

How many boys from HOWARD COUNTY won't come back?

NOBODY knows the exact number. Nobody. But—

The number who do come back—on their own two feet instead of in a flag-draped box—will be in exact proportion to the job we do here at home.

For every minute that we can help shorten the war will mean more lives saved. (213 Americans were killed in the final day of the last war, and 1,114 were wounded before the 11:00 o'clock Armistice took effect.)

Now one way all of us can help shorten the war is to tighten our belts and buy more War Bonds. Yes, still more. And . . .

If you think you're buying all the War Bonds you are able to, imagine—for a minute—that it's after the war . . .

. . . you're standing at the station . . . a bunch of home-town boys, still in uniform, climb off the train . . . one of them kisses his wife and grabs his kid in his arms . . .

. . . and then he turns to a young woman beside them; a girl who looks like his wife's sister, and you overhear him say . . .

"Catherine, I don't know how to tell you how sorry I am . . . it's such a shame about Joe . . . it makes me sick all over when I think how he'd be here today if the war had only ended a week sooner."

Think it over. Can't you buy a few more War Bonds to help end the war that week or month sooner? Sure, it may mean giving up something, but what's that compared to what they're giving up?

And remember, always—the money you "can't spare" may spare a soldier's life!

KEEP ON BACKING THE ATTACK!

Dear Friend:

Wartime is no time to waste words, time or money so we'll get right down to the point and give you an accurate picture and graphic appraisal of newsprint rationing and how it affects you as a subscriber of The Big Spring Herald:

Many daily newspapers in America will not, under any circumstance, accept new subscriptions. Many daily publications have ceased to offer any kind of inducements to subscribers.

* * * * *

We are not scaring a ghost out of the closet when we inform you that it may, within a very short time, be virtually impossible to enter a new subscription to this or any other newspaper or to renew a subscription that has expired by the subscriber neglecting to send in his remittance.

* * * * *

It has been the ambition of The Herald to provide the people of the Big Spring section with a newspaper service comparable with that offered in the larger cities of the state. In announcing bargain rates this year we are taking a position contrary to most newspapers. Perhaps they are right and we are wrong—but for a limited period, our customary Annual Rate offer will be in effect.

* * * * *

Like all other businesses, we are subject to many curtailments, restrictions and governmental directives. We strive to comply wholeheartedly with these measures as a wartime need. However, if further reductions are made in our allotment of newsprint it will leave us with no alternative except to withdraw this offer.

* * * * *

We hope that the vicissitudes of war will soon be removed and that we can enjoy the return to normalcy of peacetime . . . in the meantime, however, let us suggest that you send in your subscription NOW, even if the expiration date is some time off.

Pre-Flighters, Michigan, Navy High On List

By HAROLD CLAASSEN NEW YORK, Nov. 30 (AP)—Notre Dame remains as the top football team in the country, despite its 19 to 14, movie-like loss to Great Lakes but its popularity took a drastic cut.

Eighty-six of 131 sports experts, voting in the final Associated Press poll of the season, marked the Irish No. 1 on their ballots and their decisions kept Notre Dame on the throne for the ninth straight week.

The remaining 45 voters were definite in their opinions that the loss had robbed the Frank Leahy machine of much of its glamour.

Not only did Notre Dame's loss cost it heavily in points but it lifted the Great Lakes aggregation from 21st to sixth place and made the Iowa Pre-Flight, Irish victim No. 9 by a 14 to 13 count, a strong runnerup to the South Bend stalwarts.

The Southwest is not represented for the first time in recent years although both Texas and Texas A. and M. were included in earlier polls this fall.

The leading teams, determined on a basis of 10 points for each first place ballot, nine for second, etc., (first place votes in parenthesis):

TOP TEN Notre Dame (86) 1,259 Iowa Pre-Flight (12) 1,028 Michigan (1) 712 Navy 717 Purdue (12) 707 Great Lakes (1) 642 Duke (7) 522 Del Monte Pre-Flight (9) 240 Northwestern 233 March Field 212

Forsan Has Offensive Margin Over Van Horn, Foe In Bi-District Tilt

The Forsan Buffaloes, champions of district No. 5 six-man football league, will carry a better offensive record into their bi-district game here Friday evening than their foes, Van Horn, champions of district No. 6.

On the defense, however, Van Horn has a slight edge, having allowed only 43 points to opponents for an average of seven per game. Forsan allowed 57 points in seven games, an average of nine points per game. Forsan registered only one shutout during the season, while Van Horn held two opponents scoreless.

Houston Gets Oil Bowl Game

HOUSTON, Nov. 30 (AP)—Southwestern Louisiana Institute and Arkansas A. and M. will play a New Year's Day football game here at the high school stadium, Dick Freeman of the war sports committee announced.

SLI of Lafayette, La., is the only undefeated team in the Southwest. Arkansas A&M of Monticello, Ark., played a 20-20 tie with SLI in Memphis, Tenn., several weeks ago.

A group of Houston businessmen organized the bowl classic. Holly Brock is chairman. T. L. Fontaine and Roger Jeffery announced acceptances from the two schools.

SLI's team is composed largely of former Rice Institute stars assigned there by the marine training program. The team defeated Southwestern University here early in the season and last Saturday beat Randolph Field 6-0.

Southwestern Named To Play In Sun Bowl

EL PASO, Nov. 30 (AP)—Little Southwestern University will play New Mexico in El Paso's Sun Bowl and that will make four Texas teams appearing in the January Classics.

Texas will be represented in three bowls and will stage a like number of bowl games within its borders. Texas A and M was invited to the Orange Bowl to play Louisiana State.

Southwestern's tie was with Tulsa, which will play Georgia Tech in the Sugar Bowl, therefore there will be only one bowl game in the country Jan. 1 in which Texas will not have an interest, directly or indirectly. That will be the Rose Bowl in California which is using only Pacific Coast teams this time.

We don't have them, but we're getting them—including the type of vessel most needed in such an enterprise, aircraft carriers.

The newest of this type was commissioned for active service last week and it-bore the appropriate name of Bataan. It was commissioned in the presence of Vice President Osmaena of the Commonwealth of the Philippines and was hailed as a symbol of Filamerican solidarity and joint determination to free the islands and pay the Jap off for Bataan and Corregidor. It was so named, also, in honor of the men, both American and Filipino, who tied the Jap into a hard knot for months while we recovered from the first shock of Pearl Harbor.

Chapter 8

"Oh, it's nothing," Kitty said. "But we must have every cut taken care of immediately to forestall infection . . . rules, you know." She held up her hand disclosing a tiny scratch. "So, you took my advice and decided to build planes?"

"You might call it that," Pete said, disgust in his tone. He had to raise his voice above the pitch of a yell to make himself heard above the riveting. Now, people were watching them. "I'd like to take you home tomorrow night," Pete told her, his mouth close to her ear. He didn't hear her, "Okay," above the noise, but understood from the motion of her lips and her smile.

In a moment he was back again, chasing-the-dog with Alf, while Kitty's form grew small in the distance, finally disappearing around a corner.

"Where did you meet her?" Alf wanted to know.

"Near my home in Center Valley. She told me about getting a job here. . . ."

Pete's words broke off suddenly as he grabbed Alf's arm, indicating silence. He nodded his head toward a ship on the sub-assembly line next to the ship on which they were working. A big man was crawling stealthily out of the tail section, a pair of pliers in his hand. Glancing furtively from side to side, the man slid behind the next ship . . . and was gone.

"Hm-mn," said Alf. "I wonder what he was up to?"

Together, they made their way to the ship the man had been in. Alf produced a flashlight from his hip pocket. "I'll crawl inside," he said. "I'll see what he done."

He came out a moment or two later, shaking his head. "Can't find a thing wrong," he said.

"But, he must have done something in there," Pete protested. "Are you sure?"

"Nothing wrong in that ship," the old man came back. "I know the insides of them ships like I always know that the Cafeteria will have peas and carrots for lunch every night but Fridays. . . . then, it's fish. There's nothing wrong inside that ship!"

"Maybe he got scared out," Pete said. Then, "Did you get a good look at him? Do you know who he is?"

The old man nodded carefully. "That, my boy," he said, slowly, "was your Mr. Brackmyde!"

At precisely that moment, a big man in dingy white coveralls came around the end of the fuselage. Pete noticed something vaguely familiar about him. It was, "Big Boy," the man with whom he had had the argument as he came into the plant.

With little black eyes, Big Boy regarded the two dog-chasers. He started toward them. "It's him, now," Alf whispered. "It's Brackmyde, alias 'Big Boy,' came up to them and looked at Pete. 'You're the new guy,' he stated. 'And I see they've put you with old man Mose, doing a little dog-chasing.' With hands in his pockets, he rocked back on his heels and grinned. 'Well, don't believe too much of what this old buzzard tells you.' He took a step closer. 'About this afternoon,' he continued, 'I'm sorry we had that little run-in, but you're new here and you didn't understand. Graham is just a little chiseler . . . owes nearly everybody in the plant. . . .'

"Even if he is," Pete interrupted, "you had no right to pick on him."

"Waved a hand as if to dismiss the matter. 'Now, I been watching you two from down the line and I'll give you a little friendly advice; cut down on the talking. Not

Washington Daybook— Filibuster Is Due On Anti-Poll Tax Bill

The real poll tax issue has been buried under a torrent of words. There are many sound arguments against it. In the last 30 or 40 years, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and Florida have abolished poll taxes as a voting requirement. At least two other states, Tennessee and Arkansas—have reportedly strong movements to do away with it.

Why then, you ask, are poll taxes so vigorous in their objections to letting it be abolished nationally? There's one good reason and for that reason the poll taxers number in their ranks some widely recognized men of vision in governmental affairs. That is that the anti-poll tax bill would be one more step in Federal infringement of states' rights.

Opponents of the poll tax frequently argue that it is an example of racial prejudice, denying the negroes and the South their constitutional right to vote. Proponents reply that the tax is levied on whites and negroes alike.

Two Senators stormed recently that the pending bill is the work of "the Communist party and also the radical hybrid American labor party in the Democratic organization." The poll tax fight is older than both parties. Some opponents of the bill have publicly attributed it to the influence of Mrs. Roosevelt.

These are examples of how confused the real issues have become. There are scores of organizations and ten times that many influential individuals opposed to the poll tax. There are many on the other side and some of them have never been allied with anything more "radical" than conservative states' rights groups.

And the poll tax row is older than all of them.

Capital Comment — GOP's Admit 'Inflation-ism'

By GEORGE STIMPSON

As I understand it, Secretary of State Hull was asked to report on the Moscow conference directly to Congress at a joint session to prevent the necessity of his appearing before half a dozen or more different committees.

"The whole philosophy of the subsidy people rests on this assumption that this cowardly and selfish policy of requiring our soldiers to do both the fighting and the paying is necessary," declared Cong. Bob Poage, of Waco.

Congressman Paul Kilday, dad of the dad-deferment bill, told the House: "The WAVES and WACs have replaced men, and are doing an admirable job. The military program is an over-all program. For every WAC and WAVE that goes into the service it becomes unnecessary to draft a man who would otherwise be necessary."

Wright Patman said the republican party has become the inflationary party. That's right, snapped back Minority Leader Joe Martin. "I admit that since last November 2 it has been the inflationary party. It is growing."

The subsidy fight has frayed more nerves than any other subject that has hit Congress in a blue moon.

PAW licks reports record production rate of 4,694,000 barrels a day of all petroleum liquids has been certified to the various oil-producing states for December, representing a net increase of 58,500 barrels a day over the total rate certified for production during November. "The net increase in the Southwest district," says licks, "is attributable entirely to Texas, where measures promulgated by the Texas Railroad Commission in the interest of preventing physical waste in the East Texas field have made it possible to increase oil withdrawals as a result of a sharp decrease in water production."

Life's Darkest Moment

Hollywood Sights And Sounds— When Stars Get Nervous

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD — I sat around today with three great artists of the concert stage—Jose Iturbi, the pianist, Albert Coates, the conductor, and Gracie Allen, the what's-it of the keyboard. And the talk turned to stage fright, camera fright, and mike fright.

Mr. Coates, kindly, white-haired, confessed that in this, his second movie, he still "tightened up" when he stepped in front of a camera.

Mr. Iturbi, dark-haired, rugged, pleasant, said he didn't mind the camera.

"No matter what happens, before the camera, you can try it again. And again. But do you know what tied me in knots yesterday? Playing 'Rhapsody in Blue' at the Hollywood Canteen. And going on the air — it wिल्ts me. After a minute and a half there I can hardly walk off the stage."

Miss Allen, chirpy, in a black, gold-trimmed gown so tight she could sit only on a stool, chirped, "Movies? They're not scary. You miss, so you do it again. On the air, I break out in perspiration and I feel awful. If you miff a line you can't ad lib to cover because that takes time, and every minute is already taken."

Mr. Coates still thought movies were, if not scary, excuse enough to tighten up. In 'Song of Russia' he conducted the musical score (off-screen) and appeared briefly at the piano, but in 'Two Sisters and a Sailor' he's an actor. They say he's a comedian but he denies this.

Mr. Coates is conductor of the London Symphony and the Covent Garden opera, and Mr. Iturbi, until he demonstrated a skill at boogey-woogie in "Thousands Cheer," was noted mainly as a fine performer of the classics and sometime conductor. His sister, Ampara, is with him in this film, and Miss Gracie Allen crashes this select musical circle as composer and executor of "Concerto for Index Finger."

Despite numerous executions, the like of which few compositions could survive, Miss Allen's only masterpiece of music lives on, and lives again in the picture. Miss Allen, in the movie, sees a great future for one-finger playing. She assures Coates and Iturbi you can use the other nine fingers to knit with, and as for chords—"chords," she avers solemnly, "are on the way out."

Miss Allen should know about such things. "I took piano lessons for seven years," she said, "and then the teacher gave me up." (Sort of impatient, wasn't it?)

But she was still suffering for the art. "Look!" and she displayed her index finger. "We shot the concerto so long I broke my finger nail—and I can't move my finger."
