Sky cracked

A jagged bolt of lightning appears to create a crack in the evening sky over Pampa late Thursday during a small thunderstorm. A 60 percent chance of more thundershowers is forecast for today, dropping to a 50 percent chance on Saturday.

Two die when toxic gases leak from plant

MENDENHALL, Miss. (AP) — Toxic gases leaked at a manufacturing plant south of here this morning, killing two people and injuring five others, authorities said.

There were no reports of an explosion or fire at the Universal Magnatek plant, which produces electrical parts for lighting equipment, Simpson County deputies said.

Sheriff's dispatcher Diana Smith said she was alerted to the gas leak about 5:40 a.m., and authorities immediately ordered the plant evacuated.

In all, she said, about 3,000 people work at the facility, the largest employer in the county. Authorities were unsure how many people were in the plant at the time of the incident.

"Things are really in a turmoil down here and the plant is still evacuated," a security worker at the plant said when contacted by telephone almost three hours after the accident. He declined to give his name.

Gary Hall of the Mississippi Emergency Management Agency said it appeared the leaking gases included natural gas, liquid nitrogen and liquid hydrogen, all toxic.

"They are in the process of venting the building at this time," Hall said this morning. The body of one of the victims was recovered from the building shortly thereafter, authorities said. The other victim died at a hospital.

Officials look at September '91 for start of prison construction

By BEAR MILLS
Staff Writer

Five officials from the Texas Department of Criminal Justice have indicated construction on a new state prison outside Pampa could begin in September 1991.

City Manager Glen Hackler said the five, from the construction division of the prison system, heard from Energas, Southwestern Public Service, Sammons Communications and Southwestern Bell, as well as Gray County, Pampa Industrial Foundation and the Pampa Area Chamber of Commerce on local prison efforts.

Pampa was awarded the prison in July during a meeting in Austin. It will mean 304 new jobs for the area, according to state and local estimates.

"We were given a time frame to develop our utilities and some other preparation to the sight by September 1, 1991," Hackler said. "Everyone felt that time frame was achievable to do what the TDCJ asked."

Within 60 days, Hackler said, the local entities will transfer land and money promised as part of a Pampa incentive package over to the state.

Bill Waters, president of the Industrial Foundation, noted, "They wanted us to lay temporary gas, electric and telephone lines by September 1 and the permanent installation will be required at a time eight months into construction. Water and sewer lines can be later, during construction."

"It was basically a meeting for the department to tell us what they needed, what was set in stone and what would be negotiated, and to hear from our entities what procedures we are going through to fulfill our commitments," Hackler said. "It was a meeting of the minds to see if what they expected was what we interpreted and that it was satisfactory to both. We came away very satisfied."

Hackler said, "Their projects directors all indicated a willingness to work with the community. One of them said that when all of this is done and construction is completed, Pampa will not be at all sorry we entered into an agreement with the state."

The meeting, held Wednesday, was not publicized, Hackler said, because it was a private gathering and media coverage was discouraged.

"But we want everyone to know what the status is and keep them informed," Hackler said.

Construction of the prison will take approximately 13 months to complete, officials estimated.

United Way pledges reach $30,000

By BETH MILLER
Staff Writer

The Pampa United Way campaign continues to climb with pledges reaching $30,225.96 at Thursday's check-in at the South Side Senior Citizens Center.

Also during Thursday's check-in, Pampa Middle School Principal Ronnie Wood was presented with a plaque from Campaign Chairman Jack Gindorf for being the school which is leading other schools in pledges.

Gindorf said the Pampa Independent School District was chosen as the pacesetter this year.

The Thursday check-in was co-sponsored by the South Side Senior Citizens Center and the American Red Cross. The check-ins, each Thursday from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m., are being held at some of the United Way agencies this year in an effort to educate the public more about the agencies.

There are 15 agencies supported by the Pampa United Way. This year's goal has been set at $332,000.

Although only a small percentage of that goal has been collected, Gindorf said Thursday he expects more to start pouring in when the major firms division starts reporting.

"In the next few weeks these totals are going to soar," Gindorf said, while encouraging the United Way volunteers to continue seeking more pledges.

Katie Fairweather, executive director of the Red Cross in this area, said her territory covers 7 1/2 counties and it has been a busy year for the Red Cross.

On a weekly basis, the Red Cross offers blood pressure and other health care clinics. Health care, CPR, first aid and water safety courses are also taught. The Red Cross also provides aid for military families.

The Red Cross is responsible for helping in disasters and with disaster victims. Recently, the local Red Cross chapter received a disaster vehicle, the only one in the territory, which covers Oklahoma in the north to Odessa in the south.

Mae Williams, administrator of the South Side Senior Citizens Center, 438 W. Crawford, said the organization delivers meals to shut-ins on Saturdays and provides weeknight programs for senior citizens with a daytime referral service.

The last Thursday of each month is a big day at the senior citizens center when the group has a pot luck lunch. Other activities include a recent style show and working toward getting a new building, Williams said.

The 15 agencies served by the United Way are the American Red Cross, Boy Scouts-Golden Spread Council, Community Day Care Center, Genesis House for boys and girls, Girl Scouts-Quivira Council, High Plains Epilepsy Association, Latch Key program, Meals on Wheels, Pampa Family Services, Pampa Sheltered Workshop, The Salvation Army, South Side Senior Citizens Center, Tralee Crisis Center, Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Pampa, and Gray County Child Protective Services.

Former Delta Force commander criticizes Sarpalius' remarks

By BEAR MILLS
Staff Writer

A renowned soldier and anti-terrorism expert was in Pampa Thursday to launch an attack against Congressman Bill Sarpalius.

Col. Charles Beckwith, who formed the elite Delta Force for the U.S. Army, criticized comments made by Sarpalius about President George Bush and the current Middle East crisis, comments he said he first heard during a television newscast in Austin.

During an exclusive interview with The Pampa News, Beckwith said, "I happened to see on the telly the statement by the freshman congressman from Amarillo, Bill Sarpalius, that he feels American forces in Saudi Arabia are there for political reasons and that really made me turn sour."

Sarpalius has said repeatedly that he supports the U.S. presence in Saudi Arabia.

However, his efforts to qualify those remarks and point out alleged political motivation by President Bush have landed him in hot water with Republicans from the White House down.

Wednesday, First Lady Barbara Bush blasted Sarpalius during a stop in Amarillo, saying she wouldn't vote for him "if he was the last man in America."

"I have been in war, and it would be a morale factor that a congressman from the great state of Texas had made such a foot-in-your-mouth statement," Beckwith said Thursday. "It is incredibly demoralizing to not have support on the home front."

Beckwith said he contacted State

Rep. Dick Waterfield of Canadian, who is attempting to unseat Sarpalius, and volunteered to speak out against the incumbent, based on his 29 years of military experience.

Beckwith, who led a tactical group into Iran in 1980 in an unsuccessful bid to free American hostages and later authored the best-seller Delta Force, said he has a son-in-law in the 82nd Airborne Division and a daughter in the reserves who is scheduled to leave for the Middle East.

"I don't believe that George Bush is using our forces in the Middle East for political reasons," Beckwith said. "I felt this was truly an obtuse comment by the congressman. I took the liberty of calling Dick Waterfield and said, 'If you want me to come up and help you, I'd be glad to.'"

Beckwith has three tours of duty in Vietnam as a commander to his credit. In 1966 he was severely wounded by enemy fire, but later returned to combat as a commander of Army Rangers.

In 1975 Beckwith was selected to head Special Forces training for all Green Berets. In 1977 he organized, trained and commanded the Delta Force.

He has been called "The real John Wayne" because of his exploits, which the late actor emulated in many of his movies.

Following his retirement, Beckwith opened an anti-terrorist security firm based in Austin, where he now lives.

"I am an American first and I believe that we have to support the commander-in-chief in times of crises. I know that the president would not risk the lives of my family and the lives of hundreds of thousands of other families for political reasons," Beckwith stated.

Sarpalius has said, "About three days after we sent our troops over there, I saw the president on television and he pointed to the camera and said, 'Now I hope the members of Congress will think twice before they start cutting defense.' Now I think that's politically motivated."

Sarpalius has also stated that when U.S. troops are sent home "in body bags," support of the military effort in the Middle East could dwindle.

However, Beckwith said those types of comments could indicate to Iraq that killing U.S. troops is the best way to gain the upper hand in the current stand-off.

"The king of Iraq is not going to come out and say he will give Kuwait back," Beckwith said. "He is going to fight this whole thing out until he loses his life. That's the way of the Arab. (Saddam Hussein) would have lost so much face he couldn't face his own countrymen (if he were to back down)."

Beckwith termed Saddam a "very well-organized individual," but added, "Some people can't handle power and he's one of them. He has over-extended himself."

Suggestions by some news analysts that Iraq could regain the support of most Arab nations by provoking a confrontation with Israel were discounted by Beckwith.

"We have many of the Arab nations on our side and if something happens over there, it's going to be very short-lived, very brief," he said. "The problem is, what do you do when it's over? You don't send Saudi Arabia in there to nurse them back and they are not ready for democracy, so we shouldn't force it on them. We are going to have a lot of problems when this is over in getting (Iraq) back on its feet."

Beckwith said Sarpalius' call for military budget cuts will only handicap the United States in dealing with countries in the Middle East.

"When we went into Iran, we didn't have the intelligence we needed," he said. "I'm talking about people to get the information out, not mechanical intelligence. We need a strong military and strong intelligence to deal with situations like this one before they blow up and get out of hand."

Beckwith predicted that successful embargoes against Iraq will result in Saddam being assassinated by his own people, which he said would be the best possible resolution of the situation.

"I suspect there will be an American aircraft blown up around Christmas time and (Iraq) will take credit for it," Beckwith said. "We talk about (if) we have the necessary provocation to go in and kick Iraq's backside. I say we do. I don't want to see a war. I've seen enough people killed to last me the rest of my lifetime. But, we are overlooking the fact that they are holding American hostages."

Beckwith said he is "tired of Americans being held hostage in the Middle East" and that Sarpalius' comments are only hindering Bush's efforts at showing a solid opposition to Iraq.

Col. Charles Beckwith, USA-retired, who organized the anti-terrorist Delta Force, criticizes Congressman Bill Sarpalius during an exclusive interview Thursday.

Author: comic books expose youth to violence, sex

By BEAR MILLS
Staff Writer

Great Scott, say it isn't so!
Robin the Boy Wonder having pre-marital sex in the pages of our children's comic books, Superman cussing, Flash committing adultery, caped heroes praying to Satan for strength, Thor counseling a Catholic priest on his misguided faith.

Where will you find these kinds of shocking occurrences?

John Fulce, writer of a new Christian book entitled Comic Books Exposed: Seduction of the Innocent Revisited, says those are only the most obvious examples of how badly moral decay has eroded a once harmless entertainment medium.

Fulce, during a telephone interview from his home in Fountain Valley, Calif., said he was a comic book shop owner for years and once considered the nation's number one comic book collector.

However, during the early 1980s, Fulce said he began to notice some disturbing changes in comic books.

At first he attributed them to "poor judgment" or "occasional breaches in taste."

Within a few years, though, Fulce began to document a clear trend in comics, which attract an audience primarily composed of adolescents.

"I guess when I first started noticing this was with a particular book that Marvel Comics brought out in their Epic line in 1984 that had a title called 'Void Endigo,'" Fulce said. "It had transvestites, lesbians, all types of occult violence. The hero of the story took a 20-penny nail and drove it through a guy's skull and attached a note to it so the police would find it." Fulce said letters to Marvel expressing his concern did no good. Instead, he was threatened with a lawsuit if his comic book shop didn't sell the material.

"So I kept them and destroyed them," Fulce said. "That same year, DC Comics came out with ... Robin/Dick Grayson spending the night with his girlfriend. Three years later they were showing him having sex. I called DC and they told me that these things do happen and it's reality. They said the fans are crying for more reality."

Fulce said hearing such "cries for reality" struck him as "ludicrous."

"They talk about reality in a format where people can fly, walk through walls, burst into flames and travel through time to beat up the bad guys," he pointed out. "Superheroes are not exactly reality."

Fulce said parents who remember comics as being harmless need to remember the world has changed, and so have comic books.

"I have asked for good, fun, clean entertainment," Fulce said of repeated letters he has written to comic book companies. "But they have made it clear they will do whatever they want. That includes graphic violence with brains spilling out, dismemberment, orgies. And this is their idea of offering reality."

Another alarming change is Batman's switch from an avenging superhero to a troubled psycho/killer.

"They will argue that Batman has always been a psychopath," Fulce said. "They say Batman has been a psychotic since the 1930s. Frank Miller (A writer of Batman comics) made a comment several years ago comparing Daredevil to Batman in that Daredevil would catch the criminals and turn them in, but that Batman would stop the criminal at any cost.

"But now, pick up the latest copy of 'Daredevil' and he is a psychotic killer, too."

A childhood favorite of generations past was the "Green Arrow." However, Fulce said "Green Arrow" is currently among the worst moral offenders.

"In 'Green Arrow' there are all sorts of suggestive, lewd things," Fulce said. "Green Arrow" has also dropped his "boxer arrow" for a hunter's arrow that he shoots through the eyeball or the ear into the brain of almost every person he kills. The sex and violence in those comics is shocking."

Fulce suggestion to parents is, "You need to make some decisions about every book their child picks out anymore. Parents need to be aware of what they want for their children and see how these books line up."

Comics that offer the most violence are "Wolverine," "The Punisher," "Batman," "Green Arrow" and "The New Spiderman," Fulce said.

The occult and overt satanism are regular themes of "Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles," "Dr. Fate," "Dr. Strange," "Advanced Dungeons and Dragons," "Thor," "Swamp Thing" and "Wonder Woman."

"Now we have 'Wonder Woman' going out and stripping off her clothes and paying homage to her gods while in the nude. She will take her clothes off in front of anybody. And 'Wonder Woman' is going out and healing people on a 'Miracle Tour' with her occultism," he claimed.

"Sexual perversion and blatant promiscuity come up in 'Swamp Thing,' 'New Teen Titans,' 'Green Arrow' and 'The Flash.' The comics today are loaded with New Age, such as the 'Thor,' which has a character named The High Evolutionary who says, 'Thus I have cured man of his humbling sense of mortality. Let him worship only himself,'" Fulce said.

"Thor is counseling a priest who buys into what Thor is saying and doubts his own faith in his one true God, Jehovah. Finally, to comfort the priest, Thor tells him, 'All (gods) spring from the same universal higher force. Your faith is not misplaced. They are given truth by the strength of faith and thus, through belief and prayer, all are made true.'"

Fulce said superhero comics show no signs of slowing down, either.

"The comics people will tell you that Batman and all the other superheroes have grown up and matured. But the predominant age group reading these books are still ages nine to 16," he explained.

"What I would recommend for the parents is to take their son or daughter and go through the books with them," Fulce said.

What should they look for?

"In one issue of The Punisher, a guy goes up to an altar, puts his hand on the altar, cuts the hand off with a knife, prays to Satan and the hand grows back," Fulce recounted. "In the same issue, a guy goes in and prays to 'The Lord of the Flies' (Beelzebub) for healing for a woman and she is healed. The parents need to be aware of the ramifications."

Fulce is aware of arguments by the comics industry that these images are designed to show young people how bad such behavior is. He is convinced they send a different message.

"The creators of 'Superman' will tell you that Superman was created as a moral character who was raised in the Bible Belt by Christian parents," he said. "But if you read 'Superman' today, you find him killing people, he cusses, he has sexual fantasies that are played out in the comic books. He has been promiscuous. He will be on an alien planet and have an affair, or have a sexual fantasy about Wonder Woman."

He added, "DC Comics says that comics are no longer for kids. They say these characters have matured and are for a mature audience. And yet they are owned by Time/Warner, which owns Licensing Company of America that produces toys and Underoos and things for children.

"They are projected to make $500 million by selling toys and clothing with Batman on it to children. If this is no longer an industry for kids, why are they selling them so hard?"

Fulce's book, published by Harvest House, contains more than 200 pages of details for parents concerned about the comics their children are reading. Also included is a mailing list of Christian organizations that are working to combat the current trends in comics, as well as some shocking excerpts from the actual comics.

Hostage's letter urges restraint

HOUSTON (AP) — A Spring woman, whose husband is a hostage in the Middle East, has received a two-page letter from her spouse that is a call for restraint in the Persian Gulf crisis.

Patricia Hale received the handwritten letter from her husband, Edward Hale, in the mail Thursday. Hale, 52, a rig supervisor for OGE Drilling Co., was taken off a Kuwait oil rig by Iraqi soldiers just hours after the Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

"I fear that this continued detention (of Westerners) will breed ill will among many of the peoples of the world, and that ill will will be directed at the ordinary people of Iraq," Hale wrote Aug. 24. "These people do not deserve that. They suffered untold losses during the long gulf war (with Iran).

"As always, it is the ordinary people who suffer the consequences."

The missive was delivered last week to the U.S. State Department by Iraqi diplomats along with other communications from American hostages.

Mrs. Hale said she does not believe the conciliatory tone in the letter was forced upon her husband by his captors, despite its hand-delivery by the Iraqis.

"If there was something wrong, he would put something in the letter that would indicate that, and I would detect it if there was," she said. "This is how he thinks. He is a very generous person, and he cares for other people."

He wrote that he is being held at one of the strategic locations where Westerners serve as "human shields" against a U.S.-led attack on Iraq, adding he doesn't think his detention there "is the will or the wish of the Iraqi people."

He said he is well and well-fed. "I have been having trouble slimming down in the waist," he wrote. "The food is so good, and they serve us so much. I have made some progress though, maybe (losing) three or four pounds. It saddens me to think of all the hungry people in this country and throughout the whole world who could be fed with the food that is wasted on us."

His comments came just as Iraq announced it would begin withholding food from Westerners in the country. Shortages from an international embargo have forced the Iraqis to begin rationing certain goods, such as flour and cooking oil.

"I have been very distressed with the whole idea of food and medicine being part of the embargo," Mrs. Hale told the Houston Chronicle on Thursday.

"To embargo food, that is almost as bad as withholding air," she said. "I mean, how long can you hold your breath?"

In the letter, Hale discussed his feelings toward the Iraqis.

"When I was home last, you remember my saying how I liked and respected the people I met over here," he wrote.

"I want you to know that still holds true. Every Arab I have met is genuinely friendly, courteous, honest and religious. Like I have always said, ordinary people all around the world are very much the same," the letter read. "The people who have been ordered to detain us from our families are very good to us under the circumstances."

"From the first, soldiers who took us from the rig shared water and food with us, giving us the best and the first, and apologizing that they had orders."

He also expressed concern that "the people of Iraq may receive the scorn and the wrath of all the other peoples of the world."

"I do not wish that on these good, hard-working people, for I wish no harm to anyone," he wrote.

Opinion

Budget crisis can be turned to opportunity

A crisis means difficulty; it can also mean opportunity. The White House-Congress budget talks broke down last week, with congressional leaders "reaffirming" their wish to get them back on track. No surprise. But that means the $100 billion, across-the-board budget cuts of the Gramm-Rudman law will go into effect on Oct. 15 unless a budget is somehow reached by Oct. 1.

Congressional Democrats have delayed a budget deal for more than two months, sowing American businesses with seeds of doubt about the economy's future, and allowing the weeds of recession to grow to prosperity-choking heights. A nice, deep recession would help Democrats in the November elections, and would go far toward defeating President Bush in 1992.

For their own part, Republicans have been talking about taking away deductions on local taxes, home mortgages, charities and the like — this in exchange for the capital gains cuts. The astonishing thing is how the GOP has bought into the demagoguery that such give-backs will hurt the rich mostly, even though it will hit middle-income Americans hardest. By leaving their purchasing power alone (or expanding it) and cutting capital gains taxes, Washington could keep us out of a recession.

Democrats blamed Mr. Bush's insistence on a capital gains tax cut for the budget impasse. Nonsense. In a budget of $1.2 trillion — that's $1,200,000,000,000.00 — a capital gains tax cut would only involve a few billion dollars and probably would increase revenues by reviving the economy. Moreover, the president has made the capital gains tax cut a major plank of his policy for more than two years, and that policy was confirmed by voters when they elected him.

Mr. Bush should clearly look at the matter and take action. He should make immediate plans to implement Gramm-Rudman's $100 billion, across-the-board cuts in virtually every federal program. This should include, first, drawing up plans to privatize the air-traffic control system, the U.S. Postal Service and other services.

The Cato Institute has a proposal to privatize air-traffic control, and James Miller, former director of the Office of Management and Budget, has a proposal to privatize the Postal Service. Mr. Bush should examine these plans and adapt them to the current emergency. Most of this would require approval by Congress. But when mail deliveries stop and planes pile up on the runways, constituents will shout at Capitol Hill to do something. And if Mr. Bush is prepared, he will be able to tell Congress, "Here's what you can do."

Next, Mr. Bush should order all department heads to draw up budget cuts. In the massive, $1,200,000,000,000.00 federal budget, surely there must be $100 billion in waste. Do bureaucrats need to take so many junkies and have renovations done to their offices so often? Does government need so many consultants? Even the Pentagon, which must fund the vast deployment in the Middle East, could save money by pulling 100,000 more troops back home from Europe and Asia, and by closing even more unneeded bases here at home.

Mr. Bush should also schedule a national speech to the American people for Oct. 1, the day the budget is supposed to be met. He should tell us how Congress caused the crisis and how he will meet it.

Honest work benefits all

WASHINGTON — It probably is too late to influence the pending agreement on the federal budget, but here goes: By one simple act, Congress could strike a blow for fairness, sound principle and higher revenues. Congress could repeal or reduce the punishment now imposed upon old folks for the intolerable sin of working.

The system has been in operation since Social Security began, but it is ridiculous all the same. It violates a fundamental principle of the American ethic — the principle that honest work is a benefit to society.

Here is how the system works. Suppose you are between 62 and 64 years of age, and that you have begun to receive retirement benefits under the Social Security system. Suppose, further, that an opportunity comes along to return to work you find interesting and productive. Prepare to be walloped. Your Social Security benefits will be reduced by 50 cents for every dollar earned above $6,840 this year. That is a higher marginal tax rate than a millionaire pays.

If you are between 65 and 69, and you commit the unspeakable folly of actually working, the penalty is 33 cents for every dollar of benefits once earnings pass $9,360.

This is crazy. In theory, Social Security is a form of "insurance" backed by a "trust fund." If the theory is to be believed, Social Security benefits should be paid as a matter of contractual right. Benefits may be subject to income tax, but they ought not to be subject to penalty for personal behavior.

The unfairness is manifest. The National Center for Policy Analysis in Dallas last week released an updated position paper by two of its senior fellows,

James J. Kilpatrick

Aldona Robbins and Gary Robbins. The authors have impressive credentials as economists with experience in the Treasury Department. By their calculations, the retired oldster who returns to productive work faces marginal tax rates that take away much of the pleasure or purpose of working.

Specifically: Those workers in the very lowest income brackets may be hit by a marginal tax rate of 41 percent. At a bit higher level, the marginal rate is 59 percent. Those in the middle-income 28 percent tax bracket suffer a marginal rate of 75.6 percent. At the highest income levels the rate is a confiscatory 90 percent. There is no way this can be justified.

So much for fairness; so much for principle. The authors contend that if the earnings limit were significantly increased, the treasury would come out ahead. At present, about 750,000 retired workers between 65 and 69 report some outside earnings. They are penalized to the tune of $4.8 billion a year by withholding part of their Social Security benefits.

No one knows now many retirees would rejoin the labor force if the earnings penalty were abolished or reduced. The Social Security Administration has estimated that only 170,000 older Americans, at most, would go back on a payroll. The two authors put the figure at 700,000.

In any event, the return of many thousands of experienced workers would swell the gross national product. These retirees would pay income tax on their earnings; they and their employers would pay Social Security taxes. The net effect of all factors in combination would be to increase the government's revenue by as much as $4.9 billion, more than offsetting the additional Social Security benefits that would be paid.

The prospect makes sense all around. Colorado's Sen. Bill Armstrong is pushing for an additional $3,000 a year for the next three years for retirees between 65 and 69. He regards the present system as "a harsh tax, imposing an inequitable and anachronistic burden on the workplace." In theory, says Armstrong, we want our old people to be active. It is ironic to continue a policy so destructive of that goal.

It is the ethical principle that matters most. Men and women in their 60s constitute a remarkable pool of skills and experience. The authors of this study call it "vast resource of human capital," and so it is. Common observation indicates that most people on Social Security are not much interested in returning to work. They actively enjoy retirement. Why go back to the grind?

But many other retirees, bored by inactivity, would welcome a chance to earn a few hundred dollars a week — provided they were not punished for their industry. No matter how one looks at it, the present penalty system is just plain wrong.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, Sept. 28, the 271st day of 1990. There are 94 days left in the year. Yom Kippur, the Jewish Day of Atonement, begins at sunset.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Sept. 28, 1787, Congress voted to send the just-completed Constitution of the United States to the state legislatures for their approval.

On this date:

In 1066, William the Conqueror invaded England to claim the English throne.

In 1542, Portuguese navigator Juan Rodríguez Cabrillo discovered what is now San Diego.

In 1781, American forces in the Revolutionary War, backed by a French fleet, began their siege of Yorktown Heights, Va.

In 1850, flogging was abolished as a form of punishment in the US Navy.

Housing's not a problem here

Congress is contemplating spending another 28 billion of your dollars on a problem that does not exist.

The so-called "homeless" in our country now have professional advocates in your nation's capital and in your state capital. Add to these builders with a vested interest in new construction and they are able to mobilize demonstrations and otherwise urge the expenditure of more "public money" for housing for the homeless.

They protest that a growing number of first-time home buyers can no longer afford to buy a house.

On the contrary, from 1980 to 1985 home ownership rates for married households increase from 74.7 percent to 78.8 percent.

For single households the rate increased from 45 percent to 46.9 percent.

There is no national housing crisis.

For Heritage Foundation, longtime urban planner Carl Horowitz has carefully tallied the evolution of our population-housing ratio to discover that America is not suffering a national shortage of housing, neither in quantity, quality or costs.

He does discover some regional problems, but mostly they relate to outdated zoning ordinances that inhibit the use of cost-cutting technologies.

One of the major factors in our nation's overbuilding relates to the fact a building contractor's family has to eat.

How is the building contractor going to feed his family and pay his bills if he stops building?

I have been speaking to several organizations of building tradespeople. In preparation for those visits I did a lot of listening to their perspective.

And frankly, during boom times in construction a lot of people get into that business who have no business in that business.

Any bricklayer or carpenter or even journeyman tradesman is likely to imagine that he can get rich by getting into the construction business.

Then, even when the housing market softens, there are all these contractors — the bad and the good — who cannot stay in business unless they keep building — anything — anywhere.

So we end up with a lot of empty or even unfinished buildings.

Horowitz notes that many poor people live in fairly decent dwellings — but in rotten neighborhoods. It's all they can afford.

And for the federal government to construct more new housing proved to be of little or no permanent help to the poor renter lacking purchasing power.

Horowitz recommends that government, instead, adopt fiscal and monetary policies designed to keep taxes and interest rates low...

That government encouraged local communities to abandon anachronistic building codes...

And that government urge elimination of outdated building codes.

These moves would ensure more affordable housing without unbalancing the supply-demand ratio.

Is honesty really the best policy?

By ROBERT WALTERS

GALVESTON — Although Texans revel in their propensity for the outrageous, a pair of episodes involving candidates for statewide office here this year illustrates the appealing lack of ethical standards in the financing of political campaigns everywhere in the nation.

The first case involves Sen. Phil Gramm, a Republican seeking another term. He had no serious opposition in the party's primary and he is heavily favored to win the November general election.

Gramm won handily when he last sought election in 1984, but in that campaign the handling of his political funds was at best sloppy and at worst dishonest. Moreover, he repeatedly defied the Federal Election Commission when it sought to require an honest accounting, then misled the public by deceptively characterizing his illegal actions. None of that, however, seems to have made much of an impression on Texas voters.

Responding to a citizen complaint, the FEC in 1985 initiated an investigation of the financing of Gramm's campaign. When the FEC obtained a judicial subpoena requiring him to relinquish the records documenting how he raised and spent approximately $10 million, Gramm refused to comply and disputed the FEC's authority to conduct any probe of his finances.

A federal court rejected the senator's efforts to quash both the subpoena and the investigation. But he remained unbowed, rejecting an FEC request to temporarily move his financial records from Texas to Washington and insisting that he be provided with a written inventory of all the approximately 500,000 documents at issue. In both instances, the FEC had to obtain court orders to overcome his demands.

Last year, Gramm's campaign committee finally agreed to pay a $300,000 fine and acknowledge that its myriad violations of federal election laws included acceptance of illegal corporate donations, failure to identify individual contributions, failure to disclose expenditures, failure to maintain adequate records and failure to refund excessive contributions in a timely manner.

"The violations weren't routine and the fine was among the largest ever collected by the FEC," notes one campaign finance expert. But Gramm told his constituents that the penalty was imposed only for "technical reporting violation."

The second case involves Attorney General Jim Mattox, who earlier this year was an unsuccessful contender in a multi-candidate Democratic gubernatorial primary. During that race, it was disclosed that, in the late 1980s, Mattox accepted $45,000 in campaign contributions from a businessman other state officials had asked the attorney general to prosecute. Despite his defeat, the revelation seemed to have little impact on the state's voters.

The generous — and notorious — businessman was Lonnie "Bo" Pilgrim, a millionaire poultry processor who attracted national attention late last year when he appeared on the floor of the state legislature while a measure he supported was pending and proceeded to dispense $10,000 checks to eight state senators. The checks ostensibly represented campaign contributions, but the line designating the payee was left blank, to be filled with any name of the politician's choice.

In 1985, state air pollution officials turned over to Mattox for prosecution a case involving violations at Pilgrim's East Texas poultry rendering plant. Within a few months, Pilgrim donated $5,000 to Mattox's campaign fund.

The state could have imposed almost $11.37 million in fines on Pilgrim, but Mattox agreed in October 1986 to a settlement that cost Pilgrim only $52,000 in fines and $8,000 in legal fees. Mattox subsequently received a total of $40,000 more in political donations from Pilgrim in 1987, 1988 and 1989.

Finally, an illustration of how no good deed goes unpunished: State Sen. Hugh Farmer of Fort Worth was the honest politician who last year revealed that he and others had received the $10,000 checks from Pilgrim. This year, Farmer is the Democratic candidate running against Gramm — and the conventional wisdom is that he will be drubbed in the November general election.

Problems remain but budget deal begins to jell

(AP Laserphoto)

By ALAN FRAM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional and White House bargainers are near a $500 billion budget deal, but lingering differences over new taxes on the rich mean that wide-scale slashes in federal programs still loom for Monday.

More than four months of talks have brought tentative agreements to cut defense and domestic programs and raise the government's take on items ranging from gasoline to Medicare premiums, officials familiar with the talks said Thursday.

But at nearly 1:30 a.m. today, negotiators broke for the evening saying they could not yet shake hands on a pact.

"So close and yet we're not quite there," said House Minority Leader Robert Michel, R-Ill., as he and other bargainers ended their back-room meeting in the Capitol.

The major question remained whether Democrats would finally agree to a reduction in the capital gains tax — a longtime demand of President Bush — and which levies on the wealthy would be boosted to compensate.

"We're still working on all of that," said House Budget Committee Chairman Leon Panetta, D-Calif.

Without a budget deal, federal drug agents, nurses at veterans' hospitals, and many of the government's 2.1 million civilian workers faced furloughs beginning Monday.

The lack of an agreement would trigger $85 billion in spending cuts. Social Security, soldiers' salaries and many initiatives for the poor are exempted, but most federal programs faced immediate budget slashes of about one-third.

At the talks, Republicans were willing to abandon the president's insistence to lower the rates of the capital gains tax, which is charged against the profits of property sales, officials said.

Instead, they were willing to leave current rates alone and exempt from the levy increases in the value of an asset due to inflation.

But insisted that most benefits of the tax cut would go to the wealthy, Democrats were holding out for a counter-balancing tax increase on the well-to-do.

Several options were under consideration, including raising tax rates on the richest Americans and limiting their deductions.

A rate increase would represent a significant political victory for Democrats over Bush, whose 1988 campaign is best remembered for his chant of "No new taxes."

The two sides have tentatively agreed to hold defense spending to $170 billion below the amount it would need to stay even with inflation over the next five years, including a $10 billion cut next year.

The growth of benefit programs would be slowed by $120 billion, half of it coming from Medicare.

Participants in the program, which provides health care to 33 million elderly and disabled people, would bear half the cuts. Much of the savings would come from a $5.70 increase in the $28.60 payment they make monthly for doctors' coverage. Doctors and hospitals would have to swallow the other half of the Medicare reductions.

Over five years, support payments to farmers would be cut $12 billion and benefits for civil servants would drop by $14 billion.

Although not yet agreed to, it appeared likely that Social Security recipients would be hit for $20 billion in savings, either by having cost-of-living increases delayed or the taxes on their benefits increased.

Tax increases tentatively set were an 8-cent-per-gallon increase in the federal gasoline levy, already at 9 cents; a separate tax on all fuels based on their energy content; and a 10 percent tax on luxury items including yachts, furs and jewelry.

Democrats would like to boost the income tax rate on the wealthiest Americans above its current 28 percent. People who fall just below the top bracket must pay taxes of 33 percent, and Democrats would like to increase the top rate to at least 31 percent, officials said.

Hightower: FBI inquiry is politically motivated

By MICHAEL HOLMES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — The chairman of the state Democratic Party says he's angry over an FBI inquiry into campaign finance records of two of the party's candidates, Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower and lieutenant governor hopeful Bob Bullock.

"Perhaps the Justice Department and the public would be better served if they spent our tax dollars to prosecute drug dealers and savings and loan crooks and left the politics to the voters," said Democratic Chairman Bob Slagle.

Both Democratic candidates said Thursday that they had done nothing wrong and have nothing to hide.

Bullock, the five-term state comptroller, said he considered the FBI inquiry "just a routine matter" that may have stemmed from complaints of a disgruntled former employee.

Bullock said FBI agents would find nothing wrong.

Hightower said, "I resent the FBI getting into my political campaign with these kinds of overt acts of political activity. It amounts to Nixonian dirty tricks here."

But Hightower's Republican opponent, state Rep. Rick Perry, said that to him the inquiry means, "Where there's smoke, there's generally fire ... I am confident justice in all cases will be done."

FBI officials didn't return phone calls from The Associated Press.

On Monday, six weeks before the November election, FBI agent Greg Rampton obtained from the secretary of state copies of 1988-90 campaign finance reports filed by the two Democratic candidates.

Bullock's Republican opponent is Rob Mosbacher Jr., son of U.S. Commerce Secretary Robert Mosbacher. In the agriculture commissioner race, Perry has received backing from the president's eldest son, George W. Bush.

"Always, this stuff heats up right before (an election). This time, it's against the two Democrats who, according to the polls, are leading by the largest margins," Hightower said.

"Two Democrats who the administration seems most interested in getting: Mr. Bullock because he's had the gall to run against Mr. Mosbacher's boy ... Myself because I've been something of a burr under the saddle of the Bush administration on their price-busting, farm-bankrupting agriculture policies," Hightower said.

Jury convicts 16 in death of Aquino's husband

By EILEEN GUERRERO
Associated Press Writer

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — A court today convicted 16 soldiers in the murder of President Corazon Aquino's husband but failed to say who ordered the assassination which set the stage for the 1986 revolution.

The impact of the decision was further clouded by the court's acquittal of 20 people in the 1983 slaying of Sen. Benigno "Ninoy" Aquino, the country's top opposition leader at the time.

Other defendants, including a former military chief of staff, have fled the country to avoid prosecution.

The verdict in the 3 1/2-year trial was announced on the first anniversary of the death of the late dictator Ferdinand Marcos, who many Filipinos believe ordered the Aquino's slaying.

The assassination outraged many Filipinos and heralded the 1986 popular uprising that toppled Marcos and catapulted Mrs. Aquino to power.

The three-judge court sentenced the 16 convicted defendants to life imprisonment and ordered them to pay $300,000 to the late senator's heirs. It was unclear if that figure is a total or if each defendant is expected to pay that sum.

Aquino was cut down by gunfire on Aug. 21, 1983, moments after returning from self-imposed exile in the United States to challenge Marcos. He had just stepped off a China Airlines jet that brought him back to Manila to challenge Marcos for leadership of this nation.

"I think not only I, but the entire Filipino people have been waiting for the decision of the court," Mrs. Aquino told reporters after today's verdict.

Later, she said she had become frustrated by the slow pace of the proceedings and as president would refrain from "expressing my true feelings" about the verdict.

Marcos claimed Aquino was slain by an alleged Communist assassin, Rolando Galman, who was himself shot to death moments after Aquino. The 16 were also convicted in the slaying of Galman.

Marcos died in exile in Hawaii on Sept. 28, 1989.

The court said it could not convict Ferdinand Marcos and his wife, Imelda, because "there has been no evidence to prove a prima facie case against them."

Those convicted included Brig.

Corazon Aquino

Gen. Luther Custodio, former chief of the airport security command. He is terminally ill with cancer. The rest of the convicted were security guards on the tarmac of Manila's airport when Aquino's plane arrived.

Chief defense lawyer Rodolfo Jimenez said the 16 would appeal to the Supreme Court.

Among those acquitted were Rep. Jose Aspiras, former tourism minister; former Air Transport Minister Jose Singson; and Col. Arturo Custodio, former commander of Villamor Air Base.

In its summation, the court said evidence pointed to Constable 1st Class Rogelio Moreno, one of the 16 convicted, as the triggerman. But the court noted that the broader question of who ordered the killing could not be answered.

Following the verdict, Aquino's sister, Rep. Teresita Oreta, said she was disappointed that the court could not establish the mastermind.

"I would have wanted a clearer statement on who ordered the killing," she said. "These are soldiers who will not move without any orders."

Twenty-six people, including former military Chief of Staff Gen. Fabian Ver, were originally charged with the killing but acquitted in December 1985 by a court appointed by Marcos.

Six months after Marcos was ousted, the Supreme Court overturned the acquittals and ordered a new trial, saying Marcos engineered the original verdict.

One defendant died during the trial and three others, including Ver, have fled the country. Philippine law does not permit trials in absentia.

Join Us In Worship In The Church Of Your Choice

NEGLECT

This highway began to decay the day that it ceased to be used and repaired. Deterioration sets in with the onset of neglect. When a nation's spiritual life is neglected there is a possibility that nation will not long endure. Let us strengthen our nation and our society by attending church regularly and reaffirming our faith in God.

"And let us consider one another to provoke unto love and to good works: Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another: and so much the more, as ye see the day approaching." Hebrews 10:24, 25.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Assembly scheduled for weekend

"Stay Awake Keep Your Senses" will be the theme of the two-day Circuit Assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses on Saturday and Sunday at the Amarillo Civic Center Auditorium.

Richard Fetter, local minister of Jehovah's Witnesses, estimates the attendance for the assembly to be more than 1,900 delegates representing 20 congregations from the Texas/Oklahoma panhandles and northeastern New Mexico.

Paul Moske will be the assembly manager assigned to the assembly by the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society of New York. Before coming here, Moske had been serving the interest of Jehovah's Witnesses in Pensacola, Fla. Assisting him will be Alfred Nussrallah, the Circuit Overseer for this area.

Both Moske and Nussrallah have been working with the Central Terrace Congregations in Amarillo this week. At the Kingdom Hall in Amarillo, Moske said the program for both days will be designed to help Jehovah's Witnesses use and apply the Bible in their lives. One highlight will be a baptism Saturday.

Moske will be the featured speaker at 1:40 p.m. Sunday. His topic will be "Acting Wisely in a Senseless World."

The Saturday and Sunday programs begin at 9:55 a.m. and close around 3:30 p.m. All sessions are open to the public.

His Touch

By Charlotte Barbaree

Scripture: But God demonstrates his own love for us in this: While we were still sinners, Christ died for us. (Romans 5:8 NIV)

Some facts simply do not compute in my poor, meager brain. Among them are these:

How did a world full of dinosaurs disappear? How do creatures of such intimidating proportions fail to have the stamina to be fittest in the survival of the fittest? Were they a miscalculation in God's creation process, so God decided to go back to the drawing board and erase them? I wonder.

Speaking of animals, how consisting of literally millions of buffalo used to roam this very ground we now inhabit. How did a handful of buffalo hunters and settlers decimate the buffalo population to near extinction and coincidentally starve out the entire Indian nation in the process? Think of the horrendous numbers and the relatively short time span! How did that happen? And why?

Why did the whole world stand by while 6 1/2 million Jewish men, women, and children were swept up and exterminated like roaches under Hitler's regime? How does a human mind even conceive such an internecine plan, much less persuade others to participate? How did those responsible rationalize their participation? How do Holocaust survivors survive the indelible pictures in their memories? My mind can't begin to touch the horror!

Why do so many people choose to be Godless? Here we are, God's special creation, a wondrous species, created in his own image and with access to his power and provision. Why, given a free choice to be in God's holy presence both now and forever more, do most souls opt instead for eternal flames, laughing as they leap? Such a waste! I wonder why.

And the question to top all questions... why does God still love us? I listen to news broadcasts and wish I hadn't. I don't really want to know what recent mischief my fellow man has devised. Yet God knows all the degeneracy of every heart, every moment of time! How staggeringly painful such knowledge must be for a God who loves his errant children.

Wonder of wonders... God's love abides!

Evangelist to speak at Mobeetie church

MOBEETIE — Dr. Angel Martinez will preach at First Baptist Church in Mobeetie at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. on Sunday.

The dynamic Southern Baptist evangelist was born in San Antonio on Sept. 20, 1921, of Latin-American parents. His father was born in Spain and his mother in Mexico.

Martinez was converted in a Baptist mission in San Antonio in July 1935 at the age of 13 and preached his first sermon in September of the same year. He began to get invitations for revivals and has averaged more than a sermon a day during the past 56 years.

He graduated from Baylor University in 1945 with a bachelor's degree. He also graduated in 1949 from the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, Ky., and has completed more than two years' study on a law degree.

Martinez has completed the task of memorizing the entire New Testament. He is the author of eight books with eight sermons in each book. The books are Revival at Midnight, The Fountain of Youth, The Logic of Tragedy, Destiny of the Species, Crying in the Chapel, Operation Wayside, Sound of Music, and Unseen Perfume.

Martinez is married and the father of two sons, both college professors. Fort Smith, Ark., is his home and headquarters between

The congregation at Mobeetie First Baptist Church invites the public to hear Martinez at both services.

Movie depicts turmoil in family's life

Cry From The Mountain, a World Wide Pictures production, will be shown at Assembly of God Church, 500 S. Cuyler, at 6:30 p.m. Sunday.

The picture is an adventure film set in the wilderness of Alaska by screenwriter Daniel L. Quick. The story centers around the Sanders family. Turmoil fills the lives of Larry and Carolyn Sanders as a divorce seems inevitable. Cal, their son, is caught in the middle, as is an unborn child who now faces being aborted.

Larry takes Cal on a camping trip where he is to break the news that he and his wife, Carolyn, are getting a divorce. Meanwhile Carolyn, filled with bitterness and unable to forgive her husband for an intrusion of Larry and Cal Sanders, but eventually shares his Christian faith.

Wes Parker portrays Larry Sanders whose marriage is on the brink of disaster due to his unfaithfulness and his wife's unwillingness to forgive.

Rita Walker is Carolyn Sanders who is unable to forgive Larry and contemplates having an abortion.

Chris Kidd plays Cal Sanders. His father is seriously injured and Cal has to find help. The only source possible is an old hermit.

Billy Graham speaks to provide a message of hope for those who find themselves in situations of hurt from their daily lives.

Assembly of God Church invites the public to attend the movie.

Kerley to be guest speaker at church's women's retreat

The women's ministry department of Hi-Land Pentecostal Holiness Church, 1733 N. Banks, will host a ladies retreat this evening and Saturday featuring Joy Kerley of Teen Round-Up in Duncan, Okla.

Registration will begin at 5 p.m. today and services will conclude around 3 p.m. on Saturday.

"The Incredible Worth of a Woman." A video by Garry Smalley of the same title will be part of the late night events included in the services.

Hi-Land Church invites all of the women of the area to come to the fellowship.

All meals will be included in the registration. If you want to spend the night, bring a bed roll and any snacks you want for the night.

On Sunday, Kerley and her husband, Bud, will conduct the morning and evening services at Hi-Land.

Leading Bible translation undergoes revision

NASHVILLE — After 38 years as one of the leading translations of the Bible, the Revised Standard Version is undergoing a revision.

Thomas Nelson Publishers, which introduced the RSV Bible in 1952, has announced a New Revised Standard Version is now available, and is being offered in a variety of formats.

Among the offerings of the NRSV by Nelson are self-pronunciation guides, updated dictionary and concordance and a Reader's Edition including the Apocrypha and Deuterocanon.

A spokesperson for the company, Robin Patterson, noted the NRSV Bible has been authorized by the Division of Education of the National Council of Churches and that translation was done by an interdenominational panel of leading scholars.

Changes in the NRSV include careful gender-inclusive language, eliminating the "unnecessary use of words such as 'man' and 'him' in verses where the meaning applies to people in general," Patterson said.

She emphasized that the masculine gender of God is not eliminated or altered in any way.

Other changes, Patterson said, include, "Up-to-date English, replacing archaic words such as 'thee' and 'thou' with more natural language. (Also) improved style and clarity, eliminating difficult wordings and confusing sentence structures, making it well-suited for public reading and study."

A translator for the project, Dr. Bruce Metzger, said a goal of the new translation was that, "God's message ... not be disguised in phrases that are no longer clear, or hidden under words that have changed or lost their meaning."

Latter-day Saints women to meet

To share in the sisterhood of the church, Latter-day Saints women will meet together Saturday for the annual General Women's Meeting.

A member of the first presidency will address the meeting which will originate from the Tabernacle on Temple Square in Salt Lake City, Utah, and will be telecast to some 3,000 meeting houses in the United States, Canada, Puerto Rico, Haiti, the West Indies and the Dominican Republic.

Also speaking will be Elaine L. Jack Relief Society general president; Ardeh G. Kapp, young women's general president, and Betty Jo N.Jepson, first counselor in the primary general presidency.

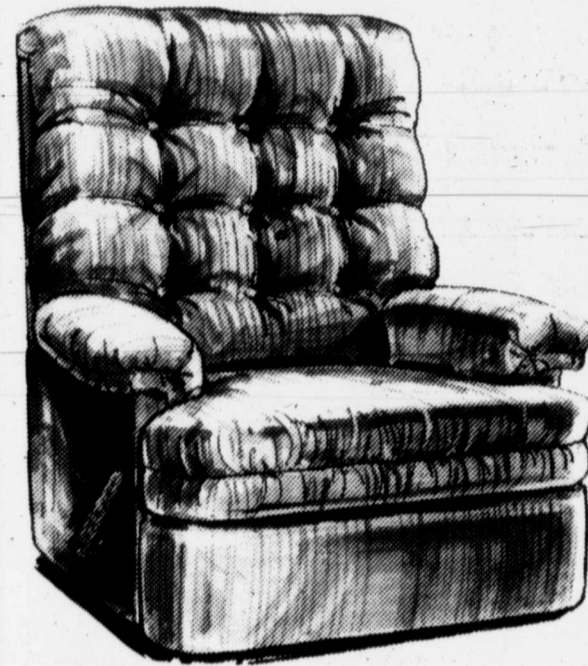

The program will be heard by satellite at the Pampa Chapel of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints at 29th and Aspen from 7 to 8:30 p.m. All member and non-member women, young women and girls 10 years old or older are invited to attend the meeting.

James Waldrop, public communication director of the Pampa Ward, said the meeting will be telecast over church satellite network with close-captioned for the hearing impaired and will be broadcast in 11 languages.

'We the Survivors' sponsor homecoming at Harrington Cancer Center in Amarillo

AMARILLO—The fourth annual "We the Survivors" Celebration and Homecoming Chapel is scheduled for Saturday, October 6 for 9:00 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the Harrington Cancer Center at 1500 Wallace Blvd. in Amarillo.

Sponsored by the Harrington Cancer Center and the American Cancer Society with support from the Meadows Foundation, the Celebration includes all who have been touched by the cancer experience. Cancer survivors, spouses, families, friends and healthcare providers are encouraged to participate in the workshops, survivorship fair and Homecoming.

This year's workshops feature Joan Hodge, RN, whose popular workshop on humor and playfulness last year promoted her return engagement. Her topic is "Adding More Sparkle to your Life."

"Guess Who's coming to Dinner: A Gourmet's Guide to Getting on with Your Life" is cancer survivor Charlotte Rhodes' workshop. Rhodes is the Director of Development at Harrington Cancer Center, and she offers workshop participants a chance to discover a recipe for life after cancer.

Professional Counselors Fred and Linda Hill will present a workshop on "Enriching Your Relationships" by improving your "person to person" skills.

A panel representing various community resources discusses support services available to cancer survivors, their families and healthcare providers. "Community Resources: Where to Find Them When You Need Them" will be moderated by Susan Hoyl, president of the local American Cancer Society Chapter. The panel includes Bill Harlan, cancer survivor, who will discuss insurance issues; Ron Atkins, RN, MSN from Hospice; Jeannie Kuhlman presenting patient resources from ACS; and Kathy Thomas, RN; BSN, protocol nurse from Harrington Cancer Center. ## Beta Sigma Phi to honor Girl of the Year at dance

Beta Sigma Phi will honor their Girl of the Year with the annual Fall Fling, a dance to be held at M.K. Brown Civic Auditorium on Saturday, Sept. 29, beginning at 9 p.m.

Each year the individual sororities that comprise Beta Sigma Phi select one woman who has performed outstanding service to their sorority during the past year. That woman is then honored with the other women at the annual Fall Fling.

Uninvited children wreck wedding reception dinner

DEAR ABBY: Recently my husband and I gave our daughter what we hoped would be an elegant wedding reception, followed by a sit-down dinner.

A cousin of mine brought her two young uninvited children, ages 4 and 6, who made a nuisance of themselves running around the cake table, screaming, laughing and playing tag while the dinner was in progress. I had to get up from my place at the table to ask them to please go sit with their mother.

Because I did not expect the children, there were no place cards for them, but they sat down first, displacing two other guests for whom I had to find other seating! (We were short two dinners, but fortunately the caterers were able to handle it.)

Abby, please, please, please, tell your readers that if they receive a wedding invitation that does not specifically include their children, they should not assume that the children are invited. It is incredible that people actually need to be told this, but apparently they do, so be a "dear" and tell them.

BRIDE'S MOTHER IN INDIANA

I complained to the owner several times, to no avail. I was simply told that I was the only person in the neighborhood who was disturbed. I spoke to some of the neighbors, and they told me that they too were disturbed by the barking but they were unwilling to sign a petition of complaint, so I had to find my own solution.

I put a new two-hour cassette tape into my recorder and set it in my bedroom window when I went to bed at 11 p.m. I turned it on and just let it run while the dog serenaded me for two hours non-stop.

The next day, I took the recorder to my neighbor's home, turned up the volume and played it for him. Believe me, I didn't have to play it very long before he asked me to please turn it off. He then picked up the telephone and called a friend who lived in the country and asked him how soon he could come and get the dog.

DEAR ABBY: When I read the letter from "Dog Tired," it brought back memories of the same type of situation I had years ago. I also had a barking dog in my neighborhood that nearly drove me crazy. The owner was a bartender who didn't get home until about 3 o'clock in the morning. Meanwhile, the dog barked at anything and everything he heard or saw moving.

The Amarillo Symphony invites all Panhandle and area students to participate in the 1991 Young Performer's Competition.

Any student who has not exceeded the age of a graduate of high school may compete. A list of the repertoire that is to be used by each student for choosing their selection for competition as well as the Official Entry Form is available through the Amarillo Symphony Office located at 1000 S. Polk or by contacting Sue McCarty, ASGYPC Chairman, at (806) 355-9667.

AMARILLO—The fourth annual "We the Survivors" Celebration and Homecoming Chapel is scheduled for Saturday, October 6 for 9:00 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the Harrington Cancer Center at 1500 Wallace Blvd. in Amarillo.

Sponsored by the Harrington Cancer Center and the American Cancer Society with support from the Meadows Foundation, the Celebration includes all who have been touched by the cancer experience. Cancer survivors, spouses, families, friends and healthcare providers are encouraged to participate in the workshops, survivorship fair and Homecoming.

This year's workshops feature Joan Hodge, RN, whose popular workshop on humor and playfulness last year promoted her return engagement. Her topic is "Adding More Sparkle to your Life."

"Guess Who's coming to Dinner: A Gourmet's Guide to Getting on with Your Life" is cancer survivor Charlotte Rhodes' workshop. Rhodes is the Director of Development at Harrington Cancer Center, and she offers workshop participants a chance to discover a recipe for life after cancer.

Professional Counselors Fred and Linda Hill will present a workshop on "Enriching Your Relationships" by improving your "person to person" skills.

A panel representing various community resources discusses support services available to cancer survivors, their families and healthcare providers. GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Socially you are likely to be popular with your peers today, especially members of the opposite gender. You'll make more points with your humor and charm than you will with your logic and reason.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Guard against inclinations today toward excess and overdoing. In some cases, you might be generous to a fault, while in other cases you could have trouble getting your purse unzipped.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) When you take time to study situations your judgment should be quite good today, but there is a possibility you might reason in one direction and act out your thoughts in another.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Boldness and assertiveness can fulfill your material aspirations today, but wishful thinking won't. You're going to have to want something intensely enough to go after it.

Pirates keep three-game lead in NL East

Magic number at 2 for Reds

By The Associated Press
 Randy Tomlin and Ron Darling don't quite see the pennant race the same way.
 Yet on Thursday night, they each played a key part as the Pittsburgh Pirates and New York Mets head for a possible showdown at Three Rivers Stadium next week.
 Tomlin was called up from Double-A ball to pitch in an August doubleheader. He has since become a part of the rotation.
 Darling, meanwhile, seems on the way out as a member of the Mets.
 "I haven't pinched myself because I don't want to," Tomlin said after beating Chicago 3-2 Thursday night at Three Rivers Stadium. "I'm a dream right now, so please don't wake me up. I didn't even think I'd be up here. I was just hoping to get to Triple-A this season."

 The victory kept Pittsburgh three games ahead of New York in the National League East and reduced its magic number for clinching the title to four.
 The Pirates, nearing what would be their first NL East championship in 11 years, finished 14-4 against the Cubs this season, compared to 6-12 in 1989. Pittsburgh plays three weekend games in St. Louis, then finishes the season at home with three games against New York.
 The Mets kept pace with Pittsburgh by beating Montreal 6-0 behind Darling's second straight quality start.
 Darling, relegated to the bullpen most of the season, gave up four hits in five innings before Bob Ojeda relieved. Both Darling (7-9) and Ojeda said earlier this week they expected to be traded after the season.

"It was nice to be back in the race," Darling said. "I wasn't really a part of the team all year, but if you're going to be part of a team, it's better now than then."
 The Expos, eliminated Wednesday, have lost seven straight games after sweeping consecutive three-game series from Pittsburgh and New York. The Expos have scored only two runs in their last 55 innings.

Pirates 3, Cubs 2

Sid Bream's sixth-inning RBI double snapped a tie.
 Andy Van Slyke added a run-scoring double and Bobby Bonilla drove in his 117th run as the Pirates swept the three-game series.
 Mets 6, Expos 0
 Daryl Boston's three-run homer off Montreal starter Kevin Gross (8-12) highlighted New York's four-run sixth inning.
 With the Mets leading 1-0, Dave Magadan opened the sixth by drawing a walk from Gross, who is winless since June 11. One out later, Pat Tabler and Tom O'Malley singled before Boston's 12th homer.

Reds 4, Braves 2
 Cincinnati reduced its magic number for winning the NL West to two by beating Atlanta on Glenn Braggs' two-run homer.
 Cincinnati was held to four hits through five innings by Steve Avery (3-10), who was protecting a 2-1 lead while pitching with a blister on his hand. But Avery walked Eric Davis to open the sixth and Braggs hit the next pitch over the left-center field wall for his sixth homer.

Phillies 4, Cardinals 3

St. Louis' Jose DeLeon lost 19 games in a season for the second time in his career as John Kruk doubled in two runs.
 DeLeon (7-19) lasted only 1 2-3 innings. DeLeon was 2-19 in 1985 for Pittsburgh.

The Red hold up two fingers signifying the magic number for winning the NL West after defeating the Braves.

Bears, Raiders early season surprises

Pro picks

By DAVE GOLDBERG
 AP Football Writer

In 1984, the Bears and Raiders met in Chicago in a game that featured the year's two Bruise Brothers. They meet in Los Angeles Sunday in a matchup of the year's two biggest early-season surprises.
 What we have here are the NFL's two stingiest teams — the Raiders have given up just 25 points in three games, the Bears have allowed 29. Both, naturally, are unbeaten.

We also have two teams that don't exactly have Joe Montana at quarterback — after Chicago's Jim Harbaugh threw for just 47 yards against Minnesota last week, Mike Ditka suggested he'd run the ball 70 times if he had to. Even with Howie Long out, that probably won't work against the Raiders.
 So the winner is probably the team that throws better. The Raiders are favored by 11/2 points, meaning the oddsmakers think the Bears may be a mite better — call it the NFC edge.

But home field advantage doesn't mean much in the L.A. Coliseum, which is likely to draw a lot of Chicago expatriates.
 On the other hand, back to the passing game — Jay Schroeder may not throw better than Harbaugh.
 But he throws it longer ...
RAIDERS, 13-10

Denver (plus 21/2) at Buffalo

The Broncos are hurting on defense — cornerback Tyrone Braxton is the latest casualty. If — and it's a big one — the Bills can remain up for two straight weeks ...
BILLS, 27-21

Miami (minus 1) at Pittsburgh

The Steelers have yet to score a touchdown on offense. Last week, the Dolphins' offense played like the Steelers. But it's hard to shackle Dan Marino two straight weeks. The Steelers may score, but ...
DOLPHINS, 24-13

Cincinnati (minus 3) at Seattle

This is the first of five straight road games for the Bengals, forced out of Riverfront until Nov. 14 by a combination of the league and the Reds. It's also a good spot for an upset as in "the league" That's not hard, there's only one other.
SEAHAWKS, 21-20.

Cleveland (plus 61/2) at Kansas City

What does it tell you that Mike Pagel is getting more work this week in the event Bernie Kosar succumbs to his own offensive line?
CHIEFS, 17-3

Green Bay (plus 3) at Detroit

Where's the Silver Streak and where's the Majik?
LIONS, 24-20

Tampa Bay (plus 71/2) at Minnesota

The indoor Vikings (even with Rich Gannon) aren't the same as the outdoor Vikings, who have lost six straight.
VIKINGS, 21-16

Dallas (plus 14) at New York Giants

It was 28-7 Giants two weeks ago in the 100-degree-plus heat of Texas Stadium and could have been 45-7 if the Giants hadn't been loose with the ball.
GIANTS, 45-7

Indianapolis (plus 13) at Philadelphia

The last time the Eagles were favored by this much was two weeks ago against Phoenix. They've learned their lesson.
EAGLES, 27-7

New York Jets (pick 'em) at New England

Neither is a powerhouse, but the Jets don't have to be. The Patriots have given up more points than any team in the NFL.
JETS, 21-19

Houston (plus 21/2) at San Diego

Run and shoot doesn't work against brute force.
CHARGERS, 20-17

Washington (minus 7) at Phoenix

It was 31-0 Redskins in Washington. That was BH — Before Humphries — at quarterback.
REDSKINS, 13-0.

Last Week: 6-8 (Spread), 10-4 (Straight up)

Season: 18-24 (Spread), 28-14 (Straight up).

SWC gets down to family feudin'

BY DENNE H. FREEMAN
 AP Sports Writer

The Southwest Conference gets down to family feudin' this weekend.

Texas Christian is at Southern Methodist in a regionally televised noon showdown to start the day off. The oddsmakers made the Horned Frogs six-point favorites.

There will be a Crosstown battle in Houston with Rice making the drive over to the Astrodome to meet the high-scoring Cougars. Houston (2-0) rated a 28-point pick over the Owls, who are 2-1.

Baylor is at Texas Tech as the Bears and Red Raiders get their conference seasons underway. Tech was a field goal favorite at Jones Stadium game.

Texas A&M and Arkansas are involved in non-conference action. The 11th ranked Aggies make the perilous trip to Baton Rouge, La., where national rankings have been shattered in the past to play Louisiana State.

The Aggies are six-point favorites although the last time they won in Tiger Stadium was by a 39-8 count in 1975.

Arkansas, trying to rebound from a loss to Mississippi, hosts Colorado State and the Hogs were 13-point favorites.

Texas is idle.
 SMU has had an extra week to prepare for TCU's "comeback kids" and may need it. The Horned Frogs have overcome deficits of 12 and 14 points in their final two non-conference games to beat Missouri and Oklahoma State of the Big Eight Conference.

SMU needed the break after opening with a 44-7 victory over Vanderbilt but losing 43-7 to Tulane.

The Frogs' last victory in Dallas was 1971.

Texas Tech will have a new starting quarterback when the Bears come calling. Redshirt freshman Robert Hall took over last week when Jamie Gill suffered a knee injury and rallied the Raiders to a 34-32 victory over New Mexico.

Houston leads Rice 15-4 in their series but the Owls have won three of the four games in the Astrodome. A&M is off to its best start since 1984. A win by the Aggies would give them their best start since Emory Belard was the coach in 1978.

Harvesters take on Lubbock Dunbar Panthers Saturday

It's still early in the season, but Lubbock Dunbar has already improved on its 1-9 record of a year ago.

The Panthers are off to a 3-0 start with wins over Randall, 26-12; San Angelo Lake View, 19-15 and Caprock, 14-0.

Pampa is 1-2, but the Harvesters have faced some stiff competition. The Harvesters opened the season with a 20-0 win over Levelland before losing to Class 5A Amarillo High, 21-16, and A&M Consolidated, Class 4A's No. 1 ranked team, 27-7.

Pampa and Dunbar collide at 2 p.m. Saturday at Lubbock's Lowry Field.

Harvesters have a strong offensive backfield, led by speedster Tygal McMullen, who rushed for 680 yards as a sophomore last year.

Quarterback Leroy Danford is adept at both the run and pass while tailback Carey Childers is a breakaway threat.

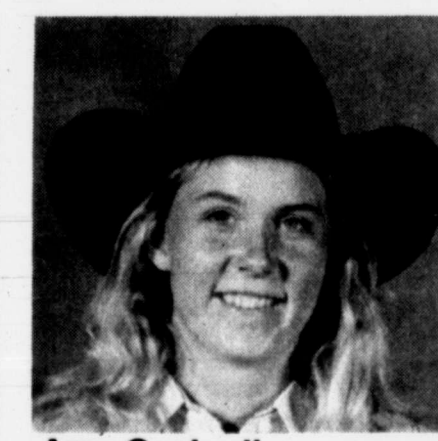

Senior tailback Quincy Williams, who rushed for 1,009 yards last season, has put together 257 yards on the ground and two TDs in three games. Wayne Cavanaugh has scored two TDs while rushing for 197 yards. Zach Thomas has rushed for 195 yards and a TD.

 The Panthers have some size, especially on defense where 240-pound Donald Douglas and 250-pound Daniel Rogers anchor the line.

The Harvesters will counter in the offensive trenches with 170-pound Scott Frazier and 170-pound Cade Phillips at guards; 200-pound Matt Clark and 175-pound Rob Munson at tackles.

Pampa is listed as a 10-point favorite by the Harris Rating System. The Harvesters won last year's meeting, 18-7.

Rockets trade Lucas to Hawks

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Rockets traded much-traveled guard John Lucas and hobbled center Tim McCormick to the Atlanta Hawks for guards Kenny Smith and Roy Marble.

For the Rockets, the key player in Thursday's deal is the 6-3 Smith, the sixth selection overall in the 1987 draft out of North Carolina.

Smith, 25, was traded from Sacramento to Atlanta midway through last season and appeared in 33 games. For the year, he averaged 11.9 points, but slipped to just 7.7 points with the Hawks.

"We are pleased to be able to acquire the services of Kenny Smith, a former lottery pick and a member of the NBA's All-Rookie team," Houston General Manager Steve Patterson said. "This trade gives us tremendous depth and flexibility in the backcourt."

Smith will join veteran Sleepy Floyd, mid-season acquisition Vernon Maxwell and unsigned rookie Dave Jamerson, Houston's top draft pick, in the Rockets' backcourt.

Patterson said the deal also included unspecified future considerations for both teams.

In Marble, suspended beginning Feb. 22 for violating the NBA's substance abuse policy, the Hawks gave up a 1989 first-round draft choice out of Iowa.

Before his suspension, which cost him 30 games, he averaged just 2.1 points in 24 games although he was the all-time leading scorer at Iowa and the 10th-highest scorer in Big Ten history.

Lucas, 36, winding up his third stint with the Rockets, was waived by the Rockets twice earlier in his career after testing positive for drug use.

Overall, he has 14 years in the league with six teams, including Golden State, Washington, San Antonio, Milwaukee and Seattle. He is ninth on the all-time NBA assists list with 6,454.

McCormick, 28, played two seasons with Houston, averaging 4.6 points in 99 games. He missed most of last season because of two knee operations.

Schintzius skips Spurs session

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — San Antonio Spurs coach Larry Brown says he's worried about the lax work habits of first-round draft choice Dwayne Schintzius, who missed this week's mandatory NBA rookie orientation.

The league's annual orientation in Dallas was Monday through Wednesday. Schintzius reportedly was one of 54 rookies who skipped the session.

"He just gave the same kind of excuses. I really don't want to say anything about it," Brown told the San Antonio Express-News in today's editions. "It's very hard to understand."

Spurs players attending the orientation included rookies Tony Massenburg and Sean Higgins and second-year player Sean Elliott, an orientation speaker.

"Some things came up and I couldn't get there," Schintzius said. "But I'm really not supposed to comment on it. Once I talk to the league I'll be able to say more. Believe me, it's nothing serious."

Brown said Schintzius also needs to concentrate more on getting into shape. "He works good for three days and then takes four days off," Brown said. "I'm disappointed but I'll still want to see how he does in (veterans) camp."

Training camp begins Oct. 5.
