Good Evening!

AREA

DAWN — Two Texas Panhandle men were in an Amarillo hospital today with injuries suffered in an automobile collision that killed a Hereford woman Sunday night.

Sammy Lee Clark, 35, of Hereford, and Ray Flye McKinley, 24, of Amarillo, were each in stable condition today at Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo following a two-car crash that killed Marta Holman Williams, 40, of Hereford, about 8:30 p.m. Sunday.

Department of Public Safety officers said a 1990 Pontiac two-door sedan driven by McKinley was east-bound on FM 1062 when it was in collision with a 1986 Oldsmobile two-door sedan driven by Clark south-bound on FM 809.

Authorities said Williams, a passenger in the Oldsmobile, died about 9:20 p.m. at Palo Duro Hospital in Canyon.

Officers said there was a stop sign on FM 1062 at the intersection. They said that McKinley was wearing a seatbelt at the time of the accident, but that Williams and Clark were not.

Clark suffered head and back injuries, officers said, while McKinley suffered neck and back injuries.

Services for Williams were pending today with Rix Funeral Home in Hereford.

LEFORS — Department of Public Safety officials said today a Lefors man wrecked his truck Sunday night when he swerved to avoid hitting a deer on the highway.

Allan Bruce Garrett, 40, was westbound on FM 1321 about 9 p.m. Sunday when he lost control of his 1990 Dodge Ram pickup truck and rolled it.

Department of Public Safety officers said Garrett told them he swerved to miss a deer crossing the highway about four miles east of Lefors, lost control of the pickup and went into a bar ditch. The right rear wheel struck a concrete culvert, officers said, and the truck went into a broadside skid back across the highway and overturned.

Officers said the truck came to rest on its top in a bar ditch. They said Garrett was wearing a seatbelt and did not appear to be hurt.

WHITE DEER — Area residents who like food, festivals and lots of friendly people will find White Deer the place to be in late October and early November.

A stew dinner and old-fashioned bazaar is planned from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Oct. 28 to raise money for the White Deer United Methodist Church. Festivities will be at the White Deer Community Center.

Then the next weekend will see two festivals in the town.

Alpha Theta Omega's 16th annual Arts and Crafts Festival will open Nov. 5 at the Community Center. Hours will be from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Nov. 5 and from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Nov. 6.

Nov. 6 also is the day for the annual Sacred Heart Church Polish Sausage Festival. Meals will be served from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the Sacred Heart Parish Hall.

STATE

By The Associated Press

No tickets correctly matched all six numbers drawn Saturday night for the twice-weekly Lotto Texas game, state lottery officials said.

The jackpot would have been worth an estimated $10 million.

The numbers drawn Saturday night from a field of 50 were 9, 13, 23, 24, 36 and 47.

Wednesday night's drawing will be worth an estimated $18 million.

WICHITA FALLS (AP) — A regional Christian Church delegation has voted against ordaining gays and lesbians as ministers.

But the three-state assembly, representing 100,000 churchgoers in Texas, New Mexico and Oklahoma, also reaffirmed a church policy allowing congregations to choose their own leaders.

The Southwest Regional Assembly of the Christian Church, also known as Disciples of Christ, voted Sunday during its biennial conference.

Doug Harvey, pastor of First Christian Church in Panhandle, said the Bible clearly considers homosexuality a sin.

U.S. threatens reprisals against Iraq

By JIM ABRAMS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Having won U.N. backing for its tough stance on Iraqi aggression, the Clinton administration is warning Saddam Hussein that U.S. troops will remain in Kuwait until he ends his threat to the nation he invaded four years ago.

A U.N. resolution demanding Iraq end all hostile actions against Kuwait "makes very clear they are to return to their prior positions, and until that happens... we are going to be on alert," Leon Panetta, White House chief of staff, said on NBC today.

"Every indication we have is that the Iraqi forces are in retreat," Panetta said.

But, he added, "We're not going to in any way hinder our deployment of forces until we see that Iraq has begun full retreat."

Madeleine K. Albright, U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations, gave the Iraqi leader only days to finish his troop pull-back from the Kuwaiti border area, and Secretary of State Warren Christopher warned that next time the United States will not wait to retaliate if Iraq threatens its neighbor.

On Saturday, the United States pushed through a unanimous U.N. Security Council vote demanding that Iraq end all "hostile or provocative" actions against Kuwait.

"The message is clear: Iraq must complete its withdrawal. It must not threaten its neighbors in the future," President Clinton said at a White House ceremony honoring the U.S. delegation that accompanied Haitian President Jean-Bertrand Aristide on his return to power Saturday.

"The troops, ships and attack aircraft I have ordered to the (Persian) Gulf area will continue to remain there until the crisis passes," Clinton said.

More than 10,000 U.S. troops are currently in Kuwait or on the way, with 18,000 more ready to move to the region.

Albright, speaking Sunday on ABC's This Week With David Brinkley, said that the administration was "mildly optimistic" that Saddam would remove the last major area of concern, two brigades of elite Iraqi forces remaining near Nasiriyah, about 90 miles from Kuwait.

But Christopher reminded Saddam that he faces quick punishment if he repeats his threats against Iraq that precipitated the current U.S. military buildup in the area.

"Next time we'll probably not wait," Christopher said on NBC's Meet the Press. "We will take action, strong action, against him."

He stressed that the United States has the authority under existing U.N. resolutions to take military action even if Iraq doesn't cross the border into Iraq.

Albright added: "We recognize this area as vital to U.S. national interests and we will behave, with others, multilaterally when we can and unilaterally when we must."

Republican land commissioner candidate makes campaign stop

By BEN KECK
Assistant Editor

The Texas General Land Office, which administers more than 20 million acres of public lands to finance the state Permanent School Fund, has itself become a vast wasteland, the Republican candidate for state land commissioner said today during a campaign stop in Pampa.

Marta Greytok is attempting to unseat Land Commissioner Garry Mauro, a Democrat who has held the post for almost 12 years.

"When Garry Mauro took office 12 years ago, the Land Office had 278 employees. As of last week, there were 668 employees," Greytok told a group of supporters at a breakfast reception held this morning.

She also criticized Mauro's support of the state's Coastal Management Plan, saying the incumbent wrote 409 pages of rules and regulations that place the entire Texas coastline and most of its rivers under federal environmental control.

That, she said, violates private property rights. "We have to keep these people out of our business," Greytok said. "The feds have been trying to take our land since we became a state."

She said Mauro has had too many personal problems, including a personal bankruptcy, to effectively continue in the office.

"If he can't do the job in 12 years, he doesn't know what the job is," she said. "He's had so many problems I'm surprised he's still standing."

She also criticized the Land Office's Veterans Loan Program, in which veterans can get a loan to help them buy a house.

"Sure, they've raised the ceiling on the loans from $20,000 to $40,000, but it takes so long to get a loan, at least 90 days, that by the time it's processed the property someone is interested in has already been sold," she said.

"There's a big problem in that office and it needs to be cleaned out and downsized so we can get to the big issues, such as the veterans programs."

Ron Calhoun, a spokesman for Mauro's office in Austin, said that when Mauro took office, veterans could get loans only for land, not homes. He said that was changed, and instead of a year to 18 months it once took to approve a loan, it now takes about 90 days on land loans and 30 to 45 days on home loans.

As for the Coastal Management Plan, he said the plan was requested by business and civic leaders along the coast and that the Legislature approved it 31 to 0 in the Senate and 128 to 5 in the House.

"I assure you that if the plan allowed anyone to tread on private property rights, the Texas Legislature would never have approved it," Calhoun said.

Two dead in southeast Texas flooding

By MIKE DRAGO
Associated Press Writer

CONROE (AP) — Two people drowned, two others were missing and one man was in critical condition today following torrential rains and extensive flash flooding in Southeast Texas.

Some of the worst flooding was in Montgomery County, about 40 miles north of Houston, where two people were swept away by flood waters Sunday evening after driving their car into 3 feet of water rising out of swollen Weirs Creek.

Montgomery County Sheriff Guy Williams said the two people, whose names were not immediately released, were still missing by mid-morning today.

Williams said the body of another person was found early today downstream from where a car attempted to pass a flooded road. Neither the victim's name nor sex were immediately released.

In Polk County, about 65 miles northeast of Houston, one elderly man was found dead in a flooded area near U.S. 59, said Justice of the Peace Mary Placker. L.C. Walker, a man in his late 70s, was found outside his truck after he tried to drive through high water, said Sheriff Billy Nelson.

Nelson was asking about 3,000 residents south of the Lake Livingston Dam to evacuate voluntarily because of rising Trinity River levels caused by the dam's release.

"We're asking them to come out voluntarily, while the roads are still passable," Nelson said. "It's bad and it looks like were not going to get any better."

Conroe resident Duane Mayeux, 32, said he rescued a man sleeping in a camping trailer who woke to find himself trapped by rising water.

"He was frantic. He had water up to the door of his trailer," said Mayeux, who said he and his family were awakened by the man's screams. "If he hadn't woke up, he would have floated away."

Using a winch and his own truck, Mayeux pulled the trailer from the water.

Officials said swollen creeks created extensive flooding in Conroe, the Montgomery County seat. Nearly all roads leading into the area were cut off by high water.

Muslim militants gather near jail

By HAITHAM HAMAD
Associated Press Writer

GAZA CITY, Gaza Strip (AP) — Thousands of Muslim militants, roaring "We'll burn Gaza" and "Hamas will shake the land," descended on Gaza's central jail today to demand the release of fundamentalists detained after the kidnapping of an Israeli soldier.

The angry crowd, supporters of the fundamentalist Hamas group that abducted the soldier, surged against a fence surrounding the jail and shouted slogans at hundreds of PLO police before dispersing peacefully. Two demonstrators fired dozens of bullets into the air.

Israel, meanwhile, reopened the Gaza Strip and Israel-PLO talks on expanding Palestinian self-rule were set to resume Tuesday in Cairo, signs that relations, badly shaken by the abduction of the soldier, were returning to normal.

And Jordan and Israel initialed a draft treaty that ended 46 years of war. A full peace treaty may be signed as early as next week.

Palestinian police had jailed 210 Hamas members after Israel and the United States pressured PLO leader Yasser Arafat to crack down on the group, whose military wing abducted the Israeli soldier.

The militants killed the soldier, Sgt. Nachshon Waxman, 19, on Friday when Israeli commandos raided their hideout. An Israeli commando and the three kidnapers also died.

Arafat tried to defuse the crisis with Hamas, its main rival and an opponent of the PLO's peace accord with Israel, by freeing 60 militants from jail by early this morning.

But that did not mollify the protesters, who denounced PLO leaders and accused them of leading Israel to the kidnappers. They also demanded that Arafat free all Hamas members still in jail.

The crowd, ignoring a pouring rain and uncowed by hundreds of helmeted Palestinian police armed with clubs, held aloft posters of Sheik Ahmed Yassin, the founder and spiritual leader of the Hamas movement jailed by Israel.

"I call on Arafat to immediately release all our prisoners in order to prevent bloodshed," said one of Hamas' political leaders, Dr. Mahmoud Zahar.

Police say to avoid discarded syringes

Pampans out for morning jogs or evening strolls may notice streets, sidewalks or gutters sometimes littered with syringes.

Those syringes most likely have been used by drug addicts, and parents should warn their children not to touch them, a Pampa police officer says.

"There hasn't been an epidemic of syringes being discarded on the streets, but we do get calls from people who see them and we go out and pick them up," said Patrolman Brad Love, the police department's crime prevention officer.

Love said the department "strongly advises" parents to teach their children not to play with discarded syringes "just like you'd teach them not to play with guns."

"The danger is that they could poke themselves with the needle and get AIDS or some other disease, or if there is still narcotic residue in the syringe, there could be serious side effects," he said.

Love said police have not received any reports of anyone being pricked by discarded needles.

This discarded syringe was seen Sunday on the street in the 300 block of West Buckler, just a few feet west of the Frost Street intersection. (Pampa News photo)

Justices permit law restricting service at Love Field

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today let stand a federal law that restricts interstate airline service to and from Love Field in Dallas.

The justices, without comment, refused to hear arguments that the law constitutionally hampers free speech and the right to travel from one state to another.

Congress, in a law sponsored by former House Speaker Jim Wright, prohibited airlines from offering direct service between Love Field and anywhere outside of Texas or its four bordering states — Louisiana, Arkansas, Oklahoma and New Mexico.

Passengers wishing to use Love Field to get somewhere outside those five states must take a second flight. The law also bars airlines from offering a single ticket for such trips, or from letting passengers check their baggage through for the final destination.

As enforced by the Department of Transportation, the law also prohibits airlines and their agents from advertising or volunteering information about connecting services between Love Field and points outside the five states.

That information may be provided if requested by an airline customer.

The Wright amendment to a major federal airline-competition law was in response to a long dispute between the cities of Dallas and Fort Worth over a principal airport for the metropolitan area they share.

The cities eventually agreed that it would be Dallas-Fort Worth International, about 12 miles from Love Field. But Southwest Airlines threatened the agreement by refusing to end its Love Field operations. Spurred by Wright, Congress then stepped in.

South Texas - Hill Country and South Central: Tonight, mostly cloudy with widely scattered showers. Lows in upper 60s Hill Country to low and mid 70s south central. Tuesday and Tuesday night, mostly cloudy with scattered showers and thunderstorms. Highs in low to mid 80s. Lows in the 60s to near 70. Coastal Bend: Tonight, mostly cloudy with widely scattered showers. Lows in the 70s. Tuesday and Tuesday night, mostly cloudy and breezy with widely scattered showers or thunderstorms. Highs in the 80s. Lows in the 70s. Lower Rio Grande Valley and Plains: Tonight, mostly cloudy with widely scattered showers. Lows in the 70s. Tuesday and Tuesday night, mostly cloudy with widely scattered showers or thunderstorms. Highs from mid 80s east to near 90 inland west. Lows in the 70s.

BORDER STATES

New Mexico - Tonight, a few lowland rain or mountain snow showers near Colorado border, otherwise partly cloudy north and fair south. Colder most sections. Lows in the teens to near 30 mountains with 30s to mid 40s lower elevations. Tuesday, partly cloudy north and fair south. Warmer most sections. Highs in the 40s and 50s mountains with 60s to mid 70s lower elevations. Tuesday night, fair skies. Lows teens to near 30 mountains, 30s and 40s elsewhere.

Oklahoma - Tonight, occasional showers and thunderstorms. Locally heavy rainfall possible. Lows 60 to 65. Tuesday, showers and thunderstorms likely east and south. Cloudy with a chance of showers and thunderstorms elsewhere. Highs 70 to 75.

You can take the boy out of Oklahoma, but ...

Actually the license plate on the Chevrolet Suburban driving around Canadian belongs to Ed Culver's wife, Julie. She's had it since 1976, he said, when she was a student at the University of Oklahoma. Culver, left, played football there from 1977 through 1981. "With those tags," he laughed, "there's no inbetween." He said passing people on the highway always wave — sometimes with all five fingers. (Pampa News photos by David Bowser)

Morris, Daugherty seek tax assessor/collector post

An officeholder who gained her job through appointment is looking to hold onto it by running for the position as Republican candidate in the Nov. 8 election.

Sammie Morris was appointed to fill the job of tax assessor/collector following the April 21 death of officeholder Margie Gray. Morris was tapped May 2 by the Gray County Commissioners' Court based on a designation letter reportedly left by Gray which named Morris as chief in case something happened to Gray.

"I hope (voters) are thinking I can continue to run a very efficient office ... I've been doing it," said Morris of her candidacy.

Sammie Morris

instantly updated when people register to vote, move or change their names.

Morris has taken two courses toward certification as a registered tax collector and attended the Tax Assessor Collector Association conference for workshops.

Morris claims to be a lifelong Republican.

"In local races, I really hate it you have to run on a ticket. Everybody will be treated the same in this office," she said.

Morris has worked in the office off and on beginning in 1958.

Office personnel calculate, bill and collect taxes, issue tax certificates for real estate transactions, title and register vehicles, collect temporary permit fees for Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission, and conduct voter registration and maintain voter rolls.

Voters need to think about who can do the best job as tax assessor/collector, said Democratic candidate Donna Daugherty.

Daugherty, a 15-year employee of the office, said, "I have enjoyed my job. I enjoy working with people. I have been very dedicated to it."

She hired on in 1979 and says she has filled all office positions since that time.

If elected, her goal is to change the integrity and harmony of the office, she said.

"The tax office is not one place the public likes to come into," Daugherty said.

Daugherty said she became a Democrat because her boss, the late Margie Gray, was a Democrat.

"I guess I followed in Margie's footsteps," she said.

However, she does not believe it is important to be a Democrat or Republican in this election.

"It's just important to be who you are," Daugherty said.

Daugherty claims to have been Gray's chief deputy at the time of her death, April 21. Sammie Morris, Daugherty's opponent in the race for assessor/collector, was appointed to fill Gray's spot by county commissioners on May 2.

"I think it should have been appointed to me but the commission thought otherwise. There were four Republicans and one Democrat (on the commission). Plus Margie left a letter back in 1987, but Sammie had quit and come back, and I felt like that letter should have been voided," Daugherty said.

The letter Daugherty refers to was penned in 1987 and purports to name Morris as Gray's successor should something happen to Gray.

Daugherty believes she is Gray's chosen successor based on verbal instructions, she said.

Her training includes familiarity with 12 different kinds of licenses, sales tax collection, vehicle registration and titles and liquor permits.

Daugherty says she has completed classes in property tax, introduction to appraisal, property tax assessment and collections. If elected, she said, she will have to earn certification by Texas Association of Assessing Officers.

Boy fails to save brother from fire

DELTA, Pa. (AP) — Six-year-old Justin Dailey did all he could to save his little brother from the fire that broke out in their family's log cabin.

He stood among the flames to call 911, then dragged his 4-year-old brother to the door and tried to escape.

"They were on the phone with 911, and the phone went dead," said Fire Chief Jeff Griffith. "The dispatcher said she thought she heard the fire over the phone, and, unfortunately, she was right."

When firefighters knocked down the door early Sunday, they found the two boys unconscious.

Matthew, with burns over three-fourths of his body, died at the scene. Justin suffered burns and smoke inhalation and was listed in critical condition today.

The boys' parents — Thomas, 39, and Deborah, 31 — also were killed. Officials said the flames trapped them in the back bedroom and prevented the boys from reaching them.

Authorities blamed the fire on a free-standing wood stove that overheated in the living room. A new, more-efficient wood stove that was bought recently sat under a blue tarp outside the cabin, which is near the Maryland border.

Houston studies private firms for city workers

HOUSTON (AP) — City officials are studying an idea that could allow municipal workers to save their jobs by becoming investors in private companies that take over services now provided by City Hall.

City Council member Ben Reyes envisions giving municipal employees the opportunity to become stockholders in companies specially formed to take over certain city services.

The head of the municipal workers' union does not care much for the idea, however.

Under the plan, workers not only retain their jobs, they would become owners and managers of their own company. Reyes says that would create incentive to be more productive and provide better service to the public.

"Let's let the employees buy into the work place," he told The Houston Post for a story in Houston's editions.

Mayor Bob Lanier, who has said he opposes any privatization efforts that result in employee layoffs, has ordered further study of the plan.

Reyes said his idea was inspired by a national trend toward employee ownership. Nearly 10 percent of the nation's workers, about 11.5 million people, now work in employee-owned companies, according to the U.S. Department of Labor.

Triggering the growth of employee ownership was the 1974 Employee Retirement and Income Security Act, which gave tax advantages to employee-owned companies.

Reyes said his proposal could work in various city departments. A good place to start might be heavy-trash pickup in the Solid Waste Management Department, he said.

About 8 percent of the city's trash collection customers are served by private garbage collectors.

Snails attack endangered darter fish

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A large breed of nocturnal snails that was introduced to a Central Texas spring almost 10 years ago is threatening an endangered breed of tiny fish.

The giant ramshorn snails, believed to have been dumped into Comal Springs in New Braunfels by aquarium hobbyists, are devouring the eggs and habitat of the fountain darter, wildlife officials told the San Antonio Express-News for its Sunday editions.

The darter is at the center of a legal battle between San Antonio and the Sierra Club over the city's dependence on water from the Edwards Aquifer.

"While the giant ramshorns are moving along plants and eating, they're eating the eggs of fountain darters and thereby affecting future generations," said Tom Arsuffi, an associate professor of aquatic biology at Southwest Texas State University.

The Sierra Club alleges in a lawsuit that San Antonio is siphoning off too much water from the aquifer, threatening springs in New Braunfels and San Marcos and the endangered fish that live in them.

Federal officials say a flow of water of at least 200 cubic feet per second is needed to keep the spring environment safe for the fish. That affects how much water the city and other aquifer users can draw, especially during dry spells.

The ramshorn snails, striped with alternating bands of yellow or beige and dark brown, can grow larger than a silver dollar and weigh more than a half ounce.

They first showed up in the Comal Springs in 1984, when four shells were discovered on the banks of state-owned Landa Lake, which is where Comal Springs are located in New Braunfels.

But it wasn't until 1989, when the Comal Springs flow averaged below 200 cfs, that the ramshorn attracted much attention.

Facing no natural predators or diseases in the springs, the snails took full advantage of the slower spring currents, which enabled them to more easily climb aquatic vegetation, which they eat. The snail population exploded. At night, throngs of snails could be seen feeding.

Although the ramshorns also have invaded San Marcos springs, home to four other rare and endangered species, they have not had the same destructive effect because currents move there much faster, inhibiting their population growth.

New Braunfels parks officials formerly had to clear plants from the spring, but no more. The snails have denuded large areas of the spring bed of vegetation, said David Whately, New Braunfels park director.

Although snail numbers have stabilized as springflow rates have rebounded over the past three years, some biologists fear a new population explosion if flows diminish sharply during a summer drought.

Federal scientists have reported that if the snail populations in the springs are controlled and their effect on the fountain darter neutralized, the minimum flow rate could be cut to 150 cubic feet per second.

A later report suggests that, for short periods, the minimum flow could be lowered to 60 cubic feet per second if the snail and spring flow are controlled.

That would mean more water during dry periods for San Antonio, which relies exclusively on the Edwards Aquifer for water, said Rick Illgner, general manager of the Edwards Underground Water District.

"Face Off" is a series of stories designed to let local candidates tell readers why they want to hold elected office and what they believe the issues to be. The Pampa News will feature opposing candidates from now until election day, Nov. 8.

Early voting is scheduled to begin Oct. 19 on the first floor of Gray County Courthouse. It will continue through Nov. 4.

The main issue of the Nov. 8 contest is running an efficient office. That includes effective communication with taxpayers who come to tend to business, cross-training for employees and teamwork, she said.

The office completed computer linkage in July with the Texas Secretary of State's office, so Gray County voter registration lists are

Extension Service to offer computer course on records

AMARILLO — The Texas Agricultural Extension Service is offering classes to help producers make the transition from keeping records by hand to using new, efficient and time-saving computer technology.

Aided by its traveling education laboratory, Extension Service specialists are offering participants a "hands-on" learning opportunity in a setting completely outfitted with the latest computer technology.

The first computer shortcourse on farm and ranch record keeping features Quicken7 and will be offered in Miami on Thursday and Friday at the Roberts County Courthouse. Other classes are scheduled in towns across the Panhandle.

The series runs through March 1995 and provides basic and advanced instruction on Quicken7 and BUDPRO software.

Quicken7, according to Extension specialists, is an inexpensive, easy-to-use record keeping system for operators to enter simple and complex transactions, including check writing and categorizing by type of income and expense. The program will split and memorize transactions and develop reports. It is the most widely accepted accounting system package being adopted by agribusiness operators.

BUDPRO is a new software package that assists in generating enterprise budgets and conducting sensitivity analyses.

Classes begin at 9 a.m. and end at 3:30 p.m. each day. The two-day course fee is $75. Preregistration and prepayment of the course fee is required.

To register or obtain more information, call Herman Boone, Roberts County Extension agent, at (806) 868-3191 or Regina Linder at the Texas Agricultural Extension Service District Office in Amarillo at (806) 359-5401.

Cuba captures seven exiles

MIAMI (AP) — Seven Cuban exiles who landed in their homeland in a motorboat and killed a fisherman were engaging in a "blatant act of terrorism," Cuban officials say.

The men, believed to be members of a Florida-based paramilitary group, were captured after a gunfight with authorities, the Cuban government said Sunday.

The seven men were believed to belong to a group known as PUND or the National Democratic Unity Party. The Miami Herald reported in today's editions. They arrived in Cuba from Florida, Cuban officials said.

A PUND spokesman refused to comment on the incident, but said the group would hold a news conference today.

Cuba's Ministry of the Interior described the incident as "a strange attempt at armed infiltration."

spokesman Jose Luis Ponce called it a "blatant act of terrorism that has cost the life of an innocent civilian."

He demanded that U.S. authorities crack down on paramilitary groups training in south Florida.

According to Cuban authorities, the seven men, wearing camouflage clothing, arrived early Saturday in Caibarien, about 210 miles east of Havana. There they encountered four fishermen, including 34-year-old Arcelio Rodriguez Garcia, who was shot.

The Cuban government's statement was published in a Communist youth weekly. It did not say why the fisherman was shot.

Saturday's incident was similar to one in 1991 in which three Miami men from the paramilitary group Comandos L were captured in Cuba with a boatload of weapons. One of the men was executed; the others are serving 30-year prison terms.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

U.S. troops facing frustration in Haiti

These are frustrating times for the 21,000 members of the U.S. armed forces now policing the streets of Haiti: Trained to be the best fighting force in the world, they have been relegated instead to standing watch as the "liberated" island nation unravels into chaos.

Having effectively neutered Haiti's former military junta, the American forces had as their raison d'être the imminent return of toppled Haitian President Jean-Bertrand Aristide. Aristide, it is presumed, will lead Haiti out of its political darkness. Perhaps. But even assuming this sometime firebrand stands for something better than merely feathering his own nest, it's not clear how that will trickle down to the masses.

Indeed, many rank-and-file Haitians seem to be celebrating Aristide's comeback by looting their own communities and rounding up suspected affiliates of the old regime. Recent news accounts tell of Haitian rabble storming — not the proverbial Bastille — but just about any shop with any valuable goods left in it.

Aristide's supporters aren't the only miscreants, naturally; assorted thugs of the junta are doing their level best to continue terrorizing folks in the Aristide camp, resorting to tactics like violently busting up pro-Aristide rallies. Such clashes have led so far to at least 13 deaths.

Certainly, that's all pretty routine for such politically- and socially- fractured societies — particularly so in Haiti, where basic economic and political values Americans take for granted have never taken root. Were it not for the fact that all of this was happening as thousands of heavily armed Americans looked on, it might not be particularly noteworthy.

Sure, of late U.S. Military police have taken to kicking in doors around Port-Au-Prince in search of weapons caches and ringleaders of the anti-Aristide bands. There has been some success along these lines, along with the notable gaffe of mistakenly crashing in on the rehearsal of some voodoo dancers and musicians.

But such surgical strikes — against only one side of the quarrel — will do little to thwart the mobs that have been thronging the streets following the breakdown of whatever order prevailed under the now lame-duck military regime.

And our own fighting forces, whose intervention made this near-anarchy possible, appear virtually powerless to stop it. That's not their job, to be sure. But then, that's why they shouldn't have been there in the first place.

TV or no TV in our prisons

A panel of shrewd men and one woman, two of whom had been in prisons, were advocating reforms, and on one reform there was agreement from all sides. It is that at least one-half of the present population of our prisons would be better used doing something other than sitting in a jail cell or listlessly producing license plates.

Everyone is familiar with the existing dilemma: If you don't send people to jail who are convicted, then you are trifling with the law. On the other hand, if you do send to jail everyone who is convicted, you are in some states slightly, in many states egregiously, exceeding the population limit for which the prison was built.

So, big deal? They doubled the population of Yale after the war, and the dear boys survived ... That attitude is widespread and especially relevant when the bond issue comes up that asks for $100 million for new prisons. The angry taxpayers say the hell with new prisons, and the judiciary retaliates: by ordering that part of the prison population that exceeds the anticipated limit to go home, or to be paroled.

So far so good, as Charles Colson, the ingenious head of Prison Fellowship, would declare. The problem is that who is being let out of jail is not necessarily the woman who wrote the bum check, or the car thief, or the marijuana smoker. Some of these are released, to be sure, but also some people who got there by slitting someone's throat and might very well resume (remember Willie Horton?) doing so when given an opportunity.

Now as this exchange went on, the politicians in Jackson, Miss., were considering quite other changes in prison practice. The governing idea of those who took this initiative is that jails should be unpleasant. Well, surely it is unpleasant enough to be locked into a single cell, or even within the confines of a large fortification?

No, that isn't enough, these reformers are arguing. Writes Adam Nossiter of The New York Times: "There was talk of restoring fear to prisons, of caning, of making prisoners 'smell like a prisoner,' of burning and frying, of returning executions to the county seat and of making Mississippi 'the capital of capital punishment,' as Gov. Kirk Fordice put it."

And in the wrap-up: "From California to Florida, elected officials have proposed to make prison life harsher than it has been in years, and in some cases, they have succeeded. On the table or already on the books are edicts taking away television, tennis and basketball courts, weight rooms ... and more."

There are prisons in which inmates cannot read. There is no reading material, and if there were, there would not be light enough to read with. Impressions of that kind play with the chemical recesses of human nature: If one is given to reading, to have nothing to read is a form of torture.

And even if one grants the postulate that life in prison should not be comfortable, how uncomfortable should it be? It is entirely possible to regulate the temperature of a jail cell to make it 10 degrees colder than the human body can easily put up with, or 10 degrees hotter. Overhead lights, brilliant and unreachable, can assault the psyche. Prison uniforms can be designed to be garishly humiliating.

And then — if there is to be no television, no records, tapes or books, what will there be to listen to? Are these such auspices as can induce learning? If so, at what level? How would five years of listening only to the Bible register on the typical 19-year-old inmate? Would he at first resist listening to anything he had not himself commandeered? And would he then, his resistance overcome, finally listen to what was being said? Listen with an appreciative ear? Heart?

These experiments cannot be conducted in a hurry. We learn that a particular corner of the inner city over which the restaurant owner made futile attempts to exercise control found peace from throbbing teen-agerhood only when the owner thought to blast from his amplifier a Mozart opera. Would five years of this breed a Mozart cult?

Penological thought has a long way to go. Yes, prisons should be unpleasant — but not too unpleasant. Yes, lawbreakers should be made to suffer — but how? Next to Charles Colson when he served time was the former head of a large doctors' group, perfectly able to use his stethoscope, but permitted only the chisel to make license plates with. The questions are not yet political, but inevitably they soon will be.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Monday, Oct. 17, the 290th day of 1994. There are 75 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Oct. 17, 1777, British forces under General John Burgoyne surrendered to American troops in Saratoga, N.Y., in what proved a turning point of the Revolutionary War.

On this date:

In 1919, the Radio Corporation of America was created.

In 1931, mobster Al Capone was convicted of income tax evasion and sentenced to 11 years in prison (He was released in 1939).

In 1939, Frank Capra's comedy-drama Mr. Smith Goes to Washington, starring Jean Arthur and James Stewart, had its premiere in the nation's capital.

In 1941, the U.S. destroyer Kearney was torpedoed by a German submarine off the coast of Iceland. Eleven people died.

In 1945, Col. Juan Peron staged a coup in Buenos Aires, becoming absolute ruler of Argentina.

In 1957, French author Albert Camus was awarded the Nobel Prize in literature.

Could you afford a friendly jury?

If you are ever on trial for murder, you will want a sympathetic jury.

Be very careful in the matter of jury selection. There are people you can hire who specialize in the scientific selection of jurors. It's a $400-million business! The O.J. Simpson defense has employed consultants who specialize in analyzing that prospective jurors say — and what they don't say — to make certain that the defendant gets every possible benefit of a "friendly" jury.

If you are ever on trial for murder, you will want to employ such a team of jury-selection consultants. I hope you can.

For their services, they charge $1 million. There's a lot of smoke, mirrors and muscle in today's courtrooms, where one is likely to get the best justice that money can buy.

Before the Simpson trial is over, the jury will be led to believe that the Los Angeles Police Department committed the crime and that scientific blood tests are just voodoo. They will be told that they must not consider the defendant's history of violent behavior or some of the bloodiest evidence — and that the bits of skin under the victim's fingernails could have been from anybody. And the defense will thus try to get even one juror to agree there is reasonable doubt.

Does this suggest that whether a defendant is guilty or innocent could be decided on "technicalities"? It happens every day.

Picket Fences, the television program, dares to weigh the pros and cons of ultimately sensitive issues. In one recent episode, the sobering climax of a controversy over the technicalities of guilt and innocence was dealt with by the program's gifted writers through the lips of a compassionate judge.

So you know, the following words do NOT refer to any specific, real-life trial. The program was dealing, rather, with a church-state issue.

Addressing the defendant, Judge Bone said: "Mr. Latham, you allegedly murdered a 16-year-old girl. I don't care that the police botched a constitutional technicality. If the police screw up on procedure, then let's start punishing the police, dammit!"

"Why should society be victimized by putting killers back on the street?"

"I'm a strong believer in the Bill of Rights. I know we need to fend off government and police abuse, which is rampant. But if you really want to find 'dogma' in America today, it's not in religion. It's in blind devotion to the Constitution."

"Criminals go free while we throw civil-rights parades! I'm sick of it. I'm sick of the judicial system being more about winning and losing than it is about the truth."

"Mr. Latham, you are going to trial. If the Supreme Court has got a problem with that, they can come and get me."

"Bailiff, take him into custody. Adjourned!"

Time to keep your eye on Colin Powell

The front page of The New York Times for Sunday, Sept. 25, contained a photograph of Gen. Colin Powell and a long article about him by the Times' senior Washington correspondent, R.W. ("Johnny") Apple.

Apple used Powell's involvement in the Haitian accord as his news peg, but two of the most important observations in his article concerned a speech Powell gave at a dinner in Ashland, Ohio, on Sept. 16. Searching it for clues to the general's views, Apple noted that Powell referred to former President Bush as "my beloved friend," and described Ronald Reagan as "a genius."

He also quoted Robert Bennett, chairman of the Ohio Republican Party (who attended the dinner), as saying of Powell afterward, "He's a communicator, brilliant, in the Reagan class, an everyday Joe, with a lot of self-mocking humor. I was impressed, and I don't impress easily."

I rise to second Mr. Bennett's observations. For I too was at the dinner. In fact, I chaired it, and introduced Gen. Powell. It was the annual dinner of the Ashbrook Center for Public Affairs at Ashland University, and Powell quite simply knocked my socks off.

I had seen him before, on television, briefing reporters at the Pentagon with a map and a pointer. But I had never heard him make a speech. Now that I have, all I can tell my readers, including any candidates for the presidency in 1996 who may be among them, is: Keep your eye on Colin Powell.

He is a better speaker than anyone now being seriously discussed as a possible Republican nominee. He is smooth, calm and colloquial, save when he wants to be impassioned. He has a relaxed, Reaganesque sense of humor, which he deploys almost exclusively against himself. And of course, like certain other generals who moved on to the White House, he is associated in our minds only with good things: courage, patriotism, victory.

Is he interested in the presidency? Is a kid from the south Bronx, who rose to be chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, likely to lack ambition?

More crucially, is he a Republican or a Democrat? He described himself to a group of students at Ashland as conservative on economic policies but liberal on "social" matters. On further questioning, the latter seemed to mean that he is grateful for the help that liberal social policies, such as affirmative action, gave him and his immigrant parents, and is unwilling to repudiate them. That, humanly, is understandable.

More generally, I assume that any four-star general is likely to be pretty conservative by temperament. But it is also likely that three decades in the military have left Powell, like Dwight Eisenhower, a woozy centrist on many issues not directly involving the armed forces. How likely is it that he has perceived the wide, deep swing in our national politics from preoccupation with economic issues to a profound and growing concern over moral ones? He may well consider the conservative movement just a bunch of repressed hysterics.

But whether he does or not, my guess is that he will cut a huge swath through the politics of 1996. If he stays out of the Republican primaries, makes a series of reverberating speeches nationally televised, and lets all those gingham dogs and calico cats eat each other up, a lot of the delegates (and some of the candidates) will be powerfully tempted to offer him the kingly crown.

Nor do I rule out the possibility that certain Democratic politicians, sick unto death of the present occupant of the Oval Office, will contrive to put Powell's name on the ballot in some of the Democratic primaries — and that if they do, he might well trounce Bill Clinton then and there.

Waist not? Want not a wide belt

By FRANCINE PARNES
For AP Special Features

Fashion belts from Clara Studio Inc. for Asymmetry range from five-eighths of an inch to two inches wide. Let your figure be your guide. (AP photo/Clara Studio Inc.)

They hold up your pants, update last year's looks and add a finishing touch. And, while they stretch your wardrobe, they whittle your waist.

History has it that belts have been worn since the Bronze Age, and now, with emphasis on close-fitting clothes, they're back in fashion.

"They're coming back very strongly, with the shaped waist that is so prominent," says New York designer Judith Leiber.

Jackie Anderson, another New Yorker, agrees.

"The belt helps feminize," says the design director for Omega Fashions, maker of leather belts. "Now that glamour is coming back again, in the form of red lips and fingernails and high heels, belts are adding attention to details of an outfit."

The newest look in belts is reed-thin, a half-inch or so wide, such as leather thong tie belts designed by Clara and Misha Berger for Asymmetry or those Calvin Klein buckled around long sweaters in his CK collection.

The narrow belt scores points for accenting the waist without binding it. For the overweight, a thin belt of the same color or fabric as the clothing is the most flattering.

"If you're thick-waisted, don't wear an extreme such as a two-inch belt, because you're drawing attention with a vertical line at a wide point around your body," Anderson says. "Instead, look for a belt that's about an inch or less wide."

Leiber says her narrow belts in alligator or snake-skin are doing well. In nine colors, they come ornamented with semiprecious stones, plain brass gold-plated buckles or mini turn-locks, about $575.

At Omega, Anderson says, patent leather is important. "We're braiding it, mixing it with gros-grain ribbon and putting ornaments on it such as gold-tone coins and lion's head charms."

Omega's black patent three-quarter-inch belt with charms retails for about $45.

With narrow belts in the forefront, classic chains can't be far behind.

"I just got back from Milan and Paris, and chain belts are still really going strong," Anderson says.

"A lot of them are the basic gold chains with leather lacing which started with Chanel, and the update is a gold-tone plate in front that's like a belt buckle."

Omega will have them in January for about $18, or for the real thing, go to the source.

"We've been selling the classic belts ever since Coco Chanel sold her first one from her Rue Cambon salon in the late '50s," says Anne Fahey, Chanel's New York spokesman. "Chanel designed it because she thought it gave a thinning effect to the waist."

New for fall is Chanel's matte gold-tone chain belt with frog charms, about $750.

Chanel, via Karl Lagerfeld, is also taking a walk on the wide side with a seven-inch black quilted leather corset belt, about $790.

"It's like a weight lifter's belt which instantly attracts attention to the waist, either with a longer cardigan or a short crop jacket," Fahey says. "You wear it under a little black knit dress and throw a jacket over it."

"Or as outerwear over a swing coat to cinch the waist."

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am 68 years old. My husband is 70. We raised seven children and now have 30 grandchildren. Our problem is "Sonny," our 30-year-old son who got in trouble with the law and disappeared for two years. He returned this summer to clear up the trouble, and was sentenced to 18 months.

Before Sonny left to do his time, he brought his girlfriend, "Thelma," and her 7-year-old daughter to my house and asked if they could stay until Thelma found a job. (She has no skills.) Thelma registered her daughter in school, but she has made no effort to find a place of her own. She found a job and works from 2 p.m. to 9 p.m., so I have to pick up her daughter from school, give her dinner, help her with her homework, give her a bath and put her to bed. (She is not Sonny's child.)

Abby, not only have my husband and I lost the retirement we earned at this time of our lives, we have become maids, cooks and baby sitters for someone we never even knew until four weeks ago.

How can we tell Thelma that she must set a date to move out and be on her own?

Unfortunately, she has no parents.

"MOM" TO A STRANGER

DEAR "MOM": Your son asked if Thelma and her daughter could stay with you until she found a job. She has found one; now tell her that she must be out of your home within a specified number of days — or weeks.

Be firm, Mom, or Thelma will continue to take advantage of your generosity indefinitely.

DEAR ABBY: I care very much for an older gentleman — a widower with a large family (I'll call him Howard).

I have frequently resented the tone and disrespectful manner used by his family when speaking to him. They are impatient to the point of being downright cruel.

After I criticized a family member for humiliating him in front of numerous people, it suddenly dawned on me that Howard has a hearing problem. He often responds inappropriately to comments made to him, and his inability to hear has resulted in misunderstandings, hurt feelings, difficulty in following verbal instructions, and feeling isolated in groups.

I talked to Howard about it and he told me he had tried various hearing aids, but none has worked for him. Being a very impatient man, he probably didn't give them a fair trial, but he refuses to listen to anyone who dares to suggest that he give yet another hearing aid a chance.

Abby, if you or your readers have any suggestions on how to help this dear man, please let me know.

HOWARD'S FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: Waste no time in taking Howard to an audiologist to have his hearing tested. If he has the type of deafness for which there is no hearing aid, he and his family should be advised.

However, in any case, his impatient and cruel family members should be made aware of his condition, and urged to exercise patience and respect.

DEAR ABBY: Does a cow have a significant udder?

MIKE HECHT

DEAR MIKE: Probably, although some may believe

Running through New York

Chaplain David Schlewitz trains Wednesday at Pampa High School track. He is to travel to the New York City Nov. 4 to test his mettle in its famous marathon on Nov. 6. (Pampa News photo by David Bowser)

Chaplain David Schlewitz is about to take a bite of the Big Apple.

Not just as any tourist, mind you, but he's going to see the city on foot as he runs his way through 26.2 miles of urban streets in the New York City marathon.

Schlewitz, who began his running career as middle school trackster, calls running his weight and stress control valve. Indeed, in 1985, he lost 80 pounds eating sensibly and consistently running a seven minute mile after a pastor's sedentary lifestyle caused his weight to balloon to 230-lbs. on his 6-foot frame.

Within a few months of consistent running, his weight dropped to 150 lbs. and he was hooked on the exercise where there are no telephones and no interruptions.

In the winter of this year, Schlewitz, who serves as prison chaplain at the Rufe Jordan Unit, began to get serious about marathon running. By August, he was covering 32 miles per week until illness put him out of commission. He resumed workouts in September and is back to the 32 mile mark. On Oct. 1 he ran 12 miles and anticipates adding two miles weekly to his Saturday workouts.

Besides physical workouts, Schlewitz is preparing mentally. He concentrates on everything as he runs — his feet, his body, his form and time. The night before the run, he will lay out every piece of clothing, pin his number to his shirt with "David" on it and prepare his new orange and purple Adidas shoes.

Schlewitz, who describes himself as a long, slow distance runner, is emulating his father, the late Bob Schlewitz, to whom the marathon race is dedicated.

Plans are falling into place for Schlewitz's trip. He is to stay at a half-way house in Brooklyn after his Nov. 4 arrival. On Nov. 5, he will pick up his race packet and go to a runner's expo, then join about 35,000 others on Nov. 6 for the silver anniversary of the marathon.

A special treat for the prison chaplain is an invitation to participate in an ecumenical worship service at 8:30 a.m. Nov. 6 at Fort Wadsworth, near the starting point of the run.

"That'll be new," he said.

His race strategy is to begin slow without being drained by the big adrenaline rush he expects.

But running is not just a physical exercise with health benefits attached. It is, he said, a battle with his own fears and inclination to quit before the race is over.

"I found in my running I can meditate on scripture and pray some," he said.

He claims a Bible verse from First Corinthians for meditation as he runs: "And every man that striveth for the mastery is temperate in all things. Now they do it to obtain a corruptive crown; but we an incorruptible. I therefore so run, not as uncertainly; so fight I, not as one that beateth the air; But I keep under my body, and bring it into subjection; lest that by any means, when I have preached to others, I myself should be a cast-away."

In the spirit of the verse, finishing the marathon is the victory, Schlewitz said.

"The winning part is doing the day to day running. The run is the icing on the cake," he said.

Book Review

Meet a ghostly host of boo-tiful people

By RON BERTHEL
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — According to Carol Channing's trademark song, "Demons Are a Ghoul's Best Friend" — or something like that.

Readers who count demons, ghouls and the like among their best friends when it comes time to enjoy a book will be pleased to know that this Halloween brings several new volumes that feature a variety of spooky species.

In "Haunted America" (Tor), authors Michael Norman and Beth Scott offer "true" ghost stories from every state, East Ghost to West Ghost. While gathering the 70 tales contained in this volume, the authors interviewed witnesses and stayed in many of the places where creepy goings-on go on.

Among the spectral spots: the White House, where the ghosts of Andrew Jackson, Dolley Madison and Abraham Lincoln are said to still cavort; Kentucky's Lapland Woods, where Leah Smock, an accused witch who died 150 years ago, reportedly still haunts the cemetery; and an Illinois college dorm that is still inhabited by Mary, a coed who had been killed by an ax-murderer 70 years ago.

If visiting the departed in all 50 states is too grave an undertaking, you might prefer to concentrate on just one state — perhaps Vermont. In the paperback "Green Mountain Ghosts, Ghouls & Unsolved Mysteries" (Vermont Life Chapters), Joseph A. Citro chronicles more than 60 strange scenarios set in the idyllic countryside of Vermont and its neighbors. Included are reports of haunted houses, ghosts, monsters and tales of UFOs and other fantastic phenomena.

If it isn't the traveling bug that's bitten you, perhaps it's something — or someone — else? "In Search of Dracula" (Houghton Mifflin) is resurrected by authors Raymond T. McNally and Radu Florescu in a rewritten and updated paperback edition. Aided by photos and drawings, it offers accounts of the historical Count Dracula, alias Vlad the Impaler, a 15th-century Romanian prince who terrorized the Transylvanian countryside with his gruesome deeds; of the Dracula of Bram Stoker's classic novel; and of the Fanged One in his Broadway and Hollywood incarnations.

The curtain rises on Dracula and other filmland fiends in "The Monster Show" (Penguin), David J. Skalski's cultural history of horror Hollywood-style. Through text and many photos, Skalski shows the effect that such events as the Great Depression, World War II and the appearance of the AIDS virus have had on the portrayal of horror films, freaks, phantoms and Frankensteins.

Heavenly angels have enjoyed renewed popularity in books, on television and in the movies. "Fallen Angels ... and Spirits of the Dark" (Perigee), a paperback original by Robert Masello, gives equal time to the diabolical as it delves into the spirit underworld inhabited by the likes of imps, those "errand boys of evil"; zombies, the "walking corpses"; and Lucifer, the fallen angel who started it all.

An alphabetical guide to eerie creatures, places and things — witches and wizards, bedbugs and hunchbacks, gnomes and knights, exorcism and execution — is offered by Barbara Ninde Byfield in her paperback "The Book of Weird" (Doubleday/Main Street).

If weird is what you want but you can't make it to New York for the annual Halloween parade in Greenwich Village, not to worry: You can view it through "Masked Culture: The Greenwich Village Halloween Parade" (Columbia University). With text by Jack Kugelmass and glossy color images by various photographers, this large-format hardcover chronicles the history and captures the spirit (and spirits) of the annual event.

In "Taltos" (Knopf), Anne Rice offers the third volume in her "Mayfair Witches" trilogy. The cast of players includes the centuries-old Ashlar, corporate giant (he's 7 feet tall) who lives among humans as one of a few survivors of an ancient species; Samuel, a dwarf; Mona, a teen-age witch; and Mona's daughter, a taltos who springs up fully grown.

Also new is a full-size paperback edition of "Lasher" (Ballantine), Rice's second "Mayfair Witches" novel. It tells of Lasher, the brutal but irresistible demon, and Rowan Mayfair, the beautiful queen of the coven.

What would Halloween be without a Hitchcock thriller? In this case, it's Jane Stanton Hitchcock, whose new hardcover novel, "The Witches' Hammer" (Dutton), tells about a rare-book collector who is brutally murdered soon after he acquires a 15th-century book on witchcraft — which then disappears from his library. The novel takes its title from a 1475 German book that offered guidelines on the hunting, trial and punishment of witches.

Equine toys will be featured at museum

AMARILLO — You may recall your mother asking, "Will you please pick up your toys?"

Well, Mom would be proud. The American Quarter Horse Heritage Center and Museum has picked up its toys and playthings, and on Saturday, Oct. 29, visitors will be able to see the new exhibit, "Playroom Pals: A Century of Equine Toys."

Heritage Center visitors will be given free admission if they bring a new toy to donate to Toys for Tots. In the spirit of sharing, the Heritage Center will be working with the U.S. Marine Corps to collect toys for its annual Toys for Tots drive.

A collection of donated and loaned toys from American quarter horse enthusiasts from across the United States, "Playroom Pals" will capture the importance of the horse's role in the evolution of toys from the 1890s to the 1990s.

"Over the years, there has been a variety of equine-related playthings produced," said James May, director of Curatorial Services. "During the last 100 years alone, children have played with horse toys ranging from wood and iron to molded plastic."

Visitors will be able to see the toys in a setting from its actual time period. Many of the cast iron toys from the 19th century will be displayed in a re-created toy store's windows, the same place where thousands of children pressed their faces to the glass and dreamed of someday owning the beautiful toys.

"I'm positive that visitors will be impressed on how we managed to remake the tire eras for all of the displayed toys," May said. "The exhibit will definitely bring back a lot of childhood memories for all who experience this incredible display of toys."

Toys for Tots, which started in 1947, provides holiday gifts of toys each year for underprivileged children.

"I hope visitors to this exhibit will remember how important a role their toys played in their lives, and how Toys for Tots helps to fill that significant gap in so many children's lives," First Sgt. Bill Walsh said.

Located along Interstate 40 at Quarter House Drive, the American Quarter Horse Heritage Center and Museum in Amarillo offers interactive exhibits, artifacts, video presentations and works of art. Also, a research library and archives are available for the serious owner or American quarter horse enthusiast.

Open Tuesday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., the center offers discounted rates for children, senior citizens and groups.

For more information about "Playroom Pals," call (806) 376-5181.

HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL

SHAMROCK — Wheeler shocked previously-unbeaten Shamrock, 21-6, in a District 1-1A game Friday night.

Wheeler goes 2-0 in district action and 3-4 for the season. Shamrock is 1-1 in district and 5-1 overall. Jarrod Ledbetter rushed for two touchdowns and 183 yards to lead the Wheeler attack.

Leading, 13-6, Wheeler added an insurance TD in the fourth quarter on Andy Francis' 9-yard run. Francis finished with 56 yards on 19 carries.

Shamrock's only score came in the first quarter on Chad Gragg's 24-yard pass to Preston Wilson. Wheeler's defense had pass interceptions by Justin Hefley and T.A. Taylor in holding Shamrock to 129 total yards.

Willie Angton rushed for 48 yards in 18 carries to lead the Irish offense.

Wheeler had 306 yards total offense and 20 first downs. Shamrock had seven first downs.

Wheeler was also able to move the ball through the air with quarterback Dusty Case completing 7 of 12 passes for 68 yards.

It was the third straight time Wheeler has beaten Shamrock. The Mustangs play host to White Deer Friday night.

HIGH SCHOOL TENNIS

HEREFORD — Pampa finished the fall tennis season Saturday, losing to Hereford, 15-3.

The Harvesters had two wins in the boys' division with Brooks Gentry defeating Tom Jarecki, 6-4, 6-1, and Jamison Hancock defeating Andrew Carr, 6-1, 6-0, in singles. Gentry was 7-2 and Hancock 7-3 in singles this fall.

Pampa's Cami Stone defeated Nicole McWhorter, 7-5, 4-6, 6-2. Stone closed the season with a 9-1 singles mark.

HIGH SCHOOL VOLLEYBALL

CANYON — The Pampa Lady Harvesters broke a three-match losing streak Saturday, beating Canyon, 15-10, 15-10.

Pampa is now 11-9 for the season and 4-5 in district play.

The Lady Harvesters host Dumas at 6 Tuesday night.

MAJOR LEAGUE BASEBALL

BALTIMORE (AP) — When Phil Regan finished his playing career in 1972, he was amazed at how little he knew about the finer points of baseball.

"I thought, like most players, that I really knew the game. Then when I tried to get into coaching, I found out I didn't know as much as I thought I did," he said.

Regan intently studied the game as a college coach, big league scout and winter league manager. At the turn of the decade, he still wasn't confident enough in his abilities to apply for a managerial job in the majors.

Now, however, Regan is convinced that he's ready. The Baltimore Orioles think so, too, and on Sunday named him the 11th manager in the history of the franchise.

Regan, 57, got the brunt of his experience from 10 years of managing in the Dominican Republic and Venezuela winter leagues. Although there were times when he wondered whether any big league team would take a rookie manager of his age, he was certain that he wasn't wasting his time.

"Each year that I went down there I learned something. I began to study the game and put into practice my thoughts," he said. "For me it was invaluable. Maybe I wasn't ready to manage three or four years ago, but now I really feel that I'm fully prepared."

Regan was given a two-year contract with a club option for the third year. He replaces Johnny Oates, who was fired on Sept. 26.

Oates lost his job for failing to coax enough wins out of Baltimore's high-priced lineup. Regan is convinced he can do better.

"I always felt that if I became a manager in the major leagues, I wanted to go to a team that could win," he said. "I think this ballclub can win. I think it can win the playoffs, I think it can win the World Series."

"I'm not talking about a plan that would take three years, four years or five years," he added. "I think we can win next year."

Before the baseball strike canceled the season, Regan was the Cleveland Indians' pitching coach, and he spent seven years as a scout for the Los Angeles Dodgers. His most important asset, however, was the experience he gained managing in winter ball.

"Managing in the winter leagues is a good way to expedite your progress into the major leagues as a manager," Baltimore general manager Roland Hemond said. "In his case, with all of the other duties he's had, he has compiled more than enough experience."

Hemond was also impressed with the manner in which Regan handled the Indians' pitching staff. The Indians led the majors with 17 complete games and allowed the fewest homers (94) in the AL.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — Just because Joe Paterno thinks football polls are silly doesn't mean his Nittany Lions aren't excited about being ranked No. 1 for the first time since 1986.

The poll and the possibility of a national title the top ranking brings are more important at Penn State than at other Big Ten schools, tailback Ki-Jana Carter said.

"Since we were an independent for so long, we always wanted the national championship because that's all we had to look for," he said. "Usually, everyone in the Big Ten just guns for the Rose Bowl and that's it. We want it all."

Penn State (6-0), whose last title was in '86, took over the top spot in The Associated Press college football poll Sunday, while Notre Dame dropped out of the rankings for the first time since 1986.

The Nittany Lions, No. 3 last week, moved up after they beat Michigan 31-24 and former No. 1 Florida lost to Auburn 36-33 Saturday.

Penn State received 19 first-place votes and 1,487 points. The Lions also are No. 1 in the USA Today-CNN coaches' poll.

Cowboys knock down Eagles, 24-13

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

IRVING (AP) — It's the same old story in the NFC East. The Dallas Cowboys are still the neighborhood bully.

The NFL's top-ranked defense intercepted Randall Cunningham four times Sunday while Troy Aikman threw two touchdowns passes and Emmitt Smith rushed for over 100 yards and scored a touchdown as Dallas beat the Philadelphia Eagles 24-13 in a showdown for the division lead.

"This is a big step for us, a big game," Aikman said. "We're playing as well right now as we were at this point last year."

It was the 10th consecutive victory over an NFC East foe for the two-time defending Super Bowl champions stretching back to last season. Dallas, which has defeated the Eagles five consecutive times, is 5-1 and the Eagles dropped to 4-2.

"We're the better team and we proved it today," Dallas coach Barry Switzer said. "I was impressed with the way Troy kept his composure when things were going bad early. He fought off all the negatives and kept his poise. If this guy goes nuts then it's all over for us."

Smith did what he always does against Philadelphia, gain over 100 yards. In his last four games against the Eagles, he had gained 163, 114, 237, and 172 yards, respectively, against them. His 106 yards on 26 carries Sunday marked the 28th time he had rushed for 100 yards in his five-year career.

Cunningham hurt the Eagles with three consecutive interceptions which led to two touchdowns after a rapid-fire start which saw Dallas trail 7-0.

"The Eagles won the first quarter but we won the second, third and most of the fourth quarter," Switzer said.

Dallas jumped ahead 21-7 early in the third period after Darren Woodson intercepted Cunningham at the Philadelphia 31. Aikman made the Eagles pay with a 14-yard scoring strike to tight end Jay Novacek. Then Chris Boniol put the game out of reach with a 37-yard field goal in the fourth period for a 24-7 edge.

The Eagles tried to come back. James Joseph scored on a 34-yard touchdown run and Mark Woodward recovered an onside kick. Cunningham then took Philadelphia the length of the field before Larry Brown intercepted a pass in the end zone.

Dallas defensive lineman Chad Hennings had two of the Cowboys four sacks.

"I was one of the spy guys who sat back and waited for Cunningham to try to run," Hennings said. "Philadelphia has a lot of weapons. They presented a tremendous challenge and we answered it."

The Cowboys, who couldn't make a first down in the first period, got their offensive machine cranking late in the first half, scoring twice in 41 seconds to take a 14-7 halftime lead.

"I don't think anyone matches up talent wise with Dallas right now," Eagles coach Rich Kotite said. "But at least they knew they were in a game."

Cunningham said it was a bad day.

"You come in here and you think you're going to pull one out but they have the best safeties and corners in the league," Cunningham said. "I had to force some balls and got intercepted. That's why we lost. I tried to make things happen."

Aikman took the Cowboys on an 84-yard scoring drive in 14 plays with the payoff coming on Smith's 2-yard touchdown run. Linebacker Byron Evans helped the Cowboys by jumping off-sides on a third-down incomplete pass from the 5. Smith scored on the next play.

Kenny Gant intercepted Cunningham on the next play at the Eagles 34. Two plays later, Aikman faked a slant pass to fool cornerback Eric Allen and lobbed a 16-yard touchdown pass to a wide open Alvin Harper.

Jeff Sydnor returned a punt 40 yards to position the Eagles for their first touchdown, which came on a some splendid deception by Cunningham. On third-and-1 at the Dallas 32, Cunningham faked to Charlie Garner and found Herschel Walker down the sidelines for the touchdown.

The Eagles didn't score again until 5:27 left on Joseph's TD run. Cunningham's run for two points failed.

Garner, the Eagles' rookie who had back-to-back, 100-yard rushing games, was held to 57 yards on 17 carries.

Aikman hit 12 of 23 passes for 156 yards while Cunningham was 17 of 34 for 198 yards.

Pampa junior linebacker Floyd White (32) tackles Caprock quarterback Justin Ruiz in the Longhorns' backfield last Friday night. The Harvesters won the homecoming game, 55-6, to set up a crucial District 1-4A showdown with undefeated Randall Friday night. (Pampa News photo)

Randall up next for Harvesters

Sole possession of first place will be at stake when Randall hosts Pampa Friday night in a District 1-4A showdown.

Randall entered this season never having won its first four games. Now, the unbeaten Raiders are 3-0 in district and 7-0 for the season. Pampa is right behind at 2-0. The Harvesters are 5-1 overall with their only loss coming against Amarillo High, 34-10, on Sept. 10. Since then Pampa has reeled off four consecutive victories, whipping Plainview, 24-19, Andrews, 22-7, Canyon, 28-7, and Caprock, 55-6. The Harvesters opened the season with a 42-0 romp of Garden City, Kan.

Randall has beaten Lubbock High, 19-14, Carlsbad, N.M., 24-7, Tascosa, 26-21, Levelland, 18-12, Hereford, 21-16, Borger, 6-3, and Canyon, 28-0.

As far as statistics go, Pampa has the edge on Randall. The Harvesters are averaging 344.1 yards per game, compared to Randall's 321.8. Defensively, Pampa is allowing 160.3 yards per game and Randall, 227.2.

Come Friday night, perhaps the Harvesters will have the advantage on the scoreboard also.

Chargers drill Saints, 36-22

By ALAN SAYRE
Associated Press Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — They are 6-0 and the NFL's only unbeaten team. They are off to their best start since going 11-0 to open the 1961 season.

Things are indeed looking good for the San Diego Chargers, their latest bit of promising news a 36-22 decision Sunday over the New Orleans Saints.

"We're playing well," said quarterback Stan Humphries, who completed 17 of 29 passes for 186 yards. "I think this team can go as far as it wants."

But Natrone Means, who rushed for three touchdowns and had two others called back on holding penalties, sees no point in making any projections.

"We're happy, but we're level-headed," he said. "We're going to keep working at winning."

And Chargers coach Bobby Ross is well aware of how a team's great early start can turn.

"The significance of the 6-0 start is that we can now be 6-10," he said. "We're just going to take it one at a time."

If the Chargers need a dose of sobering perspective, all they need do is look at the New Orleans Saints. After a 5-0 start in '93, the Saints missed the playoffs, finishing 7-9.

They have been struggling since, with Sunday's game a perfect example. The Chargers scored on seven of their first eight possessions and dropped the Saints to 2-5.

After trailing 27-7 at the half, the Saints pulled to 33-22 with 9:39 left. But on their next possession, Derek Brown fumbled and the Chargers recovered at the New Orleans 12, putting the game away.

"When you get behind a good team like that, it makes it very difficult," Saints coach Jim Mora said.

San Diego kicker John Carney added five field goals to Means' three rushing touchdowns.

San Diego dominated from the start, scoring on their first five possessions. On the sixth, Humphries knelt with the ball to run out the clock.

Playing almost flawlessly, the Chargers had only two offensive penalties, no turnovers and allowed one sack despite heavy Saints pressure.

By halftime, the Chargers had outgained New Orleans 235 yards to 112. Means ran for 75 yards, including three touchdowns — a 16-yarder and 8-yarder in the first quarter and a 1-yard run in the second quarter.

Carney hit two second-quarter field goals, from 49 and 31 yards. He added scores from 29 yards twice in the third quarter and from 28 in the fourth.

New Orleans scored on two touchdown passes from Jim Everett — an 18-yarder to Quinn Early and a 1-yard toss to Irv Smith. Lorenzo Neal added a 1-yard scoring run.

Estes claims Texas Open title

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Shortly after scoring his first career victory in the Texas Open, poker-faced Bob Estes took time out to apologize for not being friendlier.

He included "family, friends, marshals, the gallery and camera crews" at Oak Hills Country Club.

"When I stop to smile and talk to people, I don't concentrate as well as I should," he said Sunday following his wire-to-wire, one-stroke victory. "I was taking care of business. I'll work on my image a little later."

If his image needs work, his game certainly doesn't. Estes led all the way, taking charge with a first-round 62, then posting a season-best 127 for two rounds and 195 for three. He came into the final round with a four-shot lead.

Estes needed all of it to beat veterans Gil Morgan and Don Pooley, acquiring the first title of a seven-season career with a closing 70 and a 265 total, 19 under par.

"It was tough, sleeping on the lead every night, especially when you haven't won before," Estes said. "But now that it's over, I couldn't pick a better way to win my first tournament than leading every round."

In doing so, he joined Mike Springer and Greg Norman as the only wire-to-wire winners this year.

He also collected $180,000 from the total purse of $1 million, pushed his season's earnings to $700,560 and became eligible for such exclusive 1995 events as the Masters, the Tournament of Champions and the World Series of Golf.

But it wasn't easy. Pooley and Morgan each closed to within a single shot at one time or another over the last 18 holes.

Each time, Estes was equal to the challenge. When Pooley got close, Estes promptly birdied two in a row.

When Morgan got close, he responded with what he called "the shot of the tournament," a 3-wood second shot, 257 yards and over an oak, to set up a decisive, 2-putt birdie-4 on the par-5 15th.

That gave him a two-shot lead with three holes to go, and, poker-faced all the way, he brought it home.

Morgan eventually took second at 266 after a bogey-free finishing round of 67 and a 266 total.

"A hair short," Morgan said. "It seemed like everytime I got close, he'd make birdie and put it (the lead) back to two."

Pooley, on the mend from back surgery that threatened his career, was another shot back at 68-267.

"A lot of fun, particularly figuring three weeks ago I didn't know if I'd ever be competitive again," said Pooley who has played only five times since surgery a year ago.

"This is better than I could have ever expected. It's a great surprise to me," he said.

No one else really got in title contention over the last 18 holes.

Bruce Lietzke was fourth alone at 69-270 and was followed by Craig Stadler, John Wilson and Mark McNulty. Stadler shot 68 in the muggy heat, Wilson 70 and McNulty 69.

UIL expected to make decision today on expanded playoffs

AUSTIN (AP) — A decision is expected from the University Interscholastic League's Legislative Council today on whether to support adding another playoff team in six sports in Class 4A, 3A, 2A and A.

Based on surveys of superintendents released by the council Sunday at the Omni hotel, however, it appears only Class 4A would like to see the playoffs expanded in football, baseball, basketball, soccer, softball and volleyball.

The Dallas Morning News reported that Class 4A superintendents voted, 64-41, to expand the playoffs in football and by slim margins in the other sports.

In football, Class 3A (92-67), Class 2A (90-46) and Class A (148-41) voted to maintain the status quo. Those classes also voted against adding a playoff team in any of the other sports, the newspaper said.

"I thought a few more superintendents would vote for increasing the number of teams," UIL athletic director Bill Farney said, "but a majority (of 4A schools) still voted for it."

Class 5A has had three teams advance to the playoffs for the past four years.

The council can recommend a measure or kill it. If the council supports a measure, it still must be approved by the State Board of Education, which meets in January, before it can become a UIL rule.

Farney, like most area 4A coaches, supports adding a playoff team because it allows more students — athletes, cheerleaders, drill team and band members — to participate in a positive learning experience.

Farney said he was a little surprised so few superintendents in 3A, 2A and A voted for adding a playoff team. Those superintendents voted a combined, 330-154, against the measure in football.

"I think the small schools probably consider adding another playoff team more of a hassle because of the travel,"

Farney said. "Plus, a lot of times, the third-place teams in the lower classifications aren't very good."

Two years ago, Class 5A Eules Trinity advanced to the Division I championship football game after a 5-5 regular-season record. In 1993, Class 5A Haltom went 4-6 in the regular season but advanced to the third round of the playoffs.

The council also heard a proposal from the Texas High School Baseball Coaches Association concerning its playoff situation.

In the current system, if both coaches fail to agree on a three-game series, one game is played. Highland Park baseball coach Don English said 173 of 181 coaches surveyed in classes 5A and 4A would like to play a best-of-three series.

"That's the only way you can determine the best team," English said, "and it provides a truer champion. Instead of allowing a team to ride one pitcher."

Rice breaks hex against Texas

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
 AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — The Rice Owls were careful not to celebrate too soon. They wanted to laugh at the beaten Texas Longhorns, but they held back.

After 28 years of losing to Texas, they didn't object to waiting until the final seconds ticked off the clock on Sunday night to react to their 19-17 victory.

Then, they tore down the goal posts and cut loose celebrating for all the Rice teams that had tried and failed to end the Longhorn dominance, dating back to Rice's 20-17 victory in 1965.

"They (Texas) laughed at us last season, but they had good reason," Rice linebacker Larry Izzo said. "They beat us pretty good (55-38). Yeah, we wanted to laugh, but we couldn't laugh at them tonight. It was too close."

Rice's tiger-like defense clamped at the Longhorns from start to finish, holding them to 16 rushing yards, and Josh LaRocca threw two touchdown passes to end of the streak.

"We knew we had a good game plan, and if we could control the ball and stop their running game, we could win," Izzo said.

It seemed so improbable, even when the Owls jumped on the Longhorns from the opening kickoff and took a 9-0 lead before Texas ever ran an offensive play.

Matt Huelsman kicked a 24-yard field goal to complete the game's opening drive, and after Josh Sumner bobbled the following kickoff, Jay Lamay recovered at the Texas 33 for the Owls.

LaRocca needed only one play to find Coston, outstretched in the end zone, for the touchdown on the first play with 5:58 left in the first quarter.

"This victory was sweet," LaRocca said. "It gives us something to build on. This was incredible. This is for all the Rice teams that have come close and for all the Rice people who have never seen a victory over Texas."

Texas was outgained 122-8 in the first quarter but they recovered for a 10-9 lead on Phil Dawson's 44-

Texas receiver Curtis Jackson reaches for a pass as Rice's Warrick Franklin comes up behind him late in the fourth quarter. Rice won, 19-17. (AP photo) yard field goal in the first quarter and Shea Morenz's 40-yard touchdown pass to Eric Jackson in the second quarter.

Rice (3-2, 2-0 Southwest Conference) took a 12-10 halftime lead, its first since 1989 against Texas (4-2, 1-1), on Huelsman's 33-yard field goal as time expired in the first half.

"For all the Rice teams that have come close in the past, this will go down in Rice history for a long time," coach Ken Hatfield said. "I don't know of bigger game with more riding on it than 28 years of losing."

Texas started the game as the favorite to capture the SWC title. The Owls were supposed to be a steppingstone.

But Rice's defense wouldn't allow the Longhorns any leeway, and the Owls offense rushed for 207 yards on artificial turf drenched by driving rain.

"Our defense played darn good," Hatfield said. "We got after them. We shut down their running game, and that was the story of the game. The conditions were bad for passing, and every time they tried to get their running game going, we came up with a big play."

Morenz, who missed the Longhorns' victory a week ago against Oklahoma with a knee injury, completed 18 of 39 passes for 163 yards but couldn't rally his team in the final minutes.

"We beat ourselves," the Texas quarterback said. "They didn't do anything we didn't expect. Offensively we just did not play well. We didn't do a good job in the passing game and our run game was non-existent. As I said, we beat ourselves."

Penn State, Auburn, put critics to rest

By MIKE FLAM
 Associated Press Writer

Penn State and Auburn went into crucial weekend showdowns with questions to answer and a leg up on a possible national championship.

Both put their nay-sayers to rest, then reached for the trophy.

The Nittany Lions won 31-24 in front of 106,832 fans at Michigan Stadium, the third-largest crowd in NCAA history. Voters in The Associated Press poll acknowledged the victory by moving Penn State from No. 3 to No. 1 this week.

"You're always going to have doubters," said Penn State split end Bobby Engram, whose 16-yard touchdown catch broke a 24-24 tie with 2:53 left. "You have to earn your respect. But now I hope the critics will ease up on us."

Auburn, meanwhile, stretched its winning streak to 18 games with a 36-3 victory over then-No. 1 Florida at The Swamp. The Tigers, who are on probation and can't go to a bowl, jumped from No. 6 to No. 4 in the AP poll.

"Maybe everybody will stop talking about us being lucky and admit this is a good football team," said Frank Sanders, who caught the winning TD pass with 30 seconds left.

Bowden doesn't think his team needs to ask for more respect after handing the Gators their first Southeastern Conference home loss in five years.

"This was our Super Bowl. To me, this makes us No. 1," he said.

"... I want us to be recognized as a great football team."

On Sunday night, the Rice Owls upended No. 13 Texas 19-17, breaking a 28-year losing streak to the Longhorns.

In other games, No. 2 Colorado beat its fourth Top 25 opponent this season in a 45-7 victory over Oklahoma, third-ranked Nebraska beat No. 19 Kansas State 17-6, No. 6 Texas A&M trounced Baylor 41-21, eighth-ranked Alabama topped Tennessee 17-13 and No. 9 Washington beat Arizona State 35-14.

No. 12 Colorado State crushed Texas-El Paso 47-9, 14th-ranked Arizona held off No. 23 Washington State 10-7, No. 15 North Carolina defeated Maryland 41-17, No. 17 Virginia Tech stopped East Carolina 27-20, 18th-ranked Utah beat Hawaii 14-3 and No. 20 Duke topped Clemson 19-13.

Also, No. 21 Brigham Young beat Notre Dame 21-14, 22nd-ranked Boston College topped Temple 45-28, No. 24 Ohio State beat Michigan State 23-7 and No. 25 Virginia defeated Georgia Tech 24-7.

from Josh LaRocca and a solid defensive effort in beating Texas at rain-soaked Rice Stadium.

"For all the Rice teams that have come close in the past, this will go down in Rice history for a long time," Owls coach Ken Hatfield said. "I don't know of bigger game with more riding on it than 28 years of losing."

Texas (4-2, 1-1 Southwest Conference), which had dominated the series since losing 20-17 to Rice in 1965, trailed 9-0 before running its first play.

Matt Huelsman capped a 74-yard drive to open the game with a 24-yard field goal for Rice, and the Owls converted a fumble recovery on the ensuing kickoff into a 33-yard TD pass from LaRocca to Byron Coston on the first play.

The Owls (3-2, 2-0) led 12-10 at halftime and made it 19-10 on LaRocca's 7-yard touchdown pass to Spencer George with 8:21 left.

Texas got two TD passes from Shea Morenz — a 40-yarder to Eric Jackson in the second quarter and a 14-yarder to Matt Davis with 1:27 to play. The Longhorns tried an onside kick, but Rice recovered and fans overran the field.

Texas played without seven players, including starting receivers Lovell Pinkney and Mike Adams, who were suspended for missing curfew.

No. 7 Miami, 10th-ranked Florida State and No. 16 Syracuse were idle. No. 1 Penn State 31, No. 11 Michigan 24

Penn State (6-0, 3-0 Big Ten) extended its winning streak to 11 games, second in the nation only to Auburn's 18-game streak. It is the Nittany Lions' fastest start since the 1986 team went 12-0 and won the national championship.

Michigan's Todd Collins, who completed 14-of-21 passes for 221 yards, threw his first interception since the season-opener for Michigan (4-2, 2-1).

No. 2 Colorado 45, Oklahoma 7
 At Boulder, Colo., in posting their 10th straight victory, the Buffaloes (6-0, 2-0 Big Eight) posted their largest margin of victory against the Sooners (3-3, 1-1) in school history.

Rashan Salaam ran for 161 yards and four first-half touchdowns. No. 3 Nebraska 17, No. 19 Kansas 6

At Manhattan, Kan., the Cornhuskers (7-0, 2-0 Big Eight) sent host Kansas State (4-1, 1-1) to its first loss despite injuries to their top two quarterbacks.

Lawrence Phillips ran for 126 yards and one touchdown.
 No. 4 Auburn 36, No. 5 Florida 33

For the first time in 18 games, the Gators lost at home, in front of a

U.S., Russia split on Iraq promises of peace

By DANIEL J. WAKIN
Associated Press Writer

KUWAIT (AP) — Though his troops are retreating, Saddam Hussein has achieved at least one victory: he has left Russian and American diplomats deeply divided over how to respond to his provocations.

U.S. officials had open differences with Russia on Sunday over the lifting of U.N. sanctions against Iraq and how far U.N. resolutions go in authorizing attacks on Iraqi troops.

Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Kozyrev and Secretary of State Warren Christopher were meeting today in New York to try and bridge their widening gap on Iraq.

Russia, which has been urging that U.N. sanctions against Iraq be lifted, reluctantly went along with a Security Council vote late Saturday demanding Iraq withdraw its elite troops from the Kuwaiti border.

But while the U.S. focused on troop movements, the Russians appeared to be promoting Saddam's peace moves. Kozyrev told reporters that Saddam promised him last week that Iraq would recognize Kuwait's border and sovereignty.

In Baghdad, the speaker of the Iraqi parliament called an extraordinary session today to pass a resolution recognizing Kuwait.

The Revolutionary Command Council, the Iraqi Cabinet run by Saddam, is believed to have approved the move Saturday, and the parliament session is expected to give it a rubber stamp, Western and other diplomats said.

The move is one of the United Nations demands for lifting the strict economic sanctions imposed on Iraq after the war. Under a deal brokered by Kozyrev, Iraq agreed to recognize Kuwait with the understanding that the U.N. would in return set a date for lifting the ban on oil sales.

Iraq had consistently claimed that Kuwait was part of Iraq.

Kozyrev might have other reasons for urging that the sanctions be lifted — Iraq reportedly owes Russia billions of dollars that could only be repaid when Iraqi oil starts flowing to world markets again.

President Clinton and U.S. officials, meanwhile, took a harder stance against the man who ignited the Gulf war with his 1990 invasion of Kuwait.

"The message is clear," President Clinton said Sunday. "Iraq must complete its withdrawal. It must not threaten its neighbors in the future."

Christopher said it was doubtful that Saddam could stay in power even if he complied with all the U.N. resolutions required to bring about a lifting of economic sanctions. He did not elaborate.

Also, he insisted that the United States had all the authority it needed under existing U.N. resolutions to attack Iraqi forces moving toward the Kuwaiti border.

"Next time, we'll probably not wait. We will take action, strong action against him," the secretary said.

Food pantries worry about closing doors

By JENNIFER DIXON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Food pantries around the country are worried about closing their doors to hungry Americans this winter as the federal government cuts the amount of food it provides to them.

In a money-saving move by the Clinton administration, the Agriculture Department will spend just $25 million this fiscal year to supply food banks and other programs for the poor with flour, corn meal, canned vegetables, fruits and meats.

Last year, USDA distributed $80 million in commodities under the Emergency Food Assistance Program, or TEFAP, known for the great cheese and butter giveaways of the 1980s.

Food bank directors say they cannot expect the private sector to make up for the loss in commodities because donations from manufacturers and grocers are declining, due to greater efficiency and less waste.

At the same time, poverty is on the rise and food bank directors say growing numbers of families with children and the working poor are turning to local pantries for a bag of groceries.

A study earlier this year by Second Harvest, a nationwide network of food banks, found that nearly 26 million Americans rely on food pantries, soup kitchens and emergency feeding programs.

"The impact (of the cuts) is going to be very dramatic," said Dick Goebel, executive director of the Second Harvest St. Paul Food Bank in Minnesota.

Goebel said he is especially concerned about rural food banks nationwide, as well as in his own state, because federal commodities tend to account for a high percentage of the food they distribute.

Instead of running full time, they may decide to open only a couple of days a week and to lay off some workers, he said.

Judy Perry, executive director of Harvesters-The Community Food Network in Kansas City, Mo., said 15 inner-city pantries served by her food bank may close.

"They won't be getting enough food and they don't have the funds to purchase food," she said. "They also have limited donations of food coming in from other sources, so the commodities are really important to their pantries."

Perry said the pantries most at risk are located in public housing and senior citizen housing, and many of the people they serve lack transportation.

In central and northern New York, pantries are in similar straits.

Bart Feinberg, executive director of the Food Bank of Central New York, said some pantries are already cutting their hours and there is a good possibility others may be forced to close or merge. Demand, however, continues to rise as the victims of plant closings find lower-paying service jobs and struggle to support their families.

"There just aren't enough resources out there to meet the demands placed on food banks, pantry sites and soup kitchens," he said.

Tech building Vietnam collection

LUBBOCK (AP) — Texas Tech University has broken ground on a new $9 million building to store what some experts say is the largest collection of Vietnam War documents outside the federal government.

In the meantime, Vietnamese flags, political posters and framed military medals hang on the walls of the third floor of the school's campus library awaiting their new home.

Tech, known for its collections of Southwestern artifacts and literature, is establishing itself as the major archive for records from the only war the United States ever lost.

Among donors to the collection are William E. Colby, who shaped the CIA's programs to "pacify" South Vietnam's villages and rid them of Viet Cong during the war.

Tech dropout Daniel Siewert, who was a Navy medical corpsman wounded in the Vietnam War, also has donated mud-splattered letters he wrote to his parents in 1967.

The documents have come together at Tech's Center for the Study of the Vietnam Conflict.

"The university has made what it calls a longer-than-lifetime commitment to this project," the center's director, James Reckner, told The Dallas Morning News. "Historians will re-interpret Vietnam 100 years from now, seeking their own answers to present problems just as we do now with the Civil War."

Through the Vietnam Center, the university will sponsor a war symposium next year to commemorate the 20th anniversary of the fall of Saigon.

Last August, the archive project got a boost when noted Southeast Asia expert Douglas Pike donated 533 boxes of documents to the university, which he said wants to be "the leading institution in the United States on the Vietnam War."

Government passes on appeal over gay sailor

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Clinton administration passed up an opportunity to challenge a court ruling that allowed reinstatement of a sailor who publicly declared his homosexuality.

The ruling affects Navy sonar operator Keith Meinhold, who revealed on national television in 1992 that he is gay. Meinhold was discharged under old military regulations that were replaced last year.

John McGuire, an attorney for Meinhold, said the Justice Department let pass a Friday deadline to appeal an August decision by a panel of the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco. That 3-0 ruling found the military can dismiss open gays or lesbians only if they say they intend to have homosexual sex, not for simply "coming out."

The deadline applied to seeking review by the full appeals court, and the government still has 45 days from Friday to decide whether to appeal to the Supreme Court. Justice Department spokesman Joe Krovisky said. He said Solicitor General Drew Days had not yet decided whether to take the Meinhold case to the high court.

The federal district court that ordered Meinhold's reinstatement said there was no rational basis for excluding service members solely because of their sexual orientation.

"For 2 1/2 years, the Pentagon has fought tooth and nail to kick me out of the Navy because I'm gay," said Meinhold, now stationed at Naval Air Station Whidbey Island in Washington. "By this decision, they finally have admitted that I can say I am gay and proudly serve my country in the military."

The court said that only a statement showing a "concrete, fixed or expressed desire to engage in homosexual acts despite their being prohibited" justifies an involuntary discharge.

Because Meinhold's case involved since-modified rules, the Clinton administration still could argue for a gay ban using newer cases winding their way through other courts.

Under the new policy, the military cannot ask about sexual orientation, but can discharge declared homosexuals. The policy gives gays a chance to stay in the service by proving that they will remain celibate.

Denver airport troubles continue

DENVER (AP) — Workers at Denver's troubled new airport cut corners that could lead to collapsing floors, buckling walls and falling ceilings, according to a former inspector.

Dean Hill said he quit after refusing to sign off on shoddy work, and that he has photographs documenting potentially dangerous construction.

He said another inspector approached him while he was taking the photos and told him, "Guys like you have come up missing."

Bob Storck, the airport's head of construction, promised a full investigation. He said Hill's photos do show potential construction problems.

"We're real anxious to go check some of this stuff out," he said. "If we find people were actually engaged in fraud, that certainly is something we will take to the district attorney."

Hill, who spent 35 years as a construction supervisor, said he turned over photographs of the construction to Denver's district attorney, who is investigating allegations of falsified tests and fraudulent contracting and construction practices.

Hill said he also spoke to federal investigators about falsified inspections. But he has not been invited to testify before the federal grand jury investigating allegations of wrongdoing at the $3.7 billion airport, which is scheduled to open Feb. 28.

Problems, including a high-tech luggage system that chews up baggage, have repeatedly delayed the airport's opening. The city is currently served by Stapleton International Airport.

Hill, an inspector for CMTS, a company handling airport construction inspections for the city, said he transferred to work on the concourses because he was alarmed by falsified reports and faulty work on the runways. He said he found similar problems on his new job.

The concourses are anchored atop steel-reinforced concrete pillars sunk into the ground. A pad of concrete is poured on top of the pillars to strengthen the steel supporting the building's sides.

Hill said the steel reinforcements within the pillars of one concourse were not properly anchored. He also said mud and debris left atop the pillars may have kept the concrete from bonding properly and weakened the building's supports.
