US 60 Highway Job To Start Tomorrow

State and city engineers, representatives of the State Highway Department and Texas Department of Public Safety met with the project contractor here this forenoon to outline traffic regulations and work-stages on the widening of U.S. Hwy. 60 from Pampa's west city limits to the Carson County line.

First barricades were placed on the highway today and actual work will get underway tomorrow, according to Joe Terrill of the Amarillo firm of Gilvin-Terrill which was awarded the $1,020,850 paving contract.

Terrill said the job will be completed by July 15 of next year.

Reading said the entire project will be zoned for a maximum speed of 45 miles an hour with short portions lowered to 20 miles an hour at various construction stages where particular hazards exist.

The portion of the road open for travel will be given a tempo- (See U.S. 60, Page 3)

Texas' Labor Day Weekend Spells Death for Over 60

By United Press International
At least 66 persons met death over the long Texas Labor Day weekend.

Bloody Record Set In Nation

By United Press International
American motorists set an all-time Labor Day highway death toll during the weekend, dying in traffic accidents at the rate of one every eight minutes.

It was the fourth holiday death record to fall this year. With late reports of fatal accidents still coming in, a United Press International tabulation showed at least 623 persons were killed in highway mishaps between 6 p.m. Friday and midnight Monday.

The breakdown:
Traffic 631
Drownings 96
Planes 17
Miscellaneous 55
Total 799

California, the nation's most populous state, led the nation with 54 persons dead in traffic. Ohio counted 39 traffic victims, Michigan and Texas had 36 each, New York had 29, Illinois 27, Iowa 26 and Pennsylvania 25.

Only Alaska and New Hampshire survived the 78-hour holiday without a single traffic fatality.

The previous record for a Labor Day holiday was set only last year, when 575 persons were killed. The toll also surpassed records set earlier this year during the Fourth of July holiday (576), and Memorial Day (542).

tabulations ever recorded by United Press International. As usual, traffic was the biggest killer, 36 lives.

Homicides, with 15, was a grim runnerup. Six persons drowned and nine persons died in miscellaneous violence such as fires.

A GI on leave before being shipped to Viet Nam drowned in Lake of the Pines Labor Day. He was 26-year-old Eugene Gunn of Dallas.

The worst tragedy occurred in El Paso early Sunday when four persons in a rooming house were slaughtered. An elderly couple, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Mearse, had their throats slit. Newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. Michael Artz were shot.

The worst traffic accident was among the first to be reported. Four persons from Brownsville were killed in a two-car crash near San Benito Friday night.

The victims were Sergio N. Castaneda, 27, Linda Castaneda, 31, and their daughter Linda, 2, and Linda Rodriguez, 13.

A two-year-old girl was run over by a car in Dallas Monday. She was Lera Magdalene Hollis.

Tommy Lee Taylor, 31, fell from a truck near Hale Center and was killed.

Charles Bryant, 20, of Bedias fell asleep on a farm road and was run over and killed near New Waverly Sunday.

Two young children died in a Sunday night fire in Sherman. They were two-year-old Anthony W. Scruggs and his sister Deborah, 5.

Frankie Roxine Nixon, 35, was killed when her husband's car drove over her. Police said it was murder.

Charlie Spivey, 63, was killed in a Waco robbery Monday.

Marchers Bring Crowds But No State Officials

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—Two months, and over 400 miles after they started, a group of marchers seeking a $1.25 an hour minimum farm wage, reached the state Capitol grounds Labor Day.

But the officials they wanted to see were not there.

Just people.

The 40 who started the march in the dusty lower Rio Grande Valley town of Rio Grande City July 4 had blossomed into a throng of 10,000 Monday. They were applauded by thousands of citizens who lined the streets.

March leader Eugene Nelson, who helped organize the California grape pickers, told the crowd at the Capitol that when the march started the valley farm worker was a forgotten man.

"But never again will he be," Nelson vowed.

The purpose of the march, unfulfilled, was to meet with Gov. John Connally to ask for a special legislative session to pass a state minimum wage for farm workers.

Texas has no minimum wage law.

Connally and other state officials drove about 50 miles to meet the marchers at New Braunfels, Tex., last week.

The governor said he would not meet the marchers in Austin and refused to call a special session.

He told the marchers that (See MARCHERS, Page 3)

Role of June, Moon Confuses Dan Cupid

By DORIS E. WILSON
News Staff Writer

Cupid, that romanticist who goes around shooting arrows tipped with a love potion, is a confused fellow these days.

And it's no wonder... with scientists vying with lyricists for the role the moon should play in the lives of earthlings, and June losing its grip on the title of "marrying month."

To add perplexity to confusion, August and December are moving up as contenders for romantic happenings, which increases Cupid's working hours to almost an around-the-year profession.

Charlie Thut, county clerk and a close ally of Dan Cupid, said today June held its own this year with 46 couples in Gray County applying for license to edge out August which had only 40.

It was a different story last year, he said. August forged ahead with 47 issued licenses, while June lagged with only 44.

A sleeper month to watch, however, is December, the month of "peace on earth... goodwill toward men." In 1965, the marriage license bureau issued 40 licenses to the "Marrying Kind."

Seemingly never aware of time, place or participants, Dan Cupid is working over time in 1966 to make it a record year in the wedding business. Two hundred and forty-four licenses have been issued through Aug. 31 of this year as compared to 226 for the same period last year.

"September is starting off pretty good," Thut said. "Five have been issued up to and including Saturday."

A surprising statistic, however, in cupid's world of many surprises, is the low number of (See CUPID, Page 3)

Young Viet Cong Leads Marines Into Minefield

SAIGON (UPI)—A 14-year-old Viet Cong bomb expert promised to lead U.S. Marines to a Communist torture cave and instead lured them into a minefield he laid himself, U.S. military spokesmen reported today.

Casualties to the Marines were described as light.

Officials said the young guerrilla had laid the mine field southwest of Da Nang in an area where Marines and South Vietnamese troops Monday were battling a battalion of Communists.

During a sweep by a Marine patrol the young demolition expert was found lying in a stream breathing through a hollow reed.

Under questioning, it was learned the boy was one of the Viet Cong's key bomb experts in the region. He told the Marines about what he called a torture cave not far away.

Led Into Trap
Professing great reluctance, he agreed to lead a patrol of Marines to the cave instead he took them into the minefield.

The Marine sweep Monday netted a Communist security police official and a Viet Cong political commissar who had been hunted by South Vietnamese officials for years.

They were considered such important prisoners that South Vietnamese officials flew immediately to the battlefield to take charge of them instead of waiting for the military to deliver them to the rear as is normally done.

The security official was identified as Nguyen Deu. Vietnamese sources said he was in charge of Viet Cong security for hamlets stretching from Da Nang to Hoi An along the South China sea coast, and for a wide area inland.

The young bomb expert was apparently a graduate of one of the Viet Cong schools reported.

Assassin Kills African Premier

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (UPI)—Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd was assassinated today in Parliament by a six-foot white messenger who stabbed him repeatedly in the neck and chest with two silver daggers.

Verwoerd, who would have been 65 on Thursday, was the architect of South Africa's apartheid policy of almost total segregation of the races. He had won the enmity of Black Africa and much of the world.

His assailant was identified as Dmitri Tsafendas, a hulking six-footer of Greek-Portuguese descent who came here recently from Portuguese Mozambique.

Even as he was dragged from the chamber, Tsafendas shrieked "where is that bastard? I will get that bastard."

Shortly before the assassination, Tsafendas had refused to run an errand, saying, "I have to do something."

Verwoerd had just returned from lunch when Tsafendas approached the government bench. Verwoerd rose as if to

U.S. Leaves When V.C. Aggression Stops

By United Press International
President Johnson, in a direct reply to French President Charles de Gaulle, has made it clear U.S. forces will leave Viet Nam after—and only after—he has seen a Communist timetable for stopping aggression.

The Chief Executive, plainly irritated by the implications of the French leader's speech last week in Cambodia, hammered home at the theme during a Labor Day round of speech-making in Michigan and Ohio.

Johnson told audiences in Detroit and Lancaster, Ohio, that American troops are in Viet Nam "because aggression is there," and he declared: "Those troops will go home—and their bases will be turned over for constructive peacetime purposes—as soon as aggression stops."

"If anyone shows me the time schedule when infiltration will be halted—and the northern forces illegally in South Viet Nam withdrawn—I will lay on the table the schedule for the withdrawal of our forces from Viet Nam."

The President obviously attached great importance to the declaration. Originally he had included it in his prepared speech for Lancaster, Ohio, at the end of the day, but he decided to get on the record with it at the very outset of his trip in Detroit.

Johnson thus was underscoring previous statements by other top administration officials in replying to De Gaulle, who last week called on the United States to set a timetable for withdrawal of American forces as a first step toward peace negotiations in Viet Nam.

The Chief Executive's declaration did not represent any change in long-standing U.S. policy, but it did appear to be a shift in emphasis.

The administration regarded the De Gaulle proposals as one-sided in their emphasis on what the United States should do to bring peace to Viet Nam without any mention of what the Communists might do.

Primary Elections May Be Prediction

By United Press International
Weathering primary elections today in Nevada, North Dakota and Iowa are expected to show something of how the political winds are blowing for President Johnson's farm policies and Republican conservatism.

Other issues in the congressional and statehouse campaigns ranged from the Viet Nam war to admitted FBI wire-tapping in plush Las Vegas gambling casinos.

The contests by states are:
Iowa
William G. Murray, an economics professor, and newspaper publisher Robert K. Beck of Centerville are contending for the Republican nomination to run against Democratic Gov. Harold E. Hughes, who is opposed for nomination to a third term.

Republican Sen. Jack Miller is opposed for nomination to a second term by Oskaloosa farmer Herbert L. Hoover, a one-time conscientious objector who is a distant relative of the late former President.

Hoover is running on a platform calling for peace in Viet Nam.

History Prof. E. B. Smith opposes Iowa Secretary of State Gary Cameron for the Democratic nomination for the Senate.

North Dakota
Interest centers in the Republican primary race from the state's western district between Martin Vaaler, a member of the conservative John Birch Society, and Thomas S. Kleppe, a Bismarck banker.

Kleppe carries the endorsement of the Republican state convention, which adopted a resolution disavowing the Birch Society.

The winner between Vaaler and Kleppe will face Rep. Rolland Redlin, a Democrat, in November.

In the state's other congressional race, S. L. (Buckshot) Hofner is unopposed for the Democratic nomination, as is Rep. Mark Andrews, R-N.D.

A light vote was forecast, but observers felt it would shed some light on the popularity of

President Hints New Effort To Stymie Interest

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Johnson is considering a move to limit the sale of government securities on the open market in an effort to bring down skyrocketing interest rates.

The Chief Executive disclosed Monday that he may postpone taking advantage of the Participation Sales Act recently passed by Congress at his administration's request.

The measure would permit large private combines to purchase several billion dollars in government-owned loans. But the President's Council of Economic Advisers, now studying inflationary pressures, may classify such sales among the measures which could overheat the economy.

"We are now determining whether we should limit certain sales of government securities in our private sector in the hope that by doing so we can bring about a reduction in interest rates," Johnson said.

The President also said the administration is looking for "ways to cut down on all non-essential spending in the private and in the public sectors."

The Chief Executive did not elaborate on what methods may be used, but there have been persistent reports in Congress that he may back a move to suspend indefinitely the 7 per cent business investment tax credit.

The tax credit, first installed during the Kennedy administration to stimulate the economy, provides that businessmen may deduct from their corporate taxes up to 7 per cent of the amount they invest in new plants and equipment.

Many economists believe the credit to be a principal inflationary factor in the economy, though there is doubt that its suspension at this stage would do much to combat such a condition.

Television in Review

By RICK DU BROW
 HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — We read the network press releases:

From ABC-TV's new Western series, "The Monroes": "Tammy Locke is blonde, blue-eyed and adorable. That's interesting but not significant. What's important is that she's six years old."
 But that's not significant either.

"James Darren, star of ABC-TV's new science fiction series, 'The Time Tunnel'... has no qualms about 'going from singing to acting.'"

"And which does he do now?"
 "Executive producer-director John Newland, of ABC-TV's 'The Man Who Never Was,' filming in Vienna, Austria, and his wife, Helena, took a weekend trip to Budapest recently. Said Mrs. Newland: 'Budapest to me was a dream city on the blue Danube, and I had looked forward so much to seeing it. I found it lonely and depressing. It is gloomy, like a long rainy Sunday. Now my dream is shattered.'"

Things are tough all over. From ABC-TV, which is doing a musical version of "The Canterville Ghost": "London—early on a Sunday morning... in the village of Hollingbourne in Kent, 44 miles from London, the American ambassador to the Court of St.

James, Henry Otis (Douglas Fairbanks Jr.) arrived at the ancient castle, Canterville Hall, in a maroon Rolls-Royce limousine and was greeted by the present Lord Canterville (Sir Michael Redgrave)."

And ABC-TV's publicity staff in Europe was awed again. "Almeria, Spain — The families are coming. Two stars of ABC-TV's 'The Rat Patrol,' shooting on location here, Gary Raymond and Larry Casey, are currently searching for villas to house their wives and families. Casey's wife and infant daughter are expected momentarily from New York—depending on flight availabilities Raymond's wife and two children are expected from London."

Was that story really necessary?
 "Julie Newmar plays the title role of 'Hellow Bird,' the episode which goes into production next week on ABC-TV's 'F Troop.' Julie is seen as a blonde Indian girl who is really a white girl who had been kidnapped and raised by the Apache Indians. In the show Julie and Melody Patterson get into a hassle over the affections of Captain Parmenter (Ken Berry), so Julie, falling back on the ways of her Indian foster parents, carries him off in an elopement."

Thank you very much for that information.

Income Tax Questions, Answers

EDITOR'S NOTE: This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the Pampa office of the U. S. Internal Revenue Service and is published by The News as a public service to taxpayers.

Q—A foreign student is coming to live with us. Is there any tax deduction for us from this relationship?

A—The student generally cannot be claimed as a dependent, but you may, within limitations, be able to deduct as a charitable contribution what it costs to maintain him in your home. To qualify for this deduction, generally, he or she must be a full-time student, in the 12th or a lower school grade, not a dependent or relative of yours, and a member of your household under a written agreement between you and a tax exempt organization to which contributions are deductible.

Q—Are tax refunds automatically forwarded by the Post Office or do you have to notify IRS?

Q—Mail should be forwarded by postmaster if you have filed a change of address with him but you should also notify your IRS district office.

In past years, IRS has been unable to deliver about 250,000 refund checks annually because taxpayers couldn't be located by IRS or the post office.

Q—I went on a job interview out of town after I graduated and the company paid the cost of transportation, meals and hotel. Is that money taxable to me?

J—The reimbursement or allowance should be included as income only to the extent it exceeds your actual expenses. If all the money you received was spent on interview costs, then nothing need be included as income.

Q—My return is being audited and they are questioning the dependency exemption I claimed for my mother. What records do I need to substantiate my claim?

A—You should be able to substantiate that you provided more than one-half her total support for the year, that her taxable gross income was under $600, and that she did not file a joint return with another taxpayer for the year in question.

Q—My wife is expecting and the doctor says the baby will arrive either in late November or early December. Since the baby will be born this year we will be entitled to the $600 exemption this year. Can we start taking this exemption now for income tax withholding purposes?

A—No, you cannot. It is true that the baby can be claimed for the full $600 exemption regardless of the birth date during the year, but the exemption cannot be claimed for withholding purposes until the birth occurs.

Three states once were independent nations — Hawaii, Texas and Vermont.

'66 Rights Bill Feared to Be Hottest Issue

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate returned from a week-end holiday today for the debate on what promised to be a bruising showdown on the session's hottest issue—the 1966 civil rights bill.

Neither supporters nor opponents were predicting the outcome.

But the opposition, a coalition of Southern Democrats and Republicans, were brandishing the parliamentary minority's time-honored weapon—the filibuster—and a talkathon seemed unavoidable.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield planned to dispose of a conference committee report on the compromise foreign aid bill shortly after the Senate convened, then move to call up the House-passed rights bill.

At this point the opposition was expected to seize the floor and try to prevent the issue from reaching a vote by exercising its right to keep the floor as long as it can keep talking.

Though many opponents find the House bill unacceptable in toto, Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen and some others are mainly against its open housing provision aimed at eliminating racial discrimination in some types of housing.

This section, considered unconstitutional by Dirksen, would forbid discrimination in the sale or rental of homes in new developments or large apartment buildings, a ban estimated to affect about 40 per cent of the nation's housing. Exemptions primarily cover owner-occupied single family homes and small apartment buildings.

Upcoming Civil Rights Leader Likes To Be Where The Action Is

CHICAGO (UPI) — Robert Lucas, the greying civil rights activist who stole the thunder from Dr. Martin Luther King by leading Negro marchers into all-white suburban Cicero, likes to be where the action is.

If there's no action, he'll provide it.

If no one will go with him, he'll go it alone.

For the past 18 months, Lucas has been head of the local chapter of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE), the group which pioneered lunch counter sit-ins years ago and just this summer stepped beneath the banner of "black power."

Lucas has been branded as a "militant" and "hardliner" on civil rights, but for some he is not militant enough. In Chicago's Franklin Park, just before the march started Sunday, younger Negroes lifted taunts: "Come on, Lucas, move it out!"

In action, Lucas is soft-spoken and polite. He says "sir." He is in normal and dresses on the casual side. He wore a white short-sleeved polo shirt, open at the neck, brown dress slacks and scuffed black shoes for the tumultuous march.

He seems to be unlikely material for civil rights leadership. He has none of the easy eloquence of King or of former CORE head James Farmer; he no longer has the energy of young Stokely Carmichael.

He is 41 years old. In his youth he had athletic ability; he stands today straight and tall, but his physique somewhat shows the strain accumulated. He has worked as a mail handler in the great cavernous blockhouse known as the main Chicago post office for the past 11 years. There he earns $6,000 a year, and stretches it thin to support his wife, 10-year-old son and 18-year-old stepson, who also works in the post office.

It was Sunday's march, on behalf of open occupancy, which thrust Robert Lucas from the background to the foreground in the Chicago civil rights movement. He surprised even his supporters by rounding up 200 other persons to make the hike with him.

During the long summer of civil rights marches, Martin Luther King had promised to go into Cicero, probably the Chicago area's most racially sensitive community. But King didn't; he won a paper agreement from local civil leaders and called off all marches.

Sunday King was out of town, but Lucas was there.

"Open housing is the best issue to go for broke on, and calling off marches isn't the best way to go for broke," Lucas says. "There are 50,000 Negroes across this country."

● Marchers

education was the best solution. The marchers claimed that some workers made as little as 40 cents an hour. Those in the march ranged in age to 82-year-old Severo Benavides, who said he had worked on farms most of his life in the Rio Grande Valley. Benavides said he did not want his children to share the life he had led.

Many Signs

Hundreds of the marchers carried signs. Many were in Spanish.

"Who can live on $125 an hour—we would like to try," one said.

On the final six block hike to the capitol, Texas' senior U.S. Senator, Ralph Yarborough, joined the marchers.

He got thunderous applause. Yarborough told the crowd that the farm labor minimum wage bill in Congress will soon be pushed through the House. He said Texas needs a state minimum wage for those not covered in the federal statute.

"We need to lift Texas out of the poverty level," Yarborough said. "We have millions of people in poverty—more than any other state. The significance of the march is great for all working people. It is being watched by people all over the nation. Cheers also echoed across the street to the empty governor's mansion when a telegram of support was read from Sen. Robert Kennedy, D.N.Y.

Connally was "out of town," Texas AFL-CIO President Hank Brown, pledged organized labor's support to the farm workers.

Delegations of farm workers from Louisiana, Kansas, Colorado, California, Missouri and Connecticut joined the parade.

Nelson said the first contract with a grower in the Valley will probably be signed within the next several weeks. It would pay $1.25 an hour.

He said Cesar Chavez of Delano, Calif., secretary of the United Farm Workers organization committee, will have 15 organizers working soon in the Valley.

Rep. Henry Gonzalez of San Antonio also pledged his support. A small group of Negroes also entered the march in its final stages. They also sought higher wages and more opportunities.

The only state officials to show up, other than police, were state senators and representatives from Houston, Fort Worth and one from Dallas.

Police refused to issue a crowd estimate. But newsmen estimated 5,000 persons marched to the capitol where they were met by another 5,000.

Many of the thousands lining the streets applauding also joined in the hour long procession.

"They teach kids demolition and how to lay mines and set booby traps," said Lt. Col Van D. Bell of Miami, Fla., a Marine battalion commander.

"He is only 14 years old, but he is better than some of the Marine demolition men that we have," said Bell, an all-Navy middleweight boxing champion in 1937 and winner of the Navy Cross, the Silver Star and four Purple Hearts in Korea.

Capt. L.L. Etcho of Mahanoy City, Pa., a Marine company commander, described the youth's mine field as "one of the best laid out and camouflaged," he had ever seen.

"The Marines quickly withdrew from the minefield. South Vietnamese troops with the Marines "put the fear of God into the boy after that," one officer said. "The kid decided to come clean."

The boy confessed the story about a torture cave was a fake. And he led his captors to other mines and explosive devices he had planted as well as to several Communist caves.

Mr. Anderson was born Jan. 20, 1906, in Dalhart.

to mouth respiration other M.P.s seized Tsafendas and pinned him to the floor. Tsafendas kept striking back at Cas Greyling, a Nationalist M.P. who was sitting on his chest.

Verwoerd's wife, Betsy, was brought into the chamber after the stabbing but was led away immediately by a member of Parliament. Verwoerd, blood gushing from his throat, was rushed to a hospital where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

It was the second assassination attempt against Verwoerd. Verwoerd, prime minister since 1958, was the architect of South Africa's policy of apartheid—total separation of the races. The controversial policy had cost the nation most of its friends in the world and led indirectly to an assassination attempt on Verwoerd in 1960.

On April 9, 1960, a white farmer shot him in the face from point blank range as the prime minister stood up in the distinguished visitors box at an agricultural show. The farmer, David Pratt, later committed suicide by hanging himself with a bed sheet in a mental hospital.

Pratt had said he was "shooting the epitome of apartheid."

Verwoerd, a tall and graying South African who became one of the most controversial figures of the Western world, declared after recovering from the first assassination attempt he was saved by "divine providence."

Today the messenger, who normally would not be admitted to the floor of the House, walked onto the floor at the outset of the afternoon session and approached the prime minister who had taken his seat on the government bench.

There is no automatic line of succession in South Africa. The Federal Council of Verwoerd's ruling National Party—which includes the leaders from all the provinces—will have to meet and elect a new party leader who will become prime minister.

Eddie Lee Wells, 21, 818 E. Murphy, voluntarily surrendered to city police around 9 a.m. today following four days of freedom from facing a charge of unlawfully carrying a weapon.

He was arraigned in Justice of the Peace Nat. Lunsford's court this morning with an additional charge of escaping from custody, added to the previous charge.

Wells walked out of the county attorney's office Friday morning on the pretext of going to the rest room.

Judge Lunsford set a $1,000 bond for the escapee and a $500 bond for the unlawfully carrying a weapon charge.

Wells was placed in county jail awaiting a trial date.

Law officers are still searching for William O. Gurley, 28, of Perryton, who escaped Friday around 10:35 a.m. from city jail, where he had been booked on charges of intoxication, failure to control speed to avoid an accident and leaving the scene of an accident. The accident occurred around 8 p.m. Thursday in the 800 block of W. Brown.

MERCURY'S COUGAR, a 1967 entry, is designed to fill the personal car gap between Ford's Mustang and Thunderbird.

Big 3 Goes 'Sporty, Personal'

By BOB COCHNAR and DAVE BURGIN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
NEW YORK (NEA) — Taking advantage of the obvious consumer infatuation with the "sporty, personal car," motor-om's Big Three will introduce two more cars of that variety and restyled version of a third this fall.

It's a cat, it's a fish, it's a pal! The cat is Mercury's Cougar, a flash product designed to fill the personal car gap between the Mustang and the Thunderbird.

The fish is, of course, Plymouth's Barracuda which dred dollars higher than the Mustang.

When E. M. Estes, Chevy's general manager, announced several weeks ago that his division would have a new car he pointed out that "the Camaro is aimed at the fast-growing personal sports-type market that was pioneered by Chevrolet's Corvette in 1953 and further defined by the Corvair Monza in the 1960s."

He had a point, perhaps, since Ford's Thunderbird was introduced in 1954. But the Mustang really created the market to which Estes referred.

The Camaro, a four-seater, inch V-8. The Cougar will debut on Sept. 18.

Plymouth's new Barracuda, scheduled for mid-November introduction, bears only superficial resemblance to the current model. That big expanse of rear glass is gone, replaced by a relatively small rear window.

The car reportedly will be offered as a convertible and a "notched back" — a fancy name for a non-fastback — and the styling is very European: smooth, rounded lines; a minimum of chrome; a short rear deck.

Naturally, all three cars are equipped with GSA-suggested safety features and the options range from high-powered engines to stereo tape players.

SPINOFFS: Not to be outdone by Detroit, Renault also plans to introduce a new car in 1967 which, company spokesmen claim, is supposed to be superior to its current fine product, the R-8. And where will the first press showing be held? Not Paris, not New York but Detroit!

Ford, its corporate face still slushed with the joy of winning at LeMans, plans to spend more than $10 million on its racing program next year. That's about $4 for every car it sells in the United States. The company justifies its expenditure by saying it "learned things on the race track that enabled us to build better and safer cars."

Ralph Nader, for one, might disagree but American racing buffs are pleased.

Wheeling it

spokesmen say has been "Italianized" and new sports a vague, Ferrari-like look.

And the pal is Chevrolet's Camaro (French for pal) which, until the 11th hour, was called the Panther.

People who have seen the three cars claim their styling is startlingly similar. All have smooth, flowing lines and slight rear-fender hump-ups.

The Fish and the Pal will compete with Ford's Horse (Mustang) and therefore prices will also be competitive. Cougar, for the moment, will have no model-for-model competition and the price is several hunwill be offered as a convertible or coupe and will be built on a 108-inch wheelbase (which is also the Mustang wheelbase; the '67 Barracuda wheelbase is 106 inches). The Camaro will be introduced on Sept. 29.

Mercury's Cougar is slightly longer than the Mustang and initially will be built in only one model, a two-door hardtop.

The new car is distinguished by a long, slightly sloping hood and a short rear deck. It also has disappearing headlights which, when retracted, leave a wide, fine-barred grille broken in the center by a medallion. Basic engine is Ford's 289-cubic-inch V-8. The Cougar will debut on Sept. 18.

Miss America Pageant Begins

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI)

—Fifty pretty and popular coeds take the Miss America

pledge today, promising for a week to speak to no man — not even their fathers — unless a chaperone is present.

For the shapely and talented young lovely who wins the crown, the pledge and the chaperone will last throughout her year-long reign.

The unique promise formally opens the competition for the world's most lucrative beauty pageant. Contracts and gifts totaling $100,000 are apparently a fair price to pay for the loss of a year's privacy.

A well-trained substitute mother will be assigned to each of the contestants during formal registration ceremonies. As with every other facet of the pageant, its official opening goes over well-trod paths.

Attired in required fall ensembles that include hats and gloves, the young beauties meet their chaperones, formally sign in and are given what could be described as a pep talk by veteran pageant director Lenora S. Slaughter.

State Hit By Food Inflation

AUSTIN (UPI) — The inflationary trend that has caused nationwide concern has hit Texans' food pocketbook as much as 66 per cent harder than the rest of the country, the Bureau of Business Research said recently.

The University of Texas-sponsored bureau reported food prices rose per cent nationally, but the indexes were up by 4.6 per cent in Dallas and 4.9 per cent in Houston.

The bureau said the apparent primary cause for the Texas boost was the dairy product increases, which rose 15.2 per cent from a year earlier at Houston and 12.4 per cent in Dallas.

Although higher prices have hit hard throughout the nation, the bureau said current income is high enough to support large-volume buying of most goods and services.

"But," the report said, "purchases of homes has weakened, for home buying is usually easy enough to postpone."

"Families considering the purchase of a new home are faced with an economic paradox that has depressed the housing market in recent weeks. They find that money costs more today—interest rates are high—yet buys less."

Texas continued to ignore a national lagging trend in automobile sales.

The report on the state business situation noted that overall activity dropped 4 per cent in July, the sharpest break since last fall and the second sharpest since 1963.

"After two months of unparalleled pressure on Texas productive capacities, the let-up was seen in all the state's largest metropolitan areas," the bureau said.

AUSTIN (UPI)—Dr. Gardner Lindsey, chairman of the University of Texas psychology department, has been elected president of the American Psychological Association, the university said Saturday.

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy—(UPI)—Pope Paul VI Saturday received in private audience Msgr. Louis Joseph Rejcher, Bishop of Austin.

Dear Abby.... Adopted Persons Will Always Be Curious

DEAR ABBY: I have always thought your advice to be very sound until I read the answer you gave "Just Curious" who was adopted in her infancy, had grown up and married, and had finally tracked down her real mother. She asked you if she should go to see her real mother, and you advised her not to.

Abby, how could you? I gave my baby up for adoption 29 years ago, not because I didn't want her, but because I had no husband, and could not afford to keep her. And every day I pray that my doorbell will ring and she will be standing there.

A MOTHER

DEAR ABBY: I hope that woman who is all fired up about meeting her real mother has better luck than I had.

I, too, was adopted, and after many years of searching, I finally located my real mother, so I wrote her a letter telling her that I wanted to meet her. I also asked her to please tell me where she got the name that appeared on my birth certificate. She replied with a postcard, written in pencil: "Don't bother me. I don't know nothing."

NO LONGER CURIOUS

DEAR ABBY: The question of whether an adopted person should, out of curiosity, try to establish contact with his natural parents is one of considerable interest to me, because I did just that four years ago. And I would like to go on record as saying that it was the gravest mistake of my life.

I will not dwell on the unfortunate and ugly repercussions that followed, but your original advice to abandon the idea was indeed wise. I shall always regret having poked around in my past. Sign this

ALSO CURIOUS

DEAR ABBY: Re the letter from the woman, adopted in infancy, concerning her "real" mother: I feel that I must protest the use of the word "real" in this instance.

Just what is a "real" mother, Abby? Is she the one who conceives the child, carries it and gives birth to it? Or is she the one who nurses—the child through his first shots, teeth, and first steps? Isn't motherhood boiling bottles and folding diapers, and being available 24 hours a day to kiss away the hurt, and to listen to the stories of his small victories, defeats, disappointments and aspirations? And raising him to adulthood?

Of course, the "natural" mother shows great love for her child by giving him up to be raised in a home with a mother and father who can provide him with a good life. But out of respect for adoptive parents, and primarily to the adopted child to whom the adoptive parents are the only "reality"—let us use the proper terms. Either "natural" mother, or possibly, "biological" mother. Sincerely,

A "REAL" MOTHER

DEAR ABBY: I wish that woman who found out how to get in touch with her real mother after all those years, would tell me how she did it.

We have adopted children, and the attorney who handled the adoptions told us that there was no way for the children to locate their real parents.

Feed a Fever, Don't Starve It

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
Q—My grandmother always says, "Starve a fever, feed a cold." Is that good advice?

A—Dietitians at the University of Michigan Medical Center say, "No!" During a fever, the body cells require more food energy. Therefore, lack of food during a fever means body tissue will be burned as fuel, they explain.

Q—I don't have much appetite and really eat very little. But I take a lot of vitamins. Aren't they the same as food?

A—That's the vitamin myth. No, vitamin concentrates cannot take the place of food. They are not the same as meat, potatoes and vegetables. People who rely on them may lack protein, minerals or other nutrients. An adequate American diet should provide all the vitamins needed by the body. In case of deficiency, however, a physician is the one who should prescribe a diet supplement, not your friends or druggist. The University of Michigan dietitians advise.

School and You

By SUSAN LIGHT
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Though few children will be trooping off to a "little red schoolhouse" this month, the strains of "School Days" still bring a feeling of nostalgia to millions of Americans. Education was so much simpler in that bygone era. Today it is big business, involving over 40 million people — pupils, teachers, and administrators — and more than $40 billion a year.

Since the passage of the federal government's Elementary and the Higher Education Act, a number of industrial giants have jumped on the education band wagon, bringing the stock market with them. It appears that 1964-66 will be remembered as the year industry discovered education.

"The Shape of Education—for 1966-67," annual booklet published by a department of the National Education Association, gives an over-all view of the picture. In this booklet, Harold B. Gores, president of the Educational Facilities Laboratories, Inc., is quoted as saying "It is apparent that education will be the new growth industry, and that some of America's largest and liveliest corporations have discovered the field."

And yet, beneath the veneer of all the new instructional materials flooding the market — textbooks, programmed instructions, classroom films, audio ter, Ruth, of Shamrock shopped in Pampa Thursday and visited Mrs. Porter's mother, Mrs. C. G. Miller, and brother, Bill.

Mrs. Mary Bell Puckett is leaving Saturday for Lima, Ohio, for an extended visit with her five brothers and sisters. This will be the first time the group has been together in four years.

Mrs. Erma Tubbs left Saturday for Oklahoma City, Okla., on a fishing trip which will include a trip into Missouri.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jess Hatcher have been Mr. Hatcher's two sisters, Mrs. Clarence House of Gainsville and Mrs. Maude Shadon of Memphis. Also visiting in the Hatcher home has been Mrs. Hatcher's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Hammonds of Waco.

Center members extend sympathy to the family of Mrs. Mary Harris, a regular attendee of SC until her health failed, who died last week.

Mrs. Cockrel, new librarian at Lovett Memorial Library, stopped for a brief visit at the Center Thursday where she was introduced to those present.

Gray Ladies providing transportation included Mmes. George Benham, Chris Beverly, Jess Hatcher and A. D. Hills.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

FOR WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 7. GENERAL TENDENCIES: All kinds of disagreements can be in effect that cause a real hullabaloo in both international and personal affairs and relationships. Make sure that you are very careful to do nothing to stir up the demon in anyone and you save yourself intermittent trouble for some time to come. Keep well posted.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) — If you get into accidents easily, it is only necessary that you exercise more care, eat better meals, keep as many promises as you can. No body can expect you to do more than is humanly possible.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20) — Be careful you do not invest unwisely in any way or thing and repair whatever is repairable. Save money. Get your wardrobe improved. Any amusements, can wait for the time being. Be practical.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) — Nothing seems to go just as you want it to. So concentrate on having a good time or working on whatever you like the best. Don't get a persecution complex. Rise above all pettiness in others.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) — Keeping promises made instead of thinking your job is not as good as others will help you to get ahead instead of regressing. You have to have determination to work constructively. Get it.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Stop going around in circles with friends and try a new tack for better results for all concerned. Avoid groups that are prone to arguments and bickering. Show that you are a brilliant person, though very agreeable.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 21) — Be very diplomatic with a higher-up who is on the warpath and could take fire out on you. Make sure your credit is the best you can make it. Don't procrastinate in paying bills that are due and owing.

LIBRA (Sept. 22 to Oct. 21) — Be charming with others instead of going off on tangents and leaving important work to be done. Then get into new outlets that bring you further inspiration. Keep busy and you'll be sane.

SCORPIO (Oct. 22 to Nov. 21) — Keeping busy discharging obligations can make this a worthwhile day and night. Instead of an insignificant, difficult one, have faith in your mate. Don't misjudge reasons for his or her actions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Don't put the wrong interpretation what others are doing since they may be under pressure of some sort and it could later reflect on you. Be big: Trust your friends more and be happier.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Much work is ahead of you and if you go straight at them, you find this can be a remarkably fine day. Don't get into anything that is alien to you. Others may look at you quite askance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Be more light of spirit at this time and make sure not to say anything critical of others, but be helpful in their efforts to advance. Attend to personal affairs yourself. Don't expect others to be of great help. They are busy.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) — Show gratitude for any favors extended to you otherwise you will rouse hard feelings. Later be sure you take your time before jumping to conclusions where others are concerned. Avoid arguments.

What in the world hit Lucky Lyndon, what happened to all of that Texas magic? What goes on, anyway, in this mixed up election year? Here is a Democratic administration triumphantly chosen by '64 being kicked around in 1966 by fellow Democrats. The protesting Democrats are not obscure political malcontents, either. They are party big shots.

Former President Harry S. Truman threw a high hard one at Johnson last week. What H-T said, in effect, was: Get off it, Lyndon, and do something about high interest rates before another recession destroys all.

Johnson replied to Truman that the country was in no danger of recession or depression. Pollyanna couldn't have said it better. Meantime, Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., challenged the President's confident statement that there was no danger of recession or depression.

Selected industrial areas already have been hit by depression. Hartke snapped back at Johnson. The senator cited the home building industry, which was swooning under the burden of high interest rates until Congress voted an infusion of fresh mortgage money.

More War Funds
Adding to the bad news of a bad week for the Johnson administration was the revelation in House of Representatives debate that another $5 to $15 billion will need to be appropriated early next year to carry on the war in Southeast Asia and that a 1967 tax increase is very likely.

This bad news came from a man who knows what he is talking about — chairman George Mahon of the House Appropriations Committee, a fellow Texan no less. That chairmanship is a congressional power center.

Another big gun is shelling administration Viet Nam policies. The gun crew serving this weapon is directed by Foreign Relations Committee Chairman J. William Fulbright. A headstrong foreign relations chairman can cause presidential headaches. That is a Fulbright specialty.

British Voyagers Cross Atlantic

GALWAY, Ireland (UPI) — Two British paratroopers who rowed 3,000 miles across the Atlantic Ocean from Boston had one regret Monday, being towed the last few hundred yards.

Capt. John Ridgeway, 27, and Sgt. Charles Blyth, 26, described their journey as "an interesting way of spending the summer." It took them 92 days to make the crossing in their 22-foot open boat.

Their historic voyage that started in Massachusetts, ended Saturday night when their rowboat was spotted by the three lighthouse keepers in the Aran Isles, off the Galway coast.

Since the lighthouse keepers had not heard of the trip and the boat was just off the treacherous rocks of Inishmore Island, they called out the Galway Bay life boat, which came out and towed the rowboat the last few hundred yards.

Ridgeway said the "rescue" was unnecessary. "We could have made land without aid," he said. "Maybe they thought we were in trouble because one of us stood up in the boat. But I know we could have made it on our own."

The boat, the English Rose III and bearing the inscription, "O God the Sea is so Great and My Boat is so Small," appeared to be in as good shape as the two men.

Once ashore they underwent medical checkups and were pronounced in good health. Then a round of celebrations began, topped off when the wives of the two seamen arrived Sunday.

FRESH TROOPS
NHA TRANG, South Viet Nam (UPI) — A fresh regiment of 5,500 South Korean troops landed here Monday, swelling the number of Korean fighting men in South Viet Nam to 35,000.

The new soldiers arrived on three ships carrying 20,000 tons of equipment and munitions.

Viet Nam War Expanding Geographically

SAIGON (UPI) — While the war in Viet Nam has been escalating in intensity, it has also been spreading geographically.

Two years ago, the conflict was largely confined to South Viet Nam.

Today, the war zone can be said to include, in varying degrees, all of the countries which once were part of Indo China — namely South Viet Nam, North Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia.

Extension of the battlefield to North Viet Nam, via U.S. bombing raids, has been widely publicized. But operations in Laos and Cambodia have been, and still are, shrouded in secrecy.

Technically, both Laos and Cambodia are "neutral." The neutrality of Laos is guaranteed by an international agreement reached in Geneva in 1962. But the supposed sanctity of their borders has never been respected by North Viet Nam.

The famous "Ho Chi Minh Trail," over which North Viet Nam funnels men and supplies into the South, runs through both Laos and Cambodia. North Viet Nam also has sent combat units of up to division-strength into both Laos and Cambodia to protect the trail and, in the case of Laos, to support insurrectionary operations by Communist-led Pathet Lao forces.

The U.S. air operations have been carried out with the tacit approval of the Laotian government headed by Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma.

But Souvanna, desperately trying to maintain the legal stance of neutrality, cannot afford to admit publicly that he is receiving U.S. air support.

Let alone that he welcomes it. So U.S. forces are very close-mouthed about their operations over Laos, and officially will not even admit that American bombing raids on Communist targets in Laos have become an almost daily occurrence during the past year.

A federal excise tax of seven cents a gallon on distilled spirits led to America's historic "Whiskey Rebellion" in the 1790's.

TDPS Needs Historical Items

AUSTIN (UPI) — The Texas Department of Public Safety issued an appeal Saturday for donations of historical items of the Texas Rangers to be shown in a proposed museum.

Col. Homer Garrison, Jr., director of the DPS and chief of the Rangers, asked for persons to write him if they were interested in contributing such items as guns, knives, belts, badges, spurs or other authentic Ranger items not completely deteriorated.

"We are attempting to preserve for posterity in this museum a top-flight collection of Ranger mementos to symbolize the glorious tradition of the oldest police force on the North American continent with statewide jurisdiction," he said.

Garrison said the museum will be established at a central location at the state headquarters in Austin.

Poverty Along Texas' Border Is 'Appalling'

AUSTIN (UPI) — Texans would gag on their food if they saw the poverty among Mexican-Americans along the Mexican border, the Southwest regional director of the Office of Economic Opportunity said Wednesday.

Bill Crook, just back from a tour from Eagle Pass to El Paso, said the way of life of some people he saw was "something out of the 18th century."

"I'm still appalled by some of the things I saw out there. The way of life endured by some Mexican-American citizens here in Texas is incredible."

"It is shameful and I stupid that nearly 800,000 families—29 per cent of the population—should be hopelessly locked in poverty" in Texas.

"There are human beings existing in the border towns of Texas under conditions as indescribably cruel as can be found anywhere in the world."

Crook said a lack of separate culture and different language has resulted in a lack of communication between the Latin and Anglo American community along the border "which fosters public apathy and indifference to the plight of this minority."

He described visits to run-down shacks with outdoor plumbing and "chinks in the wall as big as your fist" in Eagle Pass, Del Rio, Alpine, Van Horn and El Paso.

A ROSY WELCOME — Miss Elaine McKay, Tyler beauty, smilingly invites folks to the Texas Rose Festival in Tyler, October 13-16.

Tyler Readies For Texas Rose Show

TYLER — Tylerites are now rushing plans for the twenty-ninth annual celebration to honor the harvest season in the largest rose-growing area in the nation.

The area is in a 35-mile circle around Tyler, and the occasion is the staging of the four days of fiesta and pageantry known as the Texas Rose Festival. The dates are Oct. 12-16.

It is usually the season when the thousands of rose bushes attain full growth and the crisp autumn nights bring out the fullest beauty and fragrance in the millions of gorgeous blooms.

Fully a third of the residents in this city of 56,000 persons work on committees—or take part in rose show, coronation, fiesta night, or parade.

Tylerites put on their most charming manners to be hosts to rosarians and political and business leaders from many states. It is a time of joyous celebration and a show window for the great rosebush growing and packaging industry. It is a time when the city's debutantes join with those of other cities in being presented at the spectacular Coronation Pageant and the Queen's Ball.

More than 25 rose-adorned floats, 25 bands and marching groups, clowns and specialty acts will take part in the colorful parade beginning at 10 a. m., Saturday, Oct. 15, which will end in a gorgeous mammoth display in Rose Stadium where 15,000 seats are available.

The visitor will see thousands of gorgeous specimen rose blooms and artistic niches at the Rose Show open Thursday, Oct. 13, in the morning through Sunday, Oct. 16, or go on sight-seeing caravans to the rose fields during this same period.

The visitor will be awed by the spectacular display of past queen's gowns, displayed on mannequins. Shown also are elaborate sequined trains, scepters, and crowns used in coronation ceremonies over the past 28 years of the Festival. This is a free display of special interest to women, and this year will be a part of the Rose Show. Ladies will also enjoy the Queen's Tea on the lawn of the Municipal Rose Garden, a scene of exquisite beauty and stateliness, or the art show of fine paintings in Rose Park on the Fairgrounds.

Other events will include the Queen's Coronation and Pageant, one of the Festival's high lights, staged in the city auditorium at 7:30 p. m. on the nights of Oct. 13 and 14.

directly involved.

It is the absence of the parties directly involved in the war that in a way underlines the propaganda value of the U.N. Viet Nam debates.

As usual, the east-west struggle will also play a major role in the debate.

Thus, observers agree that when the gavel falls on Sept. 20 opening the 21st General Assembly, the shadow of the Viet Nam war will fill the meeting hall but the substance for a fruitful debate—albeit unofficial—will still be missing.

Secretary General Thant has stated on many occasions that there could be no meaningful talks on Viet Nam without the participation of the parties

Events very popular with the public are the free Fiesta night, a musical show, staged at 7:30 p. m. in Rose Stadium on Saturday, Oct. 15 combined with a Tyler Junior College Apache football game.

There will be entertainment galore for both old and young, those enjoying frivolity or of more serious aesthetic tastes.

For a Festival program write: Tyler Chamber of Commerce; P. O. Box 390, Tyler, Texas.

Since the Festival was started in tribute to the giant rose-growing industry, upwards of 150,000 persons have been thrilled each year by the gala activities and gorgeous roses. It is the combined effort of more than 3,000 persons working for 12 months to make each festival better than the one before.

The Festival was begun in 1933 as an elaborate tribute to the rose-growing industry and, except for an interim of four war years, it has become an annual event of growing importance.

Gorgeous floats, spectacular regal coronations, mammoth rose show displays, Queen's Balls and fiestas have given the Texas Rose Festival a place among the nation's big three of rose celebrations, alongside those at Portland, Ore. and Pasadena, Calif.

More than half of the some 35,000,000 rose bushes sold annually throughout the nation have their beginnings in the productive white sandy loam within a 50-mile radius of Tyler.

Visitors are also thrilled by the breath-taking view of Tyler's Municipal Rose Garden, one of the nation's finest, with more than 27,000 bushes in over 375 varieties. The Garden's 22-acre tract is landscaped with winding graveled walks and gently sloping terraces, reflecting basins, and shimmering pools. In the park, 30,000 bushes stretch up their stems and leaves and throw out with colorful abandon a multitude of buds and blooms in gratefulness for the sun, the gentle breezes, and sweet dews.

There are at present about 200 rose growers in the Tyler area, producing annually about 15,000,000 bushes.

STANDS COLLAPSE
ANKARA, Turkey (UPI) — Thirty persons were injured Sunday when part of the wooden stands collapsed during a soccer game. Police said one of the injured was in critical condition.

INCREASE AID
WARSAW (UPI) — Wladyslaw Gomułka, leader of Poland's Communist party, said Sunday Poland plans to increase its aid to North Viet Nam.

"The peace of the world is endangered especially by the American aggression in Viet Nam," he told a crowd of 120,000 persons in Warsaw Stadium. "Nothing can justify this shameless attack on Viet Nam."

Walter Rogers Reports:

Support Is Urged For Stay-in-School Program

About this time every year make a decision that is likely to haunt them the rest of their lives. They decide not to return to school and jeopardize their futures in an age in which education is a vital prerequisite to success.

If you know of young people who, because of summer jobs that paid well, are considering staying on the job rather than returning to school—please urge them to think of the long-range future rather than short-range gains.

It is estimated that this year nearly one million young Americans will drop out of school unless they can be convinced of the advantage to themselves and their country of completing their educations. In addition to having the hardest time finding employment, the school drop-out is more likely to become trapped in a routine, low-paying job. Last hired, first fired is too often the economic tragedy that besets school drop outs.

Throughout the Nation, businessmen, trade associations and private citizens are working in active "Stay-in-School" campaigns.

In this day of technology, it is startling to see the statistics: In October, 1965, more than 10 million youths in the 16-to-18 age bracket were out of school and in the labor force—and more than 3 million lacked high school diplomas. One estimate is that by 1975, there will be some 32 million adults in the labor force—and more than 3 million lacked high school diplomas. One estimate is that by 1975, there will be some 32 million adults in the labor force who did not finish high school. Yet, in his life-time, a high school graduate can expect to earn almost twice as much as the person who quit school before finishing the eighth grade. Graduates earn almost 10 percent more than non-graduates with but one to three years of high school. So, the argument to persuade youngsters to finish high school can be put in dollars-and-cents terms.

The rapid growth of the economy has created serious shortages in some professional and technical career fields. At the same time, the need for unskilled workers has declined. Huge numbers of youngsters are dropping out of school before they get enough education to meet employers' hiring standards for anything but unskilled work. High school drop-outs had a rate of unemployment twice that of young people their own age who had gone on to finish school.

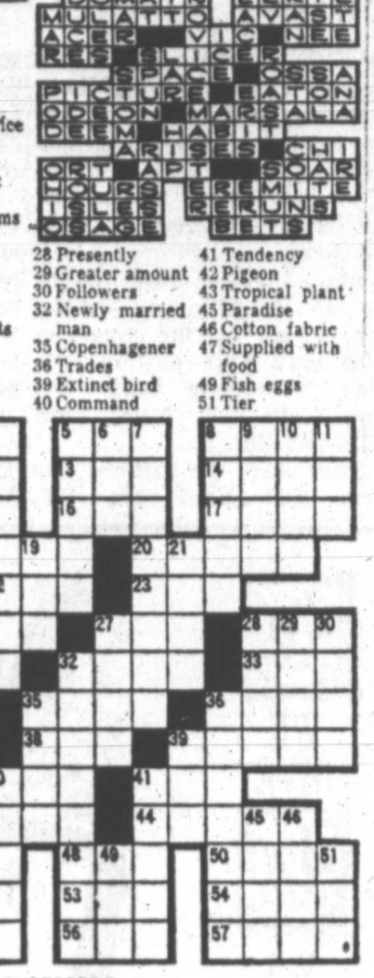

There was a day when a person could drop out of school, readily find a job, and go on to attain marked success—in his chosen field. All of us can think of examples of men who, in our own communities, have not been handicapped by the lack of formal education. But a new age had come; today's requirements in business and industry are for trained men and women, for persons with proper preparation for the work ahead. The young person who has dropped out of school may have the will to succeed, the native intelligence to do well, but his lack of a diploma—in competition with those who have finished school—prevents him from finding the opportunities he'd like. In the competition for jobs, the drop-out is the loser.

The country is the loser, too.

Foreign News Commentary

By CHET DI MAUO

United Press International
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) — The war in Viet Nam will figure prominently in the debate of the forthcoming General Assembly—but like in the previous years it will be a battle of words with no U.N. action likely.

That is the forecast of seasoned observers here who note, however, the propaganda value of the debates will not be lost on either Washington, Moscow, Peking or the rest of the world.

As in the past, the United States will defend its policy and motives in Southeast Asia, reminding its detractors that America's presence in Viet Nam is a reaction to Communist aggression.

As in the past, the Soviet Union will lead the Communist bloc in condemning so-called "imperialist" policy in Viet Nam and demand again that the United States withdraw its forces from the unbalanced land.

Possibilities Are Dim
But observers maintain there is practically no likelihood the U.N. debate will be instrumental in moving the Viet Nam war from the battlefield to the conference table.

The General Assembly debate on Viet Nam is in itself a nebulous affair. The question of Viet Nam is not on the agenda nor is there any chance of its being included for a full-fledged debate by the 117 members of the world organization.

But despite its relegation to the sidelines, the war in Viet Nam bursts into the forefront in the official U.N. debate on disarmament, the Korean question, peace-keeping operations, peaceful settlements of disputes and a number of other items of particular significance to both East and West.

There are a number of other reasons why the United Nations "unofficial" debate on Viet Nam will be stymied.

Not the least important factor is Communist North Viet Nam's repeated insistence it will not listen to any peace overtures from any quarter until the United States pulls its forces out of South Viet Nam.

Attempts Blocked
This hard line Communist policy alone pre-empts any U.N. attempts to get peace talks started. U.S. officials have repeatedly asserted they would go anywhere "tomorrow" to talk peace but they assert there never has been any positive response "from the other side."

Other factors that sap the strength of any J.N. discussion of Viet Nam is the plain fact that neither Communist China, North nor South Viet Nam are members of the United Nations.

Secretary General Thant has stated on many occasions that there could be no meaningful talks on Viet Nam without the participation of the parties

The impact of the current tight-money market on housing shows up in the rise in home mortgage interest rates this year. Figures from the Federal Home Loan Bank Board show average rates throughout the country climbing steeply for loans on both used and new houses.

DRAFT, COMPETITION HIT HARD

Teacher Losses Stagger Texas

United Press International Hit on one side by draft boards and on the other by competition from government and industry, some Texas schools are staggering from a lack of teachers; a survey showed today. Many schools still are trying to find qualified teachers to fill their vacancies. Others are being forced to hire substandard personnel as a last resort. The biggest problems appear to be in smaller cities. To meet the demands of an enrollment expected to be about 50,000 above last year, many schools are moving portable, prefabricated buildings onto their campuses until permanent facilities can be erected. This year there is no pool because many of the teachers were grabbed up by poverty projects in need of the same type skills.

Oscar Miller, superintendent of the San Antonio schools, said his biggest crush is for elementary teachers. "It is very difficult to get teachers more difficult than ever before," he said. "We are losing teachers to the draft because some are not exempt, and the government is in competition with us by paying higher wages." In most of the larger cities, which usually pay bigger salaries than small schools, there was little teacher shortage. School officials at Dallas, Fort Worth and Austin reported a few vacancies but each said the shortage is not a problem. El Paso officials reported a complete staff. An exception among the big cities is Houston, the state's largest school system, where there are about 120 vacancies

More Negroes Will Attend Schools

AUSTIN (DPI) — More than twice as many Negroes will attend school with white children in Texas this year than in 1965-66. "Quite a number of school districts which have been operating small schools for Negro children are closing them and moving the students into integrated schools," Leon Graham, assistant commissioner for administration in the Texas Education Agency, said. This and the predicted 50,000 increase in enrollment are expected to cause overcrowding. There also will be more Negro teachers—primarily the result of new guidelines by the U. S. Office of Education for federal aid. Graham said the only complaints the TEA has received in several months regarding integration are from some Negro teachers who think their contracts were not renewed because of desegregation. New federal guidelines are cutting down even those few complaints, he said. Other segments of the new guidelines, which allow Negroes to change from a Negro school to a desegregated school in the same district without losing athletic eligibility, are credited with part of the increase in Negroes in integrated schools. John Carroll was the first Catholic bishop in the United States, in 1788.

Amarillo Golfer Wins 29th Annual Tourney

King Upset In US Championship

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI) — Nancy Richey of Dallas won a big round in the hottest lead in women's tennis—by remote control. Everyone in the know breathlessly was awaiting an expected showdown between Nancy and Wimbledon champ Billie Jean King of Long Beach, Calif., in the semifinals of the U.S. championships but Billie Jean came a cropper in the second round Monday against 19-year-old Kerry Melville of Australia. And chances are you can blame it on the feud. Nancy and Billie Jean haven't played each other for two years but last winter Mrs. King was nominated all alone as No. 1 in the national rankings, a coveted spot. Texas official S. R. Bumann of Dallas led a drive to upset those rankings and eventually Nancy was named as co-holder of the No. 1 spot with Mrs. King.

And who turned up in the umpire's chair for the King-Melville match but S. R. Bumann of Dallas. Billie Jean protested. She asked he be removed. But tournament officials said Bumann's credentials could not be questioned so the match went on with Bumann in the chair and Billie Jean apparently in the air. Mrs. King committed 23 errors in the first set and went down 6-4, 6-4, a junior player she had beaten with the loss of only two games two weeks ago.

Meanwhile Nancy drubbed Marilyn Montgomery of San Antonio, 6-2, 6-0, in the second round and stood as a favorite to reach the final against three-time champ Maria Bueno of Brazil. Maria, in her first match of the tournament, zeroed Kathy Blake of Arlington, Va., in 24 minutes, 6-0, 6-0. All 32 men's survivors were down for action today with the seeding list minus one of the originals — eighth-seeded Cliff Richey of Dallas, Navy's 18-year-old brother.

Cliff was beaten for the fourth straight time by Owen Davidson of Australia, 7-5, 8-6, 6-1.

LeCrone Unseats Farquhar for Title

By RON CROSS
Sports Editor

Steve LeCrone of Amarillo proved Monday that size doesn't mean a thing on the golf course and that he doesn't fold under pressure. The Texas Tech golfer, a giant at 5'8 and 135-pounds unseated fellow Amarilloan John Farquhar for the championship of the 29th annual Top O' Texas tournament.

LeCrone, who trailed the Top champion by four strokes starting Monday's 36-hole wrapup, came to within one shot after the Monday morning round had been played. The new champion fired rounds of 72-67-65-70—274, which is 10-under par for the tournament to win by four shots over Farquhar, who was trying to become the first golfer to make it three straight titles.

The big story wasn't so much LeCrone's winning but Farquhar's blowup on the final 18 holes of play. Farquhar had led through three rounds by shooting 67-68-68 but came in with a 75 on his afternoon round for a 278 total.

The 75 the Amarillo golfer shot was by far the worst round he's ever had over the Pampa Country Club course. During his morning round LeCrone shot 25-30-65, with his 30 only one shot off the course record. He missed an eight-foot eagle putt on No. 18 for the record. On his afternoon round LeCrone sailed in with a 37-33-70 while

'New Harvesters' Prep For Friday Opener With Perryton

You can't get the Pampa Harvesters or their coaches to talk about anything but Perryton these days. Mostly because Pampa and Perryton open the 1966 football season Friday in Harvester Field. For the Harvesters, they'll be looking for revenge for a 27-8 defeat handed them last season by the Rangers. But the 3-A Rangers will be no easy task for the bigger, better Pampa 11 when the two squads lineup for the 7:30 p.m. kickoff. Coach Ray Hopkins allows his team is hurting in size in the line and overall team speed but his boys like to hit and they are coming to a good place. Hopkins returns six starters and 11 lettermen, including Gary Lockwood, who tallied against Pampa last season. But the 185-pounder might find the going a bit rougher against the '66 Harvesters with the likes of Doc Cornutt, James Matney, Bill Scribner, J. A. C. Williamson, Larry Keyser, Glen Lewis, David Smith and Terry Troxel and Dickie Henley putting up the defense.

Perryton was struggling to get a 75 with three double bogies and three bogies. Third was Jim Wilcox of Lubbock who shot 70-68 Monday to go with rounds of 70-71 and a 279 total. Jim Bullard of Oklahoma State University was fourth with a 70-68 Monday and 74-69 in his two previous rounds for a 281 total. Three golfers tied for fifth with 283's. They were first round leader Ras Allen, 1964 Champion Bobby Greenwood and James Herring of Amarillo. One shot over par was former Professional Don Prigmore of Pampa and Lubbock at 285. Dr. Bob Lowerwald of Pampa took first flight honors by one shot. Lowerwald fired a 72 Monday to go with rounds of 71-77 and a 220 total while runner-up James White shot 78 Monday and a 221 total.

First round leader C. F. McGinnis, who was the first round leader shot a 74 to go with rounds of 69-79 and a 222 total.

McGuire has several good new players in the likes of center Jim Hodges, 190, and 150-pound end Wally Huber and guard Gary Huskinson, a 180-pounder. McGuire sees his 1966 squad as bigger than in past seasons, but slower with good backfield speed and an excellent kicking game. "We will be inexperienced and slow, but quicker than usual. Our running game and kicking should be our strong points," the coach observed.

Lean Season on Tap for Longhorns?

AMARILLO — The Caprock Longhorns surprised a few people last year, five at least, finishing 5-4-1 for the 1965 season. Coach John McGuire returns but seven lettermen this year and only two starters. This has to be a rebuilding year for the Longhorns. In starting his fourth year at the Caprock helm, McGuire has Leon Boone, a tackle at 200-pounds and linebacker Steve Alston, 155-pounds as his only two boys who started in 1965. But McGuire has several good

Area Teams to Kick Off 1966 Grid Season Friday

Area football fans will be out in force Friday night as their chargers open the 1966 grid season with some looking for better things and others just hoping they can duplicate their 1965 feats. There will be some new faces on the high school grid scene this year and some familiar ones, such as Randy Elliott, the area's top scorer in 1965 from White Deer, fullback Gary Smith and halfback Vernon Marlar, both of the Bucks and Bobby Vanpool, from Wheeler who finished second in scoring to Elliott last season. Wheeler, White Deer and Groom actually rank as the pre-season favorites with Lefors expected to give the Tigers a run for their money in the 5-B race. Lefors will get a good test as to just how good they are when they travel to Wheeler to meet the Mustangs in a non-league affair. Canadian hosts Miami while

Pirates Lead Cut to 11-2 Games

By United Press International
Walter Alston has three more pitchers like Sandy Koufax and wishes he didn't. Although most managers would trade half their team for just one Koufax, the prospect of three like him only makes Alston shudder because the similarity isn't in performance. While Koufax is famous for his fastball and curve, he is also known for his arthritic left elbow and therein lies the likeness. On four straight starts beginning last Friday, Los Angeles hurlers failed to finish a game because of injury. Claude Osteen was removed because of a groin ailment. Koufax left when his elbow flared up. Don Drysdale was lifted after his knee popped and Don Sutton was taken out Monday after pulling a muscle in his right forearm. Five in a Row But the Dodgers, who must rely on their pitching because of notoriously weak hitting, somehow managed to win their last five games, including a 4-1 decision over San Francisco Monday to move within 1 1/2 games of the National League leading Pittsburgh Pirates. "When I made that pitch in the second inning my arm cracked just like you crack your knuckles," said Sutton, who may miss his next start. "The arm hurt like crazy when I started warming up in the third inning." "Darn these injuries," Alston moaned. "We may just have to go with Joe Moeller and Bill Singer as starters." Elsewhere, the Pirates walked Atlanta 13-5 before losing 7-5. Cincinnati swept a pair from New York 8-2 and 8-5 in 10 innings. Chicago nipped Philadelphia 5-4 then dropped the nightcap 7-2, and St. Louis split with Houston, winning the

Packers Open Defense of NFL Title Saturday

By United Press International
Some people accuse Vince Lombardi of having no goals in the National Football League because he is enveloped too often in the sweet smell of success. On the record they might be right. The Green Bay coach, who has won the NFL title three times in the last five years, opens defense of the championship against the Baltimore Colts in Milwaukee Saturday night. Also on the record, however, is Lombardi's pre-season comment that "if I didn't think there were things to be accomplished, I wouldn't be here." Lombardi is seeking a million dollar accomplishment this time, the molding of rookie backs Donny Anderson and Jim Grabowski into an offensive duo that can compliment veterans Paul Hornung and Jim Taylor. There's a possibility that Lombardi will alternate a vet and a rookie like any good combat commander would do in action to give a newcomer experience. The bulk of the NFL's opening slate centers on Sunday, when Chicago is at Detroit, Cleveland at Washington, Los Angeles at Atlanta, Minnesota at San Francisco, New York at Pittsburgh and Philadelphia at St. Louis. Dallas is odd man out this week and waits until Sept. 18 for its season inaugural. New York and Boston, which sat out the American Football league curtain raiser last weekend, make their 1966 debuts, with the Jets playing at Miami Friday night and the Patriots visiting San Diego Saturday night. Oakland is at Houston for a Saturday night game and Buffalo entertains Kansas City Sunday.

Rambling With Red

Everybody is taken care of and not once in the last two years have we heard even one of the golfers complain for want of anything. For instance, one golfer Sunday hit a rock and broke a three-wood. He came to the pro shot wanting to know if he could rent one and was immediately loaned one, free of charge. The fancy dancer, Stu Youngblood and his tournament committee did a good job of organizing and the conflict with the National Amateur didn't hurt a thing. The national thing will conflict with the ToT again next year but you can look for the same group of fine golfers back to battle it out for the ToT title with probably a few who took their licks at Ardmore, Pa., this year probably deciding to come back here. Friendliest golfer of the tournament has to be Jim Bullard from Oklahoma State, who wants to win this tournament so badly but hasn't been able to do much playing this summer. Jim always finds time to stop and talk and has nothing but praise for the PCC course. A late arrival may have hurt Bobby Greenwood in the first two rounds. The Cookeville, Tenn., golfer was on a plane out of Dallas heading for Amarillo when the jet job developed engine trouble and had to turn back. Bobby arrived in Amarillo about 5 p.m. Friday and didn't get in a practice round like the rest of the championship flight.

Even English Churchmen

It was the opposition of that fusty, crusty old institution, the Church of England, to Edward VIII's desire to marry a divorcee which helped bring about the only abdication of a British monarch in history.

Thus it is significant that it is the church — or more accurately, a group of its leading members — which today is calling for a sweeping reform of British divorce law to bring it up to date with modern life.

An unofficial report prepared by the group at the request of the Archbishop of Canterbury proposes the abolition of the present system of "grounds" and the labeling of one spouse as guilty and the other innocent.

In place of the three existing grounds (adultery, desertion and mental cruelty), it recommends but one reason for divorce — the breakdown of the marriage. The function of divorce courts would be "judicial inquiry into the fact and causes of the death of a marriage relationship."

According to the group, this would reveal divorce as it actually is — not as a reward for marital virtue on the one side and a penalty for marital delinquency on the other, not as a victory for one spouse and a reverse for the other, but a defeat for both.

Such a doctrine of "marital breakdown" would eliminate all of the hypocrisy, "most of the collusion, at least some of the heartbreak and a great deal of the bitterness now attending divorce cases, as well as depriving scandal sheets of their chief source of spicy reading.

Unfortunately, it would also deprive a lot of lawyers of a lot of income.

It will be interesting to watch, over the course of a century or so, what use the British make of the report. If reform is implemented, and if fire and brimstone from heaven are not poured down upon the kingdom, perhaps by 2166 the legal profession in this country can be persuaded to try the experiment.

Seeds of Violence Sprout in China

The old cliché about the "ageless, unchanging Chinese" was one of a great many things that seemed to have been swept out the door when the Communists took over in 1949 and set about trying to fashion China into a modern power.

Current reports from that still inscrutable land make one wonder if today's Chinese are really much different from their honorable ancestors.

Mindless hordes of teen-agers — the "Red Guard" — have been rampaging through the streets of Chinese cities on the hunt for everyone who by dress or speech or attitude betrays less than wholehearted devotion to the so-called "cultural revolution" decreed by Mao Tse-tung.

Make-up, Western-style clothes, even such innocent things as flowers in the window are taken as clear signs of bourgeois backwardness. Not only native Chinese but foreigners are under attack and the cry of "foreign devils" is once again heard in China.

History seems to be repeating itself with a vengeance.

Just as they were in the 19th century, foreign influences are being blamed for China's troubles in the 20th. Just as it did 300 years ago, the nation is turning inward on itself.

Now, however, it is not the thought of Confucius but that of Mao-Marx that is being extolled as the solution to all problems, and the road to preferment is not through knowledge of the classics but through zeal in applying the modern master's teachings.

Hopes in the West for a turn toward moderation after Mao's demise have been dashed by his sudden re-emergence in apparent full vigor and his elevation to Minister of Defense Lin Biao to No. 2 position in the hierarchy — and now, the excesses of the "great proletarian cultural revolution."

Yet, paradoxically, the very fact that the Chinese have not changed insures that China will change. What historians call the "cycle of dynasty" has brought the violent end of every ruling house in the nation's long history.

Today the Communists are manufacturing violence to suit their own purposes. Tomorrow they will find that violence turned against themselves, and the world will see rioting crowds smashing the idols of communism with every bit as much energy as they are now attacking the symbols of the decadent West.

That tomorrow may be decades away, but it will come.

The problem of water supply is becoming increasingly more important with the water picture throughout the world as distressing as the one in this country. More than 90 per cent of those in less-developed countries lack adequate water service and many use unsafe water. Of the 79 major nations, only 11 per cent have water supply systems rated good or fair. And in some parts of the world people exist on three gallons of water a day. The impact of population growth alone on water resources is frightening. The total world population from the beginning of time to the birth of Christ was only a quarter of a billion people. By 1980, it is estimated that 4 billion people will live here and by the 21st century there will be six billion living on this planet. Yet, there is no more water now than there was when the Egyptians built the pyramids. And history teaches us that no civilization has grown on arid acres, a falling water table or polluted streams.

But they were actually invented in 1883 at the St. Louis World's Fair by a German concessionaire. Dorgan first made their acquaintance when Harry Stevens commenced selling them at ball parks encased in a roll and lathered with mustard.

No Oath In Welsh

(San Francisco Chronicle)

The first member of the Welsh Nationalist party ever elected to the British house of commons took his seat last week and promptly asked if he might repeat in Welsh the oath he had just taken swearing faithful and true allegiance to the queen.

The ruling of the speaker was against Mr. Evans. According to the rule book, a member must address the house in English, he said.

Welshmen scattered around the world will learn with much regret and even resentment of the denial of Mr. Evans' appeal. Newspaper readers may well regret it, too, as printed Welsh closely resembles what sometimes emerges from the modern composing room computer, and distinguishing between the two dialects would be a challenge to them.

Had he taken the oath in Welsh, Mr. Evans would have said: "Yr wyf i Gwynfor Richard Evans, yn tyngu v byddaf fyddon ac y dygaf wir eyn-garwch I'w mawrhydi Y fren-fyddon ac y dygaf wir deyrn-

Congressman Smith to Force FBI Bill from Judiciary Committee as His Swan Song

ROBERT ALLEN      PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — Rep. Howard Smith, D. Va., 83-year-old chairman of the powerful House Rules Committee, is preparing a swan song that will be as unusual as it is newsworthy.

Defeated for re-election by a hairline margin in the July primary, Smith, who made his reputation bottling up legislation, plans to invoke a little-used rule to bring directly before the House a unique FBI measure.

This bill, placing authority for naming a successor to FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover directly into the hands of the President, instead of the Attorney General as at present, and requiring Senate confirmation of the appointment, has been stalled in the House Judiciary Committee for months.

Sponsored by Senate Republican Leader Everett Dirksen, Ill., close friend of Hoover, the legislation was approved by the Senate speedily and virtually without discussion.

But Representative Emanuel Celler, D. N.Y., veteran chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, has blocked action, reportedly because Attorney General Katzenbach is against it.

Supporters of Dirksen's measure say they have been unable to ascertain exactly why Katzenbach is opposed to it. They point out that it proposes to enhance the President's authority and not diminish it. It is conceded that the requirement for Senate confirmation does create a potential Senate veto of such an appointment.

But they cite the fact that the Senate exercises such authority over hundreds of presidential appointments, including the head of the CIA, and that adding the director of the FBI to the list would not be breaking new ground.

PLANTING THE SEED — The idea that a little-used rule be used to "liberate" the FBI bill from Celler's pigeonhole was planted with Representative Smith by Senator Dirksen and Representative Arch Moore, W. Va., a ranking Republican on the Judiciary Committee.

The two GOP leaders dropped in on Smith to extend condolences on his primary defeat, his first in 35 years in Congress. After reminiscing for a while, Moore brought up the subject of Dirksen's bill, saying, "Judge, we have a legislative problem that only you can solve. We need your help."

Moore and Dirksen then explained how the latter's bill had been speedily approved by the Senate without opposition, only to be shelved by Celler in the Judiciary Committee.

"Celler is refusing to even hold hearings on this bill although a majority of his committee favor it," said Dirksen. "At least 17 members of his committee are for the measure. But neither Celler nor the Attorney General want to give Congress a voice, through the power of confirmation, in selecting Hoover's successor."

"That is what I suspected," declared Smith, peering over the top of his glasses. "This is an important piece of legislation. It restores power to Congress. I am fully in accord with you that it should be passed."

WILLING CONVERT — With Smith making it clearly evident he was heartily on their side, Moore and Dirksen then brought out the clincher.

"Judge, I know of no better song than your suing your authority as chairman of the Rules Committee to yank this bill away from the Judiciary Committee and bring it directly to the floor of the House," pointed out Moore.

"I haven't the slightest doubt that if the House is permitted to act on this legislation, Senator Dirksen's bill will be just as overwhelmingly approved as it was in the Senate. And the House's action will be a lasting tribute to you."

"Of course, you realize the irony of your request," chuckled Smith. "Instead of asking Judge Smith to pigeonhole legislation, you are asking him to pry it out."

"That's about it, Judge," Dirksen grinned appreciatively. "After a long pause, Smith nodded his head and said: 'Since I became Rules chairman in 1955, I have only used that power twice. And both instances involved legislation vital to saving our concept of government. I consider this FBI bill in that category. I will do it.'"

OTHER FBI BILLS — Meanwhile, the powerful Society of former FBI agents is quietly mobilizing its 5,000 members for the slowly developing battle both in Congress and the Administration over who will eventually replace Hoover.

While the former G-men are not proposing any one candidate, the Society wants Hoover's successor picked from within the ranks of the FBI.

Two bills have been introduced in the House for this purpose. Sponsored by Representatives H. Allen Smith (R-Calif.) and Samuel Devine (R-O.), the measures would change existing procedure under which the FBI director is selected by the Attorney General. Instead, Hoover's successor would have to come from FBI ranks and be designated by the President and confirmed by the Senate.

In a memorandum to all the members, Society president Robert Floyd called on them to contact their congressmen to urge them to support these measures.

People Never Had Such Wide Choice

By OSCAR COOLEY
Associate Professor of Economics
Ohio Northern University

What can you and I do about inflation?

A man who had but one suit would feel rather poor, and a woman who had but one dress would feel even more so. Yet, a man cannot wear but one suit, and a woman but one dress, at a time. The point is, one likes to have a change.

A person's wealth is measured not so much by his total assets as by the number of changes, or alternatives, he has. During World War II, people had a lot of spending money but felt poor because there were few things in the stores to spend it for. By contrast, a vast variety of goods is now available in our stores and from our mail-order houses. Money is worth what it can be spent for, and the American dollar can be spent for a multitude of things.

To fully appreciate his wealth of alternatives, the American consumer should visit a Soviet Russia and see how few things, relatively, the Russian's ruble can be spent for.

For this reason, inflation is a less serious menace to Americans than to people of other lands. When inflation occurs the general price level rises. However, not every price rises equally. Many rise much more than others. Some do not rise at all, and a few even may fall!

Thus, the more species of goods there are, each with its own price tag, the more opportunity each buyer has to find some what - satisfying goods which have gone up little if at all.

Consider the choices in the modern supermarket. It is said to contain some 8,000 different goods, counting each brand as a good. Nobody wants all 8,000. The average well stocked pantry contains probably less than 200, or one-fortieth of the total number available. Yet the housewife has the full 800 — and the number is increasing rapidly — to choose from.

Even when the trend of food prices is up, not all the 8,000 are up equally. By careful checking, the shopper can usually find good substitute buys.

For example, if meat is up, eggs may not be. If bread is rising, potatoes may be falling. If fresh peaches are glutted, excellent canned peaches are likely available at four cents for a dollar.

The surest way to bring down a seemingly high price is to refuse to pay it. This is easy for a buyer who has many alternatives before him. True we are creatures of habit. Accustomed to eating steak for dinner, we turn up our noses at soufflé, but those who insist on indulging their taste for filet mignon every Sunday should not complain of inflation.

People who live in an economy of wide choice, such as ours, are less firmly cemented to consumption habits than our people in a low-choice economy. The former are more flexible in their ways because more choices are spread before their eyes and they become accustomed to using a greater variety of things.

We hate inflation because, after working hard to earn a dollar, we suddenly find it is worth only 90 cents. But the purchasing power of a dollar is not a fixed quantity; it all depends on one's spending opportunities, that is, on the alternatives for which one may spend it. Multiply the alternatives and we multiply the chances of getting more for our dollar.

In labor union circles, much is said about "bargaining power." But contrary to common belief, his bargaining power is not a matter of wealth or size; rather it is measured by the number and quality of my alternative opportunities as compared to those of the fellow I am bargaining with. If I have good alternatives, I can stand him off for a higher price. If I don't I have to settle at his figures.

Thus, the worker who has a skill which is wanted by many employers has more bargaining power than the one who does not, even if the latter belongs to a union. And the employer who is located in a city populated with workers of the type to do his work has more bargaining power than one located in an isolated hamlet.

Bargaining power and purchasing power are really the same. An employer bargaining with a worker is seeking to purchase his labor. The worker, meanwhile, is seeking to "purchase" a money wage by paying a certain amount of work.

Likewise, people bargain when they purchase goods with money or money with goods. In either case, their ability to make a good bargain depends on the number of choices open to them.

In a small town, the retail stores are smaller and fewer than in a city. They cannot carry so large a stock. Hence, the small town dweller frequently grumbles, "You can't buy anything here." He is simply bewailing his own bargaining weakness due to lack of choice.

However, no people in history have ever had so wide a choice of goods and services as have Americans. It is no mean weapon to flight inflation.

Hunt for Truth

BY M. L. HUNT

RESEMBLANCES

Lake Village, Arkansas, where I lived, had one movie theater. During a children's contest to name persons pictured on screen, when the Secretary of Commerce was shown they shouted, "Mr. Hunt!"

Some years later a crowd kept following me around New York's Roosevelt Hotel lobby. Inquiring why, I was told they were trying to catch up with the President of the United States. After his term, Mr. Herbert Hoover and I became good friends. Sometimes someone would greet me as "Chief," an indication they were his close friends.

In 1952 I wanted General MacArthur to win the Presidential nomination; Mr. Hoover wanted Taft. Forty-two hours before the nominating speeches he persuaded Senator Taft to switch the Taft-MacArthur delegates to MacArthur. Four-and-a-half hours later Taft decided to switch AFTER the first ballot. Douglas MacArthur was within 4½ hours of being nominated, would have been elected, and this would be a different world today.

At a Feb. 22 banquet I was seated alongside Senator Byrd, who introduced the speaker, Herbert Hoover. As the banquet and speeches ended, we walked toward the door. Mr. Hoover surrounded by admirers. Several guests rushed to me saying, "Great talk, Chief," or "Wonderful speech, Mr. President." Not wishing to embarrass them, I shook hands warmly.

A waiter at Washington's Carlton Hotel solicitously asked, "What are you having tonight, Mr. Lewis?" Apologizing he said, "Mr. John L. Lewis is usually at this table."

From London to the Middle East no one mistook me for Winston Churchill, but several mentioned our resemblance. None ever admitted that Mr. Hoover and Mr. Churchill looked alike!

Walkengrassphobia

There isn't a medical name for it that we know of. One could be coined easily enough, using the Greek roots for "walk" and "grass" and ending with the familiar "phobia," meaning the irrational fear of something.

The fear of walking on grass was discovered among preschool Negro children attending day camp at the Jeanne d'Arc Academy in Milton, Mass. Coming from Boston's predominantly Negro Roxbury section in Boston, the only grass the youngsters had ever seen near their homes was guarded by forbidding fence.

The nuns at the academy caused the phobia by scattering lollypops on the lawn to lure the children onto the grass.
