Panhandle Doused By Eight-Inch Rain

By United Press International
Thunderstorms dumped up to eight inches of rain on the Texas Panhandle today, washing out roads and bridges and the roads of the Fort Worth and Denver Railroad. The downpour, plus hail the size of hen eggs, heavily damaged cotton.

Amarillo had 1.19; Dumas 1.42; Claude 4.20; Hereford 1.50; Pampa 1.00; Canyon 1.51 and Dalhart 1.15.

Water gushed over U. S. 257 through Memphis but ran off quickly. Texas Highway Department engineers said that Farm Road 1619 west of Estelline was partly underwater between Memphis and Turkey.

A Fort Worth and Denver train, headed west, was stopped at Childress because the downpour had washed out the roadbed west of there.

The district engineers office said State Highway 338 was washed out 12 miles southwest of Wellington.

Rainfall in Childress reached 1.85 inches in the downpour.

Pampa Gets Heavy Rain

A steady rain, which began falling shortly after midnight and continued until 8 a. m. today, dumped up to an inch and a half rain on Pampa.

The Pampa Daily News' downtown rain gauge caught only 21 inches of moisture in the eight-hour period. But reports from citizens around the outskirts of the city ranged from one to one and a half inches.

Skies were still heavily overcast at noon, and additional rainfall is expected the rest of the day.

HST Takes Blame For First A-Blast

By RALPH TEATSORTH United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI)—Harry S. Truman took sole responsibility for atom bombing Hiroshima. The former president has never changed his mind that it was the right thing to do to end the war with Japan.

Others, however, are less willing to put the whole responsibility on Truman's sturdy shoulders.

New and enlightening research into the dropping of the Hiroshima bomb is provided by American journalists Fletcher Knebel and Charles W. Bailey II. Their book, "No High-Ground," will be published Monday (June 6) by Harper and Brothers.

Heretofore secret documents were opened to Knebel and Bailey. They add something to public knowledge of factors contributing to a great moment in history. But, in the main, the book is of value because it brings together in one lucid story the hitherto drama of the development and use of the A-bomb.

Truman's part is described clearly.

He got his first vague hint of the bomb when, as a senator heading the Senate War Investigating Committee, he was asked by Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson to call off any inquiry into the spending of huge sums for a secret project. Stimson told Truman only that it was "the greatest project in the history of the world."

Truman, according to the authors, got definite information an hour after succeeding the deceased President Roosevelt on April 12, 1945. It was several days, however, before Truman got all the details of the bomb.

The book, in an assessment of responsibility for Hiroshima, says: "There were those who wondered how much choice Truman really had by the time he learned of the project. Two billion dollars had been spent in secret... Franklin D. Roosevelt and Churchill had reached a tentative decision months earlier to use the bomb against Japan."

"General (Leslie R.) Groves, another who believed the decision to drop it was correct, would say years later that Truman argued, 'Was like a little boy on a toboggan. He never had an opportunity to say we will drop the bomb. All he could do was say no. Any political leader who refused to drop, Groves said, would have been 'crucified' if American lives had subsequently been lost in an invasion of Japan."

Groves commanded the Manhattan District, the top secret project that developed the A-bomb. Even before Truman became president and before anyone was sure the bomb would work, some of the scientists who helped develop it had doubts about its use in warfare. Their arguments were conveyed to President Roosevelt.

sevel, but he died before giving them any serious consideration.

So Truman entered the White House faced with a decision on which the scientists were divided and on which government and military leaders in on the secret were by no means of one mind.

Truman listened to all arguments. His advisory committee recommended unanimously that the bomb be dropped on Japan as soon as possible and with no specific warning. Winston Churchill advised him to drop it as soon as ready.

On July 26, the Allied powers at Potsdam issued the ultimatum for Japan to surrender unconditionally or face "prompt and utter destruction." The Hiroshima bomb was dropped on Aug. 6 and even then Japan hesitated to surrender until after the second A-bomb fell on Nagasaki on Aug. 9. The Japanese, according to the authors, should have feared the A-bomb because in 1944, they received intelligence reports concerning the U.S. atomic effort. But Japanese scientists replied that it could not be done before 1947.

DEAR ABBY....

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My parents are starting in on me again this year about going to summer camp. I went last year (I am 12) and I hated it like poison. I didn't have a friend.

Do you think it is fair for parents to FORCE a child to go to summer camp even if she hates it? They tell me it is very expensive and I should appreciate going, but I think they just want to get rid of me for six weeks. Oh, Abigail, what shall I do?

HATES CAMP: DEAR ABBY: There is no better place than your own home for a young person to learn how to get along with others. The experience of living away from home will develop independence that will be invaluable in later years. Change your attitude. Honey, and go. You'll discover that you need only offer your friendship and it will be accepted.

DEAR ABBY: Can a man LOVE his wife and BE IN LOVE with another woman at the same time? Please answer YES or NO.

DEAR ABBY: Yes, And if you are interested in the details of this age-old problem, read the article "WHAT IS THIS THING CALLED LOVE" in the June issue of McCall's. I wrote it.

DEAR ABBY: There is nothing anyone (including you, Abby) can do about my problem because it's too late, but I'd like to give a word of warning to the girl who is so much in love with a man that she'd gladly "work her fingers to the bone" for him.

When I was married, I agreed to work for a year—until we got "established." That year has stretched into 13. My husband has come to depend on my income to pay the bills. He works steady, but no one seems to know where his money goes. (Excuse me, he pays the insurance.)

I don't believe in divorce, but I'm ready to walk out because I feel like a workhorse. No children. We can't afford them. I make $380 a month and he makes $550. I wish someone had told me years ago that when a man encourages his wife to work when they are first married, chances are he's selfish. She won't respect him very long, either. And when respect is gone love soon flies out the window.

DEAR ABBY: We just bought a new home and I told a friend of mine that I was planning on having a house-warming party. She looked horrified and told me that it was not proper for a person to have a house-warming party herself. That was supposed to be done by her friends.

How can my friends possibly have a party in MY home without my help and permission? I didn't want to ask her this question for fear of appearing stupid. That's why I'm asking you.

DEAR ABBY: Yes, And if you are interested in the details of this age-old problem, read the article "WHAT IS THIS THING CALLED LOVE" in the June issue of McCall's. I wrote it.

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE
All five young men were graduate students at the same university. Why they turned up at our friends' apartment the other night, I don't know. I just know that they are friends of a friend of our hosts' 25-year-old son.

Resuming the political discussion, our host tried to involve them in it. To the bright-eyed student who sported a beard he said:

"Who do you want to see get into the White House next?"

"Me? Who cares?" said the bearded student. He was promptly applauded by shouts of laughter from his friends.

"Yes, you," our host said. "You're of voting age. In my opinion, this is going to be an election to care about. Why don't you think so?"

All the university graduate students laughed again uproariously. Then one who'd recovered enough breath to speak said to his bearded friend:

"Go on, Artie. Tell them."

Smiling at us, the bearded student made a deliberately slow and suspenseful affair of finishing his cheese and crackers.

"O.K.," he said, nodding toward the others. "I speak for them. Politics bore us. I don't care who gets into the White House. I care about myself, see? I'm looking after myself and so are they. We didn't make the kind of world you people have given us."

"It wasn't exactly spick-and-span when it was handed to us," I said. "We walked into two world wars and a depression. The H-bomb worries us as much as it worries you. We're all in the same difficult boat."

Still smiling at me, the bearded student said, "Then why care about the boat, lady?"

In her book, "Echo of Greece," scholar Edith Hamilton writes this about the life and death of the world's first democracy:

"It had been the Athenians' pride and joy to give to their city. Now, instead of giving to the state, the state was to give to them. What the people wanted was a government which could provide a comfortable life for them; and with this as the foremost object, ideas of freedom and self-reliance were obscured to the point of disappearing."

Abby's best-selling book, "Dear Teen-ager," is on sale at all bookstores.

NEW YORK (NES) — Dad may be the ruler of the roost for 364 days of the year. But one day each year he becomes prey to the whims of his brood. That day is Father's Day.

He'll awaken on the morning of June 19 in a cheerful, expectant frame of mind. This is HIS day. Then comes the raft of gifts.

Everyone in the family intends to show Pop how special he is and they trotted all over town to buy him something no one else has. And Pop spends the rest of his day saying, "How nice! What is it?"

Dad doesn't need a diamond-studded telephone dialer. And he certainly doesn't need a leopard-lined attache case, even if no one else in the neighborhood owns one.

There's no reason to search everywhere for something rare for dad. Chances are that the replacement of a few worn-out items in his wardrobe will make him far happier.

Kennedy Could Have 600 Votes On First Ballot At L.A. Convention

By BRUCE BOSSAT
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK (NEA) — A nation-wide survey shows that Sen. John F. Kennedy could hit the first Democratic convention ballot with some 600 delegate votes — roughly 100 from nomination — but his presidential challengers claim they have the makings of a blockade against him.

Survey findings exceed Kennedy's own present claims of 600 votes. They must also be set against 500 claimed by Sen. Lyndon Johnson and 250 for Sen. Stuart Symington of the first ballot. Johnson, Symington and the backers of darkhorse Adlai Stevenson bear down in the critical last six weeks before decision at Los Angeles. The uncertainties of politics and world affairs could assist them in their pursuit of the front-runner.

Nevertheless, exactly half of the 600 votes seen for Kennedy are now firmly committed. The remainder represents a potential rated almost rock-solid by the various survey respondents. Inroads must be made here by any "block Kennedy" forces. Contrary to commonly-held notions, his delegate winnings from primaries are not the big factor in his total. More than two-thirds of his indicated support comes from non-primary states strung through all sectors except southern and border areas.

Survey figures give him all 111 in New England, some 160 in the Middle Atlantic zone, 240 in Midwest and Plains states, 125 in the West and a scattering in the Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico and Canal Zone.

Blockade efforts aimed at Kennedy would be enhanced if favorite sons in such states as New Jersey, Michigan, Minnesota, Iowa, Kansas, and California could be induced to stay in the game long enough for Kennedy supporters to lose heart and begin defecting.

SEN. JOHN F. KENNEDY (second from right) came face to face with many of the men who now hold the keys to his presidential future. On the right is California's favorite son, Gov. Edmund (Pat) Brown. The others, from left, are: New Jersey Gov. Robert F. Meyner, Minnesota Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, favorite son; Florida Gov. Leroy Collins, Democratic convention chairman; Michigan Gov. G. Mennen Williams, a favorite son; former President Harry S. Truman and his presidential choice, Missouri Sen. Stuart Symington.

Particularly in 1960, prospects cast doubt on the strategy of enlisting favorite sons in the stop-Kennedy drive. Reports abound that two of these, Govs. George Docking of Kansas and Herschel Loveless of Iowa, may pull out at the end of the first ballot to allow switches before final tabulation. Both Kennedy and Symington have good backing in these states.

Gov. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan is expected to withdraw well before convention time, perhaps in mid-June, to clear the way for an estimated 48 of Michigan's 51 votes to swing to Kennedy.

Recent word from New Jersey hints that Gov. Robert B. Meyner might adopt a similar course. Sources there give Kennedy upwards of three-fourths of the state's 41 votes — after Meyner.

California's Gov. Edmund G. Brown will be under heavy pressure to take the strings off his 81-vote delegation after the first round. Strength is reported there for Kennedy (50 per cent), Symington (20 per cent) and Stevenson (20 per cent).

Minnesota's Sen. Hubert Humphrey, clinging to virtual favorite son status after having removed himself as a serious candidate, denies any "stop-Kennedy" intent. But if he holds onto his 60-odd votes, the effect could be the same. He still smarts from primary defeats at Kennedy's hands.

Famine, Strife Tear Red's 'Silk Curtain'

By WARD CANNEL
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

HONG KONG (NEA) — If the free world's fence against Communist Asia was in better repair, Mao Tse-tung's China pasture could be a lot greener. Or redder.

Refugees stream into Hong Kong at the rate of at least 300 per week — and perhaps twice that number, according to volunteer relief workers. The penalty for not making it is certain death. The penalty for making it is poverty and a daily famine.

British businessmen, back from their annual trips into Red China report that a new, sullen look is apparent on faces wherever you go.

"It wasn't like that last year," one leather dealer reminded himself. "I was constantly being told how good life was how clean and progressive. I wasn't reminded of once this trip."

Agents of Chiang Kai-shek's Formosa government tell you happily that the gap is widening between Red China's army and the people. To preserve his power, Mao is giving the military luxuries at the expense of the people.

"Before everything else in China," one Chinese reporter said, "comes the family. It is traditional for overseas Chinese to send money home to their families, even if they haven't seen each other for 50 years. This all makes for bad feeling.

"All the more so as the army is growing older and officers and men are being returned to their homes and starvation."

Agriculture experts, reading, listening and discussing Mao's land reform program in the ideal form in which it reaches Hong Kong, are frankly amazed.

"He's got them planting sweet potatoes instead of rice. It's perfectly logical. Rice requires far more hands to cultivate. With sweet potatoes you free men and women for industry.

"The only trouble is that the Chinese don't like sweet potatoes. They want rice. He's hitting his people in the stomach."

In the meantime, spies, agents and refugees report that the Red Chinese army is at its peak. Mao can boast 1,900 jet planes in his air force, three million men in his army.

Training and discipline are more intense than they were two years ago during the concentrated shelling of the off-shore islands of Quemoy and Matsu.

Alternate-day shelling of these islands has continued since then. His gunnery crews are in excellent form.

But with the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization on his south flank, the Fifth and Thirteenth Air Forces at the ready from Manila to Tokyo, and the Seventh Fleet patrolling his shoreline, Mao's army is used only to haggle over the Indian border.

"This kind of containment can be a prison to a dictatorship," a military observer in Hong Kong explained. "Without the turmoil of military campaigns, you can probably hear the grinding internal problems quite clearly."

In addition, China's ill-wishers find new signs of disagreement between Mao and Khrushchev each day.

Taken all together, it should add up to the beginnings of revolution inside Peiping, if not all of China — all the more likely with China's ancient tradition of rival provinces and warlords.

It would be comforting to think so. But seasoned army and intelligence men here laugh at the idea.

"You Americans," one British intelligence officer said, "must get awfully tired running between the poles of admitting Red China to the U.N. and waiting for an overthrow of her government."

The closest anybody will come in reliable Hong Kong observation posts to predicting internal trouble for Mao is, in the words of one U.S. political expert:

"Three successive years of famine — and then, maybe. But only maybe. And three years like that come very seldom.

"As for the refugees: 300 per

HONG KONG — This free world window on Communist China is lifted weekly by 300 or more refugees fleeing from the Red regime. They often face poverty and famine in the crowded streets or on the sampans and junks in the harbor of this British-run Chinese city. But they still choose this life to one behind the Silk Curtain.

WEST POINT, N.Y. (UPI)—President Eisenhower wings his way to Washington today from a nostalgic interlude at West Point with his Army cadet classmates of 45 years ago.

The presidential plane, the Columbine III, was scheduled to take off from nearby Stewart Air Force Base bringing to an end a three-day jaunt which the President obviously relished almost from start to finish.

Eisenhower appeared refreshed by his visit to this 158-year-old institution on the banks of the Hudson, which began with a flight from Washington Saturday. A side trip to Notre Dame and back Sunday stirred an enthusiastic reception which could only have served further to buoy his spirits.

The President's stay here was sprinkled liberally with opportunity to chat informally and recall old times with his fellow 1915 classmates. He capped the visit with a cocktail party and dinner with his class Monday night at the hotel where he stayed.

The President Monday toured the West Point museum, inspected new barracks and classrooms, and marched with fellow alumni to a parade grounds where they reviewed the 2,500-man cadet corps.

It was a day almost designed to bring up memories about his days as a cadet, and as the free world's leader in World War II.

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI)—American Baptists spoke out strongly today against what they called "Roman Catholic influence" of political issues.

Delegates denounced the Catholic interpretation of the U.S. Constitution and its views on separation of church and state.

The American Baptist Convention holding its 53rd annual meeting here attacked Catholicism in the wake of resolutions passed Monday urging members of the denomination to reexamine their Protestant beliefs.

Recognizing the crucial significance of a presidential election, the convention affirmed the right of individuals to aspire to all public offices, regardless of their race, creed, color or sex.

The resolution said that Baptists believe their religious convictions make it their duty to determine how various candidates stand on all issues of American life. This clause apparently referred to the sensitive Catholic-Protestant relationship.

Several Baptist ministers challenged the political views of the Roman Catholic hierarchy in Rome. One, the Rev. Dr. Anthony F. Vasquez, Philadelphia, proposed an amendment to the "national elections" resolution demanding a pronouncement from the Vatican on religious freedom and separation of church and state. This amendment was defeated.

Roadrunners Edge Stinnett In Weird Ball Game, 6-3

The Pampa Roadrunners and Stinnett played a weird game of something at Optimist Park last night, but whatever it was, it will never replace baseball.

Held to just one single, the Roadrunners managed to pull out a 6-3 win as both clubs tried to veer each other the game.

The only thing about the abbreviated seven-inning affair that resembled baseball was the pitching of the two lefthanded mounders.

Pampa's Graydon Lantz hurled fine four-hit game, striking out and walking only one batter.

Stinnett's Donnie Anderson gave up a base hit in five innings, struck out nine and walked five. Tom Compton came on for Stinnett and the Roadrunners down in order in the sixth.

Stinnett jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the first inning when the Roadrunner infield committed error on a long ball which landed in right field. Dale Douitt, a centerfielder, Dale Douitt, and a single by catcher Larry Obvious.

Obviously figuring he would lead the mound all night if he walked for his mates to get him struck out, Lantz bled down and struck out the last two men to get out of a nightmarish inning.

Stinnett tried to show the Roadrunners it couldn't be outdone in a poppy play, handing the hosts a one-run error, a pair of walks and a wild pitch. Like Lantz, Anderson had to strike out twice to end the inning.

Lantz took matters into his own hands next inning and struck out six. He added two more strikeouts victims in the third and gave a runner put out by his batter, Mike Conway, on a high pop.

In the Pampa second, first baseman Bob Dunbar got the Roadrunners lone hit, a single to right center, but was stranded after he stole second when Anderson set the Roadrunners down on strike.

The young lefthander's teammates returned to their charitable ways in the third, giving Pampa two runs without even the benefit of a loud foul.

Three walks, a hit batsman, and an error had the Roadrunners rolling the bases like they were on a track meet.

Rightfielder Travis Taylor narrowly escaped serious injury in a frame when he was struck above the left ear by an Anderson softball. Taylor didn't appear to suffer any damage from the blow which remained in the game.

Lantz took care of the Stinnett hitters almost single handedly for the next two innings, getting five of the six outs by way of strikeouts.

In the Pampa fourth, shortstop Nutt took advantage of Stinnett's hospitality when he turned a throw to first base into a runner while centerfielder Dave Marlar as at the plate taking his cuts at the ball.

Nutt stole second while the pitcher was busy throwing to first base a pick-off attempt and went to third when the ball was booted by the first sacker.

He romped home a moment later when the catcher tried to pick Nutt's third but threw the ball to the fielder instead.

Taylor repeated Nutt's feat in the fifth inning when he reached first on an error. He was flagged to second by the plate umpire who selected Anderson balking in his delivery.

After an infield grounder moved him to third, Taylor scored second on a passed ball.

Stinnett scored its last run in the sixth on the only long ball hit that night. With left fielder Bill Douitt firing by way of a fielder's choice, Lantz hung a straight fast pitch letter high to shortstop Ken Clain who promptly smacked it against the left field wall for a run. The Pampa Roadrunners won 6-3 over Stinnett.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Branch Rickey, president of the proposed Continental League, insisted today that the embryo third major circuit can play big-league ball within three years' even if it has to go outside the current structure of organized baseball for players.

"I can come up with more players than they ever heard of," Rickey said.

Asked the question himself, Rickey, president of the proposed Continental League, insisted today that the embryo third major circuit can play big-league ball within three years' even if it has to go outside the current structure of organized baseball for players.

"I talked to him afterwards and asked him where he had come from and where he had heard of the camp. He was from Michigan, saw one paragraph in a newspaper about the camp, and told me he thought he could win a job. So he hitch-hiked all the way down South for his chance."

This boy, insisted the man who was one of the greatest talent scouts baseball ever had, could play for "any team in the major leagues."

"There were three other sure-fire major leaguers right there at the start of that camp," he insisted. "And 10 others that I know could go to town. I'll tell you, I'd like to take $200,000 and buy some of those players I saw."

And Rickey pointed out, this was the result of "one paragraph."

"Can you imagine what would happen if we took full page advertisements and really concentrated on sending out camp?" he asked. "Well, I'll tell you, we'd be swamped with players. I'll wager there'd be more than 500 show up."

The 78-year-old former Cardinal, Dodger and Pirate executive claimed that he has "done everything in my power" to arrive at an amicable settlement with the major leagues so that the Continental League can "come under the canopy of organized baseball."

The proposed league charges that the 16 major league owners have conspired to block their entry into organized baseball and the Kefauver bill is their final effort for an amicable settlement. Rickey is hopeful that the Senate will pass the bill and push the current major leagues into accepting his group.

"The delay has been terribly hurtful to us," he intoned. "If it isn't passed, we will be forced to go independent."

At which point, the Continental stops firing blanks.

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Tightening up the purse strings may be manager Gene Mauch's way of lightening the defense of the Philadelphia Phillies.

Mauch didn't quibble about the fine. "I didn't fine them," he said. "They fined themselves. They knew the rule." Mauch referred to the tardiness rule he put into effect in San Francisco last month.

Long Gone Dupre, 4 Other NFL Vets Sign With Cowboys

DALLAS (UPI) — Five more veterans of National Football League action, including former Baylor star L. G. Long, Gene Dupre, have signed contracts with the Dallas Cowboys, general manager Tex Schramm announced today.

Dupre, a native of Texas City, starred for Baltimore after leaving Baylor, and was instrumental in the Colts' drive for the 1958 NFL championship. He piled up a 4.2 rushing average that year.

The 5-11, 190-pound halfback sat out most of last year with an injury that has since healed.

Other veterans are Bill Butler, a halfback obtained from the Green Bay Packers; Ray Fisher, 6-3, 230-pound tackle with two years experience as a Pittsburgh Steeler; Gerry DeLuca, 6-2, 218-pound tackle who played for the Philadelphia Eagles last season, and John Gonzaga, 6-3, 245-pound tackle for San Francisco's 49ers.

Ex-Pitcher Dies

FRYEBOURG, Maine (UPI) — Funeral services will be held Wednesday for former major league spit-ball pitcher Raymond W. Jordan, who died in Meriden, Conn., Monday at the age of 70. He played with the Chicago White Sox in 1912 and later with Washington.

Hogan Loses In Memphis Golf Playoff

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Tommy Bolt, prepping for next week's National Open by winning the Memphis Open golf tournament in a playoff round, paid tribute today to Ben Hogan, whom he edged by a single stroke.

"That Hogan is tough coming down the stretch," said Bolt, who pocketed $4,300 to $2,500 each for Hogan and Gene Littler.

The 41-year-old Bolt, of Crystal River, Fla., whose last tournament victory was in the 1958 open, gained the win though playing with the knowledge that his wife, Mary Lou, was hospitalized after surgery here Sunday.

He used smoking-hot long iron play to post a two-under-par 68 and fend off Hogan's closing rush.

Hogan missed a five-foot putt for a birdie on the 18th and finished with a 69. Littler, steady from tee to green but putting erratically, wound up with a 71.

Bolt turned the front nine in 33 holding a three-stroke bulge over Littler and four over Hogan.

But Hogan, from Fort Worth, Tex., gained strokes on the 10th with a birdie, the 13th with an eagle and the 14th, which Bolt bogied. He evened the match with a birdie on 16 after chipping out of the rough to within two feet of the hole.

Bolt applied the clincher on the par 3 17th. Choking up his two-iron, he slammed the ball four feet past the flag and rammed down the birdie putt. Hogan could only get his par. Littler, 29, from Singing Hills, Calif., took himself out of it with a par.

Bally Ache Leads Field Of 8 For Richest Belmont Stakes

NEW YORK (UPI) — The entry of Tooth and Nail in next Saturday's Belmont Stakes, raising the prospective field to eight, could make the third leg of the Triple Crown the richest in the history of the race.

If all eight go postward in the 92nd running of the Belmont, the cross will be $152,150, surpassing last year's high gross of $145,500.

Capt. Harry F. Guggenheim of the Cain Hoy Stable put up the $5,000 supplementary nomination fee for Tooth and Nail a few hours after the three-year-old colt turned in an eight-length victory Monday in the New Rochelle purse at Belmont Park.

In scoring his fourth successive triumph of the season, Tooth and Nail was clocked in 1:42 3/5 for the mile and one-sixteenth event.

Tooth and Nail's ability to go to the front early could prove trouble to Bally Ache, winner of the Preakness and the Jersey Derby. Disperse, another Belmont hopeful, finished second to Tooth and Nail while Crotan, who set the pace, faded to third.

Manuel Yocaz, who has ridden Tooth and Nail in his last three victories, will not be able to ride the colt in the Belmont. The 22-year-old Panamanian was notified Monday that he was suspended for 30 days beginning June 8.

Eddie Arcaro, who is scheduled to ride Disperse Saturday, will be out to break the Belmont Stakes record for victories. Jimmy McLaughlin, who rode before the turn of the century, and Arcaro are tied with six triumphs apiece in the Belmont.

Earlier Monday C. V. Whitney's Tompion was made a supplementary nomination for Saturday's event. Willie Shoemaker will ride Tompion, which finished a disappointing fourth in the Kentucky Derby after going off as the 11-10 favorite.

Nature's Assault On Chile Is Catastrophe Of Century

By DAVID F. BELNAP
United Press International

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI)—On a Saturday morning in Chile, life has just begun to stir at 6 a. m. Few are up so early. Those who were on May 21 were fortunate.

For at 6:05 a. m. three Saturdays ago, a catastrophe of Biblical proportions struck this friendly Latin land. Thousands were killed and injured during its 10-day rage. Untold horrors were visited upon 1,500,000 persons who saw the face of the earth twisted beneath their feet.

Before the catastrophe ended, earthquakes, tidal waves flooded volcanic eruptions, disease and starvation tortured the living. Whole cities collapsed and islands vanished, volcanoes were born and deadly seismic waves were sent hurtling 10,000 miles across the Pacific.

Mere death tolls and damage figures—grim as they were—utterly fail to impart the calamity of these plagues. This was one of the 20th century's greatest natural catastrophes, one of the greatest disasters of modern history in South America, rival in its deadly forces even to the great plagues of the Old Testament when the Lord said to Moses: "I will stretch out my hand and smite Egypt with all the wonders."

Chile was smitten with the triple terror of the three most powerful forces locked within the earth. If this was no godly manifestation, there was at least the message that nature's force is not yet servant to man.

This is the story of nature's assault on Chile.

At 6:05 a. m. May 21 there began a series of earthquakes that changed the map of Chile, destroying an area about the size of New York state.

The earthquakes aroused sleeping volcanoes and created deadly tidal waves that swept to Hawaii and Japan. It flooded vast areas of southern Chile.

Before the ten days of terror ended, mountain hamlets were buried, large towns were crumpled and fishing villages washed away.

The cost of damage was estimated at $60 million dollars. More than 3,000 persons were dead, presumed dead, 450,000 were homeless on the long, friendly land below the equator, and another 150,000 persons' homes were badly damaged.

The first tremor occurred 300 miles south of this capital city. It lasted only 35 seconds.

In Concepcion, Chile's third largest city and the country's biggest industrial center, workers fled into the streets and thereby saved their lives.

The first tremor collapsed 30 per cent of Concepcion's buildings, killing 138 persons who were unable to get away from falling walls and roofs.

By nightfall the fearful populace prayed that the catastrophe had ended. But it was only the harbinger of worse to come.

At 3:05 p. m. on the following day the angry earth heaved again and toppled homes, buildings and theaters in Concepcion, Valdivia, Puerto Montt and Temuco.

Nine minutes later one of the mightiest earthquakes in modern history shook the slender country from its cold Pacific shores on the west to the towering Andes mountains on its eastern border.

Avananches cascaded down Andean slopes to bury railroads and highways and damming rivers that flooded unprotected hamlets. Other villages were buried under rockslides.

Islands were sucked into oblivion under the gulfs of Ancud and Corcovado. New islands were thrust above the waters.

The tremor, which registered the highest recorded mark on Richter's scale seismographs, reached into the very bowels of the earth.

Volcanoes that had been inactive for centuries began casting up their molten rock. A tidal wave flooded the coastline for 500 miles and swept fishing villages and whole populations into the seas. Freighters, capsize and fishermen drowned in their boats.

Just before the strongest earthquake struck, Miguel Letelier, a university student, was walking with his parents through the plaza of Valdivia.

"Everyone standing fell or was thrown to the ground," Letelier said. "No one could get up again for at least five minutes. Then the river began to rise, coming up and up until it flooded all lower parts of the city."

"That night and the next night were unending nightmares. The ground shook every one or two minutes. There was no electricity and the city was completely black. Everybody slept in streets and parks."

Letelier recalled that hotels and restaurants gave their food stocks away.

"After the first day the shortage was desperate," Letelier said. "I saw two men fighting with knives over a piece of bread."

At Puerto Montt, a picture-postcard city in Chile's famed lake country which many American tourists have visited, thousands of horrified residents ran screaming into the streets when their homes trembled early Sunday afternoon.

"We were still in a stupor when the big one came," Gregorio Nieto said. "It seemed like the end of the world. People fell to the street and couldn't rise. When they rose they fell again. It was impossible to do anything but trust in God."

A tourist said picturesque Puerto Montt had been "torn into a thousand pieces."

Like the distant mummbling of thunder in a passing storm, hundreds of aftershocks rippled through the disaster zone. Most were minor tremors but 12 passed the intensity of six on the Richter scale, strong enough to be classified as major earthquakes. The most violent registered at 3.2 on the Richter scale, the strongest ever recorded by modern seismographs.

As this was written the homes that are still standing are empty. The people who lived in them dare not return in fear that another giant earthquake might bring them down.

New Type Generator For Autos

By JACK VANDENBERG
UPI Automotive Editor

DETROIT (UPI)—A whole host of new electrical gadgets for cars will be made possible in the next few years' because the auto industry is converting to the use of "inside out generators."

An "inside out generator" is the description an auto company engineer applied to the alternator which Chrysler Corp. is using this year on its Valiant.

It is expected to be used on all Chrysler Corp. cars during the 1961 model year and probably will be adopted by all other companies by the 1962 model year.

Essentially, an alternator is the same as a generator except that the armature, which revolves inside a magnetic field on a generator, is stationary while the field, which is stationary on the generator, revolves within the armature on an alternator.

Because the roles and location of the armature and the magnetic field are reversed on an alternator, it is appropriately called an inside out generator.

But there are other differences which also makes the term "alternating current generator" applicable to the alternator.

A generator has a part called a commutator which transforms its current from alternating to direct. The commutator is built as part of the generator and can't be removed from the generator.

The alternator uses a static rectifying circuit in place of the commutator. Although this serves the same function of transferring the current from alternating to direct, it is not built as part of the alternator and can be removed to another location.

Alternators have been around for some time but they have not been used because the combined size of the generator with the commutator built in.

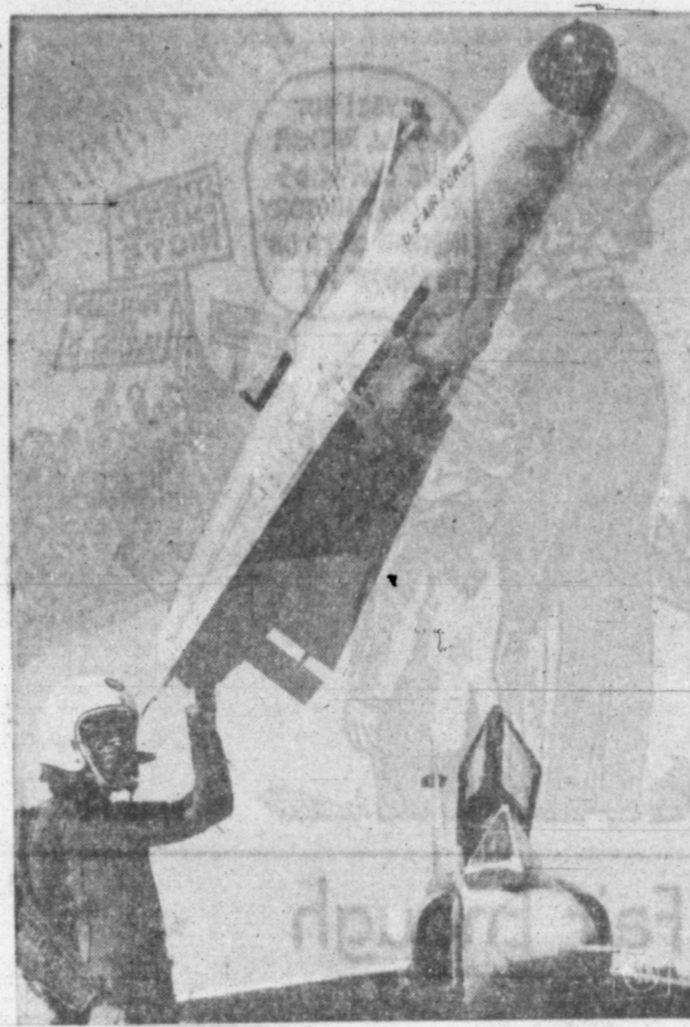

The secret of its recent success is that a small rectifier, using the same semi-conductors used in transistors, was developed by Motorola.

With this small rectifier, the combined size of the alternator and the rectifier has been reduced to a point where a unit the size of a standard generator puts out considerable more current than a similar generator.

This means that many of the accessories that have been held back because they would put too much strain on a car's electrical system, can now be added.

Some of these include a transistorized ignition system, electronic warning systems and, perhaps, even electronic guidance systems.

Psychology Sales Pitch Used To Clinch New House Deal

By EDWARD COWAN
United Press, International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—You, Mr. and Mrs.—Home—Buyer, are a builder's biggest problem once he's put up his houses.

It's all for nought, as far as he's concerned, if he fails to convince you to buy one of his houses at a price that will give him a profit.

That profit, or more exactly the question of price, is often the toughest part of the sale. "Sorely, a sales interview fails to rear the ugly head of price," observes Ted Pollock, a Brooklyn, N.Y., marketing consultant, in an article in the Journal of Homebuilding.

But "price is secondary," Pollock says in the title of his article. "The problem is to convince the price-minded buyer of that."

Essentially, the solution to the problem is this, Pollock says: "Make some other consideration so overwhelmingly enticing that price takes its rightful place in the prospect's mind—second—provided, of course, that he can qualify for the house."

How can the salesman convince the home buyer that price is only of secondary importance? Pollock lays out four ways. They are: "Make it easy to part with the money."

—Prove the buyer is actually saving money.

—Dramatize the penalties of non-ownership.

—Give the customer a taste.

"What really bothers some prospects who hide behind the price objection is the idea of suddenly parting with a sizable amount of money," Pollock comments.

"Show them how they can cushion the blow to their wallets—actually or psychologically—and you may walk away with the order."

Pollock cites examples from other fields—so many cents a pound for an extra ton of air conditioner or pennies a day for a super-duper insurance policy. In housing, he adds, "many salesmen find it useful to play up the excellent financing they can offer a prospect."

Another persuasive answer to the price objection, says Pollock, is the argument that the higher price does include valuable extras.

Although Pollock does not say so, this is akin to the belief, soundly established, but not always well founded, that it's cheaper in the long run to spend more because you get better quality.

Possible extras the builder and salesman can offer the buyer include "unique guarantees of service, more space, better location, better plans, help in landscaping and decorating, provisions for adding bathrooms or recreation rooms," according to Pollock.

Greer Garson To Star As Mrs. Roosevelt

HOLLYWOOD By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Leave it to Hollywood—they've got an Eisenhower Republican playing Eleanor Roosevelt in the movie version of "Sunrise at Campobello."

Greer Garson, the soft-voiced beauty who won an Academy Award playing "Mrs. Miniver," portrays FDR's wife in the film despite her politics.

She has been a U.S. citizen only since 1951, but in both the 1952 and 1956 elections the English-born actress voted for Ike.

"I've met Mrs. Roosevelt only two or three times, and I've found her a fascinating woman. She has tremendous dignity and character. I've read almost all the research books available on her, and the more I read the more impressed I become."

Despite her voting record, Greer has been a devoted Roosevelt fan since her teenage days in England.

"My own political beliefs have nothing to do with the role," she said.

"It is an added responsibility to play such a citizen of the world as Mrs. Roosevelt. I've portrayed living characters before, in 'Hissoms in the Dust' and 'Mrs. DEFENSE OFFICIAL HERE Parkinson.' It's not easy. 'I am not giving an imitation of Mrs. Roosevelt."

"I hope I am interpreting and giving an impression of Mrs. Roosevelt as she was during the years when the movie takes place."

To perfect her characterization Miss Garson has collected several newsreels showing Mrs. Roosevelt along with dozens of photographs of the famed former First Lady.

Neither producer Dore Schary nor anyone else at Warner Brothers studios has attempted to guide Greer in her portrayal of the character.

"I just showed up for work the first day and played Mrs. Roosevelt as I thought the role should be done," she explained. "No one has criticized or changed my ideas yet. That pleased me."

"Perhaps the biggest compliment I've had came from extras on the set who wanted to know who the actress was playing Mrs. Roosevelt."

Ammonia produces more cotton per acre

Leading West Texas farmers like FRED POPEJOY use 100 lbs. of Phillips 66 Ammonia on cotton

Fred Popejoy of Hart, who has 800 acres under cultivation, has used Phillips 66 Ammonia successfully on a variety of crops. "With cotton following cotton I put down 50 pounds of ammonia per acre. On cotton following maize I apply 100 pounds of ammonia. This gives me about 1/2 bale per acre increase," he says.

"Maize land receives about 100 pounds of ammonia per acre. Yields have been up to 7000 pounds per acre... increases average about 2000 pounds per acre. Wheat is where you see the big difference with ammonia. It just about doubles the yields. I use about 80 pounds of ammonia per acre on wheat land," he reports.

Thousands of Texas farmers are using Phillips 66 Ammonia to help assure top net profits per acre. Actual field reports prove that Phillips 66 Ammonia (1) produces more high grade lint (2) increases maize yields (3) boosts wheat and small grain yields (4) stimulates forage production.

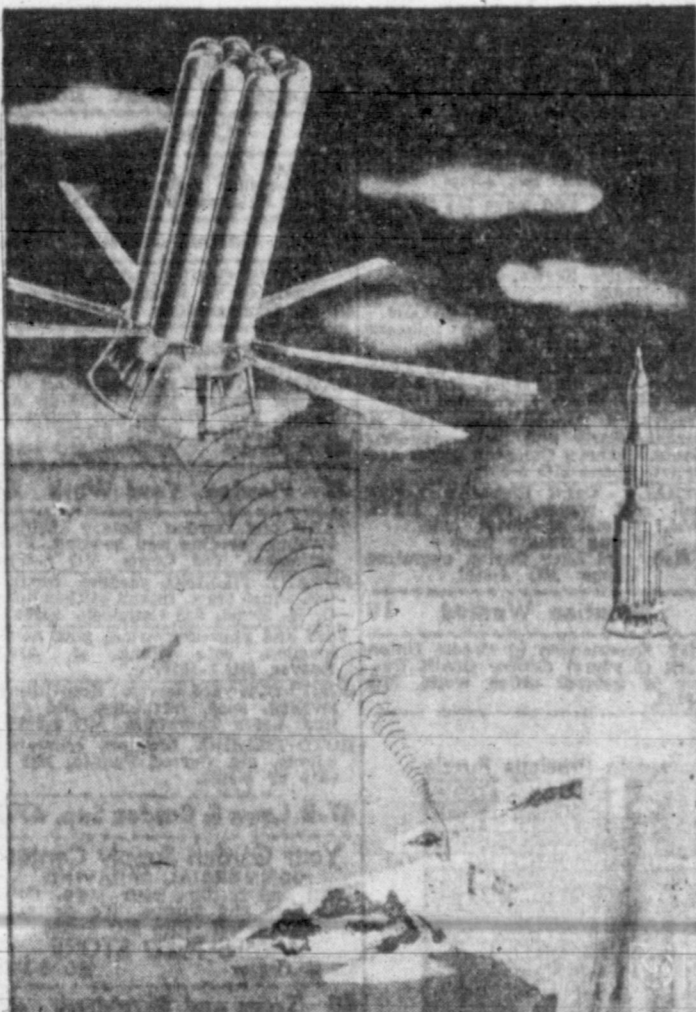

See your local Phillips 66 Ammonia Distributor now. You can depend on better ammonia service.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The election campaigns no doubt will have the effect of restraining market enthusiasm, but the usual summer rally should probably carry on and may even gain in breadth and vigor, according to Shearson, Hammill & Co.

In addition to retail issues, Shearson says, other groups which are in a position to perform well and provide candidates for the "new high" list include the electric utilities, some of the steel, certain construction stocks, the fiberglass makers and the better representatives from the service industries.

Thomson & McKinnon has studied the charts and has found "buoyant trend lines" in the plots of National Cash Register, one of the few under-exploited quality issues in the office equipment group and First Charter Financial, an aggressive West Coast savings and loan and insurance organization.

Bache & Co. notes that Continental Insurance told security analysts last week that income should reach $4 - $5 a share this year with $3.60 of this amount coming from investment income. Bache says the stock looks like a good buy for income and moderate appreciation particularly since a dividend hike might follow earnings of this magnitude, since a dividend hike might follow earnings of this magnitude.
