Lake party turns violent

By BEAR MILLS
Staff Writer

LAKE McCLELLAN - Beer and racial slurs turned out to be an explosive combination late Saturday night when a keg party turned into a massive brawl in which one man was shot and another seriously injured after being kicked and stomped repeatedly.

Sheriff Jim Free said blacks, whites and Hispanics were attending the party, which turned ugly after someone reportedly was called a name.

He said 25 to 30 people were at the gathering, which ended up with shots fired from a shotgun and small caliber pistol.

Free said Wendell Mayberry, 23, of 917 Barnard, was shot under the left arm as he attempted to flee from a person with a handgun.

"We're still trying to find out who was shooting the pistol," Free said. "He (Mayberry) was shot under the arm and it went in about (four inches). If it had been a large caliber gun it would have gone into his heart."

Mayberry was treated and released at Coronado Hospital for the wound.

A second man, Richard Stone, 22, of 720 Naida, was reportedly kicked and stomped into unconsciousness.

He is listed in stable condition in the intensive care unit at Coronado Hospital.

Another man, Robert Thompson, 23, of 2236 N. Russell, was treated and released at Coronado Hospital after reportedly being attacked from behind and hit and kicked numerous times.

Free said he had heard rumors of a keg party at the lake and had two deputies, Paul Sublett and James Walker, within a few miles of the scene at the time the shooting was reported.

Sunday, deputies recovered a shotgun that was fired during the fray, but were still searching for the pistol which was used to shoot Mayberry.

Arrested at or near the scene on charges of aggravated assault were Frank Jara, 20, of Route 1 Box 150B; Randolph Larry Pacheco, 22, 621 E. Browning; Cornelius D. Landers, 21, 1053 Neel Road; Curtis Wine, 19, 1144 Huff Road; Rodney Demon Harris, 22, 1004 Prairie; and Coby Harris, 19, 1004 Prairie.

Arrested on a charge of assault was Wendell Mayberry, 23, of 917 Barnard.

Free said Wendell Mayberry, twin brother of shooting victim Lendell Mayberry, was brought to a place where four suspects were lying handcuffed on the ground and began kicking them, resulting in his arrest on the assault charges.

"Wendell Mayberry was taking his brother to the hospital and he jumped out of the vehicle and kicked one of our handcuffed prisoners," Free said. "It was when we were bringing some of the first ones back that we got a call that three boys got into it and knocked and beat Stone unconscious."

Free said he has already ordered increased patrols around the lake in an attempt to curb future incidents. He also noted that some of those at the keg party were reportedly under 21.

"We will be investigating to make sure that anyone providing alcohol to juveniles will be arrested and charged," Free said.

All of the suspects remained in jail this morning.

Philip Jones and Jane Wiley

In harmony Ministry, music entwine couple

By CHERYL BERZANSKIS
Lifestyles Editor

McLEAN - Meshing two careers - Christian ministry and musical performance - into a harmonious whole is the way of life for Jill Wiley and Philip Jones.

Wiley, a native of Iowa, is pastor of the First United Methodist Church of McLean. Jones, a British organist and composer, said he's done more original work in the last two years than ever before. He plays each Sunday at the First United Methodist Church in Pampa.

In August, the couple expects to relocate to England where Wiley believes she is called to minister in the British Methodist Church. Jones will continue to compose and perform.

These individuals have a most interesting background and how they came to call Gray County their temporary home is a story full of unusual turns.

Wiley was not always interested in ministry, or even church attendance past her teen years. For 20 years she said she didn't enter a church, but did not lose sight of God.

"Politics became my religion and working for social justice was the goal of everything I did in politics," she explained.

Before entering Perkins School of Theology at Southern Methodist University in 1984, Wiley worked for a variety of Democratic candidates and conventions.

Beginning with what she described as her first political awareness at age four, when she supported Robert Taft, to her position as on-site press secretary at the 1984 Democratic National Convention in San Francisco, much of Wiley's life revolved around helping Democrats gain political office.

"I was largely inspired by John Kennedy at the age of 12," Wiley said. "I think I just responded to that attractiveness," she said. "Reflecting on it, I think he communicated so that a 12 year old could understand."

She said she realized that she had access to the political system when she wrote a letter to then Sen. John F. Kennedy. She recalls telling him she believed that Catholicism shouldn't keep him from becoming president. Wiley also explained with a laugh that she was partly prompted by the desire to receive a return letter from a senator as her father had earlier.

Wiley was not reared in a household of Democratic party adherents, but her father, a school superintendent, was always aware of political ramifications.

In 1976, Wiley was involved in promoting the Iowa caucuses. Jimmy Carter got his political impetus there, and the caucuses supplanted the New Hampshire primaries as the first testing ground for presidential candidates, she explained.

"(Politics) has become too slick and professional. Politics should be an amateur pursuit born out of love. It is more a matter of marketing than philosophy these days," Wiley said.

For a time Wiley left politics to work in public relations in Des Moines, Iowa.

"It is better to leave politics that to become a professional politician," she said.

But in 1983, Wiley returned to her love of politics to become deputy director of Walter Mondale's Iowa campaign. In Iowa, Mondale won overwhelmingly, but fell to Gary Hart in New Hampshire.

"I love Walter Mondale. He's one of the most admirable people in American politics," she said.

The American political scene was changing, however.

"The era I had known in politics - that began with Kennedy - was fading," she said. Campaigns which were once based on philosophy and volunteer support, now are largely marketing and fund raising efforts, so that professional goods and services may be obtained, she further explained.

At age 37, she left Des Moines, headed for San Francisco, no job in sight, but with a dream - to work for the Democratic National Convention which was slated for the summer of 1984 in San Francisco.

Her dream came true. She landed the position as on-site press secretary at the convention.

"To go and be a part of the convention, in the heart of it all, it was a peak experience for me," she said.

But within six weeks after the convention, Wiley was unemployed. What was worse, all job prospects in San Francisco evaporated. But, she explained, she became motivated and moved to look at a different direction.

"I realized I could spend the rest of my life figuring out how to say things and what I needed to do was concentrate on what to say," Wiley explained that this downtime culminated in beginning a spiritual journey that led to the study of theology and answering a call to ministry.

Anxious for a job, she signed on as governess for the son of a Gary Hart supporter in Dallas. Because she had free time during the day, she enrolled at Perkins School of Theology.

Wiley said she fought the call to seminary the whole way, always telling God "just let me do this one more thing".

Of her first day at the Methodist seminary, she said, "I felt like I was reporting for duty."

After five years, she earned a master of divinity degree. Though the program is normally a four-year endeavor, she took an extra year in order to minister in England. That, too, was a turning point for Wiley.

Wiley said she never looked for marriage, but Philip Jones, organist in her English church, changed all that. Jones said from day one when he set eyes on Wiley he set out to court and win her. Win her he did. They've been married more than two years. He left his career in teaching music to live with her in America.

They married in Chicago, Wiley finished school, and under the leadership of Jo Carr, district superintendent of the United Methodist Church, relocated to McLean. Wiley said it became a priority for her to work with a woman in a position of authority. The McLean assignment also afforded her the opportunity to become a pastor immediately, where she believes she has learned more in the past two years than if she were in an associate pastor position.

Commission to consider park curfew

A possible curfew or closure of city parks after certain hours is scheduled for discussion by city commissioners during Tuesday's 4 p.m. work session at City Hall.

City Manager Glen Hackler said repeated complaints about violence in city parks late at night has led to the discussion.

"The idea behind a park curfew or closure after certain hours is based on the need to deal with rising violent crime problems," Hackler said.

Several cities, including Altus, Okla., and Fort Worth have recently passed citywide curfews to deal with spiraling crime problems. Statistics indicate the offenders are almost always juveniles or young adults.

Hackler said other cities which have been forced to pass park curfews include Dallas, Abilene, Lubbock and Plainview.

He stated police will also be stepping up enforcement of existing ordinances in an ongoing attempt to curb crime in city parks as a curfew is contemplated.

No action is scheduled on the curfew during Tuesday's meeting.

A 6 p.m. regular session is set to draw for staggered terms on the recently formed Pampa Economic Development Corp.

Bill Waters, attorney; Wayne

Stribling, owner of Wayne's Western Wear; Randy Hamby, owner of Randy's Jack and Jill; Vic Raymond, chairman and CEO of IRI International; and Benny Kirksey, president of Amanda Energy, were named to the PEDC board.

Commissioners will also consider award of a bid for the annual seal-coating program for city streets. Hackler said streets on the southwest side are scheduled for treatment this summer.

Bush: Some workers' fees not for politics

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - In an attack on Democratic support from labor unions, President Bush ordered federal contractors today to tell non-union employees "in the clearest possible terms" that their union dues may not be used for political activities they do not like.

An executive order signed by the president applies to those workers who, although they are not members of the union, are required to pay dues as part of a union-security agreement such as a union or agency shop. It covers only non-union workers employed by federal contractors.

As he left the rose Garden signing ceremony, a reporter asked Bush if the measure was designed to "bust" the unions or the Democrats.

"We enforce individual rights," the president said. "Read what I said carefully."

AFL-CIO Vice President William Bywater quickly criticized Bush's action. "Bush didn't wake up this morning and suddenly feel compassion for working people," he said. "This is just one more act of Side Show George. The main attraction in America is how to get this country back on track, not how to help Republicans win in November."

"I think it's an outrage," Democratic presidential hopeful Jerry Brown said when asked to comment on the order signed by Bush.

The order stems from a 1988 Supreme Court decision that held non-union employees may not be forced to pay the equivalent of union dues if some of that money goes to activities unrelated to collective bargaining, contract administration, or grievance adjustment.

The principal in that decision, electronics technician Harry E. Beck, attended the ceremony and was given the pens Bush used to sign the order.

If the order is fully enforced, Bush said, it "will guarantee that no American will have his job or livelihood threatened for refusing to contribute to political activities against his will."

The contractors must post notices to employees at all job sites and all federal agencies will begin including the provision in future contracts.

In a companion attack on campaign support that usually goes to Democrats, the Labor Department had a new rule requiring unions to report separately how much they spend for political activities, lobbying and contract negotiations, a White House source said Sunday.

An estimated 3 million employees out of 19 million working under labor contracts are in union or agency shops where they must pay fees to a union even though they remain a non-member.

The White House did not know how many of those 3 million work for federal contractors.

Presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the White House's Council on Competitiveness estimates the portion of employee contributions going to union dues to be about $400 a year per employee, but he could not say how the figure was arrived at.

The council estimated total union dues are $2.4 billion annually, but that includes dues paid by workers whose employers are not federal contractors.

Fitzwater said the administration had tried to make the changes in a campaign reform bill sent to Congress in 1989. That legislation would have affected workers outside the federal contracting force as well.

"Congress failed to act," he said. He said the executive order implementing the Supreme Court decision was signed now because "with the campaign coming on, this is the point where it has the most usefulness."

Although federal law forbids unions from using dues for direct campaign contributions, they can spend the money for support such as telephone banks, newsletters and get-out-the-vote drives.

Under the new policy, non-union members could get refunds of any fees used to finance political activities they oppose. The refunds will not be available to union members, even if they object to the union's political activities, a White House official said.

Gadhafi may accept U.N. resolution - with reservation

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) - With the deadline for U.N. sanctions approaching, Moammar Gadhafi is indicating he might back down from his refusal to surrender to the West two suspects in the 1988 bombing of Pan Am Flight 103.

The Libyan leader is reported to have accepted the United Nations' demand with conditions. Such acceptance would appear to fall far short of what is necessary to avoid the imposition of sanctions on Wednesday.

As the Arab community continued to pursue last-minute efforts to try to forestall the air, arms and diplomatic embargo, Libya announced through its official news agency that it will cut itself off from the world on Tuesday.

The agency, JANA, reported that all international travel and communication links will be severed to mourn 41 Libyans killed in a 1986 U.S. air strike.

Wednesday is the raid's sixth anniversary. Libya apparently chose to observe it a day early to keep the sanctions from overshadowing the gesture.

Gadhafi has always marked the anniversary of the U.S. air raid, which the United States said was in retaliation for the bombing of a Berlin discotheque frequented by U.S. servicemen, but never to the extent of shutting off his country.

Libya says American bombs killed Gadhafi's adopted daughter in his house in Tripoli during the raid. He was not known to have had a daughter.

President Hosni Mubarak of Egypt met with Gadhafi in Tripoli on Sunday and told newspaper editors on the flight home that Gadhafi told U.N. envoy Vladimir Petrovsky last week of his conditional acceptance to the world body's demands.

The Security Council has voted to impose the sanctions if Libya does not surrender two alleged Libyan agents indicted by the United States and Britain in the downing of Flight 103 over Scotland in 1988, killing 270 people.

Gadhafi contends that would violate Libyan sovereignty.

Mubarak said Sunday he had discussed the Libyan reservations extensively with Gadhafi but would not elaborate.

When Petrovsky left Tripoli last week, he gave no indication of progress toward settling the Libyan impasse with the United Nations.

But in a leaked memorandum to U.N. Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali, Petrovsky said: "Libya ... intends to comply with international law in a manner that does not infringe upon its sovereignty."

The United Nations has said nothing about the latest Libyan offer. But Diego Arria, Venezuela's U.N. ambassador and president of the Security Council when the sanctions resolutions passed, said:

"No conditions are possible ... There is no room for compromise."

The nearest thing to a compromise offered by Libya is to have the two suspects surrender "voluntarily" for trial in a neutral country.

Wreck kills woman

HIGGINS - A 31-year-old Amarillo woman was killed and her two small children hospitalized Sunday morning when their vehicle left its lane and ran into a tank truck 7.3 miles west of Higgins on Hwy. 60.

Department of Public Safety Troopers said the woman's 1990 Mazda pickup was eastbound heading up a hill and around a curve when it left the lane and headed toward a westbound Freightliner driven by Robert Eugene Parker, also of Amarillo.

Reports indicate that about 11:30 a.m. Parker left the roadway to avoid a collision, but the Mazda hit a tanker he was hauling, causing the pickup to spin and roll over.

Troopers Larry Dunnam, David Smith and Randy Ratzlaff were joined by sheriff's deputies from Hemphill and Lipscomb counties in rescuing the woman and transporting her to Hemphill County Hospital.

However, the victim, Neva Nadine Gibson, was declared dead at the hospital shortly after 1:30 p.m. by Dr. William Isaacs.

Her children, 5-year-old Megan and 7-month-old John, were transported to Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo, where they were listed in stable condition with bruises and lacerations.

Troopers said Neva Gibson and Megan Gibson were wearing seatbelts and the infant was in a child safety seat at the time of the accident.

The cause of the collision had still not been determined at press time.

Police seek driver of truck involved in striking teen-ager

Pampa police are searching for the driver of a maroon pickup which reportedly struck a teen-ager Sunday night in the 400 block of 18th before fleeing the scene.
 Accident reports indicate 13-year-old Lamont Gray, 837 Campbell, ran in front of the vehicle as he was crossing the street from one sidewalk to another.

 Lt. Steve Chance said reports show the vehicle failed to stop to assist the child, who was transported to Coronado Hospital by AMT Paramedic Ambulance for treatment of minor non-incapacitating injuries.

Chance said the driver of the vehicle is sought by police because failure to stop and render aid is a felony offense.
 "We're hoping the driver will go ahead and contact us so we can talk to them," Chance said.
 Gray was treated and released at Coronado Hospital.

Being in the ministry is quite a change for Wiley. She describes the job like this - "Ministry is working on the margins."

In previous jobs - public relations and political endeavors - she described the work as being prestigious and self-esteem enhancing. Now, she said, she sees pain up close; she sees things done less than professionally. She sees people who are down and out - they need gas money, they are elderly with limited resources, maybe they are grieving.

Wiley said she sees small miracles in her work. "Churches and family are all that are left to provide social services," she said. "I've learned that marginal experience is the source of a great deal of spiritual growth and riches," she said.

She sees her work as having rewards beyond the material.

"Ministry is not a profession but a vocation. By Christ's commandment, we're to live simply and not make a profit personally. Our profit come in spiritual ways," she explained.

The development of the European community is exciting to Wiley and she feels called to be a part of it.

"The Church of England is probably on the threshold of ordaining women. America's where you find the most women clergy. The feminist theological movement was born in America and America continues to be a leader in the movement," she said.

Wiley is enrolled in the doctor of ministry program at San Francisco Theological Seminary, which is affiliated with the Presbyterian Church of America. She does not have a job assignment in England, but and Jones plan to cross the ocean on the strength of her call.

Her final goal for ministry she expresses like this: "Ultimately, for me, ministry is meeting people's real needs. So the rest of the time is spent determining what those needs are. As a Christian minister, my purpose is to reveal to people their real needs can be met through a meaningful relationship with Christ."

Jones, a native of Preston, Lancashire, England, is an only child whose parents fostered his interest in music from toddlerhood. In fact, Jones relates that his mother told him that his first word was "band", even before mother or father.

By age 11, Jones was a church organist. Church was always part of his home life, he said.

"I'm always sensitive to the high moments in life. Obviously I'd always heard organs play because I was always taken to church. I must have been about 13...I went to a noon church service, when I first heard organ chords, I knew I wanted to be professional organist. I want to master the instrument," Jones explained.

By age 18, he was enrolled in the Royal Manchester College of Music, studying organ. He joined the teaching staff of a local school, becoming Head of Music, supervising other music staffers. He continued to play at church and accompany choirs and individuals. His heart, however, was in composing, and he said that is what made 17 years of teaching bearable. A time of ripening and maturing was needed for development of musical skills, he explained.

His teaching career came to a halt when he and Wiley married.

"When she said she was a Democrat, that was a signal. That means she thought like I do," he explained of his attraction to her. "I always anticipated reducing or giving up teaching. It was a case of choosing the moment to leave."

His two years in McLean he described as invaluable because of the abundance of practice time. He practices either at First United Methodist Church of Pampa - "the best organ in the area" - or at his home each day.

"Practice," Jones said, "is exactly the same as athletics. You're training your body to respond. You need to control your body. Proficiency is a matter of the body's response."

"A small amount of fully focused practice is worth hours of practice when you're worried about other matters," he continued.

Indeed, his time in McLean has been well used. Jones completed 25 minutes of an organ suite and 25 minutes of an orchestral suite. He composed the hymn tune celebrating the 90th anniversary of the McLean First United Methodist Church and completed an anthem arrangement for the First United Methodist Church in Pampa.

"When you either compose or perform or give any kind of musical expression you are simultaneously expressing something of yourself. Also you're giving expression to collective things, things that move everyone. So those two things, are woven together all the time," he said of his work.

Jones has a clear philosophy about church music. "I believe that any music ... I'm talking as a musician ... all music that's performed or used in church should always be the very best. It should be performed in the very best way we can, to the highest standards," he explained.

Jones' career goal is to leave behind a significant collection of compositions. His goal for the next 10 years is to promote the performance of his compositions.

State trooper shot

VICTORIA (AP) - A 43-year-old state trooper was reported in critical condition after being shot during a traffic stop in Edna.

Highway patrolman Bill Davidson is recuperating at Citizens Medical Center in Victoria after undergoing two hours of surgery Saturday night. He remained in critical, but stable condition Sunday evening, said Steve Toland, a hospital spokesman.

Ronald Ray Howard, 18, of Houston was arrested and arraigned for the attempted capital murder of Davidson. He was still in the Victoria County Jail Sunday in lieu of a $1 million bond, said Sgt. Jeff Janacek.

Davidson, assigned to the Edna Texas Department of Public Safety office, stopped a truck Saturday night on U.S. 59 because a headlamp was out. He was shot as he approached the driver, said DPS spokesman Mike Cox.

The incident occurred just north of the Victoria County line in Jackson County.

A motorist who had driven up on the scene, called for help on the fallen trooper's radio. The dispatcher alerted the Victoria Police Department that the stolen vehicle was believed headed south into Victoria. Officers began a chase at 8:38 p.m.

According to Cox, the search ended in northeast Victoria when the driver abandoned the car and fled on foot. He was captured a short time later, Cox said. He did not know if a weapon was recovered.

Janacek said the district attorney in Jackson County is expected to file formal charges against Howard.

Residents protest waste dump

EL PASO (AP) - A group of Sierra Blanca area residents were expected to ask Gov. Ann Richards to order waste handlers not to dump urban sewage on rangeland near their town.

Opponents of the West Texas waste disposal project were expected to present a petition today at a meeting of the Hudspeth County Commissioners Court.

"I'm afraid the floodgates are open for dumping out here," Hudspeth County Judge Bill Love told the El Paso Times on Saturday.

"Other companies are applying and they could come here, reap huge profits and rape and run. That's why I'm petitioning the governor at commissioners' court Monday," he said.

The sparsely populated county is already the target for a sludge dump and the state's low-level radioactive waste storage site.

Merco Joint Venture, an Oklahoma City-based company, has received the go-ahead from the Texas Water Commission to spread New York City sludge on more than 100,000 acres of desert near there.

Love said Texas Water Commission officials told him last week more companies are seeking sludge dumping land, including Enviro-Processes Inc. of Valley Mills, which wants to spread sludge on 27,000 acres of rangeland.

Enviro-Gro Technologies of Baltimore, Md., also is involved in the projects, Love said. Company officials could not be reached for comment Sunday by The Associated Press.

A telephone listing for Enviro-Processes could not be found in the Valley Mills or Waco phone directory.

Sierra Blanca is located about 90 miles east of El Paso.

Fort Worth teens violate curfew

FORT WORTH (AP) - Two teenage girls are the first youths to violate Fort Worth's new curfew, police say.

The girls were taken into custody shortly before 1 a.m. April 4 after a patrol officer saw them in a park. But both were released with a warning.

The curfew, which went into effect April 1, bars anyone under 17 from roaming outdoors unsupervised from 11 p.m. to 6 a.m. on weekdays and from midnight to 6 a.m. on weekends.

The mothers of the girls, one 13 and one 14, were given warning letters by police. If caught again breaking the curfew, they could each face a $200 fine, said Lt. M.C. Slayton of the Fort Worth police youth division.

Police did not release the girls' names.

Angry parents denounce decision by governor to close state school

FORT WORTH (AP) - Gov. Ann Richards should be ousted for proposing - against a panel's recommendation - closure of the Fort Worth State School, angry parents say.

Judy Craig, who has a son at the school, took the microphone during a parents association meeting with mental retardation officials and legislators Sunday. She shouted: "How long are we going to put up with this sort of treatment from Austin? I say impeach her."

"We ought to march on Austin. We ought to march on the Governor's Mansion and take our children with us and say, 'Here, Gov. Richards, you take care of these kids,'" Ms. Craig said.

Richards on March 31 rejected a task force's recommendation to close the Mexia and Travis schools to settle an 18-year-old federal class-action lawsuit over patient care in the state system.

The governor agreed to close Travis State School in Austin, but she replaced Mexia with the 350-patient Fort Worth school, saying Fort Worth could better absorb the economic impact of a closing.

The announcement came after a large march on Austin by Mexia residents and school administrators and patients.

Gas explosion death toll rises

HOUSTON (AP) - A 27-year-old woman has died of burns she suffered in last week's powerful natural gas explosion near Brenham, officials at Hermann Hospital say.

Delores Medve, who suffered third-degree burns over 75 percent of her body, died early Sunday, hospital officials said.

The explosion rocked the area around Wesley in Washington County last Tuesday.

The woman's son, Travis, 3, was in stable condition early today at the Houston hospital.

Jane Meinen, 31, was in critical, but stable condition at the hospital, officials said.

State and federal officials are still conducting an investigation in an attempt to determine the cause of the explosion of a natural gas pipeline.

suggested a rally be held on the school grounds April 24.

About 200 parents attended Sunday's meeting. In attendance were several legislators and two high-ranking Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation officials, Jaylon Fincannon and Rick Campbell.

Fincannon is the deputy commissioner for mental retardation services. Campbell is the associate deputy commissioner for mental retardation facilities. Both are former superintendents of the school.

"People who live here are still the responsibility of Texas MHMR and they will be our responsibility from now on," Fincannon told the crowd. He said most residents will be moved to community group homes or the Denton State School.

State Reps. Anna Mowery, R-Fort Worth, Doyle Willis, D-Fort Worth, and Garfield Thompson, D-Fort Worth, also fielded questions along with state Sen. Mike Moncrief, D-Fort Worth.

Willis got a standing ovation when he said he will introduce legislation next session to keep the school open.

"Don't give up. The ship hasn't sunk," he said.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE.

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

How the mob grows

"Guilty...Guilty...Guilty." So the foreman announced the jury's verdicts on John Gotti, until then the "Teflon Don." Pending appeal, he now faces life in prison for murder and bribery.

The U.S. government continues its success in jailing the heads of many of the so-called crime "families" that operate in America's major cities. Breaking the old code of omerta, or secrecy, underbosses have been signing against bosses. Salvatore Gravano, Gotti's consigliere, testified in detail about Gotti's murders.

Despite the federal government's success against mob capos, crime continues to worsen in America. Washington, D.C., the very center of the federal government, scored a record number of murders last year. The "war" on drugs has been a dismal failure. Gangs plague most cities, even many of which formerly were placid.

One big reason: The gangs fight over illegal activities that should be made legal. In particular, drugs and gambling should be legalized. This proposal no longer sounds as revolutionary as it once did. And there are strong indications that legalization would be the best prescription for reducing violence.

Organized crime in America was a minor nuisance before alcohol prohibition was imposed. Prohibition gave the mafia a way to make massive, tax-free profits. The profits allowed the mob then to move into legitimate businesses. There was a cost: Al Capone, Lucky Luciano, and other mobsters waged murderous turf wars.

Economist Milton Friedman analyzed the murder rates in an article in the March 7, 1991 Wall Street Journal. Homicides stood at five per 100,000 population in 1910. The rate began rising during the 1910s, when limited prohibition first was imposed during World War I. The murder rate rose to seven per 100,000 population in 1920. The 18th Amendment imposed Prohibition in earnest in January 1920, boosting the murder rate to 9.8 in the early 1930s. After Prohibition was repealed in 1933, the homicide rate dropped to six in 1940 and to 4.5 in the late 1950s.

Though narcotic drugs have been illegal since 1914, the "war" on drugs became much more severe in the late 1960s. The number of murders doubled to 10.5 per 100,000 population in 1980, higher than the rate during prohibition. During the late 1980s, the "war" on drugs was escalated yet again. Though the murder rate dropped a bit to around 8.5 in the late 1980s, still a high level of homicides, prison occupancy more than doubled, from 40 per 100,000 population in 1970 to 100 in the late 1980s.

As the National Drug Policy Foundation has concluded, "The president's drug war is failing to achieve its stated objectives, and is doing more harm than good." We always will have to contend with the John Gottis of the world. But by legalizing some areas where they profit, such as drugs and gambling, we would remove the milieu of criminality in which they thrive. This would curb the turf wars that cause most homicides.

Common sense at the high court

WASHINGTON - It wasn't easy, but sensible jurisprudence finally triumphed in a school desegregation case. On March 31 the U.S. Supreme Court at last rediscovered a cardinal principle that it had mislaid for 38 years: "Racial balance is not to be achieved for its own sake."

That profoundly obvious conclusion came in a major case from DeKalb County in suburban Atlanta. Prior to 1969 the county schools were firmly segregated by race. Black children sued. A federal district judge ordered the school system to get on with desegregation.

Years passed. Massive demographic changes occurred. Between 1975 and 1980, an estimated 64,000 blacks moved into the southern part of the county. Thousands of whites moved into northern precincts. Acting in good faith, school officials tried busing, magnet schools, minority to majority transfers and other devices. Inevitably many schools, reflecting neighborhood characteristics, became black or white all over again.

In 1986 the lower court ruled that the county had succeeded in four areas of desegregation: transportation, physical facilities, student assignments and extracurricular activities. These could be removed from the court's supervision. The county had a way to go in three other areas: resource allocation, quality of education, and the assignment of teachers and principals. These would continue to be subject to the judge's decrees.

In a well-reasoned opinion by Justice Anthony Kennedy, the Supreme Court generally affirmed the District Court's order. The decision established the important procedural rule that district judges may relinquish their authority piecemeal. Not all seven areas of desegregation must be perfectly achieved at the same time. Schools should be returned to local control, area by area, as soon as the last lingering vestiges of state-sanctioned segregation are removed.

This procedural ruling makes good sense. Of even greater significance is the Supreme Court's belated recognition of an elementary truth of constitutional law. The Constitution prohibits segregation. It does not require integration.

The opinion vindicates the late Judge John J. Parker of North Carolina, whose clear vision long ago saw the vital distinction. Regrettably, many district and appellate judges seized upon the misguided notion that integration was the be-all and end-all. They demanded racial balance, school by school, down to the last decimal point.

Justice Antonin Scalia, in his usual incisive way, puts the matter succinctly in a concurring opinion. Lower courts had spoken for many years "as if the Constitution requires such racial balancing. Of course it does not."

Supreme Court Justice Harry Blackmun still does not get the point. In a separate opinion, he grumbled that DeKalb County could have done better. "It could have built and closed schools with a view toward promoting integration of both schools and neighborhoods."

Bosh! The county may have had a moral obligation "to promote integration," but it had no such duty as a matter of law. Its duty was simply to end segregation. Blackmun spoke of an integrated school system as "desirable." Such a system, he said, is "a constitutional imperative."

Blackmun grows old and thickheaded. His opinion of what is sociologically "desirable" is immaterial. Who cares what Harry Blackmun thinks is "desirable"? And when he says that integration is a "constitutional imperative," he is reading into the Constitution something that plainly is not there. Blackmun has a way of doing that.

The high court's majority opinion will be welcomed by officials in 17 Southern and border states, but it will not let them off the hook. If local school boards pull any of the old-time shenanigans, district judges will not hesitate to reassert their authority.

Demographic changes are bound to produce continuing problems, rather in the fashion of which came first, the chicken or the egg. As blacks or whites move massively into one area or another, new schools must be built to serve them. Questions will arise: Did the new school draw the parents? Or did the presence of the parents require the schools? Such disputes can be resolved.

Last month's decision emphasized one point. It never was intended that federal judges would function indefinitely as school superintendents. Their job is "temporary." After nearly four decades, they should be getting more temporary all the time.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Monday, April 13, the 104th day of 1992. There are 262 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
On April 13, 1970, the crew aboard Apollo 13, four-fifths of the way to the moon, told Mission Control: "We've got a problem here." A tank of liquid oxygen had burst, crippling the spacecraft. The story ended happily four days later as the crew splashed down safely in the Pacific.

On this date:
In 1870, the Metropolitan Museum of Art was founded in New York.

In 1943, President Franklin D. Roosevelt dedicated the Jefferson Memorial in Washington.

In 1958, Van Cliburn became the first American to win the Tchaikovsky International Piano Contest in Moscow.

In 1964, Sidney Poitier became the first black performer in a leading role to win an Academy Award for his work in the movie "Lilies of the Field."

In 1986, Pope John Paul II visited a Rome synagogue in the first recorded papal visit of its kind.

"What you owe, Mr. Henderson, is actually a very tiny sum. ... Why it wouldn't keep Air Force One aloft for five minutes! ..."

A letter from your future

This is a letter from your future. It says...

Please excuse spelling, punctuation, and that sort of thing. At the high school where I go we don't learn much about that.

As an American teen-ager I know I have much to learn, but the things I've been told in the past I don't see being done in the present.

My parents used to tell me about marriage and commitment, but with so many divorces going on all those words just seem like words.

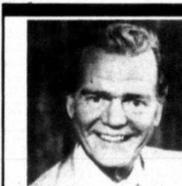

I once thought love was important and wonderful. Now, from what I hear and see, love is just whatever two people want it to be.

I have looked to religion for answers. I went to church a few times. But I felt worse when I got out than when I went in.

One thing I have learned from churches is that they make a lot of money but always want more.

Some of us kids thought government would pay attention to our questions but in government, too, all the words about what's good and bad - and all the examples - cancel out.

It's really very confusing.

Paul Harvey

In school we're told that school is important and yet I can skip school and stroll the streets and nobody seems to care.

And I feel safer on the streets. Teachers are always wanting more respect and more money for themselves. I sure wish somebody wanted me that much.

Some of our classes don't even have enough books. If education is as important as they say, wouldn't they have enough books?

We get stuff to read about drugs and sex and condoms, but most of us can't read most of the words.

What I have learned about sex is that a lot of girls get pregnant and get paid for having babies and a lot of guys get some disease that hurts like everything.

For answers about right and wrong I look to our country's courts and then I really get mixed up.

Words like "technicality" and "rights" seem more important than words like "good" and "bad."

If how we treat each other really were important, wouldn't the laws and courts insist that we play nice and not hurt anybody?

The only place I can go where I am less confused is to the movies or maybe watching TV. Sometimes they make me laugh and I like to laugh.

They also show me how adults do things, so I guess if I'm ever going to grow up I'll have to remember those things.

Anyway, we all get through school eventually whatever we don't know or don't do so I figure we'll get through life the same way.

But I'm going to keep looking for something more satisfying. I hear that some drugs help and I've not tried that - yet.

This election is year of the outsider

Political observers agree that 1992 is the Year of the Outsider: one of those times when the national gorge rises and conventional politicians are in danger of being hunted down and beaten up in dark alleys.

This popular mood is bound to harm George Bush and Bill Clinton to some degree, for both have been on the political scene too long to escape being labeled Insiders. That fact has given rise to two fascinating candidates for the presidency, both of whom are positioning themselves as quintessential Outsiders.

Jerry Brown, of course, was practically born an Insider, being the son and namesake of a Democratic governor of California and having twice held that office himself, as well as serving more recently as chairman of the Democratic state committee. But Brown is coming on this year as a born-again Outsider, running in revulsion against the whole system that nurtured him.

What's more, Brown's life to date makes this sea-change entirely plausible. With no money worries and an inquisitive mind, he has just about nailed down a reputation as the National Flake, interrupting his off-and-on political career to study Zen Buddhism in Japan, go on a safari in Africa with Linda Ronstadt, and spend a couple of weeks cleaning bedpans for Mother Teresa in Calcutta. If he says he's now a political Outsider, who dares to contradict him? Next year he may be living in a tree.

Of course, he has about as much chance of getting the Democratic nomination as I do. But every vote he gets in the primaries - and he's getting quite a few - testifies to the readiness of many voters to try anything this year as long as it smacks of novelty. Brown is peculiarly well fitted to benefit from such a mood, since he has no more settled principles than a pain-crazed rattlesnake. Once, back when he was governor, he even accidentally made some remark (I have forgotten what) so sensible that I tried to interview him about it. But by then he was off on some new, typically cockeyed tack.

Then there is H. Ross Perot, the self-made Texas billionaire, who says he doesn't want the presidency but will stretch a point and run for it if his supporters can get him on the ballot in November as an independent candidate in all 50 states. In addition to doing extremely well in business, Perot has shown a flair for taking direct and forceful action in a good cause, by staging a wholly private and successful effort to spring two of his employees from an Iranian prison back in the days of the late Ayatollah.

That sort of thing, plus a knack for simplistic but colorful pronouncements on various issues, is of course exactly what a lot of folks think America needs, and Perot's phone banks are ringing off the hook with people who want to help. Money, of course, is no problem; Perot has said he would be willing to spend $100 million of his own on the campaign, which is about what Bush and Clinton (or whoever) will spend combined.

If Perot does run, however, the remorseless processes of a presidential political campaign will excavate his personal life and business career with unpredictable results, and the questions he will be forced to answer on the issues will get more and more pointed. (Are you going to retain all those middle-class entitlements, Mr. Perot? And if so, how are you going to pay for them? Personally?)

By Election Day, all but the diehard fantasists (say, 10 percent of the electorate at most) will have gotten over their romance with Perot. But which candidate - Bush or Clinton - will he draw from most heavily? That depends - and will take another column.

Parents important to learning

A common denominator among most parents is a desire for their children to succeed in school. There is a great deal of parental satisfaction when children take responsibility for their homework assignments without being prodded or reminded. Getting to this place, however, requires some specific attitudes and behaviors on the part of the parents as well as the children.

Parents must realize that they are the first and most influential teachers for their children. Children begin listening, watching and forming ideas about what is right and wrong at a very early age. What parents do speaks louder than what they say. What parents believe and practice form lasting impressions on their children. In particular, what parents feel and say regarding teachers, schools and learning responsibilities are keys to the success of their children.

A good relationship between parent and child is vital to the child's success in school. Instilling a sense of security, trust, respect, support and love helps children know their parents care about every aspect of their lives, including their school work. Relationships are developed in the everyday routines of life. In taking care of the necessities of life, much time and energy is required. It's important to coach these activities in a positive, warm, supportive environment of children. One educator/counselor has referred to this as building a "cohesive relationship" with each child; a relationship that sticks together through the good and bad times.

Specific steps parents can take to help their children succeed in school are:

1. Meet basic needs of your child. Learning requires plenty of rest, proper nutrition, exercise and healthy lifestyles. Children shouldn't have to worry about whether they have enough food to eat, proper clothing or adequate housing.
2. Spend time daily talking to your child. Ten to 15 minutes just before bedtime is a good time to check up on the child's days by asking "what were the things you liked best about your day?" and "what's going on tomorrow?" This helps your child develop critical thinking and goal-setting skills. Most of all, it helps you keep in touch with your child's feelings. Tell about your day too. This helps children realize they are a very important part of your life.

Homemakers' News

3. Encourage your child's unique strengths and talents with opportunities to pursue related activities. Accept and respect your child's "specialness."

A child's weaknesses often overshadow strengths and abilities. By minimizing weaknesses and reflecting back strengths, a parent can help the child see himself/herself as a capable person. Like plants, our children need to be strong and well-rooted in love before we do any weeding.

4. Keep expectations realistic and age appropriate. Brains and bodies develop over time, each reaching a stage of development at its own pace. The order is more important than the speed. We cannot hurry development, only nurture it. Be aware of your child's physical and mental readiness to move on.

5. Help children identify their own goals, not yours.

6. Allow your child to try to do things on his own. Provide opportunities for children to overcome their struggles. This attitude communicates "You are capable; go ahead and try!"

7. Help your child evaluate his own behavior. Help him make the connection between what he wants and what he is doing.

8. Accept mistakes. Let your child know it's okay to make mistakes as they learn. Once in a while you may want to share your mistakes, thereby letting him know you are not perfect.

9. Spend fun time with your child. Research shows that spending enjoyable time together with your child may be the single most important thing a parent can do. Parent-child togetherness helps a child feel significant, valued, and secure.

10. Provide a quiet, well-lit place to do homework. Discover your child's comfort zone and provide that environment (quiet music, total quiet, etc.). During the early elementary years, make homework a priority by helping your children. As they get older, allow them to become more and more responsible for their own study time.

11. Visit your child's teacher and school. Become involved in helping. Cooperate with the teacher to achieve the best learning situation for the child.

What to avoid:

1. Comparing children;
2. Unrealistic expectations;
3. Negative feedback: sarcasm, criticism, nit-picking;
4. Forcing children to perform;
5. Jumping to rescue your child; and
6. Praise that compares the child's worth to his performance.

Parents are an important influence on the child's attitudes about school, learning, and pursuing goals. They will be most effective as they cooperate with the school to create a learning environment at home. Childhood learning needs set the stage for the parents and the school to work together for the benefit of the child.

Fashion show offers accessories and fall clothing

Images will conduct a trunk show featuring handbags and belts from Boots Bailey, Inc. Accessories from 10 a.m. - 5:30 p.m., Tuesday at the store 123 N. Cuyler.

Artist and designer Boots Bailey will assist customers with in-stock and made-to-order items, according to a store press release. Bailey specializes in elegant leathers and exotic skins in unique styles and colors that showcase beauty and quality, the release said.

The Fort-Worth-based Bailey began her career as a commercial artist and fashion illustrator. For two years, she designed accessories and coordinated sportswear for Dalton Industries.

She designs two complete collections a year and adds pieces throughout the year to broaden the line.

Also during the day, fall fashions from Lilli Ann will be featured. Bill Boyd will assist customers.

The trunk show will include fashion shows at 11 a.m. and 3 p.m. Participants must reserve seating for the shows.

Boyd will present a collection of sportswear including blouses, sweaters, skirts, pants, jackets and dresses, suits, long and short coats and faux furs. The collection will highlight polyester, wool, Facile, Ultra Suede, and microfibre gabardine fabrics. Highlights include fall colors such as black, plum, spice, blue, emerald, gold, fuschia, mocha and purple and navy.

Poem with tongue in cheek offends some

DEAR ABBY: I was somewhat shocked when I read the poem in your column about the Japanese, written by George Dawson. Granted, you did say it was "tongue-in-cheek," but I imagine that some Americans will take it seriously, since it appeared in "Dear Abby."

Right now, you can't imagine how difficult it is to be a Japanese-American; we feel the anger of other understandably frustrated Americans, and we are not helped by the careless talk of Japanese politicians, as well as some American journalists who are only too glad to fuel the anti-Japanese sentiment.

Your article did not help matters any; you should have at least stated somewhere that it is wrong to blame the Japanese for everything that goes wrong, but you didn't.

It was most ironic that your article appeared on Feb. 19 — exactly 50 years to the day that President Roosevelt signed the executive order forcing Japanese-Americans to relocate in prison camps throughout the West. Yet neither you, nor most other journalists, mentioned that fact.

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

Please, Abby, no more articles blaming the Japanese! Not all people know that "tongue-in-cheek" means "irony, insincerity or whimsical exaggeration."

A JAPANESE-AMERICAN IN DENVER

DEAR JAPANESE-AMERICAN: I plead innocent to the charge of "Japanese bashing" — but guilty of using poor judgment to have assumed that all my readers would know what "tongue-in-cheek" meant.

In 1980 I wrote: "To our everlasting shame, approximately 100,000 loyal American citizens were held in concentration camps for the duration of World War II. Their 'crime'? They were of Japanese descent."

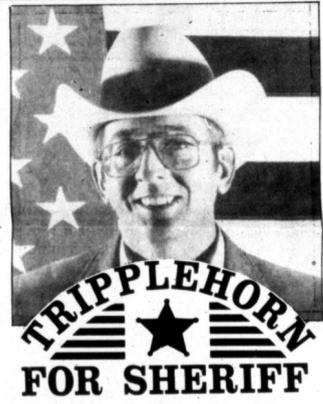

DEAR ABBY: My husband has a business (export-import) that requires constant traveling between the United States and Japan. He has offices in Tokyo and San Francisco, and we have homes in both places.

My husband and I thought George Dawson's poem was a wonderful piece of satire, and very timely. We had copies made and sent them to friends in Japan.

In these troubled times, it felt good to laugh again. Thank you, Abby.

ADELLINE G., SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR ADELLINE: Don't thank me. The poem was written by a professor of economics, and I found it on Page One of The New York Times. And to my regret, not everyone thought it was as humorous as you and I.

TRIPPLEHORN FOR SHERIFF

On March 10, 65% of the voters in the Republican Primary cast their votes for a change. As your candidate for sheriff, I will work diligently to bring about positive change. Our sheriff's office must be run on sound business principles and basic Christian teachings of what is right and just. I hope those of you who voted for change in the primary will return and vote again on Tuesday, April 14th. With your support and prayers, I will work diligently to win the confidence and trust of all the voters of Gray County. We share an absolute belief in TRUTH & HONESTY! VOTE TRIPPLEHORN for SHERIFF on April 14th in the REPUBLICAN RUN-OFF.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your attention span might not be up to par today, so be doubly diligent when working on mental tasks. In fact, have someone check what you do just to be on the safe side. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Unnecessary time might be devoted today to endeavors that are insignificant or even obsolete. Don't let the sands of your productivity be drained for futile purposes.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It's admirable to speak of family members in glowing terms today. However, try not to attribute to them accomplishments they've never achieved.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Before affixing your signature to important documents or agreeing to something that could be binding, be certain you know exactly what you're getting into. Don't wait for time to point out your mistakes.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) There's a possibility you may be taken in a commercial arrangement today because of a failure to pay attention to details. While you may overlook them, the other guy won't.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't attempt to behave in the way you feel others want you to behave today. Your performance won't be believable, and it could hurt your image rather than enhance it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you are called to task today because of something you neglected to do, don't make excuses. Set a definite date when this will be done, and then do it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Two cattily companions might voice unflattering remarks today about an absent friend. Don't participate in the verbal lynching; the victim will later learn you helped hold the noose.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) An unfriendly competitor will be waiting for you to do something wrong today where your career is concerned. Don't give this individual a chance to use your own actions against you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You might be more interested in what you have to say today rather than listening to the sage advice of a friendly counselor. Later, you might wish you paid more attention.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Do not take anything for granted today, especially where business is concerned. You could get a bit cocky and think you have the upper hand when, in fact, you really don't.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Someone you'll be closely involved with today might have ideas superior to yours. Don't automatically reject them just because you didn't think of them.

Couples claims Masters title

By STEVEN WINE
AP-Sports Writer

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Now that Fred Couples has answered skeptics by earning his first Masters title, the question becomes how many more he'll win.

"Fred has a game that could win this tournament as many times as a Nicklaus or a Palmer," said Couples' friend and foe, Raymond Floyd. "He's perfect for this golf course."

Couples, the best player in the world for the past 10 months, earned his first major title Sunday by shooting 2-under-par 70 at Augusta National to beat runnerup Floyd by two strokes.

Admirers of Couples' game, including Floyd, have said he's destined for superstardom. Sunday's victory was a big step in that direction.

"Any player wants to win major tournaments," the 32-year-old Seattle native said. "This puts me in a category where I feel much better about my game."

Playing in the final two some, Couples took a two-shot lead by sinking a 20-foot birdie putt at No. 9, and he stayed ahead the rest of the way. His shakiest moment came at the par-3 No. 12, where his poor tee shot defied gravity by stopping on a steep embankment. Raes Creek and a likely double bogey were just a couple of feet away.

"Biggest break of my life," Couples said. "You don't ever get a break like that."

"Most balls that hit there would absolutely come back in the water," Floyd said.

Couples nearly had to put one foot in the creek to hit his next shot. He took an awkward stance, careful not to clear his throat and send the ball tumbling into the water, and chipped to within two feet of the pin.

"It wasn't a very hard shot," he said.

He made the putt for par. "I was nervous, because I felt like if I got by that hole, I was going to win," Couples said.

He was right. A player once saddled with a reputation for choking, Couples made three birdies and 10 pars over the final 13 holes.

"With a two-stroke lead, I did what I had to do," he said.

Urged on by an adoring gallery and constant shouts of "C'mon, Freddie," Couples finished at 275, 13 under par. The 49-year-old Floyd shot 71-277, then became one of those fans urging Couples on.

"I was watching Fred and pulling for him," Floyd said, "because I just felt that the kind of player he has been, he was going to win this tournament."

Couples was less certain. For a player who has already won $1 million this year, he remains strangely unassuming about his game.

"I did a lot better than I figured," he said.

While Couples may someday approach the accomplishments of Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer, it should be noted that several players in recent years have fallen back to the pack after winning one or two majors. Nick Faldo, Payne Stewart, and John Daly — who all finished 13th or worse Sunday — came to mind.

At any rate, Couples has cleared a big hurdle.

"I just feel great about winning this tournament," he said. "This is a big boost to know I went through these greens and putted them very well."

Couples enjoyed good fortune Sunday, in part with his precarious tee shot on No. 12, in part because none of the other contenders got hot.

Australian Craig Parry, who finished the rain-delayed third round Sunday morning as the tournament leader at 12 under, three-putted Nos. 3, 4 and 5 in the afternoon and skied to 78-282, seven shots back. Another Aussie challenger, Ian Baker-Finch, also stumbled with his putter and shot 74-281.

Third-place finisher Corey Pavin (67-278) and Steve Pate (67-281) closed with nice rounds but began too far behind. That was also true of Mark Calcavecchia (65-285), whose seven-under 29 on the back nine broke the tournament record.

Jeff Sluman (71-280) and Mark O'Meara (70-280) tied for fourth. Sharing sixth with Pate and Baker-Finch were Nolan Henke (70), Nick Price (73), Greg Norman (68), Ted Schulz (72) and 1987 champion Larry Mize (68).

Defending champion Ian Woosman tied for 19th at 75-283. Couples' victory broke a four-year winning streak by Europeans at Augusta National.

"Being an American, it's nice to win," he said. "But I'm not saying I did it for the United States of America. I did it for myself and some people who were here with me."

After Couples tapped in for par on No. 18, he hugged his wife, Deborah, then headed to the awards ceremony.

A big first prize — $270,000 — was nothing new for Couples. The green jacket was something he didn't already have.

Hall wants to shoulder leadership role for Texas Tech next season

By DON WILLIAMS
Lubbock Avalanche-Journal

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Technically, Texas Tech did not post a losing record last season by finishing 6-5. But it was as close a brush with sub-.500 as Robert Hall ever cares to come again.

The Red Raiders' junior quarterback doesn't plan on experiencing another quasi-losing season — or anything remotely close. He wants to be the man to shoulder the leadership load, just as in 1988 when he led Dallas Carter to the Class 5A state championship.

"I want to carry it," Hall said. "I've played here two seasons — one we were 4-7; one we were 6-5. I'm not used to losing that many games where I come from. I'm willing to do whatever I have to do to help us get better."

If that includes adding leadership chores to his duties, so be it. In two years as an off-again, on-again starter, Hall has generated his share of excitement. With only nine career starts to his credit, Hall already ranks third on Tech's career passing chart with 3,369 yards and fourth in career total offense at 3,698.

But penciling Hall in as a vocal team leader never seemed to fit. He is small in stature (6 foot, 170 pounds). And he usually came across as soft-spoken.

But times change, and so has Hall. Any doubters need only listen to Hall talk about the Raiders' around-.500 rut.

"When you're winning, people care more," Hall said. "When you're a .500 team, about 50 percent care and to the other 50 percent it doesn't matter if you win or lose. We've got to get everybody thinking that every Saturday we're going to win."

"I sense it getting better. The first year I was here, a lot of people cared, but a lot weren't focused on what they had to do. We have to get focused and think we're going to win. I think we got better at that the end of last year."

Hall served as the catalyst. He started the last six games in 1991 after injuries wiped out the second half of the season for Jamie Gill. In Hall's six starts, the Raiders were 5-1, averaging 35.7 points per game.

Hall established a school record for total offense by piling up 453 yards against Rice, and then rewrote the mark three games later with 481 yards against Houston.

"The thing he did so good," offensive coordinator Dick Winder said, "is he got better every week. I hope he can keep doing that."

"He's had a half-year of consistent play. We've all got to keep that in perspective. Anytime you've had success, it's got to help. But playing that position, you can get humbled in a hurry, too."

To keep the good day rolling, the Raiders must keep the slightly built Hall healthy. It's a special consideration for two reasons: The Raiders, who had grown used to having two proven quarterbacks in the Spike Dykes era, won't have that luxury next season. Secondly, a good share of Hall's game works off his scrambling ability.

That's unsettling, even with another experienced quarterback on the sidelines.

"I just try to keep moving as much as possible, so maybe I won't take a square shot," Hall said.

The theory worked many times over last season. Hall gained 468 rushing yards, although he netted 278 after deducting 190 yards in losses. He led the team with six rushing touchdowns, one a quarterback draw that broke for 70 yards against Rice.

Hall also scrambled for 44 yards against Texas. Against Houston in the season finale, his flying feet produced gains of 35 yards, 25 yards, two of 18 yards and two of 14 yards.

Hall made the draw and a counter-option keeper productive plays late in the season.

"Coach (Winder) said we won't make a living on it," Hall said. "It might be less than last year. It's just something I can do if we get bogged down or if the receivers are covered. Maybe I can scramble and get positive yards instead of negative yards."

Everyone knew as soon as the 1991 season ended that Robert Hall would be the most important ingredient in the Tech offense in '92. Hall did nothing to damage his stock in March.

Hall threw for 395 yards in the first two intrasquad scrimmages. And he no longer has to worry whether he or Jamie Gill will start on Saturday.

"He just gets better and better because he works so hard," Winder said. "I think he seems more relaxed, and it seems like he knows he's the guy."

Trail Blazers clinch division crown

By BOB BAUM
AP Sports Writer

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — The Portland Trail Blazers clinched their second straight Pacific Division title Sunday with a 123-97 victory over San Antonio as Terry Porter scored 28 points and Kevin Duckworth tied his season high with 23.

The Blazers, even without Clyde Drexler because of a sore right knee, never trailed as they ensured themselves the homecourt playoff advantage through the Western Conference finals. Drexler rested his knee for the second time in the last three contests.

Boston's Young pitches losing no-hitter; Clemens shuts out Indians in second tilt

By The Associated Press

Matt Young's eight no-hit innings against the Indians didn't even qualify as the best pitched game of the day in Cleveland. Roger Clemens was better in the nightcap.

Young lost the game — and official credit for a no-hitter — as Cleveland took advantage of seven walks Sunday for a 2-1 victory over Boston in the first game of a double-header.

In the second game, Clemens rebounded from last week's injury to his right hand and pitched a two-hitter, blanking the Indians 3-0. He struck out 12 and improved to 16-2 with six career shutouts against Cleveland.

A committee headed by the commissioner changed the rules on qualifications for a no-hitter last season, requiring a pitcher to go at least nine innings.

"It's irrelevant, because we lost the game," Young said. "A no-hitter's supposed to be where you strike out the last guy, and the catcher comes out and jumps in your arms. A loss is a loss."

In 1990, Andy Hawkins of the New York Yankees was credited with a no-hitter when he lost 4-0 to the White Sox at Comiskey Park. But Hawkins' lost his no-hitter when the rule was changed.

The last Boston pitcher to toss a no-hitter was Dave Morehead on Sept. 16, 1965, against Cleveland at Fenway Park.

Cleveland scored single runs in the first and third innings. Kenny Lofton led off the first inning with a walk, stole second and third, and scored when shortstop Luis Rivera threw wildly to first on Carlos Baerga's grounder.

Young then walked Mark Lewis and Lofton starting the third inning, and Lewis took third on Glenallen Hill's forceout and scored on Baerga's grounder to short.

AL roundup

Elsewhere in the American League it was Toronto 3, Baltimore 1; New York 5, Detroit 1; California 13, Milwaukee 9; Chicago 6, Oakland 4; Seattle 2, Kansas City 1; and Texas 4, Minnesota 3.

In the nightcap, Clemens (1-1) was considerably sharper than Young. He walked three, and Cleveland's only hits were two-out singles by Baerga in the first and Hill in the third.

Clemens flew in specially for the game after the Red Sox used eight pitchers in Saturday's 19-inning, 7-5 win. He had been in Boston for treatment of a dislocated little finger on his right hand, sustained during pregame exercises last Tuesday.

Rangers 4, Twins 3

Texas won at Minnesota as Juan Gonzalez drove in four runs with a three-run homer and a tie-breaking single, and Kevin Brown pitched a six-hitter.

Gonzalez's first-inning homer was the only offense early in the game as Brown (2-0) extended his shutout streak to 15 innings before the Twins tied it with three runs in the seventh. Four of the six hits Brown allowed came in the seventh. Blue Jays 3, Orioles 1

At the SkyDome, David Wells pitched four-hit ball over seven innings as undefeated Toronto won its sixth straight game.

Wells (1-0) allowed one run, struck out two, walked two and hit a team-record three batters as the Blue Jays continued the best start in club history. Duane Ward replaced Tom Henke to start the ninth and finished for his third save.

Yankees 5, Tigers 1
At Tiger Stadium, New York remained unbeaten as Mel Hall had two hits and drove in three runs to help beat winless Detroit. The Yankees are 5-0, their best start since 1988, while the Tigers' 0-6 record is their worst since 1959.

Scott Sanderson (2-0) pitched 6 2-3 innings for the win, allowing one run on six hits and three walks. John Habyan finished for his first save.

Scott Aldred (0-1) took the sixth straight loss for Tigers starting pitchers. Detroit's starters have an ERA of 9.24.

Mariners 2, Royals 1

At the Kingdome, Erik Hanson gave up one run in eight-plus innings as Seattle completed a three-game sweep against Kansas City. The Royals' 0-6 start is the worst in the club's 24-year history.

Hanson (1-1) followed teammate Randy Johnson's 1-0, four-hit shutout of the Royals on Saturday night with another strong performance.

Hanson struck out four and walked three in besting Mike Boddicker (0-1), who lost his season's debut.

White Sox 6, Athletics 4

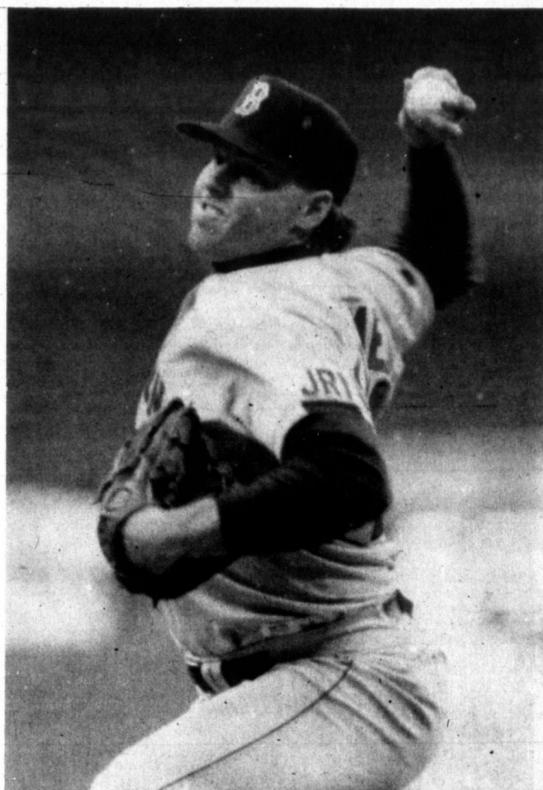

At the Coliseum, Jack McDowell weathered a three-homer barrage, including two more by Mark McGwire, as Chicago beat Oakland, handing the Athletics their first loss of the year.

McGwire connected for the fourth straight game, giving him five home runs this season, and Jose Canseco also homered for the A's. Oakland had won its first five games, its best start since going 11-0 to open 1981.

Angels 13, Brewers 9

At Anaheim, Rene Gonzales hit a three-run homer and a double in his California debut.

Gonzales took the roster spot of shortstop Dick Schofield, dealt to the New York Mets on Sunday, and was in the starting lineup at third base. Gonzales was in the Toronto organization last season and was a non-roster invitee to the Angels' camp.

Red Sox pitcher Roger Clemens threw a two-hit shutout, the 30th of his career, against the Indians Sunday.

Odd-even pattern continues for Saberhagen as Mets lose to Expos

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

This odd-even thing with Bret Saberhagen keeps getting stranger and stranger.

To briefly recap: In odd-numbered years, Saberhagen has been one of baseball's best pitchers, going 74-30 overall with a 2.85 ERA. Among his accomplishments in that time are two Cy Young Awards, his only no-hitter and a trophy for being MVP of the World Series.

In even years, however, he has been mediocre at best, going 36-48 with a 3.70 ERA for Kansas City. He's also made two of three trips to the disabled list during those times.

It had been that way for Saberhagen ever since he's been in the big leagues — the pattern includes his only season in the minors, too — and was something he wanted to try to change this year in his debut with the New York Mets.

Well, try again. Saberhagen has begun 1992 with two more brutal starts, the most recent on Sunday when the Montreal Expos banged him for seven runs in 4 2-3 innings and beat up the Mets 8-2.

Saberhagen, acquired last winter in a major trade that sent Kevin McReynolds and Gregg Jefferies to Kansas City, at least lowered his ERA with his latest outing, from 27.00 to 18.00. He gave up seven runs in 2 1-3 innings at St. Louis in his first start, so his game against the Expos was better, sort of.

"Sooner or later I'll win, but I hope it's before I get chased out of New York," Saberhagen said. "The fans are tough and expect you to perform up to your capability. I haven't."

NL roundup

In other games, San Diego beat Los Angeles 5-4; Atlanta stopped San Francisco 6-2; Pittsburgh topped Philadelphia 6-1; Cincinnati defeated Houston 5-4 and Chicago beat St. Louis 4-2.

Saberhagen is 0-2 for the Mets and has allowed 14 earned runs on 15 hits and seven walks in seven innings. If it's any consolation, McReynolds and Jefferies haven't exactly starred for the Royals, combining for a .184 average with more errors (two) than RBIs (one).

"This isn't what I expected of Bret, but frankly, I think he's too keyed up," Mets manager Jeff Torborg said. "He's trying to impress his teammates maybe too much. He's such a great competitor and he wants it badly."

Why Saberhagen has bounced back and forth from good to bad since his rookie season with the Royals in 1984 is unclear. Some say that he pitches a lot in odd years, gets tired out, and slumps the next season; others say the whole thing is purely coincidence.

Anyway, this isn't what Torborg expected in his first year as the Mets' manager, either.

The Expos, which won only four of 18 games against the Mets last season, swept the three-game series at Shea Stadium, outscoring New York 21-4.

Not since their first season in 1962, when they lost a record 120 games, had the Mets dropped their first three home games.

"I beat myself today," Saberhagen said, "and that's not something I usually do. There's nobody to blame but myself for this kind of start."

Ivan Calderon hit a two-run homer in the first inning for Montreal. He hit a two-run single during a five-run fifth inning, finishing Saberhagen.

Calderon had faced Saberhagen while they both played in the American League, and knew what he threw. Still, he got a little extra help to hit Saberhagen, not that anyone has needed it this season.

"I wasn't in the lineup yesterday, so I came into the clubhouse to stay warm and watch the game on television," Calderon said. "The television announcers kept saying Montreal was a fastball-hitting team and would be in trouble against Saberhagen's breaking ball. That gave me my own scouting report.

"In the first inning, I was waiting for that pitch, got it, and the ball wound up in the stands. The next time up, I expected a fastball and got that, too. Credit New York's announcers for the report," Calderon said.

Chris Haney (1-0) pitched five innings in his first start of the season. He allowed four hits, including Willie Randolph's home run, and left with a 7-2 lead.

Padres 5, Dodgers 4

Gary Sheffield drove in a career-high five runs, and his RBI single with two outs in the bottom of the ninth inning won the game in San Diego.

Los Angeles scored four times in the ninth to tie it before Sheffield gave the Padres their third straight victory. Sheffield's error at third base helped the Dodgers' rally.

Kurt Stillwell led off the San Diego ninth with a single, moved up on a sacrifice and Tony Gwynn was intentionally walked with two outs. Sheffield, who earlier had a three-run homer and RBI single, lined a single to right off Roger McDowell (0-2).

Greg Harris shut out the Dodgers on two singles for eighth inning, and left in the ninth after a single and Sheffield's error. Randy Myers (1-0) gave up a two-run single by Mitch Webster with no outs and a tying, two-run single by Juan Samuel with two outs.

Braves 6, Giants 2

Tom Glavine lost his shutout in the ninth inning, but won the game in Atlanta.

Glavine, who blanked Houston on two hits on opening day, scattered six hits in eight innings against San Francisco. Two hits and an error by first baseman Sid Bream scored a run in the ninth and chased Glavine, and Marvin Freeman finished.

Glavine, the Cy Young winner, did not walk a batter and struck out six. He pitched through a 37-minute rain delay in the fourth inning.

Ron Gant hit a three-run homer and Terry Pendleton had a pair of RBI singles for the Braves. Deion Sanders singled off Kelly Downs (0-2) and scored in the first, and doubled and scored in the seventh.

Pirates 6, Phillies 1

Barry Bonds hit his fourth home run, backing Zane Smith's five-hitter for Pittsburgh's win in Philadelphia. Bonds connected for the third straight game, a three-run drive in the sixth inning off Terry Mulholland (0-2). Bonds is 5 for 16 lifetime with four homers off Mulholland.

Smith (2-0) walked none, struck out six and got 15 outs on grounders. His only blemish was Ruben Amaro's third home run in the third inning.

Reds 5, Astros 4

Pitcher Tom Browning put Cincinnati ahead with a sacrifice fly and Bill Doran drove in three runs at the Astrodome.

The Reds scored four times in the fifth inning to overcome a 3-0 deficit. Doran hit a two-run double. Jeff Reed had an RBI grounder and Browning had a sacrifice fly.

Browning (2-0) went 5 2-3 innings and Norm Charlton worked the ninth for his third save. Jeff Bagwell opened the Houston ninth with his first home run.

Cubs 4, Cardinals 2

Hector Villanueva hit a three-run homer into a stiff breeze in the seventh inning, rallying Chicago at Wrigley Field.

It was 35 degrees at game time with a 20 mph wind blowing in from center field. Villanueva's shot barely carried into the left field basket.

Greg Maddux (2-0) doubled and scored Chicago's first run in the sixth inning. Heathcliff Slocumb pitched 1 2-3 innings for his first save. Omar Olivares (1-1) scored two runs, and was driven in by Todd Zeile both times.

Pampa takes on Canyon in high school soccer match

Harvesters in first with 6-1 record

The Pampa boys soccer team travels to Canyon play the Eagles at 7 p.m. tonight.

In an earlier meeting, Pampa edged Canyon by a 3-2 score.

Pampa looked impressive as the Harvesters knocked off front-runner Amarillo High, 3-2, over the weekend. With that victory, Pampa moved into first place with a 6-1 record.

"I was proud of the way the boys responded to the challenge against Amarillo," said Pampa coach Scott Flynn.

One of the reasons Pampa is on top is because of good, solid defense they've been playing the last four games. In the last four games, Pampa has limited their opponents to an average of one goal per game.

Another reason is their ability to control the middle of the field.

One of Pampa's dominating players in that area is halfback Todd McCavit, who has also netted eight goals this year.

"Todd has done a great job for us, both with his play and leadership on the field," Flynn said.

Pampa is averaging four goals per game.

"In our past four games we've done a good job of putting pressure on our opponents' defense, which is a credit to our forwards — Jamey Smiles, Ascension Anguilano, Tim McCavit, Greg McDaniel and Salvador Delferrio," Flynn said. "I am extremely pleased with the we've progressed since the beginning of the season."

World bull riding championship won by Montana cowboy

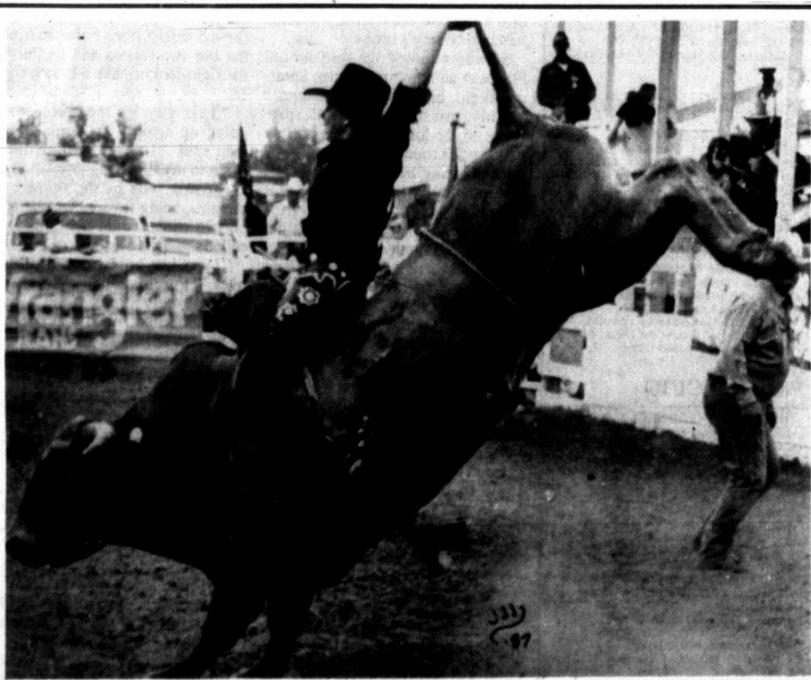

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Clint Branger of Roseoe, Mont. has scored a 90 in the finals to take the Justin World Bull Riding Championship title at West World.

Sixteen champions including nine of the top ten Professional Rodeo Cowboy Association (PRCA) bull riders, took on 16 qualifying challengers over the weekend in the world's richest bull riding event with a purse of $61,000.

To win the title and the $10,000 first place paycheck Branger, ranked seventh in the 1991 PRCA bull riding standings, beat out Gary Richards from Stephenville, Tex., who scored an 86. Richards, who took home a $6,000 paycheck from the finals, was the winner of Challenger Round 3 on Saturday afternoon.

Cody Lambert of Henrietta, Tex. scored an 84 to take third place. Michael Gaffney of Lubbock, Tex. finished fourth.

For the first time in bull riding event history, Jonnie Jonckowski of Billings, Mont., the women's champion, competed against top ranked men. Jonckowski made a good effort, but was bucked off before the eight-second buzzer.

This is a 1987 file photo of Jonnie Jonckowski, who competed against top-ranked men for the first time in bull riding history over the weekend at Scottsdale, Ariz.

Aggies topple Longhorns

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — A&M improved to 26-15 overall and 13-11 in the SWC. Texas Wunsch scattered three hits over six innings Sunday and Texas A&M finally beat Southwest Conference leader Texas, 11-5.

Wunsch (4-2) struck out six before tiring in the sixth. Freshman Chris Clemens worked the final three innings for his first save.

Lady Harvesters fifth in Amarillo Track Relays

Pampa's Lady Harvesters placed fifth in the Amarillo Track Relays held last weekend.

"I didn't feel we could win the meet because Abilene has a real strong team. I felt like we could have finished second, but we had some disqualifications and injuries that hurt us," said Pampa coach Mike Lopez.

Threatening volcanoes erupt in Sicily and Nicaragua

By PIERO VALSECCHI
Associated Press Writer

ZAFFERANA ETNEA, Sicily (AP) — Italian soldiers flew to the side of Europe's most active volcano today and placed explosives they hope will reroute a stream of lava threatening a village.

Residents of the village of Zafferana Etnea, home to 7,000 people, prayed and worried as the steaming black lava from Mount Etna reached the last earthen barrier — 800 yards away.

"Only a miracle of the Madonna can save our village," said Maria Leonardi, a resident.

Authorities said a plan to evacuate dozens of residents had been prepared, but only one house just outside town was emptied as the lava approached it.

Four navy helicopters carried soldiers to the side of the mountain, where they were placing explosives near a trough formed by the lava. They hope to shatter the wall of the tunnel, which has funneled the lava into a swift, hot stream.

"This will enable us to slow within two days the lava front, which will finally stop because it is no longer being fed," said Franco Barberi, a volcanologist working with the Civil Protection team.

U.S. helicopters from the nearby base at Sigonella are to drop huge concrete anti-terrorism barriers onto the lava tunnel to further destroy it.

The lava stream has been flowing since mid-December from the snow-capped mountain about 100 miles southeast of Palermo.

It has picked up pace sharply in recent days, destroying several acres of woods and fruit trees.

Officials said the stream slowed to about 12 to 15 feet an hour as it reached the third and last dirt barrier defending the town.

However, "it's the typical stop and go pace of the stream," according to army Col. Ferdinando Falco, the operation supervisor.

In Zafferana Etnea, residents nervously went about their business today, with fish and fruit vendors selling their products along the town's streets and city gardeners tending bushes and flowers.

Catania's Catholic archbishop, Monsignor Luigi Bommarito, said he hoped to take a helicopter up the mountain and bless the soldiers as they readied the explosives.

"I want to bring to these men, who undoubtedly are risking their lives for others, the solidarity of everyone," he said.

Experts say the lava could keep flowing from the volcano mouth for several months. Some major eruptions in the last centuries have lasted more than a year.

One of the worst, in 1669, reached Catania, about 16 miles away, and killed 20,000 people.

Powerful earthquake hits northern Europe

By TERENCE PETTY
Associated Press Writer

BONN, Germany (AP) — A powerful earthquake jolted a wide swath of northern Europe today, fracturing walls, toppling chimneys and injuring more than two dozen people.

German television said a 79-year-old woman in Bonn suffered a heart attack and died as a result of the quake.

Preliminary readings put the quake, which was centered near the Netherlands' border with Germany and Belgium, at 5.5 to 5.8 on the Richter scale, said Professor Ludwig Ahrhomer of the Seismographic Institute of the University of Cologne.

The epicenter of the quake, which struck at 3:20 a.m., was near the Dutch town of Roermond, according to Hein Haak of the Royal Dutch Weather Institute.

The tremor was felt hundreds of miles away in Brussels, throughout much of Germany and in parts of France.

Twenty-five people were injured in the German town of Heinsberg, near the Dutch border, when they ran outside and were struck by debris, said police spokesman Juergen Tomalla.

Three of the 25 were hospitalized and about 150 buildings were damaged, he said.

Five people were reported hospitalized after the quake in the north German communities of Mettmann and Krefeld.

In Langenfeld, also a north German town, officials said a man suffered a head injury when he fell during the quake.

A medieval church was on the verge of collapse in Herkenbosch, which appeared to be the village hardest hit in the Netherlands, police spokesman Harry Clabbers said.

In the town, located just outside Roermond, up to 100 chimneys crumbled and fell, roof tiles plunged to the street and walls cracked, Clabbers said. Damage to buildings was also reported in other Dutch towns.

Hospitals in southern Holland treated an undetermined number of people for cuts and bruises.

Light damage to buildings was reported in at least five major German cities — mostly along the Rhine River valley — and in many smaller communities.

Water mains were cracked and cars were damaged by falling debris.

In Frankfurt, the quake caused tall buildings to sway.

A nine-foot-high chimney was toppled from a home in Essen.

"It was the strongest quake in the Rhineland since 1756," Ahrhomer said.

However, Belgian seismologists said an earthquake that registered 5.6 on the Richter scale caused extensive damage in Belgium in 1938.

Earthquakes are rare in northern Europe but have occasionally caused major damage. A quake in the 13th century wrecked the castle in the town of Rothenburg, 80 miles southeast of Frankfurt.

The Richter scale is a gauge of the energy released by an earthquake, as measured by the ground motion recorded on a seismograph. Every increase of one number means that the ground motion is 10 times greater.

An earthquake of magnitude 5 can cause considerable damage.
