OVER 6,000 SOLD — Mrs. Mary Ellen Elliot, 2231 Williston, a deputy clerk in the County Tax Assessor's office, looks over the stack of new license plates ready for issue to Pampa area drivers. More than 6,568 passenger tags have been sold by the County Tax Assessor-Collector's office in the Court House. Mrs. Elliot advised Pampa drivers the deadline for buying a new license plate is April 1.

City Okays Boost In Street Light Rates

Pampa entered into a contract today with Southwestern Public Service Co. that will hike the cost of city street lighting $517.80 a month or $6,213.60 a year.

City Manager Jim White explained that most of the additional cost will come from the switch over of 465 incandescent lights, now on a metered rate, to mercury lamps.

Pampa now has 1,075 street lights in operation and 398 of them are mercury lights and 677 incandescent.

Under the new contract incandescent lights all will gradually be changed to the mercury type which provides much more lighting area.

The changeover to all mercury lights, the city manager said, should result in a lower vandalism rate, be of great help to night policing and make Pampa a lighter and brighter city.

The rate increase for street lighting was adopted unanimously on a motion by Commissioner M. McDonald and a second by Commissioner Hugh Burdette. The new contract will have no effect on current residential and commercial lighting rates.

The commission passed on first reading an ordinance to annex property at the request of property owners in an area west of N. Hobart to a point just west of N. Sumner, north of Gwendolyn, north of Boyd and west of N. Sumner. It includes property occupied by Boy Scout headquarters and property owned by E. E. Shelhamer, I. W. Tinney and Culbertson-Stowers Chevrolet, all of whom requested annexation.

A public hearing was set for 8:30 a.m. Tuesday April 11, on proposed annexation of the following property:

An area west of N. Hobart to a point just west of Nelson and north of Gwendolyn and north of Boyd and west of N. Sumner.

An area north of 25th and east of Perryton Parkway north to 28th Ave.

The area east of Fairview Cemetery and north of Harvester to Worrel and 16th Ave.

And three blocks of Aspen St. from 25th Ave. north to the city limit lines.

The commission authorized the mayor to enter into contract with the Texas Highway Department for 50-50 participation in the purchase of right of way for the improvement of SH 152 on Alcock St. from N. Faulkner west to the city limits.

The action was taken following the appearance of Pete Stimer of the State Highway Department before the commission this morning. Stimer explained the state would pay half the right of way costs after the city has determined land values and procured the right of way. The state, Stimer said, will buy title insurance and prepare deeds. (See RATES, Page 3)

Government Loses $110,000 Damage Suit to Mickey Cohen

ATLANTA (UPI)—The federal government was under court order today to pay racketeer Mickey Cohen $110,000 damages for a beating he received in the Atlanta Penitentiary that left him confined to a wheelchair.

Cohen who was assaulted by a fellow inmate in August, 1963, sued the federal government for $10 million charging negligence. Cohen a Los Angeles underworld figure, was serving time for income tax evasion.

"It is a marvelous commentary on our legal system that this claim can be prosecuted without regard to the plaintiff's (Cohen) standing as a prisoner or member of the state," said Attorney General Ramsey O. Smith.

Monday in upholding Cohen's claim.

Convict Berl Estes McDonald struck Cohen in the head with a piece of pipe while Cohen sat in a chair in the prison's electrical shop. The court held that McDonald had a mental disorder.

The judge said although "by no means is the government an insurer of the safety of a prisoner... it must exercise ordinary care for the prisoner's protection and to keep him safe and free from harm."

McDonald, who was 33 at the time, attacked Cohen, who was then 51, and inflicted a deep head wound that required 12 stitches. (See COHEN, Page 3)

Junior Chamber Elects New Officer Slate for 1966-67

Jake Webb was installed today as the new president of the Pampa Junior Chamber of Commerce.

A four-year member of the Pampa Jaycees, Webb is a representative for Southwestern Public Service Co.

Larry Wingert was named First Vice President of the Jaycee organization in today's balloting. Wingert moved to Pampa in August 1964 and is circulation manager of the Pampa Daily News. He is an 18 month member of the Pampa Jaycees.

Of the six offices filed today only two were contested.

Morris Wilson beat out a field of three for the Second Vice-President position. He is an employee of Gate Valve Shop and Supply Co.

Joe Dickey, operator of Dickey Tax Service, was elected Treasurer. Ross Pool was awarded the Inter-Club Director post and Don Tinney was named Secretary.

Pool is manager of Pampa's Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. and Tinney is a partner in I. W. Tinney Construction Co.

New officers will serve during 1966-67 and will be installed at the Moose Hall, April 1. A. J. Carubbi Jr. will speak and serve as installing officer.

Eddie Polnac retired as the club's president with today's election of new officers.

Half-Million Registered In State Sign Up

AUSTIN (UPI)—The number of persons who registered during the special 15 day period ending last week has again been revised upward to 575,421.

Atty. Gen. Waggoner Carr said Monday reports were in from all but 26 of Texas' 254 counties.

Carr had predicted 250,000 new voters. Gov. John Connally had guessed 200,000 would register.

However, reports last Friday made Carr boost his estimate to a half-million.

Commission Sets High Allowable For Oil in April

AUSTIN (UPI)—The Texas Railroad Commission Monday set the highest oil allowable since January 1963 — 3,199,550 barrels per day, an increase of 29,234 barrels daily over current production.

The April allowable is the seventh consecutive month that the state's permissive oil production was increased. The 33.7 per cent of potential factor was the highest since production was put on a percentage basis in 1963.

The March allowable is based on 23.2 per cent.

Sheriff Refuses To Honor Bond Attempts

WHEELER — Sheriff Bus Dorman said today he was not honoring attempts of an Austin attorney to post bonds for five men arrested last week in connection with the burglary of the Mobilite First State Bank.

Bonds for the five men totaled $110,000.

Dorman said today he did not think a writ of habeas corpus would be filed by the attorneys for the five men. Austin attorneys John Flanagan and Brooks Holman are representing the suspected burglars.

Dorman said the reason he believed a writ of habeas corpus was not going to be filed was because the two attorneys had left Wheeler and gone to Oklahoma City.

"As long as I've got the prisoners in jail they (the prisoners) are not going to be out bothering other people," Dorman said. "If those lawyers want 'em out they can go get a writ."

Held in connection with the bank burglary are Jerry R. James, Fred Hedger, 28, and James T. Overton, 25, all of Austin; Clifford Bowen, 34, of Slaton; and William R. Brown, 40, of Chickasha, Okla.

Under Texas law, a sheriff may refuse a bond if he chooses. Dorman explained the only other course of action is to file a writ of habeas corpus requiring the men to be taken before 31st District Judge Louis M. Goodrich for a hearing to determine if they should be held.

Four more burglary charges, two of them involving banks, were filed against the five men in Palo Pinto County late Monday. Sheriff Gilbert Sommerfield of Mineral Wells said the men were charged with the March 7 burglaries of two grocery stores and a bank in Grayford and the burglary of the Strawn bank.

Federal charges will probably be filed later in connection with the burglary of the two banks in Palo Pinto County, officers said.

Red China Expert To Speak Here Tomorrow Night

A former Air Force Intelligence Officer and expert on Red China, Major Edgar G. Bundy, will speak at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Baptist Temple in Pampa.

Major Bundy will speak tonight in Borger at the Frank Phillips Auditorium and will present a film "How Brave Men Die." Bundy will speak at 7:30 p.m.

Major Bundy is considered an expert on Foreign Affairs by leading members of both Houses of Congress.

Bundy predicted under oath before members of both Houses of Congress that South Korea would be attacked by the North Korean Communist forces which had been trained and equipped by the Communists.

The prediction was made one year and two days before it occurred. He also warned of the impending fall of China and blamed the State Department, Dean Acheson and the Truman Administration for what he termed appeasement of the Soviet Union and failure to recognize the Communist threat.

The audit showed there appears to have been little, and in some instances, no effort on

Snow Flurries Due Panhandle Tonight

Winds kicked up dust in vast areas of West Texas today with prospects for a few snow flurries in the Panhandle by nightfall.

The U.S. Weather Bureau said it was likely the Panhandle's northern edge might get a touch of the vast storm that piled up heavy snow in the Colorado Rockies.

Weather forecasters predict "Pampa might get a snow flurry" this evening in the wake of the storm front expected to drop snow on the uppermost portion of the Panhandle. If it does snow this evening the snow is not expected to stick and there will be no accumulation. Temperatures will drop from today's high in the middle 30's to the middle 40's on Wednesday. The thermometer will drop to the freezing range tonight (tonight's low will be in the upper 20's) and rise to the middle 30's on Wednesday. Winds are northerly at 20 to 30 m.p.h. and will increase to 30 to 40 m.p.h. by late Wednesday morning.

Blowing dust was forecast for most of the state's western third and the eastern half was expected to get showers.

Clearing skies and colder temperatures — lows in the 20s in Northwest Texas — were forecast for Wednesday.

Thundershowers moved across parts of Northeast and North Central Texas Monday night but rainfall was very light.

Early morning temperatures were mild, ranging from the mid 40s in the Panhandle to the high 60s in the Rio Grande Valley.

A major storm boiled down out of the Rocky Mountains today threatening the nation's mid-section with thunderstorms, dust storms, heavy snows and near blizzards.

The storm's brew of freakish weather resulted from the collision of a cold air mass sweeping down from the arctic into the Rockies and Montana and warm, moist air up from the Gulf of Mexico.

The turbulence extended from heavy snows in Montana to rains and hail as far eastward as Wisconsin and Chicago.

The heavy snows grounded search parties hunting for a light plane down in rugged Colorado mountain country with six persons aboard. The search was called off Monday, but nearly 24 planes waited at Granby, Colo., today for the weather to clear.

MIXED EMOTIONS—Weather like today's mid-morning temperatures prompted Bonnie Sharp, 2101 N. Lynn, to prepare for swimming—thus, the bathing suit. But then came a sudden change and forecasters say the Pampa area may get snow flurries this evening and a fur coat might be in order. Confused, Bonnie studies a weather vane and wonders.

Thunderstorms and hail storms rumbled from Nebraska to Illinois Monday and continued through the night. High winds wrecked two trailer homes at Athens, in central Illinois. Thunderstorms, rain and an unconfirmed tornado were reported around the resort area of Lake Geneva, Wis. Heavy rains slowed rush hour traffic in Chicago.

Blizzard conditions in scattered sections of Idaho Monday closed some roads and cancelled schools at Kendrick, Genesee, Troy, Eden and Hazelton.

As the storm swept eastward, provisional blizzard warnings were posted in South Dakota for tonight, for all but the southeastern section of the state. Strong winds and heavy snows were predicted.

GONE TO BLAZES

PUEBLO, Colo. (UPI)—Mrs. Robert Harvey went from the fire to the frying pan, but her kitchen went to the blazes.

While she watched rural firemen put out a nearby haystack fire, Mrs. Harvey noticed smoke pouring from her house. She had forgotten a pan of grease on the stove, which boiled over and set her kitchen afire.

Audit Shows Hockley County Short $40,000

LEVELLAND, Tex. (UPI)—The Amarillo Globe News said Monday an audit of Hockley County funds showed more than $40,000 is owed the county because of incomplete records of indiscriminate use of country road equipment on privately owned farms.

The public audit, compiled by two Levelland certified public accountants, showed the private work contracted by county commissioners during the past four years was done at a price so low as to make it impossible for dirt contractors in the area to compete.

The audit showed there appears to have been little, and in some instances, no effort on the part of the county commissioners to collect for the work they have authorized.

County farmers owe the county more than $40,000, the audit showed.

Many of the bills have been delinquent for years, the audit said, and many farmers claim they have never been billed.

The situation in Levelland has caused petitions to be circulated, asking the Hockley County grand jury to investigate the audit's report.

The petition asked the grand jury to "ascertain why the results of this audit, as it appears in the Levelland Daily Sun News, was in direct contradiction to the report on file.

The audit was by Louise Hall and John C. Harper. They were hired by county commissioners last April.

The audit recommended "the commission have the state auditors make a complete and detailed audit of the delinquent tax rolls and collections."

Also brought out in the audit was a shortage of almost $1,000 in one fund of tax assessor-collector Frank Burnett. The fund is not legally authorized.

The auditors said Levelland abstract companies were charged $1.50 for each certificate, while everyone else paid $1 for them.

"Only $1 of the amount charged to abstractors was deposited in the tax collector's bank account," the audit showed. "The extra 50 cents was put aside in a fund kept in the tax collectors' office in cash."

County Judge L. E. Owens was indicted on nine counts resulting from charges of misappropriations of public funds almost a year ago. Owens is free on bond and his trial has yet to be scheduled.

City Judge James Swanner was indicted for misappropriation of city funds last October. His trial has not been set either.

County Commissioners are Myrl Brock, H. C. (Smokey) James, Jack E. Morton and Jim Hopgood.

$13 Billion Approved For War

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate, though concerned over how long the American people will tolerate U.S. involvement in Viet Nam, was ready today to vote President Johnson all the extra money he has asked for the war.

Senators agreed to vote on a $13.1 billion emergency money bill to provide additional financing for the Viet Nam war. An overwhelming vote of approval was in prospect for the measure, which has already passed the House in slightly different form.

The bill includes every penny of the extra money Johnson requested for the Viet Nam buildup of military manpower, equipment and construction—plus economic and military aid money, most of it for Viet Nam.

During debate on the big money bill Monday, two Senate committee chairmen, who have taken opposite stands on the administration's Viet Nam policies, voiced somewhat similar sentiments about the staying power of the nation for a prolonged war.

Chairman Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., of the Armed Services Committee, urging approval of the measure, said, "I don't think we can let this war go on and on" without some move toward a showdown.

"This is not a popular war," Russell said, adding that some change in policy may be needed soon or the war could take on "political proportions" which could force a decision for expansion or withdrawal.

Faubus Says He Will Not Run Again

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI)—Orval E. Faubus, whose use of troops to keep Negroes out of Central High School in 1957 made him a symbol of southern resistance to desegregation, plans to retire as the nation's second longest-term governor.

Faubus said Monday night he will not seek a seventh term in office, despite his own claim he is the only Democrat strong enough to beat multimillionaire Winthrop Rockefeller, a Republican and brother of New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

"I think we can certainly say this is final," Faubus, 56, said at a news conference.

But Rockefeller was not convinced.

"There is an immortal statement by the incumbent governor several years ago to the effect that 'just because I said it, doesn't make it so,'" Rockefeller said.

VIET NAM ISSUE

GOP Senator Swings
To Johnson's Side

EDITOR'S NOTE: In the last two months, Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., has turned from vocal opposition to President Johnson's Viet Nam policy to cautious confidence that the fighting can be kept from spreading. Although he still believes policy errors occurred, his doubts have been largely quelled. Aiken, the senior Republican and one of the leading independent thinkers in the Senate, explains in this UPI interview what has changed his mind.

By GEORGE J. MARDER
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Between the "hawks" and "doves" engaged in the capital's great debate over U.S. policy in Viet Nam stands a senator who has won the label of "owl" for wisdom.

He is 73-year-old George David Aiken of Vermont, the Senate's senior Republican, and a man considered to have one of the most independent minds in Congress. It was Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield who gave him the "owl" for wise man" label.

Somewhere over the last two months Aiken has changed from a leading critic of the conduct of the war to measured confidence that it can be pursued without growing into a general land war in Asia.

Although it was his party's position to support President Johnson, Aiken feared that escalation would involve the United States in a war with China, or even Russia, and perhaps reach the point of a nuclear exchange.

Can Contain Fighting
But today he feels the fighting can be contained within its present geographical limits.

When he returned from Viet Nam last year, Aiken said, there was "an open-ended possibility of war. Nobody knew where it might go. It might even go to a nuclear war. I was afraid that the pressures on the administration were such that they would extend the war into other countries, intensify it."

The senator, a short, powerful, barrel-chested man who looks like the farmer he was and is, was very concerned about those pressures. The furrows on his brows deepened as he said:
"It looked at one time that we were almost certain to get into war with Red China... I felt that the pressures would compel the departments, State or armed services, to bomb Hanoi. If we bombed Hanoi, we certainly should expect to have Saigon isolated."

"Did some of that pressure come from Secretary of State Dean Rusk?"

Answers Carefully
The senator, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, considered his reply carefully.

"I can't prove what I'm going to say, but I think that the State Department leaned more toward escalation than did Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara."

At any rate, since the senator's Viet Nam inspection tour, he has acquired a measure of faith in the determination to limit the war.

"The President," he said, "has tried to make it very clear that he does not intend to extend the war area beyond where it now is... I think the President has tried to make it very clear that he doesn't intend to escalate the war, he doesn't intend to annihilate any country, particularly North Viet Nam."

Aiken credited the Viet Nam debate with bringing counterpressures to bear on the President.

People Have Listened
"Congress has talked about it very fluently and the people have talked about it through the country. I think the administration has listened."

Nevertheless, Aiken expects the pressures to continue on the President, either to expand the war or to get out. He does not consider the possible increase of U.S. manpower in South Viet Nam to 400,000 men by the end of the year to be escalation as long as the war does not spread to new territory.

He does not see how the United States can mine Haiphong Harbor or bomb Hanoi and "claim to adhere to international law." And he sees "no possible conclusion to the war for some time to come because it will take a long time to make the South Vietnamese people secure."

"Nevertheless," he added, "the time may come when the war will taper off; may even in course of time rot out without any formal ending."

Television in Review

By RICK DU BROW
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—The Reformation, Sunday evening's NBC-TV documentary about the great spiritual upheavals of the 16th century, succeeded in making a four-century-old story come alive by linking it to today's news.
Even as viewers were still aware of some recently announced adjustments of the Catholic Church, they were able to see in the one-hour television program the earlier historic changes that altered the shape of Christianity.

The differences in the atmospheres surrounding the changes were also unquestionably obvious: the more dramatic and sometimes violent adjustments of the 16th century, as opposed to the more moderate and open-armed alterations of today.

"The Reformation" focused mainly on Martin Luther, John Calvin and Ignatius of Loyola—the last-named the founder of the Jesuit order and an example of how the Catholic Church progressed from within its own ranks.

Repeatedly the hour stressed the lesson of reform from within, and contrasted it with the frequent major headaches of having to react chiefly to demands from without.

As the producer, George Vicas, put it, the program was not about theology—but rather about how and why men were persuaded or forced to adopt new religious beliefs, and how these beliefs shaped the new society in which they lived and were, in turn, shaped by the demands of the societies in which they lived.

What was most fascinating in the contrast of then-and-now during the program was the constant realization that the changes of four centuries ago mainly concerned the separation of elements of the religions involved, whereas today's alterations are heading in the direction of unity.

Technically, the contrast of then-and-now was aided by using modern footage of the sites of some of the earlier historic events, and also employing art works and other proper devices to reconstruct the past.

This was the fourth and final program of NBC-TV's "Of Men and Freedom" series of specials, and, quite frankly, although the past shows had their ups and downs, it really wasn't too clear until Sunday evening exactly what the hours were trying to do.

Cohen is hospitalized in the Federal Reformatory at Springfield, Mo., where he is reported 50 per cent disabled. His left leg and left arm are permanently weak although he appears to be mentally sound.

Smith said the $110,000 awarded Cohen "is believed to be well within the range awarded for pain and suffering for similar injuries to non-prisoners."

McDonald has been in prison, except for two short periods in the armed forces, almost continuously since he was 16 years old.

Three Pampans To Attend Parley

Three Pampans will attend the First Texas Governor's Conference on Libraries in Austin, Wednesday.

Pampa Librarian Mrs. William H. Spidell; Pampa attorney A. J. Carubbi Jr. and Mrs. Aubrey Steele will attend the conference on improving Texas libraries.

Mrs. Steele will represent the City Manager and the City Commission at the Austin meeting. Carubbi is attending the conference in his position as President of the Texas Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Mrs. Spidell said today the conference is designed to point up the need for new libraries across the state and to "call attention to the poor condition of the libraries we do have."

Mrs. Spidell said many counties have libraries "in name only." "They can't operate properly," she said. "They do not have the funds or the new books needed for a first-rate library."

Governor Connally has stated that almost one million Texans—nearly 10 per cent of the population—have no public library service or none worthy of the name.

Texas ranks 37th among the states in per capita expenditure for public library service.

Connally announced 28 Texas counties have no public library facilities at all.

State Draft Quota Set At Lowest Since Aug. '65

AUSTIN (UPI)—The Texas draft quota for April was set today at 979 men, the lowest since August 1965.

State Selective Service Director Col. Morris S. Schwartz said monthly Texas quotas from last September through this month had ranged from 1,068 to 1,523.

The decrease in the draft quota indicated more young men are volunteering for the armed services. Schwartz said 3,005 men in Texas will be called in for draft mental-physical examinations in April, down from the 3,515 examined this month.

In addition to the regular draft quota, the state Selective Service was given a quota for 105 physicians for the services in July, August and September. Another call for 31 male nurses for the Army and Navy was issued for April, May, June and July.

Meantime, Schwartz noted that the state's 1-A pool had dropped from 100,000 at the end of August 1965 to 51,000 at the end of February 1966.

During the same period, he said the number of men classified as 2-S, or students temporarily exempted from the draft, rose from 85,000 to 104,000. The 2-S pool dropped 2,000, however, between January and February of this year.

Contracts were awarded for the purchase of a street sweeper and a tractor mower. Browning Ferris Machine Co. of Dallas was low bidder on the street sweeper at $9,882. International Harvester submitted a low bid of $2,487.95 on the tractor mower.

The commission instructed the city manager to give further study to a request of Coronado Center merchants asking lease of a city sweeper to clean the center's parking area.

Approval was given for the expenditure of $800 for two lots in the Cohen Addition, adjacent to Marcus Sanders swimming pool, as a site for a new community center building.

City Manager White told commissioners work was being held up on construction of the city's new sewage treatment plant because of a delay in shipment of equipment.

White said the contractor is awaiting shipment of a digester pump which he said was the key to the final hookup at the plant.

"When the pump arrives the plant should be able to get into operation within three weeks," the city manager said.

Pioneer Names New Advertising Manager

AMARILLO (SpI)—M. B. Edquist, vice president in charge of Distribution for Pioneer Natural Gas Co., today announced the appointment of Ed Wells as advertising manager of Pioneer.

Wells succeeds William H. Brown, assistant new business manager, who will devote full time to that post.

Wells will be in charge of all advertising programs for the Pioneer system and will be located in the general office in Amarillo. For the past nine years, he has been an account executive with McCormick Advertising Co. in Amarillo.

FCC Asks Control Over TV Systems

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Failure to regulate community antenna television (CATV) could limit the programs available to viewers, the chairman of the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) said today.

Chairman E. William Henry was the leadoff witness as the House Commerce Committee opened a full-scale three-day hearing on CATV.

Presenting the FCC's request to Congress for clearer regulatory authority over CATV, Henry said inaction would "risk serious disruption or erosion of the system by which television service is now provided to the American people."

He said a healthy television service with a wide program selection depended upon striking a balance between broadcasters, who originate programs, and CATV operators, who relay them to areas beyond the reach of the original broadcast.

CATV systems pick television signals from the air and pipe them into homes for a fee.

Committee Chairman Harley O. Staggers, D-W.Va., opened the meeting by promising a full airing of the cross-currents involved in the CATV debate.

"The future of CATV depends on its responsiveness to the general good," he said.

Archbishop Arrives For Rome Visit

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — The Archbishop of Canterbury arrived in Rome today for an historic meeting with Pope Paul VI during which the leaders of the Anglican and Roman Catholic Churches will join in a public act of worship.

The meeting, significant to the cause of Christian unity, will occur Wednesday at the Vatican.

The Anglican primate, Dr. Michael Ramsey, flew from London for a three-day stay which the pontiff has said is "not yet a visit of perfect union, but is however a visit of friendship and introduction to union."

Dr. Ramsey is the second reigning Anglican primate to visit a Pope since the 16th century, when the Church of England broke away from the Roman Catholic Church. The first was in 1960, when the then Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, visited the late Pope John XXIII. The 1960 visit was marked by extreme

VERSATILE VEHICLE—A new military vehicle, Tactical Infantry Load Carrier Amphibious Remote, TILCAR for short, has proved its battlefield versatility in tests at Fort Benning, Ga. Developed as a low-cost equipment carrier for combat infantrymen, the 12-wheeled vehicle can swim with full load, climb steep slopes and cross ditches. Its speeds vary from the pace of a foot patrol to that of a truck convoy. Weighing a ton, it can be air-dropped or sling-carried by helicopters.

The Lighter Side

United Press International WASHINGTON (UPI) — The next time you are served a steak that has the texture of a hockey player's shinguard, don't complain to the manager.

Just be thankful that most Texans have only one wife. If polygamy were permitted in the Lone Star State, and other cattle-raising areas you might never get a tender piece of beef.

I'm telling you this because I have just learned that the marital status of ranchers may have a bearing on the quality of their cattle.

Or so I gather from a report cordiality but a minimum of public ceremony.

Dr. Ramsey's visit will culminate in a common act of worship in the vastness of the Basilica of St. Paul's. Then the Pope and the Archbishop, joined by a congregation of thousands, will issue a common declaration on Christian aims.

August Cardinal Bea, head of the Roman Catholic Secretariat, scheduled to call on Dr. Ramsey at the English college in the heart of old Rome, where the archbishop will stay during his visit.

Dr. Ramsey also planned to attend a reception at the British Embassy today and to dine in private with the British minister to the Holy See, Sir Michael Saniger Williams.

The first meeting between Dr. Ramsey, 61, and the Pope, 68, will take place in the Vatican's Sistine Chapel on Wednesday.

ON INSPECTION TOUR

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Deputy Defense Secretary Cyrus R. Vance and other Pentagon officials are scheduled to leave Thursday to inspect military bases in Viet Nam. The group also plans to visit Thailand and Guam.

During 1964, nearly 2,600 miles of interstate highways were brought to completion.

US Rep. Stabbed, Robbed by Bandit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Police today sought a masked bandit who stabbed and robbed Rep. James C. Cleveland, R-N.H., in his Capitol Hill office. He was not seriously injured.

Cleveland was stabbed in the left forearm with a letter opener wielded by the robber, who accosted the Congressman late Monday night as he walked from his inner office to a reception room.

The Congressman was wounded as he grappled momentarily with the intruder who escaped with $40. Cleveland, 45, was released after treatment at a nearby hospital.

The robbery occurred in the Longworth Office Building, one of three used for House members offices. It is connected to the old House office building and the new Rayburn Building by tunnels.

OPTOMETRISTS GET CALL
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Defense Department will draft 100 optometrists into the Army, starting in July. A spokesman said Monday optometrists were being added to the draft of physicians, dentists, veterinarians and male nurses because not enough of them have been volunteering for service.

National Window

By LYLE WILSON
United Press International
Dr. Tinsley L. Spaggins of Washington, D.C., was telling the voters in Florida the other day that they are selling their birthright of local self government for thirty pieces of silver. Dr. Spaggins did not state the proposition just that way. The doctor is a bureaucrat employed by the U.S. Office of Education (OOE). Here is a sample of Dr. Spaggins' speech: "Money is power," he said, "and the government intends to use this power as a lever to pressure school systems, both North and South, to eliminate the last vestiges of (racial) segregation."

Only a small minority of American citizens would quarrel with the objective of eliminating racial segregation in the schools. But the matter does not end there. Sappy citizens continue to seek and welcome a flow of federal dollars into the blood stream of local government. Every dime and dollar from the federal treasury helps Washington obtain a controlling interest in local affairs.

This should be abhorrent to American citizens. In the end the exercise of federal control over local affairs will destroy the federal system. Already it is beginning to destroy the Republican form of government which the Constitution pledges the federal government to guarantee to each state.

This extension of federal control over local affairs is not limited to education and racial integration of the schools. This control extends wherever the federal dollar goes. Federal dollars comprise a subsidy at the local level. The U.S. Supreme Court stated the situation simply in 1942: "The United States may regulate that which it subsidizes."

Dr. Spaggins knew the law when he said money is power. Federal money ultimately will extend everywhere and the limits of federal power will be nowhere. Down that road lies a dead end for the American way of life. The citizen who doubts that the Washington bureaucrats will accept and abuse vast power should inquire of George Preston Marshall, the paramount chief of the Redskins. Washington's professional football team. Erected some years ago in the District of Columbia was a great sports stadium, built with proceeds of a bond issue but also enjoying a comparatively small federal subsidy.

Moved Skins
Marshall moved his Redskins into the new stadium. The interest of the United States in the D.C. Stadium was represented by Interior Secretary Stewart L. Udall. After one Redskin season in the stadium, Udall informed Marshall that he must add a Negro player to his team or the stadium manager would be forbidden to renew the Redskins' playing contract.

That put Marshall to climbing his office walls. Wise old Milton W. King, the Redskins' lawyer, counseled Marshall to surrender, hire a Negro player or prepare to move his team elsewhere. Marshall folded and hired Bobby Mitchell, a gifted Negro, who became and remains the best man on the Redskins' squad. So does the Udall-Marshall-Mitchell incident remain the best example of how federal money confers federal power.

Bureaucrats thrive on power. All of them are potential big brothers. Citizens should member Lord Acton's somber warning of nearly 80 years ago. It was this: "power corrupts; absolute power corrupts absolutely."

VERSATILE VEHICLE—A new military vehicle, Tactical Infantry Load Carrier Amphibious Remote, TILCAR for short, has proved its battlefield versatility in tests at Fort Benning, Ga. Developed as a low-cost equipment carrier for combat infantrymen, the 12-wheeled vehicle can swim with full load, climb steep slopes and cross ditches. Its speeds vary from the pace of a foot patrol to that of a truck convoy. Weighing a ton, it can be air-dropped or sling-carried by helicopters.

US Rep. Stabbed, Robbed by Bandit

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Police today sought a masked bandit who stabbed and robbed Rep. James C. Cleveland, R-N.H., in his Capitol Hill office. He was not seriously injured.

Cleveland was stabbed in the left forearm with a letter opener wielded by the robber, who accosted the Congressman late Monday night as he walked from his inner office to a reception room.

The Congressman was wounded as he grappled momentarily with the intruder who escaped with $40. Cleveland, 45, was released after treatment at a nearby hospital.

The robbery occurred in the Longworth Office Building, one of three used for House members offices. It is connected to the old House office building and the new Rayburn Building by tunnels.

Dr. Ramsey's visit will culminate in a common act of worship in the vastness of the Basilica of St. Paul's. Then the Pope and the Archbishop, joined by a congregation of thousands, will issue a common declaration on Christian aims.

Augustin Cardinal Bea, head of the Roman Catholic Secretariat scheduled to call on Dr. Ramsey at the English college in the heart of old Rome, where the archbishop will stay during his visit.

Dr. Ramsey also planned to attend a reception at the British Embassy today and to dine in private with the British minister to the Holy See, Sir Michael Sanigear Williams.

The first meeting between Dr. Ramsey, 61, and the Pope, 68, will take place in the Vatican's Sistine Chapel on Wednesday.

Archbishop Arrives For Rome Visit

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—The Archbishop of Canterbury arrived in Rome today for an historic meeting with Pope Paul VI during which the leaders of the Anglican and Roman Catholic Churches will join in a public act of worship.

The meeting, significant to the cause of Christian unity, will occur Wednesday at the Vatican.

The Anglican primate, Dr. Michael Ramsey, flew from London for a three-day stay which the pontiff has said is "not yet a visit of perfect union, but is however a visit of friendship and introduction to union."

Dr. Ramsey is the second reigning Anglican primate to visit a Pope since the 16th century, when the Church of England broke away from the Roman Catholic Church. The first was in 1960, when the then Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, visited the late Pope John XXIII. The 1960 visit was marked by extreme

Dr. Tinsley L. Spaggins of Washington, D.C., was telling the voters in Florida the other day that they are selling their birthright of local self government for thirty pieces of silver. Dr. Spaggins did not state the proposition just that way. The doctor is a bureaucrat employed by the U.S. Office of Education (OOE). Here is a sample of Dr. Spaggins speech: "Money is power," he said, "and the government intends to use this power as a lever to pressure school systems, both North and South, to eliminate the last vestiges of (racial) segregation."

Only a small minority of American citizens would quarrel with the objective of eliminating racial segregation in the schools. But the matter does not end there. Sappy citizens continue to seek and welcome a flow of federal dollars into the blood stream of local government. Every dime and dollar from the federal treasury helps Washington obtain a controlling interest in local affairs.

This should be abhorrent to American citizens. In the end the exercise of federal control over local affairs will destroy the federal system. Already it is beginning to destroy the Republican form of government which the Constitution pledges the federal government to guarantee to each state.

This extension of federal control over local affairs is not limited to education and racial integration of the schools. This control extends wherever the federal dollar goes. Federal dollars comprise a subsidy at the local level. The U.S. Supreme Court stated the situation simply in 1942: "The United States may regulate that which it subsidizes."

Dr. Spaggins knew the law when he said money is power. Federal money ultimately will extend everywhere and the limits of federal power will be nowhere. Down that road lies a dead end for the American way of life. The citizen who doubts that the Washington bureaucrats will accept and abuse vast power should inquire of George Preston Marshall, the paramount chief of the Redskins, Washington's professional football team. Erected some years ago in the District of Columbia was a great sports stadium, built with proceeds of a bond issue but also enjoying a comparatively small federal subsidy.

Moved Skins
Marshall moved his Redskins into the new stadium. The interest of the United States in the D.C. Stadium was represented by Interior Secretary Stewart L. Udall. After one Redskin season in the stadium, Udall informed Marshall that he must add a Negro player to his team or the stadium manager would be forbidden to renew the Redskins' playing contract.

That put Marshall to climbing his office walls. Wise old Milton W. King, the Redskins' lawyer, counseled Marshall to surrender, hire a Negro player or prepare to move his team elsewhere. Marshall folded and hired Bobby Mitchell, a gifted Negro, who became and remains the best man on the Redskins' squad. So does the Udall-Marshall-Mitchell incident remain the best example of how federal money confers federal power.

Bureaucrats thrive on power. All of them are potential big brothers. Citizens should remember Lord Acton's somber warning of nearly 80 years ago. It was this: "power corrupts; absolute power corrupts absolutely."

The Man From Puritan Fashions

By HELEN HENNESSY
Women's Editor

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
NEW YORK (NEA) — The men behind the giant firms in the garment industry share one common bond. They're all rich. And they got that way providing inexpensive-to-moderate priced clothes for women.

But Carl Rosen, president of Puritan Fashions Corp., admits that women themselves, not just the fashions they wear, play an important role in the success of his organization. He is one man who will never claim that women don't belong in business.

"As buyers, designers and customers," he said, "they are the vital core of this corporation's day-to-day activity."

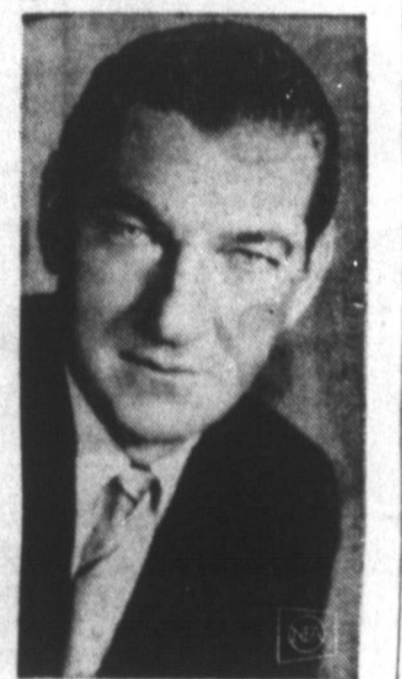

Lean, dark-haired Rosen added, "And now I not only listen to women in the market, but I also have them as my bosses since they own such a large percentage of the publicly held shares of American business."

Puritan today is publicly owned and listed on the American Stock Exchange. A family-held business when it was founded by Rosen's father 50 years ago, its volume at the close of a recent fiscal year was reported in a book on the fashion industry to be about $47 million.

But women listen to Carl Rosen too. It isn't always the other way around. A popular lecturer, he has been called on innumerable times to speak before distasteful groups about the world of big business as seen from the top.

"And fashion is big business," he said. "Today it's even used by a wide range of corporations to help sell other products."

"Banks hold fashion shows in their windows. Automobiles are advertised with a well-dressed model behind the wheel. Airlines use fashion to promote their jet set image. Appliance firms employ fashion co-ordinators to give their products a feminine touch—just look at those Op-Art refrigerator doors."

Carl Rosen
... president of Puritan Fashions

Puritan was one of the first firms to push the youthquake and even formed a new division (Paraphernalia) devoted exclusively to these young, kicky styles. Curious about the conservative Mr. Rosen's personal opinion on the youth kick that he is helping to sweep the country, I asked for it.

He agrees that there has been a tiresome amount of attention paid to the statistic that half our population is under 25. And he feels this emphasis obscures the fact that American women have always been youth-minded.

"In this country, youth is not so much a measure of age as an indication of mental outlook. We have always been known as a young, vigorous nation," he said.

"Young people today are different from those I knew as a boy in Boston. They have grown up in a radically different time or clean carpet wall-to-wall. Safe Blue Lintex re-brightens colors, leaves nap fluffy. Rent easy-to-use electric shampooer for $1 a day at Pampa Hardware Co., 120 N. Cuyler MO 4-2451.

FORWARD THINKING — Smart merchandising plays a big role in separating the giants from the boys in fashion. Puritan shows forward thinking in this attention-getting presentation of Avante shifts by its Clarie Tiffany division. Each shift comes on its own hanger topped with the face of a soignée blonde, brunette or redhead.

and think differently. And awareness of their way of thinking is vital to anyone in this business since it is reflected in the way they want to dress."

Listening to the way Carl Rosen thinks, it was easy to understand what separates the men from the boys in the fashion business. His ability to anticipate a trend that will catch on and his know-how in the ways of promoting it are factors that make a man a fashion giant.

He believes that it is important to realize that today's young people will eventually become the "older generation" and their children will then reflect their parents' "new" approach to fashion.

"That is why we are so interested in young designs and have signed a group of talented young people to design things for our youth divisions," he explained. "To test their styles we have created a showplace in New York City where we are able to gain first-hand knowledge of consumer reaction at the retail level."

"Of course, we hope our customers are realistic and that any woman worth her weight in pounds realizes no amount of 'thinking young' will pour her into a thigh-high, sleeveless shift," he added.

But this enterprising man has also provided something fashionable for the gals who shouldn't wear the schoolgirl styles. Puritan has 10 divisions where clothes are turned out under 10 different labels for every figure type from junior petite to half sizes. They can't lose, you see.

Dear Abby.... The Sin of Omission Should Be Considered

DEAR ABBY: I have just experienced one of the most uncomfortable afternoons of my whole life. I had a luncheon for three close friends, one of whom is a widow. The other two women spent the entire afternoon bragging about the gifts their husbands had given them, the trips they had taken and their plans for future trips. The little widow had nothing to contribute to the conversation, so she just sat and listened. I could tell she was hurt. Don't women realize how often they do this? I am furious because this happened in my home. I haven't as yet had the opportunity to tell these two women how inexcusably rude they were, but I hope you will mention it in your column because they both read it.

BINGHAMTON
DEAR BINGHAMTON: You could have steered the conversation to another subject. Why didn't you? Before condemning others for their "sins," consider for a moment the "sin" of omission.

DEAR ABBY: My nephew was going with a very sweet girl and they planned to get married in the near future but no date was set. In the meantime he got his draft papers and the kids decided to get married right away. I suppose to some it looked like he got married to avoid being drafted. Well, the girl got pregnant soon after they were married and a big shower was held for her. I went and took a nice gift against my husband's wishes. He says draft-dodgers who have babies right away to keep out of the service don't deserve parties and presents. Abby, these young people are very much in love, and I honestly think they would have married soon anyway. My husband refuses to have anything to do with my nephew or his wife, and he has a fit when I do. He says, "I served my country in World War II, so why should your nephew get out of going when his turn came?" Am I wrong or is my husband?

UNHAPPY AUNT
DEAR UNHAPPY: Nobody leaves a "draft dodger," but what qualifications does your husband possess to judge this boy and to indict him? I think your husband just plain doesn't like your nephew and is trying to justify it.

DEAR ABBY: A man who has been our friend for 40 years has taken up painting as a hobby, and he's pretty good. He has sold several of his paintings, so it's not just our opinion. For our anniversary gift, he painted a picture to hang over our fireplace. It's a winter scene showing a New England farm house under a blanket of freshly fallen snow, a typical blue-cold Vermont day. Well, he put a clothes line back of the house, and clothes are on it. This spoiled the whole picture for me. He should know that when it's that cold no one would hang the wash outdoors! I want to ask him to take the painting back and take the clothes line out. My husband says it can't be done without hurting the painting as it's done in oils. Can it? I just don't enjoy looking at it this way.

MARY C.
DEAR MARY: The artist can remove the clothes line without "hurting" the painting, but I can't guarantee that you won't hurt the artist's pride. Ask him, anyway. A friendship of 40 years permits certain privileges.

School And You

By SUSAN LIGHT
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
DEAR MRS. LIGHT: I just read the letter from the mother whose little girl is in the second grade and is just learning the new math. Well, let me tell you. I'm in the eighth grade, and I didn't start new math until last year. It was literally thrown at us. With the exception of one student, none of us understand it.

I'm having a test tomorrow, and I know I'm not going to pass it. That little girl is lucky to be having it in the second grade, I just wish I had had it then.

—UNLUCKY
P.S. Please print this so others can see it. Maybe my teacher will get the hint.

ANSWER: You've pointed up one of the stumbling blocks of the new math. Granted, it may be old hat to a lot of people by now. But wherever it appears for the first time, it causes confusion and panic, especially if it's suddenly thrust on students who've been brought up on traditional math.

Now you know how mothers and dads feel when they can't help their kids with third grade arithmetic. Of course, you have the advantage of learning a little more every day under the guidance of a teacher.

I suspect your teacher doesn't have to read this column to get the hint. He is probably tearing his hair out trying to figure out how to get through to you. And remember, he may have his own problems in adjusting to the new math, too. I wish him luck.

Incidentally, when your teacher says, "Are there any questions?" or "Is there anyone who doesn't understand this?" do you all just sit there like bums on a log? I hope not. Unless you clue him in, he may not find out what you don't know until AFTER he gives his tests.

It's difficult to study for a math test, I know, unless you understand the terms and processes as you go along. But don't automatically be a defeatist. Apparently you're not worse off than most of your classmates, and it's unlikely the whole class will flunk.

Thank you for pointing out that the second grader is lucky. Perhaps you're luckier than you think, too. The new math might have been thrown at you in high school or college.

Please send your school problems to Susan Light in care of Pampa News. While she cannot answer each letter personally, letters of general interest will be answered in this column.

If you take a minute to check our list of winning vehicle identification numbers, you may know how it feels this week.

The contest is in its last week. So hurry. Here's how it works. Look at the first symbols (the prefix) on your vehicle identification slip. Then look at the symbols listed above. If you find yours on the list, you've taken the first step toward being a winner. Now go see your Buick dealer. He has a list of 72 winners posted in his showroom. If you see your entire vehicle identification number on the poster — the symbols plus the rest of the numbers — $2332 cash is yours. (If your prefix isn't listed in this ad, don't give up. Your numbers may have been posted during the past six weeks. Every week 72 winners were posted on the showroom wall.

You may have missed your number before.) No slogan to invent, no puzzles to solve. In fact, you don't even have to own a Buick to have a winning number.

Contest Rules: Residents of Kansas, Missouri and Nebraska may, if they prefer, send in a postcard to R. L. Polk and Co., P.O. Box 1847, Detroit, Michigan 48231, and receive the weekly list of winning numbers by mail for comparison with their own vehicle identification number. An official entry form will be included. Sweepstakes limited to persons over 21 living in the continental U.S. Not valid in Florida or states where prohibited by law.

Hurry. Buick's $1,000,000 Sweepstakes is in its last week.
There's an authorized Buick dealer near you. See his Double-Checked used cars, too.

Juvenile Delinquency Grows

By TOM NOLAN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
WASHINGTON (NEA)—One out of every nine 10-year-olds in the United States today will 1963. Significantly, the teen-aged (10 through 17) population rose only four per cent during the same year. The Census Bureau esti-matable, truancy, etc.). There's also one chance out of three that he's a repeater, or at least has previously come to the court's attention.

that one out of every six boys in the country today will be referred before he turns 18. For girls, the probability is only 1 in 23.

In many states, compulsory school attendance ends at these ages.

"The prediction that one out of every nine children will be referred to a juvenile court for delinquency points out how urgent it is to spend our efforts to meet the needs of our growing child population," says Mrs. Katherine Oettinger, chief of the Children's Bureau.

"We are paying an enormous price now—and the price will become even higher if we do not take every step in our power to stem the rising tide of juvenile delinquency."

WATTS AREA QUIET

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Police reported no major disturbances during the weekend in the predominantly Negro Watts district, scene of two upheavals within the past eight months.

Two persons were killed in last Tuesday's unrest, compared with 34 dead last August. Quick, decisive police action and cooperation of many adult Negroes were credited with preventing the latest disturbance from turning into a riot.

FILES FOR DIVORCE

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Wally Cox, television's "Mr. Peepers," filed suit in Superior Court Monday to divorce his wife, Milagros, on grounds of cruelty.

Cox, 41, asked for all community property and custody of his wife's daughter, Lisa, "in the best interests of the child."

The couple was married Oct. 19, 1963, in Las Vegas, Nev., and separated last Feb. 18.

Future Use Of Alaskan Water May Be Necessary

LUBBOCK (UPI)—Importation of water from as far away as Alaska "is not financially practical today, but 25 years from now, it may be necessary," Gov. John Connally told South Plains civic groups Monday.

Speaking in one of the state's most arid regions the governor said the state water development board has been anticipating future needs.

"It is extremely questionable whether this part of the state will be able to benefit from the transfer of water from the eastern parts of the state for irrigation," Connally said.

He said because of this "we may need to divert water from the Columbia River, or even from Alaska to meet the needs of this part of Texas."

Canadian officials questioned about the proposition of sending their water to the Southwest United States have not expressed any enthusiasm for the idea.

Connally told the audience that Texas had added 325 new industries last year and that 485 Texas plants underwent substantial expansion.

The governor was presented a painting by famed New Mexico artist Peter Herd, "Before Sunset," a ranch scene, was presented by Charles Guy, publisher of the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal.

SWALLOWS RETURN

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Calif. (UPI)—The swallows returned to the historic Franciscan mission of San Juan Capistrano on schedule last Saturday, St. Joseph's Day.

Legend has it that the swallows return every March 19th to build their nests in the old mission.

A parade was held Saturday and a special Mass was celebrated at the mission, founded nearly 200 years ago.

Answer to Previous Puzzle be referred to a juvenile court for some act of delinquency before he reaches his 18th birthday.

This flat prediction comes from the Health, Education and Welfare Department's Children's Bureau. It is based on a thorough review of 1964 juvenile court statistics.

Perhaps the most startling aspect of the prediction is that it excludes all traffic violations except hit and run, driving without a license and driving while intoxicated.

In 1964, 686,000 juvenile delinquency cases were handled by the country's juvenile courts, an increase of 14 per cent over mates there were some 29.1 million teen-agers in 1964.

Using the court statistics as a performance chart, it is possible to come up with a pretty fair betting line on the juvenile delinquent of 1966. This line could read:

—4-1 odds that the offender is a boy.

—9-1 odds that he comes from an urban or suburban area.

—4-1 odds that he's either 16 or 17 years old.

—Better than even money that he's charged with a felony (larceny, auto theft, burglary, robbery, homicide, assault, rape, etc.) or offense applicable to a juvenile only (running away

Again based on 1964 statistics, the odds are 4-1 that he will not be committed to the care and custody of a corrective agency or institution.

Three out of 10 delinquents in 1964 were dismissed with a warning. Five out of 10 were put on probation.

The fact that boys get referred to juvenile courts four times as often as girls prompts the Children's Bureau to predict

Officials at the Children's Bureau point out that the increase in delinquency may be attributed to the fact that children born in the high-birth-rate years of the late 1940s are now swelling the ranks of the 16- and 17-year-olds—the peak ages for juvenile delinquency.

The most frequent offenses for boys in 1964 were larceny, burglary and auto theft. Girls were most frequently referred for running away, being ungovernable, larceny and sex offenses.

In addition to the 686,000 delinquency cases, in the juvenile courts handled some 442,000 traffic cases involving teen-agers in 1964, in increase of 21 per cent over 1963.

Officials at the Children's Bureau point out that the increase in delinquency may be attributed to the fact that children born in the high-birth-rate years of the late 1940s are now swelling the ranks of the 16- and 17-year-olds—the peak ages for juvenile delinquency.

Wall Street In Review

By United Press International
NEW YORK (UPI)—Bradbury K. Thurlow of Winslow, Cohn & Stetson Inc. says he must qualify his attitude at this point as bullish with reservations.

Thurlow says the decline, in his opinion, has gone far enough to accomplish its purpose. A flattering rally followed by a new decline would carry strong implications that "Washington is not taking proper steps to prevent a money crisis." Thurlow says positions should be taken and held with this risk in mind.

Bache & Co. says the phase of precipitous decline appears to have ended and the market could begin a quiet consolidation period while awaiting signposts of any further economic restraints.

Abraham & Co. says its market strategy is to increase or maintain reserves over the very short term and reinvest these reserves in attractive buying opportunities as strong fundamental situations in the next few weeks.

Ky Defends Stand Of Saigon In Buddhist Dispute

SAIGON (UPI) — Prime Minister Nguyen Cao Ky, in an apparent effort to calm angry Buddhists, said today the military government has always paid attention to legitimate complaints of the people. Ky's remarks were made shortly after students of one of Saigon's largest high schools staged an angry anti-government walkout and were barred from returning to their classrooms by nervous school officials who feared they could not control them.

The 3,000 students of Hong Lac High School shouted anti-government slogans and draped banners around the school demanding the downfall of Ky and other "traitorous" generals making up the military junta which rules the country.

The Buddhist students were angry about Ky's statements in Dalat during the weekend that demonstrations and walkouts and strikes would have "no influence" on the government. The students felt that Ky had accused the Buddhists of being traitors to the country.

The squabble arose last week over Ky's ouster of 1st Corps Commander, Lt. Gen. Nguyen Chanh Thi, a Buddhist.

Ky said that the military war cabinet "always paid due consideration to, and endeavored to materialize, all the legitimate aspirations of the people."

"Therefore, the war cabinet naturally took into consideration the wishes of the unified Buddhist church," he said.

He said he never believed the Buddhist wishes were illogical and unpatriotic. "Only illogical and perfidious were the reasonings, subversion and division fostered by the feudalists, colonialists and Communists with a view to disrupt national unity and to weaken the fighting spirit of the armed forces and of the nation in this present critical conjuncture," he said.

Failure to Make Cut in Citrus Open Didn't Worry Gary

By MILTON RICHMAN
TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — U.S. Open champion Gary Player failed to make the cut in his last tournament and wouldn't be surprised if he misses again in his next one.

You'd guess from that his game has gone to pot and he doesn't think he'll be a major factor in the upcoming Masters next month.

"What a bum guess that would be?"

Player, who stopped here briefly yesterday for a department store appearance in conjunction with the line of golf equipment bearing his name, is positive he'll be back on his game by the time the Masters rolls around three weeks from now.

"Any man who beats Jack Nicklaus will win the Masters."

said Player, a moment before being interrupted by an autograph seeker in the store. He signed his name on a glossy photograph of himself and without losing his trend of thought, pointedly added:

"I'm hoping to be the man who beats him."

There was no doubt the way Player said it that he meant it.

Not Surprised

"It didn't surprise me that I didn't make the cut in the Citrus Open at Orlando," he backtracked. "I was only over here 48 hours from South Africa and I didn't expect to do well. I'll play in only one more tournament before the Masters. That'll be the one in Jacksonville."

"Even if I don't do too well in that one, I won't be disappointed. It takes a while to adjust. But I'm sure I'll be all right when I get to Augusta."

Player competed against Nicklaus in South Africa and whipped him by 14 strokes but the muscular, little Johannesburg health-faddist discounts that.

"We were playing on some narrow golf courses over there," he pointed out. "Jack wasn't driving anywhere near as well as he can. He'll do a lot better at Augusta, I'm sure."

One of the department store aides poked his head in the office where Player was sitting and told him it was time for him to put on his golf exhibition before some 100 customers waiting outside.

Player hastily changed his gray business suit right there in the narrow office and slipped into a canary colored turtleneck shirt and black slacks. He then went outside and got up on a small platform with a microphone on it.

"What kind of club do you want, Gary?" someone asked him.

"A seven iron will do," he said.

Starts Spiel

Player adjusted the mike and began his spiel.

"Ladies and gentleman, I'm here to answer your questions," he said. "If there's anything worrying you about your golf game, I'll try to answer your questions. And if nothing is worrying you, maybe I'll ask you some questions."

That got a laugh and Player started talking about weekend golfers. He showed the typical weekend swing and nearly crowned a passing salesman with the seven iron.

This also drew a laugh, but not from Player.

Player talked and answered questions for more than an hour and a half and when he was through, a youngster asked for his autograph.

The U.S. Open champ wrote: "Best wishes and work hard." It's a piece of advice he always takes himself.

WEREN'T PREPARED

Braves Group Said Confused

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — The National League rejected Milwaukee's bid for a new franchise for the 1966 season because it was "a window dressing application made in support of litigation," according to President Walter O'Malley of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"They didn't know what the devil it was all about," said O'Malley about the Milwaukee Brewers, Inc., in a deposition read into the record of Wisconsin's baseball antitrust trial Monday. "They were ill-prepared to be considered to operate a franchise."

The state's suit against the Braves, the league and its other teams charges the defendants with conspiring to boycott Milwaukee by illegal use of baseball's monopoly power. The action seeks the return of the Braves from Atlanta unless Milwaukee is given a new franchise for 1966. The alleged boycott damages

Wisconsin economically and recreationally, according to the state.

The Brewers, formed by a group of wealthy and influential Wisconsin business and industrial executives to operate a major league team in Milwaukee, were turned down in December when they applied to the National League for a franchise.

It is the defense's contention the application was made in bad faith only to be used in connection with the prosecution of the state's case.

Even though they wanted a franchise for this year, O'Malley said, the Brewers couldn't provide league owners with answers to questions about attendance, a farm system, front office staff and player salaries. They also had no spring training camp, concession or ticket arrangements, he said.

58TH YEAR TUESDAY, MARCH 22, 1966 11

Chuck No Novice In Horse Racing World

BALTIMORE (UPI) — One of the best up and coming jockeys in the United States is a shy, reserved lad named Charles Baltazar.

This opinion is shared by many track officials including Charles J. (Chick) Lang Jr., director of racing at Pimlico. Lang comes from an old racing family. His father and grandfather were jockeys and each scored a win in the Kentucky Derby. Lang also served as an agent for Bill Hartack, who won national riding titles three consecutive years and holds the record for the most money won in a year—$3 million.

Lang said Baltazar is no "flash in the pan."

"He's one of the brightest young prospects I've ever seen," Lang said. "He wants to be a winner. He can't wait to change his silks for the next race. The only thing on his mind is to ride. If they had 25 races on the card, he would ride all 25."

Baltazar, known to his friends as "Chuck," has won over 300 races in a year and a half of racing on the tour. And the 18-year-old Colorado native is the leading rider at Pimlico's current 36-day winter meeting.

Baltazar has ridden almost as long as he could walk. Born in Fort Morgan, Colo., Chuck rode in the "bushes" in the summer and wherever he could find a horse.

He gained considerable attention for his ability to win match races in the West.

Baltazar credits his agent for much of his success.

"He goes out and hustles up a lot of good mounts for me," he said.

Of all the horses Baltazar has ridden his favorites appear to be Salt Spray and Spring Devel, three-year-old colts trained by James Bond.

Salt Spray has won its only two races handsily and Spring Devel has only a loss by a nose to Buckpasser.

Falk Says SWC Should Improve Baseball or Quit

DALLAS (UPI) — Texas baseball coach Bibb Falk says the Southwest Conference should improve its baseball program or quit the sport.

"Our conference is the only one in the U.S. that doesn't have fall practice," Falk says. "Even Yale of the Ivy League works out at that time of year."

"Some schools don't want to give scholarships and now they vote against working out in the fall," Falk says. "Everybody voted against it but A & M and Texas."

"How are you going to improve the program unless you can practice. Minnesota plays outside until the weather gets bad then there are facilities for them to practice inside."

Falk says the SWC can't go into the NCAA playoffs anymore "and cut it."

"About the only way we could compete for the championship is pick an all-star team and send it up there. You ought to have something decent or do away with it."

Clay, Chualo Bout Due TV in 21 Cities

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Cassius Clay-George Chualo heavyweight championship fight March 29 at Toronto will be televised in 21 cities and 17 states, boosting the potential gate by 140,000.

Michael Malitz, executive vice president of Main Bout Inc., said theater arrangements for Canada will be announced later.

Cities receiving the bout will be Phoenix, Ariz., Compton, Calif., Santa Monica, Calif., Hartford, Conn., Washington, D.C., Chicago, Indianapolis, Louisville, Flint, Mich., Cherry Hill, N. J., Albuquerque, Buffalo, Akron, Ohio, Cleveland, Toledo, Philadelphia, Fort Worth, Houston, Baltimore, Portland, Ore., and New York.

BELLY WHOPPER — Gump Worsley, goalie for the Montreal Canadiens, heads for the ice, stomach first, to prevent a score in fast action around the Montreal net.

CURTAIN DRAWN ON CAGE SEASON

1965-66 Was Confusing In College Roundball

NEW YORK (UPI) — It's finally over. The curtain has been drawn on another season of college roundball.

The 1965-66 season, probably the most confusing in recent years since there was no super team on the scene that dominated the action, is now history with Texas Western crowned the NCAA champion and Brigham Young the NIT champion.

That leaves the decks cleared to officially open discussion of the 1967-68 seasons, which probably could be dubbed the "Alcindor years."

For next year, UCLA's astute Coach Johnny Wooden will finally unveil his prized 7-foot-1 star Lew Alcindor, who'll make his debut as a sophomore in varsity competition next fall.

While it's a bit rash to predict three straight NCAA titles for UCLA, there's no question that Alcindor and UCLA will dominate the talk about collegiate basketball the next three years.

That was obvious last weekend in both College Park, Md., and New York, where the NCAA and NIT tournaments took place. Alcindor's name was a key topic.

Adolph Rupp, who has piloted Kentucky for 36 years, was in a philosophic mood after the finals loss to Texas Western and when asked about UCLA's future, he said, "That'll take care of itself." He added, "Some smart young coach who's afraid he's going to lose his job is going to get busy and figure out a way to stop them."

When someone asked if some smart coach was going to figure out a way on his Kentucky farm, Rupp just smiled.

After winning the NIT tourney, Brigham Young's personable, veteran Coach Stan Watts said he hoped the Cougars would move up to the NCAA tourney next year.

He then joked that he was going to challenge UCLA for the national crown next year with a double pivot offense revolving around a pair of 6-foot-11 centers including Craig Raymond, who was brilliant in the NIT final.

But Watts and Rupp and the rest of the coaching fraternity know that stopping UCLA the next three years will take more than quips.

Wooden has gathered a good supporting cast for Alcindor and the UCLA frosh, the Brubabes, were unbeaten.

ACTION CENTRAL—Everybody in the ball park, it seems, is converging on second base. One man got there late—the runner, Boston's Joe Foy. White Sox shortstop Ron Hansen backs up the play while Al Weis takes the throw for the tagout.

WHO'LL BE NEXT?

Cincy's Maloney Ends $$ Holdout

By United Press International
Playing baseball beats summers in Fresno, Calif., as far as Cincinnati's Jim Maloney is concerned, and now let's see if the rest of the holdout hurlers agree.

The Reds scored the first breakthrough in the management vs. pitcher price war Monday when they signed Maloney to a 1966 contract after a 25-day holdout by the young righthander. Maloney's agreement to terms now leaves only pitchers Don Drysdale and Sandy Koufax of the Los Angeles Dodgers and Juan Marichal and Bob Shaw of the San Francisco Giants among the unsigned.

While negotiations were in progress, the Reds were bush whipping the Houston Astros 5-4 in an exhibition game. Jack Baldschun, a relief pitcher acquired from Philadelphia in the off season, was the hero as he retired the Astros with the bases loaded and none out in the ninth inning to preserve the victory. Dick Simpson homered for Cincinnati and John Bate-man homered for Houston.

In other games: Whitey Ford worked six shutout innings as the New York Yankees blanked the Los Angeles Dodgers 3-0. Ford, Pedro Ramos and Dooley Womack limited the Dodgers to two hits while Lou Clinton paced the Yanks' offense with a home run.

Twins Win Fourth

The Minnesota Twins, who lost their first seven games, won their fourth straight by bombing the Kansas City Athletics 10-1. The Twins stole five bases in the game and Tony Oliva hit his first homer of the spring. The A's pulled off the first triple play of the season in the sixth.

The Chicago White Sox pounded out 16 hits to blast the Boston Red Sox 10-4. Tommie Agee had two doubles and a single. John Romano a double and two singles and Pete Ward three singles to pace the Sox attack. Russ Nixon and Tony Conigliaro homered for Boston.

Gary Crossand, with a fifth place, was the highest Harvester.

The Pampa baseballers, 2-5, played host to Borger today at the Harvester practice diamond.

Things Can't Get Worse for A's

BRADENTON, Fla. (UPI) — As new manager of the Kansas City Athletics, Alvin Dark has one thing going for him, anyway.

They can't be much worse than they were last year.

Judging from all general appearances, however, they can't be much better this year.

The A's finished dead last in the American League last season and to give you some idea how pathetic their pitching staff was, it turned in only 18 complete games over the regular 162-game schedule.

Dark, who is new in the American League, talks about Kansas City's pitching depth. Maybe he sees something no one else does because outside of a couple of untried youngsters, the club's pitching looks pretty much as it did in 1965.

For starters, the A's have left-hander John O'Donoghue (9-18) Jim Hunter (8) and possibly Diego Segui (5-15).

Long Look

After them, Dark is taking a long look at such candidates as lefties Dick Joyce (8-3) and Ed Charles at third and Wayne Lewiston and 5-3 at Birmingham) and Paul Lindbalt (12-11) at Vancouver) and right-handers Lew Krausse (12-7 at Vancouver and 2-4 with the A's), Aurelio Monteagudo (11-10 at Vancouver) and Ron Tompkins (6-15) at Vancouver).

Kansas City's bullpen generally was a disappointment last year because both John Wyatt (2-6) and Wes Stock (0-4) had off-years, but they have done a lot better than that in the past. Jack Aker (4-3) turned in some fine relief work for the A's in 1965 as did Jim Dickson (3-2) on occasion.

One of the few additions the A's made during the winter was obtaining 25-year-old Phil Roof from Cleveland. He batted .173 in 43 games for the Indians and .136 in nine games for the Angels but he still may become KC's No. 1 catcher.

Bill Bryan (.252) has the edge over Rene Lachemann (.227) for the other catching berth.

The infield rates as the club's strongest department with Ken Harrelson at first base, Dick Green at second, base-stealing whiz Bert Campaneris at short, Ed Charles at third and Wayne Lewiston and 5-3 at Birming-

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself no more, no less. It is thus consistent with the Human Relations Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Reason Will Prevail

In recent years, man's inventiveness has come up with numerous labor-saving devices, automation and whatnot.

Most have been intended to improve efficiency, provide a better lift, and ease man's back-breaking labor.

But, as an offshoot in many instances, the developments have displaced jobs.

Invariably, this has brought strenuous opposition on the part of organized labor. Featherbedding has developed into a real problem in some industries, and in other instances the benefits of the advances continue to be stifled.

But a breakthrough may have been achieved. One of the longest and most bitter featherbedding hassles involved firemen being retained on present-day locomotives.

Of course, in the days long since past, the fireman was the fellow who bent his back over a big shovel and heaved coal from the coal car into the steam locomotive's hungry firebox. The development of the diesel electric locomotives eliminated the need for anyone to shovel coal. Oil flowed automatically into the engine at the turn of a valve.

Yet the firemen had to remain in the locomotive cabs. Their unions fought all efforts to eliminate them even though the men had little or nothing to do. One of the biggest arguments favoring retention of this non-working member of the engine crew was that he represented an added safety factor.

Railroads gained favorable decisions in arbitration sessions and even in the courts, but the fight persisted and the firemen kept on occupying their cozy seats in the cabs.

Then, in May, 1964, the railroads received a final green light on a program to phase out firemen—through normal retirement and transfer to other jobs. Fortunately horses were not unionized in the days when horse-drawn trolleys gave way to electric trolleys or the horse drawn wagons yielded to trucks. Progress certainly would have been stymied if the trolleys and trucks had to carry along some sleeping nags to satisfy union demands.

The important aspect of the locomotive firemen's squabble is the precedent it sets in other industries where modern day machines are displacing jobs.

There is little excuse for wasting manpower because virtually every machine developed creates added needs and new jobs even while it eliminates old tasks. And mankind cannot realize the full benefits of technical advances if they are hamstrung by arbitrary, standpat attitudes such as the railroad firemen adopted.

For true progress, there has to be flexibility which makes it possible to take full advantage of that progress.

Will Breathing Be Next?

It would appear from a recent ruling that no one is free from federal intervention.

An ambulance company "picking up patients from accidents on streets and highways that ultimately connect with federal matching fund highways and freeways are assistant in the free flow of interstate traffic, thereby coming under interstate commerce, which automatically places such companies under federal wage and hour regulations."

That is the ruling which ambulance men have reported receiving from the federal solicitor general. They say that ambulance drivers and attendants are limited to 40 hours a week at their regular wages, and additional time must be paid at time-and-a-half.

Because of this ruling, ambulance operators say they will be under an impossible financial strain. They are asking city councils to determine whether they wish to provide tax-financed service or to be financially responsible for ambulance calls originating through their own law enforcement agencies.

The News does not believe government agencies should provide ambulance or any other services. On the other hand, the ambulance firms should not be expected to provide service at their own expense when ordered to make a call by a representative of government.

However, the ruling of the solicitor general demonstrates how far interpreters of laws have gone in twisting the so-called interstate commerce clause of the Constitution. Form regulating commerce "among the several states," the Congress and the courts have now decided that anything which has passed across a state line or which is "assistant in the flow of interstate traffic," is subject to control, even in the determination of wages and hours and salaries to be paid.

As far as we can see, no human activity can be excluded from "interstate commerce" under such broad inclusions. Even breathing, since the air one breathes might otherwise be breathed by someone who will cross a state line.

'Little Red Hen' Revised

Half a century ago in the process of learning to read, youngsters studied the tale of "The Little Red Hen" in their first grade readers.

Those old enough surely remember the Little Red Hen who found a wheat seed, planted it, harvested the wheat and ground it into flour for a loaf of delicious bread. At various stages of her venture she asked various farmyard denizens to assist her. They refused consistently during the entire project but when they smelled the fresh and crusty loaf of bread they gathered around to share the fruits of the Little Red Hen's labor.

The chicken looked at them coldly and told them in plain words that those who did not work could not share in the reward.

This was the philosophy believed in and taught in this nation's past.

The Little Red Hen would never have condoned public welfare, believing as she did, so it is safe to assume that the story has been retired from first grade books.

Or—if it is still there, wouldn't you wager that the ending has been changed. Today's Little Red Hen would divide the loaf, hardly keeping enough to eat herself to provide strength for growing more wheat and baking more bread to distribute to barnyard residents too lazy to share in her work but grown fat eating the product of hers.

Or, alternately, a "democratic" election would be held to dispose of Little Red Hen's "surplus."

A thought for the day—British statesman Edmund Burke: "People will not look forward to posterity who never look backward to their ancestors."

Pull Up A Chair

By FRANK JAY MARKEY

Reading Eugene Lyons' biography of his cousin, David Sarnoff, published by Harper & Row, we realized the great contribution to the American scene made by this son of an immigrant family with humble beginnings. Yet, he combined intelligence with shrewdness and had sufficient luck and energy to get himself to the top of the radio-RV - electronics world. Reading this biography we recalled when radio was in its heyday and the Dutch Treat Club honored Sarnoff with a luncheon at the Waldorf-Astoria. Jack Benny and a host of radio stars entertained. When the program was finished, Clarence Budington Kelland, club president, said something we have since remembered: "We have honored Mr. Sarnoff and the radio industry. Now let us spend a moment of silence honoring that forgotten genius who invented the switch that turns the damned thing off."

Today's smile: A gay blade said to his pal: "My doctor told me I would be dead in a week if I didn't stop chasing women." The pal asked: "Do you suppose he meant it?" The gay blade answered: "He certainly did. I've been chasing his wife."

We marvel today at the rockets which reach farther and farther into outer space, but few folks know that they had their earliest beginnings on a farm, near Worcester, Massachusetts where Dr. Robert Goddard of Clark University conducted his experiments back in the 1920's. In those days Goddard was regarded as a crackpot, but his ideas have since paid off.

Thoughts while shaving: If anyone ever asks you to give them a word of 13 letters that has seven syllables, tell them it's "individuality." . . . Within the next few months you'll find your favorite bookstores selling original manuscript copies of some of the world's greatest classics at nominal cost. It's all done with a Xerox copying machine and may revolutionize the book publishing business. . . . One of the biggest musical comedy hits in years is "Hello, Dolly," which is still packing them in on Broadway with Ginger Rogers in the title role. To date the show has earned $14 million for its backers. Carol Channing, the original star, is now touring with a road company that grosses $100,000 a week in the hinterlands, which is $30,000 better than the show does in New York, where it still plays to capacity audiences. . . . Next to Jimmy Durante, America's best-known cigar smoker is Arnold "Red" Auerbach, coach of world champion Boston Celtics basketball team. "Red" is never without a cheroot. The Cigar Smokers of America took cognizance of his affinity for cigars by naming him as "The Man of the Year." "Red" said he wouldn't get puffed up over it since he preferred instead to puff on one of his favorite coronas. . . . The Wilmington (Delaware) MORNING NEWS reported in a story: "He is commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration." Sounds like something left over from the New Frontier.

Country Editor speaking: "Education is something you're supposed to get when your father sends you to college, but you never acquire it until you send your own son there."

The News does not believe government agencies should provide ambulance or any other services. On the other hand, the ambulance firms should not be expected to provide service at their own expense when ordered to make a call by a representative of government.

However, the ruling of the solicitor general demonstrates how far interpreters of laws have gone in twisting the so-called interstate commerce clause of the Constitution. Form regulating commerce "among the several states," the Congress and the courts have now decided that anything which has passed across a state line or which is "assistant in the flow of interstate traffic," is subject to control, even in the determination of wages and hours and salaries to be paid.

As far as we can see, no human activity can be excluded from "interstate commerce" under such broad inclusions. Even breathing, since the air one breathes might otherwise be breathed by someone who will cross a state line.

'Little Red Hen' Revised

Half a century ago in the process of learning to read, youngsters studied the tale of "The Little Red Hen" in their first grade readers.

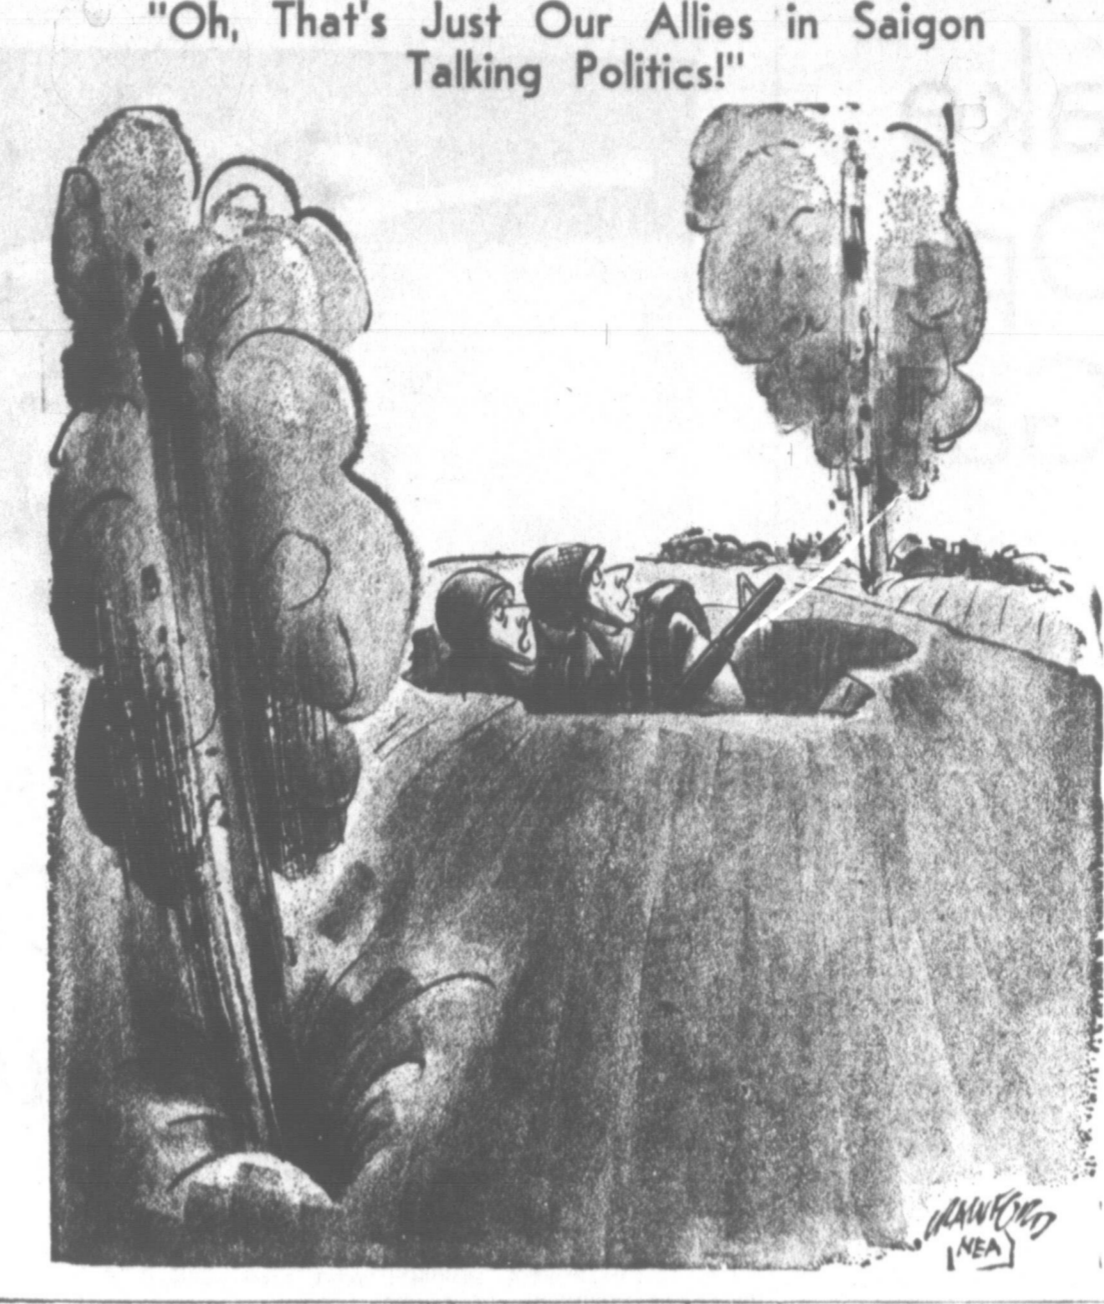

Those old enough surely remember the Little Red Hen who found a wheat seed, planted it, harvested the wheat and ground it into flour for a loaf of delicious bread. At various stages of her venture she asked various farmyard denizens to assist her. They refused consistently during the entire project but when they smelled the fresh and crusty loaf of bread they gathered around to share the fruits of the Little Red Hen's labor.

The chicken looked at them coldly and told them in plain words that those who did not work could not share in the reward.

This was the philosophy believed in and taught in this nation's past.

The Little Red Hen would never have condoned public welfare, believing as she did, so it is safe to assume that the story has been retired from first grade books.

HEW Commissioner Plans Using Medicare 'Sleeper' For Medical Benefits to Poor — of Any Age

ROBERT ALLEN

WASHINGTON — Health, Education & Welfare Department authorities are making far-reaching preparations to use a "sleeper" provision in the new medicare law to establish what would amount to "cradle-to-the-grave" medical benefits for the poor.

These plans, which U. S. Public Health officials say could cause an even bigger medical care revolution than medicare, are based on "Title XIX" of the medical assistance provisions of the new act which go into effect this year.

This little-known section authorizes increased federal funds to states for a wide variety of medical programs for the needy, blind, disabled, crippled children and families receiving public assistance.

In a broad interpretation of Title XIX, Welfare Commissioner Ellen Winston has ruled that it is the "intent of Congress" that all these programs be widely expanded to provide comprehensive medical care for all needy persons regardless of age.

Commissioner Winston, rated the government's top welfare expert, estimates this means that between seven and eight million men, women and children are entitled to medical benefits from hospitalization to doctors' care.

Cost of this greatly expanded medical program could amount to more than $500 million when fully effective in 1967. It will be financed by joint federal-state welfare programs, or separately by the federal government if states decline to participate.

These extensive medical benefits for the poor, Mrs. Winston stressed, are separate and distinct from those available to individuals over 65 under the medicare provisions (Title XVIII) of the new law.

The major difference in the two programs is the financing. Medicare beneficiaries pay a part of the cost under social security or voluntary insurance, while medical care for the poor will be free.

ALL INCLUSIVE CARE — These and other details of the little-known wide-ranging medical benefits being planned for the poor were defined by Commissioner Winston in a private conference with Public Health officials.

In outlining unannounced HEW plans to finance this program, she stated: "Under the medicare provisions (Title XVIII), there is no reason why virtually every person over 65 cannot get the basic care provided through the hospital insurance and voluntary medical insurance program of the Social Security system."

"Under the medical assistance provisions (Title XIX), not only can the deductibles and volun-

Much Work Being Done To Aid Leukemia Victims

PAUL SCOTT

A mother whose 3-year-old son has leukemia wants to know what is the best treatment for this disease. The outlook for this child would depend in part on which of the 13 forms of the disease he has. Although no sure cure has been discovered, much promising work is being done. Some victims with lymphocytic leukemia have responded well to chlorambucil, a derivative of nitrogen mustard.

In children with this type of leukemia, however, the best results have been with a combination of prednisone, a cortisone-like drug, and vincristine, which is a derivative of the periwinkle. After a remission has been obtained with the use of this combination, it is wise to switch to methotrexate. Other drugs that are especially valuable in bringing about a remission in children are mercaptopurine and cyclophosphamide.

For myelocytic leukemia, busulfan has been found to be better than mercaptopurine by one group of observers and another group got good results by keeping leukemic patients under a plastic hood (similar to an oxygen tent) for several days and having them inhale nitrous oxide (laughing gas).

"Transfusions of marrow cells, previously taken from the victim and stored at a freezing temperature or marrow cells from a donor carefully selected by cross-matching, as is done in blood transfusions, have also been used experimentally with good results.

Another research group has hit upon an ingenious form of treatment. We know that X rays will kill the diseased white blood cells in a leukemic patient but irradiation of the whole body is harmful to the victim's normal tissues. The doctors, therefore, brought the patient's blood out of his body through a silastic-Teflon tube and back into his body again. No special pump is needed as the patient's heart can pump blood through the tube. As the blood flows through the tube it is treated with X rays and the leukemic cells are killed.

Q—Would it be advisable to take my 3-month-old baby to see my great aunt who is 85 and lives near us? The aunt is in excellent health.

A—I can see no objection to taking your baby on such a visit but would not advise it for a younger child. I am, however, violently opposed to allowing any adults, or children for that matter, to kiss the baby except on the back of the neck or to hold him close to their faces.

cial responsibility of children for their aging parents.

"Such responsibility may only be taken into account by states for the spouse or for a child who is under the age of 21, or who is blind or permanently and totally disabled," pointed out Commissioner Winston. "A large group of relatives whom the states may not impose an obligation to support are older children for their aged parents."

As interpreted by HEW, the new law also authorizes medical assistance for resident of the

De Gaulle Wants Both Allied Bread, Red Cake

BY RAY CROMLEY
Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON (NEA) —

A high American official here, who knows Charles de Gaulle well, says privately the French president is beginning to see himself as a force between the Communist and Western worlds.

By loosening his ties with the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, De Gaulle will be in a better position to maneuver between Moscow, Peking, Washington, London, Hanoi, Saigon, Phnom Penh and other capitals, and East and West.

If he should successfully maneuver France into this "in-between" position, and is recognized by both worlds, De Gaulle would be in the position of a grand mediator.

It would be a step in De Gaulle's mind, this official says, toward "restoring the glory of France."

This De Gaulle maneuver also could be highly profitable financially for France.

By walking on—both—sides of the East-West line, De Gaulle's traders, shippers and financial men have worked up highly profitable arrangements with Cambodia, North Viet Nam, Red China and South Viet Nam—both sides of the southeast Asian war.

De Gaulle's men have been busy attempting to promote equally profitable deals with Russia and eastern Europe, meanwhile tying much of western Europe to trade restrictions that profit French industry and agriculture and hurt U.S. business.

Some U.S. officials also see a close connection between the defeat of the French army in Viet Nam and Algeria and De Gaulle's progressive withdrawal from current NATO agreements.

These analysts contend the Indochina and Algerian defeats so destroyed the morale of the French army (already seriously weakened by its disasters of World War II) that De Gaulle compulsively will take almost any step that he thinks will help restore the French spirit.

These French specialists contend it is more important to De Gaulle that "his army and his people believe in their own greatness" than that they have a practical working defense alliance with their neighbors.

In this, De Gaulle, they say, is somewhat like Mao Tse-tung, who contends that with enough spirit poorly armed men can defeat modern armies.

There is no doubt in the minds of U. S. defense analysts seen privately that the De Gaulle moves will seriously weaken the defense of western Europe, including France.

They say this is so even taking into account that French sources close to De Gaulle's thinking say that he still wants to continue France's defensive alliance with the United States and Europe in case of war. They say he is agreeable to a unified command in time of war.

They say he will agree to Allied headquarters and air supply and other defense bases and even NATO troops in France in peacetime as well as in war if they're sufficiently under Paris supervision to illustrate the sovereignty of France and so long as French troops are not under Allied commanders in peacetime.

This risky De Gaulle game of international chess makes sense only if he is confident the U. S. intercontinental missile "threat" will keep Soviet armies from invading France.

It's Up To You

The Damper on Ingenuity — Socialism

Seated in a restaurant, I overheard a young man answering the arguments of his friends that he go into business for himself. He said:

"I have a good job with plenty of fringe benefits. I work only 8 hours a day. I am sure of a good pension at retirement. "If I go into business for myself I will have to work about twice as many hours per week, will have no assured fringe benefits and no guaranteed pension at retirement. I will have to risk all my savings and go into debt with perhaps one chance in five of winning out. And even if I do succeed, the government will take over half of the profit I might earn. Moreover I shall have to struggle with accounting, reporting, investigations, a flood of legislation and bureaucratic rulings effecting my business. I will have to spend many hours and much money defending myself against accusations the bureaucrats may bring against me. No thank you. No business for me in the present climate of high taxes, government inter-defending myself against accusation and hostility."

Who knows now many brilliant young men are making similar decisions and what this will do to our country? What would Ford, McCormack, Edison and thousands of their kind have done if they had faced the situation that young men face today? Would our country have achieved the tremendous growth of the past century? Are we stopping at the source the forces that would carry us forward at an even faster clip during the next century?

The ingenuity, daring and ability of men to put forth extraordinary effort if the incentive is high enough is our most priceless asset. Are we frittering it away in return for the hope of a low grade, colorless security of socialism?

SUKARNO'S DEBACLE

The ousting of Sukarno, if successfully continued, is the greatest victory for Freedom since the last decisive battle of World War II.

Sukarno, prominent in Java since 1944, was firmly established in 1950 by the U. N. Soviet Union and U. S. A. Communist dictator of Indonesia.

Dr. Frank Graham, following his loss of the U. S. Senate seat, became U. S. Ambassador to the U. N. and handled the Sukarno regime.

The Soviets and U. S. A. displayed close teamwork in supporting Sukarno on a near share and share alike basis, furnishing him with ships, tanks, planes, armaments and munitions to suppress his constructive rivals, including the uprising staged by the anti-Communists in Sumatra. The U. S. A. assisted Sukarno in overthrowing the government of New Guinea, turning New Guinea over to the U. N. October 1, 1962, which then turned it over to Sukarno on May 1, 1963. The U. S. has sent foreign aid to Sukarno amounting to $874 million until he bitterly rejected, and told us what we could do with, our foreign aid. Indonesia is third among the nations of the world in resources. Its population of 100 million people are 90 per cent Moslem, and since Moslems are vigorous Non-Communists, it has been no small task for the State Department to keep these militant Non-Communists suppressed.

Sukarno was in process of taking over Singapore and Malaysia and needed firmer support in Indonesia. He attempted a coup to wipe out Non-Communists in Indonesia which failed about October 1, and this failure led to his present debacle. The probability that Sukarno was taking over these countries was far more alarming than the possibility of our being forced out of South Vietnam, although the U. S. State Department and British Foreign Office seemed undisturbed.
