Convention Tradition In Final Throes

Demonstrations 'Killed' By TV

By JOSEPH L. MYLER
United Press International

CHICAGO (UPI) — Let there be a din of bells, a parade of standards, disorder in the aisles and general rejoicing.

For the 1960's may see the demise of the demonstration, that riot child of America's rowdy political past which long since should have gone the way of dueling at dawn and the torchlight parade.

Indeed, the Republican National convention starting next Monday may be the last at which the demonstration is permitted to rear its many, many screaming heads at a party conclave convened for the serious purpose of formulating policy and nominating candidates for president and vice president.

In that event many Americans will not be sorry. Whatever else television has done to or for society, it has established that the after-day demonstration is artificial and phony.

It is a living fossil consisting of a parade of standards, a torchlight parade, a parade of bells, a parade of standards, disorder in the aisles and general rejoicing.

Kennedy Eyes 2 New States For Opening

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (UPI) — Sen. John F. Kennedy announced today he will open his 1960 campaign for the presidency in Hawaii and Alaska around Sept. 1 and then wage a "vigorous" stumping tour of every section of the nation.

The Democratic standard bearer said in a statement that he had chosen the 49th and 50th states as starting points for his campaign because "they are in sense symbols of the new frontier" which he has taken for his campaign theme.

"These two states represent the continuing prospect for growth and vitality in America," Kennedy said. "The spirit of adventure which drove men to Alaska and Hawaii must be awakened again in the American people if we are to maintain our position as a leader in the free world."

Kennedy said he and his running mate, Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, will "wage a vigorous campaign aimed at returning control of the executive branch of the government to our party in November."

"I plan to visit every section of our country," he added.

This implied he would do some campaigning in the South, sections of which have been aroused over the Democratic platform's strong civil rights plank. It was thought when Johnson was nominated for vice president that the Texan would bear the heaviest burden of campaigning below the Mason-Dixon line.

Nixon Assured First-Ballot Nomination

Filling Second Spot Holds Interest

CHICAGO (UPI) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon coasted today toward a first ballot nomination for president at the GOP convention next week, with his choice of a running mate the chief topic of interest among arriving delegates.

Barring a political miracle, the move to draft New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller for the presidential nomination appeared to have died a-borning. Nixon's strategists also said Rockefeller had removed himself from consideration for second spot on the ticket.

Sen. Thurston B. Morton, the Republican National chairman, is expected to give his assessment of the pre-convention situation at press conference DEMANDS TROOPS DEPART — At a news conference in Leopoldville, The Congo, Prime Minister Patrice Lumumba demanded the departure of Belgian troops. The political opposition has started a campaign to oust Lumumba for flirting with the Communist bloc and threatening to call Soviet troops into the Congo.

Underwater Launching Pads

Polaris Missile Tests Succeed

By CHARLES CORDDRY
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The unqualified success of the first Polaris missile launchings from a submerged submarine focused attention today on one of the toughest problems to confront the Defense Department in the missile era.

The question is whether to create a powerful new U.S. strategic command that would merge the Navy's soon-to-be-ready Polaris sub forces and the Air Force's bomber and missile units.

The Air Force originated the idea of a new nuclear striking arm, combining U.S. retaliatory forces under a single commander — most likely an Air Force general.

The Navy hotly opposes it. Defense Secretary Thomas S. Gates Jr. and the Joint Chiefs of Staff have labored over the problem for many months.

Thus, once again the Pentagon faces the prospect of developing novel weapons faster than it can reach decisions on how to organize and command them.

Similar troubles beset the Army and Air Force development of Jupiter and Thor ballistic missiles and weapons for anti-aircraft defense.

Wednesday's Polaris performance 30 miles off Cape Canaveral, Fla., seemed to erase any doubt that two nuclear submarines, the George Washington and Patrick Henry, will be battle-ready with a total of 32 nuclear-tipped Polaris missiles by the end of the year.

The George Washington launched from underwater two test missiles which flew 1,100 miles and smacked perfectly into the target area in the first such trials ever undertaken.

The Polaris missile is a thing apart from traditional Navy weapons and missions.

Its job is retaliation against big enemy targets with hydrogen bomb warheads.

Congo Premier Asks UN To Delay Debate On Crisis

Will Come To U.S. To Address Council

By EUGENE M. CLOUGHLIN
United Press International

Congolese Premier Patrice Lumumba announced today he was flying to New York and requested the United Nations Security Council to suspend debate on the Congo crisis until he can get there.

Leopoldville dispatches said Lumumba made the request through Dr. Ralph Bunche, chief United Nations representative in the Congo.

The Lumumba government earlier asked the United Nations to expel Belgian troops from the Congo and said it would call in Russian armed forces if the council did not comply.

Lumumba's action precipitated a major crisis in the world organization and officials were seeking some way of preventing the crisis from erupting into open hostilities.

A U. N. spokesman said Lumumba will leave for New York "as quickly as possible," probably Friday afternoon. He will be accompanied by three or four of his cabinet ministers.

U. S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge warned the Soviet Union at the United Nations early this morning the United States would do "whatever may be necessary" in conjunction with other U.N. members to keep the Red Army out of the Congo.

In Washington, U. S. officials declined to elaborate on the statement. They said they thought Russia was trying to make more trouble but doubted it would trigger a war by sending troops into the Congo.

Diplomats said any move to repel Russian troops with a U.N. force would confront the world organization with its greatest crisis since the Korean War.

There was "no immediate reaction from Leopoldville where leftist-leaning Premier Patrice Lumumba said Wednesday he would carry out his threat to call for Soviet military help unless the U. N. Security Council complied Wednesday night with his demand that Belgian troops get out of the Congo at once.

The Security Council, starting its session late Wednesday night, adjourned early this morning with nothing resolved. It scheduled another meeting this afternoon to (See CONGO, Page 4)

Evidence Against Trujillo

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Investigators from the Organization of American States, (OAS) were reported today to have uncovered "shocking evidence" that the Dominican regime was behind an unsuccessful attempt to assassinate the Venezuelan president.

The investigators returned Wednesday night from three days in Caracas where they interviewed a dozen prisoners charged in the June 13 effort to blow up President Romulo Betancourt.

The investigators reportedly were told that the chief of the plotters, received instructions to "act with discretion and speed."

The report of the findings was given to UPI by sources close to the investigating committee.

The investigators were expected to present their findings to the OAS council, possibly early next week. Sources said the council was likely to call a meeting of the 21 inter-American foreign ministers to consider the report.

The OAS council set up the investigating committee after Venezuela charged July 5 that the Dominican Republic played a role in the assassination attempt.

RESCUE — Badly burned Phillip Reeves of Cotton Valley, La., dangles from a rope with his rescuer, Donald Ethington, as an Air Force helicopter lifts them off a blazing grain elevator in Brownfield where Reeves was trapped for two hours. Ethington, a former stepladder, volunteered to be lowered from the helicopter on a cable and put a sling around Reeves. Three, and possibly four, men were killed in the explosion and fire, and three other men beside Reeves were injured.

Five Forest Fires In California Unchecked

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Five gigantic fires burned unchecked in heat-smothered California today, destroying or damaging 26 homes and cabins and threatening scores of others.

Nearly 60,000 acres of brush and trees have been blackened by the major fires. An estimated 1,500 persons have been forced to flee from the flames.

Several hundred more acres were burned by scores of small fires which are continually breaking out in California's dry woodlands, causing an army of firefighters to keep on the move. Lightning caused many of the fires.

More than 2,500 men battled the blazes.

Their job was hampered by 100-degree-plus temperatures that dried out what little moisture was in vegetation after a long dry spell. Gusty winds spread the fires.

One man, Leon C. Smith, 30, of Susanville, Calif., was killed, in the fires and 13 others have been injured, four seriously.

Four of the major blazes raged in vast Angeles National Forest, a 590,000-acre range of mountains as big as Rhode Island separating the populous Los Angeles area from the Mojave Desert.

The four fires have blackened 33,000 acres. One of them has been burning since Sunday while the others broke out Wednesday during lightning storms.

The fifth fire burned through brush and timberland in San Luis Obispo County, about 200 miles north of here. It threatened the grounds of famed Hearst Castle, the show-place home of the late publisher, William Randolph Hearst. The castle appeared in no danger.

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — President Eisenhower today received a report on latest developments in the turbulent Congo situation from Secretary of State Christian A. Herter but withheld any comment pending action by the United Nations Security Council.

The chief executive then went to Newport Country Club for a round of golf under brilliant skies before settling down this afternoon to more work on the speech he will deliver Tuesday evening at the Republican national convention in Chicago.

Paving Of Lake Road Discussed

Traffic Count Indicates Need

The County Commissioners Court was asked to consider paving the road from State Highway 70 to Lake McClellan and from the lake to U.S. Highway 66 at its meeting this morning.

A delegation from the Chamber of Commerce improvement committee and highway committee, headed by Floyd Watson and Fred Thompson, and US Forestry Service agent Bill Henry of Amarillo made the request.

Watson pointed out that the two roads had a higher traffic count than any other unpaved road in Gray County. He said a traffic count conducted last week revealed that more than 300 cars per hour traveled over the two roads.

Henry told the court that the Forestry Service had spent some $45,000 improving the facilities at the lake during the past two years, and that a program was underway which would bring the recreation standards at the lake up to meet the standards set by service.

He also pointed out that many industries in this area use the lake and its facilities for their company picnics and outings.

In other business this morning, Thompson urged the court to expedite the securing the right-of-way for the rebuilding of Highway 273. Funds have already been approved for this project.

Families Stylish At Conclaves

CHICAGO (UPI) — Big families are in style at political conventions, and from a presidential candidate's point of view, the bigger the better.

Democratic presidential nominee John F. Kennedy set the pace. He had his mother, and so many sisters, brothers, in-laws, nieces and nephews at the Los Angeles convention that reporters lost count.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon and New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller cannot match Kennedy in this department, but they are going to try.

Nixon will have his photogenic red-haired wife Pat along when he pulls into town for the GOP convention Monday morning.

They are expected to be met by two excited daughters, Tricia, 14, and Julie, 12, who will be accompanied by Mrs. Hannah Milhous Nixon of Whittier, Calif., the vice president's mother.

This will be the Nixon girls' first political convention. They can't wait. They have spent the past few weeks at a summer camp in California. Nixon aides said they are expected to arrive in Chicago with their grandmother Sunday evening or early Monday.

Also in the Nixon entourage will be the vice president's two brothers and their wives. They are Don-Nixon-of-Whittier and Lt. Ed Nixon, a Navy flier who is stationed at Pensacola, Fla.

Several members of Mrs. Nixon's side of the family also will be sharing the limelight. Their names will be announced later.

The Candidates From District Of Way Out

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Beat Party of America proclaimed Bill Smith its presidential candidate Wednesday night and appealed to the nation not to vote for him.

"I'm running against the office, not FOR it, don't you see," Smith declared. "We want to show the evil of the system."

His vice presidential running mate, picked in the party's Greenwich Village barroom convention headquarters, was Jeffrey Stewart. Both beats are out of Chicago.

Asked what would happen if the ticket drew any votes, Stewart was flabbergasted. "Why, what in the world would it mean?" he asked.

Smith, at 36, became the youngest candidate now entered in the fall presidential elections, and the only one with a beard.

He yawned and philosophized his way over all opposition a minor poet to win the votes of delegates from 14 states and the District of Columbia.

Nixon Aides Forecast Slim Vote For Rocky

By RAYMOND LAHR
United Press International

CHICAGO (UPI) — Agents of Vice President Richard M. Nixon counted no more than 50 Republican National Convention votes outside New York today for Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

Unless there is a drastic change in the outlook or unless there has been a drastic breakdown in Nixon's intelligence activities, the New York governor still poses no threat to the vice president's bid for the GOP presidential nomination.

The winner will need 668 votes at the Republican convention opening here next Monday. If Rockefeller received all 96 of New York's votes, the Nixon camp still would concede him less than 150 on the first ballot.

A Nixon headquarters began functioning today in the Sheraton-Blackstone Hotel across the street from the convention headquarters in the Conrad Hilton Hotel. The boss is Leonard W. Hall, former chairman of the GOP National Committee and such old pros as Meade Alcorn of Connecticut, another former national chairman, and Ray Bliss, Ohio state chairman, as agents to deal with state delegations on a regional basis.

Since they already assume that Nixon has the nomination locked up, their job will be not to convert delegates but to listen and to keep an eye open for any brush fires that may develop.

On the assumption that Rockefeller means it when he says he is unavailable for the vice presidential nomination, speculation centered on these possibilities for second place on a Nixon ticket: Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, Sen. Thurston B. Morton of Kentucky, chairman of the GOP National Committee; Treasury Secretary Robert B. Anderson and Interior Secretary Fred Seaton.

Rockefeller has caught headlines here for the past two days with his effort to put a liberal stamp on the 1960 platform and his reassertions that he is available for a draft for the presidential nomination. But there has been no evidence that his publicity has been translated into convention votes.

In an interview taped for television Tuesday, Rockefeller said he did not think the draft campaign by his supporters had gained much in the past two days.

He also said he believed GOP leaders did not want a contest for the presidential nomination because they felt Nixon had served long and loyally and deserved it. "I happen to disagree," Rockefeller said. "I think competition is the life of democracy. I think it is the life of our political parties."

In an appearance before the platform committee Tuesday, he called on the GOP to seek "a grand design" of regional political federations of free world countries for a "decade of danger ahead.

He also listed his chief differences with Nixon as his advocacy of a $3.5 billion increase in the defense budget and of Social Security payroll taxes to finance medical care for the aged.

He was given moderate applause by committee members in contrast with an ovation given later to Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, a major spokesman for the conservative wing of the party.

Goldwater attacked what he called the Democrats' "socialistic" proposals and opposed federal aid for education, medical aid and federal measures to protect civil rights beyond the right to vote. He said he also thought Rockefeller's "grand design" had little chance of support at this time.

AFL-CIO President George Meany asked the platform committee today to endorse "vast" new welfare-spending programs opposed by the Eisenhower administration.

But Arthur H. Motley, president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, pleaded with the GOP to move in the opposite direction by renouncing some of the federal spending programs already embraced by the administration.

CONGO

try to cool off the explosive situation. Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov demanded before the council prior to Lodge's speech that the United States immediately withdraw the handful of service personnel it has in the Congo and that Belgium get its troops out within three days. He was expected to answer Lodge's warning at this afternoon's session. U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold, a man not given to make extreme statements, showed the council how worried he was.

"We are at a turn in the road where our attitude will be of decisive significance... for the future of Africa... and Africa, in the circumstances, may mean the future of the world," he declared solemnly. He called the U. N. effort to end violence in the Congo "the biggest single effort under U.N. colors."

The secretary general launched what he called a "crash operation" to get food, medical help and technical experts into the Congo to replace the Europeans who have fled from African violence.

About 70,000 jobs are roaming Leopoldville alone. Stores and businesses are closed. The capital is depending on emergency supplies of food being flown in by the United States, Russia and other countries. Malaria threatens. It is a city of confusion, fear and ignorance. Hammarskjold told the Security Council the U. N. forces would move into Katanga Province—which has proclaimed its independence from the Congo—but he did not say just how this would be done.

In Elisabethville Katanga Premier Moïse Tshombe said if the U. N. troops tried to go in there it would mean war.

population is in jeopardy. There is a critical water shortage, a threat of famine and danger of malaria.

Few shops are open. Practically no business is done. The Belgians who ran the industries, controlled the banks and cared for the ill have fled.

Outside the shuttered shops each day patient Congolese await the return of their former employers. They pray for work so they can have enough money to feed their families.

The end of the month pay-day is drawing near, but there is no sign there will be anyone to hand out paychecks. When that happens the fully-stocked shops in the city's European sector may prove an overwhelming temptation. At least 70,000 blacks are unemployed.

There is an air of tension here far greater than in Elisabethville, seat of the self-proclaimed independent republic of Katanga.

I watched a Congolese taxi driver curse a young European woman whose car was blocking the road.

The pretty blonde, who couldn't have been more than 20 years old, moved her car without uttering a reply.

Here in Leopoldville, the Congolese is the master—and he knows it! This is something the natives in Elisabethville have not yet realized.

In Katanga, there was a wild moment of violence that was quickly suppressed by Belgian paratroopers. After that, life returned to something approaching normalcy.

Prime Minister Patrice Lumumba set the stage for the drama being played out in the Congo.

In his first speech after independence, Lumumba insulted King Baudouin of the Belgians and spoke of hatred for the whites.

Had he allowed the army to remain at least temporarily under Belgian officers, most observers felt, he would have retained a wide measure of control here instead of the rape, pillaging and murder that followed the mutiny of Congolese troops.

wanted a 1960 delegation that will "go forward" but adhere firmly to Republican principles.

It was learned that he sent a specific suggestion for the politically hot civil rights plank which would be a strong statement of policy to counter the strong plank the Democrats adopted in Los Angeles.

Nixon also informed the platform committee that he wanted a farm plank written in general terms so that he would be free to advance his own views on price supports and other details later.

He turned down proposals for a medical care for the aged program within the framework of the Social Security system, as advocated by the Democrats and Rockefeller. He favors the administration's federal-state "subsidy" plan. In this connection, the American Medical Assn., urged the platform committee today to advocate medical financial aid only to "those of the aged who need help in the financing of their health care."

Dr. Leonard W. Larson of Bismarck, N.C., AMA president-elect, said both the Democratic and administration proposals are based on the "false premise that most persons over 65 need health care and cannot afford it."

of bogus bedlam, carefully contrived chaos, cultivated confusion, and deliberate disorder no more spontaneous in conception than royal matchmaking at the turn of the century.

And if some members of the GOP convention arrangements committee had their way, there wouldn't be any demonstrations at this year's Republican meeting.

Jaren L. Jones, vice chairman of the arrangements committee, said considerable sentiment developed at a two-hour meeting Wednesday to abolish the demonstration here and now.

But it is hard to break with the past, as witness and Society for the Preservation of Barbershop Quartet Singing. And some people die a little whenever anything becomes extinct, as witness all those who regret the passing of the dodo.

Limit Demonstrations
So the Republicans decided not to abolish demonstrations but to limit them to 10 minutes each for "serious" contenders for the presidential and vice presidential nominations. No nonsense, the committee ruled, for "insincere favorite son" blowoffs.

Jones said the Republicans were moved by thousands of letters, telegrams, and telephone calls they got from citizens criticizing the televised demonstrations put on by the Democrats at their national convention in Los Angeles last week.

"These people," Jones said, "were very disenchanted with what they saw."

Average Economic Value Of A Man Is $200,000

By ELMER C. WALZER
UPI Financial Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—If you have a top-notch race horse, you can put a price tag on him, running to more than a million dollars, sell him to another, and he, in turn, can recoup his million and more.

But you don't put a price tag on a man. You couldn't sell him with the buyer taking over all his earnings.

You can, however, put a tag on a man on the basis of what his earnings capabilities will be over his lifetime.

It's been done. The economic value of a man in the United States, says the Institute of Life Insurance, has reached the $200,000 level. In 1949 it was only $133,000.

That's the average. The figure ranges upward from $175,000 to $330,000, depending on one's education. And, of course, there are the exceptions—the millionaires. All the figures are before taxes. Take a male baby born now. He'll live, according to present statistics, on the subject of life expectancy, for 66.6 years. Of that time, he'll work 41.6 years. The other 25 years will be spent in growing up, getting an education, and in retirement.

This is a big gain over what developments while the affair was in the Security Council.

The White House announced that the President gave Christian M. Ravnald, of Decorah, Iowa, a recess appointment as ambassador to Czechoslovakia, succeeding John M. Allison, a career diplomat who will be reassigned.

The President accepted with regret the resignations of Dallas S. Townsend as director of the office of alien property, and of Mason Sears as U.S. representative on the U.N. Trusteeship Council.

life expectancy was at the beginning of this century. A baby born then had a life ahead, according to the statistics, of about 46 years.

In the course of our present baby's future, his earnings will be up or down according to the amount of education he accumulates.

If his education ends in grade school, his lifetime income is set at $178,000. That's well above what it was in 1949—$116,000.

A high school diploma, the insurance institute finds, raises the prospective life income to well above the overall average—$243,000 against $165,000 to 1949.

A college degree adds more than $100,000 to prospective earning power. The estimate of a college man's income is $347,000 for a lifetime. Back in 1949 it was $268,000.

The Census Bureau reports that nearly half of all males 18 to 64 years old had at least a high school education last year, against 41 per cent in the early fifties, and 28 per cent in 1940.

More than 10 per cent of the 18-64 age group had completed four years of college, against around 8 per cent of that age group in 1952 and 5½ per cent in 1940.

All this boils down to the conclusion that education is mounting in the nation, that education brings better jobs and better income.

Also it reflects a change in our working system—away from manufacturing, which is becoming automated, into service industries.

The growth in income, says the Institute of Life Insurance has come about from a combination of factors—increased longevity, length of the average working life, expansion of opportunity in a free society, the rising educational level and skill of the working population, and the long-term increase in the productivity of the whole economy and its impact on output and income.

Ills Of Socialism Told Rotarians

Dr. F. W. Mattox, president of Lubbock Christian College, yesterday told Pampa Rotarians that socialism was so rapidly becoming a way of life in the United States that there was danger that this country would fall to communism like "a ripe fruit," as Lenin predicted.

The speaker warned that socialism is nothing but "soft" communism and that in reality there is no difference. The present trend of having the government usurp our productive effort through high taxes for redistribution by bureaucrats is the road to total government control, Dr. Mattox stated. Visitors and guests of the club were Kenny Lane, Bill Atkinson, Dr. Joe Donaldson, Don Armon, Tom Mills, Lester Bowman, L. D. Curtis, and Richard Collins.

GOP Conclave To Be Informative At Least

By DICK WEST
United Press International

CHICAGO (UPI)—The Republican Convention is almost certain to set a new record for public enlightenment this year, provided the mimeograph machine doesn't break down.

A platoon of publicists employed by the GOP National Committee already is on the scene grinding out convention news releases for the edification of the electorate. Their talent is such that they can grind out a news release even when there is no news.

At last count, the committee had whipped up more than 75 handouts to distribute among reporters who drop by its press room, seeking alms.

If, for instance, anyone should develop a thirst for information about the life and times of former Republican chairman Leonard W. Hall, the committee is prepared to slake it.

I have been feasting daily at this journalistic smorgasbord and it was there that I came across a copy of the new Republican campaign song, which will be used to rout the Democrats this fall.

The song, entitled "The Good Time Train," is only about 50 percent original. It has some new partisan lyrics but the tune was borrowed from a recent hit record called "Battle of New Orleans."

I discovered that some of the lines won't scan.

The meter seems to fall apart in the third verse, which goes: "For good times now and always—And peace among free men—We'll keep the grand old party—in the White House—once again."

I have been trying all day to figure out how it would be possible to sing these words to the tune of "Battle of New Orleans," but I just can't make them fit.

I tried running some of the words together—like "Goodtimes now"—and I tried substituting "Republicans" for "grand old party." They still wouldn't fit.

I even tried changing the rhythm from a march to a waltz and that didn't work either. But when I tried singing the words to the tune of "Battle Hymn of the Republic," they fit perfectly.

I plan to take this up with the committee, which may be able to explain it. But I will never understand why the GOP chose "Battle

By ELMER C. WALZER

NEW YORK (UPI)—If you don't watch out, you may be shoveling coal into a furnace and sifting ashes again.

And the railroads as they pass through your town may be belching black coal smoke. Likewise steamboats and other users of fuel.

Cities Service Co., giant oil unit, injures up these possibilities in its current issue of its monthly magazine "Service."

As it worked out in England in 1313, the coal edict was ignored and coal got into general use.

Now in the 20th century, there is a drive by the coal interests to get us back to coal from oil and natural gas, says Service.

"The first step in the planned program," says the article, "is to obtain a government study whose guide lines would lead to the establishment of a national fuels policy."

"Supporting this effort are coal mine operators, the United Mine Workers of America, coal-carrying railroads, many coal burning utilities, and manufacturers of equipment for mining and utilizing coal."

Arguments set forth by these groups are that we are in danger of running out of oil and natural gas, and these fuels should be conserved and their sale limited by law.

"Coal would thus be given a monopoly in selected areas of the fuel market," says Service, and "the buyer would be denied his choice of fuels—and he would lose the benefits which always derive from competition."

Cities Service denies that there is any shortage of oil or natural gas and cities figures to show we have supplies for many years ahead.

Oil reserves are estimated at 300 billion barrels by the U.S. geological survey hand up to 500 billion barrels by others. And during the last 100 years—or since petroleum was discovered in this country—we have only used about 60 billion barrels.

Tempting Outdoor Fare

Tongue and Cheese Patio Salad is a real summertime favorite, made quickly and deliciously with packaged pre-cooked rice. Serve it with other delicious items such as sliced tomatoes and cucumbers, hard, crusty French bread and tall glasses of your favorite beverage.

Tongue and Cheese Patio Salad
1 package (10 ounces) quick-frozen green peas
1 1/2 teaspoon salt
1 1/2 cups water
1/2 cups Minute Rice
1/2 cup chopped dill pickle
1 teaspoon grated onion
Dash of pepper
1 cup thin strips smoked tongue
1 cup thin strips American cheese
1/4 cup mayonnaise*

Add frozen peas and salt to water in saucepan. Bring quickly to a boil and boil 2 minutes. Then add packaged pre-cooked rice. Mix just to moisten all rice. Cover, remove from heat, and let stand 5 minutes. Then stir in pickle, onion and pepper. Mix lightly with a fork. Chill. Before serving, add tongue and cheese, and mayonnaise, mixing lightly. Serve on crisp salad greens. Makes 6 servings. *Or use 1/4 cup French dressing and 1/2 cup mayonnaise.

For Change -- Try Using Honey At Breakfast To Bolster Morale

HONEY DROP BISCUIT
Sift together: 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
Cut in: 1/4 cup shortening
1/4 cup honey
Add: 1/4 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 cup butter

Drop by spoonfuls in muffin cups or cookie sheets. Brush with butter. Sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon. Bake at 450 degrees F. for 12-15 minutes.

Serve with Honey Butter or Carrot-Grapefruit-Orange Marmalade with Honey for added goodness.

HONEY BUTTER
Blend 1/2 cup butter with 1/2 cup honey. Beat thoroughly. Store in refrigerator. If a thinner butter is desired, use 1/4 to 1 cup honey to 1/2 cup butter.

CARROT-GRAPEFRUIT ORANGE MARMALADE WITH HONEY
1/2 grapefruit (medium size)
1/2 orange (medium size)
1 cup carrots (grated or put through coarse food chopper)

Juice of 1 lemon
1/2 grated lemon rind
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup honey
1/2 cup water

Precook the carrots in about 1/2 cup water for about 10 minutes. Wash the orange, cut it into thin slices and then into eighths. Remove all the membrane from the grapefruit. Drain the water from the cooked carrots, measure and add additional water to make 1 cup. Mix the prepared fruit, the carrots, and the water. Cook until orange and lemon rind are tender (about 25 minutes). Add the sugar and honey and cook until fairly thick. If a thermometer is used, cook 8-10 degrees F. above the boiling point of water at the altitude at which you live. Can in hot, sterilized one-half pint or pint jars or put into jelly glasses and cover with paraffin. This makes approximately 1 pint.

Ummm, the aroma of honey cinnamon, and fresh bread all combined is guaranteed to get the family to the breakfast table in a hurry.

SAUSAGE-APPLE RING AROUNDS

Here's a fancy way to serve sausage. Shape sausage into small balls and cook. After cooking place each ball on a glazed apple ring. The apple rings may be tinted red or green.

Equivalents For Dairy Products

For easy and quick measurement of some of the most commonly used dairy products in recipes, use these equivalents. Clip and paste them on one of your recipe file cards:

- 1 pound butter equals 2 cups.
- 1-4 pound butter or 1 stick equals 1/2 cup.
- 1/2 pint heavy cream equals 2 cups whipped.
- 8-ounce carton cottage cheese equals 1 cup.
- 12-ounce carton cottage cheese equals 1 1/2 cups.
- 8-ounce package American cheese equals 1/2 pound of 2 cups grated cheese.

Cake Offers Way To Use Seasonable Oranges And Dates

"Something more than just another desert" can well describe this cake. It suggests a new way for featuring the abundant orange and date supply found in markets this month. The orange juice and orange rind are mixed with sugar and cooked to pour over the baked cake while it's still warm. Whipped cream or dairy sour cream is the final topping. Lard used as the shortening, gives fluffy, even textured cakes and is also a wise choice when making tender, flaky pastry, says Reba Staggs, home economist and food expert. Dry ingredients can be sifted together and nuts can be chopped in advance to make mixing easy.

ORANGE BLOSSOM DATE CAKE

2 cups sifted enriched flour
3-4 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 cup lard
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
3-4 cup sour milk
1/2 cup chopped dates
1/2 cup chopped nuts
1/2 cup orange juice
2-3 cup sugar
1 teaspoon grated orange rind

Grease a 9-inch square baking pan. Sift together flour, salt, soda and baking powder. Cream lard and 1 cup sugar together until light and fluffy. Add eggs and beat well. Add sifted ingredients alternately with sour milk, mixing well after each addition. Stir in dates and nuts. Pour batter into baking pan. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 25 to 30 minutes. Combine orange juice, 2-3 cup sugar and orange rind, and heat to boiling. Pour over warm cake. Serve warm with whipped cream or dairy sour cream, if desired.

Ever-Popular Ground Beef Stars As American Showcase Favorite

How many pounds of ground beef do you and your family consume in a year's time? The amount probably would surprise you because records show that more ground beef is sold than any other cut of meat. A recent survey indicates that 84 pounds of ground beef are eaten by the "average" American during the year. There are probably many and various reasons for ground beef's best seller rating, but undoubtedly its economy, versatility and ease of preparation have a lot to do with homemakers' frequent purchases.

Here are two recipes that are destined to make ground beef an even more popular item in your home. One is the Bunburger, a hamburger broiled on the bun and the other's a flavorful meat loaf. Both are combinations of deliciously seasoned ground beef and evaporated milk. Because of evaporated milk's better blending qualities, it keeps the meat moist, tender and juicy... something no other form of milk can do. These ground beef dishes will never crumble or become unappetizing in appearance because evaporated milk gives them a firm texture. These dishes rate four stars from the nutrition standpoint, too. Because milk proteins and minerals and B-vitamins are concentrated in evaporated milk, your family gets an extra dividend of these essential nutrients.

Since these Bunburgers are broiled on hamburger buns, there are no wasted juices... you get all the flavor. Try either of these recipes soon and get ready to fill order for seconds.

STUFFED OLIVE BUNBURGERS

(Makes 6 servings)
2-3 cup (small can) undiluted evaporated milk
1 egg
1 1/2 pounds ground beef
1/2 cup fine cracker crumbs

1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1/4 cup finely chopped onion
1/4 cup finely chopped green pepper
1/4 cup chopped pimiento stuffed green olives
6 hamburger buns, split in half

Combine evaporated milk, egg, beef, cracker crumbs, salt, pepper, mustard, onion, green pepper and olives. Blend together until well-mixed. Form meat mixture into 12 thin patties (about 1-3 cup each). Place Bunburgers on Broiler pan. Broil 5-7 inches from heat for 5 to 7 minutes (or to taste).

HERBED CHEESE MEAT LOAF

(Makes 6 servings)
2-3 cup (small can) undiluted evaporated milk
1 egg
1 1/2 pounds ground beef
1/2 cup fine cracker crumbs

1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1/4 cup finely chopped celery
1/4 cup finely chopped onion
1/4 cup catchup
2 slices processed Swiss cheese
1 teaspoon chopped chives
1 teaspoon chopped parsley

Combine evaporated milk, egg, beef, cracker crumbs, salt, pepper, mustard, celery, onion and catchup. Blend together until well-mixed. Put meat mixture into waxed paper-lined 8 1/2 x 4 1/2 x 2 1/2 inch loaf pan. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) about 1 hour. Let loaf stand in pan 10 minutes; turn out on platter. Top with cheese and sprinkle with chives and parsley. Slice.

Syrup's A Summer Topping!

Put a ring of red roses around two of Summer's good foods: ice cream and maple-blended syrup! Serve them together in interesting ways such as these: (1) Scoop ice cream into balls... roll in flaked coconut, tinted, toasted or plain; pour on maple-blended syrup. (2) Make a sundae-or-pancake sauce: Heat a cup of maple-blended syrup, add about a cup of diced unpeeled canned apricot halves and a bit of grated lemon rind. Serve warm or cold. (3) Top crisp hot waffles with coffee ice cream... pour on Log Cabin maple-blended syrup. For any of these simple recipes—roses to you!

Maple-blended Ice Cream Pie
1/4 cup butter or margarine, melted 2 cups flaked coconut
Combine butter and coconut. Press evenly into an ungreased 8- or 9-inch pie pan. Bake in slow oven (300°F.) for 30 to 35 minutes, or until golden brown. Cool.
Fill crust with vanilla ice cream, using 1 1/2 pints ice cream for an 8-inch crust and 1 quart for 9-inch crust. Decorate with a maple sugar leaf, if desired. Serve at once, or freeze. At serving time, pour maple-blended syrup over the cut pieces.

MATURE PARENT

Her two little girls were charming. The conversation of her husband, a young TV executive, was charming, perfectly balanced between pride in his work and resentment at its limitation. Her remodeled exurban farmhouse was charming.

So was the view of rolling hills from the window upstairs where we'd gone to put the children in bed for their afternoon naps. But when I said so, her response to my admiration was violent.

"The heck with the view," she said. "At night you can't see it. At night I'm alone with no view."

"I feed the kids; Bill phones to say he's tied up with a dinner script conference and I eat my supper on a tray. Most of the girls I know are in the same boat."

"Know what I did before I married Bill? I worked in network continuity. I had work to do at night, too. Now when the kids are in bed, nights are my time to go crazy. The heck with that view..."

As we closed the bedroom door behind us, she said:

"Don't get me wrong. I love the kids I've just got more to give than they can use. But Bill won't listen. He thinks I'm a bad mother who wants to go back to work. Am I?"

It's a question a lot of intelligent young women ask themselves these days.

It is answered in these words of Dr. John A. Rose, director of the famed Philadelphia Child Guidance Clinic:

"Employment will react adversely on the children's development."

So the real problem of the young mother of this column resolves itself back into the eternally returning one of all parenthood: Self-Acceptance.

Whether our dissatisfaction with child care is "good" or "bad" is never the point. The point always is, the dissatisfaction exists. Unless we are trying for a "perfect parent" record, we'll respect it.

Once we accept our dissatisfaction instead of fearing it, we can become a happy working mother.

And a happy mother, working or nonworking is the kind that children need.

It releases them from what Dr. Rose calls the "unrealistic" burden of making us happy. It sets them free.

LITTLE LIZ

It's always a good idea to have a few character defects, so people will have a reason to mention you.

Housework can be a help, not a hindrance, in maintaining a trim figure if you go at it properly. For instance, stretch up from the waistline (left) and rise on tiptoes when you're dusting a high spot on the blinds or in a closet. This firms up waistline muscles, trims abdomen and calves as you work. With straight back, deep knee bend this way (center) to lift up the laundry basket. This exercises leg muscles and relieves back strain. Hair is set on laundry day and ready for combing out when work is finished. Protect hands (right) by coating them before you don gloves for dusting.

Housework Can Help Not Hinder Figure

By ALICIA HART
Newspaper Enterprise
Beauty Editor

As a busy housewife, you may feel that you have no time to spare for exercise and other beauty chores. But you'll be pleased to know that you can fight the battle of the bulge while you do the housework—and earn a beauty bonus, too.

It's not what you do but the way that you do it that works this miracle.

First of all, set your hair BEFORE you begin the day's work.

Tie it up in a bright scarf or wear a pretty cap designed for that purpose. By the time you've finished the chores, you can comb out your hair and it will be pretty for your husband's return that evening.

When you dust the tops of doors or other high places, stretch up from the waistline until you feel a pull, and continue the action, rising on tiptoe. When done regularly, this will firm the muscles in your waist, abdomen and calves.

On washday, when it's necessary to haul a laundry basket around, make it work for you. Since the basket will be heavy when full, properly, it can do a lot to trim excess inches from your waistline.

No one has ever claimed that scrubbing floors is fun. But if done properly, it can do a lot to trim excess inches from your waistline.

Try stretching your arms to clean the largest area possible. You'll cover more ground in less time, and limber up those unused back and waist muscles, too. The same stretching movement should be used for dusting under tables and chairs.

Your hands will always look smooth if you coat them with a gentle lubricant like camphor-ice and then wear cotton gloves when dusting. Rubber gloves should be worn for all watery chores.

A thin film of rich face cream will do wonders for your complexion if left on while you clean house. It can be quickly removed with a tissue if an unexpected caller arrives.

So don't let a heavy household schedule rob you of your good looks. If carried out in the proper manner, it can actually serve as a beauty routine.

CANADIAN (SpI) — The Ace High bridge club met in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Rush Snyder recently.

High scores for the evening were tallied by Mrs. Riley and Mr. Abraham.

When shaving the legs always use a fresh blade. Otherwise, you won't do a good, clean job and will irritate the skin. Shaving is easiest after bathing because the hairs are softened. Some women like to use a soap lather or a cream and some find shaving immediately after a bath does not require any lathering.

RUTH MILLETT

It's almost impossible for the average woman to make the average man understand—

How she knows another woman is older than she pretends to be.

How she can tell after one meeting whether another woman is a phony or the real thing.

How she can tell whether or not another woman dyes her hair.

How she can tell, without looking at the price tag, what price range a dress is in.

When she sees a dress on a store dummy and says: "It's beautiful, but it's at least $150"—it's a safe bet the dress will be marked $149.95.

How she can tell by glancing at a living room that an interior decorator had a hand in planning the decor.

How she knows without being told when things aren't right in junior's world.

How she knows when a toddler is too quiet and is sure to be into something.

How she knows that the Joneses and Smiths, who have never met, won't hit it off and so shouldn't be invited to the same small party.

How she can tell another couple aren't getting along, even though everything seems happy on the surface.

Why her husband had better pay attention when she says vaguely:

"I can't put my finger on what's wrong with him, but I just don't trust him and I don't think you ought to have any business dealings with him."

Dear Abby...

Give Babies Home,
Your Own Home

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am 20, married and 5 months' pregnant with my second child. My husband left me three weeks ago and is paying me $25 a week support. This covers my rent, food, clothes and TV payments.

This pregnancy was an accident. I had no intention of having another child because my husband and I were not getting along.

I can't possibly support another child on $100 a month. I plan to work after the baby comes, but I can't support two children on what I would earn. I want to put the new baby up for adoption and give my first child a decent home. I'd like your opinion.

NAMELESS

DEAR NAMELESS: $100 a month plus what you could earn is enough for any mother who really wants to support herself and two children. (I notice you are able to support a TV set.) By all means give both your babies a decent home—your home. I've never from hundreds of mothers who gave their babies away and never stopped regretting it.

DEAR ABBY: What advice would you give a 58-year-old widow who has been invited to live with her married daughter? I have always made it a point never to interfere with my married children because I've seen so much trouble as a result of it, but my daughter and her husband seem to be so sincere in their invitation and I am lonely.

All my friends (especially the widows) tell me they would rather starve to death than live with their married children. I have enough income from my husband's insurance to live alone, but I am lonely. I would appreciate your point of view.

WIDOWED MOTHER

DEAR WIDOWED MOTHER: Don't let the sour grapes from someone else's vine embitter you. Many widows have lived happily with their married children. Give it a try.

DEAR ABBY: We live in a trailer court and have a four-year-old son. There are many children in the court and they run like a herd of wild animals.

My son wants to play with the other kids in the court, so either I have 10 or 12 kids on my 10-foot lawn or he wants to run wild with them on somebody else's lawn.

I wasn't raised like that and I don't want my son to be wild, either. If I confine him to our

Minutemen Closing Gap

U.S. Keeping Abreast Of Russia In Missiles

By RAY CROMLEY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA)—A breakthrough in development of the Minuteman ICBM may mean there won't be a "missile gap" after all.

The solid fuel Minuteman is a year ahead of schedule. Six months ago the Pentagon thought it would have three of them on site, ready to fire, by mid-1963. The new estimate: 75 by the end of 1962, 200 by mid-1963.

This is the main reason why some Washington defense planners believe that in the crucial "missile gap" year—mid-1962 to mid-1963—the U.S. may have more ICBMs in place than the Soviet Union.

Best guess now is that the U.S. will have 328 ICBMs and Polaris submarine missiles ready to "shoot" at the end of 1962. Indications are that the Soviets may have less than 300 ready on that date.

By mid-1963, the U.S. should have almost 600 intercontinental missiles aimed and ready. It now appears the Soviets will have a shade less.

This figuring counts Polaris missiles as being of ICBM range when aboard long-range submarines. It doesn't count the superior bombing force that U-2 flights have indicated could hit Russia at will.

Two developments in addition to the Minuteman breakthrough are responsible for the pleasantly startling outlook:

A step-up in Polaris submarine building. Its practically certain now that there will be eight Polaris subs with a total of 128 missiles operating at sea by the end of 1962.

The Reds aren't pushing ahead as fast with their missile building as we'd thought. Seven months ago it looked as though the Russians had grandiose plans for ICBMs and bases. There is increasing evidence that their missile output and ICBM base building program is well behind our earlier calculations.

There is one dark spot in all this, and it has some U.S. planners worried. It's this:

The apparent Russian decision not to go all-out on ICBMs may mean that Nikita Khrushchev has some other weapons up his sleeve. It could be a radically-improved type of ICBM that makes today's missiles obsolete, or chemical or biological weapons of superior quality.

Until they find out for sure, the men in the Pentagon are taking comfort in the fact that most of the new U.S. missiles will be extremely difficult for the Soviets to find and destroy in a sneak attack.

The Minutemen will be in hardened sites. That is, they will be in underground concrete-silos that will take almost a direct hit to destroy. Even if the Soviets knew precisely where each Minuteman was, it would still take an average of 12 Soviet ICBMs to destroy each Minuteman in its silo. That's 900 Soviet missiles to knock out the 75 Minutemen at the end of 1962, or 2,400 to knock out the 200 Minutemen in mid-1963.

Each Atlas site would take two to three Red ICBMs to destroy. Any Titan sites would absorb more Red missiles.

That would still leave the Polaris submarines with their 128 to 180 Polaris missiles. They'd be virtually impossible to find and destroy even if the Russians had any ICBMs left after their attacks on Minuteman, Atlas and Titan sites and other U.S. military targets.

So even if the Russians have double or triple the missiles they're now expected to have, by the end of 1962 or in mid-1963, the U.S. would still have 100 to 200 ICBMs or Polaris missiles to fire back and wreak havoc in Russia.

But that's not all to the Minuteman story. By 1964, the Minuteman is scheduled to have a warhead five to six times as powerful as the one it will start out with in 1962. And it will go 6,500 nautical miles instead of the original 5,500. The improvement is a result of new fuel additives.

Only a few hundred Minutemen have been okayed yet even by the planners. But there's considerable thinking that the ideal number would be between 2,000 and 3,000 widely dispersed throughout the U.S. Around 500 of these would be on railway trains. Most of the rest would be in concrete silos in isolated locations.

Stevens Posts $2,000 Bond

AMARILLO (UPI) — Roy Joe Stevens, former Randall County judge accused of lying before a legislative crime committee, posted $2,000 bond Wednesday at the Potter County sheriff's office.

The county grand jury indicted Stevens Tuesday on two counts of perjury before the Texas House General Investigation Committee last March, and also handed down two alternate counts of false swearing.

Stevens, who resigned after the committee's probe of Amarillo vice, has been living in New Mexico. It was learned that after the grand jury handed down the indictments, he called District Judge Gene Jordan and asked him to set bond.

Stevens appeared with an attorney Wednesday afternoon at the sheriff's office to put up the bond. The former judge, who practiced as an attorney in Potter county, also faces disbarment action filed by the Texas Bar Association. He was linked by the crime committee as a central figure in Amarillo gambling and prostitution.

The grand jury specifically charged him with lying to the committee about removing office furniture from the Randall County courthouse for his personal use, and about his association with Armohd James Chandonnet, who at the time was running a private detective agency allegedly set up by Stevens.

Demonstrations In Guatemala

GUATEMALA CITY (UPI) — Anti-government demonstrations rocked Guatemala City again Wednesday night, bringing police and troops into action with gear gas and billy clubs.

Officials said at least seven demonstrators were injured in the clash. As in a similar outbreak Tuesday night, a number of arrests were made but police gave no details.

TO ENTER POLITICS

ATHENS, Greece (UPI)—Gen. George Grivas, the former Greek Cypriot underground leader, announced Monday night that he will enter Greek politics.

The Greek-born soldier who led the EOKA underground army during the four years of the Cypriot independence war against Britain said he intends to form a "new national political movement" to achieve a political change for Greece.

POWELL TO RETURN

NEW YORK (UPI)—Rep. Adam Clayton Powell Jr. (D-N.Y.) announced Wednesday he plans to retire both from Congress and from his pastorate at Harlem's Abyssinian Baptist Church by 1964.

The Harlem Negro leader has been a congressman for 16 years and has been associated with the church since 1930. He gave no reasons for his decision.

Foreign Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign Editor

As chaos grips the former Belgian Congo and Nikita Khrushchev puts his stamp of approval on a reign of terror aimed against all whites, danger flags are going up in another African colony soon to come under native control.

This one is Kenya, a British crown colony of about 225,000 square miles bordering on the Indian Ocean, where official British reports tell of the rebirth of the feared, white-hating Mau Mau.

Just as Congo Premier Patrice Lumumba gives reason to be suspected of Communist ties, so Kenya's foremost nationalist leader received at least some of his training in Moscow.

He is Jomo (Burning Spear) Kenyatta, a massive man now gray and bent after five years in prison and another in banishment to northern Kenya's volcanic desert, but still regarded by Kenya Africans as their leader.

In his absence, Tom Mboya, his 32-year-old tough, energetic lieutenant has risen to prominence. It was Mboya who won from the British an extension of the voting franchise to about one million Africans in next spring's elections.

It was a bitter blow for Kenya's 65,000 whites for it meant that sooner than they expected, Kenya would come under black domination.

As Kenya's six million native population rushes toward an independence for which it is not prepared, the Mau Mau is coming back to power.

The Mau Mau, with its bestial midnight oath-taking, has been described as a "movement which in its origins and in its development is wholly evil. It has about it all the horror of the powers of darkness, of spiritual wickedness in high places."

The earlier Mau Mau horrors reached their peak on the night of March 25, 1953, when armed Kikuyu warriors stole into the village of Lari. Villagers were burned alive in their huts or cut down by the razor-sharp pangas carried by the terrorists.

Children were chopped to pieces in front of their parents. From that time on, no white man or woman went abroad unarmed.

Before the Mau Mau finally was stamped out 84 whites and 1,500 Africans died.

The ultimate objective of the Mau Mau was to drive the white man from Kenya. "For sale" signs on 600 Kenya farms indicate they are having success.

On Aug. 17, Francis G. Powers achieves the dubious distinction of becoming the first American to be tried in open Soviet court on spy charges.

The official Soviet news agency Tass announced the trial date and said the case had been "accepted" by the Military Collegium of the Supreme Court of the U.S.S.R.—a court usually reserved for high ranking officers only.

Thus, on his 31st birthday, the pilot whose U-2 high-altitude reconnaissance plane was shot down over Sverdlovsk last May 1 becomes an individual pawn in a show trial whose primary objective will be to further the Soviet campaign labeling the United States an aggressor nation.

There was no indication of the defense which Powers will be permitted after 108 days in the hands of Soviet interrogators.

Conviction could result in a prison sentence of from seven to 15 years or death before a firing squad.

Many See In Rockefeller Image Of F. D. Roosevelt

By LYLE C. WILSON

CHICAGO (UPI) — What Nelson A. Rockefeller needs to be drafted for the Republican presidential nomination are these:

—A Democratic president in the White House.

—Rockefeller, himself, in Albany as a second term governor of the state of New York.

These conditions, of course, cannot be met until 1964. That could be Rockefeller's year, but not if Vice President Richard M. Nixon is elected president next November. Nixon is a young man. It must be assumed that he would be renominated in 1964 if he were elected president in 1960.

The foregoing are the basic political facts as they bear on the future of Nelson Rockefeller. It probably is a fact, also, that Rockefeller will be no more beloved by Republican conservatives in 1964 than now. Nixon is not much of a conservative but he is the rallying point for most of the conservative elements in the Republican Party, excepting only a thin line of embattled right wingers who rally hopelessly around Sen. Barry Goldwater (Ariz.).

Political parties can rise mightily above principle when necessary. The Republican Party is no exception. Assume, then, Nixon's nomination for president this year and his defeat in the November election. Assume, further, that Rockefeller is renominated and elected to a second term as governor of New York. Nixon would be dead, politically, by 1964 and, no doubt, presiding over a big and rich law practice in New York or California.

Rockefeller would be very much alive, politically. No matter that many Republicans do not consider Rockefeller to be quite a Republican. No matter that the AFL-CIO's Walter P. Reuther long since pronounced that Rockefeller had the makings of a good Democrat.

No matter that Averell Harriman in his 1958 Democratic campaign against Rockefeller for governor of New York was moved to complain:

"This man (Rockefeller) is trying to conceal the fact that he is a Republican."

That seemed unfair to Harriman. Rockefeller did, indeed, campaign for governor by methods which enabled him to shy away from the Republican Party label, away from the Eisenhower administration.

On his election, it seemed that the Republican Party had got itself another Ike or, even, a personality cult political dream boat in the image of the great FDR. Too much in FDR's image, muttered some Republicans after experience with the freshman New York governor.

However that may be, Rockefeller could — and probably will — pluck the 1964 Republican presidential nomination like a hot house grape if he is in Albany at that time and—a big if—if there is a Democratic president. Under such circumstances, the Republicans, including most of the party conservatives, will want a winner more than they will want a spokesman for the old line Republican principles.

Rockefeller will have to be their man. They will have no other place to go. It has happened before this. The Republican Party chose General Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1952 over Mr. Republican, himself, the late Robert A. Taft. Wendell L. Willkie was a Republican by courtesy, only, when he kidnapped the 1940 nomination. Perhaps Rocky need only be patient.

Actor's Neighbors Sign Complaint

GLENDALE, Calif. (UPI)—Actor Tab Hunter has been ordered to appear in Municipal Court within the next two weeks to face a charge of mistreating his pet dog.

"This is ridiculous," said the young actor. "I've been a round dog and horses all my life and have always treated them with kindness and affection. These charges against me are totally without foundation."

Deputy City Attorney Don Hager said he issued the charge after four of Hunter's neighbors signed a complaint against the actor.

POLICE DEPARTMENT—Tackling a new underwater beat, three Minneapolis police officers test their skin-diving equipment in Lake Calhoun. All ex-Marines, patrolmen Richard Gly (in water), Ray Bailey (left) and John Vooge will perform regular police duty. They'll also be on call around the clock to recover bodies, submerged cars and articles.

THREE ALIKE—For their third birthday, the Garcia triplets, David (left to right), Dennis and Daniel, got baseball bats in Watsonville, Calif. The boys, plus mom and dad and four brothers and sisters total up to a dandy baseball team.

UNDER THE LINE—Yankees Cletis Boyer slides safely under lunging Detroit catcher Red Wilson as umpire Bill McKinley gives his decision in the sixth inning of the first game of a twin bill in New York. Boyer scored from third and Yanks won both games, 7-6, 6-2.

UP IN THE AIR—Things are looking up for young Tony Dow, who relaxes from acting with a giddy ride at his home in Hollywood, Calif. (left). A star of TV's "Leave It To Beaver" series, Tony made the "sky seat" and it gives him a good ride from a high tree. At right, the young athlete does a fancy swan dive while bouncing with acrobatic ease.

CAPTAIN KIDD—A wave that drenched shoes and socks didn't dampen the enthusiasm of three-year-old Joey Grimsley, who's readying his own craft to challenge the bigger sailboats in the background at Cape Coral, Fla. The lad was watching a regatta when he decided to submit his entry.

But once again this morning, it seemed Mother Nature had spent her fury during the night and was recuperating for possibly another assault this afternoon or tonight.

Skies were partly cloudy to cloudy over the state and the only shower activity were some light summer rains in parts of North Central Texas and along the Texas coast.

There were patches of low clouds and some fog in South Central Texas produced by warm gulf breezes that was holding early morning temperature in the 70's.

A lightning bolt streaked out of black thunderclouds racking over Port Arthur and killed Eddie Barker Jr., who lived at suburban Groves.

Justice of the Peace Fanny Moyer ruled he died of an electrical shock. His body was found in a drainage ditch.

At Dallas, Robert Goodjohn, 16, was swept up in a flash flood from a sudden downpour and carried four blocks through a storm sewer before a boy on a motorbike spotted him and helped him to safety.

He stopped breathing twice in an ambulance rushing him to a hospital. Doctors said he was in poor condition.

Three boys were riding their bikes in a San Antonio storm sewer when a flash flood swept into it. Their screams of terror attracted nearby residents who threw garden hoses to them and pulled them to safety.

Their bikes were lost. Edgar Maurice Renfro, a 44-year-old Cleburne carpenter, was working on top of a 14-foot high scaffold at the new Wedgewood Junior High School in Fort Worth when a sudden gust of wind hurled him off head first on concrete. He was critically injured. Mrs. Mary Leeton, 41, was seriously injured in Fort Worth when a shattered plate glass window cut her so badly she had to undergo surgery.

Cletus Harrison, 26, Fort Worth Negro, escaped death but was seriously hurt when a hard wind toppled a tree onto his car. Mrs. Fred Koehler, her mother-in-law and five children, huddled in terror in their farm house at Macdonna, near San Antonio, and watched a small but vicious twister bore down on them. It swerved at the last minute and blew away a calf barn, then lifted back up into the thundercloud.

Paydirt For The Grid Fans

Dave Campbell, the Waco Herald-Tribune's answer to Grantland Rice, and his cohort, Al Ward have come up with the answer to a Texas football fan's prayer.

Something along this line has been needed for a long time. Not only does it carry a complete wrap-up of what is to come in the Southwest Conference and other state colleges this fall, but it also summarizes the prospects for every high school team in Texas.

The magazine even carries a picture of the Harvesters' Duke Garren. The cutlines list him as a back, but in the story on district 3-AAAA, he is carried as a line-backer.

Borger is picked to win the championship this fall, but only after a tough fight with Monterey, the Sandies and Palo Duro.

Concerning the Harvesters' prospects, Campbell writes: "Pampa should improve its fifth place finish. Babe Curfman has linebacking whiz Duke Garren and blocker Charles Giese among 17 lettermen."

A super all-state team is selected too. It features end Stephen Lee of Cleburne and John Collins of Liberty; tackles Bill Gravitt of Denver City and Billy Belew of Sweetwater; guards Norman Medlin of Olney and Jim Sittin of Cisco; center Vernon McManus of Baytown; and backs Haskell Davis of Sundown, Budgie Ford of Taylor, Ernie Koy of Bellville and Gary Crain of Odessa Permian.

What about the top 10 teams in AAAA? They're simple to name — Port Arthur, Baytown, Borger, Odessa, Highland Park, Odessa Permian, Houston Milby, Dallas Sampell, Corpus Christi Miller and Wichita Falls, in that order.

OILERS' GUSHER — George Blanda, long-time quarterback favorite with the Chicago Bears of the National Football League, pulls on the uniform of his new team, the Houston Oilers of the fledgling American Football League.

Lilly, Holub Top Choices

The Southwest Conference wrap-up is complete in every detail, including three-deep rosters, comments from the coaches and the major strength and weakness of each club.

On paper, Texas, Arkansas, Baylor and Texas Christian appear to be the top threats for the title.

And, according to the writers, two SWC linemen may turn out to be the best in the history of football.

They are, of course, Robert Lilly of TCU and E. J. Holub of Texas Tech.

A story on the 250-pound Lilly recalls the incident in last year's TCU-LSU game when the Horned

Frog giant smothered the Tiger's all-America, Billy Cannon.

Holub is immortalized for the manner in which he roamed far and wide across the grid iron in each of the Red Raider games, and made a strong bid for all-America honors even though Tech wasn't an official member of the SWC family.

A pre-season all-conference team is picked too. It consists of ends Monte Lee of Texas and Sonny Davis of Baylor; tackles Lilly of TCU and Jerry Mays of Southern Methodist; guards Bobby Lively of Rice and Wayne Harris of Arkansas; center Holub of Tech; and backs Jack Collins of Texas; Ronnie Bull of Baylor; Glynn Gregory of SMU; and Lance Alworth of Arkansas.

Steers Get Prize Rookie

Southwest Conference schools have been going at a rapid clip during the current recruiting campaign.

The University of Texas picked the prize plum from the schoolboy bush when the Longhorns got Hix Green to sign his name on the dotted line.

The San Antonio Jefferson speedster was a unanimous choice as the best runner in the state.

And he's billed as a combination Doak Walker-Kyle Rote with a little Jim Swink thrown in for good measure.

Texas Tech took the most players from this area. Aside from Harvester Benny Stout, the Red Raiders signed Jerry Anderson of Borger, Bill Shaha of Dumas, Jimmy Wells of Dumas, Al Swening of Lubbock Monterey, Durward Epps of Tascosa, Ronnie Wasson of Monterey, and Gordon Beauguard of Borger.

Groom's Steve Gorman, a rugged 200 pound guard, is headed for TCU.

PGA Opens Run Today

By LEO H. PETERSEN
UPI Sports Editor

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — Arnold Palmer and 185 "darkhorses" tee off today and in the 42nd annual Professional Golfers Assn. championship.

Palmer is the 4-1 top choice to win this four-day chase over the rolling hills and hollows of the Firestone Country Club and complete the greatest grand slam in modern golfing history.

The Pennsylvania golden boy with the steely arms and the poker-faced approach already this year has swept through to victory in the U.S. Open and the coveted Masters. Winning this one would give him a "slam" comparable and — some pros insist — even better than Bobby Jones' sweep of the British and U.S. Opens and amateurs in 1930.

His two greatest threats, according to the oddsmakers, are Mike Souchak and lithe, deadly Art Wall, both rated at 6-1. Young Ken Venturi is ranked at 8-1 while defending champion Bob Rosburg, oft-temperamental Tommy Bolt and those two old favorites—two-time winner Ben Hogan and triple winner Sammy Snead—are all at 10-1.

Back of them at 12-1 come Gene Littler, Dow Finsterwald and Julius Boros, while at 15-1 you had Cary Middlecoff and Doug Sanders.

The rest of the darkhorse field was from 25-1 to "out" because Firestone Country Club, with its wire-tough rough and its arduous 7,165 yards playing to a deadly par of 35-35-70, was believed too difficult to conquer. Estimates of what the ultimate winner would have to shoot to win it ranged from even par 280 all the way up to 286.

It was going to take a long, straight hitter to come out on top, the pros contended. This gave Palmer the best edge, for he was drilling his tee shots out of sight and on a clothesline as he warmed up with a four under par 65 even though he professed to be "extremely tired" after playing in the Canada Cup in Ireland and the British Open at St. Andrews.

The four-day divot carnival starts at 7 a.m., e.d.t. and after 18-hole rounds today and Friday, the field will be narrowed to the low 90 and ties for Saturday's third round. Then, after that stretch, the low 60 and ties will go out in Sunday's finale.

Braves Closing Gap On Sagging Pirates

By FRED DOWN
United Press International

The two teams the experts said might be over the hill may yet go over the top in the major league pennant races.

They're the Milwaukee Braves and the Chicago White Sox and today their blazing mid-summer streaks are putting the heat on the front running Pittsburgh Pirates and New York Yankees.

The Braves' seven-game winning streak has moved them to within a mere half-game of the Pirates in the National League while the White Sox' five-game drive has lifted them to within one game of the Yankees in the American League.

The Braves achieved their longest winning streak of the year when Warren Spahn seven-hit the St. Louis Cardinals, 3-0, Wednesday night and the White Sox made it five in a row when Roy Sievers' three-run homer posed them to a 7-1 decision over the Boston Red Sox.

The White Sox' cause received a solid boost when the Cleveland Indians downed the Yankees, 8-6, and the Braves advanced a full game when the Los Angeles Dodgers out-scrubbed the Pirates, 7-5, in 11 innings.

Glen Hobbie's two-hitter gave the Chicago Cubs a 4-0 victory but the Cincinnati Reds won the second game of the two-nighter, 4-3, and the San Francisco Giants defeated the Philadelphia Phillies, 3-1, in the other National League games. The Washington Senators topped the Detroit Tigers, 5-4, and the Kansas City Athletics nipped the Baltimore Orioles, 4-3, in other American League activity.

Spahn, who started the season in low gear like most of his teammates, reached the halfway point in his bid for his 11th 20-win season with the aid of solo homers by Hank Aaron and Joe Adcock. It was the 39-year-old left-hander's 49th shutout and 27th victory in the majors. Ernie Broglio suffered his fifth loss for the Cardinals.

Frank Baumann shut out the Red Sox over the last five innings to win his sixth game for the White Sox, who tagged Bill Monbouquette for six hits and four runs in 3 1-3 innings. Al Snider also homered for the White Sox while Frank Malzone had three hits for the Red Sox. It was the 10th win in 13 games for the fending American League champions.

The Dodgers won out in the three and a half-hour struggle with the Pirates when rookie outfielder Tommy Davis hit a two-run homer off Elroy Face in the 11th. Hal Smith's second homer of the game tied the score of the Pirates in the ninth and both teams scored in the 10th before Davis' winning hit.

Jimmy Piersall and Harlan Kuhn hit homers and Dick Siskman choked off a Yankee in the eighth inning to give the Indians one victory in their three game series. Mickey Mantle-Roger Maris homered for the Yankees, Maris' 31st in the Yankees' 82nd game putting him games ahead of Babe Ruth's record pace.

Hobbie had a perfect game until Wally Post opened Cincinnati's eighth inning with a clean single. Hobbie then went on to gain ninth victory. Post also ruined rookie Jim Brewer's major league starting debut with a three-homer that enabled Don Nuxcomb to win his fourth game as the Reds in the nightcap.

Sam Jones, aided by John Antonelli in the ninth, beat Phillies for the fifth time this season, and raised his record to 10-3. Bob Schmidt had two hits and drove in a run to lead the Giants' six-hit attack. Bill Short suffered his seventh loss.

The Senators went into the place in the AL as Faye Fava berry drove in five runs with double and two singles. Don Nuxcomb gained his fifth win for the Senators, who have scored 11 victories in their last 14 games. The dumped Detroit into sixth place

Rickey Battles For Continental

NEW YORK (UPI) — Branch Rickey hopes to present a program today that will justify the Continental League's existence as a third major league.

The majors have told the Continental League operators, in effect, to "get going on this business of expansion or we will."

chairman of the CL founders group, said he hoped to have an announcement this morning.

"I can tell you this much," Shea said, "we're going to break our necks trying to satisfy every possible demand made by us by the majors in the hope of obtaining recognition from organized baseball as a valid third major league."

The Continental Leaguers hope that when they meet with representatives of the CL founders group, they will be able to present a program for satisfying the major leagues' "ten commandments."

That manifesto by the majors outlined the standards the CL would have to meet in order to join the family of organized baseball. These requisites applied to financial stability of each club, minor league indemnities, minimum standards for ballparks, etc.

Rickey talked before entering the meeting room but made no statements afterward. Bill Shea, the New York attorney who is

Rain Aids Tulsa To Tie For 3rd

Rain spoiled Tulsa's chance to take over undisputed third place in the Texas League Wednesday night, but the fighting Oilers moved into a tie for the spot by whipping league leading Valley for the second night in a row.

It was the only game that wasn't rained out. Both Austin's game at Victoria and Amarillo at San Antonio were postponed.

Tulsa topped the Giants 4-2, and if the Oilers could have had a little help from the Senators, which overpowered the Rosebuds the night before, Tulsa could have leaped over Victoria and moved to within no more than two games behind San Antonio.

That could easily be the case tonight. The same teams are scheduled.

Both teams scored in the first inning, and Valley went out in front 2-1 in the bottom of the fifth, but the Oilers came from behind in the eighth with a three-run outburst that put the game on ice.

Herrera Gets First Chance

By HARRY GRAYSON
Newspaper Enterprises Assn.

Juan Francisco Herrera is now one of the most-feared right-hand batters in the National League. A few days ago, Pancho Herrera nearly knocked down the scoreboard in right-center field at Connie Mack Stadium in the ninth inning to beat Vernon Law and give the rebuilt and exciting Phillies their fourth victory in five games with the league-leading Pirates.

At 26, the six-foot-two, 210-pound Herrera has been in organized baseball a half dozen years. Where have they been hiding a whacker like him? "Always Philadelphia chain but never much chance," explained Senor Herrera, with a mischievous smile and twinkle in his eyes. "First baseman since a kid in Havana, but they play me in the outfield at Syracuse and Schenectady and at second and third at Miami, and Buffalo. The Phillies tried me out at third base in 1958 and this year second base."

When Senor Herrera led the International League in hits, home runs, runs-batted-in and batting. General Manager John Quinn made room for him where he belongs—at first base—by trading Ed Bouchee. "I am too big to play second base and worried myself into errors at third, and this affect my hitting," explained Senor Herrera. "Catcher no play shortstop. First base more better for me." There may not be enough capable ballplayers to fill the rosters of a third big league, but through the years a sizable number of stars have been bypassed in the minors by major league outfits.

"Norm Larker is perhaps the most striking current example of this," cut in Lee Walls, the outfielder, while we were chatting with Senor Herrera. "They shipped this guy around the Horn and back to the Tigers' camp three times, to play a vital part in winning a world championship for the Dodgers."

Larker, currently leading the National League in batting, was 18 when he reported to the Dodgers' Hazelton branch in the North Atlantic League.

Ten years and seven clubs later Larker, the solid man, finally crashed the parent club, but as an outfielder, not first base, which he had played all his life. This season, crowding 30, he at long last comes into his own, playing first base often than Gil Hodges, who had to wear but no little in order for Larker to move in.

Another bright Phillie obtained in a trade is Ken Walters, a 26-year-old outfielder who can hit, run and throw. The guy had been in the Detroit system for eight years.

"It was a great break for me when I got out of the Detroit organization," he said. "I went to the Tigers' camp three times, but they hardly looked at me."

This could go on and on. Johnny Blanchard has been in the Yankees' organization for nine years, was rated a slick catcher in the minors before he put in two years of military service. This is his second campaign with the parent outfit, but he has yet to catch enough to break in a new glove.

Professional ballplayers are still sentenced to a huge chain gang, where major league clubs can protect them in their own interests for four years and then send them out on option three years more for seven.

So, you see, it's a tremendous stroke of good fortune for guys like Norm Larker, Pancho Herrera, Ken Walters and Johnny Blanchard to finally be made trusties.

Bowling Is Rapidly Growing

Country Club Atmosphere In New Keg Emporium Lures 25,000,000 Bowlers Across The Country

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press International

AKRON, Ohio (UPI)—Bowling is the fastest growing participant sport in the nation and, thanks to a black-haired man named Eddid Elias, it's also the most rapidly expanding professional sport in the land today.

Elias is a man who went into New York City two years ago with $1,750 in his pocket and a dream in his head.

The upshot is a professional bowling treasury today which runs into "six figures"—and the lowest sum you can make out of that is $100,000—while the 475 professional bowlers under his tent will shoot at $600,000 in television prize money and an additional $200,000 in tournament payoffs next year alone.

Where it goes from there is anybody's guess, but it can't go anywhere but "up."

There are 25 million bowlers in the nation and, with the cleanup of the sport as it moved from a basement pastime in a pool hall atmosphere to a country club setting, with the advent of air conditioning it became a year-round sport. The one knock against it for years was that it had no properly organized "professional" operation. Elias took care of that.

Here was a young man out of Akron whose only claim to athletic fame was in having been the golfing caddy of bowler Buzz Fazio. But black-haired Eddie, taking his law degree from Western Reserve, numbered among his clients such as golfer Tommy Bolt and then subsequently came up with his bright bowling idea.

Elias set out blithely for New York's bowling center and organized the pro bowlers. Now he has 475 of them under contract with another 200 clamoring to be admitted.

"We had to set up standards," he explains. "We decided on a basic 190 average—and we investigate thoroughly to make certain that the average is above-board."

THE PAMPA DAILY NEWS
THURSDAY, JULY 21, 1960

We also investigate our professionals through an executive board screening as to their character."

The old pool hall atmosphere and "bustlers" have been eliminated.

In the fledgling year of 1959, the Professional Bowlers Assn. put on three tournaments with a total of $51,000 in prize money. In 1960 they are running off seven tournaments—including the $46,000 first annual PBA tournament at Memphis—for a total of $160,000. Next year will be a new high, for Elias currently is considering weigh-in for even more tournament.

There will be at least 20 tournaments with a total minimum of $200,000, including a $28,000 tournament at Las Vegas.

But the big money operation in the professional bowling world will be, naturally, on television.

Comedian Milton Berle will be the master of ceremonies on the NBC "Jackpot Bowling" show starting Sept. 19. This will be a one-half-hour show every Monday night which will run for six consecutive months.

The two stars competing weekly—members of Elias' Professional Bowling Assn.—will roll only for strikes.
