Longshoremen Return Back at Some Ports

Union Says No To Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Union leaders today ordered striking longshoremen back to work at North Atlantic ports but rejected a government plan to end the walkout at some South Atlantic and Gulf Coast ports.

Back-to-work orders were sent to union locals where agreements have been reached on new contracts but where workers have remained on strike pending settlements elsewhere.

This would end the 32-day walkout at New York, Baltimore, New Orleans, Mobile and other ports, but leave workers still idle at such ports as Galveston and Miami where no agreement has been reached.

Smaller ports in the Carolinas, Georgia, Florida and along the west Gulf Coast from Lake Charles, La., to Brownsville, Tex., also remain tied up.

A presidential panel, headed by Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz, proposed this morning that all striking dock workers return to their jobs immediately and submit the remaining issues to a special mediator.

When the plan was turned down by spokesmen for the West Gulf and South Atlantic locals, the panel left to report to President Johnson at the White House.

City Nation's Welfare

In offering its proposal, the presidential panel declared: "The welfare of our nation, both domestic and foreign, now calls for a substitution of the rules of reason for economic force in the settlement of this dispute."

A representative of the west Gulf Coast longshoremen said the locals in that area were willing to continue talks but could not go back to work and accept binding arbitration of the dispute.

President Thomas Gleason of the International Longshoremen's Association (ILA) contacted by telephone or telegram all locals where agreements have been reached and told them to return to work at 8 a.m. Saturday.

Gleason said the union agreed to return to work at ports where agreements have been reached because of indications that the government might move to impose compulsory arbitration.

"We believe these men (longshoremen) wouldn't gain any more out of compulsory arbitration than they would get right now," Gleason said. He also noted the general antipathy of organized labor to compulsory arbitration.

Wirtz expressed "the nation's gratitude" to both the union and shippers for "facing up to your responsibility" toward easing the dock crisis.

"This has been a long, long month," Wirtz said. "It is too bad we couldn't get an agreement." (See PROPOSALS, Page 3)

Key Rights Figure Chained in Hospital

By United Press International
Sheriff James Clark Thursday night transferred the Rev. James Bevel, a key figure in the Selma, Ala., racial demonstrations, from his jail cell to a hospital where he was chained to his bed.

Bevel was suffering from a virus. He was one of 3,400 demonstrators arrested in Selma during weeks of demonstrations and was under charges of contempt of court.

The action angered Negroes and the chain later was removed from Bevel's leg on the request of his physician. Sheriff's deputies were posted at the door, armed with electric cattle prods and guns, and Bevel's wife complained that she was unable to visit her husband.

Bevel, a lieutenant of Dr. Martin Luther King, was arrested Monday during an incident in a Negro voter registration line at the Dallas County Courthouse.

In other actions at Selma, about 400 Negro youths staged another "silent" march on the courthouse. Clark was waiting with a loudspeaker and a court order prohibiting demonstrations around the courthouse that was handed down by a Circuit Court judge earlier in the campaign. But Clark did not read the order and made no effort to interfere. About 75 of the Negro leaders knelt to pray and then the group dispersed.

The U. S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals Thursday ordered a U. S. district judge to hold a habeas corpus hearing for 26 of the 3,400 Negroes arrested in the four-weeks long demonstrations at Selma.

The order was sent to Judge Daniel H. Thomas in Mobile.

Elsewhere:
Savannah, Ga.: Negro comedian Dick Gregory called off his sit-in demonstrators at the Burger Boy hamburger stand after Justice Department attorneys and local civic leaders told him the issue of service to Negroes would be resolved in the courts. The hamburger stand reopened Thursday night on a segregated basis.

Jacksonville, Ala.: A bomb threat Thursday caused temporary suspension of most afternoon classes at recently desegregated Jacksonville State College. No bomb was found by police who said the threat came in a telephone call to the school's business office.

Dallas: Community Relations Service Director LeRoy Collins said Thursday night "discrimination resulting in unequal employment opportunity costs the United States an estimated $17 billion loss annually in Gross National Product." Collins spoke at a "plans for progress seminar."

East Lansing, Mich.: Dr. Martin Luther King Thursday called for federal legislation as the "key to elimination of voting discrimination in Alabama and Mississippi." He said registration efforts will be intensified.

Warm Weekend Due Panhandle

The weatherman was predicting warmer temperatures for Pampa and the Panhandle today following an early morning low of 13 degrees.

Tornadoes struck East Texas yesterday and thunderstorms accompanied by a brilliant electrical display hit parts of north Texas and snow fell in the Panhandle.

The Weather Bureau said it would be slightly colder over the southern portions of the state tonight, but all of Texas would warm up today and tomorrow.

The five-day forecast called for temperatures 2 to 7 degrees below normal over all the state with possible precipitation over the weekend.

Following the overnight low of 13 degrees, the high temperatures yesterday in Pampa reached 28 and the mercury stood at 20 at 9 a.m.

A pair of twisters Thursday skirted the town of Center, in East Texas, and each of the tornadoes singled out a chicken farm to destroy. Thousands of chickens were killed at the O. T. Sanford farm six miles west of Center and the Purina chicken farm three miles southeast of town.

Many dairy buildings and homes lost their roofs in the Center area.

Other twisters were reported at Garrison, Forest, Alto and in Rusk, Cherokee and Nacogdoches counties.

The only injury from the tornadoic winds came to Mrs. C. C. Ivie of Forest. Mrs. Ivie was trying to hold the door to her home shut when it blew off, throwing her backwards. She (See WEATHER, Page 3)

Texas Lawmakers Go Home After Busiest Week

AUSTIN (UPI)—Texas lawmakers went home for the weekend today with one of the most productive weeks of the 59th session back of them.

The week's work included completion by the House Appropriations Committee of its hearings on the $3.52 billion budget bill to run state government for the next two years, and passage by the Senate of an oil pooling bill.

The House State Affairs Committee held its longest hearing of the session Thursday when it listened for five hours to testimony on the pooling bill. Much of the testimony came from opponents.

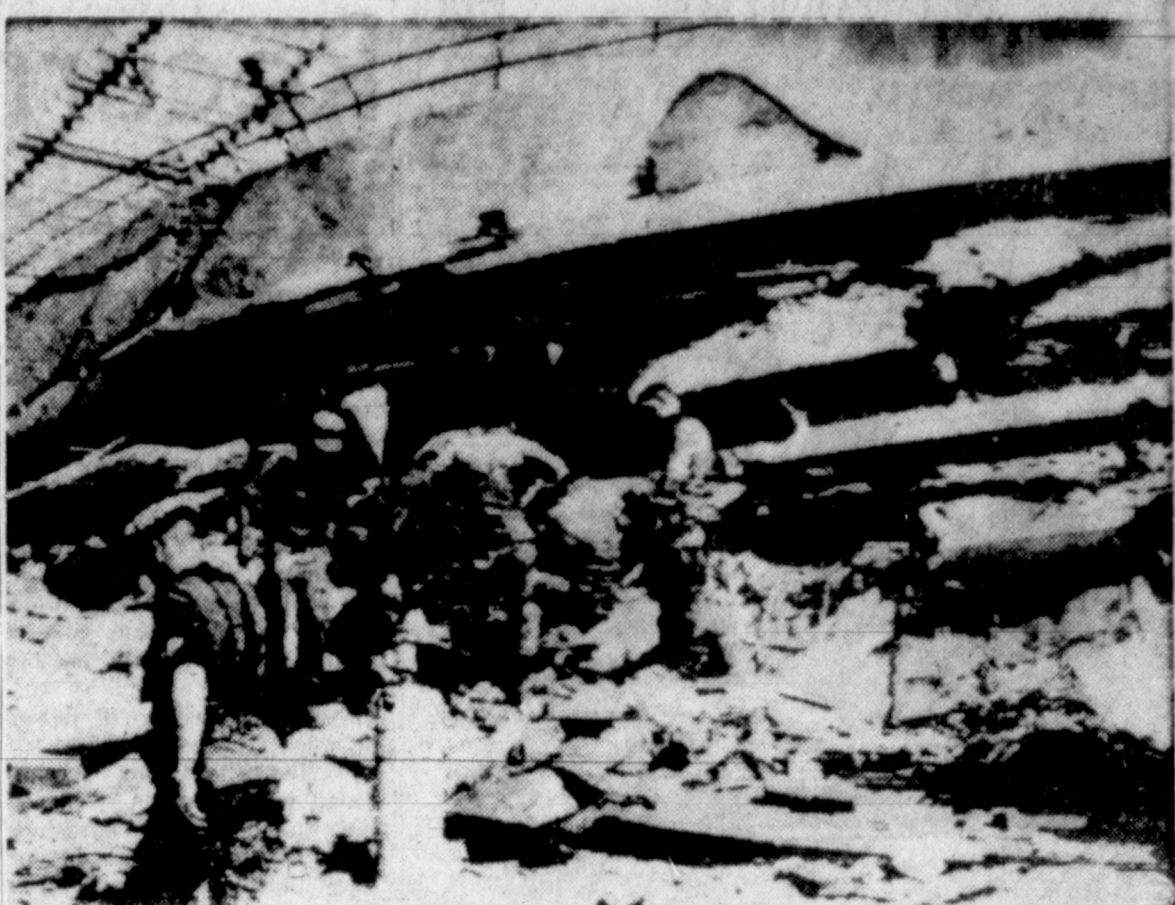

Backers of the oil and gas pooling proposal contend it is needed to assure small tract owners of the right to share in profits from oil and gas taken from under their land.

Panel Strengthened

The proposal as passed by the Senate and now being studied by a House State Affairs subcommittee would give the Railroad Commission authority to force neighboring landowners to pool their oil or gas resources if voluntary pooling efforts failed.

Another big step taken this week was passage by both House and Senate committees of Gov. John Connally's No. 1 piece of legislation—his 18 member-coordinating board to govern the state's higher educational institutions.

BARRACKS HIT — U. S. servicemen and other workers search the debris of the U.S. Army barracks destroyed in a Communist Viet Cong raid in Qui Nhon, South Viet Nam. Twenty-eight Americans may have died in the explosion touched off by the guerrillas. U.S. Deals Heavy Blow To Cong Supply Bases

SAIGON (UPI) — Military authorities disclosed today that massive air strikes by U. S. and South Vietnamese bombers against Communist North Viet Nam dealt a heavy blow to Viet Cong sources of supply. More raids seemed likely.

Communist China today raised the spectre of a Korea-type war developing in South Viet Nam. The Peking regime said some Chinese military units "pledged support with actual deeds" for North Viet Nam.

North Viet Nam termed the attacks "a new, most serious war act."

Washington reports said a new U. S. policy, going beyond simply retaliation, appeared to be emerging. The policy seemed to foreshadow still more air strikes against North Vietnamese targets in an effort to turn the tide of the anti-Communist war.

More than 150 American and South Vietnamese fighter-bombers blasted troop staging areas and supply depots in the Communist North Thursday in the biggest such action of the war. The immediate cause of the reprisal raid was a Viet Cong bombing attack on a U. S. Army barracks at Qui Nhon Wednesday night, taking a heavy toll of American lives. But a White House statement on the air strikes mentioned the Qui Nhon terrorism as only one incident in a series of Communist actions involved in a stepped-up Viet Cong offensive throughout South Viet Nam.

A South Vietnamese communiqué on the air reprisals said they were the result of "continuing acts of aggression by the Communist Viet Cong."

The raids showed no signs of having any immediate effect on the guerrilla campaign. Military sources reported a continuing battle 30 miles east of Saigon near Phuoc Tuy. Guerrilla forces were reported to have attacked Chau Phu, the capital of Chau Doc Province, Thursday.

Forty guerrillas and 11 Vietnamese troops were reported killed in the Phouc Tuy fighting. Reports from Chau Phu said 14 Communists were killed and two others killed there. The government side lost 10 men in that battle.

The bodies of three U. S. Army advisers listed as missing Wednesday in a separate battle at Duc Phong were recovered Thursday night and UPI learned that they may have been brutally beaten and murdered by the Viet Cong.

A U. S. spokesman said autopsies have been performed on the bodies, and that a report was being prepared by doctors.

The three Americans were identified as Capt. Carlton J. Holland Jr., 26, of Junction City, Kan.; S. Sgt. Emmett J. Bryant, 35, of Greensburg, La., and Pfc. John W. Malapelli, 18, of Burlington, Ky.

A Fourth American was still listed as missing in the Duc Phong battle. He was identified as Sp. 4 James H. McLean, 20, of Los Angeles, Calif.

Johnnies Come Home From War in Litters and Coffins

By United Press International
The Johnnies came home from war. The Jones, the Howards, the Davids, and the Carls came, too. But they didn't come marching home. They were carried on litters and in coffins. The wounded victims of the Pleiku sneak attack last Saturday, their broken bodies strapped to blanket-covered litters, were flown home Thursday from Viet Nam. More will follow. So, too, will come the victims of Qui Nhon and only the Almighty knows how many more such blood-lettings before the Southeast Asian jungle war ends.

Nine flag-draped caskets arrived also. And there will be more of them.

The big Air Force transport planes which flew into Travis Air Force Base in California, Scott in Illinois, McGuire in New Jersey and Andrews in Washington, D.C., carried the victims of the cruellest and dirtiest kind of war ever devised. They were victims of faceless, night-stalking Viet Cong terrorists who strike without warning, kill and maim and then disappear into the countryside, perhaps to be seen in the morning's light as farmers or houseboys.

The planes brought men shot from ambush, blown from their beds by stealthfully planned bombs, filled with hot, piercing metal from mortar shells dropped noiselessly from the nighttime sky.

Among the seven wounded veterans of Pleiku who arrived at McGuire was Pfc. David L. Mazurik, 22, of Winbar, Pa. He was asleep in his hut when the mortar shells began to fall.

"I woke up and ran out the door of the hut and hit the dirt," he said. "I was wounded in my bed."

Harold J. Fieldman Jr., 19, of Oxford, Mich., who would have been rotated home next Friday after 11 months in Viet Nam, also was caught in his bed by the surprise Viet Cong attack at Pleiku which killed eight Americans and wounded 106. He received shrapnel wounds of the leg.

"I ran outside in my underwear, and I started waking people up and then I jumped in a foxhole and helped defend (See JOHNNIES, Page 3)

Forced Pooling Bill Has a Long Way to Go

AUSTIN (UPI)—The Senate-passed bill to allow forced pooling of oil and gas resources is now before a House subcommittee.

The bill must make its way through the subcommittee, the House Oil and Gas Committee, the full House and the governor's office before becoming law.

Rep. Wayne Gibbons of Breckenridge, House sponsor of the measure, said it should be called a bill "to encourage voluntary pooling" instead of "forced pooling" because it would allow pooling to adjoining mineral leases only after efforts to pool them voluntarily had failed.

The bill was written by a committee of the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association (TIPRO).

The chairman of the TIPRO drafting committee, Austin oil and gas attorney Walter Koch, said the effect of the bill would be simply to assure owners of small tracts of the right to share in the profits from oil and gas taken from under their land.

But an opponent of the bill, oilman Stanley Woods of Houston, called the bill "land collectivism," said it would "drive the Railroad Commission nuts," and charged it would give big oil firms "a lease in one hand and a blackjack in the other" in their dealings with small tract owners.

Woods said one phrase in the bill—"to prevent drilling of unnecessary wells"—explains the big companies' support of it. "If you have vast overseas reserves, no well in America is necessary," Woods said.

A member of the House Oil and Gas Committee, John Allen of Longview, also wondered why the major companies are supporting the bill while landowners are not.

"If this is a bill to protect small tract owners, why is it that the only people to come up here to support it are the big fellows?" Allen asked. "Where are all these little people who are supposed to be for this bill?"

E. Hilton Keeter, a Throckmorton farmer speaking in favor of the bill, said "most of the people in agriculture would be for this bill if they understood it."

Woods said small tract owners have more protection under recent state Supreme Court decisions than the bill would give them.

These decisions, Woods said, have allowed the Railroad Commission to give small tract owners special allowances to small tract owners who unsuccessfully to pool with a neighboring tract.

Kremlin Warns U.S. Will Not Go Unpunished for Viet Raids

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Kremlin warned the United States today that it will not "go unpunished" for the retaliatory air raids against Communist North Viet Nam.

An editorial in the Communist party newspaper Pravda said: "The Soviet government has stated and is confirming again that it will not remain indifferent towards maintenance of security in a fraternal socialist country and will render the necessary aid and support."

It is time that Washington gave up the illusion that aggression against North Viet Nam will go unpunished. Pravda accused the United States of killing "several children" during Thursday's attack on North Viet Nam. And for the second day in a row, it hinted that the whole Communist bloc might respond to the American show of strength.

"These actions constitute a provocation to the entire socialist camp," the Communist newspaper declared.

But five days after the first U.S. air strikes, the Kremlin (continue) to maintain silence about "further measures" threatened by the Soviet Union.

BERRY'S WORLD

"Crazy budget session, eh?"

Foreign Commentary

By PHIL NWESOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst
In the early morning moonlight of May 7, 1954, Vietnamese rebels outnumbering their French foes by five-to-one began their final assault on the mountain-rimmed fortress of Dien Bien Phu.

When Dien Bien Phu fell after 22 hours of human wave assault, it marked the end of 55 days of siege and the end of French power in Indochina. In seven and a half years the French had lost an estimated 100,000 men and spent $5 billion. In addition, the United States had contributed $2 billion.

The author of the rebel strategy was a man named Vo Nguyen Giap, of whom few Americans ever have heard and couldn't remember his name if they had.

Glap Directs Future
But upon Vo Nguyen Giap may depend the future of the struggle in Viet Nam today, whether the war is to be extended or whether there is to be a cease-fire and then a negotiated settlement.

He also provides an important historical link between Dien Bien Phu and today. It was he who directed the strategy against the French then and who today, as Communist North Viet Nam's defense minister, directs the attack against the Americans in South Viet Nam. He also has an important political voice in the Communist drive to destroy the government of South Viet Nam.

Discusses Strategy
In the war against France, Giap played heavily upon the weariness of the French people at home with the long and expensive Indochinese war. He also sought victory before the United States could intervene. Militarily, Giap has written that "wars of liberation" such as resulted in the Communist take-over of mainland China and now being fought in South Viet Nam progress naturally from scattered guerrilla action to attack by organized military units. Events in South Viet Nam indicate he now believes the second phase has been reached.

Kosygin Lands in Korea to Line up Communist Front

TOKYO (UPI)—Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin flew from Peking to North Korea, possibly to line up a united Communist front against the United States in Viet Nam.

The official Soviet news agency Tass reported from Moscow that Kosygin and a delegation of top Russian officials concluded a one-day visit to Red China and flew to Pyongyang, the capital of Communist North Korea.

Kosygin's decision to visit North Korea was not announced until Wednesday and came as a surprise.

Radio Pyongyang said Kosygin was greeted at the airport by Premier Kim Il Sung of North Korea, reviewed an honor guard and then was driven to the government's guest house. The radio report said the leaders of both countries exchanged greetings at a brief welcome ceremony, but there was no immediate indication how long the visit would last.

ASKS RULE WAIVER
LONDON (UPI)—Conservative MP Sir Godfrey Nicholson yesterday said he will ask Parliament to waive the "10-year-rule" on memorials in Westminster in the case of the late Sir Winston Churchill. Recurrent Dream Makes Actress Check Her Men

By ROBERT MUSEL
LONDON (UPI)—Daliah Lavi is a long and languorous Israeli who has a recurrent nightmare that she is standing in a hole in the ground embracing one of the older, undersized generation of film stars. She says she was frightened when very young by a story that this was the fate of Sophia Loren playing opposite Alan Ladd and ever since she has had an anxious interest in the height of her leading men.

Miss Lavi was too ill to see me when I called around at the converted artist's studio she has rented in Kensington—something to do with the hardships of the location in Cambodia for "Lord Jim," if one looks for a romantic explanation. Or simply a tummy ache, if one doesn't. Her good friend, director John Sullivan, opened the door and asked if I couldn't come again tomorrow.

The next day, there was no sign of illness. Miss Lavi made a spectacular entrance in tight green silk slacks, high heeled black boots and a sweater. She moves in a continuous sequence of disturbing undulations. Her blue-black hair hung down the middle of her back and she wore no makeup.

There was unmistakable tension in the air and Sullivan suddenly remembered an errand he had forgotten although it was Sunday morning, and even the pubs had not yet opened. I was about to compliment Miss Lavi on her quick recovery when I discovered the credit was due to her costar in "Lord Jim," Peter O'Toole who now is making another film in Paris.

Someone had relayed a remark O'Toole is alleged to have made that he was glad, in his current films, to be playing opposite a real woman. Either O'Toole was misquoted or he forgot to take a good look at Miss Lavi in her jungle sarong. "Do I look like a real woman?" she demanded.

This is an invitation no man could refuse. I looked Miss Lavi up and I looked her down—all five feet ten inches of her. "You're a real woman," I confirmed.

it could be because of the love story of the film. You see I am supposed to be a Eurasian and he is an Englishman who is trying to rehabilitate himself. Now director Richard Brooks decided we ought to express our love with our eyes and faces. Not with kisses.

"If we had had a western love scene with kisses," she said darkly, "I don't think Peter would have dared say such a thing."

"Or had the strength," I suggested.

On the subject of her career Miss Lavi said, "Lord Jim is my biggest role so far. Richard Brooks saw me in an Italian picture but by then I was in a film in Yugoslavia.

Miss Lavi, who is a possible bet for world stardom when "Lord Jim" has its royal film premier here before Queen Mother Elizabeth Feb. 15, said: "I don't really believe Peter said such a thing, but if he did

Canine Poisoners At Work in Pampa

Dog poisoners are at work in Pampa, according to a report today by City Commissioner L. P. Fort.

Fort said that there had been four poisonings within the past week, three yesterday in the 100 block of S. Faulkner and one earlier in the 1600 block of N. Williston.

The city commissioner said the three cases on S. Faulkner apparently involved the tossing of poisoned meat into backyards where dogs were fenced in.

Fort pointed out the danger of the practice to small children who might get hold of the poisoned food.

The city commissioner said Pampa's dog problem is becoming serious and that it would be one of the first matters to be discussed with the new city manager, James W. White, who takes up his duties here Monday.

Commissioner Fort said dogs are again running in packs and that 19 were counted in an Alcock St. area yesterday.

"It is serious when it gets so bad that people try to poison dogs to get rid of them, there is a problem," Fort said.

Monthly Tax Deadline Facing Some Farmers

Farmers who did not file an estimated Federal income tax return by January 15, may have a tax deadline in February, Richard V. White, administrative officer of the Pampa Internal Revenue Service, said today.

A person who earned at least two-thirds of 1964 gross income from farming must file a final Federal income tax return and pay any tax due by Monday, February 15.

"Farmer's Tax Guide," which gives detailed information on the subject, is available upon request from the Internal Revenue Service.

ment. We worked very hard." Wirtz indicated that he saw no major obstacles to total agreement in the dock controversy fairly soon.

Gleason said the development should put considerable more pressure on employers in areas that have not settled.

"Some of them may now make individual settlements," he said.

Under the rejected plan, the longshoremen would have returned to work at all ports while a mediator named by the panel worked with the parties to reach a negotiated settlement within 30 days.

An arbitrator selected by the presidential board then would have decided any unsettled issues remaining after that time.

Survivors include one daughter, Mrs. Norma Burgess of Oklahoma City; one son, Marion, Newhall, Calif.; one sister, Mrs. Elvina Hall of Fort Worth and his mother Mrs. Verda Adair of Pampa.

Burial will be in Fairview Cemetery, under the direction of the Duenkel-Carmichael Funeral Home.

Pallbearers will be G. L. Gradduck, Denver Allen, C. E. Harkrader, Tom Price, C. E. Dells and S. O. Dunham.

Funeral services are scheduled for 3 p.m. tomorrow in the First Baptist Church for Mrs. W. B. Henry, long time Pampa resident, who died at 2:50 a.m. today at her home, 1046 Farley.

The Rev. E. Douglas Carver, pastor, will officiate. Burial will be in Fairview Cemetery, under the direction of the Duenkel-Carmichael Funeral Home.

Mrs. Henry was born Jan. 10, 1878 in Carthage, Tenn. She moved to Oklahoma in 1901 and to Pampa in 1912. She was a member of the First Baptist Church.

Survivors include two daughters, Mrs. Loyd Bennett of Pampa and Mrs. W. B. Pearce of Lubbock; one son, Odell Henry of Pampa; three grandchildren, Mrs. Joe Thompson, Mrs. Jerry Steiler and Bob Henry, all of Lubbock. One daughter, Mrs. Howard Logan preceded her in death.

The body will lie-in-state in the parlor of the First Baptist Church until funeral time.

EVANGELISM FOR THE AMERICAS

DALLAS (UPI)—An evangelism campaign covering the entire American hemisphere in 1970 was urged here by Rubens Lopes, President of the Brazilian Baptist Convention.

Lopes told the Texas Baptist evangelism conference of plans for a nationwide Baptist evangelistic campaign in Brazil this year and then said the United States needs such a campaign even more than Brazil. He suggested that Baptists of every country in South, Central and North America unite in 1970 for one huge campaign of total evangelism.

the area," Feldman said.

Also flown into McGuire, and later transferred to the Valley Forge Army Hospital at Phoenixville, Pa., were 1st Lt Joseph W. Rigby, 25, of Rockney, Tex.; CWO William F. Beyers Jr. of Lederach, Pa., Sp4 Leonard J. Labiak, 20, Chicago; Pvt. Leonard L. Barone, 19, Ft. Marion, Pa., and Pvt. Joseph J. Hughes of Brooklyn, N.Y.

Most were hit by shot and shell inside their billets. Lt. Rigby, an exception, caught a bullet in the side while serving as an adviser to a Vietnamese company ambushed by the Viet Cong east of Pleiku. His wife and two children live in South Amboy, N.J.

Barone, perhaps typical of many of the returning wounded, preferred not to talk about his flirtation with death.

Flown to Travis near San Francisco, were 29 wounded men from Viet Nam, 19 of them casualties of the Pleiku fighting.

SP-4 Carl J. Clayton, 27, of Brown, W. Va., confined to a wheelchair because of mortar fragment wounds of the back, recalled the guerrilla raid on the Camp Holloway air strip at Pleiku.

"The machine gun fire woke me up," he said. He awakened the other men in his hut and then started to get dressed. A mortar shell dropped through the roof.

"Scared? Sure I had time to be scared. I thought I was as good as dead. We all were scared, I think, but there was no panic..."

Clayton said he dived into a foxhole. Two officers were already in it, talking about how to get the U.S. aircraft off the ground before they were destroyed.

Sgt. Howard Jackson, 37, of Los Angeles, a veteran of Korea, had been at Pleiku for only 20 days and, as he tells it, never had a chance to use his rifle for anything but a crutch.

He was getting undressed for bed when the mortar rounds began to drop. He ran to the door to see if they were close.

"They were," Jackson said. "One landed right outside the door and got me."

He said a military police sergeant tied a towel around his wounded legs and dragged him outside to cover between two steel drums.

"He brought me an M14 rifle in case the Vee-Cee (Viet Cong) got that close, but I never got to use it—except as a crutch."

The flight back to the states for Clayton, Jackson and the other wounded flown to Travis had an extra touch of drama when their plane developed oil pressure trouble and one of its four engines had to be feathered.

Capt. Norman Cole, the pilot, said the incident on the last lap from Elmendorf Air Base in Alaska was "routine" and the flight continued at only a slightly reduced speed.

suffered a fractured shoulder. Blizzards moved across the Midwest today, choking roads with more than a foot of snow. Hundreds of motorists were feared stranded in wind-blown drifts between Omaha and Lincoln, Neb.

State highway crews plowed through giant, shifting drifts of snow between Omaha and Lincoln in an attempt to rescue motorists trapped overnight. Police said several hundred vehicles were marooned along the highway about 27 miles east of Lincoln. Many cars ran out of gas when their occupants tried to keep warm during the night.

Four inches of fresh snow hit Rochester, Minn., during the night and the Weather Bureau extended warnings of up to one foot of more snow through Michigan's Upper Peninsula. Nearly a foot of snow was on the ground in north-central Kansas, where temperatures dipped to just above zero.

The Weather Bureau said the storms nearing hurricane force "dangerous."

Tornadoes and straight winds near hurricane force slammed across parts of Texas, Louisiana and Arkansas Thursday. The winter tempest was accompanied by destructive lightning strikes and hail storms.

Two Hurt in Car Accidents

Two automobile accidents on city streets, only 24 hours apart, slightly injured two Pampa residents.

The first accident occurred shortly before 1 p.m. yesterday at the intersection of 18th and Faulkner.

Injured was the driver of one car Charles Christy, 78, of 1501 Faulkner. Driver of the other car was William E. Shaw, 20, of 3008 Rosewood.

Christy received only minor injuries and didn't require hospitalization.

Damage to both cars was estimated at approximately $650.

A 74-year-old Pampa man, Matthew Ruyle, was admitted to Highland General Hospital at 7:02 a.m. today when he was struck by a car near the intersection of Cuyler and Foster.

Driver of the vehicle was George E. Mason, 26, of 529 S. Ballard.

Ruyle received a broken wrist and a slight bruise on the hip from the accident.

Automobile Stolen From Chevrolet Lot

An automobile was stolen sometime last night from the Culberson Chevrolet Used Car Lot, 802 W. Foster, according to a report filed with police.

Police said the car, taken after 6 p.m. yesterday, was a 1959 green Ford with Texas license ID 8428.

The Weekly Message Of Inspiration

Attend The Church Of Your Choice

J. W. Doke, Minister
First Christian Church

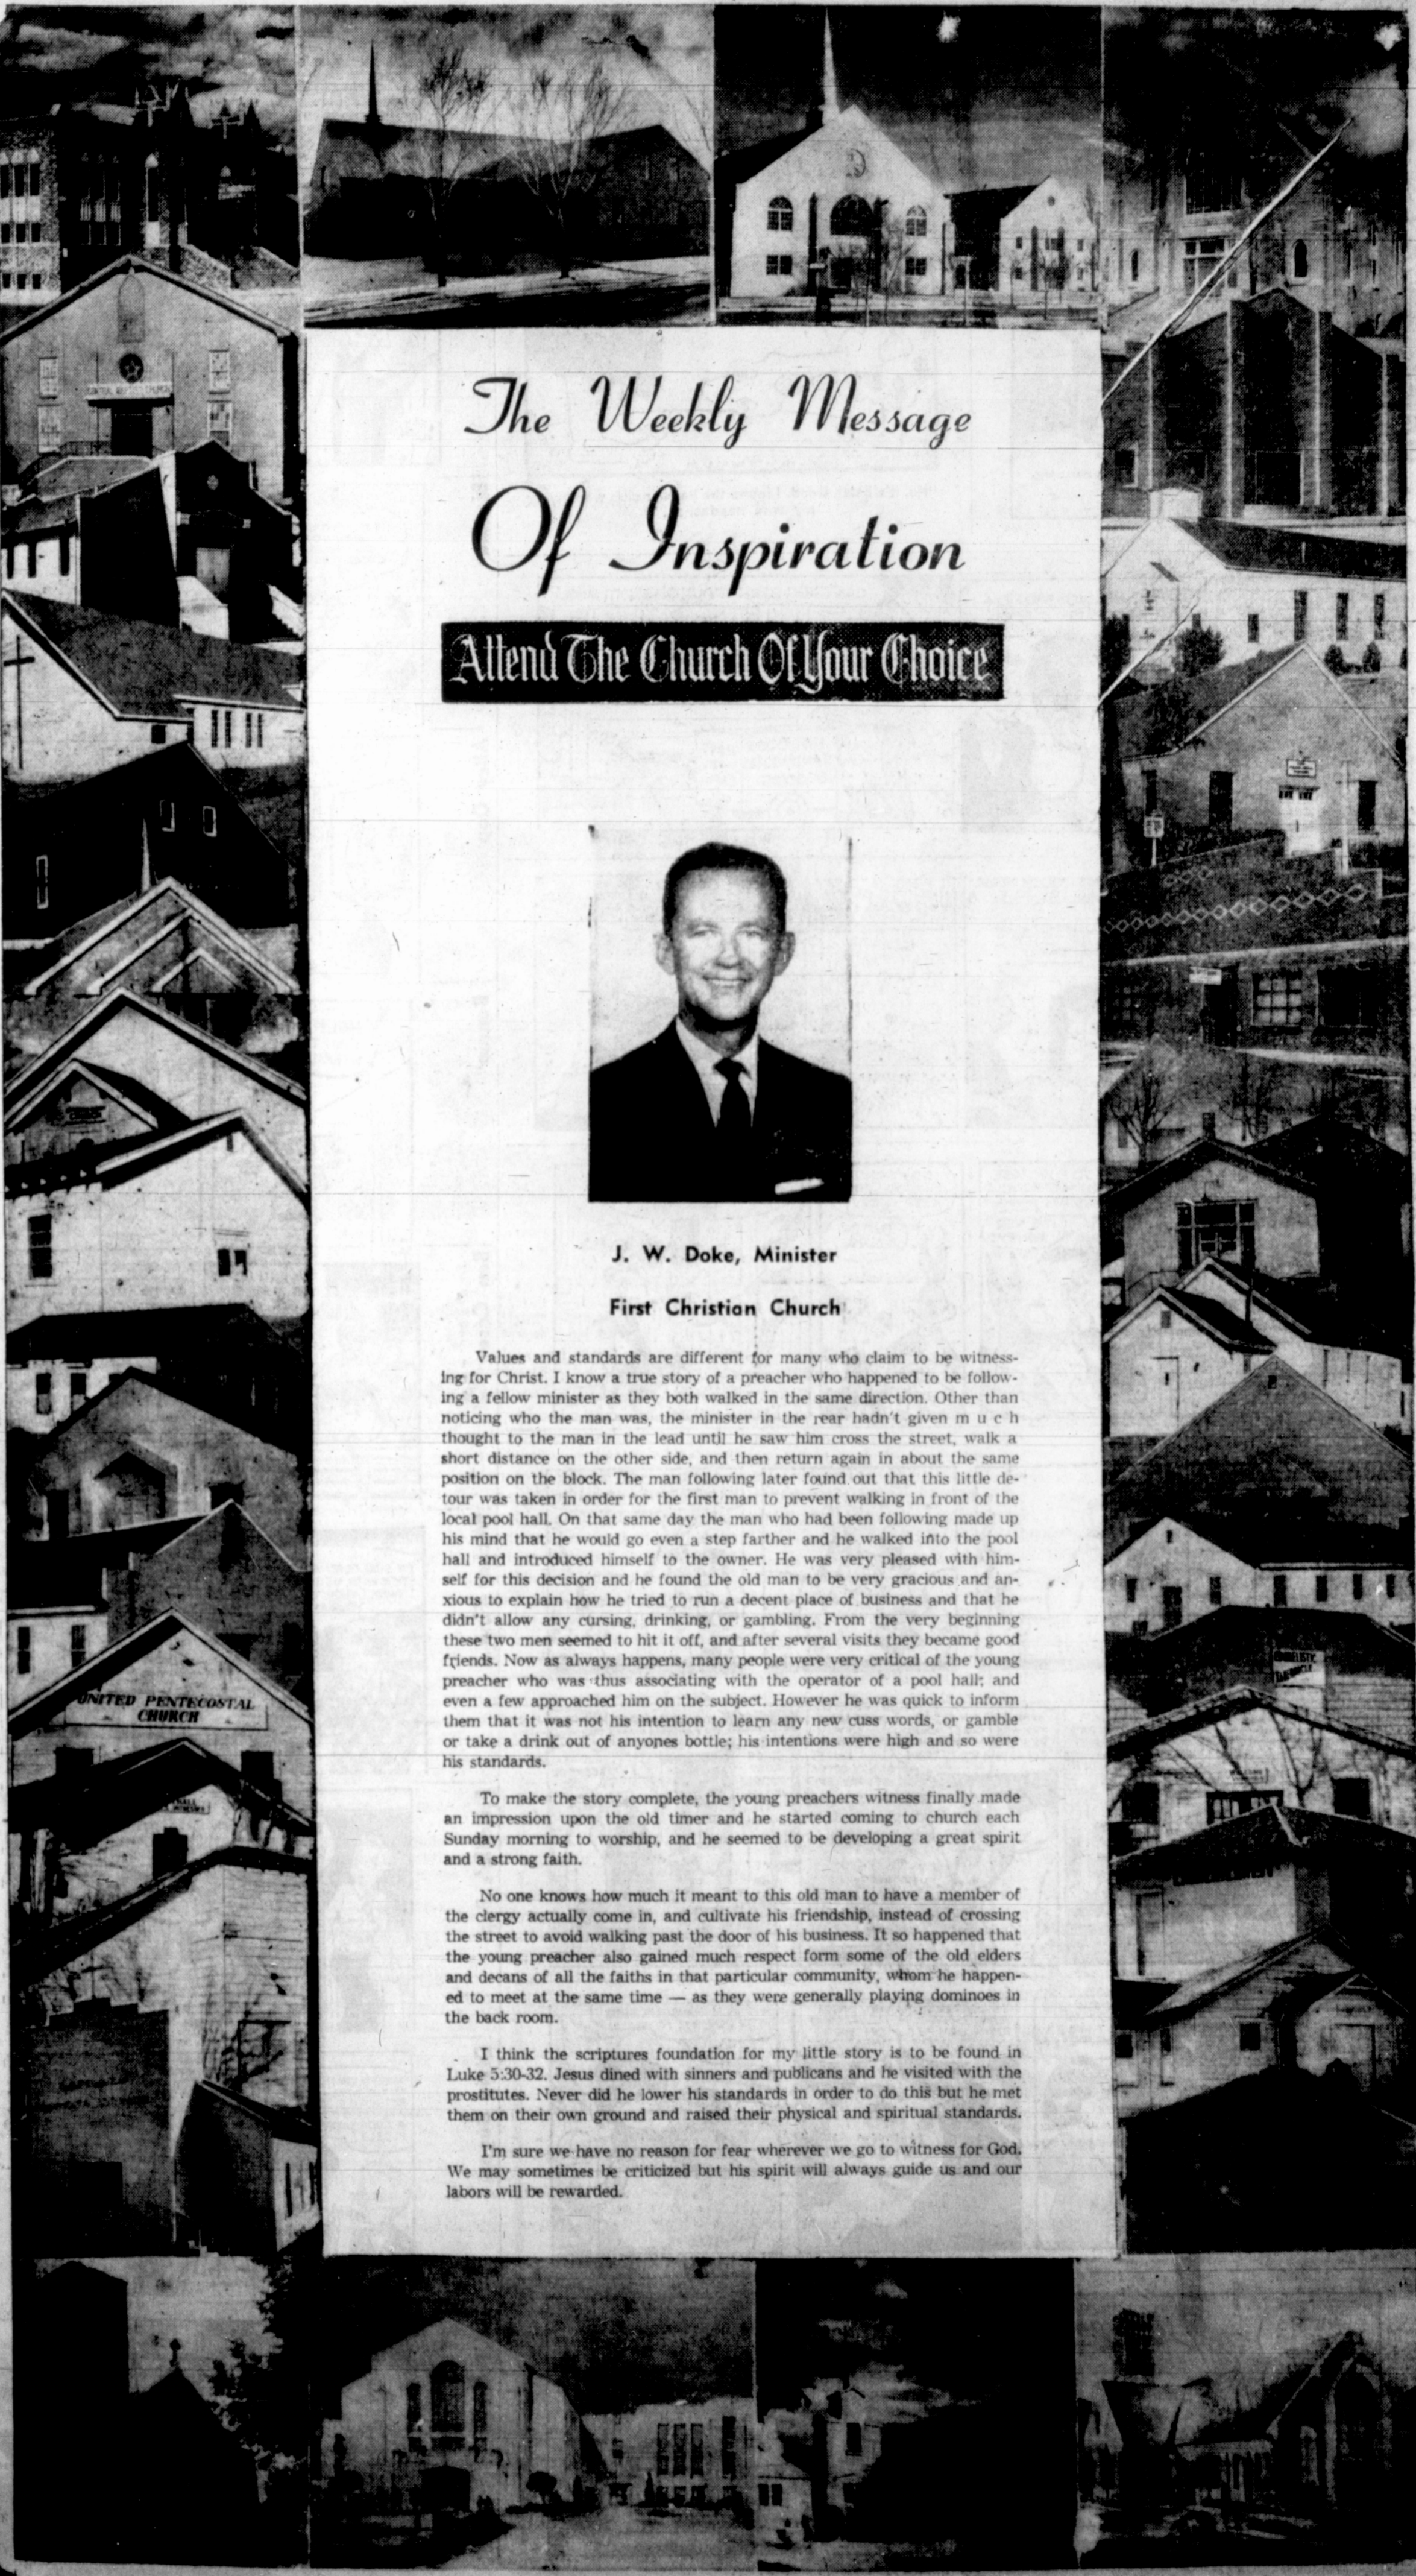

Values and standards are different for many who claim to be witnessing for Christ. I know a true story of a preacher who happened to be following a fellow minister as they both walked in the same direction. Other than noticing who the man was, the minister in the rear hadn't given much thought to the man in the lead until he saw him cross the street, walk a short distance on the other side, and then return again in about the same position on the block. The man following later found out that this little detour was taken in order for the first man to prevent walking in front of the local pool hall. On that same day the man who had been following made up his mind that he would go even a step farther and he walked into the pool hall and introduced himself to the owner. He was very pleased with himself for this decision and he found the old man to be very gracious and anxious to explain how he tried to run a decent place of business and that he didn't allow any cursing, drinking, or gambling. From the very beginning these two men seemed to hit it off, and after several visits they became good friends. Now as always happens, many people were very critical of the young preacher who was thus associating with the operator of a pool hall; and even a few approached him on the subject. However he was quick to inform them that it was not his intention to learn any new cuss words, or gamble or take a drink out of anyone's bottle; his intentions were high and so were his standards.

To make the story complete, the young preachers witness finally made an impression upon the old timer and he started coming to church each Sunday morning to worship, and he seemed to be developing a great spirit and a strong faith.

No one knows how much it meant to this old man to have a member of the clergy actually come in, and cultivate his friendship, instead of crossing the street to avoid walking past the door of his business. It so happened that the young preacher also gained much respect from some of the old elders and deacons of all the faiths in that particular community, whom he happened to meet at the same time — as they were generally playing dominoes in the back room.

I think the scriptures foundation for my little story is to be found in Luke 5:30-32. Jesus dined with sinners and publicans and he visited with the prostitutes. Never did he lower his standards in order to do this but he met them on their own ground and raised their physical and spiritual standards.

I'm sure we have no reason for fear wherever we go to witness for God. We may sometimes be criticized but his spirit will always guide us and our labors will be rewarded.

Millions see this portrait daily. It's on the five-dollar bill.

Friends have written that no single photograph ever captured the essential Lincoln. John Nicolay, Lincoln's private secretary, wrote: "Graphic art was powerless before a face that moved through a thousand delicate gradations of line and contour, light and shade, sparkle of the eye and curve of the lip; in the long gamut of expression from grave to gay; and back again from the rollicking jollity of laughter to that serious, faraway look with prophetic intuitions that beheld the awful panorama of war, and heard the cry of oppression and suffering. There are many pictures of Lincoln; there is no portrait of him." Here are a few of the pictures of that strange, homely, hauntingly friendly face.

This Alexander Gardner portrait was taken just five days before Lincoln's death on April 14, 1865. The war years left their marks. He was 54 years old.

Schnozzola Might Have Been The Best Address for Durante

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Over the years, post offices have provided a lot of cute feature stories about how they were able to figure out where to deliver letters which were incompletely or incorrectly addressed.

For a change of pace, I will now tell you about one that didn't get delivered. It was told me by a fumerous little group known as the Cigar Smokers of America.

It seems that the CSA occasionally pays tribute to stogy-puffing personages by conferring upon them honorary memberships. The late Sir Winston Churchill was so enrolled and such status recently was accorded to Jimmy Durante, the well known comedian and clyologist.

Escapee May Get Freedom After All

JACKSON, Mich. (UPI) — Prosecuting attorney James G. Fleming has indicated that escape charges probably will not be filed against a Texas carnival operator who enjoyed 10 years of freedom before his wife revealed he was an escaped convict.

The Texan, James R. Jones, 49, was returned to southern Michigan prison Thursday. He escaped from the prison's west farm in 1926 at 20 years of age. Months of a four-to-five year sentence for burglary in Leawee County. Since then he has led an exemplary life, according to Texas friends.

When the CSA undertook to mail Durante's membership certificate to the wrong address. The destination as listed as Los Angeles rather than Beverly Hills, where Durante was domiciled. This perhaps explains why it mailed Durante's membership certificate to the wrong address. The destination as listed as Los Angeles rather than Beverly Hills, where Durante was domiciled.

Dirksen Balks on Transfer of Power

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two GOP senators voiced misgiving today about a proposed constitutional amendment to set procedures for a transfer of power to the vice president if the president should become disabled.

proposal contained too many specific details to be included in the Constitution. The present wording would deter flexibility in the future, Dirksen said, adding that he would rather see an amendment allowing Congress to set the procedures for a takeover by the president by law.

TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself no more, no less. It is thus consistent with the Human Relations Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Lincoln—The Educated Man

Today is Lincoln's birthday and we pause to remember this great man. It is fitting that we should, Lincoln in a real sense, exemplifies the American spirit. He was a plain, untutored son of forest and soil. He was ungainly. He had a high and slightly unpleasant voice. His features were not attractive. Just about all of the "advantages" we are accustomed to think about as we fondly examine our own children, were missing in his case.

Yet this man grew up to be great in a truly humanitarian sense. To us, his early life is particularly noteworthy, since it was at this time when his impressions were molding his character. And it is important to realize that Lincoln was one of this nation's truly well-educated men.

Lincoln had one major advantage over most of his fellows. He was not compelled to while away endless days and months in a government-supported school room. Had he been constrained to attend government school, there is every likelihood that he would have emerged a conformist, filled with the same commonplaces that so often characterize this decade's graduates.

Lincoln was not a "drop-out." He simply wasn't a "drop-in." And a significant commentary on his early life is that maturity befell him as he passionately addicted to learning.

We have in mind that many of today's "drop-outs" which provide so much concern to our government-paid school professionals, may very well be persons whose mental curiosity is not awakened during what we have come to regard as a person's school years.

Lincoln was 22 before he read his first grammar. And he was 23 before he decided to study the law. And having passed safely through his boyhood, sans derivate schooling the great rail splitter had come to develop a sense of values which placed knowledge and education at a very high point. From that time on, Lincoln was forever trying to learn. He never stopped being a student.

A Kind Word for People

The next time some conspicuous act of cruelty, violence or selfishness prompts you to wonder what's happening to the human race, please consider these evidences that people aren't all bad.

More than 200,000 persons sent messages of sympathy and encouragement to singer Nat King Cole when his serious illness became known.

Even in these days of the population explosion there are many more adoption requests than orphanages and similar institutions can fill.

In city after city, time after time, news stories of individuals or families in dire need invariably evoke heartwarming response — and much of the help comes from people who have pitifully little themselves.

When President Kennedy was assassinated, contributions flowed in from all over the country not only for the widow of the policeman who also was shot down by the assassin, but for the widow of the assassin.

Any stray dog in the city pound whose plight is publicized in print or on the air is almost certainly assured a good home — and the offers come from scores of families.

Anyone who has experienced sorrow or misfortune cannot soon forget the kindness and help of friends and neighbors.

It is true that some people are cold and selfish and that some are indifferent. But the evidence is overwhelming that the kind and warmhearted folks so far outnumber the others that the only objective conclusion has to be that the old world is a pretty good place to live, after all.

When Cannons Are Silent

It is said — not without reason — when tourists travel, cannons are silent.

The words, strangely enough, are those of a spokesman for the Soviet Tourist Board. And this is a case where just about everyone will agree with a communist speaker.

The peace of the world is not threatened only by the opposed policies and purposes of governments. All through history, a lack of public understanding of the hopes, traditions, needs and beliefs of others has created misunderstandings, enmities, needless jealousies and conflicts. All of us tend to view that which we do not know with suspicion.

In the old days, just the very few could or did travel to other lands. It took so much time. The cost of travel, when related

Foreign Aid Budget Headed for Trouble, and Considerable Pruning by Both Houses

ROBERT ALLEN

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — President Johnson's $3.38 billion foreign aid budget is definitely headed for considerable pruning in both branches of Congress.

Despite the President's insistent claim that his budget is "bare bones" and "rock-bottom," it is virtually certain that $200 to $300 million will be lopped off by the House Foreign Affairs Committee now holding hearings on the required authorization bill.

When the measure reaches the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, the signs point to the axing being even steeper.

Both Democratic and Republican committeemen already are privately talking of slashing this budget to around $2.5 billion, and there are plenty of indications they will come close to that.

Significantly, influential senators who in the past have supported large-scale foreign aid spending are now sharply critical of it. Latest instance of this growing disenchantment is the blast by Senator John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., former Ambassador to India and generally international-minded.

He has served notice he wants a sweeping overhaul of both foreign aid policies and expenditures.

Behind this steadily intensifying congressional opposition is widespread indignation and disgust at the constant discovery of waste, bungling and waste in foreign aid projects.

Among the lawmakers of both parties, the view is becoming increasingly pronounced that what is really impairing and threatening foreign aid is not lack of funds, as stentoriously contended by the President and his spokesmen, but grossly inadequate and incompetent management.

Unsound and undesirable projects running into millions are conceived and launched; controls and supervision often are sketchy, negligent and sometimes nonexistent; and mismanagement, bungling and boondoggling are commonplace.

REMARKABLE MARKET — A graphic instance of this has been brought to light by Representative Vernon Thomson, R-Wis., member of the Foreign Affairs Committee.

Since last July, he has been trying to get to the bottom of a project to build a multi-million dollar "central market" in Athens, Greece, but has yet to get a report from the foreign aid agency.

Insiders have intimated to Thomson it's highly unlikely he will get one. Apparently the agency is endeavoring to sweep this embarrassing affair under the carpet in the hope he will get tired of waiting and forget it. On that they have another thought coming.

Thomson has asked Comptroller General Joseph Campbell for a thorough investigation, and he has ordered it. His report should prove most illuminating.

Through Thomson's own persistent probing he has already uncovered the following shocking details:

Although this Athens "central market" was authorized in 1957 during the Eisenhower Administration, it is still unfinished and unused. Initially scheduled to cost $3.3 million, it has already mounted to $7 million and may go even higher. No progress reports were ever made to foreign aid authorities, and they didn't seek any questions. Then it was discovered the agency had no records in Washington on the project, and had to send special inspectors to Greece to find out what is going on.

The Nation's Press

TAKE CARE, LEJ (N.Y. Daily News)

Americans for Democratic Action (ADA) says President Lyndon B. Johnson should give up his struggle to keep his forthcoming budget a shade below $100 billion and should demand from $110 to $115 billion.

The extra moolah would go for giant expenditures on education, housing, urban renewal, and other public enterprises.

In fiscal 1967 (begins July 1, 1966), adds the ADA, the President should propose a $125 billion budget, and $150 billion in fiscal 1969. All this, to bring in the "Great Society," and the hell with what it would do to the Government's solvency.

Vice President-elect Hubert H. Humphrey was a co-founder of the ADA. He is still a member. He has never, so far as we know, repudiated a single basic ADA policy. After the Jan. 20 inauguration, he will be next in line for the Presidency.

For Pete's sake, Mr. President, for the people's sake, and even for God's sake—watch your health and safety.

William Gaud, deputy foreign aid administrator, in a letter to Morgan "On the basis of our information to date," Gaud said, "there are indications that there have in fact been shortcomings in the implementation of this project."

Thomson is still waiting for the promised official reports on these "serious shortcomings."

TRYING TO BACK IN — The White House is sounding out key senators on a new strategy to save the President's $3.38 billion foreign aid budget from heavy axing. Reaction to these senators is being sought on a foreign aid program spread over a four-year period instead of annually as present. No details of this hush-hush scheme have been given. Senator Wayne Morse, D-Ore., militant leader of the opposition against large-scale foreign aid spending, turned the administration proposal down flat. He indicated he has strong misgivings about the President's $3.38 billion budget and intends to drastically cut it.

More than $22 billion has accumulated in the Old Age and Survivors Insurance trust fund and the Disability Insurance trust fund. These immense reserves are invested, as required by law, in government securities paying an average of 4 per cent.

Representative John Dingell, D-Mich., reports that approximately one-half of the men who retired last year did so before reaching 65, even though that meant a cut in Social Security benefits. Dingell was one of the authors of the act voted in 1961 empowering men to retire at 62. In the first year of this law 30 per cent retiring took advantage of it; 47 per cent in the second year; and almost 50 per cent last year. Says Dingell, "Of the 2.5 million men who went on Social Security during the first three years of this program, more than one million retired early in spite of the sacrifices in benefits this entailed." Dinsell favors reducing the retirement age to 60 for men as well as women on the ground that "The United States is certainly rich enough to afford this."

Pull Up A Chair

By Frank J. Markey

Just 156 years ago today Abraham Lincoln was born in a 12-by-17-foot log cabin in Kentucky. Yet, his career is ample proof that humble beginnings, life long adversity and failure are sufficient preparation for holding high office with distinction. The 68 biographies of this unusual man show his slow progress to immortality, but the single theme of each of them can not be other than the preachment — don't quit, never give up or keep plugging. At 52 his life had been a succession of great failures and small successes. His political experience consisted of service in the Illinois legislature and a single term in Congress. He lost every other political contest. His law practice was meager. At 54 lightning struck and he won the Presidency and as long as history endures everyone will know the rest of the story. But the great lesson of Lincoln is that quitters never win and winners never quit.

Today's smile: Art Moger, author, wit and raconteur, tells us there's a new deodorant that promises protection around the clock. "It works, too," he says, "because you never hear of a smelly clock." He also passes along the fact there are 725 two-year colleges in the U.S., and four: "If you can't get into a four-year college, go to a two-year college and learn half as much."

Females make up about 40 per cent of the nation's labor force. And employment of women is increasing twice as fast as that of men. One of the reasons is the fact that businesses that regularly hire women are expanding, whereas those employing males are not. Perhaps it will really be a woman's world sooner than you think.

Thoughts while shaving: They don't believe in rushing into things in Ireland, where the average bride is 29 years old and the average groom is in his 30's. Buckingham Palace has three miles of carpeted corridors, which means the flunkies there have a lot of vacuuming to do to keep things spick and span for Elizabeth and Philip. . . . Frenchmen spend 30 per cent of their income on food and we believe it after learning there are 8,000 restaurants in Paris, all specializing in French cooking. . . . Radcliffe College authorities are doing their best to back up the Surgeon-General's report on smoking. They ordained that cigarette machines would be removed if broken and not replaced. Mysteriously, all were broken and removed. The gals can't blame the Harvard lads for that one. . . . The longest running lease we ever heard about was granted by the University of Toronto to the city in 1859 on a parcel of land. It runs for 999 years at an annual rental of five shillings ($1). It comes up for renewal in the year 2858.

The Almanac

Today is Friday, Feb. 12, the 43rd day of 1965 with 322 to follow.

The moon is approaching its full phase.

The morning star is Mars.

The evening star is Jupiter.

Abraham Lincoln was born on this day in 1809.

On this day in history: In 1912, China became a Republic as the Manchu dynasty was overthrown by Chinese Nationalists.

In 1924, Paul Whiteman conducted a program of "symphonic jazz" in New York City with George Gershwin playing his "Rhapsody in Blue."

In 1953, Russia broke diplomatic relations with Israel after terrorists bombed the Soviet legation in Tel Aviv.

In 1963, an airliner crashed in the Florida Everglades shortly after leaving Miami for Chicago, killing all 43 persons aboard.

Question Box

Question: "Is there any probability of eliminating unemployment as long as those who decrease our laws and instruct our youth and adults do not realize that each employe must produce his own wages?"

Answer: This is an important, live question because very few people seem to know there is no place for wages to come except from the wage earners' producing an amount equivalent to the wages they get. The employer is just an agent trying to market what the worker produces.

It is also timely since AFL-CIO President George Meany insists that those employed in the Neighborhood Youth Corps, which is getting under way in 37 centers in 23 states, and will involve more than 41,000 youths, ages 16 to 21, shall receive not what they produce but an artificial wage set by law of $1.25, regardless of what they can produce.

When a youth is learning to run an expensive machine which costs fifteen to twenty thousand dollars, he can't earn a penny for himself because the machine must be operated by someone with experience to first pay for the investment, depreciation, and taxes on the machine before the worker has anything left for his production.

The only way to measure what each man produces is to let every individual, not only in the United States, but also in the whole world, help establish values.

It is because our instructors in schools and colleges, and most business and professional men and politicians do not even know that each man must produce his wages if we are to have full employment and constantly increasing real wages.

When we make a law that pays any worker more than he produces, we are plundering those from whom earnings are taken in order to pay a gift wage. Thus, those who are plundered do not get all they produce.

There would be plenty of jobs for young, old, and everyone who wanted to work if he had a free market and the government didn't interfere with men freely exchanging goods and services on a basis where both parties would be benefited. Part of the wages of an earner is what he learns rather than the material things he gets.

But the government bows to the labor unions in this attempt to reduce poverty by increasing the wages of the youth to $1.25 whether they earn it or not. In other words instead of having a government that is really trying to reduce poverty, we have a government catering to the labor unions. It would seem that labor unions are running the country rather than the agents of the majority.

If there is any one thing that is important to know it is that a gift wage is harmful not only to the recipient but also to the giver. It greatly reduces production, causes unemployment, retards the accumulation of capital and tools, and thus compels people to work for less than they would if we had a completely free market where all people freely help establish values, including wages and profits.

A nation increasingly mobile and rootless is "guided" by men who themselves appear rootless, linked to last week and last month but no more.

February is the month Republicans call Abraham Lincoln and Democrats speak of Thomas Jefferson and Andrew Jackson. It requires no clairvoyance to forecast that this summing up of greats will be, as in prior years, perfunctory and unreal.

No American speaks with genuine force and devotion to these heroes — or of Washington, James Madison, John Quincy Adams, the underrated James Polk, the sturdy Grover Cleveland, Theodore Roosevelt, Woodrow Wilson. These makers of the nation are not invoked by today's gray figures, whose vision falters beyond 1960.

Many who watched on their screens the last tribute to Sir Winston Churchill are saying it may have been the final glory of old Britain. But this renewal of human touch with the sheers of greatness was also an embarrassment to Americans. It was a hard reminder of our dull skies and nearly leveled plain.

The problems of an era rushing on headlong are ever fresh. Yet the air does not tingle with freshness. We are engulfed in little movements. There is no big motion, and evidently no one in the land to provide it.

Some observers say further that this nation and this capital have no stunning leadership because society does not want such uncomfortable governing in an age enervated by affluence.

Nevertheless, granite should tell, if it is here. Britain after World War I did not "want" Sir Winston Churchill. He spoke to his view of the rightness of things anyway. And suddenly, in 1940, a solitary figure complaining against trends was a nation's champion, turning a strong tide.

Washington, a good window on the country, is a place of problem-solvers. Yet the grappling with problems, while generally earnest and sometimes dedicated, is most often unimaginative, unexciting, uninspiring. If the age is atomic, it would seem the energies of men should at least be electric. The problems gathered here are taken day by day, in a curiously floating, surface atmosphere.

'Early American Indian Artist' Program Presented to Twentieth Century Forum

Twentieth Century Forum Club held its regular meeting Tuesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Don Hauck, 515 N. Gray, with Mrs. Jack Dennis serving as co-hostess.

Mrs. F. J. Vendrell, acting in the absence of the president, presided over the business meeting.

Mrs. Aubrey Steele presented the day's program on "An Early American Indian Artist - George Catlin." Mrs. Steele stated "Through George Catlin we see the Indians as they were before the white man came; free, proud, an aristocrat and lord of the land."

"George Catlin used to hear about the Indians from his mother, for as a child in Pennsylvania, shortly before the Revolution, she had been captured by them and carried away. He heard about them from his grandfather, too, who had fought the Indians and after a massacre was one of the few to live to tell about it. Young George Catlin listened with eager ears. For all that was wild and primitive appealed to him; the woods about the Catlin farm on a bank of the Susquehanna, and most of all the Indians—the Indians who dwell in the West."

"In 1817, when George Catlin was 21 years old, his parents sent him to Connecticut to study and practice law. He spent two years at it, found himself covering the margins of books and every available empty sheet with drawings. He decided to quit law to become a painter. He went to Philadelphia and Washington, and there his miniature portraits brought him financial and social success. In Albany, N. Y., where he had come to paint Gov. De Witt Clinton, he met the love of his life, a girl of 20, Clara Bartlett Gregory, whose world was one of elegance and ease."

"That world could have been George Catlin's. But he felt a deep need to dedicate himself and his brush to something greater than miniatures on ivory. He wanted to capture the grandeur of the world of his boyhood dreams, the world of the Indians who lived in the still untamed West. He faced great obstacles. Catlin's five-foot-eight frame carried in it a wonderful demon of nervous energy, but he was given to frequent illness. Worse, his wife was frail, and to follow his vision he must leave her. Nevertheless, having accumulated some funds by portraiture, he settled her in Albany, and in 1830 set out for St. Louis, the gateway to the wilderness. "John Jacob Astor's pioneering fur company had built a 130-foot, double-decker steam boat, the Yellow Stone, to carry supplies up 2000 miles of the muddy Missouri. On March 26, 1832, she left St. Louis, belching smoke, and among the passengers was the quiet little man with sketchbooks and canvases. The speaker continued, "A thousand miles up the Missouri, the Yellow Stone stuck on a sandbar, and Catlin joined 20 seasoned men bound overland on foot for Fort Pierre. This was Sioux country. The six-foot-tall tribesmen delighted Catlin by their fierce grace and dashing horsemanship. He saw and painted the nobility of the Indian uncontaminated by greedy fur traders who enslaved and degraded him by bribery with whiskey. Catlin's work is one long fiery proof that the primal American was a man to respect. In a day when to most folk the only good Indian was a dead Indian, Catlin dared write: "I love a people who have always made me welcome to the best they had, who were honest without laws, who have no jails and no poorhouse, who never fought a battle with the white man except on their own ground, and oh! how I love a people who don't live for the love of money."

Catlin rejoined the Yellow Stone, and in June she reached her goal. Fort Union, near the present North Dakota Montana border. Here the principal chiefs of the Blackfeet and the Crows came to pose for him. Here he accompanied the Indians on their hunting forays, making the sketches he later worked into paintings. Catlin played no artist's tricks; his work was strictly documentary, and therein lies its value. The canvases of other gifted painters of the Indian are tainted with sophistication. Catlin gives us the red man as he was: lord of the land, an aristocrat with out need of idealization.

"That fall Catlin returned home — with 135 pictures, a treasure trove of ethnological specimens, and enormous new knowledge of the ways of the Plains Indians. He spent much of the next year with his wife. Then, in 1834, opportunity opened a door to the great Southwest.

Mrs. Steele concluded, "Catlin followed his dream, followed it to Washington, where it might become, he still passionately believed, a reality. But his body failed his indefatigable spirit; just before Christmas in 1872 he died. Many of his pictures went the way of the winds. Happily some of the finest reached the Smithsonian Institution in Washington — a goal such as Catlin had sought for them. But wherever they are, wherever you may find one, you meet again the fresh, the wild, the real first Americans, portrayed in all their savage glory by the loving brush of a genius."

Refreshments were served following the program.

AL Auxiliary Has Regular Meeting

To anyone with a preconceived notion of the diva as a handsomely endowed woman whose figure will prevent her from ever seeing her feet again except in a mirror, the world of sopranos may seem a strange place in which to discuss fashion.

But anyone who is aware of the beauty that can be found in the new crop of operatic artists will realize that these women know whereof they speak on subjects dear to the feminine heart. The opera audience no longer has a monopoly on fashion. It is present backstage as well.

Anna Moffo, beautiful Pennsylvania-born Metropolitan Opera soprano, is a hat collector. She admits to owning over 300.

"I love hats," she said, "especially big hats and fur hats." "It was easy to understand her preferences. She was wearing a white mink-brimmed hat. And big hats and fur hats would be my favorites, too, if I could look like that in them."

Miss Moffo is so interested in fashion and beautiful clothes that she expresses regret that some of the handsome details on her costumes can't be seen by the audience.

She offers this advice (which she follows) to anyone who reads the fashion news and looks, with an eye to buying, at fashion photographs of clothes done by top designers.

"If they are truly great styles, everyone copies them line for line."

"I am interested in current fashion silhouettes — double-breasted closings, bell skirts—whatever is new."

"But when I see a picture of a suit, for instance, that I know is sure to be a hit, I choose a similar style but make a change or two to adapt it to me."

To further explain she said, "If a current favorite is trimmed with red fox, I'll get it with blue fox instead."

Anna Moffo doesn't like the new bare look. "There's nothing sexier than a woman clothed right up to her face — but with clothes designed so there is movement."

She likes to look different all the time — to change her appearance. To the dismay of her manager who believes an artist should create a single public image, she wears her hair up one day, down the next. Sometimes she wears dramatic hats and high heels, other times sweaters, skirts and even sneakers. "I dress the way I feel," she said.

And that day at lunch she must have been in a "cover girl" mood. Because that's the way she looked. Chic Chat

HEART WARMING — This lovable little figure on this Valentine's card would warm any flinty heart with her warm message of sentiment (reproduced in inset). From one of the largest greeting card publishers, it is typical of the new loving "informal" approach appropriate for St. Valentine's Day regarded as the most sentimental day of the year. It is estimated that six hundred fifty million valentines will be sent by thoughtful people to their loved ones in 1965.

The Doctor Says:

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
Parkinsonism, or the shaking palsy, is sometimes called the disease that can't be hidden. It affects about 500,000 persons in the United States.

Although the cause is unknown, we know that in some instances heredity is a factor. In others, an attack of encephalitis earlier in life has been blamed. The disease usually has its onset between the ages of 45 and 60. Recent studies indicate that a deficiency of magnesium or some essential enzymes in the body may play a part in causing this disease.

The victim has tremors of the hands, legs and head which he can control for a few seconds by intense concentration. They do not continue when the victim is asleep. Even when the victim is severely disabled by the disease, he can be galvanized into effective control of his muscles by a cry of "Fire!" or other emergency but, as soon as the emergency is passed, he reverts to a state of relative helplessness.

The victim may give an impression of dullness because his facial muscles are stiff and his expression is fixed. Slow, monotonous speech adds to this impression, but actually these persons are mentally alert unless, of course, hardening of the arteries of the brain and other senile changes have caught up with them.

Treatment of this disease proceeds on two fronts — medical and surgical. But, although treatment may give improvement of some of the symptoms it cannot produce a complete cure.

In most victims it is wise to change the drug given every few days. Of about 12 standard drugs for this condition, trihexyphenidyl (Artane and Tremin) is one of the best.

If this drug does not give some degree of improvement there may be a reasonable doubt that the patient has palsy. A short course of a tranquilizer or other type of drug is sometimes given as supplementary treatment along with the standard drugs.

In any case, the treatment must be tailored to fit the individual and should be started early to prevent degeneration of the involved muscles. Meanwhile, surgeons have not been idle. Since the trouble has been localized in a small area of the brain, destroying this area is recommended for far advanced stages. This can be accomplished in several ways.

Several years ago Dr. Irving Cooper of New York began using freezing for this purpose. He has steadily improved his technique in carefully selected patients, some of them in their 70s, and has had excellent results in about 90 per cent.

He will not, however, use this method on patients who show signs of premature aging, mental deterioration or great physical weakness. Once again modern advances are bringing new hope to the victims of a common and disabling disease.

Dear Abby....

'Faithful Minds' Run In the Same Channel

DEAR ABBY: You surely have heard the expression, "Great minds run in the same channel." Well, after a recent incident I think it can be said that "faithful minds" also run in the same channel.

I read your column in the Lake Wales (Fla.) Highlander and when I came across the letter from the serviceman signed "Jersey," who wanted to know what a normal, healthy married man is supposed to do about his "physical needs" during long separations from his wife, I clipped it and sent it to my husband, who is serving with the U. S. Army in Saigon.

A few days later (too soon for him to have received the clipping), he sent me the very same column which he had torn out of the Saigon Daily News, which also carried Dear Abby. I am sure that article will help us both to remain faithful though separated for a long time. Thank you for your wise reply.

LONELY BUT LOYAL
DEAR LONELY: And thank you for your kind letter. I would like to say here that I receive thousands of letters from servicemen and their wives. And today, while cynics eagerly point out that infidelity in modern marriage is on the rise, I am heartened by the obvious mutual trust and faithfulness between the serviceman and the wife he left behind.

DEAR ABBY: My 17-year-old daughter steps out of the bathtub leaving a dirty ring for the next person to clean out. There isn't a day that I don't find her clothes kicked under the bed. I must have to force her to brush her teeth and wear shoes around the house. Her room is always a mess. If I punish her for these things she says she's embarrassed to tell her friends because it's ridiculous to be punished for such silly reasons. She claims her girl friends do the same things and get by with them. I have two other daughters and they are as neat as I am. All three girls were trained in the same way in the same house. Why do I have so much trouble with this one? She is kind and good-natured, but oh, so sloppy! Am I expecting too much of her? Where have I failed??

4-H Girls Begin Course in Foods

Ten junior 4-H girls have begun a course in Unit One Foods. This group meets every Saturday morning from 9 until 11 at Southwestern Public Service Company.

The class is conducted by junior leaders Cathy Wilkie and Phyllis Atwood, under the supervision of Mrs. Mildred Prince. At their first meeting, the girls made "Easy-Do Chocolate Fudge."

Present were Lana Barnett, Kim Gilbert, Sharon Newman, Susan Higginbotham, Angela Winegeart, Diane Nicholl, Cindy Richter, Brenda Richter, Kathy Parsley, Viola Parsley; junior leaders, Cathy Wilkie and Phyllis Atwood; and adult leader, Mrs. Mildred Prince.

Every New York manufacturer must have bought a supply of four-ply pink silk crepe. The pink, sometimes muted, sometimes sharp, showed through a number of spring collections.

College Star Breaks Indoor Track Record

NEW YORK (UPI)—Tommy Farrell of St. John's, happy holder of a new world indoor half mile record of 1:49.8, headed for Los Angeles today but a showdown with New Zealand's Peter Snell on Saturday night apparently is out.

"I'm going to run the 600 out there," said Farrell, with an obvious lack of interest in challenging Snell in the 1,000.

Farrell, fifth in the Olympic 800 meters won by Snell, blazed to his half mile record in the New York Athletic Club track and field games at Madison Square Garden Thursday night, scoring by four yards over Canada's Bill Crothers. Crothers held the listed record of 1:50, although Snell unofficially had done 1:49.9 indoors at Tokyo in 1962.

"Originally I entered the Los Angeles 1,000 but they asked me to drop down to 600 and that's where I'll race," said Farrell, a 21-year-old St. John's junior.

San Angelo Leads WJCC

AMARILLO — San Angelo's Rams remain in the leadership of the Western Junior College Conference basketball race with an 8-2 record.

Howard County and Amarillo are tied for second with 7-3 records. South Plains is the only other club with a record above the 500 mark. The Levelland school has a 6-4 record.

Howard County's Eddy Nelson is the conference's leading scorer with a 20.9 average per game. Bill Trosper is scoring 20.1 points per game and Lubbock Christian College's Robert Evans 19.5. Charles Turnbough of South Plains is next with a 19.2 average.

Evans leads the conference in field goals made with 187 and Turnbough is second with 182. The talented 6-5 Turnbough leads in number of free throws made with 117 and Howard County's Thomas Carter is second with 115.

Clarendon's Don Campbell is averaging 14.7 rebounds per game to lead that department. Don Durgin of New Mexico Military Institute is second with 11.9.

Bufs Host Cowboys Saturday

CANYON — Saturday night, West Texas State hosts Hardin-Simmons in the next-to-last home game for the Buffaloes. Gametime is 8 p.m. with the WTS Freshmen meeting Graham Plow at 6.

A split on the current home stand finds the Bufs with a 13-7 record and coach Jimmy Viramontes' goal of 15 victories within reach. The remaining schedule shows games at Texas Western, New Mexico State and Hardin-Simmons with the final home contest against New Mexico State sandwiched between.

The Buffaloes are still relying on hot-shooting to win. Of their 13 wins, 10 have been achieved by hitting more than 50 per cent of their field goal attempts. Only twice have the Bufs won when they did not shoot a better percentage than the opposition. For the season, their percentage is .483.

Standouts for the Herd in recent games have been Marvin Mitchell and Gail Simpson. Mitchell has been playing as well as ever in the last three games after a mid-season injury and slump. In that stretch, he has averaged 16 points and hit 61 per cent of his shots from the field. Mitch continues to lead the team in free throw percentage with .828.

Simpson, a 6-0 guard, from Borger, has quarterbacked the team well and also picked up his scoring pace. He's just seven counters shy of a 10-point average.

The Big Buff, Kirby Pugh, shows a 16.8 scoring average, a 583 field goal percentage and has collected 7.7 rebounds in all three departments. He stands just a shade behind Mitchell in free throwing with .796.

Hardin-Simmons is 14-5 for the season and has Abilene Christian to face Thursday night before coming to Canyon. The Cowboys have two wins over North Texas State which conquered the Bufs in Canyon, 75-70. They also won the previous meeting with ACC which bounced the Herd in both Abilene and Canyon.

The Cowboys fell twice to Oklahoma City, as did WTSU, but by seven-point margins in contrast to the 26 and 18-point decisions the Chiefs managed over the Buffaloes.

Size and speed are the Cowboys' strengths. The usual starters and their heights are: Henry Peacock, 6-6; Richard Nagy, 6-5; Clarence McHenry, 6-3; Charles Dishman, 6-2; and Bill Robinson, 5-8.

Rebels Let Clutch Out

PARIS (UPI)—Middleweight Milo Calhoun of Kingston, Jamaica, Thursday replaced European champion Luis Felleto of Spain as an opponent for New York's Jose Gonzales in a scheduled 10-round fight at the Palais des Sports, Feb. 22.

In the second half of the ball game yesterday, and closed their season with a 71-54 win over Austin of Borger, while the Lee Johnny Rebs dropped a 38-30 decision to Austin 8th.

The Rebels ran up a 22-6 quarter and a 44-23 half with reserves playing most of the second half. Four of the starters finished in double figures, Dick Henley with 18, Jim Cornutt 17, Beetle Bailey 13 and Johnny Marsh 12. Bobo Lang dominated the rebounds and added eight markers.

THE SCHOLARSHIP signing race is in the big first leg right now, with colleges signing up boys right and left. Most of the athletes sign pre-enrollment applications so that they can remain eligible for spring sports. Although the majority of the boys honor the promise, a number of them sign so as to get persistent recruiters off their backs, and then take time out to decide which college they are going to.

THE EVILS OF this system are obvious, and it is a question of whether to blame the boy, who often does it out of desperation, the college which pressures him, or the rather silly rule that if a boy accepts a scholarship beforehand he is ineligible for any further sport. I cannot see where a boy becomes a pro in any way by deciding in advance what school he wishes to attend or in accepting a scholarship offer that is good only for a limited time.

TWO CASES in point are Pampa's Jim Arthur and Plainview's Tom Sawyer. Arthur was at first inclined toward a New Mexico school, however the coach told Jim that he had to decide his scholarship recipients in advance, and that Jim would have to sign by the middle of February or lose his chance. Since Jim is a standout baseball player for the Harvesters and wanted to finish his high school diamond career, he passed up the offer and chose Houston.

Broncos May Move

DENVER (UPI) — Reports that the Denver Broncos would be sold and the franchise moved to Atlanta were denied Thursday by Calvin W. Kunz Jr., president of the American Football League club.

However, the official indicated that financial losses might make it difficult to continue operation in Denver.

The reported move was made public when two other owners of the club, millionaire brothers Gerald H. and Allan R. Phipps, announced they had offered to keep the club in Denver by buying control of the football team for $1.5 million. The brothers own 42 per cent of the stock.

Kunz is part of a group which owns 52 per cent of Empire Sports Inc., owners of the Broncos. The group reportedly has been offering its stock to outside interests who hope to move the club franchise to Atlanta.

"I don't say it is impossible to continue in Denver but I've been aware for a long time that it's most difficult," Kunz said. "The people in our group want to do what is right. They are just very concerned with the financial aspects of the operation."

The Broncos, who ended the season in last place in the Western Division of the AFL last season, reportedly lost about $600,000 last year. Officials refuse to comment on the figure.

Hale Released As Lee Coach

John Hale, head coach at Lee Junior High, announced this morning that his coaching duties had been terminated with the close of the junior high basketball season yesterday.

Hale said that he had been told by Eural Ramsey, new head coach of the Pampa Harvesters football team that, effective with the end of the basketball season, he would not be used as a coach any further, and that his coaching contract would not be renewed next year.

Hale reported that this occurred last month, but that he had requested the Pampa Daily News not to release the information until after the basketball season ended, so that it would not have an adverse effect on his team, which was fighting for the district title.

The 9th grade Rebels finished second in district with a 13-3 season and 12-1 district mark. They ran up 897 points for a record 56.6 scoring average per game.

Hale finishes six years of coaching duties in the Pampa school system, including two years as ninth grade coach at Lee and one at Pampa Junior High. Prior to coming here, Hale was a head coach at high schools in Texas and Colorado.

Hale finished second in district in track last year and third in football. The track coach for the coming season at Lee has not yet been announced.

The status of Charles Ely, assistant ninth grade coach, has not been reported, although it is believed that both eighth grade coach Roy Hunter and seventh grade coach Tex Nolan have been rehired for next year. Hale is being considered by several area schools for a head or assistant coaching job. He was an active candidate for the Pampa High head coaching post when Ous Holladay resigned.

YCC Hosts Grade Meet

Cinderella Team Can Clinch Tonight

Victory Over Tascosa Rebels Gives Pampa District Honors

The "Cinderella" team of district 3-4A finds out tonight whether or not their fairy godmother is taking them to the ball, as the Pampa Harvesters seek a win over Tascosa at Harvester Fieldhouse.

Picked seventh in pre-district ratings, the short Harvesters can take down their second district title in three years and their ninth in coach Terry Culley's 13-year tenure as assistant and head coach with a home-court victory tonight.

Pampa rolled up a 7-1 first-half record to tie with Lubbock, and going into the final regular game, has a 6-1 record, tied with the Amarillo Sandies, who host Borger this evening.

A win by Pampa gives them the district title outright, regardless of what happens to the Sandies. A loss by the Harvesters and a loss by the Sandies still gives Pampa the undisputed crown. A loss by Pampa and a win by Amarillo, however, gives the Sandies the second-half crown and puts Pampa and Lubbock into a one-game playoff, with the winner to meet the Sandies in a showdown.

The winner plays Fort Worth Haltom City, Pampa's bi-district foe in 1963. Despite the fact that they met at Haltom City in their last contest, the Harvesters would have to flip for the site again if they win the crown.

This will be the shortest team to ever have won a district title for Pampa in Culley's reign, averaging 6'2", with their tallest starter, Ropes Roper, only 6'3 1/2". The Harvesters have generally run to tall teams, with at least a 6'5" big man. The 1962-63 champions had 6-6 Randy Matson, 6-3 1/2 Gary Sikes, 6-0 Gordon Balch, 6-0 Keith Swanson and 5-11 Wayne Kries.

This year's Harvesters have had good overall height however, with Roper followed by 6-3 Mac McWilliams, 6-2 Davy McDaniel, 6-2 Ron Curlee and 6-0 Lanny Lewis. Shooting exceptionally well as a team, four of the five starters are averaging in double figures, with Roper, eighth in the district, averaging 15.0 points per game. Despite their lack of height, the Cinderella squad has usually outbounded opponents, including Plainview and Monterey recently, teams that outreached them up to five inches per man.

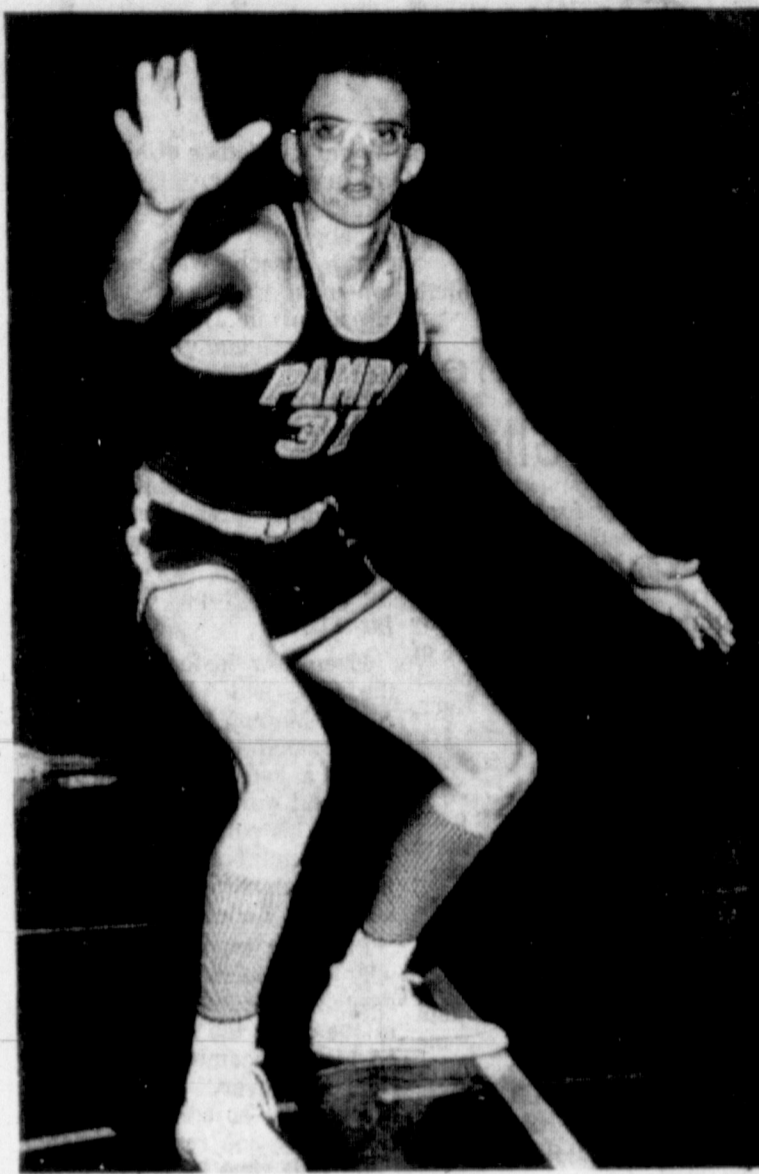

The divided-half district situation is not unfamiliar to the Harvesters, as the district had North-South zone playoffs in the early '50s, during which time the Harvesters won seven straight district crowns, losing only one playoff, to Odessa in 1956.

Culley was optimistic about the clash, reporting that all the boys were feeling well and over the effects of the flu, and that they had had a good workout yesterday. "The boys are up and ready for this one," he said. "They want to win. If we have a good ball game, we have a good chance."

"Tascosa is a good team, if they're hitting, they can give you a rough time. Tascosa's 6-9 boy, John Burkhalter, who was real tough when we played them, is out of action with a broken foot. However, they have a 6-8 boy, and they have a big sophomore, 6-4 or 6-5. I look for him to play. As a matter of fact, I think Tascosa will play a lot of their youngsters tonight to give them experience for next year and we just don't know what the youngsters can do. However, in order to knock us out of the title, they might play all-out, it would make their season. In any case, they'll play their best boys, Larry Willoughby and Bill Bogan. Bogan, the 6-3 guard, is the second leading scorer in the district at 21.9, just a fraction behind Plainview's Peret, so you know he'll be putting that ball up there to try and win that title.

"As far as Amarillo-Borger, I don't think it will be a romp for the Sandies. Borger has been playing good ball the last two or three games, they really have started scoring. They lost by one point to Plainview and they're coming around. They're the type of team that could beat you anytime, especially with 6-5 Jerry Cooper, a real good boy."

"However, they are playing in the Armory, and the Sandies haven't been beaten there in a long time. In any case, we're not looking for Borger to win our title for us, we're going to try and do that right here tonight."

(Daily News Staff Photo)

BIG MAN — Although only 6'3 1/2", Kerry "Ropes" Roper has been the big man for the Pampa Harvesters in their fight for the district title, averaging 15.0 points per game and leading the team in rebounding, pulling down 16 against Monterey Tuesday.

Surprise! Unknown Leads First Round

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI)—The 1965 PGA golf tour, billed as a $3 million extravaganza, was back to normal today with an unknown in the first round lead of the Phoenix Open and the big names struggling in the background.

Bert Yancey, a 26-year-old Floridian playing out of Philadelphia, went into the second round of the $67,500 event holding a one shot lead over Frank Beard and Al Geiberger.

No one could fault Yancey's play Thursday on the chilly, windy Arizona Country Club course. He had nines of 33-34 for a 67. He hit 15 greens and used only 28 putts on the bumpy greens.

Beard was just about as perfect with four birdies including one that came on a 60-foot chip shot into the cup. Geiberger also had four birdies with a couple of fairly long putts of 20 and 10 feet.

Meanwhile, the so-called "big" names stayed in contention, just slightly off the pace. Defending champion Jack Nicklaus, claiming he played an "uneventful" round, had a two under par 70. Bill Casper, noted as one of the world's great putters and a winner of the Bob Hope event last week, failed to sink a putt of longer than three feet and still shot a par 72.

British Open champ Tony Lema, a gallery favorite, had a one over par 73.

At the 70 mark came two-time former U. S. Open champ Julius Boros; Pete Mazur, a veteran club pro from Smithville, N.Y., and Stan Leonard, the 50-year-old Canadian, to tie with Nicklaus.

Dewey Dunaway Leads In Rodeo

EL PASO, Tex. (UPI)—Dewey Dunaway of Burk Burnett, Tex., and a host of onery Brahman Bulls were the big winners Thursday night at the second of six performances of the Southwestern International rodeo.

Dunaway easily jumped into the lead in the steer wrestling competition, tossing his four-legged opponent in 47 seconds.

The bulls had a field day with their prospective riders. Only two cowboys managed to last the entire eight second ride. Two contestants were stepped on after being tossed off, but neither was hurt badly.

Another top performer Thursday night was Dennis Reiners of Clara City, Minn. Reiners turned in the second best bronc-ride of the evening as well as a tie for the second best saddle bronc effort.

Leaders in Thursday night's events: Bareback bronc riding: Charles Strickland, Corona, N.M., 61 points; Dennis Reiners, Clara City, Minn., 58; Ronnie Rogers, Odessa, Tex., 56.

Steer wrestling: Dewey Dunaway, Burk Burnett, Tex., 47; Johnny Ballard, Wichita Falls, Tex., 46; Dean Oliver, Boise, Idaho, 47.

Saddle bronc riding: Roy Rodewald, Craig, Colo., 63 points; Brandon McReynolds, Andrews, Tex., and Dennis Reiners, Clara City, Minn., 59 each.

Girls barrel racing: Ardith Bruce, Colorado Springs, Colo., and Pat Marr, Tularosa, N.M., 15.7 each; Alan Gaylord, Colorado Springs, Colo., 15.8.

YCC Basketball

Celanese played their best game of the season last night, but fell to First National 40-34. Max Patton of the Bankers and DeWayne Kuntz of Celanese split scoring honors with 12 points each.

Stinnett crushed the hapless Jaycees, 62-21 as Travis Reger scored 21 and Leon Willingham 15.

Duke Sets Scoring Mark With 56 Field Goals Hit

By LEONARD A. GRANATO UPI Sports Writer

A college team in the process of annihilating an opponent often can make points merely by throwing the basketball in the general direction of the bucket while often a team in a tight game all of a sudden can't buy a field goal.

Seventh-ranked Duke scored 85 field goals in its Atlantic Coast Conference conquest of Virginia 136-72 Thursday at Durham, N.C. Furman, trying desperately to continue its record of never losing to Davidson on its home court, went six long minutes without scoring, and sixth-ranked Davidson won 55-50 at Greenville, S.C. Davidson's 19-game victory string is the longest in the nation.

Duke broke the conference record for the most points scored in a single game by one team. The old record was set by the 1955 North Carolina State team, which scored 126 against William & Mary. Duke's 55 field goals also represented a record.

Hot Shooting
The Blue Devils hit 59.1 per cent of their floor shots. Coach Vic Bubas, eyeing the record, kept his first team on the floor until the score had been run up to 113-50 with eight minutes left. Jack Marin's 25 points led the Blue Devil attack in which all 14 members of the squad scored at least two points. Hank Tison tallied 19 and Bob Verga added 18.

Davidson had to come from behind without scoring ace Fred Hetzel, who fouled out with 16 minutes left in the game. Furman, the Southern Conference cellar team, took the lead early in the first period.

The Paladins led 32-26 at the half and seemed on their way to preserving their home court jinx over Davidson. But immediately after Hetzel fouled out, the Paladins went six minutes without scoring a point and the Wildcats tied it at 38-38 on a free throw by Charlie Marcon with six and one-half minutes left.

Ten seconds later, Don Snyder's jump shot put Davidson in front for the rest of the way. Don Davidson led the Wildcats with 15 points, followed by Snyder with 12 and Hetzel with 11.

Friars Roll On
Fourth-ranked Providence, the only major college team that has not been defeated, ran its streak to 17 at the expense of out-classed St. Francis 88-69 at Providence. The Friars held a 50-point lead twice in the second half.

Jim Benedict and Dexter Westbrook led the Providence attack with 16 points each. John Fitzhenry and Jim Murray each scored 15 to pace St. Francis. Each game Providence wins sets a school record for consecutive victories.

Tulsa avenged an earlier two-point loss to Drake with a 67-48 pasting at Tulsa. Forward Bob Fedorko led Tulsa with 19 points while Drake's Gene West scored 19 to pace his team.

St. Louis got hot in the first half and opened up a formidable lead en route to defeating North Texas State 83-60 at Denton, Tex. Bob Cole led the Billikens with 20 points.

White Deer Downs PJH

WHITE DEER — Pampa Junior High closed out its cage season yesterday with a pair of losses at the hands of White Deer, the Reapers dropping a 75-45 decision to the WDB team, and the eighth grade losing to the Buck frosh, 57-25.

The B Bucks held a narrow 12-10 quarter lead, but broke it open with a big second period, 36-26. Troyce Phillips and Ricky Paul hit 16 points each for WD. Johnny Carlos had 20 and Alvin Achord 16 for the Reapers.

Mike Hawpe, the six-foot "baby" of the Hawpe clan, completely dominated the rebounding and scoring in a lopsided first half for the Frosh. Ronnie Love had 13 and Hal Keyser six for Pampa.

ACC Crushes Hardin-Simmons

ABILENE, Tex. (UPI)—Abilene Christian toyed with its cross-town rival, Hardin-Simmons, during the opening minutes Thursday night and then went on to crush the Cowboys 75-54 in a non-conference basketball game.

It was the 12th win for the Wildcats against seven losses. Hardin-Simmons is now 12-6. Spencer Pickens paced the Wildcats with 18 points and Bill Rozinzine led the Cowboys with 12.

Randy In Fort Worth Track Meet

FORT WORTH (UPI)—Ralph Boston stops off tonight between the New York AC meet and Saturday afternoon's Los Angeles Times meet to try and add the Will Rogers Indoor Games broad jump and 60-yard high hurdles titles to his list of laurels.

Boston will be one of four Olympians headlining the fourth annual track and field show in Will Rogers Coliseum, where the athletes will compete on dirt rather than the boards customary in most indoor meets.

In addition to Boston, the field in the 11 open events scheduled here includes shot put star Randy Matson of Texas A&M, a silver medal winner at Tokyo with a heave of 66 feet 3 1/4 inches; hurdler Billy Hardin of Louisiana State and pole vaulter Billy Pemelton, unattached.

Boston will face Hardin in the hurdles, but his chief threat in the broad jump will be Lt. Darrel Horn, the one-time Oregon State star now at Kelly Air Force Base, San Antonio, Tex., who has been Boston's shadow in many competitive jump pits in the past. Hardin, who bowed to Boston earlier this year at Boston at the 45-yard distance, also will try his hand at the 300-yard dash here.

Matson will be straining to match his exhibition toss of two weeks ago when he bettered Gary Gubner's indoor record of 64-11 1/4 with a toss of 65-3 1/4 at Lubbock before he re-entered Texas A&M.

Californians Phil White and Jeff Chase join Pemelton in giving the meet three 16-foot vaulters.

Matson Throws
DALLAS — Randy Matson will lead a Texas A&M track contingent from the indoor track meet at Fort Worth Friday night to an indoor track meet in Dallas Saturday night. Matson will compete in the shotput only in both meets.

LBJ's Swearing-in Most Lavish, Costly in History

By JERRY KLEIN
NEW YORK (NEA) — Lyndon Johnson's swearing-in was the most lavish and costly in our history and featured an inaugural address running 1,500 words. Four of our presidents gave no inaugural speeches at all, and the briefest—134 words—was delivered by George Washington.

Beresfords, Husband, Wife Team to Give 'Hello Dolly'

"Hello, Dolly!" Broadway's biggest smash hit since "My Fair Lady" and "Oklahoma," will be reviewed with music by Mollie Beresford, accompanied by Howard Beresford at the piano in the Robert E. Lee Auditorium, Monday, February 22 at 8 p.m. The program has been changed from Stephen F. Austin to the Lee Auditorium because of the demand for tickets.

The Beresfords are the husband-wife team from Denver, who have delighted Pampa audiences in previous seasons with their "parlor editions" of "Camelot" and "The Sound of Music." For their intimate musical reviews, the Beresfords always choose those musicals with a story so good that it could be told without music. "Hello, Dolly!" is just that kind of story—a play with music based on a most successful play of 10 years ago—"The Matchmaker" by Thornton Wilder, Pulitzer prize playwright, Dolly Levi Gallagher is the "Matchmaker" of them all, the woman who is always arranging things happily and successfully for everybody, including herself.

This happy 'turn-of-the-century' story is supplemented with delightful lyrics and music by Jerry Herman to provide one of the gayest and exciting musicals of all time. Walter Kerr, New York Herald-Tribune critic calls "Hello, Dolly!" a "Musical Comedy dream." "Do not bother holding out your hats, you'd be throwing them into the air anyway," Howard Taubman of the New York Times rates "Hello, Dolly!" as "the best musical of the season... shining life in a musical shot through with enchantment."

Reservations for the Beresfords review of "Hello, Dolly!" can be made through any member of the St. Vincent de Paul Altar Society which is sponsoring the February 22 program, or by contacting Mrs. V. J. Jamieson, Mrs. A. D. McNamara, or Mrs. Lynn Boyd, Chairman of the program. Admission $1.25.

When money means more than a weekly allowance

As soon as a boy has a newspaper route money takes on a new meaning—it's no longer simply a handout from dad. From his route experience he learns the value of thrift; the logic of saving. And when Christmas or birthday time comes around he can proudly use his own cash to purchase gifts.

In addition to learning the basics of money management the boy with a newspaper route gains other rewards that will stay with him for the remainder of his life. He develops skills on his route that many boys may never acquire. He's able to put classroom theory into actual practice. And by working with men who are trained to develop his best potentials he's often a couple of jumps ahead of his classmates.

The Pampa Daily News

Being a newspaperboy is a great experience for any young man. If you know of any lad that you think might benefit from newspaper route experience, give our Circulation Department a call.

Mystery Man in Background of McDonald's Death

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Did a mystery man struggle with Zenith radio heir Eugene Francis (Stormy) McDonald when he met death in his rented $50,000 home?

"The service of my country," he said, "whose voice I can never hear but with veneration and love..."

In one touching passage of the nevergiven speech, the then 57-year-old general declared, "I have prematurely grown old in the service of my country."

The line doesn't appear in the address he eventually gave. "I was summoned by my country," he said, "whose voice I can never hear but with veneration and love..."

This possibility was expected to be explored further next Thursday when an eight-member coroner's inquest resumes into the death of the 25-year-old youth, who shared a $25-30 million estate with his sister, Mrs. Jean Marianne Lust Cantwell, 28, Rancho Santa Fe, Calif.

"There could have been another person in the room, probably trying to dissuade McDonald from suicide," pathologist Dr. Joseph Beeman testified Thursday when the inquest resumed following a two-day recess.

"They could have started fighting over the .22-caliber pistol and McDonald could have been shot in the back of the head," said Beeman, who has conducted more than 6,000 post-mortem operations.

Following disclosure of the possible presence of a mystery man in the McDonald home, Pima County Atty. Norman Green said he planned more investigation into the case.

It was Green — in a rare move in Arizona for a county attorney — who insisted on the coroner's inquest after sheriff's detectives and two pathologists indicated they believed McDonald took his own life.

The body of McDonald was discovered lying in a pool of blood in his home by a friend Feb. 3. Both wrists had been cut and there was a bullet wound in the back of his head.

When he requested the inquest, Green said there were a lot of unexplained circumstances in the case that disturbed him, such as the position of the bullet wound, the fact the implement used to slash McDonald's wrists wasn't found and why a young man with up to $15 million would kill himself.

Obsidian, a black smooth volcanic mineral, was the first glass known to ancient man.
