Ike Starts Today On Asian Tour

Details Of Eisenhower Trip Withheld For Security Reasons

Protective Measures In Effect

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The White House Saturday held up release of President Eisenhower's detailed itinerary in Japan amid new indications of grave concern for his safety when he visits there June 19.

Associate Press Secretary Anne Wheaton said the President "certainly" intends to proceed with his visit despite threats of mass violence by fanatical leftist mobs when he arrives. But events pointed to probable revisions of his timetable.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty, target of anti-American mob scenes in Tokyo, refused to say whether he was satisfied with security arrangements.

Mrs. Wheaton told newsmen Hagerty telephoned the White House Friday night to say the President's schedule was not ready for announcement. It was to have been released Saturday. Mrs. Wheaton said it was not "firmed up" yet.

"I assume there may be some slight revisions but the nature of them I don't know," she said. She added that she saw nothing unusual in the fact that the details were not available on the eve of the President's departure.

One of the most influential voices in Congress urged Eisenhower however, to cancel or postpone his visit. Chairman Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee made the suggestion, saying conditions in Japan appear to "border on anarchy."

The White House had issued hour-by-hour details of Eisenhower's itinerary from takeoff Sunday morning to arrival at Okinawa next weekend. He will stop along the way at Alaska, Wake Island, Manila and Formosa.

The Japan phase of the schedule so far calls for arrival at Tokyo International Airport Sunday, June 19, and departure for Korea the following Wednesday morning. He is to leave Korea the next day for Hawaii and then return home.

Mrs. Wheaton told newsmen Hagerty would issue the hour-by-hour program for Japan later, perhaps Sunday when he sees her. (See SECURITY, Page 2)

In Two Counties

Voters Ax Dam Bonds

PERRYTON (Sp.) — Voters in Hansford and Ochiltree counties yesterday apparently defeated a proposal to issue bonds, not to exceed $5,600,000, to finance construction of the Palo Duro River Authority Dam.

A majority of both rural and city residents was required to approve the issue. The unofficial tabulations showed the proposal defeated 384 to 265 in the rural area of the counties and 1,035 to 991 in Perryton, Gruver and Spearman.

However, the issue did pass in Spearman (557-255) and rural Hansford county (151-129), the dam sites. Other breakdowns in the vote are: Perryton, 368 for and 614 against; rural Ochiltree county, 114 for and 255 against; and Gruver, 66 for and 166 against. Absentee voting ends at midnight Tuesday.

The dam site in Hansford County is 20 miles due west of Perryton, 10 miles north of Spearman and 15 miles east of Gruver.

The river authority was created in 1939 for the purpose of constructing a dam on Palo Duro Creek. Members of the board say that $5,600,000 would have been the maximum cost, and the cost to the taxpayer would have run 75 cents per $100 state and county valuation. Revenue obtained from sale of water and boat and fishing permits would have been deductible from this amount.

The dam when complete would have impounded about 89,000 acre-feet of water, more than four times the amount of water caught in Buffalo Lake, near Canyon. If the dam had been constructed, the man-made lake would have been one of the largest in the area, and the individual cost, $1 to $3.50 for the average home owner, would have been less than the cost of a trip to the nearest lake now offering facilities for fishing and boating.

Control of the dam would have been vested in a board appointed by commissioners court of the counties. Neighbor states nor federal agencies would have had any control.

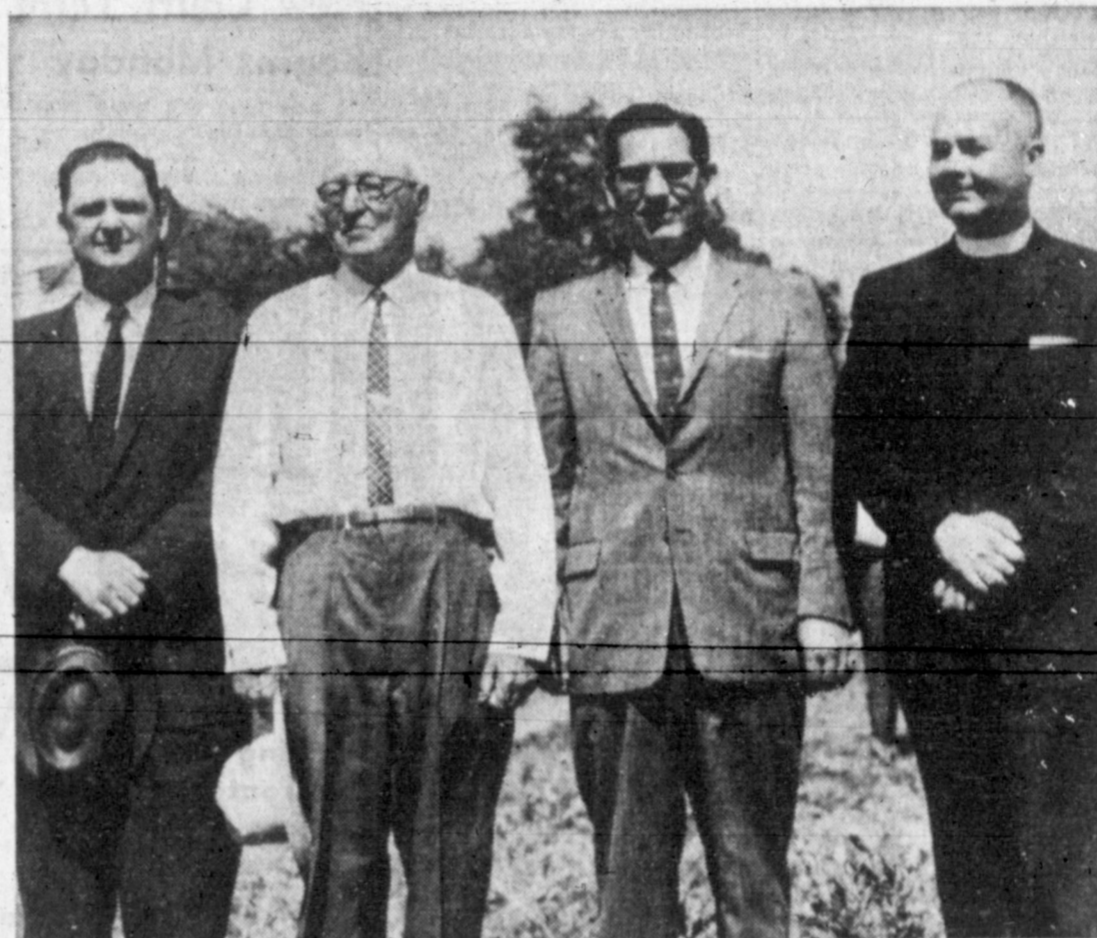

The bond issue was planned on a 30-year retirement basis, but the authority had the option to retire the remaining bonds at 15 years if the funds were available.

SCOUT LAKE DEDICATION — Pampans on hand for Saturday's dedication of Lake M. K. Brown, which is located near Campa Kiowa at Canadian, included County Attorney Don Cain, M. K. Brown, E. E. Shelhamer and Rev. William E. West. The lake was officially named in ceremonies at Camp Kiowa Saturday.

Unrest In Japan No Deterrent To Plans

TOKYO (UP)—Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi announced Sunday after a special meeting with the U.S. Ambassador that President Eisenhower would visit Japan next week as scheduled despite uncontrolled riots by as many as 100,000 leftists protesting the tour.

Kishi told newsmen as he left a meeting with U. S. Ambassador Douglas MacArthur II that "the final details have been decided without change."

The special Sunday meeting with MacArthur was held just a few hours after Presidential Press Secretary James Hagerty gave the slip to screaming demonstrators and flew to Alaska to meet Eisenhower. Hagerty, who had been besieged by leftists and in danger of his life, was reported to be unsatisfied with the security arrangements for the President's visit.

Kishi huddled with MacArthur for two hours starting at 9:03 in the morning. Also at the meeting at the Prime Minister's official residence were Foreign Minister Aichiro Fujiyama, Vice Foreign Minister Hisanari Yamada and U. S. Minister William Leonard.

The President's three-day visit is scheduled to start June 19. Kishi, whom the leftists are trying to force out, did not elaborate but it was presumed two important changes were made in the original schedule—cancellation of the golf date between Eisenhower and Kishi at the sprawling Kasumigaseki Country Club course just outside of Tokyo and Eisenhower's press conference, both on June 21.

This cancellation was indicated by foreign office sources after Hagerty discussed details of the President's visit Saturday with Vice Foreign Minister Yamada. It was presumed from Kishi's statement pending a formal announcement of Eisenhower's schedule in Japan, that the President and Emperor Hirohito will ride in the same automobile and parade as scheduled from Tokyo International Airport to the Imperial Palace; and that the President also will make his speech before the Diet Parliament on June 20.

Top Japanese security officials met late Saturday to restudy their security plans for Eisenhower after Hagerty and MacArthur had been trapped for more than an hour by fanatic leftists Friday at the airport.

But just before he left the U.S. Air Force Base at Tachikawa outside Tokyo, Hagerty refused to say whether he approved of the security arrangements that call for 25,000 Japanese police to patrol. (See TOUR, Page 2)

The committee discussed campaign techniques and organizational work at its final closed session. Nixon later met privately with three regional groups of the GOP leaders.

G. Harold Alexander, Florida state chairman, said southern GOP chairmen here "were strong in their support" for Nixon's nomination. He said Nixon had assured him he would campaign in the South.

Nikita Turns

Down Plea By Power's Dad

MOSCOW (UPI)—A Soviet announcement said Saturday that Premier Nikita Khrushchev had turned down Oliver Powers' appeal for the release of his son, U-2 pilot Francis Powers, but declared he is ready to help the father see his son if he comes to Russia.

"I must tell you that your son will be tried," Khrushchev said in reply to a letter from the elder Powers, 55, who lives near Pound, Va. Oliver Powers, a shoe repair shop operator, had written to the Soviet Premier last month, urging "as one father to another" that he free pilot Powers, arrested after his U-2 spy plane was shot down over the Soviet Union May 1. He offered to take his son's place in prison.

The Soviet Tass News Agency said Khrushchev replied to Powers that "law is law, and I cannot interfere in a matter which is exclusively within the competence of the judicial authorities."

He told the father, however, that he will help him see the jailed pilot if the elder Powers would visit the Soviet Union.

Oliver Powers had said last month he intended to go to the Soviet Union in an effort to see his son. But later he suddenly called off his plans.

Board Meeting

The board of trustees of the Pampa Independent School District will meet Monday morning at 10 o'clock in the offices of Superintendent Knox Kinard. This is the first meeting of the group in several weeks.

Adlai's Reply To Eleanor Said To Favor Candidacy

CHICAGO (UPI)—Adlai E. Stevenson, who 3½ years ago said he would not run again for the presidency but would help the Democratic Party however he could, replied Saturday to a plea from Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt that he again become a candidate.

Neither Stevenson, unsuccessful Democratic candidate in 1952 and 1956, nor Mrs. Roosevelt, widow of the four times elected Democratic President Franklin D. Roosevelt would disclose the contents of his answer.

But immediate speculation arose that Stevenson had left the way open for a draft in case the Democratic presidential nomination convention, which will meet in Los Angeles in July, should call upon him.

Both the New York Post and the Chicago Daily News said that Stevenson's reply made clear his availability for the nomination. Stevenson, contacted at his Lebertville, Ill., home, refused to give contents of a telegram that reply he made to Mrs. Roosevelt last night. He said the telegram was "personal."

He was asked last March 19 in Buenos Aires, during a Latin American tour, whether he would accept a nomination draft.

"I would have to cross that bridge when I come to it," he said. "But I do not expect to come to it. It happened once, but it is very unlikely to happen again."

The movement toward possible candidacy—exactly one month before the Democratic national convention starts in Los Angeles—paralleled the 1952 presidential race.

Stevenson, then governor of Illinois, postponed his announcement as a candidate until shortly before the party's convention. Defeated that year by President Eisenhower, Stevenson made an all-out bid for the presidency in 1956 and again last.

Although Stevenson has steadfastly denied so far that he is a candidate, a series of strong anti-administration speeches since the summit conference failure have increased speculation that he will run.

Stevenson said he prepared the

Cubans Confiscate Hotels, Night Club

HAVANA (UPI)—The government Saturday suddenly seized the American operated Havana Hilton and National de Cuba hotels, world famed Tropicana night club and several other smaller hostleries.

The Hilton has 650 rooms and cost 27 million dollars. The National de Cuba is a 550 room luxury hotel that cost eight million dollars.

The seizures ordered by Labor Minister Augusto Martinez Sanchez were similar to last year's government grab of the 14-million-dollar American-owned Havana Riviera Hotel. They were apparently carried out to avert the complete collapse of Cuba's tourist-starved hotel and entertainment industry.

The Hilton is owned by a Cuban labor union and has been operated by Hilton International Hotels on a 20-year lease basis which has still 15 years to run. The National, a government property, has been operated on lease by International Hotels Corp., a subsidiary of Pan American World Airways.

Both hotels have been losing money at the rate of more than $100,000 a month since Fidel Castro seized the government in January 1959. They employ a total of 1,500 workers.

Post Office Work Start Order Issued

MCLEAN (Sp.) —Ground-breaking and construction of a new post office in McLean is expected to begin immediately with the completion date estimated as Jan. 31, 1961. Signing of a contract for the construction and lease to the Post Office Department was announced yesterday by Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield.

The successful bidder was Mr. and Mrs. William C. Null, Ft. Worth.

Location of the new building will be on the east side of Commerce St. between North First and North Second streets. The building will provide 3,929 square feet of interior space, an outside loading platform and hard-surfaced space for parking and truck maneuvering.

The post office will remain under private ownership while leased to the federal government. The lease will run for 10 years with renewal options up to 10 years.

Two Homes, Business Hit By Burglars

Burglars struck three times — two homes and a business firm — late Friday night and early Saturday morning.

The culprits entered homes owned by Mrs. Inez Carter, 718 Charles, and Sam B. Bateses, 428 Hughes. The Pampa Roller Rink, 123 N. Ward, also was looted.

The heaviest loss occurred at the Bateses home, where approximately $500 worth of jewelry was stolen. Investigating officers said the burglar ransacked drawers and closets.

About $3 was taken from a cash box at the Pampa Roller Rink. The burglary was discovered at 12:35 a.m. Saturday by L. D. L. Day, who was making a routine check of the establishment. The back door had been battered in with a two-by-four.

Mrs. Carter said she couldn't find anything missing from her home.

When Child Is Old Enough To Understand, So Will His 'Foes'

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK
United Press International
NEW YORK (UPI) — My 3-year-old son is persona non grata at the local super market, at the church of his parents' choice and at the neighborhood movie house. He started out like other kids — with every chance to make good. We gave him plenty of love, a nice soft bed, ample food and a smack when he needed it. He pays us back by being a toddling delinquent.

The local super market manager was the first to stamp the child as anti-social. The manager asked us to keep the child in the car when we pluck the week's victuals from his orderly shelves. The manager, through clenched teeth, told us he didn't cotton to the child's play — pinching, peaches, poking cellophane wrappers on candy boxes and dropping jars of jam.

On another front — church — wasn't the pastor who ran the child off the premises. It was the attitude of the brethren — coughing and clearing throats at the child. During his last performance in church he plucked a flower from the hat atop the head of a woman and then removed the hat.

But it wasn't until the child gave out with his "crying dog" imitation during the sermon that we decided to give in to other adults in the congregation — keeping the child at home Sunday mornings.

Super market and church aside, the child's worst reputation is at the local movie house. His maiden trip to the theater was admitted, a poor choice on his parents' part.

The flicker was the adult type — an eastern western with lots of violence between the talk while stars stared, hugged or just flexed muscles.

During the first 10 minutes of the movie, "Tiny McCormack" was silent. He was glued to the seat. Glued to his hands were sugary candy balls.

If we had been in a gravity-free atmosphere, he would have been quiet longer. But we weren't and the balls fell, rolling down the aisle, under the seats.

The child slid off the seat and fished his way down the aisle on all fours. This wasn't disturbing until an innocent patron, feeling something about her feet, stamped on it. The "it" was Tiny McCormack's paw.

When I tried to retrieve the child, he screamed — and during one of those silent, muscle-flexing parts of the movie.

I gave in and allowed the child to walk around if he would be quiet. That wasn't the thing to do. First time about the theater, he walked down one aisle, across the front row of seats — without falling — and up the other aisle. He broke into a sprint in the lobby and was going like a minute-miler by the time he hit the carpeted aisle inside for the second time around.

Even this seemed harmless enough until he gave out with a rebel yell — when, again, the folks on the screen were silent. They were kissing.

Instantly, I was running to catch the child. The manager was on my heels. It took us twice around the theater to catch the rascal. He screamed when we tried to capture him — but screaming and kicking, he was taken into captivity.

The manager showed us to the door and politely asked that we pass up movies until the child is "more mature."

Practically every day since then the child pleads for a return to the movies because, as he puts it, "it's a nice place to run."

He also asks to return to the super market and can't understand why his trips to church have been cut off.

"When you're more mature," I tell him, "you'll understand."

And maybe when he understands, his parents will. Also — the super market manager, the pastor and the nice man at the movie house.

Wins Title In Borrowed Evening Gown

PORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — A mother of five children who borrowed an evening gown to wear at the pageant in Mrs. America of 1960.

She is Mrs. Indiana, Mrs. George E. Murphy, 31, of Kentland, Ind., wife of a freight terminal manager.

Mrs. Murphy, who is 5 feet, 8 inches tall and has hazel eyes and brown hair, said she decided to enter the contest on the spur of the moment when she saw an entry blank in a magazine.

"I still don't really realize I won yet," she said. "I never entered a contest before."

She really did win, though, and as proof she will receive more than $50,000 worth of cash and merchandise, including a new $36,500 home. "I'm going to begin my reign by going to church and thank God for the privilege of living in America," she said.

Runners-up to Mrs. Murphy were Mrs. Patricia O'Connor, 31, of Granite Falls, Minn., and Mrs. Lillian R. Clemens, Savannah, Ga.

Mrs. Murphy won the home-making title over 50 other contestants from all the states and the District of Columbia. She said she borrowed the white nylon chiffon evening dress which she wore when she was named the winner Friday night.

"I don't even own an evening dress," she said. "I borrowed it from Myra Hurty of Kentland. I thought if I had the possibility of winning I would be furnished a complete new wardrobe. If I didn't win, I wasn't going anywhere anyway, so there wasn't any need of buying one."

Mrs. Murphy's children are Steven, 10, Michael, 8, Patrick, 6, Jeffrey, 4, and Cynthia, 2.

Freak Tides Hit Seaboard

By United Press International
Freakish high tides lapped at the coasts of Georgia, Florida and the Carolinas for the third night Friday. Damage was slight, and there was only minor flooding.

Thousands of vacationers and coast-dwellers took the whim of nature calmly and prepared to go through it all again Saturday and Sunday, at least.

Alfred Taylor, Weather Bureau chief in Savannah, Ga., said the tides are caused by a rare series of coincidences: strong northeast winds created by a low pressure system just off the coast, normally high spring tides, and a full moon.

Taylor said the tides will continue to run higher than normal at least through Sunday, as a disturbance area in the northwest Caribbean continues to move slowly northeast. This could maintain the low pressure and keep the northeast winds blowing the ocean tide inland and Savannah Beach fared better Friday night than they had for the two previous nights. Predicted minor flooding failed to materialize to the extent expected, and roads in the area, which were closed Wednesday and Thursday nights, were kept open.

Belgian Congo Independence Has Meaning For Missionary

By LEE GRIMSLEY
Daily News Staff Writer

June 20 will be a special day for Ruth Musgrave.

That is the date the king of Belgium will sign a proclamation giving the Belgian Congo its independence.

Miss Musgrave, a retired missionary who served more than 40 years in the Congo, has watched the long, slow progress which has led to the signing of the proclamation of independence.

"As far back as 25 years ago," says Miss Musgrave, who is speaking at various churches here, "I saw the move for independence coming."

"Belgium has been very considerate of the nationals in the Congo—their leaders in each of the districts are beginning to leave the continent now."

"Of course, some of them will stay," Miss Musgrave said. "But they will only serve as advisors and counselors."

Recently all of the schools have turned over to the natives of the Congo region.

"Some white men have remained in an advisory capacity," Miss Musgrave said. "But they have turned over all the red tape of operating the school systems to the nationals."

The nationals already have taken over key positions in business enterprises in the Congo region.

"When you go into a bank, all the cashiers and officers are nationals," Miss Musgrave said. "And it's the same way at the post office. All the clerks there are nationals."

The Congo, which is the jungle region of Africa, has undergone a tremendous change since Miss Musgrave first went there in 1918.

"Twenty-four of the 25 boys in the first class I taught were cannibals," she recalled. "Some of them were head-bunters. We didn't know for sure which ones were head-bunters, but we knew they were in the group."

Even though she was in constant association with the cannibals, Miss Musgrave never worried about what might happen to her.

"I never once thought that I might have been there next meal in all that time," she said.

Miss Musgrave doesn't anticipate any difficulties when the nation's gain control of the Belgian Congo, provided the Christianized natives take over.

"It may not be so smooth if the less educated people take over, though," she said.

However, the retired missionary violence on the scale South Africa had, recently when it made its bid for independence.

"The people in South Africa can't find a common ground of fellowship," Miss Musgrave said. "If they could, they would never have had those riots."

"I think the whites, the blacks and the Mau-Mau's are to be pitied."

"If they could just find a common Christian fellowship, there is no reason why they couldn't live together in harmony."

Former Solon Sentenced In Fraud Case

DALLAS (UPI)—Robert L. Proffer, a former state senator from Denton, and Hollis L. Atkinson, a Fort Worth attorney, will be sentenced Monday on charges of mail and securities fraud growing out of activities of their Teachers Professional Investment Co.

A jury in U.S. District Judge T. Whitfield Davidson's court ended their seven-day trial Friday by bringing in a guilty verdict in 43 minutes. Both men said they would appeal the convictions.

Four of five other co-defendants in the case pleaded guilty and should be confined in protective custody for further examination.

It was the second time Gilbreath has tried to kiss Shirley. He tried about a year ago and was restrained. He claims he loves her.

will be sentenced along with Prof. and Atkinson Monday. The fifth won a postponement of his trial when he became ill.

U.S. Atty. William B. West III, who handled the prosecution in the trial, accused Proffer and Atkinson of pocketing nearly $120,000 entrusted to them by teachers and other investors.

Halt Of Inflation Does Not Necessarily Mean Deflation

By ELMER C. WALZER
UPI Financial Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—Have we halted inflation? If so, do we now face a period of deflation?

Those who link the two questions inter must have one of the other — and here conservative economists inject a loud "no." They insist we can get along with neither of these forces and have stability in prices.

The last condition is the one which prompted Dr. E. Sherman Adams of the American Bankers Assn. to remark last year when inflation forces were strong: "What this country needs is a good 15-cent dollar."

Just now the experts point out that our dollar is stable — that it still stands as the bulwark of world currencies.

With money rates easing, it costs less to borrow dollars, hence less to maintain inventories, finance plant expansion and finance housing.

Federal Reserve spokesmen have noted that recent money easing reflected a solid base for the economy with inflation psychology lessened.

The Federal Reserve has kept a tight rein on credit since a zoomed out of the recession in early 1958.

But there was a big credit expansion just the same last year while this was going on. There was an increase of about 19 billion dollars in residential and other mortgages, of 5 billion dollars in state and local government debt, of 6 billion dollars in installment debt, and the government financed an 8 billion dollar deficit.

The foregoing figures are cited by Alfred Hayes, president of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York to show that the Federal Reserve held credit expansion high despite its money market operations to keep inflation down.

He notes a change in the atmosphere at the present time — business less boomy, commodity consumer prices steady.

This situation, he ascribes in part to the Federal Reserve policy, recognition by both industry and labor of the dangers of inflation, the value of reasonably stable prices and a federal budget surplus.

Economists and business men welcome the relaxation of credit controls and look forward to business improvement in the third quarter.

While the early part of the year brought some declines, distinct improvement was noted in retail sales, including autos, in April. May is also set down as a good month and June is expected to hold high in many lines.

However, there have been declines in such lines as steel and housing and lately there has been a tendency to cut down inventories. Through these major upheavals, the economy has ridden up to a half trillion dollar rate which appeals to the economists a state of resiliency that forecasts a brighter future.

The experts look to steel to lead a smart rise later in the year, probably in the third quarter. Lower money rates are expected to help housing. Autos are expected to be in demand and new buying of steel from that industry will give the steel industry a big lift.

Kissin' Fool To Mental Hospital

SAN ANTONIO (UPI)—Billy Gilbreath, 24-year-old unemployed laborer who tried to kiss a minister's daughter in church, was confined to the San Antonio State Mental Hospital Saturday.

Gilbreath has been held on charges of disturbing the peace since April 7 when he chased 16-year-old Shirley Norville around the Central Assembly of God Church trying to kiss her. She is the daughter of the church's pastor, Leonard Norville.

Bexar County Health Officer Dr. James Poika testified at a hearing in the case that Gilbreath

Polaris Sails Down Range Next Month

By RAY CROMLEY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA)—In mid-July the George Washington atomic submarine will fire several Polaris missiles while submerged off Cape Canaveral.

These missiles will be aimed about 1,000 statute miles down the Atlantic Missile Range. This will be the first full dress test of the Polaris.

If these shots are successful, the first ready-for-action Polaris submarine will go to station loaded with 16 missiles this fall. The second will be on station by year's end.

Navy men will push for starting one new Polaris submarine a month. They'll seek a six-year, nine billion dollar program of 43 Polaris subs and over 720 Polaris missiles ready for action by 1968 as key pieces of the West's nuclear deterrent.

Navy scientists are already working to boost the range of the Polaris missile to today's 1,100 statute miles to 2,900 miles by 1965.

That would mean that if Russia started an atomic war, an American Polaris submarine could stand off the coast of Northern Canada and lob 16 Polaris missiles into Moscow and Leningrad within 15 minutes. Or hit Moscow from the Arabian Sea. Or Vladivostok from the mid-Pacific off Wake Island.

The major steps being taken to increase range: a stepped-up fuel with more power, lighter engines and skin and radially smaller electronic insides. Metallurgists, fuel and electronics researchers are on a "hard push" schedule.

Nine Polaris submarines have been authorized. Two have been built, three have been launched and are being outfitted, four are under construction. Congress is now considering authorization of five more this season.

A Polaris land-fired from Cape Canaveral aimed at Griffith Stadium in Washington would land within the playing field six times out of 10. That's when fired by scientists. No one yet knows what the Polaris will do under sea conditions.

The Polaris submarine strategy will be simple. The subs will be sent on permanent prowls in international waters closest to the Soviet Union's major industrial and military areas. Their missiles will be continually zeroed in on priority targets.

Each submarine will have two alternating crews of 10 officers and 90 men. Each crew will serve 60 to 90 days. These crews may be sent by plane, meeting the submarine at some port near its prowling area.

The individual subs may come to home port once every two to three years. They will be supplied and repaired near their prowling stations by special tenders.

The submarine may move about its Texas-size prowling area, or it may be stationary for weeks, all the time. It is virtually impossible to detect.

As long as the sub moves around in one section, electronic computers automatically make corrections necessary to keep the missile aered in.

The Polaris missile is fired underwater with a blast of compressed air. About 60 or 70 feet out of the water, the missile's own engines take over. The first of the Polaris' two stages burns out after one minute and drops off. The second burns out after another minute. This leaves the bullet-like nose, which may hit speeds up to 8,000 to 10,000 miles an hour.

The Polaris missile carries a hydrogen warhead. The Navy calculates that with 45 Polaris submarines, it would have about 30 on prowling station at all times. That would mean 450 missiles continuously zeroed in.

Navy men figure that if the Soviet Union were to spring another Pearl Harbor, it would get very few of these submarines because the Reds wouldn't know where they were. The submariners figure that the 450 missiles would take out almost every major target in Russia.

Housing Starts Down, But Construction Totals A Record

By ELMER C. WALZER
UPI Financial Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—All construction during the current year is expected to run to $69 billion, a record high.

Of that amount new construction is placed at $54 billion and modernization and repair at $15 billion.

Housing starts, however, are expected to fall below the revised figure of 1.5 billion of 1959. This year's starts are estimated at 1.2 million and that's about the rate they have been running recently.

A pickup in housing, however, is looked for in the summer months with mortgage money expected to ease somewhat and become more plentiful.

Housing is considered highly important in the economy and any increase is expected to boost morale in the building industry and give other lines a big lift.

Homebuilding in the first four months of 1960 has been down about 21 per cent from a year ago. The year's low was registered in February and currently a gain is reported in progress.

While the warm weather is expected to boost housing starts, the experts warn that there is no boom in the making in that segment of the industry.

Value of all construction put in place in the first four months of this year is running 3 per cent under last year.

Planting and equipment expenditures are expected to rise 14 per cent over 1959 to a record high to help lift the overall outlays for building which are expected to show a 3- to 5-per cent rise over 1959.

Value of new construction put in place in May rose 10 per cent over April to a total of $1.5 billion. For the first five months of the year, new building amounted to $19.6 billion, a decline of 2 per cent from the $20.1 billion of 1959.

Private construction in the first five months dipped 1 per cent from a year ago. Public construction was down 11 per cent.

Construction, which makes up more than 10 per cent of the gross national product, is regarded among the principal industries of the nation.

In ordinary times the prospects of a recovery without an assist from construction is considered out of line and on the impossible side.

Economists, recently noting the strength in the general economy while such major lines as housing and steel were sinking, hold that the current business picture gives promise of doing much better than had been anticipated by many experts.

The high level of industry is seen as reflecting resiliency in the general business picture. We have been able to make up in other lines what is being lost in some of the major ones.

Back in the early postwar years, the business analysts called our current situation a rolling adjustment. They held this meant the economy generally was inherently strong and that while one industry was slipping another could pick up to offset its effects.

While the name isn't being used, Wall Street is convinced we are in a typical rolling adjustment and holds that it can work out to the general benefit of the economy.

Additional housing at this time, it is felt, would work wonders in stimulating the general economy. Such situation would be felt in many industries—steel, building materials, house furnishings, and myriad others.

According to Prentiss H. Hall, business spending on machinery and equipment will be the fastest climbing gross national product segment this year. Such purchases, P-H says, will zoom by 17 per cent above the corresponding period of 1959.

International Statistical Bureau says warm weather is expected to bring with it a pickup in the over-all construction picture.

Game Officials Building Herd Of Bighorn Sheep In Big Bend

By BILL CLAYTON
United Press International

A concentrated effort to restore Bighorn sheep to the ranks of big game animals in Texas has paid off this spring with three Bighorn lambs.

Game management officials are coddling a tiny herd of the management area just east of Big Bend in the dusty Black Gap management area just east of Big Bend National Park.

They hope to have enough of the popular game animals within the next few years to release them to the wilds of the state.

The Bighorn herd is now composed of four rams, five adult ewes and the three lambs. They live in comfort in a 427-acre pasture in the management area.

The only Bighorns remaining in the state in the wilds are about two dozen of the animals in the Sierra Diablo Mountains of West Texas. They are all that remain of a few hundred Bighorns living in the state two decades ago.

Bighorns are popular game animals in New Mexico and Arizona, where hunting is allowed through special permits only.

Hunters face a long, painstaking trek through hot mountains for the sure-footed animals, whose curling horns make a valuable trophy.

The Bighorn has never had large populations in Texas. Hunting season on the animals has been closed since 1906. In 1940, it estimated more than 200 rams of the Sierra Diablo, Beach and Baylor Mountains of West Texas. By 20 years later, only a tenth of that number survived.

Beginning in 1954, Texas and Arizona and the National Park Service agreed for Texas to obtain some of the sheep from Arizona.

Game and Fish Commission trappers moved to Yuma on various occasions to nab some Bighorns in the project to restore them to their former range in Texas.

But the nervous Bighorns wanted the airlift to Texas about as much as the family dog welcomes his Saturday bath. Although tranquilized for the flight, they raised such a fuss that many died before they could be put in the holding pasture. On one flight, the sheep kicked and butted their airborne crates so much that the plane had to turn back and land until the animals calmed.

When the small herd was established in the pasture, game officials removed predators from the area, provided cover and food, and kept a close watch on the Bighorns.

For the first time, two of the ewes gave birth this spring, one to twins. If the youngsters survive diseases and predators, the population increase wildlife men hoped for is on its way.

Pierce Uzzell, assistant director of Wildlife Restoration for the Game and Fish Commission, said the reproduction in captivity this spring is a lot of progress.

"They're like the whooping cranes—when they start disappearing from an area altogether, it's a long haul to get them back. The birth of the three lambs this year shows they can reproduce in captivity."

Outdoors Brief

The Tideland decision assuring Texas of its 10.5-mile boundary had little effect on Game and Fish Commission operations in the Gulf of Mexico, executive director Howard Dodgen says.

"All along we have been exercising our jurisdiction to that limit," he said. "Our patrol boats enforcing pollution, closed shrimp seasons, and conservation measures have their duties out to that limit. Also, our research for growth, rate, and abundance of species in the salt waters will continue out that far as it has in the past."

Producers Get Ready For Openings

NEW YORK (UPI)—Broadway producers planned today to resume work immediately on 43 plays and musicals scheduled to open this fall.

Castings, rehearsals and other plans for the productions had been indefinitely postponed because of the eight-night Broadway blackout which ended Thursday night when actors and producers reached agreement on a new contract.

Performers, producers, directors and theatergoers anxiously were awaiting the reopening Monday night of 18 of the 22 shows closed June 2. The three shows not resuming were casualties of the shutdown. A fourth, "The Best Man," will reopen Sunday night as an Actors' Fund benefit.

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI)—Sen. George Smathers (D-Fla.) said Friday 232 Russian engineers and technicians are building a jet air strip in Cuba. He told a news conference it was a "definite threat to the safety of the United States."

Amateurs, Professionals Find Profit In Stolen Cars And Parts Business

By JERRY BENNETT
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA)—The nation's law enforcement officers are trying to apply brakes to the accelerating number of automobile thefts.

The extent of the crime wave is indicated by 1959 police reports of car thefts in 10 major cities. New York tops the list with 19,798, followed by Los Angeles with 12,469. Figures in the other eight cities are:

Detroit, 6,086; Chicago, 5,662; San Francisco, 4,709; St. Louis, 4,159; Philadelphia, 3,959; New Orleans, 3,761; Boston, 3,650 and Baltimore, 3,422.

Connected with the stolen car problem is a wave of auto part thefts. Last year, for instance, more than 6,000 tires were stolen from car trunks in Cleveland. Thieves sell the tires on the underworld black market for $10-$15. Narcotic addicts often turn to this crime to obtain money for drugs.

Teen-agers also swipe tires and auto accessories to help outfit their hotrods. Their thefts, however, don't stop at parts. They are also involved in most of the stolen car cases. FBI agents report that more than 19,000 of the 30,000 persons arrested for car theft in 1958 were under 18.

Most teen-age thieves swipe cars for joy riding. They usually drive around town until the gas runs out and then abandon the autos. Often their free-wheeling antics cause severe damage to the autos.

SIX WAYS YOU CAN PREVENT AUTO THEFT

1. WASHINGTON (NEA) — Here are six basic rules which the FBI suggests citizens follow to safeguard their cars against theft.
2. Do not leave keys in the car even if they are hidden. The thief knows all the hiding places you know.
3. When removing keys from the ignition, do not merely turn to the "off" position. Lock the ignition as well.
4. Close and lock all windows, ventilator openings and doors when you leave the car.
5. Do not leave valuable articles lying in the car where they can be readily seen.
6. Place a mark on some part of the car to serve as identification in case it is stolen.
7. Know your license number. Keep a written record of identification which includes the motor and serial of the car and serial numbers of accessories. Often the accessories are removed and sold separately and identification numbers make them easier to trace.

The dangerous criminal, such as a bank robber, is a second type of car thief. He relies on stolen cars for escape. Police say a stolen car report is often regarded as a warning of an impending, more serious crime.

A third class of car thief is the professional. Members of this underworld group have learned how to turn car thievery into big business. The gimmick is to change the appearance of a stolen car and sell it to unsuspecting used car dealers.

Professionals usually work in gangs. They are masters at inventing special tools for breaking into locked autos. They operate garages in which they repaint stolen cars, change license plates and alter motor numbers. They are usually experts at forging ownership papers.

Sometimes these thieves buy wrecked autos from a salvage yard to obtain their titles. Then they steal cars of the same make and model, altering them to fit title information on the salvage vehicles. Once this job is completed, the cars are ready for sale to dealers.

In recent years the FBI has sponsored auto theft conferences to brief dealers on ways to spot stolen cars. Particular giveaways are file scratchings on a motor number and dirt covered license plates on a shining automobile.

But police and FBI agents agree that the best way to reduce the number of thefts is to make drivers more security conscious. Too many victims, they say, invite theft by leaving their keys in the ignition and the doors unlocked.

A LONG ISLAND motorist was greeted by this scene upon awakening one morning. Thieves had stolen the four wheels and left his car on the brake drums.

The man-of-the-week: Premier Nobusuke Kishi of Japan. The place: Tokyo.

The quote: "If I resigned under pressure of violence, democracy in Japan would be destroyed."

Democracy is a word used often by Kishi, a small man with protruding teeth and a perpetual smile, whose World War II record is a favorite target of his political opponents.

Kishi was one of those who signed the declaration of war against the United States in 1941, and it was he who, in 1939, designed the militaristic economy that enabled Japan to build and maintain her guns, planes and ships.

His word was one of the keys to the decision that Japan could afford to attack the United States, and it was he who directed the huge industrial complex in Japanese-held Manchuria that helped Japan carry out that attack.

But it was this same Kishi, replying to Socialist criticism in the Japanese Diet, who said 16 years later:

"I have fully searched my soul concerning my wartime responsibility, and today I am resolved to devote myself as a democratic statesman to the building of Japan with the people."

This week, Kishi, friend of the United States, was in the midst of one of his toughest fights.

With the help of his Liberal-Democratic Party's huge majority in Parliament, he had rammed the U.S.-Japan mutual security treaty through to ratification over the violent protests of the Socialists.

Unless he can be forced from office in the meantime, the treaty automatically becomes law on June 19, the same day President Eisenhower is scheduled to arrive in Tokyo for his Japanese visit.

Kishi's difficulties came from both left and right. The Communists opposed the treaty for obvious reasons. The Socialists are committed to support a new Japanese Constitution and prefer to see in the treaty a danger that Japan will be dragged into a new major conflict.

Within Kishi's own party, there also is opposition—not to the treaty but to Kishi himself.

These intra-party opposition leaders see the present demonstrations not as a national crisis for Japan but rather an opportunity to oust Kishi.

ONCE BURNED, TWICE SHY—Cheerful members of the De Mars family of Canoga Park, Calif., show that they've had their Salk vaccine shots. Six of them were hit by polio in 1951 and they don't want it to happen again. Left to right, rear row, Patricia, Don Jr., Mrs. De Mars, Center row, Bobby, Dick, Shirley, Carole and Mr. De Mars. Front row, Jeannette, David and Audrey. The National Foundation aided the family when Donald, Dick, Patricia, Audrey, Shirley and David came down with polio. The De Mars hope they will serve as an example for the millions of U.S. families who remain unvaccinated.

"Sweetie's the best debater in the world! She can yell louder than anyone!"

Reds May Wreck Ike Visit To Japan

HONG KONG (UPI)—Communist China has a big stake in President Eisenhower's visit to the Far East and would do almost anything possible to ruin it.

It is especially interested in his visit to Japan. Nothing has stirred Peiping's anger so much as the U.S.-Japanese security treaty which Red China regards as a dagger held across its throat.

Chinese Communist Party Boss Mao Tse-tung would like to see the Ike visit turn into a colossal flop followed by the collapse of Premier Nobusuke Kishi and the rise of a government more tractable to Peiping.

Informed sources in Hong Kong believe Red China has been pumping funds into Japan, to finance the mass of anti-demonstrations against the security treaty. How directly Chinese secret agents are concerned is now known.

Communists and other leftists have led the "Ike stay home" and "Kishi resign" demonstrations and observers believed the demonstrations would grow as the date for the Eisenhower visit approached.

Radio Peiping was filling the airwaves with anti-American propaganda and in recent days has outdone Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's epithets by calling Eisenhower a "bloodstained butcher."

If Eisenhower gets through his Japan visit without a political scratch—if there are no major incidents—then Peiping will have lost ground in the struggle to isolate Japan from the West.

Tokyo Plans Heavy Guard For Ike

By CHARLES R. SMITH
United Press International
TOKYO (UPI)—President Eisenhower will be the most heavily guarded head of state ever to visit Japan when he arrives here June 19. The security guard will include more than half the total Tokyo police force.

Japanese officials frankly are worried about protecting the President. Anti-American demonstrations have been virtually daily occurrences since May 19 when the Kishi government rammed through ratification of the U.S.-Japanese mutual security treaty.

American security officials are reported to believe that the President runs a greater risk in being "over-protected" and, therefore, blamed for any suppression by police of demonstrations, than in being underguarded.

They have left the principal business of protection to their Japanese counterparts who face:

—Threatened violence by fanatical ultra-leftist members of the Zengakuren students organization.

—Another threatened demonstration by Sohyo, the leftist-labor union confederation, which claims

3,500,000 members.

—Rightist groups which may cause trouble by attacking leftist.

—The chance of a crackpot or fanatic trying to attack the President.

Said a high security official: "What we are worried about mostly is some fanatic individual who might make an attempt to attack Eisenhower."

The Socialists have waged a relentless "stop Eisenhower visit" campaign since announcement of the trip.

Security officials here have expressed the hope that American officials are aware of these very real dangers.

However, Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi, who has been under heavy fire ever since he invited Ike, has promised "adequate protection" and he usually achieves what he says he will.

Police Aided By Telepathist In Killer Hunt

ARLINGTON, Va. (UPI)—Police assumed an official silence today on the findings of a Dutch telepathist whose "visions" provided authorities with their first break in a baffling, 17-month-old mass murder case.

After visiting the graves of the victims, Peter Herkos, who claims extra-sensory powers, said he had succeeded in reconstructing the last mental image the victims had of their killer. He told police to probe their files for a man who worked "with either junk or garbage."

Authorities then arrested a 34-year-old Falls Church, Va., man at his home Thursday night. The suspect was ordered to undergo examination at a mental hospital, and police apparently were awaiting outcome of the tests before proceeding with the case.

Herkos was brought into the case this week by Dr. D. F. Riesenman, a psychiatrist at St. Elizabeth Hospital in Washington. Police have tried without success for nearly a year and a half to solve the kidnap-murders of all four members of the Carroll Vernon Jackson family.

Jackson, a feed store clerk, his wife and two small daughters vanished the night of Jan. 13, 1959. Their car was found near Mineral, Va., and weeks later their bodies were found in shallow graves near Frederickburg, Va., and Annapolis, Md.

Riesenman, a member of the American Society of Psychic Phenomena, with which the Dutch telepathist has worked on previous occasions, said he was convinced the suspect named by Herkos was "guilty without a doubt."

Authorities have not identified the man, nor have any charges been filed against him.

However, his wife told Fairfax County Judge Mason Grove at the sanity hearing that her husband left home the day before the Jacksons disappeared. She said before leaving he had threatened to kill their four children.

She said he returned home two days later but would not reveal

Little Girls Want Bras As Symbols

NEW YORK (UPI) — First it was a dress just like Mom's for the child wanting to feel grown up. Now, the bra has become the status symbol for the girl not yet blossoming into womanhood.

She wants, and gets, a bra by the age of nine, 10 or 11 years and it doesn't matter that she has absolutely no need for it. Now does it matter that she's just as shapeless in a bra as she was in her undershirt. For the bras designed for subteens are as flat as pies, with sizes beginning at 28-no cup. Others, for the girl a little more mature ranged from 28-AA and A to 36—the latter for the child on the chubby side.

The industry, happily watching sales soar, said that the simple truth is, today's youngster want to escape childhood as soon as possible.

Manufacturers label such sub-teen mentionables "littles angel," "beginners bra," "bobbies," "heavensteens," and "undergrad." Most are made of broadcloth with a stretch yarn lining across the front. Almost all are white.

"Well," said Herbert Mayer, vice president in charge of sales at Peter Pan, "mother usually shops with her daughter for the first bra. And I don't think there are many mothers who'd put a 10-year-old in black lace."

Mayer's firm has gathered statistics on sales for the whole foundation industry and studied buying habits of the sub-teen and teen set. He said the teenager market is the fastest growing segment; that each year, some 100 million dollars is spent for bras and girdles for "girls nine to 16 years."

On the average, girls buy their first bra at 11 and their first girdle at 15. Seven out of 10 girls shop alone or with a friend for

Williams-Miller Say Nuptial Vows

Wedding vows were repeated by Miss Clara Lou Williams and James Leroy Miller on May 28 at four o'clock in the Assembly of God parsonage by the Rev. J. S. McMillan, 1233 Charles.

Miss Williams is the daughter of Mrs. W. C. Williams of Bristol, Okla. Mr. Miller's parents are Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Miller of Bowers City.

Given in marriage by her brother-in-law, W. J. Finney, the bride wore a waltz-length gown of nylon lace with a lace-over-jacket designed to point over the wrists. Her veil of illusion was held secure by a tiara of pearls. She carried an arrangement of red roses and gardenias arranged on a white Bible.

Miss Juanita Wooten of Lefors attended the bride as maid of honor wearing white street-length while eyelet embroidered frock and carried a bouquet of red carnations.

Jimmy Carter of Bowers City was best man.

The bride's mother, Mrs. Williams, chose a floral-cotton-chiffon in a copper hue. Mrs. Miller, bridegroom's mother, wore pink cotton emroider.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held in the home of the bride's sister, a nd husband, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Finney, 604-B Plains for wedding guests.

The bride was graduated from Lefors High School this Spring. The bridegroom has just completed basic training at Fort Ord, Calif. and is to be stationed at Roswell, N.M., where they couple will make their home.

LEFORS (Sp) — Mrs. O. W. Nowlin, Lefors High School Home Economics instructor, has organized a class of adults, in beginner sewing, to be held in the high school homemaking department each Monday, Wednesday, and Friday from 1:30 to 4 p.m.

A film, "Fashion Flattery Through Optical Illusion," was shown.

A "Preschool Playschool" for children of the mothers taking the sewing course is conducted each day by girls taking summer home-making for credit. They tell stories, show films, play games, sing songs, and serve refreshments to the youngsters.

"Riverboat" Theme Highlights First Kit Kat Klub Party

To start off its current season of rush parties, Kit Kat Klub entertained Monday evening in the home of Miss Sue Foster, 1228 Williston. Using the theme, "Kit Kat Klub Spectacular" the first party featured a "Riverboat" setting.

Yard lamps led up from the front lawn to the back, where lawn furniture and a mural of a plantation home created a "Riverboat" atmosphere. Little boys, "blacked" to resemble slaves, escorted each guest to the entrance where they were presented with name tags shaped as small colonial ladies holding lace umbrellas encrusted with glitter.

Entertainment was provided on an improvised stage designed as a riverboat, where Miss LuRae Nation performed a tap dance, "Naga Sagi"; Misses Paula Sealey and Judy Robison tapped "Putting on the Ritz." Don Darling, pantomimed "Little Richard's" top tunes.

Miss Karen Wells, KKK president, discussed the club's purposes and activities in a "get-acquainted" talk with rushees.

Refreshments of punch and cookies were served.

If you are finding your teenage daughter impossible to get along with, it may be time for you to ask yourself a few questions.

Do you often try to impose your taste on her? Do you criticize the way she wears her hair, the dress she wears but that you don't think is particularly becoming, the way she has fixed up her room?

Do you frequently criticize her friends by pointing out their faults to her?

When she confides in you, do you discuss the things she has told you with your friends or the mothers of her friends?

Do you complain about your daughter to her father—about how she keeps her room, how lazy she is, and so on, instead of insisting on her doing her share around the house?

Do you invade her privacy in such ways as reading her mail, asking "who was that" when she gets a telephone call or rummaging through her keepsakes?

Do you sometimes compare her unfavorably with an older sister or another girl of her own age wishing aloud that she were more considerate, or weren't so shy or whatever?

Do you argue with her as though you were both the same age?

Do you keep telling her how much you do for her and how little she seems to appreciate it?

Do you argue with her as though you were both the same age?

Do you criticize her more than you praise her?

Mothers often find teenage daughters quite impossible to get along with. But it usually isn't all the fault of the daughter.

With the best intentions in the world a mother can make a daughter secretive, rebellious, or stubborn if the mother doesn't realize that a teenager can't be treated like a child.

Nearly every night in young Fred's home there's a tussle to get him loose from the TV set and pry him on his way to bed. Seldom is Fred content to see one western through to its end. Always he must stay up to see how the next sheriff makes out with the cattle rustlers. Usually Dad has to be called to exert paternal authority. When Fred finally retires his parents' general feeling is:

"Give a child an inch of TV entertainment — and he wants a yard."

Personally, I can understand Fred.

The TV grownups who produce his intriguing westerns work terribly hard to interest him. Script writers lie awake nights plotting new, suspenseful situations for him. Directors, actors, camera crews rehearse and rehearse. For the split-second timing that makes the script gunfights look real. All the resourcefulness of these skilled grownups is applied to the work of arousing Fred's interest in them and sustaining it.

But Fred's parents put very little work indeed into arousing his interest in the story and sustaining it.

These days we hear an awful lot of criticism of the violence that TV offer children in the name of entertainment. I don't go along with it. I don't think that the problem of children's TV entertainment is the TV entertainment at all. I think the problem is parents' disparagement of their own abilities to entertain.

We have much more substantial satisfaction to offer Fred in the evenings than the shadow people on the TV set.

Were Fred's father to come out from behind his newspaper tonight to start reading Robert Louis Stevenson's "Kidnapped" to his son, the son would soon discover it's plot to be more intriguing than that of any TV western.

Were his mother to come up with some ideas for creating a landscape for his train system, he'd find putting them to work far more exciting than just looking at professional designers.

But so long as dad immerses himself in his paper and mom in that kitchen, the TV shadow people get no competition. Fred has no way of discovering that he's the child of interesting people. Unlike our TV competitors, we don't want to work at being interesting.

With warmer weather definitely here, it is time to pamper your skin. Like most of us, you probably neglect it during winter cover-up months. Women planning outdoor activities should smooth legs and feet for shorts and bathing suit time. When bathing, rub a pumice stone on roughened areas. Massage your feet and legs while applying a lotion or cream.

DEAR ABBY....

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Our son recently married a lovely girl. She's rich, too, but that's not why he married her. Her parents gave her an expensive wedding. They hired a photographer who roamed around taking pictures of all the guests.

This morning the bride's mother brought over the pictures. There were about 100 of them and do you know there was not ONE picture of my husband or me or our daughter, who was a bridesmaid? (The only one from our side who got into a picture was my mother — and they caught her with her eyes crossed and her tongue out.)

I am plenty burned up over this. My husband said it was OUR fault; we should have made it our business to get into a few. Was it OUR place to chase the photographer or shouldn't the bride's people have given him orders to get us, too?

BOILING MAD

DEAR BOILING: Simmer down. The bride's parents should have instructed the photographer to get pictures of the groom's family — especially his parents and sister. It was an unfortunate oversight. I doubt if it was intentional.

DEAR ABBY: I have a sister who was married and divorced. She says she hates men, but you'd never know it the way she acts around my husband. She feels his muscles and calls him "Tarzan." Every time she comes and goes she has to kiss him hello and goodbye. (She lives next door.) When she comes over here she'll be all dolled up like she's going to a dance.

My husband says she's harmless and he feels sorry for her. She's had some tough breaks and I feel sorry for her, too. But not sorry enough to give her my husband. She keeps asking me, "How did you ever get him?" We've been married 19 years and I hate to start acting like a jealous wife. How should I handle this situation?

JEALOUS

DEAR JEALOUS: Don't worry. Your sister is looking for some male attention. Try to arrange some dates for her. This is one way to get her out of your hair (and your husband's). If you feel that she is overstepping the mark and is a real threat — ask her to feel YOUR muscles and say, "Hands off, Sister!"

DEAR ABBY: I have been married 28 years. My husband is 60 and I am 42. We have never had anything in common except our five children. We never go any place together. He never discusses

Curl-toe, Heeless Zori Has Strong Influence On Western Shoe Fashion

WOMAN'S VIEW
By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Western influence on Japanese styles is so strong that the traditional sandal, called the zori, now comes with pointed toes.

This fact I gathered from Mrs. Sueko Otsuka, Japan's leading fashion designer, who is getting her first look at the United States.

The zori, heel-less like a Western-style bedroom sluff, is held to the foot by a strap between the large and second toes. Mrs. Otsuka took hers off to show how the once rounded front now is tapered, although not to the extreme of the needle toes on American-made footwear.

"The world gets smaller and smaller," said the tiny Japanese woman, a widow in her 60's. "A fashion soon becomes universal." She believes in this cultural exchange — that West has much to offer East in functional fashions, and that in turn, East has much to offer West in styling and beauty of fabrics.

But she also wants her country to maintain some of its traditions. That is why she steadily campaigns to preserve the kimono, which has been a part of Asian dress for more than 15 centuries. "It is such a beautiful garment," she said, "perfect for the dainty figure... perfect with our complexions."

She also knows that many Japanese women have gone to work in offices and shops since World War II and no longer want to take the time to tie an elaborate obi sash. For them, she has developed a two-piece kimono, with a wrap around skirt and top, and a ready-tied obi which works on the same principle as the snap-on bow tie.

Mrs. Otsuka's desire to preserve the kimono has led her to write three books about it and to establish in 1954 a kimono school where today 30 teachers train some 1,000 students in sewing, pattern-making, cutting, weaving, dyeing, sketching and designing.

Day-Length Frocks For Bridesmaids

By GALE DUGAS
Newspaper Enterprise
Women's Editor

NEW YORK (INEA) — No matter how formal and elegant the gown is in which a bride sweeps down the aisle this summer, her bridesmaids will be wearing day-length dresses.

The bodice may be an exact copy of the bodice of the bride's gown, but the skirt will be short. For bridesmaids are practical people! The bride may fold away her beautiful gown after the wedding but the bridesmaids fully intend to wear theirs to parties all summer long.

For that reason, the attendants prefer pastels, cap sleeves and full or belted skirts. Their slippers are dyed to match and they wear wide caps of flowers or lace or organdy.

Though it is the bride's right to choose her attendants' dresses without consulting her bridesmaids, few brides are inconsiderate enough to do this. For the bridesmaids must pay for their dresses and they must take into account both the state of their finances and their particular figure problems.

Usually, therefore, the bride and her maids go together to choose the attendants' dresses. This gives everyone a chance to have her say and thus arrive at the decision most satisfactory to everyone concerned.

A bridesmaid should have her hair styled in a way that is right for her hair and skin. There is no rule which says that all of the attendants should wear the same

FATHER'S DAY IS JUNE 19TH

A beach house or a place in the country for the summer inevitably means guests for the week-end. And the hostess who enjoys her guests most is the one who does advance planning so that everything runs smoothly. The thoughtful hostess pampers her guests (left) by placing cosmetics and toiletries especially for their use in guest room or bathroom. It's the rare guest who doesn't forget toothbrush, face powder or cream. Before the guests arrive on Friday evening, allow yourself time to rest (center). This wise hostess stretches out with dampened cotton pads on her eyes to aid in relaxation. She has set her hair and covered it with a pretty nylon cap. She need only brush out her set to be ready. After dinner, take time out on the terrace, patio or porch (right) for a chat with your friends. Serve after-dinner coffee and place a dish of chocolates on the table as the perfect end to a pleasant meal. You'll have a pleasant time.

Advance Plans Helps Weekend Run Smoothly

By ALICIA HART
Newspaper Enterprise
Beauty Editor

If you're lucky enough to have a large estate and a staff of servants, weekend entertaining is no problem for you.

But the way the world is set up, few of us fall into that enviable category. And the hostess with a country home or small beach house often finds that a weekend with guests means a weekend of work for her.

Proper planning can help immeasurably to simplify things. Do thoughtful little things in advance to show your guests that you have considered their comfort. Have small-size beauty preparations available in the guest room. So many people forget one or another of these items when packing for a weekend. A beach towel for each guest should also be provided.

You can spend time with your guests without having to turn out throw-together meals from boxes or cans. During the summer no one expects, or even wants, food that is too heavy. Crisp salads can be appetizing and attractive, and a minute's hours of cooking time. Stir-fry, lobster or chicken can be fixed long before your guests arrive and stored in the refrigerator. After that, it's only a matter of arranging the crisp greens and making the dressing, neither of which takes too long.

If you prefer a hot dinner, casseroles and always be prepared ahead of time, too, and the variety is endless. For dessert, mixed fresh fruit and a dish of assorted chocolates will satisfy the urge for something sweet.

Breakfast should not be on time schedule. Just set the table the night before, tell your guests where things are, and let them help themselves. They'll appreciate not having to get up at a specific time.

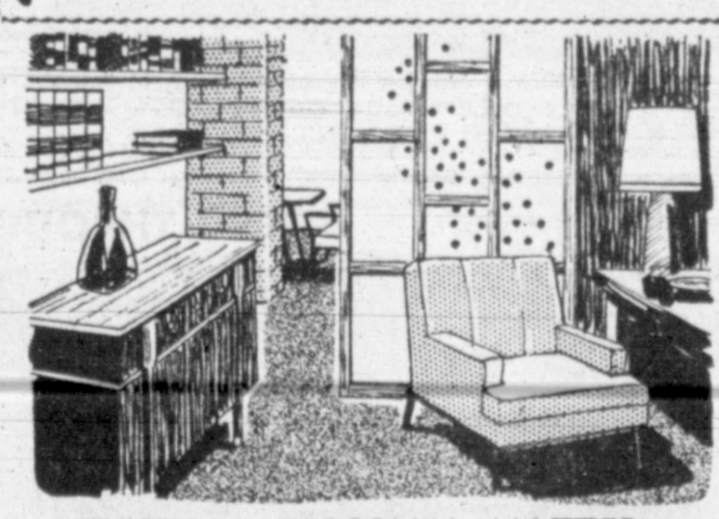

If your weekenders are spending the day at the beach, why not pack a box lunch for them? Even a patio lunch can consist of assorted sandwiches, a thermos of iced or hot coffee and cookies and fruit.

While your guests are showering and changing, you'll have the kitchen to yourself. And this is the time to make your canapes. You can work undisturbed, and your turn to shower and change will come while they are contentedly nibbling on the tidbits you've prepared and refreshing themselves with cool drinks. Have a dish of candy handy for a quick-energy pick-up for those who don't want that cool drink.

Nylon stockings now come proportioned in width as well as length. Gals with slim legs need worry no longer about nylons that billow in the breeze.

TASTE: A PERSONAL MATTER

"What a handsome room, it has atmosphere!" How often do we hear this remark made about exceptionally simple rooms. What gives a well-decorated room atmosphere—and how is it achieved? The answer can be found in one simple word: taste.

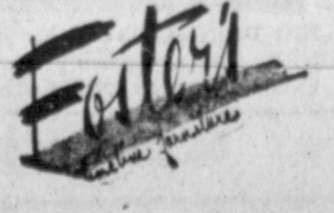

While the problems of taste are always personal ones, the underlying principle of today's concept of good taste calls for simplicity of design and the harmonious use of colors. Restraint in the use of decorative detail and effects is another factor in developing a tasteful room.

One of today's most popular taste trends is the subtle treatment of just one color with the entire scheme of decoration composed of varying tones of the basic shade. This color treatment is equally satisfactory with warm or cool colors and offers plenty of scope for light and shade, strong contrast or subtle gradation.

A warm and friendly color scheme of varying shades of brown, for instance, might conceivably employ the pale champagne tones, the intermediate co-

British Network Kicks Out U.S.-Made Mayhem

By TOM A. CULLEN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

LONDON (NEA) — The British Broadcasting Corporation has barred the sound of bones being broken from its television programs.

From now on, the shrieks and screams of TV Westerns must shoot from the hip, and no funny stuff. No bone-crunching, eye-gouging, knives protruding from backs, whipping scenes—all of this is out.

So are monsters in modern dress, and "background" music used to create a "frightening atmosphere."

It's all part of the BBC's crackdown on violence, particularly in television programs that are likely to be seen by children. It could have an effect on American makers of TV films. For next to the domestic market, Britain is America's best customer for TV series.

Already, American TV film makers are beginning to feel the pinch. Two episodes each from "Laramie" and "Phillip Marlowe" have been dropped by BBC on the grounds that they might "cause offense to viewers." American Westerns in general are being carefully scrutinized for unnecessary violence.

Britain has only two television channels, the non-commercial BBC and the Independent Television Authority, which is run along American lines with commercial sponsorship.

So far ITV has issued no set of rules comparable to the BBC's anti-violence code.

(In Hollywood, Newspaper Enterprise columnist Erskine Johnson reports he has seen no move in the telefilm business marking an anti-violence trend. He predicts that the violent series will wind up on TV channels in Britain, adding:

"After reading English tabloid newspapers, I'm convinced the English people prefer tea and mayhem to tea and crumpets.")

The campaign was hastened by the recent murder of nine-year-old Iris Dawkins of Southampton, stabbed 39 times by a boy her own age who confessed: "I have seen stabbing on TV. I watch all the murders and I like the way they track them down and question them."

This murder caused a public outcry from parent-teachers and other interested organizations.

Worse than violence in its impact upon children is emotional insecurity, according to Kenneth Adam, controller of BBC-TV, programs. The BBC, therefore, will

Florida Jumps In Population

By FRANK EDGE
United Press International

MIAMI (UPI)—A population explosion during the "fabulous fifties" pushed Florida's population to 4,897,257.

The 76.7 per cent increase over 1950 made Florida the fastest growing of the first 40 states counted in the 1960 census. It will push Florida's standing in the Union from 30th place in 1950 to somewhere around 10th in size.

The 1960 figure was compiled by United Press International from the preliminary figures released by the census bureau for each of the 47 counties.

The actual increase since 1950 was 2,125,952 over the official U. S. 1950 census figure of 2,771,305.

In Washington, census officials said Florida's 1960 population is 4,895,098. This did not include an addition of some 2,000 persons to Tampa announced by the Tampa census office Thursday. The counts included in the UPI tabulation are preliminary and there will be other changes.

Washington officials said the next fastest growing state to Florida among the first 40 counted was Nevada, which grew by 75.8 per cent. Alaska grew 74 per cent.

THEN AND NOW — Lloyd Nolan isn't sure that today's film censorship code measures up to that of the days when Will Hays was movie czar. He's almost certain that his new film, "Girl in the Dark," would have rough going under the Hays' code of the 30s.

Borger TEC Representative Newman Dies From Attack

AUSTIN (UPI)—Robert F. Newman of Borger, labor's representative on the Texas Employment Commission died Saturday of a heart attack.

Newman died at Seton Hospital after suffering his second stroke in recent years.

Fred Schmidt, executive secretary of the State AFL-CIO, said Newman's death was "a tragic loss to the working people."

"He was one of the few public servants being appointed to represent the working men and women who took it seriously and endeavored to do so," Schmidt said. Gov. Price Daniel called his death "a great loss to our state and all of us who knew him."

"He was an outstanding public servant," Daniel said. "His family has my deepest sympathy in this time of sorrow."

Newman was appointed to the commission in 1956 by former Gov. Allan Shivers. He was serving a six-year term after taking office April 8, 1957.

Newman was born at Quail and received his formal education at West Texas State College where he received a bachelor of science degree.

For nine years he taught and coached in West Texas, then joined Phillips Petroleum Co. as a yardman in 1939. Newman was named personnel officer at Phillips' Alamo Refinery in 1945.

His work for Phillips brought howls from organized labor when Newman was first named to the commission. He later developed into a strong bargainer for Texas employees after becoming a member of the commission.

Newman affiliated with a union for the first time in 1957 when he joined Local 351 of the AFL Operating Engineers at Borger.

As a young man, Newman played professional baseball with several leagues in Oklahoma, Indiana and North Carolina. He is survived by his widow, two sons, Tommy, a student at the University of Texas, and Joe Bob, a West Point graduate now in the Army; and a daughter, Mrs. Mary Ann Cravens, a teacher in one of the Harlingen schools. Mrs. Newman is a teacher with the Austin school system.

Historic Homes Film

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—One of the forthcoming Buena Vista releases, Walt Disney's "Pollyanna," has selected two historical California homes for the filming.

One is the now-deserted Stag's Leap, an ancient house in the Napa Valley, and the other in the still-occupied home of Mrs. Juilliard McDonald, about 40 miles west of Stag's Leap, near Santa Rosa, Calif. They were selected because they would best portray architecture prevalent in the eastern United States during the early 1900's.

Mrs. Robbins holds the "taters" while Greg drills the holes for his Pig Tater dinner offering and here's his recipe:

PIG TATERS
Clean several medium-sized potatoes. Drill hole lengthwise through potato with brace and bit, using about a 3/4-inch bit. (The young man in the house will enjoy doing this for you.) Fill hole with link sausage. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) one hour, or until potatoes are done.

Has Flight Begun?

When governments reach a certain stage of oppression, the incident is illustrated by the rapid self-exile of persons of means. Those who fear confiscation and attack under a despot will invariably flee their own shores in an effort to anticipate confiscation, and by their flight to prevent it. We have noted this same tendency of persons of wealth and intellectual achievement all through history. They have their loyalty to their own country the same as the remainder of the population. But when a person's ability to survive is actually challenged by the government which has managed to gain power in one's own nation, loyalty undergoes a metamorphosis.

Sen. Goldwater Has No Love For Kennedys

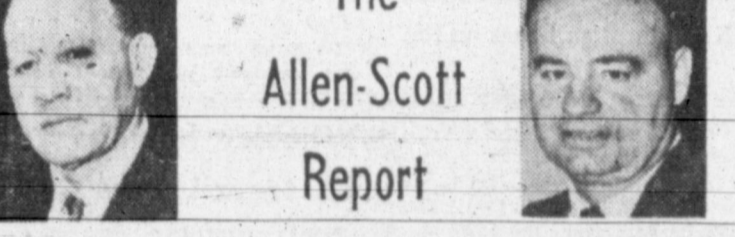

by WESTBROOK PEGLER

WASHINGTON — I have never known a senator to attack the character of another with the candor of Barry Goldwater's comments on the Kennedy's in the official hearings of the McClellan committee, which are extensions of the sessions held in the main hall; Senator Goldwater is bound by rules which protect Kennedy, and his brother, Robert, from honest appraisal in personal terms. This seems just as well because otherwise the Senate soon would be just so many Khrushchevs bawling in anarchy. However, in his offices and elsewhere, Goldwater becomes a man of a "challenging" voice and visage with vehement contentment for the Kennedys, as men.

Montgomery: He Who Wore A Tight Beret Too Long

by HENRY McLEMORE

Whether he knows it or not, Field Marshal Viscount Bernard Montgomery, the man who wore a tight beret too long, causes us a lot of trouble. There being no way to tell where the distinguished old soldier will pop up next, any man who claims to be any sort of a host at all has to be ready for the Field Marshal's knock on the door.

Temporary & Lasting

Campaigns may come and campaigns may go; but collection of taxes goes on, whoever wins.

Socialism's Cost

If the public power groups have their way, the United States electric industry will be socialized—lock, stock and barrel. That would mean that utility properties would be removed from the tax rolls — for government operations, commercial or otherwise, don't have to pay taxes. In the case of the Tennessee Valley Authority, it is true, certain sums "in lieu of taxes" are contributed to the state. This record property tax bill came to $65,419,000, and was the biggest ever paid in southern and central California.

Looking Sideways

by WHITNEY BOLTON

NEW YORK—You can say this for New York: you can set out for the theater on a mild May evening, and run into a stranger with a story. There was an off-Broadway event, just off Park Avenue, the other night and I lided along minding no other man's business when a fellow fell into step alongside and said: "My name is Alec Schwartz. I see you at the theater often." We uttered the usual gambits you offer a stranger and when I saw we had time for coffee I urged him to join me. He did. We talked. Do you want a great diamond or a black one or a brown one? You don't have to wait for Nature to turn up with a freak.

BID FOR A SMILE

But if you wanted it attended to right away, and the secretary didn't say so—instead of just marking it urgent? "We Trim Our Meat, Not Our Customers," says a sign at a market in the Midwest. "A midwestern preacher in the middle of a long sermon was horrified to look up and see his young son, mopping at the parishioners with a bean blower. Just as he started to scold the youngster, the boy shouted, 'Keep preaching, Pop. I'll keep them awake for you.'"

TO THE PEOPLE OF GRAY COUNTY: I realize that a man is not using very good judgment to take issue with a group of ladies who are busy on putting over a big issue that they have been working on for two years; and I would like to have taken the easy way out and not oppose this proposition, but since there seems to be a public hearing called by a group of women of this county for the express purpose of forming an organization to sponsor a bill before the Legislature of this state to create a domestic relations court for Gray County, I felt that the time had come for me to speak out.

Today's letterwriter is an epileptic. He writes that "with the help of the new drugs and the new thinking of the public I'm able to support a wife, a son and an aged mother." He quite justifiably protests an account of the shooting of South Africa's prime minister which emphasized the fact that the assassin is an epileptic. This suggested, the writer believes, that epilepsy might be spotlighted unjustly as the cause of the attempted assassination.

Batista Maintains Home In Daytona Beach

Phone Is Connected, But Occupant Not Home

By ANDREW J. REESE JR., United Press International

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—His name is in the phone book, but callers never find Fulgencio Batista at home.

And chances are the man Fulgencio Batista ousted as Cuba's top strongman never will get to enjoy the sumptuous pink stucco mansion he purchased here three years ago.

Batista hoped to make it his permanent residence when he retired from politics. But that was before Castro.

Now the plush Spanish-style structure he wanted to call home stands silent, almost deserted—an enormous reminder of the pitfalls which confront many a Latin ruler.

Once the Batista mansion was the winter home of automobile tycoon R. E. Olds. Originally built about 30 years ago at an estimated cost of $150,000, the house was bought by the x-dictator in 1957 for $82,500.

But local authorities say Batista never spent more than a few days in the palatial three-story house on the Halifax River.

However, it was to this house that his wife, mother and other members of his family and personal household fled in January, 1959, when Castro's rebels chased Batista and his henchmen out of Cuba. Batista himself went to the Dominican Republic and then to an island off the coast of Spain, where he was joined later by his wife.

Reports are that Batista would like to return to the United States to live there in peace. But so far the U.S. has shown little inclination to have him as either a guest or full-time resident.

Nevertheless, Batista's local attorney, B. F. Brass, said the house was not for sale—at least not yet.

While his wife and other members of the family were here, Batista paid $180 a day to have eight city policemen stand a round-the-clock guard on the 12-room house. But by last September the guard had dwindled to only during night hours, and finally the duty turned over to the city's detective bureau which observed the house. All the guards were withdrawn when Mrs. Batista departed in November, 1959.

Mrs. Carmen Garnero, Mrs. Batista's personal secretary, and a few maids now occupy the house. Occasionally visitors stop in, usually high-ranking ex-officers of Batista's regime. And tourists cruise by for a peek at the house owned by the man Castro succeeded.

Batista spent about three years at Daytona Beach in political exile from 1945 to 1948, but he lived at the house next door. That building was presented to the city by Batista as a Cuban museum in 1957. It flies the Cuban flag and houses various exhibits of Cuban culture, industry, and history.
