

Fizz Biz Is Big Biz in Gray County

Residents of Gray County have developed a big thirst—for soda pop, that is. As a result, the fizz biz has become big biz locally.

More pop is being consumed and more money is being spent in that direction than ever before.

In the past year, according to the latest estimate, Pampa and Gray County residents put away 571 drinks at the record rate of 317 bottles (8-ounce) per capita.

They went for the works—cola drinks, ginger ale, root beer, sparkling mixes and the wide variety of fruit pops and other beverages.

On an overall basis, some 11,349,000 bottles were consumed in the year by the local population. This was in addition to the unbotled drinks served in lunchrooms, at vending machines and the like.

By way of comparison, the figures show that total consumption locally in 1960 amounted to 7,520,000 bottles. The five-year increase was 51 percent.

It was a bigger rise than was recorded elsewhere in the United States. The average was 47 percent. In the State of Texas, it was 49 percent.

Court Averts Collision With Hearing Committee

Showdown Resolved By Appeals Panel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Committee on Un-American Activities began its hearings on antiwar activities today minutes after federal appeals court action averted a major constitutional collision on the inquiry.

The special three-judge appeals panel overruled a federal judge who had issued an order to block the hearing.

"No matter what the appeals ruling was, the committee had planned to ignore the judge's order in a basic showdown between the authority of the legislative and judicial branches of government."

The committee still is subject to judicial examination, however. Because the appeals court upheld another order by the federal judge calling for creation of a special three-judge appeals panel to rule on whether the Un-American Activities Committee was constitutionally created.

The appeals court promptly ordered a meeting of the three-judge court for Wednesday at 12:30 p.m. CST.

Will Continue Attack

"Rest assured," said ACLU attorney Arthur Kinoy, "we will move ahead with our constitutional attack on the constitutionality of the House Committee on Un-American Activities."

When the committee hearing started, all the seats in the big caucus room were filled and several hundred persons were standing in line awaiting admission.

Dozens of police were on hand in the hearing room and in the corridors.

The crowd was of mixed appearance—some middle-aged persons in regular street clothes and some long-haired youths, neatly-dressed for the most part. The crowd remained quiet during the pre-hearing waiting period.

Youth Pushes Wheelchair

One young man with a bushy mustache pushed a grandmotherly woman in a wheelchair in the line.

Acting Chairman Joe R. Pool, D-Tex., in his prepared opening statement, did not refer directly to the judge's order and he possibly did not know of its overturn minutes before.

But in a pointed reply to constitutional questions raised by Corcoran, the congressman said the committee had every right and duty to investigate subversive acts and to recommend laws to deal with them.

"Because allegations have been made that this hearing is an attempt to stifle dissent, I

PLANES MAY FLY SATURDAY

Air Strike Nears End

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It's now up to 35,400 highly independent machinists whether the nation's biggest and longest airline strike will end this weekend.

If the union runs true to its history, the members of the International Association of Machinists will approve the contract their president calls "the best ever won in one set of negotiations by any union."

IAM President P. L. Roy Siemiller, has recommended acceptance of the contract proposal, saying "airline strikers have scored a victory they can be proud of."

The rank and file vote Friday on the offer agreed to Monday by IAM and airline negotiators.

Police Catch London Killer

LONGON (UPI) — The crown formally charged John Edward Witney today with the murder of three unarmed policemen as Scotland Yard issued detailed descriptions of two more scarred and tattooed suspects in the Friday slayings. Both men were reported armed and dangerous.

Witney, 36, described only as an unemployed Londoner, was handcuffed between detectives in a locked courtroom guarded by police dogs on leashes. The arraignment lasted only two minutes and no date for his trial was announced.

Scotland Yard said the two suspects still sought were Harry Maurice Roberts, 30, who uses the names Ronald Ernest Hall or John O'Brien, and John Duddy, 38. Their detailed descriptions were given to the army of 18,000 policemen carrying out Britain's manhunt of the century.

The details were released with both an appeal and a warning to the public: "If the public sees either of these two men or knows of their whereabouts we would like them to ring their nearest police and in no circumstances to approach the men."

131-Year-Old New York Trib Reaches End

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Herald Tribune, one of the nation's great newspapers, faded into extinction Monday, becoming the fifth major New York paper to fold since World War II and the third in the past three years.

The end of the road for the 131-year-old "Trib," endowed with a rich tradition going back to the days of Horace Greeley and James Gordon Bennett, came on the 113th day of a newspaper strike precipitated by its merger with the World-Telegram and Journal-American last April.

The demise of the nationally read morning paper left the merged publishing firm with only an afternoon and Sunday newspaper, to be called the World Journal Tribune. The strike has prevented any of them from publishing.

Matt Meyer, president of the World Journal Tribune Inc., pinned the blame for the Herald Tribune's downfall on the long strike and, more specifically, on the refusal of one union to accept a compromise solution that would have enabled the new company to begin publishing.

Since the strike began, 65 to 75 per cent of the Herald Tribune's top editorial staff members are reported to have gone on to other jobs, the demise of the paper will further cut down on the number of employees maintained by the World Journal Tribune Inc.

Meyer said "the straw that broke the camel's back" was the refusal of the pressmen's union—the lone holdout of 10 newspaper unions involved in the complicated dispute—to accept Mayor John V. Lindsay's proposal for a fact-finding panel so that publication could get under way.

The "Trib" was the 10th major New York paper to fold or be absorbed by merger since the turn of the century. In the years since World War II, the Sun was the first to go, merging with the World-Telegram in 1950. The Brooklyn Eagle folded during a guild strike, the Mirror was driven out of business by the costly 1962-63 printers strike, and two afternoon papers were reduced to one by last spring's merger.

The "Trib," like the other that preceded it into extinction, was a victim of competition, mounting costs and a sharp decline in circulation caused, to a large extent, by the population shift to the suburbs.

The final and fatal blow was delivered by the strike, now in its 114th day which ties the record set by the printers dispute of three years ago for the longest newspaper strike in New York history.

Ballot Recount Runs Into Snag

A planned opening of ballot boxes used in the June 4 Democratic county judgeship runoff election was suddenly postponed late this forenoon when it was discovered the voters' list in that election was not immediately available.

District Judge Lewis M. Goodrich said the voters' list had been sent to the District Court of Civil Appeals in Amarillo for

Air Secretary Scolds Brass

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Air Force said Monday it has taken disciplinary action against three colonels and a civilian for helping to stage an unauthorized publicity stunt that ended in the death of two top pilots and the loss of a $500 million plane.

For Force Secretary Harold S. Brown, in an investigative report, charged that the ill-fated formation flight June 8 over Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., was made for the sole benefit of General Electric and without proper authorization from Washington. GE, which built engines for five planes involved, wanted to use pictures of the flight for advertising.

The crash occurred when an F104 fighter piloted by famed test pilot Joseph A. Walker collided with the $500 million 2,000-mile-an-hour XB70, one of only two such planes in existence. Walker and Air Force Maj. Carl S. Cross, flying his first combat mission in the XB70, were killed.

Brown reported that the probable cause of the collision was that Walker inadvertently caused his plane "to reach a point so near the B70 wing tip that contact was inevitable."

U.S. Jets Evade MIG's

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist MIG7 jet fighters today attacked a flight of U.S. Navy A4 Skyhawks as they were bombing a North Vietnamese supply train 20 miles northeast of Thanh Hoa, U.S. spokesmen said. The Navy fliers eluded the MIGs but were forced to end their mission.

The MIGs opened up on the Skyhawk jets about 20 miles northeast of the North Vietnamese panhandle port with 20 millimeter cannon fire.

Laden with bombs and not equipped for aerial combat, the Skyhawks "took evasive action," a spokesman said, and flew back to their 7th Fleet carrier in the South China Sea.

U.S. spokesmen announced at the same time that U.S. planes Monday mounted a near-record 133 missions over North Viet Nam and smashed a key Communist petroleum dump only four miles from the port of Haiphong.

The 133 missions were topped only by the record 139 missions flown during a raid Aug. 8.

Carrier-based Navy planes hit the fuel dump near Haiphong with 250 and 500-pound bombs, producing a fireball which rose 1,500 feet into the sky. Thick clouds of gray smoke also covered the area.

South Vietnamese authorities meanwhile announced they had cracked two Communist Viet Cong terrorist rings operating in the Saigon area. Government spokesmen said the guerrilla agents had plotted to blow up a riverfront nightclub and a police outpost.

Security police confiscated 100 blocks of TNT, four heavy Claymore fragmentation mines, radio equipment and numerous Communist documents, a spokesman said.

The popular My Phuong nightclub, target of the plotters, usually is jammed with American patrons.

Viet Cong guerrillas early today attacked a U.S. Army 1st Infantry Division command post with mortars, inflicting light damage.

The post is about 15 miles northwest of Saigon and mortar explosions could be heard in the capital. U.S. spokesmen said the Communists fired 82 rounds of 81 millimeter mortars in the attack, which lasted an hour and 45 minutes.

The infantrymen fired back with mortars, artillery and small arms.

Television in Review

By ROBERT MUSEL
 United Press International
 NEW YORK (UPI)—Anyone with half an eye or ear on the network house commercials these days knows that the coming season is intended to signal the renaissance of big time drama. What comes through less clearly for some reason is the equal drive to get action and adventure series away from the studio and out to the actual locations.

all the time. 'Rat Patrol' is filming on location in Spain. 'Iron Horse' does a lot of work on location in California and 'The Monroes' does the same in Wyoming.

In other words if ABC-TV's "The Man Who Never Was" has a script calling for the conspirators to meet in the shadow of the Coliseum in Rome the chances are the company will fly to the mighty ruin rather than taking the easy out "back projection" way out—i.e. flashing a view of the arena on a screen in the studio with the actors emoting before it.

"Originally 'Felony Squad' was going to be about the police and their domestic problems, a sort of 'Peyton Place' of the precinct station but we've changed the orientation. Now it's about crime and we go out and go after them. So the new look calls for doing a lot of shooting in warehouses, churches and offices from San Pedro to the San Fernando Valley."

Howard Duff, one of our better character actors, stopped off today on a tour to promote interest in another ABC-TV newcomer, "The Felony Squad" which, following this trend, shoots at least half of each week on location around Los Angeles.

Duff, who is married to actress Ida Lupino, takes a breezy and good-humored view of the television gamble. "Ben Alexander is the desk sergeant," he said. "You know meanwhile back at division headquarters... the conflict between Ben and I is that he goes by the book and I don't and his son, also a cop, is caught in the middle."

"I like the idea," said this veteran of radio, films and television. "You wouldn't need it for a romantic drama but for our series, and half a dozen new ones I can mention, it adds an extra ingredient—and let's face it, these days a television series needs all the help it can get to make the ratings."

Duff was director of "Camp Runamuck" last year but refuses to take all the blame for that ratings fiasco. He said he was glad "The Felony Squad" had a good strong Monday night spot (starting Sept. 12) between "Rat Patrol" and "Peyton Place" even though it is opposite Andy Griffith.

"I can think of a number of series doing what we're doing even in greater degree," he said. "The Man Who Never Was" is on location in Europe merit will behave in a more orderly fashion.

E. F. Hutton & Co. Inc. says the relatively good action in the glamor issues last week suggests that many traders do not expect a steep market decline from present levels.

Bache & Co. says the market is presently witnessing a broadening surge of wide-swinging shares that could be the signal for a belated summer rally.

Narcotics Cases Dwindle In Texas During Year

AUSTIN (UPI)—A spokesman for the Department of Public Safety said Monday the narcotics traffic in Texas is below normal for this time of year and that the credit should be given to prosecutors throughout the state.

"The addict population has dropped off about 200 below normal for this date," said the spokesman, who asked not to be identified. "It is due to the hard work of prosecutors in courts in attempting to stamp out this evil."

"In the last couple of years, I have noticed a tremendous change in the minds of the people, citizens of this state who serve on juries," he said. "They are tired of this mess and are giving stiffer sentences."

The spokesman said instead of giving minimum sentences in narcotics cases, they are giving sentences closer to the maximum.

The oldtime bigtime narcotics peddlers have all turned to other fruits of crime, because of the stiff sentences being given to narcotics peddlers. There practically is not any juvenile problem because parents have awakened to the fact children need counseling.

The spokesman said local, state and Federal peace officers are showing films, speaking to groups and "have been able to acquaint parents with the problem, who are now handling it at home."

He said 75 per cent of the Texas marijuana and narcotics comes through Mexico with the rest through Eastern and Canadian ports. He said when narcotics come from that far off, it is syndicate handled.

"In Texas, we don't have the syndicates because any prostitute or pimp you give $35 can hop a bus and go to Mexico and get the dope," he said.

Faculty Meet Before School

Pampa's 1966-67 school year is due to get a rolling start with a series of orientation meetings planned for old and new faculty members, school principals and bus drivers.

Teachers, new to the Pampa system, are to meet at 10 a.m. Aug. 26 in Robert E. Lee Junior High School with a meeting scheduled at 2 p.m. for bus drivers and substitute drivers.

All faculty members have a meeting at 10 a.m. Aug. 29 in the Lee auditorium. In the afternoon, teachers and principals will have conferences in their respective schools.

Aug. 30 has been set as enrollment date for all pupils attending schools here this year.

Regular classes start Wednesday, Aug. 31, with a Friday adjournment until Tuesday, Sept. 6 in observance of the Labor Day holiday.

Negroes Besiege Police Station

WASHINGTON (UPI)—About 300 rock-throwing Negro youths, chanting "there's gonna be trouble tonight," besieged a city police station house early today with bricks and bottles.

One policeman was injured by a flying brick. Four youths were hurt, some seriously, when police rushed the crowd and tried to disperse it.

Nine persons were arrested, five of them adults, on charges ranging from assaulting a police officer to disorderly conduct.

The disturbance in the largely Negro southeastern section of the capital was the second in as many nights.

It started shortly before 11 Monday night and was apparently triggered by the Saturday night arrest of a youthful robbery suspect.

Agriculturists Study Insects

BROWNVILLE (UPI)—The U.S. Department of Agriculture's entomological research center at Fort Brown is testing 18 types of insect control in a 10-acre tract of late cotton.

Dr. M. J. Lukefahr, head of the center, said the center received permission to grow the cotton beyond the pupov deadline of Sept. 30.

Lukefahr said the cotton will be heavily infested with insects in the next few weeks after most of the Valley cotton has been defoliated or harvested.

He said controls to be tested will include insecticides, insect virus, anti-feeding compounds, and parasites. This is the first heavy infestation attempted in the open field by the center.

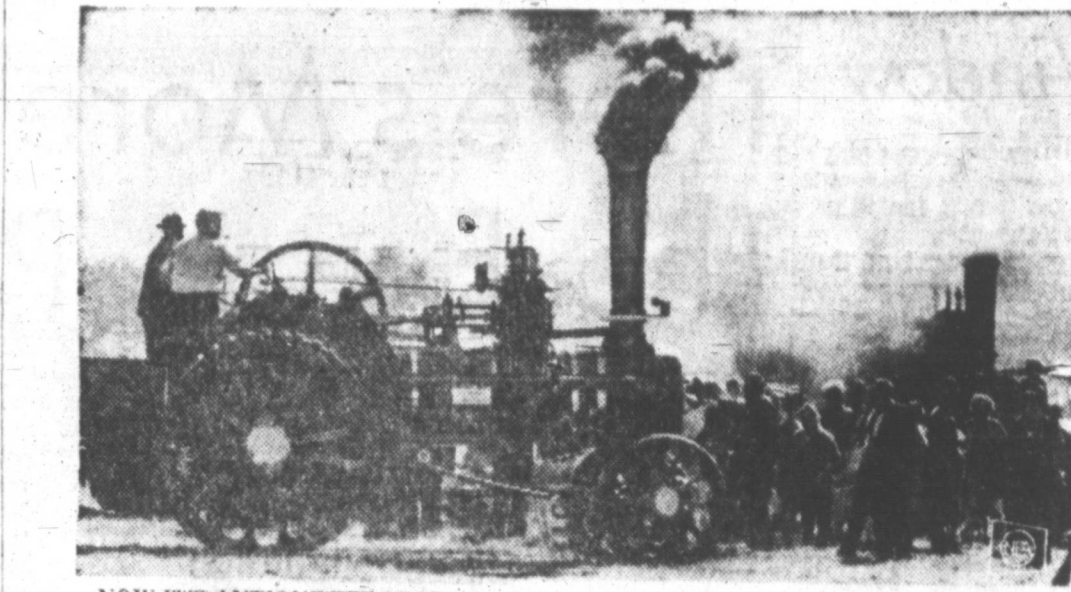

The tract is located near a river levee and was obtained on a land-use basis from the International Boundary and Water Commission.

School Trustees Announce Meeting

Discussion of current teaching positions remaining to be filled, attendance zones and enrollment information are three of a 13-item agenda scheduled for the Pampa Independent School District board of trustees' meeting.

E. E. Shelhamer, school board president, announced today that the meeting will begin at 9 a.m. Thursday in the superintendent's offices, 126 W. Francis.

Also under consideration will be milk bids for the current school year and approval of individual school units to operate cafeteria and activity accounts.

NOW IT'S ANTIQUE TRACTORS that are becoming collectors' items. The fad is becoming a big thing in England, with enthusiasts organizing clubs and holding rallies such as the one at which this vintage steam model is being put through its smoky paces.

Officials Take Tour Of Lake

City, county and chamber of commerce officials, about 28 of them, were taken on a 2 1/2-hour conducted tour of facilities of Lake Meredith, located about 38 miles northwest of Pampa, yesterday.

Mike Becker, superintendent of the National Park Service and Phil Kinsey, project engineer for the Bureau of Reclamation, official tour guides, pointed out spots of interest as the two flat-bottom boats cruised over water depths that reached down to 70 feet.

Luncheon was served on deck as the boats were moored in a grove of trees, near-Bugby.

The tour started at Salford, Yake landing, in boats provided by Ogden and Son, and continued along the Bugby shoreline into Big Blue Creek and across to Fritch Fortress, where public facilities have been completed and are now open for use.

The touring group learned that approximately 10,000 area citizens make use of the 215,000-acre lake facilities each weekend for boating, fishing, skiing and picnicing.

Fred Thompson, Pampa's representative on the CAMWA, accompanied the group. Facilities on the aqueduct line to Pampa has a target date of 1967.

Five McLean Residents Injured In Two Separate Auto Accidents

SHAMROCK — Two separate accidents, occurring within a five-minute period Monday night, injured five McLean residents, one of them seriously.

A deep scalp laceration and chest bruises were injuries to Carla Gean Martin, about 22, when her auto collided with another vehicle at the intersection of Waldron and Seventh about 7:45 p.m. last night.

She is in Shamrock General Hospital.

Melvin Ray Simpson, 16, driver of the second car, was listed in satisfactory condition with cuts and sprains. Thomas Ray Kesterson, 15, another passenger with Simpson, was released after being checked for cuts and bruises.

The second accident occurred at 7:50 p.m. 2.7 miles east of McLean on a dirt road. Nora Tarbert, driver of a pickup, was listed in satisfactory condition at Shamrock Hospital.

Carr Criticizes Employment Bill

HOUSTON (UPI)—Atty. Gen. Waggoner Carr today said proposed unemployment compensation legislation now in Congress will protect workers, cost employers more and open the way to abuses.

The Democratic nominee for U.S. Senate told Texas retail grocers at their annual convention that the bill incorporates "the worst features of HR 8282," a resolution rejected by the House Ways and Means Committee.

Carr said the current features of the bill are "an example of what can happen in Washington and Austin unless citizens keep informed and make their views known to legislative bodies."

He explained that the House committee substituted HR 15119 for House Resolution 8282, which he said destroyed a workable state-federal relationship.

The legislation now in conference committee was then changed by the senate finance committee inserting the objectionable features of HR 8282, Carr said.

He said an additional 265,000 Texas workers would be covered by the house version, but "the Senate Finance Committee dropped out about 175,000 of these."

Jammed Boat Sinks Monday

AGADIR, Morocco (UPI)—A fishing trawler jammed with women and children on a pleasure voyage sank off the coast of this Moroccan town Monday. Officials said today more than 80 persons were feared dead.

Authorities said the victims were among women and children invited aboard the local trawler fleet for a vacation cruise celebrating the Roman Catholic feast of the Assumption.

Too many turned out for the outing and were crammed aboard the trawler almost shoulder to shoulder, police said.

The name of the trawler that sank was not known immediately, but authorities said "more than 100" persons were believed on board when it went down.

By early today, five bodies had been recovered and 14 persons had been rescued and were in a local hospital.

 United Press International
 Political pressures are bearing down so hard on President Johnson as to make him step out of character in a rejection of authority and a retreat from necessity for decision. That is not like our President.

A close and admiring friend once described Johnson as power-hungry. Said the friend: "Lyndon collects power as other men collect stamps or money."
 That will stand as a generalization. But when Congress sought to pass the bill to Johnson with a vote of power to order the striking airline employees back to work, the President moved quickly to duck out of range. LBJ did not want any such power in an election year. He most especially did not want it at this time when his political promissory notes to organized labor, signed in 1964, are in default.

LBJ also is dragging his feet on an election-year decision whether to raise taxes and how to hold the wage-price line. The high cost of living (HCL) is developing into a major campaign issue. Query:
 Must the president propose a tax increase or wage and price controls in an election year or would it be safer politically and economically to postpone all such decisions until after the November elections?

Hard decisions? It is not in character for LBJ to retreat from decision-making. He is a man of decision, but not at this moment.
 Prices are going up, industrial prices, food prices, automobile prices. Milk, bread, bacon, beans, baby shoes cost more. All of this transforms the involved question of currency inflation into a simple matter of the relation between daddy's salary and what it costs now to maintain the family and to pay off the mortgage.

Anybody can understand that. The voters are catching on, fast, that something is out of whack: Their friendly Republican neighbor is assuring them that the Johnson administration is out of whack and is causing their living costs to zoom. This is not precisely accurate but it is close enough for campaign purposes.

All of this adds up to an emergency need for President Johnson to come up with plans and maneuvers to protect himself and his party in an election year against angry voters. It is no reflection on Johnson that he lumps politics with economics in approaching the questions of taxation and wage price controls. The presidency is a political office and playing politics as party leader is part of a President's job.

LBJ is good at it. He knows that his wage and price guidelines are sagging, where they have not been swept away altogether, that both war costs and protection of the dollar's purchasing power urgently invite tax action. But perhaps he can ride out the gale until after November.

That is not the way Harry S. Truman played it. Seven months after outbreak of the Korean war, Truman slapped on a wage price freeze. That came in January, 1951. The war began the previous June. Congress enacted three revenue bills in 1950-51, hiking personal and corporate taxes to World War II levels.

It is a fact, of course, that the Democrats were clobbered in the 1952 presidential election. But, as the man said, you can't win 'em all!

There's More Than Meets The Eye in Pro Dancing

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Szozy and Claire make up one of the few remaining professional dance teams in the country and may well be one of the last in a fading art.

Congressional Candidate Charges Federal Policies Cause Inflation

Federal policies are a prime cause of growing inflation, Bob Price, GOP congressional candidate, told an audience of farmers, ranchers and businessmen in Olton last night.

Price pointed to "the administration of laws and not the laws themselves as the major reason for upward price adjustments."

"The 1966 agriculture law," Price said "was basically sound and could have increased farm and ranch net income while generally holding the line on prices to the consumer. In applying the new program the Secretary of Agriculture has favored big business over the local producer and the consumer."

For about 10 minutes twice nightly and three times on Saturday, they exhibit a sensuous display of fluid motion and poetic grace.

Each movement of body and limb is rehearsed and perfected to an exacting degree, requiring constant exercise and unflagging physical stamina.

To the untrained eye, Szozy and Claire swirl effortlessly through three numbers during their act in the Casino de Paris production at the theater-restaurant of the Dunes Hotel.

They make it appear easy, but hours and years of training and lower grade foods in order to bring about lower prices.

"Proof that government controls are inflationary is seen at every hand. The food grower is earning less; the housewife is paying more; and the cost of living is advancing at the fastest rate in years. The administration must give private enterprise markets a chance to operate." Price said.

Problems Still Plague India's Independence

NEW DELHI (UPI) — India observed 19 years of independence Monday still plagued with many of the problems that frustrated its birth as a nation in 1947.

Few would say that independent India has made no progress.

Factories have sprung up. Irrigation pipes and canals stretch farther and farther from huge dam projects. Fertilizers, jute, iron and steel pour from a growing number of industrial complexes, providing direly needed employment.

Few expect that the Indian union will be rent asunder and tumble back to the days of princely states controlled by the richly swathed sultans and maharajas. But many wonder whether economic and political discontent of the impatient masses will overcome the painfully slow crawl from poverty.

Stripped to the simplest terms, India's dilemma is that its herculean efforts at development have been frustrated by an ever increasing population and a consistent failure to produce enough food.

Industrialization—begun as a crash economic policy by the country's first prime minister, the late Jawaharlal Nehru—has moved ahead with the slowness of a bullock cart, principally because so much precious foreign exchange must be spent to feed 480 million people.

Economic discontent hit a high mark only a few weeks ago. For the first time in its short history, the government of India took the advice of foreign critics and devalued the rupee.

Whether soaring prices, touched off largely by opportunists when devaluation occurred, will push India to the brink of economic disaster will be known only after the next few months of struggle.

The conflict over the northern state of Kashmir that began when India and Pakistan were partitioned in 1947 remains explosive.

It is a foregone conclusion that observers in New Delhi that should Kashmir fall, the Indian government would topple with it.

Artificial Heart Continues To Pump Life to Patient

HOUSTON (UPI) — Esperanza de la Valle Vasquez Monday moved closer to freedom from the heart pump that doctors had done a good share of the work of her natural heart.

Doctors were able to cut down slightly the load the artificial pump was doing, and to give her healing heart more of its regular load.

Mrs. Vasquez, 37, a Mexican City beautician, stayed on the normal diet. She evidently had recovered well from kidney difficulty she suffered over the weekend.

The heart pump had been reduced to a 20 per cent load Friday, but was raised to 40 per cent Saturday to increase steps.

Wine Can Help Weight Losers

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A sip of wine can help the medical patient who won't eat and the fat person who is trying to shed pounds, according to two pharmacologists.

The statement is made in a textbook written for physicians and surgeons by Dr. Chauncy D. Leake of the University of California Medical School and Dr. Milton Silverman of the California State Department of Agriculture Wine Advisory Board on the use of alcoholic beverages. The title is Alcoholic Beverages in Clinical Medicine.

"Wines — especially dry sherry and other cocktail wines — are excellent appetite stimulants for many patients who won't eat," they said. "Typical, some surgeons have claimed, is the patient who can but will not eat, who has recently lost 15 to 20 pounds and who requires major surgery within a few days or weeks."

Dr. Leake and Silverman also said wine helps obese persons stay on their reducing diets by curbing the emotional stress that sometimes accompanies their weight-reduction efforts.

They said the use of wine before bedtime has in some cases diminished insomnia, improved sleep and lowered the incidence of nightly raids on the refrigerator.

"Since the end of Prohibition, there has been a renewed and increasing appreciation of the potential clinical value of these beverages, the pharmacologists said.

ENDS WITH A BANG
BLETCHLEY, England (UPI) — A weekend piano-smashing contest here was truly a bang-up affair. Eleven persons were injured in the explosion of a bomb rigged to the piano keys by members of a rock 'n' roll group.

"It was a practical joke that went wrong," said Alan Leeson, 20. "We are desperately sorry about the consequences. We had no idea of blowing up the piano at all — just a bang to make a bit of fun."

Four of the 11 persons injured needed treatment at hospitals.

ROARING BAPTISM
GENOA, Italy (UPI) — Twenty-day-old Stefano Nones was baptized Sunday with six lions as witnesses.

His parents are both lion-tamers with the Orfei circus. The baptismal ceremony took place inside the lions cage.

Following the christening, Nones took Stefano in his arms, mounted a lioness and rode around the circus ring to the cheers of spectators.

Cover A. Whalen, New York official master for many years, was called the founder of ticker tape parades.

Dear Abby... Boys and Girls All Want Decent Mates

DEAR ABBY: My bother, who just came back from the navy, told me that he and some of his buddies were sitting around talking about what kind of girls they wanted to marry. And 9 out of 10 men said they wanted "nice, pure" girls.

But what puzzles me is this: I just finished my sophomore year at college, and some of the girls were sitting around the sorority house talking about what kind of men we wanted for husbands, and almost all the girls said they wanted an "experienced" man. This does not add up, or does it?

FRANKLY PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: Regardless of what they say, in their hearts, decent men or women prefer other decent men or women when it comes to marriage. "Experience" can mean emotional maturity, proper motivation and sureness of purpose in a man, and not necessarily "skill through practice" in the art of love-making. If it doesn't in this case, then your sorority sisters are talking clinical gibberish that would puzzle anybody, including me.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a professional man and I know that he is attractive. I handle all the arrangements. My problem is what to do about women who telephone my husband at his office on the pretense that they can't reach me at home.

My husband is a good, trustworthy man and when this happens he asks me to return the lady's call, and when I do she seems so crestfallen. I know that some women use this four-gone-get-together scheme to get next to somebody else's husband, but how does a wife combat it?

She lets her husband field the wild ones.

DEAR ABBY: How can I make my older sister realize that she is robbing herself and her husband of the joys of parenthood? They have been married for 11 years and are still childless, although I know they both love children. I am sure the problem is my sister. She is so modest she won't even have a chest X-ray taken.

Shouldn't someone talk to her about it? She is 33 and her husband is 36 and they aren't getting any younger. She keeps saying, "One of these days I may go to a doctor." What do you think?

YOUNGER SISTER

DEAR SISTER: I think that when your sister becomes sufficiently concerned and eager to have a family, she will go to a doctor with no coaching from the sidelines.

DEAR ABBY: My mother says that you are the one I should write to because if you put this in your column a lot of people might see it and change their ways.

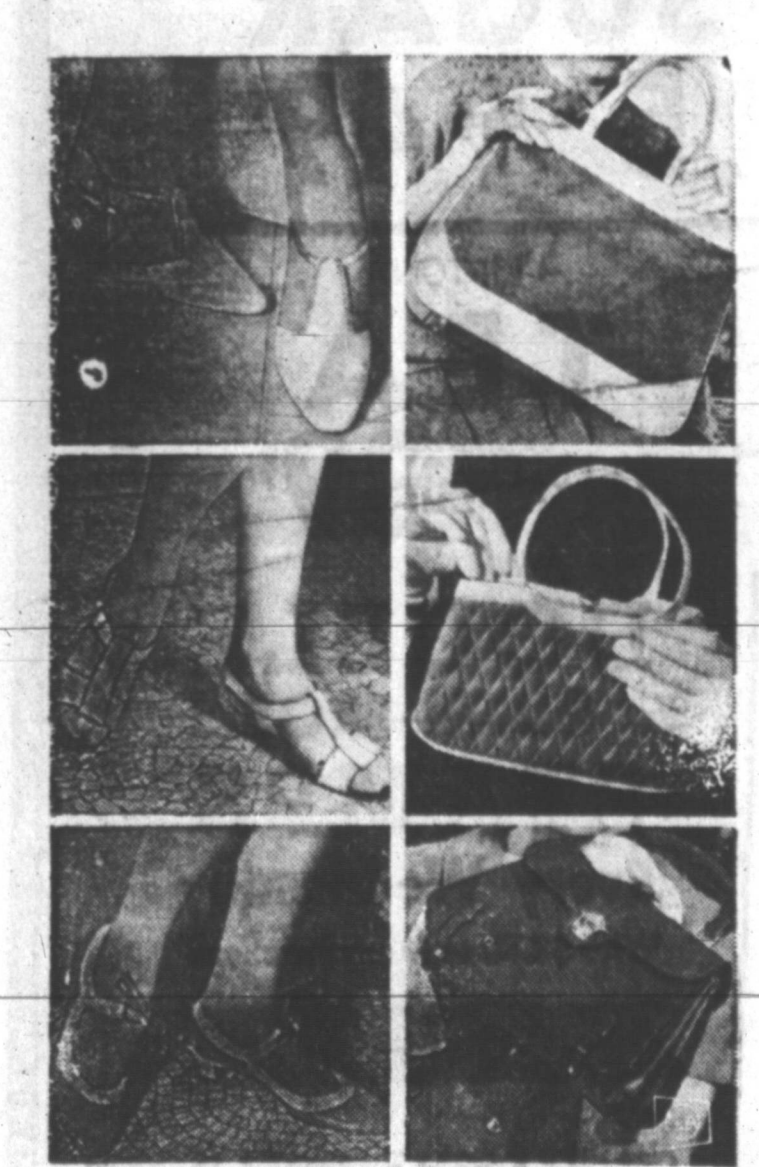

I am 12 years old. My father is a waiter in a very well-known restaurant. He has always been a waiter. Could you please tell people that when they sneak out of a restaurant without paying their check the waiter who served them has to pay it.

My father has had to pay checks for people who walked off without paying while he was in the kitchen. I think this is just terrible. Some nights my father has had to work for nothing. Thank you for printing this, if you do, and I hope you do.

This Fall School Girls Will Be Boys

By HELEN HENNESSY
Women's Editor

Newspaper Enterprise Assn. NEW YORK (NEA) — Kids have more money to spend than ever before and they're spending a bundle of it on clothes — or in some cases what parents would term a reasonable facsimile thereof.

But profitable though the teen market is, it must be a nervous business. Who knows what will rate each season as "Sam" or "dead instant" (words I'm told that translate as cool only more so)?

Every year the school crowd seems to do an enmasse about-face drastic enough to send the unwary manufacturer straight to the bankruptcy court.

Last year's girls had a faintly Victorian, so-sweet look. This year that look is as outdated as curly hair, long skirts and clothes that look like mother's. The big news now is that girls will be boys come back-to-school time. Traditional menswear styles translated into modish teen gear for campus and social occasions is this year's answer to the rebellious teenager's demand for clothes mom wouldn't DARE to wear.

THE 'GIRLS-WILL-BE-BOYS' look in teen fashions for fall is even reflected in sleepwear. Teen-ager Raynelle Heffner of Reading, Pa. (left) is garbed for a slumber party in knicker-jumpjams by Slumbertogs. Terry Ruggieri (right) shows a natty knicker outfit in plaid by Glenora with a Jackie Coogan jacket. These were among the fashions modeled by 28 teen-agers in the Ingenue Back-to-School show.

A bit of insight into their fashion thinking.

These girls liked the boy-type clothes they wore in the show. They think a girl looks "cute" and even more feminine in a slacks suit or knickers. And they particularly like the boys' ties to be worn with these ensembles. They didn't like the combat boots featured and preferred loafers.

A word to mom: she may not be a stick-in-the-mud like dad but she's not welcome on a shopping spree. The girls like to shop alone or with a friend. And they like to find young salespeople in the stores. Older people, they maintain, don't know what kids want.

Free access to the racks is also desirable with sales help given only when requested.

But parents who fear their budding young beauties may turn into strutting tomboys in the new styles can take heart.

The girls still enjoy being girls. They favor the soft look of the new party dresses in metallic prints and swirly pastel moire. When they dress up, they like pretty clothes better than chic clothes and admit they would change their style of dress for a boyfriend. Seems like nothing has basically changed.

Further evidence of a strong feminine trend was the admission hairdos rather quickly and were letting their hair grow longer. One girl told me that she got three unexpected dates when she wore her long hair-piece.

The kids don't have their parents' aversion to long hair on boys but even they draw the line somewhere. "When it comes to the shoulders, that's just too much."

If grandma will just remember her affection for slacks and saddle shoes and mom her heyday in blue jeans neither will despair when their pride and joy knots her four-in-hand. She won't be a tie-and-knicker addict for life.

As for pop — well, he can always hide behind the newspaper until the apple of his eye grows into a beautiful 20.

Collegians Look For Well-Being Plus a Living

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — Most students at Stanford and the University of California's Berkeley campus are seeking knowledge in an area where there is no formal degree issued — personal and emotional development.

Concern about the achievement of emotional well-being, of being respected and accepted, and about love and affection is rated higher than the desire to achieve wealth and intellectual-artistic values.

Researchers have reported these findings in Stanford Today, the university's quarterly magazine. A five-year study was based on lengthy 8-hour interviews with students at both northern California campuses.

Foreign Commentary

By WALTER LOGAN
United Press International
Outlook from the foreign news cables:

Thant Successor:
Mexico City is buzzing with speculation that U Thant may want a Mexican to succeed him as secretary general of the United Nations. There has not even been word that Thant would balk at another term but diplomatic sources in the Mexican capital wonder if his forthcoming visit there may be connected with his successor. Speculation centered around former President Adolfo Lopez Mateos despite his delicate health.

Secret Test:
Newsmen will not be allowed to accompany French President Charles de Gaulle when he watches France's last nuclear test explosion of the current series in the Pacific early in September. De Gaulle is expected to spend three days in the area of Mururoa Atoll and to watch the test from the deck of the French aircraft carrier Foch. Newsmen will have to stay behind in Tahiti.

Major Speech:
De Gaulle is expected to make a major speech on Viet Nam during his visit to Cambodia at the beginning of September after the atomic tests according to diplomatic sources in Paris. The sources rule out a meeting between De Gaulle and North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh. But they say De Gaulle will make another urgent appeal for a negotiated settlement of the war and neutralization of all Southeast Asia.

Malaysian Difficulties:
The settlement of the three-year undeclared war between Malaysia and Indonesia may bring Malaysia more problems than it solves. Government sources in Kuala Lumpur say the pullout of British troops expected soon is likely to hurt the Malaysian balance of payments, already beset by declining prices for goods Malaysia exports. More important, it shifts back onto the Malaysians themselves the responsibility—and cost—of defending and developing the Borneo states of Sabah and Sarak where 15,000 British troops gave a substantial boost to the economy.

Other Side Of The Coin:
Indonesia expects to end of its undeclared war with Malaysia to help solve the galloping economic crisis. Reports in Jakarta say Indonesia will now be able to divert 60 to 70 per cent of its national budget from war to rebuilding the economy. Ending the border war also will open the doors of trade with Malaysia and Singapore. And, hopefully, Indonesian authorities hope a period of peace will bring another influx of tourists to some of Indonesia's islands including world famous Bali.

Nato Ministers:
A meeting of NATO foreign ministers in Brussels in October now is considered more than likely. Originally a meeting of "the 14"—without France—was planned then to decide whether to move NATO's political headquarters from Paris. But with talks on the future role of French troops in Germany deadlocked, a full conference of NATO foreign ministers probably will be needed to break the disagreement.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI)—When we think of conservation, we usually think of campaigns to save the whooping crane, the bison and the Hawaiian nene goose.

There also is active in this country a conservationist who tries to keep old jokes from becoming extinct. He is George W. Lewis, founder of the Gagwriters Round Table, the National Humor Lobby, the Comedy Workshop, the Humor Exchange Network, the National Association of Gagwriters and the Humor Societies of America, among other groups.

On the night of Aug. 29 Lewis is promoting a humor match between two comedy teams who will compete for the Joe Miller Cup. It will be held at the Smithsonian Institution. President Johnson has been invited to throw out the first joke.

Plan Ahead
I'm telling you this so you will have plenty of time to make arrangements to be somewhere else that night. It may be the most amusing evening since the Clay-London match.

"Everybody likes an old joke," Lewis says, neglecting to add: "Some more than others." Lewis is a spiritual descendant of Joe Miller himself, who started the first gag file in 1739. He is co-author of a forthcoming book called "The Best Jokes of All Time and How to Tell Them."

If the book goes over, he plans to bring out a sequel called "Sons of the Best Jokes of All Time." It is, however, as an organizer that Lewis functions best. He is the bureaucrat of the belly laugh.

Other Action Groups
In addition to the groups already named, he operates the Comedy Development Society, the National Laugh Foundation, the Museum of Modern Wit, the Humor-Hall of Fame and the Intercollegiate Laugh League, to mention just a few.

In his spare time, he promotes Save the Pun Week, Protect the Gagwriters Month, National Laugh Week, Senior Comedians Week, Pass the Laugh Week and the National Mimicry Week.

He has formed a comedy corps, a happiness through humor. "We can no longer take a sense of humor for granted," Lewis says. "We are running out of laugh-making time. We must work at the business of making people happy by using all the resources we have at our command."

It is my feeling that if old jokes can survive all of this they will live forever.

General Denies Defense Claim

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Marine Commandant Gen. Wallace M. Greene Jr., acknowledged Monday that he recently had an off-the-record meeting in Saigon with newsmen. But he flatly denied he had told of any study indicating the Viet Nam war might require up to 750,000 U.S. troops.

While he refused to speculate on either the length of the war or the forces that will be required, the top Marine said his latest two-week visit to South Viet Nam convinced him more firmly than ever "that we can indeed win this war."

At a Monday news conference, Greene himself opened the subject of dispatches that appeared in several newspapers Aug. 8 under a Saigon dateline. These reported there were Defense Department studies indicating the war could go on eight years at present levels and might take five years if there were 750,000 American troops in the field. There now are 500,000.

The four star general said he had attended a "deep background" with some reporters in Saigon. He added: "However, I did not make any reference to any Defense Department or Joint Chiefs of Staff studies, or any other study which contains conclusions on the length of the war or the number of U.S. forces required to conduct the war. "I know of no study which draws the conclusions reported and I will not speculate on the length of the war or the force levels required to support it, I wanted to set the record straight on this."

Greene blandly refused to say whether he had speculated on the number of troops during his session with newsmen in Saigon—a session in which he was not to be revealed as the source of material used. Eventually he was named in Washington as the source involved.

Regardless of what Greene said or did not say in Saigon, the numbers of Americans in the Vietnamese wars are increasing and are expected to reach about 350,000 by the end of this year.

'Old Goats' Rally To Save Species

SALIDA, Colo. (UPI)—Few members of Teddy Roosevelt's Rough Riders remain alive, but many of the wildlife conservation ideas they established will be carried on by the International Order of the Rocky Mountain Goat.

The non-profit organization recently was incorporated—dedicated to conservation of wildlife, particularly the Rocky Mountain goat, preservation of the American way of life and promotion of good fellowship.

Headquarters is the 160-acre Elmo Bevington Ranch near 14,299-foot Mt. Shavano and the headwaters of the South Arkansas River, not far from Salida and about 130 miles southwest of Denver. The ranch, heavily forested, and complete with a well-stocked fishing lake already has had a seven-head American Bison (buffalo) herd added to it by the Goat Order. It was hoped some of the yearlings could be partially domesticated.

Membership dues are only two dollars per man and the original "old goats" who organized the order think they will be able to attract famous persons from throughout the world. Already, crooner Bing Crosby, actor Slim Pickens, and many industrial leaders are included on the rolls.

The highlight of the order's activities, aside from year-round work in conservation, is the annual "waddy" to be held at the ranch each September. The weekend on the mountain and other dairy products this fall.

would be spent "without minors, women or guns." It would exemplify the good fellowship intended and members would bring only their sleeping bags. The Order of the Goats was the brainchild of Bill Burtness of Denver. The Salida area was chosen for headquarters because it was here the first Rocky Mountain goats were released.

Among primary plans of the organization is a long range program to make Mt. Shavano and the surrounding lands a "wilderness area."

Further information on the Order can be obtained from Publisher George Oyer of the Salida Mountain Mail. Burtness said there would be no limit to growth of the group, but the board of directors will have final approval of memberships.

But each member will be expected to live by the creed of the Goat: "A society of good sportsmen who are congenial, conservation-minded and who hold to the American way of life."

"Our purpose is to encourage good fellowship among all men; promote the conservation of our wildlife (more especially the Rocky Mountain Goat) and preserve our American Heritage."

DETROIT—New automobile sales continued to slide in the first third of August, dropping 9.5 per cent from a year earlier to the slowest pace for the period in three years. Total sales were up because there was one more selling day in the period this year.

WASHINGTON—The pharmaceutical industry has received a reassuring report on birth control pills from the food and drug administration. After a fairly lengthy study, a committee set up by the administration says it has found no indication the pills are unsafe for human use. But it is continuing studies of the matter.

CHICAGO—The drought this year has driven corn prices to the highest level in a decade and many farmers say they will hold back corn for their own use. Since three-quarters of the supply goes to feed livestock, high corn prices may exert upward pressure on prices of meat, poultry, milk

Court Reverses Death Sentence

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — A federal court Monday reversed the convictions of two Negroes who have been awaiting execution in the Louisiana state penitentiary for 13 years, longest in U. S. history.

The convictions of Edgar Labat and Clifton Poret for the aggravated rape of a white woman were reversed on grounds Negroes were systematically excluded from the grand jury that indicted them and the jury that convicted them.

Labat and Poret were convicted March 23, 1953. Execution of their sentences was delayed nine times by court orders, once less than three hours before they were to be electrocuted.

The two men have been on death row longer than any prisoner in American history, longer than the famed "Red Light bandit" Caryl Chessman.

The reversal was ordered by the full U. S. 5th circuit Court of Appeals. The court heard the case and several related appeals in a hearing here last winter.

The court ordered Labat and Poret released from custody on their present conviction subject to re-indictment and retrial.

The American Revolution lasted from April 19, 1775, to Sept. 17, 1783.

Tired Jet Passengers Have No Good Excuse

By MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor

HONOLULU — The passenger has only himself to blame in these days of near-supersonic jet plane travel if he arrives at his destination feeling beat.

So maintains Paul Kendall, Pan-American World Airways' mid-Pacific public relations manager. And he knows—he logs thousands of miles each year from his headquarters in Hawaii.

Well, how does the passenger combat boredom and fatigue on long flights, we asked. Kendall's a big fellow — over six feet tall and about 200 pounds.

Here are 10 tips from Kendall based on his own experience:

1. Change the position of your seat back occasionally. Place the pillow where the seat and seatback meet, NOT in back of your head. This will shift your weight and muscle tensions.
2. Bring a book of crossword puzzles, a deck of cards, a folding cribbage board or some other easily portable game. Your seat companion, whether traveling with you or not, usually will be happy to join you in a game of skill or wits.
3. Drop a card or pencil occasionally. After you've crunched, peered and fumbled under your seat a couple of times, you'll feel much better—you've unwittingly flexed your muscles.
4. Take your shoes off — it is perfectly proper in flight — and wiggle your toes. If your feet are inclined to get cold, carry a pair of travel slippers in your flight bag and slip them on.

5. Try to sleep. Bring a sleep mask with you. When you feel drowsy, adjust your seat belt as snug as you can and still be comfortable, cover up with a blanket and put the lights out by slipping on the mask. Every minute you nap, you're 10 miles self at your destination.

6. Read. Pan Am provides a variety of magazines on all flights or bring the book you've been wanting to read, but have not found the time or chance to.

7. Write postcards — lots of them. Pan Am stewardess will give them to you and mail them (free), postmarked from the city you are visiting. Besides keeping you busy, it will give you more time to enjoy yourself at your destination.

8. Catch up on your work if traveling on business. Take advantage of the absence of telephones and other disturbing factors, and make up that long overdue expense account, speech or report.

9. Take walks. Before or after you eat, stroll to the end of the plane, rinse your hands, wash your face, comb your hair. You'll be using those muscles again.

10. Bring along a sweater in your flight bag, preferably a button-up type with long sleeves. You'll be more comfortable than in your jacket and warmer than in shirt sleeves or blouse. Prolonged inactivity in air conditioning could make one more susceptible to colds.

Kendall had a final word of advice: "Relax and enjoy the miracle of jet plane travel."

U.S. Priesthood Candidates Get Roman College Education

ROME (UPI) — William F. Berry paused with his visitor in front of a window that framed St. Peter's in the distance.

"It's been a very broadening experience," he said. "I'm very glad I came."

Berry, 28, then moved on to show the reporter the rest of the North American College, located midway up the Janiculum Hill with a commanding view of the Vatican.

The College is the Roman home of American studying for the priesthood. It was begun by Pius IX, who felt that certain number of candidates for the priesthood from every nation should be trained in Rome. Berry, of Silver Spring, Md., is one of about 300 American seminarians now here.

A tall, slender man who is prematurely balding, Berry was given the opportunity of receiving his theological training in Rome by Archbishop Patrick L. O'Boyle of Washington, D.C. In some cases, American bishops do not give the seminarians they have selected a choice, but Berry was given his.

"I had mixed emotions," said Berry. "It meant giving up many ties, but the Vatican Council was opening and I knew I would have the opportunity to travel so I accepted it on the spot."

Berry is the first to admit that life at the College is far from ascetic. Although seminarians rise early and have full schedules, they have all the comforts of home.

The new College, finished in 1953, is plush compared with the old, which was located on Via Dell'Umiltà in downtown Rome. It has a huge theatre, two bowling alleys, a library, lounges and an athletic field.

The building encloses a courtyard, in the center of which is an artificial pond and fountain.

Berry's typical day starts at 6 a.m. with prayer in the College's Chapel of the Immaculate Conception. At 6:30 he and other seminarians attend Mass, then breakfast together.

Kennedy Spurs Senate Inquiry Of City Plight

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A two-year investigation into the plight of the nation's cities was opened Monday by the Senate.

Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., stirred controversy at the outset of the inquiry with the charge that the Johnson administration had used Viet Nam war spending as an unfair pretext for reducing federal aid to cities.

The investigation by the Senate subcommittee on executive reorganization will delve into how cities have spent federal money they have received in the past, how they should best utilize future funds and how neglect contributed to racial violence in big cities.

Kennedy said the government should funnel more money to the cities from Washington, with immediate emphasis on giving jobs to slum dwellers to rebuild areas.

Other congressional news:

Airlines: Congress kept alive legislation to end the airline strike pending a decision by airline mechanics on a new contract settlement reached by their leaders with five airlines.

But, Speaker John W. McCormack suggested that the House Rules Committee sit, for the time being, on Senate-passed legislation.

Pensions: Spokesmen for the administration and organized labor testified before the Senate Finance Committee in support of a federal insurance program

Author Names Earl Warren Great American

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chief Justice Earl Warren has probably drawn more brickbats from a broader spectrum of his fellow countrymen than any American of his generation.

Because there are few issues in public life that don't eventually reach the U.S. Supreme Court, Warren's decisions in his 13 years on the bench have touched the lives of individuals in a multitude of ways.

Since his appointment by President Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1953 he had led his colleagues in the momentous school segregation decision, in rulings barring prayer and Bible-reading from public schools, requiring a reshuffle of most state legislatures, and laying down a specific rights code for criminal suspects.

If one ponders about the character and qualifications of the man who, along with the eight associate justices, created these upheavals, a book is at hand which answers a lot of questions.

Luther A. Huston, a longtime newspaperman in Washington, former bureau manager of the New York Times and a Supreme Court specialist, has written a readable biography of the Chief Justice.

The book was not written with Warren's cooperation. Huston researched it on his own, delving into family history, the chief justice's childhood and youth, and the fabulous political years in California when he was a prosecuting attorney, state attorney general and finally with some of the court's outstanding opinions.

A picture emerges which will help any citizen to understand the highest court in the land and the man who heads it.

"Warren is a product of his times and the child of a typical American heritage," Huston says. "Despite the villainous accusations of his detractors, he has not betrayed that heritage. When future historians balance his faults and his virtues and total the score, they will write Earl Warren down as one of the great Americans."

Pathway to Judgment, by Luther A. Huston, Chilton Books, Philadelphia and New York and Ambassador Books, Ltd., Toronto, Canada. $5.95.

Why Shouldn't We Agree?

(Reprinted from an earlier issue of The Pampa Daily News)

"The Pampa News is against the schools."

"If The Pampa News had its way, only rich men's kids could get an education."

"The Pampa News wants to shut down schools."

Sure, we've heard those statements just as you have. Whenever somebody says one of those things to us, we always ask him:

"Why?"

A very simple question to ask anybody who has reasoned out our editorial policy with such a show of authority.

Now, when we ask "why," we get some interesting reactions. A shrug of the shoulders. The unbelievable statement that it's just a gimmick to attract attention and increase our circulation. Or — and this is the most depressing of all — the assertion that the newspaper is run by a bunch of nuts, or beatniks or Communists or assorted loonies who run counter to the prevailing slogans and fancies of the community and therefore must be a little off.

We believe that most Americans are becoming genuinely interested in education and are beginning to realize the implications of it. Every rational, moral person does all that he can to increase his own education and improve educational opportunities for others to become educated.

We believe that the free enterprise system is the best method of giving all Americans the best opportunity of getting an education. We believe that the free enterprise system will produce the best shoes, the best machines, the best medicine, the best science and the best schools — and all at the least cost.

What is not done by free enterprise will be tried by government.

We believe the free enterprise way is the better way.

The government does not provide shoe stores, churches, supermarkets, clothing stores or automobile factories for us. But we have all of these things in abundance. No other nation enjoys so many products and services, provided by free enterprise.

Why is it not logical to assume that this same system would provide us with an abundance of schools — schools of all sizes, prices, qualities, philosophies and degrees of specialization? If the billions of dollars now being spent for government-operated schools were left in our pockets so that we could all buy the kind of voluntary education that suits us best, why is it not logical to assume that free enterprise will provide just as large a variety of schools as it offers varieties in churches and of products in the supermarket or hardware store?

If history runs true to form, under private industry, and relieved of this direct and indirect taxation for government schools, most of us could send our children to better schools and at less expense.

No system, of course, can eliminate poverty. But as free enterprise schools became more plentiful and more efficient and competitive, the cost of these schools would become less and less. And as the general economy improved there would be an ever-increasing amount of money available for scholarships in these schools. Indeed, even today many scholarships in private schools are going begging.

The Pampa News is even more interested than most in promoting education — education for ourselves and others. We want more readers, more subscribers, more advertisers. We cannot expand unless people can read. We cannot flourish unless people learn to understand what they read. Certainly, no one is more interested in education than we are.

By education we mean the process by which people are continuously developing their understanding of the laws of God and Nature and the great guides by which all things are governed and judged.

If education is freed from government control and compulsion, Americans will learn to free themselves from other forms of government control — parities subsidies, tariffs, acreage allotments and government-owned industries. Government education furthers government control, just as free enterprise education would tend to further free enterprise and individual freedom. All forms reproduce themselves. Figs do not produce thistles.

Higher Real Wages

The American true wage rate is not high enough. It will never be high enough. We are completely in accord with the unions when they say that the true or real wages of American workmen must be increased.

But we must become educated by private enterprise schools to understand that true wages are not increased by force and compulsion and make-work practices such as feather-bedding and bourses.

These things do not increase real wages. They increase costs. They make it necessary to have more money to maintain a living standard to run faster to stand still. They cheapen labor, actually, and make it a thing of faceless bargaining units rather than a matter of skill, pride of workmanship and individual relationships. They remove the workman's dignity. They enslave him. The Pampa News has no objection to any worker having an agent to bargain for him so long as he does not insist that his agent must bargain for others against their will.

We believe every adult should be permitted to work as long as he wants and at whatever rate he is willing to accept. We do not believe the employer should be forced to pay the good and the poor workman the same rate. We do not believe a union should dictate who shall be hired, at what price and under what working conditions. We do not think employers should blacklist or combine to keep a worker from working in many hours and for as high a rate as he is able to command in a free transaction with any employer.

A worker should be free to change his job with the greatest possible freedom and for whatever reason appears to him to be sufficient. He should not be able to make anyone change jobs with him. If he quits, he should not be able to force anyone to quit too.

A proper understanding of the laws which govern all activity, whether it is in the factory, the office or the university classroom, is the purpose of education.

Rather than retard this process, The News is dedicated and devoted to it, even to the extent of standing with an apparently small minority and speaking out on the unpopular side of many issues. We prize our own education so highly we solicit criticism which will show us the errors we know we commit in the course of daily publications.

It is to our selfish advantage to encourage education, to advocate higher true wages; for where there is more of everything to sell, and more people able to buy it, then we can increase our business of helping buyer and seller come together in the market.

It is to our selfish advantage to live in an economy of plenty.

We believe that more Americans will enjoy more comforts under free enterprise than under any system of government compulsion and manipulation. And therefore we favor free enterprise schools and free enterprise working conditions. They are all part of the same system, the two faces of the same coin. We do not contend that all men would become wealthy or educated under free enterprise in the school and the marketplace.

But we believe free enterprise is the only method of giving every person a chance to exercise his full talents to acquire and enjoy the wealth of the world and the mind.

White Turning Red Hot

By United Press International
If given enough sun white turns red hot.

Scientists can argue the geological consequences but the axiom also applies to baseball and could hardly be disputed there.

It is a matter of baseball fact that as the hot summer days begin to take their toll on other players, Bill White finds new life in his bat.

Like Monday night, when the Philadelphia first baseman drove in five runs with three singles to raise his once-meek batting average to a solid .291 as the Phillies walloped Chicago 11-5 and moved to within six games of idle first place Pittsburgh.

The left-handed hitting slugger has a history for having his greatest success after the All-Star break, as was the case in 1964 when he sparked the St. Louis Cardinals to a last day victory in the National League pennant race over the collapsing Phillies.

Average Has Jumped
The 32-year-old infielder was hitting a sickly .208 when Philadelphia came to New York for Memorial Day, and only .252 seven weeks ago but as the summer carried on so did White and now only Richie Allen owns a superior average among the Phillies.

In other National League games: Los Angeles edged Cincinnati 4-3 and Atlanta trimmed Houston 4-2. Pittsburgh, San Francisco, St. Louis and New York were idle. 1st ad 024s xxx 4-3.

White's first two-run single highlighted a four-run Philadelphia first inning and he brought home two more in the second when the margin was increased to 6-0. His third hit and fifth RBI came in the eighth inning while winning pitcher Chris Short (14-7) had departed in favor of Terry Fox.

Allen, Dick Groat, Johnny Briggs and Cookie Rojas had two hits apiece as the fourth place Phillies roughed up three sub pitchers for 13 safeties.

Game Delayed
The start of the Atlanta-Houston game was delayed 30 minutes when the Astros and their equipment were detained because of the airline strike.

The late start didn't slow down Atlanta veteran Eddie Mathews who singled in one run in the first inning and slammed a two run homer in the seventh to erase a 2-1 Houston advantage.

Tony Cloninger (11-7) gave up only five hits and fanned eight for the Braves. He also beat out an infield hit in the seventh before Mathews' ninth home run. Denis Menke opened the game with a double and came around to score the first run for Atlanta.

Joe Morgan's fifth homer gave the Astros a 2-1 lead in the third after Sonny Jackson's single, stolen base, a wild pitch and Rusty Staub's sacrifice fly evened the count in the first inning.

Lou Johnson's two-run homer highlighted Los Angeles' four run uprising in the fourth inning off Cincinnati loser Jim O'Toole (4-5) and helped Claude Osteen win his 13th game. Johnson socked his 10th homer after Jim Gilliam opened the inning with a single. Tommy Davis then singled, stole second and scored on Wes Parker's single. Parker went to third on Vada Pinson's wild throw trying to nail Davis at the plate and tallied on John Roseboro's squeeze bunt.

HES DOING SOMETHING RIGHT

But Boog Doesn't Know What

By United Press International
Boog Powell isn't sure what it is but he must be doing something right.

Back on May 20, the hulking, 245-pound Baltimore Oriole first baseman wasn't hitting anywhere near his weight with an anemic .180 average.

Now less than two months later, Powell is hitting .298, leading the major leagues in runs-batted-in with 92. He is also second in the American League in homers with 30.

Monday night when he hit three homers in one game for the first time in his career to give 11-inning triumph over the Boston Red Sox that continued the Oriole romp to their first modern day pennant.

Home Wins Game
Powell's second homer tied the game in the ninth inning and his third, a two-run shot in the 11th, won it as he knocked in all four Oriole runs.

What caused the change in Powell?

US Davis Cup Squad Improves

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UPI) — An already confident United States Davis cup tennis squad should be an improved one when they face Brazil in the interzone finals in October.

The deserved confidence stemmed from the Americans' relatively easy handling of Mexico in the American Zone series played over the weekend. The U.S. team swept all five matches and crowned a new star in Clark Graebner of Beechwood, Ohio.

The reason for the expected improvement is the return of Arthur Ashe from military service. The Los Angeles net ace was discharged from the Army recently but was not considered in top condition and therefore was not on the squad that faced the Mexicans.

HE'D RATHER NOT ANSWER

Bauer Doesn't Like to Think About Orioles Losing

NEW YORK (UPI) — It's a horrible thought and an impossible subject to mention in front of Hank Bauer, but what if the Baltimore Orioles should blow the pennant?

"With the lead they have, it's rather ridiculous to think about it," Bauer has thought about it, however. "And he is anything but a ridiculous man."

That thought always crosses your mind, confesses the Baltimore manager, weighing his words carefully. "I try not to think about it, though."

Fine, but what if the Orioles

"I wish I knew," Powell said simply, "because then I would have started to do it sooner."

Whatever is causing the surge, the Orioles aren't trying to figure it out—they're just enjoying it.

Elsewhere in the American League Detroit topped New York, 6-5, Chicago beat Kansas City 4-3 in 10 innings, Minnesota edged California, 5-3 and 4-3.

After Powell hit his first homer in the fourth inning, the Red Sox took a 2-1 lead in the sixth on Tony Conigliaro's two-run homer. But Powell hit his second off starter Jim Lonborg in the ninth to send the game into extra innings and then connected again off reliever John Wyatt in the 11th to decide the game. Ed Fisher got the victory in relief for the Orioles although he needed help from Dick Hall in the 11th.

Triple Highlights Inning
Jim Kaat tripled in two runs to highlight a three-run seventh inning and give Minnesota its triumph. Kaat also scattered 10 hits to boost his record to 17-9 while George Brunet suffered the loss. Harmon Killebrew hit a two-run homer for the Twins while Joe Adcock hit two solo homers for the Angels.

Don Buford singled in Al Weis with one out in the 10th inning to hand Chicago its triumph. Buford's hit off Joe Grzenda came after Weis singled and was sacrificed to second. Bob Locker pitched the final three innings to gain the victory for Chicago. Bill Skowron lined a two-run pinch homer in the seventh to tie the game 3-3 and force it into extra innings.

Norm Cash's 200th career homer highlighted a three-run fifth inning that carried Detroit to victory. Cash's two-run homer and a run-scoring single by Jim Northrup later in the inning and Ray Oyler's run-scoring single in the sixth actually did blow the pennant in the seven weeks remaining? "I ain't gonna answer that question," declared Bauer, wisely taking the Fifth.

Remote as it is, the possibility still exists that the Orioles could go into a sudden nosedive that would cost them their first pennant in modern American League history.

The specter of the 1964 Phillies always is with them. That was the year the Phils had a 6½-game lead with only twelve to play and let the whole thing slip through their fingers.

boosted the Detroit lead to 6-2. But the Tigers had to survive a three-run New York ninth inning rally that included Tom Tresh's two-run homer, Mickey Lolich, knocked out in the ninth, got the victory while Mel Stottlemyre suffered the loss.

Jim Gentile and Chuck Hinton each hit two-run homers to lead Cleveland to victory. Gentile's homer—his first in an Indian uniform—came in the fourth and Hinton's came in the fifth. Paul Casanova hit two homers to account for all three Senator runs. Sonny Siebert got the win and Mike McCormick the loss.

New Olympic Boxing Program Due in 1968

NEW YORK (UPI) — A long-range program designed to prepare United States boxers for the 1968 Olympics and rebuild U.S. international boxing prestige was announced Monday by the Amateur Athletic Union.

Dual matches with seven countries have been arranged in order to give U.S. amateurs experience in international competition and help them adjust to rules that will be in effect in the Mexico City Olympics. The first match will pit the United States against Canada, Aug. 19, in Toronto.

"The National Boxing Committee has developed a realistic program," said Col. Donald F. Hull, executive director of the AAU and a former intercollegiate boxing champion. "They plan to prepare U.S. boxers thoroughly and will avail themselves of every bit of assistance possible in coaching and leadership."

Birmingham Wants Shot At Pro Football Team

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — An application to bring a professional football team to Birmingham has been filed by ten wealthy Alabama businessmen.

The application was filed several months ago by the group, but announcement of the move was not made until Monday. Hugh Morrow Jr., a local investment broker, said the application was filed with the American Football League.

Morrow, who said the franchise would cost $7.5 million, said the issue was not actively pursued pending the outcome of the Aug. 13 game between the New York Jets and the Houston Oilers.

More than 57,000 fans turned out for the game and Morrow said the crowd "greatly impressed" the AFL and indicated Birmingham could support a pro team.

The 57,305 persons on hand set a record for the largest crowd ever to see an AFL pre-season contest. It was only 4,000 below the all-time attendance mark in the league.

Morrow said the big test for Birmingham will come Sept. 3 when the Cleveland Browns meet the Pittsburgh Steelers in a National Football League exhibition game.

Most of the 57,205 that attended the New York-Houston game were lured there by the Jets' Joe Namath, a former star quarterback at the University of Alabama.

The Browns lost their big drawing card when all-pro fullback Jim Brown retired shortly before the season began. However, more than 40,000 attended an NFL exhibition game last year between Minnesota and Dallas.

Morrow said that Birmingham is competing for one of two teams that will be allocated by both leagues within 60 days. He said the other cities in the running are Seattle, Cincinnati, New Orleans, Phoenix and Memphis.

Birmingham, with 70,000 seat Legion Field, calls itself the "Football Capital of the South" because it plays host to most of the Alabama and Auburn games. Receipts passing $300,000 a game from ticket sales alone are commonplace.

Helped by Merger

One AFL official who attended the game said the recent merger of the NFL and the AFL apparently has helped Birmingham's chances of gaining a franchise.

The official said both leagues now are respecting each other's territorial rights, a move which avoids duplication of franchises.

PETROCELLI HOSPITALIZED

BOSTON (UPI) — Shortstop Rico Petrocelli of the Boston Red Sox was hospitalized Monday for a complete physical examination and a series of tests. He was ordered to Santa Maria Hospital in Cambridge, Mass., by Dr. Thomas Tierney, club physician, after running a fever Saturday night.

Torres Tabs Cotton As Tough Opponent

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Jose Torres said today he had fought the worst ring battle of his career Monday night against Eddie Cotton and was thankful he was able to retain his light heavyweight championship by a narrow, but unanimous, decision.

Cotton won the plaudits of a sparse crowd at the Las Vegas Convention Center and felt he was the victor. Manager George Chermers went further, claiming the challenger was "jobbed" out of the championship.

"I feel good because I won with my worst fight ever," Torres said. "He gave me a bad time. I wasn't throwing my punches and I couldn't seem to get going. He hurt me with a good right to the forehead in the 11th or 12th round."

Needs More Work

Torres had hoped an outstanding win might boost his stock as a possible opponent for heavyweight champion Cassius Clay. But after the Cotton fight, he agreed he needed more work before he was ready for Clay.

Cotton, who in his 20-year ring career had become philosophical, at first was not aroused by the verdict. But after he got to his dressing room, with the cheers of the crowd of 2,860 still ringing, he began agreeing with his manager that he should have been given the victory.

Cotton, 173½, used his reach advantage of nearly four inches and his admitted boxing skill almost to pull off a major upset. Torres, who entered the ring at 173, was a 7-2 favorite and the odds were 8-5 the fight would not go 15 rounds.

Two Turning Points

There were two turning points in Torres' favor in the closely fought battle. Cotton lost a point in the 10th round for a low blow and the 40-year-old challenger ran out of steam in the final round when Torres rained punches to win the round and averted a possible defeat or draw.

Referee Nate Morgan had Torres ahead 70-67. Judge Mike Petovich had Torres leading by one point, 68-67, and Judge Ron Amos had the champion by two points, 69-67. The United Press International scorecard had Torres 70-67.

"I can't win for losing," Cotton mourned. "I thought I had him all the way. I only hope I can fight him again."

Chermers, however, more bluntly said, "I knew from the third round on that we were going to get jobbed. Cotton got paid to fight Torres, not the officials."

The Pampa Daily News

A Watchful Newspaper

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP OF TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities. We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself no more, no less. It is thus consistent with the Human Relations Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Big Ones Don't Seek Control

Those people — and there are quite a few of them, unfortunately — who think the big advertisers dictate what a newspaper prints or does not print can take a lesson from the recent blaze of publicity over automobile safety.

The Big Three of the auto industry are also the three biggest national advertisers in newspapers. They, if anyone, could bring the greatest pressure to bear on newspapers to print only news favorable to their product.

Two facts emerge from the auto safety hearings in Congress and other discussion of the same issue:

1. The newspapers, including this newspaper, printed the news as full as space and time permitted.

2. The auto manufacturers made no attempt to get the newspapers, again including this newspaper, to "play down" or suppress the news unfavorable to their cars.

The same holds true, locally, for the automobile dealers. We have not received a single "suggestion," threat or even hint that the manufacturers or dealers would use their substantial advertising budgets as a club to suppress the debate on auto safety.

Which proves, once again, that it's the two-bit advertiser who thinks he buys a share in the editorial control of the newspaper when he places a $5 ad.

We can spot them the minute they come into the newsroom. They all start out the same way: "I just bought an ad in your paper. Now I'd like to have you run this news story and picture on the front page Wednesday."

They all get the same answer, too. That the news department is the sole judge of what is news and what is not; that the determination of what is to appear in the news columns is made solely on the basis of its news value.

We are not alone in applauding the auto manufacturers for their "hands off" attitude toward news play of the auto safety controversy. That the feeling is general in newsrooms around the country is indicated by an editorial in Editor & Publisher, the national newspaper trade magazine.

Here's what the E&P editor had to say:

"General Motors, Ford, Chrysler and American Motors placed first, second, third, and sixth during 1965 in amount of money spent by national advertisers in newspapers. Goodyear and Firestone placed eighth and tenth.

"During the last month all of these companies have been the target of critically unfavorable publicity emanating from a Senate committee's investigation of automobile safety. The auto manufacturers cooperated to the fullest even supplying detailed information on new cars that had come off the assembly lines with defects that had to be corrected.

"Never once, to our knowledge, was there any attempt or any hint by these manufacturers — these major newspaper advertisers — that the stories should not be reported in full or that they should receive special treatment.

"Nor to our knowledge, have there been any reprisals by these companies in reduction of advertising schedules against media (newspapers, magazines, radio or television) because of the completeness or the nature of their coverage of this story.

"Nothing could have done more to explode that old myth about advertisers' influence over the news content of newspapers (and other media) than this one episode."

Bigger Peek Into Privacy

Have you done anything you would just as soon keep to yourself? Then let's hope you can. But don't be too sure.

For the fact is that as of right now you are of sufficient interest to your government that 20 U.S. agencies and departments may have taken the time and trouble to collect some sort of information about you.

And that isn't all. The Bureau of the Budget is now preparing that National Data Center be established to assemble all this miscellaneous information, feed it into a computer and end up with a complete, it's-all-in-one dossier on you and your life for handy use by anyone who may have the "right" and the opportunity to see it.

Any way you look at it, this seems to add up to a startling invasion of privacy. And it is all the more alarming because some of the information on file about you may not have been obtained directly from you, or from undeniable facts about you, but from what other people have told government investigators about you. Now, all such second-hand information may be absolutely true and unbiased. On the other hand, it may not. Whichever it is, there it is in the big, family-sized dossier.

And since you don't know what's in the file, or who may be seeing it, you, of course, have no chance to deny or explain it.

Perhaps you are so fortunate as to have no qualms about what anyone may know about you or your affairs, regardless of who he is, what his motives are or how private the subject matter may be.

But many of us are not so lucky. We have our little secrets that we'd just as soon keep secret.

The National Data Center, by greatly increasing the availability of such personal information, could go a long way toward putting private citizens and their private lives in a grand, governmental goldfish bowl.

This proposal ought to be abandoned.

Sensing The News

A New Mood Develops

When the summer began, it seemed as though the American people had almost given up the fight for principle. The conservative cause was virtually written off as a lost cause. It was anticipated in many quarters that U. S. citizens would not rebel if Big Government decreed that they wear new iron collars and accept new regulations. But the summer is turning out different from what many of the pundits expected.

A new spirit of resistance is in the air. First of all, it is clear that the American people are getting mighty sick of demonstrators and marchers. Waves of looting and arson in Chicago, Omaha, Cleveland and other Northern cities have created a marked backlash in the North against the so-called "civil rights" movement.

Whereas community leaders a year or so ago were quick to blame Southern public officials in their handling of demonstrations, now there is understanding of the near revolution that Southern towns and cities faced. Paul Harvey, a prominent broadcaster in Chicago, recently wrote a lengthy "apology" to Southerners for his region's misunderstanding of the South's difficulties.

When the summer began, the Johnson administration thought it would not have any difficulty ramming through a bill that would make sale of one's home subject to federal regulation. But the backlash also has been felt in Congress. It has been glaringly apparent, especially in the metropolis of Chicago, that the people are not in any mood to have government officials tell them to whom they may rent or sell.

In the South, local educators are stiffening their resistance to federal "guidelines" in changing public school systems. School districts have made an honest effort to comply with the law, but they are discovering that extra-legal government regulations are impossible. It now seems that federal "guidelines" may be ignored until they can be tested in the courts.

If the voters can't immediately end the arrogance of appointive officials who are disrupting education, they can at least act at the polls in this connection, there is evidence of a boiling voter reaction to the ideas and plans of both President Johnson and Senator Robert F. Kennedy.

In Georgia, for example, the press reports a surge of anti-Great Society-New Frontier politics. With every demonstration and every instance of Johnson-Kennedy appeasement of demonstrators, the reality of a two-party South grows.

The voters also seem to be aware of the danger of the Kennedy forces who are building a power bloc of their own in Congress and governors' mansions. The Kennedy political empire seems determined to elect satellite senators and governors who will be in position to influence events in 1968 and 1972.

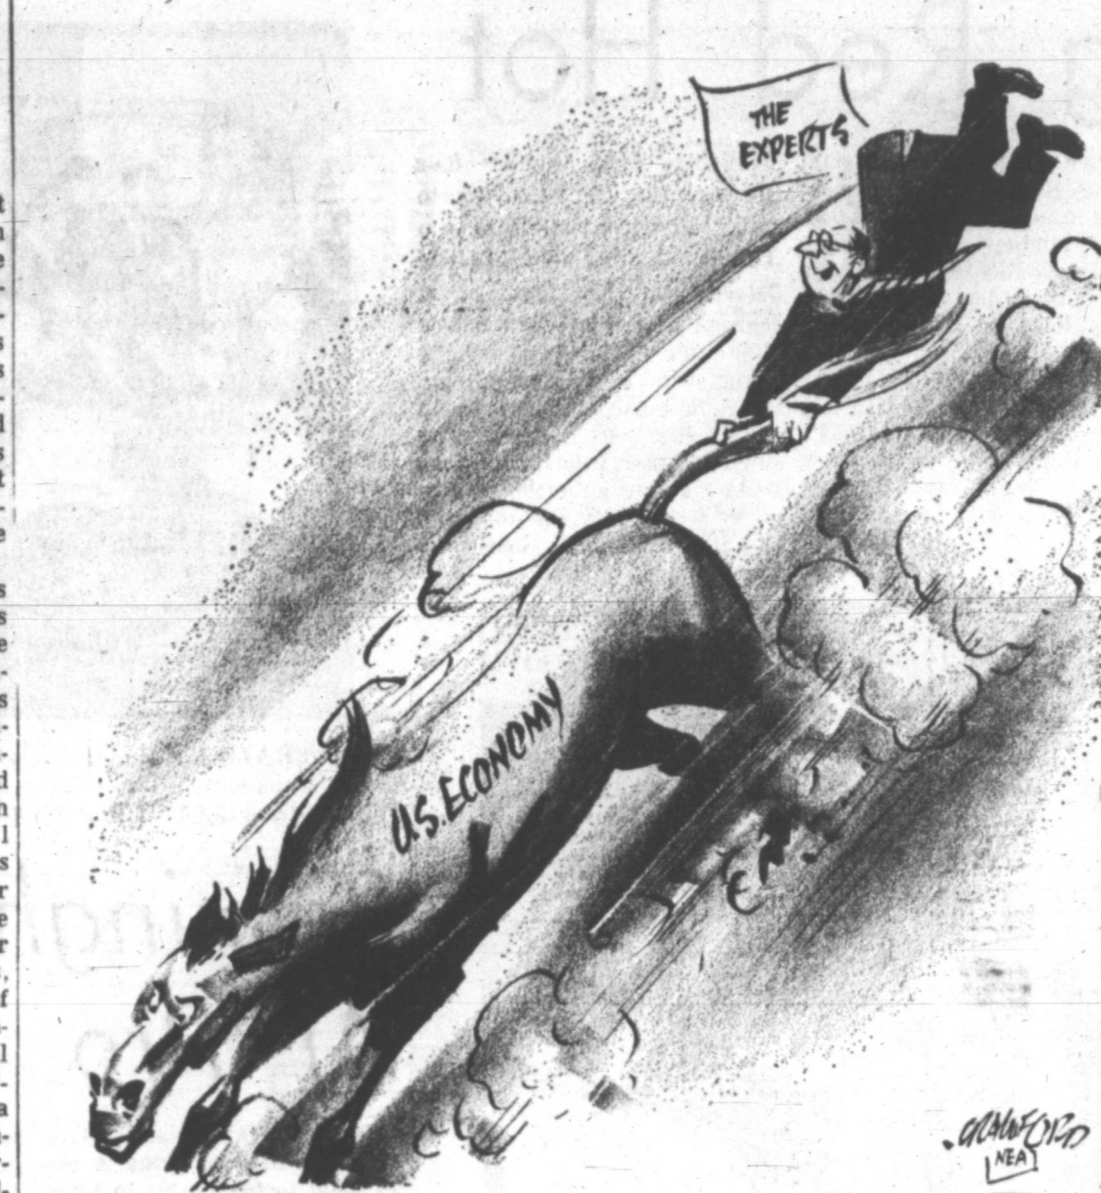

The various items of evidence that are at hand indicate the pundits were in error when they decided that conservatism had died out of the U. S. electorate with Barry Goldwater's defeat in 1964. The report of the conservative movement's demise was clearly premature.

Anyone who has studied American history should have known that a reaction to extreme liberalism was bound to occur. The American people are more steady in their judgment than they are sometimes imagined to be. The excesses of the New Deal continued for a long time. The Dealer rule of Washington was strong and hard to remove. But the day came when the American people decided that they had had enough. They elected Dwight Eisenhower in a desire for a period of stability.

It is fashionable now to scoff at the Eisenhower era. But the ordinary American who lived through the 1950s surely must now be looking back on that era as an era of good feeling. There was no revolution in the streets nor major war abroad. The Cabinet contained numerous businessmen, and inflation was under control. Americans harassed by inflation surely wouldn't mind another round of businessmen's government in the United States.

The New Frontier and the Great Society were supposed to initiate a proud new era of abundance. But today they can be seen to mark a period of bitter strife, open violence, war, and inflation. It is no wonder that one finds on the American scene this summer evidence of a new mood among the voters and a desire for a change.

State Dept. Security Memo Warns Embassies Of Stepped-Up Soviet Espionage Efforts Outside Red Countries

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — U.S. diplomats are being alerted against a new Soviet espionage drive to penetrate American embassies throughout the world.

The recent expose of attempts to plant an electronic listening device in the State Department is being cited as a graphic example of the lengths that Kremlin agents are prepared to go to obtain U.S. secrets.

A State Department security memorandum to all American ambassadors abroad warns that General Skharovskiy, chief of Soviet secret police, has ordered his operatives "to improve and step up their penetration of U.S. embassies in Western and neutral countries," as well as those behind the Iron Curtain.

"While in the past Soviet and satellite intelligence services have concentrated their espionage activities on U.S. embassies and officials in Communist countries," the State Department points out, "it now becomes apparent that their agents have instructions to intensify their efforts in Western and neutral countries."

Embassy security officers are particularly being cautioned to guard against the planting of electronic listening devices in office buildings and residences used by U.S. officials and their families.

"More than twenty U.S. embassies, including every one behind the Iron Curtain, have been bugged by Communist agents during the past five years," the memorandum states. "In several instances entire networks of listening devices were discovered installed in buildings housing U.S. diplomatic employees."

The embassies placed on the new Red espionage alert include Bonn, Rome, London, Paris, Cairo, New Delhi, Tokyo, Hong Kong and Mexico City.

In all these capitals U.S. ambassadors are being told that "special KGB intelligence units have been set up clandestinely to penetrate our diplomatic service."

NO PRIVACY — Strikingly illustrative of these latest espionage operations was the recent Soviet penetration of U.S. diplomats in a "Friendly Mediterranean country."

As related in the State Department memorandum, "British and U.S. security officers working together discovered that the mail to both diplomatic missions was being surreptitiously opened. It was subsequently learned that within the postoffice of that country a Communist cell, operating under the KGB, was responsible for this activity."

Another example of these Russian operations occurred in Hong Kong, as follows:

"A recent security investigation revealed that waste paper being removed from the U.S. Consul General's office by a private firm on a contractual basis was being delivered to a Soviet agent in that city."

In another instance in Europe, the KGB used the "love and flowers" technique to seduce a young American embassy secretary. This affair is described as follows:

"This example of Soviet technique involves a carefully documented KGB agent who carried an Austrian passport and an American Social Security card. In addition he was well equipped with names of former embassy employees.

"The agent approached an embassy employe with flowers and a greeting, ostensibly from one of her former American associates long since reassigned elsewhere. The assiduous cultivation continued, and ultimately ripened into an intimate relationship, in which the secretary admitted that she had become infatuated with her new friend.

"The further development of this successfully-launched penetration effort came to an abrupt halt when another Soviet agent defected to the West and gave American security officials details of the deep penetration of the embassy."

EXTENSIVE NETWORK — U.S. ambassadors are also being pointedly reminded that the KGB has agents in key positions in friendly governments.

The security memorandum stresses that Kim Philby, once considered as a possible head of British intelligence, was a Soviet spy he departed hurriedly for Moscow when discovered. Also that Heinz Feife, chief of West Germany's counter-espionage, was nabbed as a Moscow agent.

Almost half of Russia's 75 envoys to non-Communist countries are affiliated with the KGB or the GRU, the Soviet military intelligence service now under the direction of General Skharovskiy. The combined Moscow staff of KGB and GRU totals around 10,000. These operatives direct another 300,000 abroad.

U.S. intelligence authorities estimate that at least half of all Soviet personnel in the Washington embassy and at the United Nations are KGB agents.

Four out of five Russian diplomats in Cameroon are KGB operators; 13 out of 16 in Ethiopia are members of the GRU; and all eight in Senegal belong either to KGB or GRU.

On the recommendation of the Central Intelligence Agency, this information will be conveyed to Senegal President Leopold-Sedar Senghor when he visits Washington next month.

RED CHINESE — From the sanctuary afforded them by their embassy in Havana, the Chinese Communists also are launching an intensive campaign of treachery and subversion in the Western Hemisphere. FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover has reported this undercover development to the House Appropriations subcommittee headed by Representative John Rooney, D-N.Y. In testimony soon to be released, the veteran

The Doctor Says:

By DR. WAYNE BRANDSTADT Treatment or Surgery Can Relieve Hiatus Hernia

Q — What causes hiatus hernia and what is the treatment for it?

A — A hiatus hernia, also called diaphragmatic hernia, is an upward protrusion of the stomach through the diaphragm. It may be caused by progressive weakness of the diaphragm due to age or by obesity.

In about half of the victims there are no symptoms and the condition is discovered only when the stomach is X rayed for some unrelated complaint. In the rest of the victims the acids of the stomach in the herniated portion gain easy access to the esophagus and irritate the latter organ.

An important part of the treatment is to bring the body weight down to or slightly below the normal level. This permits the herniated stomach to slide down to its normal position more readily. A bland diet, supplemented by anti-acids and other drugs commonly used in the treatment of peptic ulcers, is helpful.

When these measures fail to give complete relief, cutting the phrenic nerve, which controls the diaphragm, usually helps. Some surgeons also cut the vagus nerve because this reduces the production of acid in the stomach. As a last resort, operative closure of the hernia itself may be necessary. This results in complete cure in about 85 per cent of cases.

Q — Last December I had a bad attack of gout. My doctor gave me Colblenamid and it hasn't bothered me since. My doctor told me to take two of the pills daily from now on. Would the gout return if I stopped taking the pills?

A — Since gout is caused by an error in your metabolism, it can be controlled but not cured. The best treatment is a combination of colchicine and probenecid and that is what you are now taking. If you discontinue the drug your attacks will surely return.

Q — Is it harmful for a man with gout to drink beer? A — Alcohol will not affect your gout but it does damage your liver unless used in moderation — not more than two or three bottles of beer a day and preferably not every day.

Q — My doctor says I have Communist hunter declared: "This new Red Chinese campaign has been greatly aided by Cuban-trained agents and provocateurs who are ranging across Latin America from Havana as members of Red Chinese trade, technological and cultural missions.

"Peiping is also being served by employees of the New China News Agency, an official government organ, which has Latin American offices in close proximity to the U.S. The FBI is not unmindful of the potential danger of Chinese Communist penetration of our own country through illegal border crossings, as well as by recruitment among persons who have strong ties to the Orient. Foremost among the targets of the latter program have been students and scientists with relatives living behind the bamboo curtain."

The Meaning Of a Promise

(Industrial News Review)

Some years ago, a book was written entitled "The Promises Men Live By." It is a primer of economics, and from cover to cover it stresses one fundamental truth—the fabric of economic life from the time of the cave-man has been built upon the integrity of men's promises to other men. Failure to keep a promise in business spells quick oblivion.

In private business, profits and promises go together. Promises to pay salaries to employees and dividends to shareholders must be kept. This is one of the reasons why private enterprise cannot compete with government. Government can always rewrite the rules to alter the value or the meaning of a promise. When one of its business enterprises suffers a loss, the burden is shifted to the taxpayers, and its counterpart in the private business sector suffers both as a taxpayer and as a competitor in an unequal contest.

Such is the case with the St. Lawrence Seaway Corp. The tolls of this government-operated waterway are inadequate, and the corporation is incurring ever-rising indebtedness. A railroad economist has said the only solution to the St. Lawrence Seaway's financial problem is higher tolls, rather than proposals to reduce the rate of interest and even eliminate interest, to forgive its bonded indebtedness or extend the period of amortization. The latter are only dodges to beguile and hoodwink those who, in good faith, not only anticipated but required that the Seaway would in fact be a self-supporting and self-liquidating investment.

In other words, the Seaway is not adhering to "The Promises Men Live By." As a government enterprise, it can alter its promises as no private business would be permitted to do or could do and survive.

Tyrants Honored How many of you remember the State Department speeches extolling and praising Nkrumah when he visited the United States a few years ago, and the twenty-one gun salute with which this robber and savage tyrant was honored? How many know that our taxpayers were forced to give him loans and grants well over $100 million since he became the usurper of all authority in Ghana in Mar., 1957, through 1964? No doubt a considerable part of this money is stashed away in Lebanon or Switzerland, and will now be used to finance his campaign to recover the power he has lost.

It is curious how our State Department and many of our religious, educational and journalistic leaders have shouted for joy when Nkrumah and other dictators of his ilk have seized power in more than two dozen African countries. We have been gleeful when the representatives of free western civilization have been thrown out of these countries, and tyrants, many of them with Communist leanings, have seized power. We have rejoiced at the so-called freedom that was being gained by country after country in Africa, when actually the considerable measure of freedom and wellbeing which the people possessed under the leadership of the Europeans was sacrificed in order that the local dictators might take over. Don't misunderstand me; I am for freedom and for independence for all colonial peoples as soon as they are ready for it; but I cannot get ecstatically happy when any country succumbs to a dictator masquerading as a liberator.

In this connection, the enthusiastic eulogies and acclaim given to Communist dictator Castro by our State Department people will be recalled, in shame we remember that he was referred to as "the George Washington of Cuba." This same great and honorable distinction was accorded to Sukarno of Indonesia by a high official of the State Department whom I heard introduce that pro-Communist dictator to an American audience. I am sick and tired of befouling the name of the founder of our country, by comparing him with Communist-thieves, murderers and savage dictators. There is not and never has been the slightest basis for comparison. George Washington was at the opposite pole in morals, statesmanship and integrity from the cheap, immoral, blustering tyrants with whom our State Department has seen fit to compare him.

Hunt for Truth

FOR ANDE AGAINST An old joke about politicians was that they were always careful to be for motherhood and against sin. Nowadays, this might be considered a "negative attitude."

We have carried our familiar American liking for "positive thinking" to truly ridiculous extremes when thoughtful citizens are angrily attacked for being "negative" totally without regard for what it is they don't like. Patriots who love their country are called "negative" because they don't love other countries as much or even more. Constitutionalists who honor and uphold our form of government are called "negative" because they oppose the undermining and destruction of the Constitution.

If the argument is to be conducted on this level, one might well say that those who would like to see our Constitution destroyed or laughed off as "outmoded" are the most "negative" of all.

But sensible Americans cannot win when public issues are discussed in this manner. They need to strike to the heart of the issue by challenging the idea that being attacked something is bad in itself. Obviously, you cannot really be for anything good unless you are also against its opposite.

You cannot be for freedom without being against tyranny. You cannot be for personal enterprise without being against socialism. You cannot be for objective law without being against law made by the sheer whim of judges.

This is so simple and obvious a truth that it should hardly need repeating. But never have Americans needed to be reminded of it more than now. If there is no evil, then there is no good and no meaning to life.
