The mature years bring their own special kind of beauty. But make no mistake, it's not the beauty of youth nor should you want it to be. It depends on careful grooming, pretty clothes suitable to your years and attention to both diet and exercise. This attractive grandmother (left) looks neat and pretty even though she's busy with the family laundry. Hair clips are concealed beneath a fluffy cap of nylon ruffles. She takes care of her potted plants the year round. But she takes care of her hands before her indoor gardening (center). Here, she scrapes her nails over a cake of soap to prevent grime from getting under them. Skin grows dry as the years go by. It needs constant creaming with a rich, dry skin cream. This mature beauty is also careful (right) to remove stale make-up with warm water and soapsuds. Then she rinses with more warm water and follows up with a splash of cold water. She pats her face dry with a thick terry towel.

and scrubbing with a soft brush to tone your skin and bring a becoming flush to your cheeks. Because the skin has a tendency to dry with the years, lubricating and nourishing cream should be used nightly to keep your complexion smooth and soft. But cream should be used in addition to, not as a substitute for, soap and water when removing your make-up.

DEAR ABBY: Our eldest son has always been a problem. He has had two bad marriages and his third one is now going on the rocks. His first wife keeps their two children, but he supports them. His second wife is keeping the next two. He supports them, also. His present wife isn't fit to raise dogs, much less children, so the court awarded him custody of his three little ones. Dan Teed, Pampa High School student, was guest speaker at the American Legion Auxiliary meeting, speaking on the topic, "I Speak For Democracy."

Looking lovely in the golden years is as simple as wishing to be lovely, then working at it. And the best way to start is to remember that cleanliness and daintiness are the most appropriate synonyms for beauty.

Seek flattery in its styling and groom it well. Brush it daily to keep it shining and soft. Shampoo it whenever it needs it and, NOT LESS than once a week. Frequent shampoos will keep it from becoming limp and unmanageable.

DEAR CRUSH: If Don is 16, I'd say the one he pays the least attention to is the one he came over to see.

DEAR ABBY: Isn't common courtesy simply "consideration for others"? Then why don't people who smoke have a little consideration for those who do not?

DEAR ABBY: How can I find out who Don comes over to see? Don is 16 and I am 15.

DEAR ABBY: After reading the letter about the laundry man who spends 45 minutes with a lady on his route, I had to write this: There is a lady on my street who has a goodlooking young gentleman visitor every day. He comes about the same time every morning after her husband goes to work. He usually stays about two hours. I have also known him to visit her in the afternoon and stay until minutes before the lady's husband comes home. This goes on in broad daylight for all to see. Abby, I know this is true because I am that lady. And the "other man" is my brother who lives out in the country by himself.

A Look At This Man Caryl Chessman

Editor's Note: A federal judge Arizona yesterday refused to grant Caryl Chessman a new appeal hearing. If the United States Supreme Court also refuses to grant a hearing on an appeal all would seem to be lost for this young-time resident of California's death house.

In the following exclusive article a close look is taken at the convicted rapist, best-selling author, self-taught lawyer and death house dweller. What is he really like?

By CHARLES ELWELL, Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (NEA) — Seated alone, locked in a small pea-green cell, waiting for a trial, Caryl Chessman, 38, an author, a self-taught lawyer and death house dweller, was in the innards of San Quentin prison.

Caryl Chessman was late. An elevator grill slammed open somewhere in the corridor, and he was the sound of marching feet.

The prisoner arrived in formation, guards front and back. There was a loud and complicated opening of the gates. Chessman waited, a lean six-footer, thick stooped, thumbs hooked in pockets of his jeans.

He entered the cell, and took the seat opposite me. There was the clatter of metal on metal as the gates were bolted in place. We faced each other, two strangers.

palm on the table, and answered: "I could say, 'Yes, I feel remorse.' And what would it prove? Would it undo the things that have been done? No. It would only please the craving of a lot of people. What I do feel is this, I have not lived usefully. More important, I have not been fair to my own potential."

"When you say potential," I asked, "do you mean your legal ability or your writing talent?"

"My writing," he said. "As for the law, I would gladly touch a match to all those law books. I am 38 years old. I have published three books. I don't think of myself as a writer who has arrived. I am not sure how much of my success has to be attributed to notoriety. But in time, I think I could become a good writer... that my work could stand on its own literary merit."

"Would you say, Caryl, that after all these years in prison you have learned something about yourself and the compulsions that led you to criminal violence?"

Chessman's face darkened. "You mean am I still a psychopath or nut? That's what you mean, isn't it? Let's get down to it. Let me put it this way. I've been all over the past. The thing I've learned is that using your anger for creation is more satisfying than using it for destruction. I still have the anger. But I have found when I get mad I can sit down and pound it out on my typewriter."

As Chessman talks, one has the impression of the powerful single-mindedness of the man. He raps the table with a stubby finger, spelling out his points.

The badly broken and bent nose in the long hardened face seems incongruous. Chessman is a spell-binder; a master of the language.

Yet, one's eye and thoughts keep returning to that nose. One of the victims and her boy friend said that the banditi's mask slipped from his face and that they had a clear look at him. They told the court that the man they saw was Chessman.

Chessman was telling me now about a book he wanted to write on Francois Villon, the 15th century French lyric poet.

"Villon was the leader of a bandit gang," Chessman explained. "He was condemned to die, you know, and then commuted and banished from France. Nobody knows what ever happened to him."

Changing the subject, I asked a reporter's question. "Caryl, you have been repeatedly described as arrogant. What is your reaction when you read that?"

"Some of the papers say I am arrogant. Some editorial writers picture me as a fiend with horns and dripping fangs. Arrogance is all part of the legend that has been built up around me. Now, I may have more than my share of ego. But survival calls for a degree of ego. On Death Row, you can't live."

"I encourage my friends, I tell them: 'They can kill you, but they can't take away your integrity. Don't let them have that, too.'"

A guard appeared at the cell door and signaled that time was up. I asked one more question. "You had a religious upbringing, Caryl. What are your views on religion now?"

"I have no views on that. I am an agnostic. That is, I simply don't know. I await further evidence. In a few days, they say I'm going to die. What happens then? Oblivion."

The gates swung open. The formation grouped outside in the corridor. Then, as though on cue, he heard a thousand times, the formation set off, taking the author convict back to the cell he has called "hell's anteroom."

Did I know any more now—another hour later?

I thought of Chessman and his book on Francois Villon. I thought of the man's immense potential. And I thought of that broken, twisted nose. Could such a face have been mistaken?

Man Can Take More 'Fallout' Than Thought

By SAM FOGG, United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The head of the nation's Civil Defense program said Saturday new scientific findings show that in event of war, the average person could absorb huge amounts of radiation from a nuclear blast without being disabled.

Leo A. Hoegh, Director of the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization, said the report of a subcommittee of the National Committee on Radiation Protection and Measurement was "extremely significant and gratifying."

"What the scientists are telling us is that no American citizen need become the victim of fallout," Hoegh said.

The report said that nearly anyone can receive up to 200 roentgens of radiation from a nuclear explosion without suffering disabling illness and up to 1,000 roentgens over a year without becoming a casualty.

The permissible peacetime radiation limit for occupational workers is three-tenths of a roentgen a week, roughly 15.6 roentgens a year.

Dr. Lauriston S. Taylor, Chairman of the radiation committee, wrote Hoegh that peacetime standards do not furnish realistic criteria for a war emergency.

Taylor's committee based its conclusion on studies of radiation effects on both men and animals. Hoegh said the report underscores the importance of American families building shelters for their protection in case of war.

"If we will heed their advice," he said, "the safety and security of most of our families and our nation can be assured. The report will spur action among the indifferent and confirm the wisdom of Americans who have already built shelters for their families."

Taylor conceded that radiation exposure above peacetime limits could be absorbed because the normal recovery process of the body enables repair of damage over a period of time.

"It is likely to produce some degree of injury," he said. "But only when 'short term dose,' such as that from a bomb exceeds 200 roentgens, 'does the incidence of radiation sickness and risk of death increase rapidly,'" he said.

Taylor said that the higher dose could be absorbed because the normal recovery process of the body enables repair of damage over a period of time.

Jack D. Foley, co-owner of the gravel company, estimated the loss. He said government and church bonds and a small amount of cash were taken.

Authorities said the company's safe had been pried open with a heavy bar.

News In Brief

A SOUR NOTE SOUTHAMPTON, England (UPI)—The yeggs found this note on the outside of the safe: "No money kept in this." They blew it open anyway, found $8.20 and tacked on their own note: "Then leave it open next time."

LODGE MEETS KHRUSHY MOSCOW (UPI)—Henry Cabot Lodge, U. S. ambassador to the United Nations, chatted informally with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev Sunday night at the Bolshoi Ballet Theater where the two attended a performance of Tchaikovsky's "Swan Lake."

Quotes In The News

United Press International—NEW YORK — Former French Foreign Legionnaire Habib Riad, 28, convicted of murder, vainly asking the judge to ignore his lawyer's mercy plea: "A life sentence is not merciful. I'd rather die."

WASHINGTON — Garage mechanic Kenneth E. Fleet, 22, explaining why he joined a stream of puzzled taxpayers filing into the Internal Revenue Service office to ask for help in filling out his return: "I couldn't figure out my own tax and I couldn't find anybody who could. I can't afford to pay anybody to do it."

TUCSON, Ariz. — Chief Judge Richard N. Chambers of the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals, rejecting convict-author Caryl Chessman's latest bid to escape execution in California: "Chessman cannot get away, cannot shake the simple, vulgar, violent story of what he did. In his trying to shake the transcript, I'm convinced the story will always be the same."

A census crew leader and his force of enumerators set off to work. There will be 160,000 of them all over the country.

Map makers lay out block identification maps for 1960 census. The maps will be published for all cities of 50,000 and over.

One reel of microfilm holds data from 1,500 census forms. It will be transferred to magnetic tape, fed to giant computers.

Biggest Head Count In U.S. History

For the 18th time since the Constitution was adopted, Uncle Sam will count his numerous nephews and nieces. He had nearly four million in 1790, expects to top 180 million this year — an increase of 29 million since the last census in 1950. Late in March, an Advance Census Report form will be mailed to every household in the country. On April 1, some 160,000 nose-counters will visit those households to collect the forms. At every fourth house, a more detailed questionnaire will be left, to be mailed to the local district office. In Suitland, Md., where the final tally will be made, the government has marshaled the latest in electronic tools to handle the deluge of reports. Each individual form will be microphotographed. Optical sensing devices will convert the information into tapes for relaying to electronic computers, which will tabulate and classify the totals. The result will be the biggest and fastest census in our history.

This is the operating console of one of the Census Bureau's Univac "brains." At right is Census Director R. W. Burgess.

Walter Rogers Reports

Panhandle Newsman Holds Attentive Ear Of Rogers

In a previous newsletter I made a brief reference to the source of the tax dollar and where it was spent. I have had numerous communications thanking me for putting this in the newsletter and asking for additional information on the subject, if possible. Hence, I submit the following figures, which will be of interest to all of you.

The Administration estimates that during Fiscal Year 1961, which begins on July 1, 1960 and ends June 30, 1961, the following money will be received by the Federal Treasury:

- (all figures in millions of dollars)
- Individual income taxes, 43,700;
- corporation income taxes, 22,800;
- excise taxes, 9,500; all other sources, 7,500.

These receipts would include the INCREASES in Federal taxes proposed by the President.

The net expenditures recommended by the President in his Budget Message are as follows:

- Executive Office of the President, 79;
- Funds appropriated to the President; Mutual security — economic, 1,700; Other, 114; Legislative branch, 162; The Judiciary, 62;
- Independent Offices: Atomic Energy Commission, 2,680; Export-Import Bank, 7; Federal Aviation Agency, 681; National Aeronautics & Space Administration, 600; National Science Foundation, 160; Small Business Administration, 120; Tennessee Valley Authority, 73; United States Information Agency, 124; Veterans Administration, 5,446; Other, 285; General Services Administration, 458; Housing and Home Finance Agency, 500; Department of Agriculture, 6,201; Department of Commerce, 473;
- Department of Defense — Military; Military Functions, 40,995; Mutual Security — military assistance, 1,750; Department of Defense — Civil, 972; Department of Health, Education & Welfare, 3,517; Department of the Interior, 839; Department of Justice, 271; Department of Labor, 540; Post Office Department, 49; Department of State, 352; Treasury Department, 10,452; District of Columbia, 48; Allowances for contingencies, 200; TOTAL — $79,816 million.

Unless the general feeling in the Congress undergoes a substantial change, there will be marked reductions in the proposed expenditures. It is my sincere hope that if there is any change, it will be for more reduction rather than less.

Stripes Are Dead For Gay Blade Spring Wear

NEW YORK (UPI)—Bold patterns for gay blades—that's the forecast for spring in menswear.

Look for big, medium-size and minute checks; for glen plaid with the plaid sometimes a two-inch square; and hounds tooth patterns for both suits and sports coats.

"Stripes are dead," said Harold Deister, stylist for the Wool Bureau, Inc., after a tour of the menswear market. "Very few pin or muted stripes in the new lines."

The National Automobile Dealers Association and included Mr. and Mrs. Frank Culbertson and Mr. and Mrs. Dick Stowers from Pampa; Mr. and Mrs. Hudson Davis and Miss Catherine Davis of Borger; and Mr. and Mrs. J. E. M. Scott from Dalhart.

Other Washington visitors from home were Mr. R. G. Peeler, Mr. Darrell Blanton, and Mr. Bill Decker from Hereford; Mr. Bill Nelson, Mr. H. A. Berry, Mr. Kenneth R. Goodwin, and Mr. A. E. Herrmann, all of Amarillo; Mr. Horace Smith of Miami; and Mrs. Frank Carter from Pampa.

maintained unchanged—that the fashionable male may choose between the "American ambassador," a "shaped" suit which originated on the West Coast, and the continental, less fitted with a moderately cutaway front.

Lapels on the continental are a fraction wider than last year, and there are all sorts of pocket treatments on the jackets—straight, tilted and crescent shaped welts. For the real dandy, there are also boldly colored jacket linings.

Other highlights for spring:—In topcoats, the 42-inch length which breaks just below the knee, the four-button hacking pocket coat, and the raglan topper.

—Summer blazers sport a variety of metallic and pearl buttons, bright linings, deep side vents, and crescent shaped flap pockets. Colors include mustard and leather tones which Deister called "dirty white buck."

MONGREL GETS MONEY

KYOTO, Japan (UPI)—Police today rewarded Kuri, a Kyoto resident, with 2,580 yen ($7.16) as his 10 per cent share of the 25,800 yen contained in a wallet he found on the street and turned over to authorities. Kuri is a five-year-old mongrel dog.

Raise a college education in a sorghum field?

It's not fantastic! And here is why:

One leading farmer with 250 acres of maize reported a yield increase of 1625 pounds per acre after application of Phillips 66 Ammonia. He cut a total of 7250 extra bushels of grain and netted $450 in increased profits after deducting the cost of ammonia. This extra income for only two years—a total of $9100—will more than send a boy or girl through college.

Ask your Phillips 66 Distributor to show you how Phillips 66 Ammonia can help you and your family live better through higher profits per acre.

| | Using Phillips Ammonia | Without Ammonia |
|-----------------------------------|------------------------|-----------------|
| Fixed Cost Per Acre | $39 | $39 |
| Ammonia Cost Per Acre | $7 | — |
| Yield Per Acre | 97 bu. | 68 bu. |
| Net Profit Per Acre | $91.60 | $15.40 |
| INCREASED PROFIT PER ACRE $76.20 | | |

ROCKETRY:

Diplomatic sources in East Berlin say the Soviets are unhappy about East German Communist Party leader Walter Ulbricht's request for rocket weapons for the East German army. They say the Russians think Ulbricht's claim might spell the eastern disarmament drive—and that they want in any case deliver any rockets to the East Germans before the May summit.

Incidentally, Britain's Laborite opposition disturbed about a U.S. project to give nuclear potential weapons to West Germany. These worries will be given a public airing in a foreign affairs debate in Parliament this week.

SPEAKING OF NUCLEAR:

In Geneva, the 16-month-old nuclear test ban talks are going nowhere faster than usual. There is talk in Geneva that the United States—that Washington still hasn't made up its mind about whether to chance a total test ban without formal controls or to continue to insist on its plan which would ban everything but underground tests. Until Washington does make up its mind, the talks will hang on dead center.

DE GAULLE

President Charles de Gaulle will use his emergency powers to crack down still harder on his rightist foes. But French Communists have tipped their hand by calling shrilly for a "purge" of rightists. The rightwingers are a counterweight to France's big Communist Party. De Gaulle has to be careful not to upset the internal power balance. Chances are he won't go as far as he'd like to against the rightists for that reason, while watching the communists out of the corner of his eye.

Meanwhile, in Algiers, de Gaulle has put down but not killed opposition to his policy of "self-determination" for Algerians. He is weeding out civilian extremists and undependable army officers but he has not removed the fear of French settlers outnumbered nearly 10 to 1 by Moslems. Therefore, opposition to his policies remains.

Wall Street In Review

NEW YORK (UPI)—Barring new severe wage concessions this year the profits of the nation's class I railroads could climb to 750 million dollars. Two separate studies by Standard & Poor's Corp. and the Value Line reached this same conclusion. It realized, such profits this year would be some 30 per cent above the 575 million dollars netted in 1959 when volume was affected by the crippling effects of the steel strike. Last year's earnings were the lowest since the 1949 recession, notes Standard & Poor's.

Accumulate Ford Motor and General Electric on any further market weakness, Bache & Co. suggests.

Joseph E. Granville of E. F. Hutton & Co., says a strong technical prop to the market would be provided in the event the short interest report shows a marked rise later this month. "This would coincide with expectations that the market can look forward to more sustainable rallies sometime after mid-February. Thus far, however, it would appear that these rallies may get started from lower market levels than are now current."

Theories And Facts

We were most favorably impressed by an editorial which ran in the Saturday Evening Post recently. It was written by Oscar Bebe, professor of political science at Kent State University. What particularly intrigued us was his opening paragraph.

"Liberty is the absence of coercion of a human being by another human being or beings. Democracy by definition presumes anocracy by definition presumes a system of government in which the power to decide upon major policies is vested in the people. Democracy and liberty have come to be regarded as indispensable to each other like 'love and marriage.' But just as lovers occasionally budge one another, so democracy can become the enemy of freedom. Without constitutional restraints, the will of the majority would show small concern for the basic rights of minorities and individuals."

From this point, Bebe goes on to show the consequences of a "Bill of Rights" such as the one we have which "limits the power of the government. And we could echo his sentiments for surely this has been the concept in the minds of most of us since we were very young.

We have, as Americans, long held that our government was superior to any other by virtue of two things: 1) the democratic feature which in theory, at least, places ultimate sovereignty in the hands of the people, and 2) the concept of constitutional limitation contained in our Bill of Rights, which, also in theory, limits the power of the government.

But Bebe and others who are willing to think this problem thru have begun to realize that the virtues we find in the American form of government have existed more in a theoretical sense than in an actual sense. This is what the professor from Kent is getting at, for he sums up his argument by saying: "De Tocqueville was right. It is possible for the people to vote themselves into bondage. We shall be fortunate if this doesn't happen to us."

But in a larger sense, the theoretical safeguards found in the "democratic process" and in the "constitutional limitation of a bill of rights" will invariably turn up as a minus quantity. Experience shows that the democratic process as such, is not a safeguard. While it may contain the virtue of preventing an ultimate tyranny from accruing to the single ruler,

Socialized Medicine

According to Henry N. Taylor, a writer for Scripps-Howard, "if we were to go on a search for the most socialized place in the globe, we wouldn't find it within a twenty-mile radius of the Kremlin."

Or, to carry the search further, we wouldn't find it in the China of Mao, the Sweden or Norway of the ruling socialist parties, in the Britain of the labour government (already ousted) or in any of the Russian satellites. Compared to another spot on this fair globe, each of these places is bristling with individuality and private ownership.

To find the most socialized spot on the globe, Taylor suggests that we take a look at the Panama Canal, our own protectorate in the Central American country of Panama.

Every last American there, of whom there are about 20,000, is a civil servant or a relative of one. And this includes both civilians and the military. All live in government houses. The status of the house they live in determines the rank of the occupant. The Panamanian socialists (Americans) advance thru the houses as they advance in age and grade.

There is no private enterprise in the canal zone. The residents shop in cut-rate government stores, dance and swim in government clubs and have less contact with private enterprise than any other group of people on earth, in all probability. Here is a completely subsidized and collectivized group on Americans, completely cut off from reality.

Many "Zonia" families are in their second or third generation. Unlike most other government employees and functionaries, they are not subject to transfer. They may still retain an American citizenship without ambition or superior restraint.

Better Jobs

by R. C. BOILES

Different Kinds of Love Nymeyer, in his December magazine of "First Principles in Morality and Economics", credits St. Paul and St. Augustine as being known as Doctors of Grace.

He relates how Augustine had a couple of mistresses, and because of this, his self-analysis made him need the doctrine of grace.

Then Nymeyer remarks: "There is an important difference. God has agape to the elect only. But men must have agape to all men. The modern agape doctrine requires that men out-gate God in the possession of agape, that is, indiscriminating even a royal madman."

"Agape And Eros" "Bishop Nygren's"

"Agape, as nondiscriminating love, or unmotivated love (as it is also described), is explained in greatest detail in Bishop Anders Nygren's book, 'Agape and Eros' (English translation, Westminster Press, Philadelphia, 1951). Bishop Nygren is one of the two leading theologians of the theological faculty of the state University of Sweden, located at Lund, Sweden. His background is Lutheran or Evangelical."

"The ideas in Nygren's book dominate alike nonconservative and conservative thought in the field of ethics in the present-day protestant religious world. A foreign delegate to the meeting of the World Council of Churches, in Evanston a few years ago, commented in private conversation enthusiastically about Nygren's book. That man personally is a conservative, and orthodox in religion. But the most unconservative clergy of the Protestant world, Nygren, in fact, is the real ethical prophet among modern Protestant theologians."

"In his 'Translator's Preface' to the English edition of 'Agape and Eros', Philip G. Watson writes: "Eros is an appetite, a yearning desire, which is aroused by the attractive qualities of its object... Agape... is entirely independent of external stimulus and motivation. (God's)... loving consists not in getting, but in doing good."

"Agape is further distinguished from Eros in that it is 'indifferent to value'. That is to say, it is neither kindled by the attractiveness nor quenched by the unattractiveness of its object... man can show (agape) towards his fellowmen... This freedom of Agape-love in relation to its object is the main point when it is said to be 'indifferent to value'."

"The definition of agape by Nygren, and by those who accept his ideas, is an ethereal definition. The standard is unearthly; you must love everything equally, overwhelmingly, regardless of relative merit, wholly indiscriminatingly. In short, all discrimination is sin, and falls short of the Biblical requirement of brotherly love."

"Such is the basic 'morality' of much of modern Protestantism. It is declared to be scriptural, or more accurately, New Testamental. The fact, however, is that it is neither moral nor Biblical. It is a form of irrationalism. What is probably its greatest deficiency is that it burdens Christianity with so heavy a requirement of self-sacrifice. Not without reason is religion in contempt among many intellectual people. Not without reason does the economist to whom we have referred earlier accuse Christianity as being the most harmful thing in the world."

"Some people take exception to emotional fervor in connection with conversions. Whatever objection there may be to that, it is a trifle compared to the exception which may legitimately be taken to the fundamental ethical proposition of modern Protestantism, namely, that to discriminate is sin."

"The only thing that can be said for this doctrine is that it is 'modern'. No equal ethical extravagance has been taught until this twentieth century."

"There was a day when the morality of socialism - communism was considered to be irreconcilable with the ethics of Christianity. That idea was undoubtedly correct, but it has been abandoned. Instead, Protestant Christianity has obligingly supplied the socialists - communists with the leanness. No wonder such people do not understand us erratic, emotional Latins."

"We are in debt to Mr. Taylor for bringing us this information from Panama. There is certainly small wonder that there is something unattractive about Americans when the Americans who theoretically practice this country, are, in practice, oriented so thoroughly toward socialism."

"It is scarcely a matter of pride for us in this nation which presumably is dedicated to the concepts of freedom and free enterprise, to be the god-parents of this socialistic parasitical growth supported in luxury and extravagance by the taxpayers of these states."

MEANY INTERVENTION IN WISCONSIN BLOCKS LABOR EXCLUSIVE ENDORSEMENT OF HUMPHREY.

WASHINGTON — AFL-CIO president George Meany is sticking a significant oar in Wisconsin's increasingly stormy presidential primary.

At Meany's direct personal intervention, the Executive Committee of the State Federation of Labor pigeonholed a resolution that would have put the group on record in favor of Senator Hubert Humphrey.

This would have been an important campaign advantage, as it would have given the Minnesota an exclusive labor stamp of approval.

But instead of such a full endorsement, the Wisconsin labor leaders warmly commended Humphrey's liberal legislative record, and then carefully added they are prepared to extend similar approval to any other liberal presidential aspirant who asks for it.

Senator John Kennedy is going to do just that. And so is Senator Wayne Morse, who is squaring off to throw his turbulent hat into this ring.

Both Humphrey and Kennedy, however, were endorsed by their home state AFL-CIO organizations. In addition, Kennedy has been approved by the Connecticut Federation of Labor.

That is why Humphrey is privately miffed at Meany's intervention in Wisconsin.

"I would have had the full endorsement of the AFL-CIO in Wisconsin," Humphrey told Senator Pat McNamara (D. Mich.), "if Meany hadn't gotten on the phone and stopped it. He called members of the Executive Committee and urged them not to declare for anyone. I am told that two-thirds of the Committee was ready to vote for me, but Meany dissuaded them."

"He didn't do that in Connecticut, where the State AFL-CIO endorsed Kennedy. Meany made no effort to stop that. So I can't understand why he went out of his way to intervene in Wisconsin. Certainly my labor record doesn't deserve such treatment."

Looking Sideways

by WHITNEY BOLTON

NEW YORK, N. Y.—One of the great ladies of the West, colorful daughter of a colorful father, lives in the safest of all possible Manhattan fortresses—a 15-room duplex in River House. She is, nonetheless, under constant bombardment and she loves it. She takes a wry and realistic view of the bombardment, but loves it. What has happened is that she has moved from Page 17 of the "possible angels for a show" listing to well up to the top of Page One.

"What has happened," she said in her Versailles living room the other afternoon, with the East River flooding by, "is that I now am sent ALL the scripts for new plays, and quickly, instead of just the best scripts, along with, of course, the dogs, but I'm even asked to trudge my way through Broadway offerings in the hope I'll find a maddy in love with something and pay for it to be moved to Broadway or sent on tour."

"Now, I'm going to tell you something about off-Broadway. I don't understand it and I don't want to understand it, I finally was coerced the other night into going down some narrow street to look at a supposed musical which they thought I would undertake as angel for a tour. It was in a shoe-box theatre, I was too tall to be comfortable because the chairs were jammed so close together, and I didn't like it, anyway. 'So much for that!'"

Helen Bonifis is tall. She is also blonde and beautiful. Her father was the Fred Bonifis who, with Harry Tamm, founded the humorous Denver Post. She is a moving factor in Denver, and has been for years, of symphony, theatre and music. She certainly did more than bring into being Red Rock, the massive open-air natural amphitheatre a few miles out of Denver, although she waves a casual hand and says: "Well, it was there, a natural formation. All we had to do was show it to people." She is on the board of Central City, the tiny one-time mining town high in the hills above Denver where the best of plays and opera are done in an enchanting old period theatre. She has interests in Elitch Gardens, the most famed summer theatre in the whole United States, and at no time ever has flagged her interests. At the moment, she is the power behind a show still on the road and due in New York in February: "A Thurbur Carnival." The title explains what it is: the best of James Thurbur rendered into theatrical terms. A year ago, in a moment of vertigo, she backed a little Parisian gem which turned to cracked glass here and her booming laugh recalling that lapse is something wonderful to hear.

"I can guarantee you in plain terms that it wasn't that little error that caused me to have every script in town in hand," she said. "I think, actually, I was shunted from Page 17 to Page 37 of the suckers' list. But those two charming girls were interested in it and I saw no reason to thwart them. They had to learn new trades."

The girls were Hella Stoddard, an actress turned producer, and Tamara Geyza, a prima ballerina turned director.

"Now that everything is being shown you, like an expensive fly flitted in front of a trout," I said, "what is your personal, cold turkey estimate of your rise to a top position on Page One of the same list?"

"The Thurbur thing," she said, "is am one of three producers seeing this one through to Broadway and the word has spread that, suddenly, I am extremely wise and knowledgeable. Nonsense. I am a ham. I was an actress, I have had to do with theatre in various guises. I knew something about it. My late husband was one of the best directors—the American theatre ever had and from him and from being an actress, plus having what I hope is horse sense, I have learned something about shows. A Thurbur congress of delight seemed an obvious winner."

It has yet to face your firing squad here, but in Detroit, Columbus and cities like that they adore it. I'm no surfer for producing that. I believe in it as I believe in sunshine. I'm in it feet first."

Her husband was George Soames, truly brilliant, a gentleman in a professional area not exactly teeming with gentlemen. She had a fascination for theatre before she met him, together they kept it alive until he died, and she still has it.

If ever I vastly admired one great lady for a lot of worthwhile accomplishments, I admire Helen Bonifis, of Denver and New York. She is my notion of charm, grace, stunning beauty and modest regard for enormous things she has done.

Unfortunately, any benefits that derive from use of the divider will be lost unless those who think they're "coming down with the sniffles" and those who have obviously "caught the bug" stay home for at least the first 2 or 3 days of their illness and then, after return to work, keep at arm's length from uninfected associates.

Also, convalescents must avoid hand-shaking and kissing and exercise the greatest care to cough or sneeze into disposable tissues. In addition, mouthpieces and other apparatus that have been sprayed by droplets should be carefully wiped with a 1:1,000 solution of bichloride of mercury and thoroughly dried before use by other personnel.

All Those Extras Tilt The Budget

Like a great many American husbands, roughly a fourth of my income goes for subscriptions to women's magazines.

This is no complaint, mind you. I realize how important it is that wives keep up with the latest ideas in bathroom curtains, the newest thoughts on converting an attic into an attractive basement, and new ways of cooking beef using additives most women would never think of, such as molasses, taro root, Mexican jumping beans, and dehydrated armadillo soup.

Then there are the serial stories which they started under driers and must finish, the hints on how to make a wardrobe the equal of that of Mrs. Winston Guest for $38.50, and the 20 questions to answer to find out what kind of wives they are.

Reading all the women's magazines keeps wives out of mischief, too. By the time they move all the furniture around to meet the changing tastes of the editors, and shorten the draperies lengthen the tablecloths, saw the legs off the coffee tables, and read-up on new garden seats—to watch-out-for, there's little time left for them to get out of line.

My only objection to shelling February: "A Thurbur Carnival." The title explains what it is: the best of James Thurbur rendered into theatrical terms. A year ago, in a moment of vertigo, she backed a little Parisian gem which turned to cracked glass here and her booming laugh recalling that lapse is something wonderful to hear.

The Doctor Says

by EDWIN F. JORDAN, M.D.

A correspondent from St. Paul, Minn., reports "an unusually large number of colds and respiratory illnesses" in a group of 60 in 50 telephone operators employed in an exchange where temperature is kept at 78 to 79 degrees Fahrenheit. She asks if a lower temperature might prove "more favorable to health."

"My answer is a qualified 'yes.' And since the explanation touches on general principles that apply to all cold sufferers, I'd like to make public response to this correspondent."

The number of respiratory illnesses suffered by any group is influenced by only two factors, neither related to room temperatures.

Injections of influenza virus vaccine, one in early fall and the other just after the first of the New Year, afford a high degree of specific protection against epidemic flu. Unfortunately, influenza virus vaccines protect against no other respiratory infection and no other vaccine is available for effective protection against any other respiratory infection including the common cold.

The number of respiratory illnesses suffered by a group of telephone operators, necessarily seated side by side, also may be reduced by installing dividers such as you find around coin phones in a public place. Made of glass or plastic and extending from just above the head level to just below waist level, the divider may effectively prevent droplet infection when the virus of an infected person is jet-propelled by cough or sneeze in the direction of non-infected neighbor.

Unfortunately, any benefits that derive from use of the divider will be lost unless those who think they're "coming down with the sniffles" and those who have obviously "caught the bug" stay home for at least the first 2 or 3 days of their illness and then, after return to work, keep at arm's length from uninfected associates.

Also, convalescents must avoid hand-shaking and kissing and exercise the greatest care to cough or sneeze into disposable tissues. In addition, mouthpieces and other apparatus that have been sprayed by droplets should be carefully wiped with a 1:1,000 solution of bichloride of mercury and thoroughly dried before use by other personnel.

Indeed, nothing less than a sustained and determined group effort has much prospect for success, since a single careless person can undo all the good work of the remainder of the work force.

In another column, I shall discuss the beneficial effects of the lowered room-temperature on the personal comforts of the cold sufferer.

President John Quincy Adams wrote: "My wants are many and, if told, would muster many a score... and were each wish a mint of gold... I still should long for more."
