Debris From Missing Plane Found In Gulf

Six Texans Reported Aboard Lost Military Air Transport

By GORDON W. SCHULTZ
United Press International

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI) — Debris found in the stormy seas in the Gulf of Alaska came from a missing military charter plane with 101 men, women and children aboard, the Coast Guard said today.

The four-engine Northwest Orient Airlines DC7 disappeared Monday shortly after requesting a routine change in altitude while on a flight from McChord Air Force Base near Tacoma, Wash., to Elmendorf Air Force Base here.

Labor Secretary Steps Into Rail Strike Talks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz today stepped into flagging negotiations aimed at heading off a nationwide railroad strike over work rules.

The Labor Department said Wirtz entered the talks between the railroads and five railroad brotherhoods because he wanted to be informed of what steps have been taken to avert a strike.

The talks are being conducted under provisions of the Railway Labor Act which bans any contract change by either party for 60 days after a presidential emergency board is appointed.

The board used up the first 30 days to draw up its report to President Kennedy. The report was submitted May 13 and negotiations have been under way since then.

The dispute centers around the railroads' announced intention of changing work rules under which 200,000 engineers, firemen, conductors, brakemen, trainmen and switchmen work. The proposed changes would lop off an estimated 65,000 jobs including those of 40,000 firemen.

The railroads will be free to put the changes into effect as soon as the 60-day waiting period expires. Their right to make the changes has been upheld by various courts including the Supreme Court.

After losing the fight in the courts, the unions announced they would go on strike as soon as the railroads put the changes into effect. That threat still stands.

Later, Italian President Segni paid homage to the body of the dead pontiff at 11:22 a.m. (6:22 a.m. EDT). He was accompanied by Vice Premier Attilio Piccioni and other state officials. ## Rockefeller Gets Back to Politics; Greeted Warmly

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Gov. and Mrs. Nelson A. Rockefeller were off to a successful start today in a series of political, civic and social functions that could play a major role in his decision to actively seek the GOP presidential nomination in 1964.

Standing ovations greeted the governor and his bride Monday night at an Albany civic dinner given by the Citizens Planning Committee for Greater Albany.

About 400 persons, including 44 representatives of news media, attended the dinner.

"This is the first opportunity I have had to be here in Albany together," the governor said after his introduction to the audience by Dr. Vivienne Anderson, president of the civic group. Women in the audience described the governor's second wife as "charming," "outgoing," "wonderful" and "warm."

Earlier in the evening, the governor and his wife, the former Mrs. Margaretta (Happy) Fuller Murphy, spent 45 minutes in a receiving line shaking hands with the guests. To many, the governor introduced his wife as "Happy."

Their May 4 wedding sparked a wave of discussion concerning its effect on the governor's political future.

Political observers believe some of the answers will be found during a series of scheduled activities this summer.

Rains Too Late For Wheat Belt; Harvest Delayed

The Wheat Harvest Control Office in Amarillo reported today that the rains received over the entire Texas wheat belt during the last week came too late to be of any benefit to dry land wheat acreage.

Harvest operations in North Central Texas and the Panhandle now are being delayed because of wet fields.

However, with favorable sunny weather the Panhandle harvest is expected to go into full gear within the next week.

The Amarillo Harvest Office stated that the wheat harvest in Gray, Roberts, Hemphill, Wheeler and Lipscomb counties should average about 35 bushels per acre on irrigated land, but the remaining dry land wheat is reported in poor condition.

The Amarillo office said a temporary harvest office will be opened in Pecos next Monday with James D. Young in charge. The office will be located at the Pecos Fairgrounds. The phone number there will be 435-2332.

Love Not Cooled By 3-Hour Dunk

FORT WORTH (UPI) — A 32-year-old woman fell from a boat into Benbrook Lake Monday night during an argument with her husband. Her 14-year-old son jumped into the lake with life preservers. The husband drove the boat away saying he was going to "get cigarettes."

The woman and boy were rescued after spending three hours in the water.

She said she and her husband argued about the correct way to bait a fish hook.

"He hit me with a Coke bottle," she told police, "then I conked him on the nose with a flashlight, but I fell overboard."

She said she refused to get back in the boat so the boy joined her in the water with the life preservers.

Her husband headed for shore "I was tired of floating with them," he told police.

"He said he was going after some cigarettes," the wife said. "But after an hour we figured he was lying."

The woman told police she did not want to press charges.

"I still love him," she said.

Lovett Library Is Sinking; City Calling Builders

The Lovett Memorial Library Building has begun to sink at one end, City Manager Harold Schmitzer reported to the city commission today.

Schmitzer said the tile floor in rest rooms at the north end of the library building already has sunk about two inches and the walls along the north side have cracked.

Commissioners agreed that the contractors and architects for the building should be called in to see what can be done to remedy the situation.

The city manager and Public Works Director R. B. Cooke today were attempting to contact the contractors to ask an investigation before further damage is caused to the building.

The weather bureau today issued a severe thunderstorm alert for the extreme eastern portion of the Texas Panhandle.

The weather bureau said severe thunderstorms were expected from 3 p.m. until 9 p.m. in an area along and 60 miles north and south of a line from Guymon, Okla., to Wichita, Kan., northeastward to St. Joseph, Mo. Large hail and damaging wind was expected.

'Pope of Peace' Receiving Final Homage

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — The body of Pope John XXIII, his face lined with the suffering of four days of agony, lay today in regal raiment in the Vatican Palace where cardinals and diplomats paid their last respects.

This evening the remains will be borne in procession to the Basilica of St. Peter's. Starting Wednesday, hundreds of thousands of the people of Rome and all others who wish, will begin filing by for a final salute to the late pontiff, who gave a new warmth to religious statesmanship.

Pope John died in his simple bed in the apostolic palace Monday night at 7:49 p.m. (2:49 p.m. EDT) after almost 94 hours of suffering from a stomach tumor and peritonitis.

The suffering showed on his face as he lay richly-robed on a red-draped catafalque placed in a salon of the Vatican Palace. His gloved hands were clasped over a beloved crucifix.

Pope John had on soft, richly-embroidered cloth slippers with soles that showed they had been worn.

The robes were the same he donned on Holy Thursday more than a year ago in the Basilica of St. John in Lateran for the elevation of 12 cardinal deacons to cardinal bishop ranks.

The worn shoes were almost indicative of the earthly character of the Pope himself, who came from peasant stock in the rugged mountains of northern Italy.

Pope John's body was brought from his bedroom to the salon shortly after dawn, and at 9 a.m. (4 a.m. EDT) there began a steady stream of distinguished visitors, ranging from President Antonio Segni of Italy to members of the diplomatic corps accredited to the Holy See.

Negroes Are Admitted to Texas A&M

COLLEGE STATION (UPI) — Three Negroes have been admitted to Texas A&M College breaking the school's 92-year-old color barrier.

The Negroes were admitted last year to "admit qualified students regardless of race."

Negroes were admitted into Arlington State College, part of the A&M system, last fall.

Two of the Negroes, Vernell Jackson of Bryan and George Douglas Sutton of Fort Worth, are graduates of Prairie View A&M and will attend as National Science Foundation Students. The third, Leroy Steling, is an undergraduate from Bryan, who has attended Texas Southern University.

Registrar H. L. Heaton said 2,675 students registered for the first summer session. He estimated the number of women students would be about the same as last summer—203.

Texas A&M's board voted in April to admit women on a limited basis throughout the school rather than just in summer school.

At Food Congress
World Urged to 'Outlaw and Banish Hunger'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy said today that for the first time mankind now has the ability to banish hunger from the earth. Thus, he said, the world must bear down on efforts to assure "a balanced and adequate diet" for everyone.

Kennedy proposed "five basic guidelines" toward that end, starting with the basic fact that "the persistence of hunger is unacceptable either morally or socially."

In a speech prepared for the opening session of the World Food Congress, Kennedy pledged full American support for a campaign to "outlaw and banish hunger" in the face of a worldwide population explosion that has intensified the problem.

United Nations Secretary General Thant also spoke at the first session and called for a 4 to 5 per cent annual increase in the world's food production to feed its expanding population.

Thant said there was a "paradox of poverty in the midst of plenty, of famine or near-famine side-by-side with surpluses, a paradox which represents, let us admit, such a reproach to our present day world."

In outlining his proposed guidelines for seeing that everyone has enough to eat, Kennedy noted that the late Pope John XXIII in his recent encyclical expressed the conviction that "all men are equal by reason of their natural dignity."

President Sarvepalli Radhakrishnan of India, sharing in the opening ceremonies, warned in a statement prepared for the congress that:

"Peace and stability can never be maintained in this world if more than half of its population have to remain hungry throughout the year."

Hoffa Indicted on Federal Charge of $20-Million Fraud

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Teamsters President James R. Hoffa and seven other men were indicted today on federal charges of fraudulently obtaining $20 million in loans from the Central States Teamsters pension fund and of using more than $1 million of the total for their own benefit.

The Justice Department said a two-year FBI investigation of the $200 million fund led to the 28-count indictment by a federal grand jury in Chicago.

The indictment accused Hoffa of deceiving his fellow fund trustees to obtain loans for favored companies in six states but mainly in the Miami Fla. area.

It also charged that he and five others demanded and received money stock options and financial control of some borrowing firms.

Others named in the indictment were: Benjamin Dranow, 55, former Minneapolis department store executive now serving prison terms for bankruptcy fraud and tax evasion. His conviction for bail jumping is under appeal.

Abe I. Weinblatt, 67, retired Miami Beach businessman and former associate of Dranow.

S. George Burris, 65, New York City accountant, and his son Herbert R. Burris, 41, a New York City attorney.

Samuel Hyman, 69, Miami Beach, a Key West, Fla., real estate operator.

Calvin Kovens, 39, Miami Beach builder and real estate man.

Zachary A. Strate Jr., 41, New Orleans builder and real estate man.

Texans Mourn

A special memorial service for Pope John XXIII was held today at noon at the Sacred Heart Cathedral in Amarillo.

Attending from Pampa were Father E. J. Cashman, C.M., and Father Jerome Calcagno, C.M.

By United Press International
Texans, Catholic and Protestant alike, mourned Tuesday the death of Pope John XXIII, describing him as a peacemaker and as a man who appealed to people of all kinds, "whether religious or not."

Texas Protestants reacted perhaps more sympathetically than at the death of any other Pope. Protestants had prayed for him in his illness and now that he was gone, they said, they felt a great loss.

Roman Catholic Bishop Thomas K. Gorman of Dallas said one of

Sewage Complaint Heard At Commission Meeting

Complaints on Pampa's sewage disposal system and a request for action on location of the city's water treatment plant for the Canadian River Project today prompted the city commission to ask a consulting engineer and fiscal agent to meet with them on both matters at their regular meeting next week.

City Manager Harold Schmitzer was instructed to invite T. Carr Forrester of Forrester & Cotton, Dallas engineers, and R. H. Underwood, Dallas fiscal agent, to meet with the commission next week.

Action was taken after City Manager Schmitzer read a letter of complaint from W. B. Jackson, 1801 Evergreen, who owns ranchland affected by Pampa sewage that empties into Red Deer Creek.

Jackson charged in his letter that the "condition the sewage is in when it is dumped into a public stream is a disgrace to the city and community."

Jackson's letter went on to say: "On my ranch about ten miles down stream, where Red Deer Creek crosses the line from Gray into Roberts County, the bed of the creek is covered with from four to six feet of sand and gravel. This is now saturated with the corruption from the Pampa disposal system."

Jackson said the inadequacy of the Pampa plant had been discussed for a number of years and stated he thought it now is time for some action.

On the Canadian River Project request from the United States Bureau of Reclamation, C. O. Crane, project engineer, asked for definite information regarding the location of Pampa's water treatment plant.

Crane said in his letter that surveys for the portion of the aqueduct system to deliver water to Berger and Pampa have been completed and final designs of that section of the aqueduct are being initiated. Information on Pampa's plans for the plant location are needed to preclude delay in completion of the aqueduct designs, Crane stated.

Commissioners agreed that these were two major projects and that action should be started on both at next week's meeting.

Mayor H. R. Thompson also suggested that the commission call an executive session to discuss some of Pampa's foremost problems that need immediate attention.

The commission today received bids on petroleum products from Continental Oil Co., Mobil Oil Co., Humble Oil & Refining Co., and Texaco, Inc. The bids were ordered tabulated and analyzed for action of the commission next week.

Authority was granted to the Top O' Texas Car Association to use the old Reeves Air Force Base, south of the city on Hwy. 70, for hot rod races.

JFK Has Plan For Rights Legislation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy has decided upon "the general broad outline" of new civil rights legislation and plans to send a special message to Congress next week, the White House said today.

Judge Considers Possible Harness For Gov. Wallace

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Federal Judge Seymour Lynne today considered a request by the government for an order restraining Gov. George Wallace from interfering with the admission of three Negroes to the University of Alabama.

Lynne heard arguments from attorneys for the Justice Department and Wallace during a 90-minute hearing Monday. He promised a ruling by Wednesday morning.

The Negroes are scheduled to enter the university, two at the main campus at Tuscaloosa and one at the Huntsville branch, Monday. Wallace has vowed to "personally bar any Negro" attempting to attend the all-white university.

Fidel Is Home; Has Lot to Say

HAVANA (UPI) — Premier Fidel Castro, just back from Russia, announced Monday night he will have "a lot to say" about his 37-day Soviet tour.

Castro's return by non-stop Soviet airliner was as closely kept a secret as his departure April 26. The first indication that he had left Russia was a radio announcement an hour after the event—that he had landed in Cuba.

Ships, trains and factories greeted the announcement with blasts on their whistles. The newspaper La Tardé remade its front page to include a half-page picture of Castro and the headline: "Fidel arrived! Welcome!"

"I have many things to say about my trip, but I'll say them on television," Castro said on arrival.

The Cuban premier received a welcome in Russia rarely equaled by a foreign visitor. The distinctions conferred on him included the title "Hero of the Soviet Union," seldom awarded to a non-Russian.

An inter-club delegation from the Downtown Kiwanis Club included Malcolm Denson, Bob Alford, Tex DeWeese, A. L. Weatherford, Jeff Bearcen and Joe Gordon.

Gasoline Plant Construction Is Being Planned

AMARILLO (Sp) — Amarillo Oil Company has signed a contract with Dresser Engineering Company of Tulsa, Okla., for construction of a $1.5 million natural gasoline plant near Fritch.

Field construction will begin August 1, and it is estimated that the new plant will be ready for operation by January 1, 1964.

The plant will be designed to process 100 million cubic feet of gas per day and will produce a single de-ethanized gasoline stream.

Location of the plant is to be about eight-tenths of a mile west of the Fritch city limits and north of the Amarillo highway.

Mourning Transcends Religious Differences

By United Press International

The mourning for Pope John XXIII today spanned the Iron Curtain and transcended religious differences.

Catholic, Protestant, Jew, Buddhist, and atheist joined in praising the life and work of the Pope of Peace Presidents, priests, and the man on the street shared in the sadness over his death.

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, who says he does not believe in God, praised Pope John as a man who had won "the respect of peace-loving peoples everywhere."

Churches in Communist Yugoslavia, Poland, Hungary, and Czechoslovakia were packed with worshippers, and the government-run radios of all four nations carried bulletins on the Pope's dying hours.

"Not only Catholics, but all people everywhere take leave of this simple man with great sorrow," Radio Warsaw said.

But Radio Free Europe in Munich said the Communists jammed Vatican Radio broadcasts on the Pope's condition.

Praise From Tass

Tass, the Soviet news agency, praised the Pope's efforts to end the cold war and said his reign was "marked by fruitful activity for the sake of consolidating peace... among nations."

Austrian President Adolf Schaerf called the Pope's death "a loss not only to the Catholic Church, but to the whole of humanity," and leaders of other faiths agreed.

Dr. Willem A. Visser 't Hooft, secretary general of the World Council of Churches, said Pope John will be remembered as the man who made possible "a true dialogue between the Roman Catholic and the other churches."

Lord Fisher of Lambeth, former head of the Church of England, said "this great and good man has given a new impulse to Christendom which will not fade, lighted a new candle which will not be extinguished." Fisher, as archbishop of Canterbury, was the first Anglican leader to meet with a Pope in nearly 400 years.

Great Humanitarian

In Jerusalem, Israeli Religious Affairs Minister Dr. Zerach Wahrhaftig said "Jews suffered the loss of the greatest humanitarian of our century." Pope John, he said, "virtually reminded Christianity to reconsider its position on Judaism."

In Japan, Zen Buddhist scholar Daisetsu Suzuki said the pontiff was the first to urge Buddhists and Christians to cooperate in bringing world peace.

The City Hall Palm Room on the third floor of City Hall, remodeled last year at a cost of $8,000 by the former city commission for a meeting place, and abandoned last week as a meeting place by the current city commission last week, will be turned over to the use of civic organizations. City Manager Schmitzer was authorized to supervise use of the air-conditioned quarters.

City Commissioner L. P. Fort, read a new water ordinance he proposed, but was unable to get any action on it today. Commissioners MacField McDaniel and Jim Nation said it should be placed on the regular agenda so it could be given further study. Commissioner Fort said after the meeting adjourned that he had asked the city manager to place the ordinance on the agenda for next week.

The legislation called for a one-year extension of the present summer water rates for inside the city consumers and doubling of the rates for water users outside the city limits.

"I just wanted a chance to explain it today," Fort said.

Four Seasons Shower Launches New Bride

Four-seasons bridal shower has gifts and menu tuned to seasons. Showy centerpiece combines colorful tissue paper flowers with pine branches. Flower stems are green paper-wrapped cleansers.

Wishes. With a few modifications, it might be adapted to a housewarming party. The hostess or the organizer divides guests into four groups and assigns each group a season; guests bring gifts in keeping with the season. They may also be asked to bring a food course for each season. A sample menu: Spring green salad; summer open-flower sandwiches; autumn fruit harvest compote and winter ice-capped (whipped cream) demitasse and petit-fours.

Gifts which have proved popular include a recipe file box of fast, cool summer menus and easy recipes taped to file cards. A companion gift is a card file of tried-and-proven housekeeping shortcuts, with special emphasis on spring cleaning.

Another appropriate seasonal gift is a fall layaway box of plastic sweater bags, rolls of magic mending tape and pine moth-proof-deodorizer, ready to store clean summer-knitwear.

A winter gift might be a company-size casserole with a recipe for an easy dish serving eight or 10.

The four seasons centerpiece as created by a friend of mine is adaptable to several occasions.

It combines a branch of natural, long-needle pine with outrageously colorful tissue paper flowers. She uses tissue paper such as we see now in stationer and gift shops in rolls of gorgeous colors.

I was intrigued by the idea as suggested by a Pennsylvania homemaker, because it invites us to exercise our imagination and spreads the work among the well-

Dear Abby.... Sympathy Needed Not Criticism

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband's older sister is one for the books. She lives near me and drops in to visit quite often. Lately she has been getting "hot flashes." She tears off her blouse or her dress (or whatever she is wearing) and pulls off her beads and earrings and I like a woman possessed. I have an 11-year-old son and I don't want her undressing in front of him. I have to be on my guard constantly and when she starts having a hot flash I get the boy out of the room, but fast. Now this sister-in-law was widowed in the past year, and I think these flashes are way overdone as a bid for sympathy. Can't her doctor give her shots or pills to help her? She claims he can't.

and he said he didn't care about the past. I believe him, too. Abby, before I marry him I think his parents should be told about my mistake. He says he won't tell them, and as long as my parents plan to raise my little girl as their own, no one needs to know. I think his parents deserve to know all about me. Am I right? Or do you agree with my boy friend?

DEAR TROUBLED: I agree with your boy friend.

For a personal, unpublished answer to your letter, write to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Don't put off writing letters. Send one dollar to Abby for her booklet, "How To Write Letters For All Occasions."

SISTER-IN-LAW

DEAR SIS: I have a "hot flash" for you, lady. What helps some women is of no help to others. Your sister-in-law needs sympathy and understanding, not criticism.

DEAR WIFE: An unresolved suspicion is neither healthy nor fun to live with. If your husband does not appreciate these calls, he can put a stop to them by telling his "ex" in more emphatic language. If he "enjoys" them, you have another problem. You are competing with a poor loser who might be angling for another bout.

DEAR ABBY: My boy friend and I have been going steady for three years and plan to be married this fall. When I was 15 (I am now 22), I had a child out of wedlock. My parents are raising her as their own child. Everyone thinks she is my younger sister. I told my boy friend all about it.

Mrs. Lia Wills Is Guest Speaker

CANADIAN (Spl) — Chapter I of the PEO met Monday for luncheon and an afternoon meeting in the home of Mrs. John H. Jones and Mrs. Frank McMordie.

Mrs. Lia Wills of Pampa, guest speaker for the afternoon, discussed "The Dangers of Communism."

Present were one guest, Mrs. Wills, and Meses. Malouf Abraham, Willia Ayers, Morris Bennett, John D. Glenn, C. W. Isaacs, John Isaacs, William Karr, Cap Kelley, Jack King, E. H. Snyder, Rush Snyder, Charles Teas, F. D. Teas, Helen Tepe, George E. Tubb Arheuer-Webb, Dan Witt, Wiley Wright, and J. L. Yokley, and the hostesses.

County Council In Business Meeting

Gray County Home Demonstration Council held its monthly business meeting recently in the Courthouse Annex, east of the city.

Mrs. D. W. Swain presided as reports were given by the various home demonstration club representatives. Relating to individual growth, it was determined that Merten Home Club had acquired the most new members.

Miss Lou Ella Patterson, Gray County Home Demonstration agent, reported on the county-wide Fabric Care and Laundry Clinics held recently. She announced 85 had attended the Fabric Care meeting and 16 were present for the Laundry Clinic.

It was also reported that HD clubs are getting the Bind Weed Treatment underway.

Mrs. A. P. Coombs, Mrs. G. W. James and Mrs. Phyllis Larimore were named delegates to attend the state THDA meeting in September.

When you lunch "Dutch treat" with the girls, ask for separate checks or split the bill later.

Prospective College Rushees Given Information At Panhellenic Social

A group of about 125 prospective rushees, their mothers, and local sorority women attended Pampa Provisional Panhellenic's tea at 3 p.m. Sunday in the Lovett Memorial Library.

The purpose of the tea was to acquaint the girls and their mothers with sorority life and sorority rushing. Mrs. Malcolm Douglass, vice president, presided in place of the local Panhellenic group's president, Mrs. Bruce Pratt, who was unable to attend because of illness. Mrs. Douglass introduced Mrs. George Cree, Jr., who gave a brief talk on rush rules.

The prospective rushees received booklets giving a comprehensive outline of sorority life and what to expect in rush.

Decorations were kept to the Greek theme, with a huge scroll bearing the name, Pampa Provisional Panhellenic, and the Greek letters of the sororities represented dominating one end of the room. A display of pins from each of the 18 national sororities represented was on view for the girls. Punch and cookies were served from a table centered with an arrangement of summer flowers.

It was emphasized that any high school graduate or college upper-classman wishing to go through sorority rush this year must fill out a card by July 1. If this card is not filled out, a girl is not eligible to receive recommendations from Pampa sorority women. The cards are on file at the home of Mrs. E. L. Henderson, 419 E. Foster.

Other officers of Pampa Provisional Panhellenic are Mrs. Richard Stowers, secretary, and Mrs. A. L. Wagner, treasurer. Mrs. Grundy Morrison was in charge of arrangements for the tea.

President Has Power to Confiscate All Private Property for Federal Use

By RAY HERST
For The Pampa News
Editor's note: This is second in a series of three articles.

On October 3, 1942, the President of the United States issued an Executive Order limiting all salaries in this country to $25,000 after payment of taxes.

On November 23, 1909, the President issued an Executive Order which made the enticing of laborers from the Canal Zone a misdemeanor.

On April 8, 1952, The President issued an Executive Order calling for the seizure of the steel industry.

These apparently unrelated orders have one important factor in common.

They were each repealed either by Congress or the United States Supreme Court as being unconstitutional. Each of the Executive Orders listed above infringed on the power given by the Constitution to Congress alone—the power to make laws.

The question immediately comes to mind that if the orders were unconstitutional, why were they issued in the first place?

The fact is that neither the President nor anyone else knows they are challenged by the Congress as in the first two instances or by individuals who appeal to the Supreme Court as in the last instance.

No one knows exactly what an Executive Order is or what it can do.

Thousands of them have been issued and many have been repealed. Sometimes the process is a quick one.

On the question of the limited salaries, Congress rescinded the action on April 11 of the following year. Yet, it took Congress 24 years to repeal the President's order concerning laborers from the Canal Zone.

The Supreme Court's decision concerning the seizure of the steel industry as ordered by President Harry Truman came quickly. The court held the order "to be without Constitutional or Congressional authority" and therefore could not stand.

The power sought to be exercised under the Executive Order was a lawmaking power which the Constitution vests in Congress alone, the Supreme Court said in its decision.

"Nor can the seizure order be sustained because of the several constitutional provisions that grant executive power to the President," the court said. "In the framework of our Constitution, the President's power to see that the laws are faithfully executed refutes the idea that he is to be a lawmaker."

The Constitution limits his functions in the lawmaking process to the recommending of laws he thinks wise and the vetoing of laws he thinks bad.

Despite the Supreme Court actions in this case and others it has never actually developed into the constitutionality of the Executive Order itself. Rather the court has concerned itself in the main with the questions of actions taken under the order.

However at least one member of the Supreme Court, Justice Hugo Black, has expressed doubt that the Executive Order is valid. In his concurring opinion involving the Loyalty Boards action under an Executive Order Justice Black made the following statement:

"... I agree that it is generally better for this court not to decide constitutional questions in cases which can be adequately disposed of on non-constitutional grounds... (but here) I think it would be better judicial practice to reach and decide the constitutional issues, altho I agree with the court that the Presidential Order can justifiably be construed as denying the Loyalty Review Board the power exercised in this case... But I wish it distinctly understood that I have grave doubt as to whether the Presidential Order has been authorized by an act of Congress.

"That Order and others associated with it embody a far-reaching espionage program over government employees. These orders look more like legislation to me than properly authorized regulations to carry out a clear and explicit command of Congress. I also doubt that the Congress could delegate power to do what the President had attempted to do in the Executive Order under consideration here. And of course, the Constitution does not confer lawmaking power on the President."

The Supreme Court further clarified its position on Executive Orders by issuing a statement in connection with an order dealing with the safeguarding of official information.

Chief Justice Warren, in the opinion of the court, declared that the court does not "decide whether the President has inherent authority to create such a program, whether congressional action is necessary or what the limits on executive or legislative authority may be."

Congress has never actually made an attempt to define what an Executive Order is. Instead, it has often acted to repeal and rescind various Executive Orders.

However, even its power to repeal such orders is a limited one as explained by the Supreme Court in 1866.

"The power to make the necessary laws is in Congress; the power to execute in the President. Both powers imply many subordinate and auxiliary powers. Each includes all authorities essential to its due exercise. But neither can the President, in war more than in peace, intrude upon the proper authority of Congress nor Congress upon the proper authority of the President. Both are servants of the people whose will is expressed in the fundamental law."

But despite the apparent overlap of power as evidenced in the actions of the Supreme Court and Congress, the Executive Order still stands — undefined and in most cases unchallenged.

An Act of Congress or a Supreme Court decision appear to be the only means of checking the constitutional validity of such an order which can have a far-reaching effect on every American. (Tomorrow: President Kennedy's use of the Executive Order and its affect on the country.)

70-Year-Old Tops Trees 70 Feet Up

By WALTER C. EVA
OLYMPIA, Wash. (UPI) — A seventy-year-old lumberjack, Swante Kyllonen, who has been topping trees since the days of the highline and the donkey engine, says he isn't ready to quit yet.

But he admits he is trying to slow down a little. Perched on a springboard 70 feet in the air, Kyllonen chops the tops off of trees, shunning the climbing spurs and belt and saw used by the more cautious youngsters of a later generation.

Kyllonen says he is the only person left in the country who knows how to use the steel-tipped springboards which are inserted into notches cut into the sides of the trees.

Claiming to be semi-retired, he still performs at logging shows as often as every other month. Each summer he demonstrates his skill at a big show in Arcata, Calif. and at an international logging show in Hayward, Wis.

Kyllonen says he no longer works more than 70 feet above the ground, not because he can't go higher, but because it throws too much of a scare into the spectators.

As for himself, Kyllonen admits he isn't as good as he was 10 years ago, but he says he isn't going to quit until he starts feeling shaky up there.

Born on a homestead in Puget Sound logging country north of Seattle, Kyllonen learned to cut the tops of trees in 1914, at about the time that loggers started using safety ropes.

Nowadays, after 50 years of logging in the Pacific Northwest, Kyllonen says he does just what he wants to do most of the time, such as putting around the house and tending the garden.

Not much demand exists for tree-toppers anymore, but he still gets requests from the state parks system for little jobs. And sometimes city officials want him to remove dead tree tops which are endangering passersby.

Also he is often in demand by homeowners to remove trees in congested areas where they can't be allowed to fall by themselves. In these cases, Kyllonen takes them down in sections beginning with the top.

Still as straight and springy as the trees he tops, Kyllonen says he stays young by leading a simple life. He gets up early — never sleeping more than four or five hours — and works hard and doesn't waste his time worrying.

Wall Street In Review

NEW YORK (UPI) — Analyst James Dines says there is "absolutely no change" in his opinion that the present internal market churning is just like that of December 1962 and February 1963 and eventually will culminate in a renewed upward thrust.

Dines feels that as long as the Dow-Jones industrials average remains safely nestled in its major uptrend there is no chance of a major decline.

The Alexander Hamilton Institute believes that any further easing of stock prices will prove temporary and will soon meet renewed demand from institutional investors who were known to have been active buyers during the first quarter.

The International Statistical Bureau continues to emphasize that the market will reach new highs even though advances for a time will be somewhat labored.

Foreign Commentary

By WILLIAM J. EATON
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI) — A former Harvard dean of education who says he once was regarded as a "typhoid carrier at a tea party" in the academic world now calls himself a "recruiting officer" for teachers.

Francis Keppel, controversial 47-year-old commissioner of education, wants local school boards to put more challenging career incentives into the elementary and high school teacher's job.

Sizeable pay raises for the long-service teacher and opportunities to pioneer new team-teaching techniques are part of the answer, Keppel says. He also wants to encourage teachers to return to universities on regular, lengthy visits to keep pace with developments in their fields.

And he is concerned about pulling up academic standards in those high schools that lag far behind the pace-setting institutions flourishing in prosperous suburbs.

"There's good deal of evidence the American people do not want the federal government to go messing around with what is taught in the schools or who is teaching it," he said recently.

Nationwide Test System
But, he adds, there may be a possibility of developing a nationwide reporting system on results of standard tests so school systems could see how they measure up to the U.S. average.

Keppel, who wears dark suits and narrow, striped ties that indicate a Harvard influence, strongly believes in the need for additional federal action to improve the quality of American education.

Yet he is well aware of the tradition of local control of schools and believes progress can be made within that framework.

In a recent talk at a National Science Foundation meeting, Keppel focused on two problems which he said are inadequately understood. The first is the fact that one of every five American families move each year and this usually means a change of schools for any children involved.

Turnover Great
In some slum areas, the turnover amounts to 300 per cent in some years, he said. Even lesser shifts add to the teacher's problem in holding high standards for the class.

The second problem, Keppel noted, was that about 11 per cent of the teachers in this country leave the profession each year. Another 7 to 8 per cent move from one school to another. This complicates the task further.

Keppel's answer to this restlessness is to make it more appealing for teachers to remain at their jobs by improving their working conditions and salaries.

For example, he said, most salary systems are set up so that a teacher reaches his peak earning capacity when he has been on the job 10 or 15 years. This is usually the time when his family expenses are rising sharply as children grow up and contemplate college, he said. The result is that many teachers look for better paying jobs, or second jobs.

His answer is for federal-state support of salary increases of 20 per cent or more to teachers at the top of the salary scale. He also would like teachers' pay raises tied to their responsibility for teaching advanced or special classes.

Keppel frowns on merit pay raise plans adopted by some communities. There are no precise standards to measure a teacher's ability to teach, he says. And it's often hard to compare the work of those who work in slum neighborhood schools with others who instruct children of upper-income families.

"I am a recruiting officer for teachers," Keppel says. "And what can I offer the man of 21 today? I can tell him when he's 65 he will be teaching the same number of students, roughly the same subject matter and he will be receiving about the same pay as he did after 15 years service. That isn't good enough and it lacks the career incentive and challenge to attract the kind of teachers we need," he says.

Little-Known Facts to Forget

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — I often hear people lament that they can't seem to remember what they read. There are two remedies for this.

They can take a memory course or they can restrict their reading to things that don't need to be remembered.

As my good deed for today, I here offer six items that people can forget without letting it bother them at all.

ONE
The streets of Washington are lined with trees. To help them survive in a hostile city environment, the trees are sprayed occasionally with some kind of chemical. When the spraying machine is scheduled to visit an area, notices are posted warning motorists not to park there. Recently, John McKelway of the Washington Star took a calculated risk and left his car in a posted area.

He now drives the only car in Washington that is protected against Dutch elm disease.

TWO
Rep. Jim Wright, D-Tex., recently advised his constituents that by the year 2010 the population of Texas will more than double and the income of Texans will more than quadruple. Holy Cow! Now they've started bragging in the future tense.

THREE
The Navy has decided to christen one of its Polaris submarines the "Kamehameha" in honor of a Hawaiian chief. An old Navy man of my acquaintance thinks this is dreadful.

Pity, he says; the poor sailor who goes out on the town, has a few too many and gets picked up by the shore patrol.

"What's your ship, sailor?" "The Kamehameha. Oops, I mean the Mehemehaka. No, not that. It's the Hahame..."

By that time they've already got him in the brig.

FOUR
In a House committee report on the "equal pay for women" bill, Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., boldly asserted that "women are more prone to homemaking and motherhood than men."

56TH YEAR THE PAMPA DAILY NEWS TUESDAY, JUNE 4, 1963

No matter what the issue is, there's always somebody making extremist statements.

FIVE
Mixed metaphors are fairly common in Congress. Rarely, however, do you hear metaphors scrambled as thoroughly as in a remark by Rep. William M. Colmer, D-Miss., at a rules committee hearing.

Said he: "I'm treading here where those who fly are supposed to keep silent."

Farrell Gets Revenge, Hurls Two-Hitter At LA

By FRED DOWN
UPI Sports Writer

Giving 'em the slip is still Dick Farrell's No. 1 skill — only now they're talking about a pitch and not his ability to elude private eyes.

A strapping, 29-year old fire-baller from Boston, Farrell won fame with the Philadelphia Phillies as one of the "Dalton Boys" — three fun-loving pitchers who thought training rules were for Vassar girls.

After 5½ years the Phillies traded Farrell to the Los Angeles Dodgers, from whom the Houston Colts purchased him for $125,000 in the National League's famous expansion draft on Oct. 10, 1961. At Houston, general manager Paul Richards educated Dick in a new form of the "slip" — a Richards-invented curveball which has rounded out Farrell's pitching equipment and made him one of the best right-handers in baseball.

Farrell had only a 10-20 record with the Colts last season but Richards and manager Harry Craft said he pitched like "a 25-game winner" and rated him among the best pitchers in baseball.

Gives A Sample
Farrell gave his former Dodge er teammates a sample of his new-found art of the "slip" Monday night when he pitched a no-hitter for 7 1-3 innings and wound up with a two-hit, 2-1 triumph over Los Angeles. Farrell didn't allow the Dodgers' first hit until Dick Tracewski singled in the eighth, and lost his shutout in the ninth when Junior Gilliam tripled and scored on Tommy Davis' sacrifice fly.

Rookie Rusty Staub's first big league homer, with Carl Warwick on base in the fourth inning, gave Farrell the edge he needed to raise his season record to 5-6 and deal last year's 25-game winner, Don Drysdale his sixth loss against the same number of victories.

The Chicago White Sox moved into a second-place tie with Baltimore in the American League when they beat the Los Angeles Angels, 4-0, and the Kansas City Athletics downed the Minnesota Twins, 4-1, in the only other major league games of the day. The White Sox, however, lost the services of first-baseman Joe Cunningham for an estimated eight weeks when he suffered a broken collar bone.

Farrell, 6-4 and 225 pounds, worked exclusively as a relief pitcher for the Phillies and didn't pitch a complete game until his 26th game in the majors. The other members of the Phillies' famed "Dalton Boys" were Jack Meyer and Jim Owens.

Drysdale Fans Thirteen
Drysdale, who had a 25-9 record last season, struck out 13 Colts and walked only one. Farrell had five strikeouts and three walks. The "slip pitch" is similar to a change of pace although it has some "break" to it in addition to being a slow ball thrown with the sweeping motion of a fast ball.

Frick Admits Gambling Could Strike Baseball

NEW YORK (UPI) — Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick met the gambling question head-on today, without flinching, sidestepping or denying "it" could happen to baseball just as it has to other sports.

The commissioner said he is proud of baseball's clean record overall although he is "not gloating over it."

"Who knows?" he said. "We might have some kind of incident tomorrow. I rather doubt it, though, because I have great confidence in our players."

Despite his confidence, Frick feels it still requires "a constant awareness" on the part of everyone connected with baseball, including his office, club owners, managers, players and even clubhouse boys, to maintain the integrity of the game.

Stinnett handed the Pampa Queens their first loss of the season last night, 5-2, at Hobart Park.

Lucille Strickland hurled a two-hitter at the Queens, walking only one and striking out four. Neva Hale's solo home run was one of the two Pampa hits, while the Queens scored their other run on errors.

Mary Lou Addington lost a heartbreaker as six Queen errors gave the visitors the winning margin. Mary Lou gave up five hits, walked three and struck out two. The Queens finish the week with three more non-league games, playing at Berger tonight at 7 p.m., with the Bees coming back to Pampa for a 7:45 p.m. game at Hobart Park Thursday, and Panhandle playing at Pampa Friday night.

Athletics Pay Up Back Rent

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The Kansas City Athletics gave up their fight Monday for a $1-a-year lease on Municipal Stadium and paid $20,000 in back rent.

The A's signed a $1-a-year contract with the old city administration just before it left office, but the new city administration refused to honor it. A's owner Charles O. Finley wanted the low rate lease as repayment for an estimated $400,000 he spent to improve the stadium.

Finley said he was advised by his attorneys that the old contract was legal and valid.

"However," he said, "it is my opinion that all this bickering is not good for baseball in Kansas City and baseball in general."

Finsterwald Wins 500 Festival Golf

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — The same old caddy but a new grip on his driver pulled Dow Finsterwald out of goldfom's drums today with his first major victory in more than three years.

The former PGA champion from Tequesta, Fla., banged home two birdies on the final three holes Monday for a three-under-par 68 to win the fourth annual $55,000 "500 Festival" golf tournament by two shots.

That gave him a 72-hole score of 288, 18 under par, and $10,000 top money and boosted him from ninth to sixth place in earnings on this year's circuit with $26,543.

Finsterwald, who now heads for the Buick Open at Flint, Mich., grabbed his first victory since the New Orleans Open in 1960. He set the stage for the showdown with a red-hot seven-under-par 64 that tied him for the 54-hole lead with Julius Boros.

Dissatisfied with his driver despite his fine round, he changed the grip for the final round and that and his caddy may have made the difference.

"I thought my driving was much better," said Finsterwald. "And my caddy, Tom Vinson, was a big help, too, especially in figuring the yardage from hole to hole."

More NCAA-AAU Feuding Calls Doug

NEW YORK (UPI) — Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who has had moderate success as mediator of America's warring amateur sports bodies, today faced further appeals by the NCAA and AAU concerning "open" track meets.

The Eastern College Athletic Conference (ECAC) announced on Monday that its 132 member colleges have, in effect, been told not to enter AAU-sanctioned track meets, including the scheduled New York A. C. Games Saturday under a sanction was obtained from the U.S. Track and Field Federation (USTFF).

George Shiebler, aide to ECAC secretary-treasurer Asa S. Bushnell, acknowledged that permission will be granted by the ECAC for its athletes to compete if "the meet is completely sanctioned by the AAU and the AAU seeks and obtains sanction, authorization and approval from the U.S. Track and Field Federation."

Bushnell, in a late statement, said instructions to member schools regarding open meet competition was not a directive setting up new restrictions, but merely a clarification of existing regulations.

"We positively have not ordered our member colleges to withhold their track and field athletes from the national AAU championships," Bushnell said. "We definitely want our athletes to compete in the AAU championships and all other open meets, but we want them to do so under the procedures established by the USTFF following Gen. MacArthur's March 12 ruling. We hope that many ECAC athletes will be on the national team opposing the Russians, and on the U.S. Olympic team as well."

The federation requires that each open-meet management get the needed approval or sanction from the USTFF.

Won't Seek Sanction
Ray Lumpp, former New York university basketball star, member of the 1948 Olympic team and current athletic director of the NYAC, said his organization had "no intention" of seeking a federation sanction for Saturday's meet.

Lumpp said he would ask the NYAC board of governors to appeal to MacArthur for a ruling in the latest NCAA-AAU salvo.

Manhattan College athletic director Ken Norton already has announced withdrawal of his school from the NYC meet.

The cold war between the NCAA and AAU drew MacArthur into the role of mediator, at the request of President Kennedy, because the battle threatened U. S. chances of producing its best athletes for the 1964 Olympic Games in Japan.

Last March, MacArthur issued a statement, which the AAU claimed upheld the right of its organization as the sole sanctioning body in the U.S. for open track and field competition.

Bob Gardner Loses In 1st Round, 2-1

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (UPI) — Bob Gardner, one of the top stars of the recent U.S. Walker Cup triumph, was beaten, 2 and 1, by 45-year-old Dick Smith of Scotland today when his putter went out of control in the first round of the British Amateur golf championship.

Gardner, of Essex Falls, N.J., was the first of eight Americans accorded the honor of seeding in this tournament to go down to defeat. From the 12th through the 17th holes, where Smith ended the match by halving the hole in par, Gardner took 14 putts.

Gardner, and two fellow Walker Cuppers, Billy Joe Patton of Morganton, N.C., and Charley Smith of Gastonia, N.C., were among the "big name" U.S. players in the first round Monday.

Another American bowed out today when John Anderson of River Forest, Ill., lost to Patrick Cros of France, 3 and 1.

Babe Ruth League

Enco broke up a tie with a five-run rally in the sixth inning for a 13-5 win over Cree Drilling in last night's Babe Ruth baseball at Optimist Park.

H. D. Larue took the win. Frank Parrish started for the Drillers, Larry Horgus coming on in the second frame. Enco took a 2-1 lead in the first inning and moved it to 5-2 going into the sixth, when Cree rallied to tie the game before Enco came back to put it on ice with eight runs in the last two innings.

Larry Eckroat led the winners with four hits in five at-bats. Richard Mackie seconded him with two good hits.

Due to opening ceremonies for the Optimist Youth Baseball program, this was the only Babe Ruth game played last night. Hardware vs. Bank and Ideal vs. Furr are the games on tonight's twin bill.

Moon 'Colony' Seen As First Space Step

By WILLIAM GRANGER
CHICAGO (UPI) — The first men on the moon will dig themselves a hole — to protect them from radiation.

Then, after colonizing the satellite, they will have a solid base from which to dig raw materials, build "balloon" houses underground, and begin exploration of the reaches of space.

These predictions were made by Dr. Bernard I. Spinnaker, director of Argonne National Laboratory's Reactor Engineering Division.

Why colonize the moon first? "The moon is an appropriate halfway house between the earth and further exploration," he said.

"First, as our nearest neighbor in the solar system, the moon is a relatively easy shot.

"Second, it is a good rendezvous target."

Spinnaker said another important advantage is that raw materials from the moon could be used by space explorers to make many of the components of future space ships — thus avoiding much of the cost of earth launchings.

He said establishment of a moon base might resemble a squad of foot soldiers digging into a new position.

"Approximately 10 feet of lunar rock will provide essentially the same protection against radiation that we have on earth by means of our atmosphere," he said, so the spacemen would each dig themselves a hole.

The next step, he said, would be to build an underground room lined with a plastic "balloon."

Other "balloon" rooms underground would include facilities for a miniature "Noah's Ark" to provide a variety of food and a water supply, he said.

Spinnaker said the colony would need shop equipment — perhaps 10 tons of it.

"Finally we need a power plant," he said. "I assume a nuclear reactor which is capable of turning out a megawatt of power."

"All these processes are within our grasp," he said. "I believe that this sort of enterprise would have an enormous total payoff in terms of our ability to exploit our early success on the moon quickly and move on from there."

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — When CBS-TV advanced the information that novelist Norman Mailer and Nelson Algren would appear on Monday morning's "Calendar" show, I awoke early in hopes of seeing the pale tube colored by some juicy bloodletting.

On the surface, things looked promising. Mailer, author of the wondrous war novel, "The Naked and the Dead," and other works, is a roundhouse swinger in his literary onslaughts. Algren, whose books include the notable "The Man With the Golden Arm," is also a lively fellow. And Harry Reasoner, the host of the generally ingratiating "Calendar," normally comes well-armed with dry wit for all occasions.

Yet a remarkable thing happened. Rarely has a program showed so clearly the natural hostility of commercial television as a medium of communication for persons of intelligence and literacy, and therefore of ideas — or made so explicit why so many of them not only refuse to be employed by it, but prefer to avoid it altogether.

Probably the willingness of the two authors to take the risk made the innocent viewer temporarily overlook the obvious facts. CBS said Mailer and Algren would "look at the condition of this country's literature." Well, we know the networks are prestige-crazy, which is a sign of something obvious — but even the most incurable optimist would have to admit that only 30 minutes were allotted to this weighty subject.

No, not 30 full minutes either. There was time out for a seat-belt plug, not to mention an advertisement for whipped cream, plus a commercial about wives whooping for men's undershorts, one of the ladies liking the shorts because they had a panel in the back and allowed for fullness.

It was an admirable gesture for Reasoner to bring the writers to us Monday. Perhaps he can bring them back again under more favorable conditions.

The Channel Swim: Sammy Davis Jr.'s successful one-man television show in England last month landed him an exclusive three-year contract with the British Broadcasting Corp. (BBC), under which he will do at least six more programs, from musicals to drama. One of the upcoming shows probably will include Frank Sinatra and Dean Martin. Davis' May 5 program drew the highest ratings in the BBC's history.

AN INDEPENDENT FREEDOM NEWSPAPER

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by any government, with the gift of freedom, and that it is every man's duty to God to preserve his own liberty and respect the liberty of others. Freedom is self-control, no more, no less.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guides expressed in the Ten Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. For only when man understands Freedom and is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities in harmony with the above moral principles.

Our Priceless Heritage

EDITOR'S NOTE — The following article, entitled, "Our Priceless Heritage" is Mr. Waldrop's answer to the pamphlet entitled, "The Elite and the Electorate," in which Senators J. W. Fulbright and Joseph S. Clark voiced the opinion that the Constitution of the United States is outdated and that we should give the President more power.

By James Waldrop of Pampa

My dear friends, there is an invisible Giant, who walks the face of these United States. He walks alone, unthanked, unappreciated, sometimes scorned and often forgotten. He is the dearest friend man has ever known. He is hated and despised by all tyrants who would rule men by force. He is the protector of liberty and the champion of all religious denominations.

He is the protector of both Christians and atheists who live under the flag of these United States. With this Giant, also live his sons, Human Dignity, Free Speech, Individuality, Initiative and Liberty. This Giant has a rather long name. It is "The Constitution of the United States." Spiritually speaking, it is the largest Giant that has ever walked upon the face of any land. Of all the precious gifts, God has ever given to man, our Constitution is most precious and dear above all other blessings. It has created more freedom for mankind than any other form of government ever has. Thousands of men have given their life's blood in order to preserve our Constitution. Tyrants who have ruled other countries have often made the mistake of trying to destroy this great Giant. They have always come to grief and defeat, by soldiers who fought with a terrible fury, in order to protect this spiritual Giant called the Constitution.

Under the protection of our Constitution, man's freedom has grown in these United States to a height, width and depth greater than has ever been known in any land. There are many reasons for the growth of freedom under our Constitution here on the sacred soil of America. This is a choice land. It is choice in freedom for its citizenry, in its economic uplift of the mass of its citizenry; choice in the development of its natural resources, choice in its cultural and industrial development; choice in the comforts, in the plenty, and in the happiness of the people; choice in integrity, intelligence, industry, and patriotism of its citizenry.

We are everlastingly indebted to those great men who formed the Constitution of the United States. They were men who were far-sighted, full of integrity, sacrificing in nature, pure in character and humble in spirit. The great Gladstone of England once made this statement, "The American Constitution is the most wonderful work ever struck off, at a given time by the brain and purpose of man." That is a very true statement.

However, when we search down through the dusty pages of history, we find that these great men with all the wonderful minds and brilliance among them still did not depend entirely upon their own wisdom. They were dedicated and prayerful when they convened to try to write the basic laws of our land. During the Constitutional convention of 1787, which in four months drew up the basic laws of our land, the Congress at one time was about to adjourn in utter confusion. The attempt to establish a lasting Union had apparently failed. At this crucial moment, 81-year-old Benjamin Franklin arose, and is reported to have said, "In the beginning of the contest with great Britain, when we were sensible of danger, we had daily prayers in this room for divine protection. Our prayers, sir, were heard, and they were generously answered. I have lived a long time and the longer I live, the more convincing proofs I see of this truth, that God governs the affairs of men. If a sparrow cannot fall to the ground without his notice, it is possible that an empire can rise with out his aid?"

We have been assured, sir, in the sacred writings, that except the Lord build a house, they labor in vain who build it. I firmly believe this, and I also believe that with out this conferring aid, we shall succeed in this political building, no better than the builders of the tower of Babel." Then Franklin proposed that Congress adjourn for two days, and during those two days, prayerfully seek divine aid, and that when they returned they should begin each session with a prayer asking for divine help.

The oneness of purpose achieved by these great men should be evidence enough, to give all Christian people a testimony of prayer. Nothing has ever equalled this common law government, that you and I have been blessed to live under. Jefferson clearly realized the value of the Constitution. He once made this statement, "In question of power let no more be heard of confidence in man, but bind him down from mischief by the chains of the Constitution." Jefferson knew that it is the disposition of all most men, that as soon as they get a little authority, they begin to exercise it selfishly and not for the good of the country. He realized that too much power in the hands of one man, or even a small group of men, was not good for the country. Good men, even great men, are sometimes ruined by being given too much power.

There are people who think that a government under the Constitution is too slow. There are learned men in our nation today, who express the opinion that the office of the Presidency should be given more authority and power in order to simplify government. The simplest form of government that there is, — is a government of a dictator, where one man tells everyone else what to do. A government under a dictator is very simple, it is very efficient, but it is a terrible thing to live under.

By its very nature, a common law government such as ours, is slower working in its mechanics, and it is vitally essential that it remain slower. The check and balance system does take time, but it is much better for man to live under than a government where the ruler is sovereign.

Under a government where the ruler is sovereign, the people are not consulted as to what their rights shall be. They have only the rights, that their master decides they should have. The ruler appoints anyone that he wishes to any office he wishes them to have. He alone decides what laws the people shall live by. He is the Legislative branch, he is the Executive branch and the Supreme Court. Woe be to those who question his decisions.

Under our Constitution, we elect our Legislators to short terms of office. We have the privilege of voting them out if they do not try to serve the people according to their needs. Our President cannot legislate laws. He can go before the legislative body and recommend what he believes to be the needs of the country, but it is up to our legislators to draw up the laws, approve them and make them ready for the President to sign into an actual law. Also, appointments made by our President must be approved by the Senate. Still as a further safeguard we have the supreme court which is SUPPOSED to judge the law according to the Constitution. This system makes it impossible for one branch of government to legally set a system, by which that branch can first conceive what it wants to do, then make a law ordering it done, and then itself, judge its own enforcement of its own law. Like all other agencies entrusted to men, it must depend upon men on honesty to carry its purpose forth.

If those men who hold positions of power, including the President, the Legislative body, and the supreme court will honor and respect our Constitution, then we need fear no nation on earth or any group of nations on earth. But if we continue as we have been doing for the past thirty years, to place more and more power into the hands of fewer and fewer

Pull Up A Chair

By Frank J. Markey

It has always fascinated us at the many opposite viewpoints taken between Eastern and Western civilizations and this is especially true regarding animals, both actual and mythological. In our literature the dragon must be conquered by the courageous hero, but in Chinese mythology the dragon is honored as a good spirit. We regard the rat as disgusting and odious and something to be destroyed, but in the Orient it is one of the 12 zodiacal symbols and the "Year of the Rat" is considered as favorable and propitious.

They are now in the "Year of the Rabbit," which is also venerated, but Westerners usually pass it off with the phrase: "As silly as a March hare."

Observation from the Emerald Isle: "Nature knows best; and she hasn't arranged your anatomy so as to make it easy for you to pat yourself on the back." — Dublin Opinion. "The next time you are in New York, visit the Morgan Library on Madison Avenue. If you are interested in playing cards, you can see the gold-encrusted pasteboards which were made for Italian nobility in the 15th Century. They are worth a large fortune and you will appreciate their beauty. Before the invention of the printing press, the nobility of Europe commissioned leading artists to prepare playing decks for their use, and some of their artistry and skill compare favorably with other examples of Renaissance art."

Country Editor speaking: "Judo, from whom the month of June derives its name, is always pictured as a heavy-set Roman goddess, which would eliminate her from all our beauty contests." — A friend of ours, William Feather, Cleveland, Ohio, editor and printer, tells us that the longest recipe he ever read appeared in the Saturday Evening Post and told how to make a stew in about 3,000 words. The unusual feature of this dish was that you didn't eat it until the second day, but it really ripened after the first week. We suppose it was a kind that kept for ages, like sourdough, but Bill doesn't recommend the stew. The shenanigans of the Harlem Congressman is well wrapped up in this head from the New York World Telegram: "God, Caesar and Powell — Adam Clayton Serves All."

Attention June brides: Since ancient times the wedding ring has been worn on the third finger of the left hand. The doctors in those early days believed that a small artery ran directly from this finger to the heart, and the custom has continued through the ages. Today's smile: John: "Understand you're trying to earn a living writing jokes for the papers. What have you sold so far?" Bill: "Only my motorcycle, watch and two suits of clothes."

Two small, Spanish daily newspapers in Miami, Florida, are reported and read by Cuban refugees in the South Florida area, and across the continent in San Francisco there are two Russian newspapers published daily. Better keep your fingers crossed, but they say that superstition will disappear in the next quarter of a century. . . . Selective Service disqualifies 20 per cent of the young men examined on medical grounds and another 20 per cent fail on their mental tests.

men, then we shall eventually be a socialist nation.

It is vitally essential, that our three branches of government, be mutually and completely independent, the one from the other. It is vitally essential that our three branches of government, give more than lip service to our Constitution. The Constitution, backed by men of honesty and integrity is our rock and our salvation. It will not be either the Democratic or the Republican party that will save this nation. What we need, regardless of what political party they belong to is men who will uphold the Constitution; men who will honor and uphold our priceless heritage, given us by our forefathers, when they prayerfully and with great wisdom drew up the Constitution of the United States.

Allen-Scott Report

Sylvester's Wings Clipped After 'News Management' Furor — Censorship and TFX Inquiries Out of His Jurisdiction

ROBERT ALLEN

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — Assistant Defense Secretary Arthur ("News Management") Sylvester is being significantly hobbled — obviously to keep him from causing more embarrassing furors. . . . Several months ago the inside word was that the turbulent Pentagon press chief, whose blustering justifications of official "news management" are still reverberating, was to be "kicked upstairs." That's what happened to former Assistant Secretary Roger Tubby, bumping State Department press head, who was gotten rid of by shelving him in an innocuous diplomatic job in Geneva. . . . But Sylvester's close ties with the White House "Mafia" (the inner clique of long-time assistants of the President) apparently has saved him for the time being. He is remaining in the Defense Department, but in a definitely clipped role.

While retaining his title and salary, he has been stripped of two key functions — and there may be others. Following is what has happened: — The all-important authority over censorship has been taken out of Sylvester's hands and assigned to a new agency — the Directorate for Classification Management. . . . Orville Spitt, able and well-liked long-time director of the Pentagon's news office, has been made a special assistant for the express purpose of handling press inquiries regarding the explosive TFX plane contract, and to assist Defense Secretary McNamara in preparing his presentations to congressional committees on this stormy issue.

Newsmen have ready access to Spitt. They have been told to take up "special problems," particularly relating to McNamara, with Spitt. This is a big improvement for reporters. . . . George MacClain, veteran civilian Air Force employee with considerable experience in the security field, is the head of the new Classification Management agency. He will function directly under Walter Skallerup, Jr., Deputy Assistant Defense Secretary for Security Policy. . . . Effect of this change is to take censorship policy away from Sylvester and turn it over to others.

HOW SYLVESTER WAS CLIPPED — Significantly, this major curbing of Sylvester was ordered by Secretary McNamara. . . . The hobbling was handled by Adam Yarmolinsky, special McNamara assistant. . . . J. R. Loftis, administrative assistant under questioning by the House Appropriations Subcommittee in charge of the multi-billion dollar Defense budget. The lawmakers were particularly curious about the new Directorate for Classification Management.

Representative George Mahon, D-Tex., chairman, wanted to know "what benefits you expect to derive from this new unit?" "The hope is that it will make some improvement in the selectivity of what should be classified (censored)," replied Loftis. "While there is a great deal of information that has been given out that we perhaps think should not be given out, there is also a vast amount of information that is over-classified and which should be given to the public. . . . I might add that the best decisions have not always been consistency." Representative Gerald Ford, R-Mich., pointed out that the "tendency" has been to over-classify, and in many instances classification involved opinion and not information that had anything to do with security. "Personally I'm delighted to see this new office established," said Ford. "It was long overdue."

Representative Harold Ostertag, R-N.Y., closely questioned Loftis to definitely establish that censorship policy has been taken out of Sylvester's hands. "Are you taking it away from the office of Public Information?" asked Ostertag. "We are taking the declassification function away from that office and placing it under the office that has responsibility for security policies," said Loftis. "That is right."

STILL PLAYING POLITICS — Attorney General Robert Kennedy is still balking at naming James Doyle, prominent Madison, Wis., attorney, to fill a long-pending vacancy on the federal bench. Doyle has been endorsed by the Bar Association and has the vigorous support of Wisconsin's two Democratic senators and other party leaders. But Bobby is refusing to name Doyle because he supported Adlai Stevenson in 1960. When Senator Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., cited Doyle's outstanding qualifications for the bench, Bobby retorted, "Why should we appoint him? He was 100 per cent for Stevenson, and stayed with him to the bitter end. He showed clearly he's no friend of ours." Nelson bluntly reminded Bobby that if he is thinking in political terms, "The President could lose Dane County (Doyle's home) next year. In 1960 the President carried the county by only 4,000, while Representative Kastenmeier swept it by more than 15,000. . . . If this appointment is to be made on a political basis, Doyle is still your best man." But bitter-ender Bobby is still holding out. . . . Republican politicians close to former Vice President Nixon are saying he is now talking about a Romney-Scranton ticket. They point out that leading Nixon supporters, foremost among them Clifford Folger, millionaire Washington broker, are swinging to Romney, and hinting that Pennsylvania's Governor William Scranton is a "natural" for the Michigan Governors' running mate.

PENSION PLANS GAIN — NEW YORK (UPI) — Insured pension plans gained by 5,260 in 1962, the Institute of Life Insurance reported. At the start of the year, 5.8 million workers were covered by insured plans with assets totaling $21.6 billion. That represents a rise of about 160,000 workers and $1.4 billion in assets.

The American Way

By HARRY BROWNE, Editor, Freedom Magazine (formerly American Progress)

What does freedom mean? It means the right of each to speak his mind — whether for or against the party and ideas currently in power. . . . It means the right of each to worship as he sees fit — even to practice voodoo or worship nothing at all, if that is his wish.

Freedom of Press — It means the right of the individual to have access to words and writings of all — regardless of their popularity or wisdom. . . . It means the right of the consumer to buy what he chooses — not just what the government thinks is safe for him to have. . . . It means the right of the teenager, the elderly, the handicapped, the inefficient — or anyone at all — to work for less than what the politician feels is the "minimum wage."

It means the right of a man who has built his business through service to his community to be able to determine for himself who he shall hire to work for him.

Edson In Washington Gov. Romney Plays It Cute On Presidential Ambitions

By PETER EDSON

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Efforts to smoke out Michigan Gov. George Romney as a Republican presidential candidate, when he appeared before the National Press Club in Washington, were kinda cute.

"The governor has said he was not a candidate so many times," observed Bryson Rash, club president, by way of introduction, "that he's thinking of having it tattooed — in fading ink, of course."

The opening sentence of the governor's speech was, "I came here today to sell Michigan, and I hope that while I succeed in that, I will succeed also in convincing you that it is my only purpose."

The 550 people in the audience responded unanimously with a horse laugh of disbelief. The real high light of the speech came while Romney was itemizing a census of all Michigan's industrial, human and natural resources.

"Michigan's No. 1 crop in value is corn," said the governor with deadpan pride. When the audience tittered, he added, "Real corn." Finally came the Q and A, which in condensed form went something like this:

First Question—Would you ever consider living elsewhere? Answer—I've lived in Mexico, Idaho, Washington and the District of Columbia. But Michigan is the place for me.

Q—Would you accept a favorite son nomination from District of Columbia Republicans? A—I've invited Goldwater and Rockefeller to come to Michigan and see if they want to become its favorite son.

Q—Are there any circumstances under which you would accept the Republican nomination for president? A—There are no circumstances under which I will seek it. When this evasion drew another guffaw the governor added: "I told the Republican National Committee that if they would bring me the National Convention to Michigan, I'd take a Sherman."

Q—Do you consider that the Republican candidate for the presidency in 1964 will be a sacrificial lamb? A—It's too early to tell what will happen in 1964.

Q—Are you a Republican? That stopped him for a moment, then he replied: "I worked for the Democrats in Washington during the depression. The Republican Party was then controlled by big business. Labor moved into the Democratic Party and that brought on a stalemate. I resigned from the Republican Party and joined a citizens' committee. Then I again joined the Republican Party because I believed it impossible to form a citizens' party. But we can't deal with our problems till we do. I was a citizen who was also a Republican and proud to people learn to take care of themselves, the only real security. Freedom means all of these things — and much more.

Freedom is Unequalled — Freedom means freedom. Not followed by "except," "but" or "if." It is the most glorious commodity man can possess. So few people have ever owned it. And we who have some of it seem to cherish it so little. Are we willing to work for it, to earn it, and to retain it? It is worth every sacrifice that we have to give.

be one. But there is a need for a genuine citizens' political party. Parties don't exist to be big business or big labor. That is not government of, for or by the people. Q—Why don't you admit you are interested in being a candidate? A—This is not a pose on my part. In 1960 Nixon urged me to run for the Senate. But I was convinced that our direction can't be properly corrected except at the state and local government levels, not the national level.

A—Would the fact that you were born in Mexico make it impossible for you to become a presidential candidate? A—There ain't no candidacy and I don't know.

Q—What do you think of co-existence, containment and liberation as national policies? A—They're too big to comment on.

Q—Aside from all that, what do you think of Texas? A—No one could feel kinder towards Texas. I also lived in Texas as a refugee after my family was driven out of Mexico by the revolution. The federal government housed and fed us in El Paso for a time. Salmon was unobtainable and we lived on canned salmon. My older brother still can't eat salmon. But whatever they blow about in Texas, come on up to Michigan and we've got it.

That put him right back in Michigan where he started from.

The Doctor Says:

B-12 Plays Control Role In Pernicious Anemia

By DR. WAYNE BRANDSTADT

Since I called attention recently to methyergine as a preventive for migraine headaches I have had many letters from persons who said their doctor or pharmacist could find no reference to this drug. They undoubtedly know this drug by its trade name, "Sangser." It must, however, be avoided in pregnancy and can be obtained only with a doctor's prescription.

Q—I am 75. A few years ago I had pernicious anemia and lost a lot of weight. I have been taking injections of vitamin B-12 ever since. My blood count and weight are now back to normal and the interval between injections is longer. Will I have to continue these shots indefinitely? Could they cause any side effects, such as a rash on my ankles? A—Since your blood count has returned to normal you are now getting what is called a maintenance dose of the vitamin. Your doctor will determine how much you need by making periodic checks of your blood count. Since this disease can be controlled but not cured, you should continue under your doctor's care indefinitely, since the complications of pernicious anemia when inadequately treated may be crippling.

No side effects have been reported from the use of vitamin B-12. Your rash must be due to something else.

Q—What is pneumosclerosis? What causes it? Is there any cure? A—From its formation, the word would mean hardening of the lungs. But I am unable to find it in any medical dictionary or textbook. I can only assume, therefore, that you are referring to pneumoconiosis, caused by inhalation of silica dust over a period of years.

This would indeed cause hardening of the lungs. The condition is found chiefly in persons who work as stonecutters, sandblasters, or in some similar occupations, and who do not wear some form of respirator.

The best treatment is prevention. When the disease has become established as shown by X-ray of the chest, the victim should change his occupation.

There is no cure, and further exposure to the silica dust can only aggravate the condition.

Q—What causes multiple myeloma? What can be done for it? A—This is a disease of unknown cause, in which tumors form in the bones, especially the ribs, vertebrae, collar bone, and skull. Pain is usually severe.

When the tumor has weakened a bone sufficiently, ordinary weight-bearing may cause fracture. As the disease progresses, the victim develops anemia.

X-ray and urethane may relieve the pain and make life more comfortable, but they cannot be said to cure the disease.

Country Mile 'Ain't What it Used To Be'

By MICHAEL KRAFF
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The country mile, like the dollar, seems to have shrunk a bit during the past 200 years, according to a top government surveyor.
A recent survey of the historic Mason-Dixon line indicated that a mile went farther during Colonial days.
The men who laid out the boundary between Maryland and Delaware in 1764 and 1765 used a measure that was about 10 to 12 feet longer than the present-day mile.
These figures came from B. J. Meade, chief of the Triangulation branch of the U.S. Coast and Geodetic Survey (CG&S). The federal agency resurveyed the Mason-Dixon line, popularly considered the dividing line between the north and south, during 1961 and 1962.
"Since measurements in the original (colonial) surveys are fairly consistent, there is some indication that the length of the foot 200 years ago was longer than that today," Meade said in a paper delivered recently to the American Congress on Surveying and Mapping.
He later told UPI that measurements by Charles Mason and Jeremiah Dixon seemed to tally with distances laid out by other Colonial surveyors. This discounted the possibility that only Mason and Dixon used measuring chains that were too long, he said.
Meade figured the Colonial foot was about one-fourth of an inch longer than the modern version.
"In laying out the line, Mason and Dixon's men set up stone markers at what they thought were mile intervals. But the 1961 survey discovered that the markers were about one mile and 10 feet from each other. In some cases, the distance was a mile and 12 feet.

Meade said that since the errors were fairly consistent, distances must not only have seemed longer in Colonial days but were also measured that way. In short, a person running a mile would have to go at least 10 feet longer if he was going by Colonial standards.
Overall, the government survey had praise for the Colonial surveyors. Meade said Mason and Dixon showed "an amazing degree of accuracy," considering the instruments available 200 years ago. Although the markers were farther apart than they should be, they were not significantly out of line, he said.
The Mason-Dixon line during the pre-Civil War days was the boundary between slave and free states. Mason and Dixon, two English astronomers, made the survey when the Pennsylvania and Maryland colonies decided to settle their boundary dispute.
Several years after the survey, Delaware was formed from the three lower counties of Pennsylvania. The line then became the Maryland-Delaware boundary.
The new survey was made by CG&S when Maryland and Delaware officials agreed to restore and maintain the historic markers along the border. Only 15 of the mile markers were found missing from the 87-mile long line, Meade said.

Gross Income From Poultry 'Shellacked'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite a boom in production and consumption of poultry and eggs the last 10 years, gross farm income from these commodities has taken a shellacking.

In a review of the poultry and egg situation, the Agriculture Department reports that gross farm income from poultry and eggs in the 48 contiguous states in 1962 was $3.3 billion. This compares with gross income of $3.6 billion in 1952. Gross income is made up of cash receipts plus the value of home consumption.

Between 1952 and 1962, broiler production increased 163 per cent; turkey numbers went up 55 per cent; egg output jumped 8 per cent; and production of farm chickens declined 43 per cent. But because of sharply lower prices for each of the commodities, gross income from eggs and farm chickens was down a quarter billion dollars each, essentially unchanged for turkeys, and up only $300 million for broilers.

Gross Income
Income by product in 1962 was: Eggs, $1.8 billion; broilers, $1 billion; turkeys, $400 million and farm chickens, $100 million.

The Department said that between 1952 and 1962, gross income from poultry and eggs increased in only 12 of the 48 states, eight of these states were in the south and southeast and included: Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, Florida, South Carolina and North Carolina. The other four were Maine, California, Maryland and Arizona.

The Department said prices to producers for broilers and turkeys in 1962 rebounded sharply from the extremely depressed levels of 1961. But egg prices, which were relatively favorable in 1961, were lower in 1962.

Currently, the Department estimates egg production this year will be about the same as last. Production was down slightly in the year, and replacement chickens little changed in number, tending into the second half of the year, and replacement chickens little changed in number, monthly egg production probably will exceed that of a year earlier.
