EVACUATE WOUNDED MARINES — U.S. Marines of India Company, Fifth Marines, were ambushed and overrun by North Vietnamese while conducting Operation Hastings near Dong Ha, South Viet Nam. Two wounded marines held their shoulders while a third is assisted to a medical evacuation helicopter by the pilot.

Bombers Pound New Viet Cong Buildup

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. forces attacked guerrilla concentrations near Saigon today where the Viet Cong have massed a strike force of more than 5,000 men. B-52 bombers pounded the area with high explosive bombs and U.S. troops swooped in by helicopter.

A military spokesman said heavy ground fire brought down two UN helicopters in the operation, but they were quickly repaired and flown out.

After the initial fight, the enemy broke off contact and slipped away through the jungle. Units of the U.S. 25th Division's 2nd Brigade reported only sporadic sniper fire and said the Viet Cong abandoned an ammunition dump containing 80,000 rounds of ammunition, mines, booby traps and automatic weapons.

The assault was aimed at halting an unprecedented guerrilla buildup within striking distance of Saigon. Intelligence sources said the guerrillas had moved nine battalions into the Saigon area. Viet Cong battalions usually number between 400 and 600 men.

Four battalions were reported hiding in hamlets and villages 15 to 18 miles from Saigon and four more battalions were said to be virtually at the capital's doorstep, hiding among residents about 10 miles out.

One battalion reportedly was broken down into terrorist squads and infiltrated the capital itself, hiding among the 1.4 million residents.

Authorities doubted the guerrillas would try anything approaching a mass assault on Saigon. But they apparently planned to dominate the countryside around it and step up terrorist attacks in the day.

Vietnamese officials already have reported a marked increase in guerrilla attacks on bridges and isolated outposts near Saigon.

In the air war, U.S. jets struck new blows against North Viet Nam today, losing one supersonic F104 to Communist gunners 40 miles north of Hanoi. The pilot was listed as missing. It was the first official report that the sleek, 1,400-mile-an-hour jets were again flying over North Viet Nam. They left Viet Nam last December and came back in June, apparently because of the growing threat from Communist MIGs.

An Air Force RF101 Voodoo reconnaissance plane also was shot down Sunday while on a photo reconnaissance mission northeast of Hanoi and its pilot was listed as missing. The pilots left broad areas of the north dotted with secondary fire and explosions.

Meantime, the International Control Commission ICC announced it was investigating Communist complaints resulting from 352 attacks Saturday and Sunday against the demilitarized zone BMZ, dividing North and South Viet Nam.

TALKS BREAK DOWN
BERLIN (UPI) — East-West talks on emergency wall passes for West Berliners broke down Friday. The talks were deadlocked over an East German demand for increased recognition of its Communist regime. The old agreement expired June 30.

Diplomat Says Japan, Not China Holds Asia's Future

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It is Japan, not Red China, that will have the greatest impact on the future of Asia, retiring U.S. diplomat Edwin O. Reischauer said today.

Reischauer, who is returning to Harvard after five years as U.S. ambassador to Japan, said the Japanese, 20 years after their devastating defeat in World War II, are now moving into "a role as the great economic and political power in Asia."

In an interview with the magazine U.S. News & World Report, Reischauer said: "China's influence is negative and recognized as such by everybody, whereas the positive role Japan can play is not so widely understood as yet. But for the last year or so, Japan has been showing signs of getting ready to assume a new position of leadership."

He said it was inevitable that Japan assume some of the U.S. burden in the Pacific, and said the United States is glad about it.

But he said he would "assume that Japan will continue to look to us for nuclear defense," one reason being that the pacifist tendency in Japan "will remain strong among a large part of the Japanese public for some time into the future."

The Japanese public generally is critical of U.S. policies in Viet Nam, Reischauer said, but indicated this feeling appears to be moderating.

"The Japanese are not as prone to all-out condemnation of the U.S. as they were last year," he said. "There is greater realization that Viet Nam is a very complex problem with no easy solutions"

Political Walls Rattle Over Rogers' Decision

Congressman Says He'll Practice Law

By TEX DEWEESE

The political walls rattled from Washington to the Texas Panhandle today and the reverberations echoed down to Austin in the wake of Sunday's surprise announcement that U.S. Rep. Walter Rogers of Pampa has withdrawn from the congressional race and will not seek re-election at the Nov. 8 election.

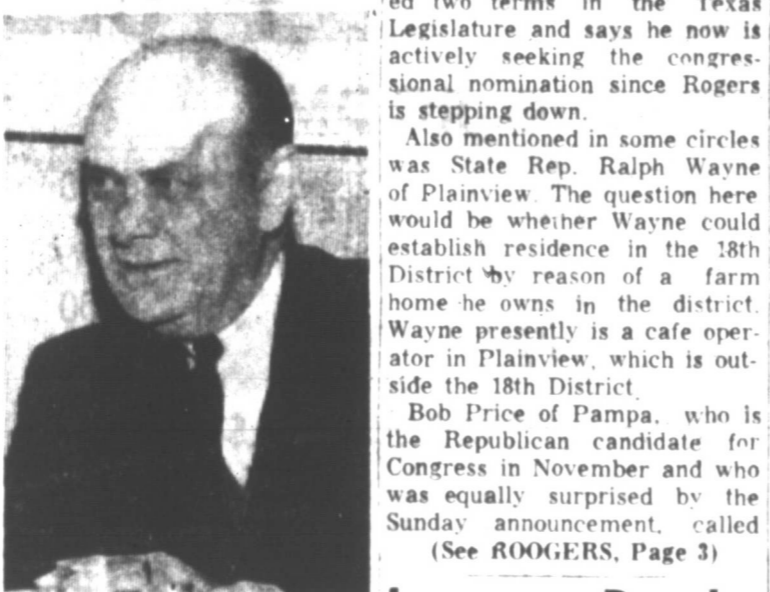

The announcement came in letters dated Friday in Washington and delivered yesterday to Democratic county chairmen in the 30-county 18th Congressional District.

The news broke from Pampa Sunday morning after Gray County Democratic Executive Committee chairman Jimmy Thompson received Rogers' letter announcing he had "decided to decline the nomination to appear on the ballot in November."

Rogers said he was quitting the race to retire from politics and enter the private practice of law.

The buzz in political circles today came from both Democratic and Republican sources as to the name of the man who will be chosen to take Rogers' place on the Nov. 8 ballot.

Most prominently mentioned is Wales Madden Jr., 38-year-old Amarillo attorney. It is understood Madden is the choice of the state administration of Gov. John Connally and that he also is looked upon with favor by President Johnson. It is generally known that Congressman Rogers did not always go straight down the line with the national administration wishes.

WALTER ROGERS — chooses not to run on legislation introduced in the Congress.

In Amarillo, Madden said he had no comment on the prospect he might be chosen and stated

Sniper Wound Ten in Austin

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — A sniper carried a rifle up to the observation deck of the University of Texas tower Monday and began shooting about the campus area below. Several persons were hit.

One of the injured was a policeman, another a newsman, and there were perhaps six to 10 others injured.

Austin police swarmed over the campus and sealed off the immediate area, trying to get the approximately 10,000 students in summer classes to cover. The shooting started just before noon, as classes were letting out, pouring thousands of students into the tower area.

There were screams and gasps among the students and employes in the tower when it became known the man was shooting. Employes of the skyscraper tower, which houses the university's main library and many administrative offices, holed themselves up in their offices and telephoned for help.

Ruth Kuykendall, a worker on the 18th floor of the 27-story building, called a friend, Amy Jo Long of the university news and information service.

Walter Rogers Reports:

Politics Not Involved In Withdrawal Decision

Congressman Walter Rogers said in a telephone conversation with The News today there is nothing ominous nor politically significant about his decision not to seek re-election in November.

The question had arisen: why had Rogers so suddenly decided not to run after he had gone ahead with campaign plans even to planning advertising and booking television time?

Rogers' answer is that negotiations he had underway for some time suddenly came to a head about three weeks ago and he had to make a decision.

"That decision came only last week," Rogers said, "and it was made after thorough and careful consideration."

Some of the congressman's friends and supporters in the Panhandle felt he should have notified them of his intentions before the public announcement.

"I know some of my Democratic friends are a little put out," Rogers said, "but my final decision was reached after discussing the matter with no one except my wife, Jean."

Mrs. Rogers is the former Catherine R. (Jean) Daly of Pampa. They have six children — John, Walter Jr., Susan, Thomas, Robert and Mary Catherine. The family resides in Chevy Chase, Md.

"There just comes a time in your life," Rogers said, "when opportunity presents itself both from the financial standpoint and from the standpoint of being able to spend more time with your family."

"The average person thinks a congressman's salary is a big one—and I guess it is—but they forget the terrific expense that goes along with the job. You find you are always coming out on the short end.

"Being able to spend more time with my family was the biggest consideration in the decision," the congressman said. "The family is the main strength of our nation, and I decided it had reached the point where I owed that responsibility to my own family as an individual."

Rogers said he was planning to open law offices in Washington, but his future plans they had not reached the point where a detailed announcement could (See POLITICS, Page 3)

BOB PRICE — faces new opponent of two terms in the Texas Legislature and says he now is actively seeking the congressional nomination since Rogers is stepping down.

Also mentioned in some circles was State Rep. Ralph Wayne of Plainview. The question here would be whether Wayne could establish residence in the 18th District by reason of a farm home he owns in the district. Wayne presently is a cafe operator in Plainview, which is outside the 18th District.

Bob Price of Pampa, who is the Republican candidate for Congress in November and who was equally surprised by the Sunday announcement, called

Insurance Penalty System in Effect

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Careless driving becomes a lot more costly in Texas today.

The penalty point system, adopted last week by the State Board of Insurance, goes into effect today and the idea of the serious game is to accumulate as few points as possible.

Those picking up even one point will feel the pinch in their pocketbook Aug. 1, 1967, when their auto insurance rates will go up.

A driver can be assessed one point by getting more than one traffic ticket in a year's time or for causing an accident involving more than $50 damage.

Two points will be given for driving without a license or being convicted of any moving violation that results in having the license taken away.

A three point penalty will be given for conviction of driving, while intoxicated or on narcotics, failure to stop and render aid or to disclose identity when involved in an accident, negligent homicide, murder by D. W. I., aggravated assault with a motor vehicle or any other offense punishable as a felony under the motor vehicle laws.

Borrowed $25,000 Turns To $9,376,944 in Assets

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — The North Texas Producers Association, which started in 1949 with a borrowed $25,000, recently reported to its nearly 2,000 dairyman-members that their organization now has assets totaling $9,376,944.

The association sells one billion pounds of milk a year. Last year it sold $58 million worth of milk. It is the biggest dairyman's cooperative in Texas and one of the 10 biggest in the United States.

Members of the association operate dairies in an 800-by-300 mile area from the upper tip of the Texas Panhandle to Arkansas. There are additional members in Southern Oklahoma and in Eastern New Mexico.

In that area, the North Texas Producers Association is the marketing agent for members to whom it guarantees a market. It owns a milk processing plant, plants that dry and condense milk and a string of drive-in grocery stores.

When a handful of dairymen started the association in 1949, dairymen were having a hard time of it, according to W. T. Crouch of Arlington, now the association president.

"In those days," Crouch said, "dairyman bargained individually with handlers. They took their milk to his plant and pushed the cans through a hole in the wall; just big enough to accommodate a can."

"The handler weighed the milk and he tested it for butterfat and returned the cans. Some milk handlers were honest and some weren't."

The Association was organized to do things: have its own man at every place dairy farmer's sold milk to weight it and test it for butterfat. The value of milk is determined by the butterfat in it.

At first, the Association had hard going. Milk handlers would not deal with dairymen who even considered Association membership. Not being able to sell milk was hard on a man who had nothing else to sell.

But a milk processor operating anywhere in the Association's territory finds it difficult not to deal with the Association. Eighty per cent of dairymen in the area are members.

Solons Next For Airline Workers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Striking airline machinists, who defied President Johnson and their own national union leaders to reject a proposed settlement, today faced the threat of swift congressional action to end their 25-day work-out.

The rejection vote Sunday by rank-and-file members of the International Association of Machinists (IAM)—17,251 to 6,587, or nearly a 3 to 1 margin—was a stunning personal rebuff to the President, the first he has suffered since he began taking a hand in labor disputes.

It also meant that no matter what Congress does, it seemed likely that the five strikebound trans-World, National, United—airlines — Eastern, Northwest, would remain grounded for at least a week more.

The White House had no comment on the machinists' action, nor did Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz, who had worked with negotiators on the agreement the President proudly announced Friday night on nationwide television.

But on Capitol Hill reaction was immediate and sometimes angry. Chairman Lister Hill, D-Ala., of the Senate Labor Committee scheduled a meeting, and committee members predicted a bill to end the walk-out would be ready within an hour.

Details of the contract the union members rejected were made available officially Sunday. The main wage item was a 56-cent-an-hour boost for top mechanics over three years, from the present $3.52 an hour.

The union originally had sought a 53-cent-an-hour increase. In return for 56 cents, it gave up its proposal for wage increases pledged, at the cost of living index—a factor which many local leaders cited as one basis for rejection.

On one fringe benefit, the members would get up to $2 a week health and welfare contributions beginning next July. They get none now.

Dear Abby,
By Abigail
Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a high school senior and I plan to become a nurse. I also have another ambition. I want to marry a member of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. Please do not laugh at me, Abby, I am serious.

I am not pretty, but I do have plenty of friends and I've been told I have a good personality. I've dated guys from school, but they don't satisfy this feeling I have. I have read everything about the RCMP and am more determined than ever to marry one. How can I meet one?

FROM VIRGINIA
DEAR FROM: You could take a trip to Canada and get "lost" in the Rockies, but there is always a chance that the bloodhounds might find you first. Get your RN, then apply for a job in Canada. And in the meantime, keep repeating the motto of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police: "We always get our man." And maybe you'll get yours. Lotsa luck.

DEAR ABBY: Harry is somewhere in his late sixties and has never been married. I am a widow, 59. We started seeing each other about a year ago and agreed to be just friends and nothing more. We enjoyed each other's companionship immensely for a while, then he broke his promise and got romantic. I put him in his place and we agreed once more to be only friends.

Now Harry wants me to accept a diamond. He says he is not pressing for marriage, but he would like for me to wear his ring. I would like to accept it, but I don't want to commit myself to marriage. What do you think he has in mind?

WATCHING MY STEP
DEAR WATCHING: He could be only trying to cut off your circulation. No matter what he says, his tone has a wedding ring to it.

DEAR ABBY: When I read "Insulted's" letter, complaining because she had received a garbage pail from her aunt and uncle for a wedding present, it brought back memories. Years ago, an English professor was reading a play in which the author had attempted to depict poverty, filth, and squalor against a background of garbage cans, clotheslines, etc. The professor became enraged.

"What's wrong with garbage cans?" he wanted to know. "In India there are no garbage cans because there is no garbage. And there's no garbage because there's no food! Garbage cans are an indication of plenty," he said. "A mark of an affluent civilization of which any nation may well be proud!" I have never forgotten those words. It also instilled in me a new respect for garbage cans.

"PRACTICAL" IN CORONADO
CONFIDENTIAL TO WORK-RIED SICK: Quit worrying. I never use a writer's name, initials, or reveal the city from which the letter came without the consent of the writer.

Williams-Coon Vows Pledged in Afternoon Ceremony

(Naiman Marcus portrait by Gittings)

In an afternoon ceremony solemnized yesterday in First Methodist Church, Miss Mary Ellen Williams became the bride of the Rev. Sanford Downs Coon of Beeville.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Edward S. Williams of 1204 Charles. Rev. Coon is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carlos W. Coon of San Antonio.

The double-ring ceremony was officiated by Dr. Hubert H. Bratcher of Big Spring, superintendent of the Methodist Big Spring District, and William H. Fox of Dallas, dean of men at Southern Methodist University.

Mr. Wayne Pitner, organist, presented traditional, nuptial selections. Mrs. Hubert Carson, violinist, played "Air for G String" by Bach.

A massive arrangement of white gladioli atop the altar, backed by woodwardia palms, centered the wedding scene. The choir and communion rails were appointed with green and white fancy leaf cadadium joined by garlands of deflexus fern. Pewes were marked with clusters of cadadium leaves, avocado grapes and strands of ivy. In the foyer of the church the register table was enhanced by a brass container bearing an arrangement of fancy leaf white cadadium leaves and clusters of avocado grapes.

Escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of imported ivory English net appliqued with hand run aconon lace over peau de soie. The molded empire bodice was fashioned with a wide bateau neckline and double teacup sleeves complimented by wrist-length ivory kid gloves. The slim A-line skirt, enhanced by scallops of the alencon lace at the hemline, was floor length. Her veil of imported ivory silk illusion fell in tiers below her waistline from a tall crown of matching lace. She carried a cascading bouquet of stephanotis and strands of ivy.

Attired identically in floor-length gowns of pistachio green linen, bridal attendants included Mrs. William H. Fox of Dallas, matron of honor; Miss Elisabeth Anne Williams, maiden of honor; and Miss Gloria Meredith of Phoenix, Ariz., Miss Sara Beth Walker, Miss Nancy Fleming and Mrs. Wells Stewart, all of Houston, bridesmaids. The gowns' empire bodices were fashioned with a wide oval neckline and elbow-length sleeves edged in ivory guipure lace. The skirts were designed with slim A-lines. Each carried a cascade arrangement of clusters of avocado grapes, fancy leaf cadadium leaves and strands of ivy.

Carlos W. Coon Jr. of Tucson, Ariz., served his brother as bestman. Groomsmen were W. C. Hall of Port Bolivar, William P. Mullins of Memphis, Tenn., Carl D. Evans of Kansas and John Walker of Navasota. Seating the wedding guests were Sanson Williams, brother of the bride, and Lindsey Enderby of Dallas, ushers.

Pampa Club in Coronado Inn was the scene of the reception held following the pledging of vows. The bride's table, covered with an imported white organza cloth, was centered with an antique nine-branched candelabra bearing ivory tapers. Nosegays of white pom poms studded with pearls surrounded the base of each taper from which extended crystal prisms. The arrangement was entwined with pearl rope and bubbles of white pom poms. Garlands of ivy and ivory satin streamers tied in love knots extended from the center arrangement and cascaded over each table corner. Mrs. Carlos W. Coon Jr. served the three-tiered colonaded wedding cake which was trimmed with garlands of rosebuds, stephanotis, lilies of the valley and ivy. Presiding at the punch bowl were Mrs. Bill Atkinson and Mrs. Phil Bruton. Guests were registered by Mrs. Jackie Hammer. Reception guests were greeted by Mrs. R. C. Walker of Austin and Mrs. Walter C. Fleming of Houston.

The new Mrs. Moon changed into a two-piece imported cotton beige suit accented by matching accessories prior to departing on a wedding trip to Colorado. She lifted the stephanotis corsage from her bridal bouquet.

The bride is a 1968 graduate of SMU where she was a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma Sorority. The bridegroom is a graduate of Southwestern University and Perkins School of Theology. He is a member of Phi Delta Theta Fraternity. Rev. Coon is associate minister at the Methodist Church in Beeville where the couple will make their home at 913 E. Cleveland.

Pre-nuptial events extended the bride included a coffee given in the home of Mrs. George Snell with Mmes. Frank Kelly, Aubrey Steele, M. McDonald and W. A. Campaigne as co-hostesses; a tea hosted by Mrs. Frances Noblitt of Amarillo. Mrs. Ralph Gardner of Roswell, N.M., Mrs. Harold Miller and Mrs. Clinton Evans, given on July 2 in the Evans' home; a luncheon given in Pampa Club by Messrs. and Mmes. Bob Curry and Bob Triplehorn and Drs. and Mmes. Julian Key and Charles Barucic; a rice party given on July 12 by Mrs. Bill Atkinson and Mrs. Jackie Hammer.

The bride honored the bridal attendants at a bridal brunch.

The collections for fall and winter emphasize the simplest of silhouettes for daytime dresses—collarless or small collar, sleeveless or tiny sleeves, and fabric gliding over the body, the waistline unmarked. The age of the short skirt has led to development of a stocking that stays up by itself. The use of a specially designed stretch fabric enables the holding band to come between 10 and 21 inches above the knee. The band is made of inch-wide spun rayon laminated to soft, porous elastic. The manufacturer, Stevens Hosiery, said extensive tests in the United States and consumer reaction in Europe — where the stockings have been for sale for months — have demonstrated their effectiveness and comfort.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY, he or she will be one of those charming young children who early in life wants to help fellow man and can never be accused of pettiness, since there is a deep understanding of others, their motives. Give as fine an education as possible and slant it toward the humanities, personnel work, a connection with charities, etc. Much assistance to the world at large possible here.

South Suffers Setback, Star's Knee Injured

HOUSTON (UPI)—An air of apprehension hung over the South schoolboy all-star football squad and the University of Texas coaching staff today while doctors take a more thorough look at al-starter at Sheehan's injured knee.

Sheehan, expected to be one of the wheelhorses backs in the South's bid to end the domination of the North in Thursday night's coaching school climax at Rice Stadium, hurt the knee in Sunday's late afternoon workout in a driving rain.

A preliminary examination indicated the San Antonio Lee star had bruised a knee he had hurt a couple of weeks ago in getting in shape for the all-star activities at the 34th annual Texas High School Coaches Association Clinic.

"There is no fluid on the knee, and it appears stable," a doctor said. "We will check it again Monday and x-ray it."

Sheehan is headed for the Texas Longhorn campus as a freshman and Sunday's mishap brought into vivid focus an incident in the all-star game two years ago in Fort Worth when another Longhorn prospect, Linus Baer of San Antonio, was put out of action for a year.

Sheehan's injury was just one of the developments along the football and basketball all-star fronts Sunday—the second day of workouts for the all-star games.

North quarterback Ronnie Collier of Wetherford lost a tooth and South all-star basketball Calvin Gerke sprained an ankle. Neither injury was expected to keep them from playing. On the South football team, WVU tackle Woodard of Crockett missed another session because of a Saturday knee injury; tackle Robert Hall of Port Neches was held out of contact work because of an elbow strain, and back Sonny Heckcorn left early, complaining of feeling dizzy.

Coach Don Orr of the North said his defense was looking sharper than the offense—especially Fort Worth North Side linebacker Robert Oujesky and Steve Bradshaw of Dallas Adamson, his linebacking mate; ends Richard Stevens of Dublin and Bob McKay of Crane.

Orr said he would try to break the squad down into units today. In the South grid camp, Mack McKinney of Cameron, a back, was moved to offensive end and defensive back during a 350-minute scrimmage. Ted Koy of Bellville and Bill Allison of Corsicana were showing up well at fullback, while Barney Harris of San Antonio MacArthur, who may play four positions, looked best at tailback.

Seven boys drew mention from North basketball coach Mac O'Banion because of their size and the way they handle the ball. They were David Reed of Lubbock Monterey, Russ Byington of Fort Worth Aschal, Bobby Harrison of Dallas Samuell, Raymond Wray of Abilene, Harvey Huffstetler of Waxahachie, Randy Sherrod of Channing and Sam Tipton of Bruvery. O'Banion said his boys were "real enthused... apparently being 12-14 point underdogs has them fired up." South cage coach Donn Coleman said his tall squad had picked up everything his staff had assigned them and he was ready now to do "a lot of polishing." Jerry Kroll of Spring Branch Memorial and Bill Endicott of Beaumont Frenc were the South standouts. Coleman said but added that he is blessed with fine talent. "We ought not to be this happy," he said, "but we are."

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Mild-mannered Gil Hodges is the same kind of class guy in the dugout that he was at first base for the old Brooklyn Dodgers. In the past three seasons with the hapless Washington Senators, the patient, soft-spoken Hodges has established himself as one of the finest field bosses.

One of the most popular players during his long career, Hodges was rumored to be headed to a better club as manager when his present contract ran out at the end of this season. But James Johnston, chairman of the board of the Senators, announced Sunday that in Hodges has signed a two-year contract through the 1968 season.

No terms were announced but his salary for 1966 was estimated at $40,000 and Hodges admitted it was a "better contract." The new terms were estimated at $45,000.

Hodges said he was pleased to sign a new contract because the

He also said he appreciated the fact that Senator general manager George Selkirk gave him his first chance to manage a major league team with no prior experience.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Atlanta Falcons, the National Football League's newest expansion venture in the South, make their debut Monday night in new Atlanta Stadium when Norm Hecker's charges greet the Philadelphia Eagles to open pro football's exhibition season.

The American Football League kicks off its exhibition slate Tuesday in Houston with the Houston Oilers playing host to the Oakland Raiders.

The NFL champion Green Bay Packers meet the College All Stars in Chicago Friday night in the 33rd renewal of the Chicago Tribune charity contest at Soldiers' Field.

The other NFL action, Baltimore takes on local rival Washington at D. C. Stadium Wednesday night. St. Louis greets the Falcons in St. Louis. Chicago clashes with Philadelphia at Memphis, Tenn. Minnesota meets Detroit in New Orleans, New York battles Pittsburgh in Ithaca, N. Y., and Los Angeles hosts the Eastern Division champion Cleveland Browns Saturday night.

Denver takes on Kansas City and the Miami Dolphins make their football debut against San Diego Saturday night to round out the week's AFL schedule.

Casper Eyes Fifth Crown At Cleveland

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI)—Billy Casper, pro golf's new "Mister Moneybags," headed for the Cleveland Open today with his fourth victory of the tour and an extra $16,400.

The 35-year-old U.S. Open champion won the $92,000 "500" Festival Open Sunday for the second time, slick-putting his way to an 11-under-par 277 and boosting his winnings this year to $97,915.

R. H. Sikes matched the easy-going Casper stroke - for-stroke the first 54 holes of the four-day grind but slipped to a 73 on the final round for an 8-under-par 280 and a second-place pot of $8,500.

Putting Casper's forte, carried him to victory. He had only one three-put green in 72 holes and bogeyed only the 15th hole Sunday.

Carl to Miss All-Star Tilt

Carl McAdams, former White Deer High School and Oklahoma University football star, was lost "indefinitely" Saturday to the New York Jets when he fractured his ankle.

McAdams, defensive linebacker with the College All-Stars, will of course, not be able to play against the Green Bay Packers in the star contest Friday night.

McAdams said he and several other players were touring Chicago, taking in the sights when the accident occurred.

McAdams was taken to Passavant Hospital and a physician said the athlete had a fracture. McAdams said earlier he had been having trouble with his ankle during practice for the game.

More Pay—In Puffballs

The administration in Washington not only is telling the states they must tax people more, but is even telling them what kind of tax they shall levy. That is the message from Hubert H. Humphrey, as reported by Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott on the News editorial pages.

Long ago, the powers in Washington have been threatening the states that unless they provided "services" to the people which Washington determines are needed, that the federal government will do it. Now, Humphrey has gone even further in that he held recently with state legislative leaders in Washington.

Certainly pointed up the arrogance—or ignorance—of the vice president of the United States.

"It is public temper that if state or local governments don't do the job, the federal government should act," he said. "In just the last year we have seen the federal government become involved, or begin thinking of involvement, in areas in which, until now, states have exercised relatively unlimited autonomy." So the men in Washington tell the people they are "entitled" to whatever little goodies they think they want, and "if you can't get it at home, we'll provide it for you."

Next will come law enforcement. Humphrey threatens, with blatant disregard for the fact that the principal trouble law enforcement officers have come from federal court rulings which have made it virtually impossible for them to act. As to the method of taxation, Humphrey decries the fact that some states have no income tax at all and that others have what he calls an "anemic" tax on income.

He says "most people agree" that the income tax "is the fairest of all taxes, because it is based on a bill to pay." Great Caesar's Ghost! There is nothing fair about an income tax—particularly the graduated income tax. It is regressive. It discourages thrift and efforts to increase earnings, and levies taxes on those who save a little with the hopes of taking care of themselves in the future.

Then Mr. Humphrey quotes "facts and figures gathered by the U.S. Treasury that further increases in these (state and local sales) taxes will be highly inflationary." We don't doubt some unthinking person in the Treasury Department may have made such a statement. We're not surprised that ADA-Farmer-Labor representative Humphrey would repeat it as gospel.

A sales tax may be bad—we think all taxes are—but it is not inflationary. The cause of inflation is an increase in the amount of paper money and credit in circulation without an increase in the goods with which to buy them. And the federal government, spending more than it takes in by printing more fiat money, is the agency which causes the greatest inflation.

It is no wonder that individuals are confused when President Johnson claims price, and wage increases are inflationary, and when Hubert Humphrey and the Treasury say that sales taxes are inflationary.

They cannot be that economically illiterate! Or can they?

Pay Up, Pronto!

Our greedy Uncle Sam, it seems, is acting like he might be feeling the pinch of the tight money situation. On second thought, though, that's probably not the case, since federal money problems should be a thing of the past under our planned inflation and deficit policy. Dollars are not worth very much but everybody's got lots of them.

But one thing is sure: the Big Spenders of Washington can't wait to get their sticky fingers on withholding taxes paid by employers and employees.

The Internal Revenue Service has ordered many employers to deposit withholding and social security taxes twice a month instead of once a month. The order, effective last month, substantially increases the amount of paper work employers are required to do for nothing. Come to think of it, the paper work will be practically doubled.

Employers whose total "subject-to-deposit" taxes exceed $4,000 a month are affected by the twice-a-month deposit plan. These taxes include the employer's withheld income and social security taxes plus the employer's own matching social security payment.

There is every indication, Washington sources report, that the speedup plan will be extended to smaller companies, and soon.

The IRS, however, showed it is not completely sans heart. It gives employers three days after the 15th and the last day of each month to fork over the cash.

Don't shrug. You could have demanded payment yesterday, or more precisely, in advance. What the IRS wants, the IRS gets, you know.

In 1914, Russia invaded Germany as German troops moved into France, Belgium and Luxembourg.

GOP Moves To Kick Out Extremists

By BRUCE BOSSAT Washington Correspondent CHICAGO (NEA) — A good many key Republican figures are working more or less quietly to assure that the 1968 GOP National Convention will not be a carbon copy of the 1964 convention — with its emphasis on which will name the next Republican nominee, Barry Goldwater, has several times predicted that, in terms of delegate make-up, the next convention would indeed be largely a replay of the one which chose him overwhelmingly at San Francisco.

Inquiries by this reporter here in the Midwest and in the Far West suggest that numerous party professionals want nothing of the kind and will go to considerable lengths to prevent what they regard as a repeat of disaster.

The most striking plans appear to be brewing in Washington state, where attractive Gov. Daniel Evans, a vigorous moderate elected two years ago, already has knocked down the rigid conservatives in sharp confrontations with members of the John Birch Society and other extremist groups.

Evans believes any open battle with these elements can be won. Consequently, he is preparing to undertake further combat to rid several local party organizations of every last vestige of hot-eyed radicalism.

The Washington governor has a meticulous card file which pin points the "rigid conservatives" wherever they are — right down to the precinct level. Within a few months, the pressure to oust them all from party posts will begin in dead earnest.

The clear intent is to pave the way for the selection in 1968 of a balanced, flexible Washington delegation to the convention which will name the next Republican presidential nominee. Washington's 1964 delegation, pre-Evans, was heavily larded with starchy, rule-or-ruin conservatives.

In Iowa, whose delegation went for Goldwater by just 14 to 10, the rigid types are not as severe a problem. But, says a party official, "there will be some informal attention paid to this matter after the 1966 elections are behind us."

Efforts there probably will be limited mostly to two or three congressional districts where the most militant elements showed themselves in 1964 and after. Since the active ones are widely known and not too numerous, no careful card file is deemed necessary in Iowa.

Minnesota, under much narrower moderate control than Iowa, will have a far more difficult time trying to eliminate energetic arch-conservatives from the roster of potential delegates. The intra-party struggle there is a running fight that never seems to end.

A knowledgeable Illinois Republican figure looks at the 1968 delegate shape-up somewhat differently. He expects a handful of the strong 1964 Goldwater delegates to drop from the scene voluntarily. A large proportion of the remainder he describes as nearly "professional delegates" who served in pre-1964 conventions and will want to go again.

From these, he expects in 1968 a softer and more flexible — though still markedly conservative — line. He finds their earlier rigidity diminished.

Goldwater's most effective delegate hustler, F. Clifton White of New York, argued in a recent conversation with newsmen that many Goldwater delegates will prove to be much less rigid and much more attuned to the idea of winning elections if they make it to the next convention.

White seems to be at distinct odds with his old boss on this point, and on the further contention that a surprisingly large number of Goldwater delegates, like the handful mentioned in Illinois, simply will not try again.

Some lost their taste for politics when their hero plunged to defeat in 1964. Some do not occupy the kind of party position demanded as a prelude to delegate status in their states. Some found convention duty aggravating and uncomfortable. A California woman, remembering long hours sitting jammed between two fat men — hours sustained by food, says vehemently: "Never again!"

White says, therefore, that it may be quite misleading this time to rely on the old percentage figure for "repeat delegates" — usually 45 to 50 per cent of newcomers may be very cent of the total. The proportion high, possibly higher than the

"During the past twelve months, the course of American economic policy has been hard to discover," says Hartke in the first of a series of bare-knuckled analyses. "Rather than being led and guided by a consistent, coordinated body of programs, the American economy has been subject to a partly uncoordinated and thoroughly uncoordinated set of non-policies.

"There is, first and foremost, the non-policy for financing the war in Viet Nam. Second, there is the non-policy for maintaining sound economic expansion without inflation. Without exception, programs in these two areas do not exist, or are in conflict with other official programs, or are self-defeating."

The administration solution for this "non-policy bungling," charges Hartke, is to pass the buck to Congress.

"A new act in what is becoming the tragic-comedy of American economic policy has begun, he asserts. "The authorities responsible for the mismanagement of our monetary economy have asked Congress to take the initiative in dealing with the results of their stewardship."

"In the last few days, the President, the secretary of the treasury, and the Federal Reserve Board have joined together to demand that Congress relieve the American economy of the high interest rate burden which these authorities — not Congress — have allowed and even fostered.

"In effect, Congress is being asked to set price controls on the price of money.

POURING IT ON — Senator Hartke is particularly scathing regarding the administrations deliberate vagueness on the cost of the steadily expanding Viet Nam war.

Although some 300,000 combat troops have been deployed in the field, thousands of ships and ships committed, and military contracts running into billions of dollars have been let, neither Congress nor the public has yet been told how much more will be needed.

"During the past year, says Hartke, "it has become apparent that the administration has worked out and is implementing a long-term military program for waging war. Yet we do not know how much money this has involved or is programmed to involve. We do know that Congress has already approved more than $14 billion in supplemental defense appropriations since the long-term military program of escalation began.

"But we do not know when the next supplemental appropriation will be requested — or how much it will amount to. And if we know so little of how much money is involved in the administration's military program, how much less do we know of where the money is to come from?

"The blunt fact is, there is no thought-out long-term program for paying for the war. Or if there is, Congress has not been informed of it.

The effect of this "non-policy" for financing the Viet Nam war, indicates Hartke, has been widespread uncertainty economic, financial, industrial, political. Every key segment of the nation has been hit.

"The barometer of this uncertainty," notes Hartke, "has been the depressed and depressing behavior of the stock market which, if this were a normal boom with inflationary overtones, should be booming too. We can afford to pay for this war. What we cannot afford is the breakdown in the policy-making process and the loss of confidence and credibility associated with it, which has characterized the financial side of our escalating Viet Nam involvement.

WHERE THE MONEY GOES — The distribution and impact of the billions of taxpayers money spent by the federal government is very uneven through out the country and in some instances may be doing more harm than good.

The bigger and richer states are getting more and more of these immense outlays, while the smaller and poorer states are steadily getting less.

In effect, the rich are getting richer and the poor poorer — when it comes to federal spending.

These are the overall conclusions of a comprehensive study shortly to be released by the Senate Subcommittee on Intergovernmental Relations, headed by Senator Edmund Muskie, D-Me. The survey analyzes the flow of six categories of federal funds — grants-in-aid, direct payments to individuals and non-profit institutions, civilian and military wages, transfer payments, civil works and military reserve expenditures, and defense and space procurement.

"The findings bear out what many of us have long suspected, said Muskie, "that the richer states are getting a proportionately greater advantage under federal expenditures in general, and defense-related expenditures in particular. Administration's "Non-Policy" Economically Blamed By Hartke for Tight Money and Stock Market Low

ROBERT ALLEN

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — Basic cause of those repeated stock market nose dives is tight money, and Senator Vance Hartke, D - Ind., puts responsibility for that squarely on the Johnson administration.

Member of the Finance Committee and a leading congressional monetary authority, Hartke caustically contends that the administration's "thoroughly uncoordinated set of non-policies" is at the root of the spreading dislocation of the national economy — soaring interest rates, sagging home construction, cutbacks in auto production, persistent inflationary trends.

"During the past twelve months, the course of American economic policy has been hard to discover," says Hartke in the first of a series of bare-knuckled analyses. "Rather than being led and guided by a consistent, coordinated body of programs, the American economy has been subject to a partly uncoordinated and thoroughly uncoordinated set of non-policies.

"There is, first and foremost, the non-policy for financing the war in Viet Nam. Second, there is the non-policy for maintaining sound economic expansion without inflation. Without exception, programs in these two areas do not exist, or are in conflict with other official programs, or are self-defeating."

The administration solution for this "non-policy bungling," charges Hartke, is to pass the buck to Congress.

"A new act in what is becoming the tragic-comedy of American economic policy has begun, he asserts. "The authorities responsible for the mismanagement of our monetary economy have asked Congress to take the initiative in dealing with the results of their stewardship."

"In the last few days, the President, the secretary of the treasury, and the Federal Reserve Board have joined together to demand that Congress relieve the American economy of the high interest rate burden which these authorities — not Congress — have allowed and even fostered.

"In effect, Congress is being asked to set price controls on the price of money.

POURING IT ON — Senator Hartke is particularly scathing regarding the administrations deliberate vagueness on the cost of the steadily expanding Viet Nam war.

Although some 300,000 combat troops have been deployed in the field, thousands of ships and ships committed, and military contracts running into billions of dollars have been let, neither Congress nor the public has yet been told how much more will be needed.

"During the past year, says Hartke, "it has become apparent that the administration has worked out and is implementing a long-term military program for waging war. Yet we do not know how much money this has involved or is programmed to involve. We do know that Congress has already approved more than $14 billion in supplemental defense appropriations since the long-term military program of escalation began.

"But we do not know when the next supplemental appropriation will be requested — or how much it will amount to. And if we know so little of how much money is involved in the administration's military program, how much less do we know of where the money is to come from?

"The blunt fact is, there is no thought-out long-term program for paying for the war. Or if there is, Congress has not been informed of it.

The effect of this "non-policy" for financing the Viet Nam war, indicates Hartke, has been widespread uncertainty economic, financial, industrial, political. Every key segment of the nation has been hit.

"The barometer of this uncertainty," notes Hartke, "has been the depressed and depressing behavior of the stock market which, if this were a normal boom with inflationary overtones, should be booming too. We can afford to pay for this war. What we cannot afford is the breakdown in the policy-making process and the loss of confidence and credibility associated with it, which has characterized the financial side of our escalating Viet Nam involvement.

WHERE THE MONEY GOES — The distribution and impact of the billions of taxpayers money spent by the federal government is very uneven through out the country and in some instances may be doing more harm than good.

The bigger and richer states are getting more and more of these immense outlays, while the smaller and poorer states are steadily getting less.

In effect, the rich are getting richer and the poor poorer — when it comes to federal spending.

These are the overall conclusions of a comprehensive study shortly to be released by the Senate Subcommittee on Intergovernmental Relations, headed by Senator Edmund Muskie, D-Me. The survey analyzes the flow of six categories of federal funds — grants-in-aid, direct payments to individuals and non-profit institutions, civilian and military wages, transfer payments, civil works and military reserve expenditures, and defense and space procurement.

"The findings bear out what many of us have long suspected, said Muskie, "that the richer states are getting a proportionately greater advantage under federal expenditures in general, and defense-related expenditures in particular. The lion's share of federal spending is in defense, space and defense-related programs. Other types

CEASE-FIRE TALK FROM THE HOTHEADS

(Chicago Tribune)

The convention of the Congress of Racial Equality in Baltimore produced some inflammatory talk and a resolution abandoning "non-violence" as a tactic in the drive for racial equality. This "new militancy" bodes ill for the future of the civil rights movement and will alienate well-wishers.

The opposite of nonviolence is, of course, violence, and if that is what C.O.R.E. leaders are promising, there could be blood in the streets in quantities that would make the riot in the Watts section of Los Angeles look tame. The police had better be ready.

The C.O.R.E. spokesman apparently priced up their new revolutionary philosophy during the recent marches in Mississippi, where firebrands who have taken over the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee began preaching "black power."

The spate of present and prospective "civil rights" legislation flowing out of Washington has done nothing to pacify the hot-heads. President Johnson was scornfully dismissed by Floyd McKissick, the new C.O.R.E. national director, as "the great white father" to whom the "Toms" address their petitions. McKissick was equally contemptuous of the Negro bourgeoisie, Negro "Ph. D.'s," the "black preachers," the "Toms," and the "establishment."

Quietly, however, he was walking away from such organizations as the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the Urban League, and Dr. Martin-Luther King's Southern Christian Leadership conference, which deny any attachment to racism in reverse. Dr. King canceled a speech at the C.O.R.E. convention, and Roy Wilkins, executive director of the N.A.A.C.P., explicitly disassociated that organization from anti-white sentiment.

Cease-Fire Is Favorite Red Weapon

By RAY CROMLEY
Washington Correspondent

For two decades, the cease-fire has been a major Communist military weapon.

A cease-fire, with the United States as a moderator, enabled Mao Tse-tung's Communists to take over China. It gave them the time and the safety from attack they needed to arm themselves with weapons the Japanese surrendered at the end of World War II.

Mao's armies were militarily weak, had few arms and little were surrendering large quantities of weapons to anyone on hand. The Chinese Communists needed a breathing spell to get those arms to their scattered troops. The cease-fire gave them that period of safety. They kept the truce only long enough to finish the retraining.

When they began to lose in Korea, the Chinese Reds called for truce talks. These talks halted the big U.S. drive north. The Chinese stalled while they built up their local forces, corrected their basic weaknesses in weapons and equipment.

This build-up meant that a resumed U.S. advance would have been much more costly. It put the United States in a weaker bargaining position, enabled Mao to put through an agreement so impotent he broke it openly and repeatedly.

HANOI USED THE LAOTIAN TALKS to strengthen its military positions.

In South Viet Nam, a cease-fire would give the Communists a free hand to recruit and train additional troops and to infiltrate more arms and men.

Most of the Communist military organization is underground. Supply routes are secret. Open inspection would be like watching the Cosa Nostra and its supply lines with no undercover men.

A cease-fire couldn't stop Viet Cong assassinations, kidnappings and other terrorist attacks now at the rate of 11,000 to 17,000 a year.

It couldn't stop Red guerrilla troops from attacking whenever they wanted. In every case, as in China, they'd claim the other side had started the firing.

The inspection teams the United States deployed in China after World War II didn't stop the Reds. Inspection teams failed in North Korea and Laos. The Control Commission in Viet Nam has set a dismal record.

There are thousands of Viet Cong pockets in South Viet Nam. Each would have to be policed with units acceptable to both sides. The Red members of each unit would bar visits to critical areas or stall them. By the time the inspectors arrived, what they sought to see would be hidden or moved.

The job would be like trying to keep track of smuggling in a state of 15 million if there were 200,000 smugglers, most of whom had a bevy of relatives, if every police smugler control team of two consisted of one policeman and one smuggler.

It staggers the imagination.

ASIAN COMMUNIST LEADERS BRAG about their cease-fire techniques. In private talks in China in World War II, some of these men were quite frank. In a war, they said, a man uses all the means at his command.

"We fight when we're winning, said one top Communist. "When things aren't going well, then we call for talks or a truce to give us time to consolidate our gains for another push later."

Hunt for Truth

BY H. L. HUNT
HELPING PEOPLE

Nearly every gigantic program for increasing the power, revenue and spending of governments in recent years has been palmed off on the people by the incessantly repeated claim that its purpose is to help people. These words seem to be regarded as a sort of "magic potion" which will dissolve all contrary argument, sound and unsound, and get the bureaucrats exactly what they want. In more instances than freedom can afford they have worked in just this way.

Whether the program is foreign aid abroad or "anti-poverty" at home, the results have become clear. Even the most vigorous defenders of these programs admit they are not doing the job they were supposed to do, that they are not really helping people who are poor or "disadvantaged" that they lead to corruption on a massive scale.

But the strangest fact of all is that even those who see this truth can think of nothing better than more programs of the same kind, as though by doubling or tripling an evil you could make it good.

The simple fact is that no one is permanently "helped" by a handout of any kind, private or governmental. At best, handouts may tide a deserving person over an emergency. When they become a way of life, they destroy his will to produce. When they are administered by government, they create a vested interest in keeping people dependent.

What "underdeveloped" foreign countries need is personal enterprise. What "disadvantaged" people in this country need is opportunity to work. Enterprise and opportunity arise in freedom, which can never be handed out by any government.

A thought for the day — Scottish essayist and historian Thomas Carlyle said: "No man who has once heartily and wholly laughed can be altogether irreclaimably bad."
