UN Financial Issue Solved

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UPI) — A new formula to solve the United Nations financial crisis on terms acceptable to the United States and Russia was reported by diplomats today.

The report came after eight weeks of deadlock in the United Nations over the issue of Russia's $60 million debt and the U. S. insistence that U. N. charter provisions be applied to take away the Soviet vote in the General Assembly.

U. S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson was expected to reiterate the American position that Russia must pay or lose its vote in his policy speech to the General Assembly today.

Stevenson was among the last scheduled speakers in the general debate, which has been conducted without a vote since Dec. 1. But assembly President Alex Quaison-Sackey has said he will soon call for election of assembly vice presidents and committee chairmen — possibly as early as Thursday.

Unless there is prior settlement, this will bring the conflict to a head. But diplomats expressed optimism that the new formula would be acceptable to all and would end the United Nations' biggest crisis.

They said the formula drops all reference to Article 19 of the U. N. charter — the provision that any nation two years in arrears "shall" lose its assembly vote.

The United States has insisted that any settlement must be in keeping with the charter. But the diplomats said the formula is expressed in terms acceptable to the United States as well as Russia. There was no immediate American or Soviet comment on it.

The key part of the formula, diplomats said, is the understanding that the Russians make a "substantial" payment on their U. N. dues. Under the charter, a minimum payment of $21.7 million would save their vote. But the Soviets, contending they have paid for everything except "illegal" peace-keeping costs, have refused to say how much they will contribute.

Connally, Smith Sworn In; Governor Vows Changes

Education Stressed In Message

AUSTIN (UPI)—Gov. John Connally today promised state legislators he will ask them for "many changes" to help state government catch up with modern times after taking the oath of office for a second term.

Connally and Lt. Gov. Preston Smith were inaugurated for their second two-year term in office a week late before a joint session of the 59th Legislature gathered on the steps of the Capitol.

The governor again put his major stress on "creation of an educational system... second to none in America" while giving only a mild hint of what he will ask of lawmakers when he outlines his entire program for the biennium Wednesday.

Education Stressed
"We can use education, the progenitor of change to foster the minds and the skills for a more prosperous economy," he said. "We can use our knowledge to alleviate the suffering of the ill and infirm."

"We can, at last, devise the plans to assure water for our teeming cities, growing industries, and the farms and ranches which produce our food and fiber. We can give new meaning to self-government and local solutions to local problems."

While the world is quickly changing around us, Connally noted that there have been few changes—"either in our concepts or our practices—in state government."

Changes Necessary
"This we cannot long abide," he said. "If government is to be a servant of the people, its institutions and its concepts and its practices must assuredly most change."

Telling the assembled 179 state senators and representatives, and other state officials and employees bunched in front of the Capitol that "we come to an hour of decision," Connally said:

"On tomorrow I shall recommend many changes. If I have apology to make to those I serve, it is only that in the retrospect of future generations I may not have reached far enough."

Johnson Praises Connally
The governor got a sendoff into his second two-year term from President Johnson.

Johnson sent Connally a telegram from his hospital bed in Washington Monday. It was read Monday night at an inaugural eve dinner, attended by more than 4,000 celebrating Democrats.

In his telegram, Johnson said, "I regret very much it is not possible for Lady Bird and me to be with you other than in spirit."

The President said that although he had always been proud of Connally, "I am more proud for the state that at this decisive time in the history of Texas and the nation, Texas can be led by a chief executive who is so much a man of his times."

He said the Governor, "stands in the front ranks" among the leaders of the nation and is dedicated "to the vision of a finer future for Texas, the nation and free man in every land."

Connally and Smith both spoke to the dinner crowd Monday night.

Jovial Occasion
It was a jovial occasion for the Democrats. For them, it was the climax to a year of hard campaigning which bore fruits Nov. 3. The Republican party won only one state office, and that winner—Rep. Frank Cahoon of Midland—was at the dinner Monday night.

GOOD SAILING — Melted snow and light rain turned many of Pampa's unpaved streets into an excellent pond for youngsters with boats to sail as shown above, but made going rough for motorists. This giant mud puddle on Montagu between N. Nelson and N. Sumner Streets was duplicated on other unpaved streets over the city yesterday.

Comprehensive Plan Given More Support

Pampa city commissioners today received a City Traffic Commission endorsement of a "comprehensive plan" for Pampa as recommended by the City Planning and Zoning Board.

The report was received and filed with favorable comment from Mayor H. R. Thompson and Commissioner Jim Nation.

"I think we should have an overall program," Nation said. "I believe the people of Pampa are ready to go ahead and willing to spend money on bond issues for needed improvements."

Said Mayor Thompson: "I am in favor of a comprehensive planning commission. I think Pampa is ready for traffic, highway and street improvements. We need long-range planning."

The mayor said he thought the Comprehensive Plan commission should be made up of all segments of the city's interests.

"We need a commission that can carry on despite the make-up of a city commission," Mayor Thompson said. "After all, this commission may have a complete change within sixty days. What we need is a long-range planning group that can work with all city commissions on this program."

Commissioners M. McDaniel and Leon Holmes were absent from today's meeting.

The Traffic Commission also recommended to the city commission that "no left turn" signs, removed a short time ago, be reinstalled at the north and south approaches to the Cuyler St. underpass.

The commission at its meeting today also agreed to a request for the removal of two parking meters to provide a driveway into the First National Bank parking lot, and one for the installation of five meters to separate private lot parking from off-street parking at Ballard and Kingsmill Sts.

Wayland Merriman, consulting engineer, reported for Forrest & Cotton, Dallas, that final approval of plans for the first segment of Pampa's $950,000 sewer treatment plant and sewer lines is expected in time to set a bid date on the project by the latter part of February.

RIGHTS OF WAY HOLDING UP PROJECT

Highway 273 Plans Progressing

County Judge Bill Craig said today the Gray County commissioners' court is doing everything possible to get rights of way problems settled for completion of the Pampa - McLean Highway 273 in the Lefors area.

The statement came when the judge was contacted by The News after City Commissioner L. P. Fort had charged at today's City Commission meeting that the County was "dragging its feet" on the project. The commissioner said he based his statement on information from "high-placed local and state authorities."

The unfinished strip of the Pampa - McLean highway improvement is a seven-mile stretch which runs through Lefors from both the Pampa and McLean ends of the project. Judge Craig said the main reason for the holdup on the highway project has been due to difficulties in obtaining rights of way on the unfinished part of the project.

"There are six or seven of these within the City of Lefors and we are in the process now of negotiating them," Judge Craig said.

The judge said the county has been working on the right of way problem for more than a year, but that negotiations now are at the point where it is expected to be completed within the next few weeks.

The county judge added that negotiations for the rights of way are based on values set by the State Highway Department which is a 50-50 partner with the County.

"It is possible," Craig said, "that if we don't reach settlement agreements we will be forced to file condemnation proceedings."

The judge added that some of these property valuations were received from the state only a month or so ago.

Judge Craig stated that it is hoped that the right of way situation will be in such shape that contracts for finishing the job can be let in April.

City commissioner Fort's request today was made in the form of a motion to send a resolution to the commissioners court requesting action on the project, and also to begin preliminary steps that eventually would get necessary improvements started on state highway thoroughfares inside Pampa.

Commissioners MacField, McDaniel and Leon Holmes were absent from today's meeting and no action was taken on the motion.

Mayor H. R. Thompson and Commissioner Jim Nation both expressed opinions that the project should be pushed and stated they were confident if the proper approach is taken that cooperation would be obtained from county officials.

Members of the Chamber of Commerce Highway Committee at a meeting a week ago voted to attend the regular meeting of the county commissioners' court on Feb. 1 to urge that immediate action be taken to finish the $875,000 highway project on SH 273.

At that meeting it was stated that it was difficult to get action on other state highway projects in Gray County until the Pampa-McLean project is completed.

Members of the committee said one of the projects being delayed by the holdup on SH 273 is the 4-lane widening on U. S. 60 from Pampa to Kingsmill. Commissioner Fort said at today's meeting (See PROJECT, Page 3)

New Russian History Books Avoid Nikita

MOSCOW (UPI)—A new Russian textbook on Soviet history barely mentions Nikita S. Khrushchev. If college students depend on it alone, they will not even know the ousted leader once was premier.

The 646 page history book was authorized for publication Dec. 3—six weeks after Khrushchev was stripped of power. It has just gone on sale.

The only things students are told about the man who led and dominated Soviet politics for 11 years are:

—A group of prominent Communist party and state leaders (including Khrushchev) were assigned to military work at the start of World War II.

—Khrushchev was elected first secretary of the Central Committee of the Communist party in September, 1953.

That is all.

The students are not told a single word about Khrushchev's appointment to the chairmanship of the Council of Ministers in 1958, or about his connection with any of the events—domestic or international—that followed Stalin's death.

The former-Soviet leader, in his secluded retirement, can draw little comfort from the fact that major post-Stalin policies which he enunciated are fully and approvingly described in the new history book.

King Promises Another March

By United Press International

A march on the Dallas County courthouse by "the hundreds" was promised today by Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., leading a mid-winter voter registration drive in Selma, La.

King keyed off the drive eight days ago in the Alabama city where only about 300 Negroes are registered to vote out of a population of more than 14,000. King was slugged by a segregationist the day the drive opened and Monday a 228-pound Negro woman struck Sheriff James Clark in an incident in the voter registration line.

Clark, under a federal restraining order not to interfere with Negroes trying to register to vote, was not hurt although his face was reddened.

More than 220 Negroes have been arrested in the drive but the two slugging incidents have been the only marks of violence.

However, tension was reported to be growing after Clark was hit twice in the face and his attacker, Mrs. Annie Lee

W. Silver, on leave of absence from the University of Mississippi, predicted Monday that Negroes would win their fight for full voting rights in Mississippi within 30 years. He said he believed the "invasion" of civil rights workers and federal marshals was necessary in the struggle for civil rights.

Kiwanis Banquet Marks 50th Birthday

Mayor H. R. Thompson of Pampa was presented a "blank check" for community service last night during a joint banquet of Pampa's two Kiwanis Clubs marking the Golden Anniversary of Kiwanis International.

The check was presented by Bill Price of the TOT and Tom Beard of the Downtown Kiwanis club.

Fred Thompson a past governor of the Texas-Oklahoma District of Kiwanis International was the principal speaker.

Thompson reviewed the accomplishments of Kiwanis International and also of the Pampa Clubs.

The Downtown Kiwanis Club is 25 years old this year and the Top O' Texas Club is seven years old.

The Downtown Club observed the golden anniversary at its Friday noon luncheon when club members listened to a taped address delivered by International President Edward B. Moylan Jr. at a golden anniversary celebration Thursday night in Detroit, Mich.

The observance in Detroit kicked off a year of golden anniversary activities in hundreds of cities and communities where Kiwanis serves over the nations.

COMMUNITY SERVICE — Blank checks for community service to Pampa were presented last night to Mayor H. R. Thompson by the city's Kiwanis Clubs as they marked the Golden Anniversary of Kiwanis International. New Machine to 'Read' Zip-Code

Postmaster O. K. Gaylor said today he has received word from Postmaster General John A. Gronouski in Washington that a big "breakthrough" has now been made on electronic machines to "read" ZIP-coded addresses on mail.

"The postmaster general said he expects to begin installing these sophisticated new machines in major post offices starting in about a year," Postmaster Gaylor said.

Gaylor said each machine will be able to sort, as well as read, at the rate of 35,000 letters an hour.

The offices to get the address readers have not been announced, but the Pampa postmaster said they will have significant effects on the mail in and out of each community regardless of whether it gets the new machines.

This, he stated, is because they will speed incoming mail to smaller offices from major cities and step up the dispatch of mail deposited in smaller communities that must be processed enroute at major massing points.

The postmaster emphasized, however, introduction of the "seeing eye" device next year does not mean ZIP Code isn't useful already.

"ZIP code," he explained, "is important in mail handling under the system of mail processing already in use which will continue to be in use as the basic systems at most points. These machines will be just another step — in conjunction with the mechanical mail sorting machines we have developed — to help keep pace with the growing volumes of mail. Neither will the machines endanger jobs — they will only help us meet mail expansion with minimum manpower expansion."

Our Women in Bad Situation

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI)—It now appears that women either have trapped themselves, or let themselves be trapped, in a situation that is bound to prove embarrassing to somebody. And that can't say I didn't warn them.

As a sort of Paul Revere of the hemlines, I have been sounding alarms for the past couple of years about the shortening of skirts.

The record will show that I repeatedly prophesied that no good would come of this.

What to say "I told you so," but I have just been reading an article on spring fashions that proves how right I was. It says that spring frocks will have two lengths.

Women "with less capable of standing the exposure" can wear skirts that bare the knees, while "other hemlines cover unsightly knees," it says.

Vanity, Modesty Conflict
In other words, women who still cling to some vestige of modesty have now been placed in an untenable position.

Boots Lengthen
Another possibility is those weird looking boots that have been in vogue this winter.

Drinking Among Teenagers Becoming a Bigger Problem

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a series of five dispatches on teen-age drinking.)

"We live in a decadent age. Young people no longer respect their parents. They are rude and impatient. They inhabit taverns and have no self control." — inscription on a 6,000-year-old Egyptian tomb.

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK NEW YORK (UPI)—Millions of teen-agers nationwide are experimenting with beer and liquor—on the sly or with parental approval.

The widespread incidence of teen-age drinking from coast to coast and its consistent yearly increase is documented by reports from United Press International bureaus. It is substantiated further in findings of Family Service agencies across the country.

Happens To All
It occurs among the poor, the medium well-to-do and the rich. Percentage-wise, there appears to be more youthful drinking in the latter category.

One of the most widely publicized incidents happened last June 23 in the New York suburban town of Darien, Conn. It is one of the wealthiest communities in the United States. Its most famous resident, living in seclusion, is Charles Lindbergh.

A car leaped off the road. Its wreckage yielded the body of Nancy Hitchings, 17. Her companion, Michael Smith, 19, has been convicted of negligent homicide.

The accident occurred two hours after the young couple left a gala lawn party at the where liquor had been served. It was a carbon copy of many such tragedies involving teen-agers—with one exception.

Judge Rodney Eielson, upon investigation, issued warrants for the arrest of 13 adults connected with the party. What they did that was against the law in Connecticut, according to the warrants: Serve alcoholic beverages to minors who were not their own children.

Some of them pleaded no defense and paid fines. Others are appealing.

Judge Eielson believes all states should have a law prohibiting adults from serving liquor to minors—as in Connecticut.

Darien, of course, does not stand alone.

"Apparently one of the joys of parenthood is getting your minor children drunk," reports the Family Service Association of Cleveland.

The agency said some residents of Cleveland's "inner city" give their children alcohol but not out of a spirit of gaiety.

"They do it to satisfy their own warped desires — often to strike back at a spouse who disapproves of other misbehavior," said Myra F. Thomas, director of the agency's downtown office.

Cooperative Bar
Teen-agers in Cleveland, as in other cities, are ingenious. In one problem area they set up a bar in a basement of a building.

It was operated on a cooperative basis. Those who brought liquor could drink free. Funds raised by the sale of liquor went to buy other things needed for the establishment.

The Family Service agency of San Francisco notes that a boy, 12, secured whiskey from his dad's liquor locker, took it to the front of the neighborhood church where he met some of his buddies. They drank the whiskey there.

Drinking plays a large part in the spring vacation invasion of merry-making college students at Fort Lauderdale and Daytona Beach in Florida.

Beer is the catalyst as several thousand students pack into a couple of hundred yards of beach. Getting the beer never seems to be much of a problem, although 21 is the minimum age for purchasing it in Florida.

Threw Wild Party
In the Hastings, Neb., area several months ago, about 40 teen-age boys and girls threw a party in a vacant farm house.

They wrecked the place — a la the famous coming out and house-wrecking party involving offspring of high society types in Southampton, Long Island, last summer.

Capt. Kay Twohig, head of the girls' juvenile section, Seattle police, tells of a mother who wanted to have a cocktail party for her daughter at graduation from high school. Other mothers objected.

"I told her we couldn't stop her from serving a cocktail to her own daughter in her home, but we would have to prosecute if she served liquor to underage guests," Capt. Twohig said.

Capt. W. L. Richey, commander of the Los Angeles police department's juvenile division, said he believes drinking is a major factor in juvenile offenses.

"Many rape cases, many assaults, some riots result from drinking," he said.

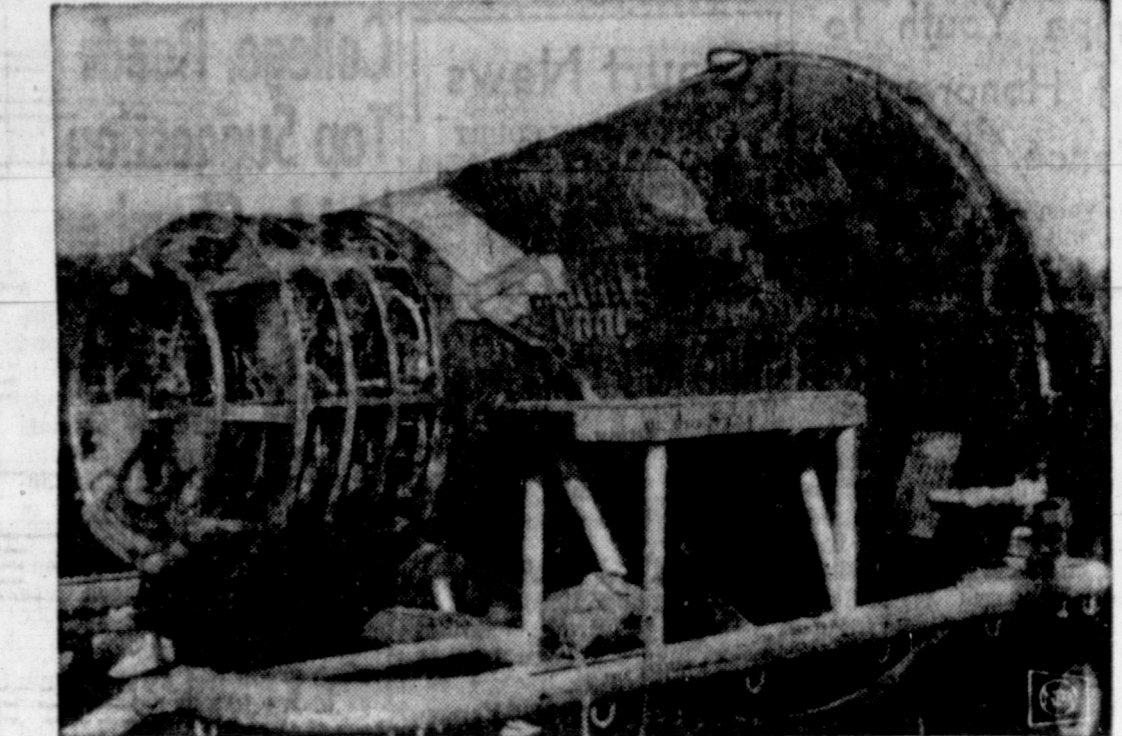

Pay Older Men
Last year, 101 teen-agers were picked up for intoxication in Pittsburgh, Pa. Most of those arrested had paid older men to buy liquor for them, reports Lt. Robert P. Henzler, head of the Pittsburgh youth squad.

Several studies have documented the extent to which teen-agers drink. One in New York indicated that about 86 per cent of the high school students use or had used alcoholic beverages.

Another study, in Wisconsin, concluded that roughly two-thirds of the high school students were sometime drinkers. And a study in Kansas noted that about 50 per cent of high school students drink.

Dr. Herman D. Goldberg, head of the psychology department at Hofstra University in Hempstead, Long Island, and an authority on teen-age drinking, reports that drinking increases for 13, 14, 15 and 16 year olds. But there is no great rise after 16.

'Hazel' Collects Awards

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The award season is almost upon us, a veritable monsoon of Oscars, Emmys, globes, cups, plaques, medallions and statuettes.

Quite possibly no one in show business has collected more honorary hardware than Shirley Booth, the indomitable "Hazel" of television.

Miss Booth has approximately 45 awards, give or take a few bronze whatchamacallits.

Among the most impressive are three Antoinette Perry awards (the Toni) for best performance by an actress in a Broadway show. She has an Oscar for "Come Back, Little Sheba" (1952) and a pair of Emmys for Hazel.

She also possesses a Golden Globe and Cannes Film Festival award for Sheba.

Oscar Most Thrilling
"Of them all, the Oscar was the most thrilling because it was given me for my very first movie performance," Miss Booth said.

Miss Booth keeps her trophies out of sight to avoid having visitors comment on them.

"It's like having pictures of yourself around the house," she explained. "I know some very fine actresses who never won awards. Garbo, for instance, never got an Oscar."

"The important thing is to have people remember your performances with affection. It is a much warmer feeling to be remembered as a living testimonial to your own work than through an award."

Foreign News Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst
In Washington, President Johnson in his inaugural address clearly restated the United States position on Southeast Asia, and in many respects it was a grim one.

The United States, he said, never again could stand in proud isolation. And he added:

"If American lives must end and American treasure be spilled in countries that we barely know, then that is the price change has demanded of conviction of our enduring covenant."

Both in South Viet Nam and in neighboring Laos it was apparent that some new decisions expressing this determination already had been made.

There also were dangerous uncertainties and obvious differences of opinion.

It was equally clear that positions were hardening, which, if they were to follow their natural course seemed to point beyond the borders of South Viet Nam and Laos.

Militarily, from bases in South Viet Nam, Thailand and from aircraft carriers, U.S. warplanes were hitting supply lines through which the Communist North Vietnamese were feeding their Viet Cong allies in South Viet Nam.

Some of these U.S. planes were being shot down. It was apparent that as the U.S. had added more sophisticated weaponry against the Communists, the Communists also from somewhere had obtained anti-aircraft defenses which also were more sophisticated.

It was apparent also that the last pretense had been abandoned of maintaining the 1962 Geneva accord which gave neutrality to Laos and barred the introduction of outside forces.

For the United States, the decision which led to the stepped up raids was both diplomatic and military.

Diplomatically it recognized what long had been known as a fact—that the Communist forces of North Viet Nam never had ceased their aid to the Communist-led Pathet Lao of Laos and never had pulled their forces out of Laos, in accordance with the Geneva agreement.

Militarily, if progress was to be made against the increasingly aggressive Viet Cong in South Viet Nam, something had to be done to cut their supply lines through Laos and Cambodia.

Uncertainties arose from conditions both inside and out of the immediate areas of conflict, aside from doubts about the stability of the South Vietnamese government itself.

In Washington, Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon, most vocal critic of the administration's Southeast Asia policy, attacked the U.S. air raids as reverting to "law of the jungle," inviting a massive war.

There were other problems. Among them was how the conflict was to be reported to the U.S. public. U.S. newsmen assigned to the area long have been dissatisfied under conditions which reported defeats as victories and which banned them from eyewitness accounts of events bearing heavily on progress of the conflict and the U.S. involvement in it.

Part of these differences arose from the advisory role of the U.S. forces involved and the national sensibilities of both the Laotian and the Vietnamese governments.

It was necessary, of course, that security be guarded. But it also was important that the U.S. public be forewarned if it was to be drawn into a larger conflict.

Also among the uncertainties and among the most important of all was the final position to be taken by the Red Chinese and by the Soviet Union, their nominal ally. Theirs really was the final decision as to the final scope of the conflict.

Iran Premier's Condition Worse

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Premier Hassan Ali Mansur, shot and wounded by a would-be assassin last week, was reported in grave condition today. A medical bulletin said a team of specialists, including three American doctors, stayed at Mansur's bedside all night. Medical sources said the premier's condition had reached the danger point and that his physicians had very little hope for his recovery.

Dear Abby... Some Old Jokes Bring Back Fond Memories

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the wife who was embarrassed because her husband insisted on telling "old jokes" took me back many years. My father, rest his soul, was a great one for repeating the same stories to his guests. They would all listen politely, giving no sign that they had heard the story before. Daddy's eyes would twinkle as he talked, and when he got to the punch line he would laugh so hard himself he could hardly get through it. Then everyone would laugh with him. Mamma, bless, her, always led the laughter.

I REMEMBER DADDY

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the letter you published from the woman who complained because her husband told old jokes to his friends over and over again. I know how that woman must feel, because I used to be in the same situation. Every time my husband would start telling one of his old jokes I'd wince with embarrassment. After 40 years of marriage, he is gone. And now I would give anything if I could hear him tell one of his old jokes again.

A WIDOW

DEAR ABBY: I have something to say about "old" jokes. I have collected jokes for over 40 years and I have not heard a "new" one in many, many years. But that doesn't detract from the enjoyment of listening to a joke, if it is told well. Sign me—

OVER SEVENTY

DEAR OVER SEVENTY: How right you are, And anyone, including this writer, who has ever heard Danny Thomas tell the one about the parrot will echo your sentiments.

DEAR ABBY: The letter about the old jokes prompts this question: When someone starts to tell a joke, and then stops and says, "Please stop me if you've heard this joke before," is it all right to stop him if you have?

JOKE TELLER

DEAR JOKE TELLER: I wouldn't recommend it.

DEAR ABBY: The woman who was embarrassed because her husband told old jokes has my sympathy, but my problem is bigger than hers. I have a brother-in-law who tells dirty jokes in mixed company, and he embarrasses me to death. Some of his jokes bring down the

Age Varies on Selling Of Alcoholic Beverages

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of a series of five dispatches on teenage drinking.

PATRICIA MCCORMACK
United Press International
NEW YORK (UPI)—Most states say a minor, insofar as drinking is concerned, is a person under 21 years of age.

But in New York, it's 18. And in North Carolina, a married person of 17 may purchase wine legally.

Some states say the purchase of beer at age 18 is legal, but 21 is the minimum for wine and whisky.

Uncle Sam, on the other hand, says a youth at 17 is old enough to serve in the armed services—if his parents consent. Many states allow boys and girls of 16 to drive cars.

The voting age, meanwhile, stands at 21—except in Kentucky and Georgia, where it is 18. And in Alaska and Hawaii—where it is 19 and 20, respectively.

May Serve Beer
In Texas, it is legal for a female of 18 to work as a waitress serving or selling beer, but she must be 21 to consume or purchase it.

To a teen-ager, it's confusing. To a college student, 20, it's ridiculous. Evertime he drinks beer in a state where the minimum age is 21, he breaks the law.

Reporting at a recent conference on "Purchases by Minors," Dr. Herman D. Goldberg, head of the psychology department of Hofstra University in Hempstead, Long Island, said:

"Scientific studies have shown that minimum age laws have a negligible influence on the age at which youngsters start drinking. They have shown that drinking patterns are established in the home before 18.

"Since most parents permit occasional use of alcoholic beverages in the home and away from the home before 18, parental law has more effect on young people than statutory law."

Question is Distorted
Dr. Goldberg, recently commissioned by the U.S. Public Health Service to do a film on alcohol education for high school students, maintains that the question of teen-age drinking has been distorted and exaggerated out of all perspective.

"The so-called 'teen-age drinking problem' involves only a very small percentage of the nation's youth," he said.

The problem of purchases by minors, he believes, will not be solved until inconsistencies between theories and realities are resolved.

"It is inconsistent," he said,

"for parents to contend that they disapprove of drinking by young adults—when it has been shown that drinking starts for the majority in the home with parental approval."

He finds inconsistent, too, the 21-year minimum in most states since the vast majority of young people start drinking before the age of 18.

18 Realistic Age
Many young people think that 18 is the realistic age of maturity. It is the age of emancipation from parental care and supervision, the age at which young men and women assume adult responsibilities.

Dr. Leon A. Greenberg, director of research at the Rutgers University center for alcohol studies (former Yale), reports that teen-age drinking patterns bear a remarkable similarity to adult drinking patterns.

One reason: Adolescents try to achieve the status of adulthood in a society where social and business functions often revolve about the cocktail hour, where drinking is condoned and sanctioned, the youngsters are going to follow suit.

People who are objecting act as if there is no way to cope with the problem except to change the children, Dr. Greenberg said.

Adults Must Change
To change the drinking habits of teen-agers, he said, the adults first will have to change their drinking patterns.

Authorities have found that most teen-age drinkers who get into trouble usually have many other problems. They may have a history of poor performance in school, in the family or neighborhood.

But where drinking and driving are concerned, all teen-agers are at a huge disadvantage compared to adults.

Research has shown that when alcohol starts to put some parts of the brain to sleep, recently learned experiences are turned off first. Also, unpleasant things are forgotten before pleasant things.

Dr. Greenberg said this means, for example, that a man who has been driving for 30 years and drinking has a better chance of mixing driving and drinking than does a teen-ager who, perhaps, finished driver education just a month ago.

Speaking for the schools, Carl A. Troester Jr., executive secretary of the American Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation, a department of the National Education Association in Washington, said:

"Teenagers want to be adults and they want to be treated for years against Ponti on like adults. This is part of the reason why something like half of all high school age youngsters take at least an occasional drink—and why this figure is increasing. They need help in learning the responsibilities of adulthood and we can help in many ways."

Need Education
Troester said they need appealing, honest health education programs that help them understand the physical and psychological imbalances created by alcohol—and to understand their responsibilities for their own lives and the lives of others when they drive.

"They need help in understanding the actual physiological effects of drinking," he said. "This is one thing the ads don't tell them."

The motivational potentials of sports, he suggested, ought to be utilized fully in educating young people to refrain from drinking during the growing years.

"Tragedies don't need to happen in order to teach a lesson," he said. "Boys and girls learn vicariously every day. School programs need not be moralistic but they should be convincing and relevant to the experience of teenagers."

Clark W. Blackburn, director of the Family Service Association of America, said family life helps determine whether or not the adults or children have a problem with school.

The strong family has the best chance of dealing with the problem of teen-age drinking.

Marks of the strong family: It transmits a special way of life from one generation to another; it provides physical security and protection; it is the place where enduring and deep emotional satisfactions can be achieved; it is the place where adults and children are given full opportunities for emotional, intellectual, spiritual and social development.

"A fourth function of the family is to develop in its members socially desirable traits," Blackburn said. "Parents are responsible for helping each child develop a conscience."

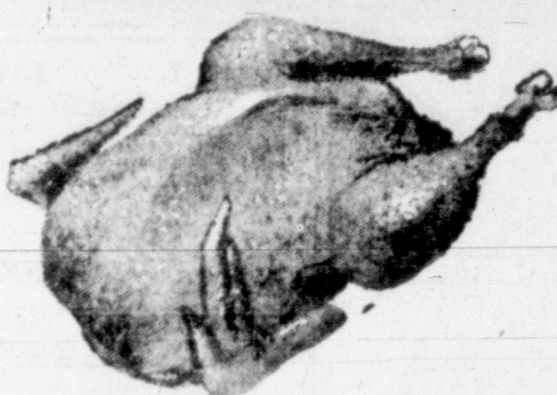

BECOMES FRENCH CITIZEN
PARIS (UPI)—Italian-born film director Carlo Ponti, whose proxy marriage to actress Sophia Loren is in dispute in Italy, has acquired French citizenship, the French Journal revealed Monday.

The Journal, which chronicles official government acts, said that the 42-year-old director became a French citizen as of Jan. 21.

This may finally put an end to legal action in Italy pending for years against Ponti on grounds his marriage to Loren is polygamous or illegal.

...and this is how it looks!

Sure it's good looking. But you'll never know what a honey the new F-65 really is until you buckle down behind the wheel. You'll go for its rollicking V-8 response (with up to 315 horses!) The serene smoothness of its full-coil ride. The solid quiet of its Body by Fisher. Actually, only one thing equals the pleasure of driving this budget-pleasing F-65: The pride of owning it!

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of three distinctive dispatches on the remarkable life of Sir Winston Churchill, by a UPI correspondent who covered him from World War II to his death.

By ROBERT MUSEL
United Press International
LONDON (UPI)—Sir Winston Churchill dying in bed of old age!

Who would have believed that?

Not the doctor who delivered him when he was born prematurely in 1874.

Not the Indian and Afghan tribesmen who tried to kill him in 1897.

Not the Dervishes who nearly cut him down—before he shot them down—in 1898.

Not the South African Boers who wanted to execute him in 1899.

Not the instructor who saw him crash a biplane on a solo flight in 1919.

Not the assassins who trailed him in Britain and the United States in the 1920s and 1930s.

Not the cab driver into whose taxi he disastrously jaywalked in New York City in 1931. Nor the officials who begged him to take shelter during the wartime air-raids on London.

Most Improbable Place
Bed was the most improbable place for the end of the great adventure story that was Churchill's life. It was not the final battleground he would have himself chosen. He envied men who died in action—more and more as the years took away his hearing, his mobility, his vast enjoyment of the sheer act of living.

Though he wept when he heard of the death of his friend President Franklin D. Roosevelt, in 1945, he said:

"He died in harness and we may well say battle harness. What an enviable death was his!"

There were no trumpets blaring, no clash of sabres in Hyde Park Gate as life ebbed from the last survivor of the last classic cavalry charge in military history—the charge of the 21st Lancers in the Sudanese campaign of 1898.

Omdurman! The place is like a roll of the drums in history. Now all of that gallant band of officers are gone. Churchill was the last.

Longevity was the ultimate boon conferred on Sir Winston by what must have been the hardest working guardian angel in the business—considering the chance he took in war and the perils he survived in peace—including the 14 major illnesses (starting at the age of seven) that might have killed lesser men long before 90.

But long life was a boon Sir Winston did not particularly want. Nearly five years ago as he found it difficult to hear, even with a hearing aid, as he tottered even on a cane he suddenly tired of being a semi-invalid. He refused to leave his bed—often a fatal act with very old people.

Lady Clementine, his beloved wife since 1908 and carrying her own 79 years strongly and bravely, thought of all sorts of stratagems to keep him interested—a constant strain that told on her own health.

Newsboys
Avenge
Defeat

WHEELER — Tight defense and rugged rebounding was the keynote last night as the Pampa Newsboys evened the score against Wheeler's "Faulty Faculty Plus Four" with a 46-37 victory.

Gary Sikes, Teddy Bird and Gerald Sikes literally cleaned the boards for the Newsboys as they dominated the rebounding, while Carroll Russell, Ralph Meixner, Charlie Snuggs and Ronnie Oler led a stonewall defense that held "Sweet William" Harle to only four points before he fouled out in the third quarter, and Mendall Hunter to just nine, a far cry from the 38 points the two accumulated in the last tussle.

Pampa was never behind, although Wheeler tied the game at the end of the second and beginning of the third quarters. Pampa jumped to a 4-0 lead and pulled it out to 14-7 at the quarter as 6'4" Gary went wild for 11 points in the opening stanza on jumps, stuffs and tips.

The Newsboys went ice-cold in the second stanza and Hiram Begart led the Faulty Faculty back, with David Britt (on the receiving end, instead of a foul) sinking a free throw after the buzzer to knot the score at 17-17.

The two teams matched free throws and baskets in the opening minutes to keep the count knotted at 20-20, but Meixner drove in past his old high school coach to put the Newsboys into a lead they never again relinquished, as the Sikes brothers led the way to a 28-24 margin. Oler came in for three quick points and the Newsboys built the lead to eight, only to have Begart and Jack Helton cut it back to four. Russell, the White Deer all-stater, broke up the Wheeler press personally and fed the ball to Gary under, who bucked and Snuggs in the corner to wrap it up.

Gary had 20 points, Snuggs 10, Begart led Wheeler with 11. Harle had challenged the Newsboys to another match, probably following the Pampa visit to Miami next Monday.

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Harry A. Stuhldreher, quarterback of the famed Four Horsemen of Notre Dame, died today in the West Penn Hospital.

Stuhldreher, 63, entered the hospital Dec. 29 and underwent major surgery on Jan. 14. He died at 6:50 a.m. EST, the first of the Four Horsemen to pass away.

Known throughout the world as "Mr. Football," Stuhldreher was an assistant vice president, marketing for the U.S. Steel Corp.

He was born in Massillon, Ohio, and played football at Massillon High for three years, beginning in 1917. During the next two years he played at Kiski School near Saltsburg, Pa.

Stuhldreher entered Notre Dame in 1922. There he met Elmer Layden, Don Miller and Jim Crowley, the other three members of the Four Horsemen.

Eddie Jackson Bows
Out With Best Game

By United Press International

Eddie Jackson played his last basketball game for Oklahoma City University Monday night and he made the best of it.

Jackson, the 7-foot OCU center, tossed in 22 points to pace the Chiefs' 96-68 come from behind win over West Texas State.

In other Texas basketball action, McMurry defeated Abilene Christian 83-82 in one overtime. Howard Payne outscored Sul Ross 110-91 and Southwest Texas whipped Sam Houston 74-67.

Jackson's eligibility runs out at midterms and the Chiefs will miss his scoring ability, not to mention the rebounds he snafes.

The Buffaloes had led as much as 30-19 in the first half of Monday night's affair, but then Jackson and Jerry Lee Wells got hot. The Chiefs built a four point halftime advantage and never lost it.

Howard Payne's win over Sul Ross brought the Yellow Jackets into a first place tie with S. F. Austin in the Lone Star Conference.

The highscoring affair was characterized by Robert Arlinger, who picked up 34 points for Howard Payne, and Jack Fryman, who poured in 31 for the losers. A total of 66 fouls were called in the game.

Southwest Texas moved into third place with its victory, one-half game ahead of Sul Ross, which now owns a 2-2 league record.

Bill Overall got 24 points and Henry Garcia got 22 as South Texas won its third of five league starts and handed Sam Houston its third setback in as many outings.

Allen Mitchell hit 2-2 points for Sam Houston in the close contest. The lead changed hands 11 times during the game.

In a non-conference affair, McMurry ran its season record to 10-8 with the win over Abilene Christian.

Houston Files
Suit On Neely

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI)—All-America tackle Ralph Neely was named Monday in a breach of contract suit filed by the Houston Oilers professional football team.

The suit alleged that Neely, who was kicked off the Oklahoma squad on the eve of the Sooners' Gator Bowl game with Florida State because he had signed with the Oilers, had violated his contract. Neely signed with the Dallas Cowboys shortly after the earlier contract signing was disclosed.

The suit was filed in U.S. district court here and assigned to Judge Stephen Chandler. Neely was given 20 days to answer.

Neely was one of four Oklahoma players who signed professional contracts before completing their college eligibility. The others—fullback Jim Grisham, end Wes Skidgel and halfback Lance Rentzel—signed with the Minnesota Vikings. All said they were told the contracts were not binding because they were undated.

The Oilers' suit asked federal court to force Neely to fulfill his contract with the Houston team, and not play for the Cowboys. It sought no damages, but said the contract was valued in excess of $10,000.

The suit said Neely's contract provided for a $25,000 bonus, annual salary of $16,000 through 1968, a $5,000 per year guarantee as a real estate salesman and management of a service station in Harris County, Tex.

Neely said he had returned the Oilers' check on Dec. 30, two days before the signing was disclosed. He said the contract was deliberately designed to be invalid, in the belief that it would not affect his Gator Bowl eligibility.

Oiler owner K.S. (Bud) Adams said Jan. 2 in Houston that Baltimore, of the rival National Football League, would have signed Neely early if Houston had not done so.

"We don't make a practice of signing players early," Adams said, "but we have been forced to do so if we are to sign players in competition with the NFL."

Wildcats Snarl
At SEC Enemies

By FRED MCMANE
UPI Sports Writer

This basketball season is likely to go down in history as one of the most disastrous ever for Kentucky University, but before their ecology is prepared, the Wildcats plan on making things difficult for Southeastern Conference foes.

Georgia felt the bite of the Wildcats Monday night as it bowed to Kentucky 102-82 on the Bulldogs home court. The win was only the ninth for Coach Adolph Rupp's cagers in 16 games, but it was one of the team's better efforts this season and filled "The Baron" with optimism for the future.

"We may not win the Southeastern Conference championship," said the Kentucky mentor, "but we may have something to say about who does." The Wildcats never trailed the Bulldogs after the first 11 minutes and their point total and 38 field goals were both Georgia Coliseum records.

Dampier Leading Scorer
Guard Louie Dampier led Kentucky with 24 points and 16 rebounds while the Bulldogs were paced by Jerry Waller and Jimmy Pitts, each with 21 points.

The two pace-setters in the SEC, Vanderbilt and Auburn, also saw action Monday night. The 11th-ranked Commodores rolled to their fifth straight conference win by downing hapless Mississippi 84-70. Auburn, however, found the going rough against a non-conference opponent, Florida State, and lost to the Seminoles 58-55.

In other games, Minnesota topped Purdue 85-81, Dayton trounced Loyola (Calif.) 89-71, North Carolina State defeated Centenary College (La.) 70-64, and Iowa State beat Oklahoma 87-81.

Vanderbilt's Clyde Lee and Bob Grace teamed to lead the Commodores over Mississippi. While the Rebels concentrated their efforts on Lee during the first half, Grace hit for 17 points to give Vandy a big lead. Then, Lee turned in an 18-point final period as the Commodores handed the Rebels their 13th loss of the season.

Lee Took over
Lee took game scoring honors with 22 points and also corralled 24 rebounds.

Florida State employed a freeze to upend Auburn. The Tigers, who trailed at the half by four points, began the second half with a zone defense and the Seminoles decided to control the ball.

HOUSTON (UPI)—Manuel Gonzalez, a methodical boxer who has struggled to third ranking among welterweights, meets champion Emile Griffith tonight in a non-title fight that can nonetheless mean much for Gonzalez.

If the Odessa boxer "now" fighting out of Houston can get the edge on Griffith, he is sure to get a try for Griffith's title in a rematch later.

LETTERS STILL pouring in over the football vs. band fracas although we thought everything had been settled. Band drum major Doug Scags, an old friend and former Pampa Rebel, called to apologize on behalf of one or two "over-zealous" members of the band and asked that we ignore any further missives. Doug and I settled the discussion to our mutual satisfaction, agreeing that no insult was meant to the band.

Several more letters have come in though. Two were anonymous and we shall ignore those. One was from an adult wondering what all the fuss was about and the other extremely insulting and illiterate. Most people who write insulting letters are usually too cowardly to sign them. Only note we would make about that is that it was signed "PHS Graduate of 1963" and from the illiteracy of the letter, we feel it should be signed "Flunkout of '63."

However, one letter from a band member was intelligent, reasonable, and should put an end to the whole discussion. Frankly, I have to admit that letterwriter Richard Louis Tarrant is right and I may be wrong.

Richard, a sophomore, points out that the athletes are deserving of support and backing, but that it might be better if this department found them a new name, rather than a name that is already associated with the band and deservedly so.

So, this department will here-with try to give a new descriptive title, in addition to Fighting Harvesters, shared by 11 school activities, to the athletic teams, especially the cridders, and leave the title of Pride of Pampa to the PHS Band. We will welcome any and all suggestions as to a new title for the athletes that will be theirs alone.

Top-Ranked College
Teams Retain Posts

NEW YORK (UPI)—Two of the nation's top three major-college basketball teams unlimber from a two-week examination layoff with a Friday night meeting at Chicago Stadium in the top doubleheader attraction of the season.

Unfortunately for the spectators, the meeting between top-ranked UCLA and third-ranked Wichita will be only a social one since UCLA plays a tough Iowa squad in one game of the twinbill and the Shockers face hometown Loyola.

The games hold special significance for both teams. The defending national champion Bruins, who received their biggest point total of the season from the United Press—International board of coaches (345 points) this week, have only two non-league foes left on the schedule — Iowa and Loyola the following night.

Wichita, which will be performing under the watchful eye of former Coach Ralph Miller, now the head man at Iowa, has lost its 6-foot-10 center Nate Bowman through scholastic deficiencies and All-America Dave Stallworth's eligibility runs out after Saturday's joust with Missouri Valley Conference rival Louisville.

The four top-ranked teams all retained their positions at the head of the list as UCLA, which received 32 first place votes, and Wichita were idle and second-ranked Michigan and fourth-ranked St. Joseph's of Philadelphia played only one game apiece during the past week. Sixth-ranked San Francisco also held fast.

The only major changes in the top 10 involved Providence and Indiana. The Friars, the only major undefeated team in the nation, vaulted from seventh to fifth with a victory over Seton Hall for its 12th win, and Indiana, a loser to Iowa, plummeted from fifth to 10th.

The fall of Indiana boosted Davidson, St. John's and Duke each up a notch to seventh, eighth and ninth positions, respectively.

Vikings
Host for Charity

The Pampa Vikings, headed by a trio of former all-staters and several college and service basketball players, will host the Pampa Newsboys in a charity affair at Carver Junior High Gymnasium tomorrow at 7:30.

The game will be for the benefit of the Carver P.T.A. Admission will be 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children.

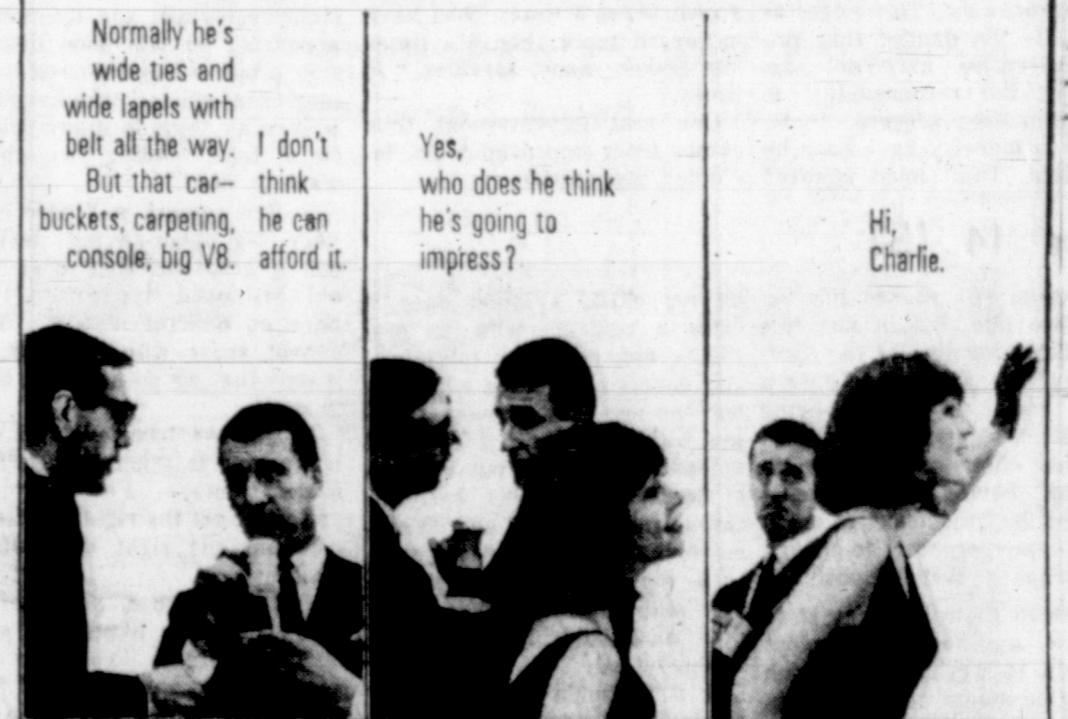

All of the Vikings, who have run up a 4-2 record this season, played with Carver High School, state finalists in the Class B Negro Interscholastic League several years, with the exception of manager Jim Hunnicutt. Hunnicutt, 5-6 1/2, played high school ball at Wellington, then with Butler College, and had five years of service basketball.

"Big man" in the Viking lineup is 6-5 Don Proctor, all-stater at Carver and All-Air Force. A pair of well known cage brothers are 5-9 George Duke and 5-11 brother Ray. George was an all-stater and Ray honorable mention.

Ray Dunn, 6-1, Robert Harris, 6-10 and Curtis Eastman, 5-8, round out the lineup, along with a pair of ex-Carver cagers now on the Pampa High School base ball team, 5-10 Timmy Woods and 5-9 Terry Holt.

The Newsboys will counter with 6-4 Gary Sikes, former junior college, Oklahoma and Pampa High school star; 6-2 1/2 brother Gerald, ex-Pampa Shocker; 6-1 Ralph Meixner, former Vega all-district; 6-0 Larry Daniels, another ex-Shocker; 5-11 Ronnie Oler; 5-11 Bill Nichols, former Lefors Pirate; 6-0 1/2 Bobby Price, another former Harvester and 5-11 Mike Velasquez, ex-Price College.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities. We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself no more, no less. It is thus consistent with the Human Relations Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Facing Up to Automation

There has been a great deal said about automation, its promise and its threat. Labor unions and government officials, notably weak on economic understanding, view automation as partially desirable, provided it can be controlled and limited. Politicians are prone to view automation as having already eliminated so many jobs that government must embark on huge make-work programs. Labor bosses view automation as a justification for increases in wages and fringe benefits.

But the men who know most about automation, the men of the management team, have been notably quiet in this area. Speaking out, now, is one of the foremost, president of Continental Can Co., Ellison L. Hazard. Mr. Hazard addressed the Executives Club of Chicago and extracts from this address were published in Management's magazine called "News Front." We quote from this latter source:

"The real danger in automation does not lie in reduced employment. No, the real danger, as I see it, is this: We are approaching the rich rewards of automation like Damocles approaching the banquet of Dionysius—with a two-edged sword hanging over us by a hair. The sword is the real danger in automation.

"One edge of the sword is the danger of automation controls, forced upon us by labor unions or government—controls which could be injurious to both employment and for economy generally. The other edge of the sword is the danger of inaction by business and management in meeting its full responsibility in the automation process.

"Let's look at the first sword — automation controls. This danger may be closer than we think! Under current legislation, a high level Federal Commission will soon start to study automation. . . . (with the obvious view of regulating automated industry, and possibly regulating industries which consider moving into further automation).

"Now, what about the other edge of that sword of Damocles hanging over us? This edge, as I said, is the danger that private enterprise may not assume its full responsibility in the automation process. . . . We in industry have been inarticulate. This must change!

Save 14 (b)

Fourteen (b) sounds like an odd shoe size, but in fact this identifies a section of the Taft-Hartley law designed to keep union members from being completely subject to the whims of union officials. The Administration, having been elected with the lavish support of union officers, now proposes to change the section at their request.

Fourteen (b) allows any state whose citizens so desire to adopt a "right to work" law which merely prohibits making union membership necessary to get to hold a job. Twenty states have such laws. Unions thrive in all of them.

But where "right to work" laws are in force, a man can make up his own mind about whether he wants to belong to a particular union. In the U.S. we have unions which are honestly run and responsive to the members' wishes, and we have others which are dictatorial, violent and corrupt. A National Labor Relations Board Examiner recently commented that he had no power to treat a corrupt union any differently than a legitimate one.

Where "right to work" laws kept.

Man Sense vs. Horse Sense

Seven hundred troops seems an impossible number of men for an airplane to carry. But that's how many will be lifted by a gigantic military transport plane which President Johnson has just O. K'd $750 million to develop. It's a far cry from the '40 and 85" of World War I fame, the French boxcars which transported either 40 men or eight horses to the front in something less than comfort. Come to think of it, 140 horses would be a lot of cavalry for an airplane to carry. Horses are smarter than humans, however. They don't go to war any more.

We have been our own worst enemies. Improving our technology and productive power, trying to keep our industries competitive with the rapidly automating industries of other nations is not enough. We have permitted the "free riders" on private enterprise to sabotage our objectives with a flood of propaganda based on half-truths and worse."

Then Mr. Hazard lists several of the myths concerning automation which myths have been largely accepted by a gullible public as being factual: the myth that jobs have to be created; the myth that it is labor alone that increased productivity and is thus the only segment of the economy deserving a reward as a result of automation.

Striking at these myths in turn, Mr. Hazard shows that automation can be used as a major contributor to the economy only if its development is managed by those who understand it, the management team. That is to say, neither government nor labor unions understands automation; they are not prepared to pay for it; and continually misinterpret its effects.

On the question of creating jobs, Mr. Hazard brings out the point very rarely made . . . that there are more jobs that need doing in this world than there are men capable of doing them. He says, succinctly: "We should not talk about the necessity of 'creating jobs'—we should talk about the necessity of having a free working economy so that jobs will continue to expand faster than the population."

Finally, on the question of labor's effort as the sole contributing factor to productivity, the president of Continental Can states flatly that 90 percent of the gains in productivity in the past 50 years have come from improvements in technology and hardware. Workers are working fewer hours and exerting less energy and productivity improves because of improved tools, not because of improved output per man qua man.

"Since 1850," says Hazard, "the population of the U. S. has grown about 8 times, jobs have increased more than 8 1/2 times and goods and services 75 times."

Our real improvement thus comes from improved tools, including automation.

do not exist, a union once it signs a contract with an employer can obtain dismissal of any covered employee who does not join and stay in good standing with the union. It can call wildcat strikes that put him out of work, curtail his earnings through work quotas and do other things that hurt rather than help the individual employee, and still he must render his dues as if he truly were being "represented."

It is probable that the mere existence of 14 (b) has had a beneficial effect on unions, even in states which have passed no "right to work" laws. Unions are always mindful that one could be passed, and inclined to behave a bit less arrogantly to keep from getting the voters worked up.

If 14 (b) is repealed, this restraint will be gone. Unions will not need to consider the feelings or opinions of either their members or the people of states in which they operate.

Fourteen (b) injures no one. Its repeal would benefit only labor union officials. It is the only guarantee against captive union membership. It had best be kept.

That may be so. But to our way of thinking, it is all beside the point. If you are going to be a Writer, it seems to us the important thing to know is the knack of turning out a great piece of work, such as "Pride and Prejudice" or "Crime and Punishment."

"Nonsense," Mr. Creasey said. "Those are not great works. Boil them down to essentials and what have you got? Melodrama. Simple melodrama. . . . Take 'Crime and Punishment.' It runs 600,000 words as-

How to Write — Get With It, Son

NEW YORK (NEA) — We were extremely fortunate in getting to spend an hour and 34 minutes with John Creasey the other afternoon, and were quite surprised to find him as pleasant at the end of the interview as he had been at the beginning.

Not that we really expected any trouble. It is just that Mr. Creasey is one of the world's greatest Writers, being 56 years old and having turned out 450 books in the past 30 years. By our calculation, that works out to 1.3 books per month, or a third of a book per week, or a half of a chapter not written because of the time we took from him.

However, we cannot apologize for that. It has been one of our chief ambitions for many years to become a Writer, and opportunities for asking experts how do not come along that often.

But despite the many we have asked, and the detailed study of matter we have made, the actual trick of how to be a Writer has remained a secret. And through the years it has become an increasing embarrassment to receive these sad, trusting letters from readers who always begin:

"I read your name in the paper quite a lot and have always wanted to be a Writer myself. Could you tell me how to go about getting started?"

Well, nobody wants to discourage the next person. Especially if it means showing up your own ignorance in the process. So we usually reply with a brief note of inspiration prepared and edited by the senior class at Sarah Lawrence College, whose members have seen life and are going to write about it immediately after graduation.

But that is no answer, of course, as writing and being a Writer are two entirely different things. Writing is where you write something in order to explain yourself. It is very hard work requiring considerable attempt, failure and despair.

We have tried writing several times and cannot imagine why anybody would want to do it for a living.

Being a Writer is not the same at all. If we understand it correctly, a Writer does not write anything unless somebody wants it and is willing to pay for it. If nobody happens to want anything at the moment, that does not make you any less of a Writer. It simply means that you do not have to write anything.

We know many Writers, very highly esteemed and frequently appearing on television discussion programs or referred to in magazine articles, who have not written anything in many years. Or at least nothing you would want to read.

In that regard, a Writer is a very big labor-saving device and a great advance over the old-fashioned typewriter. We have no quarrel with it. You cannot argue with progress. It is only that we do not know how to do it.

And all we have ever got for our asking is a notebook full of useless details. For example, you must get the right publisher who has the right distribution facilities. You should use an electric typewriter for a 30 per cent production increase. You can expect to write an average of 85,000 words before you begin to start selling on a regular basis. We did not fare much better with asking Mr. Creasey, for all his 450 romances, westerns, mysteries and science fiction books.

"Do not waste time," he said. "Most people waste time. If you do not waste time, you can turn out a great quantity."

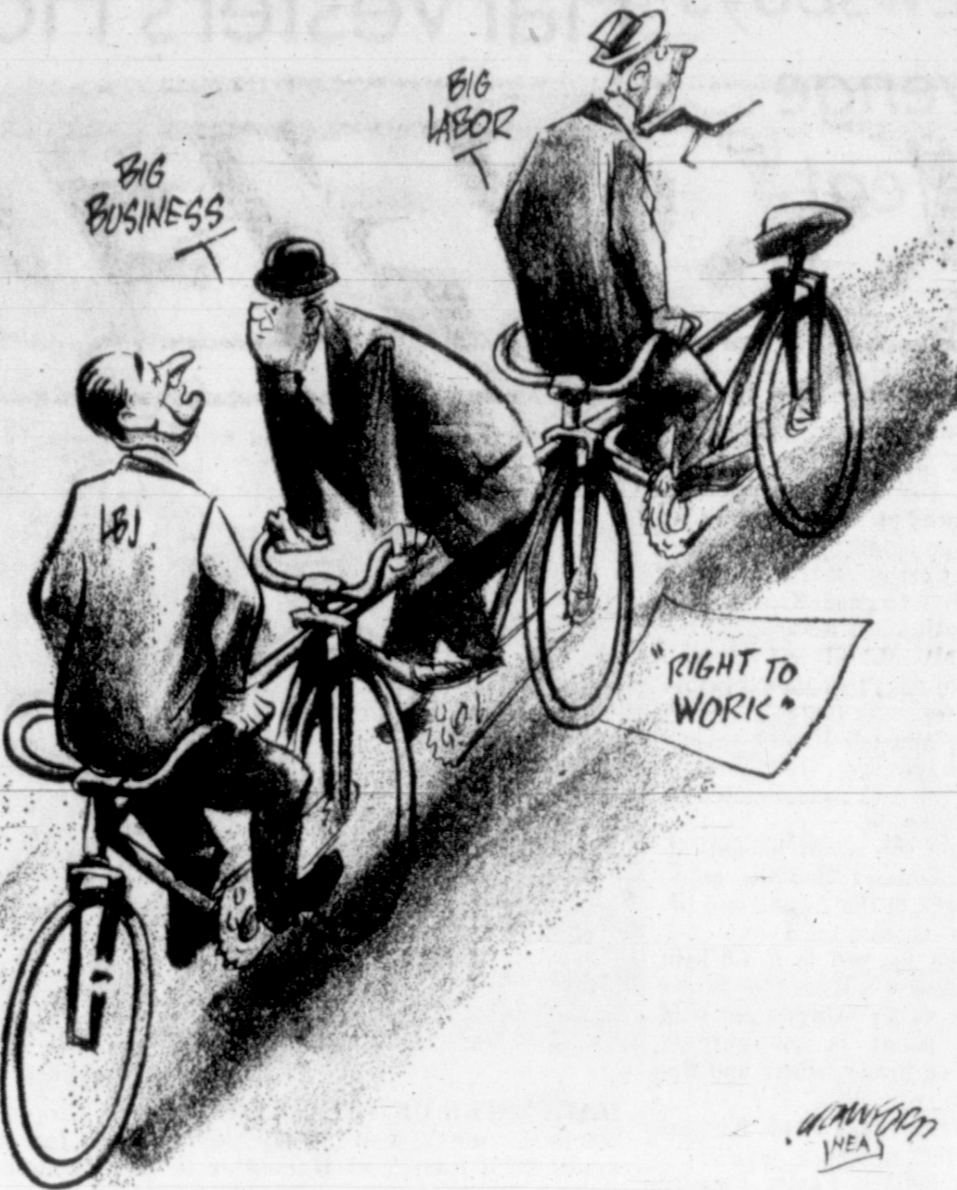

"I would also say that it is not necessary to write about only those things in which you have some experience. I had never been to Tibet when I sold my first short story about it."

That may be so. But to our way of thinking, it is all beside the point. If you are going to be a Writer, it seems to us the important thing to know is the knack of turning out a great piece of work, such as "Pride and Prejudice" or "Crime and Punishment."

"Nonsense," Mr. Creasey said. "Those are not great works. Boil them down to essentials and what have you got? Melodrama. Simple melodrama. . . . Take 'Crime and Punishment.' It runs 600,000 words as-

is. But I'd wager you could tell exactly the same story in 30,000. "The whole trick is not to use 20 words where one word will do."

Expect Assassination 'At Any Time', Tshombe Warned, As Former Nazi Trains Rebel Infiltrators in Congo

ROBERT ALLEN

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — Premier Moise Tshombe, the Congo's pro-U.S. strong man, is being warned to expect an assassination attempt "at any time."

U.S. intelligence authorities in Leopoldville have given his security officials evidence that a one-time German staff officer is training a hand-picked group of assassins in former French Congo for a commando-type raid on Tshombe's Bantambo home across the Congo River.

The German, a Hitler army captain captured by the Russians and now employed as an "adviser" to Algeria's Marxist President Ben Bella, is in his fifties and known as Silmane Hoffman.

In a high-fenced training camp at Gamboma, Hoffman is covertly instructing a mixed force of 600 rebels that includes Communist mercenaries "assassin specialists" from Russia, Algeria and Egypt.

According to one intelligence estimate, this assassin school is a project of Alexander Shelepin, young, vigorous former Soviet secret police chief who is a member of the 13-member Presidium, top policy-making body in the Soviet Union.

Shelepin is credited with organizing and financing the training camp under the Kremlin's unannounced policy of removing from public office by assassination Western officials who actively oppose Russian policies.

As reported by this column last October, a suppressed estimate titled "Soviet Strategic Executive Action" reveals in shocking detail how KGB (Soviet secret police) agents are being trained to dispose of Western leaders who pose a threat to Communist interests.

Most recent victim of this Red assassination policy was Burundi's Premier Pierre Ngenadrumwe, who was struck down by eight bullets on January 15.

The 35-year-old premier was slain by paid agents of the Kremlin only two hours after forming a new government to take a tougher line against Soviet-Chinese Communist operations in Burundi, according to U.S. and British intelligence reports.

PROTECTING TSHOMBE — This new threat to Tshombe highlights the fact that the flashpoints for new trouble in the Congo will almost certainly be Gamboma and Brazzaville, capital of the former French Congo, now an independent nation.

U.S. intelligence authorities have advised the Congo Premier to take stricter safety precautions. They are helping British mercenary leader Major Mike Hoare organize a "special force" to guard Tshombe around the clock.

If Tshombe falls, U.S. military intelligence experts foresee a far worse mess confronting the U.S. in the Congo than in South Viet Nam.

WASHINGTON:

Reds Push Plans on Missiles

By RAY CROMLEY
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)—President Johnson's decision to push development of the Poseidon missile is prompted by growing Pentagon concern over the heavily stepped-up pace of Soviet anti-missile-missile research.

Because information coming out of Russia indicates the Reds are making considerable progress in learning how to effectively stop missiles, there's worry here that by the early 1970s today's Polaris A-3 may be vulnerable to Russian rockets.

Defense planners believe the toughest problem to be licked through the late 1960s and 70s is not increased payload, accuracy, range or reliability, but "penetration"—how to get missiles through Red defenses.

(Secretary of Defense McNamara has put strategic bombers low on his futures priority list primarily because he is convinced they won't be able to "penetrate" Russia's defenses in 1975.)

Despite the Johnson decision to postpone procurement of Nike X, top defense men are now convinced anti-missile-missile systems will become highly effective sooner than they had been thinking. They've been sold by the unexpected startlingly large research strides made in the U.S. Nike X anti-missile-missile system in the past 12 months.

The Poseidon missile that Johnson talked about in his defense message to Congress has been known as the B-3. Research on this missile has been highly satisfactory to date. The new program looks to having it operational by 1969. (Some optimists talk about 1968.) It will fit in Polaris-type submarines with some refurbishing of their launching tubes.

Though it's capable of carrying a two-megaton warhead, twice that of the A-3 Polaris missile, the prime attribute of Poseidon will be its remarkable ability for penetrating sophisticated anti-missile defense systems.

In theory, with continued improvements, the Poseidon will be able to handle any defenses U.S. research men believe the Soviet Union will be able to develop during the 1970s.

The Poseidon missiles will probably be made with multiple warheads, ranging in size up to a megaton. These warheads will split off in several directions like giant skyrocket bursts. The splitting will normally occur near targets, and the warheads will fly off in trajectories calculated to confuse Russian radar.

The Poseidon will be designed "from the ground up" with other built-in gimmicks to confuse Soviet radar and infra-red detection systems. The warheads will be designed in radar-confusing shapes and coated with materials aimed at making them "invisible" to detection systems until it's too late for defender missiles to operate

Selling Our Dignity

(Chicago Tribune)

Only five days after President Nasser of the United Arab Republic angrily denounced the United States and told us to go drink sea water — Egyptian slang for "go to hell!" — the department of agriculture issued an authorization for shipment of $16,944,000 worth of wheat to the U.A.R. under the food for peace program. Our government will pay cash for the wheat in the open market, and Egypt will pay for it, not in dollars, but in Egyptian pounds, much of which will be spent there as part of our foreign aid.

Arrangements for the transaction had been made some time before Nasser bitterly accused our ambassador, Lucius D. Battle, of trying to put economic pressure on Egypt. The Arab dictator had asked the United States for an additional 35 million dollars worth of food this year because of a food shortage in Egypt. Since the food for peace program was enacted in 1954 as public law 480, the quantity of American surplus foodstuffs sent to the U.A.R. has had a total market value of more than 720 million dollars but has cost our government more than 1.1 billion dollars, including ocean transportation.

What apparently irked Nasser was our government's suggestion that if he is going to continue to spend money to end arms to the Congolese rebels, who have been massacring Americans and other white hostages, he might pay for our food in hard cash dollars. Up to now he has been paying for it in a nonconvertible Egyptian currency, most of which has been returned to him as foreign aid loans and grants. He called Congolese Premier Moise Tshombe a murderer and an imperialist agent of the United States and Belgium, adding, "We shall send more arms to the Congo."

It may be recalled that only last month a Cairo mob burned the John F. Kennedy memorial library, and more recently an Egyptian air force jet shot down an unarmed private American oil company plane, killing the pilot and co-pilot. Yet our government went ahead and authorized a virtual gift of 16 million dollars worth of wheat. How long will it be before we hear that the additional 35 million dollars worth of wheat Nasser asked for will be forthcoming?

During his harangue Nasser accused the United States of trying to get Egyptians to "sell our dignity." He has more regard for Egyptian dignity than the state and agriculture departments have for ours when they continue to give aid to a two-bit dictator who has nothing but insults and abuse for us.

PATTY HAMLETT
... rodeo queen

Former Pampa Crowned AASP Rodeo Queen

Miss Patty Hamlett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Barrett Hamlett of Denton and formerly of Pampa, was recently crowned queen of the American Association of Sheriff's Poses and Riding Clubs.

Miss Hamlett, 21, is currently a junior at Texas Woman's University in Denton.

She is the grand-daughter of G. A. Latus, who was one of the early planners who aided in laying out the city of Pampa. He worked on the Pampa Fire Department and the Water and Street Departments from 1924 to 1933. Her late grandmother opened the first beauty shop in Pampa in 1924.

Miss Hamlett's mother is the former Alberta Latus, a graduate of Pampa High School. Her aunt is Mrs. Kenneth E. Florence of 1941 N. Nelson.

War Situation In Viet Critical

WASHINGTON (UPD) — A senior State Department official said the political situation in South Viet Nam is critical and must be resolved to turn the tide of the war.

William P. Bundy, assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs, also said that U.S. withdrawal from South Viet Nam, as long as the South Vietnamese are willing to fight, was "unthinkable."

Bundy's remarks were made in a major policy speech on Southeast Asia prepared for delivery before the Washington, Mo., Chamber of Commerce and released here.

Reviewing the history of political turmoil and a succession of governments over several years, Bundy said, "The political situation today is critical, and its resolution is central to turning the war around and restoring an independent and secure South Viet Nam."

Discusses Alternatives
He discussed a series of theoretical alternatives for the Viet Nam struggle.

He said "there may emerge possibilities" for a United Nations role "but it is not clear that the U.N., which has been unable to carry through commitments such as the Congo, would be able to act effectively to deal with this far more difficult situation in its present form."

"So long as South Viet Nam is ready to carry on the fight," Bundy said, "withdrawal is unthinkable."

Penney Company Moves Into New New York Office

Heralding an era of continued growth and development, J. C. Penney Company has moved its New York central office to a new skyscraper home to implement further its program of expanded merchandise lines and customer services.

The new 46-story J. C. Penney Building at 1301 Avenue of the Americas is unique as a building especially designed to serve a retail chain, according to R. M. Sample, manager of the Penney store in Pampa.

The centralized operation now provides a more efficient base from which to fill requirements of the nearly 1,700 Penney department stores and through them the wants of millions of customers. For these customers, the move reaffirms the Company's continued dedication to its "Quality" merchandise at the lowest possible price.

The move also signals Penney's determination to broaden the facilities of its department stores to make the shopping centers "with a wider variety of merchandise to meet the needs of every member of the family."
