Scotland Yard on Trail Of Mail Robber Suspects

Detectives Believe Loot Hidden Near Hijack Spot

LONDON (UPI) — The detective in charge of Scotland Yard's hunt for a gang of spectacular mail train robbers said today he believes the record $7.1 million haul still is within a 30-mile radius of the hijack point and possibly intact.

"We are following up literally hundreds of so-called leads and are still combing the ambush area," detective superintendent Gerald McArthur said. "We are always keeping our fingers crossed that something will come up."

London newspapers reported today that Scotland Yard was on the trail of four or five known criminals who may have taken part in the daring robbery early Thursday morning at Cheddington, 40 miles north of London. Scotland Yard refused to confirm the reports.

"We have not said anything of the kind," a spokesman for the famed police force said. McArthur made no reference to the newspaper stories in a news conference at on-the-spot police headquarters at Aylesbury.

He said detectives were very interested in a stolen truck found abandoned at Retford, 70 miles from the ambush scene. Unconfirmed reports said bank note wrappers had been found in the truck.

The 30-mile radius named by McArthur takes in a sizable area of outer London.

The Daily Express said the detectives were working with the names of four known criminals who have been missing from their usual haunts since shortly before the well-drilled gang hijacked the Glasgow-London "traveling post office" in pre-dawn darkness last week. The Daily Mail put the number of suspects at five.

Tigress Doesn't Smoke

AALBORG, Denmark (UPI) — A tourist, who thought the zoo's tigress looked "tame and peaceful," suffered a badly mauled hand when he offered the animal a cigarette Sunday.

"Our tigress is absolutely not peaceful. And furthermore she dislikes tobacco," a zoo keeper said later.

Children Cheer Mrs. Kennedy In Sunday Visit

OTIS AFB, Mass. (UPI) — Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy, greatly cheered by the visits of her two children, Caroline and John Jr., now is anxious to leave the hospital and return to the summer White House on Squaw Island.

The President brought the youngsters in separate visits Sunday for an affectionate reunion with their "Mummy," who has been grieving over the death of their little brother, born last Wednesday.

Caroline, nearly six, looking like a doll in a blue and white short shift, arrived with her father before noon. She carried a bouquet of black-eyed Susans, larkspurs and pink trumpet lilies she had picked near the summer White House.

John Jr., nearly three, helicoptered in on the evening visit and turned out to be a born scene stealer. Going up the hospital steps holding his father's hand, he asked loudly: "Where's Mummy?" He repeated "Where's Mummy" several times down hospital corridors before he reached her room.

Neither child had seen their mother since she was rushed to the hospital here after taking them riding on their ponies last Wednesday. Both had been told they had a little brother—Patrick Bouvier Kennedy—who had gone to heaven.

Giant Balloon To Sail 100,000 Feet Into Space

PALESTINE (UPI) — Scientists and technicians were preparing to send a giant balloon soaring 100,000 feet into space Tuesday to bring back meteorite particles.

The 85 by 70 foot balloon will be launched from the National Balloon Flight Station near Palestine. Astronomers said meteor showers will be plentiful over Texas tomorrow.

If there are no hitches, the balloon should be recovered 400 miles west of Palestine in the San Angelo area.

Project Director Dr. C. L. Hemingway said the flight will be the culmination of weeks of testing.

Dear Abby...

Itching For Scratch! No Money On Trees!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My brother and I caught poison ivy again this year for the third year in a row, and our father is making us pay for the shots with our own money. Last year when we caught it, he said that now that we knew where the poison ivy was, if we ever caught it again we'd have to pay the expenses. Abby, isn't it bad enough to be covered with poison ivy without having to spend our berry-picking money to get well? If you print this in your column our father might change his mind. DAVID AND STEVIE (11 and 13)

DEAR BOYS: I'll print your letter, but I'm afraid it's hopeless. Your father is trying to teach you that money doesn't grow on trees. You've got to scratch for it.

for him. We are married now, and couldn't be happier. I later confessed my scheme, and we both had a good laugh.

No Special Hot Weather Diets Needed For Healthy Children

Q—I have an infant son and a 6-year-old daughter. During hot summer days should I change the baby's formula? Should I keep heavy food from my daughter? And shouldn't I add more salt to their food?

A—No. There are no special "hot weather" diets needed for healthy infants and children, except for an increase in water drinking, according to the American Medical Association's Council on Foods and Nutrition. The Council states that if infants and children do not tolerate ordinary heat stress, check with your doctor before changing their diet.

Poor appetites and faulty eating habits may result from the uncontrolled use of cold drinks with high calorie content or from failure to take enough outdoor exercise, or from over-indulgence in between-meal snacks. It is unwise for adults to foist summertime food fads on them.

If table salt is used in ordinary amounts in cooking and is readily available at meal times, extra salt should not be needed except in very active people.

Children do need more liquids in the summer to offset loss through perspiration. But this need likely will be met by the youngsters themselves. They'll get thirsty. Mother's problem is to see to it that they quench their thirst most often with plain water, not with too many sweetened flavored bottled drinks. Offer infants a few ounces of water regularly between feedings. Small children usually do not mind hot weather unless they are conditioned by their elders to dislike it.

Q—Isn't it true that whole-wheat bread supplies more nutrition for my children than enriched white bread?

A—Although whole-wheat and graham breads are good foods and add variety and flavor to a meal, they are not nutritionally superior to enriched white bread in ordinary diets. Nutritionists in the U.S. Department of Agriculture point out that bakers in this country have, for the past 20 years, been enriching white bread with

New for fall is the soft-spoken approach of pale-toned American magic wools. The town suit (left), designed by Elizabeth Lawrence, will take you through afternoon and early evening. DEAR ABBY: My problem is my 25-year-old daughter. She is still single and doesn't seem the least bit concerned about it. When the subject of marriage comes up, she laughs it off. As far as I can see, she has no intention of getting married, and I don't care for the idea of having an old maid for a daughter. What can I do?

WORRIED MOTHER
DEAR WORRIED: Be thankful that your daughter is content. Or would you rather she be married and miserable? Or worse yet, divorced and living at home again with a couple of youngsters to raise?

DEAR ABBY: What should the mother of a teenage boy do when a girl's mother doesn't give her daughter a deadline to be home after a date? I suppose I should feel flattered that the girl's mother trusts my son with her daughter, but it doesn't seem right to send a 17-year-old boy off with a 12-year-old girl without telling them when to be home. I believe it's the girl's mother who should set the deadline. But if she doesn't, then what?

MRS. P.
DEAR MRS. P.: Tell your son what time you want HIM home, and that should settle it.

DEAR ABBY: The woman who "lied" nine years off her age in order to capture a certain widower reminded me of my own experience. When I met this very attractive older gentleman, I wanted so much to be considered "wife" material that I ADDED five years to my age so he wouldn't think I was too "young"

Red Ink Gets Answers For V. I. Q.'s

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — In the hurry-scurry of our space age, letter writing becomes more and more of a problem. Often people who receive letters hardly have time to read them, much less answer them. The frustrated writers can right this situation somewhat by using a pen with red ink to ask V.I.Q.'s (Very Important Questions). The red ink usually gets answers. I devised this method when our children were in college, and I have continued to use red ink when I want a prompt response. If this wins a dollar it will go in my BON JET fund. I am trying to see Europe on half a shoestring. —E.P.T.

GIRLS — A POLLY DOLLAR may make one little thread in E. P. T.'s half a shoestring. Also a stamped self-addressed envelope included in a letter with V.I.Q.'s often helps assure an answer. —POLLY

DEAR POLLY — When your toddler gets to the age when he climbs into his own high chair, put a leftover piece of carpet on the step of the chair. This will stay in place with a little glue and prevent many slips off the chair as he tries to get up alone. —A BABY SITTER

DEAR POLLY — I saw a small magnet to the cuff of each of my driving gloves and touch them to the dashboard. They will never stray from the car where they are needed. —H. W.

DEAR POLLY — At our house we have a noontime story hour instead of the bedtime story. I have found that with four children of varying ages, bedtimes are simply too hectic for a story. I read to the two middle ones at lunch time. They are getting some extra attention and some loved stories and I am relaxing at the same time. We all eat more leisurely and enjoy each other's company much more. —MRS. W. G.

DEAR POLLY — My son needed a plastic cloth to go under his sleeping bag, and I had thrown away the old shower curtain he always used. I sewed together four plastic cleaners bags to make a large sheet. They were left double so the dampness would not come through. My son said they worked fine. —MRS. D. K.

'Public Image' Tiresome Or Necessary In Life?

Are you getting a bit weary of the term "public image"? I am. It seems that too many things that used to be right or wrong, in good taste or poor taste, brave or cowardly, responsible or irresponsible, are now viewed only in the light of how a thing will affect a person or a country's "public image."

A movie star engages in a shoddy affair and the big question seems to be "Can she get by with it without affecting her 'public image' to such an extent that it will hurt her at the box office?" A personage discards the woman who has been his wife for many years and replaces her with a younger woman, and the big question is: "How is this going to affect his public image?"

An office-seeker takes a stand and, whether he is sincere or insincere, right or wrong, doesn't seem to be the important question. The important question is how his stand will affect his public image.

The idea today seems to be that whether a thing is right or wrong, wise or foolish, all depends on whether it detracts from or enhances a person's or a country's public image.

We were all taught that we should act in such a way that we wouldn't be ashamed of our own actions — that being able to live with one's self was the important thing.

Now the general idea seems to be to do whatever you please and can get by with — just so your public image doesn't suffer.

Pampa Boy Scouts Find 'Panhandle Wind' Whipping Across Greece, Too

When the group of Pampa scouts attending the 11th World Boy Scout Jamboree in Marathon, Greece, arrived in Athens, Greece, July 28, they were greeted by Greek scouts and started a two-day tour of the southern part of Greece.

In their tour of the ruins of ancient Greek civilization, many which date back to 1500 B.C., they saw "the best preserved Greek theater at Epidaurus and ruins of the once great medical center there," according to a letter received from Jim Shelhamer and Sam Williams, of Pampa.

After touring the Parthenon and the Acropolis July 31, Pampa scouts left for Marathon to set up their camp.

"It didn't take us long to discover the wind blows and blows at Marathon. So far it has been a constant battle with the wind to repair busted tent pegs and ridgepoles," the scouts wrote in a letter.

According to the scouts, one of the main highlights of any jamboree is the swapping of patches, neckerchiefs and even hats and uniforms.

"A group of Swedish boy scouts camped next to our group. We have often visited, traded and had these boys over for dinner," the Pampa boys stated.

of that fear." Then he concluded: "If the promise of this treaty can be realized, if we can now take even this one step along a new course, then frail and fearful mankind may find another step and another until confidence replaces terror and hope takes over from despair."

The committee will hear testimony from Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara Tuesday on behalf of the treaty later this week, the Joint Chiefs of Staff and representatives of the Atomic Energy Commission and the Central Intelligence Agency will appear.

Rusk's review of the treaty provisions followed those presented by President Kennedy in his message transmitting the pact to the Senate on Thursday.

Senate ratification by a two-thirds vote is necessary to validate the treaty, signed originally by the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union and subsequently by other nations. Several hours after Rusk's testimony the Senate preparedness subcommittee scheduled closed door hearings to hear a leading anti-treaty spokesman, Dr. Edward Teller, California nuclear physicist.

JFK Awaits Report
President Kennedy planned to fly back to Washington this afternoon to hear Rusk's report on his trip, including a final stopover in Bonn where he persuaded West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer to sign the treaty.

Rusk said on his return Sunday that further talks between East and West, particularly on a Red-sponsored non-aggression pact, "will not move at a great speed." His statement tended to confirm reports that the Soviets are in no hurry for further talks because of difficulties they are having with the dissident Chinese Communists.

At the outset of the hearings, expected to last at least two weeks, informal surveys by senators in both parties and experienced Senate aides indicated that about 80 senators were disposed to vote for ratification of the treaty although testimony could alter that sentiment either way.

Withhold Commitment
Many Republicans and a number of influential Democrats have withheld any commitment until all the testimony is in. Especially important to those in the wait-and-see contingent are the views of staff of the armed services.

The chiefs, in previous congressional appearances, have favored continued nuclear weapons tests. But they have recently been reported to feel that most needed

Panhandle Gets Promise of Cool Front and Rain

By United Press International
A Dakota cool front pushed toward the Texas Panhandle today with a promise of more rain and lower temperatures.

Scattered thunder showers dumped rain on some portions of Texas Sunday, but the showers were few and far between.

Some shower activity continued today along the lower Gulf Coast and in the southeast corner of the state.

Sunday's high in Pampa was a humid 99 degrees. This morning's low was 71 and there has been no precipitation within the past 24 hours ending at noon today.

Panhandle. It was cloudy along the coast and in South Texas and clear and hot over the rest of the state.

Early morning low temperature ranged from 61 at Alpine to 80 at Dallas, Corpus Christi and Galveston.

Almost three inches of rain fell at Corpus Christi Sunday and inland cloudy skies kept temperatures down in that section of the state.

Brownsville and Victoria reported light rains Sunday.

Elsewhere, readings were high with 11 stations reporting temperatures of 100 degrees or more. Wichita Falls was highest in the state with 104. Fort Worth had 102.

Rainfall amounts included 2.65 inches at Corpus Christi and .49 at Galveston, where the temperature only got up to 88 degrees.

Texas AFL-CIO Chief Hits at Unemployment

HARLINGEN (UPI) — Texas AFL-CIO president Hank Brown lashed out at poverty and unemployment along the Texas-Mexican border Sunday and said he would set up an information service and begin organizing workers to alleviate the situation.

Brown told 155 persons at the second in a series of border job and wage conferences that businessmen will go along with the AFL-CIO in order to keep out the Teamsters Union which has been active in the area recently.

About a dozen businessmen were at the meeting. But none attended last weekend's meeting in Laredo. The Valley Chamber of Commerce and Valley Farm Union, which were invited, apparently did not send representatives.

But Cameron County Judge Oscar Dancy said he would rather see the AFL-CIO active than the Teamsters. He said Albert Pena, state chairman of the Political Association of Spanish Speaking Organizations (PASSO) "must have stayed at home when they passed out the brains." Dancy referred to PASSO's cooperation with the Teamsters in South Texas.

List Grievances
Brown ticked off a string of grievances contributing to the labor situation on the border.

He said he will ask the state AFL-CIO convention for $30,000 to set up a public information service office this month and will call in organizers from retail clerks, building trades and industrial unions within the year. The labor group will hold its convention in Houston later this month.

Brown also said he would "needle" the Texas Education Agency and the Texas Employment Commission into setting up manpower training stations along the border. He said those agencies are charged by law with training people in skills needed for modern industry.

Would Fight Teamsters
Brown said he would fight the Teamsters Union to see who will represent workers in South Texas. He said he was confident he would have the support of area businessmen in this fight.

Brown said "intimidation at the polls" and "the subtle discrimination of economics" aided in keeping living standards low.

weapons development can be conducted with underground tests.

Chairman Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said Sunday night (on NBC-TV's Meet the Press) that he knows "how devastating" nuclear conflict could be "and I hope that I can support (the treaty) and I shall, if our Joint Chiefs of Staff and other technicians say it doesn't impair our means of defending ourselves."

Burns and Tharp made a full confession, Sheriff Jordan said, although Bachman refused to talk. The pair said they and Bachman had stolen the saddles from the barn of Johnny Mays, a riding club president in Amarillo, early that morning.

The three youths were returned to Amarillo that night, and arraigned today on a charge of burglary. Bond was set at $1,000 each and they will be held for the grand jury.

LA Lead Drops To Trouble Line

By TIM MORIARTY
UPI Sports Writer

A year ago today the Los Angeles Dodgers held a 3½-game lead over the San Francisco Giants in the National League pennant race.

That's the same bulge that separated these California rivals after weekend action, leaving some figure filberts wondering if history was ready to repeat itself.

You don't need a long memory to recall that the Dodgers blew a four-game lead in the final week of the 1962 season and then bowed to the Giants in a three-game playoff. This year, though, the Dodgers seemingly have hit the skids much earlier.

Since July 20, when the Dodgers held a 10-game lead over the Giants, Walt Alston's men have lost 11 of 20 games. During the same period, the Giants, led by wondrous Willie Mays, have won 15 of 19.

Mays, hitting in his 13th straight game, doubled in two key runs to help the Giants whip the Philadelphia Phillies, 5-1, while the Cincinnati Reds walloped Sandy Koufax and the Dodgers, 9-4.

Braves Beat Cards

The Milwaukee Braves ripped the St. Louis Cardinals, 9-1, the Pittsburgh Pirates edged the Houston Colts, 2-1, and the New York Mets rolled to an 11-4 victory after losing the opener of a doubleheader to the Chicago Cubs, 8-1, in other NL action.

Mays unloaded his double in the fifth inning to break up a pitching duel between Cal McLish

(11-8) and the Giants' Jack Sanford (11-12). Chuck Hiller drove in three runs for the Giants with a homer and a sacrifice fly. Wes Covington collected four of the Phils' five hits off Sanford, who needed ninth inning help from Billy Hoist and Don Larsen.

The Reds raked Koufax for nine hits and five runs during 5 1-3 innings to become the first team to beat the Dodger southpaw twice this season. Koufax, now 15-3, entered the sixth inning with a 4-1 lead but was chased during a six-run Cincinnati uprising. Frank Robinson and Don Pavletich homered for the Reds and Frank Howard and Tommy Davis hit the seats for the Dodgers.

Hurls Four-Hitter

Tony Cloninger struck out 11 and pitched a four-hitter for the Braves. Eddie Mathews' three-run homer and Gene Oliver's two-run single were the big blows for Milwaukee. Cloninger retired 15 batters in a row after the Cards scored an unearned run in the fourth.

The Pirates nipped the Colts on Jerry Lynch's two-run homer with two out in the ninth inning off Skinny Brown. The blow gave Roy Face, who relieved Joe Gibbon in the ninth, his first victory since April 28.

A 13-hit attack, including homers by Joe Hicks, Jim Hickman and Choo Choo Coleman, carried the Mets to victory after Dick Ellsworth pitched a six-hitter for the Cubs in the opener. Ellis Burton drove in three runs to ease Ellsworth to his 16th victory.

CHARGE! — The rejuvenated Green Bay Packers charge out onto the football field at West DePere, Wis. The defending NFL champs suffered a rude setback when they were upset by the College All-Stars, but came back to life this weekend with a 27-7 shelling of the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Billie Jean Leads In Wightman Triumph

CEVELAND, Ohio (UPI)—Billie Jean Moffitt, an extremely talented teen-ager with a tennis racket, was "Miss Big" as the United States overwhelmed England, 6-1, to win the 35th annual Wightman Cup tennis matches.

Miss Moffitt, a 19-year-old court whirlwind, won two singles matches and was a member of a doubles team that also came up with a victory to enable Uncle Sam to win his 29th Wightman Cup and fourth in the last six years.

The bespectacled youngster, who hails from Long Beach, Calif., in addition to possessing a fine all-around game and a never-say-quit spirit, also pleased the crowd with her vocal and facial gyrations.

Several times she would chirp "Yes" to compliment her foe on a fine shot, or admonish herself with "Hit it," "Go Billie!" or "move Billie," when outfaced by her opponent.

On Saturday, opening day of the best-of-seven tournament, she defeated Christine Truman of England, 6-4, 10-7, and Sunday she beat Mrs. Ann Haydon Jones, Britain's No. 1 player, 6-4, 4-6, 6-3.

Darlene Hard, the No. 1 American player who plans to retire at the end of this year, overwhelmed Miss Truman 6-3, 6-0, in the second singles matches Sunday to clinch victory for Uncle Sam. She lost to Mrs. Jones Saturday for the lone American setback.

Nancy Richey of Dallas, Tex., felled pretty Deirdre Catt, a 23-year-old redhead, 14-12, 6-3, in the opening singles match Sunday. The 20-year-old Miss Richey, who is the national clay champion, that teamed with Mrs. Donna Floyd Fales of New York to beat the English duo of Miss Catt and Elizabeth Starkie, 6-1, 6-4, 6-2, to end the action.

Pro Football Roundup

The fun is over! The Green Bay Packers cannons were spiked briefly by the College All-Stars, but the shelling has begun anew for the champ's National Football League opponents.

Green Bay, its exhibition streak halted at 19 victories by the Stars, started another skein Saturday with a 27-7 triumph over the Pittsburgh Steelers at Miami, Fla.

Bart Starr, humiliated by a charging All-Star team, recovered his poise against Pittsburgh with two touchdown passes, one a 73-yard heave to Max McGee.

In other Saturday NFL exhibitions, Detroit defeated Cleveland, 24-10; Minnesota outgunned San Francisco, 43-28; Baltimore beat Philadelphia, 26-21, and Chicago outlasted New York, 17-7.

San Diego defeated Boston, 50-17, in an American Football League pre-season contest on Saturday and revamped Oakland downed Denver, 35-18, Sunday.

There are seven NFL tuneup games on tap this week and four in the AFL.

In Sunday games, Green Bay plays at Dallas, Los Angeles hosts Minnesota and a Cleveland doubleheader features Detroit vs. New York and Baltimore vs. Cleveland.

In the AFL, Boston faces Houston at Lowell, Mass., Wednesday, New York is at Buffalo Friday and Sunday games pit Oakland vs. Kansas City at Seattle, Wash. and San Diego at Denver.

200 Junior Golfers At Midland Aug. 19

MIDLAND (SpI) — More than 200 of the world's best young golfers will converge on Midland this month for the 18th annual Jaycee International Junior Golf Tournament.

The youths, ranging in ages from 15 to 18, will represent 45 states and four foreign countries. It is known that there will be representation from Japan, Puerto Rico, Panama and Venezuela.

The tournament for the first time will be divided into two divisions — novice and open. The novice division will be for boys who had never won a golf tournament before the start of the 1963 season. The open division is for the more experienced golfers.

Youths who will be entered in both divisions will have survived grueling home-state tournaments to earn the trip to Midland. In most instances the boys had to win local, regional and state tournaments.

The tournament is scheduled to get underway August 19 with famous professional golfer Bryon Nelson conducting a clinic for the youthful linksters. Then on August 20, the two divisions will take to the links of Midland Country Club.

and Ranchland Hill Country Club to begin four days of competition leading to crowning of champions August 22.

Starter for the tourney will be Marty Luxford, Tournament Director of the Bing Crosby Pebble Beach Open for many years. The winner of the Jaycee Meet traditionally is invited to play in the Bing Crosby meet.

Among the current professional golfers who have captured the coveted individual championship of the International Meet are Jack Nicklaus, Gene Littler, Phil Rodgers and Doug Sanders.

Griffith Seeks Middle Crown

NEW YORK (UPI) — Welterweight champion Emile Griffith, who beat his 12th middleweight Saturday night, will defend his 147-pound crown next January and, after that, shoot for the middle-weight (160-pound) title, co-manager Gil Clancy announced today.

Griffith, 25, won a lop-sided decision over middleweight contender Holly Mims of Washington, D. C., Saturday in a nationally televised 10-rounder at Saratoga Springs, N. Y. The bout was scored 6-3-1, 6-3-1, 8-1-1.

Clancy said Griffith's showing against Mims convinced him that Emile could beat Dick Tiger of Nigeria, the 160-pound ruler, next year.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — If a consensus were compiled of the opinions of major league managers on the infielder most likely to become one of the game's top stars, shortstop Jim Fregosi of the Los Angeles Angels would be a strong choice.

The 21-year-old Fregosi has caught the eyes of some of the best judges of baseball talent with his speed, strong arm and improved hitting.

"In about another year, Fregosi will be the outstanding shortstop in the American league," Angels general manager Fred Haney declares.

And the general manager's views are echoed by Angel manager Bill Rigney, who did his playing stint as an infielder and has given Fregosi special attention since he came to the young club.

But the praise is not limited to Angel executives. Manager Ralph Houk of the New York Yankees says, "There's no question Fregosi has the makings of a great shortstop."

Lopez Likes Him

And the eyes of Al Lopez of the Chicago White Sox light up when he watches Fregosi perform and he says, "The lad can't miss."

Fregosi is one of many great baseball players who have come to the game from the San Francisco Bay area. An outstanding athlete at Serra High School in San Mateo, Calif., Fregosi originally was signed by the Boston Red Sox, but the Angels got him in the original draft to stock the new major league club.

The versatile youngster, in addition to being one of California's outstanding high school baseball players, was also a football, track and basketball star and was the state's prep broad jumping champion.

"Being good in high school is a lot different than making good in the major leagues," Jim says. "I've had to learn a lot and I'm still learning things about being an infielder."

Fregosi played his first season of organized baseball while in the Red Sox organization with Alpine in 1960 and was named to the all-star team. After joining the Angels he was farmed to Dallas-Ft. Worth in 1961 and spent the first half of the 1962 season there. The Angels recalled him midway in the 1962 season when shortstop Joe Koppe was injured and in three weeks Fregosi was considered a regular. Because he appeared in 58 games last season, Fregosi is ineligible for "Rookie of the Year" consideration this season.

One of manager Rigney's moves to help Fregosi learn the fine points of being an infielder was to room him with Koppe, and the veteran has spent many hours imparting his knowledge to the youngster.

"That was a big break for me," Fregosi says. "We talk baseball all the time and Joe is always giving me tips on how to play the hitters."

"I still have a lot to learn and I know it. Last year when they brought me up I was a scared kid. But when I kept on playing I gained confidence and began loosening up."

Aims For Fences

Fregosi at first thought he could be a long ball hitter and put everything he had into every swing. As a result, he developed some bad habits at the plate.

"This year I followed the suggestion of the manager and our batting instructor, Joe Gordon," he says. "I choked up on the bat and began meeting the ball better. I decided I would rather try to hit for the average instead of an occasional home run, and it's helped."

Fregosi currently is batting around .263 but he leads the club in triples thanks to his great speed and is one of the top producers of doubles.

Youngsters Snap Swimming Marks

CHICAGO (UPI) — Steve Clark continued the youthful assault on records in the windup of the national AAU outdoor swimming championships Sunday that Don Schollander began the previous day.

Dr. Jim Counsilman's powerful Indianapolis Athletic Club continued its domination of the team title, and Lt. Tom Gompf of the Air Force, who must have felt like the proverbial "bridesmaid," finally won a national diving title.

More records might have fallen during the three-day tourney at Ridgeland Common Pool in Oak Park had world breaststroke record holder Chet Jastrzemski been able to compete. Jastrzemski, 22, of Toledo, Ohio, suffering from sore legs, gave it a try during the opening of competition Friday, then bowed out.

As it was, three individual and one team record fell.

Breaks World Mark

Schollander, 17-year-old tow-head from the Santa Clara Swim Club, broke the official world's record in the 200 meter freestyle Saturday for the second time in two weeks. Then, moments later, he turned in a tremendous anchor to pace the Santa Clara 800 meter freestyle relay team to another world record.

Hickey, Hatcher One-Two at Friona

FRIONA (SpI) — Max Hickey of Pampa won the Friona Country Club Invitational Golf Tournament with a one-under-par 71 total.

Second place was John Hatcher Jr. of Pampa with a 74. Jimmy Steward of Lubbock and Borger's Dr. Tom Logan tied for third with 75.

Other championship flight scores were Paul Jones, Clovis 77; John Renner, Friona 77; Fluff Myers, Muleshoe 81, and W. L. Eddleman, Friona 83.

Yankees Roll Up Huge Lead In AL Flag Race

By MARTIN LADER
UPI Sports Writer

The dog days of August are having little bite on the New York Yankees, and the American League pennant race may be reduced to a trot by the time September rolls into view.

The Yankees, who played under .500 ball last August, won their sixth straight game with a 10-inning, 6-4 decision over the Los Angeles Angels Sunday to increase their league lead to nine full games over Chicago.

Even more frightening to the other nine clubs than the huge lead is the pure statistics of the situation. The Yankees, with a 74-40 record, need only split their remaining 48 games to finish with 98 victories.

Chicago, to match this total, would have to take 32 of their remaining 46 contests. That would be a .696 clip, or 127 percentage points better than the White Sox have been doing thus far.

The Sox didn't help their cause any Sunday, dropping the first game of a doubleheader to the Detroit Tigers, 7-2, before coming back with a 3-2, 11-inning triumph in the nightcap. Chicago now has lost 10 games more than the Yankees.

It was the sixth straight success for the third-place Twins and kept them 9½ games behind the Yankees. The Baltimore Orioles beat the Washington Senators, 6-2, and the Cleveland Indians edged the Kansas City Athletics, 2-1.

Elston Howard and Hector Lopez, both late-game replacements shared the hero roles for the Yankees. Howard slammed a three-run, two-out, ninth-inning homer to send the game into extra innings, and Lopez drove in the winning run with a 10th-inning single. Relief pitcher Bill Stafford stopped the Angels over the final two frames to gain his fourth victory, and Julio Navarro took the loss.

Butts Scheduled To Take Stand As Lead Witness

ATLANTA (UPI) — Wallace Butts was scheduled to return to the stand today as leadoff witness in the second week of the trial of his $10 million libel suit against the Saturday Evening Post.

The former football and athletic director at the University of Georgia has testified under oath that he never gave important football secrets to Alabama Coach Paul (Bear) Bryant prior to last fall's game between the two schools.

The Saturday Evening Post, in an article last March, claimed that the information helped Alabama in its 35-0 defeat of the Georgia Bulldogs.

Butts, who resigned his post as athletic director shortly before the article was printed, sued the Post, asking $5 million in general and $1 million in punitive damages as result of the story.

He charged in the suit that the magazine had ruined his career and spoiled his reputation that had won for him a number of honors, including the presidency of the Football Coaches Association, a national organization of college coaches.

Butts was expected to be asked today, on cross-examination, more details of his avowed friendship with Frank Scobey, a Chicago beer distributor who has told the Senate rackets committee that he made big bets on horse racing and football games with an Indiana gambling syndicate.

Scobey was not called as a witness during five days of testimony last week but his sealed deposition is on file in the case and could be entered into testimony.

Aids Own Cause

Gary Peters went all the way for Chicago in the second game, and in addition to holding Detroit to just one earned run he contributed a single, double and homer to his own cause. However, he needed an 11th inning home run by Dave Nicholson to gain his 12th triumph and his seventh in a row. Don Mossi and Terry Fox scattered seven hits for Detroit in the opener and got their main hitting support from Bubba Phillips and Al Kaline, each with three safeties.

Zoilo Versalles hit a two-run homer in the fourth inning and Don Mincher connected with two on in the fifth to account for all the Minnesota runs. Camilo Pascual took it from there, yielding only a two-run homer to Dick Stuart, to gain his 14th victory in 20 decisions.

Pitcher Milt Pappas slammed a two-run homer and relief hurler Stu Miller contributed a bases-filled triple as Pappas beat Washington for the eighth straight time. Ron Kline was the loser.

Barry Latman held Kansas City hitless for 5 2-3 innings before giving up a homer to Jose Tarta-bull, and yielded just two more hits the rest of the way to even his record at 7-7. The Indians scored both their runs in the first inning off Orlando Pena.

'Left' and 'Right' The terms "left" and "right" as currently employed in political discussion are inept and apt to be misleading.

The terms were first employed in France during the days of the French Revolution. Seating in the chamber of deputies was determined by a man's view in respect to his support of the king and the king's policies.

The "rightist" of those dark days sat on the king's right and supported his views. The "leftist" was on the opposite side and opposed the king.

Thus, in the beginning of the use of the term, the "leftist" was the person who favored a diminution of the kingly powers and hence tended to favor more freedom for individual people.

With the passing of time, and the emergence in this country of a government which has pondered to the masses in hopes of mass support, the "leftist" tends to support the current practices of increasing taxation for purposes of welfare.

Philosophically, however, an equally remarkable divergence of meaning has ensued. The French "leftist" could be classed originally as a supporter of individual freedom.

These terms come in time to be equated to their political counterparts. "conservative" and "liberal." Using the words in their original connotation, the "rightists" would be the "conservatives."

Automation, which hangs like a specter over the livelihood of thousands, has created other thousands of new opportunities for college graduates. Not all are scientific or technical opportunities.

More jobs—at higher salaries—absorbed 90 per cent of engineering job candidates, 80 per cent of business school and 70 per cent of liberal arts majors even before commencement time.

An estimated 48,000 new engineers will be needed every year during this decade—11,000 less than are currently graduated every year.

For business graduates, salaries ranged from $475 to $500, with accountants averaging $525. Liberal arts bachelors not majoring in physical sciences settled for $460 to $485, with physical scientists (chemistry, math, etc.) averaging $550.

Exchange of military missions between the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the Warsaw Pact; the Iron Curtain military alliance.

Resumption of discussions on the security of West Berlin and its access routes.

A joint declaration to be signed by the military commanders of the two alliances, General Lemnitzer and Marshal Grechko, or by the NATO Secretary-General, Dr. Stikker, and a Communist equivalent.

Formal signing of a NATO-Warsaw Pact non-aggression agreement by individual nations.

Although Khrushchev has publicly called for an immediate signing of a non-aggression pact, he has privately bowed to the President's step-by-step plan to counter the difficulties he faces from France and West Germany.

Under Kennedy's formula, the joint non-aggression declaration to be issued by the NATO-Warsaw Pact military commanders would explicitly define the area it covered by map references and not by listing countries—thus sidestepping the East German recognition pitfall.

Later a pact would be signed by the individual countries involved, with some special arrangement for the East and West German signatories similar to that concocted at the Geneva conference of 1959.

Allen-Scott Report Kennedy - Khrushchev Understanding Outlines Step-By-Step Approach To Non-Agression Pact

WASHINGTON — President Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev are closing a step-by-step agreement on a non-aggression pact between the West and the Soviet bloc than their public statements indicate.

In fact, they already have reached an understanding in their exchange of letters on a plan for a piecemeal approach to cope with the opposition of West Germany and France.

Under this Kennedy-Khrushchev strategy, the following "escalator procedure" will be pursued in the "second round" of negotiations that get underway in Moscow this week.

Edson In Washington Balance of Payments Make Road Smooth, Rough By PETER EDSON

WASHINGTON (NEA) — All the pieces in the papers about the deficit in the U. S. balance of payments and the declining U. S. stocks of gold have a bad psychological effect on most American citizens, even though many of them haven't much notion what it's all about.

This is a pretty sophisticated subject. A short time ago it was said that the only man in the world who really understood international payments was Per Jacobson of Sweden, managing director of International Monetary Fund.

He died in May. Bankers, economists, government fiscal experts and some congressmen discuss balance of payments very emotionally. Even so, their language is almost completely unintelligible to laymen.

Back one of these authorities into a corner and ask him for a simple explanation. You'll get something like this: "The balance of payments is an international accounting in summary form for all U. S. international financial transactions."

"It includes exports and imports of goods and services, foreign loans and investments, foreign aid, the cost of keeping American military forces overseas, their spending and tourist spending abroad, dividend, interest and loan repayments and the movements of gold to balance international accounts."

An average citizen may then ask, "What has all this got to do with me?" One solid answer is that it affects U. S. jobs and taxes, due to its influence on the value and purchasing power of the dollar.

It can influence your mortgage interest rates or time payments on a new car. This last is an intricate daisy chain, but it can be followed.

On the day President Kennedy sent his long message to Congress with recommendations to improve the U. S. balance of payments position, the Federal Reserve Board raised the interest rate on its loans to banks from 3 to 3.5 per cent.

Down payments requirements could be increased. Auto loans could be cut from 36 to 30 or even 24 months. Mortgage might be granted for only 25 years instead of 30. The result is larger monthly payments, which hit consumers hard.

The alternative to the complicated balance of payments adjustments could be even worse. Say the United States doesn't raise its short-term interest rates. Then foreign depositors could demand payment in gold — which U. S. depositors can't do — and the drain on U. S. gold stocks could continue. Then confidence in the dollar at home and abroad may be further impaired.

Down South By THURMAN SHERING Nashville, Tenn.

DANGER FACES THE DOLLAR Much more is needed than routine fiscal trimming of U.S. foreign aid and government taxation of international financing if the nation's gold situation is not to worsen into a major crisis.

This situation has been developing of course, for years, but it has now reached a point where it could become critical in just days or even hours, and there would be little time to do anything about it.

The record shows that in the week ended July 17, America suffered a loss of $50 million in its Treasury gold stock, marking a total loss of $345 million so far this year. This reduced the country's gold reserves to $15.6 billion, the lowest amount we have had in reserve in 24 years!

It is required by law that we just have $12.3 billion in gold as backing for our currency, and it is apparent from this that we now only have $3.3 billion of free gold. But foreign holdings of short-term dollar credits total some $25.3 billion at present, all of which the holders could demand in gold if they so desired.

In other words, we hold the $15.6 billion in gold we do hold only by the sufferance of foreign nations that hold dollar claims against it; not one ounce of it is ours if these nations decide to buy it.

With so many pressing problems this summer, including the basic one of law and order in the nation, the depletion of the U.S. gold reserve may seem to many citizens as a matter of minor consequence. But a nation's credit, like an individual's credit, is never of little significance.

What the drop in gold reserves means is that the value of the U.S. dollar again is being questioned in world money markets. This, in time, could have serious effects on the lives of the American people. It means that the republic is in the position of a lending institution whose soundness is doubted by the public.

The reason the U.S. is in trouble today with respect to foreign withdrawals of gold is that we have lived by deficit financing for years. Another way of saying this is that we have lived beyond our means, engaging in prodigal spending and lending money we didn't possess.

Our trade balance has been good, for we have sold more abroad than we have imported. But this trade balance has been undermined by the outpouring of U.S. funds in foreign aid. This foreign aid has cancelled the healthy effects of U.S. trade and enabled other nations to lay claim to the gold that we need to support our paper money.

Despite the bright outlook of the Kennedy administration, it is generally believed that the deficit in balance of payments for the first half of 1963 has been running at an annual rate of $3.5 billion or more.

One encouraging development is the decision of the De Gaulle government of France to make an advance payment of $200 million on its debt to the U.S. This action will be helpful in stemming the gold outflow. But in characteristic New Frontier fashion, the Kennedy administration never misses an opportunity to slight France, our old ally. One can be sure that if a country follows sound policies and wishes to aid the U.S., the New Frontiersmen will oppose that country. The New Frontier prefers friendship with neutralist countries with long records of wasteful financial practices. Thus, the Kennedy administration is not only antagonizing France but is urging the Congress to spend hundreds of millions on assistance to India, including the construction of a socialist-run steel mill. Just consider what such aid to India will do to the gold outflow situation!

Today all major global financial transactions are conducted in dollars because people in the post-war period have had faith in the U.S. dollar. But the increasing foreign preference for gold means that they are losing faith in the dollar. This, in turn, means they are losing faith in America as the bastion of the free world. The U.S. cannot afford to be regarded as weak. For our own financial soundness and national security, we must eliminate the staggering gold outflow in foreign aid that is like a bleeding wound for the republic. That is the best and most sensible way of meeting the danger that faces the dollar.

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — To network television executives, heaven is a place where there are loads of big news stories, none of them controversial, and all of them enabling video to show off its technical facility. In this paradise, stories like space journeys and coronations are "in" — and matters like the desegregation conflict "out."

It is a pastoral heaven — no sponsors heading for the hills, no angry partisans hollering bloody murder from all directions; nothing, in short, that touches the viewer where it really counts, in the inner recesses of his heart and home. Unfortunately, the desegregation story won't go away; and the networks, apparently having recognized this slight fact, Sunday night finally began what appears to be a head-long plunge into the areas of evaluation and summation rather than just spot coverage.

ABC-TV led the way, using its old Howard K. Smith time slot to kick off a five-part weekly series on the racial crisis, with reporter Ron Cochran as the anchorman and host, properly serious throughout without being unduly grave. For the most part, the half-hour program summarized sketchily — though with numerous facts and clips — some of the historic American issues that tended to add fuel to the current furor. And though such contemporary figures as Gov. Orval Faubus of Arkansas and the Rev. Martin Luther King were interviewed, ABC-TV might just as well get ready to hear some hollering because of the sensitivity of the entire matter.

Others who appeared included Autherine Lucy, who entered the University of Alabama for three days in 1956 and is now a housewife; former Mayor William Hartsfield of Atlanta; Rosa Parks, who began the Montgomery, Ala., bus boycott by refusing to give her seat to a white person; and G. Stanley Frazier, a white minister on the committee that negotiated with Dr. King in Montgomery. And it may be more than a little significant that the program was not sponsored.

But, as indicated above, it was just the start of the networks' plunge. On Aug. 21, for instance, CBS-TV will present a one-hour examination of coverage by the various news media. There have been some charges that network news reporting has been slanted to the Negro cause. Here are other upcoming special programs:

On Sept. 2, NBC-TV is planning an unprecedented three-hour night-time show examining many aspects of the Negro issue throughout American history, up to and including now. The entire prime-time lineup on NBC that night — "Monday Night at the Movies," Art Linkletter's show and "David Brinkley's Journal" — will be pre-empted. By coincidence, this is also the same night that both NBC-TV and CBS-TV expand their evening news reports from 15 to 30 minutes daily; and there are some nasty folk who suspect NBC has scheduled its big special to draw attention away from CBS.

Anyway, on Sept. 26, NBC-TV also will present an hour special on race relations in Washington, D.C., a predominantly Negro City. And on Oct. 14, ABC-TV will air what is billed as an actual on-the-scene "inside story" of the June integration crisis at the University of Alabama, an hour-long show involving President Kennedy, Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy and Gov. George Wallace — and, according to ABC, filmed with the permission of all concerned at moments of decision.

Here's Story of the Nuclear Bomb Behind Controversial Test Ban Pact

EDITOR'S NOTE: Russia and the United States, on the brink of war over Cuban missile bases less than a year ago, recently signed a treaty designed to steer mankind away from possible nuclear destruction. Now it is before the U.S. Senate for ratification. In the following dispatch, a veteran UPI reporter who covered the first Bikini bomb tests describes the nuclear race which led to the treaty and what it has meant to space-age weaponry.

By JOSEPH L. MYLER
WASHINGTON (UPI) — History's first nuclear weapon was exploded in the summer of 1945. Its power frightened even those who made it. Some called it the "ultimate weapon."

It was so bulky that only the biggest U. S. bomber could carry it.

It weighed five tons. But it was equal in violence to nearly 20,000 tons (20 kilotons) of TNT.

This bomb and another one, dropped on Nagasaki and Hiroshima in World War II, killed 106,000 persons outright and inflicted grievous injury on 97,000 more.

The first combat use of a nuclear weapon was the bombing of Hiroshima on Aug. 6, 1945. The second was the bombing of Nagasaki on Aug. 9, 1945. To date there have been no others.

But in the 18 years after the first experimental blast in the New Mexican desert there have been approximately 450 nuclear test explosions.

The first nuclear bomb represented a 4,000-fold jump in power over TNT weapons. Now there exists in the Soviet arsenal a weapon with an energy potential 5,000 times greater than the early A-bomb's.

Like the bombs of 1945, the Soviet weapon can be carried only by a heavy modern bomber, although missiles or spacecraft capable of delivering it may be in the cards.

The Soviet bomb is equivalent in energy to 100 million tons (100 megatons) of TNT. This one weapon could do to greater New York what those little ones of 1945 did to Hiroshima. Its toll would be reckoned not in thousands but in millions of lives.

The 25-megatonner is the biggest bomb in the U. S. arsenal. This country, scientists say, could have developed a 100-megaton bomb any time it wanted to in the past 10 years. But the 25 megatonner is considered the biggest with any real military worth.

Since 1945 both sides have exploded more than 400 nuclear test weapons equal in power more than 511 million tons (511 megatons) of TNT. This works out at 25,550 times the power of the Hiroshima bomb.

Of the 511 megaton total, the Russians exploded 357.7 megatons and the United States and Britain together, 153.3 megatons.

If nuclear experimentation should continue indefinitely, according to the experts, the variety of weapons might also be expanded indefinitely, resulting at one extreme in the "gigaton" weapon.

This would be a bomb equal to 1,000 megatons of TNT. It probably would weigh 100 to 200 tons. It could hardly be delivered by anything but a submarine or surface ship. A few of them exploded off the West Coast could doom half of the United States.

At the other end of the scale might be the tiny H-bomb capable of killing with radiation at short range without destroying property or contaminating the atmosphere. This, the little "clean" H-bomb, is otherwise known as the neutron bomb.

Now the three nuclear powers have proposed a limited test ban treaty. It would not necessarily halt the arms race, but it might slow development of horrible new weapons and curb contamination of the world's atmosphere with dangerous debris.

It would prohibit tests in the atmosphere, under water, and in space. It would permit only those deep or shallow underground tests which did not pollute the air outside the testing nation.

The United States apparently has a fine head start on all other nations in testing underground. So far 71 of its tests have been underground. The British have tested two nuclear devices in underground shots in Nevada. The French, according to reports, have staged two underground explosions. Russia is known to have exploded one nuclear weapon underground.

Authorities have emphasized that the limited test ban would not, of itself, slow down the stockpiling of nuclear weapons.

Missiles are the big thing these days. But this country has 500 or more B52 and 1,000 or more B47 bombers capable of carrying its big city-killing bombs. Practically every U.S. warplane is geared to deliver nuclear weapons of one kind or another.

A recently published list shows that the United States has 34 different kinds of missile—aside from its warplanes—designed to deliver nuclear blows. Of the 34 types, 24 are said to be ready to fire with the other 10 still in the development stage.

Less is known about Soviet capabilities. But the Russians have their Badger, Bear, and Bison warplanes, plus a long list of ballistic missiles. Of a dozen Soviet missiles capable of delivering nuclear warheads at various distances, 10 are said to be ready for combat and two are still under development.

Both countries have striven consistently to improve weapon efficiency—to get "more bang per pound" of warhead. There is some belief that Russia may be somewhat ahead in this respect, at least in the bigger bombs.

Both sides also have been trying to cut down the size of the costly and radioactively "dirty" fission triggers of their H-bombs.

If another trigger can be made, it will be possible to replace high-priced and inefficient tactical weapons, now all fission, with cheap and efficient fusion weapons. In this category would be the so-called neutron bomb.

Work on the all-fusion bomb can be done with underground testing. The Moscow treaty would not stop it.

PARIS (UPI) — Two members of a Secret Army Organization (OAS) killer squad, Jean-Louis Blanchy and Francois Leca, both 28, were sentenced Saturday to life imprisonment for the murder of a French army officer in Algeria.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Eric Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Association, remained in critical condition today from the effects of a stroke.

Johnston, 66, was admitted to George Washington University hospital June 17.

There's a Quick Way to Refinish Your Furniture

Now you can refinish your furniture without removing the old finish with Old Masters Liquid Wood Coating available at the Art & Gift Center, 204 N. West street in Pampa.

The Old Masters Liquid Wood Coating may be used to refinish your furniture in a wood graining or antiquing, or even marbelizing finish.

The first step in refinishing your furniture is to apply the Old Masters base coat right over your old surface. One coat is sufficient unless the old surface is a dark color, in which case you would apply two coats of the base. Allow this base coat to dry.

Select your color from samples at the Art & Gift Center.

Second, apply Old Masters Graining Ink. Using cheese cloth, draw the ink firmly in the direction in which you wish to have the grain run. Be sure to use long full length strokes. By doing this, you can create your own wood effect.

The ink dries slowly, so if you are not pleased with your first results, wipe off and grain again. The ink dries in twelve to 24 hours. Over this, apply a coat of clear varnish, either satin or gloss finish.

For further information about Old Masters, call MO5-4171 or see the many made up samples at the Art & Gift Center.

The Art & Gift Center is located across the street from the First Baptist Church entrance.

Many Ride Ski Lift Just to See Scenery

RUIDOSO (UPI) — There does not have to be snow on the ground for the ski lift at Sierra Blanca to do a booming business.

The 75 gaily colored cars of the gondola lift that stretches 8,000 feet are carrying about 6,000 passengers a month, according to Kingsbury Pitcher.

"We get almost as many scenic riders in the summer as in the winter," Pitcher said. He handles public relations for the Sierra Blanca Corp., which owns the facility on the mountain near Ruidoso.

During the winter the same four-passenger cars carry skiers and sightseers to Lookout Peak, 11,400 feet high. Special racks on each car hold the skis.

Capacity of the gondola lift of 1,200 persons an hour is reached during the ski season, according to Pitcher. The lift began operations last Thanksgiving and the total of 30,000 visitors to the ski area is expected to be surpassed this winter.

Hondo Oil and Gas Corp. owned by Robert O. Anderson of Roswell, but now in the process of being sold, invested $600,000 in the ski facility which includes a restaurant of modern design.

Price-Fixing Is Charged Against U.S. Drug Firms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) has accused five leading U.S. drug manufacturers of conspiring to fix prices of tetracycline, a multi-million dollar antibiotic, in a "quiet smothering of competition."

The wonder drug is used to combat a wide range of bacterial infections.

In an unprecedented move, the five-man commission also claimed the right to take steps to limit or completely halt enforcement of drug patents by two of the firms, Chas. Pfizer and Co., Inc., and American Cyanamid Company.

The FTC charged they had obtained the patents unfairly by withholding important information from the U.S. Patent Office.

The other three firms charged were Bristol-Myers Company and Bristol Laboratories, Inc.; Olin Mathieson Chemical Corp.; Squibb, and the Upjohn Company.

Pfizer and Bristol-Myers quickly denied the allegations. They and Cyanamid said they would appeal to the federal courts.

The FTC said that Pfizer's 17 year patent on tetracycline could yield potentially more than a billion dollars in sales. Sales of the drug, "probably the leading antibiotic on the market today," it said, have run more than $100 million a year.

The FTC, reversing a hearing examiner's findings, ordered the five manufacturers to scrap all price lists for tetracycline and publish new prices independently, based on individual manufacturing and overhead costs desired margins of profits and "other lawful considerations."

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Basketball has always been his game, Secretary of State Dean Rusk said Sunday in offering an explanation of why he lost a badminton match with Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev.

"Mr. Khrushchev is a very good badminton player," Rusk said. "But, it's the first time I ever played badminton on an oriental rug." The game was played at the Russian leader's Black Sea vacation villa at Gagra during Rusk's visit last week. Khrushchev won, 4-1.
