Rafsanjani: Hostage problem nearing a solution

By NEIL MacFARQUHAR
Associated Press Writer

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — President Hashemi Rafsanjani of Iran today said the problem of the Western hostages held in Lebanon is nearing a solution, the country's official Islamic Republic News Agency reported.

Rafsanjani said Iran was not directly linked to the hostage issue but had pledged to use Iran's influence to seek their freedom.

"My feeling is that the issue of the hostages is moving toward a solution," Rafsanjani was quoted as saying.

He repeated Iran's demands that Western nations help trace Iranian hostages missing in Lebanon and "also reduce their mischievous acts," IRNA said.

Eighteen Westerners, including eight Americans, are missing in Lebanon, most believed held by Shiite Moslem groups loyal to Tehran. The longest held is Terry Anderson, chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press, who was abducted March 16, 1985.

Rafsanjani's statements at a news conference followed a series of editorials in English-language newspapers in Tehran saying the hostages should be freed because they were being used as anti-Islamic propaganda.

Syrian and other officials also have expressed optimism that the hostages may be freed.

Several newspapers also have said the United States and Iran were negotiating over the fate of the hostages, which Washington has denied.

Rafsanjani denied that any such talks had occurred, according to IRNA, monitored in Nicosia. "There have been no negotiations with the U.S."

The president said the only official talks between the two nations are those carried out under the U.S.-Iran claims tribunal in the Netherlands, under the auspices of the International Court of Justice.

The tribunal is sorting out billions of dollars in claims from contracts broken following the 1979 Islamic revolution.

But he said the U.S. officials "themselves have established contacts with regional governments." That was an apparent reference to U.S. contacts with Syria, which as the main power broker in Lebanon has facilitated past hostage releases. Diplomatic sources in the Syrian capital, Damascus, have said the United States used Syria as an intermediary with Tehran.

Rafsanjani's brother Mahmoud Hashemi, a high-ranking foreign ministry official, was in Damascus this week for meetings with the Syrian foreign minister, Farouk Al-Sharaa.

A Syrian source said the talks were to coordinate policy on getting the hostages released and that Hashemi had arrived from Beirut, where he also discussed the hostage issue with senior Shiite Moslem clergy.

Rafsanjani has indicated the desire to separate Iran from the hostage issue as he seeks Western technology and financing to rebuild Iran's troubled economy. But the factions holding the hostages are said more loyal to radicals in the Tehran government who oppose Rafsanjani, viewing confrontation with the West as the wellspring of the Islamic revolution.

While the Bush administration is not suggesting release is imminent, officials are confirming reports of a flurry of behind-the-scenes talks by officials outside the government.

"We've been talking for a long time to anyone who could have influence, Algerians, Syrians," a U.S. official told The Associated Press in Washington. "We talk to the Iranians through a lot of people. We have talked to enough people that the message has gotten through to the Iranians."

The message, said the official, who demanded anonymity, is: "We know you want access to the West. You've said you are against terrorism. We want to see action."

Secondary Science Fair winners named

Pampa High School and Pampa Middle School students joined efforts this week for the Secondary Science Fair at the high school library.

The fair was held in conjunction with Texas Public School Week.

Overall winners in the junior division were Katie Green, first; Darcie Larimore, second; and Grace Sutton, third.

In the senior division, overall winners were Laura Williams, first; Ginger Elms, second; and Russ Stephens, third.

PHS science teacher Jessie Brantwein noted, "This is the first year in a long, long time for us to have the Science Fair. We got together and decided to start it again."

"When Elaine Ledbetter did her series of articles (for The Pampa News on former Pampa students who went on to national competition), we wanted to get it started again."

Brantwein, a former White Deer science teacher, said her experience with Science Fairs in that school district put her in a position to help organize the Science Fair in Pampa.

She said competitors in the local fair will now be eligible to compete on the regional level on Saturday, March 31, at Amarillo College.

Junior Division winners were:
Botany: first, Katie Green, Effect of Acid Rain on Plants; second, Angela Rodriguez, Effect of Sound Pitches on Plants; third, Jason Jones, Different Types of Water on Plants.

Zoology: first, Darcie Larimore, Do Cats See Color?; second, Chris Podzemny, Amazing Mice; third, Kelley Ford, Electrical Pathways of the Heart.

Physical Science - Chemistry and Physics: first, Grace Sutton, How Different Metals React to Different Temperatures; second, Richard Williams, Densities - How Do They Stack Up?

third, Trey McCavit, How to Tell a Computer What to Do.

Physical Science - Earth and Space: first, Michael Gandy, Solar Energy.
Senior Division winners were:

Physical Sciences: first, Laura Williams, Miss Muffet's Milk Mysteries; second, Russ Stephens, Preventing Corrosion Cathodically; third, Carla Sharp, What Is Nitrogen?

Life Sciences: first, Ginger Elms, Stress: It's Causes and Effects on Athletes; second, Michelle Sy, Effects of Oil Spills; third, Jeff Snider, Causes and Prevention of Ocular Disorders.

Sponsors of the Science Fair included Willie Mac Mangold, middle school science coordinator, Anne McAnelly, high school science coordinator, Brantwein and the science departments on both campuses.

Brantwein said the fair is scheduled to again become an annual event.

Gephardt's Soviet aid proposal meets varied responses

By JIM DRINKARD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Richard Gephardt's proposal to offer direct U.S. aid to the Soviet Union is bringing responses ranging from wary approval to outright condemnation.

"We shouldn't be writing out checks to Gorbachev while he's propping up Castro" in Cuba and other communist regimes and insurgencies around the world, said Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan.

Dole said it is time for the United States to aid Eastern European countries emerging from decades of Soviet domination, but that direct aid to Moscow of the sort proposed Tuesday by Gephardt, the House Democratic leader, would at best be premature.

"We ought to exact a fair price for those benefits," including a cessation of support for Cuba, Syria, Afghanistan and Angola, Dole said.

Dole led the way five years ago in making the Soviets eligible for U.S. subsidies to buy grain, a move that helped Kansas wheat farmers. Since then, Moscow has bought more than 730 million bushels of U.S. wheat at a subsidy value in the hundreds of millions of dollars.

Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., noted that the Soviets haven't requested U.S. help and that if they did, it would be wasted without economic reform. "Unless they reform the economy, it's going down a rat hole," Bradley said.

Others on Capitol Hill said that while they thought Gephardt's proposal would spark a useful debate, the idea would fall on disapproving public ears.

"If you're going to start giving foreign aid to the hated commies ... you've got a real sales job to do in the United States," said Sen. Alan Simpson, R-Wyo.

Gephardt said when he offered the idea in a speech that he knew there would be political risks involved and that Americans might react negatively.

But he told reporters: "When I was in Europe two months ago I was embarrassed that we are not being as strong and as courageous as they are," weathering dramatic price increases and other dislocations in the name of economic reform. "Can't we do something to help?" he asked.

Specifically, the Missouri Democrat called for food aid to the Soviet Union along with most-favored-nation trading status and U.S. risk insurance to businesses that want to invest in Soviet ventures.

House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., backed the Gephardt proposal and said attitudes in Congress are changing along with the rapidly moving events in the crumbling East Bloc.

"It is a dramatically different circumstance than it was only a few months ago," Foley said, citing multiparty elections in the Soviet Union.

"We should recognize these changes that are coming on very fast, and that we have a stake in this country in supporting those changes that are moving toward private economic activity and democracy."

Senate Foreign Relations Committee Chairman Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., was supportive but said the aid proposal was still a bit early. Asked whether the time had arrived for direct U.S. aid to the Soviets, Pell said, "I don't think it's yet arrived, but it will come."

Air Force says bye-bye to Blackbird spy plane

By ROBERT BURNS
Associated Press Writer

CHANTILLY, Va. (AP) — The SR-71 Blackbird spy plane, star of American aerial snooping for 25 years, didn't look like museum material on its record-setting final coast-to-coast flight that took just over an hour.

But it soon will be, to the regret of some admirers.

"This is one of the first victims of the effort to scale back defense," Sen. John Warner, R-Va., said Tuesday after Blackbird No. 17972 marked its retirement by whizzing from Los Angeles to Washington, D.C. in record time of 68 minutes, 17 seconds — not counting time for takeoff and landing. It also set four other speed marks along the 2,404-mile route.

The Air Force is donating the plane to the Smithsonian Institution, which plans to display it here at the Washington Dulles International Airport wing of the National Air and Space Museum.

The full Blackbird fleet was officially retired two months ago.

Warner, the ranking Republican on the Senate Armed Services Committee, said the Blackbird is still unmatched as a technological wonder, but is being assigned to the junk heap because of a growing perception in the United States that military spending must be reduced as East-West tensions ease.

"I cannot honestly say this is a happy day for me," said Ben Rich, the Lockheed Aeronautical System Co. executive who helped design the black, dagger-shaped plane.

Rich said he had only one parting sentiment: "Bye-bye, Blackbird."

Congress, in agreeing last fall with the Air Force's decision to retire the twin-engine Blackbirds, said advances in technology enable satellites to do similar work more cheaply than the spy plane, which first entered service in 1964.

Doubts about the decision remain.

George Carver Jr., an intelligence specialist at the Center for Strategic and International Studies in Washington, said in a telephone interview that he doubted the wisdom of "giving up an asset that has been extremely useful" in providing intelligence data.

The Blackbird's coast-to-coast dash easily eclipsed the previous time record of 3 hours, 38 minutes, set in 1963 by a Boeing 707.

The spy plane took a running start, refueling over the Pacific Ocean at 60,000 feet before heading east from the California coastline and crossing its finish line near Salisbury, Md., said Malvern Gross, president of the National Aeronautic Association, which certifies aviation records.

The Blackbird then refueled before cruising in to Dulles Airport.

The pilot was Lt. Col. Ed Yeilding, and Lt. Col. J.T. Vida was the reconnaissance systems officer.

It was one of the few public displays of a Blackbird. And despite the rush to publicize this final flight, most details of the plane's design and capabilities are still top secret.

Military units continue coup attempt in Afghanistan areas

By KATHY GANNON
Associated Press Writer

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Military units trying to overthrow the Soviet-backed government controlled Afghanistan's largest air base today and bombed loyalists in its capital, diplomats and Moslem guerrillas said.

The government appealed to supporters to take up arms in defense, and a guerrilla leader claimed six Soviet warplanes joined government attacks. A Soviet official denied the claim.

President Najib, a former secret police head installed by the Soviets in December 1986, said "a number of people," mostly civilians, had been killed and injured. He gave no figures.

The fighting countered Najib's claims that his forces had crushed the coup attempt launched Tuesday by his defense minister, Maj. Gen. Shah Nawaz Tanai, a hard-line Marxist popular with the military rank and file.

In the past year, Tanai twice has holed himself up in Kabul behind a shield of troops in standoffs with Najib.

Radio Kabul today accused another high-ranking member of the ruling party of involvement in the coup attempt. It said Asadullah Sarwari, a former interior minister known as "the butcher" for hundreds of killings after the 1978 coup that installed the Communist government, was in hiding with Tanai.

A fundamentalist Moslem guerrilla leader, Gulbuddin Hekmatyar, offered his support to Tanai on Tuesday, and a spokesman for Hekmatyar said today that Tanai's forces controlled the Kabul airport but were under heavy rocket attack.

Western diplomats and U.N. officials in Pakistan backed the guerrilla report and said the Chinese, Italian and Indian embassies had been slightly damaged. The reports could not be immediately confirmed.

Those sources also claimed troops loyal to Najib were pounding the air base in Bagram, about 30 miles north of Kabul, trying to rout Tanai forces. Radio Kabul, monitored in Islamabad, said Najib had ordered the air force to bomb Bagram.

Also today, a transport plane carrying three Afghan brigadier generals fled to the Pakistan border and surrendered, said guerrilla sources on condition of anonymity. It was not immediately known whether the three had been turned over to Pakistan's government.

In Pakistan, Hekmatyar claimed Moscow had offered assistance to the government, sending six warplanes from the bordering Soviet republic of Tadjikistan to bomb Bagram. He said one Soviet warplane was shot down.

A political officer at the Soviet Embassy in Islamabad dismissed the allegations.
Moscow withdrew its troops from Afghanistan in February 1989 after a nine-year military intervention. But the Soviet Union continues to ship massive arms supplies to the Afghan armed forces.

IRS demands names of legal clients paying large fees in cash

By JOAN THOMPSON
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service, hoping to expose drug kingpins, has served summonses on criminal defense attorneys across the country demanding the names of clients who paid cash for fees exceeding $10,000.

The first summonses went out Monday. The number issued was not immediately known, but one lawyer served said an IRS agent told him 900 attorneys were to receive summonses demanding their financial records.

"It's very clear what the issue is here. ... It grows out of concerns about drug payments," said David Runkel, spokesman for the U.S. Justice Department, which has taken two New York City law firms to court for refusing to name clients for the IRS.

Lawyers argue that such disclosures would violate attorney-client privilege.

"We cannot allow in this country the war against drugs to become the war against lawyers and the war against the Bill of Rights, and that's what's happening," said Miami lawyer Neal Sonnett, president of the National Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers.

The attorneys were told to bring their financial records to IRS offices, according to Sonnett, whose organization knew of 12 lawyers who were served.

"We have heard from enough lawyers around the country to recognize that it appears to be a nationwide assault upon criminal defense lawyers," he said. "I think there's hundreds of attorneys who will go to jail for this."

Christopher J. Lezovich, an IRS official in Detroit, said Tuesday that his office had advised field offices that agents might want to serve summonses against lawyers who failed to comply with his earlier request for clients' names.

Lezovich wrote to about 940 lawyers in October, giving them 30 days to identify the clients and warning that non-compliance would result in summonses.

He said some lawyers responded to his mailing. Those who didn't "were selected for the first wave" of summonses, he said. He said he didn't know how many lawyers would be summoned, but "this isn't going to be the end of it."

Tax collectors are acting under a disclosure law passed by Congress in 1985. The law, initially widely ignored, was aimed at exposing tax evaders, including major drug dealers who often do business in cash.

The Detroit IRS office processes Form 8300, which among other things requests that filers list cash sums of at least $10,000.

The original penalties for failure to disclose were only misdemeanors. But a year ago, Congress made them felonies punishable by up to 10 years in prison.

The summonses precede by one week oral arguments in what is expected to be a test case on the issue. The Justice Department has gone to court in attempt to force two firms — Fischetti Pomerantz & Russo and Goldberger & Dubin — to name their clients.

The firms, which have represented drug suspects and alleged mob figures, have refused on grounds that it would violate their clients' rights and the attorney-client privilege.

"It strikes me as very strange ... that the IRS has waited until almost the eve of the court case," Sonnett said.

He said the IRS is stretching the law to "try to force lawyers to become witnesses against their own clients. One thing this country has always respected is the right of someone to seek the advice of lawyers without having the whole world know about it."

Rescue workers sift through rubble at the Crested Butte State Bank in Colorado after an explosion leveled the building Tuesday.

Three people killed in bank explosion

By ELLEN MILLER
Associated Press Writer

CRESTED BUTTE, Colo. (AP) — Authorities today were investigating whether a bomb or a methane gas buildup caused an explosion that flattened a two-story bank building "like an accordion," killing three people and injuring 14.

A 12-member team from the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms was expected to arrive today in this Rocky Mountain ski resort to search for clues in the rubble of Crested Butte State Bank.

The building — except the vault — was leveled by the blast. Firefighters and volunteers dug by hand through the rubble to pull out survivors. Heavy snow hampered rescue efforts and delayed the arrival of ambulances.

Police Chief Hank Smith said two restaurants had received bomb threats in the past week, and one of them was evacuated.

"I'm not ruling out a bomb, and I'm not ruling out an explosion from methane buildup," he said. "We're just now beginning the investigation."

Dick Schussler, an FBI spokesman in Denver, said sabotage was a possibility, but he didn't know of a motive. "It's not like this is a bank that's financing South Africa," he said.

The explosion occurred at 9:15 a.m., shortly after the bank opened.

Two of the injured were in serious condition, including bank President Thom Cox.

"I saw the second-floor windows blown out and the roof going up in the air," said a businessman across the street who spoke on condition of anonymity.

"Then the side walls started to blow out, and the front seemed to come out, breaking in half, with the top coming out and the bottom folding like an accordion."

Bank employee Lucy Zavela was working in her second-floor office when she "thought someone had fallen out of their chair. Then I was just falling. I ended up in a fetal position, and could see some light, and then almost immediately heard voices. Somebody dragged me out, and I thought it was a dream."

"I felt the floor drop beneath me," said teller Joe Sabino, who was treated for scratches and burns on his hands. "Fortunately, nothing came into contact with me. It (the rubble) built a little cave around me."

Killed were bank employees Donna Smith, 33; Jade Woelk and Monica Henning, all of Crested Butte.

Crested Butte, population about 1,000, is 9,000 feet high in the western Colorado mountains.

Senate confirms Clarence Thomas as judge

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Tuesday confirmed conservative civil rights official Clarence Thomas as a federal appeals judge, brushing aside complaints about his record from some liberal and senior citizens groups.

The Senate had planned to take a roll call on the nomination but changed course at the last minute and confirmed Thomas on a voice vote.

Thomas, 41, will be a judge on the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in the District of Columbia.

As chairman of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission over the last eight years, he has been one of the most visible black officials in the Reagan and Bush administrations.

Thomas, a critic of quotas and affirmative action to fight hiring discrimination, has been highly praised by conservatives. But liberals have criticized his record.

It became clear Monday night that Thomas' critics had failed to muster enough support to defeat his nomination.

"I am prepared to concede that Mr. Thomas is going to be confirmed," said Sen. Howard M. Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, a leading critic.

The only other opponent to materialize in the debate was Sen. David Pryor, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Special Committee on Aging, who complained that the statute of limitations on 15,000 age-discrimination cases before the EEOC ran out without any action being taken while Thomas was in charge.

"Those cases might as well have been sent to Beijing," Pryor said. "They might as well have been sent to Romania. ... It's too much to overlook."

Pryor said, however, that Thomas was virtually guaranteed to win confirmation and added that he wished the nominee well in his new post.

Atwater treated for benign brain growth

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican Party chairman Lee Atwater will undergo treatment for a benign growth on the right side of his brain and his doctor says he should be back at work next week.

"No surgery is planned and we expect no difficulty with followup treatments," Dr. Edward R. Laws said Tuesday.

Mary Malin, chief of staff at the Republican National Committee, said it was "business as usual at the RNC, except for the fact that what used to be the chairman's office is now a flower shop."

Malin said Atwater "has stayed on top of political developments across the country and is eager to get back to work."

Laws, chairman of the department of Neurosurgery at George Washington University Medical Center, said Atwater should be able to resume "a reasonable work schedule and normal activities next week."

"I've never led a normal life,"

an aide quoted Atwater as saying.

The hard-driving political operative collapsed Monday while addressing a breakfast meeting of financial supporters of Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas.

He was rushed to a hospital, and doctors performed a needle biopsy Tuesday morning, a procedure in which a thin needle is used to remove cells from the affected area.

Laws did not specify the non-surgical treatment, but radiation is commonly used in such cases.

A native of South Carolina, the 39-year-old Atwater managed President Bush's 1988 campaign and was the president's choice to become chairman of the Republican National Committee.

Food for St. Patrick's Day: culinary gems from the Emerald Isle

Faith and begone! Did you know that St. Patrick's Day falls on a Saturday this year? Now that's cause for celebration!

Millions of Americans celebrate St. Patrick's Day — whether they're Irish or not. And because March 17 falls on a weekend this year, the number of celebrants is expected to soar to record heights. Bars, restaurants, parades, and private homes will "runneth over" with eager masses.

But despite the popularity of St. Patrick's Day, few American parties feature genuine Irish fare and Celtic traditions.

With the start of the new decade, resolve to de-Americanize St. Patrick's Day. For centuries, Ireland has produced some of the finest products in the world and its time they came to the forefront of St. Patrick's Day festivities.

For a truly authentic St. Patrick's Day, refer to the following "check-list" of culinary "gems" from the Emerald Isle:

Salmon: Served either smoked as an appetizer or poached as an entree, Irish salmon is a delicacy. For centuries, the icy waters of the Emerald Isle have provided livelihoods for thousands of Irish fishermen, particularly on the West coast and in Dublin Bay. Two exceptional Irish brands of salmon to look for in the U.S. are Nolan's and Eagle Isle. While Americans typically pair salmon with pumernickel, the Irish are fond of brown bread: a homemade version of whole wheat bread with nuts.

Irish Beer: It goes without saying that St. Patrick's Day and beer go hand-in-hand. Whatever you do, don't color your beer green! Instead serve classic Irish imports like rich and creamy Guinness Stout or crisp Harp Lager. Both are world-class brews that have been lauded by experts and beer aficionados alike for hundreds of years. A smart addition to the beverage list is Kaliber non-alcoholic brew. Keep plenty on-hand for designated drivers or calorie-conscious guests.

*Irish Soda Bread: While most bakeries and supermarkets only carry Irish soda bread in March, imported loaves can be found year-round in many gourmet food shops. Don't let availability limit you, however, because the recipe is so simple you can make it from scratch. For mouth-watering results, serve soda bread hot out of the oven.

Irish Cheese: Most Irish cheese is exported to England and the U.S. Although England imports it at a steady rate, Americans import it primarily for St. Patrick's Day. Two brands which should not be missed are Blarney and Shannon. Blarney is a mild, semi-hard, Swiss-type and Shannon is similar, with a slightly cheddar flavor. Enjoyed on crackers or bread, or in recipes like *Beer and Cheese Soup (which can double as a vegetable dip), Irish cheese adds zest to St. Paddy's Day meals.

Linen: Finish the table setting with an elegant linen cloth and napkins. Though the Egyptians produced linen over 5,000 years ago, the Irish are responsible for linen's popularity. They began spinning flax over 2000 years ago and have consistently turned out the highest quality fabric in the world. In fact, in the 1700's, the Irish were so strict about maintaining quality control that they imposed a death penalty on anyone using substandard dyeing materials.

Atmosphere: Believe it or not, the Irish don't necessarily wear green on St. Patrick's Day. A simple fisherman's sweater and kilt or a classically tailored linen ensemble, depending on the weather, will keep true to Irish tradition. For music, play the soothing sounds of flutist James Galway or opt for the festive crooning of the Clancy Brothers or the Chieftans. For the final touch — the centerpiece — gather some wildflowers, shamrocks and Bells of Ireland buds for a traditional bouquet, or fill a black pot with chocolate coins covered in gold foil for a real Irish "pot o' gold."

The Last Word: A St. Paddy's Day party isn't complete without a singalong. To make sure everyone knows the words, pass out copies of "The 1990 Guinness Guide to St. Patrick's Day," a colorful brochure including song lyrics, toasts, and

Irish Toast

May you be in heaven a half hour before the devil knows you're dead!

Irish Song

When Irish Eyes are Smiling

Chorus
When Irish eyes are smiling,
Sure it's like a morn in spring.
In the lilt of Irish laughter
You can hear the angels sing.
When Irish hearts are happy,
All the world seems bright and gay,
And when Irish eyes are smiling,
Sure they steal your heart away.

There's a tear in your eye, And I'm wondering why,
For it never should be there at all.
With such pow'r in your smile,
Sure a stone you'd beguile,
So there's never a teardrop should fall.
When your sweet lilting laughter's like some fairy song,
And your eyes twinkle bright as can be;
You should laugh all the while and all other times smile,
And now smile a smile for me...Chorus

For your smile is a part of the love in your heart,
And it makes even sunshine more bright.
Like the linnets' sweet song,
Crooning all the day long,
Comes your laughter so tender and light.
For the springtime of life is the sweetest of all,
There is ne'er a real care or regret;
And while springtime is ours throughout all of youth's hours,
Let us smile each chance we get...Chorus

etable dip.

Classic Irish Soda Bread

4 cups flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon caraway seeds (optional)
1 1/2 cups raisins
2 eggs beaten
1 cup butter or margarine (melted)
1 cup milk
Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Lightly grease loaf pan and set aside.

Place raisins and caraway seeds in a large bowl. Sift together flour, baking soda, sugar and salt. Pour sifted mixture over raisins. Add butter, eggs and milk to the bowl and mix well.

Place dough on a floured board and mold into a round loaf. Place the loaf into the greased pan and bake for one hour. Test the loaf with a toothpick before removing from oven. Serve at once or let cool and serve toasted.

Roast Stuffed Pork

2 lb. pork tenderloin
salt
2 tbsp. butter
1/4 cup Harp Lager
Stuffing:
4 1/2 cups mashed potato
1/4 cup butter
1 onion, finely chopped
2 large cooking apples
Fresh sage and thyme
salt and pepper
Preheat oven to 350 degrees.

Make the stuffing first. Mash the potatoes and add the butter, chopped onions, chopped apples, herbs, salt and pepper. Mix well and check the seasoning.

Place the meat in a ring shape in a casserole or roasting pan. Put the stuffing in the middle. Rub the meat with the salt and butter and pour the Harp Lager in the pan. Cover loosely in foil and place in the oven for about one hour. Serve cut into little medallions with the stuffing and roasted apple.

Toppings for your tator

Finally America is waking up to the nutritional benefits of potatoes. Just yesterday everyone was complaining about starches. Potatoes were considered fattening. The culprit was the topping, not the potato.

Now, Americans are going easy on the sour cream and butter and are serving potato dishes using unsaturated fats. Today the potato is even considered the runners' and dieters' dream come true.

The starch in potatoes is a complex carbohydrate. It's good for you because it is digested slowly, consistently energizing the body for longer periods of time than simple carbohydrates.

Potatoes are even superior to pasta because they have a greater satiety value and low calorie density that leaves dieters feeling full at an average 120 calories per 5 ounce potato.

With the increasing focus on convenience foods, the potato is the perfect solution to shortening meal preparation times regardless of lifestyle.

Consider converting a side dish into an entree. It's simple — and as quick as 30 minutes. Just bake or microcook a potato, add a nutritious topping and you've got a main course! Toppers made of lean meats, lowfat cheeses, savory herbs or vegetables are the freshest ideas for low-cal, high-carb cuisine!

Athletes on both the East and West coasts rely on the tuber advantage and are "carb-ing up" on potatoes before national and international competitions.

Currently, the Washington state potato growers work in conjunction with the New York City Marathon, Boston Marathon, Philadelphia Distance Run, California's Big Sur Marathon and Spokane's Bloomsday Run by providing potatoes for Carb Up dinners the night before the big race.

The Washington Russet is higher in nutrients than the average U.S. potato. Grown in volcanic soils, researchers found Washington potatoes have significantly more carbohydrates, vitamin B-6, fiber, as well as more phosphorus and vitamin C than other domestically grown potatoes. In fact, Washington Russets provide 27 percent of the U.S. RDA requirements of vitamin B-6.

Now you can reap the benefits that professional athletes enjoy too. Whether you're an athlete, a dieter, or are just looking for fresh entree ideas, you can top your tator right with recipes ranging from tangy Sweet and Sour Pork, spicy Turkey Chili, zesty Vegetable Pesto to light-n-creamy Cottage Cheese.

Cottage Cheese Topper
1 cup lowfat cottage cheese
3 tablespoons chopped sweet red peppers
1 tablespoons chopped chives or green onion
1/4 teaspoon seasoned pepper
4 (8 to 10 oz. each) baked Washington Russet potatoes

Process cottage cheese in food processor or blender until curds are very fine and smooth. Add red peppers, chives and pepper; mix well. Cut or pierce tops of potatoes lengthwise; squeeze ends and push toward center. Spoon about 1/4 cup

ter. Spoon about 1/2 cup pork mixture on each potato. Sprinkle with sesame seeds. Makes 4 servings.

Turkey Chili Topper
3/4 pound ground turkey, thawed if necessary
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
1/2 cup chopped onion
1 clove garlic, minced
1 can (15 oz.) diced tomatoes
3 to 4 teaspoons chili powder
3/4 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
4 (8 to 10 oz. each) baked Washington Russet potatoes

Shredded Cheddar cheese
Chopped green onions
Saute turkey in oil until juices run clear. Add onion and garlic; saute until onion is tender. Add tomatoes, chili powder, salt and pepper. Bring mixture to boil; reduce heat and simmer about 30 minutes.
Cut or pierce tops of potatoes lengthwise; squeeze ends and push toward center. Spoon about 3/4 cup chili on each potato. Sprinkle with cheese and green onions. Makes 4 servings.

Vegetable Pesto Topper
1 package (10 oz.) frozen chopped spinach, thawed
1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese
1/4 cup chopped walnuts
3 tablespoons olive oil, divided
1/4 cup packed parsley leaves
2 tablespoons dried basil, crushed
1 clove garlic, minced
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
2 cups sliced zucchini
1 cup diced tomatoes
4 (8 to 10 oz. each) baked Washington Russet potatoes

Thoroughly drain thawed spinach by pressing out excess moisture; spread on double layer of paper towels about 5 minutes. Puree spinach, cheese, walnuts, 2 tablespoons oil, parsley and seasonings in food processor or blender about 30 seconds.
Saute zucchini in 1 tablespoon olive oil until crisp-tender; add tomatoes and remove from heat. Stir in 1/4 to 1/3 cup spinach pesto mixture; mix well.

Salt to taste. Cut or pierce tops of potatoes lengthwise; squeeze ends and push toward center. Spoon about 1/2 cup zucchini on each potato. Makes 4 servings.
Storage Tip: Leftover spinach pesto sauce may be stored, refrigerated, up to two weeks. For longer storage, freeze in freezer-proof container or plastic bag.

mixture on each potato. Makes 4 servings.

Sweet and Sour Pork Topper
3/4 pound lean pork, cut in 2 x 1/2 x 1/4 inch strips
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
1/2 cup each 3/4-inch squares green and sweet red pepper
1/4 cup diagonally sliced green onions
1 can (8 oz.) pineapple chunks
Water
1/3 cup rice vinegar
1/4 cup sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1/2 teaspoon garlic salt
Dash bottled hot pepper sauce
4 (8 to 10 oz. each) baked Washington Russet potatoes
1/2 teaspoon sesame seeds (optional)

Stir-fry pork in oil until lightly browned and juices run clear. Add vegetables and stir-fry until crisp-tender. Drain pineapple chunks; reserve liquid. Add water to liquid to equal 1/3 cup. Combine reserved liquid mixture, vinegar, sugar, cornstarch, garlic salt and hot pepper sauce; heat to boiling and cook 1 minute.
Add pork-vegetable mixture and drained pineapple to sauce; mix to coat pieces with sauce. Cut or pierce tops of potatoes lengthwise; squeeze ends and push toward cen-

Area residents' names on state's list of unclaimed funds

State Treasurer Ann W. Richards has announced that more than 120,000 Texans have $99 million in lost or forgotten money coming to them this year — up 65 percent from last year's $60 million.

The 120,000 persons are named in the 1990 version of the Texas Treasury Unclaimed Money Fund List published statewide Sunday in 27 newspapers.

All listed accounts are worth at least $50 with the largest account worth close to $103,000. All safe deposit boxes and stocks are listed regardless of the value.

Generally, accounts on the list are from checking and saving accounts, utility deposits, oil royalties and corporate stocks. Most accounts must be dormant from three to five years before they are turned over to the state. People who find their names on the list can call the Texas State Treasury on its toll-free telephone line at 1-800-654-3463 or they can write the State Treasury at P.O. Box 17728, Austin, Texas 78760.

During the first few weeks after the list is published, the toll-free line is often tied up by the volume of calls. The lines, however, are kept open for an extended period and there is no time limit for making a claim.

Telephone hours are 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Friday through April 6. After April 6, the hours will be from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Following is a list of the cities in the readership area of The Pampa News included in the Texas Treasury Unclaimed Money Fund List.

U. S. Postal Service to begin process to hike stamp rate

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Postal Service is about to launch the complex process of adding a nickel to the price of mailing a letter.

With a record $1.6 billion loss looming in this fiscal year, Postmaster General Anthony M. Frank says the increase is necessary.

He was proposing increases today in all classes of mail, with the charge for first class likely to go from a quarter to 30 cents next year. That would be somewhat more than the rate of inflation, says Frank, who promises to hold down postal service spending in coming years.

Unlike a store manager, however, Frank can't simply slap a new price tag on the goods.

The proposal must go to the independent Postal Rate Commission, which has 10 months to consider the request, hold hearings and issue a report.

If the commission agrees, rates can go up. If not, it's back to the drawing board unless the postal service board of governors votes unanimously to overrule the commission.

Any rate increase would not occur before early 1991.

But even though the process is only beginning, sides are being chosen for the battle.

Vincent R. Sombrotto, head of the 315,000-member National Association of Letter Carriers, contends that stamps today are cheaper than they were in 1971, if inflation is taken into account.

Sombrotto held a news conference Monday to defend the rate hike and to denounce critics of the post office, who have called for private business to be allowed to compete in mail delivery.

James C. Miller, who was federal budget director under President Reagan, is spearheading the campaign in favor of private competition. And consumer advocate Ralph Nader is trying to organize opposition to the proposed rate increase.

While first-class mail rates attract the most public attention, new charges would cover all classes of mail. Groups representing magazines, newspapers, advertisers and other large mailers will be intensely interested in the proposals.

Postal charges last increased in 1988. Frank has said he hopes to have only one more price rise in this century.

When the old Post Office Department was converted into the U.S. Postal Service in 1971, it was directed to operate like a business and break even over the long haul. The massive tax subsidy that had been used to hold down postage rates was phased out.

The postal service has posted five surplus years and five loss years in the last decade, finishing 1989 about $61 million in the black. The agency had a $404 million surplus in the first quarter of 1990, but rising costs are expected to push it well into the red by the end of the year.

Postal officials anticipate a $1.6 billion loss this fiscal year, the largest ever for the agency.

Contracts with the four largest unions representing more than 800,000 postal workers also expire this year, and negotiations for new pacts are expected to lead to higher costs.

Students turning each other in

TEXARKANA (AP) — Some students in the Texarkana Independent School district are taking advantage of an anonymous telephone hotline to turn each other in, officials said.

What's more, most of them are doing it for free, although some would be eligible for rewards.

The district's School Watch program is patterned after a CrimeStoppers program in which secret-identity numbers are issued to tipsters. Students also can fill out forms to provide tips to officials instead of using the hotline.

A number of crimes have been cleared and others have been prevented because of the school district's program, say principals at Texas High School and two middle schools.

Texas High Principal George Kirtley said one tip allowed officials to stop a student from bringing a gun onto his campus.

Kirtley said about 90 percent of tipsters at his school have refused to take any money for their tips.

Tipsters at Pine Street Middle School have been awarded $180 in cash rewards for information that has solved a variety of crimes.
