JFK Calls Space Age Session

PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—President-elect John F. Kennedy today called a high level conference at his villa by the sea to consider proper division of civilian and military responsibility in pushing America ahead in the space race.

Vice President-elect Lyndon B. Johnson and Sen. Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma were flying here to confer with Kennedy in the early afternoon.

Before settling down to a space program discussion, Kennedy, Johnson and Kerr were expected to lunch at the president-elect's home with Secretary of Treasury designate C. Douglas Dillon.

Kennedy last week designated Johnson to take over chairmanship of the National Aeronautics and Space Council, a post now formally occupied by President Eisenhower.

Kerr is expected to succeed Johnson as chairman of the special Senate committee on aeronautics and space sciences.

Pierre Salinger, press secretary to Kennedy, said the meeting today was called "to discuss the relative roles of the National Aeronautics and Space Agency and the Pentagon in future space programs."

Presumably there would be similar conversations at a later date with Robert S. McNamara, president of the Ford Motor Co. who will be the new secretary of defense.

There have been sporadic complaints in the past two years from military men, scientists and some members of Congress that the division between civilian and military space activities was slowing the United States space effort.

Last spring, Eisenhower tried to improve the situation by transferring Dr. Werner von Braun's team of space scientists from the (See JFK CALLS, Page 3)

This Puts Scrooge To Shame Widow Evicted On Christmas Eve

DENVER (UPI) — On the day before Christmas, Mrs. Beulah Dennis, 42 and widowed, and her two sons were evicted from their home by a landlord named Jack Frost.

Today, the day after Christmas Mrs. Dennis can only say "Thanks," and "Happy New Year."

Mrs. Dennis, on relief, had spent December's rent money on clothes for her eldest son, Larry, 20, to help him get a job.

Frost was not moved when the widow told him Larry would pay the rent when he found work.

Nor would he weaken when she pleaded that her other son, Melvin, 4, be allowed to celebrate Christmas in his home.

The landlord served the family with an eviction notice on Christmas Eve — and a whole city seemed to come to the rescue.

First, three men showed up with a truck to help with the moving. Then a trucking company sent a van. Somehow, someone found the destitute family a new apartment — smaller, but freshly painted and neat.

A picture of Mrs. Dennis sitting in a chair, head bowed, while men piled belongings around her in her front yard, appeared in the newspapers Christmas morning and released a flood of sympathy.

"Presents started arriving early in the morning," Mrs. Dennis said. The doorbell would ring, a stranger would hand her a carton of food, or clothing, or a toy for Melvin. Sometimes it was a Christmas card with a check or bill inside.

By Christmas night 40 boxes of food and clothing were stacked in the new home. In all, 150 people had given something—including a promise of a job for Larry.

Pope Greets Throng

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope John XXIII appeared on a balcony at St. Peter's Sunday to impart his blessing to the world and call a cheery, multi-lingual greeting to 100,000 persons in the square below.

The crowd, including many foreigners and scores of children, cheered the papal greeting, which was spoken in eight languages—English, French, Spanish, German, Portuguese, Greek, Italian and Paleo (an ancient Slavic tongue).

In English, a language he is still studying and rarely uses, the Pontiff said: "A happy and blessed Christmas to you all." He said approximately the same in the other languages.

He began by reading a brief address in Italian to explain the blessing he was giving "urbis et orbis" — to the city (Rome) and the world.

Pope John said this year his blessing particularly went to: "Little children, the promise of the future."

"Workers, today gathered with their families in their homes."

The ill and afflicted. Roman Catholic priests and nuns, particularly the persecuted, for divine guidance and comfort in their work.

"Persons in high civil authority" that they may "rule in truth" with justice for all.

All families. Then, reading from an illuminated Latin text in a huge book held by assistants, the Pope delivered his blessing.

Interment rites for Mrs. J. M. Ikard will be held in St. Vincent dePaul Catholic Church at 10 a.m. Wednesday with the Rev. Fr. Diamond Ryan as officiant. A rosary will be said at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in Duenkel - Carmichael Funeral Chapel.

Mrs. Ikard, born Aug. 25, 1871 in Atlanta, Ga., died yesterday afternoon in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Dwane Bird at Nogales, Ariz.

She had resided in Pampa for 30 years, moving here from Chickasha, Okla., and was a charter member of the St. Vincent dePaul Altar Society.

In addition to her daughter in Nogales, she is survived by two other daughters, Mrs. Lynn Boyd of Phoenix, Ariz., J. Amzi Ikard of Antony, N.M., two sisters, Mrs. Catherine Hallaran of Fort Worth, Mrs. J. R. Cheatham of Eastland; 16 grandchildren and 21 great-grandchildren.

The family requests any memorials be given to St. Vincent Diocese Home for the Aged.

Algerian Killed, Six Are Wounded In Christmas Riot

ORAN, Algeria (UPI) — Shouts and shots echoed before dawn today through the native quarter of this big Western port, where one person was killed and six were wounded in Christmas Eve rioting.

A European resident of the predominantly Arab Little Lake district was clubbed to death when he opened his door to an early-morning caller, believed to be an Arab.

Unconfirmed reports said a number of Arabs were wounded and perhaps some killed in a gun battle with police before heavy rains quelled the outbreak early today. The Arabs were believed to have hidden their dead.

California, Texas Setting Tragic Pace

Christmas travelers died in accidents on the nation's highways at a rate of nearly six an hour today and the National Safety Council said the weekend toll was running a little ahead of one year ago.

A continuation of the trend, including a step-up in the late homeward rush, might make Tuesday's final figures show the traffic toll for the 78-hour weekend surpassing last year's 481 for the same period of time and the council's 1960 estimate of 510.

But the toll is expected to fall far short of the record 669 deaths in the 78-hour Christmas weekend of 1955.

A United Press International count at 11:30 a.m. EST showed 362 dead in traffic accidents since the weekend began at 6 p.m. Friday.

The breakdown: Traffic 371, Fires 63, Miscellaneous 76, Total 510.

A spokesman for the Safety Council said highway tragedies were running ahead of both last year and the 1960 estimate.

"Until late Sunday we were running a little behind last year," the spokesman said, "but now we're a little ahead, and the most dangerous part of the weekend is ahead of us. Late today and tonight thousands of people will be driving back to their homes, which calls for extra care and courtesy."

California led the nation in deaths on the highway with 32, Texas reported 28, Georgia 23, New York 20, Michigan and Missouri 18, Illinois 17, North Carolina 16, and South Carolina and Wisconsin 12.

Despite record travel, nine states went through Christmas Day without a reported highway death. They included the two newest states, Alaska and Hawaii, along with Delaware, Idaho, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Nevada, North Dakota and Vermont.

Six lives in California's heavy toll were lost Sunday night in a head-on collision near Boron on a straight, little-used section of U.S. 466. Two other persons were critically injured. Authorities said (See DEATHS, Page 3)

Massachusetts Youth Fighting For His Life Following Explosion

BOSTON (UPI) — Sixteen-year-old Vincent Faraci, his body burned and broken by the force of a gas explosion which shattered two buildings, clung to life today.

Faraci suffered internal injuries, a broken arm and leg and burns over 30 per cent of his body in the explosion Saturday in Charlestown's City Square section. He was on the danger list at a hospital and scores of persons offered to donate blood.

Violence Toll Soars In State

Texas' holiday death toll moved toward new highs Monday on a wave of Christmas weekend violence and highway carnage that made the state's record one of the worst in the nation.

A United Press International survey for the holiday period which began at 12:01 a.m. Friday showed at least 55 persons had died violently in Texas, 28 of them as a result of automobile accidents. Only California recorded more traffic fatalities.

Through the first three days of the Texas Department of Public Safety's "Operation Deathwatch," deaths in the state were running far ahead of predictions by safety experts for the 10-day Christmas New Year's period.

DPS experts said they expected 178 persons to die violently during the holidays in Texas—90 of them in traffic, 46 in homicides and suicides, and 40 in miscellaneous accidents.

And DPS officials said they feared a huge rush of homeward-bound holiday travelers Monday would result in the figures soaring even higher.

The "Operation Deathwatch" will end at 11:59 p.m. Jan. 1. Death on the highway got an early start Monday.

Carolers Serenade Pilgrims

NAZARETH, Israel (UPI)—Christmas carolers serenaded tourists speaking a dozen different languages Sunday in this town where Jesus Christ lived nearly 2,000 years ago.

The Christmas pilgrims visited the site of the Annunciation and wandered through the market place and narrow alleys of the town, little changed since Jesus's day.

An unusually large turnout included smartly-dressed diplomats, U.S. soldiers and Africans in colorful native dress.

Religious services were held at St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church and at a Baptist church were — for the first time — a midnight carol service took place.

The traditional visit to Nazareth highlighted the world-wide observance of Christ's birth which brought temporary peace even to such customarily-turbulent places as Algeria and the Congo.

Other pilgrims paid solemn visits to Bethlehem, where Jesus was born under the light of the prophetic eastern star.

In the West Algerian port of Oran, scene of a Christmas Eve outbreak in which one person was killed and four wounded, Christmas Day passed quietly except for an occasional insult shouted by defiant Arabs.

The only Christmas violence reported in the troubled African territory occurred in the Eastern port of Bone, where a 62-year-old man was injured by a grenade thrown into a bar.

In Leopoldville, capital of the Congo, political troubles were shelved for the day while Canadian U.N. soldiers played Santa Claus for Congo children.

Lawmen Receive Rare Yule Gift

The Pampa city police and sheriff's department blotters were without reports of violations over the Christmas weekend.

Jim Conner, chief of police, reported this was the quietest holiday since he joined the department.

Reds Warn All-Out War In Laos Is Near; U.S. Intervention Hit

By LEROY HANSEN United Press International

TOKYO (UPI) — Communist broadcasters filled the air today with warnings of all-out war in Laos and charges of U.S. intervention in that Southeast Asia nation.

There was no letup in propaganda barrage from Radio Peiping, Radio Hanoi, Radio Pyongyang and the Red underground Radio Laos.

The broadcasts hammered away at two themes: 1. The West is risking full-scale war in Laos.

2. The entire confused Laos situation is the fault of the United States because it "interfered" by sending in arms. No mention was made of Soviet arms shipments to Red guerrillas.

The most belligerent broadcast today came from Hanoi in Communist North Viet Nam. It quoted a message sent by Foreign Minister Pham Van Dong echoing Russia's demand for an immediate meeting of the countries which participated in the 1954 Geneva conference, which brought an end to the Indochina war.

The message was addressed to Britain and Russia, co-chairmen of the 1954 conference.

"War is now threatening to spread out in Laos," the message said. "The U.S. imperialists and their Thai and South Viet Nam agents are intensifying their intervention. The aggressive forces of the SEATO military bloc are preparing it on a large scale.

"Any delay in the settlement of the Laotian question will have evil consequences for peace and security in the countries in Indochina and Southeast Asia."

Red China's official news agency, in a dispatch from Hanoi, reported the "unlawful arrival" of U.S. Gen. Alden K. Sibley in Saigon and called him a "U.S. warlord."

It said North Viet Nam had lodged a "strong protest" because the general's trip "constituted a brazen violation" of the Geneva agreements.

Then, reading from an illuminated Latin text in a huge book held by assistants, the Pope delivered his blessing.

Sheriff Grabs Killers Of Tulia Police Officer

TULIA, Tex. (UPI)—Three Indiana fugitives, captured by a gun-totin' sheriff so angry he "would have blown their heads off" if they made a false move, were returned to the Texas Panhandle town of Tulia Monday to face charges of killing the city's assistant police chief.

The three are accused of shooting Robert Potter, 41, newly appointed assistant police chief at Tulia, to death when he surprised them in the midst of a cafe burglary early Christmas morning.

The three—Hasnon Lee Winnett, 20, James Groover, 31, and Donald Nickoise Carlson, 28, all fugitives from the Anderson, Ind., county jail—were sighted fleeing from the shooting scene and were trapped when Sheriff L. S. (Slim) Johnston of Canyon threw a road-block in front of their car.

"I told them to come out, and they answered they had guns," Johnston, a 6-4, 235-pounder said. "So I told them if they wanted to fight that was fine with me."

"Then I told them if they didn't throw their guns out, I'd blow their heads off."

Johnston said he was carrying a sawed-off shotgun cradled in one arm and a pistol in his other hand.

"One of them kicked a revolver under the car," Johnston said. "I guess he thought he might have a chance to use it. I told him that if he reached for it I would blow him apart—and I meant it."

The three had an assortment of 16 guns with them at the time of the arrest, including pistols, revolvers, rifles and shotguns. One of the weapons was that of Potter. It still had blood on the handle.

Potter was killed when, after a routine night, he was about ready to go off duty and have Christmas breakfast with his family. But he noticed something wrong at Wayne's Cafe on the edge of town.

"Send me some help quick, there's somebody inside Wayne's place," he radioed dispatcher J. L. Hatcher.

But Potter didn't wait for help. He crept up to the cafe, broke a window, fired a shot over the heads of the burglars inside and told them to drop their weapons.

Winnett later admitted racing out a back door, circling the building and firing three shots at Potter from close range. Two of the bullets struck the officer.

Mrs. Ikard's Rites Slated Wednesday

Father, Son Renew Acquaintance After Long 18-Year Separation

PALATKA, Fla. (UPI)—Herbert M. Young, 58, and his son Donald, 28, "got acquainted" today after 18 years.

Young, sales manager of a radio station here, was reunited with his son Sunday. Young, after his first wife died, had placed the boy for adoption in 1942 at the age of 8, and under the terms was forbidden to contact him.

But Donald, now a Navy veteran and a student at St. Vincent's College in New York, traced his father by mail and found him earlier this month. The son flew from New York to nearby Jacksonville where he was met by his father and step-mother. Young has no other children.

"I prayed an awful lot to find my father," Donald said, "and I know this meeting is an answer to those prayers. This is the best Christmas since I don't know when."

"Don remembers a lot of things we used to do," Young said, "so we're just going to spend a week talking and getting to know each other again."

"Don't stop! If we don't entertain her, she'll entertain us!"

Annual Youth Club Party Attracts 200 At Perryton

PERRYTON (Sp) — The Veteran's Memorial Building was the scene of the American Community Youth Club's annual Christmas party last week. Approximately two hundred attended.

The entire program was under the supervision of the junior staff with the boys and girls furnishing the entertainment.

Master of Ceremonies Arnold DeArmond opened the program with a humorous story about an Old Fashioned Christmas 30 years ago. Linda Wiley, Donna Wilson, Vicki Cutting, Linda Bryan and Billie Graves sang Christmas songs.

Several boys and girls then put on an exhibition of trampoline jumping.

ACYC President Larry McLain presented gifts of white Bibles to Jess Moulton, Marvin Hooper, Rick Cutting and Rusty Taylor. The Bibles were engraved in gold with the individual's name and "ACYC".

According to McLain, "These men were out here working with the boys and girls almost every night of the week and on Sunday afternoons."

The Junior Staff and the club members presented a gift of cuff links and tie clasp to McLain.

In making the presentation MC DeArmond said, "I believe a person is lucky to know one great man in a lifetime, but I know the other kids will agree when I say, we think that you have just been introduced to five great men."

While the group was singing "Jingle Bells," Santa Claus arrived to pass out gifts to each child present.

Refreshments of chocolate milk, ice cream and cookies were served, and each child received a sack of candy, fruit and nuts.

The Borden Milk Co. furnished the chocolate milk, the club bought the ice cream and each mother brought cookies.

As in the past, the treat sacks were furnished by Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Daley, whom the children have nicknamed "Santa Claus Daley."

Later in the evening, mothers and fathers met to discuss forming a Women's Auxiliary and a Men's Auxiliary to the club.

The Women's Auxiliary will meet at the Veteran's Memorial Building at 7:30 p.m. Monday, the first project of the group will be to make robes for the boxing team. Anyone who would like to help with any of the projects, may contact Mrs. Bert White, chairman of the Women's group.

Midwest Convocation In Progress

The five-day Midwest Convocation opened at 9 a.m. with morning prayer initiating the program.

The meetings are being conducted in the Texas National Guard Armory on Highway 60, just east of Pampa, and will be concluded with a 7:30 p.m. closing service Friday.

This series of special religious programs has attracted ministers and laymen from Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma, Arkansas and from throughout Texas, and many of them are scheduled to deliver sermons and messages during the sessions.

The daily schedule through Friday is:

9 a.m. morning prayer; 10:30 a.m. Bible lesson, the Rev. Robert Girouard of Pampa, speaker; 1:30 p.m. children's service; 2:30 p.m. afternoon service; 6:30 p.m. youth service, and 7:30 o'clock, evening service.

Directors are the Rev. A. W. Ferguson, pastor of the Kingsmill Doyle Wiles, pastor of the Aposto-Community Church; the Rev. Doyle Wiles, pastor of the Apostolic Faith Church of Guyton, Okla., and the Rev. Donald D. Dibbens, pastor of the Follett Chapel of Follett.

Germans Flee East Berlin By The Hundreds

BERLIN (UPI)—East Germans took advantage of relaxed Communist border controls over the holidays to flee to the west in increasing numbers, it was reported today.

Nearly 1,500 Soviet zone residents sought asylum in West Berlin during the weekend, compared to 600 in four days last year.

The Christmas flights raised this year's refugee total to 196,000. It was expected to pass 200,000 by the end of the year. The figure for last year was 14,000.

Uneasy Peace Hangs Over New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — An uneasy Christmas peace in the city's school integration crisis was threatened today by new frictions between disgruntled teachers and the legislature.

A walkout move reportedly under way among the city's teachers, none of whom got Christmas paychecks, could cripple the city's entire public school system. Classes are to resume Jan. 3.

The legislature may bring about a shutdown by cutting off operating funds, a campaign which has already denied the teachers a month's pay. The legislators also could abandon the public schools to integration and turn to subsidizing private segregated education.

Gov. Jimmie Davis, under fire for "allowing public scandal to run rampant," worked on an appeal to the people for support of a tax increase he contends is essential to the state's anti-integration fight.

Davis has asked for free television time Thursday in an effort to reverse a slim defeat in the House of Representatives of his proposed sales tax increase. The measure failed by three votes to receive the required two-thirds.

About 300 teachers met Christmas eve and voted to seek a meeting with top legislative leaders and the school board to try to get their pay.

But a dissatisfied faction emerged from the mass meeting and announced it would call a meeting of its own. It criticized actions at the meeting as "too weak."

"This whole problem could be solved if we would accept the legislature as our boss," a leader said.

Model And Actress Combine Talents To See That Neophytes Are Trained

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor
NEW YORK (UPI)—Two show business veterans named Dollar and Nickel are working to see that neophytes in their field get their money's worth in their training.

They are Lynn Dollar, former model, weather girl on television and hostess on the $46,000 Question on TV, and Nerissa Nickel, one-time model, a nightclub singer, and actress on both the stage and television.

The two with a combined 25 years experience in modeling and show business have formed a counseling service for those determined on a career in the entertainment business.

Their major purpose, they said, is to serve as sort of a clearing house—an advisory and information center on where the would-be actor, singer or comedian can get the most for his or her money, whether it's being spent on drama or voice lessons, for photographs, at the reducing salon or for a wig. They also try to match the type of professional service with the needs of their clients.

The Misses Dollar and Nickel, who once as roommates in Philadelphia owned a dog named "Penny," have been counseling through their career co-ordinators for two months now. They'll line up a coach to teach you how to do television commercials, said you

Spreads For Those Raids On Ice-Box

After the ball is over, invite the crowd to your house for a raid on the ice box. Of course, you will have assembled a tempting variety of spreads and breads beforehand.

The clue to an appetizing array of sandwiches is in offering unusual types of bread and fillings. For example, we suggest you try the new Hovis sandwich loaf containing a cup of wheat germ, which gives a rich, nutty flavor, yet a tender texture. Start with an easy-spreading food — butter, cream cheese or mayonnaise, and blend in one or more of the popular sandwich fillings listed below:

Cream Cheese with: cranberry jelly, chopped pecans, cucumber, pimiento, figs, dates, raisins, olives, green pepper, marmalade, crushed pineapple or ripe olives.

Pimiento Cheese with: raisins, chives, watercress, chopped olives, or chopped nuts.

Chicken or Tuna Fish with: celery, currant jelly, dill pickles, chopped egg, chopped ham, tongue, liver, cucumber, tomatoes, lettuce, chopped almonds.

Hard-Cooked Egg with: lobster pimiento, minced bacon, raw spinach, mustard pickles, chili sauce, celery, deviled ham.

Peanut Butter: jelly, pineapple, raisins, dates, figs, bananas, prunes, honey.

Keeps Butter Warm
To soften butter without melting it, fill a bowl with boiling water. Empty the bowl and place it upside down over the butter dish.

Jacket for Holidays
The Chanel jacket goes on and one on. For the holidays, it's shown in green, blue, purple or dark wine velvet.

After the holidays come school exams for many teen-agers. In order to come through them with flying colors, relax both your mind and body before you start each study session. This teen-ager (left) gives her eyes a rest by covering them with cotton pads saturated in cold water. A warm, sudsy bath (center) will drain away tensions and get you set for the big push ahead. Get into a comfortable robe or lounging tunic (right) before you start a session with books.

New Leader Named For Junioresettes

GROOM (Spl) — Junioresette 4H Club met recently in the schoolhouse to make snowmen, angels and Christmas bells from paper cutouts for the Christmas tree. During the business meeting, conducted by Miss Sandra Kotara, Mrs. Sam Kotara was elected 4H organizational leader for 1961. Miss Sandra Clark conducted the roll call which was answered by "a Christmas gift I'd like to make." A gift was presented to Mrs. Jane Fletcher, county home-demonstration agent, in appreciation of her work with the club. Miss Patricia Hunt was hostess during the social hour. Attending were Misses Sheryl Valentine, Carolyn Brooks, Twila Wade, Sandra Weatherly; Meses. Jane Fletcher, Sam Kotara and George Latta. Plans were announced for the Christmas dinner party and gift exchange, which was held in the home of Mrs. Latta and Ellen.

School, Beauty Exams Follow Gay Holidays

ALICIA HART
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
When the gala round of holiday festivities is over, high school students across the country find they must take time out from social activities to prepare for their end-of-term exams. A mental workout is often more tiring than physical labor, and cramming for exams can be intensive work. It's important during this period that you keep in good health and set aside time during your study periods for relaxation that will refresh your mind as well as your body. To begin with, diet is important. Stay away from too many rich and starchy foods. A small amount will give you needed energy, but too much will make you sluggish. Perhaps you've never thought of a warm, sudsy bath as an ally during the pre-exam period, but it can be one. Certainly, baths are no substitute for study, but they can help you to study more effectively. If you've let things slide and have to cram each evening, you may find that you've become exhausted long before you've accomplished your goal for one particular night.

The Mature Parent Identify With Others To Retain Real Values

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE
The year 1940 was a terrible and magnificent one for my generation. It was terrible because every day saw another piece of Europe fall into the blaze of Hitler's madness. It was magnificent because we said to ourselves as he marched implacably toward us: "Has our disconnection from Europe helped to set loose this maniac? Have we Americans been too involved with ourselves?" "Why did we think we could stand aside from Czechoslovakia's agony? Why didn't we know we would feel this machine-gunning of Polish women and children in our own flesh? For we do feel it. "It is now clear that instead of being safe from the fate of the Poles, the French, the Dutch, the British and Czechs, we are inextricably involved with it." The parents of young adults must recall this conclusion. We must also recall the fact that as we accepted identification with the people of Europe, we recovered the sense of meaning we had lost to disconnection. In the terrible, magnificent year of 1940 under the threat of Adolf Hitler, we Americans lost our self-centeredness and regained our souls. We need to recall this stirring experience for young people deeply troubled by the Soviet Union's threats. Over and over they say to me: "What's the use? Tomorrow the Russians may drop the H-bomb. Why should we study and work to become something when there may be no world left for anyone to be anything in?" I am learning to answer: "In 1940 my generation discovered we were one with the peoples of Europe. In 1960 you are discovering that you are one with the people of the world. As Adolf Hitler forced us to identify ourselves with the Poles and the Dutch, Nikita Khrushchev is forcing you to identify yourselves with the people of India, Indone-

If you're on a very restricted diet it may be necessary to turn down dinner invitations, unless a hostess insists it will be no trouble to serve your special food. Tunesful Tip Did you know that you can remove yellow stains from your piano keys by using a cloth dipped in cologne.

★ Polly's Quiz ★

By Polly Cramer

In this business of planning our homes, we've let the lamp situation get out of hand. Season by season, lamps get bigger and more impressive. Too often, there's no relation between the lamp and the height of the table on which it stands. They also dominate the picture window scene without improving it. Lamps are at their best when they're about the same height and have matching or similar shades. Keep the shades simple. Often, new shades are the only change needed. My own living room, with a gray-blue color scheme, became far more interesting when I switched from stark white shades to gold ones. Dear Polly: We're doing over my daughter's room and I'd like it to be very feminine. Walls are papered in a scattered daisy design in aqua, pink and gold on white. A fourth wall is all-white. Organdy curtains are white, too. Cork floor is partially covered with an angora tweed rug, a hand-me-down that I must keep. Bedrooms set is maple and is bad shape. Do I dare paint this set she inherited? It is about 35 years old. I thought of using pink for it. —Mrs. D.M. Dear Mrs. D.M.: Gay, fresh paint will do a lot for that battered furniture. If the bed stands against the white wall, then paint the bed pink. The other pieces could be white. Narrow pink-and-white striped chintz would make a pretty bedspread with a narrow band of the striping set just above a white dust ruffle. Cover a small upholstered chair with the same stripes. Or use plain aqua with a striped pillow tucked in one corner. Economy For Gourmets Economy meat with a gourmet touch: Make several gashes in Snack lunch-meat loaf and insert pineapple and apple wedges. Stick a few whole cloves in top of meat and spread with brown sugar mixed to a paste with pineapple juice. Bake in small pan, basting with juice, at 325 degrees for 25 minutes. —Polly Cramer

Adamson-Wright Say Vows In Baptist Chapel

Mrs. Richard Gordon Wright
...nee Sonya Carolyn Adamson

In a double-ring ceremony performed on December 18 at 7:30 p.m. in the chapel of the First Baptist Church in Midland, Miss Sonya Carolyn Adamson of Midland became the bride of Richard Gordon Wright of Pampa.

Dr. L. L. Morris was officiant for the service performed in a setting of baskets of white chrysanthemums and a large cathedral candle tree. Pews of honor were marked with white ribbon bows. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Adamson of Midland. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jess Earl Wright, Price Road, Pampa.

BRIDE

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of bridal satin fashioned with a deep yoke of Chantilly lace outlined with sequins. A wide panel of lace accented the front and back of the full skirt.

20-30 Club Plays Santa To Children

LEFORS (Spl) — The 20-30 Club's Christmas Party was held in the civic center on Monday night, with Mrs. J. M. McPherson as hostess.

Roll call was answered by showing centerpieces made by the individual club members, which were then used to decorate the tables for the salad supper which followed.

Mrs. Wayne Sims, president, presided over the business meeting. The group wrapped toys to be used to brighten Christmas for some of the less fortunate children. The club members played "Santa" on Thursday night.

Ceramic angels were given as favors. Attending were Meses. Joe Archer, Meredith Cox, Ray Dickerson, Chestene Dunn, Gene Fort, Ernest Foshee, Ed Lehnick, J. M. McPherson, Wayne Sims, Clois Pinner, Gordon Robinson, Kenneth Vernon, and H. L. Teel, guest.

Donnell of Midland and Mary Ann Robbins of Houston.

Background piano selections were played by Mrs. Shelly Crawford.

For the wedding trip, the bride wore an olive green wool suit with mink collar, matching pillbox hat, brown alligator shoes and handbag. Her gardenia corsage was taken from the center of her bride's bouquet.

Following a trip to Santa Fe, N.M., the couple will reside in Lubbock after January 1.

The bride attended Texas Technological College and has been employed with the Midland National Bank. The bridegroom is a junior student at Texas Tech, where he is affiliated with the Sigma Chi fraternity.

Out of city guests attending included Mrs. J. D. Crawford, bride's grandmother; and Mrs. J. B. Walker of O'Donnell; Mrs. Eva E. Wright, bridegroom's grandmother and Mrs. M. M. Bybee of Farmington, N.M.; Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Crawford of Lamesa; Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Newton of Tahoka; Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Crawford of Grandfalls; Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Hines of Lubbock; Mr. and Mrs. Omar Bybee and children, Ann and Bobbie of Pampa; Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Moore and Mrs. J. D. McKay of Kermit.

The wedding party were guests at a rehearsal dinner given on Friday before the wedding on Saturday evening.

Civic Culture Club Has Annual Party

The Civic Culture Club entertained husbands at its annual Christmas party in Caldwell's Buffeteria. Following dinner, guests adjourned to the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Waters where the evening was spent in playing Forty-two. Later gifts were exchanged from a gaily-decorated Christmas tree.

Members of the entertainment committee assisting Mrs. Waters were Mrs. A. C. Houchin and Mrs. Irvin Cole.

The following were present: Meses. and Messrs. Carl E. Axelson, Stanley Brandt, Irvin Cole, Sandy Houchin, A. D. Hills, George Neef, Emmett Osborne, W. C. Scott, K. A. Sorenson, J. B. Townsend, Willis White, Mrs. Ophelia Morris and Mrs. Katie Vincent.

Mrs. C. L. McKinney Yule Party Hostess

The Bethany Sunday School Class of the First Baptist Church met Thursday in the home of Mrs. C. L. McKinney for its annual Christmas party.

Verses from the second chapter of Luke were read as the devotional. Mrs. W. W. Estes read a Christmas story.

Following a religious quiz conducted by Mrs. Hutton, gifts were exchanged.

Refreshments were served during the social hour to twenty guests.

William J. Marsh, Mozart Clubs Are Entertained With "Jingle Bells Party"

The William J. Marsh Music Club and the Mozart Music Club were entertained with a "Jingle Bells Party" on Tuesday evening by the counselor for both clubs, Tracy D. Cary in his studio, 436 N. Sumner. The two Junior Federated Clubs are composed of students in Mr. Cary's piano, organ and voice classes.

As each guest arrived, Miss Karen Mathews, recording secretary of the Marsh Club and Miss Cynthia Rasco, corresponding secretary, pinned the name of a composer on members' backs which they tried to identify from clues given them during the evening. Miss Connie Crow was captain of the winning team to which prizes were awarded following the games.

With the studio illuminated only by candlelight, the group sang carols accompanied at the organ by Mr. Cary, as a prelude to the program which opened with the playing of organ numbers "Jingle Bells," "Jolly Old St. Nicholas," and "Away in a Manger" by Steven Waters, seven year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Waters and youngest member of the Mozart Club. Two vocal numbers, "Oh, Holy Night" and "Gesu Bambino" were sung by Mrs. Dale Walker, soprano.

It was announced that Wayne Lemons, treasurer of the Marsh Club, had been awarded the highest rank in Scouting, that of Eagle Scout, at a recent court of honor. Also a Christmas greeting to the club was read from William J. Marsh, composer of the state song, "Texas, Our Texas," and for whom the local group is named. Mr. Marsh resides in Ft. Worth.

Following the exchanging of gifts, refreshments were served from a table draped in pink tulle overlaid with a spider-lace cloth. The centerpiece was a milk-glass punch bowl placed in a bed of silver garland and red net. Matching cups were suspended from the rim of the bowl and in each was a gold or red ball ornament. Red tapers burning in gold and crystal holders flanked the arrangement.

Approximately 55 members and guests attended.

Dear Abby...

Salami Story
Sounds Like Baloney
ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Please don't think I am stupid, but is there really any such thing as sleepwalking or is that something people joke about? My husband was put on a 1000-calorie diet. Last night, about midnight, I heard the refrigerator door slam, so I got up found Orville gone from our bed. I went to the kitchen (all the lights were on) and he was standing there, barefoot and in his pajamas, eating a piece of salami. I yelled, "ORVILLE!" He dropped the salami and acted like he just came out of a trance. He claims he doesn't know how he got there and must have been walking in his sleep. Do you think he's telling me the truth?

DOUBTING MRS.
DEAR DOUBTING: His salami story sounds like a lot of baloney to me.

DEAR ABBY: Can you tell me what to do about a man who will not keep himself clean? We have been married 45 years and it is a fight to get him to take a bath on the week-end. When he goes fishing he comes home covered with dirt and fly dope and he won't take a bath because he did it before he left.

He is retired and has plenty of time. I am so ashamed of him I could cry. When he gets up in the morning he never washes his face because he says he will do it when he shaves. Please help.

BETTER HALF
DEAR BETTER: Start early in the morning to nag this man, and nag him every hour of the day until he breaks down and takes a bath. If he has always been this

TIME FOR VIOLENCE

By Noel M. Loomis

THE STORY: Xenophon Jones has offered Bart Wagner $1,000 if he will drive Catherine Lewis from her ranch. In reply, Bart hits Jones in the jaw.

are still in the country, Mr. Wagner.

He nodded. "So are you." Catherine said from the fragrant dimness within the cabin. "Oh, Bart, Miss Harding—Stella—has come to stay for a few days."

"She'll be company," Bart said briefly.

"It will be fun to have a woman to talk to," said Catherine, apparently sensing his disapproval of Stella.

He started to push his hat back with his forearm, but Stella lifted it off his head almost as soon as he reached for it. He ate in silence, with Stella's remarks almost entirely addressed to him. "That's a beautiful horse you have, Mr. Wagner."

He nodded, his mouth full of cornbread.

"I didn't recognize the mark. Is that a New Mexico brand?" "South Texas," said Bart. "H Flower de Luce."

"You mean Fleur de Lis." He looked at her. "In Kansas City you can call it anything you want, but in Texas it's Flower de Luce when it's on a horse or a cow."

By the time he had finished his pie, it was almost dark. He went outside in the twilight to have a smoke, but again there was an interruption when Stella Harding came out to stand beside him. "Pretty, isn't it?" she said.

He was looking across the canyon at the wavering layers of gray and red and purple rock, and he answered without thinking, "Yes."

"I mean, pretty monotonous," she said in her husky voice. She waited for a reply.

"Are you sweet on that Lewis woman?" she demanded. Watching the colors in the canyon wall fade into gray, he answered, "It wouldn't be any of your business if I were."

"I'll make it my business," Unruffled, he answered, "You don't need to. I have no designs on her."

She moved in front of him and faced him squarely—a beautiful woman, there in the half-dark. "Bart, I saw you offer your six-shooter to the man they were threatening to hang." Her eyes were almost luminous. "It took a real man to do a thing like that."

He looked down at her. "Other men have the same qualities. What's the matter with Hector Johnson?"

"Why do you mention him?" "I saw his eyes on you when you brought the coffee."

She said scornfully, "Every cowpuncher's eyes are on me all the time."

"Hector Johnson is in love with you," he said.

"Love! A plowhand and a race horse!"

The woman knew what she was doing, all right. That extravagant gesture of his in facing down Gentry—which might have been motivated by a subconscious desire to show off before Stella—had had its effect on the woman. And her very persistence, instead of repelling him, seemed more of a challenge than anything else.

But he was not ready to make a decision about her; he had other things on the fire.

Her voice changed suddenly. She was almost pleading. "What do you think of me, Bart?"

He said, "You're a breath-taking woman, and any man would be honored to have you—but I've got work to do first."

She sighed, but her voice sounded resigned. "Very well, Bart, I'll be patient."

He chuckled. "If you are, I'll wager it's the first time."

He walked back to the cabin. (To Be Continued)

Richard Dupont, 36, and his wife, Margaret, 35, surveyed their work, checked on their six sleeping children and left to attend midnight Mass.

Then fire broke out.

Five of their children suffocated as a basement fire filled their one and a half story house with intense heat and consumed the oxygen.

A neighbor, Harry Myers, Sr. heard a child scream and saw the light of the flames as he returned from church early Christmas morning. He ran to the home of George Bumm who called firemen and then rescued 11-year-old Laurie from an upstairs window.

Bumm also carried the only boy in the family down the ladder. He was Robert, 5, but he was already dead. The four other children were in first-floor bedrooms.

Police sent word of the fire to the church and the Rev. Leo E. Gatens quietly took the parents outside and told them; then accompanied them to each of the three hospitals where their children were taken.

Fire Marshal Fred K. Hibbs said an overheated oil furnace in a basement recreation room started the fire. Flames spread up a flight of stairs to the kitchen.

The fire got no further, the rest of the house was undamaged, the tree was still trimmed and the gifts were stacked neatly around it—but the children were gone.

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (UPI)—Authorities will formally charge a 38-year-old Huntsville Negro with first degree murder and robbery—probably Tuesday—in connection with the murder of a Huntsville grocer, Solicitor Mason Weaver said.

The solicitor said ex-convict George Vaughn was not charged when arrested Friday "because of the Christmas holidays. But he'll be charged early this week."

The grocer, E. C. Wallace, 46, was slain as he sat in an easy chair in his small grocery last Tuesday. Wallace's wife and his 10-year-old nephew, Joe Cristy, told officers they saw a Negro, gun in hand, run from the store.

Weaver said Vaughn "has served time in both Alabama and Florida prisons...and is probably involved in three or more unsolved burglaries in the Huntsville area."

OSAKA, Japan (UPI)—Traffic authorities reported today that 280 of the city's safety islands were smashed by automobiles this year. City officials plan to build stronger ones in 1961.

MIAMI (UPI) — The Miami Herald reported Sunday that 23 U.S. citizens and about 200 Cubans were training for an invasion of Cuba under the direction of Rolando Masferrer.

The newspaper said the Americans were here and most of the Cubans were in New York City, senator who during the reign of Masferrer, a former Cuban senator who during the reign of Fulgencio Batista had his own private army called the "Tigers" is accused by the Fidel Castro regime of murder and atrocity. He is generally considered to be the top "war criminal" on Castro's list.

Masferrer's attorney, Monroe Gelb, said he did not know the whereabouts of his client, who fled here after Castro took power on Jan. 1, 1959.

"He moves around a lot," Gelb said, "doesn't want anybody to know where he is. There have been two attempts to kidnap him and take him out of here, you know."

The Herald identified five Americans who were part of a group living in a "barracks" here. It said the men called Masferrer their "boss man" and said they would invade Cuba upon his order.

The Americans listed were Tommy Baker, 28, Dothan, Ala.; Alvin Wentz, 21, and Nicholas Neri, 21, both of Rochester, N.Y.; Larry Bice, 22, Columbus, Ohio, and Ken Proctor, 33, Boston. The Herald reported Proctor was a U.S. Army paratrooper for five years.

NO CHASE NEEDED PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Police didn't have to chase their first holiday drunken driving suspect here Sunday—he crashed into the rear of a police car.

Forrest Haines, 30, was pronounced intoxicated by a police surgeon and held in $500 bail.

In the American colonies, any man who could raise a company of 39 men could win a captaincy in the army, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Five In Family Perish In Arkansas Home Fire

FEASTERVILLE, Pa. (UPI)—The children were nestled all snug in their beds, the Christmas tree was trimmed and the family's gifts were stacked neatly about the tree.

Bracero Sought In Murder Of Citrus Grower

EDCOUCH, Tex. (UPI)—Police on both sides of the Texas-Mexico border were searching Monday for a Mexican bracero accused of shooting prominent South Texas citrus grower George William Henner, 75, to death and then attacking Henner's elderly wife.

Mrs. Henner called police Sunday and told them of the assault. She said the bracero shot her husband and then beat her and took her to a levee near the Mexican border and threw her from a car.

Police found Henner's body lying in an orchard near his home. Mrs. Henner was taken to a Westlaco, Tex., hospital for treatment of injuries suffered when she was beaten.

Mrs. Henner said the bracero came up to her husband Christmas Eve and asked for a loan of $50. She said Henner could produce only $40 and offered to write a check for the other $10. Instead of accepting, she said, the bracero struck Henner.

She said the laborer chased Henner and shot him, and then returned and forced her to accompany him in a car.

SANTA FORGIVES 'EM FORT MYERS, Fla. (UPI) — Santa Claus handed out the police department's parking tickets here Sunday.

The tickets read: "You have been caught. All is forgiven. Best wishes and a Merry Christmas from the police department."

Fire Destroys Delicatessen

MONTGOMERY (UPI) — Firemen fought for more than an hour in dense smoke before controlling a three-alarm blaze which swept through the Court Street delicatessen in a downtown section here Christmas Day.

Owner, Mac Hasson estimated the damage in thousands. Hasson said he was "waiting on a customer when suddenly another customer yelled, 'Your place is on fire'."

Thick smoke hampered firemen as they fought to contain the flames in the old building. Smoke and water damage was substantial to buildings on either side of the delicatessen which had been operating since 1916.

13 States Wrapped In Winter's Icy Grip

By United Press International
New England and the western Rocky Mountains lie at each end of a 13-state cold front that followed Christmas into the nation's northern tier.
Accompanied by showers and snow flurries from Maine across the Great Lakes and northern Great Plains into Washington, Canadian cold air dropped temperatures suddenly and slicked highways for Christmas travelers.
The U.S. Weather Bureau predicted occasional showers along the northwest Pacific coast, snow on west slopes of the Rockies, and snow or snow flurries from the Dakotas east to Maine throughout the day.
Iowa weather typified the abrupt end to fair Christmas conditions. In southwestern Decatur County, Lamoni expected lows around 10 degrees tonight after registering a record Christmas Day high of 59.
Other potentially dangerous traveling weather moved in from the Gulf states and southeast Texas, played out through Arkansas, Tennessee and western North Carolina, and headed north through the Ohio Valley to join precipitation over the lower Great Lakes.
Elsewhere skies remained fair to partly cloudy. Weather over most of the Southwest was bright and warm. Las Vegas, Nev., reported sunshine and fair skies, and Los Angeles daytime temperatures were in the 70s.
The Weather Bureau forecast a general warming trend from Alabama and Georgia northeast into lower New England and little temperature change elsewhere outside the colder northern third of the nation.
New York City had a high of 36 and low of 27 Christmas Day. Other high-low readings for the day were Boston, 43-28; Duluth, Minn., 25-26; Chicago, 41-13; New Orleans, 73-51; Miami, 72-62; Seattle, 44-36; San Diego, 65-44, and Tucson, Ariz., 72-39.

Rites Slated Tuesday For Dallas Banker

DALLAS, Tex. (UPI)—Funeral services will be held in Dallas Tuesday for Fred Farrel Florence, 69, chairman of the executive committee of the Republic National Bank of Dallas.
Florence, who had been associated with the bank since 1920, died Sunday after several months illness.
A native of New York, Florence moved with his parents to Rusk, Tex., at the age of six months. At the age of 24, he became president of the Alto, Tex., State Bank where he remained until moving to Dallas.
A business and civic leader in both Dallas and the Southwest, Florence was named president of Republic National in 1929 at the age of 37. He served as chairman of the banking committee in President Eisenhower's "People to People" program to promote international understanding and friendship in 1956.
In 1956, Florence was honored at a testimonial dinner given by friends and associates at which a "Fred Florence Scholarship Fund" was created. Income from the fund goes to the Southwestern Medical Foundation.

3 Mississippians Are Due Awards

OXFORD, Miss. (UPI)—The outgoing director of the University of Mississippi medical center and two retired government officials were named today as recipients of the 1961 distinguished service awards presented by a Jackson savings and loan association.

West Germany Is Ready To Agree To Pay Off Some U.S. Tabs Quietly

By LEON DENNEN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — (NEA) — In international negotiations, impatience or moral indignation often cause misunderstanding where old-fashioned diplomacy will produce results.

Relations between the United States and West Germany, two leading members of NATO, are a case in point.

Discussions are going on quietly in Bonn on the ambassadorial level to check the alarming drain on American dollars and gold. The U. S. and German negotiators have narrowed their differences, an agreement is reported near.

Yet when Secretary of the Treasury Robert B. Anderson demanded only a month ago the payment of $800 million toward the cost of maintaining U.S. troops in Germany, the Bonn government bluntly refused. For political and psychological reasons the west Germans are touchy about anything that looks like a revival of occupation costs. Bonn is preparing for general elections. Chancellor Konrad Adenauer would have committed a political blunder had he accepted, in the glare of publicity, Anderson's "ultimatum."

Sixteen years after the defeat of Hitler, Germany still produces emotional reactions. The coming trial of Adolf Eichman in Israel will refresh men's memory of Hitler's victims.

Yet something vital to the future of the non-communist world is missing in this approach to West Germany.

Surely the Germany of Adenauer and his Socialist opponent Willy Brandt, the brave Mayor of West Berlin, is not the Germany of Hitler. The Bonn Federal Republic, led by men like Professor Carol Schmid and Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano, bears no resemblance to the Nazi Third Reich.

Most of West Germany's young men and women were yet to be born when Hitler came to power in 1933. Indeed, what has impressed me most in my many talks with the German youth of today is their new-found independence and their conscious refusal to be influenced and guided by collective hysteria.

An emotional approach also obscures the fact that West Germany is now an important member of the Atlantic alliance. For good or bad, General Heusinger of the West German army occupies one of the most important military planning posts in NATO. Of the 21 NATO divisions in Europe which face 27 Soviet divisions, West Germany will contribute 12 by 1962.

Without Bonn's contribution in manpower and money there can be no effective defense of Europe against Red aggression. No one understands this better than Soviet Premier Khrushchev who is moving heaven and earth to get West Germany out of NATO.

No other nation, to be sure, benefited more from NATO than Germany. For many years West Germany, as an occupied country, was spared the costs of maintaining an army. There is absolutely no reason why Bonn should not pump some of the enormous amount of money the Germans have accumulated since the end of the war into foreign investment and spending now carried by the United States.

The Germans themselves are aware that their record on defense spending is vulnerable. Thus they now agree:

To pay immediately to the U.S. the German postwar debt of $600 million. (According to the original agreement, this was to be paid in installments.)

To increase the amount of arms to be purchased by Germany from the U.S.

To increase Bonn's financial contribution to NATO's maintenance and construction costs so that the present American share of 37 per cent will be reduced to 30 per cent.

To increase German aid to the underdeveloped countries of Asia and Africa to the amount of one billion dollars.

Bonn also agrees to take over the financing of U. S. aid projects in Turkey and Greece, leaving control of these projects in American hands. Von Brentano gave a new perspective to U.S. German relations when he said: "Support of the dollar is important to our own security because the strongest partner of the Atlantic alliance, the United States, must not have any difficulties."

However, while West Germany is ready to part with some cash she does not want to be treated as inferior among the Western nations. Von Brentano said:

"We are an equal partner in the Atlantic alliance and the alliance is an indivisible whole."

RECOVERED CAPSULE — The Marine helicopter crew that plucked the Project Mercury Spacecraft out of the Atlantic, Capt. Allen Daniel, left, and First Lt. Wayne Koons, inspect the capsule at Cape Canaveral, Fla. The Spacecraft was rocketed 135 miles high and 250 miles down the missile range by a Redstone missile. The capsule was flown back to Cape Canaveral to be examined by project scientists. (NEA TELEPHOTO)

Here's Best News For Children Since Days Of The Big Bad Wolf

NEW YORK — (NEA) — About the only good news for children since the Big Bad Wolf met up with the Small Smart Pig comes from Joe Barbera.

Joe is half of Hanna-Barbera, the outfit which produces The Flintstones, for adults, and Huckleberry Hound and Quick Draw McGraw for kids. The good news is that early in January, there will be a third children's show from Hanna-Barbera. Yogi Bear, one of the Huckleberry Hound people, will have his own show.

Now what makes this good news is that the children have become the neglected people on television. There are shows for men, shows for women and even shows for bowlers. But the poor tikes and tikes get short shrift on a large screen.

Of course, there have been exceptions. Peter Pan is one even though it was on so late that by the time Captain Hook went over the side most of the youthful audience had conked out. But, on a regular basis, you can count on the fingers of one dimpled hand the programs which are halfway decent for children to watch.

There are Lassie and Rin-Tin-Tin and perhaps Naional Velvet. There are Fury and Casey Jones and possibly Dennis the Menace. (OK, so this is a six-fingered dimpled hand.)

Then there is The Shirley Temple Show, which generally provides a good story. But they had a ghastly slip a few weeks ago, when all of a sudden, in the middle of "Tom and Huck," the plot thickened and we were in the middle of some business about grave-robbing.

Did you ever try to explain the fine art of grave-robbing to a five-year-old? The best thing to do is switch over to another channel and give the kid some tranquilizers. And take a few yourself. But by far the majority of the programs which are supposedly designed for children should be shunned by all children and all but thick-skinned adults.

There is violence by the bucketful, blood is thicker than water and the writers out-do each other in inventing novel ways of committing mayhem. All this, of course, has been commented on repeatedly without any noticeable improvement.

And so it is pleasant to be able to report on Hanna-Barbera's progress. There is certainly nothing harmful for children in Huckleberry Hound & Co. In fact, it is all done with a good spirit and in language that doesn't talk down to children; these programs can be safely said to be helpful.

The Almanac

By United Press International
Today is Monday, Dec. 26, the 361st day of the year with five more in 1960.

The moon is approaching its full phase.

The morning star is Mars.

The evening stars are Mars, Saturn and Venus.

On this day in history:
In 1833, Henry Clay proposed a resolution on the floor of the U.S. Senate providing for official censure of President Jackson.

In 1865, James Nason of Franklin, Mass., was awarded a patent for his invention of a coffee percolator.

In 1917, by order of President Wilson, the federal government took over the operation of all railroads for the duration of the war.

In 1941, Winston Churchill became the first British prime Minister to address a joint session of Congress.

Thought for today: British statesman Sir Winston Churchill said: "Victory at all costs, victory in spite of all terror, victory however long and hard the road may be; for without victory there is no survival."

Pampano Heads County Campaign For Lubbock Christian College

O. F. Shewmaker of Pampa has been named Gray County chairman in the fund campaign to raise $2-million for improvement and enlargement of the campus of Lubbock Christian College. Fund raising officials say $300,000 must be subscribed by Dec. 31.

Gray County's quota is $34,500 and to date the county has reached only 10 per cent of its goal.

Working with Shewmaker as local chairmen are Odell Strickland and Floyd Crume of Pampa and George Saunders of McLean.

Dee Cummings of Panhandle is chairman for Carson County which has a goal of $7,000. Carson County has reached 34 per cent of its goal so far. Working with Cumings are Bob Newton of Groom, Cecil Williams of Panhandle, Ralph Kirk of Pantex Village, Frosty Horner of Skellytown and Sam Denney and Gene Stamps of White Deer.

Shewmaker, who also is chairman for Roberts County with a goal of $1,600. This money is needed to acquire 229 additional acres for future expansion and school officials feel the land is worth more than double the option price at which it can be bought.

Included in the campaign is the building of a men's dormitory and completing a giant fieldhouse which will be one of the largest in the nation.

IT'S A SCHOOL—A striking structure indeed is the new Domestic and Trades College in Manchester, England. City architect Leonard C. Howitt designed the complex which was built for $1,680,000. Trades as varied as baking and wig-making are taught at the school which also has a restaurant where student chefs can try their work out on the public.

Balanced Power Keynotes 1960 Players' All-Pro Football Team

By MURRAY OLDERMAN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK (NEA) — Balance was the motif in the National Football League this year.

The Green Bay Packers have it. The title-flying Philadelphia Eagles finally achieved it.

The men of the NFL proved it in their sixth annual All-Players All-Pro team, released today by Newspaper Enterprise Association.

The team will be assembled in Los Angeles Jan. 15, the night of the Pro Bowl Game, and honored at an awards dinner.

The ballots of the 500 performers on the 13 teams in the NFL revealed a virtual dead heat between East and West in naming down the 22 honor spots on the offensive and defensive platoons. The Western Division placed six each on offense and defense. The Eastern half of the league featured six on offense and five on defense.

Leader of the unit is Norm Van Brocklin, the Eagles' Player-of-the-Year, winner of the Jim Thorpe Trophy, an inspirational veteran who supplants Baltimore's Johnny Unitas, at least for this year, as the finest quarterback.

The only other issue on offense involved Tommy McDonald, Van's favorite target, and the Cardinals' Sonny Randle in contention for the second end position to pair with popular Raymond Berry of the Colts. The little Eagle finally roosted there because he delivered the touchdowns (at the rate of one a game) when they meant most.

Berry and Guard Jim Ray Smith and center Jim Ringo of Cleveland were the leading vote attractions on offense.

Joe Schmidt, who recovered from a shoulder injury to perk up the Detroit Lions, keys the defensive unit from the middle linebacker's position. Schmidt is the sole survivor of the first balloting, in 1955, for this most representative of all-star teams, chosen by the players who have to contend on the field of action with these superb performers.

Like always, Joe drew the highest plurality among linebackers. Technically, the inclusion of Chicago's Bill George and New York's Sam Huff (both repeaters from 1959, too) as his running mates can be faulted, for they play the same middle spot as Joe and some experts contend they should be segregated from corner linebackers.

But they're three players saluted as the best at any spot behind the front line of defense.

Old standbys like Gino Marchetti, the Colts' end, and defensive back Dick Lane of the Lions and Jimmy Patton of the Giants freed to another set of laurels. The Bears' Doug Atkins finally made the jump from the second team, ousting Andy Robustelli of the Giants at a flank.

Despite their late season tailspin, the Colts still managed to corral five spots on both units. Only three teams — Pittsburgh, Los Angeles and Dallas — are not represented. The Steelers and Rams find solace in second team placements.

There are no recruits on the 1960 All-Players All-Pro team.

Big 8 Tourney Highlights Play

The holiday season for colleges means vacation time — but for basketball players the only rest they get is from the books.

The Big Eight tournament at Kansas City, Mo., starts the parade of tournaments tonight and New York's Holiday Festival begins Tuesday night. Twelve other top tournaments are slated for later in the week.

The Madison Square Garden festival attracts considerable attention with No. 1 ranked Ohio State and All-America Jerry Lucas topping the field of eight teams. Besides the Buckeyes, fourth-ranked St. John's and fifth-

Hogs Top Pre-Season SWC Basketball Marks

The Arkansas Razorbacks are a cinch to carry the best pre-season warmup record into Southwest Conference title play next week, although Coach Glen Rose's Porkers will be the only idle team in the circuit during the Christmas-New Year's holiday period.

The Razorbacks' 6-2 December record can't be matched by any other club even if their rivals won every game played during the coming week.

The defending champion Texas Longhorns could come closest by defeating Clemson and Mississippi State Thursday and Friday nights in their share of a pair of double headers that also will see Rice meeting Mississippi State and Clemson at Houston. A Texas sweep would give the Longhorns a 7-3 mark.

Southern Methodist, dangerous as anybody on its own court, could climb to 6-3 by upsetting St. Louis Tuesday night on the Billikens' own floor and Alabama at Dallas Friday.

Or, the Texas Aggies could climb to 5-3 by sweeping Thursday and Friday night games against Eastern Kentucky and the Air Force Academy at Lubbock, where the Ags share billing with Texas Tech in a pair of double-headers that will see Tech meeting the same two clubs in reverse order.

Rice and Tech start the week's activities with 3-4 and 2-5 records. A sweep of the above six games is a possibility, but neither Baylor nor TCU is expected to come close to such potentials as they compete in the All-College Tournament at Oklahoma City Tuesday through Friday.

Last week, Arkansas and Texas both swept their shafes of a pair of twin bills at neutral Little Rock. Arkansas defeated Alabama 83-78 and Tennessee 89-76 while Texas downed Tennessee 77-73 and whipped Alabama 79-78.

SMU won its only start, a 63-60 decision over Minnesota, while Baylor lost to Tulsa 73-66 in its only outing. TCU split, beating Oklahoma City 78-74, but losing to Centenary 81-71, while Texas Tech absorbed 80-78 and 75-56 losses at the hands of Vanderbilt and Oklahoma.

The loop's individual scoring race so far seems to be a two-man affair with SMU's Steve Strange averaging 22.3 points per game and Tech's Del Ray Mounts 22.1 for seven games. Tech's Harold Hudgens sports a 24-point mark, but has played in only two games.

Hot Pampa Hosts 'Cats

Riding atop a three-game winning streak, Pampa (4-4) will go after its second victory of the year over Childress' Bobcats at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Harvester Gym.

The Harvesters trounced Childress, 73-59, in the second game of the season in Childress and will be out to skin the 'Cats to keep their string going.

In Friday night's game, Pampa waxed Quanah, 69-39, to easily avenge a 60-57 loss to the Indians suffered in the opening game of the year for the Green and Gold.

Pampa was paced by Randy Matson's 28 points; Pat Carter was second with 16.

Both Teams Limber Up Air Attack

By FRANK EDGE
United Press International

MIAMI (UPI) — A wide-open passing game was expected tonight in the 13th annual North-South Shrine All-Star football game.

It will be VMI's Howard Dyer pitching for the South against the alternating tosses of Army's Tom Blanda and Tulsa's Jerry Keeling for the North before a crowd of 35,000 in the Orange Bowl, with the kickoff slated for 8:15 p.m.

Northern power highlighted by a Midwest threesome composed of Nebraska's Pat Fisher, Northwestern's Mike Stock and Illinois' Bill Brown gave the Yankees an extra bulge which installed them as a 7 to 5 favorite in this game played by college seniors for the benefit of crippled children.

Yer there was no question but that the accent would be on passing in this untelevised contest which the South has won seven times against four defeats and one tie. Dale Hall of Army and Chalmers (Bump) Elliot of Michigan, despite their horde of talented runners, agreed that the game would be decided in the air.

Concurring were South coaches Darrell Royal of Texas and Bear Bryant of Alabama.

Thus, despite the odds being quoted, the dandies from Dixie were optimistic. They felt that Dyer was more than equal to the North's pair of pitching quarterbacks.

The South figured it had an edge in the punting and ever more important field goal department. Lauren Stapp of Alabama had a 42-year average this year while Vice Scott of Maryland has kicked three field goals in one of 48 yards out.

Hall and Elliot were dubious about the payoff of their running game, primarily because of the defensive presence in the South lineup of Monte Lee, 6-foot-4-inch guard from Texas, and Bill Shaw 238-pound tackle from Georgia Tech. They will co-captain the South team.

Offensively, the South will support Dyer with halfbacks Bud Whitehead of Florida State and Don Kern of VMI, and fullback Bobby Nay of Vanderbilt.

The offensive line, as the collegians use the professional free substitution rules, will have Gerald Burch of Georgia Tech and John Schroeder of North Carolina at ends; Charles Lanning and Jack O'Day, both from Miami, at tackles; Al Dalton of SMU and Jim Windham of Houston at guards and Bob Barbieri of George Washington at center.

The North, to be co-captained by Stock and defensive center Jerry Smith of Michigan, on its offensive line will have Hank Oppermann of Penn State and Ron Delfine of Pitt at the ends; Joe Wendryhoski of Illinois and Alan Fiers of Ohio State at tackles; Bruce Tarbox of Syracuse and Al Vanderbusch of Army at guards and Army's George Joulwan at center.

Australia Ups Lead In Davis Cup Action

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI) — forecast for today meant almost ideal conditions for the battle between the Green Bay Packers and the Philadelphia Eagles for the National Football League championship.

The kickoff was scheduled for noon EST in 65,000-seat Franklin Field. A standing-room-only crowd was expected for the nationally televised title game that will pit the powerful Packer ground attack against the air-minded Eagles.

The Eagles were looking for their fourth NFL title and the Packers their ninth.

'On To The Alamo' Is Cry Duke Seeks 'Redeeming' Victory

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES
United Press International

DURHAM, N. C. (UPI) — On to the Alamo!

Duke's Blue Devils flew west to Texas today to set up advance camp for their Cotton Bowl date against Arkansas.

The Blue Devils were a team fiercely determined to redeem themselves as one of the nation's best elevens of 1960. It was pure coincidence, but the choice of the Alamo Stadium at San Antonio for a training site afforded some relaxed humor for the team.

Even Coach Bill Murray laughed it off when Athletic Director Eddie Cameron announced that Duke was going to the Alamo.

Murray reported a "real, concentrated interest" by the squad in playing a good game against the Southwest Conference champions.

"It's not a question of whether we can or whether we will put out our best effort against Arkansas," Murray said. "We've got to, we've just got to."

Arkansas in its last game of the regular season became one of the nation's "really great" football teams, he said. The Razorbacks yielded only one touchdown in their last four games—and that on a runback of an intercepted pass.

Duke, while winning the Atlantic Coast Conference championship with a 7-3 record, lost its last two games — a 7-6 upset by North Carolina, then a 27-6 humiliation by UCLA.

But Murry was confident of the Duke potential to meet the Razorbacks on even terms. He was en-

Nats Stomp NY Knicks

By United Press International

The Syracuse Nationals, showing no holiday spirit whatsoever, buried the New York Knickerbockers deeper into the Eastern Division cellar Christmas night with a 62-point drubbing.

Although their 162-160 victory didn't set any National Basketball Association record, it did snap their team mark of 150 points. The Boston Celtics' 173-point production, set last year, still stands as the top for a single game.

Six Nats hit double figures with Hal Greer and Dave Gambee leading the attack with 24 points each as Syracuse took a stronger hold on third place, the final playoff berth.

In the only other NBA game, the Cincinnati Royals scored their first triumph over the Detroit Pistons this season, 126-119. The Royals' victory moved them into second place in the Western Division by five percentage points over Los Angeles. Bailey Howell scored 30 points and Gene Shue 27 for the Pistons.

Optimists Set Bouts

Pampa's Optimist Club boxers, probably a little heavier after the Christmas feast, will have a chance to throw their weight around tonight when they host Plainview in a 15-match card at the Optimist Boys Club building at 7:30 p.m.

Tonight's battling will kick off a busy week for the Optimist battlers, as they tangle with Hereford here on Thursday night as time grows short for Golden Gloves competition.

Some of the top fights tonight will pit Angelo Resendo of Plainview against Charles Moore of Borger and Landro Martinez of Plainview against Ronnie Goodwin of Pampa in a pair of 118-pound battles.

Resendo is two-time regional GG champ at the Amarillo tourney. Another regional winner from Plainview here tonight will be Eddie Gonzalez who will face Steve McCarthy of Borger in a 112-pound fight.

It'll be the Wilhelms of Pampa versus the Gonzalezes of Plainview in a bracket of glove-slingers when Bobby Wilhelm, on a boxing scholarship at Carpus Christi University, meets Gilbert Gonzalez in a light-heavy bout and Gary Wilhelm, on a scholarship at the University of Wisconsin, fights Manuel Gonzalez in a 147-pound match.

Ollie Wilhelm, Optimist coach, also hopes to match some of his other top Pampa battlers, including Johnny Claunch, Dickie Wills and James Webb.

Leafs Move Up In NHL

By United Press International

Frank Mahovlich of the Toronto Maple Leafs is scoring at a record setting pace and it's paying off in victories in the National Hockey League.

The 22-year-old Mahovlich riddled home his 31st goal of the season in his 34th game Sunday night and later picked up an assist to help the Leafs beat the Boston Bruins, 4-1.

The victory closed the gap between Toronto and front-running Montreal to only five points as the New York Rangers rallied for four third-period goals to beat the Canadiens, 4-1, for their 18th victory in 23 Christmas night games.

Troops Pulled Off Streets Of Belgium

BRUSSELS (UPI) — The government withdrew armed troops from the streets today in an apparent move to ease tension in strikebound Belgium.

After three days of guarding government buildings, the troops armed with sub-machine guns vanished from their posts as the Socialist-led strike went into its sixth day.

The government offered no explanation for the move which came at a time when the Socialists were reported to be trying to incite a mutiny among the troops if they should be used against strikers.

Withdrawal of the soldiers left steel-helmeted riot police with rifles still patrolling the streets and guarding post offices and railroad stations. There was no violence.

Several incidents of rail and highway sabotage were reported in the vicinity of Mons, and at least seven suspected saboteurs were arrested. At latest reports, however, only one was still being held.

Berserk Father Kills Two Daughters, Self

STAMFORD, Conn. (UPI)—Police today blamed family turmoil for touching off the Christmas rampage of a plastics engineer who killed his two teen-age daughters, scarred his wife's face with acid and committed suicide.

Detectives said that Lawrence G. Moser, unemployed and estranged from his 42-year-old wife, also injured three other persons, including two women, with the acid and guns before he shot himself when stopped in the woods by state police.

Moser, 48, had a history of violence, police said, and served seven years in Sing Sing prison for killing his wife's brother in 1932.

Moser was believed to have summoned his wife back to their $25,000 home on Christmas to have a quiet dinner with their daughters, Charlotte, 18, a student at the University of Connecticut, and Marion, 15, a high school sophomore. Mrs. Moser had left the home two weeks ago after a series of domestic squabbles.

But his rage apparently broke out again, police said, and he suddenly shot and killed the daughters in the kitchen after sunset, when they were getting ready to go out.

Then he threw acid in his wife's face as she raced down the driveway, seriously injuring her.

A neighbor, Mrs. Veronica Frommeyer, heard the commotion and ran to the home. Moser stopped her in the driveway and tossed acid in her eyes and face.

Still in a rage, he leaped into his car and drove to the home of Robert G. Garthwaite, a former neighbor with whom he had frequent arguments. He threw more acid at Garthwaite and Mrs. Garthwaite before they could escape.

Moser tried to race away in his car, but the tires stuck in the snow and he fled on foot in nearby woods. State police called out bloodhounds and trooper William Gerard spotted Moser walking along a road.

Moser ran across the road and shot himself in the head with one of two pistols he was carrying.

Stern Of Tanker Being Towed To Norfolk Drydock

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — The valuable stern section of the tanker Pine Ridge, taken handily in tow by a big sea-going tug, approached dry dock at Hampton Roads, Va., today.

The Coast Guard reported that forward progress of the towing operation was slowed quite a bit by extreme swaying and pitching of the stern. Arrival time at Cape Henry was expected to be about 4 p.m. with another five hours remaining before it puts in at Newport News.

Balding John Richart, a veteran seaman who has been aboard the stern since the ship split in two during a storm last Wednesday, helped the crew of the tug Curb guide the bulk safely to shore.

He was joined by four other crewmen from the tug, who boarded the stern section in heavy seas Friday night when it was taken in tow.

Twenty-nine survivors of the Pine Ridge crackup reached land Friday and left Norfolk to spend Christmas at their homes. Seven other sailors, including the ship's captain, went down with the tanker's bow.

Leaking Gas Fells Family During Dinner

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mrs. Theresa Sotto's holiday dinner was interrupted Sunday when her husband and nine guests began passing out, one by one.

Mrs. Sotto, 32, grabbed the telephone and told the operator, "my family is unconscious." She managed to give her address before lapsing into unconsciousness.

Two policemen went to the aid of the stricken family and detected leaking coal gas. They made three trips up five flights of stairs to save all 11, including five young children, before they themselves were partially overcome.

The victims were taken to the hospital where six of them were listed in critical condition.

Police said the deadly gas escaped from a furnace and ordered nearly 100 tenants to leave the building in sub-freezing weather as a precautionary measure. They were allowed to go back later, but without heat or hot water for the rest of the day.

'Christmas' Extended By First Federal

Christmas is being extended at Security Federal Savings and Loan starting tomorrow, according to Aubrey Steele, executive vice president and secretary of the association.

Until Jan. 10, Security Federal is holding a tree untrimming party, Steele says, with special presents for opening or adding to accounts, gifts for every guest, prizes every day, and a grand prize of a $250 insured Security Federal savings account.

Now, as Security Federal pays their 65th consecutive dividend, assets of the 32-year-old association stand at approximately 29 million.

Assets have been almost tripled in size in five years. More than 2,700 homes in the Panhandle are financed through security federal. Those who open or add to a Security Federal account with $25 or more from now until Jan. 10 will receive a travel bag, ready-packed with travel-size miniatures of their various products.

Those who open or add to a Security Federal account with $250 or more will receive a 12-piece set of Fire-King Ovenware.

Among the daily prizes to be given away by the association are a movie camera, clock radio, portable typewriter, dual control electric blanket, and many other gifts.

In addition to Steele, Security Federal lists many well-known businessmen for leaders. They are P. B. Carlson, executive vice president; C. P. Buckler, president; De-Lea Vicars, vice president and treasurer; Irene S. Cox, Robert W. Hare, and Roy C. Sparkman, all assistant secretaries.

S. Wayne O'Keefe is chairman of the board. Members of the board of directors are Buckler, E. L. Green Jr., R. Earl O'Keefe, Carlson, Farris C. Oden, S. D. Safranko, Steele, Vicars and Thomas L. Wade.

Temperature In Slight Dip In Panhandle

By United Press International

A mass of cool air moved over Texas Monday but dropped temperatures only slightly behind it. Ahead of the front, thick fog rolled over South Central and East Texas. The weather was generally fair over the rest of the state.

A five-day forecast for Texas predicts more cooler weather about mid-week, with a warming trend setting in for the New Year's holiday weekend.

Low readings over the state early Monday ranged from 22 at Dalhart to 33 at Brownsville and Beaumont.

Christmas day highs in the state ranged from 73 at Brownsville to 57 at Galveston.

WHAT'S UP THERE NOW? AROUND THE SUN:

BAKER'S DOZEN — Successful launching of Courier I-A now gives the United States 13 satellites circling the earth. These representatives of three years of space endeavors are listed in News-Graphic above. Russia has only one satellite still in orbit. U.S. has put up a total of 25; Russia six. Both countries have sent probes around the sun. Both have also recovered satellite capsules out of orbit. U.S. has done it twice with instrument packages from Discoverer satellites; Russia has brought back a capsuleful of animals.

Man Injured When Truck Hits Bridge

PERRYTON (Spl) — Raymond Robinson, 35, of Archer City, was injured in a one-vehicle accident Wednesday morning about 2:30 a.m.

The 1953 Ford pickup driven by Robinson, struck the Horse Creek Bridge about 10 miles north of Canadian.

Robinson, riding alone, was treated for eye injuries and severe cuts and lacerations, and admitted to Sanford Hospital.

Highway Patrolmen Kenneth Harrison and Harvey Dehardy, of the Perryton sub-station were the investigating officers.

Charges of driving while intoxicated have been filed against Robinson and he is scheduled to appear before the court in Canadian as soon as he is released from the hospital.

Damage to the bridge was estimated at $50. The pickup was a total loss.

No U.S. Forces Used In Schools Fuss Since '58

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Deputy Atty. Gen. Lawrence E. Walsh reports that every federal court school desegregation order since 1958 has been enforced "not only without military support, but without even the resort to force by a single federal officer."

Walsh, whose office three years ago was given jurisdiction over school integration cases within the Justice Department, said in a report to Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers Sunday that the affairs of his office "are in order" to turn over to the Kennedy administration.

In 1957, the year before Walsh's office took on the duty of coordinating school integration litigation and related activities, federal troops were sent to Little Rock, Ark., to quell violence during court-ordered integration of Central High School.

But Walsh said, in his summary of activities during the 86th Congress that "as a result of careful preparation, your (Rogers') policy in this field has been clear to all."

Railroads' Taxes Total $46,886 In Gray County

Texas railroads paid $46,886 in taxes in Gray county during 1959, according to the Texas Railroad Association.

That amount was the county's share of the nearly $10,000,000 the railroads paid throughout the state.

In addition to the large total in taxes the railroads' approximately 40,000 Texas employees contributed on their own property. The vast majority of railroad workers, many of whom live in Gray county, own their own homes.

The largest railroad contribution in Gray county was for the support of education. The school tax for 1959 totaled $26,051.

City taxes amounted to $6,898, while the share of the county government's operating expenses paid for by the railroads totaled $8,263. The road and bridge fund gained $5,300 from the railroads in 1959. All other taxes brought the total for the county to $46,886.

Two Youths Are Charged For Burglary

PERRYTON (Spl) — Two local youths, ages 17 and 18, have been charged with burglary.

Judge Halsey set their bond at $1,000 each. They are to appear during the next session of the grand jury some time in April.

The youths were arrested by City Policeman Art Roder Wednesday morning at 3:10 a.m. Officer Roder observed the boys leaving the laundry and upon investigation discovered that the coke machine had been tampered with.

Also appearing before Judge Halsey was another 17 year old boy charged with forgery by check. He is being held in lieu of $1,000 bond.

Defining Freedom

We met a man the other day, a stranger to us, who quoted from our masthead from memory.

And as we smiled inwardly with pleasure he went on to observe that our masthead does not completely define the meaning of the word freedom which we intend people to understand.

We paused for a moment when this was said and had to agree that it was probably a true statement. Our banner on the editorial page more properly defines what freedom is not than what it is.

And then our new-found friend went on to observe that he suspected us of not always using logic. He suggested that just because we say we are using logic doesn't make our arguments logical... which is self-apparent.

Also, he wasn't so certain we could tell the difference between a valid premise and an invalid one, the selection of a valid premise being a prerequisite to any argument in logic.

This last was rather a nasty gibe, but we can only say in rebuttal that if our readers find us in error we are only too happy to have that error pointed out to us. We do not claim omniscience nor infallibility.

It is entirely possible that we have stumbled over something somewhere. Indeed, in view of the amount of material we put out on the subject of freedom, the law of averages would fairly well indicate that some of it is going to come a cropper somewhere along the line, try as we will to avoid it.

However, we will say that we expect our readers to be able to prove their points even as we attempt to prove ours. There are some who have imagined that simply by charging us with being wrong they had proved the point. But we have spent quite a bit of time and energy in thinking through various fields of thought to arrive at our present point of view.

And we do not take our position lightly nor with the expectation that a shift in wind will topple our stand.

So those who believe us to be wrong should come prepared to prove their case.

But on the subject of freedom, perhaps we should attempt again to define it. We have done so many times, but the proposition is something that requires a good deal of time and space... far too much to be repeated daily in a masthead.

Imagination And Brains

We are informed by a friend of ours that Roger W. Jones, Civil Service Commission Chairman, has been suggesting lately that we Americans are wrong if we try to "slug the government right and left."

And Jones says it is wrong to say the Civil Service workers are "devoid of imagination... with no brains."

Mr. Jones has something here that we might all profitably discuss for a moment or two.

If he means that Americans should not go about criticizing government, we beg to differ with him. As our friend who told us the story put it: "It is not only our right and privilege as Americans to criticize our government... IT IS OUR PATRIOTIC DUTY... And-God help us if we ever stop doing it."

We like that, and we agree. As newly as we recall, men and women get jobs in government as a result of their own voluntary willingness to take such jobs. We don't believe a one of them is forced into such employment. Therefore, it seems only right and proper, since technically they are all working for "us," the taxpayers, that the taxpayers should have the right and the privilege of criticizing the stuffings out of them.

But Mr. Jones is right in saying that we shouldn't criticize government workers for not having brains or imagination. Actually, it could be said that government employees, in and out of Civil Service, have shown a remarkable ability to exercise both brains and imagination. Indeed, we might be considerably better off if they

Looking Sideways

By WHITNEY BOLTON

NEW YORK—A friend of mine, who has a typewriter and easily rowelled sensibilities, huffed up a personal storm the other day because a transcontinental television show used up an hour and a lot of actors the other night in a charity drive for mentally disturbed children. He didn't mind the hour that was expended, nor did he have anything but compassion for the disturbed children. It was the actors that bothered him.

He said he felt nauseated by the spectacle of trained voices and performing spirits of professional status getting up there and poking at the public heart. He objected to what he called "the pear-shaped tones and the contrived heart-break in the voices," and said this was all pretty phony and he'd rather see a show with the people connected with it himself doing the money pitch.

Well, I wouldn't. I am no less touched by the plight of disturbed children, but I have seen and heard doctors, nurses, over-worked mothers of such children and even charity people talk, and by and large it is a pretty dismal performance. They don't speak easily, they hem and haw and fumble with the script, they repeat themselves and often enough garble up the premises. Of course, they do, and every time. They are not professional speakers, they are professional healers, these doctors and nurses. The average woman, mother of a disturbed child or not, pushed up there in front of the deadly eyes of the TV camera and conscious she is addressing a nation coast to coast, clams up, clears her throat, looks wildly in all directions, breaks into a sweat and has icy hands. What she has to say is mumbled.

I do not doubt that exact sincerity and professional sincerity are to different things. Robert Young, actor, talking easily and persuasively about disturbed children, is one thing and a tired, ill-at-ease doctor doing it is something else. The doctor may, if you could measure it, be the more really sincere, since he speaks from experience dealing with such children, but his persuasiveness is almost nil. It isn't his job to touch your heart.

My friend, all worked up about actors doing charity pitches, doesn't know what he is talking about, anyway. Actors are not callous creatures. If anything, they bleed too easily and too often. If you ask an actor to make a charity pitch he doesn't smirk and say: "Oh, sure kid, what'll we throw at them?" None I ever met. Most of them say: "I'd like to very much. I believe in that cause. When it's how long shall I speak and what do you want me to say?" I can believe easily that Robert Young et al., were sincere, certainly in this particular cause.

My friend went on to say that he would much have preferred a hard-hitting factual documentary type show, with vistas of actual clinics and hospitals working with disturbed children, with some shots in a home where the family has a disturbed child, with a mother of such a child speaking her heart out with the community aspect and so on. Such a documentary would be fine, except for one little thing: it would perforce have to show some of these children closeup and recognizable and I don't think many families would stand still for that. They would fear neighborhood talk, even some writers for saying "I saw your little boy on TV the other night. Adorable."

I know that TV has done some fine documentaries on population explosion, underprivileged citizens, unemployment blights, even medical aspects of community life. I seem to remember an actual heart operation on a little girl as one really fine job of making the gains in heart surgery dramatic and vital.

But, this time, I must get off my friend's boat. It does not seem to me to be the best part of wisdom for a charity seeking the most financial help it can get to put a lot of inarticulate, however professionally skilled, doctors up there stuttering their way through an hour's appeal for help.

For one thing, the charity, and it is a good one, would receive a lot less in contributions. People respond to actors, smooth though they may be, who know how to say what gets the most.

had to serve almost all of the term anyway.

This, as we see it, comes to a trifle over $25,000, which is twice what, the four-year term would ordinarily provide.

And now we are gripped with imagination, too, showing that some imagination does linger in places outside of government bureaus. For what would happen if Mr. Rodda should suddenly sicken and fail? Would this entail a payment of the full sum to his widow and again the payment of the full sum to his successor?

The possibilities of this sort of thing blossom endlessly.

Are Two Heads Really Better?

Allen - Scott Reports: GOP Congressional Leaders Oppose 'Outside' Interference, But 'Suggestions' Welcomed

WASHINGTON — The top Republican chiefs of the Senate and House are laying down three basic guide-lines for their relations with other GOP leaders in the coming session of Congress.

At an unannounced strategy conference, these powerful legislative leaders reached the following significant decisions:

To oppose the setting up of "outside" advisory committees — as former Democratic National Chairman Paul Butler did in 1959, over the strong disapproval of his party's congressional chiefs. The GOP leaders are as strenuously opposed to such a move as their Democratic counterparts, and already have served notice of that on "outside" leaders.

Reserved for themselves the full determination of their party's stand on legislation, particularly measures proposed by the Kennedy Administration. "Suggestions will be welcomed" from Vice President Nixon and Governor Nelson Rockefeller. But that's all. Neither they nor other "outside" leaders will be allowed to participate in the deliberations of the congressional policy makers, nor have any voice in what they say and do.

Closely scrutinize all the Kennedy cabinet selections, particularly those for the Treasury and Justice Departments — Republican Undersecretary of State C. Douglas Dillon and youthful Robert Kennedy. Republican members of the Senate committees that will consider the cabinet appointments will be briefed on what to ask them. The questioning will be especially directed at their business and other holdings.

Taking part in this momentous backstage meeting were Senators Everett Dirksen, Ill., the floor leader; Styles Bridges, N. H., head of the Policy Committee; Barry Goldwater, Ariz., chairman of the Campaign Committee, and Representative Charles Halleck, Ind., the party's floor leader in the House.

NO OUTSIDE HELP — The blunt rejection of "outside" advisory committees arose from a proposal by New York's Republican Senators Jacob Javits and Kenneth Keating — the former a Rockefeller supporter, and the latter for Nixon. Keating has made no secret he favors advisory committees to give Nixon a say in GOP legislative policy.

In the congressional chiefs' private discussion they were emphatically unanimous in that they have no intention of letting Nixon, Rockefeller or any other "outside" leader tell them what they should or shouldn't do on legislation.

"We are the elected representatives of the party," said Halleck, "and it's our responsibility to determine what stand the party takes on legislation, especially from the Democratic Administration. I say it's up to us to run our show in Congress, and the others to take care of their own."

Dirksen heartily agreed with that. "I already have advisory committees," declared the Illinoisan. "That's the function of our House and Senate policy committees. That's what they were set up for, to advise us. I see absolutely no reason for outside advisers. They would only muddy the waters."

Goldwater was equally emphatic. "Formulating legislative policy is our responsibility," he said, "and we should accept it. Further more, I am against either defeated or aspiring candidates having a say on that."

It's Up To You

by HOWARD KERSHNER L. H. D.

The infinite peril to the free world of dollar instability is evident when we realize that about half of the currency reserves of the free nations are in the form of dollars.

As these lines are written, our gold reserves have declined about one-quarter from their recent high and now stand at a little under $18½ billion.

About $12 billion are required as a legal reserve against our currency. This leaves $6½ billion of so-called free gold with which to meet our foreign obligations.

Americans resident in our country cannot demand gold from our Treasury. Foreign governments, foreign nationals and Americans resident abroad, having dollar balances or owning American securities can demand and receive gold from our Treasury.

According to the financial analysts - and consultants, Grosche, Williams and Associates, the net potential foreign claims on our gold are now in excess of $24 billion.

In other words we have about one-fourth enough free gold to meet these obligations. It is not expected that these claims will all be presented at once but if they were we would be bankrupt in the sense that we could not pay out at more than twenty-five cents on the dollar.

Since most of the world's trade is conducted in terms of the dollar, such a catastrophe would be of gigantic, far-reaching proportions. It must be avoided. Before discussing how that may be done, let us note some of the principal causes.

There is no doubt that our multi-billion dollar annual foreign aid program is a major cause. The deficits first began to appear in 1949 when foreign aid began seriously to be felt.

A second major cause of our predicament is the wage - price spiral that has priced much American merchandise far above our foreign competitors and greatly reduced our foreign markets. It has also induced many of our manufacturers to send funds abroad to establish foreign factories for the making of American goods.

To avoid world-wide disaster that might destroy the American dollar and put the ruble in its place as the unit of world trade we need, among other things, prompt action along the following lines:

1) A sharp reduction in our foreign aid program. This alone has been running in excess of our deficits in foreign trade. It is easy to see that a deficit in international payments amounting to, let us say, $4 billion could be cancelled out by wiping out a foreign aid program of, let us say, the same amount. To stop foreign aid would cause violent repercussions but they would be far less serious, in our opinion, than the destruction of the stability of the American dollar. It should be said, however, that this matter can be righted by far less drastic action than the total elimination of foreign aid. We might continue to aid our friends while discontinuing hundreds of millions to our Communist enemies and to so-called, but very doubtful, neutrals.

2) We could ask our allies abroad — some of whom are embarrassed by excessive foreign trade balances — to pay a part or all of the cost of maintaining our armed forces in such countries. For instance, our military establishment in Germany costs about $400 million. Germany is embarrassed by excessive balances and could very well help us with this load.

3) A third step might be to ask returning American tourists to bring in less than the $500 worth of merchandise that each is allowed duty free. This would effect a very large saving.

4) A minor but important step would be to reduce our share of the cost of U.S. and its subordinate agencies and related operations. We now pay 35 per cent of the direct costs of U.N. and a much larger proportion of the cost of related activities such as maintaining the Congo and cleaning up the Suez Canal debacle. By these and many more helpful actions we can avoid impending disaster.

We have enormous resources and productive capacity but they are not limited and we have dissipated them with unprecedented prodigality. If we do not have the sense to end our wastefulness we shall have to learn the hard way at the cost of infinite suffering, loss of leadership and ability to help our friends and allies.

Under Communist inspiration in Washington our gold mining was closed down during the war and some of our machinery sent to

Scribe Says He's Not Up To Writing Today

By HENRY McLEMORE

ROME, ITALY — I have no more business writing a piece for the newspapers today than an armadillo has buying a raincoat.

I should be on the living room floor, just where I was all Christmas Eve night, and Christmas, all Christmas night, and half this morning, putting together a playhouse for Megan.

And if not on the living room floor, then at a doctor's office being treated for the serious ailment that prompts any man ever to buy a do-it-yourself present for child.

If I had to choose a do-it-yourself project, why a playhouse? Why not something which I might possibly be capable of assembling? A footstool. A wheelbarrow. A hammer.

But a cardboard playhouse! Have you ever seen one? Spread out, I mean. Not in the deceptive flat package in which it is sold, and which gives it an appearance of utter simplicity.

What a dreadful thing to sell a man. You should see it. Thousands and thousands of square cardboard feet, and thousands and thousands of words of instruction, all written in fine type, and filled with "Place B over C and fold under J and cut along M and fasten to Z and be certain that X, K, R and A are flush and tight, and do not overlap onto M."

The fool thing is impossible, and Megan is no help. Somewhere along the line she has come to believe that her father is a combination construction engineer, architect, electrical engineer, plumber, and handyman. She sits by me, repeating over and over, "Daddy fix! Daddy fix!"

Confound it, Daddy can't fix. The floor keeps getting where the floor should be, and the windows are upside down, and the chimney is where the front porch belongs. The whole mess is grimy and dirty from handling, and looks as if it were two years old, not two days.

I'd burn the whole shebang in a minute if Megan hadn't set her heart on it. The way she acts about it, and longs for it to be fixed you'd think that she had known she was to get it for a year, and planned her whole life around it.

She won't look at the red automobile, which was what she wanted most of all, or said she did. The pot and pan set, the little electric iron, and the two dolls, are over in the corner untouched.

It's the playhouse or nothing. Well, it looks like it's going to be nothing. (I just took a minute off from the typewriter to have another go at the thing, and now one page of instructions is missing. That's the final straw.)

If it's a playhouse, then she can play like it's all finished. Or she can pretend it was in a cyclone and blown down on top of her. Or, better still, she can play like it's Russia to promote the production of gold there. Mining has never been restored to any extent in our country but since that time has proceeded at enormously increased pace in Russia. The U.S.S.R. is accumulating vast stocks of gold.

The Doctor Says:

By Dr. HAROLD T. HYMAN Approximately 500,000 Americans suffer from multiple sclerosis (MS) and allied disorders (disseminated, lateral and amyotrophic lateral sclerosis). So little do we know of these crippling diseases that they're called "sclerosis," which simply means "hardening."

So discouraging have been the results of previous therapeutic efforts that a physician - patient one declared "after each new treatment, regardless of initial improvement, I have been worse - worse than before I started treatment." (When Doctors Are Patients: W. W. Norton.)

Because there is now reliable evidence that MS, at least, may be responsive to newly introduced forms of treatment, the following summary of its outstanding characteristics may help to reduce the usual five-year lag between the onset of symptoms and the establishment of the diagnosis and thus encourage patients to seek help in the early phases of the disease when treatment holds forth its greatest promise.

Whatever the cause of MS, manifestations of the disease result from injury to nerve sheaths which resemble the insulation of electric wires and cables. If the bare nerve is only slightly damaged and the injured sheath manages to make a rapid recovery, the manifestations soon disappear. When this occurs, the patient is said to have gone into spontaneous remission. It is interesting to note that the apparently good results that have followed so many different types of treatment.

If, on the other hand, the sheath does not recover until after the bare nerve has been vitally damaged and destroyed, manifestations of the disease are intensified. This is described as an exacerbation.

Under these circumstances, the same type of treatment that gave good results during the remission is now rated as being useless or even harmful.

MS rarely starts before the age of 20 or after the age of 50. Its highest incidence is in the 20 to 35-year age group. It occurs more often in women than men in the proportion of three to two. It occurs more frequently in north than south.

The earlier symptoms of MS, which must be particularly sought in the relatives of the patient, are fleeting episodes of double vision, weaknesses of hands or legs, difficulties in maintaining balance, dizziness, trembling of the fingers when an effort is made to carry out a specific action like picking up a glass of water, defective memory, emotional instability and curious jiggling movements of the eyeballs (nystagmus).

Because these manifestations come on gradually and lead to fade in and out, the diagnosis is rarely established for five years after appearance of the first symptom.

Thereafter, the disease progresses so slowly that another ten years may elapse before the patient is significantly incapacitated. So little does the affliction involve vital structures that most patients live out their normal life span.

Financial Review

By HENRY J. BECHTOLD
UPI Financial Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — The soaring optimism that greeted the debut of the 1960's has given way to much skepticism regarding the potentialities of the next decade. Yet, according to Standard & Poor's, the basic premises from which substantial growth over the next 10 years has been projected remain valid.

These factors, population growth, and the existence of a huge and constantly growing research effort, justify the expectation of a $700-$750 billion gross national product by 1970. The output of goods and services this year ran slightly above $500 billion.

The U.S. population should rise to 214 million by the end of this decade from the present 181 million if the current birth rate level is maintained.

This would be the greatest increase over such a period in the nation's history — 16 per cent more than in the 1950's. Household formations will mount at a nearly parallel rate, accelerating after 1965, Standard & Poor's said.

The statistical agency noted that during the postwar period family income has shown an average annual increase of about 2.5 per cent, and there is no reason to expect a lessening of this rate. Many projections envisage an even greater expansion because of the prospect that there will be a rising body of multi-worker families in this decade commanding greater skills.

This population-income combination would make for a 40 to 50 per cent expansion in personal consumption expenditures, the bellwether of the gross national product.

Standard & Poor's said average family income will be considerably in excess of that required to provide the necessities of life. And, it added, consumer appetites will be whetted by a flow of new products, and improvements on existing goods, all made available by research.

Expenditures on organized research, a relatively new department in industry, exceeded $9.5 billion this year, compared with $2 billion only 10 years ago.

Standard & Poor's said the implications of this research are of major importance because there is said to be an average lag of seven years from the inception of research to commercial emergence of a major new product.

The fascinating new goods and products of today were the result of much smaller research programs than those of recent years. Obviously, S&P declared, the best is yet to come.

Research also implies a continuing high level of capital spending over the long run. New products will require new machines to make them; and new production methods and devices will be enthusiastically received by industry in its battle to preserve profit margins.

Certainly, the agency stated, such investment will be stimulated if depreciation rates are changed to conform more closely with the practice abroad, as the president-elect has suggested.
