

Card Carries Simple Message, Love to Orphans

MOTT, N.D. (UPI) — It was only a postcard from a 4-year-old boy. It carried a quarter and a simple message: "Love, Eddie."

No one knew who Eddie was, but for the 15 children of James and Ione Kerzman it didn't really matter. The postcard meant someone cared. The Kerzman children, ranging in age from one month to 18 years, were preparing today for their first Christmas as orphans. Their parents were killed Nov. 20 when an ambulance in which they were riding crashed into a truck on a lonely North Dakota hilltop only hours after the birth of Mrs. Kerzman's last child.

In the crowded, two-story Kerzman farm house near here, Christmas would never be the same for the older children. But for the young ones, there was still wonder in the air.

"The youngsters make shopping trips into town to buy gifts and then wrap them at home," said Mrs. Betty Johnson, the children's aunt who has moved into the house with her husband and three youngsters as legal guardians.

"In spite of what has happened, they're still children," she said.

The children have already begun to receive Christmas gifts from strangers all over the country. More than 100 packages containing clothing, toys and candy have arrived so far.

Christmas Day, the children will attend services at St. Pius Catholic Church, where funeral services were conducted for their parents only a month ago. A turkey dinner also is planned.

The 15 youngsters include the baby, May Ruth; Mary Beth, 1; Billy; Paula, 5; Madonna, 6; Merella; Anita, 10; Ann, 11; Theresa, 12; Margaret, 14; Mary Jo, 16; Peter, 7; Tom, 13; Jerry, 17 and James Jr., 18.

Navy Planes Attack Viet Industrial Plant

Electronic Device Cuts Fog

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. Navy planes using improved electronic "seeing eyes" that cut through fog and darkness attacked a railroad bridge 18 miles from the North Vietnamese port of Haiphong Tuesday in the fourth raid on the Hanoi-Haiphong industrial complex, it was announced today.

The first raid against the industrial heart of the Communist North came Dec. 15 when planes hit a coal-burning power plant at Uong Bi, 14 miles from Haiphong, knocking out much of the electric supply in the area that manufactures military supplies for the Viet Cong.

The American planes struck twice on Monday, hitting the power plant again and then returning in the afternoon to knock out a highway bridge only 12 miles from Haiphong.

There was no announcement of air losses in the latest strike into an area ringed by Soviet-built missiles and anti-aircraft guns. But announcements Monday of seven planes.

Communists, meanwhile, carried their campaign of terror in the Saigon area into the eighth consecutive day, attacking a military transportation compound Tuesday night three miles north of the Tan Son Nhut air base. The attack by a grenade and a Claymore mine inflicted no injuries and only light damage, a U.S. spokesman said.

At the same time the spokesman revealed he knew of "no plans" that U.S. forces in Viet Nam would honor a 12-hour Christmas cease-fire proposed by the Communists.

It also was reported today that 10 Americans were killed in action last week, the lowest casualty rate since Sept. 25 when eight U.S. servicemen died in Viet Nam. Another 126 GIs were wounded and six listed as missing, the weekly casualty report showed.

The Navy planes used electronic bomb sights in the latest raid near Hanoi, the capital, and Haiphong, a key port.

The raid by a flight of A6 Intruders from the 7th Fleet carrier USS Kitty Hawk occurred Monday. The planes dumped 13 tons of bombs on a railroad bridge 18 miles west of Haiphong.

The target showed bright and clear in the bombers' flickering green electronic scopes despite the pre-dawn darkness and (See PLANT, Page 3)

Fanfani Ends GA With Peace Prayer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI)—The 20th session of the General Assembly passed into history today with a Christmas prayer by its president for the early return of a peace so eagerly awaited.

Assembly President Amintore Fanfani, foreign minister of Italy who has played a major role in recent peace efforts, sounded adjournment at 1:02 a.m., CST.

The assembly ended soon after U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg warned "Hanoi, Peking and the Soviet Union" to heed a resolution approved by a 109-0 vote, with Britain abstaining, condemning all forms of intervention in domestic affairs, including subversion and terrorism.

Goldberg said the Viet Nam war was a prime example of subversion and covert acts by one government—North Viet Nam—to overthrow another.

Goldberg planned a news conference today to sum up the American view of the assembly session which was highlighted by an October visit by Pope Paul VI to deliver an appeal for peace.

The conference was scheduled for 11 a.m. CST. Fanfani said the assembly, which is not scheduled to meet again in regular session until Sept. 20, 1966, carried on this year's work between "a sigh of relief for a truce that has been achieved," between India and Pakistan concerning Kashmir, and "anxiety over a conflict that still continues" in Viet Nam.

"Unfortunately," he said, "we cannot, on this eve of Christmas, report that peace has returned to Southeast Asia."

Fanfani pointed out that disarmament was a dominant feature of the 20th assembly session.

"Direct Dialogue" Needed
 "The attention attracted by the discussion on this subject confirms that the majority saw the need for a more intensive and direct dialogue between the great powers and, in general, for a return to a more cooperative atmosphere in the world at large," he said.

Fanfani singled out the assembly's adoption of a draft convention of the elimination of all forms of racial discrimination as an event of far-reaching political, legal and moral significance.

"This means that the states members of the United Nations attach special importance to the fight against racial discrimination," he said.

Dahomey Army Scores Bloodless Coup D'etat

COTONOU, Dahomey (UPI)—The Dahomey army, led by Gen. Christophe Soglo, took complete control of this West African country in an apparently bloodless coup d'etat today according to the Cotonou Radio.

Soglo said parliament, local government bodies and all political parties were dissolved, and the constitution suspended. A new constitution would be drawn up as soon as possible, he said.

The army under Soglo forced quarrelling President Sourou Migan Ahyi and Premier Justin Ahomadegbe to quit Nov. 29 and summoned National Assembly President Thouri Congacou to become provision president.

Congacou swore in non-political ministers and started drawing up a new constitution.

Soglo had used the power of his French-trained army to intervene before in the African nation. In 1963 he took over as chief of government, ousting President Hubert Maga, but handed back control to the politicians under a new constitution the following January. It was this constitution he suspended today.

The army announcement this morning said the politicians had since "shown their incapacity to lead the nation to better tomorrows, because of their struggles for power against the best interests of the nation."

Soglo said it was the army's task to solve the crisis.

He pledged that Dahomey would respect international agreements respect the U.N. Charter, and remain totally committed to its membership of the West African Entente group of states, to the African and Malagasy Common Organization (OCAM) and to the Organization of African United (OAU).

Voting Rights Act Gets Federal Study

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—A three-judge federal court took under study today a Justice Department request to force compliance with the 1965 Voting Rights Act.

Lawyers had until New Year's Eve to file final written briefs in the first major test of the act, which the State of Louisiana called unconstitutional.

Sidney Provensal, special assistant Louisiana attorney general, charged the act was deliberately drawn to include Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama.

Charges Abuse
 Provensal charged the voting rights act gave the Justice Department vast authority and the department is abusing it.

"Louisiana is in the act not because the Negro was denied the vote," Provensal said, "but because the white people failed to vote (in the 1964 presidential election). This is clearly unconstitutional."

The Justice Department sued to force voter registrants in five Louisiana parishes (counties) to put eligible voter applicants on voting rolls.

Examiners Sent
 Federal examiners were sent to the five parishes.

Louisiana contends federal examiners put thousands of persons on voter rolls who were not eligible under state statutes because they had no knowledge of Louisiana registration laws.

Leander H. Perez Sr., a lawyer and segregation leader who represented his home parish of Plaquemines in the case, attacked the federal application form.

The three judges, headed by Wisdom and including Judges E. Gordon West and Herbert W. Christenberry, gave no indication when they might rule on the case.

Gunfire Echoes Through Dominican Capital

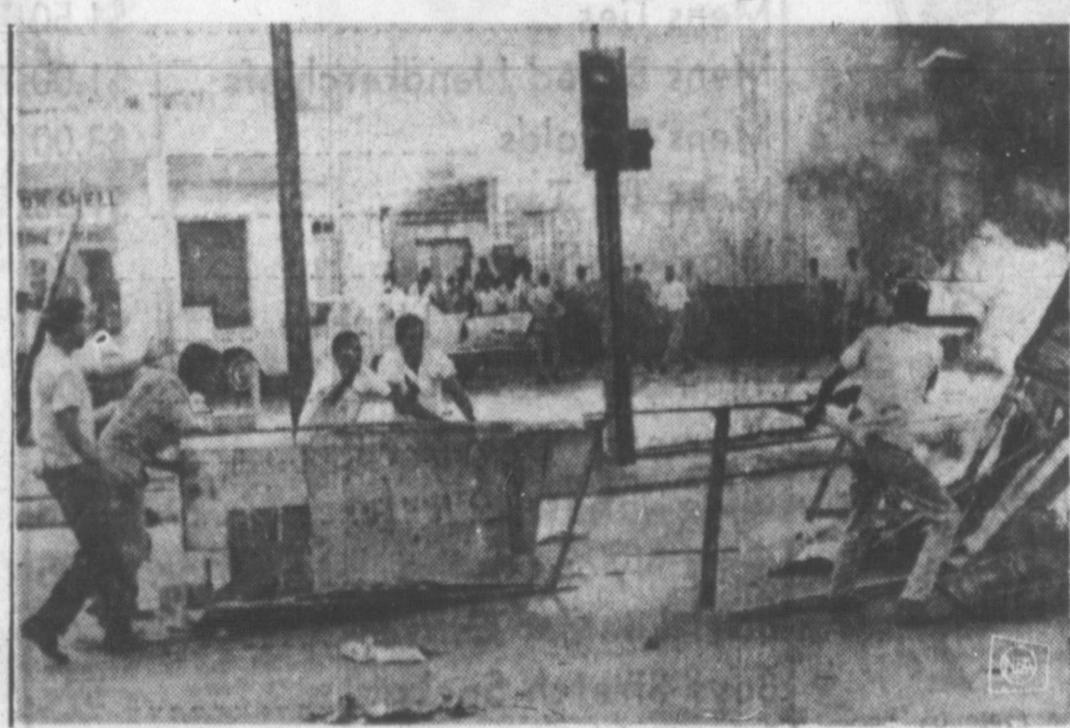

SANTO DOMINGO (UPI)—Gunfire echoed through the streets of the strife-torn Dominican capital Tuesday night and early today on the fourth day of an outbreak of sporadic violence which has taken a toll of at least 29 lives.

There was no immediate report of new casualties or of heavy fighting. So far as was known, no U.S. troops were involved in the overnight firing.

Union leaders agreed Tuesday to postpone a threatened "general strike" for 72 hours to give Provisional President Hector Garcia Godoy time to investigate the air force attack on rebel leaders in Santiago Sunday.

The unions are demanding the dismissal of the military leaders they blame for the Santiago attack and the withdrawal from the country of the U.S. and other foreign troops who have been policing the city.

DOMINICAN FLAREUP — Security measures by U.S. and Brazilian troops of the Inter-American Peace Force in the Dominican Republic followed rioting in Santo Domingo, above, and clashes between Dominican Air Force units and forces of former rebel leader Francisco Caamano Depo in the country's second city, Santiago.

Snow Seen For Pampa

Pampans may have a white Christmas after all with the U. S. Weather Bureau forecasting possible snow flurries beginning Friday afternoon.

However, the possibility of any big accumulation looks pretty slim today, the bureau said.

Showers were also predicted for Pampa and vicinity late today, tomorrow and Friday.

THE DEADLINE NEARS — Only two more shopping days until Christmas — and here is a typical scene in Pampa stores as gift buyers move into Pampa for the last roundup. Businesses will be open until 9 o'clock tonight and tomorrow night. They will close at 6 p.m. on Friday, Christmas Eve, and will remain closed Saturday.

Hershey Standing Firm On Draft Reclassification

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Draft Director Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey is standing firm on his policy of immediate reclassification and induction of those who burn their draft cards or conduct illegal sit-ins at local boards.

But he says that registrants will not lose their deferments merely for engaging "in a legal demonstration of political views."

Hershey's position was set forth in a letter to Chairman Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., of the House Judiciary Committee, made public Tuesday. Celler protested the policy, accusing Hershey of "demeaning the draft act" and jeopardizing the honor of the Armed Forces.

The Hershey-Celler exchange is the latest chapter in a developing threat to test the constitutionality of the draft law because of its alleged use as a punitive measure in sit-in demonstrations.

The American Civil Liberties Union is considering whether to make a test case of one of the 10 students who lost their deferments after being arrested in a sit-in protest against U.S. Viet Nam policy at Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 15.

The Pentagon is known to be watching the situation with some concern, although officials assume that Congress would promptly enact a new draft law if the present Selective Service Act were invalidated by the courts.

Celler had asked Hershey for a statement of Selective Service policy after the Ann Arbor incident. He said Tuesday that Hershey's letter confirmed charges that the draft law was being used to punish and discourage political dissent.

"The draft was never (intended) to be used as a vehicle of castigation," Celler said. "I urge upon Gen. Hershey and his staff to review this vexatious question before the draft law is further weakened in public acceptance and support." He said infringements of the draft law should be punished by arrest, indictment and trial.

Reds Sentence Two Americans

BERLIN (UPI)—A Communist court has sentenced two Americans to eight years in prison for trying to smuggle a 13-year-old girl through the Berlin wall to her parents, U.S. officials disclosed today.

The prisoners were identified as Moses R. Herrin, 24, of Akron, Ohio, and Frederick Matthews, 23, of Ellwood City, Pa., both negroes.

They were tried secretly in Potsdam Tuesday and the U.S. Mission in West Berlin received a report on the verdict today.

American officials and the Western press were barred from the trial, held in Communist territory.

Herrin and Matthews, both of whom were working as waiters in West Berlin bars, were charged with trying to smuggle the girl into West Berlin in the trunk of an automobile on Sept. 19. They were picked up by Communist guards at the Friedrich Strasse crossing point as they were returning to West Berlin.

The officials said the girl's parents had fled to the west at an earlier date and that Herrin and Matthews undertook to bring their daughter to them.

Torture-For-Thrills Racket Broken Up By Authorities

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI)—Cracking down on a nationwide torture-for-thrills operation, authorities turned their attention today to a card file of names—customers in the sale of sadism behind the stately walls of a luxurious mansion.

In addition to the card file, two carloads of whips, chains, leather cat-o-nine tails, steel bracelets and leg irons were hauled away from the house of horrors in an exclusive Newark neighborhood.

Tuesday's police raid on the 18-room mansion also yielded barbiturates and pornographic materials, authorities said. Left behind were torture chambers, rooms with chains strung from the ceiling, and cleated shoes for dispensing "discipline" to clients at $50 an hour.

The list of customers from all over the country—some of them well-known personalities—was turned over to agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and U.S. postal authorities.

"It was the weirdest and most bizarre operation I've ever seen," said Detective Art

Magnusson, who acted as "bait" in a police trap.

Magnusson entered the mansion and posed as a client. Thirty minutes later, detectives broke in and seized 39-year-old Monique Von Cleef, the alleged queen of the $1,000-a-week operation, and James Baird 36, a bit player in television and magazine owner.

Magnusson said that in addition to satisfying the erotic whims of customers in the mansion, the sultry blonde traveled around the country to visit clients attracted through Baird's publication, "Flair magazine."

The woman, who said she came to the United States from Holland two years ago, was charged with soliciting for a disorderly house and possession of barbiturates and obscene photographs. She was released on $5,000 bail for a hearing today.

WEATHER

PAMPA AND VICINITY—Mostly cloudy through tomorrow with widely scattered showers. Warmer today and tonight. Low tonight mid-40s. High tomorrow mid-50s. Winds southwesterly 10-20 m.p.h. Outlook for Friday: Colder with possibility of a few snow flurries.

Foreign Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst
In Bangkok, as the first sun's rays tint the Temple of the Dawn, the river people come down from their homes at the water's edge to bathe in the crowded klongs, competing for space with the fruit and vegetable merchants of Bangkok's floating market.

Scattered throughout the city are the tiny prayer houses which appease uneasy spirits dwelling in trees or buildings. The slow pace of life along the klongs, or canals as westerners would call them, and in the city itself is symbolic of a people who have never known colonialism, whose government coups generally are bloodless and who seldom concern themselves with the nuances of Communism, capitalism, imperialism or democracy.

War Comes Closer
But Bangkok is only 50 minutes by air from embattled Saigon and political assassinations, acts of terrorism along the border and the daily tirades of Peking radio make it clear that the war for control of Southeast Asia is getting closer to Thailand.

In 1962, when it seemed that all of Laos must soon fall to Communist control, the United States at Thailand's request established a battle brigade at Karat, some 100 miles to the north and east of Bangkok and U.S. Marines at Udorn close to the Mekong River border with Laos.

Today, U.S. fighterbombers take off from Thailand fields to strike at Communist supply and infiltration routes along the Ho Chi Minh trail in Laos to the Viet Cong in South Viet Nam.

Extend Bombing Attacks
Lately, it was disclosed that giant, Guam-based U.S. B52 bombers have extended their activities in South Viet Nam to attacks also along the Ho Chi Minh trail.

The two-pronged aerial thrust against this trail vital to the Communists emphasizes something that for the Communists has been a fact all along, that Thailand, Laos, Cambodia and Viet Nam comprise but a single theater of action, varying only in the tactics involved.

Cambodia so far has saved itself by a nervous alignment with Red China.

Thailand has remained a firm ally of the West.

In Thailand, U.S. plans already are well advanced to counter any new Communist thrust in that direction.

Emergency construction is under way on a military complex which would permit U.S. forces to thrust across Laos to cut the Ho Chi Minh trail by land.

New Air Facilities
A new runway is under construction big enough to handle the heaviest bombers and transports and another is planned.

Also on the drawing boards is a new deep-water port to relieve pressures on Bangkok which can be reached only by narrow, 15 miles channel.

Thailand is vulnerable not only for its continuing ties with the West but for other reasons as well. Its high Chinese population controlling most of its business activities, makes infiltration of Red agents comparatively simple.

In the northeast where terrorism is mounting, the people are of Laotian extraction and until recently held the status of second-class citizens. And in the jungled provinces to the south are well-organized and expanding remnants of Communist guerrilla forces driven from Malaysia.

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. Army Chief of Staff Gen. Harold K. Johnson arrived in Saigon Tuesday for a week-long visit and to spend Christmas with the troops in the field.

Johnson was accompanied by Maj. Gen. George V. Underwood, Jr., Army chief of information.

It said the agreements covered "supplementary technical assistance, additional free

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI) — "Pigs is pigs," wrote Ellis Parker Butler in 1906. The statement still stands as a model of scholarly observation in the field of swineology.

But although its logic may be unassailable, Butler's brilliant deduction was of little help in the research project that I undertook recently.

I wanted definitive information on the proper way to lift a pig, my interest having been aroused by a controversy that arose at a House Foreign Affairs Subcommittee hearing.

Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, contended that a Peace Corps volunteer, who was photographed in Brazil lifting a pig with both arms under the porker's belly, had violated a cardinal principle of animal husbandry, not to mention gravitation.

Just Not Done
"You just don't pick up pigs of that size that way," Gross asserted.

But the young Corpman, Ronald Trostle, who learned pig-lifting on a farm near Nickerson, Kan., subsequently insisted that his technique was perfectly correct.

"Just grab them around the girth and they relax," he explained.

In seeking to determine which party was in the right, I contacted C. M. Kincaid of the Swine Research Bureau of the Animal Husbandry Research Division of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

"Depends on the size," Kincaid said when I had stated my query. "If it's a small pig, you can pick it up by the hind legs. That's the easier way."

Or Front First
"A big pig you probably would want to lift by the forelegs with his back toward you."

I asked Kincaid if he were prepared to go on record with an official declaration that Trostle's system was technically unsound.

"Actually we don't do much pig-lifting here in the bureau so we have not gone into the matter scientifically," he said.

I was tempted to ask him about lifting pigs by the ears, but I feared that might involve the issue in politics.

Plant

(Continued From Page 1) thick ground fog. It was the third attack by Kitty Hawk-based planes in two days on the region where most of North Viet Nam's manufacturing capability is centered.

No Damage Report
Damage estimates of the latest raid were not available immediately because of the fog and darkness.

The Communists did not use their surface-to-air (SAM) missiles or send MIG jet fighters into the skies during the attack, as they did Monday.

On the ground, the Communists in South Viet Nam continued their terrorist tactics. A terrorist late Tuesday night tossed a grenade at the gate of the U.S. Army's Transportation compound in Saigon. It went off but no one was injured.

It was learned today that the U.S. military in Viet Nam is seeking to sound world opinion on a still wider war.

Pursuit to Cambodia
This came after disclosure that U.S. commanders are to be authorized to send troops into neighboring Cambodia in pursuit of Communist forces.

(In Washington, the State Department said in a statement, "American military commanders throughout the world have authority to take those actions essential in the exercise of the inherent right of self defense to protect their forces.")

At present, U.S. troops are authorized to lob mortar or artillery shells across the border if they are fired on from Cambodian territory. But there has been no known change in strict orders that Americans not cross the frontier. Sources said there is a 1,000-yard buffer zone over which the U.S. troops are forbidden to step.

In 1943, President Franklin Roosevelt announced the appointment of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower as the commander-in-chief of allied forces in the planned invasion of Europe.

BAMBOO PREFERRED—Steel may be the material for heavy-duty construction in the West, but in the Orient the ancient bamboo is still preferred even for many modern tasks. This new building rising in Hong Kong is festooned with scaffolding built completely of bamboo, instead of the maze of steel pipes usual in the West. Experience has shown that bamboo scaffolding, constructed without nails or metal support, is actually stronger and more stable than similar steel structures.

Use of Giant B52s Illustrates Viet War

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Use of giant U. S. B52 bombers against the Ho Chi Minh trail illustrates both the expanding nature of the struggle in Southeast Asia and the increasing role of the big bombers since their introduction into Viet Nam last June.

The Ho Chi Minh trail—so called after Communist North Viet Nam's president—is the infiltration route running through southeastern Laos by which the Communists siphon men and supplies from North Viet Nam to the Viet Cong in the south.

It has been estimated that improved all-weather roads have made it possible for the Communists to move as many as 4,500 men and 2,500 tons of supplies per month into South Viet Nam.

Since the 1962 agreement which re-established the neutrality of Laos, the Ho Chi Minh trail has been a source of frustration to U. S. military men in South Viet Nam.

Political Repercussions
The presumed neutrality of Laos made it a political hot potato because for American troops to move in to block the trail would be to invite Red Chinese intervention.

Militarily it proved equally impossible to solve. Use of the B52s for saturation bombing against roads and way stations is a new approach.

The route, actually a series of trails, moves through some of the most unfriendly territory in Asia.

Triple-tiered jungle, whose top-most tier never reaches the ground, provides dense cover preventing aerial observation. Defoliation attempts have been unsuccessful because by the time one tie is destroyed another already has replaced it.

Scorpions inhabit the ground and drop from the trees. In the jungle are huge pythons and cobras. A man alone may hack his way through less than 15 or 20 yards in a day.

For a time, U. S. Special Forces and the South Vietnamese attempted to maintain harassing action against the trail from isolated camps and blockhouses which proved easy prey for the jungle-wise Viet Cong.

Last summer most of the isolated camps were abandoned and tough Nung tribesmen under Australian veterans of the Malaysia jungle fighting took over the harassing task.

Now the B52s are being given their turn at it. An experiment in South Viet Nam last April proved that even massed fighter bombers are ineffective at saturation bombing. But each of the big B52s can carry more than fifty 750-pound bombs, and at a height of 30 to 30 thousand feet can lay down a precise bomb pattern.

Twenty-six persons were reported killed in the Santiago fighting, and two policemen were shot and killed by mobs here that same day. A teenager was killed in renewed rioting in Santo Domingo Monday.

Mob action has been reported here daily since Sunday. There have been no major riots since about noon Monday, but the threat of violence has been sufficient to keep most private businesses closed down.

Rioters swarmed into the streets early Tuesday afternoon, but the outbreak was quickly curbed by Dominican police supported by Brazilian troops of the inter-American peace force.

In 1814, a treaty of peace was signed between the United States and Great Britain at Ghent, Belgium, bringing an end to the war of 1812.

Dear Abby...

To the Point Hints For Teenage Popularity

DEAR ABBY: Please answer two questions for me.

(1) Can you, in your own brief but to-the-point style, give teen-agers the key to being popular with both sexes?

(2) Am I dreaming, or have I somewhere seen a book by you called "Dear Teenager"? And if so, where may I get one?

MOTHER OF THREE
IN KEENE, N. H.

DEAR MOTHER: (1) The "key" to being popular with both sexes is: Be kind, Be Honest, Be tactful. If you can't be beautiful (or handsome), be well-groomed, tastefully attired, trim of figure, and keep a smile on your face. Be clean in body and mind. If you're not a "brain," try harder. If you're not a great athlete, you can be a good sport. Try to be a stand-out in something. If you can't dance, sing or play an instrument, think for yourself, but respect the rules. Be generous with kind words and affectionate gestures, but save the heavy artillery for later. You'll be glad you did. If you need help, ask God. If you don't need anything, thank God.

(2) You aren't dreaming. Any wide-awake book store can get it for you.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please enlighten me about the custom some women have in offering their cheek when greeting another woman? Do they expect the other woman to kiss it, or merely to brush it with her own? Why don't they simply kiss the other woman's cheek rather than put her in the position of having to do the kissing? Is it a case of who offers her cheek first? I have a relative who never kisses me, but always offers me her cheek. To me this seems rather presumptuous and having an air of bestowing a privilege. Isn't she in effect saying, "You may kiss me!" What is your thinking on this? I'd also like to hear how other women feel about it.

PUZZLED
DEAR PUZZLED: All sincere greetings are spontaneous. This goes for kissing on the lips, cheeks, brushing the cheek, the hearty handshake and the bear-

Fill Her Yule Stocking With Fragrant Gifts

The delightful culprit behind all Christmas gift-giving is St. Nicholas, 4th Century Bishop of Myra, in Lycia. It is he who originated the custom of giving gifts on the anniversary of his birth, December 6. It was from his Dutch name "Sinterklass" that the Santa Claus of today became popular.

And for all of you twentieth century Santa Clauses who are looking for different and exciting ways to fill Christmas stockings with enchanting gifts, Max Factor presents a thrilling collection of Christmas fragrance presentations.

For your one and only, give a sextet of creamy cakes of soap perfumed with exciting golden woods fragrance—the dramatic bath gala. With unforgettable golden woods in feminine bath soap, the sunlit freshness of California meets the soft luxury of the bath.

And for the modern Miss or Mrs. on your list, who likes to lounge in after bath or shower fragrant femininity, surprise her with perfumed bath powder with a deluxe lamb's wool puff.

Grocery lists do more than just keep you from forgetting an item. They help guard against expensive impulse buying.

"Pampa's Fashion Center"

Gardening News

By THELMA BRAY

The "Lone Star Gardener" for December devoted many pages to new and clever ideas for Christmas decorations for our homes, written by Mrs. Ray Shea.

Decorations for several trees are as follows:

PATIO TREE

"The forgotten area at this season! Yet most of us consider our patio an outdoor room. A delightful patio tree is made from a bare branch about 5 feet tall. Secure the branch in plaster of paris in an appropriate container, after spraying it white and dusting with glitter. (You will love this when the sun shines on it.) Decorate with bird's nests, either the real thing or some made of excelsior sprayed gold. Artificial birds complete this simple to make and very effective patio tree.

CRANBERRY TREE

"For the kitchen make a cranberry tree. Using a styrofoam triangle, spray it with red paint and, using toothpicks to fasten them on, cover the form closely with cranberries, remembering to spray them with a plastic as a preservative. Tuck in a few sprigs of holly and finish with a green ribbon bow.

SOAP FRUIT TREE

"To get a respite from some of the glitter and gleam, here's a restful note for the dining area: a lovely little tree very suitable for a buffet or server. Using a quick drying white glue, glue a tall styrofoam cone into a footed glass or small compote which you have sprayed gold. Wire small bunches of Princess Pine to toothpicks, dip picks in glue, insert in cone, covering completely. Trim with scissors, if necessary, for a neat shape. Decorate with soap fruit apples or any small artificial fruit.

Place a small plastic tree - top ornament which has been sprayed gold at the top of this handsome tree.

MONEY TREE

"This is fine for a coffee table and a timely thought, especially if your family seems to think that money grows on trees at this time of year. Secure a small branch in an inexpensive plastic container, using plaster of paris. Spray both a bright gold and tie on gold foil wrapped chocolate "coins", available at candy counters. Secure the coins to the branch by sewing through them and tying to the branch or wire them on with very fine gold wire.

"For the special glamour that spells the spirit of Christmas let your imagination go on a spree! The holidays always provide a wonderful opportunity to express your personality and glorify the season with the festive decorations you make for your home.

"Christmas can be even more exciting, even more beautiful, if you remember that harmony and unity are vitally important in designing decorations you will love to live with. A unified color scheme will get you off to a good start; an over - all theme makes it even easier to come up with decorations in good taste that will complete the harmony of color and design that you strive for in decorating your home.

"Although any of the decorations described here are adaptable to any color scheme, nothing has ever equaled the evocative impact of red, green and gold to highlight the Christmas scene, and it is the color scheme preferred by most. So working with these colors, and since the center of the decorations is the tree itself, let's decorate with trees, everywhere!"

My wish for each of you and yours is "A very happy Christmas!"

NICE, France (UPI) — Painter Pablo Picasso, who underwent secret surgery for a bile duct ailment a month ago, said Sunday that he felt "in great form." Picasso, 84, left from a rest "somewhere in the mountains" and returned to his villa near Cannes.

WASHINGTON—Defense Secretary Robert McNamara has deferred military construction projects already approved by Congress totalling $620 million on the grounds they are not needed for the war in Viet Nam. McNamara ordered immediate execution of other military construction projects totalling $686 million.

NEW YORK—The short interest on the New York Stock Exchange jumped 1.88 million shares in the month ended Dec. 15 to a record 11,768 million. It was the sixth straight month of sharp rises in the short interest.

NEW YORK—The federal court of appeals upheld a lower court in refusing to enjoin Pennzoil Co. from going ahead and buying up to 43 per cent of the shares of United Gas Co., which it has been tendered at $41 a share.

United Press International
The complacency with which the citizens and the courts observe the electoral process contains the seeds of disaster. The federal corrupt practices act seems to take no account of the realities of politics.

One headline reports: "Democrats are joining book-of-the-party club." The book in question is a slick paper product which enables corporations to contribute to political parties to influence elections, despite the law. The Democratic book is just off the press bulging with full page advertisements at $15,000 a page. Many of those ads were paid for by corporations doing big business with the government at the expense of the taxpayer. This raises some questions, quite apart from the legality of corporate political contributions.

Such party books are not a new gimmick. FDR's new dealers struck gold with such a book after the 1936 presidential election, but age and custom have not prettied up the campaign book gimmick for squeezing by the law. These books are passed off as non-political. Their promoters claim the shelter of court decisions protecting spending for educational, non-political purposes.

Unions Also Contribute
The corrupt practices act applies equally to labor unions. All who believe labor unions do not contribute vast sums for political purposes will please leap out the nearest window. The courts have held that when a labor union puts a candidate for office on a television show or pays for such a show in his behalf, there is no political motive involved, merely an attempt to educate the voter.

A republic that accepts such corruption of its electoral processes as this is a republic that has strayed far off the glory road. Corruption feeds on itself leading to further corruption. To corrupt means to change from good to bad. That is what is happening. Citizens should know that the federal Corrupt Practices Act provides as follows:

—That it is unlawful for any national bank, or any corporation organized by authority of any law of congress, to make a contribution or expenditure in connection with any election to any political office, or in connection with any primary election or political convention or caucus held to select candidates for any political office.

Explicit Ban
—That it is unlawful for any

Dividend Decision

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Johnson administration is expected to decide early next month whether to continue the practice of paying out GI insurance dividends in January.

Under the GI insurance program, the Veterans Administration has paid about $250 million a year in rebates to policyholders. Originally, the payments were made on the anniversary date of each policy. But in 1961 the late President John F. Kennedy in an anti-recession move, ordered all dividends paid in January.

This Week In Business

NEW YORK (UPI) — The merry jingle of cash registers and the ubiquitous caroling of Christmas music in retail stores dominated business news this week.

Retail trade was up 3 to 7 per cent over a year ago across the country. Dun & Bradstreet reported. A survey published by New York's huge Chase Manhattan Bank said that Christmas business continues each year to account for a larger proportion of total annual retail revenues and that to more and more segments of the food industry, in particular, a booming Christmas season is a life-and-death matter.

Turkeys, fine hams, candy, glazed fruits, champagne and wines and liquors in general, cranberries, dates, factory-baked fruitcakes, bakery-made mince pies—all these products depend for 40 per cent or more of their total annual sales on Christmas and Thanksgiving, the Chase Manhattan study said.

The Dun & Bradstreet weekly report showed that this year expensive women's dresses are being bought for gifts in larger numbers than usual—in dressy brocades, chiffons and velvets. Lounging robes for both women and men also are near the top in gift sales.

Furs, perfumes and cosmetics are holding their traditional popularity. For men, there has been an extraordinarily large sale of expensive cuff links and tie clasps with jade the most favored stone. Also popular are velour shirts, alpaca sweaters, paisley ties and sueded outer wear.

Color television receivers dominate expensive gifts for the whole family, followed by small electric household appliances.

Pampa Stalls Steers

By RON CROSS
News Sports Editor
AMARILLO (Spl) — Pampa plastered Caprock's delay game near the end of the fourth period Tuesday night and escaped with a 43-29 victory over the Longhorns thanks to some fine free throw shooting by Steve Williams.

The victory boosted the Harvesters 3-4A league record to 3-1 and their season mark to 10-2. This was Pampa's third straight victory.

You couldn't tell it by the score but Caprock gave the Harvesters all they could take for over three quarters, earning a tie at 28-28 with 3:22 left in the contest.

But David Cain scored Pampa's first field goal of the period with 2:51 left and a 30-28 lead that the Harvesters never lost.

From this time on Pampa outscored the Steers, 13-1, mostly on free shots by Williams, McWilliams and Cain's two baskets.

Pampa played a delay game of their own from the third period on, took the good shots and wound up shooting 54 per cent from the floor on 12 of 22 attempts after going eight for 11 in the first half.

It was evident from the start of the game it was going to be a low scoring affair with Caprock coach Cliff Mehrtens evidently remembering defeats of 86-41, 111-47, 83-64 and 97-81 being handed him by previous Pampa teams.

Pampa grabbed a quick 2-0 lead, upped it to 3-1, then saw the Steers tie it a 3-3 and with 2:30 left in the contest Pampa held a 7-4 lead.

But this melted quickly on the shooting of the Steers leading scorer Danny McDuff who hit a basket and two free throws combined with a basket by 6'4 Marty Speckman and an 11-8 lead as the period ended.

But Kenneth McWilliams, who led all scorers with 11 points, hit one from outside for Pampa to make it 11-10.

But it took two free shots and a basket by McWilliams before Pampa was able to gain a tie at 16-16 and the lead on a basket by Mike Wise with 3:38 left in the half.

Baskets by Crossland, Frash-ier and two free tosses by Cain then the Steers James Duckworth, who tied Speckman for scoring honors with eight points, hit a basket that made it all even at 28-28. This came with 3:22 left in the contest and Pampa still hadn't been able to score a field goal.

Speckman and McDuff hit for the Steers and the third period ended with the Harvesters holding a 27-24 lead.

Speckman and McWilliams traded points with Kenneth's being of the free throw variety then the Steers James Duckworth, who tied Speckman for scoring honors with eight points, hit a basket that made it all even at 28-28. This came with 3:22 left in the contest and Pampa still hadn't been able to score a field goal.

But less than a minute later Cain bucketed and was fouled, but missed the free toss. But Pampa held a 30-28 lead.

Williams hit the first two of his six free tosses to make it 32-28, then repeated and Crossland scored next from the charity line to make it 36-29 with 57 seconds left in the game.

Fouls flew fast and furious and Cain connected on a three point play for a 39-29 lead with 32 seconds left.

McWilliams and Williams hit from the charity line to wrap up the scoring.

The Longhorns took only 12 shots in the second half and ended the night with nine of 50 for 30 per cent. They did some better from the charity stripe connecting on 11 of 16 for 67 per cent. Pampa hit 19 of 37 from the free toss line, a percentage of 51.4.

The Harvesters are idle until next Tuesday when they host Plainview in a 3-4A encounter then turn their attention to the Top O' Texas tournament slated at Harvester Fieldhouse Dec. 30-31.

The Pampa Shockers led all the way and won their 11th game in 12 starts and 10th in a row by downing Caprock B, 77-51.

Jim Cornutt paced the Shockers with 18 points while Carlos, Marsh and Bailey hit 12 each for the Shockers.

Hogs Assistant New OU Coach?

NORMAN, Okla. (UPI) — Jim MacKenzie, assistant football coach at Arkansas, was expected today to be named to take over the task of rebuilding Oklahoma's crumbled gridiron empire.

UPI learned Tuesday that MacKenzie, chief assistant to Frank Broyles at Arkansas, had agreed to accept the head coaching job vacated Dec. 6 by the sudden resignation of Gomer Jones.

Approval of the hiring of MacKenzie was delayed Tuesday when officials were unable to contact one regent who was in New York on business. Rules required unanimous approval by telephone or a majority vote in a called meeting of regents.

Duke Keeps Place; Rips Wolves, 100-93

By United Press International
The Duke Blue Devils are no longer just a stepping stone to the top national ranking but are firmly at the top of the heap themselves.

Duke defeated the fifth-ranked Michigan Wolverines 100-93 Tuesday night in a high-pressure overtime game to enhance their No. 1 ranking while second-rated St. Joseph's of Pennsylvania was losing to eighth-ranked Brigham Young 102-83.

Michigan took over the top national ranking soon after defeating Duke two years ago and improved its No. 1 rating last season by defeating the Blue Devils. Duke also got to the National Collegiate Athletic Association finals two years ago only to lose the title to UCLA, a team defeated twice this season by the Blue Devils.

Finesse triumphed over brawn in Detroit Tuesday night as the diminutive Blue Devils came from far behind to whip the monsters from Michigan. Third-ranked Vanderbilt kept pace with Duke by defeating the University of California at Santa Barbara 91-64.

Brigham Young hit 56 per cent of its shots from the field to completely humiliate St. Joseph's, which managed only 30 percent.

Bradley, no. 11 nationally, had unaccustomed difficulty defeating Montana 87-77 for its ninth consecutive victory without a loss, while UCLA, which tumbled from the national rankings after losing three of its first six games, scored 17 consecutive points to overcome a nine-point deficit in the first half and defeat the University of Southern California 86-67.

In other games, Loyola of Chicago defeated St. Joseph's of New Mexico 109-91, West Virginia overcame a 33-27 halftime deficit to beat Maryland 76-74, San Francisco whipped Gonzaga 80-67, Northwestern downed Texas 73-71 to win the Memphis State Classic, Davidson routed Ohio University 96-63, and Indiana easily tripped up Notre Dame 80-38.

A Watchful Newspaper

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities. We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself no more, no less. It is thus consistent with the Human Relations Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Right Under Their Noses

A former eyesore in the suburbs of our Nation's capital has now become something of a thorn in the side of some Federal bureaucrats. While agents of the Federal Urban Renewal Administration have been tramping all over the country setting up one project after another, private investors and builders slipped into the community of Rosslyn — just across the Potomac River from Washington's historic Georgetown and the mist-enshrouded locale of the US State Department once known as Foggy Bottom — and transformed some 37 acres of run-down slums into a multi-million dollar assortment of office buildings, apartments and quality motels. To the evident dismay of the Federal renewers and redevelpers, not a penny of tax money was involved in the Rosslyn redevelopment project. The citizens of Arlington, Virginia, of which Rosslyn is a part, had voted 2-1 against an urban renewal proposal back in 1958. Land values in the area have risen from $6 per square foot in 1960 to a present $25 per square foot, which should please the tax-collectors in Arlington, even if it is a little aggravating to some of the tax-spenders in Washington.

Even though the reconstructed community of Rosslyn seems in truth to be a monument to private enterprise and initiative, some advocates of government planning and control still try to claim credit, if for no other reason than because they "allowed" private owners and investors to build as they wanted to. Besides, as a spokesman for the Federal Urban Renewal Administration explained, the Rosslyn location had all sorts of advantages, such as being close to downtown Washington where office and apartment spaces are in high demand, whereas most government-run "urban renewal activity goes into areas where there is no market visualized."

Which is a pretty good illustration, we think, of the basic difference between private enterprise and government planning.

Tax Credit for School Costs

The idea of tax credits for parents who send their children to college is receiving support from some surprising sources. One of those who is advocating the tax credits is Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., who once was the head of the vast Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The American Legion magazine for December carries Ribicoff's statement in favor of the tax credits, and an objection by Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore. Some of those who are promoting tax credits either for contributions to colleges or for parents who pay to send their children to schools, see the credits as the answer to objections that federal handouts of tax payer funds to schools also will mean federal control. It would give the person who seeks to help a non-tax-supported school a full credit from his income taxes — not just a tax exemption. It would eliminate the government "middleman" and the government controls. It would be a step toward more free enterprise education.

Ribicoff does not see the tax credits as a substitute for government loans and scholarships, but as a relief for the middle income people who are hard hit by costs of sending their young people to school, and for students who are working their way through college.

Morse objects that the legislation is designed to help colleges and universities but not parents, and that the bulk of the money would wind up in the treasuries of the colleges through increased tuitions.

However, most of the handout programs result in increasing the funds in the college treasuries, and when the money is taken first in taxes and then distributed to the schools, there is the loss through handling of the funds, and the inevitable controls that come from the agencies dispensing the funds.

We are glad to see that a senator such as Mr. Ribicoff sees the need for some justice for the middle income people, who make up the vast majority of the tax paying public.

It All Makes Sense—Maybe

Automobiles cost more this year than last. So they are cheaper. Many men are spending more time and money on their hair than most women are. Football is, of course, a fun game to build character and demonstrate true sportsmanship. So young men fresh out of college are demanding—and getting — as much as $400,000 for consenting to play it. Puzzled? The explanations are simple: —It is true that the price tags on most of the 1966 dream cars are a little higher than last year. But the Bureau of Labor Statistics, in its Consumer Price Index, says they are actually cheaper by 0.8 per cent. The reason is that the new cars include as standard equipment certain safety features which last year were optional. So you now pay more, but you get more than you pay more for. See? —While a plain old male haircut may be all right for a plain old male, the IN thing for the really sharp fellow is personalized hair styling and contour coiffuring to bring out the real him. Under this method, the hair is styled not by shears but by razor, practically a hair at a time. It is then set with gentle skill and scented lotion that not only seals in the beauty but makes the hair smell good like coiffured hair should. —And as for the college football stars, their problem is not the graduate's usual scramble to land a job but to fight off eager and persistent pro football recruiters who practically knock each other's brains out in their frantic efforts to induce Saturday's heroes to get rich by building their characters in fun games on Sunday television. There. Does that clear things up? Fine. Now we can concentrate on other current confusions, such as how come our enemy's flag can be flown openly and without penalty by American citizens in a parade past the nation's Capitol while American boys are dying in Viet Nam for the Stars and Stripes. How about THAT?

Some youngsters, poor enough to qualify, are being youth corps jobs because they dropped from neighborhood youth corps jobs because they are too well-behaved. It's the truth. The Office of Economic Opportunity, in a recent directive, jumped on lesser officials for admitting unqualified youths to the NYC payrolls. Some teen-agers, neither school dropouts nor delinquents have been given NYCA jobs because of the deplorable tendency of some school principals to recommend poverty-stricken teenagers who already exhibit a "potential for success," the OEO says. We have great faith, however, in the ingenuity of any boy or girl who can do this despite the handicaps of poverty. When they learn what their nation expects of them, they'll go out and steal a few cars, or stay away from school long enough to qualify for the youth corps program. As Mr. Alger always said, you can't keep a good kid down.

ILLITERATES AT THE POLLS With peaceniks marching in Washington under the banner of the Communist Viet Cong, and with war raging in South Asia—not to speak of other grave international problems—the country has overlooked the revolutionary and destructive effects of mass registration of illiterates.

The press, in states affected by the new federal voter registration requirements, has produced alarming evidence of the ignorance among these new voters that the Johnson administration has demanded be enrolled. News stories and polls tell us that in many cases the majority of registrants don't know the name of the Congressman in their own district or even who is President of the United States. They don't know why they are registering or what is decided in an election. Many of these illiterates have been told by the political organizations that herd them to registration offices that if they do not register they will lose their social security cards. Others fear that they will be called on in church to hold up their registration certificates, and criticized if they don't possess such certificates.

The tragic effects of the enrollment of the least qualified group of people in the United States will have a terrible effect on governmental processes in this country. But the influence of the illiterate will extend beyond the voting booth. For one thing, juries are drawn from the lists of registered voters. What educated, respectable citizen, with an important matter respecting one's freedom, or property before a court, would want to be tried by a jury containing illiterates? Indeed perhaps when these illiterates are assigned to jury duty, those who are before the bar of justice or engaged in litigation should call in question the competence of courts in which the juries contain illiterates. Traditionally, an American has been entitled to trial by "his peers," as the saying goes. It is hard to accept the idea that an illiterate person, incapable of reading court documents offered as evidence, is the peer of a literate citizen, and every legal effort should be made to demand a trial in which the jurors are literate.

In short, educated Americans have to fight back against the influence of illiterates. The Civil Rights Act is studded with restrictions designed to intimidate citizens who question the right of a person to vote. These restrictions will create unprecedented opportunities for fraud in next summer's state and congressional elections. The states, however, are still free to bar from voting those persons who have been convicted of crimes. It is imperative, in this connection, that state legislatures — this very winter — review their election laws and procedures. For example, states need close control over voter identification so as to reduce the possibility of fraud and impersonation of voters. Perhaps what is needed in many states is a voting certificate that bears a photograph, identifying description and fingerprint mark — a card similar to a driver's license or even a U.S. passport. Unless voters are required to have such certificates, managers of polling places may be unable to adequately determine next summer whether a person who presents himself for voting is qualified to do so. Given the penalties incorporated in the Voting Act, a poll manager will have to be very sure before he takes action against a person he believes is not qualified to vote.

The states will protect the quality of government if they check the list of voters against the list of persons convicted of crimes who are, thereby, disqualified from voting. Ironically, the first couple to present themselves for registration in one Southern state, under the watchful eye of federal voting examiners, turned out to have criminal records. It is shocking, of course, that the Voting Rights Act is ever approved. Voting standards have never been sufficiently high in the United States, with the result that government officials have become increasingly demagogic in their appeals. Now all standards have been thrown out the window, and those people with no understanding of the issues and problems facing their communities, state and nation are to be enrolled — one can be sure — manipulated by unscrupulous politicians. The need, then, is

WASHINGTON — Federal authorities are conducting a worldwide search to ascertain the whereabouts of nine of the 21 former U. S. prisoners of war who defected to Red China in the Korean war.

Although the Central Intelligence Agency and the Justice Department have been able over the years to keep close tabs on twelve of these former turncoats, the others have mysteriously disappeared.

The missing defectors include four of the fourteen who returned to the U. S. after living for a number of years in Communist China. Federal officials haven't been able to locate the four during the past several years.

The other one-time prisoners of war include six who never returned to the U. S. Five of them are believed to be living behind the Bamboo and Iron Curtains.

The sixth was last spotted in Belgium; another is known to have died in Communist China.

According to information compiled by government investigative agencies, the four missing turncoats being tracked in the U. S. and the latest information regarding them are as follows:

"SGT. RICHARD G. GORDEN, of Chicago, Ill., arrived in San Francisco on January 19, 1959. He lived in Milwaukee in 1961; Chicago in 1962. Present employment and residence unknown."

"CPL. ANDREW FORTUNA, of Greenvu, Ky., returned to U. S., July 3, 1957. Worked as laborer at Portsmouth, Ohio, in 1958; Detroit, 1963-64; and Chicago, March 1964. Last reported as of August 1964, to be at Salvation Army Center, 1401 Madison Street, Gary, Indiana."

"PFC. OTTO GRAYSON BELL formerly of East Olympia, Wash., last reported working as handyman in Olympia in December 1964. He returned from Communist China in July 1955."

"CPL. AARON P. WILSON, of Urania, La., returned to the U. S. on December 6, 1956. As of May 1964, Wilson reportedly was employed in New Orleans. His recent location and work not known."

"UNDER SURVEILLANCE — U. S. authorities have a good idea where the other ten returned defectors are living and working, although some of their activities could be deemed mysterious."

For example, Pfc. Morris P. Willis, Fort Ann, N. Y., most recent returned turncoat, is working on an article on life in Red China for a national magazine. The publishers are keeping Willis in close seclusion.

Intelligence authorities charged with the surveillance of the six defectors who have not returned to the U. S. are having great difficulty keeping track of them.

Cpl. Howard G. Adams, Corsicana, Texas; Pfc. James G. Veneria, Vandergrift, Pa.; and Pfc. Clarence C. Adams, Washington, D. C., are believed to be still in Communist China. But CIA has no "hard information" on them since 1963.

Pfc. Adams is listed in intelligence files as a student at Wu Han University, Wu Han, China in 1957; Cpl. Adams, working in Shantung Paper Mill, Tsinan, in 1960; and Pfc. Veneria as "somewhere in Communist China in January 1963."

Cpl. John R. Dunn, a former potato chip salesman from Altoona, Pa., was reported to have left China in December 1959 for Zilina, Czechoslovakia. Cpl. Harold Webb, of Jacksonville, Fla., was residing in Katowice, Poland, in January 1964. Although it is known he married a Polish girl and worked as an English tutor in Katowice, his present whereabouts is unknown.

Cpl. Albert Constant Belhomme, who worked in a paper mill in Tsinan, China, after defecting, was traced to Antwerp, Belgium in November 1963, where U. S. authorities lost his trail.

Representative Michael Feighan, D-O., chairman of the House Immigration Investigating Subcommittee, is planning a full-scale inquiry of State and Defense Department handling of these turncoats.

He wants to determine why the returned defectors have not been prosecuted, and whether they have ties with the Communists.

Feighan will interrogate Justice Department authorities on whether legislation is needed to require returned defectors to register with federal officials.

"One Oswald in the history of our country is far too many if we are to survive as the defender of the free world," says Feighan. "Another Oswald could shake the world's confidence in our system of government."

RENT SUBSIDY BILL

In praising the Rent Subsidy Bill, The New York Times quotes one of its supporters, Senator Joseph Clark of Pennsylvania, as saying, "We are the richest nation in the history of mankind. When we fail to provide a decent home for every American, it is not because we can't, but because we won't."

How rich is a man who owes more than his total wealth? He may have a high earning capacity but, if he continues to spend more than his income each year and to add to his indebtedness, just how rich is he?

Now note the implications in the latter part of Senator Clark's statement, "When we fail to provide a decent home for every American..." Who is the "we" that should provide a decent home for every American? Is it not ourselves? Then wouldn't it be better to stress the importance of providing homes for ourselves rather than to relax in the thought that someone else is going to do it or us? What do we gain if, instead of building a home for ourselves, we join a common pool to build homes for everybody? One thing is certain, we shall lose a great deal of the results of our efforts because operating in this collective manner, we shall have to sustain a vast army of high-priced wasteful, and careless bureaucrats. This might consume 15 or 20 per cent of the results of our combined efforts. More seriously, few of us would work as hard on the collective project of furnishing homes for everyone as we would in building a home for ourselves. Moreover, if we take the latter course, we will have an individual home built as we would like to have it. But if we take the collective road, standardization is inevitable and we shall have to live in a home which some bureaucrat somewhere has decided would be the best for us.

On the whole, and speaking in general terms, where exact figures cannot be compiled, it is conservative to say that the amount and quality of housing achieved by the collective method would not be more than half of the results attainable if each one of us were permitted to assume responsibility for his own housing. Generous Christian charity for the needy is, of course, essential, and desirable, but that is something altogether different from the generalized subsidy of rent for which Senator Clark and The New York Times are pleading. As these words are being spoken, it appears that we have taken a long step towards the socialization of housing. It is very tempting for a politician to offer benefits to his constituents. Socialism, or the hope of getting some of the wealth of others, is very luring, though immoral. It is frightfully destructive of self-reliance, and in the end it will enslave any people who succumb to it. In the beginning it appears attractive, but when the wealth

The American Way

By HARRY BROWNE

Advertising has long been a major whipping boy for those who enjoy attacking the free enterprise system. Over 10 billion dollars is spent annually in advertising media (which includes the cost of production of television shows and newspapers, etc., as well as the direct cost of the advertising). Think of how this money could be spent instead to conduct a "war on poverty" or for education!

Yet, let us find out just how much advertising costs us — and if it's worth the price to us. Suppose all the merchants in your town agreed that advertising was simply a competitive battle between them — and so they determined to stop the battle and quit advertising.

It is true, without question, that in the short term, the merchant would see the cost-per-unit of each product they sell lowered. Obviously, advertising is an expense to them — and eliminating it would end that expense.

Now, it is also true that the merchants could lower their prices by the amount of advertising expense and sell more of each item. The law of supply and demand dictates that the lower selling price will bring greater sales. This, in turn, will bring greater year-end profits. So it would be in the merchants' self-interest to pass the savings per-unit onto their customers.

But now that all these bargains exist, how will you know about it? How will you find out what is available at each store — how prices on individual items compare — what new products and services have been innovated?

Obviously, without advertising, you will now be required to spend a great deal more time shopping. The few minutes spent reading ads will be replaced by many hours involved in visiting all the stores to find out what is going on.

Yes, it is true that lower prices might prevail; but the cost to you will not have been lowered. While you formerly spent a few pennies per product for the cost of transmitting important information to you, now you will have to pay in hours of time and energy to get the same information.

If the expenditure for advertising were not worth it to you — if you really preferred to do business with stores that didn't advertise — you would do so, and those non-advertising stores would flourish. The fact that they don't is proof that most of us would rather pay money for advertising than time and energy for extra shopping.

Everything in this world has a price — in human energy expended. We progress as we find the ways to do what we want with less expenditure of human effort. In his case, the investment of human energy in the production of advertising is considered by us to be less expensive than the energy required for additional shopping. It's as simple as that.

We make similar decisions every day. Sure, it would be far less expensive in money to do without a car. But it would be far more expensive in terms of overall human effort to accomplish the car's purpose without the car. So we spend what is necessary for a car.

The cost of communication between buyer and seller will be paid for — in advertising, in higher commission to salesmen, or in greater effort by the shopper. But the cost of communication will be paid — or else no sale could take place.

As with any other economic matter, outlaw advertising and you will raise the ultimate price to the consumer — not lower it. He's getting what he wants right now.

Question Box

(We invite questions on economic and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

QUESTION: "Has one man, one vote with all adults having the privilege of voting ever been successful? If not, why not?"

ANSWER: That is a very live question, not only in the United States but all over the world. Rhodesia in South Africa finds the difficulty of permitting all adults to vote, no matter what their standard of morality and justice is.

The reason it never is successful is that too many people think only of the temporary advantages they will get from voting to take from those who have to give to those who have not. They have more votes than the producers — the men with foresight and courage who are willing to risk their capital.

The United States of course had no thought of having the universal franchise, one man, one vote. The Indians didn't vote and the slaves didn't vote. Of course, there should never have been slavery but because a man (or woman) is 21 years old is no reason to allow him the privilege of voting.

The privilege of association is one of the most important privileges and society develops by permitting people to associate with each other who stimulate each other's efforts, ideas and energies. But when the majority has a right to use initiated force or legalized robbery or plunder to interfere with people freely and voluntarily associating with each other, the results are always a decline in production, a decline in freedom, a decline in education and a decline in understanding.

The government schools which are based on majority rule are a nice example of what majority rule brings about. No individual would contend that he as an individual has a right to force another person to pay for his idea of education. When they contend the majority has a right to do things that no individual has a moral right to do, they are adopting the double standard of morality, and a double standard of morality is no standard at all. The majority rule schools cannot teach, "Thou Shalt Not Steal," because they are guilty of legally stealing. That is a good example of the results of the majority having the privilege of voting.

Critics of the vocal "right of average" have many friends and a large and avid following. They take pride in leaning for support on many of the alumni, faculty and some of the students of nearly all the nation's best-known universities.

"Critic columnists" despise anyone stooping to purveying hate. They deplore guilt by association charges. They know there are vast numbers of people in the U.S. whom they could summon to demonstrate gladly in behalf of their claim that patriots are hatemongers.

Now what can be said for the "despised" lovers of liberty? Will they stand up for their principles? Are they loyal to the nation? Are they honest, truthful, reasonable, religious and law-abiding? Will they support local officials? Do they love their fellowman? Do they respect their neighbors? Would they engage in near-subversive activities to achieve their ambition? accumulated by free men is exhausted, it ends up by distributing poverty.

wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadeth to the destruction and many there be which go in therat' (Matthew 7:13)

Christmas Shopping For Quads Is Lots of Fun

EDITOR'S Note: What's it like to Christmas shop for 11 children including quads and a set of twins? When their mother did, or tried to, a UPI newsmen accompanied her. His account follows.

By JONATHAN LARFELD
United Press International
HOLYOKE, Mass. (UPI) — Santa Claus gave whistles to two of the quads. That was his first mistake this Christmas season.

I was there. That was my mistake.

Mrs. Raymond Feyre, two of the 4-year-old quads, and one of their older brothers walked the two miles from home to Santa's sanctuary.

Mrs. Feyre, an attractive 40 in a cranberry colored car coat, thought the walk would unspigot some of the steam in her lively lads.

But quads Jamie and Robbie, bundled in a look-alike snow suits, scampered into the department store, Steiger's, with the bubbly ecstasy of pixies on Christmas Eve.

Their brother, John, a grown-up 7, put on a manly reserve — at first. But it wasn't long before the quads' enthusiasm rubbed off on him. Descend On Santa I was standing near Santa when the three boys stormed up to him with a whoosh and a holler. I was nearly tossed against the double doors of the elevators.

"Where are the other two quads?" I asked, half out of curiosity and half out of concern for Santa.

Mrs. Feyre said the other two, Margaret and Maureen, were in nursery school. She explained the quads go to school in pairs, six months on and six months off.

"The boys just finished their six months," she said almost regretfully.

The boys by this time were cuddling up to Santa who seemed something less than jolly. He asked each boy what he wanted for Christmas.

The replies were a cacophony of sounds like that defied understanding.

Whistles A Mistake Then Santa gave lollipop whistles to each of the boys. And they began blowing with the full might of their sturdy lungs.

At first, everyone ignored the piercing shrills. Mrs. Feyre, now standing in the luggage department, smiled nervously.

She moved about the store, trying to decide what to get for each of her 11 children. Jamie and Robbie and John always were within ear shot, if not eye sight. Their whistling seemed louder.

"It's all the attention they get that does it," said their mother. She scolded the boys. "I guess it's just that they like having a good time, though."

The boys now were at the top of a stairway, whistling discordant harmony on the lollipops that refused to melt.

Favor Guns "Stop that," Mrs. Feyre yelled. She turned to me and said, "You know, they mostly like guns."

"But," she added after a reflective pause, "We're going to try puzzles this year—something to keep them quiet. They like card games, too. Those are quiet."

"The Feyre children range in age from six months to 19 years and it is a tremendous chore shopping for them, with or without the whistling.

"We generally give one toy and one clothing gift to each," Mrs. Feyre said. "The older ones want mostly clothes." For their first Christmas, the quads got something no one wanted—chicken pox.

Mrs. Feyre and the three boys now were starting toward the exit. She had bought nothing.

She confided that 13-year-old Mary, one of the twins, usually took the quads to see Santa.

"Mary loves it," she said. "But it's getting me nervous." As for me I don't hear jingle bells this Christmas. I hear whistles.

NEW YORK (UPI) —Edward A. Viner & Co. Inc. says that, judging by the price and quality of stocks which have been recently favored, one must conclude that enthusiasm has replaced discretion in the market price.

The firm says portfolios should be geared to the type of economic conditions which will probably evolve in the year ahead adding, "The market does not discount the same developments forever."

Abraham & Co. says that increased interest in stock investment on the part of the public and reinvestment demand caused by sharply advancing dividend payments appear to outweigh the prospective supply of new equities coming into the market.

Bache & Co. continues to emphasize that new funds should be committed only in industries with a favorable outlook and in issues which are fundamentally attractive and selling at reasonable multiples.

The casket is to be interred Wednesday in the grounds of Maugham's old school King's School, in Canterbury.

Television In Review

United Press International
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —CBS-TV continued Wednesday night to establish its preeminence in the use of the Early Bird satellite for the purpose for which it was basically intended: instant and public exchanges of views by peoples throughout the world.

This latest employment of Early Bird, on the network's "Town Meeting of the World" series, found two-man student debating teams of Harvard and Oxford—each aided by a notable elder—having a transoceanic go at the subject of the American commitment in Viet Nam.

Not long ago, CBS-TV also offered former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, U.N. Ambassador Arthur Goldberg and Solicitor General Thurgood Marshall answering questions from students in foreign lands via Early Bird in a session full of sparks.

Clear Format
Wednesday night's hour, which likewise had pointed out frictions, nevertheless was far more worthwhile because the natural organization attendant to a debate format lent a semblance of clarity and proper channels for following up points.

The Harvard team, whose elder was Prof. Henry Kissinger, a former consultant to the National Security Council, argued for the affirmative position of the resolution: "That the United States should carry out its commitment in Viet Nam."

The Oxford team, whose elder was Michael Foot, British Socialist member of Parliament, argued for the negative. After the formal debate, students in the audiences in both studios asked questions of the participants. Charles Colingwood, in New York, was the moderator.

To this viewer there seemed a rather amazing failure of both teams to come more fully and frankly to grips with the totally basic point of power politics in the Viet Nam situation. Each team seemed more concerned with defending views than with approaching realities.

Harvard Over Oxford
Nevertheless, from a totally disinterested approach, this viewer felt that, in terms only of the debate, the Harvard team ran Oxford right out of the ballpark.

The Harvard students — Robert Shrum of Los Angeles and Lawrence Tribe of San Francisco—were brilliantly prepared, crystal clear in their presentations, unflappable, polite, thoroughly businesslike and refrained from showboating, relying instead on sharp specifics. And Prof. Kissinger was calm and deadly in his point-making.

Foot, meanwhile, emerged forceful and sincere, but his meandering caused his points to be blunted in their debating effect. The Oxford students seemed poor choices to argue their position, relying less on hard point-making, and more on unfortunate grandstanding and the transparent British device of trying to assume a superior air and applying mockery when desperately on the defensive. It doesn't work any more.
