Unrest In Cuba Anti-Castro Acts Increase

HAVANA (UPI) — New anti-government violence was reported today in central Cuba, northwest of the rain drenched mountains where troops led by Premier Fidel Castro himself are said to be battling guerrilla forces.

In Oriente Province, a Castro-led force of 2,000 to 3,000 troops and militia were said to have clashed with guerrillas led by ex-Maj. Manuel Beaton in the Maestra Mountains near Palma Soriano.

Other reports from the area said Castro's troops, slopping through seas of mud, were trying to encircle Beaton's band, said to number about 40 men.

Two other guerrilla bands, numbering about 85 men in all, had been reported in action near the logging town of El Uvero and in the vicinity of Baiguat.

Anti-government activity also had been reported in the Cristal Mountains along the coast north of Palma Soriano, once the hide-out of an anti-Batista band led by Castro's brother Raul.

None of these reports was either confirmed or denied by the government, which has cloaked the situation in central and eastern Cuba in a veil of secrecy reminiscent of the security precautions Batista used to conceal details of his army's operations against Castro's rebels.

Truman Remains Silent On Choice

NEW YORK (UPI) — Former President Harry Truman held his silence on presidential preference today long enough to declare "The Republican papers" and "The Kennedy papers" and Adlai Stevenson to get the Democratic nomination.

There was no further indication from Truman's remarks whether his statement about the "Republican papers" meant he himself is cool to Kennedy and Stevenson and the ex-president went right on to deny he had decided for Sen. Stuart Symington.

CHOOSING A SKIMMER — Mayor Ed Myatt couldn't seem to make up his mind today which style straw hat to buy as he proclaimed tomorrow "Straw Hat Day" in Pampa. "Off with the felt and on with the straw" will be the theme tomorrow come cold, rain or shine as city clothes open up and display their racks of light headgear. (Daily News Photo)

Slaying Admitted By Illinois Ex-Con

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — Police today checked the story of an Illinois convict that he joined in a murder-for-hire slaying of a St. Louis student 16 months ago.

Pullock was found shot to death Dec. 17, 1958, in front of the St. Louis city art museum in suburban Forest Park.

Murphy identified a man named Herbert L. Lorts as the trigger man in the Bullock murder. Lorts was shot to death last May 17 in a police duel after a holdup.

St. Louis Police Chief Curtis Bronston said both Murphy and Lorts had been suspects in the case.

Bronston said Murphy told him several months ago that he and Lorts were hired by an unidentified person to kill Bullock. Murphy had said Lorts was to do the actual shooting while Murphy established an alibi in Cleveland, Bronston said.

But Murphy, who was paroled from the Missouri Penitentiary in June, 1958, after serving 20 years of a life sentence for murder, was arrested in Chicago a week after the Bullock killing for the $20 robbery of a taxi driver. He was sentenced to six years in Stateville Penitentiary in Joliet, Ill.

Bronston said he talked to Murphy at Stateville, where the convict told him he met Lorts in Chicago after the Bullock murder and accepted $7,000 in stolen money as payment.

Murphy told Bronston he was over Bullock's $64,500 in insurance. "I was in a bind," he said. "I was trying to get out of the jail house before the cops came."

Bullock's widow, Edna Ruth, and his aunt, Mrs. Walter Duerbeck, have been battling in court since Mrs. Bullock, who has since remarried and lives in Kansas, was questioned extensively during investigations into the murder, one of the most baffling cases in St. Louis police history.

Daniel's Tax Plan Secrecy Miffs Cox

By PAT CONWAY
United Press International
Jack Cox threw a one-two punch at Gov. Price Daniel Thursday night charging the chief executive has seldom been the leader Texas needs and criticized him for keeping his tax plans secret.

Cox, trying to upset Daniel's third term bid in the May 7 Democratic primary election, made a live speech at Laredo and a television speech broadcast in Houston.

Meanwhile, Sen. A. M. Aikin Jr., of Paris, who ran against Lt. Gov. Ben Ramsey in 1958, announced his support of Ramsey, who has called a halt to campaigning for the weekend to spend Easter with his family.

The attorney general's race continued at a torrid pace with House Speaker Waggoner Carr accusing incumbent Will Wilson of having a "record of neglect of duty" and letting the crime rate in Texas reach an all-time high.

At Laredo, Cox criticized Daniel for saying he has five different tax plans to help solve the state's financial problems, and not revealing them.

Price Daniel says he wants to keep his proposals out of politics, Cox said. "In other words, he doesn't want the people of Texas to base their votes on his tax program."

In his television speech to be broadcast over other areas of the state, Daniel said he has five different tax plans to help solve the state's financial problems, and not revealing them.

Price Daniel says he wants to keep his proposals out of politics, Cox said. "In other words, he doesn't want the people of Texas to base their votes on his tax program."

Pilots Lose Tickets For Cuban Flight

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Aviation Agency said today it has revoked the pilot licenses of two American fliers who were shot down and captured in Cuba after making an unauthorized flight from Florida.

The FAA said it was "exercising its rarely used emergency revocation authority" against the pilots, William Sbergalis and Howard Rundquist. Both are still held by the Castro government.

Revocation of the certificates was effective April 12, the FAA said. The pilots, both residents of Florida, took off from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., on March 20, made a stop-over on a Bahamas Island and were shot down in Cuba on March 21.

Peugeot Child Is Home Unharmed

Capture Of Kidnapers 'Imminent'

PARIS (UPI) — Four year old Eric Peugeot was returned safely to his family early today and police, hampered by thousands of Easter travelers, threw a vast dragnet across Paris for his abductors.

There was a momentary flurry at midday when the official French news agency flashed an announcement that police had captured the boy's abductors — two men and a woman. But police promptly denied the report. Further developments were awaited.

Eric, tiny heir to a multi-million dollar French automobile fortune, was released shortly before 12:35 a.m. after his father paid $100,000 ransom in gold coins. How it was handed over remained a secret.

The chubby-cheeked, blond little boy was found by a laborer not long after midnight. He was crying, standing in the street in front of a Paris cafe only three blocks from his home in the plush Passy area.

Taken inside the bar, the youngster was asked who he was. "My name is Eric Peugeot and I live at 170 Avenue Victor Hugo."

The bar patrons burst into spontaneous cheers. Police and his family were notified. The youngster was safe and 54 hours of terrible anguish were over.

The kidnapers, the little boy said, were very nice to him and let him watch television. "They did not do me any harm," he said.

Eric's father, Roland Peugeot, vice president of the vast Peugeot automobile and steel empire, admitted he paid money to the kidnapers. (See CHLD, Page 3)

Pontiff Issues Plea To World

By DANIEL F. GILMORE
United Press International
ROME (UPI) — Pope John XXIII expressed his hopes for "a just and lasting concord between all people" and peace and prosperity for the United States in a Good Friday message to the American people today.

His recorded message was released to American broadcasting stations on the most solemn day of the year for the Christian world, commemoration of the death of Christ on the cross.

The Pope knelt barefooted before a crucifix in the Rome basilica of St. Mary Major today to lead the world's half-billion Roman Catholics in the observance. Bells were silent and altars stripped bare in token of mourning.

The central part of the ceremony is the adoration of the cross. The Pope walks barefooted to the cross, kneels three times, and kisses the feet of the crucifix. Cardinals dressed in purple mourning follow him in the adoration. They then take communion.

Not until midnight Saturday will the bells be set to ringing out the Easter news that Christ has risen from the dead.

The Pope's message was addressed specifically to American Catholics, but he sent his greetings to the entire population.

"We greet, with the affection of our paternal heart, the entire American people, towards whom we cherish sentiments of warm benevolence and admiration," the message said.

"This message reaches you in America on the day when Christian peoples are commemorating the passion and death of the Savior of mankind. We wish to assure you that in our daily prayers we beg our Lord to pour forth His blessings and the abundance of His redeeming grace upon each one of you and upon your families and dear ones.

"And as we fervently beseech him to grant a just and lasting concord 'between all people,' we (See PONTIFF, Page 3)

Storm Front Expected In State Today

By United Press International
Spring thunderstorms were expected to break out in Texas again today. A funnel cloud gave residents in a northeast Dallas county anxious moments late Thursday before it disappeared without causing harm.

Southerly winds fanned Texas today and light drizzle fell at College Station. Laredo reported .30 of an inch of rain.

The stormiest weather in the state Thursday cranked over Dallas county although a 3.24 inch rain fell at Perrin Air Force Base, near Sherman.

Dallas county deputy sheriffs said the funnel cloud appeared about 5:45 p. m. between Garland and Rowlett in extreme northeast Dallas county. It quickly moved southeastward into Kaufman county without touching the ground.

Earlier, hail the size of golf balls was reported at Mesquite, Zipp City and Balch Springs. Dallas city bus, occupied only by the driver, skidded out of control during the height of a thunderstorm. It sideswiped a parked sports car and rammed into two utility poles.

Power, telephone service and fire alarm circuits were disrupted in the area for a brief period. The storm in Dallas produced more lightning and thunder than actual rain. The heaviest amount of moisture recorded was .40 of an inch.

At Mesquite, golfball-size hail smashed automobile windshields. More than three inches of rain fell in the Sherman area Thursday. Amarillo received almost an inch and a half Wednesday.

A twister struck in the community of Concord, Ark., 10 miles north of Fort Smith on the Oklahoma-Arkansas border late Thursday and injured three women.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Army's top chemical officer has told Congress that just 10 enemy planes or rockets could spray enough germ warfare agents on this country to knock out 30 percent of the population.

Underlining this potential threat, the Army said Russia is placing a big emphasis on biological and chemical warfare. One-sixth of the hardware and munitions the Soviets have lined up against the West in Europe falls into this category, the Army said.

The testimony was given behind closed doors last month to the House Defense Appropriations subcommittee. A heavily censored version of the transcript was made public today.

Rep. Daniel J. Flood (D-Pa.) said the testimony indicated the United States may have overlooked the importance of chemical, biological and radiological (CBR) warfare in its anxiety over the "missile gap."

CANDIDATE — Former President Harry S. Truman, feeling in "excellent health," takes his traditional morning walk in New York. Asked if he might be persuaded to run for president again, he replied: "There's an old woman who keeps following me around named Anno Domini ('The Year of Our Lord') and she's going to count 76 this May."

U.S. Wide Open Perils Of Germ Warfare Explained

"There can be no intelligent debate about the fact that there is a shocking and appalling great big wide CBR gap, is that not true?" he asked.

Maj. Gen. Marshall Stubbs the Army's chief chemical officer, replied that he agreed.

Stubbs testified that it would be practical for an enemy to attack this country with CBR weapons. With 10 planes or rockets each loaded with 10,000 pounds of a dry biological warfare agent, he said, "we feel a potential enemy would get at least 30 per cent casualties in the total of the United States."

Daniel Orders Blast Probe

HOUSTON (UPI) — Gov. Price Daniel today ordered a full-scale safety investigation of the Crown Central Petroleum Corp. plant where two men died in a steam explosion on Wednesday.

The order came after state Rep. Bob Eckhardt failed in an attempt to inspect the plant Thursday morning. Eckhardt said R.T. Colquette, vice president of the Crown Petroleum, refused to let him enter the plant.

Daniel said he would have his civil defense and disaster relief officer, Jim Garner, make a "thorough investigation" of the Crown plant.

"In fact, I want an investigation made of the entire ship channel area," the governor said. "We must see that everything is done to help prevent repetition of some of the disasters we've had along the ship channel recently."

Robert Jim Lee, 49, of South Houston and Raymond T. Maxwell, 40, of Houston, were killed instantly Wednesday when a condensate drum on which they were working blew up in their faces.

Two other men were seriously injured and several more suffered minor burns and cuts in the explosion. At the time of the explosion Crown officials locked all gates leading into the plant and barred both police and newsmen from entering.

Nixon's Gradual Popularity Decline Alarms Republicans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon's present batting slump, as recorded by public opinion polls and primary votes, comes six months later than was expected by Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

It was known that the New York governor had expected Nixon's standing in the public opinion polls to slip last fall from the peak the vice president reached after his 1959 trip to Russia.

If that judgment had stood up, Rockefeller probably would have made an open bid for the Republican presidential nomination. Instead, he announced immediately after Christmas that he would not be a candidate. His action left Nixon virtually without competition.

While the meaning of comparative votes in party primaries can be questioned, Nixon did not make an impressive showing in the Wisconsin and Illinois balloting if his vote is compared with that received by Democrats.

One manifestation of GOP restiveness has come in pressure on Nixon to be more active and compete with Democratic presidential hopefuls in the headlines.

Nixon has resisted this pressure, largely on grounds that proper timing calls for improving his standing in the polls, not now, but during the autumn election campaign.

If the present trend continues, starts after the convention and then the polls take on some meaning, Dirksen said.

Nixon's campaign strategy. His 1952 pre-convention campaign to nominate President Eisenhower, is specializing that a major drive to draft Rockefeller could come as late as mid-July if the Democrats nominate a ticket which looks tough to beat.

The Democrats open their convention July 11 and the GOP convenes two weeks later. Senate GOP Leader Everett M. Dirksen (Ill.) Thursday endorsed Nixon's campaign strategy.

There have been recent signs of restiveness among Republicans as public opinion polls have shown Nixon falling behind Sen. John F. Kennedy, leading contender for the Democratic nomination.

Nixon's standing in the public opinion polls to slip last fall from the peak the vice president reached after his 1959 trip to Russia.

If that judgment had stood up, Rockefeller probably would have made an open bid for the Republican presidential nomination. Instead, he announced immediately after Christmas that he would not be a candidate. His action left Nixon virtually without competition.

May Plug Gambling Pipelines

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Judiciary Committee today prepared legislation designed to cripple gambling crime syndicates by snipping their lines of communications.

The bill would make it a federal offense to use telephone or telegraph wires to transmit gambling information across state lines. It would set up the legal machinery for denying such communications to convicted gambling operators.

The FBI and Justice Department are helping to write the legislation.

Rep. William C. Cramer (R-Fla.), one of those promoting the legislation, said he hoped a bill would be ready for introduction in the House "in the near future."

House members from Florida and Ohio are pushing the measure.

Cramer said committee legislative specialists were threading their way slowly through the complex constitutional issues raised by the proposed legislation.

"This approach is fraught with many constitutional problems," he said. "It's a very difficult area in which to try to legislate effectively."

Staff members were studying a bill drafted by Stark County, Ohio, Prosecutor Norman J. Putman to deny telephone-telegraph facilities to holders of federal gambling stamps.

Pair Charged With Car Theft

A charge of car theft was filed against two Berger youths this morning after they admitted stealing a car belonging to Gulf Oil Corp., taking it north of Pampa and removing the transmission and drive shaft.

Chief of Police Jim Conner said William Leslie Hargis, 19, and Roy Lee Gunter, 18, admitted the theft to Berger police officers after being arrested there last night. The car was stolen March 12 from the residence of Martin Stubbe, 1718 Hamilton.

Conner said the two also admitted the theft of two carburetors and a generator from cars in Pampa.

Sentenced For Aggravated Assault

DANIEL'S

He said Daniel has "seldom been the real leader that Texans expect to find in the Governor's chair."

"He doesn't like the responsibility of the governor's office . . . whenever a tough problem arises, his first reaction is to appoint a committee," Cox said.

He said it is one thing to seek counsel.

"But it is quite another thing to try to shift the responsibility for decision on other people," Cox said.

Daniel made a non-political speech at Houston Thursday and planned to go to his ranch at Liberty today to spend the Easter weekend with his family.

Alkin said he would support Ramsey for another term of office "because he has always demonstrated a high degree of ability, leadership and unquestioned integrity. Even when we were opponents I found him clean and fair."

Don Yarborough, Ramsey's opponent, talked to Houston oil producers Thursday.

"The 15-cent price cut in East Texas crude oil is a blow not only to the independent producers and refiners, but also to the whole state of Texas," Yarborough said. He added it was time for Texas to quit standing by while other states increased oil production.

"The time has come for Texas to resume her leadership in the oil industry in the protection not only of her own interests but for the protection of the oil industry of the whole nation," he said.

Carr spoke at Waco, and accused Wilson of being a part-time attorney general.

He said Wilson has a "record of neglect of duty while he has been busy trying to get together the support and courage to run for governor."

"The crime rate in our state has gotten out of hand and has reached an all-time high," Carr said. "Texas needs an attorney general who will give full time to the job to which he is elected."

No Highway Deaths In Area

Members of the Pampa office of the High Patrol investigated 22 rural accidents in Gray County during March, according to Sgt. E. G. Albers.

In making the announcement, the sergeant reported 11 property damage and 11 injury accidents. He said there were no fatal accidents during the month. In the accidents, 21 persons were injured, and $16,625 property damage caused.

This brings the total for the year to 35 injured and property damage to $37,995.

The highway patrol supervisor pointed out that the motoring public can improve the traffic record by doing two things — drive defensively and always be alert.

"In driving defensively we help the other driver to not only save his life, but help him save our own lives," he concluded.

MATURE PARENT

In the beauty parlor mirror we look at our image—and for a moment we are really scared. Our operator has insisted on giving us the new hairdo—the new, up-sweep to the back and top of the head. In the mirror our neck seems longer; our head has acquired a strange, sleek elegance. Shocked—we realize that we have cheek bones. We are still struggling with astonishment when another operator pauses to comment on the new hairdo—'tres chic. Suddenly, a little nervously, we feel it may be. We get up, pay our bill and leave.

At home our husband is delighted with us. So is our son. But in the kitchen as we turn to greet our 16-year-old Betty, she stares then shrieks with laughter:

"Holy cow, who do you think you are? Oh, mother, if you knew how ridiculous you look! Don't you know you have to be a fashion model to get away with that hairdo?"

We are horribly hurt. During the dinner the hurt turns into resentment at Betty. We think:

"How cruel she is! The young really think that anyone over the age of 30 should be dead. How anxious this child of mine is to get me up on the back shelf!"

And some of us at this point stop. We find our resentment at Betty so uncomfortable that we let it send us upstairs to destroy the new hairdo and resume the old one.

But some of us don't stop at this point. Instead, we trust our resentment, letting its tensions have their way with us. So when they have become uncomfortable enough, a fine thing happens: We suddenly discover ourselves thinking:

"Why, Betty isn't the person who's made me feel like a fool! I am that person. I am the one who has been despising myself as too old to want to look attractive—and all Betty, poor child, has done is to turn the light on this cruel and secret self-contempt! Goodness, how mean I am to myself. How quick I am to step on my own, any ambition, any joy in myself! I really must consider this despicable in me."

"What we combat in others is usually our own inferior side," writes, world-noted psychoanalyst C. G. Jung. "Everything that is unconscious in ourselves we discover in our neighbor."

And so we confuse our daughter's criticism with the critic in ourselves who's been whispering all afternoon, "Holy cow, who do you think you are?"

DEAR ABBY....

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I know I shouldn't write this letter but, Abby, I have to be honest with myself.

What can I do about being ashamed of my parents? Both my father and mother are fat and my mother doesn't have any idea about how to dress. I am really ashamed to have my friends meet them. Help me, Abby. I have tried to tell them in a nice way but it is hard for a 16-year-old girl to correct her parents.

ASHAMED OF PARENTS

DEAR ABBY: You can surely tell your parents that if they trimmed off the extra poundage they would feel better and live longer. (If you can get them to a doctor for a "check-up"—He will tell them.) As for mother's clothes: If she is style-conscious and receptive to suggestions, go shopping with her and help. If she isn't don't worry about it. Let her wear what she wants. What your mother has "against her" won't be held against YOU.

DEAR ABBY: Three weeks ago at a fellow I work with asked if I could lend him a five until pay day. I gave it to him and nothing has been said about it since. Do you think he has forgotten?

SOFT TOUCH

DEAR ABBY: Not yet. But give him time and he will.

DEAR ABBY: You had a letter in your column from a secretary who complained because her boss expected her to dust his desk and the filing cabinets. I clipped the piece from a set of office rules. They were in effect in a Carriage and Wagon Works, in 1872.

"Employees shall daily sweep the floors, fill lamps, clean chimneys, whittle pen nibs to individual taste, take off one night a week for courting, and if they're thrifty, faithful, faultless, attentive to religious duties, and stay out of jail, they will be given an increase of 5 cents per day after 5 years. That is if profits justify it."

DEAR ABBY: I have been a widower for four years. I met a fine respectable widow and we plan to be married in the near future. My children are married. They have met this woman and like her very much.

When I invited my children to the small dignified marriage ceremony we plan to have, they re-women who put off exercises until tomorrow have had it. Now it is too late to firm stomachs and hip muscles for a better look in shorts and bathing suit. However, if you start with proper exercises immediately you will be in better shape for the closing of your next week.

GUEST NIGHT — Mrs. W. H. Fuller, Mrs. Lois Fagan, Mrs. Ramon C. Wilson, and Miss Rosemary Lawlor were hostesses for Pampa Piano Teacher Association's Guest Night Tuesday evening in the home of Mrs. Fuller, 1727 Evergreen. The Easter motif was carried out in the table decorations.

Mrs. W. E. Miller

STATE OFFICER — Mrs. W. E. Miller of Canyon, state vice president of Texas Congress of Parents Teacher, will address the fifth annual spring conference of the 19th-District to be held in Borger April 25-26. Mrs. Miller will be the featured speaker at a banquet in Hotel Berger, 6:30 p.m. on April 25, and will address the assembly again on April 26. A state officer, who has served as president of a local unit, as district president and on various committees on all levels, Mrs. Miller, a former teacher, will bring to the conference an understanding of the importance of home and school cooperation made possible by parent-teacher associations. Pampa units are naming their voting delegates to the conference and urging as many of their members to attend as possible, according to Mrs. Julian Key, Pampa City Council PTA president.

Composer Prokofieff Program Topic For Pampa Piano Association Guests

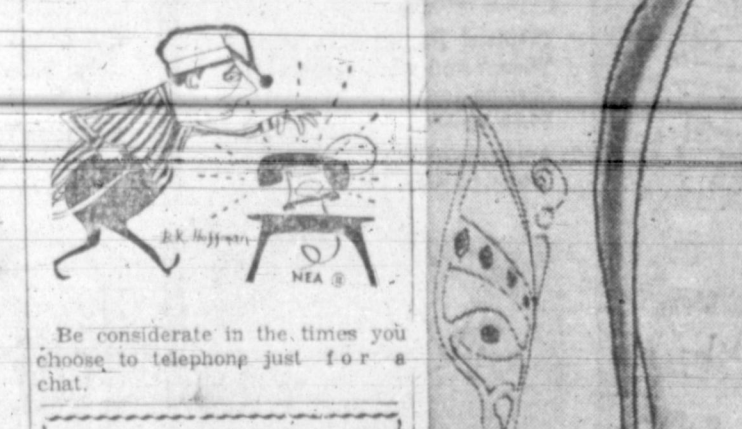

Pampa Piano Teachers Association held its annual guest night Monday in the home of Mrs. Fuller, 1727 Evergreen. The program opened with group singing of "Texas, Our Texas," followed by a welcome to guests extended by the Association president, Tracy D. Cary. During the evening's program, Mrs. E. B. Alleman, program chairman, gave a biographical sketch of Prokofieff, his life and musical compositions. Mrs. Fidel Yoder discussed the coming of Prokofieff to America. A two piano arrangement of "Ballet Cinderella" was presented by Mrs. Lois Fagan and Mrs. Yoder and Sonata No. 7 was presented by Miss Johnnie Mitchell, both compositions are the work of Prokofieff.

The program was concluded with two appropriate Holy Week songs by Miss Rosemary Lawlor, soloist, accompanied by Mrs. Fagan at the organ. The refreshment table was covered with a yellow taffeta cloth with an overskirt of yellow net accented around the scalloped hemline with sprays of tiny yellow roses. The table was centered with a nest of grass encircling a Bunny sitting on multi-colored Easter Eggs. Flanking this arrangement were two crystal candelabra, held six yellow tapers. Mrs. Fagan, chairman of the social committee, presided at the silver service.

Mrs. Monroe WMU Hostess

GROOM (Sp) — Baptist Women's Missionary Union met recently in the home of Mrs. Eulice Monroe for a Royal Service program. Following the program, refreshments were served to Meses. Bill Burgin, Charles Banks, Danny A. Ford, Charles Brown, Jack Bivin, M. Henderson, Rudolph Tucker, Charley Field, Donald Ritter, Bobby Cornett, Dennis Hewitt, Carey McDaniels, R. A. Snyder, Jeff Gray, and Viola Harrell. It was announced that "Mend Day" will be held April 19. It was requested that anyone having clothing to donate for missions to please leave them at the Baptist Church before the April 19 date.

Mink Status Symbol For US Matrons In Germany—It's The Washing Machine

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

BERLIN (UPI) — The mink coat may be the status symbol for the U.S. woman, but for the Berlin housewife it's the washing machine. I talked with two housewives—one from West Berlin, the other from the Eastern or Soviet sector—and found that labor-saving devices which we accept matter-of-factly still are longed-for possessions to them. But they don't resent our having such conveniences as roller-presses, refrigerators, freezers, garbage disposers, dishwashers, and washer-dryer combinations. Enjoy U. S. Progress. Mrs. Franz Lucow, a 57-year-old widow who lives in a two-room apartment in the Soviet sector, put it this way: "we just enjoy the way you have progressed."

"Well, I could live without the fur coat, but not without the washing machine," said Mrs. Lutter Richter, an attractive blonde of 34, wife of a laboratory assistant, and mother of an active lot of two named Christina.

Actually, Elizabeth Richter doesn't yet have the washer—she said she and her husband have been saving for it and a washer-dryer combination "is on its way." The Richters' three-room apartment in West Berlin is equipped with a refrigerator, but no freezer.

Few women need the latter, she explained, because anything comparable to a U.S. supermarket is a rarity in Germany. Women market almost daily on foot or with bicycle instead of storing a week's supply.

Works As Maid
Like Mrs. Richter, Maria Lucow does her own housework and, three, sometimes four, days a week comes by trolley to West Berlin to work as a housemaid. Her husband, a wheelwright, was killed in World War II, and she is helping to educate her only son, Adolf Ernst. He is studying economics at the free University of Berlin.

"It is unusual for us to have any appliances in East Berlin," she said. "They are just not on the market... you have to wait sometimes six months. But these are promises more will be available."

Attending were Meses A. W. Merrell, Jim Waterfield, Charles Teas, Horace Rivers, Bob Lewis, J. B. Reid, Jr. and Ted Rogers.

Mrs. Cleveland Is Hostess To Circle
CANADIAN (Sp) — Circle 1 of First Methodist Church met in the home of Mrs. J. L. Cleveland recently.

The devotional was given by Mrs. Jim Waterfield and the topic "Cuba" was given by Mrs. Charlie Teas.

Attending were Meses A. W. Merrell, Jim Waterfield, Charles Teas, Horace Rivers, Bob Lewis, J. B. Reid, Jr. and Ted Rogers.

There's A Fortune In Rubbish For Man With A Use For Junk

By WARD CANNEL
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK (NEA) — Oklahoma: grab your wheelbarrow and shovel. There's money in the streets. Or, more precisely, in the garbage pail. And it's just waiting for somebody with an idea.

At least that is what some of our citizens of industry report, namely:

1. The Lead Pencil Manufacturers Association last year turned out 1.5 billion pencils. They were sharpened 17 times, surveys show, and the erasers were hardly used at all.
2. This leaves approximately 10 million board feet of fine incense cedar and about 250 tons of crude or synthetic rubber rewaiting for somebody to cash in. If you want his boodle, an LPMA spokesman says, you'll find an average of 33 stumps in the average household — some of them near the telephone.
3. Last year, the can manufacturers celebrated the 149th anniversary of canning by turning out approximately 42 billion units. These contained everything from luncheon to toothpaste, and used more than 4.5 million tons of steel.

U.S. Pledges Funds To Save Ancient Relics

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has voted to let the United States spend foreign aid funds to help save tombs and temples dating from the dawn of history.

The committee tentatively agreed Wednesday to let the United States participate in a major international program to preserve ancient historical treasures along the Nile-River in Egypt and the Sudan.

The tombs and temples will be covered by a lake 300 miles long when the Aswan High Dam is completed in about five years.

Egypt and the Sudan have asked scientists the world over to help unearth the treasures of antiquity before it is too late.

The committee approved an amendment to the foreign aid bill which would permit the U.S. government to contribute up to one-third of the cost of the big international program.

It has been estimated that the proposed explorations and excavations might cost up to 90 million dollars. Other nations are being asked to help also.

Washington Window

United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Somebody should pass a happy miracle postponing income tax day until Nov. 8, which is election day.

This is income tax time. To combine income tax day with election day might prod the chumps among the voter-taxpayers to think before they vote.

If the chumps are able to think at all, they should think on election day about the free ride the politicians promise them in the campaign which leads up to election day. This free ride is not free, of course.

There aren't any free rides for the voter-taxpayers, including the chumps. The chumps are happy in their madness, however. They accept without thought or analysis the promises of the politicians that the rides are free. The politicians give the chumps some credit for gumption, of course. Probably too much.

However that may be, the politicians do not attempt to persuade the chumps that free rides are really free—that no one pays for them. The politicians fear that even the chumps among the voter-taxpayers are too smart to swallow that.

What the politicians tell the chumps and expect them to believe, is this: That the free rides are free to the chumps because somebody else will pay for them. Sometimes the politicians become free to the chumps that the rides are free because they are paid for by Uncle Sam.

The chumps believe this and happily vote for free rides for themselves on the foolish belief that Uncle Sam is somebody else. Uncle Sam is all of the chumps among the voter-taxpayers and all the smart ones rolled together. Uncle Sam is us, you, me and everyone else. Whatever the promising politician promises to give to you or to me or to anyone else for free will be paid for by us. There is no such thing as a free ride just as there never was such a thing as free lunch.

There are some citizens who live moderately well by getting something for nothing. Citizens, for example, such as bank robbers, embezzlers, pan-handlers and the like.

But these citizens are looked down upon because they transgress the laws of the land and impose gross and undue hardships on their victims. The prom-

Medicine Plant Inspection Plan Outlined By Professor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A college professor proposed today that the government station inspectors in all medicine plants to ensure "pure, wholesome drugs, properly manufactured and of the correct strength."

Dr. Solomon Garb of Albany, N.Y., medical college said it was "intolerable" that Americans could buy government-inspected dog and cat food and not government-inspected drugs.

He made the statements in testimony prepared for Sen. Estes Kefauver's (D., Tenn.) Senate Anti-Trust and Monopoly subcommittee which is investigating whether drug prices are excessive.

Garb said the assignment of government inspectors to drug plants would save patients hundreds of millions of dollars because doctors would be willing to prescribe medicines by their generic name rather than their brand name.

The professor also said that studies at Albany Medical College held that the majority of mailed drugs were "unreliable to the extent that a physician trusting them could be seriously misled."

Other congressional news:

Gambling: The House Judiciary Committee drafted legislation to cripple gambling syndicates by denying them telephone and telegraph facilities. The bill would make it a federal offense to transmit gambling information across state lines by phone or telegraph and would set up legal machinery to deny these facilities to gamblers.

Rep. William C. Cramer (R-Fla.), a backer of the legislation, conceded a delicate constitutional question was involved.

Research: The armed services are conducting research on what happens to dental fillings during space travel, how soldiers react to lack of sleep and whether sunburn can be prevented by a pill. The projects were disclosed today in closed-door testimony published by a House appropriations subcommittee.

Ores and metals represent between six and eight per cent of the value of all world trade.

Driver Unaware Bus Kills Boy

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — For school bus driver Lawrence Tucker it looked like just a routine day — he drove his rounds, went home and had dinner with his wife.

Then he got a shock. Authorities told him that his bus apparently struck and killed a 5-year-old boy Thursday.

The Summit County sheriff's office said witnesses reported seeing David Conner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Conner of Green Twp., alight from the bus at an intersection near here.

They said David, going home from kindergarten for the Easter recess, appeared to pick up a piece of candy he dropped after he got off, when the bus started up and hit him.

He was dead on arrival at Akron's St. Thomas Hospital.

Tucker, 53, who lives in nearby Uniontown and drives for the Green Twp. School Board, told deputies "I didn't know I had an accident."

The coroner ruled an accidental traffic death. Authorities were still investigating.

Rev Earl Maddux, Pastor
Fellowship Baptist Church

Why seek ye the living among the dead?
LUKE 24:5, 6

And as they were afraid and bowed down their face to the earth they said unto them, why seek ye the living among the dead?

Not only at Easter time but every day of the year it is time to tell about the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the grave.

Do you know that christianity is the only historic faith which presents a living Savior? Every religion in the world was founded by some man who died and has stayed dead, and this is in subjection to something greater than himself and his creed.

I. Only Jesus Christ rose triumphantly over death. True christianity centers around a Living Risen Saviour.

The resurrected Jesus said to his disciples, Luke 24:44,47, "These are the words which I spake unto you, while I was yet with you, that all things must be fulfilled, which were written in the law of Moses, and in the prophets, and in the psalms, concerning me."

And that repentance and remission of sins should be preached in his name among all nations."

II. The Resurrection of Jesus Christ from death is the only basis of hope for our resurrection from death.

Jesus declared, John 6:38, 40, "For I come from heaven, not to do my own will, but the will of him that sent me."

And this is the will of him that sent me, that every one which seeth the Son, and believeth on him, may have everlasting life and I will raise him up in the last day."

III. Apart from our faith in the resurrected Son of God, any other religious faith is powerless to save.

The Gospel — 1 Cor. 15:1

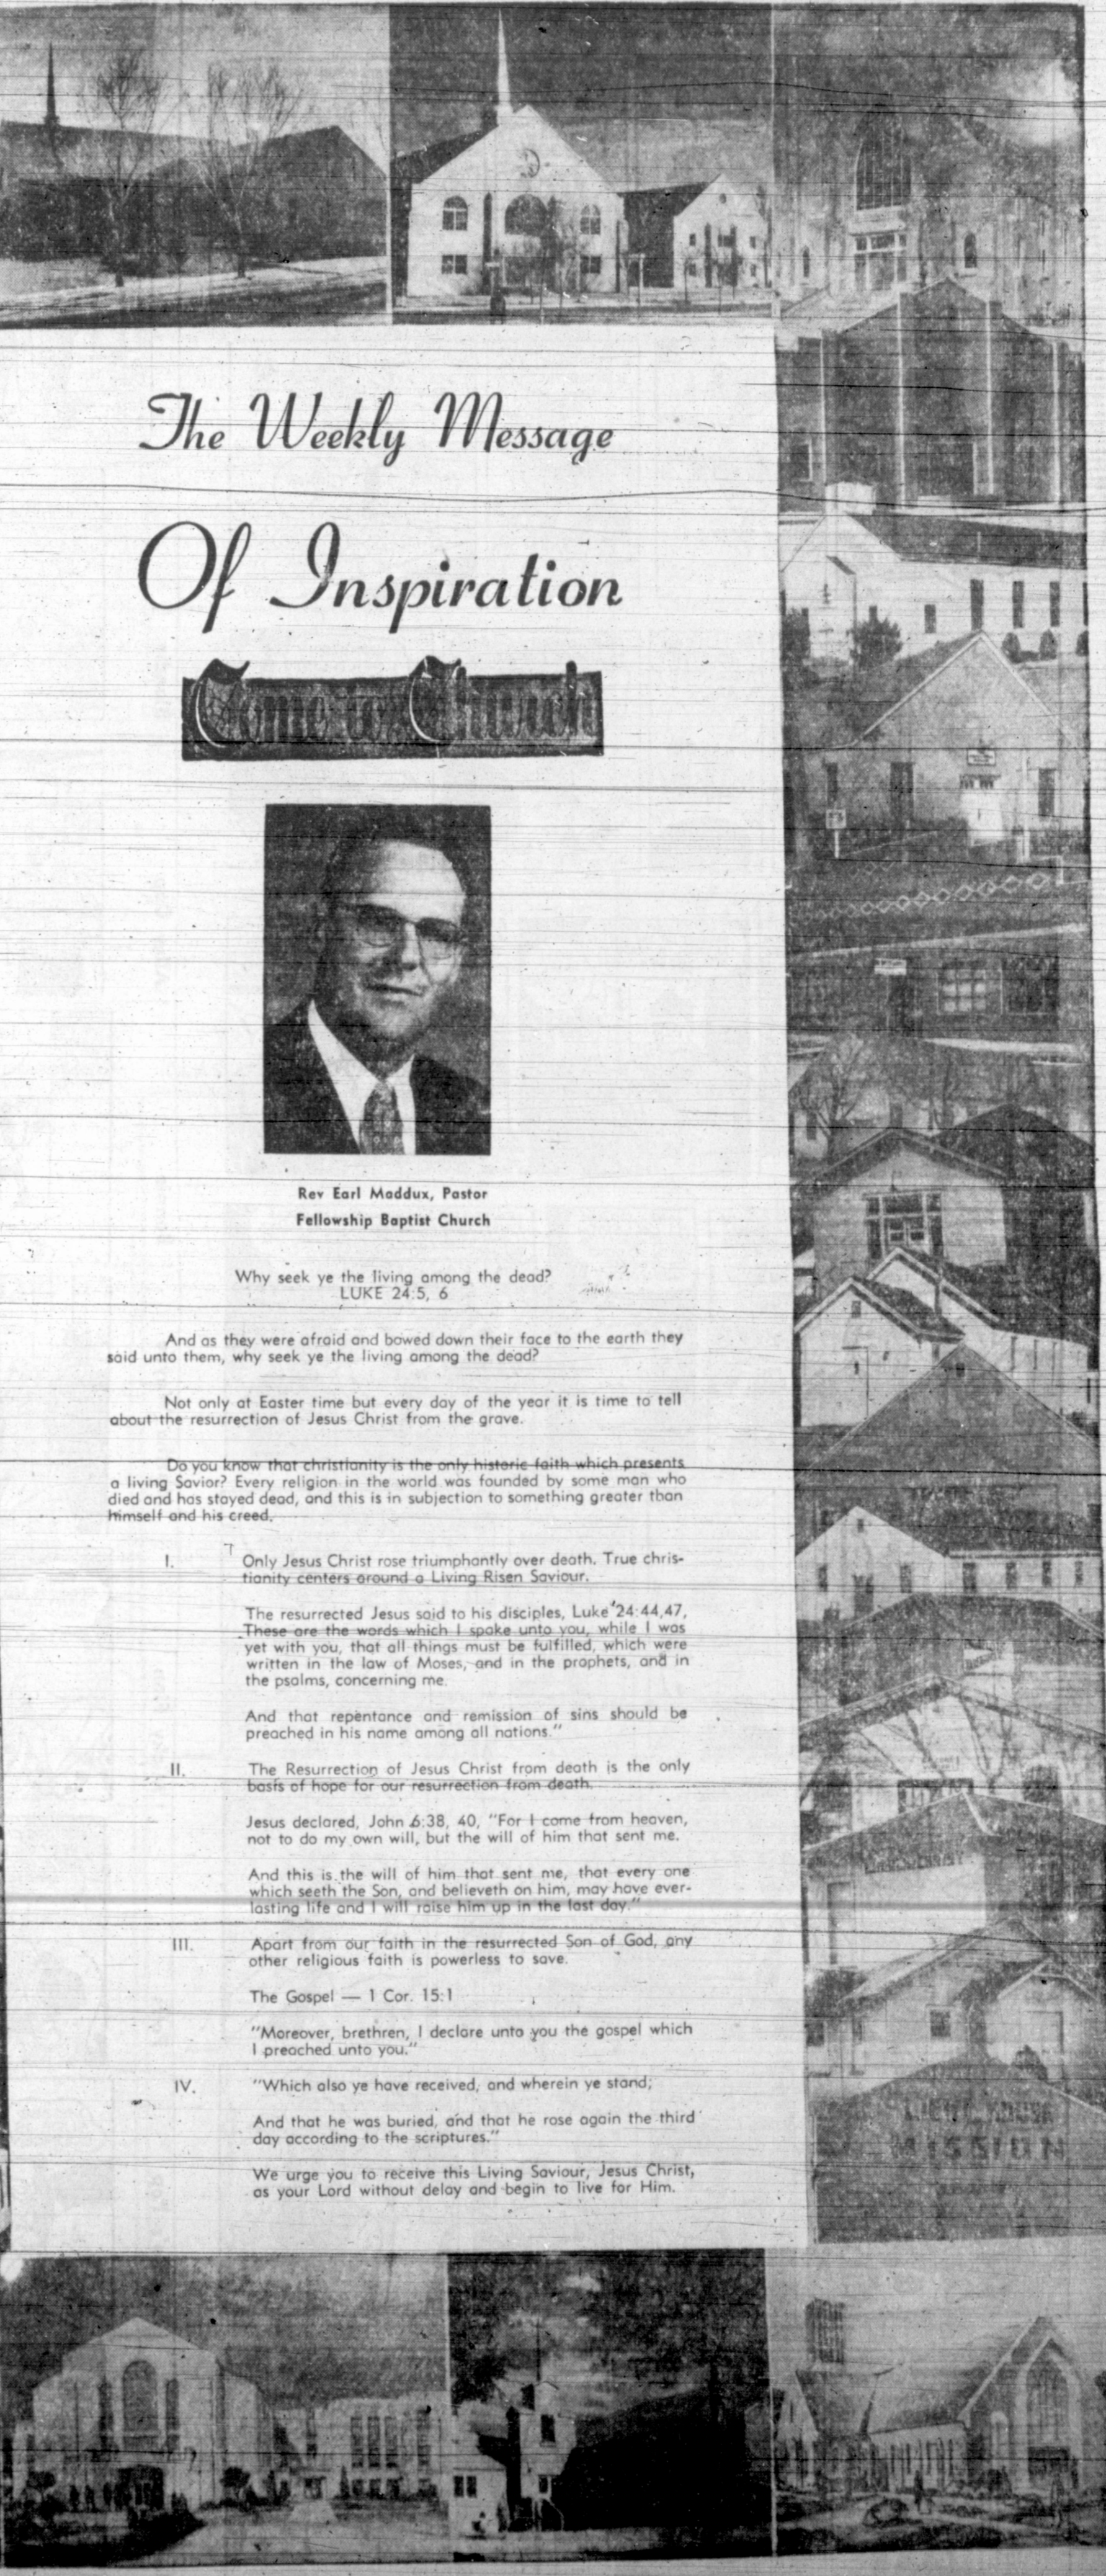

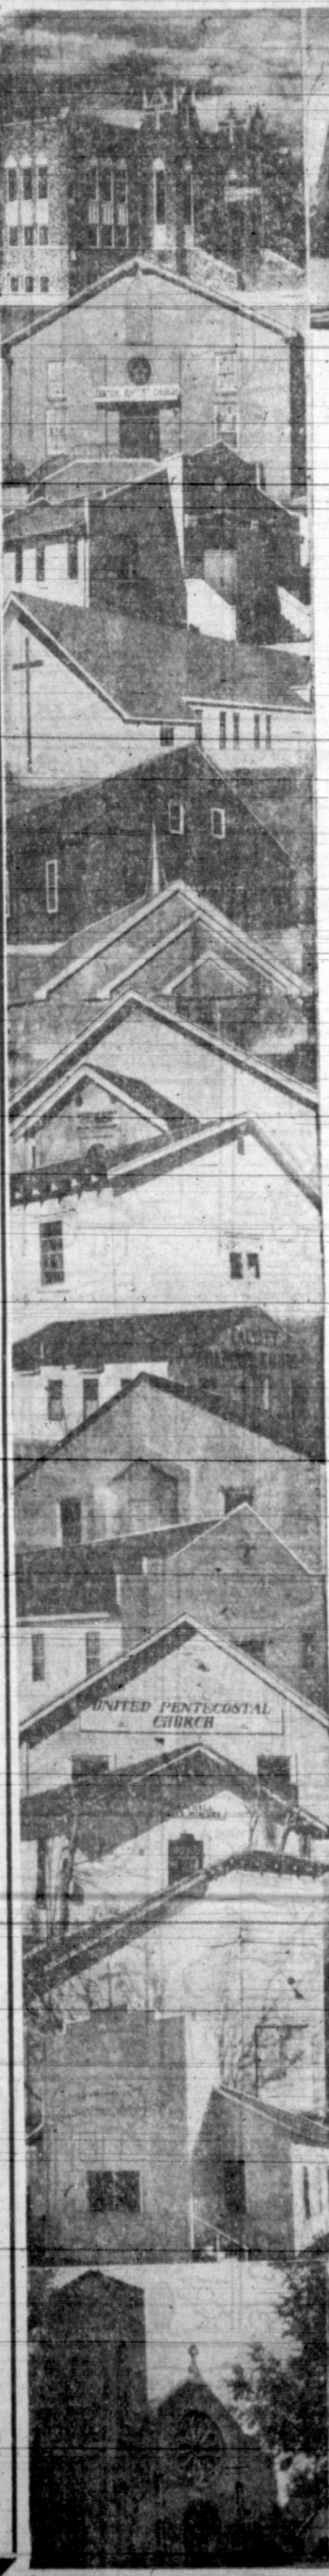

"Moreover, brethren, I declare unto you the gospel which I preached unto you."

IV. "Which also ye have received, and wherein ye stand;

And that he was buried, and that he rose again the third day according to the scriptures."

We urge you to receive this Living Saviour, Jesus Christ, as your Lord without delay and begin to live for Him.

Quotes In The News

By United Press International
MONTREAT, N.C. — Evangelist Billy Graham, discussing racial discrimination in a dispatch written for United Press International:
 "The Supreme Court can make all the decisions it feels are necessary, but unless they are implemented by good will, love and understanding, great harm must be done. I am equally convinced that 'Jim-Crow' must go."

EAST LIVERPOOL, Ohio — Judge Samuel M. Chertoff, a member of the Jewish faith, telling prisoners in the city jail they can go home for Easter weekend if they promise to return to jail Monday:

 "Jail is no place for anyone on Good Friday or Easter."
NEW ORLEANS — Runaway heiress Gamble Benedict, now Mrs. Andre Porumbeanu, unconcernedly admitting that her grandmother might dishonor her for eloping with her Romanian-born lover:
 "I imagine she's pretty annoyed with me and it's quite possible..."
ALBANY, N.Y. — Gov. Nelson

A. Rockefeller, discussing an editorial in the Denver Post urging Republicans to organize a "draft Rockefeller" movement:
 "I don't think a movement in that direction will develop."

SENATE FEARS SNEAKS

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — The Mississippi Senate Thursday rejected a proposal that sheriffs be allowed to make secret payments to persons informing them of violations of the state's prohibition law.
 "Some sneak might turn us all in for having a pint of whiskey in the house," Sen. P. M. Watkins argued. "We would end up hating maybe 75 or 80 people and not know who it was."

Weather Repertoire Played

By United Press International
 Turbulent spring weather touched all the bases today with record heat in Washington, tornadoes in Arkansas, snow and hail in the Pacific Northwest and ice on the St. Lawrence Seaway.
 Missouri officials added a footnote to disaster by appealing for federal aid to their floor-scourged state and small fires blackened hundreds of acres of tinder-dry brushland in southern Indiana.
 More snow was predicted today for the northern Rockies and thunderstorms were expected to drench a vast area from Texas and Louisiana to the Canadian border of Minnesota and Michigan.
 Three tornadoes dipped into Arkansas, damaged five houses and several farm buildings and slightly injured three women.
 Two women were injured at Concord, near Fort Smith, when the twister unroofed their home and whipped the house 100 feet off its foundation.
 A third woman was injured at nearby Dyer and two homes were damaged 60 miles away, at Norman.
 Snow, hail and thunderstorms left a path of felled trees and power lines and caused thousands of dollars damage as they ripped through the Willamette Valley in Oregon and invaded the northern Rockies.
 Winds up to 62 miles an hour uprooted traffic signals at Eugene, Ore., and toppled a four-story training tower for firemen, injuring three men, before hitting Seattle and Western Washington with 25-mile-an-hour gusts.
 A 40-foot coast guard picket boat foundered in wind-whipped waves near the Seattle harbor. All three men aboard were rescued from the water.
 A 7-year-old boy was knocked out when a big maple tree fell on a car at Salem, Ore. Another lad suffered a broken leg when gusts knocked him from his bicycle at Alameda, Ore.
 The cherry blossoms bloomed a week late at Washington, D.C., where 90-degree temperature readings broke the old April 14 record of 88 set in 1941. Thursday night's low of 62 was only two degrees below the average daily high for this time of year.
 St. Lawrence Seaway officials at Massena, N.Y., said ice in the

World Pole Vault Record Could Be Set At Dallas

DALLAS (UPI)—J. D. Martin of Oklahoma was expected to easily break the pole vault record in the quadrangular Dallas Invitational Track and Field Meet tonight in his bid for the 16-foot mark. Only last Tuesday he went 15 feet, 9 1/2 inches to equal the unrecognized world mark set three years ago by Bob Gutowski of Occidental. And so far, he has broken a record in every indoor or outdoor meet he's entered this year.

ALPINE, Tex. (UPI)—Sul Ross exploded for six runs in the first inning Thursday and went on to rack up a 12-6 victory over Texas Tech.

World Pole Vault Record Could Be Set At Dallas

The other first place, in the two-mile run, was expected to go to Jan Ahlberg of Southern Methodist. Texas AM was not expected to make the winner's circle. Meet officials said records in eight events other than the pole vault are in danger of falling. Bob Ringo, Mike Lindsey and Gail Hodgson, all of Oklahoma, are threats to the half mile, shot put and one mile run marks, respectively.

Left-Hander Leads Greensboro Open

GREENSBORO, N.C. (UPI)—Thorne Wood, a left-handed golfer from Asheboro, N.C., led a field of 128 today into the second round of the $17,500 Greater Greensboro Open golf tournament.

10 PHS Tracksters In Mustang Relays

Other Pampans entered here are Gerald Ben and Jimmy Boyles, 880-yard run; Bill Cooper, pole vault and low hurdles; Steve Dobbin, 440 and mile relays; and 440-yard dash; Roy Dyer, 440 and mile relays and high hurdles; Billy Hughes, mile run; Sherrill Miller, 100-yard dash, 220-yard dash, 440-yard relay, broad jump.

Left-Hander Leads Greensboro Open

The fact that a lefty topped the field was a rarity and Jim Gacquin, PGA field secretary, said it was one of the few times a left-hander has ever led a PGA-sponsored tournament. Wood, who stands 6-1 and weighs 160 pounds, slashed five off par Thursday with an opening-round 33-33-66. He attributed his low score to a superb putting performance. He sank a 25-footer for an eagle three on the 453-yard par five 18th hole.

Sawyer's Resignation 'Real Shocker'

Gene Mauch To Take Over As Phil Pilot

By RUSS GREEN
United Press International
PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Philadelphia Phillies, still shaken by the surprise resignation of Manager Eddie Sawyer, awaited the arrival of new skipper Gene Mauch today to take over as the third pilot of the club in three days.

Sawyer, the only two-time manager of the team in its 57-year history, resigned with startling suddenness Thursday. Coach Andy Cohen led the Phillies to a 10-inning 5-4 victory in Thursday night's game with Milwaukee, and the peppy Mauch was scheduled to reach Philadelphia from Florida today.

The club's front office, beginning with President Bob Carpenter through General Manager John Quinn and right down to the team itself insisted that Sawyer's decision was a bolt from the blue, a real shocker.

Quinn, awaiting the early afternoon arrival of Mauch, who left as manager of Minneapolis to take over the Phillies, said he rode in from Cincinnati on the plane with Eddie. We sat together. We had dinner together. We picked up our luggage together. There was never an inkling of his decision.

He had asked Sawyer to reconsider during the phone call of resignation and commented he would still be the manager if he wanted to.

Quinn also said there was no disagreement between Sawyer and him on personal matters, adding, "I never interfered with any manager and I never will."

The Phil's general manager, who recommended Mauch for his managerial job at Atlanta, ticked off the reasons for his choice over Mauch in the Phil's chain in the face of the newcomer's minor league record of a third place finish with Atlanta and second and third in two seasons at Minneapolis.

"He gets along with people and will get along with ball players," Quinn said, explaining why that was no reference to reports that Sawyer had lost the confidence of his team.

"Mauch was not a great ball player but he gave 100 per cent of what he had and he was always trying to improve himself. He paid attention to whomsoever he played for," Quinn continued.

"He learned all phases of the game. He wants to do well—and he won't do it halfway. He has great ambition, desire and determination."

Quinn added, "More than 1 among baseball men share the opinion that he is one of the better young managers coming along in the game."

Canadiens In 5th Straight Cup Victory

TORONTO (UPI) — "Next year we do it again."

Those were the first words uttered by Montreal goalie Jacques Plante after the Canadiens swept to an unprecedented fifth straight Stanley Cup championship Thursday night by blanking the Toronto Maple Leafs, 4-0.

"Every time we win that cup it's a new and funny feeling," Plante added as his happy teammates drenched him in champagne. "It's never the same."

"You're so right, Jacques," Montreal defenseman Jean Guy Talbot said. "And next year we do it again, huh."

Winning the Stanley Cup — emblematic of the world profession at hockey championship — is getting to be "old hat" to most fans. But not to the Canadiens.

Like the baseball Yankees of old, these Flying Frenchmen from Quebec never tire of the sweet smell of success.

In breezing to this year's cup championship, the Canadiens became only the second team in the 42-year history of the National Hockey League to sweep eight straight games. The Detroit Red Wings were the first to turn the trick in 1952.

Montreal knocked off the Chicago Black Hawks in four straight in the semifinal round and then repeated the stunt against the Maple Leafs in the title series.

The Canadiens won Thursday night's clincher with the same quick-striking attack that stamped their three earlier victories over Toronto.

Avila Optioned To Mexican League

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Holdout Bobby Avila, meant it when he vowed to stay home all summer.

The 33-year-old Mexican native has been optioned to the Mexico City Tigers of the Mexican League after failing to reach a salary agreement with the Milwaukee Braves.

Avila arrived here Wednesday night and said the optioning was done at his own request.

Winner of the American League batting title in 1955 when he hit .343 for Cleveland, Avila spent 12 years in the major leagues. He played with Baltimore and Boston as well as Cleveland and Milwaukee.

Avila, used chiefly as a pinch hitter last season with the Braves, was placed on the major league restricted list recently when he did not sign his contract with Milwaukee. The Braves then agreed to assign his contract to Louisville of the American Association, from where he was optioned to Mexico City.

Cohen Does Great As Phillie 'Manager'

By MILTON RICHMAN
United Press International

It was short and sweet for interim Manager Andy Cohen of the Phillies, who comes down from cloud nine today and goes back to the coaching line again.

Cohen waited 30 years for a crack at a major league managerial job and when he finally got it, through a strange combination of circumstances, he certainly made the most of it.

Out-sticking Charlie Dressen, he led Philadelphia to a 10-inning 5-4 victory over Milwaukee Thursday night and if nothing else, Cohen can always say he "retired" as the most successful manager in Phillies' history.

In case you've never heard of Cohen, he's the same fellow John McGraw dug up to play second base for the Giants in 1924 when McGraw wanted to give New York fans their first look at a Jewish ball player. Now 55, Cohen was hired as a coach by the Phils this year and was delegated to lead the club Thursday night a few hours after Eddie Sawyer suddenly quit as manager.

Cohen knew he was simply a stop-gap until Gene Mauch, the Phillies' new pilot, could join the club from Florida. But he did a job that would have made McGraw proud.

The Braves jumped in front with three runs in the first inning when Hank Aaron slammed a two-run homer and Joe Adcock followed with a solo blast. But the Phils battled back and tied the score at 4-4.

Bobby Del Greco, who had homered earlier, walked to open the 10th and stole second. Jim Coker flied out and Cohen then sent up Ted Lepcio to hit for pitcher Don Cardwell, whose homer tied the score in the sixth. Dressen countered by bringing in Bob Giggie to relieve Juan Pizarro.

Not to be out-done, Cohen replaced Lepcio with left-handed hitting John Callison, who was purposely passed. After all that master-minding, Joe Koppe singled home the winning run. Alvin Dark of the Phils collected his 2,000th hit when he singled during a three-run sixth.

The Dodgers handed the Cardinals their third straight loss 3-2; the Cubs inflicted the first defeat of the season upon the Giants, 6-5, and the Pirates crushed the Reds, 13-0.

Gil Hodges drove in the tying run for the Dodgers with a triple in the ninth and then scored the winning one on Bob Duliba's wild pitch. Ken Boyer and Duke Snider each hit homers. Ed Roebuck relieved starter Johnny Podres in the eighth and was the winner. Duliba, the Cards' fourth pitcher, was the loser.

A wind-blown-pop-fly double by Frank Thomas in the ninth scored Bob Will with the winning run for the Cubs after the Giants had tied the score at 5-5 on Willie McCovey's three-run homer in the eighth. Orlando Cepeda and Willie Kirkland also hit homers for the Giants while Ernie Banks hit the eighth grand slam of his career for the Cubs. Don Elston was the winner and Billy O'Dell the loser.

The American League still is playing exhibition games. Baltimore defeated Kansas City, 3-0; Detroit defeated Washington, 2-3; Cleveland topped Boston, 5-1, and New York beat the Richmond farmhands, 15-10.

Democratic Concept

Pitarch tells us that one of the mottoes which sprang into common usage during the ascendancy of the democratic idea in Greece was "Abstain from beans."

To the ancient dweller in the Attic peninsula, this motto had a precise meaning. It recommended the abandonment of the political arena.

The Greeks customarily voted by the use of beans. One signified his choice of candidates—on the ballot box.

But the use of this motto carried more than a simple admonition to stay away from the polls. It also signified to the astute Athenian, Spartan or other dweller in a city-state, that problems are not solved by majority decisions. And since, in modern times, so much credit is given to the Greeks for having made use of the so-called democratic ideal, it might be worthy of a bit of study to find out why a people supposedly devoted to majority decisions actually made use of a motto which counseled a contrary course of action.

The fact of the matter was that the more astute of that time, particularly those of the Stoic school, but not excluding Epicureans, Platonists, began to sense the utter folly of the democratic concept and to avoid it in all possible ways.

Unfortunately for Greece, and her admitted intellectual brilliance, the democratic concept is one of the most difficult to put to rest. When the citizens at large have the power which the ballot conveys, they are loath to set it aside. And this is invariably true when they once get the taste of subsidy administered to them by their own clamor at the voting booths.

The unthinking, the indolent and the idler, the ballot box can become little different from a horn of plenty. Let a want be felt, a supposed need arise, and nearly with one voice the voting masses will rush to the ballot box and cast their votes in favor of relief administered to themselves.

Since governments, in fact, have nothing but since they are all popularity machines, so ordered that they must respond to the voice of the masses, the government receiving a mandated mandate for subsidy must hasten to provide it or be swept aside.

And now the confusion really commences. For the government, wishing to obey the vox populi, can only turn to plunder as a device to satiate the appetites of the howling voters. The only question over which a government long ponders at this juncture is of its victims, size and location of its victims. And since the world is so ordered, the result invariably reduces itself to self-plunder, self-destruction. There are never enough victims beyond the borders of one's own state. Even if they are brought under the yoke and drained of their resources, such gains by force are quickly consumed. In the end, it is the citizens of the very government which is trying to please its own citizens, who become the victims, as well as the recipients of the heavy hand of bailed majorities.

At least some of the better Greeks saw thru the picture. And they admonished their fellows. "Abstain from beans." Keep away from the majority-making process. Alas, for Greece, they could not acquire the needed self-discipline. Their innocence, and something-for-nothing, the accepted way of life to a great horde before a more disciplined and vigorous people conquered and enslaved them.

Our problem today is that we learn so little from history.

Political planning, political management and political price fixing are the immediate results of the government's interfering in the free market. When a group subjects itself to this type of government regulation, it loses a great deal of freedom, and as more and more groups request such management, the nation becomes less dedicated to freedom than to the bureaucracy of socialism.

There are examples aplenty to show what we're talking about. We need not go outside our own state to find cases of political planning, but as an example probably a recent move-up at Orville, Calif., will best serve the purpose.

Last November the Orville Planning Commission requested to recommend a plan which would prohibit the construction of a service station within 1,500 feet of another station. This idea certainly was not hatched in Orville; it's been around for a long time, and presumably, some cities have adopted it.

As is generally the case in planning, the Orville promoters of the service station scheme hid the true meaning of the proposal behind some goals which the public nearly always can be expected to approve. The promoters said that the ordinance was based on public health and safety.

What the advocates were trying to do of course, was limit the supply of service stations so that those already in business would not have to worry about competition.

Their plan failed, partly because of the obvious dishonesty of the campaigning. The opposition pointed out to the Orville planners that surveys made by such organizations as the National Fire Protection Assn., National Board of Fire Underwriters, the National Safety Council and the American Petroleum Institute show that a service station probably is the safest occupancy in the community.

And so the planning commission took no action on the proposal to limit service station construction in Orville.

So far as political management is concerned, all we have to do is point to the farm program to show what difficulty it brings to just about everybody with the exception of those big farming corporations that seem to get the most money out of it. Everybody can give you an example of how somebody found, a loophole in the farm program and made a killing. One of the latest has to do with rice acreage contracts. The regulations state that only so many acres may be devoted to growing rice. But some Texas rice growers have discovered that they can grow two crops in one year, and the government controls do not prohibit it.

There are some groups who steadfastly refused government controls and among them are the cattlemen.

The government should not be in business to "provide a living for any individual; we Americans don't believe in subsidizing inefficiency," declared Bruce Christensen, president of the California Cattlemen's Assn. at the association's annual convention in Burbank.

In the matter of political price fixing, those connected with the dairy industry have had some experiences. Most of the dairymen backed the state's interference in their marketing of dairy products. Now, however, a group of them want the state to disperse with the annual practice of lowering the price on milk in the spring. But they have been turned down, and they are doing some shouting about it. They asked for it.

In the guise of "social reform," the do-gooders are pushing their programs, and with the adoption of each of them we lose that much of our freedom. The greatest danger to the United States lies within the nation's borders.

by R. C. HODGES
Capitalism With A Crippled Price Mechanism

Melchior Palyi in his booklet, "A Lesson in French — Inflation," under the heading of "The Balance Sheet of French Stabilization" explains how difficult it is for capitalism to operate with a free market or with subsidies or restrictions.

And since subsidies and interference with a free market are the cause, to my mind, of our dollar rotting, our cost of government going up, our almost continuous war, and our decline in knowing the difference between right and wrong, I want to mention what I think is the start of our trouble.

Our first harmful subsidy, it seems to me, started when we began to subsidize "education," and that started about 100 years ago in each community, and it spread from the center outward. This subsidy of "education," instead of helping the child to better know the difference between right and wrong, made it almost impossible for him to recognize right from wrong. This is true because tax-supported schools are based on the fallacy that two people out of three have a right to do what none of the three would contend he had a right to do as an individual.

In other words, the fallacy is that you can be in voluntarism and involuntarism at the same time; that you can believe it is right to steal and right to live by the sweat of your brow at the same time; that you can believe that a bad tree can produce good fruit; that you can promote goodwill from initiated force.

And when people so believe, they try to do it to palliate the evil results and not go to the primary cause of their trouble—the belief that you can serve idols and principles at the same time. That's what got France in trouble, and that's what is getting the United States in trouble.

Under the above heading Palyi writes:

"The true scope of the recent French monetary and fiscal reform has been little understood in Europe, still less in America. For instance, in 1928, all that mattered was to balance the budget, to stop monetization of the public debt, and to return to gold convertibility of the currency. (The budget was actually overbalanced for the four years, 1927-1931). For De Gaulle, convertibility is a remote goal, genuine budget balancing perhaps even more so. Stabilizing the budget deficit and the external value of the franc are the prime agenda. At the same time they are means to an overriding objective. What is now a chief objective, was scarcely even a remote possibility thirty odd years ago: the restoration of the price mechanism.

"By a myriad of devices, techniques, the French price system and income distribution had been effectively distorted, until even the semblance of competitive markets had almost vanished.

"The semi-automatic Welfare State has nowhere been more fully, more scientifically, and more disastrously developed than in France. Before De Gaulle came into power, as a result, French prices had lost contact, more or less, with the world markets and with domestic costs. Costs, labor costs in particular, had lost contact with labor efficiency, even with the cost of living. Between 1963 and 1967, Parisian wages went up 27 1/2 fold while the cost of living index rose by 83 per cent. Wage rates rose by 101 per cent. Distortion of incentives and mis-allocation of resources into protective 'hedged' in lieu of productive investments (characteristic of noninflationary times) became rampant. The combination of over-expansion in some sectors and under-development in others was one of the earmarks of France's great 'recovery.' Legitimate profits ceased to bear a rational relation to risk incurred or value produced; with costs, prices, and profits divorced from the supply-demand equations, the survival of unfit business and farms became an unwritten imperative of national policy.

"An intellectual setback went hand in hand with the acceptance of the 'recovery' brought about by the cumulative psychological impact of economic immobilities, frictions, lags, and disequilibria. Within a generation's lifetime, French economists and businessmen, to say nothing of the bureaucrats, have seemingly forgotten the principles of the market place. They have lost their sense for the ability of the free market to provide the optimum of output, of consumer satisfaction, and of distributive justice. Among intellectuals, the Keynesian gobbledygook reigned supreme. Here was a prime reason for lack of resistance against inflation: fear of the 'free' market if the shackles of bureaucracy were thrown off. Nor was the popularity of being enterprised enhanced by being identified in the public mind with the profiteers of inflation, war, black markets, government

Fair Enough

Papagos Oblivious To 'Outside World'

by WESTBROOK PEGLER

TUCSON — The Papago Indians have a good reputation as a family of the human race. Their white neighbors in the southwestern part of Arizona respect them as peaceful, amiable working men and women. They are about as honest as white people—no more or less so. But Caucasians who know particulars of their life in today's world generally believe they should be protected from vino and roigut booze.

The police records of Tucson, Pima County and the Sells Reservation show a pathetic score of arrests—for drunkenness. Women are almost as weak as men. Teen-age girls turn up in a few boozing dens in Tucson on their paynights and drink themselves into coma. Chastity is not as precious in their scale as it is among average Caucasians. Loss of virtue is no great calamity, so infamously, pregnancy and venereal infection are common. White women who predominate among their friends—can do little more than wring their hands and wail quietly. Some years ago an elderly doctor, an Austrian, who had served a long time as a dedicated man in the hospital at San Xavier Mission, near the Tucson airport, told Mrs. Ferd Itzweier, a rancher in cattle and colton, that he had no real hope.

The Papagos speak very little except to communicate to a windjammer against rum. It is unlikely to rise among them, Mrs. Itzweier, a widow with many papago personal friends who call her Sally, insists that the state, county and city could help by harassing the divekeepers under existing laws and adopting new laws. She and a few others of her mind and bent deride the proposition that Indians have no special weakness for alcohol. Of course they have.

She has seen reality for 25 years and the people are cordial, confident and trustful when she goes among them, even on Saturday nights in the dirty dumps where Papagos are ruined. Some get drunk and lie where they fall, even in the roads. A middle-aged Papago woman who works as a home-maker and laundress in a home has been arrested 20 times in ten years. Her husband's score is about the same. They go to jail without the slightest embarrassment or inconvenience except loss of pay. The woman is called Juana because her name is Juana, the feminine Juan, which means John. Johnnie went to her white woman who has employed her for 10 years, wanting her pay and her husband's pay, so they could go to the state. The white woman said, "You and John have no pay coming. Don't you remember you got drunk and I had to pay you out?" But the woman gave her $10 and at midnight Johnnie was on the phone to say she and John had got drunk and were in jail.

Johnnie likes jail. In jail they wait on her. She is a popular soul and Indians in the galley give her extra sugar in her coffee, and eggs and buttered toast.

Marriage is neither uncommon nor compulsory. An Indian agent at Sells scolded an Indian for turning up with a second wife. He would have to select one favorite, then tell the other one to get out. The bridegroom looked, the agent in the eye and said: "You at favors, and tax frauds—the stratum of irresponsible 'newly rich,' war, black markets, government

"I tried with decent regard for good taste to tell him that he didn't need the money that much, Charlie. I tried with sincerity. I know he hasn't worked since last season and Helen is a trudge in the money department, but he could be a man and say: 'Now, look here, Helen, I'm not working, and you can't go on spending this way.' If she refused, he could always belt her one just to make the message firm. Anyway, I was offered the pig and turned it down. A real dog thing. The play is a dog and I don't care if it ran in London 8,000 bald-headed years. It is still a dog. What I meant with him, Charlie, was why should he rehearse for three weeks and then open Tuesday and close Saturday, poor fellow. An act of friendship in every way, and besides, I don't think he's actor enough to play it. I was, of course, but..."

"This new doctor, this one I told you about, Frankie, he is a very realistic man, no holds barred. I had this thing because of tension over the role and the way the critics, those insects, rolled it out of the way. They didn't like me. So all right, sue me. Get a lawyer. Serve me with a paper. That Atkinson and Kerr and Bolton, they didn't like me in the part. Carve me a tombstone, already. But I had this thing where I was waking up every night at 3 a. m. with this fierce heartburn, and I told this doctor and he laughed and said: 'What is the real fault? The heartburn will come in any case. Let me give you a pill. This pill will bring heartburn on immediately after a meal and then you are through with it. No waiting until 3 a. m.' Smart man. I take it now at 6.30, when I take it before the meal, the heartburn hits me promptly at 7 o'clock. I take the pill to cure that and by curtailment I am fine and I sleep all night. Genius type man. If they belt you around when you show opens and you are a heartburn sufferer, Frankie, please see this man, this doctor. He doesn't stop the heartburn—he just causes it right away and you can get done with it early."

"All right, he's a first line, expert director. I won't debate with you, Edgar. So he is, but do I have to build a monument and send a wire to Encyclopedia Britannica? They must by all means give him a whole page in the next edition? Dear heaven, the man is so crude. Edgar, really, let's face things close up. He's troglodyte in his personal life. He rents me, for example, I can just tell it in his attitude. What did I do to him? He turned in front of the whole company. They turn in and turn out early. All the Papagos? I have melted deny that they regard rattlesnakes as ancestors. They all killed rattlers 'sometimes,' but, of course, knew a few old characters who would not. A Papago farmer hand is said to have refused to kill a rattler because, one day, he might strike a white man.

Mrs. Itzweier's late husband once made to stomp on a large scorpion crawling out of an ocotilla. "No," and chivvied the scorpion back into the fence with a stick. Yet scorpions sting and poison Papagos hundreds of times every year.

GAGGING AT THE WORD

(Friends Journal)

I do not believe the greatest threat to our future is from bombs or guided missiles. I don't think our civilization will die that way. I think it will die when we no longer care—when the spiritual forces that make us wish to be right and noble die in the hearts of men. Arnold Tynbee has pointed out that 19 or 21 notable civilizations have died from within and not by conquest from without.

There were no bands playing and no flags waving when these civilizations decayed; it happened slowly, in the quiet and the dark when no one was aware... #### Flowers Are Perfumed

Hair Shirt For Hank

Deliver me from a next-door neighbor with a green thumb. He can do nothing in the way of friendliness gracious enough to offset the dissatisfaction he causes.

No matter how many cups of borrowed sugar he is good for, no matter how low he plays his radio and television at night, no matter how good an eye he keeps on your place while you're out of town, those infernal flowers of his are a perfumed hair shirt you have to wear all summer.

I can't grow flowers. Just as some men lack the balance to skate, or the ear to learn languages, I lack what it takes to put a bush, shrub, or seed in the ground and have it come up.

When I bury a seed it is buried for good. It has always amused me to hear amateur gardeners complain of birds. I'd be proud to have a plant of mine show its head above ground so that a bird could get at it. Even worms don't molest mine.

I discovered this touch of death years ago, and wisely gave up trying to grow flowers, just as I abandoned my efforts to learn how to play the violin.

For a while I took up weed growing, not only because I do well with weeds, but because I thought then, as I do now, that weeds deserve a break. After all, weeds are a minority group, and they are discriminated against. Didn't they deserve a spokesman so to speak? There is no denying that weeds have many fine traits.

No amount of abuse will keep them down. They keep coming back for more. They do not ask to be pampered, but are satisfied to make their own way. Who knows but that a weed, if given a fair chance, might some day develop into hollyhock or sweet William?

I even envisioned the day when there would be a National Weed Show, with exhibitors coming from all over the country, and wrangling with the judges over which were the fastest growers, the speediest spreaders, and the

Foreign News

By PHIL NEWSON
UPI Foreign Editor

In thinly disguised diplomatic language India and Red China have been calling each other liars since last fall.

The dispute arises from Red China's suddenly proclaimed demands on about 50,000 square miles of territory ruled either by treaty or tradition by India.

The debate resumes this month in a face-to-face meeting at New Delhi between Indian Premier Jawaharlal Nehru and Red Chinese Premier Chou En-Lai.

Any improvement which the Chinese profess to note is invisible to the Indians.

Nehru has said that Chou's reception would be polite, but at the same time he has cautioned the Indian people about their behavior toward their guest. The route Chou takes from the airport into New Delhi will be closely guarded and will avoid areas where violence might erupt.

That convention, held by Simla in the Punjab, north of New Delhi set up the McMahon line which India claims is the Sino-Indian border. In 1914 and 1919, the Chinese repudiated their spokesman's signature on the Simla Convention, but it is the Indian contention that the repudiation dealt only with the boundary between Tibet and China and not the boundary between India and Tibet. Since Red China since has taken over Tibet, it is that boundary which is one of those in dispute.

The boundary between India and China runs some 2,300 miles and follows the line of mountains and watersheds drawn at the Simla Conference by Britain's plenipotentiary, Henry McMahon.

In some areas the border runs through land totally uninhabited. In others, there are primitive tribes.

Wall Street In Review

NEW YORK (UPI) — A report on the aluminum industry by Thomson & McKinnon asks if the metal can continue its steeply rising growth curve of the past 20 years.

The industry's management evidently thinks so, it points out, because nowhere can the investor find more positive capital spending plans of such a magnitude as to impress the most skeptical.

The stock market has taken a rather dim view of aluminum as a growth industry recently and these stocks are hovering around the 1959-60 lows, probably because of the well publicized near term overcapacity.

But past experience shows, Thomson & McKinnon says, that the time to buy proven growth equities is precisely when such pessimism is most prevalent. It recommends another hard look.

One of the most touted issues in recent weeks has been Johns-Manville Corp. with Bache & Co. The latest to climb on the bandwagon. Bache points out that the company, with its substantially improved position, is selling at about 13 times estimated current earnings although a 15 multiple was characteristic over the past several years.

New Anti-Castro Movement

Gun-Carrying Echegoyen Has All The Right Enemies

By WARD CANNEL
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK (NEA) — In the anti-Castro fog of cross-purposes and jealousy, a leader may be emerging for the legion of counter-revolutionary Cuban undergrounds in the U.S. and elsewhere.

His name is Carlos Echegoyen, a small, quiet, square-jawed man, gray at 35, who travels in the constant companionship of a 38 Special revolver.

"It is not really protection," Echegoyen admits. "It is merely a deterrent. It forces them to have to shoot me in the back."

It is a simple, declarative sentence and he says it the way Americans candidates for office point to their platforms and records. For in Cuban politics today, a man is known by the enemies he has.

Broken and bloody after six months of beatings, Echegoyen fled to the U.S., working first as a newspaperman and then as a publicist.

He was in California in 1957 when he heard the first rumors of Fidel Castro's revolutionary band in the Sierra Maestra Mountains. He came back to Miami, offered his services and money to the 26th of July movement, and was assigned to a public relations job by day and gun-running by night.

His reward, when Castro took Havana, was a post as Air Force Intelligence Officer.

"I tried to offer the new government a public relations program to counteract the rumors that we were Communist dominated. But I was turned down everywhere and I soon found out why."

His first job was to silence a Spanish language newspaper in Miami which continually accused Castro of communism.

"I did my job so effectively," he said, "that I was then assigned to get in touch with Anastas Mikoyan (Soviet Deputy Premier) who was then visiting the U.S. and unofficially invite him to Cuba."

By then, however, Echegoyen had seen the intelligence files on a proposed infiltration of Panama and Nicaragua, had seen the white stars on military equipment painted red, had heard the government's private declaration of faith.

"I accepted the assignment of reaching Mikoyan," he said, "but I never carried it out. Once I got to the U.S., I took off my uniform and abandoned the hope I had once had for Castro."

Almost immediately he learned that Pedro Luis Diaz-Lanz, Cuban Air Force Chief, had come to the same conclusion but was imprisoned in Havana by his high office. Echegoyen rented a 42-foot sailboat and, with the price of death treason on his head, went back to Cuba and rescued his commanding officer.

It was this alliance that planned, printed and dropped 200,000 anti-Castro, anti-Communist leaflets on Havana last autumn.

Since then, Echegoyen has been building his organization, Cuba Democratica — a pipeline of information from official Havana and a staff of Cubans in key government and communications jobs.

"It is agreed among all of us counter-revolutionaries," he said, "that Castro must go. It is my concern that it be done without civil war. I think it is possible."

He has, consequently, turned down offers of alliance with the exiled Batista forces and a $300,000 retainer from anti-Castro forces in the Dominican Republic while he waits for what he calls "clean, democratic aid."

But a U.S. State Department informant who knows and respects Echegoyen wonders out loud:

"He's a solid citizen — a rarity among the anti-Castro conspirators I see every day. But who's going to back a Cuban who talks like a patriot?"

ECHEGOYEN: "Fidel must go."

And Echegoyen and his organization, Cuba Democratica, appear to have all the right enemies for all the right reasons.

In 1952, when Fulgencio Batista took the presidential office by force, Echegoyen organized the Cuban Revolutionary Youth Organization Against Batista.

Sixth Airline Bomb Hoaxer Nabbed By FBI

CHICAGO (UPI) — An electronics worker today became the sixth person arrested in the last eight days on charges of turning in false reports that bombs were planted on airliners.

Robert Carey Clark, 52, of 6019 Kentucky Ave., Roylown, Mo., was taken into custody by FBI agents at Midway Airport Thursday night.

Julius M. Lopez, in charge of the Chicago FBI office, said Clark was seized after allegedly telling a Trans World Airlines clerk he had a bomb in a brown paper bag.

Lopez said Clark was asked by a TWA clerk while purchasing a ticket whether he had any luggage.

"No, just this package I'm carrying. It has a bomb in it," Clark allegedly replied.

FBI agents searched the parcel and found only personal belongings and some souvenir match covers. No bomb was found.

Lopez said Clark would appear today before U.S. Commissioner C. W. Bentley Pike on charges of violating a federal law dealing with false bomb reports. Penalty for conviction is a $1,000 fine, one year in prison or both.

Clark is married and has been employed for 33 years by a communications manufacturing firm, the FBI said.

Ecuador became the world's leading exporter of bananas in 1958, when its crop was estimated at 40,000,000,000 stems.

Three members were inducted into the Pampa Lions Club yesterday noon in Fellowship Hall of the First Methodist Church.

Carl Beavers, formerly of Wichita, Kan., Charlie Roberts, a reinstatement, and B. E. Ferrell, a transfer from Panhandle, were inducted.

Jay Leath presented the club with a Boy Scout troop chapter, and 21 names were selected as delegates to the Lions district convention in Borger April 22 and 23.

The program, sponsored by the Lions Club citizenship class, included four members, who described experiences during World War II in their home towns in Germany and Russia.

Baker School Principal John Evans, in a short history of the class, said it was originated by Homer Craig in 1954. "At least one class a year has been held since that time," Evans said.

The class is sponsored by the Lions Club. All books and materials are furnished, and the only requirement is a reasonable speaking and writing knowledge of the English language.

Evans said pupils from Amarillo, Shamrock, Borger and Pampa are now attending the classes, held each Sunday afternoon at B. M. Baker Elementary School.

CHINA LAKE, Calif. (UPI) — Jesse A. Thomas, 59, was killed when struck by a supersonic test sled traveling perhaps up to 2,500 miles an hour, the Navy reported Thursday.

Thomas, a civilian employee at the naval ordnance test station here, was bending over the track Wednesday when the sled speeding faster than sound smashed into him.

A Navy spokesman said Thomas apparently did not hear the warning signal given when the sled is about to undergo a test. The sled, which operates on a track, traveled for a mile after hitting Thomas.

Easter Gift For Jail Occupants

EAST LIVERPOOL, Ohio (UPI) — A Jewish judge told prisoners in the city jail they can go home today for the Easter weekend, provided they promise to return to their cells Monday.

"Jail is no place for anyone on Good Friday or Easter," Judge Samuel M. Chertoff said Wednesday.

Chertoff also ordered police to release for the weekend prisoners convicted of misdemeanors.

Warrants Issued For Chronic Parking Violators

Corporation Court Judge Robert McPherson issued warrants yesterday against chronic overtime parking violators.

The six persons involved have 215 tickets outstanding against them.

Judge McPherson pointed out that new type overtime parking tickets went into use April 1. The tickets cover overtime parking and other violations, including parking in an alley, on a crosswalk, in a fire zone and others. He requested recipients of the tickets to read the schedule of fines, and also ascertain the violation they are guilty of.

He said there are two places on the ticket indicating the violation. If the ticket is for overtime parking that will be checked, and if it is another violation, that will be checked and the type of violation written into the place provided. He said if a person is guilty of a n y other violation than overtime parking, the 25-cent fine is not acceptable. The schedule of fines for other violations runs from $2 to $5.
