Ike Faces Weeks Of Bed Rest

By JACK V. FOX
MARCH AFB, Calif. (UPI)—Former President Dwight Eisenhower, victim of a heart seizure for the fourth time in 13 years, today faced long weeks of bed-bound convalescence in the hospital at this desert air base.

An Air Force spokesman announced Tuesday the 77-year-old soldier-statesman had suffered a myocardial infarction—damage to the heart muscle as the result of a blood clot. He described the attack as "mild" and said a general prognosis cannot be made at this time.

Eisenhower was reported to be "comfortable and in good spirits."

"Gen. Eisenhower will not depart for Gettysburg May 6 as previously scheduled," the White House said.

Sparkman Salutes Workers 'Rocking Oldtimers' Win CoC Roundup

The final check-in of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce Membership Roundup was held this morning at 10 in the Chamber office.

Team No. 6, the "Rocking Oldtimers," composed of Roy Sparkman, foreman, Jerry Sims, J. C. Roberts and John Gikas, was declared the winner with a total of 1092 points.

Team No. 5, the "Petitecoats," composed of Frances Cree, foreman, Jewell Nance, Nancy Imel and Margaret Doke, was second with 829 points.

In third place was Team No. 7, the "Mustangs," composed of Harold Barrett, foreman, E. E. Shelhamer, Paul Keim and Bill Nowlin, with a total of 780 points.

Team No. 4, the "Lazy Bucks," headed by Floyd Watson, was fourth with 344 points; and Team No. 3, headed by Jim Morris, came in fifth with 275 points.

The drag team was No. 8, the "Dialing Circle O's," headed by George Newberry.

Jerry Sims of Team No. 6, "Rocking Oldtimers," was declared the Top Wrangler of the Roundup and will receive the individual salesman award.

Unofficial tabulations on the roundup show a total of 120 new members along with renewals sufficient to bring the total dues collected in the campaign to $10,386 and approximately 750 points.

Roy Sparkman, finance director, was optimistic that the budget goal of $42,000 would be reached before the end of the fiscal year. He said that even though the contest is over, the campaign will continue until all cards have been worked and the total budget is made.

Sparkman said, "The campaign was carried out with much spirit and enthusiasm on the part of the workers... and we are grateful to all who have worked so hard in helping to achieve our goal." Sparkman also said that if anyone had been missed in the campaign, he would appreciate it if they would call him or the Chamber office.

Winners will be recognized and prizes awarded at the May Membership Luncheon on May 13.

Teenage 'Rodeo' Set Saturday, Sunday Here

The Teenage Auto Rodeo, under the sponsorship of the Pampa Junior Chamber of Commerce, will be held here Saturday and Sunday.

Gene Hinds, chairman of the project, said today that the written portion of the Rodeo will be held in the high school cafeteria at 2 p.m. Saturday with the driving competition slated for 1 p.m. on Sunday at the high school parking lot.

The Rodeo is open to all teenagers with valid drivers licenses. An all-expense-paid trip to the State Jaycee Rodeo at Nederland June 8th is the prize going to the boy and girl adjudged winners.

Cars for the Rodeo will be provided by Bill Licitur Lincoln-Mercury and trophies for the top boy and girl in the event will be awarded by Corporation Court Judge John Warner.

Winner of the state contest will participate in the national Rodeo where a $4,000 scholarship and the free use of a new Mercury Cougar for a year constitute the top award.

Hinds, in urging participation by all local and area teenagers, said the written test will include 50 questions taken from the Texas Drivers Handbook. Entry forms, he said should be picked up from the drivers education instructor at Pampa High School or at Bill Harris Lincoln-Mercury.

Four officers from the Department of Public Safety will be judges in the driving contest portion of the Rodeo.

The Jaycee project is held to promote safer driving by teens in the Pampa area.

Additional qualifications for entry in the rodeo include these: (1) the student must not have turned 19 years of age before August 1, 1968, (2) not be married until after the national finals which will be held the first week in August, (3) not have a pending charge of a moving violation and not have been convicted of such violation in the six months prior to the national finals.

Vietnamese Village Levelled By Assault

By JACK WALSH
SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. paratroopers today wiped out a North Vietnamese battalion and possibly saved the city of Hue from a second murderous Communist invasion.

The Americans counted at least 277 corpses in the ruins of Phuoc Yen village, five miles northwest of Hue, and captured at least 50 other North Vietnamese. Many were caught hiding in a river and breathing through hollow reeds.

UPI Correspondent Raymond M. Wilkinson reported from the battle that the victors at Phuoc Yen and another paratrooper fight nearby was credited by American officers with apparently blocking a May Day Communist invasion drive against Hue, the former imperial capital 400 miles north of Saigon.

The battling which began Monday and ended today took place on the fringes of the 12-day-old allied sweep into the A Shau Valley, the key base for Communist drives in South Vietnam's northern provinces.

More than 4,000 Communists were killed in their February invasion of Hue. Only Tuesday U.S. officials said the Red invaders beheaded, buried alive, shot or clubbed to death at least 1,000 civilians in the city.

To prevent a repeat and to protect other allied bases and Vietnamese population centers, the allies swept into A Shau April 19 and this week cut the main North Vietnamese supply lines. They also drove through Hue's suburbs. Monday troops of the U.S. Army 101st Airborne Division and South Vietnamese Black Panthers caught the North Vietnamese battalion near Phuoc Yen.

In the Phuoc Yen fighting, allied casualties were light, U.S. spokesmen said.

U.S. intelligence officers tentatively identified the destroyed battalion as North Vietnam's 8th Battalion of the 90th Regiment. They said it probably had recently moved south from the mountain hideouts north of Hue.

Farther north, just under the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) dividing South from North Vietnam, heavy fighting raged Tuesday for the second consecutive day near the Leatherneck base of Dong Ha. In three days, Marines and South Vietnamese troops killed 327.

American Party Names Locations For Registration

The American Party has announced places for registration Saturday.

The party, which supports Gov. Wallace, Alabama Governor Wallace for president, is attempting to get sufficient registrations Saturday to put Wallace's name on the ballot in the Texas Nov. 5 general election.

The Texas Election Code requires that a third party candidate have the endorsement of almost 15,000 qualified voters in order to get on the general election ballot.

Wallace supporters say they hope to get the names with a campaign across the state Saturday.

Gray County precinct registration places and precinct chairmen for the American Party are: Prec. 1—M. E. Gifford, Lefora; Prec. 2—L. P. Gilliam, 1212 E. Foster, Pampa; Prec. 3—George B. Collins, south of Pampa; Prec. 4—unannounced; Prec. 5—John Haynes, Triangle Service Station, McLean; Prec. 6—Ralph McGlothlen, Laketon; Prec. 7—Bill Thompson, 215 N. Somerville, Pampa; Prec. 11—unannounced; Prec. 12—Jerry Perry, 940 S. Hobart, Pampa; Prec. 13—Quentin Archer, west of Pampa; Prec. 14—Bill Rutledge, 1129 Seneca, Pampa.

Political Pot Boils As Governor Plans Television Talk Tonight

AUSTIN (UPI)—Action in the Texas political circus ring is speeding up with the relentless approach of the May 4 primary and one of the star performers—Gov. John Connally—goes on television tonight and Thursday to discuss "matters of urgency to our state and nation."

Sources said Connally planned to talk about Saturday's precinct Democratic conventions, where he hopes to win the support that will eventually bestow the favorite son presidential nomination and control of the Texas delegation to the national convention on him.

Connally's bid for continued control of the state party has encountered some opposition from supporters of Sens. Eugene McCarthy and Robert Kennedy at the precinct level, but they concede they have little chance of wresting party control from him.

Connally has said the governor's race is the most important of the century to Texas because of the impending loss of national leadership. When President Johnson returns this year, it will mark the first time in almost 40 years that Texas has not had a president, vice president or top congressional leader.

Connally is not expected to endorse anyone in the governor's race, but sources said he may make a general statement about that race along the lines of his previous comments.

Crime In Streets Problem Taken Up By Senators

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate took up today the major national problem, and key political issue, of crime in the streets.

Before it is finished the body must pass on some of the hottest controversies in public discussion—control of guns, regulation of wiretapping, federal versus local control of anticrime funds, and court handling of confessions.

The basic proposal is the administration's so-called safe streets and crime control bill, a four-part measure designed to improve state and local law enforcement through federal grants for training and research.

The package drew for from unanimous approval of the Senate Judiciary Committee and it faced about 20 major efforts to amend it, by Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen's estimate.

The committee voted to authorize $100 million for the program's first year—as requested by President Johnson—and $200 million for the second year. It earmarked $15 million for riot control and $15 million for the fight against organized crime in the first year.

A major disputed provision of the bill is the machinery for allocating crime-fighting funds. The administration recommended allowing the attorney general to distribute the funds directly to state, county, and city communities, and the committee agreed by a slender 8 to 7 vote.

The House, in approving its version of the bill last year, provided for "bloc grants" to state anticrime agencies, which then would allocate the money to communities. This view has substantial support among Republicans and Southerners in the Senate.

The gun control section adopted by the committee would ban mail order sales of handguns and limit over-the-counter purchases to state residents 21 and over. It faces opponents both to liberalize it and to tighten it.

New City Manager Takes Reins

Pampa's new city manager, Charles V. Hill, took over the reins of municipal government this morning.

One of his first official acts was to call a get-acquainted conference of all city department heads at 11 a.m. in the commission room of City Hall.

Hill explained he scheduled the session "just to meet everyone and impart some ideas on the operation of city government."

The new city manager succeeds Jim White who resigned to become city manager of Denton. White began his new duties there this morning.

City Manager Hill has been an assistant city manager at Austin, the job he was holding when he was invited to become a candidate for the Pampa post.

The 34-year-old city manager is married and the father of two children. He said today his family will come to Pampa around June 1, following the close of school in Austin.

Michael Rabin's performance, especially in the area of tonal and dynamic nuance, was great. That is positively all that can be said.

Berlioz is a master of orchestration. He composed in a day when the orchestra was growing and beginning to challenge the piano's position as the prima donna of the concert stage. According to the experts, Berlioz' music is lengthy and not too well put together, but in all other respects it is superb. This pretty adequately describes the Romeo and Juliet Suite. The orchestra gave this one a very poetic and scholarly reading.

The closing number, El Salon Mexico, by the contemporary American, Aaron Copland, with its use of Spanish folk songs and musical gadgetry, was fetching indeed.

Throughout the entire evening the music was all of the finest quality and the capacity Pampa audience showed its appreciation.

Symphony Orchestra's Music Fine And Soloist's Performance 'Great'

By BILL HALEY
Daylight saving time made it seem almost like mid-afternoon but at 8 p.m. the Pampa Community Concert Association has been using for some twenty-five years now. It was the last concert of a very long season and featured the National Symphony Orchestra of Washington, with Howard Mitchell conducting and Michael Rabin, violinist, as guest soloist.

The Egmont Overture was ideally placed on the program. The opener is always for the purpose of allowing the audience a chance to become comfortable before it begins to listen. This was good music and well performed but one wonders if Beethoven's immense usage could have resulted from this composition or dozens like it.

The concerto in E Minor is a different matter. It, along with the incidental music to a Midsummer Night's Dream is Mendelssohn's best, and it is almost as recognizable as "Yankee Doodle."

Throughout the entire evening the music was all of the finest quality and the capacity Pampa audience showed its appreciation.

Top School Man To Be Named Soon

Pampa's new school superintendent probably will be named within the next week.

School board members met for three and a half hours last night and went over the complete list of 30 applicants again and then studied further the seven prospects already interviewed.

Board president John Gikas said it was decided not to interview any more applicants, at least for the time being. Instead, Gikas stated, the board would conduct personal investigations of the men already interviewed.

It seemed likely from the opinion of board members, according to Gikas, that one of the seven probably will be chosen for the post.

"However," the board president said, "nothing is definite on the choice until we complete our investigation of the candidates' backgrounds."

Gikas said the board probably would meet the first of next week when it is probable the final decision on the man for the post will be made.

Firemen reported two coils yesterday evening, neither of them serious.

An 8:15 p.m. fire at 401 Yearner caused heavy damage under the hood of a 1959 model auto and owner Harold Masters received second degree burns on one hand.

A 10:40 p.m. alarm at 4026 E. Grooving in City Hall shortly before a light bulb which was too close to the ceiling, firemen say. No damage was reported.

PEP TALK — City government is a service organization and service to the people who pay the bills should be its principal aim, new city manager Charles Hill told city department heads in an informal 15-minute get-acquainted talk at City Hall shortly before noon today. "I have no plans for major changes," Hill said. "Just keep on doing your job well." Hill, seated on end of the table, took over his new post here this morning.

Interior Decorator Is Producer Of 'Luxury'

By PATRICIA McCormack
NEW YORK (UPI) Carleton Varney fixes flats.

A descendant of Miles Standish, military leader of the Pilgrims, Varney also fixes suites at the Greenbriar in White Sulphur Springs, W.Va.—And posh pads for people who like their comfort brimming with luxury around the world.

The interior designer made the grand ballroom of a New York hotel resemble St. Petersburg before the Russian Revolution.

He did it with two miles of white silk and another of red. The occasion: A gala dinner dance following the premiere of "War and Peace"—the six and one-half hour spectacular movie imported from Russia.

Decorates Your Apartment
Varney, 31, and president of prestigious Dorothy Draper & Co., doesn't let such things go to his head. He is much interested in interiors of development houses and plain Jane or Joe apartments.

Tips to people who live in flats are in his "You and Your Apartment" (Bobbs Merrill). In the fall, other advice comes out between the covers of "The Family Decorates a Home."

The latter contains many points about fixing up your home with handcrafted things—including valances made of construction paper.

Varney is a great believer in making things out of items some people assign to city dumps. Take those large spools phone companies wind wires on before stringing them up.

"You've seen them in the streets," he said, "but I'll bet your never thought of it. They make wonderful cocktail tables."

He figures a cocktail table can't ever be too large. A simple one, for example, should be capable of holding flowers, magazines, munchies, cigarette box, candy and probably glasses, and ice bucket.

If you make yours out of a spool that once held wiring, use the hole in the center for a flower holder.

Other tips from Varney: "A room is for living in, not for show. If you can't live in it, it belongs in a museum or keep it where it is and put a velvet rope across the door."

"You don't have to combine periods of furniture unless you are doing a restoration. The furnishings in a home should be like a scrapbook—not all one thing, but reflecting periods of your life. Home represents the persons who live there."

"Sky blue is a good background color, especially for small rooms. God used it as the background of his universe."

"Use a collection of inexpensive yard-long throw rugs to carpet your stairs. Alternate colors for an unusual effect."

Area Woman's Son Has Name, 'Mr. Ecumenical'

WITH U.S. COMBAT AIR FORCES, VIETNAM—A U.S. Air Force sergeant at Phan Rang AB, Vietnam, might be called "Mr. Ecumenical."

Sergeant John J. Engle, son of Mrs. Norma B. Engle of McLean, Tex., is a combat news reporter with the 35th Tactical Fighter Wing. He serves as the chapel organist during his off duty time. This would not be so much an oddity, except he plays for eight different services each Sunday, including three different denominations.

On Sunday Engle reports to the base chapel at 8:30 a.m. to play for the early Catholic Mass. Following closely at 9:30 is the Lutheran service. At 10:30, General Protestant Services begin with Engle still at the console. Following a short break, he returns at noon for the midday Catholic Mass.

During the afternoon, Engle, a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints (Mormon) attends and plays for his own services which start at 3:30 and last until 5:30 P.M. As soon as LDS personnel leave the chapel, the Catholic choir meets for a short rehearsal before evening Mass. Following the rehearsal, a short stroll and a drink of water, Engle again sits at the organ and starts the prelude for the evening Catholic Mass.

As soon as the Mass has ended, the altar is changed and the General Protestant evening service begins. At the close of the Protestant service a general hymn sing starts and lasts for an hour.

Finally, at 9 p.m. Engle locks the organ for the day.

A graduate of Enid (Okla.) High School, he has attended Phillips University, Enid, and Oklahoma City University.

The sergeant's wife, Karen, is the daughter of Mrs. Ruth G. White of Rt. 1, Aline, Okla.

ROBERT SHACKELFORD ... gets college vote

Pampan Named 'Most Handsome'

Robert Lee Shackelford, Frank Phillips College sophomore from Pampa, was recognized as FPC's most handsome collegian at the annual Spring Formal last Saturday evening in the dining hall of Frank Phillips.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. U. Shackelford, 2129 Lynn. His hobbies include tennis, hunting and fishing. Shackelford is a gifted guitarist, majoring in music. He was also a nominee for "Plainsman of the Year."

The dining hall became an "Isle of Golden Dreams" for the annual Dinner-Dance hosted by the freshman class to honor the graduating sophomores. The tropical night scene was created with leis, palm trees, hula girls, and a colorful, lighted fountain. The table decorations were in keeping with the Hawaiian theme.

Briscoe Boosts Education, Crime Prevention In Address Here Today

Two major things combine to form his philosophy of government, Dolph Briscoe, Uvalde rancher and candidate for governor of Texas, told a break-fast audience in the Coronado Inn Starlight Room today.

These two things, Briscoe stated, are (1) safe-guarding the lives and property of the people and (2) making certain that each individual has an opportunity to work out his destiny according to his talents.

"Without protection of our lives and property," he said, "there can only be chaos. We must give our law officers backing of the state administration and it must be made clear that we in Texas will not stand for any type of disorder or lawlessness."

Discussing the second point of his philosophy of government, Briscoe said:

"We must make vocational and technical education full partners in our state school system. There must be training of this sort for those who cannot go on with their education. It is important to the future of industrial development in our state."

Briscoe said every community in the state should strive for a bigger and better supply of skilled workers.

"It is absolutely necessary to maintain a favorable business climate," he said, "and the state should lend every possible aid in this direction."

The gubernatorial candidate said he felt that each community has a challenge to meet the growth of the state's dynamic economy.

"Texas is on the threshold of the greatest economic development in the state's history," he added.

Winners of the sorority's honors were Mrs. Jack Byrd, Upsilon Chapter; Mrs. Bill Tarpley, Xi Theta Iota Chapter; Mrs. James Trusty, Xi Beta Chi Chapter; and Mrs. James Lee, Rho Eta Chapter; Mrs. David Duffy, Phi Epsilon Beta Chapter winner, has moved to Fort Worth. Perceptor Chi Chapter did not name a girl of the year.

Beta Sigma Phi City Council Officers installed in a candlelight ceremony by Mrs. Thelma Bray were Mrs. Robert Brogden, president; Mrs. Warren Chisum, vice president; Mrs. Jack Vaughn, recording secretary; Mrs. Gary Clark, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Ralph Esson, treasurer; and Mrs. Charles Jeffries, parliamentarian.

Band Enters Enid Music Festival

Pampa High School band and choir students will compete in the 26th annual Tri-state Music Festival in Enid, Okla., today through Sunday.

PHS choir will enter 20 soloists and two ensembles, a trio and a quartet. The annual competition is expected to include 230 schools from six states. Judges will consider performances of 14,342 participants from 487 performing groups.

Since both the band and choir are entered the PHS music representatives are eligible to compete for sweepstakes honors, a first division in all events entered.

In 1967, the band took first division honors for all events it entered, the concert band, sight reading, marching, stage band and street parade.

States to be represented are Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Louisiana, Arkansas and Mississippi.

WJAR-TV, Rhode Island's first television station, went on the air July 10, 1949.

Bids Accepted By Commission

International Harvester Co. here submitted the low bid of $8,758 for six two-ton cab and chassis with trade-ins for Pct. 2 at this forenoon's session of the Gray County commissioners court.

Bids on equipment for two other precincts were also opened and low bids accepted. Airport improvement bids were opened and accepted but final approval of the bids is pending with the Federal Aviation Administration.

Culbertson-Stowers Chevrolet Co. submitted the low bid of $1,580, with trade-in, for a new pickup for Pct. 1. Crossman Implement Co. submitted the low bid of $4,565 for a new four-wheel tractor for Pct. 3.

In other business, the commissioners paid bills and cancelled returns from the county school trustees election.

PHS spokesman said: "He probably will be at March Air Force Base for several weeks and eventually will be transferred to Walter Reed General Hospital (in Washington D.C.) near his home for convalescence."

The announcement was made a full day after Eisenhower was whisked by helicopter to the hospital from his home at Eldorado Country Club in Indian Wells, 34 miles away.

The Air Force assigned Eisenhower a suite of rooms embracing half of the top floor of this 200-bed, five-story hospital, a concrete and glass structure on the edge of the base.

The huge white room in which the former President is staying has a double bed, a desk, a television set and two chairs. The windows look out on a nearby mountain range.

Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower, who motored to the hospital Monday night to join her husband, has a room next door to his.

Eisenhower, who suffered "some chest discomfort" Monday, had a good day Tuesday with no chest pain, the Air Force spokesman said. "Blood pressure has remained normal, and he has no fever."

Like many bed-ridden heart patients, Eisenhower was on a low calorie diet with salt kept to a minimum. The diet was designed to hold down his weight while he is recovering. He has private nursing service around the clock.

The diagnosis of Eisenhower's ailment as a heart attack was made by two military physicians from Walter Reed Hospital, who flew to March AFB early Tuesday in a plane made available by President Johnson.

Eisenhower suffered his first heart attack in Denver, in September 1955, near the end of his first term as President. He recovered and was reelected. Two subsequent heart attacks occurred in November 1965, in Augusta, Ga.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—Hayden Stone Inc. comments that "despite an obvious pause of forward momentum early last week and the somewhat more cautious atmosphere in which the general market is now operating there still is no lack of aggressive demand for the right stocks." The company says that "no signs of important distribution have appeared yet and most technical market indicators remain in favorable positions."

Spear and Staff Inc. feels that the upside momentum might have lost "some of its zip," but says "this is nothing to worry about" since a "temporary breather" is to be expected after an across-the-board advance of 10 per cent. The company offers the opinion that investors should welcome such a pause "since the record shows that very long linear advances are usually terminated with sharp slumps" and "a progression of two steps forward and one back is better than a brisk dash capped by a collapse."

May Day Speakers In Attacks On US

By WALTER LOGAN
United Press International
Soviet Defense Minister Andrei Grechko accused the United States today of creating the threat of a new world war by "imperialistic" adventures in Vietnam. His speech in Moscow set the tone of worldwide Communist observation of May Day.

Much of the May Day observance was spent in holiday partying in the non-Communist countries but police were out in force in Rome, West Berlin and Madrid in expectation of student anti-government riots. A silent protest was planned in Warsaw.

The first rioting was reported from Madrid where riot police swinging clubs waded into hundreds of workers staging a May Day demonstration in the heart of the Spanish capital. Police charged into large groups milling in front of a state-run union headquarters and were greeted by shouts of "Liberty! Liberty!"

In Berlin, West German Foreign Minister Willy Brandt accused the Communist regime in East Germany of provoking a new Berlin crisis in an attempt to sabotage East-West relaxation of tensions. He also warned the Western allies that Bonn will not be satisfied with routine protests against recent Communist attempts to restrict travel across East Germany to and from West Berlin.

While the Soviet defense minister was lambasting U.S. "imperialism," West German "revenge-seeking" and Israeli "aggression," Red China was attacking the United States, the Soviet Union and Mao Tse-tung's foes at home.

Contract Talks Completed By Post Office, Union

Revival services will begin at 7:30 p.m. tonight at the First Assembly of God Church as Rev. J. S. McMullen preaches his last series of sermons at the church where he has been minister for 13 years. He has announced his retirement at the church to enter full-time evangelistic work.

Vandals Hit Firms

Vandalism was reported to Pampa police this morning by three Pampa businesses, all involving plate glass windows broken by rocks.

Wards Grocery, 502 W. Francis, reported approximately $85 damage, Call Studio, 618 W. Francis, approximately $50 damage; and Brook Electric, 1101 Alcock, approximately $75 damage. It was the second time in two weeks vandals had stoned Brooks Electric.

The owner of the Western Motel reported that three youths threw beer bottles at the motel, but no damage was reported.

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—With the television season virtually over, it seems a decent time to stop complaining for a few moments and, instead, recall some network highlights of the past year.

In the news-documentary field since last May, for instance, one thinks of CBS-TV's four-parters on "The Warren Report," and of the same network's "Eric Hoffer: The Passionate State of Mind" and "The Anderson Platoon."

ABC-TV had the four-broad-cast "Africa," and also "How Life Begins" about the process of birth. NBC-TV had "Khrushchev in Exile—His Opinions and Revelations," and "The JFK Conspiracy: The Case of Jim Garrison," and "Same Mud, Same Blood," and "American Profile: The Forgotten Peninsula," about Baja California.

Cousteau Series Outstanding
There was "The Undersea World of Jacques Cousteau" series on ABC-TV, and there were the National Geographic specials on CBS-TV, and National Educational Television offered "Our World," a two-hour live global broadcast. ABC-TV had the three-part "The Rise and Fall of the Third Reich."

NBC-TV was a solid source of good work in its Friday night documentary and "Telephone Hour" excursions. And CBS-TV presented "Hanoi: A Report by Charles Collingwood" and "How Israel Won the War" and "The Weapons of Gordon Parks," and "JFK — The Childhood Years: Memoir for Television by his Mother."

Among entertainment shows, there were the NBC-TV specials of Frank and Nancy Sinatra, Fred Astaire and Alan King—and two by Jack Paar: "A funny Thing Happened on the Way to Hollywood," and "A funny Thing Happened Everywhere." NBC-TV also had "Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In" and the Dean Martin series, and the play "The Hamster of Happiness" on the network's "Experiment in Television" workshop.

CRAZY CUT
DALLAS (UPI)—An East Dallas family, in the midst of cleaning up their yard, turned off the electric lawn mower and rushed for cover when a sudden hail storm struck the area Sunday.

The marble sized hail struck the starting switch on the mower and sent it rampaging across the lawn unattended. The family, who would not go after the berserk mower, called police who came and turned it off.

STUDENTS CLASH
ANKARA, Turkey (UPI)—Students for and against the United States clashed in downtown Ankara Monday, using iron bars, clubs, sticks and stones to fight one another before police moved in and separated them. Officials said 55 persons were injured, including 15 policemen, and 70 students were arrested.

'Berlin Wall' Is Still Frustrating Travelers

By WELLINGTON LONG
BERLIN (UPI)—The Communists like to claim that the wall they built to separate East from West Berlin is no more than a normal frontier between two sovereign states.

But to those whose business requires them to go through the wall it is anything but normal. The West Berlin police at "Checkpoint Charlie" on the Friedrichstrasse wave the traveler past without even leaving the shade of a tree.

A hundred yards farther on, the traveler reaches a narrow gap in a high wall of cement blocks. An East German policeman who has been studying the approaching car and its driver through binoculars hands the traveler a numbered slip, then raises an electrically powered barrier made of 10-inch steel pipe to let him through.

Armed Soldier
The driver moves on, now noticing a soldier with a submachine gun standing just behind the wall.

Weaving through a slalom formed by a maze of cement block walls designed to prevent a passenger car from zipping through, the traveler eventually is directed to a parking lot. There he leaves the car and enters a long, narrow wooden shack.

Passport and car papers are snatched away by another policeman, who hands them through a tiny window in the wall behind him. The traveler is given a complicated customs declaration form to fill out. The passport after some delay reappears through that little window.

Pertinent date has been recorded by hand in a large register, and the traveler's name has been checked against a blacklist.

After a cross-examination to insure the traveler is carrying no presents or Western publications and has stated the exact sum of all Western money he has with him—he is forbidden to bring East German currency into East Germany—he moves on to the banking window.

There he is required to buy a minimum of $1.25 worth of East German marks for each day he is to remain in the East. He is given the official rate of four marks for $1. The actual rate in West Berlin money houses is 12 marks to the dollar.

The whole thing takes 15 minutes. Back at the parking lot another officer gives the car a thorough search. He feels around in the corners of the motor and luggage compartments, pulling the floor mats away to see if anything has been stuck behind them.

He orders the seats removed. He rolls a square mirror on wheels beneath the car to check the underside.

Final Barrier
At last the traveler is free to continue driving through the slalom. After yet another officer checks his papers at the far end, the last barrier is raised, and he is in East Berlin.

Going back to the West, the Communists put him through the same routine he experienced on the way in. The car is searched once more. Again, the passport and other papers disappear.

The returnee is required to give an exact accounting of any money he may have spent, and produce a sales ticket for anything he bought. He is made to empty the contents of his luggage and often required to go into a back room for search of his clothing.

The Crazy World of Washington

By LEON BURNETT
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Odds and ends from the nation's capital—mostly odd:
The Interior Department has gone careening out of its rut. It has adopted a new official seal. The one being scrapped showed a buffalo against a backdrop of mountains and the first sun. It was the fifth since the department was founded in 1849.

This is how they went, according to the announcement of the latest change:
"The first Interior seal featured an American eagle. It was supplanted by another eagle seal in 1913, which gave way to a buffalo in 1917, which was supplanted by another eagle in 1923 until 1929, when the latest buffalo seal again displaced the bird."

The latest one? An Indian-looking hieroglyph which—the announcement obligingly explained—represents "the sun, mountains, water...framed by a stylized pair of hands."

Mrs. J. William Stanton, wife of the Republican congressman from Ohio, and a speaker at a ladies' lunch, referred to presidential grandsons Lyn gen—as "Nuams"
Nugent as "that superbaby in the White House."
"If he's walking and talking at nine months," she said, "What's he going to be doing in November?"

Maybe this was Hubert H. Humphrey's first "if elected" campaign promise.
He sent a telegram to members of the California Congressional delegation who put on a winetasting in Police protection and correctional institutions in the United States during 1965 cost $3.8 billion.

Fresh water porpoises are considered the most primitive of the species, says the Miami Seaquarium.

Washington, regretting he couldn't attend and saying:
The forthcoming election may bring some changes, and I can't president, but I will venture to say that the next occupant of the White House will continue our present policy of proudly serving our American wines."

James Bond is one of the latest army officers to make major.
His designation is cleverly concealed in his serial number: 04071198.

Politics And War Top News In April

United Press International
 "There is a division in the American house now. There is divisiveness among us all tonight. Holding the trust that is mine—as President of all the people—I cannot disregard the peril to the progress of the American people and the hope and prospects of peace for all people"—Lyndon B. Johnson in announcing March 31 that he would not seek or accept renomination for President.

By ARNOLD B. SAWISLAK
 WASHINGTON (UPI)—It was not your ordinary flowers-and-showers kind of April. The war got cooler, the cities got hotter and politics continued confused.

The month began with shocks of the intensity seldom registered over an entire year. On March 31, President Johnson withdrew from the 1968 presidential race and announced a partial cessation of bombing in North Vietnam. On April 4, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., was killed and some of the nation's Negro ghettos roared with looting and arson.

The politicians, mercifully, were subdued in the aftermath of the King murder, and with some exceptions, during the riots. But by the end of the month, the office-seekers and their friends were back in full cry, with one and possibly two new candidates for the presidency in the field.

In a sense, the events of the month capsulized the surging issues that politics in 1968 is all about. The war in Vietnam and how to end it had provided the hook for both Senators Eugene J. McCarthy and Robert F. Kennedy to hang their Democratic nomination campaigns. Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, in the Republican camp, had made his blackest headlines with an "end the war, win the peace" plan.

Johnson's new move toward negotiations, coupled with his own withdrawal, changed the game. Nixon, who wanted to save his ammunition any way, announced he was not going to make things harder for Johnson by kibitzing. Kennedy and McCarthy didn't go that far, but it was clear that both had to find some other subjects to thump.

The sudden and ugly reappearance of racial violence projected the politicians into the subject months before they had expected. Plans to rebuild the ghettos and elevate their residents were quickly unfurled. So were suggestions for cracking down hard on rioters.

The one piece of congressional work during April that might affect the campaign was final passage of legislation designed to eventually outlaw racial discrimination in housing. All three major party aspirants supported it.

Nixon, Kennedy and McCarthy campaigned hard during April, but their work was mostly forward-looking. Nixon had no opposition in Wisconsin April 2 and wasn't entered in Pennsylvania and Massachusetts. McCarthy did very well indeed in Wisconsin against an organized Johnson write-in, and ran without even token opposition in the other two primaries.

Humphrey Enters Fray
 Kennedy and McCarthy spent April alone in the Democratic contest, but they knew someone was looking over their shoulders. Sure enough Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey announced April 27 he was in the race.

Even though pro-administration (or anti-Kennedy) governors had failed to line up a phalanx of state organizations behind Humphrey in mid-April, the vice president looked like a strong contender. For example, he apparently captured 49 Maryland convention votes before the echoes of his announcement had died.

Nixon continued in solitary grandeur, honing his new image of a relaxed and tolerant observer of other folks' travails. But the shadow of his Fifth Avenue neighbor, Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, still crossed Nixon's path. As the month went on, there was more and more talk that the governor would become an active candidate after all. He eventually announced that he would run.

By STEWART HENSLEY
 WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States and Hanoi have argued for one month over where to hold initial peace "contacts," and many high officials here are beginning to doubt that North Vietnam really wants sincere negotiations.

April began on a note of high hope after President Johnson's March 31 order restricting the bombing of North Vietnam, offering to talk peace and renouncing all future political ambitions as evidence of his sincerity.

The month ends with no major progress on the peace front, considerable gloom over any possibility of progress in the near future—a greater realization of the massive gap which separates the major adversaries in the Southeast Asia conflict.

The simple question of where to meet to seek the ground rules for full scale peace negotiations appeared at first to be a matter easy to resolve, particularly in the light of Johnson's previously expressed willingness to send a representative to "any spot on earth" for this purpose. It has not proved that simple.

No Compromise
 The argument over the location for initial talks has taken on major significance. It has become a symbol of the willingness, at least, of both sides to compromise.

When Johnson announced he was ready to talk and was restricting bombing, a wave of euphoria appeared to sweep the United States, reflected most graphically in the stock market. When Hanoi, on April 3, said it was accepting the President's invitation to talk, the optimism increased.

Officials realized, but apparently most of the world did not, the extremely limited nature of Hanoi's response. It agreed to send ambassadorial representatives to talk to the United States but only about the specific question of when the Americans would end all bombing of the North, which the Communists have insisted from the beginning must precede any real negotiations.

After one month, the two sides have not even agreed on this. The United States, by virtue of what appears to be rather inept handling of the situation, has put itself in a poorer light than it really deserves.

Johnson started out with two strikes on him because he was not able to make good on his previous promise to "go anywhere, at any time," to talk peace.

Argue Meeting Place
 The United States after being advised Hanoi was willing to talk, suggested on April 4 that the two parties meet in Geneva or some other "mutually agreeable place." Hanoi countered on April 8 with an official message that it wanted to meet in Phnom Penh, the capital of Cambodia. The United States, which has no diplomatic relations or communications with Cambodia, replied that it found this place "unsuitable" and came back with a counter proposal to meet in India, Burma, Indonesia, or Laos.

Hanoi found these sites "inadequate" and on April 11 proposed Warsaw as a possible location.

The United States added 10 more proposed locations to the American list—four in Europe and six in Asia.

Today the matter stands about where it did two weeks ago. A series of meetings between North Vietnamese and American representatives in Laos has failed to break the deadlock about where to hold initial contacts.

This unhappy capital finds little if any more hope for peace at the end of April than it did at the beginning, when the hopes of many ran naively high.

THE LIGHTER SIDE New Exercise Program

By DICK WEST
 WASHINGTON (UPI)—This is the first of a two-part series on "aerobics," the new exercise program that is sweeping the country.

(Sweeping, incidentally, isn't a bad exercise itself. But I am only using it here as a figure of speech. So don't get confused.)
 I realize there already have been numerous articles on aerobics and that a two-part series may be somewhat excessive. However, most of the other articles were based on hearsay. That is, the authors had not actually tried the program themselves.

They merely quoted from the aerobics book written by Maj. Kenneth Cooper of the Air Force Medical Corps. I don't operate that way.

Real Research
 When I write about something, I like to do so from first hand knowledge. So a couple of weeks ago I obtained a copy of Cooper's book and embarked on the program.

What Cooper has done is determine the precise amounts of oxygen that jogging, cycling and other exercises add to the body. From this he has devised a time-distance formula, or point system, which shows whether the oxygen intake is sufficient to benefit one's lungs, heart, tissues, arteries and gullets.

Thus he has elevated to an exact science what had previously been rather haphazard and formless exertions.

One begins the aerobics program by taking a fitness test. This is done by running as far as possible in 12 minutes. Including rest stops.

Long Driveway
 I ran as far as I could in 12 minutes and then I measured the distance on the mileage meter of my car. I won't say how far I got but the car was still in the driveway.

This week I tested myself again to check my progress. I was delighted to discover I have already reached the fitness level that Cooper classifies as "very poor."

Since that is the lowest level, this may not seem like much of an accomplishment. But two weeks ago my condition wasn't even on the chart.

I am confident that before the summer is over I can build myself up to the "poor" level. Which is something to look forward to, oxygen-wise.

However, I am not certain I will continue the program. During one of the rest stops, I suddenly had a disturbing thought—a question that Cooper's book doesn't answer. I shall discuss this with you in the next installment. Providing the suspense doesn't kill you first.

Resolution Reminders Are Needed To Warn Women of Summer 'Sins'

NEW YORK (NEA) — Would you believe it has nothing to do with not kicking the cat anymore or squandering papa's dough. It concerns all the sins committed by women in the name of fashion. It could read like this — choose your own poison:

—RESOLVED: I will not take a vacation from beauty every week-end. Therefore when I go for the family groceries, I will leave my plastic rollers at home where they belong at all times.

—RESOLVED: Four pairs of false eyelashes teamed with white and brown shadow should never be seen in the light of day.

—RESOLVED: Long, hanging hair, my own or a fall, is only for the very young. Alice looked charming because she was a child. An office is not the Wonderland of Lewis Carroll.

—RESOLVED: Hanging earrings and jangling bracelets look silly in the picture when the only props are a desk and a typewriter. I'll save them for after-five.

—RESOLVED: Tortlenecks may be fashionable. But my neck is too short and they make me look as though my head grew out of my shoulders. I won't wear them anymore.

—RESOLVED: I will bend and stretch. The waist is back and I can no longer hide under a tent.

—RESOLVED: My upper arms are too heavy for sleeveless dresses. I can do without them. Sleeves are fashion news now, to boot.

—RESOLVED: My legs are too heavy to be attractive. I will not make a focal point of them by wearing a miniskirt.

—RESOLVED: My legs didn't get any thinner since that last resolution. I will not wear fishnet stockings and have fleshy little bumps pop out all over both gams. I can be as au courant as the next gal in opaque hose with no holes.

—RESOLVED: I have the right figure for a miniskirt. But when I wear one, I will be sure I can bend over without looking like the wash on someone's clothesline. I will coordinate my underpinnings with my outer-wear.

—RESOLVED: If I continue to wear high heels, fancy stockings and a short-short skirt, someone is sure to suggest I buy a beaded bag and go to work. I'll give up THAT look.

—RESOLVED: No more Mary Jane pumps on my little flat feet since my face shows many moons have passed since Toy-land was mecca to me.

—RESOLVED: Before I rush out to buy a dress that looked great in Vogue or Harper's Bazaar, I'll make sure my dimensions aren't greater than those of the model who posed in the dear little frock.

—RESOLVED: I will try wearing a hat when I really want to look dressed. A hat does add the final dramatic touch to the complete fashion look.

—RESOLVED: The next time I read the slick fashion magazines I will remember that I don't have to buy everything recommended on all the pages and wear it all at once.

—RESOLVED: I am an individual—a type all my own. I will choose my clothes, hair-do and make-up to enhance MY looks. True fashion is looking MY best, not following the herd.

It's lots more fun to be admired than laughed at. And if you look your greatest and not like everyone else who knows what good things may come to pass for you in 1968?

By Abigail Van Buren

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I know you will find this hard to believe, but every word of it is true: There is an elderly gentleman (in his eighties) living in a small single room in a local hotel. This man has married children and grandchildren in town who hardly look at him.

He can't dress himself, or bathe very well, and his eyesight is failing, so the maids help him. (The maids take better care of him than his own family.)

Several months ago, a maid found him on the bathroom floor. He had fallen the night before and couldn't get up, so he just laid there, cold and shivering all night.

He eats only once a day on a tray sent to his room, and that is usually oatmeal and coffee. On Sundays the kitchen is closed, so he doesn't eat from Saturday until Monday morning.

How can people be so heartless? Today is Sunday, and I believe me, Abby, my appetite is gone just thinking about that poor, old neglected man.

DEAR WANTS: The limits of self-respect will provide the answer. A boy who has genuine affection for a girl will never do anything that will degrade her, or make her feel ashamed. Courtship is preparation for marriage. Ask any boy how far he would like the girl he marries to go on a date. And if he's honest, you'll have an honest answer.

DEAR ABBY: You recently printed a letter from someone who said if an adopted child turns out bad, it could be because of "bad blood." Well, my blood ("bad or otherwise") boiled.

I was adopted when I was an infant. I don't know exactly how old I was when I learned about it but it was early enough for me to say, "Yes, I know," when a cousin whispered what he thought was a big secret.

Much later I became curious about my natural parents. After satisfying that normal curiosity, I promptly put it aside and seldom think about it until some ignoramus makes a statement about "bad blood." Then I blow up.

Of course, heredity is a factor, but the strongest force in shaping a child's character is environment, and an adopted child will be more like the couple who adopted him than anyone else.

However, here is one fact that seems to be overlooked. The adopted child KNOWS that he was wanted, and that he's not in the family because she forgot to take "the pill," or they got drunk one night. For this reason the adopted child should be especially secure in the knowledge that he is loved by his adopted parents.

If you print this, please use my right name. I'm proud of it. C. WAYNE WALTERS: MEMPHIS

Menswear Specialist Advises List Of Fashionable Resolutions for 1968

By BOB COCHNAR
NEA Menswear Specialist

New Year's resolutions being what they are, no matter what month you make yours, it is probably folly to prepare another little list of things to do and not to do in 1968. But lists are, nevertheless, good exercises in will power.

There are a lot of pieces which must fit together to create that total fashion "look" in which more and more men are fortunately interested these days. For example, a well-fitting, nicely styled suit teamed with a pair of white anklets just doesn't work.

So, at the risk of being branded a nit-picker, here are a few resolutions.

RESOLVED: I will make sure my shoes are always well-polished and are kept in good repair. Broken laces and worn heels are obvious and sloppy.

RESOLVED: I will hang up my suits each evening and that I will give each of them proper breathing space in the closet. I'll make sure my pocket flaps are smooth and my hangers are molded to fit the jacket shoulders.

RESOLVED: When I remove my tie at night, I'll give it a gentle stretch to straighten the inner lining and tie fabric. My ties will hereafter be wrinkle-free.

RESOLVED: When I am measured for a suit I will make sure the coat sleeve is the proper length. The edge of the cuff should hit just below the wrist joint, leaving a half-inch of shirt cuff visible.

RESOLVED: I will never again wear a blue suit with brown shoes and that I will invest in over-the-calf length socks. I will never wear anklets again.

RESOLVED: I will stay away from fashion extremes.

RESOLVED I will learn how to use an iron so that I will always have creases in my trousers. I'll place a damp cloth over the crease and press to razor-sharpness.

RESOLVED: I will make certain my suits fit me properly; that the jacket covers my rump; that the trousers hit the shoe neatly and without a break; that there is no gap between jacket collar and neck.

RESOLVED: I will tie my neckties carefully so that the knot fits neatly between the collar points without space. I'll use a four-in-hand knot with a tab or button-down collar, a half-windsor or windsor with spreads and semi-spreads.

RESOLVED: I'll add a touch of color to my appearance by purchasing several silk pocket squares which I'll stuff—not fold—loosely in my breast pocket.

RESOLVED: Unless I wear a beard, I'll not leave my house until I'm shaven to the last unruly whisker. Neck fuzz is unsightly and unnecessary.

RESOLVED: I'll take care of my fingernails and maybe even invest in a manicure from time to time. City dwellers will discover how fast soot develops under the nails.

RESOLVED: I will avoid being a member of the herd, slavishly following whatever new "fashion" is being pushed by people like menswear columnists. I will instead determine what is best for me and develop my own sense of style.

Astrological Forecast

By CAROL RICHTER

(FOR THURSDAY, MAY 2)
GENERAL TENDENCIES: The day time finds you with pretty lay and poor judgment. You would be wise to double-check whatever you have in mind to make sure it has a real awareness of the various factors involved. Avoid borrowing or lending. Tonight you can have a chance to meet with an influential person to get needed backing.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20) — Although the situation at home is not ideal don't resort to arguments. Use good reasoning, otherwise you might jeopardize security there. By evening all is then fine and you can entertain or relax there comfortably.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) — Showing those who are allied with you that you appreciate them is wise now. Look over reports, correspondence, etc. for mistakes. Evening should be free for having a good time with congenial friends.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) — Day-time hours should be utilized sensibly handling practical affairs. See that you are following the right budget. However, in the evening you must concentrate on how to improve financial position. Study your paper.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) — Although you feel there is some imposition placed on you from co-workers, carry through with your work just as, carry through with your work just the same. Plan to go to that social affair in P.M. that is important to you. Dress elegantly.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Plan to get those household duties out of the way early so that you can get out to some romantic place in P.M. Be sure to assist one who comes to you for help during day. Show generosity of spirit.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — Stop listening to the complaining voice of some friend who is feeling under the weather and regain your happy spirit. Plan how to realize some cherished aim during day. Then go after it in a positive fashion in P.M.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Re-assure to follow every rule and regulation that pertains to you and to keep promises made to others. Show happiness that you are truly interested in 7 o'clock work. Gain their trust and you get ahead faster.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Listen to the ideas of one you admire and deepen the friendship as well as be able to advance more quickly in the days ahead. Some studying is important. Then you get the added benefits you have long wanted.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Make those payments now that you have been procrastinating on for so long. Act in such a way that others will not oppose you during the day. Evening is then free for a delightful time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 30) — Listen carefully to what associates have to outline as to the over-all principles of your association, and then celebrate together. Do so with personal gifts also. Once you have all affairs in fine order, relax.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 31 to Feb. 29) — Get busy and complete those duties ahead of you since new and fine duties will soon have to be looked into. Don't waste any time. Find a more satisfactory working system with co-workers.

PISCES (Feb. 29 to Mar. 30) — You are now able to get into that recreational activity that has been desired for you before. Use that smile more so that others will not oppose you. You are apt to be too serious.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those young people who will feel the need of parental closeness longer than most others, but this is not the case and you would do well to teach early to stand on own two feet.

Camillus, N.Y., near Syracuse, claims to be the birthplace of the Republican party. The first parking meter system was begun in Oklahoma City in 1935.

Lucius Amerson of Macon County is the first Negro sheriff elected in Alabama since Reconstruction days.

DEAR FRIEND: If you really want to help, why don't YOU look in on the old gentleman? (You don't have to be a relative to extend a kindness.) Writing to me without a clew of who YOU are, who HE is, or even the city in which he lives, is futile. And your loss of appetite won't help him much, either.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 15-year-old girl who has just started to date. I am going to ask you a question I have asked many others but I have never been able to get anyone to give me a straight answer.

When a girl really likes a fellow and they are alone together, naturally they are going to make out some, but how far should a girl go?

Education Writer Explains Meaning of Children's Grades

By DAVID NYDICK
UPI Education Specialist

Report cards and grades (marks) present many problems for educators and parents.

The cards are in thousands of different forms and include many different statements and kinds of grades. The purposes vary and include such aims as evaluation, communication, public relations, maintaining standards, etc.

The problems are basically due to the great variation of purposes which different parents and educators attribute to report card. In addition, the problems are complicated by the fact that judgements vary with each teacher who evaluates a student.

A discussion of report cards is closely related to the area of grades. Many educators, psychologists, and parents would prefer to eliminate grades. One of their criticisms is that grades are unfair and do not give a complete picture of the individual. This is true, however, grades are not intended to give a complete picture. Unfortunately, some people interpret them incorrectly. This is not a good reason to eliminate grades but a sign that there is a need to improve instruction in their use.

Realistically grades are necessary. There is competition in education especially in the area of college admissions. Colleges use grades as one of many factors in determining which students will be accepted. There is also a need to know how well a student is achieving in comparison to his peers.

Enough on the needs for grades. What is the meaning of a grade on a report card? At the elementary level, there are two major approaches. One is to indicate the student's performance in relation to the standards expected at the particular grade level. In a way, this is comparing the student to other students. The second approach is to indicate the student's performance based upon his own ability.

This method is a way of showing the student's progress regardless of the performance of other students at his level. Most report cards have been designed to use either one or both approaches.

What does a mark of A or B mean? It must be understood that a range of students will receive the same grade. As an example, the truly outstanding student will receive an A as well as a student who is not quite as outstanding but does a good job. When number grades are used such as 100, 99, etc., the grade at the secondary level is an average of test scores, class performance, etc. At the elementary level more weight is generally placed upon teacher judgment as opposed to test scores.

A parent should not make grades the basis of showing approval of a child. The parent should make every effort to understand the meaning of the grade and follow up with the necessary help for the student.

New Cars Require 3-Part Seat Belts

By BOB COCHNAR
NEA Automotive Editor
NEW YORK — Unlike cigarette smoking, where the tobacco boys can at least point to some skimpy evidence to refute the cancer-smoking link, nobody — responsible or otherwise — can challenge the critical importance of seat belts.

Yet, like smoking, most people ignore reality. One observer calls this suspension of belief "cognitive dissonance," which has a rather nice ring when you think about it.

After considerable hemming and hawing by government and industry, three-point seat belts (the combined lap and upper torso belts) are now absolutely required on all autos produced after Dec. 31, 1967.

Federal Highway Administrator Lowell K. Bridwell said findings and conclusions reached by safety experts indicate that the shoulder-seat belt combination is "the best single means of protection now available for car drivers and passengers in automobile crashes."

So your new car is going to be full of belts, fore and aft. The belts will resemble an overturned can of tapeworms. They will snarl and you will be tempted to slice them off at the attachment points. They will be, frankly, a large pain. And you might justifiably blame the auto companies for your frustration.

In this connection, the manufacturers could be compared with the builders of low income housing projects. O.K., these contractors seem to be saying, "we'll build apartment buildings for the poor folks but we will make them as ugly as possible. And they have. The average project looks like prison."

Auto manufacturers can create such nifty accessories as electronic headlamp dimmers, station wagon doors that open two ways, vacuum-powered headlight covers and eightway power seats. Why can't they invent an easy, uncomplicated way for you to snap your seat belts on and off as you do your radio?

The guys in Detroit could, I have no doubt, get us to use belts — not because they may save our lives but because it's simply part of the package, the

Final Inning Rally Gives Pampa Baseball Win Over Tascosa, 3-1

By WES DUMONT
Daily News Sports Editor
AMARILLO — Pampa's rejuvenated high school baseball team scored three runs in the seventh inning to upset the Amarillo Tascosa nine, 3-1, in a 3-AAA conference game here Tuesday afternoon.

It was the second straight win for coach Bobby Stephens' young team and knocked Tascosa from a share of first place in the standings.

Larry Turcotte, whose error in the sixth inning paved the way for Tascosa's single run, redeemed himself with honors by tying the contest, 1-1, with two out in the seventh. Turcotte doubled into left field to score Hal Clabaugh, who had previously singled.

Senior Dick Henley, who played outstanding defensive baseball, singled to plate Turcotte and later scored as a result of a throwing error.

A pitcher's duel between Hal Clabaugh and Roger Case highlighted the low scoring contest. Case, who lost the game, pitched hitless baseball until the sixth inning when junior Gagy Parrish singled.

Clabaugh scattered six hits and was never in serious trouble until the final inning when the Rebels had men on first and second with only one out. A fielder's choice and an infield out retired the side, however, as Pampa had pulled one of the big surprises of the baseball season.

Coach Stephens used three sophomores in the starting lineup including Tom Hawkins, Ross Holman and John Jenkins.

Pampa's record is now 5-11. Clabaugh, using a sharp curve which mowed down the usually hard-hitting Amarillons, was credited with his first victory.

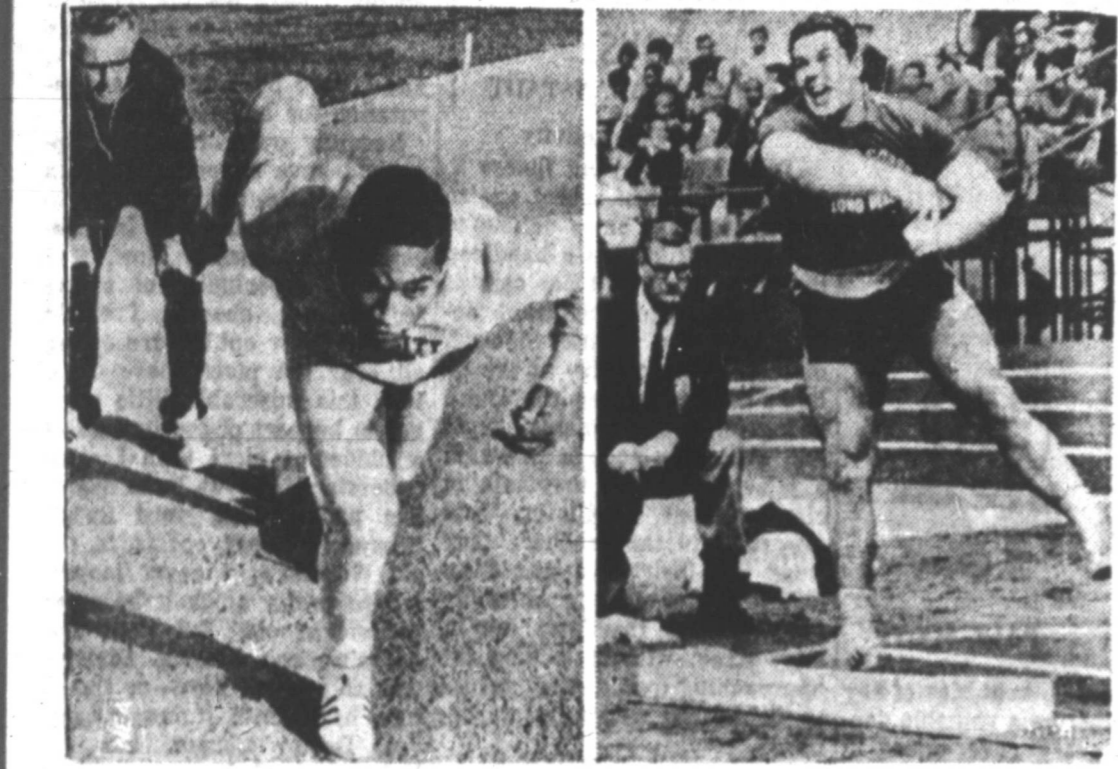

Clabaugh's main asset was his control. He allowed no walks and struck out four.

Case also pitched well for the favored Rebels. He whiffed five and allowed four walks, none of which led to runs by the Harvesters.

Pampa will not play this Friday but journeys to Borger for a tilt Saturday afternoon.

TWO BIG ONES that didn't get away—O. J. Simpson (left) is a big man, figuratively speaking, these days. The Rose Bowl's outstanding player has traded in his pads for spikes and is currently touring the nation's indoor track meets. George Woods is literally one of the biggest men in action. Competing for the Pacific Coast Club, he has already defeated world record holder, Randy Matson in the shot-put this season.

State High School Track Meet Set

AUSTIN (UPI)—Seven state records will be in danger when the cream of Texas schoolboy track and field stars gather here for the state meet at Memorial Stadium Friday night and Saturday.

Existing state meet records have been exceeded during the past season in the 100-yard dash, 120-yard high hurdles, 330-yard intermediate hurdles, the shot put, high jump, pole vault and the 440-yard relay.

The most likely to topple, however, is the shot put in which Dallas Samuel ace Sam Walker would have to have his worst day of the season to keep from breaking Randy Matson's old mark of 66 feet 10 1/2 inches.

Over 72 Feet

Walker consistently has surpassed that mark and last week had a season-high of 72-3/4, a potential national prep standard.

Another national mark was exceeded last week when Fort Worth Kirkpatrick ran the sprint relay in 41.1 seconds. The old mark also was a Texas standard, 41.2 by Port Neches.

Wade Williams of Kirkpatrick, Kenneth Curl of Houston Worthing and Larry Hughes of Leveling all have been clocked in 9.3 seconds in the 100 dash, while Herb Miller of El Paso Jefferson, Ed Kubicek of Vernon Lockett and Ernest Williams of West Columbia have tied the state mark of 9.4.

Ron Washington of Dallas South-Oak Cliff has run the high hurdles in 13.6 seconds and Bonnie Rogers of Bay City has matched the state mark of 13.7.

State Mark Broken

Roy Buford of Dallas Washington has run a 37.7 in the 330-yard hurdles while Lance Adams of Grand Prairie has equalled the state record of 37.8.

Riley Odums, the versatile all-state football-basketball player from West Oso, has cleared 6-8 1/2 in the high jump in which he owns the state record of 6-6 3/4.

Tebby Thames of Lubbock Monterey has cleared 15-4 in

Houston Astros Blank Cincinnati As Dierker Hurls Two-Hit Win

By UPI

Maybe Leo Durocher should copy the jogging technique of his protégé, Eddie Stanky, to wear off the tension after frustrating defeats.

Stanky has been jogging in the outfield to unwind after the many losses his Chicago White Sox have suffered this season. But Durocher just fumed in the clubhouse Tuesday night after his Chicago Cubs came within one out of victory—only to lose with a 4-3 loss to the Pittsburgh Pirates as Manny Mota lined a two-hour, two-run pinch double in the ninth.

A half hour after the game ended, the doors of the Cub dressing room were finally opened to the press. But that was obviously too early for Durocher, who was still rankled by the defeat.

No Comment

"Get" them out of here, get them out of here," Durocher screamed when he saw the writers entering.

It was a bitter loss for the Cubs since Adolfo Phillips came within six inches of making a second "game-saving" catch on Mota's winning hit.

"I missed it by this much," Phillips said as he held his hands six inches apart.

In the other National League games, New York blanked Philadelphia 1-0, San Francisco whitewashed Atlanta 7-0, Houston shut out Cincinnati 3-0 and St. Louis edged Los Angeles 2-1.

In the American League, Minnesota nipped Boston 7-6, Washington edged Chicago 5-4, Baltimore topped New York 6-5, Washington edged Chicago 5-4 in 12 innings, Oakland beat Detroit 3-1 and California downed Cleveland 5-3.

The Pirates started their game-winning rally in the fifth when Willie Stargell singled, the pole vault and David Roberts of Conroe has vaulted 15-2 1/2 in contrast to the state record of 15-1.

California Colt Wins Derby Trial

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI)—Proper Proof, a colt from California, picked up a few hardboot supporters today for Saturday's running of the Kentucky Derby following his stretch-running victory Tuesday in the 41st running of the Derby Trial at Churchill Downs.

The mile race for derby hopefuls failed to change the prospects of 14 starters in the first of the Triple Crown classics. For Proper Proof, along with Jig Time, Verbatim and Te Vega who trailed him home in that order, were listed as probable derby starters even before the race.

The owners of the other trial runners also indicated they would stick with their original decisions not to run in the Kentucky Derby unless their chargers displayed remarkable improvement.

None of them did and Porter Digger, who finished fifth, probably will be at Sportsman's Park in Chicago on Derby Day.

Calumet Farm's Forward Pass, who had a public workout Tuesday between races, remained the favorite for the 94th running of the derby.

With Ismael (Milo) Valenzuela up, Calumet's hope for an eighth victory in the rose run, sped over a mile in 1:37 flat to the complete satisfaction of trainer Henry Forrest who had expected the colt to work slower.

The second choice was Peter Fuller's Dancer's Image, a son of Native Dancer, who won the Wood Memorial at Aqueduct in New York in his last start.

The other probable starters were Cain Hoy Stable's Captain's Gig, Don B Wood's Don B, Saddle Rock Farm's Francie's Hat, C. V. Whitney's Gleaming Sword, October House Farm's Iron Ruler, Mrs. Joe W. Brown's Kentucky Sherry, Coventry Rock Stable's Troublemaking and Swamazon Farm's T. V. Commercial.

There was a chance that Alley Fighter, the Santa Anita Derby winner owned by Cragwood Farm, also would start. The outfit also owns Jig Time and had planned to run only one of them. But now trainer Mac Miller was thinking about starting an entry.

Proper Proof, owned by Mrs. Montgomery Fisher of Beverly Hills, Calif., won by a half length under Johnny Sellers who had the 1961 Derby winner Carry Back.

Paige Enters Political Arena

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI)—Leroy (Satchel) Paige, the legendary pitcher who has been in baseball a half-century, has moved from the diamond to the political arena.

He filed Tuesday for the Democratic nomination for state representative from Kansas City's 11th district.

"I couldn't get a pitching coach job," said Paige, whose major league career included stints with the St. Louis Browns and the Kansas City Athletics, "so I decided to look for something else."

Last season, he said, he pitched for Seattle of the Pacific Coast League.

Boston Celtics Regain One-Game Lead By Edging Lakers, In Overtime, 120-117

BOSTON (UPI)—Don Nelson and Mel Counts, a couple of players who switched jerseys in the middle of their pro careers, are both having the last laugh on their former owners. But Nelson is laughing louder at the moment.

Ex-Laker Nelson and the rest of the Boston Celtics will be trying to wrap up their tenth National Basketball Association playoff championship in 12 years Thursday night when the Eastern Division champions invade Los Angeles for game six of their title showdown.

At the same time, former Bill Russell understudy Counts will apparently have to carry the heaviest load of his budding NEA career if the Lakers are to force the series to a conclusive seventh game on Sunday at Boston.

The Celtics regained the one-game edge they have held twice before in the playoff finals with a 120-117 overtime victory Tuesday night.

Nelson, acquired by the Celtics three years ago for $1,000 when he was released by the Lakers, and ex-Celtic Counts played the key roles in the fifth game of the series.

Nelson finished with a career high of 26 points and added 20 rebounds. Counts tallied 20 points for the Lakers but an even dozen of them came in the fourth quarter as Los Angeles stormed back from deficits of up to 19 points to tie on Jerry West's breakaway layup with 12 seconds remaining.

West, who led all scorers in the game with 35 points despite a painful ankle injury, got his last four in the five-minute extra period. But Boston point leader John Havlicek (31) and Nelson collected four points each in the overtime session to settle the issue.

The score was tied at 115-all with 69 seconds remaining when Nelson popped in a rebound jump. West scored on a ten-foot jump shot to tie the score with 65 seconds left but Havlicek put Boston on top to say with a 15-foot jump shot from the right side.

Archie Clark missed on a drive and Russell blocked at Elgin Baylor shot with Nelson rebounding in the winning defensive maneuver. Nelson's free throw off a Baylor foul with 16 seconds remaining accounted for the final margin.

The Month of April - 1968

April, 1968, was something, wasn't it? President Johnson started it all. Just three hours before April 1, he announced a bombing pause in the Vietnam war, kept talking for half-an-hour and then announced that he wouldn't be a candidate in the November elections.

Bobby Kennedy apparently did not believe his TV screen and asked for an appointment with the President so that he could hear Mr. Johnson make the disclaimer in person. The stock market took something the President said as the best news in a lifetime and twice in one week all records of shares sold on Wall Street were broken. Prices leaped for joy. There followed in quick order the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., and an emotional binge that ended only with the sobering responsibilities everyone faced on April 16—the day for homage to the Collector of Internal Revenue.

That wasn't the only homage required. Businessmen had to prepare a Census report, too, and get it into the mail to some address in Indiana. The form filled out in this office—front and back—was roughly the size of Route 40 from Indianapolis to Columbus and the girl who typed what we had pencilled in has been out since with a badly sprained wrist just from rolling the typewriter carriage roller so much.

Riots in 125 cities made headlines and the second sacking of Washington, with permission of the authorities this time, made more than a few of our readers burn up the telephone lines with their personal editorial comments on that disgrace. Then, by golly, the telephone people up and quit, and in some areas of the country nobody could call anybody, anywhere. It was like living in Paris, where you can always write a postcard to someone and get it delivered before you can reach them on the phone.

In our shop here, we had survived all of this, including the full eclipse of the moon, without permanent and disabling effect, until a letter arrived enclosing a tiny little clipping from a magazine. In fact, the envelope seemed to be empty, but after a couple of shakes this neat little clipping fell on the desk. It read: "Business is entitled to a great deal of respect. After all, outside of government, it's the only place left where a man can find a job." Lyndon B. Johnson, President.

If that's what the President thinks of business, he'd better stay on the government payroll and not take his chances hunting a job outside of government.

Our Candidates: TV Sad Sacks

The election campaign could stand some color, says the Los Angeles Times. It could use a little more tone, too, adds the Wall Street Journal.

Or, more accurately, so say those behind-the-scenes image-makers, the make-up men and voice coaches.

Times columnist Hal Humphrey, noting there are now nearly 15 million color television sets in American homes, relays the opinions of a make-up artist on several of the candidates:

If Ronald Reagan is doing his own make-up, he shouldn't. Richard Nixon has the problem of toning down a heavy beard, but not so much that it looks worked on. George Wallace looks pretty grim without the right make-up, especially in color. Eugene McCarthy could use some red in his face to give it warmth. So could Hubert Humphrey. Nelson Rockefeller also looks a little "Pasty". Robert F. Kennedy needs a haircut.

As for the "oral communications experts," they are convinced President Johnson's voice was the reason for his decision not to seek re-election, says the Journal. It had become so grating to many people that the more they heard him, the less secure they felt about him. He no longer sounded like a President.

The worst candidate of all, voice-wise, is Kennedy, who sounds too much like Bugs Bunny. He could stand a dash of chest resonance. Nixon speaks in a monotone and both Rockefeller and McCarthy make the mistake of raising their pitch when they want to emphasize a point. Now, as for the issues...

Rats Drink For Fun

An interesting story of rats making pigs of themselves comes from the laboratory of Dr. Joseph Mendelson of Rutgers College, N. J.

The psychologist has discovered that the animals don't necessarily drink because they're thirsty; they get thirsty in order to drink.

The rats were outfitted with stainless steel electrodes in their brains touching the areas that regulate thirst. When they tripped a lever, they got an electrical stimulation that made them thirsty.

After numerous experiments, Mendelson noted that the rats would not press the thirst-inducing lever when water was unavailable. But the same rats would continue to press the lever as long as water was available, even though they were already loaded to the gills, just so they could enjoy the reward or "fun" of drinking.

Presumably, there is a lesson here for humans. Set 'em up agan, Joe, while

Dissidents In The House

Something strange happened in East Germany a few weeks ago. Only 99.54 per cent of the voters said "Ja" in a plebiscite on the country's new Communist party-written constitution.

Previous elections have recorded "Yes" votes ranging from 99.87 per cent to 99.95.

Have the first glimmerings of something like democracy come to the people's republic? Critics on the Western side of the Wall say it's more likely that the government is trying to narrow the credibility gap over the extent of its popularity among East Germans, who can no longer vote with their feet and have yet to be permitted a secret, free election.

Pull Up A Chair

By FRANK JAY MARKEY

We understand a Danish shoe manufacturer employs a professional pedestrian who is required to walk 20 miles a day testing the manufacturer's shoes. Back in the late 19th century after Humphrey O'Sullivan invented the rubber heel he employed professional walkers to hike around the country to demonstrate the advantages of wearing shoes with rubber heels. It was one of the first publicity stunts by big business to call attention to a product... and if you want to blame someone for the flood of mail advertising you receive these days you can blame the late C. I. Hood of Lowell, Mass., a patent medicine maker. He invented it in the early 1900's. He may also have invented the billboard because he sent teams of painters throughout the rural areas offering to paint the barn of any willing farmer for free if they could paint the side nearest the road with a message urging everyone to drink Hood's Sassa-parilla for their health.

Today's smile: One girl was telling another about her new beau and said: "He's so romantic. Whenever he addresses me he always calls me 'Fair Lady'. The other one, being catty, said: "What does he do for a living? It sounds as though he's a bus driver."

P. T. Barnum really believed the public liked to be fooled and summed up his philosophy in his well-known observation "There's a sucker born every minute." One of his best-known hoaxes was the "Fiji Mermaid." The circus posters showed a beautiful mermaid swimming, but what the public saw after paying the admission fee was the stuffed head of a monkey sewed to the body and tail of a large fish. Pulling fast ones like that enabled Barnum to become a millionaire.

Thoughts while shaving: Here's a new switch in the day and age of easy credit. Just heard about a big city department store that sends a thank-you letter to customers who pay cash and have their purchases delivered... We came across a government booklet the other day that said many man-hours of labor are lost in opening firmly-sealed containers of merchandise. We agree because we have to attack most of the stuff delivered to our house with a hammer, chisel and hatchet. Books in mailing containers always defeat us... The most widely used word in the world is "Amen." It is uttered daily by more than a billion Christians, Jews and Mohammedans... Never underestimate the power of a color. We knew a color stylist who did a thriving business as a consultant to big business making products more attractive to the prospective purchaser.

His successes included putting color into asphalt shingles, household appliances such as vacuum cleaners, mops, brushes, and even recommending the proper colors for houses. All that was brought to mind when we read that a survey of charity appeals showed they are more effective when mailed in light blue or green envelopes... The Suffolk (N.Y.) SUN reported in a story: "The program's elimination of 21 persons between the ages of 21 and 64 would save approximately $6 million, he said." Splendid but they could save even more by eliminating the program.

Country Editor speaking: "At the rate they're going with those mini skirts and bikinis the fellows who design women's clothing may work themselves out of a job."

Nation's Press

LABOR'S LAMENT

A news service providing copy to the labor press recently distributed a story to the effect that 1967 wage gains for the average American worker had been nullified by inflationary factors.

With the exception of the higher paid factory employee with three dependents, soaring living costs ate away virtually all of the pay increases of less favored workers, or so the news item asserted. Not caring to engage the labor press in debate as to the accuracy of its contract, we do, however, see a certain irony in its complaint.

It doesn't take much of an economist to know that when a government adopts a policy of deficit financing, it follows that the stability of its currency, the purchasing power of the worker's earnings, and the fiscal well-being of the nation will all suffer. As for the wage increases of 1967 coming to naught because living costs have gone sky high, organized labor must share a goodly part of the blame, and not for 1967 alone.

A casual review of the rapacious demands imposed upon industry by ruthless union bosses assisted by the government brings the problem of inflation into sharper focus. Steel, copper, transportation—air, rail motor freight, and service and retailing industries have all felt the club of organized labor at the bargaining table. Thus, the costly "packages" so gleefully referred to as union triumphs have grim price tags attached. Had increases and fringe benefits been honestly equated with increased productivity, the story would have been different. Regrettably, there is seldom any true relationship between union demands and economic reality. Settlements are arrived at either under governmental pressure, or after costly strikes that ultimately benefit nobody.

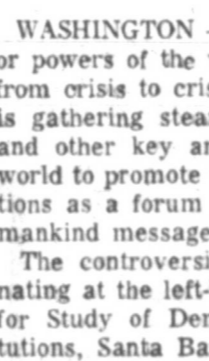

Not content with putting their muscle on the employer, the unions also put the arm on the government to increase the minimum wage, broaden its coverage, and boost the benefits in all of the federal welfare programs. At a time when the nation is fighting a full scale war and conducting its global aid program with undiminished lavishness, the America economy has taken quite a beating from all directions, and not the least of these is from the unions. So, there is no end to the daisy chain. Soaking the rich can no longer provide the money or the answer. The harsh truth must be faced by the wage earner, namely, that he can no longer escape paying a share of increased living costs brought about by inflated pay scales. This is doubly true when these pay hikes are not attended by any greater production but by actually less.

The answer might be found by freeing free enterprise in a free market place, but we don't think the current Washington planners will let it come to that.

State of Mankind Message Broadcast Worldwide From U.N. Proposed As Confrontation of Globe's Crises

ROBERT ALLEN

WASHINGTON — As the major powers of the world flounder from crisis to crisis, a proposal is gathering steam in the U.S. and other key areas of the world to promote the United Nations as a forum for a state-of-mankind message.

The controversial plan, originating at the left-leaning Center for Study of Democratic Institutions, Santa Barbara, California, calls for U.N. Secretary-General U Thant to deliver the unprecedented report over a worldwide satellite TV-radio hook-up.

Groups and individuals supporting the concept of world government, including the World Federalists and a number of liberal U.S. senators, are promoting the idea in connection with the international organization's Human Rights Year, now underway.

In this country resolutions are now before the Senate Foreign Relations and House Foreign Affairs committees to have Congress direct President Johnson to call on U Thant to discuss the principal issues confronting mankind in these troubled times.

According to chief sponsors Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., and Rep. Bernard J. St. Germain, R-R.I., the main objective of this special message would be:

"To galvanize large numbers of people all over the world into taking steps to solve problems such as those posed by increased population, arms races, illiteracy, and the need for conservation of natural resources."

Under their proposals, the mass media would be used to weld all the diverse peoples of the world "into brothers who recognize that their common interests are far more important than their differences."

THE ROLL CALL — Other Senate sponsors of the little-noted resolution include Senators Joseph Clark, D-Pa., Hiram L. Fong, R-Hawaii, Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, George McGovern, D-S.D., Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., Ralph W. Yarborough, D-Tex., Joseph D. Tydings, D-Md., Daniel B. Brewster, D-Md., Ernest Gruening, D-Alaska, Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., and Abraham Ribicoff, R-Conn.

PAUL SCOTT

Proxmire also reveals that it was Kelly who encouraged him to write Eisenhower for his support after Kelly had briefed the former President.

With help from the worldwide operating Ford Foundation, and the World Federalists, Kelly has been in contact with hundreds of officials of foreign governments and private groups overseas, whipping up support for U Thant or some other noted world figure to become the spokesman for mankind.

In one speech boosting the idea recently, Kelly stated:

"My startling proposition is that a world society has already come into being, although we are not fully aware of its growth and its effects on the future of every one of us."

"This is the first age in which the word 'mankind' has a universal vibration in the minds and souls of men. So I call for an annual report on the state of mankind — to be broadcast in color and beauty around the world."

Kelly proposed that the Report to Humanity, as he refers to it, could be "an instrument for implementing the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, adopted by the U.N. nearly 20 years ago."

SECULAR ENCYCLICAL — In addition to a special report in 1968, Kelly suggested that a regular state-of-mankind message be made once a year — perhaps on the last Sunday in January — and the U.N. Secretary-General be given several hours of prime time on all broadcasting networks. The message would be translated into every language.

Another vigorous supporter of the idea, Frank L. Keegan, of the Ford Foundation, in a letter endorsing the plan, stated:

"The annual report on the state of mankind would be a secular encyclical, a temporal witness to human faith, world hope and international charity."

Other backers of the controversial proposal argue that "mankind needs a spokesman," and that the president of the U.N. General Assembly, since he is elected by that body, should be the speaker for the community of man.

The American Way

By D. R. SEGAL

We have faced up to the brave new world and bought a new Webster's International—the one that does away with many of the old usages and countenances, such usage as used to be a sure sign you had no scholarly couth.

One reason we made the plunge into the late 20th Century Webster's is because there got to be so many words I didn't know what they meant, and they weren't in the old Webster's. I have been reading about apartheid for years (with a must confess, languid attention) and I guessed what it meant but I couldn't be sure. The old Webster's saith not. Apartheid seemed to be one of those fun words that all of us writers were using, but I never heard anyone say it. I wanted to be a couple of times, but I figured it might be one of those British for all I knew so I never mentioned it.

So I never mentioned it. The new Webster's gives me the straight poop. Apartheid is pronounced much like it is spelled (a-par-tad) and it means segregation—which I could spell and pronounce, both, and which every body knew what it meant and that it was illegal. However, I have enlarged My Horizon and so I guess it's a good thing I know apartheid now.

I was having a hard time with cybernetics, too. Try to find that one on the old unabridged. At first I thought it had to do with sex, so I quick looked in the dictionary, but it wasn't there. I kept bumping into cybernetics but never a clue. A fellow who is very learned told me it had to do with computers, and that chilled me right there. I have a very large lack of curiosity about computers. Now that we own the New Webster's I know what cybernetics means; or to be precise, I know what the dictionary says it means. But as to what the definition means, I have not the foggiest. However, I use the word quite a bit at cocktail parties now, and I have built up a great reputation for being cultured.

Recently cybernetics and apartheid have slipped slightly in haute couture (didn't I tell you—cultured!) and opt is becoming fashionable. Now, if I had the opportunity of opting for opt or choose, I would never opt for opt. We are opting all over the place these days. Why this miserable little word got to be part of the bag all of a sudden is more than I can understand. It even looks queer, like part of the word hadn't printed. I guess opt is in the old Webster's; I never looked. I hope pretty quick it becomes archaic or obs. But even that doesn't mean a thing. Divisive was an archaic word—or should have been—until, if memory serves, Doctor Conant, late of Yale, revived it a few years ago in a report which said private schools were "divisive" and, therefore, pretty bad. The word never came to much, like schools, until the other night when Our Leader used it. He, like Conant, gave it an evil connotation which I am not at all sure it deserves. I don't know what the alternative is to divisive—maybe conformity. Of the two, I'll opt for divisive and take my chances with apartheid.

The cause is still unknown but a hopeful aspect of the situation is that the child usually outgrows his hyperactivity between the ages of 10 and 12. One surprising discovery is that depressant drugs given to quiet these children aggravate their condition while stimulating drugs bring about a prompt improvement in behavior and school accomplishment. These children never become studious types, but they settle down into a more nearly normal behavior pattern.

The parents of such a child must learn to treat him with firmness tempered by kindness. They must relax their previous standards of acceptable behavior and set a goal for the child that he can achieve. Even though he will never be scholarly, he may in later life become an excellent salesman or athlete.

Q—My son's tonsils were removed when he was 5. He is now 14 and they have grown back again. My doctor advises radium treatments to shrink them. He said it would be harmful to remove the tonsils at his age. What do you think?

A—Age in itself is no reason for not removing tonsils that have become so large that they interfere with swallowing. A new method of treating them that is gaining in flavor is cryosurgery or rapid freezing.

Do you know why they won't go across them? Because they can go down to the government offices and collect unemployment checks every week. When you have a set-up like that aiding in the destruction of the business economy, then you ain't got much of a thing going for the country.

Not only does the little feller have to support such double-dealings with his taxes, he will have to pay in increased phone costs. He is getting whacked both ways.

As long as it is the policy of the administration to pay unions to go on strikes then we will always have them.

If it wasn't for that do you think the telephone workers would take 7 percent and be glad to stay on the job? You're doggone right they would.

INSTANT DIMPLES

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (UPI)—Modern surgical technique have broken yet another barrier to the rich, full life, a New York surgeon Monday told the American Academy of Facial Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery Inc.

Dr. Benito Rish said relatively simple operation now can give women dimples and men cleft chins. He said half the patients offered the operation agreed to it and "most of the women wanted a chin like Ava Gardner."

Well, the dirt-catcher installers went on strike. They were offered a 7-percent raise over their $3.27 per hour plug-in.

Like all unions, enough is never enough. Their request — 10 percent. Of course, if the installers walked out and stayed out it wouldn't make much difference. Phones would ring and birds would sing, but business would go on as usual.

But they have got the administration on their side. It works this way. They put up these straggling marching pickets in front of the telephone building. Then the operators, who ain't striking, won't go across them.

Do you know why they won't go across them? Because they can go down to the government offices and collect unemployment checks every week. When you have a set-up like that aiding in the destruction of the business economy, then you ain't got much of a thing going for the country.

FOREIGN NEWS COMMENTARY
Nuclear Non-Proliferation

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

At almost the same moment the United States and the Soviet Union presented to the United Nations their treaty against spread of nuclear weapons, Las Vegas gaming tables trembled under the impact of the largest underground blast ever touched off by a non-Communist nation.

No special significance need be attached to this bit of unplanned irony unless a comparison is drawn between the Vegas gamblers and the world which continues to gamble with its own future against even longer odds.

Many Meetings

The treaty is the result of 380 meetings and nearly four years of painfully deliberate negotiations between the two great powers.

Under it, non-nuclear nations are being asked to renounce forever nuclear weapons and to sign a treaty banning their spread.

In return, together with Britain, the United States and the Soviet Union promise to take immediate action through the U.N. Security Council against a nuclear attack or threat of attack on any country that signs the pact.

The pact does not satisfy everyone and it is obvious that this rare example of cooperation between the United States and Russia comes from mutual self-interest.

It is obvious, too, that such a pact cannot be wholly effective unless joined by France and Communist China, both of which are nuclear powers.

A Warning

The United States and the Soviets wanted it as a warning to Red China against the danger of nuclear attack anywhere around the periphery of its borders, and especially against India where both have important interests.

India was one of the first to ask for the guarantees contained within the pact.

Among the 17 members of the Geneva disarmament conference there were many who were not wholly satisfied. Nigeria, Burma, Brazil, Mexico, Sweden, Ethiopia and the United Arab Republic either expressed doubts about the pact's effectiveness or that the monopoly granted the existing nuclear powers reduced all the rest to second-class citizens.

To safe-guard non-nuclear signers against such a result, the treaty provides that they are to share the knowledge of peaceful uses of the atom's power as developed by the nuclear "haves".

Exposure Case Reported Here

A man allegedly indecently exposed himself to a young girl Monday in Aspen Park, according to a police report.

The complainant told police that she thought the car was a pink, late-model Cadillac or Oldsmobile.

GUERRILLA CASUALTIES SALISBURY (UPI) — The Rhodesian government said Monday that 57 African guerrillas have been killed in fighting in the Zambezi Valley during the past several weeks.
