

GENERAL JOHNSON HAGOOD WILL BE RESTORED TO COMMAND, REPORTS SAY

OFFICER TALKS WITH FDR ON FLORIDA TRAIN

CLOSE FRIEND OF DEPOSED MAJOR SENT TO HOUSTON

ENROUTE WITH PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT TO FLORIDA COAST, March 23. (AP)—Amid reports that he soon would be restored to command, Major General Johnson Hagood, disciplined critic of the new deal's work relief, boarded President Roosevelt's vacation special early today for a conference with the chief executive.

Neither the president nor the former commander of the eighth corps area centering at Fort Sam Houston, Tex., would say anything of the conference, but dispatches from Washington declared informed quarters believed Hagood would go back to active duty.

The president's special, bearing him to exercises today at Rollins college, Winter Park, Florida, and later to a brief vacation of "fishing and sleeping" off Florida, stopped early today at Charleston, S. C., Hagood's native state.

The general, clad in civilian clothes, boarded the train there. He told reporters he had "not a word" to say.

It was said that the president invited Hagood aboard after receiving an indirect request for an interview. Well known democrats, including Senator Byrnes (D S. C.) and Rep. Blanton (D-Tex.) have been working to have the removal order lifted.

NEW YORK, March 23. (AP)—Major General Frank Parker, who commanded the first division in the world war, will be assigned to command of the third army, with headquarters at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, in an order to be issued today.

Announcement was made at Fort Hamilton, on Governor's Island in New York bay, that General Parker, friend of Major General Johnson Hagood, recently relieved of the same command, would be sent to the Texas post.

Both men are from Charleston, S. C.

General Parker will command the fourth and eighth corps areas. Only recently he returned from a tour of duty in the far east, with headquarters at Manila.

Most of the latter may be prevented.

ADRIAN ODUM in Hereford Brand—Fred Williams, down on the Clarendon News, last week challenged anybody in the Panhandle to a typesetting duel, with the price of a page ad as the forfeit of the loser. We are hereby formally accepting that challenge on behalf of W. C. Nix. The Brand's star student of the Linotype, and if Mr. Williams wants to make it a double truck, we think that can be arranged. That is how strong we believe in Mr. Nix's typesetting ability.

Fred, we are certain bit off more than he can chew when he offered to go into this contest. Mr. Nix has been setting type for 20 or 30 years, and he's the only typesetter we ever saw who could set all the copy turned back by half a dozen reporters and admen and keep harassing the front office for more copy.

JIMMIE GILLENTEINE in Wellington Leader—Author Cochran startled me the other day. He said "The only trouble with this new driver's license law is that they didn't charge." EDITORIAL

THE TEXAS COWBOY TODAY

Visitors who come to Texas to attend the Centennial celebrations during the coming summer are likely to be interested in the famed Texas cowboy, the hard-riding hero of fiction and the moving pictures who, according to these authorities, rescues pretty school ma'ams, chases cattle rustlers, shoot Indians and performs marvels of horsemanship but who, strange to say, seems to spend little time caring for cattle. Our Northern and Eastern friends will want to see the cowpuncher at home and at work—on his native heath, as it were—view him rounding up cattle, busting unruly broncos and, in short, finding out for themselves all about him. But they are very likely to be told—and by good Texans—that the real cowboy is no more, that the big ranches are fast being broken up and the cowboy is a figure of bygone days and has long since gone the way of the Indian and the buffalo.

To a certain extent this is true enough so far as the fictional cowboy is concerned; he no longer rides the long trail to Kansas or Montana, the open range is of the past, the barbed wire fence has changed many things, and the cattle today are very unlike the old Texas longhorn. But the cowboy himself is still with us, plenty of him, and is likely to be for a long time, and he himself is not greatly different from his prototype of fifty or sixty years ago, albeit he does not carry a brace of six-guns at his belt, and when he comes to town he does not gallop madly up and down the street to the accompaniment of gun fire.

Ranching is carried on in practically every part of Texas except the northeastern corner of the State, and in the various sections and types of country which line between the Gulf Coast and the Trans-Pecos country and from the Rio Grande to the Panhandle it is natural that there should be some variations in the methods of handling the cattle. In nearly all these sections, however, the cowboy's attire will consist of the traditional big hat, high heeled Spanish boots and flapping chaps of his craft; he swings his rope as of yore and his pony and saddle with high horn and cantle are still characteristic.

In telling something of the modern ranch, it should be understood that the statement that the large ranches are being broken up is only partially true. It is a fact that much ranch land is being brought under cultivation but the amount is small in comparison with the vast extent of Texas. The great King ranch, long famed as the largest ranch in Texas, is no longer under one ownership, but in its full extent it is as large now as it ever was, consisting of 1,000,000 to 1,500,000 acres, employing about 800 cowhands and extending over parts of seven counties on the Gulf Coast. Also on the Gulf Coast is the Miffin Reynolds or La Parra ranch of about 800,000 acres, and we have the Swenson, the Reynolds, the Littlefield and many other large ranches with 50,000 acres of land and upwards. The big ranch is not gone nor is it going, and the same may be said for the cowboy. Large areas of the State will never be much good except for grazing, and so long as we have cattle we must have men to take care of them.

A large ranch may have about 1,000 horses, half of them for ordinary farm or ranch work and breeding and the balance for use as cow ponies, and there may be a half dozen "cow outfits," each consisting of a dozen cowboys, perhaps 125 horses and a chuck wagon. Early in the summer the parties start out, going from pasture to pasture, rounding up the herds of calves and their mothers, branding, cutting and dehorning the calves and moving along over the ranch. It is hard work and the men must spread out and ride at a gallop over rough, broken country to head off and round up the cattle. As each bunch is gathered, the fires of mesquite logs are burning, the branding irons are hot and the work starts. A cowboy rides into the herd, swinging his rope, and the calves are roped one by one and dragged toward the fire, another cowboy going "down the rope" to seize the calf and bring him in. Two cowpunchers lay hold of him, flip him over on his side and hold him, while others brand him, castrate him, nip off his little knobs of horns, give him a shot of blackleg serum and then turn him loose to go back to the herd and find his mammy. Meanwhile, another protesting "subject" is being roped and dragged in, and after all the calves have received attention, the herd is driven back to its home pasture. All this apparently rough handling of calves is necessary and is much gentler than it used to be when a calf would be roped and dragged through bushes and over rocks, perhaps breaking a leg or two. Nowadays cattle are valuable and are treated accordingly; they are disturbed as little as possible in their home pastures and are seldom driven for branding more than two or three miles. On many ranches there is little or no roping done, the cattle being handled by means of chutes.

While a branding outfit is at work, the cowboys must ride all day, but each horse is required to work about a day or perhaps two half days a week. The remuda (or band of spare horses) is in charge of the wrangler, who may be an apprentice cowboy or perhaps a cowboy too old or crippled for active work, and the wrangler must know all the horses by name and which man rides them; he sees that they are watered and grazed and are ready when needed. There is no night riding on the modern ranch, this having passed with trail driving and the advent of barbed wire, and there is now no danger of the cattle straying off.

The cowpuncher's wide leggings of chaparejos ("chaps") are to protect his legs while riding through rough chaparral or brush, and his high heeled boots serve to hold his feet in the wooden stirrups and prevent him from getting a foot hung if he is thrown from the saddle. They also help him while he is on foot and digging in his heels to hold an unruly calf. And the silk or cotton scarf around his neck has manifold uses; it is pulled up over his face while he is branding or riding a dusty trail and it also serves as handkerchief, towel, napkin, table cloth or to strain water. And the water which the cowboy drinks would give heart failure to anyone with a dread of germs, for he thinks nothing of drinking from water in which the cattle are standing or through which they are wading. Or, if he is finicky, he may pull a bunch of grass, lay it on the water and drink through it—an old Indian trick. This may not keep out many germs, but it will doubtless prevent him from swallowing a bullfrog or a ten-pound catfish.

Bronco busting in its most violent aspects is not much of a feature of the modern ranch, as the horses are not likely to be of a "mean" or unruly type. Most young horses are likely to buck a little when first taken out but this is taken as merely an indication of youth and high spirits and any cowboy is supposed to be able to handle such an animal. An incurably unruly horse would be only a nuisance on a ranch and would soon be disposed of. However, some young and ambitious cowpunchers (who have been reading too many western fiction magazines or have seen too many wild west moving pictures) may favor a horse which is inclined to buck or may encourage the animal to further efforts. But, as a general rule, more experienced cowboys prefer a gentle horse. Young horses are used in rounding up and then, after five or six years at this work, they are used in cutting out, when some of them attain the proverbial "almost human" intelligence, seeming to understand just what cow is wanted, cutting it out from the herd and heading it off and anticipating its every movement. A good horse of this type is valued beyond gold and rubies, his fame spreads far and wide, and after his death his deeds become a legend in the cow country.

The modern cowboy is still a singer, his lyrics being the popular songs of the day, with a liberal sprinkling of the older favorites of bygone days. And whenever opportunity offers, he is a zealous attendant of the old-fashioned square dances which are still a feature in the country districts, although the music is more likely to come from the radio than from the old-time fiddler. And when the cowboy goes to a dance he does not wear his chaps and spurs, as is sometimes seen in the moving pictures, for the chaps and uncomfortable things in which to move around and are quickly discarded when not in use.—P. J. R. MacIntosh in the Texas Weekly.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS AND SOUNDS

By ROBBINS COONS
HOLLYWOOD—Edward Arnold, who scene-stole his way to stardom, says he has never consciously been guilty of such thieving. Furthermore, the bulky star insists, scene-stealing is a highly overrated phase of film acting nowadays.

"In the first place," points out "Diamond Jim" Arnold, "it's hard to steal a scene today unless the would-be thief's material is good. In the second place, the sure way to get yourself disliked is to be the kind of actor who tries to horn in on the other fellow's screen moments.

"I would rather be liked than disliked, which is one reason I've never consciously tried to take a scene from somebody else. Oh, I know I've been called a picture-stealer, but that never happened through any fault of mine. It was the fault of the material. Or else I was noticed simply because mine was a new face. I hope," and the Arnold grin spreads over both his cheeks, "that face will be as fresh five years from now!"

Steaders Come to Grief
In his four years in pictures, says the star, he has noticed only rare instances of players trying to get the best of a scene that was not intended for them in the script. Invariably, in his experience at least, such players have come to grief. They may "take" the scene, but the director usually has another shot of it which, in the cutting, return the honors where they belong.

Since he became a star—after millionaire, Canfield of solitary fame, Pinkerton the secret service man, and Dumas the novelist are on his list of things-to-do.

DIZZY PREDICTS PAUL WILL SOON SIGN HIS CONTRACT. BRADENTON, Fla., Mar. 23. (AP)—Branch Rickey, vice president and general manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, today announced that he has agreed to a one-year contract with Paul Denny.

Denny was all smiles over the end of the winter-long holdout of the Cardinals' star pitcher. "Dizzy" signed his contract last night and Rickey said he would sign as soon as he arrived.

Dallas, Mar. 23. (AP)—Paul (Daffy) Dean, general manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, today announced that he has agreed to a one-year contract with Denny.

St. Louis has a rule against re-signing contracts and Denny's 1936 salary being fixed at this point. Indications were it was between $200,000 and $250,000.

Denny, who has been in the Cardinals' camp since he was a boy, said he is ready to sign. "I hope I can get together with the Cardinal management and I expect to hear something quickly probably today."

Dean won 28 and lost 12 games last year. In 1934, he won 20 while losing seven, and beat Detroit in two world series games.

Dallas, March 23. (AP)—Paul (Daffy) Dean, vice president of the man-farmers business, puttered impatiently about his flower garden here today, admitted he was "ready to compromise" and forecast a quick end to his holdout.

Denny, who has been in the Cardinals' camp since he was a boy, said he is ready to sign. "I hope I can get together with the Cardinal management and I expect to hear something quickly probably today."

Five Thousand At Funeral of Allred's Sister

BOWIE, March 23 (AP)—Funeral services, impressive through their extreme simplicity, were held here yesterday for Mrs. W. B. Stokes Jr., 25-year-old sister of Gov. James V. Allred.

Lord Chetwynd Dies at Angelo

SAN ANGELO, March 23 (AP)—Pneumonia, developed from a severe attack of influenza, today had taken the life of Baron Rathdown, the eighth Viscount Godfrey John Boyle Chetwynd, 73, one of West Texas' pioneer developers and a prominent geologist.

Elks Will Hold First Meeting in New Hall Tonight

The Pampa Elks club will hold its first meeting in the new hall tonight at 8:30 o'clock. The club headquarters has been moved to the rooms formerly occupied by the Pampa Odd Fellows lodge on West Kingsmill avenue. New officers will be elected.

JEAN PARKER WEDS

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., March 23 (AP)—Jean Parker, brunette screen actress and George McDonnell, New York newspaperman, were honeymooning today after a surprise wedding in Nevada. Miss Parker, born Lois Mae Green in Deer Lodge, Mont., 30 years ago, met her 25-year-old husband in Manhattan last November when she returned from an English film appearance.

Actors in KPND Serial

Things aren't always what they seem, especially in the mysterious radio world (where cowboy crooners often do their stuff in derbies and spats) but The American Family Robinson is to be heard every day over KPND (from right to left) Ma Robinson, Pa Robinson, who owns and edits the Centerville Herald, his pet daughter Betty—and Dick Collins, Herald reporter and ardent student of Betty. These players are part of an all star cast, each of whom you have heard many times on the networks.

Dialing-In On KPND

By Your Radio Reporter

Bob tells us that "The American Family Robinson," to be heard every day on KPND, is scheduled on 235 other stations, which makes it the most widely distributed program in the world. Experts as analyzing public opinion attribute the program's popularity to its realistic portrayal of national problems as they affect a typical American family; the portrayal provides a serio-comic, yet effective, rebuttal to economic panaceas which aim to nullify the human rights of private property and individual initiative.

As a comedy balance, there is Windy Bill Winkle who has all but run away with the show. Introduced as a minor character, Bill made such a hit that the fans demanded, and obtained, him on almost every program. Windy Bill is Luke Robinson's brother-in-law; Windy adds to his unpopularity as a self-invited, permanent guest in the Robinson household by airing views that all business is crooked. "Look what happened to me," says Bill, "I've spent the best years of my life trying to be an honest business man and what do I get for it? Nothing! That's what! Take my

A LECTURE ON Christian Science Entitled CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: LIFE UNAFRAID By DR. JOHN M. TUTT, C. S. B. Of Kansas City, Missouri Member of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

Delivered under the auspices of First Church of Christ, Scientist, in the city hall auditorium Sunday afternoon, March 22 at 3:30 o'clock. Dr. Tuttt was introduced by Mrs. C. A. Tignor, First Reader of First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Pampa. Dr. Tuttt spoke substantially as follows:

God's Fearless Man The consciousness of good which is man is the concrete expression, or identification, or embodiment of Mind, Principle, Soul, Spirit, Life, Truth, Love. The consciousness of good excludes evil. Thus Christian Science destroys fear of evil, whether it be fear of objectified evil or fear of the unknown and unseen.

Fear is always an aspect of personal sense. It is a false feeling or emotion accepted by personal self. It involves and hinges on a sense of danger to one's self or to one's interest in people or in things. Hence the infallible cure for fear is in self-forgetfulness or unselfishness, based on the unity of one's real self with God, on one's inseparability from good, and on one's real identity as God's man. The knowledge of true selfhood dispels fear. This consciousness makes it impossible to entertain any false sense of self or of fellowman, or any false belief contrary to universal good. In the absence of evil one sees only good, and disease, disasters, accidents, sin, want, pain, sorrow, discord, are impossible. Hence the fearful man is, so far, departing from Christian Science.

Into Life Unafraid The Christian Science textbook instructs: "Always begin your treatment by allaying the fear of patient," and adds: "If you succeed in wholly removing the fear, your patient is healed." (S. & H., p. 41). We have now established that fear is a false belief in evil, in its activity, its inevitability in its reality, and that Christian Science healing consists in discovering false belief to be unreal. Life unafraid is life uninvolved and unpossessed by the claims of error. The real the spiritual, man is free to accept good only. Each mortal is a free moral agent to accept or reject the suggestions of evil. All consideration of error is properly directed towards its negation and disappearance from thought and hence from body and experience. Any discussion of evil that leaves any abiding of it is either excessive or inadequate and is unwholesome. In Christian Science the way to patented Little Wonder adjustable hair cutting bowl for home use. Think what that would have meant to the people—every man able to cut his own hair—but the barber trust and big business kept it off the market! Luke reminds Bill that there is no barber trust, adding that maybe the Little Wonder hair cutting bowl was no good. "Your complaint," says Luke, "that you have no chance in business is just a childish defense for lack of initiative. Who are the big fellows anyway? They're little fellows who worked hard enough under the same rules that apply to you and me, to become big fellows!"

Pampa's new radio station—now nearing completion—is a member of a new organization of Texas broadcast stations, formed last week in San Antonio.

Its representative, Gilmore N. Nunn, is a member of the executive board. The purpose of the new group is to improve Texas broadcasting commercially and artistically. Temporary officers were selected and an advisory board chosen. Another session will be held to complete permanent organization.

destry sin, disease and death is to know their unreason, yet too often we seek to learn too much about error or its phases. The only important thing about any claim of error is its nothingness. Knowing that fact alone casts out fear and hegets. The issue is simple. Insofar as the analysis of error makes it nothing to us we are wise to take error to pieces. Insofar as finding the cause of disease or other discord exposes its causelessness it is good to seek out the supposed cause. Insofar as the symptoms vanish under our search it is good to expose them to the corrective action of light. But at most all such procedure in any case is incidental to the knowing of error's unreality. The quicker this understanding occupies the ground in our consciousness the sooner will the disease, sin or other mortality vanish.

Treatment in Christian Science resolves disease into false thought, but, contrary to what is above such necessity. Fearlessness helps to take away from error its claims to importance and power. Christian Science cannot heal a disease if it be an entity. Christian Science discovers man to be well. Christian Science does not address itself to the treatment of a physical disease any more than to the treatment of a physical body.

It is the theory of material medicine even more than its practice that Christian Science rejects. Christian Science brings all disease on to the plane of false belief, deals with the mental aspects of the individual case, the conscious or tacit compliance in that case with mortal mind's so-called laws of nature, physiology, material medicine, economics or physics. Christian Science casts out the offending error of belief and heals the case scientifically by replacing the lies in human consciousness with the real facts. Annuling false beliefs will heal any case, and only so is healing accomplished. Disease is a state involving fear of evil.

PAMPA TOPICS OF OUR CITY

To Townsend Meeting Members of the Pampa Townsend club were included in the assembly at Amarillo today of Townsend supporters in the Panhandle. Sessions are being held in the municipal auditorium. Ennis C. Favors, Pampa attorney, will be one of the speakers at tonight's session.

Two Dusty Days High winds, driving out of the west, yesterday and today reminded Pampans that spring is here and that not all of the dust has been "nailed-down." Outdoor activities were sharply curtailed yesterday, and church attendance was somewhat under par. Wheat farmers answered queries by saying that the wind "did the wheat no good," but that the dust was a negligible factor in any damage resulting. Fields protected by soil conservation methods are not expected to show much damage unless spring winds should be unusually severe. Visibility here at noon was limited to two blocks or less.

Two Are Charged John Layman has been charged here in justice court, with driving while intoxicated Saturday on the Pampa-LeFors road. Flora Quinn was named in another case involving driving while intoxicated on the Pampa-LeFors road Saturday.

Church to Meet A congregational meeting of the First Presbyterian church will be held Wednesday at 7 p. m. It was announced today. It will be in the form of a covered-dish lunch.

70 Per Cent Finished Commissioner M. M. Newman, here from McLean today, estimated that the grading and drainage work on the Alanreed-LeFors road was 70 per cent complete. Similar work on the short McLean-Hedley road was finished recently.

Help Sufferers E. M. Crouse today handed THE NEWS $2 to be sent to flood sufferers in the east through the Pampa Red Cross chapter. Mrs. W. H. Davis, executive secretary of the Pampa chapter, said she had received $1 from Joseph D. Fisher. Pampans are asked to contribute in the grave emergency.

Door Smashed In The rear door of the Pampa Sea Food Market on West Foster avenue was battered in some time last night, but nothing was taken. Garbagemen making their rounds early this morning discovered the burglary and reported it to city officers. The door looked as if a blunt sledge had been used.

Quiet Week-end City officers reported a quiet week-end. One "drunk" was arrested and several tickets for traffic violations issued. No accidents were reported to the police.

Drive Wednesday Weather permitting, a one-day drive for individual members of the Pampa chamber of commerce will Health is a state involving fearlessness and confidence in good. The Unafraidness of Enlightenment It is not too much to say that all false belief is based on the unknown. When the mask of falsity is removed error disappears, for there is nothing behind the mask. Enlightenment invariably disposes of fear in all its ghostly forms. Christian Science says with Christ Jesus: "Be not afraid," because there is nothing to be afraid of. Being afraid of nothing, does not make sense, and being afraid of something real is being afraid of good, and that is more senseless still. Life unafraid is therefore life into which enlightenment has entered. The office of Christ is the action of the idea of Truth entering human consciousness and flooding the waste places of darkness, ignorance, with the light of understanding.

INDIGESTION—GET QUICK RELIEF

Millions of men and women are suffering from disturbances of their digestive systems, due to acidity, and this is often the real cause of ill health, tired-out, run-down feeling, loss of "zip" and rest for living. If you are suffering from indigestion, atonic dyspepsia, sour stomach, "raw stomach," inflammation of the intestines (enteritis), gastric acidity and sick headaches, you are intended to soothe the raw, inflamed lining of the "acid stomach," and to help convert the starchy food into digestible. Because of this remarkable success in many cases of acidity and digestive troubles resulting from acid conditions, Cass Tablets are offered to sufferers under a guarantee that the first bottle must produce results or money back.

DIG BUSINESS IS ABOLISHED BY MUSSOLINI

CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY OF FOUNDING OF FASCISM

BY ANDRUE BERDING.

(Copyright, 1936, By The Associated Press)

ROME, March 23.—Premier Mussolini abolished the Italian chamber of deputies today.

The parliamentary chamber was replaced by a "chamber of fascists and corporations."

Mussolini executed his broad stroke on the seventeenth anniversary of the founding of his fascist party.

The rules of the new chamber, it is believed, will be determined by the fascist grand council.

"This assembly will be political because economic problems are seldom solved without political aid," he said.

Mussolini drew tremendous cheers from the audience, rising in the gorgeous Julius Caesar hall of the capital building, on Capitoline hill.

Concerning sanctions, being applied by the League of Nations as punishment for Italy's war in Ethiopia, Mussolini said:

"The siege now in its fifth month will never bend Italy. Only opaque ignorance could have brought a thought otherwise."

He declared political autonomy can no more be achieved without equivalent economic autonomy.

He warned his hearers that Italy would not return to the status it held last November 17—the day before sanctions were imposed.

"He who thinks so is mistaken," he declared.

Mussolini called it inconceivable, in connection with his abolition of large private industries, that any profits should be permitted to be drawn from manufacture of war materials.

It Duce read his speech, but spoke away from the text at various times, especially when he received great ovations.

He declared no nation could reach 100 per cent economic autonomy but every nation seeks to liberate itself as much as possible from foreign servitude.

Citing a long list of raw materials which Italy has developed in recent years, including the product from new coal and iron mines, he declared:

"It will no longer be possible to speak of Italy as poor in raw materials. Italy must be spoken of now as poor in some raw materials, but rich in many others."

After the session of corporations had ended its meeting, Mussolini spoke again from the balcony of the Palazzo Venezia to cheering throngs of blackshirts.

He recalled that 17 years ago today a "festival" of blackshirts gathered at Milan for the purpose of revolutionizing Italy's political system.

Mussolini said his dreams had been "realized, at least as far as Italy is concerned."

Referring to the troubled European times, Mussolini insisted of his followers, "do not become disheartened."

He said fascism was now so thoroughly entrenched that the nation could expect its regime to meet any contingency.

Blackshirts paraded and waved flags, cheered and shouted "Viva Il Duce" through the nation in celebration of their party's birthday.

Before carrying out his domestic measures, Mussolini concluded his three-day conferences with Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg of Austria and Premier Julius Goemboos of Hungary.

A communique said the conversations resulted in accords strengthening the ties between the three nations.

27 KILLED IN RURAL FIGHTS OVER MEXICO

REBELS KILL STUDENTS AND TEACHERS IN ATTACKS

(Copyright, 1936, By The Associated Press)

MEXICO CITY, March 23.—At least 27 persons were killed and several scores were wounded in various parts of Mexico, reports from the provinces said today.

Federal reinforcements were rushed to the town of Chetumal, in the north central state of Yucatan, where press reports said town officials stood off an attack by 40 rebels yesterday and killed seven of the insurgents.

A police sergeant and two soldiers, stationed at Canatlan, were wounded.

Dispatches from Durango said ten insurgents led by Federico Vazquez were killed by federal troops during a battle Saturday in the Taxcoaringa mountains of that state.

A number of prisoners, including several women traveling with the rebel band, were reported taken by the troops, and a number of horses and rifles were seized.

A group of insurgents, believed to be enemies of the government's socialistic education program, terrorized the town of Padiscones, in the state of Jalisco, Saturday night and killed a schoolboy and a police official, dispatches reported.

An old land dispute between residents of two neighboring towns near Tehuacan, Puebla, resulted in a 2-hour fight yesterday in which eight persons were killed and about 20 wounded.

Two clashes were isolated, and although no officials were available for comment, all recent statements from the war department have declared there is "no military problem" in the country.

The insurgents who attacked Paredones were reported to have entered the village school and opened fire on the defenseless students, killing one and wounding several others.

The invaders then went through the town, searching for teachers whom they threatened to kill. After smashing furnishings in the homes of several teachers, the raiders fled to the mountains, pursued by troops sent from Guadalajara.

The state of Jalisco has been the scene of a number of attacks.

Moth Ball Eggs And Milk Shunned

(Copyright, 1936, By The Associated Press)

BARNHART, Mar. 23.—Cooking for seven men and milking ten cows twice a day were among honey-moon experiences recalled by Mrs. Clint Owens as she and Mr. Owens observed their 60th wedding anniversary here.

The couple was wed in Hamilton county in 1876 and first lived in a tent and herded their stock over the open range.

"For two years while our land was being fenced and wells drilled I did not see any white women," Mrs. Owens said.

WESLACO, March 23.—An experiment of Fred Rives, Weslaco farmer who owns many head of cows and scores of chickens, sent him hurrying to the grocery store to buy butter, milk and eggs, commodities he is usually overstocked with.

Rives' expenditure for dairy and poultry products occurred after he scattered moth balls through the corn in his barn to rid it of insects.

Results apparently were being accomplished and Rives was recommending the plant to neighbors, until his cows started giving milk with a moth ball aroma.

He catapulted himself down to Deck C, and ran down the passage to Jane's stateroom.

He pounded on her door, and she opened it to him. She was already dressed. "I'm so glad you came," she said.

"Where—where is your?" she said, almost breathless in their hurry.

"Oh, I gave mine to a little two-year-old boy. There were not enough to go around, as usual, I suppose people take them away for souvenirs, or use them for fishing tackle I can swim."

On the way to Deck B as they passed a door where a steward was pounding with some force.

It's the one where you used to keep your family skeletons. Not the kind referred to as "Uncle Will's unfortunate weakness." The kind that haunted you with reminders of unfortunate purchases...

Appliances bought on snap judgment. Gadgets that didn't run. Dresses you snatched at the last moment—and never wore after the first. All things that cost too much and gave too little. Merchandise from questionable sources—hastily, inconsiderately secured.

You have fewer of these sad mistakes to put away than you used to. You are spending your money more carefully nowadays. Hard times—experience—have contributed their lessons. But above all others, one factor has stood your constant guard.

The advertising in the paper protects you against wasteful, unsatisfactory expenditures. Advertised products live up to their specifications—and yours.

By reading the advertising—not sometimes but ALWAYS—carefully and critically... you provide yourself with a knowledge of values, prices and names that's yours when you need it. Dispense with that upstairs closet. Buy by name during 1936. You'll collect no buying blunders THAT WAY!
