Youthful Armed Bandit Captured Here By Police

Two Other Stickups Solved; Had Helper

A rifle-wielding bandit took $260 from the Whiteway Cafe Monday night, eluding searching law enforcement officers for more than three hours before he was captured, and finally signed confessions admitting two other armed robberies here during May.

The bandit, 17-year-old H. C. Florence, was captured by police officers Gerald Clark and Bill Robinson at 2:25 today.

Under questioning by Police Chief Jim Conner and Sheriff Rufe Jordan, the teen-ager also admitted holding up the Quality Service Station May 1 and the Vaughn-Roth Truck Terminal May 15.

He also identified his accomplice as Danny Royce Wilemon, 18, of Lefors. Both youths were charged with armed robbery this morning.

Shortly before 11 p. m. Monday Florence went into the Whiteway and ordered a cup of coffee. Then, according to Mrs. Bessie Ross, a waitress there, he left and returned "not more than five minutes later" wearing a dirty handkerchief around his face and carrying a .22 caliber automatic rifle.

Mrs. Mildred Perkins, owner of the Whiteway, saw him as he came through the door.

"He seemed awfully jerky," she said. "He started to turn around and leave, but then he came back and demanded all the money in the register."

Burl Kirby, 1207 Kingsmill, was standing near the front of the cafe at the time, and Florence took his wallet along with the contents of the cash register.

At the time of the holdup, there were some 25 Pampa High School graduates and two chemical company employees in the cafe.

He made them all lie on the floor, then jerked the telephone off the wall and went to the parking lot where Wilemon was waiting in the car.

Police officers were called to the scene at about 11:15, and a search has begun immediately.

One of the customers, Eugene Collingsworth, had been one of Florence's eighth-grade teachers two years ago and provided a positive identification of the youth.

Sheriff Rufe Jordan and Robinson went to Lefors in search of the pair, but were unable to find them there.

Then, at 2:25 a. m., Robinson and Clark spotted Florence's car in the 300 block of S. Cuyler.

When they stopped him, Florence asked: "What do you want me for? Speeding?"

When Jordan and Conner confronted him with positive witnesses, Florence broke down and admitted the holdup as well as the other two robberies.

He took police officers to a spot 2 1/2 miles east and three-tenths miles south of Pampa on the Wheeler Highway. It was there that he and Wilemon had divided the loot and hidden the automatic rifle.

The officers recovered the weapon and an Army fatigue jacket Florence had been wearing.

Wilemon was brought in to police headquarters by his father about 6 a. m., and each youth handed over $130 to authorities.

Florence's method of operation in the Whiteway job bore only a slight similarity to the other two holdups, police pointed out.

Prior to Monday night he had concentrated his efforts on two service stations where he felt there would be few witnesses to identify him.

But on all three jobs he used the same type white handkerchief tied around his face, and carried the same rifle.

The holdup at the Quality service station netted $175, and the robbery of the Vaughn-Roth terminal brought in an additional $130.

Florence lived in Lefors until about three months ago when he moved to Pampa to live with his sister at 412 N. West. His occupation was listed as laborer, but he was unemployed at the time of his arrest.

Wilemon lived in Lefors with his father, and had just completed his junior year in high school.

Meeting Postponed

The city commission meeting, which usually is held on Tuesday morning, was postponed until 4 p. m. today.

A sufficient number of commissioners required to conduct business could not be present this morning.

Forest Fire Threatens Mining Town

SEVEN ISLANDS, Quebec (UPI)—The men of a remote northern Quebec mining town fought today to save their homes from a forest fire that forced the airlift rescue of the town's 500 women and children.

Reports from bush pilots indicated the fire that broke out Sunday still was burning furiously, bearing down on the tiny, isolated community of Gagnon on a 15 to 20 mile front.

The Weather Bureau said wind in the area was highly changeable.

About 3,000 men remained in the town about 100 miles from here, to cut and dig firebreaks and battle the flames with water from the lakes and fire extinguishers that were flown in.

Their wives and children, and a number of hospital patients, were flown here and to Montreal Monday and early today by an airlift of 35 planes.

The small mining company town is inaccessible except by air. The only road is flooded because of the late spring thaw.

Mrs. Edwina Keskinen, who was flown to Montreal, said there was no panic in Gagnon.

"Nobody was frightened," she said.

Timber losses were estimated as at least a million dollars by Paul-Emile Jean, head of the North Shore Fire District of the Lands and Forest Department.

"If we could get cool weather and rain, there's a chance we could beat this (fire) in two days," Jean said.

351 Killed On Highways

Death Toll Inches Toward New High

By United Press International

The nation's Memorial Day weekend traffic toll climbed toward a record today as delayed reports of accidents trickled in from around the country.

Alaska, Delaware, Hawaii, Idaho and Rhode Island reported no fatalities.

The United Press International count showed 351 highway deaths. In addition, there were 115 drownings, two deaths in plane crashes and 82 miscellaneous accidents for a holiday fatality total of 550.

Ohio led the nation with 27 deaths, California had 23, New York 22, Pennsylvania 21, Illinois 20, and North Carolina 18.

The National Safety Council had predicted motorists would eclipse the 1958 Memorial Day traffic

"The gunman made us all lie down on the floor before he left," Mrs. Perkins said shortly after the holdup. "All I could think about was those poor kids. They're dressed in formal and white dinner jackets, and they'll get them all dirty."

Actually, Mrs. Perkins had other thoughts too, between the time the bandit, 17-year-old H. C. Florence entered the Whiteway and began brandishing a .22 caliber automatic rifle.

"I was about half-way up between the end of the counter and the cash register when I saw him standing there," Mrs. Perkins said. "And all I could think was 'well this is it.'"

The thing that most impressed the victim was Florence's eyes. "I'll never forget them," she said. "They were the meanest looking eyes I've ever seen. They were so dark they looked black."

"He just stood there for a minute and then he said 'This is a holdup; I want all of your money.'"

"I gave him everything in the cash register," Mrs. Perkins said. "Then he told me to jerk the phone off the wall. I yanked at it but nothing happened."

"Then he told me to yank again and I still didn't get it off the wall. Finally he pulled it off himself."

"All this time some kids in the back were yelling at him to shut up and I was afraid he might shoot at one of them," Mrs. Perkins said.

"Then he yelled out 'who said that?' I told him I hadn't heard a thing. I thought he might shoot one of them."

Mrs. Perkins said when Florence went out the front door, two of the high school students followed him.

"They couldn't have been more than two or three steps behind him," she said. "Then we heard this noise that sounded like a gun shot and I thought he had killed one of them."

"We still don't know what made that noise."

Mrs. Perkins had just given her son Johnny a large amount of money before the holdup occurred, or the loot would have been higher.

"Johnny was just leaving," she said, "when I stopped him and gave him the money. You know the banks had been closed since Saturday noon, and we had quite a bit on hand."

Eugene Collingsworth, who was in the cafe at the time of the holdup, said he saw the bandit.

record of 371 and estimated 375 would die in this year's 72-hour holiday.

The worst single holiday disaster occurred near Cambridge, Ohio, Monday where six young servicemen were killed when their speeding car smashed head-on into a tractor-trailer.

Wrecking crews spent two hours untying the wreckage and authorities needed several more hours to identify the bodies of the young servicemen.

Another accident Monday night near Pottstown, Pa., killed four persons and injured five others.

The Indianapolis Speedway, scene of the nation's greatest auto race, added to the holiday bill when a homemade grandstand collapsed, killing two fans and injuring more than 75 others.

Secrecy-Cloaked Hearing For Dulles

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Tight security precautions, reminiscent of a wartime spy thriller, cloaked today's testimony by Central Intelligence Director Allen W. Dulles at the summit inquiry.

Unusual as they appeared, many of the procedures have become routine for a classified testimony by a witness such as Dulles. Most of them were in effect for last week's appearance by Secretary of State Christian A. Herter at the Senate Foreign Relations Committee's hearings.

In one respect, however, the committee put the CIA chief under an even tighter security blanket. A censored transcript of Dulles' testimony will not be made available a few pages at a time as was done with Herter's.

The transcript of Dulles' testimony will be made by the Ward and Paul reporting firm whose employees have undergone a full government security clearance.

But this transcript will not be made public at all, except in the unlikely event that Dulles wishes to publicize it.

The reporting firm will turn Dulles' transcript over to the committee together with the stenographic type tapes and the duplicating master sheets. The master sheets and tapes will be burned by committee aides — probably in the marble fireplace in the committee's Capitol office.

Copies of the bound transcript will be numbered and placed in a safe for the use of senators-only. Each will carry a "top secret" label.

The committee aides routinely are subject to a full "field" investigation by the FBI.

Before Dulles testified, the hearing room in the new Senate office building was "swept" with electronic devices designed to detect any hidden microphones or "bug" which might carry the CIA director's statements to unauthorized ears.

FBI Steps Into Hayes Murder

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—The FBI confirmed today it has stepped into the baffling murder of Mrs. Ruby Hayes, 41, a Harvey, La., woman whose body was found Saturday night near Tucumcari, N. M.

Mrs. Hayes had been shot twice.

R. W. Bachman, special agent in charge of the New Orleans FBI office, said his men are conducting an investigation. He declined to say how intensive the investigation is or who has been questioned in the case.

United Press International learned from a friend of the slain woman, however, that FBI agents questioned him for about an hour Sunday night.

He is Roseline Ditta, 37, owner of the car Mrs. Hayes was driving when she and her 4-year-old son Mel left New Orleans for Amarillo, Tex., May 22.

Ditta's car was left at an El Paso, Tex., service station last Tuesday, five days before Mrs. Hayes' body was found. Monday El Paso police revealed they had found the boy unharmed.

El Paso detective Gus Massey questioned the boy again Monday night and he said: "Ronnie shot my mother. He shot her a bunch of times."

He also told Massey that his father, Mel Hayes Sr., and the mysterious "Ronnie" had left him in the El Paso supermarket where he was found.

Amarillo police had the boy's father and were scheduled to give him a polygraph (lie detector) test today.

He reportedly told police that "Ronnie shot mother and threw her in a ditch."

Who "Ronnie" was remained a mystery, as well as how Mrs. Hayes and the boy came to be in Tucumcari when they set out for Amarillo, hundreds of miles away.

Ditta said he knew of no one named Ronnie, and added the same question.

"The only people that were in my car when it left here were Mrs. Hayes and the boy," he said. Ditta described Mrs. Hayes as "just a close friend."

Mrs. Hayes' body was not identified until Monday, when her sister, Mrs. George Christakis of Amarillo, went to Tucumcari. She said she had read a description of the dead woman in the Amarillo newspaper and called Quay County, N. M., Sheriff Newell Ramsey.

A group of high school children found Mrs. Hayes' body in the Tucumcari Metropolitan Park, five miles west of Tucumcari and just off U.S. Highway 64.

There was no identification on the body, but $238 was found in her clothing.

city charter revision talks.

E. E. McAdams, a candidate for the job of revising the Pampa city charter, discussed the work that would be required to carry out the job at a meeting of the Pampa Charter Commission Monday night.

McAdams, former city manager to Waco and Bryan, now devotes his time to helping cities revise their charters.

McAdams is approved for the job by the city commission, he will have a preliminary draft of the new charter sent to city officials within 30-40 days.

Four offices will be at stake Saturday when Gray County voters go to the polls once again, this time for runoff elections of the Democratic primary.

The polls in Gray County will be open from 7 a. m. until 7 p. m.

Only one state officer will be selected. That will be for the judge of the court of criminal appeals.

W. T. McDonald of Brazos County and Lloyd W. Davidson of Travis County are seeking the office. Davidson received 2,284 votes in the Gray County Primary while McDonald polled only 1,488.

County runoffs will be for commissioners of Precinct 1 and 4, and for constable of Precinct 1.

Joe K. Clarke (271) and Hank Breining (168), are seeking the commissioner's post in Precinct 1; R. Ben White (227) and W. R. Combs (202) are running for constable in the same precinct; and Ernest Beck (183) and Truitt Johnson (198) are seeking the commissioner's job in precinct 4.

Three Other States Don't Fare So Well

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Supreme Court ruled today that Texas controls its tidelands and the oil under them for a distance of 10 1/2 miles from shore.

The Supreme Court gave control beyond 10 1/2 miles around the Texas coast to the Federal government. But in the case of Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama, the court gave control to the Federal government beyond the three mile limit.

Atty. Gen. Will Wilson said in Austin that the decision will release 30 million dollars that has been held in escrow to Texas schools.

Justice John M. Harlan wrote the 5-2 opinion that gave Texas control of its tidelands for 10 1/2 miles out.

The case of Florida, the fifth Gulf Coast state, was decided in a separate opinion by Justice Hugo L. Black. The ruling was that Florida is entitled to a belt of land under the Gulf three marine leagues (10.5 statute miles) wide. Harlan dissented.

The court retained the Florida case on docket for whatever further proceedings may be necessary to fix the coastline more specifically.

Chief Justice Earl Warren and Justice Tom C. Clark disqualified themselves from participation in both cases. Clark was U. S. attorney general when the Justice Department was handling an earlier test case involving California. Warren was governor of California at the time.

The law suits, brought directly in the Supreme Court by the Justice Department, were to determine ownership of the rich undersea area beyond the three-mile line and, accordingly, who gets the millions of dollars in royalties from oil companies which drill there.

The only drilling of consequence has been done off Louisiana. The money from this operation has gone into an escrow account and as of today amounted to $225,045,000. It now goes to the United States.

All moneys in escrow pending the decision now total $308,443,000.

The case focused on the meaning of the Submerged Lands Act, passed by Congress in 1953 soon after the Eisenhower administration took office. The law turned over to state ownership the three-mile coastal belt previously held by the Supreme Court.

Wilson Hails Historic Court Ruling Today

AUSTIN (UPI)—Atty. Gen. Will Wilson today hailed the U. S. Supreme Court's tidelands decision as an "historic victory for the school children of Texas."

Wilson said the decision, granting Texas and Florida their claims to the tidelands, would free some $30 million now held in escrow and allow the money to be spent through the Permanent School Fund.

"The Supreme Court has apparently reversed one of the most dangerous trends of our time," Wilson said.

The money in escrow is Texas' share of lease money from mineral leases on the tidelands in the Gulf of Mexico.

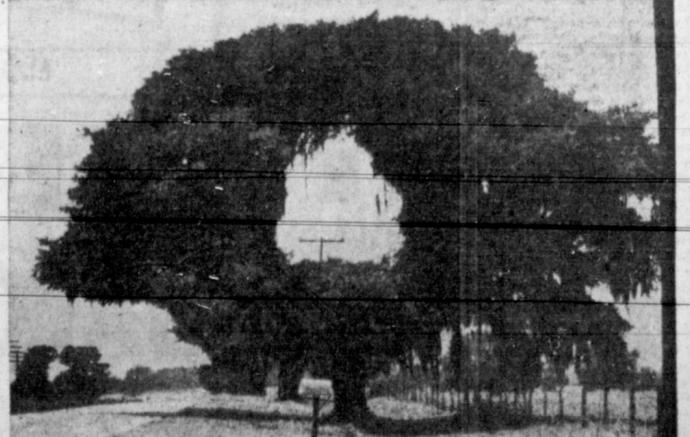

"I felt at the time we argued the case we had it won," said Wilson, beaming at a news conference.

He said he had predicted the judges would line up on the decision as they did today in Washington.

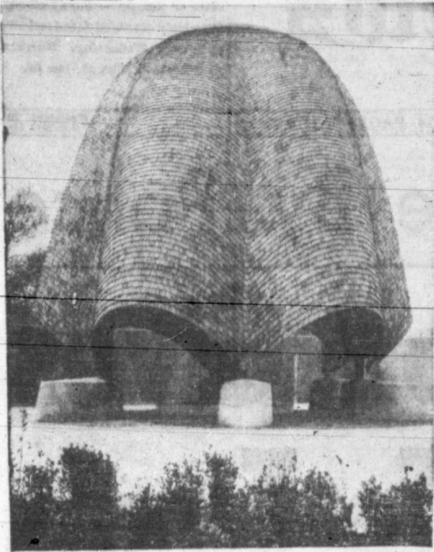

"I knew Justice Douglas would be against the states, and I knew that Justice Black would rule at least for some of the states."

In the court's decision, Justice Hugo L. Black said he believed all the states should recover. Justice William O. Douglas dissented against all of the states.

Congressman's Mail Bag Has Sprinkling Of Gladness, Pathos

The Mail Bag is a variety in the spice of life, as the old saying goes—members of Congress have a well reasoned experience. Even the proverbial "Joseph's coat of many colors" could not boast of the variety that graces the mail flowing into a congressional office. Sometimes it comes so fast and furious that it is impossible to avoid some delay in answering. Some express glad tidings and great joy, while others reach the other extreme of complete frustration and are permeated with the depths of despair. Many contain personal problems of the writers who are writing to their congressman because they know not where to turn. Others contain advice and counsel on world affairs, national affairs and specific pieces of legislation. Many are "thank you" letters while some are replete with caustic criticism. Some are written on the finest embossed stationery, while others may be on the reverse side of a discarded letter or an old piece of paper sack.

Sometimes the great bulk of the mail concerns one particular issue of great interest. Usually this is some controversy. The increase in the mail under these circumstances can be 400 or 500 per cent over a few days period. The issue that created the greatest increase in my mail since I have served in Congress was the controversy between President Truman and General MacArthur when the President fired the general. Within a period of approximately two weeks, I received some 1300 written communications on that subject alone. To say nothing of the telephone calls and personal contacts. Other issues have generated measurable increases, but none could compare with the Truman-MacArthur controversy.

Many of the letters that I receive as well as conversations with people indicate that there are quite a few people who feel that mail directed to a congressman is read by some secretary and is never seen by the congressman. This could be true in a few cases, but in most instances, the member of the House of Representatives is vitally interested in the contents of the mail received and tries to read every letter from his constituents. This has been true in my own case for several reasons. One is that I have always liked to receive mail and to read it. There is nothing that I am more anxious to do than to find out what is inside of a sealed envelope or who is on the other end of a ringing telephone. Perhaps I received an oversupply of curiosity, but if so, I am glad of it.

To give you a general idea of what my mail contains, I will pick at random from my desk top a few items. As I have explained in a previous newsletter, I have my own individual filing system. Many of you who have visited my office are familiar with it. It consists of dividing my desk top in the same manner as a section of land, that is, the NE quarter, the NW quarter, the SE quarter and the SW quarter. When I file a letter for future attention, all I need to remember is the quarter in which it was filed. Incidentally, the Truman-MacArthur mail made it necessary to leave several additional sections on a temporary basis.

I will pick up a few items from the different quarter sections. In the NE section, I find that I haven't paid my dues to the Pampa Plains Historical Society at anyone. Other subjects include the effect of unfair imports on the arm situation, several different positions on federal aid to education, Turkish government decree for the protection of Turkish currency, application being processed by the FCC, who to vote for as president of the Texas Bar Association.

citiation, legislation affecting the use of Mexican nationals for farm labor, disability pension under Social Security, socialized medicine, the selection of additional post office quarters, the oil import problem.

Turning to the SW quarter, we find such subjects as helium, the salt content of the Colorado River, why TV should be free for the discussion of political issues between the Republican and Democratic parties, the sugar beet problem, the effect of TV shows on children, why Civil Service should be abolished, what additives should be allowed in foods, mistreatment of Indians in Arizona, why income tax should be abolished, raises in pay for federal workers, how to settle the water problems of the nation, and a number of communications with regard to the Summit meeting. One writer on the Summit matter advises that those in charge of the Summit failed to recognize "McCurke Law". He sent in an embossed copy of "McCurke Law" which reads as follows:

"Any improbable event which would create a maximum confusion if it did occur . . . will occur." There is no room in this newsletter to go into the NW or the SE quarters. We will cover that another day. But let me close by saying that each communication, whether it involves the shrimp fishing in the Gulf of Mexico or a TV antenna on top of Mt. McKinley is always welcome in this office and will receive the quickest attention possible. So long as we have that type of communication between the people and their elected representatives, we will have a strong link in the chain of independence.

Senate Body Holds Secret CIA Probe

By WARREN DUFFEE
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate's summit inquiry resumes today with a top-secret session to explore the hush-hush Central Intelligence Agency's role in the conduct of U.S. foreign policy.

CIA Director Allen W. Dulles was called to a closed hearing by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to explain the liaison between his agency and other government departments in the U.S. spy plane case.

Several committee members felt the degree of coordination between the CIA, State and Defense Departments and White House—or lack of it—was a key factor in events leading up to the summit conference collapse.

In concluding the program, Father Cashman stated that the scholastic rating of the school was made possible by the dedicated and diligent efforts of the teaching staff. The Incarnate Word Order of Teaching Sister supplies the staff of eight teachers, having established the school in 1937. The lay teachers are Mrs. Horace Prince, second grade and science instructor for the entire school, and Miss Christine Barr, kindergarten teacher.

"He always was sort of a problem to us," Collingsworth said. "Even in the eighth grade we had a hard time keeping him in school. He tended to be lazy by nature."

Mrs. Bessie Ross, a waitress at the Whiteway, recalled that Florence had been in the cafe shortly before the holdup, drinking coffee. "I knew when he walked back in with that gun that it was him," she said. "He had just left from drinking coffee here, and it couldn't have been more than five minutes before he came back with the gun."

Both Mrs. Perkins and Mrs. Ross came to the police station early this morning and identified Florence as the holdup man.

Reds Switch Izvestia To PM Paper

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union has its first national evening paper.

Izvestia, edited by Alexei Adzhubel, Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's son-in-law, switched from morning to evening publication with Monday's edition. Up to that time Moscow's 13 major dailies, two semi-weeklies and six thrice weeklies which are distributed throughout the country all appeared in the morning.

The capital's only local evening paper, Evening Moscow, has a hometown, folksy style and is not regarded as a major newspaper.

Switching Izvestia, the government newspaper, to evening publication is another step in Adzhubel's campaign to enliven and modernize the Soviet press, often called the world's dullest.

Early Marriages Stunting Mental Growth In U.S.

NEW YORK (UPI)—Anthropologist Margaret Mead warned today that the growing trend toward teen-age marriages could have serious consequences on the future of America.

Early marriage, she said in a copyrighted interview with U.S. News & World Report magazine, is now more prevalent in the United States than almost any area of the world.

"Early student marriage is domesticating boys so early they don't have a chance for full intellectual development," she said. "I think it's bad for women, too."

"Tremendous" number of broken marriages in the early age group. But parents share a good part of the blame for the trouble, she said.

Reacting to their own uncertainties stemming from wars and depressions, she said, parents in effect tell their children: "Take some enjoyment in life while you can get it. The future is totally uncertain."

As a result of this attitude, she said, parents "are driven to convincing with the youngsters in 'going steady.' They push the boys as well as the girls into courtship as early as possible and underwrite the marriage."

Storm Brews In Vanderbilt Race Dispute

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—The divinity school at Vanderbilt University was enmeshed in a growing storm of protest today over the university's refusal to readmit a Negro sitdown leader.

The dean, Dr. J. Robert Nelson, and nine other faculty members resigned in anger Monday night. At least 14 of the school's 120 ministerial students have threatened to quit and three former students who were graduated only two days ago said they would return their degrees.

The nine faculty members met shortly after Nelson announced his resignation and in a letter to Vanderbilt Chancellor Harvey Branscomb said: "In as much as three months of steady negotiations with the university administration have failed to produce any resolution of the issues involved in the dismissal of Lawson, we have reluctantly decided that we must resign."

The letter, expected to be presented formally to Branscomb today was signed by James E. Sellers, Ronald E. Sleeth, James Glass, Ladgon Bilkey, Lou H. Silberman, Gordon Kaufman, Arthur Forrester, Bard Thompson and Leander Keck.

Branscomb told United Press International Monday night "in a matter of this importance, involving so many numbers of the divinity school faculty, I do not think that I should act on these resignations but should refer them to the trustees of the university who will undoubtedly wish to examine the issues involved."

The protest is in support of former ministerial student James M. Lawson Jr. who was suspended from the divinity school for taking part in demonstrations aimed at desegregating lunch counters.

Nelson told Branscomb that his "flat refusal" to readmit Lawson was "a discrepancy of gross proportion." Branscomb announced earlier in the day that Lawson would not be readmitted because "it would initiate a conflict as long as he is on campus."

to belong to the federal government.

That bill also provided that state seaward boundaries would be "as they existed at the time such state became a member of the Union, or as heretofore approved by the Congress" but in no case more than three leagues into the Gulf.

The states claimed that this language automatically gave them ownership out to three leagues. But the Justice Department argued it merely gave the states an opportunity to prove their right to this territory in court.

The department has contended that no state boundary can exceed the traditional boundary of the nation — three nautical miles at sea.

El Paso men driving Ditta's car Thursday, but both were released after questioning. The men said the car was left at their service station for washing and greasing. When no one came back to claim it, they traced Ditta through the license number and called him in New Orleans. They said he offered to pay them to drive it back to him.

They got only about 50 miles from El Paso when highway patrolmen stopped them. Ditta said Monday night the car is still being held in El Paso, but he hoped to get it back soon.

Authorities meanwhile turned to the possibility the killer may have escaped into Mexico. Bachman said he couldn't reveal whether the FBI has asked Mexican authorities for aid in the search.

wonderful victory," a jubilant Wilson said.

"The importance of the fight to retain the oil-rich submerged lands lying between the three-mile limit and Texas' historic boundary of 10 1/2 miles cannot be over-emphasized," Wilson said.

"For in this disputed area lies a priceless heritage of oil-bearing property which is dedicated to the education of our children as well as future generations."

He said had the court found in favor of the U.S. government, Texas would have been "deprived" of two-thirds of traditional off-shore rights.

"This would have cost the school children of our state untold billions of dollars in future revenues," Wilson said.

Wilson said the decision also saved Texas taxpayers a federal claim for $20 million which Texas collected after passage of the 1955 Submerged Lands Act.

Miscellaneous accidents, homicides and suicides accounted for 11 of the total deaths.

The traffic toll for the same three-day period in 1954 was 29. Garrett Ellis Walls, 22, drowned in a water-filled pit in the Houston suburb of Galena Park Monday. Noah B. Shipman, 50, died when he was apparently struck by a train and fell off a 50-foot embankment in Wichita Falls.

Infants Are Carriers Of Bacteria

Science Today
UPI Science Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Medical science won't be astonished but you will be by the new evidence of how well staphylococcus bacteria are doing despite years of assaults by the antibiotics and better and better antiseptic techniques. Sixteen months after an outbreak of staphylococcal skin disease in a hospital nursery had been conquered and the new-born infants went home with their mothers, two scientists checked to see if there had been an aftermath. There had been, in plenty. Sixteen months afterward 26 infants still carried the bacteria which had been responsible for the outbreak. Furthermore, 32 mothers, two fathers, and 23 brothers and sisters also carried them. They had acquired them from the babies. Babies, children and adults were "carriers," without being sick.

While in the nursery, only 12 of 94 infants had had the skin disease. But after leaving the hospital, 31 more came down with it in time-bomb arterial attacks, as it were. The mothers of 16 infants too, along with 10 fathers and 23 acquired staphylococcal illness, too, along with 10 fathers and 23 brothers and sisters.

Drs. Valerie Hurst and Moss Grossman of the University of California Medical Center, San Francisco, supervised this large-scale swabbing of body parts for lingering staphylococci in order to verify the suspicion that babies may leave hospitals as carriers and for many months afterward pass their bacteria on to everyone around them.

"No other micro-organism can compete with the staphylococcus in its capacity to persist as a parasite in individuals or communities," remarked the authoritative medical science journal, "The Lancet." It cited older studies that proved some people have been carriers for as long as six years.

The trouble is that many strains are now resistant to most if not all the antibiotics, particularly those strains which maintain themselves in hospitals. Staphylococcus' strength is its ability to change its chemical nature enough by mutation to live despite an antibiotic.

Irving Fastest Growing City

IRVING, Tex. (UPI) — Irving holds the lead in the race for the fastest growing city in Texas title today.

The city, a suburb of Dallas, has an official population count of 45,489. Its rate of growth in the last 10 years was 1,736 per cent. The city had only 2,621 residents in 1950.

Mesquite — a Dallas county neighbor city, had claimed the honor with its 1,612 per cent rise, but later figures put Irving ahead. Mesquite went from 1,696 in 1950 to a present population of 27,345.

Sleepless Britons Ask:

Who Is Responsible For 'The Big Hum'?

By TOM A. CULLEN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

CANTERBURY, England (NEA) — In the peaceful apple orchards of East Kent, the garden basket of England, people are "walking around red-eyed, for lack of sleep. It's all because of the Big Hum, the mysterious noise which murders sleep and undermines the health of those who hear it. Nobody knows what causes the Big Hum. Some say that it comes from a secret atomic installation underground, others that it is caused by industrial equipment, such as dynamos, generators or cold storage plants.

Still others blame Russian radio-jamming techniques, or American radar devices. But nobody knows. Nor is the Big Hum confined to East Kent. I have seen letters from people as far apart as Cornwall and Dublin who complain of the noise, claiming that it is driving them batty. A few of the letters of them sound sincere. Others are from obvious cranks but

The Big Hum has been the subject of a question in Parliament, but the Ministries of Science, Supply and Aviation disclaim all responsibility for the noise. So do the electricity boards and the General Post Office, which is responsible for all telephone installations.

In a picturesque, timbered cottage in the village of Molash, Kent (population 259), I talked to heard novelist Edward Hyams and his wife, the couple who started the furor over the hum. Hyams, an ex-Royal Navy radar officer, hears the humming noise only occasionally. But his wife, who writes cook books, says: "I've tried everything to blot out the noise. I've put wax plugs in my ears, tied a woolen scarf around my head, taken sleeping pills and sat up in bed reading a book on How to Sleep by Relaxing, but it still does no good. My bedroom sounds as though it were a spinning top."

What does the hum sound like? "It is low-pitched and intermittent," Mrs. Hyams explained. "It is stronger inside the house than outside, louder at night than during the daytime; and on weekends it is worse."

Mrs. Hyams has been to every kind of a doctor, including one who checked her head for loose bones that might vibrate. All have given her a clean bill of health.

An electronics expert also tested Mrs. Hyams and found she had extremely sensitive hearing, picking up sounds at 30 cycles per second.

"I've had hysterics twice since the hum started," Mrs. Hyams continued. "And I'm not an hysterical person, I'm the phlegmatic type."

The couple began to feel that perhaps they were going daffy until the letters started flooding in. As a result of a press interview and a television appearance, Hyams has received over 400 letters from all parts of Britain complaining of the Big Hum. A large number have come from Kent.

Like Hyams, most of the letter-writers had had electric mains, telephone wiring, water pipes and electric appliances checked in an effort to eliminate the noise. But the writers differ in their description of the Big Hum. Some say that it is low-pitched and intermittent; others, that it is a continuous, high-pitched sound.

The Big Hum has other peculiarities. It is heard more distinctly near the sea coast than inland, it varies with the wind and fog magnifies it. Adults, apparently, are more prone to hear it than children.

Novelist Hyams, who is also something of a radar expert, has this possible explanation for the noise: "It may be that the hum is caused ed by two noises with different frequencies that travel underground like shock waves. In that case, a house could act as a resonator at the end of the sound wave.

MRS. HYAMS displays some letters from other sufferers.

"Mind you, we don't want to be unreasonable about it, but the authorities refuse to take us into their confidence. They treat us like children." His wife, who comes up to London frequently to get away from the Big Hum, agreed. "All we want is to live in peace and to enjoy our garden," she sighed. "Why should we be sound-ed out of our peaceful cottage by this dreadful noise?"

News In Brief

PENNY BRINGS SHOT

PACOIMA, Calif. (UPI)—Mrs. Joseph H. Smith, 45, told police she shot her husband in the foot Monday because he threw a penny to her after she asked for money to buy food. Police charged her with assault with a deadly weapon.

U.A.R. PLANE HIT

JERUSALEM, Israel (UPI)—A French-built Israeli Super-Mystere jet fighter was credited today with damaging an Egyptian MIG 17 over the Negev Desert last Thursday. The Egyptian plane was seen falling earthward with fragments falling earthward.

INDEPENDENCE "REMOTELY" NICOSIA, Cyprus (UPI)—Chances of Cyprus gaining its independence this summer are "extremely remote," well informed British sources said today. They said there were only 10 working days left in which an agreement could be reached if Cyprus is to become independent this summer.

VIGILANCE LAUDED

HONOLULU (UPI)—The surprise attack at Pearl Harbor could have been avoided if the United States had known as much about Japan in 1941 as it knows about Russia today, according to a Texas congressman.

Rep. Olin D. Teague (D-Texas) said "if we had been as vigilant in 1941, if we had known as much about what was going on in Japan as we know about Russia in 1960 — we would not be mourning our heroic dead here today."

Human Element Has Growing Role In Space Investigation

By ALVIN B. WEBB JR.
United Press International

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI)—America's multi-million dollar space program is getting a new flavor — the "human element."

The day when space was a "purely scientific" property is gone. U.S. research is swinging toward finding out more of what space can do for man and what man can do in space.

This shift is reflected in the jammed schedule of American space shots for the remainder of 1960. Rockets will carry tons of machinery into the skies to explore new ways of weather forecasting, communications, navigation and national defense.

The headline is the project named Mercury — America's first attempt to send a man to the edges of and then into space. The pressure is on because Russia too stands on the "man-in-space" brink.

U.S. scientists hope to send the spaceman's capsule on a short hop with a Redstone missile and then into orbit with an Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile here early this summer.

If all goes well, the first astronaut will ride a Redstone 80 miles above and 160 miles across the Atlantic in July or August. The first orbit attempt is slated for late 1961.

Two of the nation's most successful satellites — Tiros I, to take weather pictures, and a Transit 1-B, forerunner of a "radio star" for navigators to guide by — will get brothers within the next few months.

Tiros II and Transit 2-A, two of the first satellites to hold promises for man in his everyday life, are expected to be fired toward an orbit around earth by September. Operational systems are predicted for the next two years. Echo II, a 100-foot balloon, will be launched during the same period. The first Echo shot failed earlier this month. Operational Echo balloons will open the door to worldwide television, telephone and telegraph communications.

In a more secret area of communications, the Army hopes to send up two prototypes of its Courier satellite, the first within one month. Courier will enable American military headquarters to send taped messages to overseas bases. The Air Force has three satellite systems in the works to protect the nation—Midas, to warn against missile attacks; Samos, to take reconnaissance pictures; and Advent, to relay Midas and Samos information instantaneously to the ground.

The three systems will be fired from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif., into polar orbits, the first Midas prototype is in orbit, although plagued by troubles. Samos will get its first shot around August. Advent test models will be launched next year.

Project Discoverer, the Vandenberg-launched satellite that serves as a basis for Samos and Midas, will get several more trials this year.

Satellites for strictly scientific purposes—and prestige value—will be the rest of this year's schedule.

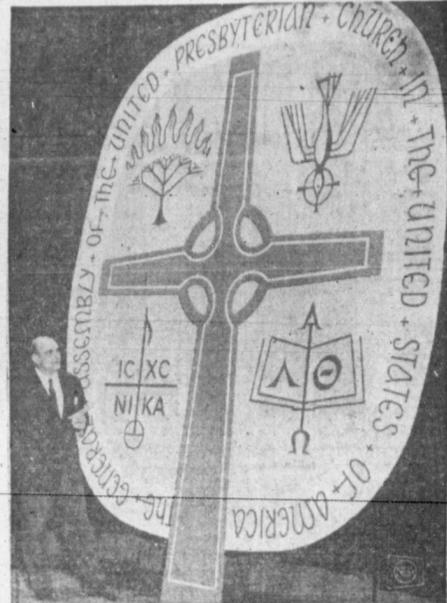

Atlas-Able rockets will launch a pair of satellites toward the moon the first around August or September and the second about November.

One lunar probe will take pictures of the far side of the moon's surface and relay them to earth. Pictures probably will be crude compared to the shots made by Lunik III, the earth-moon orbiter launched by Russia last October.

The nation's first chance to equal the payload weights of Russia's Sputnik and Lunik rockets will come late this year, when the Air Force gives its Titan intercontinental ballistic missile its initial space job.

Titan probably will try to throw a large payload into orbit around earth. Sources said it could orbit up to 11.0 pounds, of which 5,000 pounds would be working payload.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration will fire several Juno II rockets to study starting around September.

OFFICIAL SEAL—Delegates to the 172nd Presbyterian general assembly, in Cleveland, Ohio, were greeted by this big version of the new official seal of the assembly. Dr. Eugene Carson Blake, of Philadelphia, top executive officer of the church, is shown beside it. At upper left is the burning bush referred to in the Bible and long a symbol of the Church of Scotland. The dove at upper right symbolizes the Holy Spirit descending. The open Bible has the Greek letters Alpha and Omega—"the beginning and the end." Symbols, lower left, refer to interdenominational, interchurch co-operation in Christ. The Celtic cross is associated with earliest Christians.

The solid-fueled Scout rocket is expected to break into space research within a month. It will be fired to an altitude of more than 25,000 miles for radiation studies. Civilian scout rockets will be launched at Wallops Island, Va., and military models from here.

Ex-Followers Of Castro, Batista Agree on Alliance Against Fidel

ECHEGOYEN: He counts 75,000 others.

Newspaper Enterprise Assn. NEW YORK (NEA) — Ten groups of Cubans in the U.S., united in determination to overthrow Fidel Castro, have reached a tentative decision to pool their efforts in a determined attempt to open the eyes of the Cuban people to the menace of communism.

1. A powerful psychological warfare campaign aimed at revealing to Cubans the insidious growth of Communist influence in Havana. This would employ broadcast voice tapes, documents and reprisals smuggled out of Cuba by agents of the counter-revolution. "We will condemn them with their own words," one exile leader has said.

Interruption Well Taken

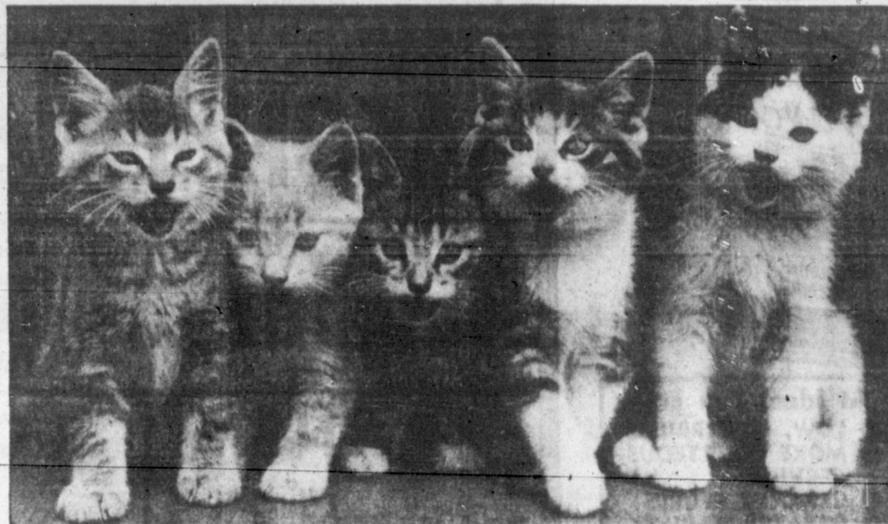

LUBBOCK (UPI)—A parent with a loud, clear voice interrupted graduation exercises at Texas Tech Monday night, but nobody minded.

What has happened is that leaders of these groups have just met secretly in Miami and "agreed to agree." A formal alliance and election of officers is expected to follow within a few weeks.

2. An eventual uprising within Cuba itself by men who already have the arms at hand to fight with.

Worry of FALSE TEETH Slipping or Irritating?

Don't be embarrassed by loose false teeth slipping, dropping or wobbling when you eat, talk or laugh. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH on your plates. This pleasant powder gives a remarkable sense of added comfort and security by holding plates more firmly. No gummy, gooey, pasty taste or feeling. It's alkaline (non-acid). Get FASTEETH at any drug counter.

Then we will ascend to a third floor hideaway near the center of the Capitol to see if we can catch Sen. Allen J. Ellender (D-La.) cooking gumbo. No memorial that I know of has a hot plate in the lavatory.

I plan to end it in the men's room at l'Espionage, a French restaurant. I had better not mention what the attraction is there, but I feel certain it will give the sightseers something to talk about when they get back home.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The word that Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller was thinking of being drafted for the Republican presidential nomination brought an instant quip at the National Press Club bar.

"That Rockefeller," quipped the quipper, "is the rich man's Stassen."

Stassen, he might have quipped, is the poor man's Rockefeller.

The governor and Harold E. Stassen are just about all that stand between Vice President Richard M. Nixon and the Republican nomination. They face the odds of Horatio at the bridge.

Stassen carries card No. 1 in the stop-Nixon organization. He issued the card to himself in the 1955-56 period when there was, first, some doubt that President Eisenhower could or would seek renomination and, later, some question whether Nixon would be renominated to run again with Ike.

Stassen finally had to cancel his own membership in the stop-Nixon union and all but eat his No. 1 card. That was during the Republican national convention in San Francisco when the Nixon steam roller was bearing down on Stassen, threatening to roll him flat. Stassen escaped that fate by a last minute leap to the safety of the convention speaker's platform.

Safe there, Stassen on Aug. 22, 1956, delivered a stirring second to Nixon's renomination. Some days earlier he had warned that Nixon on the ticket would cost Eisenhower millions of votes.

In his seconding speech, Stassen told the delegates he wanted to second the nomination of "the able and experienced Californian, Richard M. Nixon." The convention shortly responded with an enthusiastic renomination of Stassen's candidate. This was a political triumph for Stassen of no small dimensions.

Stassen moved on further to establish himself in the Republican Party leadership by engaging in some friction with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles. This led to Stassen's resignation as Eisenhower's special assistant for disarmament affairs.

Pennsylvania and Philadelphia thereafter rejected Stassen's candidacies for governor and mayor, respectively. His latest political activity is as a member of the Pennsylvania delegation to the Republican national convention. In that capacity Stassen is circulating warnings that Nixon cannot be elected president and that the Republicans should get another boy.

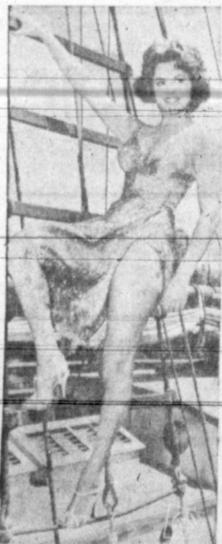

Rockefeller popped into the stop-Nixon picture with his election in 1958 as governor of New York. Any New York governor of any party is automatically likely presidential timber. Rockefeller felt the national political pulse last year. The pulse was not throbbing a Rockefeller rhythm so he benched himself, but not quite.

Now, the governor says he is willing to accept a draft. The Rockefeller's are a practical clan. It would be unreasonable to believe that the governor has any real expectation that he will be drafted. But he had to give New York politicians some alternative to Nixon's handwagon.

Rockefeller was in a spot. He offered himself with qualifications.

DEAR ABBY....

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am probably too old to be asking for help with this problem, but maybe I need someone to tell me to grow up.

I am 28 and still make the mistake of bringing my girl friends around for my family's approval. So far I haven't brought one girl home who could pass inspection.

DEAR ABBY: My son is serving his military obligation and there is a possibility that very soon he will be going overseas for a year or more.

He has expressed his desire to marry a girl (she is 18) when he comes home on leave. He says they are very much in love. Their plan is to get married so that his allowance will be increased.

DEAR MOTHER: I would like to encourage a 19-year-old from marrying and leaving an 18-year-old bride behind. If it's "true love," it will keep until his military obligation has been fulfilled.

DEAR ABBY: Kindly point out to "Annoyed-Grandma" that she could not have attended weddings of ALL denominations if she says that the best man never walks down the aisle.

In the Jewish faith, the best man DOES walk down the aisle, followed by the groom, who walks down between his mother and father. The bride also walks down the aisle, not with just her father, but with both parents.

DEAR ABBY: What is a girl supposed to do when a creep asks her to all the school dances year ahead of time? My mother won't let me go at all if I turn him down. But it isn't fair to be forced to go with this creep or not at all. Is it?

DEAR ABBY: Kindly point out to "Annoyed-Grandma" that she could not have attended weddings of ALL denominations if she says that the best man never walks down the aisle.

In the Jewish faith, the best man DOES walk down the aisle, followed by the groom, who walks down between his mother and father. The bride also walks down the aisle, not with just her father, but with both parents.

DEAR ABBY: What is a girl supposed to do when a creep asks her to all the school dances year ahead of time? My mother won't let me go at all if I turn him down. But it isn't fair to be forced to go with this creep or not at all. Is it?

Rathmann Wins 500 When Ward Conks Out

Poor Pit Start Cost Ward The Victory

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — Roger Ward let up on the throttle trying to get started from the pits, and thus gave up victory in the annual 500 mile Speedway race to a three-time runner-up, Jim Rathmann.

Rathmann, who finished second in 1952, 1957 and 1959, rolled home in record speed, 136.74 miles per hour, before more than 175,000 fans Monday, and his prize check tonight probably will exceed $10,000.

But it was Ward, who won in 1956 and pushed just a trifle harder on the throttle when he made his first pit stop, the chances are Rathmann wouldn't be sitting at the victory banquet head table.

Ward's crew changed his tires and filled the fuel tank in 21 seconds. As they pushed him off to get back into the chase, Ward's motor died. It took another 28 seconds for the crew to push him back into position and start his engine.

Rathmann was about 13 seconds in front at the finish line, but he and Ward had a seesaw duel for the last 150 miles. One would hold the lead three or four laps, then the other would sweep in from a 145-mile-per-hour pace.

And Rathmann's margin was less than a second, when Ward had to let up with three laps to go, his fuel nearly gone and his tires badly worn from the excess speed he hit to make up the 28 seconds lost in the pits.

"I was afraid my gas wouldn't hold out," Ward said. A post-race check showed he was correct, but he was no worse off than Rathmann. The winner's crew chief, Chuck Hirotsima, told him he had enough fuel for "about one more turn of the track."

The race set speed records at all marking points except three. These were the first lap and at 110 and 120 laps. The pace fell below the record at the latter points only because the yellow caution flag, requiring slow speeds, was on twice for extended periods.

The yellow light was on for 29 minutes and 7 seconds altogether, but only one driver was injured. Eddie Russo was hurt when his car hit the wall on the southeast turn.

Death came not on the track but beside it when two spectators, William C. Craig, 37, of Zionsville, Ind., and Fred H. Linder, 23, of Indianapolis, were killed in the collapse of a homemade grandstand brought into the track by a spectator on two trucks and erected inside the northeast turn.

The first three finishers broke the old record speed of 135.87 set by Ward last year. It was uncertain whether Paul Goldsmith, St. Clair Shores, Mich., or Branson, of Champan, Ill., was third, but they occupied the next two positions and the official placing will

Brain Surgery For Houston Pug After Florida Knockout

PENSACOLA, Fla. (UPI) — Ernie Tubbs, a welterweight from Houston, Tex., underwent brain surgery in a hospital here Monday night after being knocked out in a preliminary bout in Pensacola's first professional boxing show in the last eight years.

Tubbs failed to regain consciousness after he was knocked out by Bill (Buzzaaw) Crosby in the last round of their scheduled eight-round bout.

Tubbs fell over the bottom ring rope and some observers believed that his head struck the edge of the ring.

In the feature bout on the program, unranked welterweight Nolan Duplessis of New Orleans counter-punched smoothly and defended well to earn a draw with Ray Portilla of Houston, Tex., who is ranked 10th by the National Boxing Assn. Duplessis weighed 148½ pounds and Portilla 140.

Bally Ache Wins As Bettors Plunge

Victories by Bally Ache and Bald Eagle in Monday's richest horse races were overshadowed by unprecedented betting apneas by record crowds.

Bally Ache, the Preakness winner, defeated Tompon by a neck in their head-and-head duel for the $77,995 first money in the $122,500 Jersey Derby at Garden State Park. Bald Eagle earned $74,250 with a 2½ length triumph over First Landing in the $114,200 Metropolitan Handicap at Aqueduct.

Those amounts were just chicken feed compared to the sums bet by record throngs at those two tracks.

The biggest racing crowd in New York history — 79,419 — watched the highest one-day figure in thoroughbred history, $5,560,428, at Aqueduct. The previous high was $5,616,745, set at Belmont Park Sept. 22, 1945. The old high for a New York racing crowd was $4,870, recorded at Jamaica May 30, 1945.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Battered, swollen-jawed Mickey Mantle, victim of one of the worst mob scenes in Yankee Stadium's history, insisted today he never hit anyone purposely and "anyone who said I did is a damn liar."

His face still bruised and puffed up from the mauling he took Monday, Mantle nevertheless accompanied the Yankees to Baltimore early today and expected to be in the lineup against the Orioles tonight.

Mantle will be unable to chew his food for the next three days as a result of the pummeling he received. He's not complaining, though. He says it could have been far worse.

Complaints from people who described themselves as irate parents, however, came into the Yankee Stadium switchboard that Mantle had purposely swung at some children who mobbed him Monday shortly after he made the final putout in the nightcap of a doubleheader against the Washington Senators.

The disorder began moments after the 28-year-old outfielder had grabbed Julio Becquer's liner to nail down a 3-2 victory for the Yankees. Mantle caught the ball in left-center and then headed for the dugout. Almost immediately an excited portion of the 42,927 fans vaulted over the fence and ran onto the field and converged on the Yankee Mar.

"Four or five kids tried to grab my cap just as I got to second base," Mantle said. "One of them hit me on the chin with his elbow and another with his shoulder."

"Then all of them started shoving, punching and pushing for a while. I didn't think I was going to make the dugout. I never saw anything like it in my life."

Bucs, Orioles Lead Packs Past The Quarter Mark

By JOHN GRIFFIN
United Press International

Just to make the "experts" feel even worse than they already do, the upstart Pittsburgh Pirates and Baltimore Orioles led the way past the Memorial Day milestone in the pennant races Monday because of the hitting of a trio of castoffs.

Ex-Dodger Gino Cimoli was the Pirates' big gun on the holiday as Pittsburgh took sole possession of first in the National League by winning a single game from the Milwaukee Braves, 3-1.

And ex-Yankee Gene Woodling and ex-Giant Jackie Brandt swung the heavy lumber for the Orioles in the doubleheader split that enabled them to hold the top spot in the American League by one game over the Cleveland Indians.

But that's the way things have been going in this hectic season as the Pirates and Orioles defy the law of gravity and insist on staying ahead of the teams picked by the "experts."

Cimoli, a forgotten man last year when the Dodgers traded him for Wally Moon, drove in four runs on a triple, double and single Monday. The Pirates downed the Braves. The second game of the twin bill at Pittsburgh was rained out — so this victory enabled the Pirates to go a half-game ahead of the San Francisco Giants, who split a doubleheader.

The Giants dropped a 2-1 decision to the Chicago Cubs before Willie Mays' wondrous base-running helped them to a 5-4 victory in the nightcap. In other National League games, the Philadelphia Phillies lost their seventh straight game, 5-4, in 10 innings to Cincinnati and then snapped the streak with a 6-1 win in the nightcap, and St. Louis crushed Los Angeles, 15-3, in a night game.

In the American League, the Orioles downed the Boston Red Sox, 7-5, before Boston snapped Baltimore's four-game winning streak in the nightcap, 12-3. Cleveland moved within a game of first by sweeping Chicago, 4-1 and 9-4; Kansas City swept Detroit, 7-6 and 8-2; and the New York Yankees beat Washington, 3-2, after losing the opener, 2-1.

The Pirates ripped Warren Spahn and his successors for 14 hits. Dick Groat bagging four to back up Cimoli's slugging.

Earl Averil drove in both runs for the Cubs in their opening win over the Giants with a single and a squeeze bunt, while pitchers Bob Anderson and Don Elston combined to hold the Giants to five hits. Homers by Jim Hegan and Bob Will brought the Cubs from behind in the nightcap but Mays walked to open the Giant ninth and came all the way around with the winning run on Willie McCovey's single and a bad relay to the plate by Jerry Kindall.

Gene Conley went all the way for the Phils in their opener, but Vada Pinson scored Cincinnati's winning run in the 10th when he singled, stole second, and rode home on Gus Bell's single. Johnny Buzhardt pitched a six-hitter to win the second game.

At Los Angeles, Bill White drove in six runs with four hits, including two homers, to lead the Cardinals in their 16-hit rout of the Dodgers.

Woodling cracked a two-run homer to pull the Orioles even in their opener against Boston and Brandt put them ahead to stay with a two-run triple. However, Boston, beaten eight straight times by Baltimore, ended the skein in the nightcap with a 15-hit attack.

Cleveland blasted Chicago as Early Wynn and Bob Shaw for big innings in scoring their sweep. The Tribe drove out Wynn in the seventh of the opener with four runs and chased Shaw in a six-run uprising in the fourth of the nightcap.

The A's won their 11-inning opener when Hank Foltes' pinch-hitter drove in the winning run.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Ex-Minnesota leftback Richard Baskely has a signed with the Boston Patriots of the new American Football League. Baskely was named to the All-Army football team in 1957.

Horsing Around Injury May Draw Phils' Meyer Fine

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — A stiff punishment—and not sympathy—is what pitcher Jack Meyer of the Philadelphia Phillies will get from the club's new manager, Gene Mauch.

Mauch said Monday night that the pitcher's back pains which put him in the hospital for examination were the result of "horsing around" in his hotel room in Pittsburgh Sunday night.

The skipper added tartly that Meyer "will draw more than a severe reprimand."

Meyer, the Phils' leading pitcher, was with teammates in his room at the time, according to a source close to the Phillies who also said the pitcher eventually was pacified by his roommate, outfielder Harry Anderson.

Mauch did not explain further what penalty he had in mind for the pitcher. Meyer was admitted to Jefferson Hospital Sunday after he complained of back pains.

The Phils had two other players injured Monday and a coach resigned because of his health. Catcher Jim Cokey was struck on the right thumb by a foul tip in the first game of the holiday doubleheader against Cincinnati but examination at Temple University hospital disclosed no fracture. Outfielder John Callison hurt his left knee in the sixth inning of the same game when he was thrown out sliding at the plate.

Third base coach Dick Carter resigned. A club spokesman said he was suffering from high blood pressure.

Steelers Sign Three

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Pittsburgh Steelers signed three tackles today for the 1960 season. They are Earl Butler of North Carolina, Larry Eisenmacher of Indiana University and Alma (Mich.) College and Dick Loncar of Northeastern (LaS) State.

Johnny Kuhn gave up only one hit in spinning the Culberson win but the Hawkins-Schafer batters got pretty fair mileage out of it, scoring ten runs. Walks coupled with a pair of errors comprised the losers' offense.

Kuhn, Gary Green, and Gary Parrish rapped doubles to lead the Culberson attack on losing pitcher Fred Tinsley.

Larry Turcotte scattered four hits through five innings to chalk up the win for Shelby Ruff. His teammates treated him to a 7-0 first inning lead and added four

Piersall Calls Scoreboard 'Big Joke'; Veeck Indignant

BY GENE BLUDEAU
United Press International

CHICAGO (UPI) — Bill Veeck and Jimmy Piersall clashed today over Veeck's $340,000 scoreboard which Piersall called "baseball's biggest joke."

Veeck, president of the Chicago White Sox who had the many-angled marvel installed this spring didn't think it was a joking matter at all.

He told the temperamental outfielder for the Cleveland Indians, "You can do all the fit-gunning around you want in the park, but stay off that scoreboard."

Veeck called the Indians' dressing room immediately after the White Sox. This was had enough, but Piersall laid on the finishing touch when, after making the last put-out of the afternoon in centerfield, he wheeled around and scored a direct hit on the scoreboard with the ball.

"This Piersall is a good, decent kid, and he can clown around all he wants with the umpires, but I told him that if he tries that once more I am going to do something drastic," Veeck said after.

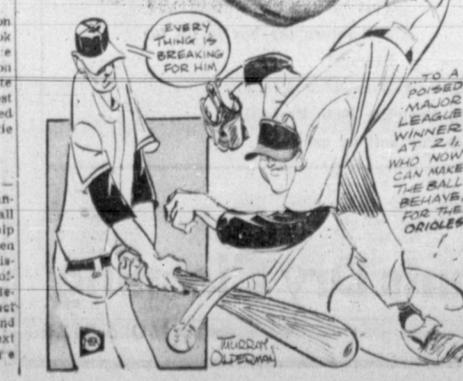

What could he do? "You just watch that Sox 0-0 game tonight if he acts up," Veeck said. "I can't put any message I want to on that, and I've already got one in mind."

Sox-ograms occupy the huge right third of the scoreboard as lighted messages are flashed at intervals during the game. Thus far, they have carried such innocuous information as "Today is Turk Lown's birthday," or "Minnesota is now second in league standings."

For his part, Piersall said he had no plans to damage the board in the future.

"But I didn't feel that way about it yesterday," he said. "Just as I caught that last ball, some fan hit me in the back of the head with an orange. I couldn't see who did it, so I took a shot at the scoreboard which is a joke. Baseball's biggest joke as far as I'm concerned."

Hawaii Wastes No Time As Paradise

By WARD CANNEL
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

HONOLULU (NEA) — With grim determination and every muscle flexed, Hawaii is fulfilling her statehood by aiming to be America's No. 1 vacationland instead of wasting time as a tropical island paradise.

"It is the least we can do," one businessman said at a recent policy-making breakfast.

"After all, we're a state now. And you can't lure your fellow Americans out here and then not have anything to offer them for their vacations except sunshine and seashore."

Consequently, and after considerable research, responsible Hawaiian investors are:

—Throwing up a barricade of new, flashy hotels at Waikiki Beach to make that traditional playground as satisfactory as Miami Beach or Atlantic City.

—Adding the little extras that make a vacation memorable—the raising prices in cocktail lounges at sunset.

At the same time, a high-powered campaign is under way to lure retired Mainlanders to Hawaii as permanent residents.

Purchase of property on the island of Oahu — where Honolulu lies — is almost out of the question. Most of the good land belongs to old trusts and estates which are not about to sell the golden goose.

They will lease the land to you for 99 years, leaving you to build your own home and pay the mortgage and taxes. When land is for sale, the price runs from $2 to $30 per square foot.

Rentals in Honolulu are high, too. A small two-and-a-half room apartment will cost about $100 per month and up. Whether you lease or rent, you'll certainly want to have a beach home away from the city's hustle.

Long-time residents, of course, try to take their vacations in mainland U.S.

So, while life can be beautiful in Honolulu, it can also be expensive if you plan to make proper use of the geography.

"Many of us can't afford either a beach home or a mainland vacation," one young economist said. "So we get our kicks by getting up at dawn and going down to Waikiki to watch the tourists."

For those who do not like to get up early for recreation, there are dozens of brightly-lighted, gaily-colored used car lots which stay open quite late. Prices, however, run about $300 higher than on the mainland.

On the other hand, there are tremendous savings available to residents. You do not need winter clothes or household heating systems. And you can get a mongoose for a song to keep the rats away.

The community, therefore, is growing. The Hawaiian Telephone Company reports installation of about 3,500 new phones in the past year.

Now, it may be a little unsettling to new, four-square American residents to find their Hawaiian neighbors are more than 30 per cent Japanese in origin and only about 20 per cent Caucasian. On the other hand, Hawaii is a real state of Americans regardless of origin. More than 70 per cent of crimes here are committed by juveniles.

For those who want to buy land, the best deals are available on the island of Hawaii — usually called the Big Island — rather than on Oahu where Honolulu, the capital of Hawaii, lies.

This confusion in names and places is not a scheme by shrewd real estate manipulators, but is rather the fault of ancient Polynesians who had more islands than vocabulary words.

"We try to make this distinction clear to land buyers," a big realtor David Watanui explained. "We explain that the land they are buying is 200 miles away from Honolulu and accessible only by air at the present time."

"I certainly hope they understand that."

Wonder Drug Costs Eyed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate drug investigators today turned their attention to charges that antibiotic "wonder" drugs are costing the public too much money.

Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.) and his Senate antitrust and monopoly subcommittee also indicated they had some more questions to ask about an ousted Food and Drug Administration official.

Called to testify were Welfare Secretary Arthur S. Flemming and George P. Larrick, head of the FDA.

The dismissed official was Dr. Henry Welch, former chief of the government agency's antibiotics division, who allegedly made $287,242 over the past decade from interests in private medical publications.

Other congressional news: Minimum wage — A House education and labor subcommittee also went behind closed doors to continue its consideration of legislation to boost the federal hourly minimum wage.

Fishing: A House marine and fisheries group weighed a proposal to establish a federal fishing stamp which would permit anglers to use one license for all states willing to sign such a compact.

FAITH RESTORED — PORTSMOUTH, England (UPI) — Company director Ernest Brewer said his faith in human nature was restored when he received an unsigned letter containing $33.61. The letter said the $33.60 was money "I stole from your father 50 years ago."

Anti-Commie Nations Meet

By RUTHERFORD POATS
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Southeast Asia anti-Communist Allies meet here today to consider the prospect of an intensified cold war and new Chinese Communist moves following the summit collapse.

The Philippines seized notice that it would make a major issue of its demand that the eight-nation SEATO alliance take on the job of raising Asiatic living standards in an effort to attract new members.

This proposal appeared likely to stir the biggest behind-the-scenes controversy at the sessions mostly closed. The United States and Britain contend that other organizations with broader membership are better suited for handling economic aid to SEATO's Asian members.

Philippine Foreign Secretary Felixberto Serrano said some other Asian nations might abandon their suspicion of SEATO and join the pact if it developed a "constructive" economic role.

He proposed that the United States and other wealthy Western members channel increased economic aid in the form of development loans through SEATO to its Asian members — the Philippines, Pakistan and Thailand and other anti-Communist countries which may be attracted to join.

Far Eastern Tour By Ike Is Expanded

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Eisenhower will expand his Far Eastern trip to include visits to the Philippines, Nationalist China and Okinawa, the White House announced today.

The President already had been scheduled to visit Japan and Korea on the tour starting June 12.

The White House made available a rough outline of the expanded itinerary shortly before Eisenhower had lunch with members of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said the addition of the Philippines, Okinawa and Taipei — where the President will see Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek — was made possible by cancellations of plans to spend nine days in Russia.

Pasternak, Nobel Prize Winner Dead

By HENRY SHAPIRO
United Press International

MOSCOW (UPI) — Non-conformist poet Boris Pasternak, 70, died Monday night in a Communist Russia that reluctantly was beginning to acknowledge his greatness.

The gaunt, white-haired man of letters — who in 1958 was awarded the Nobel Prize but renounced it under bitter political pressure — was conscious at the end. He spent his last few minutes in the bedroom of his dacha in suburban Peredelkino talking with his three sons.

Death came at 4 p.m. e.d.t. after a three week struggle against the combined ravages of two heart attacks, a bleeding stomach, pneumonia and lung cancer.

The finest medical specialists which the government could muster fought vainly to save him.

His presence demonstrated an official concern about Pasternak that was in striking contrast to denunciations of two years back which followed the publication in Western nations of his "Dr. Zhivago."

Deemed too critical of the Communist revolution in Russia, the book was never published domestically. When Pasternak was named for the Nobel Prize — in large part for "Dr. Zhivago" — the regime was seriously embarrassed and the author paid the penalty by being expelled from the writers' union and condemned publicly as a "traitor" and "libel-er."

Pasternak, a free-willed artist who never had been more than barely tolerated by the Communists, faced this chastisement stoically and appeared to be returning by degrees to public favor when his last illness struck.

The official press, however, carried no immediate announcement of his death, apparently because of his expulsion from the writers' union.

A member of the Pasternak family said the burial probably would take place Wednesday or Thursday in the local village cemetery.

The cemetery lies a few hundred yards from the poet's villa on the banks of a sleepy stream which runs through a pine forest. Pasternak in the two years in which he lived in semi-retirement in Peredelkino, loved to take walks there and it was his express wish to be buried nearby.

A maid at the villa was crying when she told a UPI correspondent "the master is dead."

She said almost all the members of the family, his wife Zinaida and a brother, as well as his three sons, virtually had collapsed from sleeplessness and grief.

Authorities Promise Probe Of Scaffolding That Dealt Death

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — Authorities promised today to investigate why private operators were permitted to build the makeshift stand that collapsed just before the start of the Indianapolis 500 race, killing two persons and injuring more than 75.

"The speedway shouldn't permit those types of towers to be erected," said Marion County Coroner Roy B. Storms.

Speedway officials said they would issue a statement later today after a conference with attorneys.

More than 100 screaming fans were hurled to the ground when the aluminum piping stands slowly swayed forward, then fell. Two men died in the tangled wreckage of aluminum piping and 20-foot wooden planks.

One of the dead, Fred H. Linder, 35, of Indianapolis, had erected the grandstand with his brother in law, Wilbur H. Shortz, age 37. The other victim was William C. Craig, 37, of Zionsville, Ind.

More than 20 persons were hospitalized. Two were still in serious condition today.

The grandstand that toppled was one of many that dot the infield of the 2 1/2 mile oval on race day. Owners charge $5 to $10 a seat.

The one that collapsed was 25 feet high and had nine tiers of seats. It was erected on the speedway's northeast turn, noted for freak racing accidents.

The trio escaped from the third floor of the jail sometime between 3 and 4 a.m. Method of the escape was undetermined, according to Dispatcher David Rasmann. Rasmann lives on the third floor of the jail.

All three were under charges of theft or robbery — Richards and Taylor on theft and Whipple on armed robbery.

Deputy Sheriff Arnold Walzel arrested Richards and Whipple. Taylor, who was believed to be unarmed, was at large in the Woodsboro area.

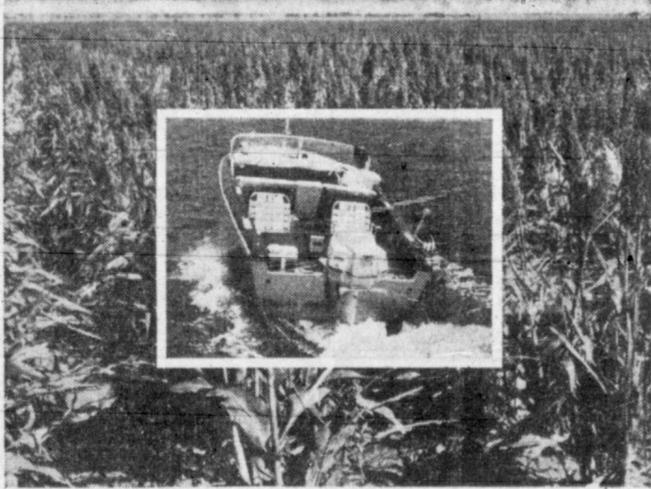

The 20-year-old escapee was described as being five feet, five inches tall, weighing about 125 pounds with brown hair and brown eyes. He is white.

It was the first jail break on record in Refugio. Rasmann said.

Raise a motor boat in a sorghum field?

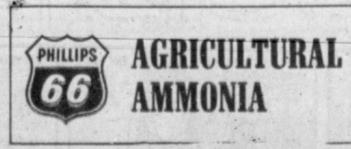

It's not fantastic! And here is why:

A well-known Texas farmer with 250 acres of maize reported a yield increase of 1625 pounds per acre after application of Phillips 66 Ammonia. He cut a total of 7250 extra bushels of grain and netted $4050 in extra profits after deducting the cost of ammonia. You can buy a pretty classy boat and motor for $4050.

Ask your Phillips 66 Distributor to show you the ways this 82% nitrogen fertilizer can help you live better through higher profits per acre.

	Using Phillips Ammonia	Without Ammonia
Fixed Cost Per Acre	$39	$39
Ammonia Cost Per Acre	$7	—
Yield Per Acre	97 bu.	66 bu.
Net Profit Per Acre	$31.60	$15.40
INCREASED PROFIT PER ACRE $16.20

The new location of Bill Thompson's Pampa Typewriter Co. at the corner of W. Foster and Hobart, has been designed with the convenience of the customer in mind.

There's plenty of parking space in front of the building, and at the side. No longer do customers have to carry heavy, bulky office machines.

"If the people will just get them here, we'll carry them inside," Thompson said.

Thompson has the exclusive franchise to sell brand new Royal typewriters, the only authorized Royal dealer in Pampa.

The machines are priced to fit any budget — portables ranging from $97 upwards to the modern electric office machines which run as high as $600.

And, the new Royals are available in five different color schemes.

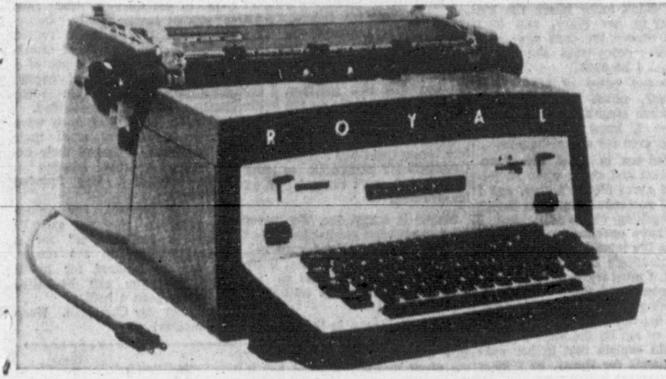

Thompson specializes in office machine repairs, and is one of the most experienced repairmen in the Top O' Texas area. He has had more than 20 years experience in repairing all types of office machines, including adding machines and calculators.

President To Discuss Coming Far East Trip With SEATO

By MERRIMAN SMITH
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Eisenhower was expected to tell members of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO) today about the most difficult personal diplomatic mission he has yet undertaken, his Far Eastern trip beginning June 12.

Details of the trip will be made public shortly. The President, according to informed sources, planned to discuss his journey with senior SEATO delegates during a White House luncheon today.

The trip, coming in the face of anti-American riots in Japan, was expected to last at least two weeks, "bringing the President back to Washington shortly before Congress quills for the national political conventions. Eisenhower should be back in Washington on or about June 26.

Originally scheduled to visit only Japan and Korea, the President has been able to expand his Far East mission tremendously because Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev withdrew his invitation for a nine-day Eisenhower visit to Russia.

The trip as currently planned will cover well over 20,000 miles and will take the President to Alaska, the Philippines, Formosa, Japan, Korea, plus a visit to Okinawa, and home via Hawaii where he will rest for a few days.

One advance party of White House security experts and other planning personnel was scheduled to leave Washington today. Later this week, another White House party including Thomas E. Stephens, appointment secretary to the President; Press Secretary James C. Hagerty, and Col. William G. Draper, the President's pilot and Air Force aide, will cover the route of the Far Eastern swing.

Eisenhower is undertaking the trip knowing that Japan recently has been rocked by demonstrations and riots against the government of Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi for concluding the new U.S.-Japanese security treaty. The Japanese Socialists have objected bitterly to the Eisenhower visit.

Houston Board Readies Plan For Integration

HOUSTON (UPI) — Officials of the Houston school system...

Officials of the Houston school system largest in the nation with its schools still segregated plan to submit a plan of token integration tomorrow to U.S. District Judge Ben Connally.

In all likelihood Connally will reject it.

The school board voted Monday night to integrate one high school, one junior high school and one elementary school, all in the same area of the city.

Officials say in a letter to the board two weeks ago that he would not accept an area preference plan of desegregation, and Weldon Barry, an attorney for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said he would ask Connally to reject it.

Stone Wells, the school board member who drew up the plan, said its purposes are "compliance with orders of federal courts and a program of no forced integration."

Children who attend the integrated schools would do so on a voluntary basis, Wells said, and each of them would have to take a medical examination before admittance. Integration would begin in September of 1961.

The board adopted the plan by a 5-1 vote, with one member abstaining. The only "no" vote was cast by Mrs. Charles E. White, a Negro.

"The plan not only is in defiance of Judge Connally but it is an insult to the entire school system and its patrons," Mrs. White said. "I cannot under any circumstances vote for such a plan."

The three schools to be integrated would be chosen by Supt. of Schools John McFarland and his staff, after they make a survey of suitable areas for integration and after a referendum election to be held Saturday.

Under Texas law, schools cannot be integrated unless a majority of the district's voters favor it. If they are integrated without a favorable vote, the state can withdraw state funds and accreditation, and school officials can be fined.

Foreign News

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign Editor

A small note of caution has been sounded amid general approval of the army's seizure of power in Turkey.

It springs from the knowledge that power acts as a drug, and that the user, once having obtained it, may not easily surrender it.

A military government may be only a step for democracy in transit, or it may be a symbol of a democracy that failed. But regardless of the ideals of the leaders, high or low, one thing they have in common:

They can permit no opposition, until such time as it suits their own convenience.

Army-backed regimes dot the world.

In this hemisphere, Gen. Alfredo Stroessner and his Colorado Party rule Paraguay with an iron hand.

In Cuba, Fidel Castro says opposition to his regime is a criminal offense and says frankly elections are far in the future.

Nicaragua has its Somozas and the Dominican Republic its Trujillos.

To these, there are also notable exceptions.

A military junta in Brazil stepped in and assured that President Juscelino Kubitschek could take office after it appeared that a plot was under way to nullify his election by free voters. In Venezuela a military junta stepped aside to permit President Romulo Betancourt to take office, even though the two had decided differences of political opinion.

Other examples exist throughout the world.

In Burma a military regime stepped aside to return the government to democratic civilian control. In Egypt and Iraq those two great rivals, Abdel Gamal Nasser and Gen. Abdul Karim Kassem, took office through military uprisings that cast out monarchs.

As national heroes it is possible both could be elected to their high office.

But neither yet has felt that the burning zeal of his own revolutionary spirit has spread sufficiently to the people to permit free elections.

This is the problem faced by Turkey, freed less than 40 years ago from the sultans and still a newcomer to democracy.

What gives hope that this is not a transfer from the near-dictatorship of the Menderes regime to the total dictatorship of an army officer in the character of the man who now is Turkey's acting head of state.

He is Lt. Gen. Cemal Gursel. Earlier this month he retired as commander of Turkish land forces with the admonition: "Stay out of politics."

Science Toys Spur Year Round Sales

By ELMER C. WALZER
UPI Financial Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—In the good old days—for parents—kids got their toys at Christmas time, and that was that.

Now, say the toy makers, toy buying is rapidly becoming a year around activity.

The toy manufacturers of the USA, Inc., representing 450 toy-makers, estimate that 25 per cent of their toys—$562 million worth—is bought for boys and girls in the 10 months between January and October.

Toy-makers sum up the reason for this change to one word—science.

Adults, they assert, are turning more and more to scientific pursuits. Children try to emulate their elders, hence the swing to science toys.

A. C. Gilbert Co., of New Haven Conn., started production of science toys before electronics became popular. It now reports the science boom has brought a favorable change in demand for them.

"Year around sales of our toys has been rising rapidly with the popular appeal generated by science toys," says A. C. Gilbert, Jr., president.

"American five trains which contributed almost two-thirds of the company's volume as recently as four years ago, now account for only one-third."

Gilbert reports last year's sales rose more than a million dollars over 1958, and this year the 51-year-old company looks for a 10 per cent rise in sales over 1959.

"Unquestionably, science toys are the sales leaders," says Gilbert. "And the rise in their popularity on a year-round basis helps the others along too."

A. C. Gilbert Co., has increased the scope of its chemistry sets, physics sets and telescopes, and added a new electrical engineering line to meet demand from science-oriented youngsters.

New outlets are taking a big part in the sale of toys as the science boom generates new demand for this type of toy.

Sales of toys has spread to hardware stores, drug stores, supermarkets, stationery stores, and to supply stores and even beauty shops.

Specialty toy stores which numbered 200 about 25 years ago now total 2,500, operating throughout the year.

The rising juvenile population also plays a part. From 1950 to 1959 the number of children up to 14 years old rose from 40.5 million to 54.9 million, a gain of 35 per cent in 10 years.

Also in that period, disposable personal income increased 61 per cent from $207.7 billion in 1950 to $334.4 billion in 1959.

Retail toy sales have risen faster than either of these. In 1959 they totaled $771 million. In 1958 the total was $1,608,000,000. That's a gain of 108 per cent.

Gilbert sums up reasons for the rocketing sales of science toys as follows:

"The continuing parade of phenomenal scientific accomplishments—increased attraction of science as a career, fostered by stepped up science programs in the schools.

"Natural desire on the part of children to imitate and participate in the activities of the adult world.

"Intensified merchandising efforts by the toy industry.

"A sharp rise in the number of children whose parents have more money to spend on toys."

Minister Urges Break With Soviet

DALLAS (UPI) — Wayne Poucher, Washington radio commentator, said Monday the way to fight Communism is for the United States to break diplomatic relations with all Communist countries.

He said it would sound the death knell for Communism within a year's time.

"If we were to break off relations with them, Communist governments would begin toppling all over the world," Poucher said.

The commentator, a Church of Christ minister who puts on a patriotic and religious program, got my mail at Leavenworth, he added.

It's probably just coincidence, but the Constitution Party endorsed FBI chief J. Edgar Hoover as its choice for President.

called "Life Line," was in Dallas on a speaking tour.

He said Russian Premier Nikita Khrushchev was "fighting for his very life when he kept President Eisenhower out of Russia."

Poucher theorized that Khrushchev tried to work up anti-U.S. sentiment and failing, had to withdraw his invitation to Eisenhower because he was afraid Russians would give him a vigorous welcome.

Simple Way To Report Tax

AUSTIN (UPI)—Julian Minier of Waco, Tex., figures he's got the income tax problem licked.

Minier spoke Monday to the convention of the Constitution Party of Texas, which favors abolition of the income tax.

Every April 15 for the past several years, Minier said, he's done his tax this way:

"Put your name and address at the top of the form, then scratch everything else out and write at the bottom that you refuse to answer their questions for fear that you might tend to incriminate yourself," he said.

He admitted he is having a little trouble with the U.S. government for following that formula in 1957, 1958 and 1959.

"Maybe a year from today I'll

We Can Compete

Today there is a rising clamor from a certain segment of our business community. This segment is fearful of competition from beyond our shores. It cries out for some kind of a protective tariff wall to keep lower priced European or Asiatic goods from the shelves of our stores.

We can understand this fear for we have seen it many times. But unfortunately, the fear springs from a failure to grasp certain economic facts of life and not from any real necessity for some kind of predatory and restrictive tariff.

Thirty to forty years ago, wheat grown in the western part of this nation was harvested and sent to China, there to sell at a price which brought a profit to all persons engaged in the business.

Yet, here we see what is apparently an inexplicable mystery - wheat raised in the United States where high wages were paid shipped to China where wheat was raised in an area of low wages.

Why? The answer is found in a well-worn but useful economic phrase. It is "the unit cost of production." While Chinese wages were low and American wages were high, the amount and quality of wheat raised by the high priced American was so great compared to the amount and quality raised by the low priced Chinese, that it was profitable for Chinamen to buy American wheat.

If it takes one man with the right kind of tools to produce 30,000 bushels of wheat in America, and it takes 100 men to produce 5,000 bushels of wheat in China, what matter if the American earns higher wages?

This is the point. For today the condition noted arise from the very tendency of Mr. Lippmann, Mr. Stevenson, Mr. MacLeish and others, to get us all to UNITE on something, anything, just so long as we are united?

Why do we have to unite? Why cannot Mr. A dream of making his own fortune in his own way; Mr. B dream of creating a better mousetrap; and Mr. C dream of a cottage for himself and his beloved, without any necessity that Mr. A, B and C UNITE in some great purpose? Isn't this the American dream?

And he goes on to ask, "What's happened to the American dream?" The question is phrased and re-phrased and then we learn that Life Magazine plans to run some articles by a number of "name" writers on this subject.

Presumably, having seen these names and noted the date, we are supposed to rush breathlessly to the newsstand for our copy of the May 22nd issue of Life. And, perhaps we will.

But we suspect that the answer to this question, that has been opened to the American dream, can almost be found in the first phrase of Lippmann who suggests that our critical weakness is that Americans have not united in some great purpose.

Could it be, perhaps, that the great purpose of America is that we should NOT unite, but rather that we should each one lose ourselves in our own individualistic desires to fulfill ourselves?

Looking Sideways

by WHITNEY BOLTON

New York - The basic aim of the American musical theater, no matter how its frame widened or narrowed, was to entertain, Richard Rogers has said. And that, he added with fineness, is most certainly done.

"In our own personal case," he went on, "the frame has varied. We have not kept true to the musical comedy line. Mr. Hammerstein and I have treated of life and death, even of life after death. We have touched on racism. In 'The Sound of Music' we touch several bases and themes."

"You have heard the cynical describe your newest as 'too sweet'?" "I have," he said, "and it doesn't crush me. I haven't heard of anyone's fainting in a diabetic surge. Let's look at it, and I intend to cause you to look at it; we open totally new ground by taking the curtain up on a choir of nuns singing music a capella. We present a perfectly charming young man only to discover that he is a hard-hearted, dedicated little Nazi. We put a lovable family at the brink of destruction. We give the Catholic Church its just due: when a postulant does not seem to the church to have the makings of a true vocation it says to her, gently but with affection: 'My dear, you are a wonderful girl but this isn't for you. Go out and here and fall in love and marry. That is your gift to life.' So much for the alleged sugar. I am not aware of any in it."

"It has been said that you knew nothing of Eastern music when you composed 'The King and I'?" "I still do not," he said. "Deliberately. Neither Oscar nor I wanted an epaulet-faced little thing running out on stage with foreigners thrust upward giving out with 'ching-aling-aling.' I could not write a genuine Far Eastern theme if they pointed a gun at me. I wrote what the Far East suggested to me naturally. Oscar solved his problem by having an Oriental child and all his family - concubines and children - with dignity."

The change that has occurred in recent years relates to our government intervention in the market place and not because of increased competition from non-Americans. Pop, in prior times, not only were we able to sell our wheat to China, we were able to save our money and invest in the new and improved tools of production which constantly improved our status and made it easier for us to produce more and more, at an ever lower UNIT COST OF PRODUCTION, even as wages went up.

Today, government has so disrupted the normal economic channels of energy that even our ability to accumulate money for capital and tool improvement is being taken. Yet, industrialists continue to call on the government for protection, apparently not realizing that each such call justifies the government in a further grab of their own money and their own ability to improve their individual status competitively.

It is certainly time for our industrialists to get a clearer understanding of the economic law of life. The tanned face had a smile, the dark hair ruffled with gray was not upright in rage. It was combed and smooth and so was the voice.

"Now let me ask a few questions that plague me," he said. "An admittedly not very good show called 'First Impressions' opened. I will not blink that it was dull. But not one critic - not one - in his zeal to point out how dull it was had equal zeal also to point out how the composer had written a perfectly magnificent score totally within the spirit and color of the period of the show. He never strayed away once from his period. I say that he is a fine musician, a very fine musician, and did not get his earned due for the honest score he wrote."

"You have mentioned form and frames. Mr. Hammerstein and I have tried here and there to broaden the frame, but some other shows would seem to narrow it. Actually, they don't. People have said, for example, that 'Fiorello!', as good as it is, sets the musical theater back. That is old-fashioned in technique. That is ridiculous. It is a wonderful musical and perfectly new in form and frame. It is brilliant. I loved it when I saw it and admire all who had to do with it. The only place in which it is old-fashioned is when it is deliberately so: the scene burlesquing old musical techniques of the 20's. And that is super-brilliant all by itself."

"Nor can you expect the veteran fashioners of today's musicals always to come up with something startling and new. Young, eager blood must come in every now and then to produce a new show us another way. I speak definitely here. I think what Guy Chamberlain has done with 'Bye Bye Birdie' is spectacular. That wonderful, crazy show is, essentially, a cartoon. Designed so. It is a cartoon of the rock 'n' roll, teenage fantasy. Mr. Chamberlain threw imagination into it every minute of the way and it is a great cartoon concept. I call it a great cartoon that has truly advanced musical comedy form in our time. Through the years some one always comes along to advance things to a new plateau of technique and taste. If not, we'd still be doing those old operettas."

"We grow and we grow with new talents as they come along." "Other critics, perhaps, made dyspeptic by children and nuns, have said 'Sound of Music' is not only sweet - but old-fashioned. You say?" "I say it isn't," he said. "It just isn't. Opening a show with nuns singing liturgical music - a capella is about as old-fashioned as a moon rocket. I could cite many a scene in it that is fresh and new."

"A wonderful musician composed it, a true, dedicated, imaginative songwriter," said Rogers. "But he also wanted to write it, produce it, direct it. He even owns a music publishing house and manages other songwriters. How can you spread yourself and keep your talent green and alive?" "You and Mr. Hammerstein also own a music publishing house."

"Indeed we do - and shouldn't," he said with a smile. "But I'll tell you something. I keep a very strict regimen of hours there - five minutes a year."

The man who has composed such a treasury of American song as to make his position impregnable walked toward the piano and I walked out. Richard Rogers had spoken frankly and firmly and with vigor for a long time.

latest achievements of science and engineering into production.

This ambiguous "agenda" could cover anything, from new purges to further intensification of the already ferocious vilification of the U.S.

What if anything this plenary session will mean for Marshall Zhukov also remains to be seen. If he stages another comeback it will be his second since he retired after World War II, when he was exiled to a minor military post in a remote province. His great popularity with the Russian people as a war hero had aroused the envy and suspicions of the late Joseph Stalin, and he curtly banished Zhukov.

That's where he remained until recalled by Khrushchev who urgently needed Zhukov's high standing with the Red army to wrest control from other would-be Stalin successors, notably secret police czar Lavrenti Beria who was snafu for "treason."

From then on Zhukov again rose to high favor and place, being named Defense Minister and a full member of the Presidium, the first professional soldier to attain a place on this key body. But within months, he incurred Khrushchev's ire and was stripped of his offices and "permanently retired" to a Ukrainian village where he remained until his sudden appearance in East Berlin several weeks ago.

In April, when plans were in preparation for President Eisenhower's visit to Russia, he let it be known he would like to see his World War II friend.

The only response to that request was stony silence. The proposal was conveyed through regular diplomatic channels. A British diplomat, Llewellyn Thompson informed the Soviet Foreign Office that the President hoped to have the opportunity to meet his one-time comrade-in-arms "on purely personal grounds."

The Kremlin reacted as if the inquiry had never been made, despite several follow-ups by Ambassador Thompson.

Even though Zhukov was a hero in 1957, his standing in the Red army is as high as ever. Significantly indicative of that is the fact that no Soviet military publication has assailed him.

NATO chiefs consider the real military powers in Russia to be Marshal Ivan Konev and Marshal Vasil Sokolovsky, both formerly close to Zhukov. Marshal Rodion Malinovsky, who succeeded Zhukov as Defense Minister and was Khrushchev's constant companion during the summit debacle, is deemed largely a "front" for Konev and Sokolovsky.

Under Khrushchev, the military have attained far more authority than at any time in the Soviet system, as follows: 75 officers are now members of the Supreme Soviet, and hundreds of others hold offices in local governments.

Generals and admirals have key places in atomic energy, missiles and space activities, heavy industry, transportation and communication. The armed services are becoming increasingly self-contained, with their own production and supply systems. They decide what they want, when they want it, and they get it.

RED SPIES - Brazil's Political Police have launched a drive against Soviet espionage. This was revealed by an official source in Rio de Janeiro. One purpose of the anti-spy drive is to "eliminate elements linked with Russian espionage."

No One Can Get Along Without A Little Spying

by HENRY MCLEMORE

How can the United States expect to get along without spies when not even my own little home can?

Mary and I live in peaceful co-existence, and espionage and counter-espionage play a major role. Without spying on one another, neither of us would know the true thoughts and reactions of the other.

If I didn't know where she hid the key to her diary, and if I hadn't broken the code she uses in putting down what she really thinks, I'd be sunk.

Take her entry of May 8th of this year, which I managed to read when Megan was in the tub, because I knew Mary couldn't tubside even for an earthquake.

"Tried not to show my disappointment and shock when H. forgot all about Mother's Day, and I think I succeeded. Acted as though his forgetting was a joke, but I could have crowned him. Could it be that H's mind is going? He forgot Valentine's Day, too. Or said he did. I must try to get him to go to a good head man."

Reading that revealed to me that Mary has an idea that I may be batty, or am on the way. Perhaps I should explain that in her code "H" stands for Henry, so I know she is talking about me.

Thanks to the access to her diary, I know how she feels about my forgetting Mother's Day. I've determined over the years to determine early to remember the Fourth of July.

Then there was this entry of yesterday in M's diary, "M" is my code name for her.

"Am going to 'forget' Father's Day this year. That'll show H. that two can play at the same game."

Due to my spy work Mary would be allowed to forget. Working in the quiet, unseen manner which I have developed over the years in household secret service, I will circle the date of Father's Day on the calendar, bring it up in conversation.

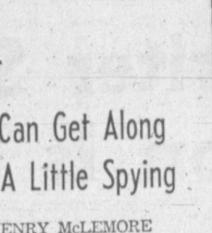

The morning stars are Mars, Jupiter and Saturn. On this day in history: In 1819, American poet Walt Whitman was born.

In 1889, Johnstown, Pa., was hit by a disastrous flood, in the wake of which more than 2,000 lives were lost.

In 1902, the Boer War ended as Great Britain and South Africa signed a treaty of peace.

In 1907, a flotilla of taximeter cabs, imported from Paris, arrived in New York, the first taxis to be seen in an American city.

In 1910, the Union of South Africa was founded, welding together the two former Dutch republics of the Transvaal and the Orange Free State and two former British colonies, the Cape of Good Hope and Natal.

ROME (UPI) - The Olympic Games don't open in Rome until August but they already are inspiring jokes. The latest cartoon, published in "Il Tempo," shows a man in an auto talking to another man: "I'm here for the Olympics," says the driver. "But they're four months away," says the other. "I know, but I'm looking for a parking place."

LONDON (UPI) - On the railroad platform where through trains now originate for Moscow is the following ad for a theater farce: "Simple Spymen."

England has had only one king who grew to manhood and who never married. He was William II, son and successor of William the Conqueror.

One measure of a nation's greatness, or lack of it, is its "pattern of prestige." What kind of persons does it make into its heroes? Who are its idols, who the martyrs it glorifies?

For some time it has been apparent that the heroes Americans worship have little of the stuff of stature. Unconscious wisdom recognizes it by using "cool," "terrific" or "crazy, man" for the idols who swing bats or hips, wild guns or guitars. There is no pretense to rank them with greatness or nobility. We can live with them.

But when Americans start making heroes out of heels, it's time to get worried. The rash of morbid sentimentality, excitement, and hero-worship fomented by the execution of Caryl Chessman is sickening evidence of a sick society. The issue of capital punishment, so far from being clarified, was only confounded.

It used to be that men were glorified as martyrs when their virtue exceeded that of their executioners. A cross became a crown because it was founded on character.

Now, it appears, our values are reversed. Now you can be crowned if you "suffer" for a crime. Now, if you are clever, you can be idolized for moral idiocy. Now you can be hailed for having been a hellion!

Weep not for Chessman. Weep for America!

Wiley Calls For Free World Alert

By WARREN DUFFEE
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Alexander Wiley (R-Wis.) said today the free world should be on guard against more Communist "trouble making" following the U-2 spy plane incident and summit collapse.

Wiley said in a speech recorded for a Chicago radio station that the free world should not be taken in by Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's attempt to "make a mountain out of a mole hill on the U-2 flight and thus divert the attention of the world."
