbooks have by-passed the pupil on what he is supposed to be learning about reading," said Dr. Leo Gans, editor-in-chief of the firm which published the texts.
"This has been a secret between textbook authors and teachers, told only in teachers' guide books," he said.
"Now the pupil will know what is expected of him instead of merely going through classroom exercises that may be meaningless to the teacher but meaningful to him."
In addition to six chapters on developing reading skills, the texts contain 30 feature stories adapted from articles that appeared in national magazines or anthologies and practice exercises after each story. The stories revolve around moral themes.
The authors believe improved reading is the key that can speed up the learning process in every area of education.
From classroom tests in New Jersey, Virginia, and Indiana, the educators found that the books increased rates of reading and comprehension.
Why?
"Because they furnish motivation, identification of needs, and recognition that the student can improve," said Walter Mason, senior editor supervising the publication of the books.
The tests also showed that as students improved their reading, they learned to enjoy it more, he said.

FEMINE BUT NOT FUSSY!

To countless young women — lamps, books and magazines — and this includes, also, those who are young in heart — a feminine bedroom is the room of their dreams.
Many folks seem to have the mistaken idea that a feminine bedroom is a fussy room. Not any more! The love knots, bows and arrows, cherubs, doves and honeysuckle which were used in the past to accept the feminine note have gone the way of the bustle and high-button shoes.
Today we achieve femininity in room decor with modified curves, horizontal lines, smooth textures, floral patterns and soft, muted colors. And we make sure that this all adds up to a room that is functional, attractive and easy to maintain.
A distinctive touch has been introduced in the feminine bedroom sketched above by using wallpaper in a white Venetian blind pattern on the entire window wall. Other walls have been painted a

Designed to pretty up the basic sheath are these summer accessories. Cotton print cocoon jacket (left) is hiplength, has bloused chiton top to skim-the-waistline. It is done in a variety of prints. The wool-knit chemise jacket (center) is knit on long, slim lines to the hipbone, is neatly hand-d. It's done in a novelty knit that simulates a cable stitch. The long tie and matching bow clip (right) turn a sheath into a dressy affair for early evening. They are in polka dot taffeta, come in a wide range of colors. The clip bow is actually a very soft version of the popular headband. All accessories shown here are by Glentex. They are ideal for travel since they fill small space in a suitcase.

Summer Brings In Cotton Knits

By GAILE DUGAS
NEA Women's Editor
NEW YORK (NEA) — By time, almost every woman has cotton knit or two in her wardrobe. She'll be adding several as summer goes by since they're indispensable for warm weather wear.
The new cotton knits are for glamor girls with a streak of practicality. They come in a host of fashion colors, paisley mixtures, stripes and pastels as well as city black.
For beach, resort or country wear, they take on a nautical look and draw themselves up into blouses and blouses.
When you stop for cotton knit look for the tag that says they're all-washable and crease-resistant. These will look fresh all summer long no matter how wilting heat.

Instant coffee will also produce a good glass of iced coffee in a hurry. Follow the directions on the jar. Generally, you will have to use about twice as much instant coffee as you use for the hot cup. Mix it with a small amount of water in each glass (hot or cold according to brand); add ice cubes, cold water and stir thoroughly.
COFFEE TROPICALE
This is a delicious variation served in El Salvador and many other Latin American countries. For four servings use: 1/2-cup sugar, 1-cup granulated sugar, 1-cup cracked ice. Fill electric blender container half-full of finely chopped ice. Add coffee and sugar. Blend until thick and foamy. Pour into four tall glasses.
MOCHA FROSTED

(Yield: 4 servings)
Two and one-half measuring cups strong, cold coffee; 5-tablespoons chocolate syrup; 1-pint coffee-ice cream.
Place all ingredients in bowl and blend with rotary beater until smooth. Pour into four tall glasses.
TOMORROW'S DINNER: Lamb stew with garden vegetables, steamed rice, hot biscuits, butter or margarine, lettuce, tomato and green pepper salad, lemon and oil dressing, blueberry pie, iced coffee, tea, milk.

Good Company For Smart Basic Dress

By GAILE DUGAS
NEA Women's Editor
NEW YORK (NEA) — Living out of a suitcase while you're on vacation is fun only when you're well-organized. Carrying too much luggage is a burden; carrying too few things is a trial.
The happiest compromise lies in several really good basic dresses in fabric that will stand up in the climate of your choice. Even in summer one of these should be a wool unit sheath for a slick, unwrinkled, cool appearance.
To these basic dresses, you can add the small accessories that pack flat, wash like nylons, take up next to no room in a suitcase and turn one dress into six.
The tiny trapeze jacket is one example. Cut with narrow shoulders, it flares to a stop just at the waistline. Then there's the bloused jacket in thin tinted cotton that comes to an end just at the hipline. Lacy knit stoles in washable orlon and cotton provide protection against sudden summer breezes.
The honeycomb cotton knit coat that's buttoned in brass is another scene changer. This is soft, washable orlon with just enough bulk. It's ideal for wear with a sheath all day long.
For late day, slip an orlon shrug into your suitcase. Some have ruffles knit in a scattered pattern over the surface and others have flowers printed on nylon veiling.

Did you ever try dipping your Venetian blinds in the bathtub? Suds and rinse the blinds and hang them to dry over a pair of parallel lines, outdoors or indoors. Venetian blinds should be carried outdoors in some container to prevent drippings on floors or rugs.

POSTMASTER TALKS BACK

EDITOR'S NOTE: Gripping against the postal service is something of a national pastime. In this dispatch, the postmaster general talks back.

By ARTHUR E. SUMMERFIELD
 Written for UPI

WASHINGTON (UPI)—When the new postage rate increases were being considered by Congress last year, I stated publicly at that time that we would accelerate improvements in postal service in every possible way following the enactment of the increases in law to give the American people even more for their postage dollar.

The postage rate increases have not adversely affected revenues, which were up more than 450 million dollars for the 1959 fiscal year, nor mail volume, which will be up about 2 per cent. At the same time that the rate increases were enacted into law, Congress passed the postal policy act of 1958, establishing as an important basic principle of far-reaching importance for the future soundness of the postal service that the service should be substantially self-supporting except with respect to specifically identified items of a public service nature.

Service improvements Equally important are many significant and far-reaching service improvements which we have made since President Eisenhower signed the postage rate legislation into law on May 27, 1958.

For example, we announced concurrently with the beginning of postage rate increases last August that all postmasters should study their needs at local levels for additional window service, improvements in collections of mail from street letter boxes, and related service improvements, with a view to putting these improvements into effect wherever necessary.

As a result of this step—and through the splendid work of our 15 regional offices over the nation, well over 2,500 post offices in every state have instituted longer hours of window service.

Also, we estimate that 4,000 post offices all over the country provided additional pickups of mail from street letter boxes.

At the same time numerous improvements in rural delivery service were made. On August 1, 1958, I ordered extension of rural deliveries on the basis of two families per mile of rural routes, rather than the previous standard of three families per mile.

And at the end of the 1959 fiscal year just closed June 30, an estimated 427,000 rural families had benefited from this extension in service.

In addition to these immediate

WATCHIT! THIS IS THE SEASON OF LIGHTNING

By EDWARD COWAN
 United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)— Suppose a bolt of lightning zings out of a thundercloud and hits your house.

If you've anticipated this common summertime threat and equipped your home with lightning rods you probably don't have to worry. But if your house is not equipped and its chances of being hit by lightning are not negligible, perhaps you'd better do something.

If the house is on high ground or stands in a thinly settled area, it's more likely to be hit.

Of course, your lightning danger also depends on what part of the country you live in. Electrical storms are more common in summer than in winter in all parts. But there is a great variance in the frequency of these storms in different regions.

Storms Vary By Area

According to the U. S. Weather Bureau, electrical storms occur only once about a year in the San Francisco area. But residents of Tampa, Fla., can expect them on an average of 90 days a year. Frequencies in other areas fall in between these extremes.

When a lightning bolt leaves from a thundercloud it jumps the smallest distance it can, according to John A. Dickinson, chief of safety codes and standards of the government's National Bureau of Standards.

"A house on a hill or an unusually high building is a tempting target," Dickinson said. "The higher the object the shorter the trip for the lightning."

That's why lightning rods work. They stick up above the house, catching the lightning before it hits the building itself. If properly installed, the rods carry the electrical charge off to the ground where it is deposited without damage.

A code for protection against lightning drawn up by the bureau and industry advises that lightning rods should be placed not more than 25 feet apart. They should be at least 10 inches high. Depending on local weather conditions and winds, they may have to be braced or otherwise supported if they are taller than 24 inches.

The code says the rods should be made of galvanized iron, copper or aluminum.

Dickinson, who helped draw up the code, said each rod should have a separate conductor leading to the ground or there could be at least two separate conductors to the ground for an average size building. The ground conductor probably should be thicker than the topside rods to compensate for corrosion.

In moist earth it should be sunk at least eight inches. In dry ground it is advisable to bottom the ground rod with a copper plate or else sink it deeper.

Dickinson also recommended that homeowners connect their conductors to other metal that lies within six inches. Otherwise lightning may skip from the conductor to the metal and in so doing ignite inflammable material. But if there is no gap, the charge will be harmlessly grounded.

Similarly, metal roofs and metal sidings should be linked so there is no gap. The sidings, of course, should be well grounded.

Plastic Bags Have Killed 79 Infants

United Press International

Seventy-nine infants have been suffocated by plastic bags so far this year, a United Press International count showed.

In addition 17 persons have used the bags to commit suicide.

Many agencies and the federal government have warned parents to keep the thin plastic containers out of the reach of children.

Last month the Society of the Plastics Industry, Inc., launched a national advertising campaign in newspapers and over the radio to inform the public about the safe use of the bags, commonly used to package laundry and dry cleaning.

The industry warned that the plastic should never be used as makeshift covers in cribs or playpens or for mattresses or upholstery and should never be given to children as playthings.

The bags should be torn or tied in knots and discarded.

Manufacturers have urged Congress not to pass hasty laws against the plastic bags. Spokesmen for the industry say education not legislation is the answer to the problem. Fifteen states and ten cities have considered legislation against the bags.

Political Softener

There's a man named Evis out in San Francisco, who came up with something a few years ago. For reasons which apparently are unknown to the world of science, there's a chemical compound which can be put into water which has the merit of "conditioning" that water.

Kozlov Was Right

We don't very often find much that living or not in large measure. In common with the statements of top-level Russians. But we must admit that the nation's recent visit to the Kremlin, from Romano-vich Kozlov, had something when he opined that this nation is headed toward a political system which will match precisely that of the Soviet Union.

The Pampa Daily News

YOUR FREEDOM NEWSPAPER We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is not license. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule, The Ten Commandments and the Declaration of Independence.

BETTER JOBS

By R. G. BOILES Freedom Of The State Hostile To Freedom Of The Individual I never realized the truth of the above statement until I read an article by Dr. Ruth Alexander who writes for the New York Mirror and other newspapers, when she explained that "the government now proposes establishment of a 'Freedom Academy' to teach us all about freedom just when we thought we had it nailed down because we could vote.

And then, at the third hearing, it reversed its previous double finding and found Mr. Evis guilty of selling something that people wanted, and in advertising it's properties.

But at this third hearing, a curious statement was interjected into the proceeding by Abner E. Lipscomb, examiner for the FTC. He said: "We must not take the risk of interfering with the development of a device which may prove to be the first practical application of a scientific principle heretofore undiscovered."

These tactics of the FTC are reminiscent of what a "whore" and "whore-hunter" hasn't this agency outlived its supposed usefulness?

Under the missile pact signed by the U.S. and Britain last year, nuclear warheads can be employed only with the approval of both countries.

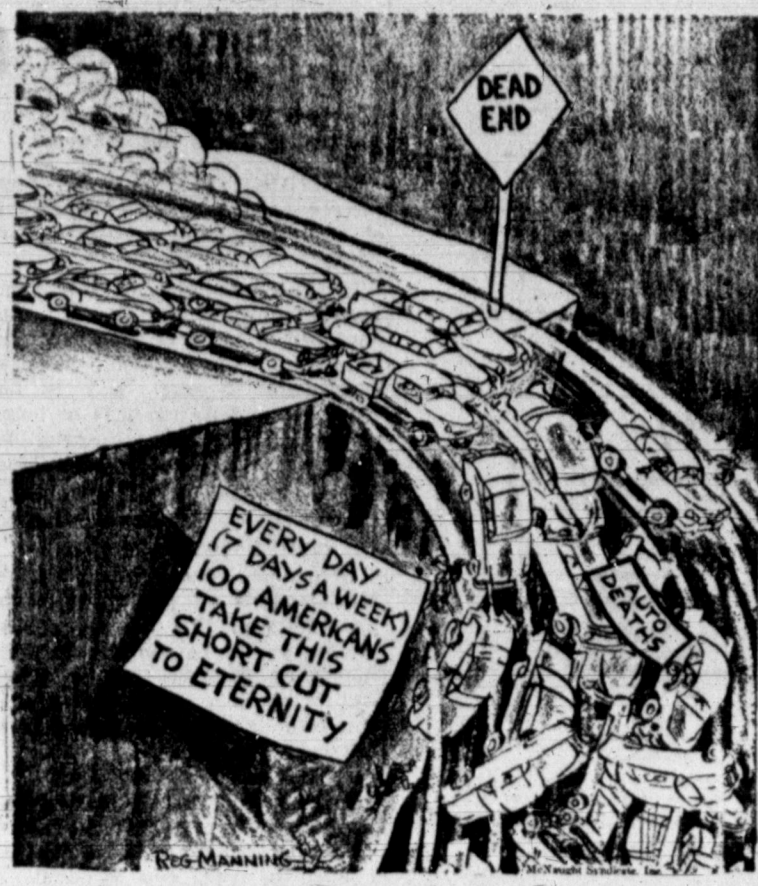

It will be at least another 18 months before the U.S. has built up an operational ballistic missile strength equal to that which Britain will possess by next January 1.

There are two reasons for that. (1) Up to now, the main emphasis has been on developing the more readily produced shorter range missiles, such as the THOR and the Army's JUPITER.

Robert Allen Reports:

England Becoming Missile Stronghold

WASHINGTON — England is now rapidly being made the most powerful ballistic missile stronghold in the West.

Around 100 Air Force THOR missiles, with an intermediate range of 1500 miles and armed with nuclear warheads, are being employed on four strategically located British bases.

Sixty of these IRBMs will be operational by the end of this year. These missiles will have the capability of blasting Moscow and numerous other key targets in Western Russia.

The 100 THORs are approximately double the number originally planned for Britain. This increase is due to President de Gaulle's refusal to sign a Ballistic Missile agreement, unless given complete control over their nuclear warheads.

There is a strong possibility that if we succeed in blowing ourselves off the face of the globe, and probably destroying most other animal life with us, insects will inherit what remains.

Several kinds of lice may infest human beings. Most of them prefer the human scalp, except for the so-called "crab louse" which likes the groin region.

Some people seem to have a special attraction for lice. Lice will actually desert the bodies of some for more attractive locations.

Lice lay eggs, or nits, on the body. These hatch in about seven days. The nits are not destroyed by most treatments, so that they must be taken care of in some other way — usually by treatment after hatching.

Personal cleanliness is the most important part of prevention. There is no doubt that bathing in warm water and the use of soap at least once a week, together with frequent changes in clean clothing, reduce the chances of acquiring lice.

Crowding acts to spread lice infestation. In rapidly growing and crowded communities these vermin are frequently found even among clean families.

Treatment was often difficult in the past because the substances which killed lice did not always work on their applications took a great deal of time and work on the part of the patient.

Now, partly as a result of experience learned during the war, there are several quite satisfactory methods of eliminating lice from the human body.

Miller, 29, a former Arizona State star and member of the U.S. Olympic team in 1952, was conducting a clinic for Vietnamese physical education teachers.

TRYING HER LUCK — It ought to be good for any girl as pretty as Judy Scott, but she ran into a snag at Florida's Silver Springs. Judy started to go fishing, but when she climbed through a barbed wire fence, she got caught.

PLAY TIME—Between performances of "This Island's Mine," Constance Bainbridge's play based on Shakespeare's "The Tempest," members of the cast go in for skin diving in Bermuda. Actor-producer Basil Langton (second from left) took the performers to Gibbett's Island where they learned the popular water sport in the famed crystal-clear waters.

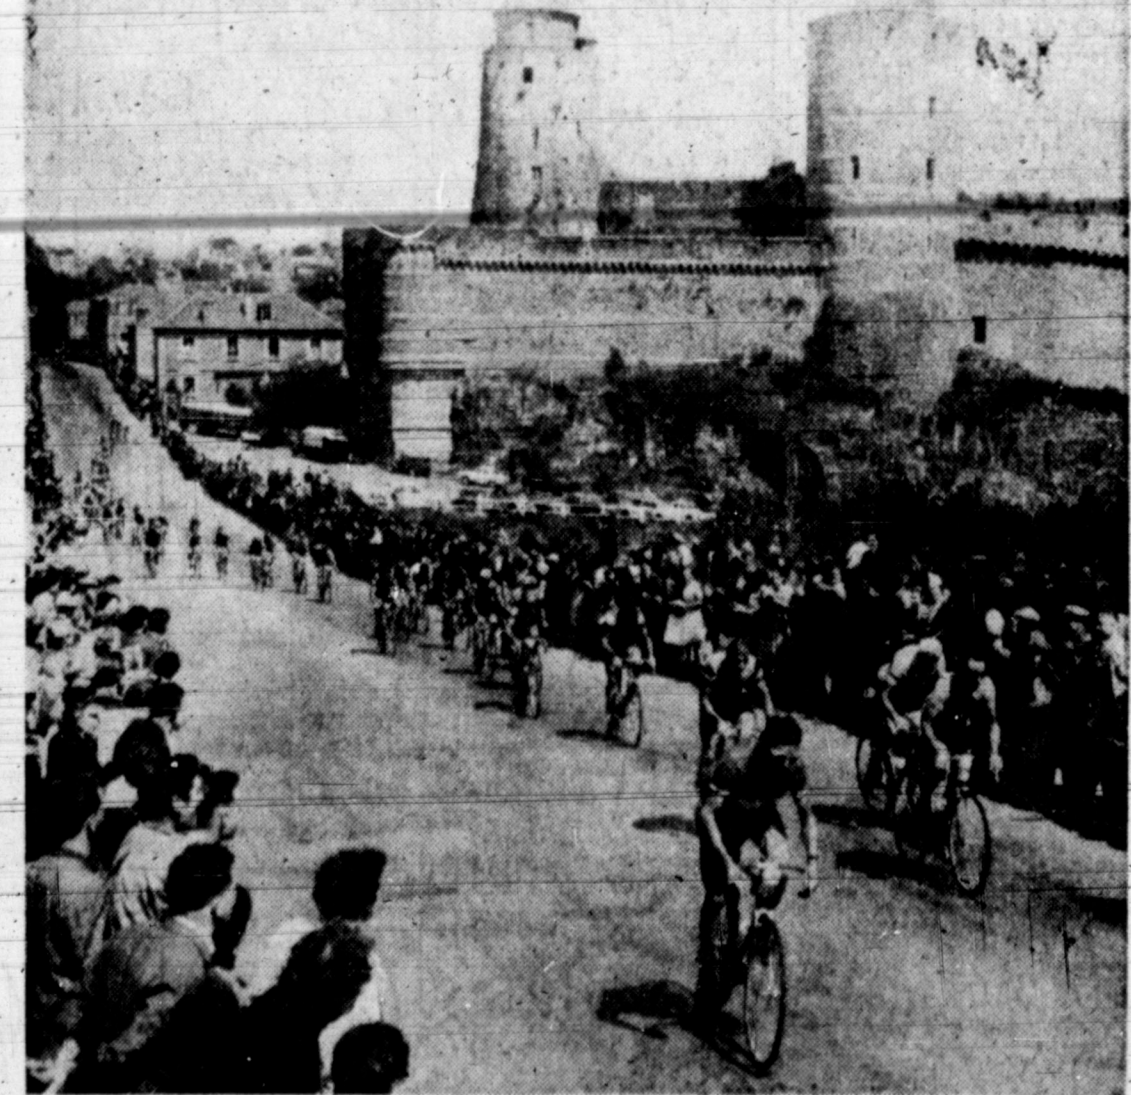

AT LONG, LONG LAST—As he waved from the rigging of the sailboat he brought from Tunisia to the U.S. in a reported 85 days, Polish-born Christopher Grabowski had every reason to smile. The Statue of Liberty in the background of New York's harbor must have looked mighty good to him.

HOOPING IT UP—They've got the hoops, all right, but there's no sign of American-style hula hooping as these girls parade during a celebration in Sofia, Bulgaria. The occasion was the first day of a youth festival.

ROUGH RIDER—There's no horseplay for this lad, shown battling through a game of bicycle polo in Elkins Park, Pa. The youthful sport is played like regular polo, except that bikes replace horses. Any number can play and the ball must be hit while the rider's moving.

Phillips Rate Case Deadline Monday

By HARRY WILSON SHARPE
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI)—On Monday the famous Phillips rate case reaches another milestone as the Federal Power Commission is expected to announce whether the 11-year-old case which vitally affects the financial welfare of 5,000 independent gas producers, many interstate pipelines and millions of consumers, should be reopened; or whether the courts will be the final arbiters.

The company, the nation's biggest independent, made clear after Zwerdling's interim decision that an adverse commission finding would be appealed. It was in a Phillips test case on June 7, 1954, that the Supreme Court ruled the commission must regulate the price of all gas sold in interstate commerce. Phillips, whether the 11-year-old case which vitally affects the financial welfare of 5,000 independent gas producers, many interstate pipelines and millions of consumers, should be reopened; or whether the courts will be the final arbiters.

The commission's ultimate decision, which may take more years if it goes to court, is important to consumers because it may affect their gas bills and future gas supplies. It is important to the gas industry because it will finally fix the ground rules for federal price regulation. It is important to Congress because it will delineate how far the commission thinks it can go in interpreting the Natural Gas Act of 1938.

CRUDE OIL IS GIVEN A DROP

Effective Monday, July 20, the Atlantic Refining Co. announced it was reducing the price it would pay for crude oil in East Texas by 20 cents a barrel.

The reduced price for crude oil was accepted with forebodings of dire results by a number of industry officials.

Gordon Simpson, president of the Independent Petroleum Association of America at Dallas, said Atlantic's decision was "disturbing and despicable."

"It comes at a time when low producing allowances and rising costs seriously threaten the economic stability of the domestic petroleum industry," Simpson said.

Harry C. Jones, president of IPIPO, (the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners of America) promptly sent the following telegram to the Atlantic Co.:

"Your sharp cut in the price of crude oil in East Texas appears entirely without justification in the light of current industry conditions."

"This action comes at a time when virtually every relevant factor affecting crude oil prices indicates stability. The stock picture for gasoline and other products has materially improved and is generally regarded as satisfactory and product prices are being increased."

"Results of your action could jeopardize the stability of the entire petroleum industry, and come at a particularly unfortunate time for the State of Texas in meeting revenue needs. Texas independent producers, operating on a near-record low allowable and carrying the over-supply umbrella for other areas, simply cannot explain this price cut except in terms of willingness of an importing company to ease industry progress."

"Unless your company is willing to assume responsibility for possible dire consequences to the State, to the industry, and to your company, you are urged to reconsider and restore the price cut."

The effect of Atlantic's cut was to reduce the price of East Texas crude to $3.95 per barrel. Simpson's estimate is only 15 cents, or 5 percent, above the price in effect in June 1953, more than six years ago. In this same period, prices of finished steel, of which the oil producing industry is a major user, have increased 37 percent.

World's 2nd Well Lauded

TITUSVILLE, Penn. (Sp) — Although it never produced a drop of oil, the world's second oil well was honored near here Friday with the erection of a monument dedicated "to all the men who tried and failed in their search for oil."

In brief ceremonies attended by officials of the oil industry and of the state of Pennsylvania, the monument was unveiled near here at the historic oil town of Tidouste, Pa., by a retired oil man who is older than the oil industry itself.

The man was Ed Lutz, Evans City, Pa., who was born August 15, 1859, just 12 days before the completion of Colonel Edwin L. Drake's well at Titusville, Pa., gave birth to the oil industry. Mr. Lutz worked in the western Pennsylvania oil fields for over 50 years as a driller and contractor.

The monument unveiled by Mr. Lutz is a gray slab of native stone rising six feet above the ground. An attached bronze plaque bears the following inscription:

"THE GRANDIN WELLS, World's Second Oil Well, Commenced August 31, 1859. It was the First Dry Hole; First Well in Which an Explosive Charge Was Used; First Oil Well in Warren County. Erected July 22, 1959. By Oil Centennial, Inc."

He is a 1940 graduate of the University of Oklahoma, from which he obtained a chemical engineering degree.

Sun Oil Moves Dallas Offices

DALLAS (Sp) — Sun Oil Company's Southwest Division Office moved this week-end into its new quarters in the new 42-story Southland Tower here.

Sun will occupy 77,000 square feet of space in the new skyscraper, including all of the six floors from 20 through 25 as well as a portion of the 26th floor.

The move involves 520 employees. They have been occupying 10 floor and portions of several others in the Rio Grande National Building, where the Sun offices were moved in 1949. Prior to that, they had been in the First National Bank Building since the Company first opened its Dallas Office in 1915.

The Sun force in the Dallas area also includes 80 employees in the Production Research and Development Laboratory at nearby Richardson.

Dallas is headquarters for Sun's Southwest Division, which is headed by S. H. Gladney as division manager and Tom F. Hill as assistant manager. The division produces oil and gas from the mid-South to New Mexico and from the Rio Grande to the Texas and Oklahoma Panhandle. It also carries on leasing and exploratory activities from the Atlantic to Arizona.

The Almanac

Today is Sunday, July 26, the 207th day of the year, with 158 more days to follow in 1959.

The moon is approaching its last quarter.

The evening stars are Jupiter, Saturn, Venus, and Mars.

On this date in history: In 1581, the Netherlands proclaimed its independence from Spain.

In 1898, Spain sued for peace in the Spanish-American War.

In 1925, William Jennings Bryan died.

In 1941, General Douglas MacArthur was appointed commander of U.S. forces in the Philippines.

In 1952, Illinois governor Adlai Stevenson won the Democratic presidential nomination.

In 1956, Egyptian President Gamel Abdul Nasser issued a decree nationalizing the internationally owned Suez Canal.

Thought for today: It is written in the Bible: "What is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul?"

DINNERS A CHORE
GENEVA (UPI) — West German Press Chief Felix von Eckhart said a banquet given by Soviet Foreign Minister Andre Gromyko Thursday night was no common man's fare.

"There was Russian caviar with vodka, then trout and red wine, then some meat which I skipped and finally ice cream," Eckhart said of the dinner for West German delegates. "Those official dinners are a chore."

NOT SATISFIED
OLDHAM, England (UPI) — Thieves stole a television set, hair drier, pressure cooker, electric toaster, vacuum cleaner and some luggage from Mrs. Joyce Wilton last month.

But apparently the thieves weren't satisfied with them. Thursday, the appliances mysteriously reappeared in her back yard, neatly stacked against a wall.

Sunray Nabs New Shares

TULSA, Okla. (Sp) — Sunray Mid-Continent Oil Co. has acquired sufficient shares of Sundite Refining Co. Corp. stock, so that Sunray now owns more than 90 percent of the outstanding Sundite shares.

The offer to exchange one share of Sunray common stock for each three shares of Sundite common stock deposited became effective Thursday. Former Sundite stockholders who have deposited shares for exchange will be mailed their new Sunray stock certificates by the Hanover Bank, Corporate Trust Dept., New York.

Sunray also announced today that the company has extended until September 4, 1959, its offer to Sundite shareholders, as set forth in the prospectus, by letter to the less than 10 percent of Sundite shareholders who have not yet deposited their shares for exchange.

Sunray on July 17 declared a dividend of 33 cents per share on its common stock to holders of record August 6, payable September 15. All Sundite stockholders who have deposited their shares by August 8 and continue to be a holder of record of new Sunray common stock on that date will be entitled to that dividend. The company has announced.

It is anticipated that Sundite will operate as a direct subsidiary of Sunray Mid-Continent Oil Co., and no changes in present operating management are contemplated.
