

Ingrid Bergman, Sir Laurence Olivier Capture TV Awards

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Two foreign stars, Ingrid Bergman and Sir Laurence Olivier, shared top acting awards today with Robert Stack and Jane Wyatt for the 1959 television season.

In Monday night's 12th annual TV academy show both Mrs. Bergman and Sir Laurence won Emmys in their American video debuts. Both have previously won Oscars in motion pictures.

Stack was honored as best actor in a series for his portrayal of federal agent Elliott Ness in "The Untouchables," while Miss Wyatt won top series honors for her wifely role in "Father Knows Best," which leaves the air this season.

The best dramatic series of the year award went to "Playhouse 90" which will not be seen next season.

In a year when one-shot "specials" were the rage, Miss Bergman's performance last Oct. 20 in "The Turn of the Screw" was a rated highest for a single performance by an actress.

Olivier was voted his award for "The Moon and Sixpence" which was beamed Oct. 30.

The 90-minute NBC colorcast mixed comedy and music with the awards programs which saw winners in 22 categories, and a special trustee award.

The program was hosted by Fred Astaire (who won nine Emmys last year) in Hollywood and Arthur Godfrey in New York.

One oddity of the balloting: Westerns, most popular programs in the rating systems, failed to gain a single award.

Comedy honors went to Art Carney, Jackie Gleason's ex-sidekick, for his uproarious antics in "V.I.P.," another special.

Harry Belafonte captured an award for "Tonight with Belafonte," the outstanding variety show of the year. Presented the statuette by Astaire, the Negro actor-singer said, "I'm sorry Fred." He and the dancer were competing in the same category.

Most outstanding variety show Emmy went to "The Fabulous Fifties," while Leonard Bernstein and the New York Philharmonic Orchestra won the award for best achievement in music.

CBS scored highest total in the awards race with 14 Emmys to its credit. NBC won five, and ABC, two.

Neither Miss Bergman nor Sir Laurence was present to accept their awards. Movie star Charlton Heston did the honors for Olivier while producer Hubbell Robinson accepted for Miss Bergman.

"I always laughed at people when they got things like the Emmy," Stack said. "But I'm not laughing now."

Said Miss Wyatt, "I have never been so astonished in my life. I've won three times before but this is the most exciting of all."

Commission OKs Charter Rewrite

The City Commission approved a grant of $900 to hire E. E. McAdams of Austin, a former executive of the Texas Municipal League to rewrite the Pampa city charter today. Commissioner James Crawford cast the only opposing vote.

The favoring vote came after a discussion of the matter by two members of the charter commission—Lynn Boyd and Arthur Teed.

Teed emphasized that the charter will be written by the charter commission which the people elect.

"What we need is an expert to draft the charter," he said. "We're not hiring someone to write it. The old charter has lasted for 30 years, but the people voted $70-262 to revise and modernize it. We want McAdams to do what I call 'leg work' which the commission doesn't have time to do."

The charter, to be rewritten by McAdams with the recommendations of the commission, will be approved by the commission and then put to a vote of the people, according to John Koonz, city manager.

"We hope to get a charter that will last another 30 years," said Teed. "If we do, this $900 will be well spent."

Boyd stated that the revision would eliminate much of the confusion presented by the building up of amendments in the old charter and would comply more with state law.

Last week, Frank Carter, a former member of the original charter commission, branded the hiring of McAdams as illegal. However, both Teed, an attorney, and city attorney Bob Gordon said the action was legal.

After the commission had already passed the motion, Mitchell Hill, a former member of the charter revision commission who dropped out of the commission, appeared and again complained that the action was illegal. He also protested the plan to vote-at-large for city commissioners. He asked for preservation of the wards.

Mayor Ed Myatt explained that the commissioner elected would still have to reside in his ward but would be elected by the whole town.

"I personally," said Myatt, "would like to vote on every person I have representing me here."

Boyd emphasized that the charter commission meetings are open to the public and urged everyone interested to attend. The next meeting will be held in the near future and will be announced publicly, he said.

In other actions, the commission set 10 a.m. July 12 for a public hearing on the paving program and delayed action on the parking situation on Mary Ellen Street between Browning and City Park until city attorney Gordon can view the situation.

They also agreed to pay the difference between a six and 12 inch water line and an eight and 10 inch sewer line to be put in the Northeast plat. Specifications now call only for the 6 and 8 inch lines, but according to Koonz the city wants to go ahead with the larger lines to prepare for future expansion.

Jap People Seek Riot Atonement

TOKYO (UPI)—The Japanese people want to make it clear to the world that the bloody riots of the past month were not anti-American nor anti-Eisenhower.

One of the biggest fears in Japan in the aftermath of the cancellation of President Eisenhower's visit is that the world may misinterpret what has really happened.

They have seen the headlines in newspapers from New York, London, Paris—and they insist these headlines "cannot" explain the whole picture.

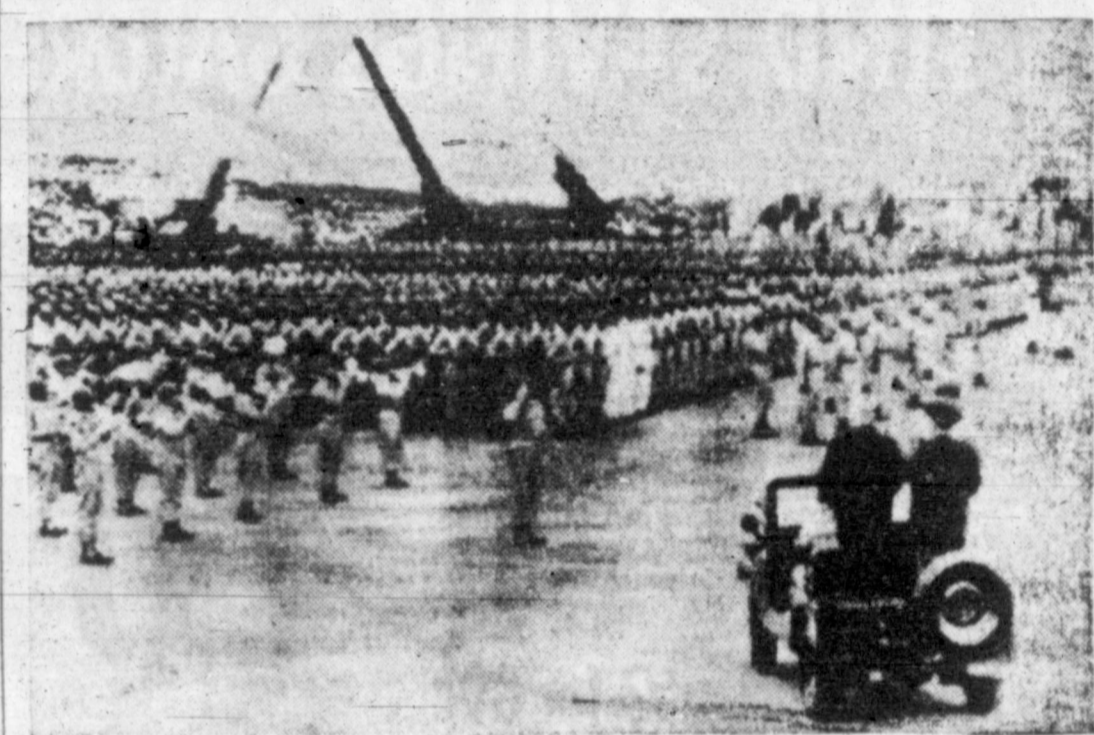

"They know Japan has received a black eye—because of the rough treatment accorded press secretary James Hargety upon his arrival here, and because Japan could not guarantee the President's safety for a two and a half day visit."

But this is the way one of Japan's largest national newspapers said it editorially.

"It is hoped that the people of the United States will understand the situation in Japan. A deep concern for worsening economic relations between the two nations exists with many Americans apparently taking recent developments as indicating anti-Americanism on the part of Japan."

"The nationwide demand for the withdrawal of Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi and the dissolution of the Diet (parliament) does not indicate anti-American feeling. If the American people believe the anti-Kishi feeling represents anti-American feeling, they grossly misunderstand the real situation in Japan."

Eisenhower's Tour Failure Called Red Propaganda Victory

REVIEWS TROOPS—With atomic-capable weapons in the background, President Eisenhower, standing in jeep, right, reviews the VI ROK Corps in Seoul, Korea. Standing beside Eisenhower in the jeep is Premier Huh Chung. This military position is within 15-miles of Communist lines.

Long Range Effect May See Reversal

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Secretary of State Christian Herter told Congress today that the Eisenhower Administration is abandoning personal high level diplomacy and returning to emphasis on "traditional channels and procedures of international contact."

HONOLULU (UPI)—U.S. State Department officials said today the Communist world appeared to have reaped a tremendous short term propaganda victory in President Eisenhower's aborted good-will tour of Asia but predicted it would boomerang against the Reds.

While the President put aside the problems of the world for a day of golfing and relaxation, State Department officials who accompanied him were busy assessing world reaction on the Japanese riots and cancellation of the President's scheduled visit to Tokyo.

The American officials stressed that while the Communist world may have won an immediate propaganda victory, they believe the long range effect would work against the Reds.

The U.S. officials were counting on a wave of revulsions in the non-Communist and neutral countries against the Communists and other extremists who joined them in the Japanese riots.

(Reports from Tokyo today emphasized the riots were Communist-inspired and did not represent the views of the majority of the Japanese people. Press reports in Tokyo also noted the riots were not anti-American or anti-Eisenhower, but were aimed against Premier Nobusuke Kishi and the U.S.-Japan defense treaty.)

About 200,000 Hawaii residents—more than 32 per cent of them of Japanese descent—turned out in force Monday to cheer the President on his arrival and along the 22-mile drive to the Kaneohe Marine Corps Air Station where the President is staying.

Eisenhower received a sincere and heartfelt Hawaiian aloha on his return from the four-nation Asia tour.

Sprinkled among the hundreds of American flags waved by greeters at Honolulu International airport was a scattering of Japanese rising sun banners, believed carried by Japanese nationalists seeking to atone for the slap at America prestige in their homeland.

Press Secretary James Hargety told reporters the President hoped to remain in Hawaii for rest and relaxation at least three or four days, but that he was prepared to return to Washington on a moment's notice if necessary.

Mother No-Billed On Killing Son

HOUSTON (UPI)—The Harris County grand jury no-billed Mrs. Laverne Payne, 37, Monday in connection with the killing of her 17-year-old son Larry.

Young Payne was stabbed to death with a butcher knife May 16 at his home in suburban Jacinto City. The youth's father, Leroy Payne, 47, told police later that his wife meant to kill him instead of Larry.

Payne said he had returned home late from a fishing trip and his wife, who had been out with friends, awakened him and started an argument. She grabbed a butcher knife, Payne said, and he shoved her out the door.

Larry went to the door to let her back inside and, mistaking Larry for her husband, Mrs. Payne plunged the knife into his chest.

Drag Racing May Be Cause Of Wreck

NEW IBERIA, La. (UPI)—Police said today "drag racing" may have caused the four-car crash, possibly the worst highway accident in Louisiana history, that killed eight persons and injured two others so badly one wasn't expected to survive.

It happened on a two-lane state highway just inside the city limits after dark Monday night. The four cars were so badly mangled that police at first thought five cars were involved. What they first thought was two cars turned out to be one car cut in half.

Killed were the Rev. Douglas Taylor, 28, a Pentecostal minister from Tupelo, Miss.; George Babineaux, 17; Alvin Bodin, 18; and Bastiano LaPorte, all of New Iberia, and four members of a Patoutville, La., Negro family, Aron Williams Sr., and his three sons, Lloyd, 28, Roger, 26, and Aaron Jr., 17.

Patrick Henry, a teen-ager from Jeanerette, La., and Archie Alexander, 24, Negro, New Iberia were injured. Henry wasn't expected to live.

State police headquarters in Baton Rouge said it is believed to be the worst highway crash in the state's history. Investigating officers weren't sure what caused the wreck. They couldn't even determine which way the cars were traveling. There were no witnesses.

"It was like a junk pile in the middle of the highway," one policeman said. The road was straight.

"There was blood and bodies all over the place," said Police Sgt. Harry Ransomnet, one of the first to arrive at the scene. "Three of the cars were overturned, and all of them were demolished."

Ransomnet theorized the teenagers were "drag racing" side-by-side down the highway, and crashed head-on into the cars containing the Negro family and Rev. Taylor, one of which may have been trying to pass the other at the time.

"But we'll probably never know for sure until we talk to the two survivors," he said.

Before Alexander went on the operating table at New Iberia General Hospital, he told police he remembered "a red car passed us, and then hit us."

Leftists Unite To Ruin Treaty

TOKYO (UPI)—Japanese leftists today mobilized for a 24-hour strike of mobs and mob violence in a climactic attempt to derail the U.S.-Japan security treaty.

The massive protest was preceded late this afternoon by a march on parliament by 20,000 students who turned out despite heavy rain. The marchers were peaceful and quickly dispersed to await the main demonstration.

Zero hour was midnight when the giant Shogyo Labor Confederation ordered its claimed membership of 8,800,000 workers on a seven-hour nationwide strike.

Fanatic leaders of the Zengakuren Students' Federation supported the strike call by assigning 20,000 members to occupy principal railroad stations and mustering twice that many for an attack on the Diet (parliament) later in the day.

Tokyo's 25,600 man police force said it would use "maximum force" to preserve the law. Numerous clashes were feared.

Observers sensed an air of desperation in the leftist activity. The controversial treaty already was in the last formal stages of acceptance on the Japanese side.

The cabinet of Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi was expected to pass on the document preparatory to its signing by Emperor Hirohito before the week is out.

It was to have taken the action in a meeting today but reportedly decided to wait until the U.S. Senate ratified the treaty.

Police were alerted to violence as bad or worse than the mob attacks on parliament that led to the cancellation of President Eisenhower's visit here.

Primary targets of the strikers were railroads and transportation facilities throughout the nation. About 60,000 stores in 24 prefectures also planned to close.

Spring Bequeaths Harsh Memories

By United Press International

—One of the worst springs in memory rode a flurry of tornadoes and flash floods into the record books today.

The season, which started with record-breaking March blizzards and April floods, bowed out almost as violently Monday.

Tornadoes struck portions of Colorado and Nebraska and heavy rain hit the plains states and Florida.

A twister caused $50,000 damage at Peets, Colo., when it snapped off 60-foot light poles, smashed buildings and blew out windows.

Sidon, Neb., was also struck by a twister which uprooted trees but did little other damage. No injuries were reported at either city.

Thunderstorms drenched the plains with up to five inches of rain, touching off dozens of flash floods in Nebraska. Many persons fled their homes and at least one died.

A Stanton, Neb., farmer, Donald Hendricks, 25, was presumed drowned in a bridge washout. His wrecked car was found in a creek bed and police said warning lights on the washout apparently blew away.

At the Omaha, Neb., suburb of Ralston, an Army helicopter picked up a young housewife.

whose home was cut off by a flooding creek and flew her to Offutt Air Force base hospital, where she gave birth to a son a half hour after landing.

Three-quarter inch hail fell at Imperial, Neb., during a thunderstorm, and winds reaching 74 miles an hour battered Rapid City, S. D. Sixty-mile-an-hour winds were measured in Wyoming.

The rain looked like the beginning of spring in the plains states, with dozens of highways blocked off by water and swollen creeks and rivers pouring into stores and houses.

The Elkhorn River which had sent families scattering from their homes earlier this year in one of Nebraska's worst floods, was expected to run at bankful or above through tonight.

Heavy rain drenched Florida during the night. Tampa had 2.22 inches in a six-hour period. It was the second straight day of rain in the southeast.

DARING DEED

LANSING, Eng. (UPI)—Charles Hughes, 37, told a local court Monday how his neighbor, Laurence Hiscox, 66, got the nickname "Daredevil Dan."

"I filled a bucket with water and put it on the lawn and a few minutes later, he dared me — so I threw it over him."

Dairy Month Gets Salute

By United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A politically cautious election-year tax bill shaped up in the Democratic Congress today pretty much along lines acceptable to President Eisenhower.

The revenue measure approved unanimously by the Senate $40,000,000,000 in the main extend present War excise levies on such items as liquor, cigarettes and new automobiles.

Because of differences, it goes to a conference of House and Senate tax writers where give-and-take bargaining but no serious disputes are expected.

The $4,500,000,000 tax bill was brought in line with administration recommendations when the Senate refused to adopt a move by its finance committee to cut out a 10 per cent federal tax on local telephone calls, telegrams and travel. The House already has agreed to continue the taxes.

But the Senate adopted two controversial amendments to the House version which would wipe out some so-called "swindle sheet" business deductions and the present tax credit on dividends.

Accomplishments of America's dairy industry were cited by a Canadian business executive this week in a salute to National Dairy Month, being observed throughout June.

Erbin L. Crowell, general manager of the Canadian Production Credit Association, paid tribute to the industry for its contributions to the nation's economy and health.

"During 1959, cash income from milk products in Texas alone amounted to more than $125,000,000," Crowell said. "Only cotton, cattle and grain sorghums outranked milk products in this category."

In addition, the dairy industry maintained a high level of quality in its products, a major factor in sustaining the excellent health enjoyed by the people of Texas and the nation," he declared.

"The Canadian Production Credit Association is proud to be associated with the dairy industry in this area," Crowell stated. In its last fiscal year, the association provided a total of $84,614 in loans to area dairymen, he explained.

Congress Readies Cautious Election Year Tax Measure

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A politically cautious election-year tax bill shaped up in the Democratic Congress today pretty much along lines acceptable to President Eisenhower.

But the Senate adopted two controversial amendments to the House version which would wipe out some so-called "swindle sheet" business deductions and the present tax credit on dividends.

These are expected to be whittled down by the conferees.

Another feature of the bill would be a temporary national debt ceiling of 292 billion dollars for the next year. The corporation tax rate would be continued for another 12 months after June 30.

The crackdown on business expense deductions was adopted by a Senate roll call vote of 45-39.

Other Senate changes designed to raise new cash were elimination of the special tax credit on dividend income and a tightening of the minerals depletion allowance.

Sen. Joseph S. Clark (D-Pa.) offered the business expense amendment. He said it would rule out "swindle sheets" on business entertainment expenses, gifts exceeding $10 and club dues. He said it would allow deductions only for "food and liquor."

"You can feel 'em and drink 'em, wine 'em and dine 'em, but anything else is out of order," he said.

His amendment would produce 250 million dollars a year in addition federal revenues, Clark said.

The amendment ending the 4 per cent tax credit on dividend income was estimated to be worth 350-million dollars a year in added revenue.

The excise taxes on phone calls, telegrams and travel yield another 752 million dollars annually.

Clark said that under his amendment a businessman could not take clients "to the Stork Club, to the Johanson fight or out on a yacht" and claim the expense is tax deductible.

Heat Slated For 1st Day Of Summer

By United Press International

Summer arrived in Texas today on the heels of a hot spell that has shattered records across the state.

The U.S. Weather Bureau said the new season hit Texas at 3:43 a.m. today. It came about a week after some of the hottest weather in history burned Texas.

And the official start of summer was expected to be hot in all sections of Texas, ranging from the 90s in East and North Central Texas to more than 100 in the rest of the state. Skies were to be clear to partly cloudy.

'There She Is,' Father Claims; 'I Strangled Her With My Hands'

DALLAS (UPI)—Police arrived too late.

Frank Hooks Humphrey Jr., 35, a decorated Marine Corps veteran of two wars, opened the door for them, and politely ushered them inside. The body of his 21-month-old daughter, Teena Cheri, was stretched out on a couch.

"There she is," he said. "I strangled her with my own hands."

Shortly before police raced to the house late Monday night, Humphrey telephoned his 18-year-old wife, MayVonne, at her parents' home. She had left him about 10 days earlier, and refused to return or even to see him.

"If you don't come back, I'll kill Teena," Humphrey told his wife.

Mrs. Humphrey's mother called police and told them of the threat. Humphrey told police he had been in a mental hospital in 1955.

He discussed the killing calmly, and said he was sorry he had to kill the little girl. He was described as a "devoted father."

"They'll say I'm crazy, but I'm not," he said. "They'll take my life for this one I've taken."

Humphrey's father, Frank H. Humphrey Sr., said his son suffered a head wound during action in Korea and was discharged from the Marine Corps after a long stay at a naval hospital in Oakland, Calif.

"This whole thing began when his wife walked out on him and the child," the elder Humphrey said. "When she left him, my son quit his job as truck driver for the Texas Delivery Service and has been getting more upset every day."

He said his son came to visit him Monday afternoon, and seemed very disturbed.

"I thought I had calmed him down when he left, but I never dreamed this would happen," the father said.

Mutual Funds Due Big Growth Spurt

By ELMER C. WALZER
UPI FINANCIAL EDITOR

NEW YORK (UPI) — By 1980, mutual funds could easily be a $100 billion business, says Arthur Wiesenberger, senior partner of the New York Stock Exchange firm that bears his name.

To attain such growth, he points out, would involve a continuing compounded annual growth rate of 10 per cent, against a 21 per cent rate during the past five years.

Mutual funds at the end of 1959 had aggregate assets of $15,817,862,000 against $447,959,000 in 1949, a rise of 3,431 per cent in the past 10 years.

Wiesenberger brings out these observations in the 20th anniversary edition of "Investment Companies — 1960 Edition." The book is regarded as the "Bible" of the investment company industry.

Wiesenberger admits that a generous portion of the past growth of mutual funds has been due to the long bull market in common stocks, and he hastens to add that "it cannot be expected that the next two decades will duplicate the 400 per cent advance in the Low-John industrial average of the past 20 years, which started at the low level of 131 and reached 879 at the 1959 year-end.

There will doubtless be periods of declining prices when mutual fund asset growth will be slowed or temporarily reversed.

"But one lesson of the fairly recent past has been that times of falling stock prices tend to attract the 'disillusioned' to mutual fund ownership — the many investors who had previously believed they could obtain better results through their own efforts."

If the mutual fund total should rise from the current $16 billion to $100 billion it would represent a spurt of 6.150 per cent.

And, if the valuation of listed stocks rose in proportion — which no one anticipates — it would reach the staggering total of 18 1/2 trillion dollars or 62 1/2 times the current figure of around $300 billion.

Mutual funds are what the market calls open-end investment companies. An investment company sells its stock to the public and invests the proceeds in stocks or bonds or both. If it has a fixed number of shares, it is called a closed-end company. These usually are traded on regular markets.

Open-end investment companies sell their stock steadily and stand ready to redeem it at the going value of their portfolio.

Closed-end companies have grown by 177 per cent over the past 20 years and now aggregate $1,697,463,000 in assets.

Both the types of investment companies maintain close supervision over their portfolios. They buy and sell stocks after careful research.

Over the years a group of favorite issues stands out. At the end of 1959, there were 10 favorites in which investment companies held $2 billion, or nine per cent of their total assets.

The favorite ten in the order of their demand were International Business Machines, U. S. Steel, Texaco, Du Pont, Goodyear, International Paper, General Electric, Standard Oil (N.J.), General Motors, and Ford.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa. (UPI) — The body of newly elected Congressman Douglas H. Elliott (R-Pa.) was found under an automobile near the entrance to a state park Sunday, an apparent suicide victim.

Elliott, 39, elected less than two months ago to fill the unexpired term of the late Rep. Richard M. Simpson, died of carbon monoxide poisoning, according to Dr. John P. Manges, Franklin County coroner.

State police said Elliott's face was covered by a deer skin which formed an enclosure connected to the auto's exhaust pipe. No note was found.

The body was discovered at about 5 p.m. by Elmer-Riley, Upper Strasburg, Pa., who was fishing in the area near Bear Valley State Park, about 15 miles from here. The coroner said Elliott died some time before 3 a.m. Sunday.

Even Bit Players Are Big Stars

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Stop the movie projector, Charlie, this is the biggest cast since they printed the telephone book!

There had to be a millennium, and this is it — a little picture titled "Pepe."

It hasn't much to offer in the way of big boxoffice names as the stars, but wait until you see the supporting cast. Sharing stellar roles are Mexican comedian Cantinflas, American hooper Dan Diley and blonde and buxom Shirley Jones.

Big deal! So all right, but look at who fills out the bill (a partial list):

Bing Crosby, Maurice Chevalier, Bobby Darin, Sammy Davis Jr., Jimmy Durante, Zsa Zsa Gabor, Judy Garland (voice only), Greer Garson, Ernie Kovacs, Peter Lawford, Janet Leigh, Jack Lemmon, Kim Novak, Donna Reed, Debbie Reynolds, Edward G. Robinson, Cesar Romero, Frank Sinatra and Francisco Regueras. Francisco Regueras? Well, never mind.

All these bit players and scores of others — 20 in all — will play themselves, and for peanuts.

Crosby, for instance, collected only one day's pay — minimum scale. His take-home envelope contained all of $77.

Who is the genius who can get Crosby, Sinatra and the rest to work for next to nothing in a picture starring a Mexican comedian, an American hooper and a buxom blonde?

Producer-director George Sidney, that's who.

"A picture like this has never been made," Sidney said modestly.

Chamber Hears Activity Reports

The Chamber of Commerce and the Board of City Development held their regular monthly board of directors meeting yesterday at the Pampa Hotel.

The program consisted of various reports on activities in the past 30 days.

Cameron Marsh reported on the recent membership roundup at which time 122 new members were added to the Chamber.

Frank D. Smith announced that 15,000 copies of the Daily News including the special Vacation Value Days tabloid will be mailed to the Pampa trading area. Vacation Value Days will be Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Judge Frees Rancher On Murder Rap

SAN ANTONIO (UPI) — Judge John Onion Jr. freed rancher Frank C. Davis of a murder charge Monday because it did not state that Davis wore his shoes when he allegedly stomped James I. Drought to death.

Drought, 49, was fatally beaten after his car rammed into the rear of Davis' car at a traffic light last winter. Police said Drought fled from the scene of the accident and Davis and another motorist chased him down.

In the ensuing fight, Drought's skull was fractured. He died the next day.

Davis, 54, was indicted April 27, on charges of murder with malice, aggravated assault and committing a felony while engaged in commission of a misdemeanor.

Davis is completely free now, but Dist. Atty. Charles Lueck Jr. said he would resubmit the case to the Bexar County's July grand jury.

In freeing Davis, Onion ruled that all three charges were faulty because:

- The murder charge did not say he was wearing his shoes.
- None of the charges went into sufficient detail about how Davis allegedly beat Drought's head against the pavement.
- Several members of the grand jury which returned the indictments against Davis testified Monday they did not vote on the two lesser charges.

Hal Keyser Rites Set Wednesday

Funeral services for Hal Keyser will be held 2:30 tomorrow in Hobart Street Baptist Church with the Rev. John Dyer, pastor, officiating. Masonic graveside rites will be held in Fairview Cemetery.

Mr. Keyser died 6 p.m. yesterday in the home of a son, Mage Keyser, 413 N. Sumner.

Mr. Keyser, born July 4, 1887 in South Norwalk, Conn., was a retired cable-tool drifter. He was a member of the Old Well Lodge 108 AFAAM in East Norwalk, Conn.

Survivors include three sons, Mage and Tom, both of Pampa, Douglas of Fort Sill, Okla., one brother, F. H. Keyser of South Norwalk, and four grandchildren.

Interment will be in Fairview beside his wife who died May 15, 1936.

Ronald Bowshier Service Today

Funeral services for Ronald Lee Bowshier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roger B. Bowshier, were to have been held this afternoon at 2 p.m. in Calvary Baptist Church with the Rev. Ennis Hill, pastor, officiating.

The four-year-old child, born Mar. 11, 1936, in Katis, Ky. died 12:45 yesterday in Highland General Hospital from leukemia.

In addition to the parents, he is survived by two sisters, Shavonne Lee, Cassandra Lee, one brother, Roger Allen, all of Pampa; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Williams of Tallahassee, Fla.; Mrs. Robert Bowshier of Springfield, Ohio.

The body will be taken to Springfield, Ohio for interment, according to Duengel Carmichael Funeral Home.

Nixon Asks Reform Of Obsolete Taxes

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon declared today that a new administration must give top priority to reform of "obsolete and jerry-built" federal tax laws but after national defense needs have been met.

Nixon made the statement in a speech prepared for delivery at the 40th anniversary convention of the U.S. Junior Chamber of Commerce. His speech summarized views on economic growth which he has presented to the Platform Committee for next month's Republican National Convention.

The vice president stressed the theme that "the primary source of progress in America has been and will continue to be the dynamic, creative productivity of private rather than government enterprise."

Deriding critics of administration economic policies as participants in a "fashionable political parlor game" which he labeled "growthmanship," Nixon bluntly denied the boast of Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev that the Russian economy will catch and pass the U.S. economy in five to 10 years.

"By any projection that can be applied, there is no possibility that the Soviet economy will overtake our own at any time in this century," the vice president declared.

He said the main way by which the government can foster economic growth is by helping private enterprise to operate at maximum levels. The government, he said, should avoid "interference" with decision made in private enterprise and should fight inflation with a sound fiscal policy.

"Government must act vigorously against those abuses of economic power by management or labor which restrict competition or put roadblocks in the way of increased efficiency and productivity," he said.

"Our tax structure must be designed to stimulate rather than frustrate new and creative enterprise. Reform of the obsolete and jerry-built features of our federal tax system must be a first order of business for a new administration once we have provided adequately for our needs in the national security area," he said.

Grace Kelly's Father Dies

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — John B. Kelly Sr., 70, father of Princess Grace of Monaco, who rose from an apprentice bricklayer to millionaire contractor and a leader in civic, business and sports circles, died of cancer Monday at his home here.

Dr. James A. Lehman, said the death of the former Olympic sculling champion came sooner than anticipated.

Kelly, who built one of the nation's largest brickwork contracting empires, underwent abdominal surgery last month in Womans' Medical College Hospital and returned home to recuperate.

Princess Grace, Hollywood movie actress before her storybook marriage to Prince Ranier of Monaco, recently visited her father.

Princess Grace was informed of her father's death by telephone in Monaco. She and the Prince were expected to arrive in the United States today, to attend the funeral. With Kelly in his final hours, were his wife, the former Margaret Major, his only son, John J. (Jack), who followed in his father's footsteps as an international champion oarsman; and two daughters, Mrs. Margaret Davis and Mrs. Lizanne Levine.

Henry W. Lawley Rites Tomorrow

Funeral services for Henry W. Lawley will be held 10 a.m. tomorrow in Duengel Carmichael Funeral Chapel with Jay Chennell, minister of Harvesters-Mary Ellen Church of Christ, officiating.

Mr. Lawley died 4 a.m. yesterday in Thurman Rest Home, Amarillo.

Interment will be in Memory Gardens with grandsons of the deceased as pallbearers.

CAB Recommends New Southern Air Routes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Civil Aeronautics Board examiner Monday recommended that several airlines be granted new routes across the southern United States, including a Miami-Los Angeles route for National Air Lines.

Also recommended were a Dallas-Fort Worth route to San Francisco via Los Angeles for American Airlines, a Houston-Los Angeles route for Continental, a Fort Worth-Miami route for Braniff, and a West Coast route for Delta from the southeast.

The recommendations were made by hearing examiner Edward T. Stodola in a 226-page report on the need for additional southern transcontinental service.

He also said Eastern Airlines should be granted a route from Atlanta to San Antonio via Birmingham, Ala., Jackson, Miss., Shreveport, La., Dallas, and Fort Worth.

Stodola recommended the following new routes and intermediate points:

American Airlines: Dallas-Fort Worth to San Francisco — Oakland via Midland-Oesaa and El Paso, Tex., Douglas, Tucson, and Phoenix, Ariz., San Diego, Calif., and Los Angeles-Long Beach.

Braniff: Fort Worth to Miami-Fort Lauderdale via Dallas, Houston, New Orleans, Tampa, Fla., and St. Petersburg-Clearwater, Fla.

Continental: Houston to Los Angeles-Long Beach via San Antonio, El Paso, and San Diego.

Delta: Fort Worth to Los Angeles and Long Beach via Lubbock, Tex., Albuquerque, N.M., Tucson, Phoenix, and San Diego; and Fort Worth to San Francisco via Lubbock, Albuquerque and Las Vegas, Nev.

HST Claims Demo Choice Still Open

NEW YORK (UPI) — Former President Harry S. Truman said today the Democratic National Convention in Los Angeles next month "is still open."

Truman said no one presidential candidate has the nomination sewn up and he saw no sign of a handwagon in the making for Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.).

Talking to reporters during his morning walk, Truman declined to discuss current Democratic platform hearings being held in New York.

"I'll do my platform work at the convention," he said.

Truman, who is backing Sen. Stuart W. Symington (D-Mo.) for the Democratic presidential nomination, expressed surprise when told that Symington would speak at a luncheon meeting in New York today. When asked if he would attend the luncheon Truman said, "I wasn't invited."

MATURE PARENT

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE
The year that I was 22, I took a summer job with a small organization called The League Against Capital Punishment.

One night I was working late when my office door burst open and a young man came in. He was disheveled and deathly pale. "Before I could speak, he said, 'I'm not going to hurt you. I want to give you this $50. I want to join this thing...'"

He was so drunk that it took me some time to learn that he was a new reporter on a prison town newspaper and had covered his first electrocution that morning.

"I'm an ex-Marine," he said, "but I couldn't take it."

Today we throw a switch instead of lighting the faggots around the stake. So we only get a small puff of smoke when we burn a man to death. But I can still smell the odor.

"The people who want this kind of thing ought to be made to see it."

That executing the death penalty has disturbing effects upon other prisoners, prison staffs, judges, lawyers and everyone involved with it was asserted at the recent annual meeting of the American Psychiatric Assn. at Atlantic City.

That this display of public defiance of the Sixth Commandment has disturbing effects upon children and young people is also to be asserted.

At this time of increasing juvenile violence, the spectacle of adults joining together to destroy human life in the name of Justice makes our demand for respect for human life absurd.

For the fact of killing remains killing whether it is done by the vengefulness of respectable law that governs the big community or by the vengefulness of the unrespectable law that governs the small community: the juvenile gang.

And I'm sick of trying to make sense of the difference to young people appalled by the Caryl Chessman affair.

I resent capital punishment. As an American parent, I fiercely reject being involved in an act of vicarious murder. I stand with Dr. Karl Menninger who told his fellow psychiatrists:

"We human beings are just not qualified to decide when another human being is so bad that we have the right to kill him."

National Goodwill Worker Award Goes To Brave Nurse Who Bests Paralysis

By JERRY BENNETT
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Sheer will power enabled Marjorie Schulz to overcome the terribly crippling effects of multiple sclerosis and win this year's National Goodwill Worker Award.

Now an assistant public relations director for the Ohio Valley Goodwill Industries Rehabilitation Center in Cincinnati, the former nurse received the award here for the most progress in overcoming a handicap.

Goodwill Industries is a nationwide, non profit organization that provides treatment, training and employment for handicapped persons.

In 1945 Miss Schulz was the night supervisor at Cincinnati's Deaconess Hospital. She had been a registered nurse for two years and was looking forward to a promising career.

That's when the dizzy spells started. She began having trouble standing and noticed a gradual loss of co-ordination. Doctors diagnosed the trouble as a possible brain tumor.

Mrs. Schulz underwent two exploratory brain operations before multiple sclerosis was diagnosed. Later her legs became paralyzed, and she started to lose the use of her arms and hands.

Miss Schulz credits her parents with giving her the courage she needed to face the early days of the disease.

She explains: "They didn't openly sympathize with me. Whenever I got discouraged they would keep insisting that I could overcome it."

"Also I had been brought up to go to church. I continued my faith. I told myself that I couldn't give in. That I had to keep trying."

Miss Schulz diligently practiced physical therapy exercises. After awhile she started to regain movement in her hands and arms.

In 1946 a Goodwill representative offered her a job as an addressograph operator. She took it and also enrolled in a secretarial training course. In 1948 she became personal secretary to the center's boss.

At this time, Miss Schulz could move about only in a wheel chair.

She had to shift herself from it to the chair behind her desk. Then, one day it happened.

The floor in the office slanted. The empty wheel chair rolled away from the desk to the other side of the room.

Miss Schulz was alone. Nobody was within hailing distance.

Slowly she pushed herself to her feet. Leaning against the wall with one hand, she haltingly took a step.

Then she took another — and another — until she finally reached the wheel chair.

It was the first time she had walked in almost three years.

Walking without help requires too much exertion for Miss Schulz to do it regularly. Most of the time she still relies on the wheel chair.

But finding out that day that she could fend for herself in an emergency boosted her spirits and further strengthened her determination to keep trying.

In 1958 she was promoted to her present job.

Miss Schulz has not confined her activities entirely to Goodwill Industries. She is one of two founders of the Greater Cincinnati Multiple Sclerosis Chapter and a member of the board of directors. She is also an avid baseball fan.

Lately Miss Schulz has received several job offers from private firms. She has turned them down although each one would have meant a higher salary.

Her reason is that she feels helping the handicapped is the most important and satisfying job imaginable.

RUTH MILLETT

Here is a postscript to a recent column on the importance of a woman's holding on to some of her girlishness instead of becoming all matron as soon as she settles down to being a wife and mother.

The P.S. is for husbands. You can help your wife retain some of the girlish qualities that first endeared her to you if —

You never stop paying her compliments—the kind that show you still notice when she is looking especially pretty, when she is wearing a new dress, when she changes her hair style and so on.

You never stop flirting with her. You find her femininity appealing and amusing, instead of being irritated because she doesn't think like a man or react to situations in the same way that you do.

You tease her, good-naturedly, especially when you feel she is getting too set in her ways or taking things too seriously.

You discourage her from wearing somber colors, dressing too old for her years, or being too practical in her choice of clothes.

You build her up to others instead of finding fault with her.

You buy gifts that flatter her as a woman—such things as perfume, flowers, jewelry, things a little less practical and amnye a little more extravagant than she would buy for herself.

You encourage her to share your enthusiasms for such things as fishing, golf, hunting—the things that make you feel young and carefree.

When you take her out for a special evening you make it seem like a date.

You remember anniversaries, birthdays and other special dates without having to be reminded.

You let her know she is loved, admired, and that you think you are a lucky man to have her for a wife.

Any man who will do these things for his wife is sure to have a wife who stays part "girl" as long as she lives.

Parish Women Plan Summer Workshop Meet

The women of St. Vincent de Paul's parish are invited to summer workshops of the Parish Council of Catholic Women, to be held Wednesday 8 p.m., in school cafeteria, as announced by Mrs. Carl Williams, chairman of the Organization and Development committee.

The summer workshops are for the purpose to interest and educate, as well as to develop an atmosphere of sociability among parish women. Mrs. Williams said.

A general briefing and introduction will begin the program, followed by grouping of various committees. Chairmen then will present pertinent "buzz" questions, followed by discussion by the different groups.

"There are eleven committees, which are designed to cover all the different phases of parish work," president of Parish Council, Mrs. Richard Falkenstein said. "These are: Spiritual Development, chairmanned by Mrs. Fred Neslage; Contraternity of Christian Doctrine, Mrs. R. M. Barrett; Catholic Charities, Mrs. Olin Aemlsigler; Immigration, Mrs. Mike Roche; Foreign Relief, Mrs. Fred Ammeter; Rural Life, Mrs. E. M. Urbanczyk; Libraries and Literature, Mrs. Paul Keim; Legislature, Mrs. A. J. Carubbi; Order of Maritons, Mrs. O. Rhy Hudson, and Organization and Development, Mrs. Williams.

Puzzling Juvenile Rheumatoid Arthritis Strikes Young Children Across Nation

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) — In 30,000 homes across the nation there are children suffering from a puzzling chronic illness — juvenile rheumatoid arthritis.

It sets the joints on fire and fires the body with fever. Medical problems aside, the parents of these children face a complicated challenge in the child-raising arena.

The children are seemingly well one day—and acutely ill the next. Many of them, at various stages, require long periods of hospitalization.

The problem of the parents is this: How do you arrange things—including your attitude—to guarantee that the chronically ill child will grow up to be a pleasant young lady or man instead of a pampered, spoiled invalid?

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Morrow of Rochester, N.Y., are unwilling experts on the subject. Eileen Morrow, 6, has been sick with rheumatoid arthritis since her third birthday.

The Morrows have seven other children, ranging in age from 4 months to 11 years.

When Eileen first became ill the Morrows were through a period of high hopes that she would get well fast. They have learned that this is a game of "blind man's bluff" that only makes the situation worse.

The Morrows have hit upon a four-point program to help Eileen and the family. They recommend that other parents with chronically ill children consider the points and perhaps adopt them in the handling of a like problem.

First, the Morrows believe in facing facts. They recognize the fact that Eileen is quite ill—even though she sometimes seems quite well.

Next, the Morrows believe in treating Eileen in just the way other children are treated in their household.

The third point in the Morrow program: See that Eileen gets proper medical care including every break that modern science can muster to help her live with her problem.

And the fourth point: Encourage those outside the family to treat Eileen as a normal child.

Eileen, blonde and blue-eyed, just returned from her latest hospitalization. This one was at the National Foundation's arthritis clinical study center in Strong Memorial Hospital, Rochester.

She was no stranger to her brothers and sisters when she returned from the center. She was no special character expecting to be waited on and pampered.

This is because the Morrows, during the six months' hospitalization, tried to keep Eileen in place as a working member of the family. It sounds like a magic achievement—considering that Eileen left the hospital only for several weekend visits home.

DEAR ABBY....

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have been dating a man for well over a year. I admire him immensely and enjoy his companionship, but only when we are in public or with friends.

This may sound ridiculous, as we are not in our teens. We are both in our middle forties, each previously married.

I am certainly not "cold" but, Abby, could you stand to be kissed and hugged and told the same endearing things every time you are alone, be it ten minutes or ten hours?

ANNNOYED

DEAR ANNOYED: I could if I loved the man. And so could you.

DEAR ABBY: "Dazed parents" wrote to you and asked, "What can we do about this mess?" Wasn't it a little late?

If people were going to buy a car, they would look over dozens of makes and ask questions and make demands. But when their daughter decides to take a husband, she walks into a USO Club and from hundreds of strangers she picks one she thinks will do.

Who he is, where he comes from, what his religion and background are means very little. I know what I'm talking about because I have worked in USO's for years. I also know that for every scoundrel there are hundreds of decent young men. But if parents would investigate the boys their daughters go with BEFORE they start going with them, there would be fewer scoundrels making progress.

MRS. E.M.

DEAR ABBY: I have never done things behind my husband's back so I don't know what made me do it this time, but here's my problem: My husband has a large family, the visiting kind. They are very noisy and make me nervous. One of my husband's sisters (she lives in town) called and told me another sister (this one is a real cat) and her husband planned on coming to stay with me for two weeks. So I sat down and wrote this sister a letter telling her not to plan on staying with me because I am too nervous to do all the things that go with being a good hostess. Was that so terrible?

My husband doesn't know I wrote her. I still don't want them, no matter what. I need your help. How should I handle it from now on?

TOO NERVOUS FOR COMPANY

DEAR NERVOUS: The next sound you hear will probably come from your husband's side of the family, so all you have to do now is sit back and wait for the explosion! Get your husband in a good mood and tell him about the letter. You can't be blamed for trying to protect yourself, but there are many ways to skin (and dodge) a cat. If you used diplomacy, you're safe. If you let her have it with both barrels, you've undoubtedly alienated the whole clan.

CONFIDENTIAL TO CAROLE: Woman does not chase man—neither does mousetrap chase mouse.

"What's your problem?" Write to Abby in care of this paper. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Abby's best-selling book, "Dear Teen-Ager", is on sale at all bookstores.

For comfort is especially important during summer. Footlets with foam rubber insoles and heel give a "walking on air" feeling at the beach or around the house. Always wash after wearing, just like stockings, so they'll be fresh each day.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Movie stars and TV personalities will add a touch of glamour to the Democratic Convention here next month, but celebrities will stick to entertaining and leaving the politicking to the professionals. Despite their fat bank accounts, mansions and swimming pools, the main body of film folk are Democrats—especially the Clan. Consisting of Frank Sinatra, Shirley MacLaine, Peter Lawford, Dean Martin, Sammy Davis Jr., Tony Curtis and Janet Leigh—among others—the Clan is out in force for Senator John Kennedy (Mass.). Principal reason — Clan member Lawford is Senator John's brother-in-law. Many a top star, both Republican and Democrat, are anxious to find seats for the convention where, for the first time, they will be spectators while starring roles are played by party leaders. Opening social whirl was last week's luncheon for members of the Women's Delegation Committee—with Shirley MacLaine playing hostess. "Everyone should be vitally interested in the conventions," says Shirley. "I'm a Democrat mostly because the party believes in the same things I believe in." While the stars do little politicking, Robert Ryan, Jan Sterling and Jessica Tandy have been actively working to draft Adlai Stevenson. Some of them will be on hand July 10 for a series of receptions at the Beverly Hilton Hotel to welcome the Vips at $100-a-plate dinners. Scheduled to entertain the dignitaries are Tony Curtis, Sinatra, Dean Martin, Judy Garland and Sammy Davis. Providing music for the delegates during the course of convention parties will be Johnny Green, Nelson Riddle and Freddie Martin. The opening session of the convention will feature a star-studded rendition of the National Anthem. Scheduled to sing are Vanessa Brown, Nat King Cole, G. G. Grant, Charlton Heston, George Jessel, Gene Kelly, Myrna Loy, Mercedes McCambridge, Edward G. Robinson, Barry Sullivan, Vincent Price, and as many Clan members as are in town. On the other side of the political fence are John Wayne, Ward Bond, Irene Dunne and George Murphy who are avowed Republicans and campaign vigorously during conventions.

New African State In Being

DAKAR, Senegal (UPI) — The Mali Federation of West Africa was born today, bestowing independence on six million more Africans. At one minute after midnight the roar of cannon proclaimed the union of the two former French colonies of Sudan and Senegal. It marked the beginning of the evolution of the French empire into a grouping of free nations. The Mali Federation is the first African member of the French community of nations to achieve full independence. This fall the federation will apply for full membership in the United Nations General Assembly and France will be its sponsor.

Wall Street In Review

NEW YORK (UPI) — The current year will show continued growth, although not quite duplicating the record high pace of business during the first half of 1959, according to the Fitch survey's semi-annual forecast. The administration seems likely to do all it can to maintain "this prosperous state of affairs," Fitch says, while stock prices should continue to show vigor despite some periods of profit-taking. In the postwar period, the advisory service notes, recoveries in the business cycle have usually lasted about three years "and that is why present recovery and prosperous business conditions appear safe until at least the middle of 1961 when it would then be a little over three years old." Two stocks for action, according to Standard & Poor's, are American Airlines and Delta Air Lines. S & P projects American's 1960 earnings at $1.75-2.00 a share, up from last year's $1.58. Delta should rise from $1.75 to $3.25-3.75 per share in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1961 after cash flow from depreciation of around $12 a share.

"Inside Wall Street," published by Investor's Union, Inc., has "heard, but cannot confirm" that Pfizer is close to launching a new proprietary drug, an item with a sales potential of "$100 million yearly." Management is silent, the report says, which may prove a hopeful sign.

Congress Near Adjournment

WASHINGTON (UPI) — These are uncertain days in the law-making trade. It's hard for me to tell whether Congress is racing toward adjournment or dying on its feet. However, it seems fairly certain the present session will come to an end, one way or another, within the next three weeks. So I thought this might be a good time to review the legislative record to see what has been accomplished and what remains to be done. I might as well begin the review with House Joint Resolution 602, which authorized President Eisenhower to proclaim the week of May 15 as National Transportation Week.

Senate on May 13. Therefore, I suppose it could technically be entered on the plus side of the ledger. However, by the time the President signed it on May 20, only one day of National Transportation Week was left. This didn't give us much time to celebrate. House resolutions 11600 and 11601 were introduced last April by Rep. Daniel K. Inouye of Hawaii, who was disturbed by the fact that some of the laws already on the books did not fit the problems of our newest state. Inouye proposed that the Federal Flood Insurance Act of 1956 be expanded to provide flood insurance for volcanic eruptions, which sounded to me like a fair proposition.

I can't understand why the other lawmakers haven't approved it, even if they don't have volcanoes in their own states. Possibly they are waiting for Alaska to demand flood insurance for avalanches. In a companion bill, Inouye called for an Army engineer study of the feasibility of erecting flood control dams in Hawaii to stem the flow of lava. I think it should be enacted, too. You remember the old story of the plucky Holland boy who discovered a leak in the dike and saved his country by plugging the hole with his finger. Well, imagine what would happen if an Hawaiian youngster tried that in a lava dike. It could open a whole new chapter of folk lore.

Blue Lustre Wise Choice For Carpet

Again and again, housewives everywhere are making Blue Lustre their first choice when selecting a carpet or upholstery cleaner. Women always enjoy discovering new and better ways to keep the home bright and cheerful — and Blue Lustre has been an exciting revelation.

This amazing foam cleaner is a gentle odorless concentrate that makes possible excellent carpet cleaning at very little cost. Blue Lustre can be used in any type of rug shampoo applicator or applied with an inexpensive long-handled brush.

Because Blue Lustre foam does the actual cleaning of the rug fibres, it's only a matter of personal preference as to the type of applicator used. Actually what happens is that the Blue Lustre foam penetrates instantly to the carpet soil and its unique action holds dirt particles in suspension for easy removal by vacuuming. Since all carpet soil and cleaning agent is removed, there is no oily or gummy residue left in the carpet to trap soil — consequently, rugs and carpets stay cleaner longer.

Blue Lustre is non-flammable, it's safe and convenient to keep around the house so that prompt attention can be given to soiled traffic paths as they appear or for other soiled spots on either rugs or upholstery that may need attention.

Blue Lustre is economical to use since it takes only one half gallon to clean three 9 x 12 rugs. It's also available in quart and gallon at Pampa Hardware Co.

SAYS KIDS STILL READ
IOWA CITY, Iowa (UPI) — Television has not reduced the amount of reading among youngsters, Prof. Arthur Barnes of the University of Iowa said today. Studies made in 1950 and 1958 showed youngsters read about the same number of books per year, despite the increased popularity of TV.

SUPPORTS ISRAELI VIEW
WASHINGTON (UPI) — A member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee says Adolf Eichmann, accused-Nazi-mass-murderer of millions of Jews, must be tried in Israel. Rep. Leonard Farbstein (D-N.Y.) said Sunday, regardless of the way Israel spirited Eichmann out of Argentina, it should try him to show the "full magnitude of his vicious 'program of genocide' in World War II."

TOP ATTENDANCE RECORD
NEW YORK (UPI) — Freedomland, a 205-acre entertainment project, opened Sunday and broke the all-time attendance record for an outdoor amusement park set by Disneyland in California.

The management said 650 persons had visited the park, topping the former record of 60,000 set by Disneyland last July 4.

Demos Eager For Jap Treaty Debate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate considers the new U.S.-Japanese security treaty today in a debate likely to bring new Democratic charges of presidential foreign policy fumbling in the Far East and elsewhere.

The Democrats were prepared to elaborate on earlier statements that ineptitude in President Eisenhower's diplomatic dealings contributed to the anti-American riots in Tokyo which caused cancellation of his visit there.

But the election-year debate, which comes on the heels of the U-2 spy plane incident, the summit collapse and withdrawal of Eisenhower's invitation to Russia, was not expected to interfere with Senate ratification of the treaty.

Japanese Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi's government already has ratified the treaty in the face of fanatical opposition by rioting leftists. Kishi was reported urging swift Senate approval lest the mobs topple his government before the pact becomes law.

The treaty, replacing one in effect since 1951, pledges the United States and Japan to defend each other in case of attack. This country could keep its bases in Japan for 10 more years but the Japanese would have certain controls over the deployment of U.S. forces in case of war.

Other congressional news: Pauling: Dr. Linus Pauling goes before Senate security investigators today to reveal what goes on in the meeting unless the lawmakers open it to the public. The California scientist, a leading advocate of a nuclear test ban, originally was subpoenaed to testify Monday before the Senate International Security subcommittee about what he knows of any Communist activities in the no-test movement. The subcommittee postponed the inquiry when Pauling asked he be heard in open session.

Wheat: A politically-potent bill to let wheat growers choose between rival price support proposals of the administration and Democratic farm leaders was up for a House vote. The administration wants lower supports and relaxed production controls. The Democrats favor higher supports and tighter production restrictions. Defeat of the bill would kill any chance of enacting a major farm bill this year and would create a hot election issue in farm areas.

Minimum Wage: The Senate Labor Committee worked in private to hammer into final shape a compromise bill to increase the federal minimum wage gradually from $1 to $1.25 an hour. The bill, sponsored by Democratic presidential hopeful John F. Kennedy (Mass.), has been listed by party leaders as "must" legislation for this election-year session. As it stands after a series of amendments, the measure would increase the wage floor by 25 cents in yearly steps and extend coverage to an additional 5,123,000 workers.

SOLVED-CARPET CLEANING PROBLEM
Science finally has the answer to carpet cleaning. Blue Lustre, a new development, is mixed with water and brushed into carpet or upholstery. It's amazing the way forgotten colors spring out. The nap is left open and lofty. It's easy to apply. One-half gallon of Blue Lustre cleans three 9x12 rugs. Available at Pampa Hardware Co., 120 North Cuyler, Ph. MO 4-2451.

Emmy Show Fails To Match Oscar Awards Natural Flavor

By FRED DANZIG
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) — In one corner, we had Fred Astaire. In the other, Arthur Godfrey. Two great heavyweights.

And in the center, I had the radio. I didn't want to miss the doings at the Polo Grounds, where Ingemar Johansson and Floyd Patterson, two other heavyweights, were dishing out some awards.

Would Emmy make us forget Oscar? Would Ingo put Floyd away again? Would Raymond Burr beat Robert Stack? Or Loretta Young beat Jane Wyatt? To each question, the answer is no.

NBC-TV's 90-minute special, in which 22 Emmy awards were dispersed came across as a relaxed, friendly, polite mish-mash, that held interest if not drama. By giving us the sounds of the victors and not the candid, instantaneous sights of them, the Emmy show failed to match the Oscar telecast in naturalness and impact.

The Emmy special also tripped itself up a few times while trying some electronic footwork between West and East Coast and the commercial cut-away. At times, the switching from Astaire to Godfrey and back merely impeded the pace of the entertainment.

However, the show crowned a new champ in the field of comedy. This took place while Patterson was flattening Ingo, between a handful of awards to "The Untouchables" (which Ingo wasn't Monday night) and one to "The Fabulous Fifties" (or, for Patterson, "the fabulous fifth.")

I refer to Bob Newhart, who came through two hot, hilarious rounds of Monday night's show.

Newhart made his network debut last Tuesday on "The Garry Moore Show" and was superb as an auto driving instructor stuck with a nutty lady driver. Monday night, he scored again as a submarine skipper addressing the crew after a two-year underwater cruise and as a TV director trying to bring Soviet Premier Khrushchev's Washington arrival to the network screen.

His stuff is refreshing — and funny.

There was another big moment. It was Mahalia Jackson's singing of "My Country 'Tis of Thee," which soared out as Patterson, on ABC radio, was clobbering Ingo during the third round.

In accepting the Emmy for Laurence Olivier ("outstanding single performance by an actor"), Charlton "Ben Hur" Heston gave us a speech that was more impassioned than his own Oscar acceptance speech on April 4. Obviously, Charlton is improving all the time.

As co-hosts, Astaire and Godfrey, oozed charm and friendliness, but I thought Astaire was being ill-used when he had to turn the crank of a machine to turn up the winning names. Envelop tearing seems easier. Incidentally, Astaire's announcement of the fight's outcome seemed to confuse the audience in the theater. We've finally found his weakness — he's no sportscastror.

All in all, it was a great night for Bob Newhart, "The Untouchables," Huckleberry Hound and, of course, Floyd Patterson.

The Channel-Swim "Omnibus," the award-winning experimental TV series, will return to the tube next fall as a Sunday afternoon attraction on NBC-TV. Alistair

Bob Dunbar
Bench Jockey

(Today's Bench Jockey is guest-written by Lee Grimsey while sports editor Bob Dunbar is in the hospital.)

Floyd Patterson became a man in the eyes of the boxing world Monday night.

He shook off the effects of the murderous right hand of Thor, flattened Ingemar Johansson and became the first man in boxing history to ever win back the heavy-weight title after he lost it.

By so doing, Patterson will be remembered for accomplishing the feat such immortals as Jack Dempsey, Jim Corbett, Bob Fitzsimmons, Max Schmeling, Jim Jeffries, Joe Louis, Jersey Joe Walcott and Edward Charles failed at.

There was one question on the lips of the throng at the Polo Grounds as Patterson and Johansson climbed the ropes. Would Floyd knock out or suffer a year ago?

If Patterson was going to be gun shy, he had every opportunity in the second round. For it was then that Ingo uncorked one vicious right that went the challenger rocking back on his heels, and let fly with another murderous shot that narrowly missed its target.

But Patterson came back with two thundering left hooks to Johansson's chin and recaptured the championship in one of the most stunning reversals in boxing annals.

To the fans who had the opportunity of seeing last year's match between these two gladiators, one thing was readily apparent — the Floyd Patterson who won Monday night was an entirely different fighter.

Instead he took the initiative and stalked the champion much like a killer stalks his prey. Especially during the fifth round Patterson brought back memories of the way former champion Rocky Marciano used to seek out his foe before he battered him into submission.

The fifth round of Monday night's brawl will be talked about as long as boxing exists.

Where did Patterson discover his savage left-hook? Probably not one but the champion will ever know, but it should become as much a conversation piece as Ingo's right was last year.

Patterson uncorked the left, a short looking blow, and connected with it on the side of Ingo's chin early in the second round.

Johansson's legs crumbled and he sagged to the canvas. Although he apparently recovered, there was never much doubt about the outcome of the fight after Patterson landed the punch.

Then in the middle of the round, Ingo appeared to step back from a right-hand lead, and Patterson moved in with the killing left hook.

This time there was no crumbling — the Swede fell flat on his back.

Johansson's right arm twitched for a brief moment, but then he lay motionless as the referee counted him out.

The 1900 fans who witnessed the classic circuit television performance of the fight at Amarillo definitely favored Johansson at the beginning. But they offered no reservation when they cut loose with a thunderous ovation for Patterson at the end.

Many reasons may be given for the outcome of the fight.

1 — For the first time Patterson was fighting outside the puppet strings of Cus D'Amato, who had lost his license to manage in the state of New York. And for the first time the new champ appeared to be more of a thinking man's fighter. He was continuously changing his style of attack.

2 — Patterson weighed in at 190 pounds, eight pounds more than he weighed for the previous match. The added poundage undoubtedly boosted Floyd's power and there was no apparent loss in his blinding speed.

3 — Johansson wasn't mentally ready for the fight, and this was apparent from the second round on. When he shook Patterson with his famous right, Ingo failed to crowd the eventual winner and follow up with his advantage. In the first fight, Johansson was a wild man after he landed that first right, swarming all over Patterson and telling him from every angle.

Johansson wasn't ready physically. Maybe he did too much training in night clubs. But no more than he did for the first fight which he won.

At any rate, nothing should be taken from Patterson's credit. He proved beyond a doubt that he's a great champion and not a "cheese cake fighter."

The TelePrompTer ring announcer, Chris Schenkel, cornered Patterson within seconds after the fight was over for a brief interview on the closed circuit television network.

"It was worth losing the title for this," Patterson said while scores of well-wishers surrounded him. "I'm the champ again, a real champ."

Then the new titlist cut short the interview.

"How's Ingemar," he asked? "I've got to go see if he's hurt."

Where was the Swede during this time?

Most of it he was either flat on his back or sitting on a stool in the center of the ring.

When Schenkel asked Johansson's advisor, Edwin Alhquist, if he could talk with the former champ, he replied:

"I think not. He's pretty stunned about all this."

"I can tell you this much, though," Alhquist said. "Ingemar was knocked out."

Within five minutes after the end of the fight, TelePrompTer had the films of the fifth round being rerun for its television audience across the nation with former unbeaten champion Rocky Marciano providing the description.

"Patterson landed two good left hooks," Marciano said. "And that was my favorite punch."

"A clause in the contract provides that the two boxers meet in a return match within 90 to 120 days.

Both fighters will have equal income for this match, maybe boxing to lure the biggest gate in boxing history.

Gophers Capture NCAA Crown

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI)—Minnesota's persistent Gophers, who have the golden touch in the clutch, outwitted Southern California Monday night to claim the national collegiate baseball title they expected to win all along.

The championship run came in the 10th inning of the Big Ten kings' third overtime game with Southern California. A Trojan reliever issued a bases-loaded, walk to give Minnesota the crown, 2-1.

Swedes Are Mourning

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI)—They gulped the fiery aquavit down and hurried off to bed.

That's how most Swedish sports fans reacted when they learned the nation's athletic idol—Ingemar Johansson—lost his world heavy-weight crown to Floyd Patterson Monday night in New York. Johansson's home town of Göteborg appeared to be in mourning.

The aquavit had been gathered to be savored as victory toasts but disappointed—and surprised—Swedes drank it hastily and quickly headed for home to get a bit of sleep before work.

Millions of Swedes heard the news of Patterson's knockout triumph Monday night over their radios in a direct ringside broadcast from New York. It wasn't the ending they were waiting to hear.

'Best Man Won' Says Alhquist

By NORMAN MILLER
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI)—Ingemar Johansson wore a King-sized hangover today instead of the most-prized crown in sports.

Crushed to the canvas by a series of lethal blows, the handsome native of Göteborg, Sweden, left the Polo Grounds Monday night without making any statement at all to the press. He even left unanswered a question whether he would demand another shot at Patterson and the heavyweight title as stipulated in their contract.

Swede's advisor, apologized for Johansson and said he would hold a press conference at 3 p.m. today "at which he will talk to all of you."

Six days less than a year after the duped slugger astonished the sports world with his three-round technical knockout of Patterson, Johansson was plunged into a good-bye bordering on despair. He was closeted in his dressing room for more than an hour with his weeping mother, father, sister, brother and fiancée, Birgit Lundgren.

"Ingemar doesn't feel like talking to anyone right now," Alhquist finally told reporters, who waited in the steaming Polo Grounds clubhouse for an hour for the usual post-mortem by the beaten fighter. "If you will just be patient he will hold a press conference Tuesday and talk to all of you."

Pony Loop Schedule Is Changed

Jimmy Lollar, one of the winningest pitchers in the Pony League, will be on the mound tonight when the Lions Club plays Chennie in the first game of a twin bill at 5:30.

In the night cap, Cree will meet the First National Bank. Game time will be at 7:30 p.m.

The remainder of the Pony League schedule:

WEDNESDAY
Hughes vs. Kist, 5:30 p.m.; Cree vs. Lions, 7:30 p.m.

THURSDAY
Hughes vs. Chennie, 5:30 p.m.

FRIDAY
Kist vs. First National Bank, 5:30 p.m.

Next week's schedule:

MONDAY
Lions vs. First National Bank, 5:30 p.m.; Cree vs. Kist, 7:30 p.m.

WEDNESDAY
Chennie vs. Hughes, 5:30 p.m.; Cree vs. Kist, 7:30 p.m.

THURSDAY
Hughes vs. Lions, 5:30 p.m.; Chennie vs. Kist, 7:30 p.m.

Swede Uncertain Concerning Future

NEW YORK (UPI)—Floyd Patterson, who vindicated himself heroically by achieving the ring's first recapture of the heavyweight crown, is willing to fight Ingemar Johansson again within 90 days — but still-groggy Ingemar is uncertain whether to accept.

Patterson, whose explosive left hooks floored Swedish Ingemar twice in the fifth round for a knockout Monday night before 3,000 paid spectators in the Polo Grounds, said: "I'll live up to my contract for a rubber match. I always keep my word."

Patterson established his superiority Monday night.

Brown-haired Ingo, who the ached and nearly closed left eye and the cut mouth and swollen nose, appeared still woozy from the head blows he had taken before being counted out at 1:31 of the fifth round by Referee Arthur Mercante.

Patterson, an underdog at 7½-5 because he had been called a "cheese champion" even before his third-round knockout defeat, vindicated himself dramatically Monday night by beating the odds and tradition.

Although staggered by one of Johansson's stunning rights to the head in the second round, 25-year-old Floyd quickly took command of the fight again and gave Ingo a thorough battering that was climaxed by the two knockdowns from left hooks to the jaw in the final fifth session.

Patterson, who became the first man in ring history to win back the heavy crown, was estimated to have earned about $500,000 from what shaped up as the "richest fight" in history. Johansson was estimated to have wound up with a similar sum.

The show drew a gross gate of $824,814.07 at the Polo Grounds. Irving B. Kahn, president of TelePrompTer Corp., estimated that the gross receipts from the sale of about 350,000 theater-television seats in 123 cities in the United States and Canada would be more than 2 million dollars.

In addition, another $500,000 would be grossed from a $200,000 guarantee for movie rights, $170,000 from radio in the United States and Canada, $35,000 from foreign radio and $85,000 from a pre-fight TV show.

Fugazy said the total gross receipts from all sources should exceed $2,500,000. That would be greater than the $1,800,000-$2,000,000 "live gate" attracted by the second Jack Dempsey-Gene Tunney fight at Chicago in 1927—the top total receipts for a fight before Monday night's international extravaganza.

Trainer Dahn Florio said Patterson's weight of 190 — the heaviest of his career — was partially responsible for Monday night's spectacular victory. It gave him more power, Johansson sealed 194½.

When they fought last June and Ingo floored Floyd seven times in the third round for a technical knockout, Johansson scaled 196½. Patterson started right off in the first round Monday night as if to take advantage of his weight. He staggered Ingo with a left hook, and shook him with right smashes to the body. Ingo came back and buckled Floyd's knees in the second with a right. After that, Patterson took command, particularly in the exchanges.

Braves Wallop Dodgers by 4-1

That hammerin' National League pitcher hear today may mean Hank Aaron is ready to knock down the fences again for the Braves.

The NL batting champion with a .355 average last season, Aaron slipped to .279 with an early-season slump but he looked like the slugger of old Monday night when he hit two homers to power the Braves to a 4-1 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The victory moved the Braves into second place, seven percentage points ahead of the San Francisco Giants and four games behind the first place Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Kansas City Athletics pounded out a 9-6 victory over the Boston Red Sox in the only other major league game played Monday.

By OSCAR FRALEY United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI)—It was a mad, violent thing which had been a year in the making.

Floyd Patterson was a tiger who hadn't been fed for a month; a savage to whom the only law was to tear and rend; a man insane with the built-in hatreds of his own doubts, fears and passions.

And when it was over, a broken beaten man named Ingemar Johansson lay flat on his back on the blood-stained canvas at the Polo Grounds in an insensible heap.

You could doubt, until the referee was halfway through his count at 1:31 of the fifth round Monday night that the scowling man who had just regained the heavyweight championship of the world was human.

There was no sign on his face when he climbed through the ropes before a crowd which hungered for his destruction, sure that once again he was to be annihilated as he had been a year ago. He was a stoic, his mind bricked in behind a wall it refused to climb.

A whole year of misery was behind his eyes and a whole year of fury was in his clenched fists. There was once, in the second round when Ingemar hit him with the right hand they had dubbed "the hammer of Thor," when it appeared that boxing history might repeat itself.

There was no sign on his face when he climbed through the ropes before a crowd which hungered for his destruction, sure that once again he was to be annihilated as he had been a year ago. He was a stoic, his mind bricked in behind a wall it refused to climb.

and overstuffed light heavyweight, a man who shouldn't even be allowed to enter the ring with the mighty-muscled Swede.

And of those flaming, furious seconds when the world around him disappeared in the red haze of his primitive emotions and his only thought was to batter into prostrate helplessness the man tottering in front of him.

There will be only a few times when you will see a man ridden by such maniacal passion without policemen stepping in with clubs to stop him from committing such mayhem. But the one man in the ring with them never had a chance to intervene if he had wanted to do so.

It was blinding fast, with the dazzling abruptness of lightning and the pulse-beat of thunder. It started to build up within Patterson with the first knockdown. Until then he had been fighting cautiously; a man carrying out his strategy and the dictates of other minds.

But then, with the fleeting beat of a rapid pulse, the change came over him. Now, suddenly, he was on his own. The punches he rained on Johansson were of the sheer, blazing murder emanating from a heart hurt to bursting by the criticisms and aspersions he had taken so silently through a crushing, pitiless year.

The referee couldn't have stopped him then because his flashing fists were tearing down all those built up hatreds, smashing them with the crushing violence which came from within. He looked, even after Johansson was down, as if he wanted to leap on that prone body or rage up beside it and begin kicking.

Then, as the referee's arm tolled the count, the light of reason came back into Floyd Patterson's face. The animal was gone. And the man left standing there shook himself, clasped his gloves at the watching world and again donned that familiar facade of humility and the veneer of civilization.

But while they were missing, it was a savage, frightening thing that made you think of the bloody days in the Coliseum.

Palmer, Snead Leading Selections In Ireland

PORTSMOUTH, Ireland (UPI)—Arnold Palmer and Sam Snead are 2-1 favorites to win the team title for the United States in the International Golf Assn. and Canada Cup matches starting Thursday.

And Palmer is favored by the same odds to win the individual title in the four-day, 72-hole competition.

The Ligonier, Pa., star was quoted at 5-2 before the United States Open but the odds dropped after he made his brilliant comeback to win that event Saturday.

Three PGA Berths Up For Grabs

By United Press International Twelve more berths in the Professional Golfers Assn. (PGA) championship at Akron, O., July 21-24 are up for grabs today but the hopeful pros in three cities aren't likely to top Monday's hot test round by Ralph Goodell of Kansas City.

Goodell, playing in the qualifying section at Springfield, Mo., fired 72-61-133, pacing 67 qualifiers in 21 cities with his nine under par course record second round at Springfield's Hickory Hills Country Club. His 61 was by far the best score as lesser known pros battled for positions in the $50,000 PGA championship next month.

Five others qualified June 13 and another 32 will make it today, Friday and next Monday in 10 additional cities. Nearly 70 top pros, including defending champion Bob Rosburg and U. S. Open titleholder Arnold Palmer, were exempt from preliminary qualifying tests.

Three places are at stake today at Montgomery, Ala., four at Napa, Calif., and five at Austin, Tex. One test is scheduled Friday at Greenville, Miss., and six others next Monday.

The best scoring by a group Monday was at New Bern, N.C., where Brian Charter of Greenville, S. C., led with 67-68 - 135 followed by Avery Boyd at Kingston, N.C., at 136 and Church Alexander of Rocky Mount, N.C., with 138.

Stan Spazowski of Winsted, Conn., had 138 at Groton, Conn., while at Akron, Charley Wippenman of Dover, O., and Ed Griffiths of Youngstown, Ohio, had 139's. Frank Stranahan of Toledo was one of Akron's six qualifiers with 140.

Gus Salerno of Larchmont, N.Y., led the New York area section with 140 at Oceanside, N.Y. Shelley Mayfield of Jericho, N.Y., was among the seven New York qualifiers but Claude Harmon, Mickey Homa, Bob Watson and Mike Fetcheck failed.

Ace Filly Pride Of Owner

137 RACING 14708am 6-21 By United Press International Mrs. Dodge Sloane, the mistress of the famed Brookmeade Stable, had every reason in the world today to expect great things from a filly she bred herself down on the farm in Virginia.

Bowl of Flowers, a fast-stepping daughter of Sailor Flower Bowl, is the filly, and the reason for Mrs. Sloane's joy today centers around a record-breaking performance turned in Monday in the filly division of the $37,820 National Stallion Stakes at Belmont Park.

With Manuel Ycaza handling the reins, Bowl of Flowers clicked off five and one-half furlongs in a snappy 1:24 1/5 to wipe out a Belmont record which had withstood numerous assaults since May 28, 1923 when Avisack completed the sprint distance in 1:24 2/5.

Fifth at the start, Bowl of Flowers moved up fast in the run to the wire to win the event by a nose. Shuette, the little better than 12 to 10 favorite, finished second in the field of eight two-year-old fillies, after setting all of the pace. Eastern Princess was third, another eight lengths farther back.

It was Bowl of Flowers' second straight victory in three career starts. In her debut, she finished six lengths behind Shuette, owned by the Cambridge Stable. Victory was worth $29,400 and Bowl of Flowers returned $4740 to win.

Seonor Hanging To NCAA Lead

49 NCAA Golf 14742am 6-21 COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (UPI)—Bill Seonor of Stanford teed off a scant stroke ahead of national amateur champion Jack Nicklaus of Ohio State today for the second round of the NCAA golf tourney at the Broadmoor. Seonor shot an opening round 21-38—49—two under par for the mountainside course with weirdly-pitched greens.

Nicklaus, whose poise and power won him second place in the National Open at Denver last week, bogeyed the 18th hole with a bad chip shot, and settled for a 34-36-70. Gene Francis of Purdue also had a 70, 33 out and 37 in.

Dick Crawford of Houston University, defending NCAA champion, tied four others for fourth place with a 72. In the team standings, Florida led with 292. Houston, seeking its fifth straight title, had 295.

Eyes Of Texas Don't Look Back

COLLEGE STATION (UPI)—Texas A&M baseball coach Tom Chandler is going to watch what he says to the next high school player he tries to sign up.

Chandler said he sat with University of Texas Coach Bibb Falk at a baseball game in San Antonio recently while they watched the boy in action. As coaches sometimes will, each told the other he was not interested in the boy, but just happened to be there watching.

Then Chandler slyly invited the boy to the A&M campus and told him: "Don't look back. Decide right now which college you're going to attend." A few days later Chandler got a telephone call from the youth: "Coach," he said, "you convinced me. I've made up my mind and I'm not looking back. I'm going to Texas."

Redskins Offer Dallas LeBaron

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Washington Redskins have offered quarterback Eddie LeBaron to the National Football League's new Dallas Cowboys in exchange for a 1961 draft pick and at least one other player.

Coach Mike Nixon confirmed Monday that the Cowboys have asked the Redskins to relinquish their rights to LeBaron, who ostensibly retired after the 1959 season.

Cannon Not Bound By Ram Contract

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—All America Billy Cannon is free to play football with the team of his choice, the Houston Oilers of the fledgling American Football League.

Federal Judge William Lindberg described Cannon as a wonderful athlete but "anything but an astute businessman" Monday in ruling he could play with the Oilers.

Cannon, former Louisiana State University halfback, was taken to court by the Los Angeles Rams who tried to keep him from playing with anyone but them.

Cannon signed a contract with the Rams Nov. 30—a month before he played with LSU in the Sugar Bowl Game—calling for some $50,000 over a three-year period. Later he signed with Houston for a salary double what the Rams offered.

In voiding the Los Angeles contract, Lindberg said, the agreement Cannon signed was simply an offer to enter into a binding agreement. He said the pact should be characterized as a "conditional precedent to execution" of a working contract.

Buffalo Signs Austin Guard

BUFFALO, N. Y. (UPI)—Bob Silva, one of the top American little college players in recent years, has signed with the American Football League Buffalo Bills, it was announced today.

The 6'1", 225-pound guard played two years for Stephen F. Austin College, a member of the tough Lone Star Conference of Texas state colleges.

Among the many honors he received for his play, Silva was voted the conference's most valuable lineman in 1959 and in the same year made first-team, All-Texas college as well as middle bracket All-American, which lies roughly between a little All-American and major college All-American selection.

Error Of Aristotle

The great mathematician and logician, Aristotle, is rightly remembered as one of the grand minds of all time. Without a doubt his contributions to civilization are far greater than any others he may have made.

Yet, none is perfect. And the mighty Greek student of Plato in his work, and had as an intrinsic part of his mental processes, an error of profound significance which has done a great deal of harm in the years since his lifetime and our own.

This idea was expressed by Aristotle as follows: "From the hour of their birth, some are marked for subjugation, others for rule. Aristotle viewed man as a 'political animal' who existed within the form of rule or be ruled."

Without gainsaying man's tendency to such a condition, to assume that such condition is natural, preordained, or, as is implied, inevitable, is to assume far too much. This is one of the great errors of which Aristotle was guilty. From this phrase and this line of reasoning has come much of the world's justification of slavery; much of the concept of a class society; much of the concept that some men, of right, must rule other men.

It is not too harsh to say that in certain circles today, almost any one who would reject this thesis would be branded as subversive. There are reactionary elements in our society who resist the American Revolution even now, almost two hundred years since its enactment.

And the American Revolution was calculated to establish that all men are free and that they are EQUAL in the matter of rights regardless of birth, economic status, race or creed.

Aristotle, while pre-dating the revolution, is in fact reactionary to it. He is supporting in this utterance the divine right of kings, the concept of a nobility consisting of special persons who are above the common herd. There is a sort of intellectual snobbishness here which would be humorous were it not for the serious political overtones it inspires. There is an invariable, though often unexpressed assumption, that if there is a superior class of people "born for rule," we must be ever not like an invariable, those lower orders fit only for subjugation.

We cannot help but be reminded of the work of the great French biologist, Jean Rostand. This savant informs us that there is so little change in the human evolutionary modes and so little difference one from another that were we to take the new-born infant of savage parents from the island of the New Hebrides, for example, and place the infant in a modern and civilized home in one of the more advanced countries of the world, the child would mature in every respect a normal modern being and speak the language and perhaps behave potentially endowed with what we have come to call genius.

Certainly, it is true many persons seem to fall below the level of intellectual attainment of any one of us. But as we lift our eyes and see the hordes of persons who are far above this level we are taught both humility and honest. A superior class? It is not true. Nor is there an inferior class.

The sum total of the human experience can be summed up in grappling with the perpetual enigma of individualism. No person is more than one-nor is he ever less than one.

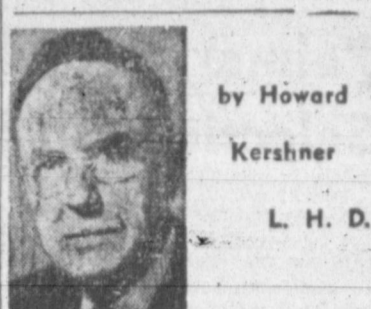

Human beings do not come in classes or strata. All class distinctions are artificially provided, many of them induced by the force and violence of government and the same Aristotelian fallacy above noted. These artificial barriers crumble under the pressures of factual life and nothing except further fallacy will ever re-erect them.

We are sorry to note some of our political writers extolling Aristotle's major error as tho it were holy writ; seem to be perfectly willing to ignore their own convictions; diligently keep their ears to the ground in an effort to find out in which direction the mob is running, in the hope of being swept along with the tide to success.

If all men stop thinking and base their actions on what other men are thinking and no one acts on the basis of moral principles but simply are trying to discover the popular whims of the moment and to win elections by pleasing such fancies.

In other words, our leaders have stepped down from their leadership; seem to be perfectly willing to ignore their own convictions; diligently keep their ears to the ground in an effort to find out in which direction the mob is running, in the hope of being swept along with the tide to success.

It's Up To You

Time was in our country when men who aspired to public office sought to convince the electorate of the correctness of the principles in which they believed. Washington, Adams, Jefferson, Madison, Hamilton and, in fact, all the Founding Fathers had strong convictions concerning the principles upon which our government was founded and the important issues of that day. They argued for or against these matters and sought to convince the electorate of the correctness of the principles in which they believed and which they sought to carry into practice. They were read-leaders seeking to mold public opinion in directions which they believed would lead to an increasing degree of individual and public welfare.

Today, the American people seem to have fallen into the dangerous practice of not thinking for themselves but making up their minds regarding all things public, private, political, commercial, social and religious on the basis of what other people think. We see before us the sad spectacle of candidates for the highest office—in our land basing their decisions and taking their position on the most profound issues of our time on the basis of public opinion polls.

These infomercial samplings of public opinion organized and conducted for the profit of those who take the polls, are supposed to tell the candidate what the people think like or dislike. There is too much evidence that our candidates are slavishly following the feedback coming from these polls. The plain fact seems to be that our candidates are not seeking to convince the public of the correctness of the principles in which they believe but are trying to discover the popular whims of the moment and to win elections by pleasing such fancies.

In other words, our leaders have stepped down from their leadership; seem to be perfectly willing to ignore their own convictions; diligently keep their ears to the ground in an effort to find out in which direction the mob is running, in the hope of being swept along with the tide to success.

If all men stop thinking and base their actions on what other men are thinking and no one acts on the basis of moral principles but simply are trying to discover the popular whims of the moment and to win elections by pleasing such fancies.

What has become of our convictions? What has become of the Websters and Calhouns who argued mightily over the years for the things they believed important, for the freedom, integrity and prosperity of the nation?

May God raise up leaders with convictions they regard as more important than success at the polls. Counting noses by machine is no substitute for men who think their way through to conclusions and are triumph of truth, than in popular acclaim. Honest men do not wish to be elected unless they can convince a majority of the voters that the principles in which they believe are sound. To win an election when one did not have the backing of the public to carry out the policies in which he believes would be to place one's self in an impossible position. An honest man in that position will resign. Apparently, without fully realizing it, we have come to the place where too many of us put success ahead of principle. Our situation is grave. We must recover our allegiance. To moral principle or we shall lose our freedom, our right to govern ourselves and our prosperity.

"It's too early," he is saying firmly. "A lot can happen between now and Los Angeles."

Major Kennedy target is 63½ Humphrey votes in Minnesota (31), Wisconsin (16½), North Dakota (11), and South Dakota (11). That's the reason for his being in the Dakotas this weekend, after flying trips to Colorado and Utah.

In North Dakota, Kennedy and Humphrey will have a chance for a private get-together — if they want it.

Both are attending a "birthday party" for Representative Quentin Burdick, D., who is opposing Governor John Davis, R., for the seat of the late Senator William Langer. Also slated to be present is Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, who is trying to boom Adlai Stevenson and has been bombarding Humphrey with pleas to line up for him.

Nominal purpose of Mrs. Roosevelt, Kennedy and Humphrey is to be in the audience for Burdick. But they will also unquestionably do a lot of presidential politicking.

In agreeing to attend this affair at the State Fair Ground, at Fargo, had either customarily used a facial cream that allegedly contained hormone or had received hormone shots from "gland specialists" over a period of several years.

Dear Reader: Dr. Hyman appreciates your comments and questions but regrets that the heavy volume of his mail doesn't permit him to answer each individual letter or post card. However, he will comment in columns like the above upon matters of general or unusual interest.

At Our Throat

The Allen-Scott Report

WASHINGTON — Real reason Sen. Robert S. Allen and John Kennedy are again busily campaigning in the Midwest this weekend is those 31 convention votes racked up by Senator Hubert Humphrey in his unavailing presidential bid.

The two front-running White House aspirants are sparing no effort to win backers in this potentially make-or-break bloc of delegates.

To date this furious backstage scramble is a stand-off.

Kennedy has made some significant inroads in the farm belt, and Johnson in the West.

Both have gained important accessions in former Humphrey leadership areas.

James Rowe, one-time New Deal brain-truster and a top Humphrey campaign manager, has switched to Senator Johnson, and is concentrating on winning over Humphrey supporters in the West.

Rowe is particularly suited for this proselyting as he is a Montanan, and will probably be a delegate from there.

Johnston already are privately claiming three of six Humphrey delegates in Montana; three in Utah; two in Colorado; and one in Nevada.

Two politically influential Midwesterners have gone over to Kennedy. They are—

Sam Rizzo, former United Auto Workers organizer who managed Humphrey's race against Kennedy in Wisconsin; and M. W. Thatcher, general manager of the Farmers Union Grain Terminal Association, who shifted to Kennedy shortly after Humphrey withdrew from the presidential drive.

Rizzo, an ardent Kefauver adherent in 1956, is now trying to arrange a Kennedy-Humphrey or Kennedy-Governor Orville Freeman ticket.

The former is definitely out, chiefly on the ground that two senators would not make an effective ticket. Governor Freeman is very acceptable to Kennedy as a running mate. The tall, young Minnesotan is a high-powered campaigner and proven vote-winner.

But Kennedy is warily making no commitments on second place for the present.

Hankering

The younger generation of automobile drivers should look upon my middle-aged-and-a-little-bit-more drivers with the same respect and admiration that is usually reserved for the pioneers of covered wagon days.

Compared with the roads of today, the roads we drove on in the 1920's, 30's and 40's were as bad as the trails leading West.

The only things we didn't have were Indians and outlaws.

I think of the ride from New York to New Haven and shudder like a Model-T Ford. It was a distance of 82 miles, and no matter how daredevilish you were, it took a good four and a half hours to cover it. There was a stop light on every block for the full distance. The Road was the Old Boston Post Road, the one used by the stagecoaches. It was a two-lane road, brick here, asphalt there, concrete somewhere else and, sometimes, nothing at all.

To get behind a trailer truck was to stay there until the truck turned off, or the driver got hungry.

Now, today, there are freeways, thruways, pass-arounds, tunnels, express bridges, belt lines, overpasses and cloverleaves, and then drive continuously until noon or ten at night.

None of this leaving after breakfast and calling it a day around five or six. If you did that, you would scarcely get out of sight of your house.

Along with the roads of the early years, were the overnight accommodations. They were a perfect match for the highways. There were no motels with swimming pools, air-conditioning, television and good food.

First there were the tourist camps, and they were called camps because what you did was camp out. Then came the tourist courts — sad little bungalows stuck back off the road, whose proudest boast was a good mattress.

In summer these camps or courts were an inferno. Their tiny rooms, walls and ceilings, baked all day by the sun, would freckle you unless you covered your face with the sheet.

It took a relentless driver to do more than 300-350 miles a day in those days. And by "day" I mean 16 to 18 hours of driving. At the finish of the day no one was happy. Everybody was worn out and snapping.

And the morrow held nothing more promising than another day of crawling along behind trucks and trailers on a highway about as wide as a man's belt, and as crooked as a snake with a stomach-ache.

by a house mover, was crushed to death Friday when the roof of a house in which he was working crumbled and crashed down on top of him. Falling debris crushed his head and chest.

The Almanac

By United Press International
Today is Monday, June 20, the 172nd day of the year, with 194 more in 1960.

The moon is approaching its new phase.

The morning stars are Mars, Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mercury, Jupiter and Saturn.

On this day in history:
In 1782, Congress adopted the Great Seal of the United States.

In 1837, King William IV of England died. Princess Victoria of Kent became Queen of England.

In 1863, West Virginia became the 35th state in the union.

In 1893, spectators cheered as jurors in New Bedford, Massachusetts found Miss Lizzie Borden not guilty of murdering her father and stepmother.

In 1910, Fannie Brice made her debut in the Ziegfeld Follies.

A thought for today: German writer Rainer Marie Rilke said in "Letters To a Young Poet": "Love consists in this, that two souls protect and touch and greet each other."

Pa. He was a member of many communist parties and wound up in the Loveston order of which his wife is an old battle-axe. Loveston has been Dubinsky's secretary of state for foreign and domestic mischief for 25 years.

I feel some embarrassment in invoking Goldwater's lusty opinion that Jack Kennedy has neither guts nor principle. I may say, however, that I said it first when Jack turned against his benefactor and trusted friend, Joe McCarthy. This was after Kennedy had put his name over a book in admiration of great political examples of moral courage. He had neither the guts nor principle to attack McCarthy until Joe was in his grave.

How Are We Taxed

We have been noticing an occasional item recently in opposition to the present government policy of double taxation in respect to earnings from stock. We are in the camp of the protestants. Double taxation is, to our view, even worse than taxation without representation.

In this nation we now have representation over and over again. We also have taxation over and over again.

And the practice of taxing the corporation on its earnings before distribution, then taxing the owners of the corporation a second time after distribution, is obviously distressing and wholly unfair.

Pragmatically, it is also destructive for it serves the purpose of drying up the savings and reserve funds required so desperately to expand and maintain our elaborately-tooled economy. If we do not find the necessary savings for maintaining and improving our tools, we will go the way of the Soviet Union and other prosocialist empires.

But in thinking about the unfair tactics of government in respect to this obvious instance of double taxation, we cannot help but be attracted to a line of reasoning which has occurred to us many times during the years, to wit, that taxation by government via as many avenues of taxation as presently exist isn't double taxation, or even triple taxation. It is taxation upon taxation upon taxation almost without end.

Government is apparently the ultimate recipient of almost every dollar in circulation. We have never seen

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The kind of pressure that keeps men awake at night, ruins their golf game, and gives them ulcers is beginning to build up around Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.).

The pressure is for him to agree to accept nomination for vice president of the United States. He can turn off the pressure only by winning top position on the Democratic ticket on an early convention ballot.

Kennedy has been under pressure for months on the vice presidency. But, as Al Jolson used to say, "you ain't seen nothin' yet."

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt joined the pressure group last week in a big way. Mrs. R.'s somewhat improbable ticket is Adlai E. Stevenson for president and Kennedy for vice president. Improbable because Stevenson says he is not a candidate for president and Kennedy firmly insists he will not accept second place.

Stranger things have happened, however, than the nomination of an improbable ticket. Mrs. Roosevelt's revival of the Kennedy-for-vice president boom puts the senator on a tough spot. The merest hint at this time that he might be content with second place probably would cause his large delegate herd to begin to fade away.

Some Democrats undoubtedly would feel that the safest way to deal with the 1960 problem of a Catholic on the presidential ticket would be to put the Catholic in second place. However, that may be for Kennedy to waver now on the vice presidency surely would jeopardize and probably demolish his chance for the presidential nomination.

So, Kennedy can stand pat for now and the politicians, including Mrs. Roosevelt, will understand. But, failing to win the presidential nomination on an early ballot, Kennedy will be pounded from all sides to agree to take second place. Mrs. Roosevelt and others will be in there pounding for the senator not only to agree to second place but to throw his first place delegates to Stevenson. At that point, in the Democratic National Convention, Mrs. Roosevelt's Stevenson-Kennedy ticket may seem a lot less improbable than it does now.

Former President Harry S. Truman, of course, will be battling Mrs. Roosevelt on all of this. HST has his own candidate, Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.). Moreover, Truman is opposed, more in sorrow than in anger, to Stevenson. Kennedy as a vice presidential nominee would not be worth a nickel to Truman. Two U.S. senators, any two U.S. senators, do not make a good presidential ticket.

So HST, the fastest gun in politics, will be drawing on Mrs. Roosevelt next month in Los Angeles and who is to say which are the good guys and which the bad guys in a western such as that? Mrs. Roosevelt acknowledged that it would be asking a great deal of Kennedy to accept second place. She also saluted him as a man worthy and competent for the White House. But, she counseled him to wait.

"It means selfishness and courage on the part of Mr. Kennedy," she said. "If he is willing to take second place, it also means for him an opportunity to grow and to learn. And he is young enough to look forward to many more years of public service. He will gain enormously in stature if he thinks of the country rather than of himself."

There it is, the argument which will batter Kennedy at Los Angeles. To answer it will not be easy.

Head-On Crash Kills Two Men

NEDERLAND (UPI)—A two-car head-on crash killed two men and injured four other persons Sunday night.

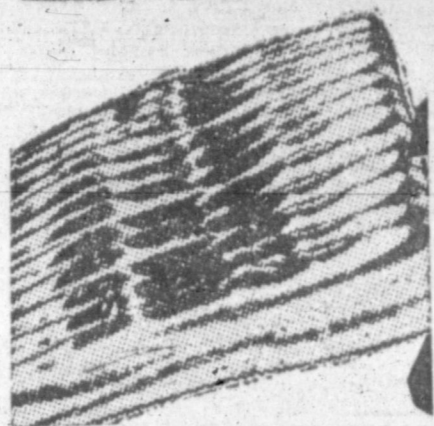

The victims were A. J. Jackson, 50, Beaumont, and Nathan Sanders, 44, of Groves. The men were the drivers of the two cars. The accident occurred on State Highway 69, the main highway between Beaumont and Port Arthur.
