Ike Lands In Europe, Set for Talks

High Level Conference In Germany To Chart Policies

BONN, Germany (UPI) — President Eisenhower landed at West Germany's capital city of Bonn today to launch a historic nuclear age crusade for peace.

The man who led the Allied armies 14 years ago to inflict on Germany the most crushing defeat in its history was welcomed back here in triumph today as the free West's leader in the cold war with communism.

West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, 83, and most of his government were on hand to greet the President as he stepped from his gigantic jet transport at Wahn Airport near here.

An estimated 50,000 Germans lined the 19-mile route from Wahn to Bonn and its Bad Godesberg where the President was to spend the night at the U.S. embassy residence.

The President and Secretary of State Christian A. Herter will spend some seven hours in conferences Thursday with Adenauer, Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano and other West German officials.

Thursday evening Eisenhower flies on to Britain for a five-day visit, during which he will make a quick trip to Scotland to call on Queen Elizabeth II, hold down-earth diplomatic talks with British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan and receive Spanish Foreign Minister Fernando Maria Castiella.

On Sept. 2 he hops over to Paris to meet with French President Charles de Gaulle in what may be the toughest part of his mission designed to weld together a solid Western front before his meeting with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev Sept. 15.

The triumphal reception given the President here was dramatic evidence of the way the cold war has switched the world's power fronts since the destruction of Nazi Germany in 1945.

The West Germans see in President Eisenhower and the U.S. their main hope ultimately of breaking down Soviet hostility to German reunification. The Bonn government staged a welcome here that reflected the unity hopes not only of 51 million reagent West Germans, but also of the 11 million Germans under Communist rule in the East.

Thousands of cheering Germans lined the streets in every little town and village, waiting for the Eisenhower motorcade on the 19-mile drive to Bonn.

Banners inscribed "Welcome Mr. President" and "Germany is indivisible" draped village streets. Typical German village brass bands were on hand to blow out an "oompah" welcome as the motorcade sped through the German countryside and across the great Rhine River bridge at Bonn itself.

Tomorrow thousands of German school children will be given a free day to turn out to cheer the President in what is probably the greatest event in the history of this "temporary" capital of the Western part of a divided Germany.

This was only the second visit to Germany of a U.S. President during his term of office. President Truman came to Germany in 1948. (See CONFERENCE, Page 3)

Security For President Is Worked Out

BONN, Germany (UPI) — U.S. and West German officials worked out intricate security arrangements for the arrival today of President Eisenhower, supreme commander of the Allied forces that whipped Germany in World War II.

Most Germans today consider Eisenhower and the United States as the foundation stone of their freedom.

But possibly there still is some bitterness in Germany against the U.S. President despite the passage of 14 years.

U.S. Secret Service agents have been in Germany for 10 days working out details with West German officials and making their own inspections.

They checked almost inch-by-inch the 10 rooms in the chancellery which have been set aside for working sessions with Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

Every vantage point from which a bullet could be fired into any of the rooms has been checked.

Adenauer usually sloughs off such stringent security arrangements for himself and his aides have made several disparaging remarks about the activity of the U.S. Secret Service men.

The American agents in turn explain to them that while Eisenhower also may get tired of all this security business the U.S. Congress has charged Secret Service with protecting him and there is nothing the President can do about it.

Tempers were said to be a bit raw by the time the arrangements were completed Tuesday night but everyone teamed together to find a likely place for a landscape which the President painted for Adenauer several years ago.

They finally decided to put it on the chancellor's tax wagon and leave it to Adenauer to make sure the President sat where he would see it.

Breeders Set Clinic

Three top speakers will take part in the annual clinic Thursday of the Top O' Texas Hereford Breeders Association, according to Wayne Maddox, of Miami, president.

The speakers are Dr. C. M. Patterson, extension veterinarian at Texas A&M College; Paul T. Marion, superintendent of the Spur Experiment Station; and Grainger McIlhane, State Representative from Wheeler. Some 400 cattlemen, their families and special guests are expected in the sales barn of Recreation Park for the clinic and barbecue.

Activities will get underway at 5 p.m. with some informal cattle judging, followed by a barbecue at 6 p.m. and the clinic program at 7.

Dr. Patterson will discuss the latest trends in cattle feeding and Marion will explain the new Brucellosis control program. McIlhane's topic will be new legislation affecting the ranching industry.

Marion became superintendent of the Spur Station in 1957 and developed an experimental ranch on an 11-section area in Throckmorton County to study cow and calf problems which will be beneficial to the ranchmen of Texas.

Segregationist Put Into Office

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — Ross Barnett, anti-administration candidate who preached open defiance of the federal government on the race issue, was swept into office today by a margin of almost 55,000 votes.

Barnett, 60-year-old Jackson lawyer making his third bid for the office, defeated Lt. Gov. Carroll Gartin, 47, the choice of Gov. J. P. Coleman, in Tuesday's dramatic primary run-off. The nomination is tantamount to election in Mississippi.

Barnett will be inaugurated next January to succeed Coleman who will occupy a seat in the state House of Representatives.

With 1,800 of the state's 1,328 precincts reported, Barnett had 223,081 votes to 190,821 for Gartin.

Barnett charged that both Coleman and Gartin were "moderates" on the race issue and wanted to set up a "dictatorship" in the state. "With my election, the office of governor will be returned to the people," Barnett said following the decisive vote in his favor.

Gartin, who unsuccessfully opposed Sen. James O. Eastland in 1954, promised to give the state "the Mississippi rather than the Arkansas type of segregation," pointing out that under Coleman, Mississippi had total segregation without lawsuits or violence that occurred in Little Rock.

But the voters apparently did not want that. It was obvious, too, that anti-administration sentiment was running high in the state. Coleman has been one of the state's strongest governors and Barnett charged repeatedly that he would dictate to Gartin, a charge both Coleman and Gartin denied.

Barnett won despite severe physical injury and a scandal among his campaign staff. While campaigning last spring he walked into a spinning airplane propeller at Coldwater, Miss., and was confined to a hospital for several weeks. He wore a sling on his arm throughout the campaign.

Shortly before the runoff primary one of his campaign workers at Hattiesburg, Miss., was charged with murder in the fatal shooting of a highway patrolman.

STOLEN AUTO IS RECOVERED

A 1954 Ford stolen early Sunday morning in Pampa was recovered Tuesday at El Reno, Okla., Police Chief Jim Conner said today.

Arrested at El Reno for drunken driving was the driver of the car who has so far refused to identify himself.

The car was reported stolen Sunday by Jerry Darrow of Pampa who told police he left his car parked at 720 S. Barnes. The man arrested at El Reno at first gave his name as "Jerry Darrow," later as "James Cox," and shortly thereafter a different name. Conner said the FBI has been called into the case.

Police Jail Three Here For Swindling, Vagrancy

Three men, attempting to scrape together enough money to leave Pampa by train Tuesday, were arrested by Pampa police after one of them passed a worthless check at Levine's department store.

Arrested was Ed Malek, 19, of Cawker City, Kans.; Clark Bingham, 31, an ex-convict from Oklahoma; and a 16-year-old youth.

Malek has been charged with swindling with a worthless check while Bingham has been charged with vagrancy. The younger boy, a juvenile, was not charged.

According to police the men had

Heavy Rains Drench Texas Coastal Areas

United Press International

Weather forecasters kept a sharp eye on the turbulent Gulf of Mexico today as heavy rains continued to drench Texas coastal areas, but there appeared little likelihood that a tropical storm was brewing.

Houston, Beaumont, Port Arthur, Galveston, Corpus Christi and other coastal cities had steady downpours early today.

Banquette, in Nueces county, recorded 4.05 inches in a 24-hour period ended at 7 a.m. and other Nueces and Duval county cities were hit by driving rains.

Aguadulce had an even 2 inches. Padre Park 1.18 inches and San Diego and Robstown 1 inch. Alice, Jim Wells county, also got 2 inches.

Corpus Christi recorded 2.77 inches of moisture in the 24 hours ended at 6 a.m. and it was still raining at 7 a.m. Houston had 2.28 inches in the same period and a promise of the city's wettest year since 1919.

Beaumont-Port Arthur and Galveston each had more than an inch of rain in the 24-hour period.

Mild Winds Reported

The squally area over the Gulf of Mexico was centered 150 miles off the middle Texas coast early today. Winds in the area still had not climbed past 35 miles per hour and there was no indication of dangerous wind circulation, according to the New Orleans Weather Bureau.

Seas continued rough and low beach areas were washed all along the coast. Small craft warnings were still up but the New Orleans Weather Bureau said it now doubts the turbulence will grow into a tropical storm.

The New Orleans Weather Bureau's 4 a.m. c.s.t. bulletin reported a weak wind circulation about 150 miles southeast of Brownsville. It was drifting slowly toward the middle Texas coast and although forecasters said the possibility of a tropical storm was small, there was a possibility nevertheless.

Houston Gets Soaking

Eisewhere in Texas the rains were still moving inland, with heavy showers in Central and East Texas. Showers will move steadily westward and northward during the day but the heaviest concentration will remain in South Texas and along the coast.

Skies were partly cloudy to clear over West Texas early today.

Houston's 47.55 inches of rain so far this year assures that city of its rainiest year since 1919. The August total in Houston is 5.94 inches so far, compared with the normal of 3.09 inches.

Pounding rains hit New Caney, which got 2 inches in the 24 hours ended at 6 a.m. Richmond, with 1.69 inches. Kingsville, 1.34 inches, and Palacios, 1.21 inches.

Rains Cover Wide Area

Other rainfall amounts included Brownsville's .60 inch, Victoria's .33 inch, 35 at Austin, 34 at San Antonio, 34 at Washington, 27 at Lufkin, 38 at Longview, 42 at Beville, 37 at College Station and 28 at Kilgus.

Lesser amounts fell at Junction

Christian Education Called Expression of Churchmanship

Speaking to a group of prospective teachers and leaders at the First Presbyterian Church Monday evening, the Rev. Burnette W. Dowler, associate pastor and Minister of Christian Education at the First Presbyterian Church of Amritillo, told the group that people work in Christian education as an expression of their churchmanship.

"Teaching in church school is not a job that just has to be done," said Dowler. "Frankly, no one has to do it." He reminded the group that when a child is baptized in the Presbyterian church, the congregation as well as the parents is charged with the responsibility of bringing up the child in the nurture and admonition of the Lord to the end that he shall accept Christ as his personal Redeemer.

According to Dowler the purpose of the teaching mission of the church is two-fold. The first goal is evangelism — to bring the un-churched, whether child or adult, to a commitment to Jesus Christ as Lord of their life.

The second goal is to bring the newcomer and the old-timer to a full and considered realization of what this commitment means in heritage, culture and faith — and life. "Christianity is not a way of life," said Dowler, "but is life itself."

Dowler outlined the organization of a church school, and explained the duties and responsibilities of each member of the administrative and teaching staff.

Covering briefly the span of the curriculum of the Presbyterian Church, Dowler said only one thing is taught throughout the three-year cycle — Redemption. "We study about the Redeemer — Jesus Christ; we hear about the Redeemer in the Scripture; and we study the organism of Redemption, the Church."

Dowler also listed what was expected of a person who is asked to teach in a church school, as well as what he should expect in the way of help and training when he agrees to teach.

Dowler will continue his training course for prospective teachers and leaders Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Educational Building, auditorium of the First Presbyterian Church.

Big Four To Agree On New Round Of Disarmament Talks

By STEWART HENSLEY United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Diplomatic officials said today the Big Four would announce in about 10 days agreement on a new round of East-West disarmament negotiations.

They said the announcement is expected to follow President Eisenhower's visit to Western Europe and precede the arrival here Sept. 15 of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

Negotiations are virtually complete between Russia and the Western powers for a resumption of disarmament talks which blew up in failure two years ago in London, officials said. They added that United Nations Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld has participated in the discussions.

Russia and the Western Big Three—the United States, Britain, and France—are reported to have agreed on creating a new disarmament commission of eight to 10 nations to try to work out global arms cuts. The nations would be divided equally between East and West.

President Eisenhower said at his news conference Tuesday he intended to devote "every atom" of his energy in his talks with Khrushchev and through other channels to bring about a lessening of world tension. The President hopes an easing of the cold war would permit this country to reduce the staggering burden of armaments now costing about 41 billion dollars per year.

The President said it was vital to "stop the arms race" before it reached the "explosion point."

The Big Four foreign ministers agreed at their recent Geneva meeting to try to find some way of resuming disarmament talks. The session broke down when Russia insisted on an unwieldy procedure which involved negotiation of the subject by all 82 members of the United Nations. Russia now has agreed to a small group to conduct the hard-rock negotiations and report to the United Nations on results.

TRY A CLASSIFIED

Rules Out Taft-Hartley
He said that invoking the Taft-Hartley law would not be the way to settle the dispute.

Under this act President Eisenhower could—in the event he believed a national emergency had arisen—seek an injunction halting the strike for an 80-day "cooling-off" period. When that time elapsed the union could resume the strike if no agreement had been reached.

"Driving the steel workers back into the mills with Taft-Hartley injunctions would settle nothing," said McDonald. "It would leave a festering sore that would scar and irritate labor-management relations in this vital industry for years to come."

CANADA'S OWN—Mal. Gen. George P. Vanier, 71, lawyer-soldier-diplomat of French-Canadian stock, has been chosen by Queen Elizabeth II to become Canada's next governor general. He takes office Sept. 15, when Governor General Vincent Massey retires.

Registration-Coffee Set For Episcopal Day School Friday

Registration and a coffee for parents planning to send their children to St. Matthew's Episcopal Day School will be held at 10 a.m. Friday in the Parish House, located at the corner of Purviance and Browning.

St. Matthew's Day School provides facilities for students in kindergarten through fourth grade classes. Children are given a thorough education in all elementary subjects, using the same texts and materials as those used in public schools. Additional class work consists of religious instruction each day as well as a daily chapel service in the church.

Musical instruction in rhythms, music appreciation and the development of tuneful singing voices begins with the kindergarten classes and continues through the grades. Special field trips during the year are geared to study units of science, health, community service and administration.

Plans are being made to teach beginning French to the children in grades two, three and four.

The teachers in St. Matthew's Day School are:

Kindergarten — Mrs. E. L. Campbell and Mrs. William E. West.
First Grade — Mrs. John Hesse.
Second Grade — Mrs. C. D. Anderson.
Third and Fourth Grades — Miss Leila Clifford.
Mrs. George Casey Jr. is the music teacher and Mrs. Clem Followell is secretary and treasurer.

The Rev. William E. West, rector, also serves as principal of the school.

Father West today said that all inquiries regarding enrollment, tuition and classwork should be made at the church office.

"There are a few vacancies in the upper grades to be filled and those considering the enrollment of their children in the school should attend the meeting on Friday, August 28 at 10 a.m. in the Parish House," he added.

Military Service Part Of Israeli Girls' Upbringing

By GAY PAULEY UPI Women's Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — Military service should be just as much a part of a girl's growing up as her first lipstick and first formal, says a young Israeli soldier and novelist.

Yael Dayan (pronounced Yah-als Die-Tun) is the daughter of Moshe Dayan, former commander in chief of the Israeli army, and of Ruth Dayan, head of Maskit, the country's home crafts program. She spent two years in the service after the 1956 Suez crisis and became the youngest lieutenant in the Israeli army.

Still in the reserve corps, she said that military training helps a girl's personality and boosts her patriotism. And learning to shoulder a gun does not necessarily make a girl any less girly.

"I'm for anything which will increase any young person's interest in his or her country," said the 20-year-old brunette beauty.

CONFERENCE

for the Potsdam Conference. But it was a defeated, prostrate, occupied Germany that he saw.

Eisenhower flew here today to a prosperous, newly-reurgent, independent West Germany, which is an equal ally of the United States and one of the key members of the North Atlantic Treaty (NATO) alliance.

As customary, Eisenhower traveled in super-security—a network of warships beneath the scheduled transatlantic route of his Boeing 707 jet; a special follow-up plane cruising along behind him in case trouble should ground his plane.

Secret Service agents, veterans in advance planning of presidential trips, have been in Europe for weeks, going over every foot of ground he will cover in the 10 days ahead and inspecting the places where he will live.

Advance parties of the Army Signal Corps have installed special White House communications in Bonn, London and Paris. The 68-year-old President was described by his staff as being in top physical shape, but as customary, he was accompanied by his physician, Maj. Gen. Howard McC. Snyder.

Traveling with the President in a separate chartered commercial jet liner were more than 50 reporters, photographers and television-radio personnel.

Tyler, Laredo, Texarkana and Waco.

It was still raining at Houston, Galveston, Beaumont, Port Arthur, Corpus Christi and Texarkana early today.

Low overnight temperatures ranged from 63 at Lubbock to 78 at Corpus Christi. The high in the state yesterday was Presidio's 95 degrees.

ELLISON VOTED BEST SPEAKER

Paul Ellison was rated the best speaker of the evening by the Pampa Toastmasters Tuesday. Other speakers were Warren Jackson and Bruce Richard.

Richard Cooke served as toastmaster. One guest, Howard Dull, attended the meeting.

TAKE ADVANTAGE OF WARDS FAMOUS QUALITY AT THESE REDUCED PRICES

DEAR ABBY....

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I'd like your help in convincing my husband that we are living in a modern world. We aren't kids. We are in our forties and have been married 18 years. I don't neglect the kids (or him) and see nothing wrong with an "affair" as long as nobody is hurt. I don't want a divorce. I just want to go on as I have been. Being a woman, you should understand.

AVERAGE WIFE

DEAR AVERAGE: I "under-

RUTH MILLETT

The sooner a wife learns a few facts that apply to most husbands the happier she'll be. For instance—

Most men don't like to discuss a matter to death. Women may enjoy talking around and around a problem, but a man wants to decide what to do about it and stop the discussion.

Most men dislike having a wife unload her troubles on them the minute they walk through the door at night. So feed him before you bring up any depressing or disagreeable news. And try not to worry your man with matters you can handle yourself.

Most men hate to be nagged at—so it makes for a happier marriage to let a man do things in his own good time.

Most men aren't nearly as fascinated by the details of other people's lives as women are. So don't be hurt if you get an unsatisfactory response when you start discussing the marriages of friends or what a poor housekeeper a neighbor is or the mistake friends are making in rearing their children. Why bore or annoy a man with such chatter and then complain that he never talks to you?

Most men are more allergic than women to a cut-and-dried social life—seeing the same few couples over and over at the same kind of get-togethers. So strive to make your social life as a couple as interesting to your husband as you possibly can.

Most men love comfort and have a right to expect it in their homes. So don't be assuming to cater to your man's comfort. That's a lot more important than running your household to impress your women friends.

Most men need to feel that their wives respect their judgment. So never miss an opportunity to say, "You were right about such-and-such" and "I'm glad you suggested this or that." And squelch the urge to say "I told you so" when things don't turn out just right.

stand" but I disagree. Women who see "nothing wrong" with an "affair" need a dog license—not a marriage license.

DEAR ABBY: I love my sister very much. She has been married to a prince of a man for twelve years and they have two children. Her husband was injured on his job and he is in a wheelchair, paralyzed from the waist down. She went to work to help out and met another man (her boss) and fell in love with him.

She is presently divorcing her husband to marry the other man. I do not approve of what she is doing, but she is still my sister. My husband says he will never speak to her again. He refuses to meet her fiance. This is making it hard on me. Do you think I should break off relations with my sister because of the way my husband feels? Why shouldn't we be friendly with her and her new husband?

TORN

DEAR TORN: If you want to be friendly with your sister and her new husband, you have a right to ignore them. Your sister has broken a sacred vow to "love and cherish in sickness and in health," etc. You might still "love" your sister, but you surely can't respect her.

DEAR ABBY: Tell that little fussy budget who wants everything he eats served on separate dishes, he will have to wash the dishes himself. I'll bet he starts eating off one plate soon.

I once had a small visitor years ago who used to wet her bed the first few nights. After I made her wash her own sheets and hang them out to dry a couple of times, she managed to stay dry. It makes a difference when they have to do the work themselves.

MOTHER OF FOUR
DEAR MOTHER: Bed-wetters should not be dealt with in the same manner as "fuss-budgers" who want their food served on separate plates. A bed-wetter is usually the innocent victim of an accident over which he has no control.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MRS. A.
Your problem is not worth losing sleep over. Tell your husband you have charged more than you can pay for. He won't be the first husband who has lived through this kind of news.

To get ABBY's pamphlet, "What Every Teenager Wants To Know," send 25 cents and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope to this paper.

At the end of summer, it's easy to lose your freshness at the close of a busy day. Heat and humidity wilt a girl and if she has a date, it's important to regain the dewy look of morning. She begins (left) by washing away soil and make-up in the office powder room. A headband protects her hair and two towels, pinned at shoulder and waist, protect her dress from splashing. She applies fresh make-up, brushes out her hair and she's ready. Her beauty kit (center) takes up small space in her desk but holds everything she needs. She can carry it with her easily to the powder room. Her appearance on the job (right) is just as important to her as her looks on a date. She is neat, well-groomed and immaculate at all times.

Lefors Women Host Breakfast

LEFORS (Spi) — Mrs. Jerry Jacobs and Mrs. Bernard Johnson were co-hostesses to an early fall breakfast-bridge recently.

Fall flower arrangements of yellow and orange colored flowers graced the room. A copper sprayed tree held the tally cards and was labeled the "tally tree."

The center piece of the serving table was an arrangement of frosted grapes, melon balls, pineapple chunks and grapefruit sections on a milk glass tiered dish, and was included with the meal along with scrambled eggs, bacon, sweet rolls, jelly and coffee.

The high prize was won by Mrs. C. H. Gust and Betty Johnson received the traveling prize. Guests were Meses. Ray Boyd, C. H. Gustin, G. N. Mounger, Harlan Sloan, Edward Vincent, Earl Atkinson, W. C. Branning, C. E. Vincent, Fred Houston, Clemmie Ross, Jess Graves, Bob Hall, Ray Chastain, Bill Mullins, Dean Higgins, Jessie Thurman, Floyd Hines, Beas Johnson, and Carl Barber.

MATURE PARENT

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

I'm unpacking my heavy bag of groceries in the kitchen when my four-year-old spies the plastic container of cookies on the table and runs off with it. As I run after him, I know there's going to be trouble. Because I dislike trouble, I'm both irritable and cajoling as I remove the cookies from him, saying, "You can have them after lunch, Gene. You don't want to spoil your lunch, do you?"

The trouble I knew was coming comes. Howling, Gene flings himself on the floor in a tantrum.

I hesitate. Then, opening the cookie container, I give him what he wants, thinking, "Oh, well, just one won't spoil his appetite."

My trouble is over. Gene stops howling.

Why? Because he's so impressed with me as a person of reliable kindness? Not at all. He's impressed by himself as a person of reliable power. His howls have produced the expected result. They have made the disappearing cookies reappear.

Appreciation of my kindness doesn't enter into the satisfaction he feels at all. It is exactly the kind of satisfaction that people in fairy tales feel when they rub lamps or wave hands — and the disappearing castles and glittering ball gowns they want appear again.

The overindulged child's belief in his magical power is what makes him so ungrateful. The efforts we have to make to get him what he wants don't exist for him. What exists for him is only his power to get it.

His conviction of magical control is very hard on him.

It isn't real. It exists only in his imagination. So, as he discovers that he can't control everything, he first becomes confused, then deeply frightened. To avoid any denial that would threaten his belief in his all-powerfulness, he will either stop asking for anything or become so anxiously demanding that he drives us distracted.

This is the child who will panic before school exams or idle through summers without looking for jobs. His constant temper or depressions are hard to comfort. As he turns on us resentfully, we think bewilderedly, "Oh, when I've been so good to this child, why does he hate me?"

He doesn't hate us. What he hates is the possibility of a failure in control.

Mrs. Gage Heads Baker PTA Unit

Mrs. C. N. Gage was elected president of the B. M. Baker PTA after the resignation of Mrs. Preston Wallace was read and accepted by the Baker Executive Board at its August meeting. Elected to replace Mrs. Gage as vice president was Mrs. A. N. Green.

Mrs. Austin Ruddick, spiritual chairman, led the group in an opening prayer. Committee chairmen were introduced and welcomed by John Evans, Principal.

Membership chairman Mrs. Robert Dittmeyer asked for volunteers to help register new members Monday. She also announced plans for the annual membership drive, to be held at a later date. It was voted to award a cake party to the room with the highest membership in each grade.

A proposed outline of the program for the coming year was read by Mrs. Green and accepted. Mrs. E. H. Haralson, nursery chairman told the plans for Nursery cards during the coming year. The group voted to hold a drawing for baked goods at each meeting, with Mrs. S. A. Downs in charge. It was also decided that the unit would again plan to have an appreciation dinner for the faculty during Texas Education Week as a special project.

The Baker unit will be hosts to the City Council on December 1.

Board members attending were: John Evans, Mmes. Gage, Green, Robert Dittmeyer, Orval Furguason, J. L. Hampton, James Dye, S. A. Downs, Ray Lowe, James Jennings, Don Haynes, Warren Jackson, Tray Bennett, Hal Boynton, Austin Ruddick, E. H. Haralson, W. L. Parker, D. M. Moore and D. P. Brown.

Beauty Routine Cools Working Girl Who Starts Day With Warm Bath

By ALICIA HART
NEA Beauty Editor

It's a rare girl who can stay crisp and fresh from morning until evening on a working day in hot summer.

A good many of us do not work in offices that are air-conditioned. And even the lucky ones who do emerge from hot trains and buses, wilted long before they reach their air-cooled oasis.

The best you can do to create the illusion of cool freshness is to maintain a relaxed mental attitude and be scrupulous about cleanliness and good grooming.

The best method of starting out cool in the morning is to take a warm bath. This may seem like strange advice in the hot weather. But it's true that although cold water cools the skin, it also seals the heat inside and can make you feel warmer than ever.

A tepid bath dilates the blood vessels so that internal heat can reach the skin and leave the body. It can actually keep you cool for five or six hours afterward.

Every career girl must work overtime to keep her hair looking its best in spite of the heat. Perspiration and oil secretion increase in warm weather, and you'll need an extra shampoo each week to prevent your shining locks from becoming dull and limp.

Shampoo well, rubbing the lather into your scalp. Use a soft, sudsy brush to scrub your hairline where cosmetics are bound to collect. Then rinse your hair till it squeaks.

If you want to feel really clean when the mercury's climbing, suds your lingerie after each wearing. And if you can go home from the office before an evening date, get into fresh underthings.

Select cool colors for office wear, and don't wear tight clothing. If you choose wash-and-wear apparel, you can cut your laundering time to a minimum.

Keep a beauty kit in your desk drawer so that you can freshen up during the day; be sure it contains a washcloth, towel, soap, cosmetics, comb, brush, and an extra pair each of nylon and white gloves. The hose and gloves will be insurance for mishaps before an afteroffice date, and the rest of the equipment will give you a lift during the day that will increase your business efficiency.

No one feels her heat in extreme heat and humidity. But a little forethought can certainly decrease your discomfort and improve your appearance.

TO SAME SERIES!

Giants, Chisox Take 2 Roads

By JOHN GRIFFIN
United Press International

The Giants and White Sox may well wind up as rivals in the World Series, but they sure are traveling different roads toward the promised land.

The Giants like to slug it out in a "big inning," as they did in a 12-5 triumph over the Pittsburgh Pirates Tuesday night to preserve their 3 1/2 game National League lead. Even 18-game winner Johnny Antonelli got into the act with a two-run homer.

But how about those White Sox, who think a "big inning" means a walk, a stolen base, a wild pitch, and a sacrifice fly?

The Go-Go-Soxers gave a typical performance as they came from behind to beat the Boston Red Sox, 5-4, in two innings and maintain their two-game lead in the American League chase. That was merely their 30th one-run victory so far this season.

Cash Gets Homer

This time they were "treated" to an early homer by rookie Norm Cash. But they had only four hits off Frank Sullivan and trailed, 4-2, going into the ninth. Singles by Al Smith and Cash chased Sullivan and then Jim Rivera and John Romano continued the "bombardment" with singles off reliever Mike Fornieles to tie the score.

Chicago won in the 10th when Sherm Lollar walked with two out and Billy Goodman drove him home with a double.

The Giants, on the other hand, missed scoring in only two innings as they trampled the Pirates for Antonelli's 18th victory-tops in the majors.

Dodgers Whip Phils

In the National League, the second-place Los Angeles Dodgers whipped Philadelphia, 5-2, to stay a half-game ahead of the third-place Milwaukee Braves, who downed St. Louis, 2-1, in 10 innings. Also, the Chicago Cubs downed Cincinnati, 8-4, in the American League, second-place Cleveland ripped New York, 6-3; Washington downed Detroit, 3-1; and Kansas City shaded Baltimore, 4-5.

Duke Snider and Gil Hodges, the two "old pros" who are pacing the Los Angeles attack, each whacked his 21st homer of the year to beat the Phils. Snider was the 352nd of his career, breaking his third-place tie with Ralph Kiner on the all-time National League list and leaving him behind only Mel Ott and Stan Musial.

Ray Boone, acquired recently for pinch-hitting strength, delivered a run-scoring ninth-inning single that gave the Braves a 1-1 tie with the Cards and then Ed Mathews' double highlighted a winning two-run rally in the 10th.

Colavito Belts Two Homers

Home runs by Cal Neeman and Irv Noren led the Cubs' 11-hit attack against Cincinnati as southpaw Bill Henry picked up the win with 5 1-3 innings of one-run pitching. Rocky Colavito belted two homers and Vic Power one for the Indians as Cal McLish posted his 18th win on a six-hitter over the Yanks. Colavito's blasts gave him 27 for the year.

Pedro Ramos, with ninth-inning belt from Chuck Stobbs, gained his 12th win for the Senators over the Tigers. Julio Becquer led his 11-hit support with two singles and a run-scoring double.

The A's spotted the Orioles four runs, gradually caught up, and then went ahead to stay when Dick Williams' run-scoring single capped a two-run rally in the seventh inning.

U.S. PRESTIGE HURT IN PAN-AMERICAN GAMES

By LEO H. PETERSEN
UPI SPORTS EDITOR

CHICAGO (UPI) — The United States was hurting in more ways than one today, on the eve of the opening of the third Pan American games.

They were hurting prestige-wise and also athletic-wise, the latter being the reason these games were inaugurated back in 1951.

In the prestige league, the U.S. way of doing things wasn't exactly what the doctor ordered so far as most of the other 23 North and South American nations competing in the games were concerned. The rumblings, which first started when the vanguard of almost 1,700 athletes from the competing countries outside the United States arrived last week, and late arrivals figured to keep the U.S. team from full strength. In the dedication, in which the U.S. was counting on sweeping the gold, silver and bronze medals, it looked like Mike Herman of New York University would be host to the host forces. He suffered an ankle injury in practice and the U.S. team trainers said there was little chance he would be able to compete.

In the pole vault, Don Bragg of Villanova had an infected heel and there was doubt whether he would be in the best of condition when the athletic competition of these games opens on Friday—a day after the formal official opening ceremonies.

U.S. Members Absent

Added to that was the fact that at least 20 of the 404 members of the U.S. team still were absent and were not scheduled to appear until Friday because of summer school examinations or other commitments. So lacking the practice usually mapped out for the athletes, there was a question of whether they would be in top shape.

Olmedo, MacKay to Defend Cup Title

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI)—Alex Olmedo and Barry MacKay, who represented the United States in singles when the Yanks recaptured tennis' coveted Davis Cup last year, were expected to receive the same assignments today for the defense against Australia this week end.

There was a chance that Perry Jones, non-playing captain of the U.S. team, would drop the talented but erratic MacKay out of singles in favor of 19-year-old Earl Buchholz Jr., one of the world's most promising young players.

But Olmedo and MacKay were the only players that Jones discussed while the U.S. squad was going through workouts at the West Side Tennis Club Tuesday. The official draw for singles was to be made in the ballroom of a hotel here this afternoon.

Competition Starts Today In Jaycee Golf Tournament

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (UPI) — One-hundred teenage golf stars opened competition today for the 14th International Jaycees championship with two southerners and a Yankee sharing the favorite's role.

Ronnie Geringer of nearby Newport News, Va., pitted his skill and knowledge of the tough Elizabeth Manor Country Club course against a jinx that has kept every medalist from the title in the past 13 tournaments.

Geringer, who earned medal honors with a 26-hole score of 139, faced tough competition from Maury Finkelstein of Savannah,

San Antonio Tops Amarillo, 8 to 4

United Press International

Rain at Victoria and Corpus Christi was the winner last night, leaving only one game played in the Texas League.

San Antonio doubled Amarillo's score, 8-4, and moved a half game up the standings ladder.

The Missions still retain fourth slot in the standings, just above fifth place Amarillo.

The postponements between Austin and Victoria and Tulsa and Corpus Christi force a couple of doubleheaders tonight for all four teams.

San Antonio and Amarillo will settle for a single game in the Panhandle city.

Field Narrows In Fem Golf

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The slightly blurred picture in the Women's National Amateur golf championship should be clearer by sundown today following a double round of match play action.

The field of 32 players who survived Tuesday's second round will be reduced to 16 this morning, and this afternoon's round will cut the list to eight quarter-finalists.

The quarter-finals will be held Thursday, the semifinals Friday and the 36-hole title round Saturday.

Defending champion Ann Quast of Marysville, Wash., and the other title contenders — Jo Anne Gunderson of Seattle, Wash., Marlene Stewart Street of Fonthill, Ont., Judy Eller of Old Hickory, Tenn., and Anne Richardson of Columbus, Ohio — all advanced with little difficulty Tuesday.

Luck of the Irish Could Be Bad on Football Field

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the third in a series of articles on the pre-season prospects of area football teams. This article deals with the Shamrock Irish of District 5-A.

By RED GRIGGS
Daily News Sports Editor

SHAMROCK — The Shamrock Irish won only two of ten games last year, and they don't figure to do much better this year.

The new coach, Eural Ramsey, has five returning starters and ten lettermen to build his squad around, but several glaring weaknesses could keep the Irish from improving on their 1958 mark.

Ramsey, who came to Shamrock from Pampa along with assistant coach David Kelly, will have to contend with such problems as replacing the stellar Joe Jernigan at quarterback; lack of a passing attack; lack of speed and experience in the backfield; lack of a good punter; and a questionable secondary defense; and an overall lack of depth.

The line is probably the brightest spot in the Shamrock picture. The forward wall could average 175 pounds per man, and the only outstanding lineman lost from last year's squad was end Charles Tyler.

However, Ramsey said that two of the heaviest men in the lineup, 190-pound tackle Jerry Smith and 200-pound center James Brothers, will have strong competition for their jobs, and may not start all the time.

ping for the left tackle spot, and Gary Harvey, a 160-pound sophomore, is expected to give Brothers a fight for the center position. Brothers is one of Shamrock's five returning regulars.

Another of the returnees is Jerry Jernigan, who'll probably hold down the right tackle slot. Jernigan, a 170-pounder, played half-back last year.

The only other returning line starter who'll be playing in the forward wall this year is Dennis Pasley, 150-pound tackle. However, Pasley is out of action with an injury, and will probably not be able to play until midseason. According to Ramsey, Pasley was one of Shamrock's better linemen last year.

Bill Spraggins, 200, and Bill Valentine, 165, are expected to hold down the guard slots. Both have had some experience and both lettered, though neither was a starter last year.

Jack Downer, 160, is the only letterman end who'll play that position this year. Other end candidates are Billy Shelton, 132, Jim Wortham, 147, and Ronnie Cantrell, 138.

The Backfield

In the backfield, the big question mark will be at quarterback. Neither of the candidates, Alvie Henderson and Robert Lummus, have any quarterbacking experience. Henderson was a starting end last year, while Lummus played in the line for the B team.

L. H. Tucker, 190, will return as starting fullback. Ramsey describes him as the fastest man in the backfield, and says that he has good power to go along with his size and speed.

Charles Ferguson, a 150-pounder, will probably hold down the right halfback slot. Ferguson, a letterman, is described by Ramsey as "a fair runner, but lacking outstanding speed."

The left halfback post will be wide open, with three inexperienced boys battling it out for the job. They are Phillip Vineyard, 145, who played B team ball; and Danny Grogan, 140, and James Crow, 140, both of whom have had no football experience.

To add to the backfield woes, the Irish have no good punter, and neither of the quarterback backs has any great passing or running ability, although both are described as "pretty fair ball handlers."

Harris Defeats Joe Bygraves

HOUSTON (UPI) — Out of Harris and Bygraves, former British Empire Heavyweight Champion, was so slow, however, that at times the crowd of 10,000 booed for more action.

Harris weighed in at 198 and took the decision over Bygraves, 204 1/2, after the British boxer had his best round in the sixth. Harris recovered and caught his opponent off balance.

Harris said he believes he has a good chance of getting a chance at Johansson if the new champ wins his rematch with Floyd Patterson.

Harris' best weapons Tuesday night were his powerful hooks and jab. The few times that Bygraves tried to move in on his Texas enemy, Harris hooked and jabbed until the Jamaican backed away.

There were no knockdowns in the battle that grossed an estimated gate of $30,000. Bygraves did a lot of feinting and covering and seemed to irritate spectators who had braved a rainy night to watch the fight.

In the sixth, however, Bygraves started good. He whipped in three or four telling punches before a Harris' hook caught him off balance. The pair then traded blows for the rest of the round.

Bygraves kept his right hand to himself most of the evening. He only threw about four rights in Harris' direction. Harris also kept his right hand in reserve, but later, several solid rights finally colored Bygraves' eye a little, although both fighters left the ring with very few markings.

Fight Promoter Accused of Being 'Front' For Mobster

NEW YORK (UPI) — Fight promoter Vincent J. Veielia returns from Sweden today with signed contracts for a three-million dollar Johansson - Patterson rematch to find himself accused of being just a "front man" for a missing mobster.

The mysterious mobster, previously known only as "Mr. X" in the grand jury's boxing investigations, was identified by District Attorney Frank Hogan as Anthony Hogan said his detectives had unsuccessfully sought Salerno for two weeks as alleged undercover financial backer of the June 26 fight in which Ingemar Johansson of Sweden won the world heavyweight championship from Floyd Patterson on a third-round knockout.

Just as the grand jury completed its investigation of the June fight promotion Tuesday, Veielia — at Göteborg, Sweden — finally got Johansson to sign new contracts for next year's return bout with Patterson, after three days of Göteborg negotiations and two months of incredible confusion.

The fight will be staged somewhere in the United States, between March 1 and June 15, Los Angeles, Philadelphia and Houston, Tex., have been bidding for it, with guarantees ranging from $750,000 to one million dollars.

Stitch Favored In TV Fight Tonight

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Welterweight challenger Rudell Stitch ruled a heavy favorite over Cuban champion Luis Rodriguez in a 10-round go here tonight, but the real question was whether Stitch can corner the Cuban long enough to stop him.

A mere decision over the playing Rodriguez probably wouldn't make the whole thing worthwhile for Stitch, who is trying to force welter king Don Jordan into a title bout.

Local promoter Rich Keeling has offered Jordan $75,000 for a title fight with Stitch here, and another convincing knockout victory by the Louisville packing house worker would add weight to his challenge.

Stitch, rated No. 2 contender by the NBA, has won 10 of his 21 victories by knockout. The Cuban is unbeaten in 22 bouts.

Issues, Not Labels

Having learned that Russia is a socialist or a communist country, it is difficult for many persons to exercise independent judgment concerning the affairs of Russia.

It is, to be sure, apparent on every hand, that a great number of persons, viewing Russia as a socialist nation, tend to distrust and to revile everything that Russia does.

Similarly, having concluded that this nation is dedicated to freedom and believing freedom to be desirable, it is likewise concluded that every policy or program enacted by our American government is in itself some action that is favorable to freedom and, hence, good.

These general and widely held views are destructive of logical and rational conclusions. While admitting that the present Russian regime, originating with the second of October revolution in Russia, was socialist in character, this is not to admit that every action taken by the Soviet since that date is socialistic.

Equally invalid is the assumption that because this nation began as one dedicated to freedom, it must follow that every action taken since 1789 must have enhanced the freedom concept.

What so many people seem unable to cope with is the obvious fact that in recent years, especially since the death of Stalin, Russia has been moving away from socialism.

In May of this year, Ernest L. Wilkinson, president of Brigham Young University in Utah, made note of this fact by commenting: "At a time when Communist Russia is turning its back on many of its own communistic experiments and adopting capitalistic concepts, I witness the tragedy of my own country abandoning many of the capitalistic concepts which have prospered us as a nation, and accepting many of the socialistic concepts which Russia is abandoning."

And the Wall Street Journal in its issue of August 3 included this observation in one of its front page stories: "As automation enters the picture (in Russia) there is the beginning of a shift to straight wages, instead of the prevailing piecework rates. There's talk of charging interest on investment capital which the state now does out to factories without interest or repayment. Prices seem due for a shakeup. And, as in America, a wave of mergers is under way."

What both of these sources and several other well-informed individuals and agencies have noted, is that America is in the process of abandoning freedom and private capitalism, in favor of socialism and state capitalism. And at the same time, Russia has already moved away from pure socialism and is almost totally a state capitalistic empire. The changed emphasis in Russia is in favor of freedom. The changed emphasis in America is in favor of socialism.

We must confess that we are completely unconcerned as to the Russian program. If Russia continues to adopt capitalistic ideas, so much the better for the Russians. If they can throw off the debilitating effects of state control and ultimately of state ownership, hurrah for them.

But what does bother us enormously is the tendency on our own part to move in the direction of socialism, when even the arch-champion of socialism has already found that socialism doesn't work and must be discarded.

Americans should stop being fooled by labels and should get down to an understanding of the true issues involved. It is altogether too sadly true that this nation is gravitating toward the policies of our ideological foe. And in the process, the provisions of the Constitution are being nullified, not to examine issues, but rather to rely on labels, which are prone to disparage Russia, whatever it does, and equally prone to commend this nation irrespective of its betrayal of American principles of freedom and private capitalism.

Let's begin looking at the facts and the issues. Let's no longer be fooled by the labels.

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. ROYER

Warnings One who believes there is a cause for everything—who is a cautionist—believes that nature gives man warnings when natural laws are being violated, or we might put it, when we are violating the last tablet of the Commandments: "Thou shalt not commit adultery, murder, steal, bear false witness or covet."

Now, what are some of the warnings that have been going on for years that we are violating nature's or these moral laws?

Unemployment is a result of the violation of natural law. If we followed a natural society where men were free to exchange goods and services and use the talents that God gave each individual, there would be no mass unemployment.

The depreciation of the dollar buys less and less is a warning that we have violated moral law. We have done this by believing that man need not live on a voluntary basis, that he need not live by the sweat of his own brow; by believing that the majority has a right to take from one group by taxation to give to another; by believing that the individual is nothing and the group determines right, or justice, or equity, or fairness. The result of these beliefs is that the governments—city, county, state and federal—have the right to take from a man without his consent to have the politicians, the bureaucrats, distribute it. It is a violation of the fact that the man who earns what he gets is much better able to distribute it in a way that will benefit himself and all mankind than the bureaucrats are, whether they be city, boards of education, county, state or federal.

This belief leads to setting up practically a monopoly in training the youth of the land, and it, of course, is difficult to comprehend how those who are responsible for our text books and our teachers, who do not set an example of living by the natural law or the Commandments, can very well persuade the youth of the land to believe that they should live by these laws if they want to really live.

Losing Gold Now we have the warning of gold leaving the country. And that is a natural result of violating these natural or moral laws. It is a result of people not having faith in the individual, in having faith in the moral law of the land. Rousseau would say, which of course, does not exist. It is a result of misinterpreting the "Law" by neighbor as thyself' commandment. People thus lose confidence in the integrity of our government. They begin to want to have gold that the politicians can't increase or decrease the quantity of, rather than irredeemable paper-money that the politician can increase indefinitely.

The National Committee on Monetary Policy points out in its bulletin that the withdrawal of $2,334,000,000 during the sixty-four weeks since Feb. 13, 1958 amounts to approximately 11 per cent of the $22,785,000,000 of total gold stock for the week ending on that date. That is a relatively heavy percentage of withdrawal as compared with above-average withdrawals in preceding years or periods.

But this committee seems to think that our solution is to go back on the gold standard rather than to get people to understand that they must stand on their own two feet rather than on the feet of other people by way of the tax collector. In other words, they must not expect anything that belongs to their neighbor, and their neighbor includes everyone in the world, to the extent of about 2,400,000,000 people.

And, of course, if we did not covet, we would not have protective tariffs; we would not have immigration quotas that lead on to wars.

Wars are another warning that we have violated these natural and moral laws. This committee realizes that we must redeem, in gold, dollars held by foreigners. They draw this conclusion: "There is, therefore, genuine danger in pursuing with reckless abandon the course now being followed by our government. Piling up further foreign claims against our gold stock is inexcusable, particularly in the rewards any person can earn."

But greed is never justifiable. Greed is rooted in selfishness and the desire to reduce others to our own level, especially when that level is low. And the problems we face are largely emphasized by the entrance of government into this area of human conduct.

In our own time, government has set itself up to encourage greed and selfishness. It has passed all manner of rules and laws which rob a man of his profits, which he has earned, so that those who have earned little or nothing can be rewarded at the expense of others.

It would do a great deal of good if we could begin to understand the difference between greed and profit. Whenever we find ourselves growing envious of others, we should stifle this unworthy emotion as quickly as possible. It is no concern of ours what others may receive in the way of rewards for energy expended.

If each of us would concentrate on earning, and hence upon receiving profit, we would go a long way toward overcoming the evils of our times. It is greed that debases us. But profit is ennobling, inspiring and always worthy.

How To Interpret Political Double Talk

The Allen-Scott Report

ROBERT S. ALLEN PAUL SCOTT

ROGERS REPORTED QUITTING AS ATTY. GEN. TO DIRECT NIXON PRESIDENTIAL RACE

WASHINGTON — Republican congressional leaders are agitating a spectacular report about Attorney General William Rogers. He is quitting in the fall to direct Vice President Nixon's nomination race.

That's what the startled GOP congressional leaders are being told by a top Rogers assistant. Also according to this authoritative Rogers source, the President has known about his cabinet member's plans for some time and is considering two high Justice Department officials as his successor.

They are Deputy Attorney General Lawrence Walsh (N.Y.) and Solicitor General J. Lee Rankin (Neb.).

Walsh is credited with having the inside track, is the most likely choice. Rogers has long been Nixon's closest friend and political adviser. The inside word that he is leaving the Administration to manage Nixon's 1960 presidential campaign is a surprise only in one respect.

Republican politicians had understood that former National Chairman Leonard Hall was picked for this job — on the basis of his extensive experience and party ties.

This unexpected report about Rogers is the latest on cabinet departures. Defense Secretary McElroy has been talking publicly for some time about returning to his own business. And Postmaster General Summerfield has been intimating that he is seriously thinking of going back to Michigan to run for senator next year.

Both Deputy Attorney General Walsh and Solicitor General Rankin are one-time "Dewey men."

Walsh was legal adviser to the former New York Governor, and gave up the federal district bench to become Deputy to Rogers a month after he was made Attorney General in 1957. Rankin was in charge of Dewey's 1958 presidential campaign in Nebraska.

POLITICALS — House Republican Leader Charles Halleck's resounding victory in pulling over the tough Landrum-Griffin labor reform bill would be an important factor in winning him the 1960 vice presidential nomination. The dynamic Indiana has been warmly congratulated on his outstanding legislative feat by President Eisenhower, Vice President Nixon, National Chairman Thurston Morton and GOP leaders throughout the country.

Senator Margaret Chase Smith (R., Me.) has received less than a dozen letters criticizing her for voting against confirming former Commerce Secretary Lewis Strauss, and more than 100 praising her for that. All of the latter came from her own constituents.

Not having discussed the subject for several months, Mrs. S. and several others have asked for a discussion of the "symptoms" of low blood pressure, the treatment for it and similar questions.

There are, in fact, very few diseases indeed which can be defined definitely to a blood pressure below normal. Furthermore, most of the diseases associated with low blood pressure are relatively rare and can ordinarily be identified easily.

Low blood pressure usually is a matter of little concern from the health standpoint. Low blood pressure alone (unless definitely tied to some physical abnormality — and this is the exception) is likely to be accompanied by a long life and better than average good health.

There are only a few exceptions. One condition known as Addison's Disease is characterized among other symptoms by a low blood pressure. This disease is rare.

There is another condition in which low blood pressure appears off and on, known as carotid sinus syncope. Sudden pressure on the neck or sudden motion of the head may bring on an attack of low blood pressure together with other symptoms, but this is not the type of low blood pressure in which most readers are interested. Occasionally, a person will have a drop in blood pressure when moving from a lying or sitting position to a standing one, and this may require some attention. It carries the medical name of orthostatic hypotension.

It is doubtful that there are blamed on low blood pressure and anxiety, the parrot floors which are standard in the Ukraine were bulging and clattering loose in places. The looked as though they had been added in the first place.

by WESTBROOK PEGLER

Passing Siberia Tour To Brouse in Moscow

COPENHAGEN — For better or for worse, I finally decided that instead of going barnstorming with our high-spirited Mr. Nixon to old St. Petersburg and Siberia I would tarry in Moscow and learn all I could by eye and ear. I was particularly curious about the great new apartment houses, most of them 10 stories high, because only a few weeks ago in New York, Peter Grimm, who knows such buildings, had put me on alert.

Mr. Grimm had gone into Moscow on civil terms with the bums who ran the country and they had asked him for his opinion of the work and material. He looked over some of these buildings with an expert's eye and told them they obviously knew very little about having brick laid and mixing cement.

They also showed little ability in wiring and wooden door frames and window frames were out of true and the doors and windows were getting jammed.

So I went looking in half a dozen of these new splendors, particularly in the Colossal Ukraine Hotel where I was holed up with a majority of the reporters of the Nixon expedition and with a coming-and-going of orientals who turned out to be Red Chinese and North Koreans. It was not pleasant to sleep under the same roof with these enemies-and-take-pot-luck with them on the menu of garbage served usually on dirty table cloths by waiters in dirty white jackets, all so typical of the filth of Soviet Russia and so congenial to her savage subjects.

Most of the waiters were willing but dumb and some headwaitresses were charming kids.

I walked miles, altogether, studying the courses of the yellow brickwork, much of which, by the way, is slapped up at night with electric lights playing on the scaffolds at great heights. This brickwork is awful. The courses run in ups and downs, the cement is soft and crumbling to the touch of one's fingers, they do not know how to join brick walls at the corners except at right angles and the flashing over some of the shop windows which are standing on the ground floors of these compounds is going to let in water from rain, snow and ice.

However, the window frames were of steel in the new buildings that I inspected, although in the Ukraine they were made of wood. Most of the woodwork was hand-done and very crude. In the Paltry Night Club in the tower on the 29th floor of the Ukraine, a building which was finished only five years ago, both doors leading onto a balcony were fastened with heavy, grey padlocks, and the wooden frames were scored and needed paint. I thought I might find another door to let me onto the balcony, so Austin Kiplinger, of Washington, who, with his father, turns out the Kiplinger Financial and Economic Letter, and I went through an entry to explore. But this was just the door to the "gent's" and the stench confirmed my preconception of a filthy lot who are not quite house broken.

At the elevator buttons on the 28th floor of the tower, the plaster has crumbled and has been dabbed up with a patch of a different shade. One of the ceiling ornate light fixtures in the culling was dark and sagging off true. Mr. Grimm had remarked that when a building is finished it is finished forever and needs no maintenance. This, woodwork was pulling apart in many places around doors and windows and along the baseboards.

The parrot floors which are standard in the Ukraine were bulging and clattering loose in places. The looked as though they had been added in the first place.

Miss Kay Vincent, who supervised the furnishing of Macy's of the $14,000 millionaire American workman's dwelling, hit upon a trick of pulling up the table cloth and laying it over the soiled glasses and dishes to make them change the table linen. But there came a time when the poor waiter said there wasn't any clean linen.

The argument between our Dick and their Nick in the kitchen of this little love bower was started by Khrushchev's insistence that it could not be made for $14,000. But, given the lot, I could put it together of the same materials, including asbestos shingle siding and indoor wallboard for $8,000 and make a little profit. The furniture came to a little less than $4,000 and the Russians were forever pinching and poking the upholstery in awe, it was so soft and beautiful.

And, for another dose of irony, Carl Sandburg was the prevailing spirit of America with his pettish rubbish poking you in the eye all over the typical American Library, but Jack Strauss, of Macy's, who equipped the house, was inconspicuous and I have never seen him yet. The Russian electricians who helped wire the house had never heard of vari-colored insulations to tell wire apart. And one poor guy who did fine work and was rewarded with a yard or so of leftover carpet was pinched although our girls gave him a letter to certify that what was a gift. The cops finally let him go but they stole his carpet.

Continuing my rambles around the new apartment buildings I found that they were potemkin shams, about 52 feet thick from front to back although hundreds of yards long and 10 stories high on the average. Buildings up to seven stories have no elevators, so, apparently big brother does not give a dam for cardiacs.

I followed my nose through the arched arcade of the one building into a horrible slum of rotting old log houses which were the standard dwellings of old Moscow and still contain a man y scurrying wretches. We have many slums in our country including new slums built at great public expense, as "projects" — to house transient riff-raff. But the sly Russians put a rickety apartment building to hide a slum and, at the end of the block, turn the corner and run a block or half-block at right angles to make it appear that the building has depth and substance.

I am afraid this has the sound of faultfinding but I have heard and read so much about the Soviet's genius that this clumsy fraud bears on my old suspicion that they are incurably primitive and ignorant of hygiene, class and the pleasures of the palate.

Last year President Sukarno used U.S. foreign aid to suppress a pro-democratic and anti-Communist movement in his country. Last week Sukarno announced that he would dissolve Indonesia's parliament and rule by decree. That means absolute dictatorship. But, according to Congressman W. J. Bryan of South Dakota, our hand out boys in Washington call it "guided democracy" and, in 1960, are planning to give the dictator three times the amount of aid assigned to embattled Nationalist China.

Flexibility hastens them, solves the problem of unemployment, cures depression and restores and promotes greater prosperity. If the proposed commission will deal intelligently with these facts and restore the free market with flexible prices and wages, unemployment of serious proportions will disappear, never to return.

It's Up To You

Tragic When Honest Man Can't Find Job

I have every sympathy with the man who cannot find a job, for I have stood in his shoes. It is tragic when honest men cannot find jobs.

In a recent belabored editorial discussing this subject, the New York Times mentions some palliatives but does not come to the point. It declares that more than four million workers cannot find jobs and refers to the situation as a national disgrace.

It talks about shorter working hours, larger unemployment benefits and stretching over a longer period of time. Such measures aggravate the problem rather than solve it. Shorter hours increase costs, raise prices, diminish sales and cause more unemployment.

It appears that we are soon to have a special Congressional Committee on Unemployment. If this committee will give us some much needed facts it will be most helpful. Among other things we need to know how many of the upwards of four million unemployed are wives who do not especially desire employment but who are interested in collecting unemployment benefits.

We need to know how many young people have worked for a year or two in order to become eligible for unemployment benefits and are now attending college on these payments. We need to know how many deadbeats there are who plan to work only about half the time in order to draw benefits the other half. We need to know how many are chiseling by working part time or full time while continuing to draw unemployment benefits.

Two instances of this have come under my personal notice. A maid working for my wife asked the latter not to say anything about it, as it might interfere with her unemployment checks. Two men working on a ranch in which I was interested and, while drawing good wages were found to be going to the county seat every Saturday to draw their unemployment relief. We need to know how many are better satisfied on small relief payments than they are working full time for somewhat more.

If all of these are subtracted from the more than four million unemployed, that number would no doubt be substantial. If the commission will uncover these essential facts and if it will furthermore make known how many are unemployed because they have priced themselves out of the market, we shall then be able to take the measure of the problem we are facing and to take some intelligent action with reference to it.

The essential nature of unemployment is unchangeable. Too much of certain kinds of goods that people do not want at the prices asked and too little of other kinds of goods that people do want and are willing to pay for. Flexible wages and prices will direct capital, manpower and raw materials a way from the making of goods and services in the former classification and channel them into the making of goods and services which the people do want and are willing to pay for. Rigid wages and scales and price levels prevent these adjustments.

Flexibility hastens them, solves the problem of unemployment, cures depression and restores and promotes greater prosperity. If the proposed commission will deal intelligently with these facts and restore the free market with flexible prices and wages, unemployment of serious proportions will disappear, never to return.

Profit And Greed

The word, profit, is so frequently used in a derogatory sense that it seems appropriate that we explore its meaning. As most people object to it is not profit, but what appears to be greed.

Is there a difference between these two words? We believe there is. All of wish to make a profit. If we are wage-earners, we wish to receive more in pay than we have to spend on the necessities of life. If we are in business, we hope to earn enough to pay all of our bills and to have something in addition to reward us for the trouble we have gone to.

If we are not in business, either as employer or employee, we are still interested in profit. That is to say that we are constantly in search of satisfactions which are a type of reward. We conduct our lives in such a manner that it is relatively easy for us to receive praise or applause. We want to be liked, to be appreciated, to be deserving of both affection and esteem. If we are so placed that we do not receive money rewards, this does not remove us from wanting rewards. On the contrary, we are frequently even more diligent in seeking to be recognized.

The housewife, the student, even the vacationer, is looking for profit in one form or another. And the profits may not be measurable in monetary terms they are nonetheless real and nonetheless important.

But the characteristic of profit is that it is a natural result of effort expended. All profit, whether it can be measured in money or not, is something that we earn as a result of our own energies released, and there is nothing immoral or reprehensible about this.

It is well known that men are motivated in what they do. Man is a rational animal and as such he seeks satisfactions which have a value to him. And in this respect, thinking in terms of motive, we have long since learned that there are only two forces which drive us. We seek to gain profit, or we seek to prevent loss. And every one of us is spurred to lose a type of profit accrues. Incentives, which play so large a part in determining motives, come from only two directions. We either seek gain in the form of money, praise, recognition, affection, or lacking an opportunity to receive a reward, we will do whatever we have to do to prevent a loss. That is to say that if rewards and incentives of a voluntary nature do not provide us with drive, then the fear of imprisonment or death may spur us on sufficiently so that we seek to escape the fear or the threat.

Man is forever confronted either with the carrot or the stick. He will put forth his energies either to receive the carrot as a reward, or he will put forth his energies to prevent the application of the stick.

What of greed? This is something else, again. The person who is greedy does not seek a profit. Rather, he seeks to be rewarded, not because of his ability to earn a reward, but by hoping to receive a reward that he has not earned. The person who is anguished in greed, is invariably a person of envy or jealousy. He is not content with what he can earn for himself in the form of profit. Rather, he is forever examining the rewards that go to others, and feeling that he has been abused when others make a profit. He wants something for nothing. He is the victim of covetousness. Instead of causing the profits others may make to inspire him to intense application so that he, too, may profit, he strives ever to reduce the profits of others and to share in them, even when he has earned nothing.

The problems we face today can be quite properly allocated to a misunderstanding in the actual meanings of these two words, profit and greed. Profit is always justifiable, and justifiable without limit. There should be no limit at all to the rewards any person can earn. But greed is never justifiable. Greed is rooted in selfishness and the desire to reduce others to our own level, especially when that level is low. And the problems we face are largely emphasized by the entrance of government into this area of human conduct.

In our own time, government has set itself up to encourage greed and selfishness. It has passed all manner of rules and laws which rob a man of his profits, which he has earned, so that those who have earned little or nothing can be rewarded at the expense of others.

It would do a great deal of good if we could begin to understand the difference between greed and profit. Whenever we find ourselves growing envious of others, we should stifle this unworthy emotion as quickly as possible. It is no concern of ours what others may receive in the way of rewards for energy expended.

If each of us would concentrate on earning, and hence upon receiving profit, we would go a long way toward overcoming the evils of our times. It is greed that debases us. But profit is ennobling, inspiring and always worthy.

If each of us would concentrate on earning, and hence upon receiving profit, we would go a long way toward overcoming the evils of our times. It is greed that debases us. But profit is ennobling, inspiring and always worthy.

 Short-term borrowing costs of the government rose this week to the highest level since March 4, 1953, the treasury reported. The latest issue of 13-week bills sold at a price equivalent to an average yield of 3.84 per cent. This was the most paid since the bank holiday emergency in the Roosevelt administration.

Ford Motor Co. has formed its own financing subsidiary, Ford Motor Credit Co. The move followed postponement until next February of further action on Senate bills to bar car makers from financing sales of their products.

More expensive woolen and worsted clothing and costlier carpets can be expected in the year ahead in view of higher raw wool prices on the Australian market. Prices are running 10 to 20 per cent ahead of closing levels of last season.

The price of lead was increased one cent a pound to 13 cents by the largest domestic miner of the metal. With other refineries of three major lead suppliers closed by strike, the action set the new market price. Other sellers soon matched the 13-cent level.
