Airliner Engine Rips Off In Flight; 17 Persons Hurt

SHREVEPORT, La. (UPI) — An Eastern Airlines DC3 jetliner, bound from New York to Mexico City, made an emergency landing at Barksdale Air Force Base Saturday after an engine ripped away at 20,000 feet. Seventeen passengers were injured when the plane dropped 13,000 feet in 10 seconds. The plane, flight 310, carried 117 passengers and a crew of seven. The injured were taken to the base hospital. Fifteen other passengers were badly shaken up, a base spokesman said.

"Passengers said some of them were tossed against the plane's ceiling and sent sprawling," the spokesman said.

Robert Monahan of New York City said he was walking up the aisle of the airliner when the "Fasten Seat Belts" sign flashed on.

"Glued To Ceiling"

"Before I could sit down," he said, "about 20 people were thrown upward. They looked like they were glued to the ceiling."

Cyril Youngjohn of New York said he "floated out of my seat."

The engine housing and part of the wing were torn away when the engine dropped off, the pilot told the Air Force.

The engine tore off and the plane plunged several thousand feet when the plane made a turn as it entered a down-draft near Corpus Christi, Tex., a spokesman said.

"Most of us did not have our seat belts fastened," one passenger said. He said the sudden drop threw passengers about.

Four Women Hurt

The injured, four of them women, were carried from the jetliner to the Barksdale Hospital. Two were on stretchers and the others walked to an ambulance.

The most seriously hurt was Dorothy Griffith of Springfield, Pa., who suffered a broken back.

Of the others, a base hospital spokesman said "none of them are believed seriously hurt. We are just checking them over. It appears some have cuts and bruises."

The huge plane circled Barksdale for 50 minutes, dumping fuel, but made a routine landing.

Pampa Man Dies In Europe After Airplane Crash

Specialist William F. Collins, 34, of Langendiebach, Germany, died Thursday of injuries he received in a plane crash in West Germany.

Specialist Collins, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Collins of 325 N. Dwight, was serving with the U.S. Army in Langendiebach. He was crew chief on the plane which crashed, killing him and the pilot.

Mr. Collins was graduated from Pampa High School in 1947 and entered the service in 1948. He served in Japan and later in Korea during the Korean war.

He was born Nov. 17, 1929, in Mobeetie.

Survivors, other than his parents include; his wife, Marie; a son and daughter, Timothy and Arlene, all of Langendiebach and two daughters, Patty and Linda of Kirbyville, Tex.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete, awaiting the arrival of the body.

GOP Candidate Gets Runoff for Congress

By PATRICK CONWAY
DALLAS (UPI) — Late returns Saturday night gave supporters of Texas' 61-year-old poll tax a commanding lead against repeal. Two leading backers of repeal conceded defeat in a special election that may have a strong bearing on the 1964 presidential race.

Returns to the Texas Election Bureau at 10 p.m., showed 280,485 votes against repeal and 220,230 for repeal. Returns were from 227 of 254 counties, 162 complete.

Mrs. Maurice Brown, state president of the League of Women Voters, the key organization behind repeal, said "it looks as though we did not work hard enough."

The proposal on welfare payments apparently passed by safe margin. The remaining

Death List Hits 22 After Crash Of Finn Airliner

MARIEHAMN, Finland (UPI) — The death toll climbed to 22 Saturday in the crash of a Finnish airliner here with the discovery of another body in the burned-out wreckage.

Three persons — two passengers and the stewardess — survived Friday night's crash of the Finnair DC3 during a landing attempt at Mariehamn Airport.

The 22nd victim was identified as a Finnair pilot who was traveling as an unlisted passenger. A team of investigators flew in to study the wreckage of the American-built plane, which plowed into a swampy woodland a few hundred yards from the field, overturned and burst into flames.

The plane was on its last flight prior to a scheduled major overhaul, according to officials.

Billie Sol to Get Call From Panel in Senate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate investigators plan to call one-time Texas farm tycoon Billie Sol Estes next week for long-awaited questioning, informed sources said Saturday.

A Capitol Hill spokesman said hearings by the Senate permanent investigations subcommittee have been tentatively set for Tuesday.

Estes was the key figure in a farm scandal involving alleged improper manipulation of government cotton allotments and sales of fertilizer, but he never appeared before congressional investigators.

The subcommittee, headed by Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., wound up almost four months of hearings centered on the cotton acreage manipulations in September of last year, but kept the record open for Estes to testify personally.

The fortunes of the millionaire Pecos, farm operator went steadily downhill after the scandals were first disclosed. Estes since has been convicted on fraud charges and is free on bail, pending court appeal.

He also faces other state and federal indictments not yet brought to trial.

The Senate spokesman said it was not known for certain whether Estes would talk freely about his knowledge of the case, or invoke the Fifth Amendment and decline to testify on grounds of possible self-incrimination.

China Troops Not in Cuba, US Declares

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Defense Department said Saturday there may be a handful of Red Chinese advisers and observers in Cuba but declared there is no evidence of Chinese troop strength there.

The evaluation of Chinese participation under the Castro regime came in response to an inquiry.

In addition, U.S. intelligence sources indicated belief that Fidel Castro is doing his best to steer a delicately natural course between the Soviet Union and the Chinese Communists in their sharp ideological dispute.

They point out that this could account for Castro's refusal to sign the Soviet-sponsored nuclear test ban treaty, even though Cuba is still heavily dependent on Russian economic and military aid.

Gem Thieves In New York Leave Prints

NEW YORK (UPI) — Police said Saturday the five bandits who made off with jewelry and gold bars valued at up to $3 million in a daring downtown stickup committed the unpronounceable underworld sin. They left behind fingerprints.

The bandits, who otherwise worked with professional precision in hijacking a delivery station wagon Friday, were slipshod in removing the six guards and the loot from the truck, detectives said.

Fingerprints left throughout the station wagon are being checked by city police and the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Police originally estimated the loot in 2,000 white envelopes placed in six duffel bags and five fibre boxes resembling suitcases, at $1.5 million. They said Saturday the haul might run as high as $3 million.

Gray County Voters Nix Poll Tax Repeal

Gray County voted Saturday better than 2½ to 1 against a proposed constitutional amendment to repeal the $1.75 poll tax in Texas.

County voters turned down repeal of the tax 1085 to 450.

The vote was one of the lightest ever cast in a Gray County election. The unofficial total vote in the county was 1,535.

The county has a total of approximately 10,000 voters. There are 8,755 paid poll taxes in the county. There are several hundred eligible voters who are exempted from the poll tax requirement.

Poll tax repeal was favored in only one of Gray County's 12 precincts. That was in Pct. 12 on Pampa's South Side where the vote was 70 for repeal and 68 against.

County voters favored 789 to 678 the proposed welfare amendment for assistance payments to the needy aged, needy blind, needy children and to the totally disabled.

The Gray County vote was 828 to 457 against the amendment providing retirement, disability and death compensation for appointive officials and employees in Jefferson County.

The proposed amendment to increase the Veterans Land Fund was turned down by Gray County voters, 837 to 596.

The ballots, were counted and returns completed to County Clerk Charge Thut's office in the Court House at 8:45 p.m., 45 minutes after the polls closed.

Shoot-'em-Up Real At Movie

A downtown theater had a real shoot-'em-up to report Saturday.

Arville Hays, manager of the Capri theater, Francis and Cuyler, told police that someone did shoot a hole in the front door of the movie house between 11 p.m. and midnight Friday.

But the bullet was from a pellet gun and the hole in the bottom of the glass door was just a teeny one.

SECOND DISASTER IN DAY FOR NATION

Jap Mine Blast Kills 171

OMUTA CITY, Japan, Sunday (UPI) — A thunderous explosion of gas and coal dust ripped through the mile-deep Mitsui-Mikawa coal mine complex Saturday afternoon killing 171 miners and entombing up to 671 others in shafts filled with poison gas.

Mine officials said early today that 1,221 men were in the mine at the time of the explosion. Of these 379 were rescued, 80 of them injured in the mighty blast. Another 171 were pronounced dead. The mine said 250 were reported still alive and the status of 421 was unknown.

Second Disaster

It was the second major disaster to hit Japan in one day. At least 129 persons were reported killed and 94 injured when two speeding commuter trains crashed into the wreckage of a freight train which had been derailed when it hit a dump truck between Tokyo and Yokohama.

Rescue workers wearing gas masks were making a three-pronged drive through the mine from two adjacent coal mines in the faint hope that some of the trapped men might still be alive. But all electric power failed inside the pit and poisonous gases filled the passageways.

Corridors Blocked

Many corridors were blocked by rockfalls, making rescue difficult.

Omuta City is on Kyushu Island, the southernmost Japanese island, near the cities of Sasebo and Nagasaki, 40 miles south of Fukuoka. The mine in Japan's largest coal mining center extends far out under the waters of Ariake Bay. It adjoins the Miike and Miyaura mines further inland. The complex produces five million tons of coal a year.

The explosion at 3:20 p.m. occurred about 1,500 feet inside the mine when 1,300 men were on duty. It was so powerful it turned the pithead buildings into a shambles, blasting away two huge power transformers and all the mine's ventilating equipment.

It shattered windows a third of a mile from the pithead, and its shockwave was felt four miles away. The explosion sent tremendous plumes of heavy black smoke shooting into the sky from ventilation shafts and into the passageways of the adjacent mines.

Among Most Modern

The mine, 600 miles southwest of Tokyo, is one of the most modern in Japan and its equipment was considered the most modern to be found. Mine officials were at a loss to explain the blast and said all safety precautions were in effect at the time.

Police said they believed the explosion was caused by a spark either from electrical

Fist-Swinging, Name-Calling Not New in Annals of U.S. Congress

By FRANK ELEAZER
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Before Texas Reps. Henry (One-Punch) Gonzalez and Ed (Other Cheek) Foreman get to boasting too much about their prowess in the congressional ring they better look at the House record book. What Foreman called Gonzalez (Something more or less approximating a leftist); what Gonzalez offered to do in return (beat and pistol whip Foreman); and what Gonzalez actually did to Foreman (get off one punch or maybe it was only a shove to the shoulder) all add up to Sunday school stuff when compared to earlier exploits in the House.

Various lawmakers currently are expressing alarm at the exchange between Foreman and Gonzalez. They have variously announced they are shocked and grieved and appalled at this deplorable lack of decorum. Shucks, fellows.

Don't forget that dueling among members was common until the latter part of the last century. Things were rough right from the first session of Congress, and reached some kind of a peak during the emotional crises before, during and after the Civil War.

In the old days members called each other "liar" or "traitor" or "drunk" and then stalked outside to exchange pistol shots, sometimes with the kind of marksmanship that made it hard for the speaker to maintain a live quorum.

Once Served Liquor
Until the white ribbon crowd took over they used to serve booze in the Capitol building. And some of the customers were among the dozens of members who wouldn't be caught answering the call of the roll without derringers tucked in their belts. This worked against dull sessions of Congress.

Members in that earlier era were known to spit on each other. When the House was heated by fireplace, one overenthusiastic lawmaker grabbed the fire tongs for a weapon. Can-

The Lighter Side

Joe E. Lewis Called Authority on 'Sin'

By DICK WEST
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Joe E. Lewis, one of America's best loved toasts, came here recently to deliver a series of temperance lectures at a local lyceum called the Blue Room.

Lewis likes the Blue Room because of its decor, which matches the color of his jokes.

A press agent was telling me that Lewis would make good column material because he had become successful doing things that are supposed to be the ruin of man.

In his public image, at least, he has made a career of drinking to excess, chasing after young girls and squandering his dough at the race track.

In my opinion, however, this press agent had the wrong angle.

The truth is that vices are a glut on the market. Practically everyone you meet nowadays has a complete matched set of minor transgressions.

Discuss Sin
I wouldn't say that people sin more than they used to, but they surely do spend more time discussing it.

You sit down by a stranger on a bus and the chances are that by the time you reach your stop he has told you that he drinks too much and is cheating on his wife.

You go to a party and it's a good bet you will spend the entire evening listening to some blowy dame in a sequined dress relate the experiences of a compulsive gambler.

The tendency of people to blurt out indiscretions that 30 years ago they wouldn't have confessed on a torture rack has reached alarming proportions. Depravity has become a real drag.

Things are coming to the point where I would rather have people tell me about their hernia operations.

Makes Subject Entertaining
What makes Lewis unusual, then, is not that he talks about ings were commonplace.

In 1858, during what passed then for debate on a matter related to slavery, the House floor was the scene of a riot. That time almost everybody got into the act, including the sergeant-at-arms, who in theory can stop any floor altercation by merely "presenting the mace."

In the 1880's Speaker Warren Keifer of Ohio is said to have presided with gavel in hand and pistol in pocket.

Foreman in announcing proudly he had refrained from returning Gonzalez' blow, was by no means the first to assume the Southern gentleman role. When Rep. Preston Brooks of South Carolina in 1856 marched across to the Senate with the intent to cane abolitionist Sen. Charles Sumner of Massachusetts, he politely bided his time a full quarter hour until two lady visitors had departed the hall. Then he nearly beat Sumner to death.

Foreman Apologizes
In a preliminary bout to last week's altercation, Foreman two weeks ago apologized to Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., to whom he had in an unguarded moment applied the term "pinko." He said he apologized because Edwards had offered to sue. Actually what he said in his apology was that he was sorry newspapermen had quoted him as calling Edwards a "pinko."

Although this appeared to fall somewhat short of a full retraction, it apparently satisfied Edwards. As for newspapermen, they are accustomed to being blamed for trouble in matters like this.

However, correspondent Charles Kincaid of the Louisville Times in 1890 carried his disagreement with a member of Congress further than is generally considered good form. He had been tangling with Kentucky Tep William P. Taulbee for much of Taulbee's two terms in office, and shortly after Taulbee retired wrote a piece saying the lawmaker and a lady acquaintance were somewhat "closer than friends."

For some reason Taulbee, an ordained Methodist minister, took umbrage at this. Words were exchanged just outside the House door. Then Kincaid pulled a pistol and let Taulbee have it right in the head.

Until a few months ago, when the route was changed, tourist guides at the Capitol still were pointing out the resulting blood spots on a marble staircase.

Fights Fewer
In recent decades, the altercations have been fewer and the altercants have retained more of an amateur standing.

In 1945, then-Rep. Frank Hook of Michigan called then Rep. John Rankin of Mississippi a particular kind of a damned liar after Rankin had spoken unkindly of organized labor. Rankin, who weighed in at 130 and stood five-feet-six, replied with a right to Hook's jaw and attempted other correctives. Hook, a six-foot ex-miner and wrestler, with a bulk of 195, merely pushed Rankin away.

In 1955, then-Rep. Cleveland M. Bailey, D-W. Va., a little man with a short fuse, knocked Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, D-N. Y., right out of his chair.

his foibles in public but the fact that he can make such commonplace subjects entertaining.

After 40 years of steady dissipation, Lewis claims that he still has "the body of a child—a weak, pale, sickly child."

Why does he continue to drink so much? "I am carrying a torch for Jessica Dragonette," he explains.

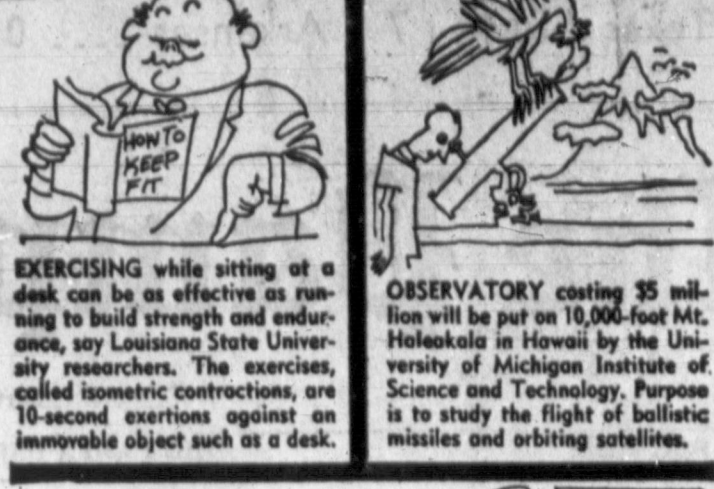

Small wonder that he should go through life thinking that Hyannis Port was the brand name for a "sweet kosher wine." Or that he would speak well of overindulgence.

"Show me a man who can hold his liquor and I will show you a serious kidney condition" is his philosophy.

I don't know how much Lewis gets paid but he deserves every cent. It takes real talent to uphold the standards of professional debauchery in the face of so much amateur competition.

Catherine the Great of Russia (1729-1796) was determined to make Russian society as cultivated as that of Paris or Berlin. At court she insisted on a high standard of manners and she encouraged her nobles to travel. Catherine's letters are graceful and witty and show real political and diplomatic insight. She wrote a history of the Russian people and a play in the style of Shakespeare. To accomplish all this she would rise at 5 a.m. and make her own fire.

Cities Need Broader Tax Base, Says TML President

HOUSTON (UPI)—Cities will lose some of their self-government and will lose the battle to pay for services unless they are allowed to broaden their tax base, the president of the Texas Municipal League (TML) said Friday.

Whatever the state legislature lets the cities do to solve their problems, Willis said, it must be careful not to turn them loose to unlimited choices.

Willis said he thinks cities and rural areas in Texas are getting along well without any "genuine conflict," although many state laws and parts of the constitution "are intended to diminish the influence of cities and to discriminate in favor of the non-urban areas."

Senate 'Dragging Its Feet,' Solon Charges

By WILLIAM THEIS
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Why has it taken the Senate so long to accomplish so little?
Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., triggered a spate of soul-searching oratory when he charged that Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., was responsible for the Senate's "dribbling" pace.
"If we're going to get our business, he's got to be a leader and say no sometime," Dodd said. He did not spare Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, Ill. He said the opposition "has become so complacent, so soft, so cozy that it doesn't amount to much."
As is his custom, the mid-mannered Mansfield turned the other cheek, insisting that Congress' record required no apologies. Dirksen blasted Dodd and said the Connecticut Democrat was displaying "cerebral incoherence."
The Dodd outburst and the ensuing debate pointed up the mounting frustration on Capitol Hill over the legislative slowdown, however. It appears that this session will end without final action on either civil rights or tax cut legislation — the two big issues President Kennedy wanted settled in 1963.

Mansfield and — to a lesser extent — Dirksen are easy targets, fellow senators say, but neither should bear the blame for the slowdown.
They say the blame should be spread farther afield — the White House, the House of Representatives, Southern lawmakers fighting civil rights legislation, not to mention the Senate's system of rules branded "archaic" by liberals.
You can put 90 per cent of it down to civil rights," one veteran senator declared. "And the blame belongs as much downtown (the White House) as in Congress."
Once President Kennedy switched his 1963 program in midstream and decided to push for an omnibus civil rights bill "a lot of people began to sit on things," he said. That meant a little delay here, an extra batch of witnesses to be heard there — anything to produce a stretch-out of congressional business.
"The only way Southerners have of modifying the civil rights bill so they can perhaps live with it is to force it into the election year," the senator said. "And there isn't too much that Mike Mansfield or anyone else can do about it, under our system."

On the Farm Front Agriculture Book Boon to Farmers

By GAYLORD P. GODWIN
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department Saturday published its annual "best seller," the yearbook of agriculture. It will never hit the bookshelves, but its distribution will be large.
The 1963 yearbook is entitled "A Place to Live." The 364 pages offer a far-ranging examination of the effects of urbanization and industrialization in many aspects of American life.
"A Place to Live" cites a need for discussion, plans, and action by all Americans regarding the use of resources. It discusses public services in communities, rural redevelopment, and education and economic opportunities for farmers and others who have been caught up in the mesh of technological change.

Much space is given to accounts of the growing demand for outdoor recreation. The urban and suburban sprawl into farmlands, parks and open spaces, the functions of governing bodies, the management of water and air pollution, and much more.
There are 79 chapters, written in non-technical, informative style by 92 authors. The writers include 38 employees of the department, 15 employees of other government agencies, 24 college and university professors, and 15 members of public and private organizations whose work relates to research, planning, horticulture, and conservation.
The government printing office already has run off 251,000 copies. Most of these will be given by members of Congress to their constituents.

Rogers Asks FCC For Suspension Of License Plan

Congressman Walter Rogers of Pampa, chairman of the Subcommittee on Communications of the House Commerce Committee, has asked the Federal Communications Commission to suspend its plan to assess license fees and other charges for services "until further action by the Congress of the United States."
Rogers made the request in a letter to Chairman E. William Henry of the Federal Communications Commission. The schedule of fees approved by the Commission is to become effective January 1, 1964, unless the FCC stays a previous order or Congress prevents the move by enacting legislation.

Each senator gets 550 copies for free distribution, and each representative gets 400 copies. The vice president, territorial delegates, doorkeepers, the sergeant-at-arms, and others on congressional staffs receive allotments. The books are handy things to give to visitors—and voters.

Mme. Nhu Makes Plans to Bring Children to U.S.

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (UPI)—Mme. Ngo Dinh Nhu, "relieved after completing a trans-Atlantic telephone call to her three youngest children in Rome, today made plans to have them brought here."
Although details of the conversation between the ousted First Lady of South Viet Nam and her children Friday were not made public, it was believed she asked her brother-in-law, Archbishop Ngo Dinh Thue, to assist in making the travel arrangements.
The three children have been in the care of the archbishop, who is in Rome for the Roman Catholic Ecumenical Council, since they were flown there following the overthrow of the Ngo Dinh Diem government last week.

It was reported that the archbishop had obtained a seven-day leave of absence from the Ecumenical Council at the Vatican in order to escort Mme. Nhu's children, whose ages are 4, 10 and 15, to Los Angeles.

Congressman Rogers informed Chairman Henry that "we do expect to schedule hearings at the earliest possible time, which conceivably could be in the early part of 1964. It is hoped that the matter can be reached during this year, but the many matters pending before the Congress could prevent this."
The Congressman advised Chairman Henry that "it would be advisable for the effective date of the order entered in Docket No. 14507 to be suspended until public hearings can be held before the subcommittee."
Congressman Rogers continued, "As soon as these public hearings are concluded, it is my desire to present the conclusions of the Subcommittee to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce and request early action."

SPACE DISTRESS SIGNAL
GENEVA (UPI) — The International Space Conference has set up an "SOS" radio frequency for spacemen in distress.
It is 20,007-kilocycles, and came after a Soviet request for action on "traffic rules" for space.

IPAA President Hits Federal Oil Policies

DALLAS (Spl) — The nation's petroleum industry is being confronted with "phantom" policy decisions based on questionable conclusions by a new "power superstructure" in the federal government, according to the president of the Independent Petroleum Association of America.

Harold Decker of Houston said this "new order" must be challenged and government policy and decision making processes affecting oil and gas brought into the open.

Declaring oil and gas policy decisions are being made by men who, "judging from their own statements, understand neither the oil business nor the free enterprise system," the Houston oilman said:

"Unless the purposes, objectives and motives of this new policy inner-group can be clarified, in an atmosphere of harmony and mutual-trust with the industry concerned, then I suggest that perhaps they can be clarified by the United States Congress."

"Those advocating enlarged control over this industry can prevail only in secret," he said. "Their views and their purposes must be exposed to the light of day."

In a report concluding his second year as president of IPAA, at the organization's 34th annual meeting last week in Dallas, Decker singled out the long-secret report of President Kennedy's inter-departmental Petroleum Study committee as a cardinal example of the trend to "phantom" policy decisions and actions on oil and gas.

He said this report had been the basis for a number of policy actions affecting the petroleum industry, although it was rejected, at least in part, by the President, and gave "less than lip service" to Mr. Kennedy's directive that it deal primarily with national security considerations.

"The determination apparently has been made to build a powerful superstructure, with no central responsibility, to which the industry can look, to make studies, reach conclusions, issue recommendations, and set policies on oil and gas," Decker said.

Secretary Rusk Reports On Wheat Trade With Russians

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk said today that "some progress has been made" in negotiations to sell American wheat to the Soviet Union. But he said he did not know whether a deal would be completed.

Asked at a news conference why there was so much "secrecy" surrounding the talks here, Rusk said there was "a certain amount of bargaining" going on and it is "not in our interest to disclose the details."

Rusk joked to newsmen that he would be glad to tell them the details "if you would not tell the Soviet Union."

Rusk said American and Soviet negotiators were meeting again today on the proposed $250 million sale. He said he could not go into further details at this time.

Rusk's comments on the wheat deal came amid indications here and in Moscow that the stalled negotiations were moving again.

President Kennedy conferred with his advisers Thursday about the wheat sale negotiations. Administration officials said the talks were making progress again after weeks of deadlock over shipping rates.

Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev also told visiting American corporation executives in Moscow Thursday that talks were going better.

KIDS' COLDS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Colds continue to be the largest single factor contributing to school absences, report researchers at a drug firm (Schering Corp.).

Medical surveys cited by the researchers indicate children of elementary school age have five times as many colds as do adults.

School Starts On Income Tax Next Wednesday

The annual Gray County income tax school for tax accountants, farmers and ranchers will be held at 9:30 a.m. next Wednesday in the Agricultural Building of the Courthouse Annex, it was announced Saturday by Foster Whaley, county agricultural agent.

James Finley, Internal Revenue agent from Lubbock will head the instructors at the school. He will be assisted by James Murphrey of Amarillo, farm management specialist.

"Much benefit can be derived from the school," Whaley said. "After last year's school one farmer told us he saved about $1,000 by attending. He learned at the school that he could take investment credit on much of the expense of an irrigation well."

Subjects to be discussed at the session will include depreciation, gain and loss on sale, capital gain, casualty losses, social security, investment credit, and self-employed persons pension plan.

Whaley said the school will be of special benefit to tax accountants who make out income tax returns for farmers and ranchers.

Sex Scandals Boost MRA's Comeback in Britain

By TOM A. CULLEN
LONDON (NEA) — Moral Reformers, the quasi-religious group founded by the late Dr. Frank Buchman, is finding Britain's vice and security scandals lush pastureland in which to graze.

In particular, MRA leaders have been cashing in on the publicity recently given to the Profumo and Vassal scandals to demand widespread moral reform. (The Profumo affair bracketed a British Cabinet minister with a 21-year-old call girl, while the Vassal case involved a homosexual spy at the Admiralty.)

"Britain, the nation which humbled Hitler, could be destroyed by moral rot," is the sermon-now preached by MRA.

More recently, MRA has been including the Royal Family, the British Broadcasting Corporation and Anglican bishops in its attacks as failing to give a moral lead to the nation.

Thanks to these hard-hitting tactics, MRA has been getting wide press coverage here. Also its receipts are up. The movement's income from gifts and legacies in Britain alone now runs to well over $600,000 a year.

The man largely responsible for MRA's resurgence here is lean, dark Peter Howard, 54, who inherited founder Frank Buchman's mantle when the latter died in 1961.

Until recently Howard was known here chiefly as a sportsman. He once captained England's top rugby football team, and he was a member of the British bobsled team which won the world championship in 1959.

In the two years since Buchman's death however, Howard has quietly established his authority, until today he is accepted as the worldwide leader of MRA, though his appointment has never been discussed or ratified.

In his writings and public speeches, the ex-rugby player has shown himself to be adept in innuendo, as well as being a master of the sweeping generalization.

For example, while not directly criticizing the British Royal Family, Howard recently implied that they keep had company. "The Royal Family should refuse to consort with any whose habits are known to be debased," Howard told an MRA assembly. "They would let it be known that they will not attend plays or public performances which honor dirt and dishonor God."

Again, in demanding that Parliament should investigate the British Broadcasting Corporation, the MRA leader accused BBC of sending "a spiritual sewer flowing into the homes of the nation." Howard neglected to mention the grounds on which he based this conclusion.

The Anglican bishop of Southwark, Dr. Mervyn Stockwood, has also come in for Howard's attention. In recent statements Howard has hinted that the bishop is trying "to drag the church into the political arena and to make it the lackey of the left wing."

Such attacks, when not backed up by facts, smack of demagoguery, in the opinion of many observers here. After watching Howard on television recently, one British commentator likened him to a snapping fox terrier.

Other complaints concern MRA's use of photographs and endorsements from the great and near great. Endorsers range from former Chancellor Konrad Adenauer to Conrad Hunte, "opening batsman for the West Indies Cricket Team." Such endorsements are often misrepresented, according to MRA critics.

Before the war, Moral Reformers had a reputation of being pro-Nazi. Himmler encouraged it in Germany, and Dr. Buchman once remarked, "I thank God for a man like Adolph Hitler, who has built a front line of defense against the anti-Christ of Communism."

Because its organizers are hazy concerning the source of their finance, MRA has also been criticized by trade unions as being the tool of big business. Although MRA preaches the reconciliation of class interests, many unions claim that it is essentially antilabor.

The group's real estate holdings include two hotels and a string of chalets overlooking Lake Geneva, Switzerland. Its retreat on Mackinac Island, Mich., has accommodations for 1,000 persons, as well as a 700-seat theater and television studio.

Meanwhile, Howard spends much of his time in spreading the gospel of MRA abroad, particularly in Asia. In between trips, he has written books which have sold 5 million copies, and he has also authored 14 plays. He even finds time for farming in Suffolk.

Those who were predicting that the MRA movement would not long survive the death of its founder, Dr. Buchman, are now eating their words. MRA is in the chips and seems to be riding high.

Guadalupe Mountain Park Sought by Texas Senator

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A bill to create a Guadalupe Mountain National Park in West Texas has been introduced by Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex. He said the park would attract "millions" of tourists.

The 70,000-acre park would be located in the Trans-Pecos area in Culberson and Hudspeth counties. It would lie 100 miles east of El Paso and 55 miles southwest of Carlsbad, N.M. Elevation would range from 3,700 feet to 8,700 feet.

Yarborough said he understood the National Park Advisory Board recommended creation of such a park in a meeting this week at Big Bend National Park.

"This will make a gem of a national park," he said. "Millions will come to view the beauty."

"Texas has in it two national parks," he said. "Big Bend and Padre Island Seashore."

"The Guadalupe Mountains National Park will complete the trilogy and give Texas and the nation three great parks within Texas which are truly national in scope, interest, availability and uniqueness."

'64 Jet-smooth Luxury CHEVROLET

Here are looks, luxury and comfort you'd expect to set you back plenty — if they came from anybody but Chevrolet.

Fresh-minted styling with clean uncluttered lines that give the '64 Jet-smooth Chevrolet its feeling of new length and lowness.

Rich new interiors with supple fabrics (sink your hand into the new vinyl upholstery of the new Impala Super Sport Series, for instance, and ask yourself if you've ever felt softer seat covering).

Here are the niceties of Body by Fisher craftsmanship like you'll find on expensive cars. And stylish touches like the vinyl-clad roof* you can order on the Sport Coupes.

Door-to-door carpeting and foam-cushioned front and rear seats are standard now in all models, including the modestly priced Biscaynes. And there's a wealth of power to pick from. Engines from a peppery 140-hp 6 to a 425-hp V8*. Transmissions that are refined for smoother, more silent operation. Sixteen power teams in all.

Then, with all of that going for you, you've got the '64 Jet-smooth ride at work to cushion you from road noise and vibration like few other cars can at any price.

Been promising yourself luxury like this someday? Your someday is here, as your dealer will gladly show you.

Man Arraigned Here In Store Burglary

Robert Johnson Jr. of 411 Maple, now in the Gray County jail in lieu of $2,000 bond for the theft of two sewing machines last week, was arraigned before Justice of Peace G. L. (Nat) Lunsford late Saturday for the burglary at night of Cizon's Jewelry.

The jewelry store, looted Nov. 2, between the hours of 2:30 and 2:45 a.m., recorded a loss of more than $1,170, according to Gary Neal, manager.

Roy Brown of Oklahoma also was arraigned before Justice Lunsford for receiving and concealing stolen property. He was placed on $1,500 bond.

Both men are being held in lieu of the bonds and Johnson also is being held on the previous bond.

City Patrolman Roger Scott assisted the Gray County Sheriff's Department in the arrest of the two Negro men.

Johnson signed a statement admitting the burglary. Sheriff R. H. (Rufe) Jordan said.

Desk, Derrick Group Visits Pam-Tex Plant

Members of the Desk and Derrick Club of Pampa toured Pam-Tex Steel Buildings new facilities on the Berger Highway Friday in an official club field trip.

Ed Myatt, chairman of the board of Pam-Tex, conducted the tour and explained how Pam-Tex was organized, the organizational set-up, products manufactured and other pertinent information concerning the operations of one of Pampa's newer industries.

Nine members of the club made the tour: Selma Heard, Lois Teel, June Allen, Jean White, Marie Horn, Donna Day, Knoxine Russell, Therssa Sell, and Dorothy Hamilton.

Two weeks ago, six members of the club made a field trip to Daingerfield, where they visited the Lone Star Steel plant, along with members of the Amarillo D&D Club.

Pam-Tex, a locally owned and operated steel fabrications firm, manufactures principally steel buildings for a wide range of industrial and commercial uses including gasoline plants, farm and ranch buildings, storage and warehouse facilities, and any type of retail outlet desiring the permanence and excellence of steel construction.

Mrs. Heard is president of the Pampa club. Other officers include Helen Sams, vice president; Mickey Johnson, recording secretary; Donna Day, corresponding secretary and Ruth Smith, treasurer. Board members are Marie Horn, Knoxine Russell, Betty Conatser and June Allen, immediate past president.

Pampans Attend Chicago Meeting

Thousands of subpoenas were handed out by a posse of Texas "sheriffs," including one from Pampa, to witnesses of numerous gun-fights in McCormick Place, Chicago convention center, during the recent annual exposition of the National Lumber and Building Material Dealers Association in Chicago.

The subpoenas summoned the witnesses to appear in Dallas next November when 10,000 lumbermen are expected to convene. The gunfighters were imports from Six Flags over Texas, and the "sheriffs" were Texas lumbermen attending the convention.

Included in the Texas delegation were Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Tinney, owner of the I. W. Tinney Lumber and Supply Company of Pampa.

Congress

pected to vote heavily for repeal indicated a victory for backers of the $1.75 tax Texans must pay before they can vote.

A special election in the 10th Congressional District to elect a successor for U. S. Rep. Homer Thornberry resulted in a runoff at a date to be set.

Returns at 10 p.m. put conservative Democrat J. J. (Jake) Pickle of Austin in front by about 400 votes. With all 10 counties reporting, 6 complete, Pickle had 10,431 votes to 10,037 votes for Republican Jim Dobbs, who will be in the runoff. Liberal Democrat Jack Ritter trailed with 8,857 votes.

Supporters of the poll tax contended repeal was a liberal scheme to help President Kennedy carry Texas in 1964. In 1960, with Texan Lyndon Johnson as his running mate, Kennedy carried the state by only 47,897 votes.

Repeat forces claimed the tax is merely a price on the ballot box. They pointed out that only two more states are needed to with the poll tax in national amendment that would do away elections. Failure to repeal the Texas poll tax, they said, would result in chaos at the polls.

Ike Provides Tips For Voters

Washington Window
By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press International

Recommended to the voters for their serious consideration is Chapter VIII of former President Eisenhower's just published account of his years in the White House, "Mandate For Change," Doubleday & Co.

The chapter title tells the story. "The Platform-Promises to Keep." It is a timely chapter.

A cancer in the tissue of American politics today is the malignant chicanery involved in the drafting of presidential campaign platforms. These extravagant statements of party purpose and policy tend more to obscure than to illuminate what actually is the program of the candidates and of the political parties.

Moreover, the platform writers knowingly write into the platforms promises that cannot be redeemed. This dishonesty is a fraud upon the voters and a disgrace to the American way of life. To discover this situation to exist can be a shocker to an honest man, such as Ike. In chapter VIII, he relates that soon after his inauguration he met at the White House with Republican congressional leaders.

Ike Was Astonished
"In this first meeting," he continued, "I said first that it was my intention to redeem the pledges of the platform and of the campaign. To my astonishment, I discovered that some of the men in the room could not seem to understand the seriousness with which I regarded our platform's provisions, and were amazed by my uncompromising assertion that I was going to do my best to fulfill every promise to which I had been a party.

"More than once I was to hear this view derided by practical politicians who laughed off platforms as traps to catch voters."

So it was with an honest man on discovering late in life that men who were otherwise honorable were, also, crooked in their dealings with the American people. In the harsh language of reality, these politicians lie to the people to obtain their votes. They get away with it because both major parties and almost all politicians accept this crooked practice as normal and necessary.

Long Before Ike
This dishonesty was in style long before Ike's 1952 campaign and it continues unabated. For example, both the Democratic and Republican platforms promised in 1960 to do something about Senate filibusters. President Kennedy himself made a campaign promise to obtain enactment of civil rights legislation early in his first

White House year. More specifically: On Sept. 1, 1960, candidate Kennedy issued a statement which included this language—"We pledge action to obtain consideration of a civil rights bill by the Senate early next (1961) session that will implement the pledges of the Democratic platform."

It is fair and reasonable to believe that Kennedy meant that when he said it. It is equally fair and reasonable to report that he reneged on that promise 100 per cent. He reneged, apparently, because a civil rights bill before the Senate in the winter-spring of 1961 would have created civil war within the Democratic party. To renege was practical politics.

With both parties pledged on filibusters you might think something would be done. You might, that is, unless you were a practical politician. The voters can and probably will catch up someday with these practitioners of deceit.

Cotton Crop Expected To Exceed Last Year's

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department Saturday estimated 15,322,000 bales of cotton will be produced this year, up 475,000 bales, or 3 per cent from last month's forecast.

Today's estimate, based on Nov. 1 crop conditions, compares with production last year of 14,867,000 bales and 5-year average production of 13,125,000 bales. Production last month was estimated at 14,847,000 bales.

The crop reporting board estimated cotton yields this year would average 516 pounds of last year's 457 pounds and a 5-year average of 440 pounds.

Included in today's estimate was a 151,900 bale crop of extra-long staple American Egyptian cotton. Last year farmers produced 112,700 bales of this type of cotton. The fiber is grown in Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and California.

The crop reporting board said nearly ideal weather for maturing and harvesting the cotton crop continued through October in most areas and jumped the estimate up to well above 15 million bales.

A thought for the day—American writer William Woodward said: "The turning points of lives are not the great moments. The real crises are often concealed in occurrences so trivial in appearance that they pass unnoticed."

Retail Sales Up From Last Year
DALLAS (UPI)— Department store sales in Texas rose 2 per cent during the week ending Nov. 2 as compared with a similar period last year, the Federal Reserve Bank said Saturday.

Stores in Dallas led the increase, jumping 7 per cent. El Paso stores added to the rise, increasing their sales by 5 per cent. Houston stores, however, dropped 2 per cent, and San Antonio stores had the biggest decline, falling 5 per cent.

Bracero Program Gives Congress Thorny Issue

By PAT KEEBLE
United Press International
SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI)

Drastic changes may lie ahead for both growers and consumers of millions of dollars worth of fruits and vegetables if Congress permits the Mexican bracero farm labor program to die at the end of this year.

This view is expressed by proponents of the program, who are asking Congress where they will get nearly 200,000 extra workers they will need at peak of harvest when they are utilizing all available American workers.

If Mexican bracero labor is not available, they say, there will be changes in crop patterns that could affect almost every dinner table in the country.

Opponents of the braceros say the end of the program will open up jobs for American workers, and that crops need not be affected.

The state of California, one of the heaviest users of harvest labor, both foreign and domestic, is doing something to solve problems on both sides.

The state Department of Employment, the University of California's agricultural economists and legislative labor committees have in separate studies during the last few years testified there are not enough American workers during the harvest season to pick the peaches, pears, apricots, oranges, celery, walnuts, almonds, olives, lemons and scores of other fruit and vegetable specialty crops for which the state is noted.

Many growers of such stooop labor crops as tomatoes, lettuce, asparagus, melons and strawberries have seriously threatened to simply stop growing such crops if their labor supply is not assured by extension of the bracero program. The program is due to expire Dec. 31.

Albert Tieburg, state employment director, said after the House of Representatives defeated a bill to extend the bracero program, "we are going on the assumption that there will be no bracero program in 1964."

This meant, he said, that the department of employment will be forced to accelerate a number of programs that it has been working on for three years. It had hoped for five years' time to develop them.

The programs were aimed at cutting down on a number of complaints by both farmers and labor.

Growers, on the one hand, said that, with the braceros, they got ready-made farm crews consisting entirely of single, able bodied and skilled men who came to their farms only to do a job.

With the domestic crews, they said, a work group may consist of men, women and youths, with various abilities to do hard work and various degrees of skill. Turnover is high and there is no assurance the workers will stay on the job until it is done.

The workers, on the other hand, suffer from the fact that large numbers of hands are needed only during the relatively short harvest season. There has been little effort to provide them with jobs during the remainder of the year.

The departments programs are an attempt to stabilize the entire farm labor picture, for the benefit of both workers and growers. Its plans include:

—The annual worker plan, under which states join in making out itineraries for family and other worker groups, programming specific work periods at specific farms during the entire harvest season. The program was started by the U.S. Department of Labor.

—Worker registration, under which farm workers, as other job seekers, are registered with the state employment service and categorized as to job preference, skills and reliability.

—Youth employment, aimed at boys and girls who cannot find jobs in cities and towns during summer vacations.

—Employment of the unemployed in business and industry. The latter problem has been a bone of contention between opponents and proponents of the bracero program. Those against the program argue that the United States should not be importing workers when its own citizens are jobless. Farmers say they cannot get urban workers to do the hard field labor, particularly for the so-called stooop labor crops.

Don Larin, deputy director of the employment department, in charge of farm labor, said the state will try to employ urban workers on farms next year, but he admitted: "I don't know what we'll get."

"We get a lot of people out of some areas who seasonally come out for farm work, but it won't work generally," he said.

Larin said that during a widespread construction strike last year, a number of striking construction workers did harvest work until the strike was over.

But he said older workers, white collar workers and those with industrial skills generally could not be lured from the cities to the farms in the San Joaquin Valley's 100-degree-plus temperatures.

The 1963 season marks the third full year that the annual worker registration and youth programs have been used in California.

Last year 595 groups, migrating within California and from other states, participated in the annual worker plan. The groups included 5,200 persons, of whom 3,888 were workers. Of the total number of groups, 184 had participated in the plan in 1961. Larin said he hoped for at least a similar increase when the 1963 figures were in.

Mayor Thompson Proclaims Education Week for Pampa

(See Photo on Page One) Mayor H. Raeburn Thompson Saturday proclaimed Nov. 10-16 American Education Week in Pampa.

The mayor issued the following proclamation:

"Whereas, the provision of educational opportunity in our community is an eternal debt of this generation to the next, and

"Whereas, education is an essential basis for America's freedom, security, and prosperity, and

"Whereas, education is confronted by unparalleled problems, such as shortages in teacher supply, classrooms, and finance, which can be solved only by public understanding and public action, and

"Whereas, a rapidly changing world requires that education change to meet new challenges without diminishing the traditional American appreciation of the worth of the individual, the obligations of responsible citizenship, the dignity of constructive employment, and the value of the basic moral and spiritual values.

Efforts to Unite Sudanese Arabs, Negroes Is Test Case for Africa

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Following is the second of two dispatches on developments in the Sudan.)

By WILBUR G. LANDREY

KHARTOUM, Sudan (UPI)—The gravest problem facing the Sudan is that of welding its Arab north and Negro south into one nation. The outcome will be a test case for all Africa.

Two-thirds of the Sudan, the northern two-thirds, speaks Arabic, has Arab as well as Negro blood and practices the Moslem religion. It is dominant politically, better educated and inhabits the desert and irrigated lands of the center and north.

The remaining one-third of the country, in the south, is inhabited by a number of negroid tribes. They have been isolated by geography and history and are more backward. Some are Christian, but the majority are pagan. English is spoken as much as Arabic, Sudan's official language, and Christian missionaries have been a strong force.

Crucial Test

A split between the two would be an ominous sign for all Africa, where the frontiers of many countries, drawn by colonial powers in the 19th century, cut across tribal and religious lines. It is a spectre feared by nearly every African government.

Racial and regional mistrust between the Sudanese north and south goes back to the days when the Negro south was a hunting ground for Arab slave raiders. Later the South was administered separately by the British. In 1955, southern units of the Sudanese army rose against their largely northern officers and officials and killed more than 250.

And when the Sudan became independent in 1956, southern politicians were demanding local autonomy and federal links rather than a unified state.

Southern Demands

Southern demands never have been very clear but over the years various leaders have asked for everything from autonomy and federation to secession.

Things were quiet for several years after the military coup of Gen. Ibrahim Abboud in 1958. But ever since the 1955 mutiny, there have been Sudanese refugees across the borders in neighboring Congo, Uganda, Ethiopia and Kenya.

Because the frontiers sometimes divide tribes and there is constant coming and going, the number of these refugees is hard to estimate. But diplomats believe there must be several thousand.

Police Group Picks Pampa For Meeting

Pampa will be the scene of the next semi-annual meeting of the Panhandle Police Communications Association early in March.

One hundred and fifty delegates are expected to come to Pampa for the meeting at which time the bi-annual election of officers will be held.

Pampa won the next conference over bids from Guymon, Okla., and Clayton, N. M.

Delegates from Pampa successful in obtaining the meeting for their home town were Mrs. Annie Neel, Mrs. Leota Pollard and Mrs. Mary Walker, dispatchers in the Pampa police department.

Mrs. Neel said Saturday nearly 100 persons attended the one-day session of the association Thursday in Dumas.

AMARILLO AFB Hospital Among O.K.'d Projects

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A new hospital at Amarillo AFB was among projects authorized Friday in a $1.6 billion law President Kennedy signed for new military construction at home and overseas.

The southern Sudan again hit the headlines earlier this year when the government expelled about 140 missionaries, 17 of them Americans. Some were charged with political activities and the services of others, mostly teachers, were declared redundant since the government had taken over education from the missions. Nearly 300 Christian missionaries remain in the south.

That led to charges of religious persecution. The Sudanese government vehemently denied them and has charged that the whole affair was fanned by what Sudanese officials called an "unscrupulous foreign press."

Nations' Traffic Jam Spurs Brainbeating

NEW YORK (UPI)—Dramatic proposals to break the national traffic bottleneck are expected to emerge when Congress enacts the mass transit bill to help free the country's cities from creeping paralysis.

These proposals, according to Steelways, official publication of American Iron and Steel Institute, include:

- Wheelless vehicles that slide on a film of air a fraction of an inch above a special rail.
- A rented, motorized contraption that can travel automatically over private trackage and convert to driver propulsion along city streets.
- The hydrofoil, a boat that resembles a bus, skims along the surface and carries a score or more of passengers.

Personality Studies Come Up With Some Surprises

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI)—A University of California psychology study has turned up some unexpected findings on the subject of personality.

For one thing, human beings seem to be mentally tougher in facing life's strains than current theories expect.

For another, a large number of young people who grew up leading easy, confident lives changed into brittle discontented adults.

The UC study was based on a cross-section of individuals who were observed and tested from infancy to age 18, and again at 30. The studies spanned 35 years and were carried out by the Institute of Human Development at UC's Berkeley campus.

Dr. Jean W. MacFarlane, research psychologist, said many of those persons in the UC studies led strained, unhappy or erratic lives in their younger years. Yet a high proportion of these surprised researchers by working out their problems and developing into stable, productive and self-accepting parents and job-holders.

Among them were chronic rebels who had been expelled from high school; academic failures; unhappy, withdrawn schoolers; and one socially inept girl with extremely high blood pressure, which later became normal.

But others failed to achieve their potential after excelling during childhood. "Included were boys who were school leaders and athletes, and good-looking, socially skillful girls," Dr. MacFarlane said.

Perhaps, she explained, they had too much success too soon. This might lead to unreal expectations about life, or they may not have had enough stress in growing up "to temper strength or force thoughtful strength or force thoughtfulness and maturity."

Dr. MacFarlane and her fellow researchers are trying to pinpoint the combination of factors—family, environmental and biological—that shape the mature and immature individuals. They also want to know what patterns of personality development that carry over from one generation to the next are modified or reversed.

Dear Abby....

You Have Yet To Meet THAT Man, Honey!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: What a d v i c e have you for a 30-year-old woman who thinks it's time to marry, but doesn't know which man to choose? I've taught school for eight years, and am well-traveled, so I'm not a sheltered country girl. A 42-year-old minister (widower, three children) wants to marry me, but the fish-bowl type of life I'd have to live doesn't appeal to me and, besides, I'm not that goody-goody. A doctor has proposed, but my best friend is married to one and she says it's a dog's life. The most attractive candidate travels, and he'd expect me to travel with him. That's no good for a woman who wants roots! There is also a young professor, but people in education don't make much and I don't want to work after I'm married. Can you help me?

—but put a lock on your door and end them.

DEAR ABBY: I am 20 and I suppose I should be the happiest girl in the world, but I'm not. You see, I am going to marry a wonderful young man, but my parents are standing between me and the most important thing in my life—the kind of wedding every girl dreams of! I want a white gown and veil and I want to walk down the aisle. They insist that I get married in a short dress at a private ceremony in the parson's study. Their reason is a very narrowminded one. When I was only a child (17) I eloped with a boy the same age. I got pregnant right away. It was a big mixed-up mess. My folks had the marriage annulled and I gave the baby up for adoption. It is like it never happened now, Abby. Very few people in this town even know about it, and I think I have earned the right to start a new life. Can you help me convince my parents that they are wrong?

ANNETTE: DEAR ANNETTE: Face it. You haven't met the man you want to marry yet. When (and if) you do, you'll find a hundred reasons why you should marry him.

DEAR ABBY: Ron and I have been married only a few months and we are living with his parents until we can afford an apartment of our own. We pay $80 a month for our bedroom, but we have no privacy whatsoever. When I am away at work during the day, they go through every one of my drawers. If they would let me know what they are looking for, I'd be glad to help them find it. I have nothing to hide. There is no excuse for anyone even going into our room as I clean it myself. My husband knows about his parents going through my things, but he says they'll be hurt if we make any accusations. What should I do?

STARTING OVER: DEAR STARTING: Sorry, I can't help you. I think your parents are right.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "RELIGIOUS BUT TEMPTED": "The lips of a strange woman drop as an honeycomb, and her mouth is smoother than oil. But her end is bitter as wormwood, sharp as a two-edged sword." (Proverbs, 5:3-4).

NOTHING TO HIDE: DEAR NOTHING: How about a compromise? Don't ask the folks about the "treasure hunts"

Playroom

Walls using an area rug in the future.

Walls can be wood paneled to give warmth and character to the room and again to insure adaptability. Prestige woods like vertical grain wood coast hemlock can be used without worry when finished with one of the new clear plastics. These new plastics are entirely washable, though fingerprints and other smudges won't show up on natural finished wood as they do on a flat, painted surface. In addition, many of the plastics have a hand-rubbed appearance which will give the family room walls living room liveliness.

Walls paneled in tongue-and-groove hemlock have a natural charm and a timelessness which allows you to switch furnishings easily, from Early Arts to Early American or any other style. Any color scheme is enhanced by their rich golden-brown coloring.

Storage built-ins are another essential of the family room's basic shell. There should be open shelves, cupboards designed to take anything from an ash tray to a card table or the music equipment, without inferior character. They can be built with doors flush with the walls, or designed to look like a grouping of bunch chests, topped by a counter. A window seat is another good idea. It will store the children's assortment of toys and games and, later, their sports equipment.

IT'S WHITE, LIGHT AND BRIGHT FOR SPRING '64

The whites, lights and brights — news in men's fashions for Spring and Summer '64 — are modeled here in front of Dallas Market Hall, where some 2,500 dealers will attend the Southwestern Men's and Boys' Apparel Market October 6-9. Emphasizing the light-bright-white trend are the model's dachshund suit, light in texture and color, his white shirt, bright tie and 'kerchief, and, even his hat — a light straw, almost white, with a bright band. Dealers will be selecting new Spring merchandise for their stores throughout the southwest from some 1,300 manufacturers.

Fifteen New Volunteers Capped In Impressive Ceremony Sunday

New Volunteers of the American Red Cross were capped during a service held Sunday afternoon in the City Club Room. Gray Ladies of the Gray County Chapter of the ARC sponsored the girls.

Chapter chairman, E. B. Pemberton, opened the meeting and greeted the guests. Rev. Jack Ritz, pastor of St. Paul's Methodist Church, gave the invocation. Miss Susan Lawrence accompanied Miss Irene Trout who sang "My Task" and the "Lord's Prayer."

Dr. Carl Lang, representing the physicians who serve at Highland General Hospital, addressed the group. He stated, "You girls will never know the value of your therapy on the patients at the hospital. You, by giving yourselves to help others, awaken the minds of the patients to a realization of what it means to serve others." He expressed his thanks to the Red Cross for such a program, for the girls who give up so many nice things to serve others.

Mrs. Jack Foster, chairman of Volunteers, spoke of the training the girls had received and commended them on their work in the hospitals.

Miss Verrell Meador, Superintendent of Nurses, placed the caps on each girl's head. Mrs. H. S. Alexander, Gray Lady chairman, pinned the Volunteer Pin on the pinafores of the girls, and Mrs. Libby Shotwell, executive secretary of the Gray County Chapter, presented each Volunteer with a certificate showing they had completed the Junior Gray Lady Work.

The serving table was laid in white with red carnations providing the floral decoration. Red punch was served, with squares of cake, frosted in white and bearing small red crosses, by

We missed Mrs. A. H. Burgin this week, she had gone to St. Louis to see her nephew Kent Kimbell who has just returned from duty in Germany and will be stationed at Biloxi, Miss.

Visiting the Center was Mrs. Willie Elliot; and also Mrs. Earl Harlan, a niece of Mrs. Hills from Bradford, Pa. who, with her husband, is visiting the A. D. Hills. Mrs. Harlan and Uncle Billy Frost were having a nice visit; as Uncle Billy came from that part of the country too. Alice Isbell was with us after an extended absence.

Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Kreimeyer attended the funeral of Mr. Kreimeyer's aunt in Wichita, Kans. Burial was at her old home in Nashville, Kans.

Miss Maurita Taylor was up over the week end from Harford (where she teaches) visiting her mother Mrs. Elizabeth Taylor, and they, with some friends from their old home town of Texas, went to Canadian Sunday and made the beautiful "foliage tour"; and also visited the old log cabin, furnished in the original style of the early settlers of Canadian. They report a beautiful drive.

Mrs. Edith Mills was a house guest of her daughter Mrs. Bruce Hanson and family in Big Springs, the past two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Jay Evans had the pleasure of attending the ordination of Mr. Evans' grandson the Rev. Earl Evans of Abilene in one of the Baptist churches there.

Mr. and Mrs. Ennis Jones, and Mrs. Jones' sister, Mrs. Wilma Dixon, have returned from Grants Pass, Oregon where they had a nice visit with a sister Mrs. Roy Jackson and family.

Mr. E. G. Rogers was missed from his usual table, understand he is in one of the hospitals. Mrs. Ollie Staton underwent surgery in Highland Hospital last week and is doing nicely. Mrs. Carrie McBride of Amarillo was a guest of her sister Mrs. Lona Webster last week end. Mrs.

Enloe, Griffin, Ray Tubbs, Elizabeth Taylor, Verda Adair, Len Meadows, Miss Pat Ray, Mrs. O. F. Kreimeyer was Major. Good work ladies.

Hostess were the Pampa Garden Club; serving cake with whipped cream and coffee were Mmes. Bert Robinson, W. R. Campbell, Joe Weaver, W. E. Hinton, Joe Shelton and Lee Harrah.

Mrs. Weaver provided the lovely centerpiece of fall flowers that graced the serving table. Door prizes went to Mrs. Gresteman and Mr. Mitchell.

Altruists serving: Mmes. E. M. Coston, Louise Sewell, J. R. Martin, Lillian Snow, Gray Ladies serving with transportation: Mmes. Geo. Benham, Jess Hatcher, O. F. Kreimeyer, A. D. Hills and Lee Harrah.

A Bite Here And There, Puts A Pound Here, Another There

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — If your teen-aged offspring is obese, take a good look at yourself, your spouse, and the family's eating habits.

That piece of advice comes from Dr. S. L. Hammar of the University of Washington School of Medicine.

Writing in "GP," a publication of the American Academy of General Practice, Hammar said overweight parents and their food habits contribute heavily to obesity in adolescents.

A study of 50 young persons at the University of Washington Adolescent Clinic here revealed that two thirds of the children, whose ages ranged from 10 to 17, were from families in which both parents were markedly overweight.

The incidence of obesity was higher in mothers, but none of the parents was making any attempt to control his weight at the time of the study.

None of the children was successful in losing weight, Hammar said. He added that other studies have shown that 80 per cent of girls and 66 per cent of boys who are obese in adolescence become obese adults.

The study, Hammar said, showed family eating patterns were deeply ingrained and could not be changed. Youngsters constantly talked about food and what they liked to eat and were unaware completely of the amount of food they consumed. In most cases, the mothers were excellent cooks.

Hammar said the adolescents studied fell into three personality patterns: the dependent, immature type; the angry, aggressive type; and the emotionally disturbed type.

Floral Arrangements Chosen for Church

Mrs. Lee Harrah and Mrs. Owen Gee were hostesses to the Pampa Garden Club on November 4. After a brief business meeting members enjoyed a program on "Church Arrangements".

"Even though flowers for the church are receiving more attention now than ever before, it is by no means a new thing," Mrs. Harrah told the group, as she traced the use of flowers in worship from long before the Christian era when they were used in festivals to the gods. Flowers were not placed on the altar for centuries in the early Christian church because the pagans had used them, but this idea faded away because people realized that God had made flowers and nothing could be wrong with using anything so beautiful in their worship services. Flowers have been used ever since with the exception of a few years after the Reformation when the Puritans threw out all decorations in their zeal to purify the church of all corrupt practices.

"In our churches today, neither the cross nor the candles, nor the flowers are ornaments as we regard such in secular life. They have ecclesiastical significance through their symbolism. Flowers on the altar symbolize joy in Christ's resurrection. Candles stand for Christ as the Light of the World. The altar cross reminds worshippers of the atoning of their Lord.

"Church ornaments including flowers should be primarily and earnestly dedicated to the greater glory of God and to the adornment of the house of prayer where His children choose to meet together and worship Him each in the manner he chooses to follow. No set of man-made restrictions, no desire to please the congregation, nor the generous giver, no effort to show off talent, may ever take precedence over our obligation to use flowers as an expression of gratitude and homage to the giver of all good things.

"A dozen carnations with equal length stems dropped into a narrow necked vase is no longer a worthy offering. The inherent beauty of flowers is not enough—they must be enhanced by becoming part of a design. In considering the design inside the church many things have to be taken into consideration such as the flowers themselves, the containers, the size and shape of the altar and even the architecture of the building. And one of the important things to think about is that of placement. Even the most exquisite arrangement will not look right unless it is planned for its immediate surroundings and the space it will occupy.

One principle above all others must be observed when placing flowers in a sanctuary, that is, no arrangement of flowers, containers, candlestands, garlands, potted plants or any other materials may be placed where they will interfere with any part of the service, obstruct the view of any one in the congregation or hamper the free movements of the people at any time. They must be placed where they can be seen by all and they must be made so that at any viewpoint they are artistically complete. There is a four-point standard all church arrangements should have:

1. Suitability—a suitable flower arrangement will integrate itself into the service. It won't display itself like a proud peacock nor will it arouse sympathy because of a pitiful weakness. Most all flowers are suitable and very few are too simple or too lowly to be a possible choice if they are used correctly. Even the very small may be used if they are so grouped as to resemble a larger flower.

2. Availability—storebought flowers are unnecessary and it is not necessary to have large quantities of blossoms to produce an excellent effect. Fruits and vegetables are usually not suitable. Bunches of light green grapes or yellow green limes may be used on very rare or very special occasions but preferably not for the Sunday worship service. If no blossoms are available, an all foliage arrangement makes a beautiful addition to the service.

3. Durability—all materials used in a church arrangement should be fresh and of a kind and variety to remain so until the day is over. Crowded flowers do not have the durability of flowers which have more space and more water.

4. Visibility—it is essential that an arrangement be visible and this places definite limits on choice of materials, but more especially on color. Dim lighting and backgrounds often play tricks with carefully selected bloom. Sometimes deep red roses or purple tulips become invisible at short distances and make an otherwise lovely arrangement look as though it had missing teeth. The container must be considered, and no container which demands more attention than the flowers should be used. It must remain the accessory, never the center of interest and it should be in sympathetic agreement with the general architectural feeling of the church. No fragile Dresden vase should be used and almost any glass container through which light and the stems can be seen would be equally unsuitable. A white vase should not be used against a dark background. All containers should have firm bases so that they will not only appear steady and secure but will be heavy enough to hold the flowers and they must have a mouth large enough so as not to crowd the stems.

Because of the architectural quality and the size of most sanctuaries, the containers that are especially harmonious and satisfying are made of pottery, of metal such as bronze, copper, brass and pewter, and wood. A cheap look in pottery vases should be avoided.

Mrs. Harrah summed up a number of qualities that church arrangements must not have and some that they must or can have. They are:

1. Arrangements must not be odd, arty, or highly stylized.
 2. Must not be careless or unconventional.
 3. Must not be associated either in accessories or design with any foreign culture or religion.
 4. Bright colored ribbon or paper should never be used in church arrangements.
 5. Vegetables and fruits are too informal to be used except at harvest time and then not on the altar but somewhere else in the church and then it shouldn't look like a roadside vegetable stand.

City Council of Clubs Hears Jaycees Christmas Project Outlined at Meet

Bert Queen, representing the Pampa Jaycees, spoke to members of the City Council of Clubs Thursday during a regular meeting.

Queen outlined the new Jaycee project, Underprivileged Children's Shopping Tour. He stated that a number of the civic clubs and local organizations have always contributed a basket of food at Christmas to needy families in Pampa. This year a community-wide project is being sponsored by the Jaycees to enable underprivileged children ages 8 to 12, to go

Christmas shopping for their younger brothers and sisters and their parents.

Following the shopping tour, the children will meet in a local church to gift-wrap packages and have refreshments. Clubs, organizations and individuals are asked to contact a Jaycee member if they are interested in participating in the project. Couples are needed to provide transportation and supervise the children on the tour.

Queen, formerly a resident of Liberal, stated that this type project had proved very successful in that city.

During the business meeting of the council, the resignation of the president, Mrs. James A. Lewis, was accepted. Mrs. R. A. Mack was elected to fill the unexpired term of Mrs. Lewis.

Sgt. Juanita Roberts of the Womens Army Corp spoke to the group, giving a list of qualification needed by young women desiring to further education by becoming a member of the WAC.

Members attending the Council meeting were Mmes. Bruce Riehart, Tony Smith, O. F. Kreimeyer, Jess Beard, L. K. Stout, Frank Shotwell, J. M. Turner, Sam Irwin, Lee Harrah, Ruth McQueary, Virginia McDonald, Wayne Roger, R. A. Mack, Sandra Thomes, Richard Cook, Lee tended. Closing prayer was given by Mrs. H. E. Winegart.

The Doris Smith Circle met at the church with Mrs. George Moore presiding over the meeting and giving opening prayer. Mrs. Maysel Butler read the prayer calendar and gave the devotional. Mrs. Carl Lafin was in charge of the circle program. The prayer for missionaries was given by Mrs. William T. Fain and closing prayer was given by Mrs. Butler. Five members attended.

For autumn, the Hair Fashion Council of America wants milady to string along with a new coiffure that presents the effect of an English bowler hat, shaped to the natural contours of the head. The accent: bangs combed straight down or parted to one side. Sides of the hair are draped.

This autumn, fashion dictates for casual occasions. What's the rugged look for males dress-in: sports jackets with suede gun patches, bulky and often turtle-necked sweaters. Even some sports shirts have elbow patches.

Use Suede and Leather

By MARY BROOKS PICKEN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
Leather and suede, according to all fashion forecasts, are right up front as favorites. Good garments ready-made, when made of quality suede or kid, are expensive. You should be able to make a blouse or jacket or pill box hat for about one-third what such a garment or hat would cost ready-to-wear. Suede and kid, being supple, and sewable, appeal to many. Go see for yourself what is available.

Usually department stores have a special counter for suede and leather. The skins come in many fashion-favored colors — lovely, really. One needs one good-sized skin to make a wes-kit for a small person. One larger than size 14 may need two skins.

Use one to panel the center back, thus allowing the back underarm to come forward to give necessary inches around. You need not waste any of the skin. Make a band for the hair; make a beret or pill box, collar or cuff set's. Bind collar and cuffs of a tweed costume. Make a belt. Oh, there are so many really exciting uses for this comparatively new product—at least new to consumers who sew.

For your pattern and economical cutting, best way is to pin the underarm seams of your pattern pieces together. Lay this out on your muslin, mark out a pattern. Fit this to you so it is perfect. Make sure size is correct in every part, armhole comfortable, neckline easy, length as desired.

After the fitting, trim all seams evenly (you do not want bulk). Open the seams, take the muslin pieces to the store and unobtrusively look at the skins and at your muslin pieces. Calculate how many skins you need to buy — one or two. Lay the pattern out on the skins, adjusting for advantageous cutting. Do not use pins, attach muslin pieces with cellulose tape to hold in place for cutting.

Match your silk or nylon thread just as carefully as if you were using it for stitching fabric.

Use a size 14 needle and about 8 stitches to the inch. The thicker the skins, the longer your stitch should be. You will be delighted with the ease in stitching—like fabric really. You can press from the wrong side. If on right, use a sturdy press cloth or plain paper to prevent shine. If there is a thin spot in the skin cover this on the wrong side with presson mending lawn, so thin place will have wearing strength.

Stitch darts first, then the underarm and shoulder seams. Press all seams open with your fingers. Make a hem each side center front, using 1 1/4-inch lightweight peltion interfacing under the turn so that edges will keep their shape. Some like to use peltion as an interlining throughout.

Turn lower edge 3/4-inch and stitch it a generous 1/4-inch from the edge. Do the armholes the same way.

For the neck, use a 3/4-inch wide facing made of the scraps of suede. Bring edges of facing pieces together, do not overlap, and catch-stitch them together. This way facing is perfectly flat. Shape with your fingers so facing will be smooth all way around.

Stitch facing to the neck edge right side of facing to right side of weskit. Turn facing to wrong side and machine stitch it down so it will appear like the bottom edge of weskit.

If you wish to do pockets, proceed as though making a bound pocket in fabric.

No. 8233, the clever little weskit featured, is available in sizes 10 to 20. Size 12, 32 bust, tab vest, 1 1/4 yards of 35-inch fabric.

Buddy Poppy Sale Held in Pampa

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Pampa Post No. 1657, Veterans of Foreign Wars, met at the VFW Hall recently.

Mrs. Dale Kreimeyer, president, conducted the business meeting. Mrs. Ira Poe and Mrs. Tony L. Smith were given the obligation of membership, and Mrs. Holt Barber was welcomed as a visitor. Mrs. Emmett Gee, secretary read the minutes from the previous meeting and the General Orders from the Department of Texas. The Honor Roll requirements were read and met. A donation was made to the Cancer Research Foundation, and 10 per cent of the membership dues collected. Three members in the hospital were remembered with bud vases.

A report of Council of Clubs meeting was given. Plans were completed for the annual Buddy Poppy Sale by members of the Auxiliary which was held yesterday and Friday.

Hospital tray favors will be furnished on Veterans Day, Nov. 11, by the Veterans of Foreign Wars Legion, assisted by the Auxiliary.

The meeting was closed by ritual.

Members present for the meeting were Mmes. Ethel M. Austin, Jess Beard, Ronald Beard, Elma Bailey, Earl Eckroat, C. R. Dirickson, Carl Foust, Emmett Gee, Leslie Henderson, O. F. Kreimeyer, J. T. Rodgers, E. Savage, Jones Seltz, Vernon Stuckey, W. J. Ulrich, A. L. Walling, Carl M. Wright and Cora Yates.

First Fall Meet Held by YWA'S

CANADIAN (Spl) — The first meeting of the year of the YWA girls was held recently in the home of Mrs. Herman Hanks.

Present were Janis Wilson, Jane Forrest, Mary Rutledge, Janice Guthrie, Sandra Summer, Dixie Flowers and Diane Wilson.

The girls registered and pinned on name cards with a flowered motif which complimented the table decor for the smorgasbord. The floral arrangement of lemon leaves, fall daisies and mums featured a YWA doll.

Festive foods for the occasion were furnished by the sponsoring Jerry Key Circle, Mrs. Dale Roth chairman.

Immediately following the smorgasbord, the girls gathered around a table on which flowers and equipment for floral arrangements were assembled. Mrs. Hanks recounted the purpose and plans for the organization.

Mrs. Hanks assisted the girls in constructing YWA letters from floral dough and decorating them with flowers for permanent use at the church.

Plans were made for the next meeting. The girls will meet at the church with sack lunches and leave promptly for a pilgrimage to Lake Marvin. Drinks and marshmallows will be provided. Officers for the group will be elected around the bonfire.

Plans include the gathering of wayside materials for handwork

The School Board 'Closed Door'

The school board is a form of government. Governments possess political power. Thus, the school board, although a tiny form of government, possesses political power. It has been said that men who possess political power most always believe that they know best. Political power holders have the authority to COMPEL the people to do as they decree.

In the local instance, the Pampa school board has decreed that the doors shall be shut to news media at "executive" meetings because personnel matters are discussed. This is the screen used in an effort to give substance to an "executive" school board meeting. It has been admitted that general school business also is transacted at "executive" meetings.

As stated before, the excuse of personnel matters being discussed seems to us to be the weakest possible reason for holding secret meetings where general school business is transacted. The news media are not interested in personnel matters concerning teachers or students and school board members and school officials know it.

There is a moral absolute that if something is right, it is right and if something is wrong, it is wrong. We still believe it to be wrong that the Pampa school board holds meetings where the doors are closed to news media, thereby withholding information from the people.

In fact, we do not believe that the school board members hold this to be right. Although we base our objection to closed door meetings on a matter of principle and it does not in any way involve personalities, in this instance we do believe our present school board members to be men of higher standards than to infer by their actions that what they do in these meetings is none of the public's business. Perhaps they do not fully realize that, in essence, that is what they are doing.

Just this past week the Texas Municipal League, in its annual meeting in Houston, adopted a resolution urging city officials to cooperate with news media in providing information to the public. The Pampa city commission follows this policy of conducting all of its meetings, executive or otherwise, openly and it extends a welcome to news media to attend all meetings of the commission.

Secret government is the worst kind of government and we think the school board should have no part of it.

As a matter of moral principle, men in public office owe it to the people to conduct the people's business in the open. It is a matter of the people's right to know how ALL school business is conducted — not just part of it.

The usual reason men in any type of government move secretly is because if they move openly they possibly would be stopped somewhere along the line. But they don't want to be stopped because they "know best" what is good for everyone.

Is this the reason the Pampa school board prefers to hold many of its meetings in secret or behind closed doors? Actually, we don't believe this to be true and, if it isn't true, then the school board should reverse its 4 to 1 decree and tell the news media they are welcome to attend any and ALL meetings of the board.

The world will pay rich bounties to him who knows how. But the richest rewards of all are reserved for him who knows why.

Symbol of Lost Freedom

Modern "liberalism" — which is something the classical liberals, whose main fight was against the powers and oppressions of government, wouldn't be able to recognize — seems to work on the idea that because an end is good almost any means to attain it is good.

So, it is argued, if it is good to improve and expand education, to provide more and better medical care, to ease the retirement years of the elderly, and to do any number of other desirable things, let government hurry up and do it.

The late Justice Louis D. Brandeis, whose standing as a real liberal can hardly be questioned, once said this: "Experience should teach us to be most on our guard to protect liberty when the government's purposes are beneficent... The greatest dangers to liberty lurk in insidious encroachment by men of zeal, well-meaning but without understanding."

That presents the substance of the case against what has come to be called the Welfare State. The purposes may be good—but, too often, the end is some form of mass slavery. The "men of zeal, well-meaning but without understanding" are, when the time is ripe, shoved aside and eliminated. The men if iron, bent on power and conquest at whatever cost, take their place.

We see a superlative example of that today in the Soviet Union, where the humanitarian goals of the Revolution, with their emphasis on human rights and human freedom, were soon submerged as totally as if they had never existed, in the great dictator's system of modern times. The East Berlin wall is a modern symbol of lost freedom.

"What do YOU think I think about challenging the Cosa Nostra to a touch football game?"

Pull Up A Chair

By Frank J. Markey

Harvard's Eddie Mahan, considered by many to have been the greatest college player in football history, told us recently it is a reasonably safe game if the participant trains himself in good physical condition before the season opens. He says a body hardened by training resists injury and fatigue. Secondly, he adds, a player should learn the proper method of how to block and tackle and perfect his technique through coaching and practice. Finally, he says, anyone playing football should have good equipment such as helmet, padding and shoes. Mahan admits it's a rough game, but not necessarily a dangerous one. He was the first triple-threat man, an all-time champ.

Memory Lane: Remember when automobiles had running boards and the spare tire was fastened to the back of the car? There were no tubeless tires or spare wheels in those days and when you had a flat you vulcanized the puncture on the spot.

Visitors to the New York World's Fair next year will find more than 1700 public telephones located throughout the grounds. Acoustically-treated booths will have push button phones and maps of the Fair that will note the caller's location. Jimmy Durante has been in show business 50 years. We've seen him over the past 25 and he never gave a poor performance. Incidentally, the Schnoz is one guy no one ever knocks. He's universally loved and beloved. Few can claim that distinction.

Hush-Hush Plan Shaping To Give Castro's Cuba Hurricane 'Emergency Relief' from U.S. Surpluses

WASHINGTON — There is something afoot on giving hurricane-ravaged and Communist-mismanaged Cuba "emergency relief" in the form of surplus U.S. farm commodities.

The project is very hush-hush and shrouded in tightest secrecy. But the following is definitely known:

Influential United Nations sources have put out feelers to the State Department on hurricane aid for Cuba. These backstage overtures have been made with the knowledge and approval of puppet dictator Fidel Castro — despite his violent diatribes against accepting help from "imperialists."

The little-known interdepartmental "Committee on Principles for Cuba," headed by Secretary Dean Rusk, is exploring the "possibility of increasing contacts" with the Castro regime.

A Central Intelligence Agency report, submitted to President Kennedy, states that the five-day hurricane that ravaged Cuba last month inflicted "catastrophic" damage on its main crops. Sugar was slashed by an estimated 1.1 million tons; virtually all of the wheat crop in Oriente Province, which produces about 90 per cent of this grain, was destroyed; and more than 50 per cent of the rice and tobacco crops were lost.

CIA estimates Cuba's total sugar output this year will be less than 2,250,000 tons. That is approximately one-third of the six million-plus tons averaged between 1957 and the Communist take-over.

It is also more than two million tons less than last year's production, which was one million tons under the previous year. Since the Reds have ruled Cuba, there has been a steady decline in sugar output. The same is true of every other important export commodity.

Last month's massive hurricane destruction compounded the already high crop losses due to mismanagement, incompetence, waste and bungling.

Congressional leaders have gotten wind of the undercover move to extend hurricane aid to Cuba, and are keeping a close eye on the matter. They are particularly aroused because of the bitter battle raging in the Senate over the President's multi-billion dollar foreign aid program.

An aid scheme for Cuba could have explosive impact on this stormy controversy.

White House strategy is to make medicare a "must" in the next session for campaign purposes in the fall election.

MORE TFX EXPLOSIONS — Deputy Defense Secretary Roswell Gilpatric is again postponing his long-delayed exit from the Pentagon.

He quit last June, but his departure has been repeatedly postponed because of explosive disclosures in the TFX investigation headed by Senator John McClellan, D-Ark. The latest hitch is due to the same reason.

McClellan has asked Gilpatric to produce scores of papers and documents dealing with both his public and private affairs. Included is a list of all long-distance phone calls made in the two and a half years he has been the No. 2 official of the Defense Department.

Gilpatric is slated for questioning on his role in the multi-billion dollar TFX contract award.

Former Navy Secretary Fred Korth, whose recent sudden resignation caused a big stir, is also due for further committee grilling later this month. Korth

The Doctor Says

Drug for Migraine Good, But Some Can't Use It By DR. WAYNE BRANDSTADT

Q — My doctor has prescribed Cafegot for my migraine headaches. If I take the drug as soon as the blurred vision starts, it seems to prevent vomiting. What are the side effects of this drug?

A — The tablets you are taking are a combination of caffeine and ergotamine. This is an excellent remedy for migraine if you keep it handy and take it early in an attack. Such occasional use would not be likely to cause any side effects, but this drug should not be used by those who are pregnant or who have high blood pressure, coronary heart disease, or a disease of the blood vessels, liver or kidneys.

Q — I am 45. Lately I have noticed blood spots in the skin all over my body. What causes them and what should I do?

A — Blood spots such as you have may be due to many causes. If they itch they could be due to the bites of fleas, chiggers or other insects. A great variety of drugs including headache pills are often to blame. Purpura, a deficiency of vitamin C, and some forms of anemia may be the cause. Have your doctor determine the cause and the question of what to do should be easy.

Q — I am a woman, age 47. My doctor says the skin trouble I've had for the last two years is parapsoriasis. What causes it and what can be done for it?

A — You have a disease that is very hard to cure. The silver lining on the cloud is that the lesions are usually painless and they will not affect your general health. The cause is unknown.

Q — What causes a coated tongue that makes my mouth taste sour when I get up in the morning?

A — If your tongue is coated, you haven't been eating enough solid food such as unpeeled raw apples, raw carrots and hard toast. Doctors no longer look at the tongue routinely to determine what kind of a diagnosis to make. For the unpleasant taste in your mouth, try brushing your teeth on arising. Brush your tongue, too, if you can do it without gagging. You might also try a mouthwash.

Q — Would drinking beer help to cure ulcers or a nervous stomach? I'm not sure which I have, but I think it may be ulcers.

A — Your first step should be to have your doctor determine the cause of any distress you may have in the stomach region. Guesswork never pays. If you have an ulcer, you should definitely lay off alcoholic drinks. If you have a nervous stomach, have your doctor test the nervousness and the stomach will take care of itself. There are, however, many other causes for uneasiness below the ribs.

Q — My son is nearsighted and has to have an eye examination every year. Is there any danger that the drops used to dilate his pupils will cause cataract?

A — No.

Please send your questions and comments to Dr. Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D., in care of this paper. While Dr. Brandstadt cannot answer individual letters, he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

NOT FROM GOVERNMENT

Freedom Is Right By Virtue of Existence

By GEORGE BOARDMAN, Ph. D.

People do get the darndest ideas; just the other day I received a letter from a man who had been spending a great deal of time thinking about the freedom philosophy. He invented a few dozen rules he wanted me to document "for the benefit of those who wish to present a proper image which can be correlated to the philosophy of freedom in the minds of those who identify certain people as being on the freedom team." I'm sure the letter writer is entirely sincere in his concern for the type of image presented by those he considers to be on the freedom team. On the other hand, he doesn't know much about freedom when he believes that people who believe in their right to be free, should be regimented. Here are a few of his rules for female "members of the team":

A short, severe style for the hair which would serve to identify ladies of all ages with the "freedom movement." Females who wished to be identified with freedom "must" always wear skirts and dresses and never slacks or shorts. Garments which call attention to the female form should be avoided and low cut gowns and dresses "must" not be identified with the "freedom movement". Bright colors and styles which attract attention are not compatible with the serious nature of the "freedom team".

Male members of the "Force" for freedom should adopt a short, flat top type of hair cut which presents a neat, conservative appearance. They "must" not wear sport jackets or jackets and slacks of different colors. A "slim" type suit of a dark color "must" be worn at all times and it will be considered unseemly to dine in public or private or appear on the street or driving a car without a coat. A grave decorum should be maintained at all times in keeping with the serious nature of the "force" for freedom. Ties should be thin, dark and of one color. "Members of the team" should not frequent places of ill repute, bars and the like, nor should they be seen looking at scandalous magazine covers in public places. There were several more pages of rules and regulations but I found it impossible to focus my attention on the subject at this point. I could only wonder — is the man serious or is he joking? Strange as it may seem, I believe the letter writer was serious — he wanted people to be free to do exactly what he thought they should do.

I have conducted unregimented class room work here at the Freedom school for a period of about 128 hours, with seven different groups of individuals. Students have been told they are free to move around, to stand, sit on the platform, bring soft drinks to their desks. I cannot say my teaching system is an extension from the days of Socrates or Aristotle because it seems to be a natural development of the freedom philosophy.

The students have responded in a highly individualized manner. One student in the last class had a slight attack of high altitude or something and was not feeling well. Instead of staying in his room and skipping class, he brought a lounge chair into the class room and rested comfortably. One young lady stretched out on a carpeted platform close to my desk and a young New Yorker sat on the edge of the platform. A stranger walking into the room might have imagined the class was enjoying a rest period unless he waited a few minutes to discover the truth. I have never witnessed any more formalized educational condition which evoked such concentrated attention, sharply focused on the subject at hand.

When people begin to really explore the meaning of the freedom philosophy, when they begin to realize they have the right to be free, self governing, self responsible human beings, the bright and shining light of this educational experience can only be dimmed by any attempt at regimentation. The informality I have described has created no discourtesy, no confusion, no periods of disinterest. The ages of the participants in these explorations in thinking ranged from 16 to 84 years of age. There were doctors, lawyers, executives, housewives, teachers and students. I am sorry the man who wants to regiment freedom was not a participant.

Good luck and good health to you, in Freedom.

The plate from which a piece of U.S. paper money is printed is not made by one man. At the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, one engraver makes the portrait, one engraves the denominational numbers, another does the lettering, and so forth. Since each engraver is a master at his particular type of work, the finished plate represents the very finest example of the engraving art, far beyond the ability of a counterfeiter to reproduce.

Salvation Army Offers Aid To Homeless and Distressed

What does a young girl left with a baby do when she finds herself without money or friends and becomes stranded? Recently in Pampa, the Salvation Army was instrumental in helping such a case. The girl with her baby, had difficulty at home and left only to find that she could not make a way for herself and child. They were brought to the Salvation Army and arrangements were made to house, feed, and clothe them while plans were being formulated.

They were relieved to know that all was well and they were in good-hands. Within a few hours the parents wired a money order for their return home. No matter what the problem, the Salvation Army believes there is an answer and it stands ready to meet the need.

TERMINI IMERESE, Sicily, (UPI) — A sharp-eyed friend reunited old-age pensioner Giuseppe Rimasti with the tip of his nose.

Rimasti's nose was bitten in a fight but he did not realize the tip was gone until he got to the hospital.

The unidentified friend was sent back to the scene and found the severed tip on the ground then went to the hospital where doctors stitched it on.

De Gaulle Again Seeks Bigger Voice in NATO

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG
United Press International
PARIS (UPI) — President Charles de Gaulle is campaigning again for a bigger say for Europe — and specifically for France — in running the Atlantic Alliance.

He thinks the United States should bow out gradually from the role it has held for the last 14 years as dominant partner in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).

It is time for France and the other European members to begin taking over major responsibility for Europe's defense, he believes.

De Gaulle fired off this diplomatic broadside through his foreign minister, Maurice Couve de Murville. In a speech that reflected faithfully De Gaulle's own foreign policy thinking, Couve de Murville proclaimed the time has come to revamp NATO.

New Books on Shelves At Public Library

New books on the shelves of Lovett Memorial Library Fiction:

Our Mother's House — by Julian Gloag; the author centers his narrative on the house and explores with considerable skill and subtlety the changing power relationships among seven children who have just lost their mother.

The Venetian Affair — by Helen MacInnes; chance disrupts the European vacation planned by Bill Fenner of the New York Chronicle and thrusts him into the forefront of a struggle against a conspiracy which could shake the world.

The Names and Faces of Heroes — by Reynolds Price; deals with the deep, old experiences of the generations, with the reaching for maturity and the poignant experience of aging.

The Fratricides — by Maurice Edelman; the Algerian fight for independence from France was a war which set countryman against countryman, brother against brother, and in the course of its eight years it nearly destroyed a great nation.

Glidepath — by Arthur C. Clarke; a realistic novel about the early, exciting, exploratory days of radar in World War II.

Mysteries:
Nightingale At Noon — by Margaret Summerton; a novel in the Daphne DuMaurier tradition, rich in characterization and steeped in the atmosphere, apprehension and suspicion that only a master of suspense can convey.

The Cast of the Amorous Aunt — by Erle Stanley Gardner; Perry Mason finds a case involving a widowed, wealthy aunt and a Bluebeard right up his alley; the problem: can he act in time to avert certain disaster?

Non-fiction:
The Military Conquest of the Southern Plains — by William H. Leckie; the wars between red man and white on many frontiers of the United States form significant and highly colorful chapters in the nation's history; deals with the conquest of the Southern Plains as a whole.

Alliance Born of Danger — by Charles A. Cerami; presents a thoroughly engaging narrative of the development of the Common Market, a penetrating analysis of America's stake in it, and a fascinating discussion of its prospects.

Wood Finishing and Painting Made Easy — by Ralph G. Waring; this handy manual answers every possible question encountered in the selection of suitable finishes to wood and metalwork.

Beefsteak Raid — by Edward Boykin; one of the last great and daring raids of the South, the Beefsteak Raid has, until now, received little attention in Civil War literature. As President Lincoln himself said, "It was the slickest piece of cattle stealing I ever heard of."

A Treasury of World Science — by Dagobert D. Runes; a book showing how the classics are intertwined with the field of science.

The Silent Investigators — by John N. Makris; the great untold story of the United States Postal Inspection Service.

Pampan to Head Businessmen's Contact Group

Announcement of the appointment of W. L. Bruce of the Bruce & Son Moving & Storage Co. as chairman of the Pampa chapter of the National Federation of Independent Business, has been made by Jack Downing, district manager for the federation in this area.

Each business and professional man member of the organization maintains a voting membership, and is polled by ballots regularly throughout the year on bills and issues that affect independent enterprise at the national and state levels.

"In an effort to do everything possible to maintain the American way of life," Downing stated, "and keep our free competitive system of business, the businessmen express their opinions on the ballots each month and turn them over to Bruce, who makes tabulations of the total number and the manner in which they voted."

These tabulations are sent, Downing added, with the underlying signed ballots, directly to the desk of Congressman Walter Rogers in Washington and to Sen. Grady Hazlewood in Austin. Downing said this forms a means where by independent business and professional people can keep in contact with their national and state legislators on measures that affect, locally and nationally, free enterprise opportunities.

The NFIB is a nonprofit group with the largest individual membership of any business organization in the United States and independent business and professional men of every vocation participate with voting memberships, regardless of the other civic or trade affiliations.

SEEK NAZI TREASURE

BAD AUSSEE, Austria (UPI) — The government has decided to continue searching the bottom of Lake Toplitz for possible Nazi treasures despite the high cost of the project.

Diving operations so far this year have cost an estimated $165,000. An Austrian Ministry of Interior spokesman said German army officers reportedly dumped documents and treasures into the lake at the end of World War II.
